'Unbelieving' Helen Parker Is Selected Miss Greenville 1970

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

"I still can't believe it's true. I think I would be crying right now if I could believe it." Those sentiments were expressed by an elated Helen Parker last night moments after she was selected "Miss Greenville 1970" at the annual Jaycee affair.

The selection of Miss Parker as Greenville's representative to the "Miss North Carolina" festivities this summer culminated a night of evening gown, swim suit and talent competition that posed a delightful challenge to the visiting judges.

Named as first runner-up in the competition was Debbie Buff of Miami, Fla., and second runner-up honors went to Gail Robinson of Fayetteville.

Rounding out the top five finalist were Jan Johnson of Halifax and Lynne Carelock of Hopewell, Va. Serving as mistress of ceremonies last night was Miss America of 1962, Maria Beale Fletcher, now Mrs. Jim Growdon. She sang a medley of folk songs prior to the evening gown competition.

Following the evening gown competition, Miss Greenville of 1969, Patty Stimmel of Raleigh, entertained with a vocal selection of "The Simple Joys of Maidenhood."

Talent competition followed Miss Stimmel's last official entertainment gesture and quite a variety of talent was offered by the ten contestants.

Individual talent presentations consisted of: Carol Mabe, modern dance; Debbie Buff, balance beam routine; Sheila Spruill, fire baton twirling; Jan Johnson, skit and song; Edna Roundtree, dramatic recitation on Macbeth; Gail Robinson, jazz and acrobatic dance; Annie Nicholson, baton twirling routine; Sharon Davis, monologue on education; Lynne Carelock, piano selection; and Helen Parker, vocal selection.

Swimsuit competition followed intermission as judges were given a further chance to rate the figures, grace, poise and posture of each contestant.

Entertaining last night during the pageant was the reigning Miss North Carolina, Patricia Elaine Johnson of Winston-Salem, who sang a medley of songs prior to the announcement of the five finalist.

Also on hand for a skit presentation and piano selection was the reigning Miss Martin County, Margarite Nelson who later appeared in evening gown during her first official appearance since becoming Miss Martin County.

The final selection of Miss Greenville followed a question and answer session much like the parent Miss America Pageant format which allows the judges to get an idea of the quick-thinking abilities of the finalist.

The "Miss Congeniality"

award, presented to the girl selected by the other ten contestants as the "nicest person to be around", was presented last night to Sharon Davis of Fayetteville.

Judges who served last night included Mrs. Marylyn Hull, wife of the former Wake Forest football standout, Bill Hull and former chaperone to the Miss North Carolina Pageant; Dewey Bibbitt, Jaycee of Wilson; Larry Ward, candidate for state Jaycee president in 1970 from Durham; and Jerry Ball of Charlotte, veteran of numerous pageants throughout the nation.

Miss Parker, originally of Goldsboro and now living in Roswell, New Mexico, will receive a $300 scholarship and trophy, in addition to various credits and certificates from merchants in Greenville.

Her reign as Miss Greenville will include a trip to Raleigh in July to represent the city in the annual state pageant. Her plans now call for, "continuing my education at East Carolina and enjoying a full year of wonderful new experiences."

Miss Buff, as first runner-up, will receive a $150 scholarship and trophy and gift certificates from a number of Greenville businesses.

Miss Robinson will receive a trophy and several gift certificates for her selection as second runner-up. The Miss Congeniality, Miss Davis, will receive a trophy signifying her honor and various gift certificates.

U.S. Cardinal Resigns Due Age

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has accepted the resignation of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, the archbishop of Los Angeles, Calif., for reason of age, the Vatican announced today.

The cardinal, a native of New York, will be 84 on June 25.

The announced man named no successor.

Major Land And Air Battle

Israeli Tank Force Crosses Into Jordan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Israeli armored force crossed into Jordan south of the Dead Sea Tuesday night and remained for nearly 20 hours, striking at Arab guerrilla bases, the Israeli military command reported today.

Jordan said there was a major land and air battle.

The Israelis said their force killed five guerrillas and suffered no casualties or damage. Al Fatah, the guerrilla organization, claimed its men killed two of the raiders and destroyed two Israeli tanks. It was the longest Israeli penetration of Jordan since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Saudi Arabian forces stationed in the area joined Arab guerrillas and Jordanian Army units in battling the Israelis, an Al Fatah communique issued in Damascus said.

A Jordanian spokesman said the Israelis threw in planes, tanks and artillery. Reports to Amman, 100 miles northeast of the battle area said the Israeli force included about 40 tanks and half-tracks backed by heavy artillery. Israel said the armored raiding force entered Jordan to attack guerrilla bases.

An Israeli spokesman reported five guerrillas had been killed and a number of Arab vehicles damaged in the "combing operation."

No Israeli casualties were reported.

A Jordanian spokesman said the Israelis invaded at 7 p.m. Tuesday after an air raid in which one Jordanian civilian was killed and three others wounded.

The initial Israeli announcement did not disclose the size of the raiding force.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the operation was launched "following repeated attacks from Jordanian territory on the Dead Sea potash works at Sodom and on civilian settlements in the region."

The potash works were shelled Monday night. Israelis said the shelling attacks came from the village of Safi, a target of Tuesday night's raid. It is 2 1/2 miles inside Jordan.

On Awareness Committee's Request

City School Board Pondering Readmission Of 40 Students

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A suggestion to readmit 40 suspended Rose High School students was being considered by the Greenville Board of Education at a special noon meeting today.

Recommendation for this action was made yesterday at a meeting at Rose High with board members and the superintendent, Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, meeting with the newly formed citizens Awareness Committee.

Dr. Robert Lee Humber, co-chairman, told the superintendent and the board members: "We have a specific suggestion for the board to consider. The committee is asking you to consider readmitting the 40 students who have been suspended. The purpose of asking this is to permit the students to take exams and to continue with their education, with due process of hearings to follow."

Dr. Humber explained that this suggestion was being made for readmittance on a probationary basis, and that is in no way carried an implication that the suspended students be absolved of undergoing the due process of hearings. "We are aware that suspended students will, and should, be given hearings and a determination of their innocence or culpability established."

The 40 students of Rose High now under suspension include 36 Negro and four white. The first contingent were suspended a week ago Monday following the early afternoon melee; others have been suspended on succeeding days, most as the result of alleged misconduct not connected with Monday's flare-up.

Rev. Tommy Payne, a committee member, told the group: "We want it made explicit that we do not recommend readmittance of suspended students as a policy matter. This action would definitely be on a one-time basis as an act of good faith for our particular situation just now, but would in no way be an action the committee would recommend for any future occurrence."

Praising the board of education for their work, Dr. Humber cautioned members against efforts to do more than make suggestions or recommendations. "The School Board and the administration are the instituted authority of our schools. We as a community stand behind you."

Re-emphasizing a thought which has been expressed time and again in the committee meetings by both black and white citizens, Dr. Humber said: "There must be an acceptance of authority and discipline. We are all agreed that violence is simply not permissible. This community, this state, this country cannot tolerate violence or the lack of authority and discipline."

"An important point to remember," he added, "is that we cannot and should not stipulate when and where the board will make its decision. We are one community, and the suggestion for readmitting the students is made only with the thought that it may act to relieve tension at this time."

Following Dr. Humber's statements to the board members and the superintendent, Dr.

Hospital Board Asserts Early Decisions Needed; Space Problems Grow

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees voted last night to ask the County Commissioners to end discussions on various ways of providing additional hospital space as quickly as possible and to make some concrete plans since the need for additional beds is so very urgent.

Hospital administrator C.D. Ward told the Board there were some 11 patient with beds in the halls last night and that most of the time now, there are some patients in this situation.

A Licensed Practical Nurse education program to be carried on in the hospital by Pitt Technical Institute was approved by the Board. A much needed program here, it has finally been given the go ahead since the State Nursing Board has relaxed its position on two nurses' education programs being carried on at the same time in the same hospital. ECU has trained registered nurses here for some time. The LPN program is scheduled to begin at the first of next September.

Ward told the Board about a Candystriper program that is being instituted at Pitt Memorial under the sponsorship of the Medical Society Auxiliary. Young lady volunteers will be on hand to run errands for and generally assist and cheer patients. Their red and white uniforms will soon be seen on the hospital halls, Ward said.

E.H. Harvey gave the Board a detailed report on the accident at the hospital last Wednesday afternoon which resulted in the death of Hubert Coltrain that night. An inquest held Monday night showed that the hospital had taken precautions to insure the safety of the deceased and that the hospital staff was "free from blame" in the events that led to Coltrain's death. Coltrain reportedly died at 8:50 p.m. Wednesday as a result of injuries received after climbing from his third story window and falling from a ledge below it to the ground.

The medical staff for 1970 was approved. Acting chairman of the board Ed Waldrop asked Dr. H.H. Gradis, chief of staff, if he would invite several doctors to attend the board meeting each month so the trustees and the medical staff can become better acquainted and more aware of each other's concerns and problems. Doctors attending the meeting last night, besides Dr. Gradis, were Dr. D.H. Tucker, vice-chairman of the medical staff's executive committee; Dr. C.F. Gilbert, and Dr. R.L. West.

Hospital auditor Cecil Mizzelle reported to the Board and gave them some suggestions. He suggested they tighten up their credit policies as much as a county hospital can, that they control their accounts receivable as nearly as possible, and that they consider using a computer to keep track of their accounts receivable. He said a computer would enable them to get out monthly statements and would probably help with both of the previously mentioned problems.

Dr. West told the Board that the only thing barring a medical technology training program at Pitt Memorial Hospital now is lack of a lab space. He said the board which must approve a hospital for such a program says a hospital must have space to accommodate ten students just another incentive to enlarge the hospital facilities as quickly as possible," Dr. West said.

Win Color TV Fight

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Three Forsyth County residents have won their fight against a state Department of Social Services regulation which forbids welfare recipients to own color television sets.

In a ruling Tuesday, federal Judge Eugene A. Gordon ordered payments restored to Mr. and Mrs. James W. Merritt and Mrs. Leticia Sams, who were cut off from the welfare program Dec. 23 because they own color sets.

The Merritts won their set in a drawing and Mrs. Sams inherited hers.

Judge Gordon issued a temporary restraining order which calls for payment retroactive to Dec. 23.

The plaintiffs have asked the U.S. Middle District Court to rule on the constitutionality of the regulation.

However, Robert S. Weathers, a lawyer for the state attorney general's office, said the department is considering rescinding the regulation.

N.C. Post For Pitt Educator

Dudley Flood of Greenville has been named associate director of the North Carolina Department of Human Relations.

Flood, presently serving principal of the Bethel Union School, will accept his new position Feb. 6.

Flood will be working with a team of three men, headed by Robert Strother, former superintendent of the Greene County Schools, in the area of human relations under the State Board of Education. His responsibilities will include working with local schools, boards of education, and communities, in trying to prevent racial discord. The team will also be on hand when problems to erupt and will attempt to solve them.

He is replacing Harold Webb who was recently named Title I director of the state of North Carolina.

A native of Winton, Flood is a graduate from C.S. Brown High School in Winton. He received his AB degree in Social Studies from North Carolina Central University, and a Masters Degree in Education Administration from East Carolina University. He plans to work toward his doctorate at either Duke University or the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Flood serves as chairman of the Pitt County Good Neighbor Council, vice president of the board of directors for the Greenville Boys Club, a member of the Pitt County board of directors for the Mental Health Association, member of the board of directors for the Pitt County United Fund, chairman of the 26th District of the Boys Scout of America and a member of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross. He is also a member of Delta Kappa Pi and Phi Delta Kappa at East Carolina University.

"We are extremely sorry to lose Flood," said Arthur Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools. "He has contributed greatly to the Bethel Union School where he served as principal for three years."

Alford continued, "He has helped in many ways to improve human relations throughout the county. We anticipate that he will reach more people in his new role and that he will, in effect, be helping our local situation, too, as all of us suffer when there are disturbances in neighboring schools or counties."

DUDLEY FLOOD

"The Pitt County Board of Education recommended him to Dr. Craig Phillips and fell he will be a credit to himself and his race and to his colleagues in Pitt County," Alford noted.

Flood's salary will be in range of $14,000 to $15,000.

He is married to the former Barbara Thomas of Burlington and they reside in Greenville. Mrs. Flood serves as music coordinator with the Pitt County Schools.

Brrr-r-r

Sub-freezing temperatures are again plaguing Greenville and Pitt County residents. Temperatures for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today reached a low of 12 degrees.

According to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station, the high temperature for the same period was 30 degrees. At 8 a.m. this morning, the mercury stood at 14 degrees.

Only traces — unmeasurable amounts — of snow fell here yesterday. The Tar River level this morning stood at 2.8 feet.

Pitt-Greenville Airport Chosen Hub For Air Service Proposal

WASHINGTON, N.C. — A Mid-East Airport Authority has been proposed by members of the Mid-East Economic Development Commission, with the Pitt-Greenville Airport designated as the airport to serve as the center for such a development.

Meeting last night at the Washington County Club, 65 representatives from Pitt, Martin and Beaufort Counties, representing the three counties and their towns, discussed commercial air serve as a present and future need for eastern North Carolina.

The representatives agreed to organize a Mid-East Airport Authority, subject to the concurrence of all the county and town governments involved in the three counties. The authority would work for scheduled air line service into the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Long-range goals include the possibility of a regional airport to serve the entire East Carolina area. The idea was suggested this might indicate an airport other than the Pitt-Greenville one to serve this need. It was pointed out that travelers in the area must now go to the Raleigh-Durham or Norfolk airports, both about 100 miles from many points in eastern North Carolina.

The Mid-East airport at Pitt-Greenville would be designed to meet current needs for air service to provide scheduled flights for business and industries already located in this area.

The meeting was presided over by Carl V. Venters, Jr., of Farmville, chairman of the Mid-East Economic Development Commission Spokesmen for the three counties were Dr. Joe Pou for Pitt County; County Commissioner Joseph Thigpen for Martin County; and Jim Hackney III for Beaufort County.

Council Meeting

A special call meeting of the City Council is scheduled for Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

- Purpose of the meeting is to consider the following:
- resolution providing for the issuance of $400,000 electric light and power bond anticipation notes.
 - resolution providing for the issuance of $300,000 natural gas system bond anticipation notes.
 - a resolution fixing the form and manner of execution of $700,000 bond anticipation notes to be issued under the date of Feb. 5, 1970 and ratifying the application to the Local Government Commission for the approval, advertisement, and sale of said notes.
- Other matters to be considered in addition to bond issues are:
- amendment to the Lease Agreement for the Community Facilities Building in Moyewood.
 - resolution authorizing the application for an open space grant for the purpose of providing a public park for the city of Greenville.

Tea Honors Beauty Contestants

Contestants in the Miss Greenville 1970 pageant were entertained at a tea Tuesday at the Tar River Estates party house.

Pageant judges, Dewey Bobbitt, Marilyn H. Hull, O. Larry Ward, Gay Butler and Jerry Ball were also honored. Participating in the pageant, which was held last night, were Donna Jan Johnson, Carol K. Mabe, Helen Parker, Edna Roundtree and Donna Lynne Carelock.

Hostesses for the event were members of the Greenville Jay-Cettes. The beauty contest was sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees.

Aja Zanova Did A Figure Eight And Landed In The Free World

By KRISTI WITKER
NEW YORK (WNS) — Aja Zanova will "end up, as all traitors have, on a bench in Hyde Park or by leaping into the Thames," the Czech government predicted in 1950 when its teenaged ice star defected from her homeland. But this brunette beauty, who is the only World Skating Champion that Czechoslovakia ever produced, proved instead to be a highly successful "traitor."

Now married to restaurateur Paul Steindler, and living in New York, Aja looks too young to have willfully defected from anywhere twenty years ago. As we sat over Shish Kebab in one of her husband's New York restaurants, La Brochetteria, I pressed her for details of the decision that changed her life and made such a profound impact on the world of American figure skating.

was just easier for everybody. "The government had decided that after the England Championships, I would go to Moscow to teach skating, appear in movies, and live in a free house the Kremlin would give me. What I really wanted to do, though, was to compete in the 1952 Winter Olympics. The girl who had won in 1950 had been my runner-up and I thought I could win. But the government refused to let me go. They said 'two medals are enough for us, and then you got to Moscow.'"

Aja said that she didn't really discuss her decision with her parents before she left for London, but did work out a code language with her mother so she would be able to talk to her from London. Coach

Pollard; sewing, Mrs. J.C. Galloway; public speaking, Mrs. George Snyder. Mrs. John Miller is general chairman for the festival.

To London
By the time she was thirteen, Aja was an accomplished skater, a talent rewarded in 1949 by a Gold Medal. The following year she was sent with the Czech team to the 1950 World Skating Championships in London where she successfully defended the World Crown she had won in 1949 and earned another Gold Medal for Czechoslovakia, sixteen-year-old Aja had made a decision. "The Communist regime came in 1948," she said. "After that, every time I went outside the country, men were assigned to watch me. The government refused to let my mother travel with me even though she was my coach—just these two men who knew nothing about skating. They had to write a report about my activities every day and so did I. One time in London the guards wrote that I practiced for three hours and on my report that day, I put down one hour. Well, the commotion that caused, and the question? 'Where was I the other two hours?' After that we always compared reports and made them the same. It

After the Championships, Aja moved into the home of her coach, Arnold Gerschwiler, and his wife, and stayed in London, ostensibly to do some promotion work, while the rest of the team returned to Czechoslovakia. Meanwhile, back at home, her mother was summoned to the local newspaper and told to call her daughter in London and find out the reason for her delay in returning. Aja was called to a London newspaper to receive the call (monitored), and by prearranged signal told her mother that she was involved with promotion work and would try to get back soon, while her mother informed Aja that she was "going to the country for a few days." Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lafayette Martin of Bethel announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynda Kay, to Marcus Clifton King, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Clifton King of Chapel Hill. The wedding will take place March 14.

order to allow her mother time to escape before news of her daughter's defection reached the newspapers, Aja virtually hid out for several weeks at the Gerschwiler residence. James Bond has nothing on the events which followed, including her seizure by two men in a black limousine the one time she ventured out of the house, her narrow escape, and finally her trip to the United States.

Mrs. Spilman Is Garden Club Speaker Friday

"Conservation" was the subject of Mrs. J.B. Spilman when she spoke to the Greenville Garden Club on Friday at the home of Mrs. Claud Batts.

Mrs. Spilman began with the story of this country when the Indians conserved the trees and animals. They only took what they needed and could use.

Continuing she said, then with the colonization of our country, the waste of trees and animals began. Erosion and pollution followed. Many birds and animals have become extinct.

Mrs. Paul Davenport presided over the business session. Mrs. Spilman, litter bug chairman, gave a report on work being done.

Mrs. J.C. Galloway Jr., ways and means chairman, gave a report of note book paper and fertilizer which has been sold. Mrs. R.V. Keel, exhibit chairman, called on Mrs. Uran Cox to show her arrangement "A New Day." Mrs. Cox, garden therapy, told of plans for a new project at the nursing home.

A social hour was held prior to the program. The refreshment table was covered with a green cloth centered with an arrangement of red carnations and ferns.

Mrs. Batts was assisted in serving by Mrs. C.M. Respass, Mrs. J.A. Piver and Mrs. E.S. Worthington.

Lovers Seek Approval Instead Of Advice

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: How can a thing like this happen to two mature, supposedly intelligent people? My best friend's husband and I are hopelessly in love. We have been meeting secretly every chance we are able to swing it, for the past two years.

We realize how much there is at stake if we are caught, but our love is stronger than we are.

We have honestly tried to stop seeing each other, but it always ends up the same way. We can't stay away from each other.

We are together with our own mates quite often, and we feel some guilt, but the four of us enjoy being together, too.

We aren't kids, Abby. We have children in college. It's too bad we didn't meet years ago, but since we didn't, we are making the most of it now.

My husband and his wife are two wonderful people, but something must have been lacking in both our marriages, or this never would have happened. It wasn't a premeditated love affair. It just happened one day accidentally when we were together—alone.

Divorce is out. We aren't hurting anybody this way, Abby, but we have only one life to live. Any advice for—

"TWO IN LOVE"

DEAR TWO: You don't want advice, you want someone to tell you that as long as you don't get caught, you aren't "hurting" anybody.

There is one basic flaw in your thinking. You say, "This wasn't a premeditated love affair—it just happened accidentally." Not true. Nobody falls in love "accidentally." He has to break the door down. When two people are mutually attracted to each other, they send out vibrations. [This is the beginning, and it's usually called "an innocent flirtation."] If one, or the other rejects these vibrations—no "love affair" develops.

So far you've gotten away with "murder," [or without it] which makes you two of the luckier ones. Knock it off before your luck runs out.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a habit which is not only annoying but downright embarrassing. When we are out, he calls the waitresses, "Dear," or "Honey." I am sure he doesn't intend this to be endearing, at least he assures me that he doesn't, but it still bothers me.

Since he reads your column, perhaps you can make him realize how inconsiderate he is, since he knows I object to it so strongly.

"HONEY NUMBER ONE"

DEAR NUMBER ONE: I'll try. Most waitresses prefer to be called "Miss." Some have their names embroidered on their uniforms, or wear pins bearing their names—which I think is the most sensible idea of all. But if you really want to help your husband overcome this embarrassing habit, suggest that he ASK the waitress what her name is. Then address her by her name.

Sensible Course On Schools

The Pitt County Good Neighbor Council and the Pitt Interracial Society are on solid ground in backing the board of education's plan to desegregate high schools as the four new county schools are completed.

The two groups, which met with the county board of education as guests, this week voted to ask Federal Judge John Larkins to consider Pitt County as a special case in desegregation rulings.

The concern arose because of recent federal court rulings which are requiring school districts to desegregate immediately, even in the midst of a school term.

While this may be the letter of the law, it would be regrettable if the Pitt County schools were faced with such a task, even as the four new high school plants are being constructed which will achieve full desegregation.

Unfortunately only one of the new schools will be completed by next September. The other three are scheduled to be completed by January, 1971.

It is obvious that reorganizing the schools in September to achieve desegregation and then to reorganize them again in January would be upsetting for the students and the faculty.

Pitt County has been planning for some years to provide the facilities which will allow for operating a unitary school system in accordance with the law.

The citizens of the county voted bonds for construction of the new schools and all the planning has been in direction of desegregating the high schools as the new schools could be placed in service.

The Good Neighbor Council and the Interracial Society have shown they recognize the wisdom of seeing this long range planning through to its culmination. We hope, for the sake of orderly educational procedures, that the plan can be followed.

We're Paying Heavily As Inflation Increases

It is a awesome thing for the average citizen that 6.1 percent of his income last year went to satisfy a raging inflation.

That is what the government's figures for the year show, however. It was the worst period of inflation in 20 years. For the consumer it meant that every dollar he spent was worth six percent less at the end of the year than it was at the beginning.

On the practical side, it meant that hamburger was up 24 percent; eggs, 17 percent; lettuce, 31 percent and milk, 3.6 percent.

Housing cost went up 6.7 percent; clothing and transportation, 5.2 percent and medical care, 6 percent.

Obviously such a rapid rise in costs is unacceptable to the average American family. On the bright side, however, there are a number of signs that the inflationary pressures are abating. Hopefully this year inflation will be brought under control.

Turnaround In Budget Plans

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The remarkable, perhaps fateful, turnaround last week by President Nixon on his first budget can be directly traced to backstage influence by Dr. Arthur Burns, the conservative economist and longtime Nixon advisor about to take command of the nation's central banking system.

Burns, who will step out on Feb. 1 as a Presidential counselor and step in as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, objected strenuously to Mr. Nixon's all but final plan to balance the new budget with minor tax increases. Consequently, the new, unscheduled round of ruthless budget-cutting ordered by Mr. Nixon to the consternation of amazed department heads will produce a budget balanced by holding down expenditures—the Burns formula.

That is designed to insure that the Fed, under Burns, will order a desperately needed loosening in monetary policy—an increase in the money supply. But whether the President's anti-inflation credibility is enhanced or eroded by this change of method is questionable.

Indeed, a substantial segment of the financial community distrusts suspiciously low expenditure estimates and would be considerably more impressed with Mr. Nixon's determination to fight inflation had he called for excise tax increases.

Just such a tax increase seemed certain at year's end. Budget Director Robert Mayo felt that, even under Spartan economies, the budget could not be balanced without additional revenue. David Kennedy, Secretary of the Treasury, agreed. Neither Mayo nor Kennedy the two Federal officials most responsible for the budget advocated another stab at budget cutting.

To reach the balanced budget promised by the President, Kennedy submitted a relatively painless package: accelerated collection of estate and gift taxes (a one-year windfall of $1.5 billion) plus higher excises on liquor, tobacco, and gasoline ($3 million a year). By Jan. 1, most officials assumed this was the final package.

They underestimated Dr. Burns in his new role as keeper of the monetary supply. As White House counselor, Burns had often been on the losing side on fiscal policy-making. But as chairman-designate of the Fed, Burns has vast new powers.

The Nixon economic team belatedly now agrees with Prof. Milton Friedman that the Fed's prolonged tight money policy threatens the national economy. They had assumed that Burns, incomparably closer to Mr. Nixon than outgoing Chairman William McChesney Martin, would quickly open up the money valves if the President submitted a balanced budget that demonstrated dedication to tight fiscal policy.

But within the past fortnight, Burns began arguing that a budget balanced by tax increases which Congress might or might not adopt was not good enough. Unless the budget was balanced through still more stringent expenditure cuts, Burns hinted darkly, he might not be able to convince his colleagues on the Fed that money should be eased.

Moreover, Burns recruited a valuable and effective ally: George Romney, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Painfully aware that the housing slump fellow has the uneasy feeling he is slowly being covered with mold, and everyone wishes he were somewhere else and doing something else.

Well, why not? That's what daydreams are for to let us travel in imagination to where we want to go and do what we want to do.

For example, all you have to do is lean back in a swivel chair, close your eyes, and in a trice you are—

Sitting in a vast elephant graveyard in Africa surrounded by millions of dollars worth of ivory tusks, all yours for the taking.

Peering into the lovesick eyes of a beautiful veiled Arabian princess as she strums a silver flute and sings you sad songs of desire.

Speaking to a joint session of Congress in behalf of the vast silent majority of Americans, who have chosen you to be their spokesman.

Being told sorrowfully by Gen. Custer you can't accompany him on his march to the Little Big Horn, as he must leave someone trustworthy behind to mind the store.

Stealing a huge ruby from the navel of a stone idol while chanting natives hail you as their new No. 1 god.

Opening a letter from the White House and finding it contains an invitation to dine with Pat and Dick next Wednesday. "P.S. don't forget to bring along your thinking cap," writes Pat. "We plan to play charades later."

Piloting an unknown young thoroughbred to a seesaw victory in the Kentucky Derby that hangs up a track record. Saving a stricken young seaman's life aboard a submarine in a daring operation during which you give him two quarts of your own blood while cutting out his appendix.

Having Brigitte Bardot write and ask if you'll be her pen pal so she can improve her English. The snapshot she encloses proves she has no need to improve her body English.

Receiving a medal for valor for singlehandedly saving Ft. Knox from being overrun by a sudden attack by Mafia hoodlums. "And here's a couple of gold bars, too," says the commander. "You certainly earned them, and the nation won't miss them."

However, if the boss comes by and catches you dreaming that particular daydream, you may find yourself back in the doldrums real quick and with no swivel chair you can any longer call your own.

N.C. Politics Stirring Again

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

RALEIGH — The tempo of behind-the-scenes political maneuvering has quickened across North Carolina during the past few days.

It is not ahead of schedule. This is the time of year for it to be happening. Decisions are being pondered and must be made soon—about this year's political campaigns and individual candidacies.

Thus far signs indicate it will be a rather unusual political year. No major statewide offices are at stake

Herald has called on state planners to demand a new art museum which must be distinctive and uniquely North Carolinian.

The state, the newspaper says, "ought really to do itself up proud when it begins the design" of the proposed new art museum. It points out that such structures as the State Fair Arena and the State Legislative Building not only are unusually daring in design, they are practical, completely utilitarian for their purposes.

Now, it says, the nation's first state art museum deserves a unique house because of its already-established fame. North Carolina was the first state in America to underwrite a treasure of great art for its people.

The 1969 General Assembly appropriated $3 million to be used on a matching basis for a new art museum. The museum presently is located in an annex of the old Highway Building in downtown Raleigh.

CIRCLING — Circling the square.

The State Banking Commission has done one of its lengthiest agendas in several months this week with hearings on 18 applications for mergers and new branches. Applications involve banking facilities in 11 counties.

Hearings on the subject of teaching environment and natural resources were begun this week by a newly-appointed study commission headed by Rep. Norwood Bryan Jr. of Fayetteville. Bryan introduced legislation in the 1969 General Assembly directing that such a study be conducted by a Task Force representing the State Board of Education. Subsequently, Bryan was named chairman.

The Farmers Cooperative Exchange (FCX) reports patronage refunds to farmer members totaling $753,000 from the fiscal year ended last June 30. FCX is a two-state farm cooperative. Refunds were made on the basis of 2.3345 per cent of a member's purchases of grain, seed, fertilizer and other farm commodities.

Officials said there were more than 27,800 individual refunds.

but all 11 members of Congress will be seeking reelection. It is a legislative election year with all seats in the House and Senate at stake. And there will be elections for seats on the State Supreme Court, Courts of Appeals and Superior and District court benches.

The filing deadlines fall on Feb. 20 and March 20 for respective offices.

PRELIMINARY — Almost all sources believe that the primaries on May 2 (second primaries on May 30 if necessary) will be simply preliminary to the main events, the general election of next November.

This of course is because of the vigorous movement on part of the state's Republicans to organize and gear for further successes.

ISSUES — There is no lack of issues but these overlap both party lines and both state and national scene. It is difficult to assess just which issues will be relevant to which particular political campaign, or to foresee whether there will be a mixture of emotionalism and reaction.

Candidates and would-be candidates are trying to sift these factors and decide on their course of action and position. It is proving rather difficult in many instances.

No Fun At A Fur Farm

WASHINGTON—The maxi coat has put a terrible strain on all our furry animals. Everything from mink to raccoons is in tremendous demand, and it is impossible to fulfill all of the orders. I didn't realize how serious it was until I visited a fur farm in Upstate New York. I talked to a male mink named Emba who seemed to be very tired.

"It's been agony," he said, wiping the perspiration away from his forehead. "The farm is on a full 24-hour shift, but we still can't meet the demand. Stand in front of me so the farm owner doesn't see I'm resting."

Emba said, "It was bad enough when they introduced the maxi fur coat for women, but what really did it to us was when they started pushing maxi fur coats for men. There's just so much a mink can supply."

Other Editors Say Zoo An Asset

(Henderson Dispatch) Establishment of a State zoo has been agitated in and out of the Legislature in recent years, and the 1969 session went so far as to appropriate $250,000 for financing preliminary plans.

North Carolina ought to have a State zoo. Of course, it needs other things as well. Like so many other governmental units and even individuals it cannot afford everything it desires nor many of the things needed. A thing of this sort, however, would be educational in character along with other phases of youth training and becoming acquainted with nature and with animal life in particular.

Two Raleigh men, Kidd Brewer and Bert Caudie, have offered to provide and donate animals and reptiles without cost to the State. They would bring in monkeys, snakes and other living things from the Amazon jungles of South America. Other animals could be obtained from various sources, presumably without unreasonable cost.

Hearings already have been held in various parts of the State in a study of possible locations. It would seem that Raleigh as the State capital and the center of government would be the logical site. A zoo would be a major attraction for the thousands of children who every spring visit Raleigh to explore the Capitol, the State House, the museum and historic sites in general.

If it came to that, some modest amounts from educational funds appropriated by the Legislature might be squeezed out to help along the cause.

"Every time the farmer sees me resting, he starts measuring my plet with a tape measure. What choice do I have?"

The State Museum in Raleigh is a miniature—repeat, miniature—zoo in itself but nothing even remotely resembling what an outright animal center would be. None would suppose that a zoo at the outset would be complete and all inclusive of the countless families of animals that are herded into such places in the large population centers. But it could and undoubtedly would

"It must be hard on the female minks, too," I said. "They hardly get to feed their offspring before they're expected to produce a new family. The farmer has installed loud-speakers which play music that is supposed to make our work easier, but in between the music he puts on commercials, such as 'An idle mink is a dead mink' and 'The mink paw you save may be your own.'"

"It must be difficult to give birth under those conditions," I said. "The driving force behind every fur farm now is fear," Emba said.

"It isn't just us," he continued. "Look at those rabbits over there. Would you believe at one time those rabbits were happy at their work?"

"They seem so listless and haggard," I said. (Continued On Page 5)

Strength For Today

NEVERTHELESS GOOD

We read in the Book of Genesis (1:31) that "God saw everything that He had made, and, behold, it was very good."

But what a mess we seem to have made of it. With all our knowledge and sophistication we are lunging at one another's throats in war. We pollute the air we breathe and the water we drink. Policemen stand guard at public schools to protect the teachers from violence. But why go on? We know all this just from scanning the headlines of the newspapers. Yet would anyone of us want to go back a thousand or two thousand years and live amid conditions that prevailed in those days? The old Roman Empire was coming apart at the seams two thousand years ago. One thousand years ago barbarians were clobbering what few centers of culture there were in western Europe. North and South American had not been discovered. There was no scientific medicine in the modern sense of the term. A few committed scholars living in monasteries were holding on to what little knowledge had come down to them from the past.

Certainly we are in a mess now. But now the mess our forebears were in continually. This is the best age in which anyone ever lived—and also the most dangerous age. Someone may press the wrong button some day (but we have been all over that before).

This age a mess? Yes, but it is the best mess in which any generation to date has found itself involved.

Costs Speed Decentralizing

By ELMER ROESSNER

While coming rises in the cost of moving goods will increase all prices, they will eventually disperse industry even further in the United States.

The immediate consequences will be another bizarre paradox of our managed economy: As the country is being pushed toward a recession in an effort to end inflation, prices will become inflated more than ever.

The cost of moving goods will rise sharply and quickly because of labor demands for higher pay. The Teamsters

Union has presented a series of demands which employers say will increase labor costs by 75 per cent. Union leaders say that this figure is nonsense; that the increase is far less. Nevertheless, there will be an increase and that will be fully reflected in trucking rates.

Other Hikes Acoming

Meanwhile, the railway-unions have been seeking higher wages under threats to strike. This and other increased costs have already spawned one increase in railroad freight rates and more are likely.

The cost of moving people is also going up. The Long Island Railroad, now owned by the state of New York, is planning a 20 per cent boost in commuter fares; New Yorkers have just been soaked with a 50 per cent increase in bus and subway fares.

ELMER ROESSNER

The airlines are seeking higher fares. The lines say they need them to pay for the new giant jets. There was a time when economists said that better machines would pay for themselves and eventually cut costs to the public, but this old and somewhat basic theorem seems to be getting another kick in the pants.

This trend to higher transportation costs will make the establishment of local industries more profitable. While a gasket factory in Los Angeles may have to pay higher prices for its raw materials than one in Worcester, Mass., it can deliver gaskets on the West Coast cheaper than Worcester can deliver there.

It's Already Working
This transportation bias has already led to business dispersal. The old line in so many advertisements. "Slightly higher west of the Rockies," has done more to industrialize the West than any chamber of commerce. It was a constant reminder to industry that plants in the West had a wonderful advantage: high transportation rates were like a tariff in protecting Western products from Eastern competition. Conversely, it also protected manufacturers in the East from Western competition.

The auto manufacturers and the brewers were quick to find this out. All auto makers have assembly plants across the nation. Beers that made Wisconsin famous are being brewed in New Jersey and California.

On the West Coast, a giant fashion industry has risen, partly to meet different tastes and partly because of the protection of high shipping costs.

Reduction In Army Manpower Looms By '72

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some key Pentagon planners forecast the Army will be cut about three divisions below current authorized strength by 1972 as the United States gradually sheds its "policeman to the world" role.
This reduction, to 14 and two-thirds divisions, would carry the Army almost back to where it was when the Kennedy administration took over nine years ago.

Some planners predict the Army will be down to 11 or 12 divisions within three years.
This, it is believed, will be accompanied by a gradual pull-back of most U.S. troops from South Korea and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization area, as well as disengagement from Vietnam.

Army and Marine leaders believe that over the next several years, this country's ground forces will be concentrated in a U.S.-based central reserve, to be sent abroad only where preeminent interests are at stake.

Ground force generals feel this will lead to greater reliance on nuclear weapons, particularly big strategic missiles, to safeguard the nation.
This recalls a debate in the late stages of the Eisenhower administration.
Democratic critics and some Army generals claimed then that an emphasis on massive retaliation starved the conventional military forces and gave the nation little choice between all out atomic exchange and humiliation.

So the Kennedy administration not only accelerated the growth of U.S. missile power but also increased American conventional forces. It boosted the number of Army divisions from 14 to 16.
But the national strategy aims were different then.
Robert S. McNamara, then secretary of Defense, told Congress in January 1962 this country's nonnuclear land, sea, and air forces had to be strengthened "if we are to have the capacity to respond promptly to limited wars in any part of the globe, and possibly in more than one place at the same time."

The Nixon administration, with the Vietnam war experience shaping its direction, aims to minimize commitment of U.S. ground forces abroad in the future.
As U.S. troops are gradually withdrawn from the Vietnam war, the Nixon administration has set in motion a reduction of U.S. forces.
The Nixon administration has pledged to maintain its present combat troop commitment in South Korea, totaling some 55,000 men, and its level of about 320,000 in Europe over the next 18 months.
But it is making no promises beyond July 1971. In fact, Undersecretary of State Elliot L.

Richardson said Tuesday in Chicago that while the United States is pledged to maintain its current strength in Europe until mid-1971 that doesn't mean the level will be held "for ever and ever."
Some senior generals are forecasting the U.S. commitment in NATO will be reduced to as few as 50,000 men by about 1975.

In the meantime, sources said, they believe the Nixon administration will try to work for a parallel withdrawal by the Russians from the other side of the Iron Curtain.

Diggings Indicate Thailand Gave Birth To Agriculture

By BRUCE DUNFORD
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Archaeological discoveries in Thailand are digging holes in the schoolbook theory that civilization was spawned in the rich Tigris-Euphrates valley.
Relics unearthed from two little-known diggings indicate that the Thais were both farming long before the ancestors of the Babylonians and the Hebrews, and used bronze for weapons and tools 1,000 years before the Chinese.

Dr. Wilhelm G. Solheim II, a University of Hawaii archaeologist, said that domesticated seeds, found in Spirit Cave near the Burmese border in northern Thailand, are the oldest found by modern man—and that these contradict history book theories that the Near East's "Fertile Crescent" gave birth to agriculture.
"The real surprise in the finds," Solheim said, "is that until now the Southeast Asian area has been regarded as unimportant in civilization's progress."
"It had been thought that the Thais and other people of this area borrowed their technology from the Chinese and Indians. Now it looks like it may be just the opposite."
Chester Gorman, then a University of Hawaii graduate student, discovered the Spirit Cave in 1965. In a lower level of the cave diggings Gorman found pebble tools, flakes, grinding stones, pottery—and the seeds.
The seeds were peas, beans and root plants. Early Near East agriculturalists primarily grew cereal grains, such as wheat and oats.

Carbon tests of the seeds proved them to be 11,690 years old.
"The earliest agriculture development in the Fertile Crescent area is about 9,000 years ago," Gorman said, adding that Spirit Cave is believed to have been occupied as long as 12,500 years ago.
At another digging, in the burial grounds of the prehistoric village of Non Nok Tha in northeast Thailand, graduate student Donn Bayard found an encrusted bronze tool.
"It shows metallurgy was a skill of these people some 2,000 years before traditional theories give them credit for," Bayard said.
His find, an ax with a socket for a handle, is the oldest known tool of its kind—and seems to prove that the Thais were using bronze 1,000 years before the Chinese.
"The Thais," Bayard said, "developed a sophisticated form of molding bronze by 2,500 B.C. While this does not predate the development of bronze in the Near East, it's significant because the Thais used a split mold."
The split mold comprises two halves of sandstone which are bound together and filled with molten bronze. It offered far more variety of tool and weapon design than the flat mold that was prominent at the same time in the Near East.

Bayard's digging team also found evidence that Non Nok Tha villagers were the first people in Asia to grow rice—between 3,500 and 2,500 B.C. This was long before rice was grown in China or India.
The theory that seed cultivation first developed in Southeast Asia is not a new one. It was postulated in 1931 by Europe's Aswold Menghin, and again in 1952 by geographer Carl Sauer of the University of California at Berkeley.
"They postulated what we are finding," Solheim said. "We're bringing in empiricism (knowledge by observation and experiment) to support their theories."
Wisconsin, resumed hearings today after two days of testimony last week when seven researchers cited suspected links between the pill and a wide variety of ailments including cancer of the breast, cervix and uterus.
Appearing with Wood were Dr. John Laragh of Columbia University and DR David B. Clark of the University of Kentucky Medical Center.
Laragh said the pill was suspected of causing serious hypertension in "certain rare but especially susceptible individuals."
Clark, a neurologist, said "There is reason to believe that women with hypertension or with a previous history of occlusive disorders of blood vessels are more at risk."
Wood, in the strongest indictment of the day against the pill, said "there is a minimum but definite hazard to life while using these drugs because of the side effect of blood clotting."

Resume Attack On 'The Pill'

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON, AP — A trio of doctors continued the medical onslaught against oral contraceptives today with more congressional testimony about suspected links between the pill and high blood pressure, strokes and fatal blood clotting.
Although none probed any hard new evidence of danger in their prepared testimony before the Senate monopoly subcommittee, all three urged caution in the use of the pill.
And one called for government support of massive research at once.
"Research from these drugs was far from complete at the time they were released for public use," said Dr. J. Edwin Wood, director of the Department of Medicine at Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia.
The subcommittee, chaired by Democrat Gaylord Nelson of will grow critically worse if tight money continues, Romney argued against a budget balanced by gimmicks—including doubtful new taxes.

By the time Mr. Nixon returned from San Clemente for last Tuesday's Cabinet meeting, he probably had decided to switch from Mayo-Kennedy to Burns-Romney. Although punctuated by Romney's powerful advocacy of additional spending cuts, the 3-1/2-hour meeting was essentially pro forma, its outcome predictable: a budget balanced by still deeper spending cuts, probably accompanied by the speed-up in gift and estate taxes.
This conforms to earlier strategy worked out by political experts inside the White House of submitting a balanced budget without higher taxes. When the Democratic Congress, predictably, breeched artificially low spending limits, Mr. Nixon later in 1970 would propose higher taxes—probably excises—and blame spendthrift Democrats as Election Day neared.
The only flaw in this scenario is that, even now, not all members of the financial community are buying it.

"They used to be eager beavers, but even beavers have a breaking point. They're so tired reproducing other beavers, but even beavers have a breaking point. They're so tired reproducing other beavers they don't bother to build dams any more. You see that male beaver walking on all fours? Would you believe he's only one year old?"
"This place certainly is depressing," I said.
"I don't know how much longer I'm going to last," Emba said. "I've fathered 134 mink babies, but it's getting to me."
"My back isn't what it used to be, and I have pains in my shoulders and I don't sleep well any more."
"If you would just send out the word that even minks have their limits, you would be doing everyone a favor. It may be too late for me, but perhaps my sons and their sons would be spared what I've had to go through since the maxi coat became the fashion of the year."

Eyewitnesses Tell Of Biafra Hunger, Homelessness, Chaos

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
OWERRI, Nigeria (AP) —
The first newsmen allowed inside fallen Biafra saw famished refugees fighting for food, looting by Nigerian soldiers and heard several firsthand accounts of women being raped by victorious Nigerian troops.

The farther the press party went inside former Biafran territory, the worse the conditions of hunger, homelessness and confusion became.

Everywhere refugees were on the road, teetering all their worldly goods on their heads, hunting lost husbands and children, trying desperately to change their Biafran money into Nigerian pounds to buy what food was available at little impromptu roadside markets.

A young British doctor, working in Nigeria less than two weeks, leaned his head against an ambulance and wept with rage.

"I've had Lugers stuck in both my ears," he sobbed. "My life has been threatened umpteen times by soldiers wanting to steal my trucks and ambulances. I'm not a doctor, I'm a bloody copper (policeman)." "

The doctor said he had just returned from an open field where 80 to 100 wounded Biafran soldiers were "lying in their own piss and excrement, waiting for treatment that never arrived."

"They bloody well ought to be dead," he continued "now I've got to go try and fix them up. Don't go near them unless you've got clothespins on your nose."

The doctor, from Colchester, would only give his name as "Doctor Phil." Without naming the unit, he said the soldiers on duty in the area of the pediatric hospital at Okporo were "such monsters" he never let the nurses go anywhere without an escort, "especially white ones—the native nurses can always go bush if something happens."

"The young girls are afraid to come out of the bush, they are terrified of what will happen," Ibo novelist Cyprian Ekwensi told the newsmen. "There is now a saying among them: 'Stay in hiding or you will be conscripted into the army.'"

"My sister Bibi was taken off and raped by the soldiers," a university student named Paul Ohagwa said. Two Biafran nurses who would only give their names as Theresa and Caroline said they were raped several times as they passed through roadblocks trying to make their way out of the bush.

In Port Harcourt, recaptured by federal troops 17 months ago and now a state capital, the state governor entertained top brass at his daughter's wedding feat. But just a few miles away, Ibo refugees faced death. About 600 were crammed into the tiny Niger Maternity Home, many of them lying motionless in the hot sun amid vomit, dust and flies.

A group of British construction workers took up a collection to find food for them. They said three to four died daily.

"The villages are the worst off," said an Irish missionary, Father Eamonn McMahon, surrounded by hundreds of refugees begging for Nigerian pounds in the shell-pocked main square of Owerri. "They have no food, their money is useless and we have no way of getting anything to them."

The once proud Ibos, who through education and ambition had moved farther up the ladder of progress than Nigeria's 200 other tribes, were reduced to begging, with outstretched hands by the roadside, and fighting and clawing at each other when a food bag fell off a truck or broke at a feeding station.

Such scenes were repeated endlessly in the newsmen's 150-mile tour of Ibo land. For all Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon's good intentions, it did not seem that the Nigerian army and the government relief machinery could begin coping with the problem.

Uli airstrip, except for a few potholes, seemed to be in excellent condition. But it was deserted save for the rusting carcasses of at least six planes bombed in their parking bays in the final federal siege.

A Nigerian captain in charge of guard detail at the ghost strip was outraged at questions of using Uli strip now.

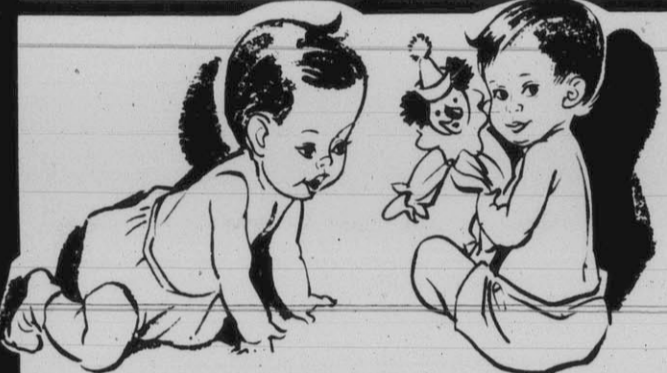

"It was built by the rebels," he said. "We would never think of using it. We will build a better airfield."

Amish men, a branch of the so-called Pennsylvania Dutch, shave until they marry, then grow a beard.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

MASONRY SLAB HOUSE—The gable end faces the front of street, and the gently-pitched saddle roof sweeps in one line over the carport. From the street side, awning windows and sliding glass doors are visible. There's a corner screened-in porch that can be used for outdoor dining, and another screened-in porch, 8 by 16 feet, in the front, that acts as an extension of the living room.

The kitchen has a serving window, and doors to both the living area and the back porch, and a large L-shaped counter with the sink under the window. The three bedrooms and two bathrooms form a separate wing, in which the storage wall acts as a solid, acoustical separation from the rest of the house. There's no basement. Floors are terrazzo or carpeting over concrete slabs. Walls are 8-inch thick concrete blocks with stucco on the outside, and insulation and plaster on the inside. The interior partitions are wood frame, with plaster on both sides. Ceilings are plaster, and the roof is topped with tar and gravel. Plan HA635R, with 1,140 square feet of living space, was designed by architect Jan Reimer, 1000 S2nd St. North, St. Petersburg, Fla., 33710.

Fellini Movie 'Indicts' Today

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Federico Fellini, an amiable bear of a man, was in town to show his latest film. His evaluation of Hollywood: A nice place to visit, but he wouldn't want to work here.

His countryman, Michaelangelo Antonioni, did make a film in America, the controversial though still unreleased "Zabriske Point." That wouldn't work for Fellini.

"A man must make a film about what he knows, and I do not know America," said the famed Italian director. "It is all right for a writer to say 'the table' in a book. But it is different with a director. He cannot say 'the table'; he must show you everything that is on the table. And for that you must know the place."

Fellini came here with his United Artist picture, "Fellini Satyricon," based on Petronius' fragmentary tales of lust and decadence in the Roman Empire. What it's all about, Alfie, I'm not sure. I'll leave that to the highbrow critics to fathom. But it is most certainly a stunning achievement, packed with visual shocks and limitless imagination.

The director himself provided an inkling of his purpose: "The film is not about the Roman Empire at all. It is the story of our civilization today—the desperate search for pleasures, the decadence and alienation, the failure to communicate."

If the world is indeed in the shape that Fellini envisions, then it might be better if we all got off.

Find Conscience Was 'Bigger' Than Stomach

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP)—The Montana State University food service department says it has found someone with a conscience bigger than his stomach.

A letter with $5 enclosed recently was delivered to the department.

"To get this off my mind and in order to feel better," the anonymous correspondent explained. "I am returning in cash the value of food I had burgled two years ago."

Taken by the guilt-ridden gourmet were two loaves of bread, one pound of ham, one quart of ice cream, one box of shrimp and a jar of pickles.

"I am sorry for this unwarranted wrongdoing," he concluded.

"Whoever you are," said acting MSU President William A. Johnstone, "you are forgiven."

FILM DELAYED
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"The Delta Factor" was delayed three months awaiting actor Chris George to complete his role with John Wayne in "Chisum."

Probing 'Habit' Remedy

By PAUL R. JESCHKE
MILL VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)
—The most effective way to kick the cigarette habit may be to force the smoker to choke in his own fumes, then give him a taste of clean, fresh air.

Applying the techniques of a relatively new science called "behavior research," the smoker is placed in a machine with a large plastic hood fitted over his head.

As soon as the patient lights a cigarette, fumes from an ashtray of burning cigarette butts are blown through a tube into the hood, causing him to choke and become nauseated by the overpowering smell.

"It doesn't take long before he instinctively puts out his own cigarette," said Dr. John R. Geary, a physician who heads the recently established Behavior Research Institute of California. "And as soon as he extinguishes the cigarette, clean, fresh air is blown into the hood and he can breathe again."

Geary, who is coordinating data from the anti-smoking experiment and other projects in behavior research taking place throughout the nation, cited the technique as one example of new interest in the science of human behavior.

Experiments, the scientist said, are taking place in Beverly Hills where grossly obese people who have tried everything else to lose weight are learning not to overeat.

Under the supervision of trained workers, the patients are taught to bring their eating under self-control through such techniques as interrupting the meal by putting the fork down on the table for two minutes, removing all food from any part of the house except the kitchen and eating only foods that require preparation.

Habits Changed
In the view of the behavioral scientist, Geary said, many problems people have are simply bad habits that can be eliminated and replaced with good ones.

The trick is to couple the good habits with situations that a person likes and to associate bad habits with things that are unpleasant.

As an example, Geary cited experiments with hospitalized schizophrenics who exhibited greatly improved behavior when a "token economy" was introduced in the ward.

"The patients are rewarded with tokens or trinkets whenever they do something pleasing to the staff," Geary said.

"They are allowed to spend the accumulated tokens for things they want—it may be as simple as a blanket, candy bar or perhaps even a weekend pass. "The results were dramatic, even among these very disturbed persons."

Similarly, he said, behavioral psychologists have been extremely successful treating simple phobias—unreasonable, irrational fears.

Some people, he said, have uncontrollable fears of crossing a bridge, of elevators, certain animals or reptiles and of approaching strangers.

By training the patient to relax completely and eventually coupling the fear with the second most frightening situation, the scientist is able to conquer the troublesome phobia.

Although a large number of experiments involving the behavior approach are currently under way, Geary is concerned because there has previously been no facility in the United States to coordinate the projects and analyze the data. He hopes his non-profit institute can remedy that situation.

"There are probably 100 million neurotics running around the country," Geary said. "Using traditional psychiatric methods it would take many years and thousands of dollars to treat them."

Define Canadian As Worldly Man

CALGARY, Canada (AP) — The Calgary Chamber of Commerce defines a Canadian as a fellow who drives home from a French movie in his German car, slips out of his Hong Kong suit and Italian shoes, puts on his Japanese robe and Mexican slippers and sips Brazil coffee from English china at his Danish desk while he takes his American pen to write his member of Parliament to demand that Ottawa must do something about the imbalance-of-payments situation.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets steady Tuesday. Supplies barely adequate to short, demand good. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby:

Grade A large whites: 69 to 70; medium, whites: 65; small, whites: 55.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina hog markets today were mostly steady, with instances of 50 higher. Tops of 27.28 at Rocky Mount, 27.00 at Siler City and Denton; 26.59-27.50 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Newton Grove, Albertson and Lumberton; 26.00 at Bethel, and 27.50 at Greensboro and Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina poultry market today was mostly steady, with the price of live poultry on the farm mostly at 13 1/2 cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market skipped to higher ground in moderately active trading early today. The strength was a carryover from Tuesday's modest gain, which was led by glamor stocks.

The Dow Jones Industrial average at 11 a.m. was up 2.91 to 780.76, and stocks that rose in price on the New York exchange outnumbered declines by about 200 issues.

School Bd. . . .

Cleetwood reported, in reference to the suspended students: "The conferences and hearings for the suspended students involved should be accomplished before the week is out. A full schedule of hearings, in fact, begins this afternoon."

"I would like to make clear," Dr. Cleetwood remarked, "that we do have an obligation to follow due processes. Any other action is not acceptable under present guidelines for the school system."

He further noted that "where legal charges are involved, it is a matter for the courts. The school's action is a separate thing. Of the 40 students, ten are subject to court actions due to warrants having been issued."

Board member Louis W. Gaylord, Jr. spoke briefly to the committee members: "I appreciate that we are all her for the same thing, to do what is best for the children. You have here as liberal a group as you get in Greenville."

"You represent the thinking of one segment of Greenville, but you have 10,000 other people in Greenville who might feel differently. I ask you to realize the situation the board is in." We don't account just to you parents, but to all the citizens of Greenville."

Board Chairman Dr. E.B. Aycock assured the committee: "You can be certain the board will give you suggestion every consideration."

The board is scheduled to meet today to consider action on the suggestion put before it by the committee.

Dr. Malene Irons, speaking to the committee members after the board members had left, reiterated an earlier suggestion she had made. "We must agree, as vitally concerned citizens, to be responsible, on a one-to-one basis, for the conduct of any suspended student who may be readmitted to school."

Dr. Irons feels there are responsible, qualified adults in Greenville who are interested in giving assistance to student through making time available to tutor them and to give them guidance.

In their efforts to continue contacts with representative individuals and groups of Rose High for the purpose of establishing all facts from every source, the committee voted to hold additional meetings.

On Wednesday night they will meet with the members of the Student Government Association; on Thursday night with the Guidance Counselors; and on Friday, with the faculty members.

Protest Hike In Pentagon Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anonymous protesters among the Pentagon's 27,000 workers are stirring up a revolt against price increases in the Defense Department's cafeterias.

Flyers appeared Tuesday in many parts of the big building, fixed to cigarette machines, walls and other places, calling for Pentagon workers to bring their own lunches starting Groundhog Day, Feb. 2.

Dr. D.H. Tucker Elected To Board Of N.C. Nat'l Bank

Dr. Donald H. Tucker has been elected to the Greenville City Board of North Carolina National Bank, it was announced today by John T. Marston Jr., NCNB senior vice president and Greenville city executive.

The 35-year-old physician, a native of Greenville, has his medical offices at 1705 W. Sixth Street here. Dr. and Mrs. Tucker, their sons, Donald Jr. and Michael, and daughters, Barbara and Susan, live at 109 Lord Ashley Drive.

Dr. Tucker graduated from Duke University and Duke University Medical School. His advanced medical training was at New York Hospital, where he was assistant resident in internal medicine, 1959-1960; Duke

DR. D. H. TUCKER

University Medical College, 1959-1961; served as a heart specialist in the Department of Medicine, U. S. Naval Hospital, Portsmouth, Va., 1962-1963; and as officer in charge of the Navy Cardiopulmonary Laboratory, Portsmouth, 1963-1964. He held the rank of lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve.

In 1964, Dr. Tucker joined the staff of Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville.

He is a diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine and a fellow in both the American College of Physicians and the American College of Cardiology.

He is a member of the American Medical Association, the Pitt County Medical Society, the North Carolina Society for Internal Medicine, the American Society for Internal Medicine, the American Heart Association and the New York Academy of Sciences.

He presently serves as vice president of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital medical staff and as a trustee of the hospital.

He is chairman of the Council on Ministries at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. He is a director of the Greenville Boys Club, the Rotary Club, the ECU Century Club, and the Greenville Art Center. He is a trustee of the Shephard Memorial Library.

resources in North Carolina's public schools.

On the panel to listen to people from this area testify were Rep. Norwood Bryan of Fayetteville, chairman of the Task Force conducting the study and the man who introduced the bill in the state legislature calling for the study; Dr. Peter Chenery of the N.C. Board of Science and Technology; Dr. Arthur W. Cooper, Dr. Calvin Doss, Dr. Paul Hounshell, and Dr. Eddie West, science education consultant for the State Department of Public Instruction.

Interested citizens of Greenville and the counties surrounding Pitt and experts in the field of science education and environmental studies testified.

Will Hon of the Carteret County Marine Science Center in Morehead City, said that in talking to students today he has found that they are idealistic about the environment and that they want to take an active part in improving the bad situation they have inherited. A member of the committee of the Task Force in charge of curriculum planning, he suggested capturing the student's imagination and challenging him with an idealistic approach. He recalled a conservationists meeting he had attended years ago at which a speaker had drawn a round of applause when he said in effect that conservation would always be the concern of a few. He said maybe this is no longer necessarily true, that perhaps today's young people, because of their instinct for survival, because of their exposure to more of the world through television, etc., can "feel ecology intuitively" and can rise to meet the need if they are sufficiently challenged during their formative years.

Dr. Vincent Bellis of the East Carolina University Biology Department said "We must become reoriented to our environment. In our affluent society, although we depend on the earth, we fail to realize our dependence completely. Field trips should be taken to let us see where our water comes from and where our sewage goes."

Dr. Michael O'Connor of the ECU Biology Department, a practicing marine biologist, spoke on the need for planning in the further development of our relatively untainted North Carolina coast.

Teacher education was the concern of several speakers, including Dr. Joseph Boyette of ECU, as was the need to educate the general public. Dr. Boyette mentioned the need for a flexible approach to both teacher and public school education on the environment and said in-depth studies and projects on the part of the students should be an effective means.

David Dainty of the Forest Service Institute of Atlanta, Ga., said his institute has held one- and two-day workshops for senior education students at Arkansas colleges and universities on the environment and conservation. He said they are in the process of setting up similar programs in other states and that he hopes something of the kind can eventually be done in North Carolina.

Dainty and Turner Battle of the National Wildlife Federation praised an eight-volume bibliography called People and Their Environment which is now being used by South Carolina schools. They said different volumes adapt environmental studies to every grade and to every course taught in the state's high schools. Battle called for workshops and special courses for teachers already teaching in public schools in this state.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the committee's economy-in-government subcommittee, announced Fitzgerald's appointment Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A. E. Fitzgerald, the Pentagon cost expert fired by the Air Force after he told Congress of cost overruns in the C5 transport plane, has been hired as a consultant to the Senate-House Economic Committee.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the committee's economy-in-government subcommittee, announced Fitzgerald's appointment Tuesday.

Iraq Claims Plot Failed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Baghdad Radio reported today that the Iraqi government smashed an attempt to overthrow it Tuesday night.

Iraq's ruling Revolutionary Command Council said the plotters were "deviationists and people who are agents of imperialism."

Many have been arrested and will be brought to trial, the communique said.

The plot was aimed at the July 1968 revolution which brought the Baath Socialist party to power the radio said.

The 15-man revolutionary council headed by President Ahmed Hassan el Bakr is made up entirely of Baathists.

Unconfirmed reports said the Iraqi government had sealed the country's borders, but the radio made no mention of this.

Beirut Airport's control tower reported that the Baghdad Airport was open early today.

A special three-man military court has been formed to try those arrested, Baghdad Radio said.

"Last night a group of traitors in collaboration with foreign quarters made an attempt against the revolutionary regime," said the broadcast communique.

The wording of the communique hinted the attempted coup might have been staged by Baathists opposed to Bakr.

Asked To Order Desegregation First Of Week

CHARLOTTE (AP) — U. S. District Judge James C. McMillan has been asked to order complete desegregation of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system by Monday.

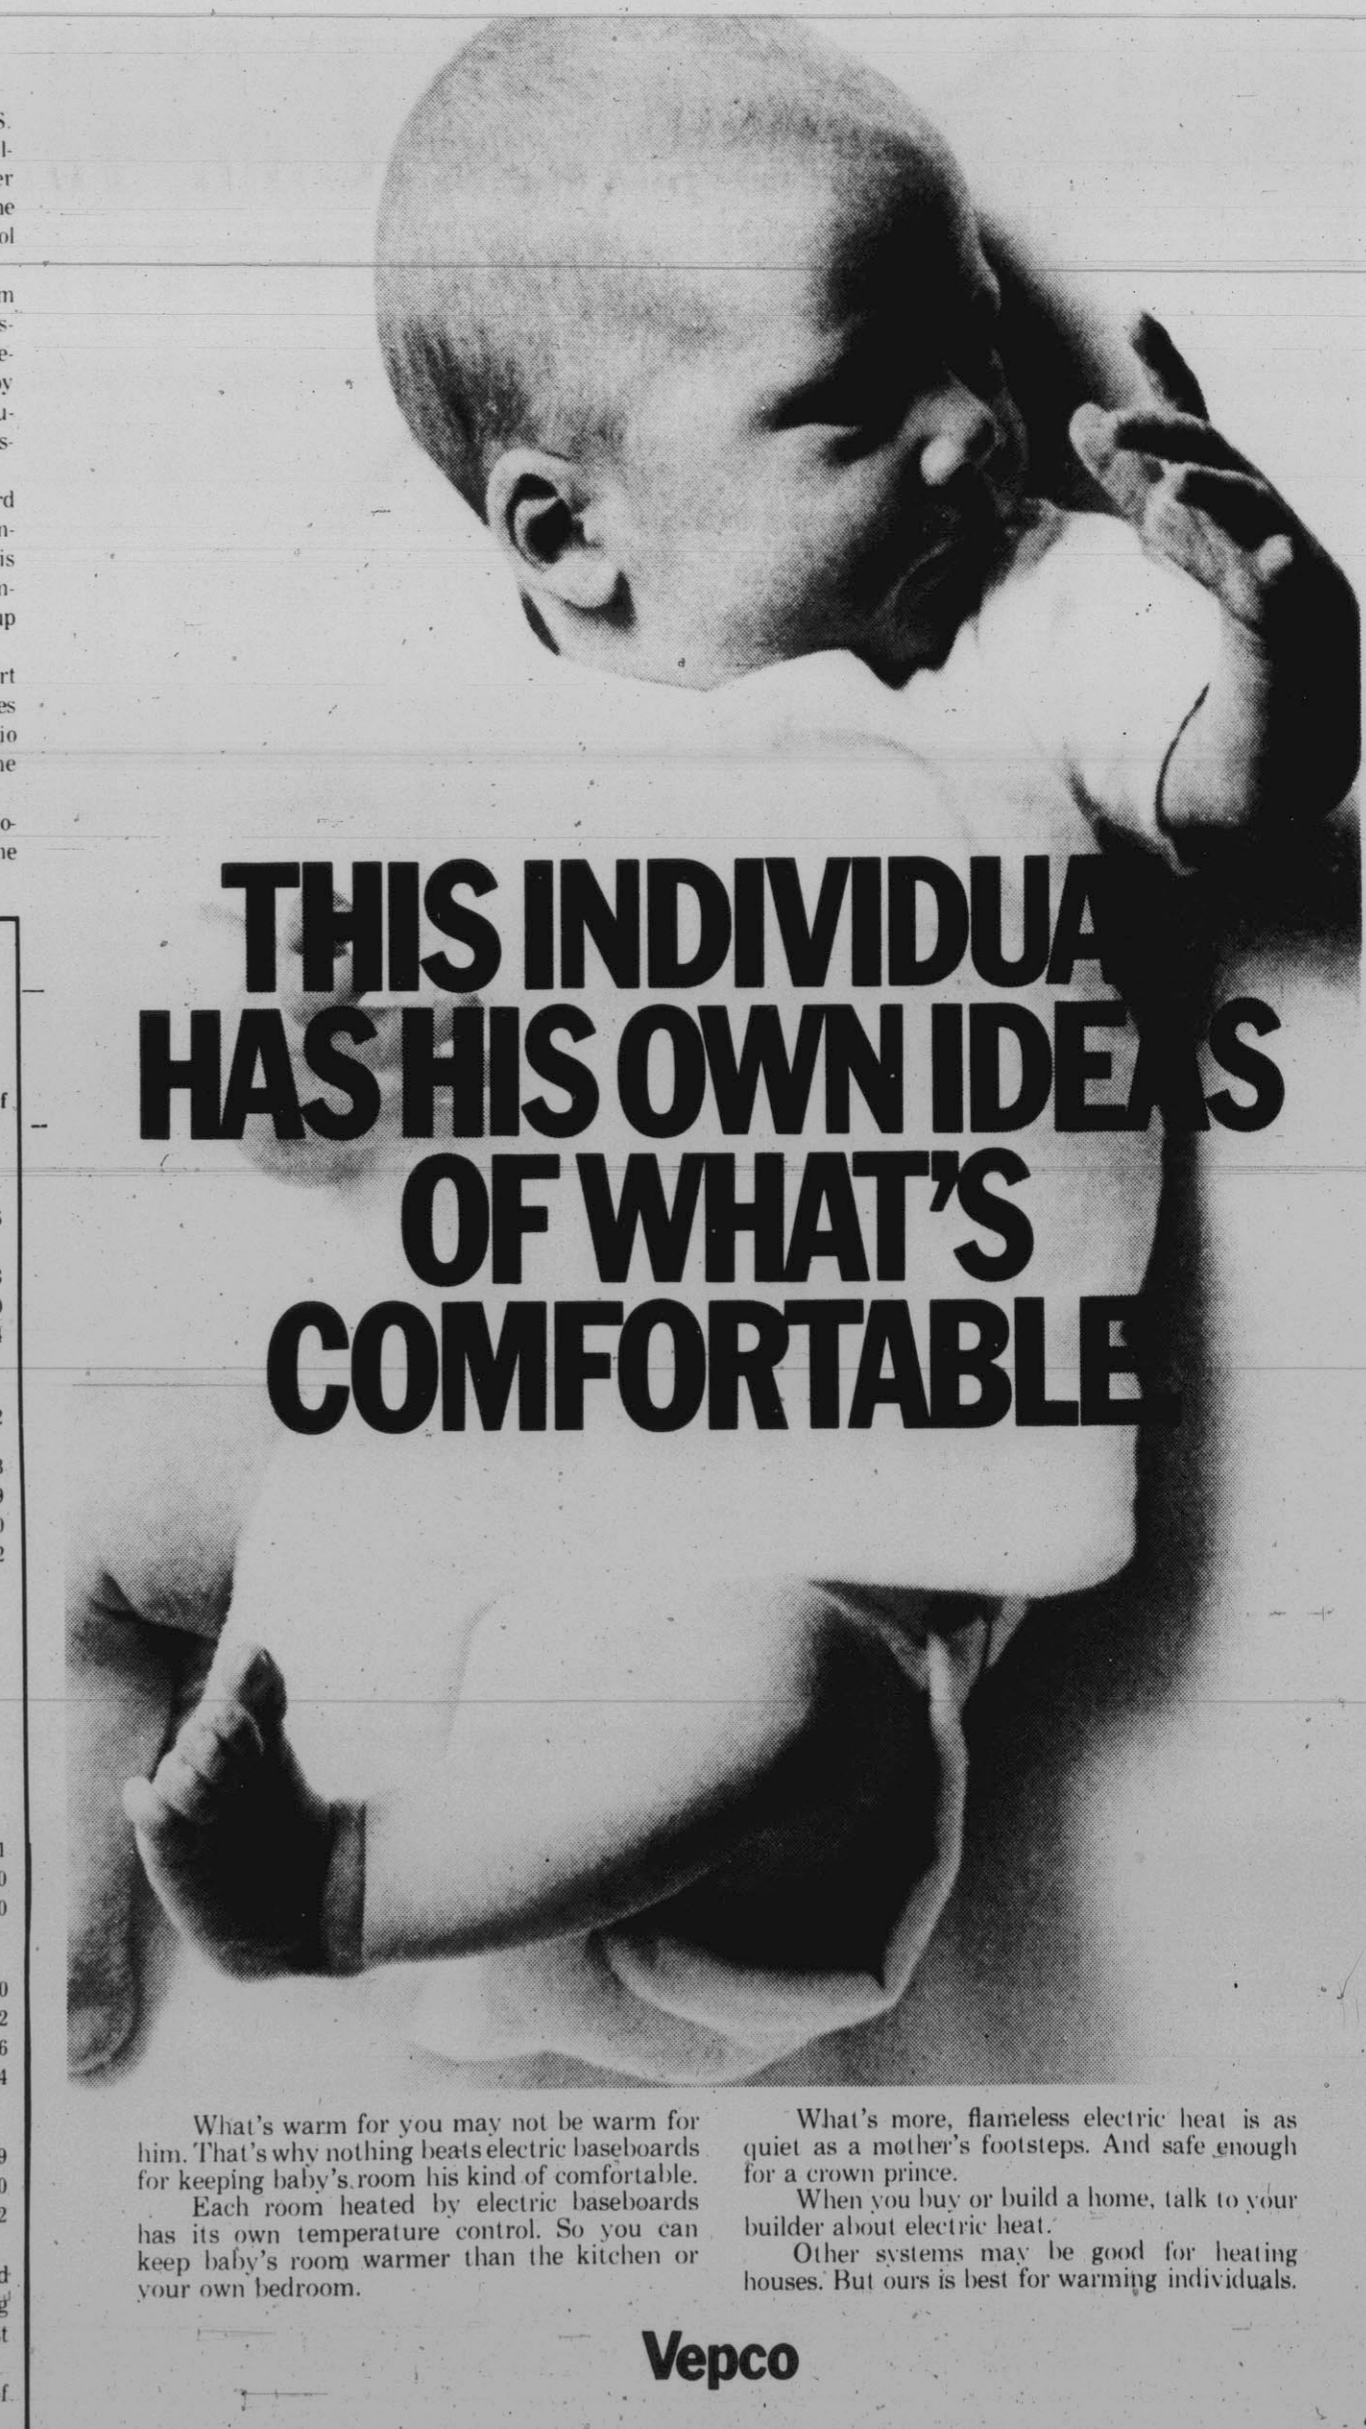

Julius Chambers and Adam Stein, in a motion filed Tuesday, maintained that a desegregation plan being drawn up by Dr. John A. Finger Jr., an education specialist from Rhode Island, is essentially complete.

They argued that the Board of Education should begin implementing the plan while it is being refined. Finger's recommendations are being drawn up for next fall's term.

They further asked the court to order integration of faculties on a 70-30 white to Negro ratio in each school, roughly the same as in the total system.

The lawyers based their motion on recent U. S. Supreme Court rulings.

THIS INDIVIDUAL HAS HIS OWN IDEAS OF WHAT'S COMFORTABLE

What's warm for you may not be warm for him. That's why nothing beats electric baseboards for keeping baby's room his kind of comfortable. Each room heated by electric baseboards has its own temperature control. So you can keep baby's room warmer than the kitchen or your own bedroom.

What's more, flameless electric heat is as quiet as a mother's footsteps. And safe enough for a crown prince. When you buy or build a home, talk to your builder about electric heat. Other systems may be good for heating houses. But ours is best for warming individuals.

Surrender To FBI Men

GREENSBORO (AP) — A 17-year-old Virginia boy, sought in the shooting Sunday of a North Carolina highway patrolman, has surrendered to FBI agents in Roanoke, Va.

Edwin Cecil Turner of Roanoke, charged with transporting a stolen vehicle across state lines, was released on $2,500 bond, pending trial in federal court.

The Highway Patrol and the State Bureau of Investigation say warrants charging Turner and Larry Wade Ayers, 18, also of Roanoke, have been issued in the shooting. Officials say the warrants may be served, along with a request for extradition to North Carolina.

Meanwhile, Ayers had not been apprehended late Tuesday. A search was under way in North Carolina and Virginia.

Trooper P. E. Strong of High Point said he was shot near Greensboro when he tried to arrest the driver of a sports car for speeding Sunday. Strong, wounded in an exchange of gunfire with the passenger, was treated and released.

Bears Blister Rose, 102-80

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

NEW BERN — New Bern High School had not won a Division III game prior to last night's meeting with Rose High School's Rampants.

But by the time the Bears had finished dazzling the Rampants with fancy ballhandling, quick hands and astounding shooting, they had run away with a 102-80 victory over Rose.

New Bern shot 50 per cent from the floor to do it, getting many of their shots from the outside against the Rose zone. They connected on 36 of 72 shots. But where they really made hay was at the foul line. There, they sank 30 of 37 shots for a fine 81.1 per cent.

The Bears also controlled the boards with high-jumping Chuck Mohn and Bobby Marshburn pulling down most of the missed shots.

While Rose played well enough to win, scoring 80 points, it wasn't enough against the Bears. In the second period, when they made their big jump in front, powering out into as much as a 17-point lead, the Bears made constant steals of Rose passes as their pressing defense told on the Rampants time after time.

But it was in the third period that the Bears did the fatal damage. They hit on 11 of 20 shots from the floor, a blazing 55 per cent, and connected on seven of 10 from the line, and pushed away to lead by 29 points.

At the line, the Bear shooting almost became phenomenal. They connected on the first 16 they shot, including 12 for 12 in the first half. The first miss came with just over two minutes left in the period.

Rose did managed to take the lead once in the game, late in the first period. New Bern took the lead and looked then like the game would be the rout it turned out to be. Steve Fisher put then ahead, and Mohn dropped in a free throw. Chip Heath pushed in a basket and Marshburn followed with another, running up a 7-0 lead before Rose got its first points on a fast break by Charlie Harris with 4:27 left in the period.

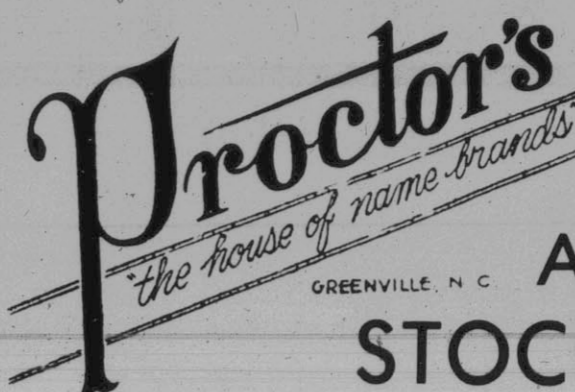

But from there, the Rampants bounced back. After swapping a basket with the Bears, Ray Peszko connected to cut the lead down to three. Another swapped shot, and Willie Smith's long jumper cut the lead to one. Peszko then put in a rebound to put Rose into a 12-11 lead with 1:36 left.

But that was it for Rose. Mohn hit on a rebound to return the lead to the Bears, and then never lost it after that. Fisher came back with a jumper and Marshburn put in another rebound for a five-point spread that fell to 17-14 as the period ended.

Then came the fatal second frame. Rose got the first shot as Smith cut the lead to one. New Bern pushed in a pair of free throws, and then got a jumper by Mohn to run the lead back to five. Rose cut it back to three twice, before a free throw by Mohn ran it back to six. Rose cut it to four at 26-22, but then the Bears exploded.

In the rest of the period, just a shade over four minutes, the Bears threw in 22 points, while Rose was able to score only 10. During this, the Bears ran their margin out to as much as 17 points at 44-27 with 1:40 to go.

Davidson Foul Shots Edge By Furman, 79-71

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Furman's second game in a week with a basketball team in the top 20 in the country ended the same way as the first — and Paladins coach Frank Selvy pointed to the foul line as the difference.

The Paladins dropped below .500 for the first time this season Tuesday night in a 79-71 defeat at the hands of Davidson's 11th-ranked Southern Conference leaders. It was their fourth successive setback, a string that began with a 59-56 loss to third-ranked South Carolina last Wednesday. "We missed enough free throws to take the lead," said Selvy, whose team hit 11 of 20, while Davidson was connecting on 21 of 27. "Davidson missed some, too, but they were at the end."

Actually, the Wildcats missed the front end of four one-and-one situations and Furman failed to cash one such foul shot in the last 1:36 after the two teams had worn each other out.

Davidson took a 42-35 lead at intermission after four first-half ties and remained in front in free throw accuracy by at least three points until Doug Cook and Jerry Kroll hit field goals to stretch it.

The Wildcats, said coach Terry Holland, "did a good job against a tough team on its home court. It was a pressure game. Furman hurt us on the boards, particularly in the first half."

Selvy thought Davidson "played better defensively than we did," but he didn't feel the Paladins played as well as in the loss to South Carolina and an 81-80 defeat by Clemson.

Cook had 21 points and Mike Maloy 17 for Davidson after Lis-co Thomas checked Maloy for a half. Thomas had 22 points and 15 rebounds, and Jerry Martin and Charles Selvy each scored 17 points for Furman.

A pair of conference teams take on nonleague small college opposition tonight. Virginia Military is at home against Roanoke and East Carolina enters Belmont Abbey.

Immanuel Falls To Presbyterian

Presbyterian edged out Immanuel Baptist, 39-36 in overtime, last night in the Church Basketball League, knocking the Baptists off the unbeaten list. St. James downed Mt. Pleasant, 34-29, to move into a tie with Immanuel for the lead. In the other game, Black Jack downed Piney Grove, 59-48.

Immanuel and St. James now post 4-1 records, while Presbyterian is just behind with a 3-1 mark. Black Jack is fourth with a 2-2 record, followed by Piney Grove and Oakmont, both 1-3, and Mt. Pleasant, 0-4.

In the opener, Black Jack slipped out into a slim 25-22 lead at the half, but then pulled away in the final frame. They outscored Piney Grove, 34-26, in the last half to win going away.

Ephraim Smith led Black Jack with 19 points, while Ted Adams had 16 and Randy Dixon had 12. For Piney Grove, Jimmy Mills had 16 and Buddy Allen had 12. Immanuel inched out into a 15-14 lead in the first half of play, but Presbyterian came back to out hit them 20-19 in the second half, and leave it all tied up at 34-34 at the end of regulation time. Brazel Moore then pushed in a bucket and a pair of free throws in the overtime to lead Presbyterian to the win, as they scored five points to two for Immanuel.

Moore led Presbyterian with 16 points, while Herb Adams had 13. Clinton Gentry led Immanuel with 20.

In the final game of the evening, St. James moved into a 17-12 lead by the end of the half. Both teams then scored 17 points in the second half, as St. James margin remained unchanged.

St. James was led by Jim Severs with 10, while Willie Wallace had 11 to lead Mt. Pleasant.

Reed Leads East To Win State Highway

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — On display next summer at the Willis Reed All-Star Basketball Camp will be a trophy proving that it's what's up front that counts.

It will serve as a reminder to the teen-age boys present that instructing them in the finer points of the game is one of the best up front — Willis Reed.

Reed already has proved it to some 15,000 persons in Philadelphia's Spectrum and to a national television audience by leading the East to a 142-135 victory over the West in the National Basketball Association All-Star game Tuesday night.

The muscular 6-foot-8 center of the New York Knicks scored all of his 21 points and hauled in 11 rebounds as the East pulled away to a 106-85 advantage entering the final period. The West made one last effort that got it within six points with two minutes left before falling back.

For his efforts, Reed was voted overwhelmingly the Most Valuable Player in his sixth All-Star game that increased the East's lead over the West to 14-6.

"The game was decided at center," agreed Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati and the East, who was runnerup in the MVP balloting after scoring 21 points that gave him a record 230 for All-Star competition.

"You saw what happened. They just can't stop those two, offensively and off the boards." He referred to Reed and 7-2 Lew Alcindor of Milwaukee, who had 10 points and 11 re-

State Highway Handed 1st Loss

Wachovia Bank pulled into a tie for first place in the Industrial Basketball League last night by handing Satte Highway its first loss of the year, 57-52.

In other games, WNCT won its first game, 70-49, over winless Jaycees, and Fieldcrest edged Union Carbide, 50-49.

Wachovia and State Highway are tied for first place with 4-1 records while Union Carbide and Fieldcrest are tied for third with 3-2 marks. WNCT is fifth with a 1-4 mark, followed by the Jaycees, 0-5.

In the opener, Union Carbide pushed into a 30-24 lead at the half, but couldn't hold it. Fieldcrest rallied in the second period and dumped in 26 points and held Union Carbide to 19, to take the one-point victory.

Clarence Taft led Fieldcrest with 22, while Sammy Perkins had 11. For Union Carbide, Harold Armstrong had 12, Chuck Grazebielski had 11 and Larry Daniels had 10.

The second game went along the same lines. The Jaycees looking for their first win, pushed out into a 33-31 lead at the half. But WNCT wanted its first win more and came back to out hit the Jaycees, 39-16, in the second half and take the runaway victory. Hue Arnold led WNCT with 22 points, while Jim Heatherly had 15 and Gene Brickhouse had 10. For the Jaycees, Doug Williams had 15.

Not to be outdone, Wachovia followed the same cue in the third game. They let State Highway take a 29-27 lead in the half, then stormed into the lead in the final half. Wachovia out hit the Highwaymen, 30-23, in the final half to take the win.

Bill Baggett led Wachovia with 14, while Walter Jones and Andy Warrensach had 12 and Smokey Lancaster had 10. For State Highway Smith Worthington and Wiley Brown each had 15 and Clyde Elks had 12.

Rampant Cubs Gain 9th Win

Heels Slip In AP Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Saturday's 91-90 loss to Wake Forest dropped North Carolina from seventh to ninth in the Top 20 Associated Press listing, but the Tar Heels are among three Atlantic Coast Conference teams in the Top 10.

Duke is tied with Kansas State for 16th, South Carolina remains locked in third place and North Carolina State is No. 10.

The Tar Heels, defending league and NCAA Eastern Regional champions, have been listed as high as fourth, but an earlier setback at South Carolina pushed them to seventh place.

Meanwhile, league teams were idle again Tuesday night. Tonight Clemson plays Florida State in Tallahassee.

Florida State was among schools which received votes but failed to muster enough for the Top 20.

NEW BERN — Rose High School's Rampant Cubs held off a number of New Bern Cub rallies last night to capture a 64-60 victory, their ninth in 10 games.

The Cubs were playing their second straight game without scoring leader Robert Kear, who has been sidelined with the flu. But the others again responded, with Robert Carraway taking over in the scoring role.

He pumped in a career high of 22 points in leading the victory. New Bern captured the initial lead, but Rose came on to push ahead and built up a four-point spread in the first quarter, 10-6. But the Bears came back and gained a 12-11 advantage late in the period and pushed out into their own four-point lead, 15-11, but Rose cut it back to 15-13 at the end of the quarter.

In the second period, Rose tied it up on a shot by Sylvester Tyson, then took the lead on Bob Lamb's free throw. From there, they built up a three-point edge, only to see the Bears cut that away and take their own three-point lead, 25-22. But again, Rose came back and regained the lead at 28-27 on Carraway's rebound. Linwood Staton stole the ball for a three-point lead, and Rose held a 32-29 advantage at the half.

In the third period, New Bern regained the lead on a three-point play by John Gaskins, 34-32, but Rose came back and took the lead again, 36-32, but Rose came back and took the lead again, 36-34 on a steal by Aloysius Wooten. From that point, Rose pushed out into a seven-point lead, 44-37, but New Bern again rallied and cut it back to 44-43 at the end of the period.

In the final frame, Rose again pushed out, this time by eight points, only to see the Bears come fighting back on more time. This time, they cut the lead back to two with 1:27 to play, but Rose got a pair of free throws in the final minutes to shut the door.

Besides Carraway's 22, Wooten finished with 16, while Tyson had 14.

For New Bern, Glen Russell had 14 points.

Rose: Carraway 22, Staton 8, Wooten 16, Lamb 4, Tyson 14, Williams, German, Snuggs.
New Bern: Gaskins 9, Stanley 7, Britch 6, Russell 14, Stanfield 4, Daly 5, Corbett 2, Davis 3, Edwards 5, Dunn, Fuller 5, Gray.

The new look in men's dress during the 1780's consisted of a double-breasted coat with tails and breeches of dark colored cloth. The hat had a new shape with a high crown but narrow brim and hat-band with buckle.

The hair was powdered. For the first time a watch with its own small pants pocket called a "Fob" showed up.

Another style included a great coat in Cossack style of cloth or velvet. It was, sometimes, fur lined. A wig or the natural hair was worn with cocked hat, silk or woolen muffler, and full shirt sleeves. The attire of the merchant of the 1770's included a cloth coat which extended down to the knees. He wore velvet breeches. His waist-coat and coat lining matched. With this handsome outfit was worn a lingerie shirt and cravat.

Plenty Of Talent Awaits Pro Draft

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Professional football calls it the AFL-NFL selection meeting, but actually it's the annual grab bag from which the American Football League and National Football League pick the outstanding college players.

When the pros gather in New York on Jan. 27, and 28 they probably will take every bit of the 21 hours and 15 minutes it required to draft 442 collegians in last January's meetings.

There have been reports that the pickings will be somewhat slim this time but you won't find any college coach thinking along this line.

There was plenty of talent during the 1969 collegiate season, the centennial year, and some pro teams are licking their chops at the thought of picking 245-pound tackles, guards that scale 270 pounds, quarterbacks who can throw the ball and runners who carry the ball 25 or more times a game.

Starting with the quarterbacks, Mike Phipps of Purdue, Dennis Shaw of San Diego State, and Steve Ramsey of North Texas State figure to go high in the coming draft. The Chicago Bears are interested in Phipps. As a Big Ten standout and runner-up for the Heisman Award, Phipps is a natural for the Bears. He passed for 23 touchdowns last season, fourth best figure among major college signal callers.

Shaw led the parade of passers with 39 TDs while Ramsey put 24 TDs on the scoreboard via the air.

Steve Owens, the Heisman Award winner from Oklahoma, is bound to be an early selection. He averaged 35 carries a game for the Sooners in his final season and scored 23 TDs for 138 points, best marks in the nation.

Bob Anderson of Colorado, Charlie Pittman of Penn State and Jim Otis of Ohio State are other seniors who figure to get an early call from the pros. Otis averaged 114 yards a game while scoring 15 touchdowns rushing for the Buckeyes last season and was used by Woody Hayes when valuable yardage was needed on third down situations.

Anderson was so versatile for Eddie Crowder at Colorado that he was switched from quarterback to tailback after the season started, yet finished with 18 TDs. There were some who thought Andy outplayed Owens when the Big Eight stars met last fall.

Pittman set Penn State career records for TDs (32), points (192) and rushing attempts (454). Fullback Garvie Crow, Michigan's 222-pounder, is another highly regarded prospect. He scored 13 TDs and impressed when Michigan scored the college upset of the year in beating Ohio State.

Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State—and a few other coaches —rates Michigan's Jim Mandich as the best tight end in the country. He's ideal for the pros at that position, being an agile 6-3 and 220 pounds.

The pros couldn't ask for any better tackles than Penn State's Mike Reid and Steve Smear or Notre Dame's Jim Reilly. Reid is 245 pounds and the winner of the Maxwell Trophy as the best college interior lineman in the country. He's an accomplished pianist and can play for the Green Bay Packers or the Boston Pops orchestra. Right now he wants to play pro football.

Smear is a 229-pounder and Reilly scales 247.

For linebackers the pros are keen on Penn State's Dennis Onkotz, Tennessee's Steve Kiner and Cliff Powell of Arkansas.

Two of the best offensive guards in the nation are Bill Bridges, a 235-pounder from Houston, and John Ward, Oklahoma State's 270-pound giant. They figure to go high in the draft along with Tom Curtis and Barry Pierson of Michigan and John Tatum of Ohio State, three fine defensive backs.

Coach John McKay of Southern Cal says his 213-pound Jim Gunn "is the best defensive end in the nation." Another good one is Floyd Reese of UCLA at 222 pounds.

Because of his size, Notre Dame's Mike McCoy figures as an early draft selection. He's 274 pounds and 6-5. One of the lightest men to be chosen early by the pros could be Neal Smith of Penn State. He's only 178 pounds but is ideal as a safety man. He set school records last season by intercepting 10 passes.

Last year's first two rounds of the draft each required three hours. The pros were at it from 10 in the morning until 10 at night the first day. O. J. Simpson was the No. 1 man and was chosen by the Buffalo Bills. There were 25 other players chosen in the first round.

The Dallas Cowboys had 24th pick but they couldn't complain. Yale's Calvin Hill was still available. They picked him and he turned out to be the NFL Rookie of the Year. Cincinnati also made a good pick, coming up with quarterback Greg Cook.

The champion New York Jets weren't so fortunate. They selected Dave Foley, a great Ohio State tackle. But he was injured in his first game and for the second straight season the Jets played with their No. 1 pick. But that's the luck of the draw. Nobody expects the Jets to come up with a Joe Namath every year.

Gift Horse Earns Keep

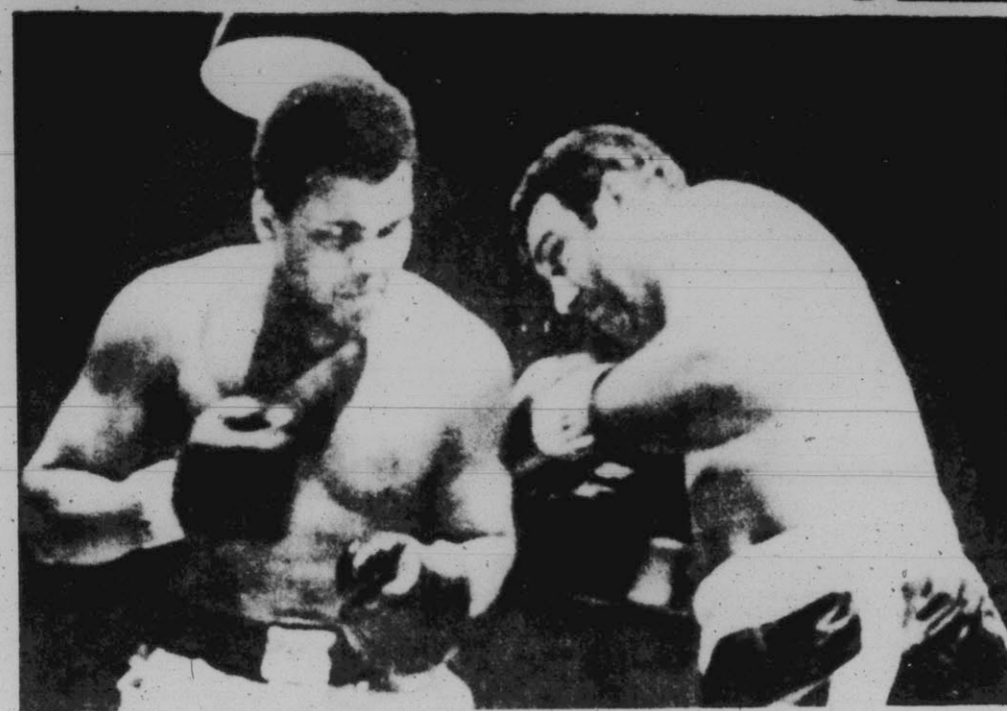

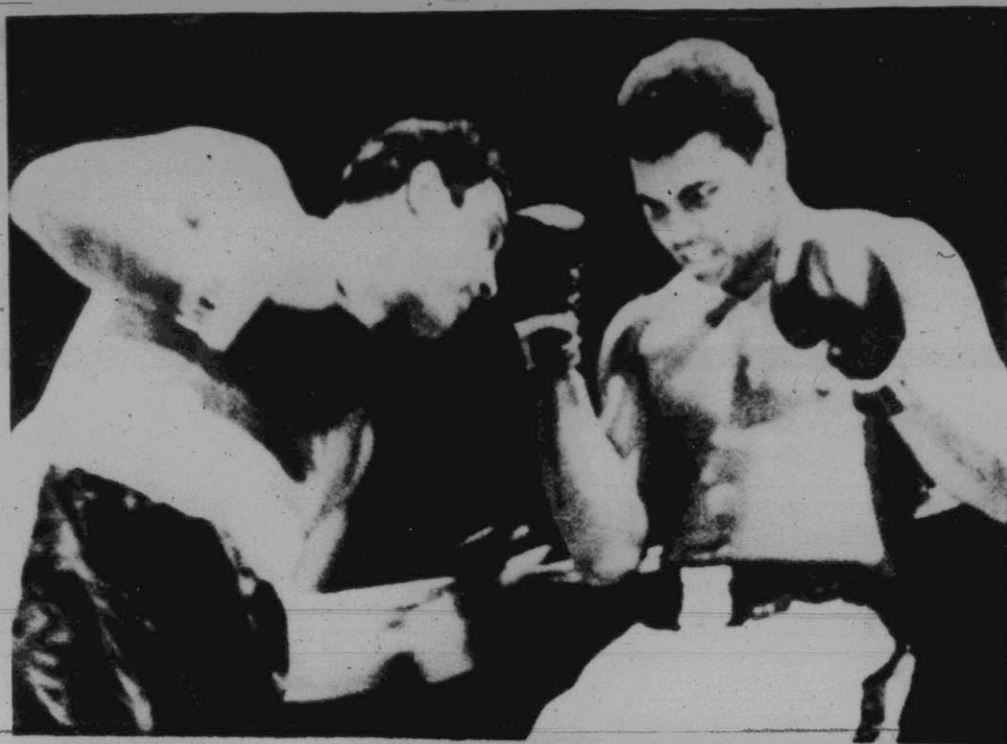

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — Horse racing is a romantic sport, and few horses have a more romantic background than Mr. Right. He began his career as a wedding present and ended it last November to enter stud with earnings of $667,193.

One of the gamest horses ever foaled in New York state, Mr. Right now is in stud here at Tartan Farms, joining distinguished stallions Dr. Fager, In Reality and Intentionally.

When breeder George Zauderer's daughter Charay was married, he gave her and husband Peter Duchin, the orchestra leader, Mr. Right as a gift. The horse earned $480,671 for them and really turned out to be an $800,000 gift because he was sold for a reported $400,000 in 1968.

The Duchins never saw Mr. Right win. Each time they visited a track Mr. Right lost. When they stayed home, he often won. They missed the day Mr. Right beat the mighty Damascus in the 1968 Woodward at Belmont Park. They also missed his stakes victories in the Trenton Handicap, Queens County Handicap and Santa Anita Handicap, a race worth $100,000 to Mr. Right.

Mr. Right now is owned by Dansar Stable in which Frank Sinatra, Daniel Schwartz and Milton Rudin are partners.

Cowboy Owner Is Not Worrying Over Losses

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys wound up 10 years successful in everything except winning the big one.

The organization is operating at a profit, the franchise is considered one of the best in the National Football League and the team has twice been Eastern Conference champion while winning two divisional crowns. In the all-time standings Dallas is 67-64-6.

Winning seasons came in the last four years when the Cowboys had a record of 42-12-2.

Which sounds good on paper but the Dallas fans don't think about over-all records—their Cowboys just can't win the big ones. The latest failure came Dec. 28 when the Cowboys took a 38-14 drubbing from Cleveland in the Eastern Conference playoff.

Following two crushing losses to Cleveland in the last two years, there was a flood of criticism from the fans.

Coach Tom Landry was being jibed at but it will do nobody any good—the only man who might do something about it, owner Clint Murchison, won't even listen to any kind of diatribe against his coach.

He is "quite satisfied," thinks Dallas has done a good job in view of the fact that it was an expansion team and didn't have the benefit of a draft in its first year and that the past season—11-2-1—was the best Dallas has had considering all the injuries.

"We have football fans here who are unhappy right now," said Murchison. "You get over these things in two or three weeks and you understand what happened."

Cowboy officials want it known that other teams have had even worse records of winning the big one.

Assistant general manager Al Ward points to the fact that New York lost the league playoff five times in a six-year stretch, three times in a row. The other time the Giants didn't even win the Eastern Conference title. This happened from 1958 to 1963.

Also, Ward recalls that Cleveland lost the playoff three years in a row—1951-52-53.

So it seems Dallas hasn't done too badly except in the opinion of its fans.

But there will be a general re-evaluation to see what can be done about winning the big ones, said club president Tex Schramm.

"Coach Landry will re-evaluate his department, Gil Brandt will do the same for scouting and I will re-evaluate the front office and all else that has to do with our organization."

Dallas got the Cowboys franchise in 1960 for $600,000. Today, says Schramm, it is worth about $12 million.

He meant that the franchise had become so valuable it would show a profit over the years, taking up the slack of the years when the club lost money. However, the team is not for sale because the operation of the club is not a money proposition.

Marciano 'Beats' Clay In Computerized Fight

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cassius Clay lost a computerized fight to Rocky Marciano but he didn't lose his sense of humor, his penchant for challenging poetry, or his verbal jabs at rival heavyweight Joe Frazier.

The film, staged before Marciano's death last year and screened in some 500 movie houses Tuesday night, showed Clay a 13th round knockout victim.

"It takes a good champion to lose like that," Clay told a newsman who had sat next to him in the darkened theater and had taken a couple of right elbow jabs in the ribs as the deposed heavyweight watched the action.

"Hey, watch that," said the worried newsmen, a flyweight in size. "I'm not in the ring with you."

"Yeah, but that's fighting up there, and real good camera action," Clay replied, laughing. He sat in his shirt sleeves, his suit jacket held by his wife and a friend sat on his left trying to catch every one of his words on a tape recorder.

In the early rounds Clay took the lead. He said he was only watching the action — but he kept his eyes intently on the screen, sometimes rocking in his seat, his head often bobbing forward as he threw a punch.

"I'm sorry Rocky wasn't here to see it," Clay said. "He wanted to see it bad. You know there were seven different endings, and I had won twice by knockouts. I didn't know how it was going to come out, but that computer must have been in Alabama."

When Clay was counted out, he slumped just a little in his seat. Then he called out to the crowd of more than 400 already starting for the exits in the downtown Stanley Theater.

"All right, now let's see the real fight."

Clay, signing autographs willingly, seemed to enjoy the crowd that pressed around him, slapping his back, grabbing at his big hands.

"Joe Frazier wouldn't like this in his town," said Clay, whose title was stripped away in 1967 when he refused induction into the Army. "Or is it his home town?"

Clay this month began negotiations to complete purchase of a $92,000 home in Philadelphia's swank Overbrook section. He's now living there with his family pending final settlement.

He emphasized several times between screen rounds that he would never fight professionally again, and that the film battle was his last. But suddenly he'd stand up and shout, "I'd wup Frazier anytime, all the time."

Once he waxed poetically: "Joe is going to come out smoking, but I'm not going to be joking."

"It may shock and amaze yer, to see the destruction of Frazier."

Frazier is recognized as Heavyweight champion in Pennsylvania, New York, and several other states. He is to fight Jimmy Ellis, the National Boxing Association champion, later this year.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Partizan of Yugoslavia defeated Guadalajara of Mexico 2-1 Tuesday night in a soccer match at Aztec Stadium before more than 50,000 fans.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Charley Belanger, well-known former Winnipeg boxer, died Tuesday at the age of 68.

Belanger represented Canada at the 1924 Paris Olympics before turning professional in 1926. He fought more than 317 fights in 13 years and was Canadian light-heavyweight champion for several years.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Clyde McCullough was named Tuesday manager of the Buffalo Bisons of baseball's International League.

McCullough, 51, piloted Tidewater of the IL to the league pennant last season. He succeeds Hector Lopez.

TORONTO (AP) — Outfielder Tommie Agee of baseball's World Champion New York Mets will be a head-table guest here Feb. 3 at the 19th annual Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association sports celebrities dinner.

The Jumbo Jets Are Ready, But Are Airports?

By ROBERT BUCKHORN
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A revolution in aircraft design—shaped something like a pregnant whale—takes to the skies in regular commercial service Wednesday.

It's the Boeing 747, the first of the jumbo jetliners. If its backers are right, it will bring aviation a new age of promise

If its detractors are right, it will be an age of awesome problems.

But whether the airline industry is ready or not, the 747 goes into scheduled airline service Jan. 21 when Pan American World Airways Flight 2 lifts off the runway at Kennedy International Airport and heads for London. Trans World Airlines begins the first domestic service Feb. 25 between Los Angeles and New York.

What is it that makes the B747 so revolutionary? In a word, its size. The plane is the biggest commercial airliner in the world with a seating capacity of up to 490 persons.

Tail Is Five Stories High
The tail of the 700,000 pound plane alone stands five stories high. The Wright Brothers first flight could be duplicated in the 225-foot length of the fuselage. The main landing gear has 16 wheels, there are over 100 miles of wiring in the plane and a total of 4,500,000 parts.

The plane itself has a whale-like shape accentuated by a knob-like bump behind the cockpit that covers the upper deck compartment that can be used as a lounge or a stateroom. Each of the four engines generates 43,000 pounds of takeoff thrust—twice the power of the largest commercial jet engine in use. Despite this power, the jumbo jetliner's speed—625 miles an hour—is only slightly faster than the jetliners now in service.

Inside the cabin, the tubular appearance of the present day jet is gone. The walls of the B747 rise nearly vertically, and the ceiling is square off. The seats are wider and are arranged nine abreast divided by two aisles. The price tag to the airlines for all this comfort: $20 million. But if the credit side of the B747 is impressive, its detractors claim the debits are equally so.

To begin with, the huge plane arrives on the aviation scene at a time when the industry is battling to save airports from strangling in their own traffic. One airport, Detroit's Wayne County, officially has banned the B747.

Only Orly Airport in Paris will be fully equipped to handle a large number of the jumbo jets. Other airports, like Kennedy International, have made a start on the new loading gates needed for the superjets, along with baggage facilities.

luggage into color-coded canisters. The canisters will be loaded into the plane, a system the experts hope will improve delivery in the terminal and cut damage bills.

As for airline financial bills, this is one of the main reasons for the existence of the jumbo jetliner. The airlines hope to turn the plane into one of their biggest money-makers.

Pan American has invested $700 million in 33 of the jumbo jets and Boeing has other orders for 200 B747s. Critics claim that the profits may be a long time coming.

Continue Tobacco Program For 1970

The flue-cured tobacco discount variety program will be continued for the 1970 crop, according to Stacy J. Evans, manager of the Pitt County ASCS office.

As in past years, farmers will be required to execute and file with the local county ASCS office a report certifying whether or not discount variety tobacco was planted of the farm during the current year.

The purpose of the discount variety program, Evans said, is to discourage production of certain flue-cured varieties which tend to produce tobacco with low flavor and aroma. The program was developed effective for the 1967 crop after serious threat to the industry which resulted from a high production of the discount varieties in 1955 and 1956.

The price support loan value of the discount varieties is set at 50 percent of the loan value for comparable grades of other varieties.

According to Evans, the discount varieties are Coker 139, Coker 140, Dixie Bright 244, Reams 64, Coker 316, 187 Golden Wilt, and any breeding line having the quality and chemical characteristics of the discount varieties.

The discount varieties named are in line with recommendations by the tobacco industry and Federal and State research agencies.

Arrest 21 Who Seized Office

DURHAM (AP) — Police early this morning arrested about 21 persons who had occupied the office of an administrator at Duke University Hospital for more than five hours.

There was no violence as the protesters—including some white students and black members of a hospital workers union—were taken from the hospital.

The sit-in began about 8 p.m. Tuesday after the workers complained that a doctor allegedly struck a Negro dietetics worker. The doctor denied that he hit the girl.

The incident allegedly occurred Monday. Members of Local 1199d of the national Union of Hospital and Nursing Home Employees, AFL-CIO, organized last summer at Duke Hospital, staged the protest as a result of the girl's story. The girl was in the group.

Durham police acted on a warrant signed by Duke University security director C. J. Vizas, who had earlier asked the protesters to leave.

Vizas told Sidney Von Luther, an organizer of the national union from New York City: "You are endangering the welfare of 700 people." He told Von Luther that Duke chancellor pro tem Barnes Woodhall wanted the protesters to leave. Von Luther replied: "I respectfully decline."

Durham Police Capt. T. C. Seagraves then told the protesters they were under arrest on disorderly conduct charges for refusing to vacate Duke property. Police escorted the protesters into a paddy wagon and took them to be booked downtown.

The union local had sent a telegram this week to hospital workers asking that it be recognized.

JOSE FELICIANO will be the featured entertainer Friday night in Minges Coliseum at East Carolina University. Feliciano is one of several special events scheduled by the ECU Student Government Association for the 1970 Carousel.

A Good News Year for You!

• YOUR carrier's greetings for the New Year are three-fold. He extends best wishes for your health and happiness in 1970, sincere appreciation for your patronage of his newspaper route, and hearty thanks for your prompt payments on collection days.

ALSO, he promises you his best efforts to make the arrival of this newspaper a welcome event each day in 1970. By giving on-time delivery and placing the paper in a safe, dry spot in stormy weather. It's his aim to help make this a HAPPY NEWS-YEAR FOR YOU. If there's any special way he can serve you, suggest it next time he calls to collect.

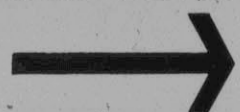

Eggs Benedict

- 2 tsp. shortening
- 1 cup RED BAND® Self-Rising Flour
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 can (12 oz.) Armour Star TREET
- 6 poached eggs
- 1 cup favorite cheese sauce

Heat oven to 450°. Cut shortening into flour thoroughly. Stir in milk until mixture cleans side of bowl. Round up on floured board; knead 25 to 30 times. Roll dough into rectangle, 12x3. Cut into 6 parts and place on ungreased baking sheet. Cut Treet into 6 slices; arrange a slice on each biscuit. Bake 12 to 15 min. Top each warm biscuit with poached egg and cheese sauce. 6 servings.

*If using RED BAND® Plain Flour, add 1 tsp. baking powder and 1/2 tsp. salt.

Records Reveal Bare Bones Of Historical Fact

"In the Light of History"
 By H. G. JONES
 Dept. Archives and History
 Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP)—How much would a person know if he read and digested every one of the nearly 50 million books, booklets, and pamphlets in the world's largest library, the Library of Congress?

Two things are certain: He would have at his command a lot of facts. He also would have in his mind much misinformation. That's because so many authors write what they want to write without trying to differentiate between the true and the false. Unfortunately, this is done by some so-called "historians."

But even if our mythical bookworm had the wisdom to weed out the misinformation from the facts, he would know only what other men and women have put into print. The printing press, invented in the 15th century and introduced into North Carolina in 1749, has increased tremendously man's stock of information by bringing much knowledge within the reach of all literates.

If man's knowledge were limited to the printed word, however, he would still be ignorant of most of what has happened in the past and what is happening now. There is, of course, no way to retain for future generations a complete story of today's people and their activities. For the historian, nevertheless, there are reservoirs of information from which future researchers may draw new knowledge—or at least knowledge not now in print. These are the archives and manuscript repositories throughout the country.

Take the federal government, for instance. Thousands of books have been written on its activities, but the fuller story lies hidden in more than two billion documents in the National Archives and many more billions in federal records centers.

Or North Carolina. Much has been written on the history of our own state government, but a far more complete story can be found in the more than 50 million official documents in the State Archives.

Earlier this month Gov. Bob Scott divulged that he is keeping a personal diary which he will place in the archives for the information of future historians. Many North Carolinians may ask why their governor should bother to scribble down his thoughts at the end of the day.

Official records generally divulge WHAT was done. By consulting the records of the government, one can usually find out what happened, what decision was made, who was appointed and what the results were. But the answer to the important question of WHY seldom is found in public records.

It takes the personal thoughts of our leaders to add the human element to the stark facts of government. More public officials should commit their thoughts and emotions to paper so that the historian of the 21st century may interpret more accurately the events of our times. True, such writings may be self-serving and may show only one side of an issue; even so, one side is better than none for the historian who tends to hold all writings up to the light of critical analysis.

Public records are protected by the general statutes and are under the administration of the State Department of Archives and History. On the other hand, private papers—correspondence, diaries, personal records of all types—all too often are destroyed by persons assuming that they have no value. North Carolinians would do well to contact one of the fine manuscript repositories in the state before consigning such papers to the incinerator.

Few states can claim such outstanding repositories as the Southern Historical Collection at Chapel Hill, the Duke University Manuscript Department in Durham, the East Carolina Manuscript Collection at Greenville, and the State Archives in Raleigh. They, and other specialized manuscript institutions in the state, constitute gold mines of historical information that will enable future researchers to tell the story of North Carolina more fully and interestingly than it has been told in the past. Let them take a look before you throw away that batch of "old papers" in the attic.

Cadets March Jan. 31

East Carolina University's detachment of Air Force ROTC cadets will hold their 17th consecutive March-A-Thon on Jan. 31.

The cadets have won national honors in the past for having the best March of Dimes project in the state of North Carolina.

Each year, the AFROTC Drill Team marches without rest until the amount of money collected by the other cadets and the members of the Angel Flight exceeds the preceding year's goal by $100. This year the Cadets and the Angels, who will be stationed in various sections of the Greenville and Farmville area, will have to collect at least $2,700 from pedestrians and motorists.

Cadet Gary Williams, project chairman, said the group of Cadets and Angels who "march" so that others may "walk" hope the citizens of Greenville and Farmville will help support their fund-raising campaign for the March of Dimes.

Person wishing to contribute prior to the actual day of the March-A-Thon may send their donations to March-A-Thon, AFROTC Detachment No. 000, ECU, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Williams said the National Foundation of the March of Dimes has been so impressed with the local march's continued success that it has sent the plans from ECU's March-A-Thon to every AFROTC detachment in the nation in hopes of creating a nationwide March-A-Thon.

Including last year's record contributions—the total amount collected by all the preceding March-A-Thons has exceeded $16,000.

Ugaritic Is Being Read

Wool Remains Competitive

MELBOURNE (AP)—Wool which has had to withstand a challenge by synthetics in recent years is now the fiber of the superjet age.

Many American airlines ordering superjets have or plan to buy wool carpeting and wool blankets, North American director of the International Wool Secretariat, Derek Damerell, told the secretariat board meeting here.

Damerell said carpet wool consumption in the United States increased in 1968 by 9 per cent to 91 million pounds clean, and represented 13 per cent of the total fibers used for carpets.

RED FACES

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The San Isidro municipal council issued licenses for construction and operation of a new supermarket.

When the market was completed and ready to open, officials were embarrassed to find that the shop is actually in the adjoining Lima suburb of Lince, and not San Isidro.

CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP)—The Claremont Colleges' Institute for Antiquity and Christianity is translating Ugaritic.

The writings are on clay tablets being dug out of a mound that once was the City of Ugarit, cultural center of the eastern Mediterranean world before the time of Moses.

After flourishing at least 300 years, Ugarit was overrun in about 1200 B.C. It was abandoned and never lived in again. Forty years ago a farmer's plough ripped open a tomb there and started one of the great historic finds.

Scholars believe that Ugaritic was the first language to use an alphabet. They found that Ugaritic writings had many parallels with the later Hebrew culture.

The Claremont Colleges' project is analyzing the parallels, funded by a $5,333.50 gift from Mrs. James L. Bruce and Mrs. N. Jordan Nathason, both of Alhambra, Calif., which was matched by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Scott Says People Have Good Reason For Concern

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said Tuesday night North Carolinians "have good reason to be concerned" about problems of environmental pollution.

In a talk to the annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Districts, Scott listed steps being taken to combat pollution and made "some specific suggestions" for new steps.

He said the answer to the water pollution problem is the "reclamation of waste products, so that effluent water leaving an industry or sewer system is no more polluted than when it entered the city's water system."

"I suggest that we look closely at what New York City, Los Angeles and other cities are doing to combat pollution," Scott said.

The governor called on scientists in the state's universities, industry and government to strive "to develop more and better antipollution technology."

He urged "our energetic Jaycees and other civic groups to give greater priority to clean-up and antilitter campaigns which will include cleaning up our streams, our roads, our roads, our lawns, our parking lots."

Scott urged: "Service stations to give litter bags to motorists and that attendants offer to empty litter bags and ashtrays."

"I would urge, law enforcement officers to enforce more vigorously our antilitter laws," he continued. "In 1968, only 99 persons were arrested for littering in North Carolina. In eight of our counties no arrests were made."

Scott noted the state Department of Water and Air Resources "is restricting open burning throughout the state" and is "setting limits on the density and amounts of black smoke belching out of factory smokestacks."

Scott also pointed out that the department last year approved 180 permits for water pollution abatement and control facilities that will cost an estimated $38.7 million and issued 32 certificates for approval for air cleaning devices that will cost an estimated $22 million.

The governor said, "The costs to improve our environment will be high. But I believe our people and our economy will bear these costs."

Advisory Body Meeting Today

RALEIGH (AP) — Long range planning for North Carolina's community college system was the topic for discussion at a meeting today of the Community College Advisory Council.

The chairman of the state Board of Education, Dr. Dallas Herring, was scheduled to address the group.

The council is made up of presidents of the 50-odd community colleges and technical institutes in North Carolina and the chairmen of the institutions' trustees.

N.C. Hunger Survey Set

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's state Board of Health nutritionists will begin a survey Friday to determine the extent of hunger and malnutrition in North Carolina.

Gov. Bob Scott asked the board's community health division to make the survey after being informed by Washington that the national nutrition survey could not add North Carolina to its nationwide nutrition sampling.

Scott was disturbed by evidences of hunger in the state that came to light during his campaign last year.

The board of health said more than 15 staff members will work on the survey, which is expected to require three to four months to complete. They will cover about 2,000 families from all economic categories, rural and urban, selected at random across the state.

The main objectives of the survey will be to determine the percentage of the state's population with adequate and inadequate diets and factors which influence diets, such as economic status and nutrition knowledge.

Kinston Men Are Sentenced

KENANSVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Two Kinston men were sentenced to 18 to 20 years in prison Tuesday after pleading guilty to charges stemming from a Nov. 14 robbery attempt.

Levonnie Green, 28, and Thomas Earl Becton, 22, had been charged with attempted robbery and felonious assault and Becton had also been charged with two counts of assault.

The pair were charged with shooting a grocer during the holdup try.

They had been in Duplin County jail under $25,000 bond.

The Worry Clinic

Half May Fail

The Kiss Test

Bob Summers belongs to a Lions Club that used the "kiss test" as a means of awarding the weekly prize. Yet about 50 percent of all the husbands failed it! So mull over this Case Record and then start nourishing the ego of your wife and children via the method below. For delinquent children are often love-starved!

By George W. Crane Ph. D., M. D.
 CASE L-581: Bob Summers invited me to address the banquet session of his Lions Club.
 As I ate my dinner, the chairman asked me if I could suggest any question that might be asked the crowd to determine the winner of the customary prize awarded at each meeting.
 So I suggested that the "Tail Twister" of the club ask the assembled group of men to estimate how many of them had kissed their wives that day.
 In that crowd of 50 men, the guesses ranged from 10 to 25. Then all the members were requested to put up their hands if they had actually kissed their mates that same day.

 Of the group, 24 hands went up, which was about a 50 percent batting average.
 "But, Dr. Crane," one of the men protested, "husbands are more likely to kiss their wives at bedtime than in the morning, aren't they?"
 What do you readers think of that query?
 When a busy housewife is trying to get her children fed before they head to school and her husband rushed off to his job, does that husband take time to give her a farewell kiss?
 And does the usual father greet his youngsters or give them a word of praise, not just in the morning, but at any time during the day?
 Alas, many children are miserable because they are undernourished in the realm of spiritual and psychological food! Their ego needs to be inflated by a bit of praise EVERY DAY.

 "Dr. Crane," many grammar schoolers have protested, "Daddy bawls me out if I get a 'C' grade but never praises me for a 'B' or an 'A.'"
 In similar vein, a 9-year-old boy was shedding tears recently because his daddy had scolded him for one tardy mark on his report card.
 "But he never said a word about the 64 days I got to school on time!"
 Since women want words, especially bits of praise, then husbands should teach themselves to join my Compliment Club and be more liberal with their spoken admiration.
 And kiddies are doubly hungry for a boost to their chronically deflated ego.
 For youngsters are yelled at in the morning because they are slow in getting dressed.
 "Hurry up and eat your cereal," Mamma then chides them.
 "Come back here," she screams, "for you didn't drink

all of your milk."
 Then, as the youngsters head for the door, she scolds them for not having put on their coat or sweater.
 "Now watch when you cross the street," she cries as a final bossy command with an implied criticism therein.
 Then the teachers start looking for flaws and usually mark off the wrong words on the child's spelling paper or math problems and reprimands the boys for smudges on their clothes.
 Almost always the focus is on mistakes, errors and faulty answers, thus surrounding the child with deflating negative words.
 But children thrive on cheerful, positive compliments, so we need to stress the vital importance of praise as a vital-nourishment for the child's ego.
 So send for the "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. Praise is as vital to our ego as oxygen is to our hemoglobin in the blood.
 (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Vending machines date back to 219 B.C. when holy water could be bought in a Grecian temple by dropping in a drachma.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣ North's original pass may offend some old-timers who harken back to the days when "three honor tricks" was considered to be a mandatory opening bid. However, with only 12 high card points and even distribution, there is not sufficient playing strength in the hand to warrant a bid.

When South overcalled with one heart, North invited a game by jumping to three hearts. Tho he has only three card trump support, partner is presumed to have five when he overcalls. South should have passed, since he had already told his full story with his initial bid, and a jump raise by the partner of an overcaller is not forcing. But who are we to argue with success?

West opened his singleton jack of clubs, and East gave him a third round ruff after cashing the king and ace. West exited with a small spade and the dummy was in with the king. South decided to play the opening bidder for the queen of trumps, so he led the jack of hearts and permitted it to ride when it was not covered. Two more rounds of hearts cleared up that suit and permitted South to turn his attention elsewhere.

With the defensive book in declarer had to find some way to dispose of his losing diamond. Unless there was a lone king of diamonds out, the only prospect was to execute a squeeze. Since West had shown up with only one club and two hearts, it appeared that the burden of protecting the other two suits would fall on his shoulders, so South bent his efforts in that direction.

He led a spade to the ace and ruffed a spade to eliminate East's holding in that suit. On the queen of clubs West was able to let go of a diamond, but the last trump placed him in an untenable position. He was down to the nine of spades and the king-jack of diamonds, while the dummy retained the seven of spades and the ace-seven of diamonds. West was forced to hold on to the spade, so he blanked the king of diamonds. The spade was thrown from dummy and the ace and queen of diamonds took the last two tricks.

 The newly discovered comet is the first in two years that can be seen with the naked eye, the

National Geographic Society

By mid-January, the new comet will be within view just south of the constellation Sagittarius, and will be visible throughout most of the United States, though probably difficult to see at twilight because of closeness to the sun.
 The comet was discovered independently by three Japanese astronomers last Oct. 10 and named Tago-Sato-Kosaka for them.

Plastic Beds For Silkworms

TOKYO (AP) — Some Japanese silkworms have to make do with plastic beds these days.
 The pampered worms traditionally are reared on bamboo shelves, but now they must rest on plastic in areas hit hard by a growing shortage of bamboo.
 Since 1960, about a third of Japanese bamboo plants have flowered, then died. Bamboo, a giant perennial grass, rarely blooms — some species only once every 120 years.
 When bamboo does blossom and produces a heavy crop of seed, the parent plant usually dies. Seedlings carry on the strain but take several years to mature.
 Deserts cover 40 per cent of the continent of Africa.

No Limit Set On February Draft Number Lottery

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In January the draft tried to call only lottery numbers under 30;

Arrest Youth In Ayden Robbery

Jimmy Ray Carmon, 18 year old Negro of Rt. 1, Ayden, was arrested Monday by Ayden Police Chief James Ross and a Pitt County deputy and charged with breaking and entering and larceny of the Wilbur Smith Store in Ayden.

Carmon is being held in Pitt County jail under $500 bond and a hearing has been set for Jan. 29 in the Ayden District Court.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that a front window of the store was broken and approximately two and a half gallons of wine, a small quantity of beer and two watches were reported stolen. The total value of the merchandise was set at around $25.

TO BE PROSECUTED?

MOSCOW (AP)—Two young Italians and a Belgian arrested for staging a protest demonstration in Moscow over the weekend may face prosecution, the newspaper Pravda hinted today.

but for February, the sky—or No. 366—is the limit.

A spokesman said the Selective Service System has decided not to impose, or even suggest, any upper limit to the draft lottery numbers which may be called to meet the February draft quota.

Asked whether a pace-setting ceiling might be reinstated in the future, he said it appeared doubtful.

But Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who has headed the draft system since 1941, will be replaced Feb. 16, and his still-unnamed successor could alter the plans.

Last Dec. 1, a lottery drawing was held matching the birthdays of the nation's draft-age men with a chart of numbers from one to 366—one for each day of the year including Leap Year's Feb. 29.

Draft boards were to meet their calls by summoning men with the lowest numbers first—within each board's individual pool of men.

But this raised the possibility that local conditions might force some boards to call relatively high numbers up the list while others were still calling low ones.

Such a result would have been consistent with President Nixon's order of a draft-by-lottery, but White House, Draft, and Pentagon officials concluded the public expected the numbers to rise at a more uniform pace within each board's jurisdiction, a draft official recently explained.

Besides, an unrestrained race through the list each month threatened to have a local board calling lower numbers in one month than it had called earlier, as deferred men re-entered the 1-A eligible pool.

As a result, Selective Service manpower officials suggested to the White House last month state directors should try to keep the numbers level as they distribute the monthly draft quotas among local boards.

In a round of telephone calls, state directors were further told that No. 30 would be a good limit for the January call—if the call could still be met within that ceiling.

Spokesmen said then the intention was to see whether such a smoothing-out would work. Results of the attempt are not yet available and probably won't be, until at least the end of the month, a spokesman said.

Without any guideline, state directors and local boards are free in February to call up the men they need without regard to how high they must go up the lottery list, or whether local boards must call widely varying lottery numbers.

On the whole, either method should arrive at about the same result over the entire year, since the law requires draft quotas be distributed to states and to local boards in proportion to the size of their respective draft pools.

ECU Symphonic Band To Make Georgia Tour

East Carolina University sends its best band music into Georgia this week as the Symphonic Band takes its seventeenth annual winter concert tour.

Under the direction of Herbert L. Carter, the band will play concerts in Jonesboro, Forest Park, and Atlanta, Georgia, during the three-day trip.

Traveling by bus, the seventy select student musicians will leave the campus Wednesday, January 28, and return Friday, January 30. Their first concert is scheduled at 9:50 a.m. Thursday at Jonesboro High School in Jonesboro.

Two other Thursday programs are booked at Forest Park High School in Forest Park at 1:30 p.m., and Therrell High School in Atlanta at 8:00 p.m. Final concerts of the tour are scheduled Friday at Dykes High School in Atlanta at 10:00 a.m. and East Atlanta High School in Atlanta at 1:30 p.m.

Music for the five tour concerts will be drawn from a varied repertoire. It will feature faculty soloist James Houlik playing Concerto for Tenor Saxophone and Band by Burnet Tuthill.

The band will perform the well-known overture "La Gazza Ladra" by Rossini along with the original band masterpiece, Arnold Schoenberg's "Theme and Variations", and "Variations on America" by Charles Ives and William Schuman. A high-light of the concert will be a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Overture to Candide".

Other selections for the band include lighter numbers and marches from the various countries. Names of band members, hometown addresses and parents' names include:

PITT COUNTY, Greenville — Linda Susan Pescatore, daughter of Mrs. Wilma Pescatore, 409 W. Fourth St.; Vicki Brown Slaymaker, 3000 Golden Rd.

'Equivalents' Helped Income

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — With inflation wearing holes in the fabric of the pocketbook, it's nice to know that your net income is really the equivalent of much more than is indicated by your paycheck. Fifty per cent, in some instances.

The "equivalent" comes to you in goods and services provided by your own unpaid activities, such as painting and repairs you do around the house instead of paying outside help to do the job.

Such activities, for reasons unknown, have never been taken into account when assessing a family's economic condition. But, any way you look at it, they constitute productive goods and services.

A pioneer study released by the Institute for Social Research at Ann Arbor, Mich., estimates that the average value of unpaid productivity is nearly $4,000, or roughly 50 per cent of the average family's disposable income.

"This changes the average family income from just over $8,000 to just over $12,000," the Institute reports. "About 90 per cent of this increase," it adds, "is attributable to work done in the home."

The study, by Ismail Abdel-Hamid Sirageldin, and carrying the equally formidable title of "Non-Market Components of National Income," took years of research, so the income figures used are for 1964. Since then money has been inflated by about 20 per cent.

The study documents what many Americans have long known, that enterprising low income families tend to spread their income more effectively when pressed to make ends meet. Ask any farm family.

"For example," the report states, "for families earning under $1,000 a year, nonmarket income shows an increase of 284 per cent over money income, whereas with families earning over $15,000 the increase is only 13 per cent."

Sirageldin concludes that "people faced with constraints in their market activities strive to improve their standards of living, or to maintain a decent life, by increasing their nonmarket activities."

A Limit To His Public Spirit

SWANAGE, England (AP) — Harry Parsons is as public-spirited as any citizen in this Dorset community, but he has been forced to take five crew members away from the part-time fire fighting force. They work for his construction company and for years have had to down tools every time there is an alarm call. "I just can't afford to go on paying for public service," he said.
