Youth Killed In Wreck

A Route 2, Grimesland boy, Billy Gray Evans, 19, was killed early Sunday when his car overturned on a dirt road two miles southeast of Shelmerdine. Pitt Coroner E. W. Harvey said Evans was last seen about 1 a.m. Sunday. The exact time of the accident is not known, the coroner reported, but Evans' body was found about 7:30 a.m. by a passing motorist. The vehicle Evans was driving, Harvey reported, apparently went out of control on a curve, jumped a ditch and overturned in a field. Evans was thrown from the car as it overturned. He died of head injuries, the coroner said. His 1964 model car was listed as a total loss by Highway Patrol Sgt. L. G. Pate, who assisted in the investigation of the wreck.

Find Murder Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post said today tests have shown that a .30-caliber M1 carbine recovered from the Monongahela River was one of the weapons used to kill United Mine Workers official Joseph Yablonski, his wife and their daughter. The Post, citing an unnamed source close to the investigation, said the rifle was found in the river about five miles from the Yablonski home at Clarksville, Pa., the site of the slayings. The Post added that divers were still seeking a .38-caliber pistol also thought to have been used by the killers. In addition to the rifle, one civilian diver was reported to have brought up Saturday a bag containing wire cutters and ammunition. The FBI and state police officials declined comment on this report.

Emphasis On Culture

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Nixon is showing signs of placing new emphasis on culture in the United States as indicated by his weekend trip here for a joint birthday celebration of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and its conductor, Eugene Ormandy, both 70. Nixon presented the Freedom Medal, the nation's highest civilian award, to Ormandy and said he wished everyone in America could have heard the concert. The Freedom Medal is given to persons who make outstanding contributions to national security, world peace, culture or other areas of life. Presentation of the award to Ormandy marked the second time Nixon has given the medal to a musician. He previously gave it to the three Apollo 11 astronauts and jazz composer Duke Ellington.

Polluters To Pay?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration expects businesses which pollute the air and water to pay much of the cost of its campaign to clean up the environment, Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel says. Hickel said that "the polluters will have to pay. But it will be the cost of doing business." Administration sources have indicated the levies will be in the form of a tax on polluters, plus government-required equipment for waste treatment. Neither Hickel, Robert H. Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, nor White House counselor Daniel P. Moynihan would give any specifics of the administration's antipollution plans.

Nineteen Die In Crash

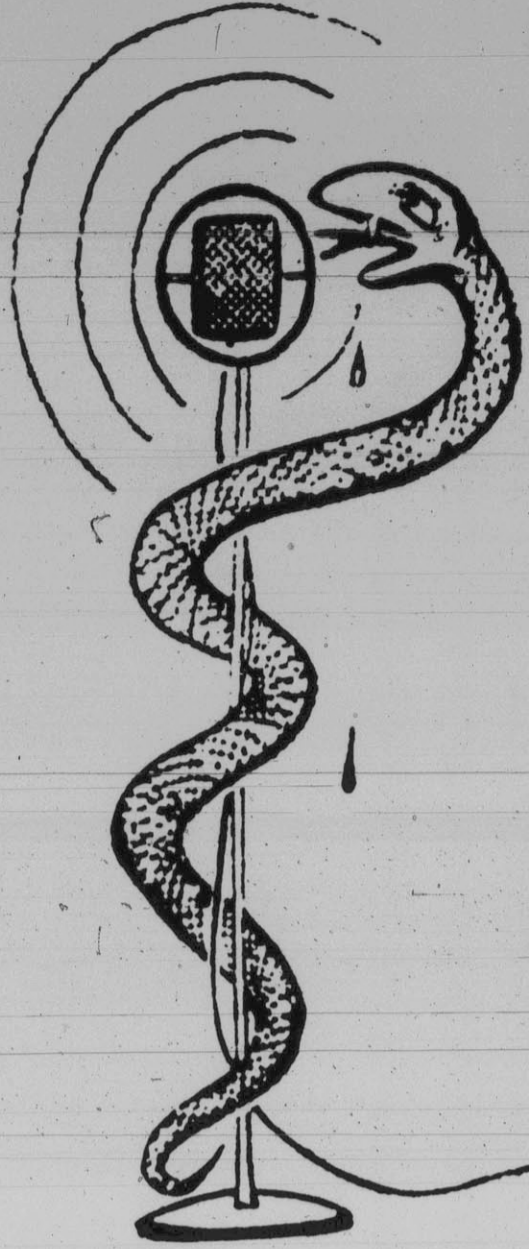

POSA RICA, Mexico (AP) — Fourteen Mexican newsmen and five other persons were killed Sunday when a plane carrying them on the campaign tour of presidential candidate Luis Echeverria crashed into a hill near Posa Rica, a coastal town 130 miles northeast of Mexico City. There was one survivor, a newsmen who was seriously injured. The five other dead included the four crewmen of the Convair 240 and a doctor from the PRI, Echeverria's ruling Revolutionary Institutional Party. The plane, owned by the Federal Electricity Commission left Mexico City's International Airport with seven others carrying the candidate, party officials and other newsmen and photographers. Notes Earnings Up, Growth For Winterville Bank In '69

WINTERVILLE — Earnings for the Bank of Winterville during 1969 amounted to $185,257.20, compared to $161,112.48 in 1968, bank president C.D. Langston told stockholders Friday night at their 64th annual meeting. "The bank experienced this growth during a period of tight money," Langston said, "and is in a stronger financial position than ever before." As of Dec. 31, Langston pointed out, the bank's resources totalled $3,522,074.02, a gain of $286,306.00 over 1968. Langston noted that the Bank of Winterville contributed $165,527.69 to the community in salaries, employee's benefits, and interest paid on savings accounts and other expenses. Stockholders earnings per share before taxes was $23.05 and after taxes, $18.35. The bank head also reported that the contract for the firm's Greenville branch on the corner of South Memorial Drive and Trade Street had been let and that construction had begun. He predicted that the new branch would be in operation on or before June 1. Elected to the board of directors Friday night were Langston, W.J. Bullock, W.A. Weathington, F. Weathington, J. Milton May, and Senator Vernon E. White. Officers who were elected at the directors meeting following the annual session included: C.D. Langston, president; W.J. Bullock, vice president; and B.T. Moore, cashier.

THIS CARTOON titled "Radio - Activity" appeared in the newspaper Soviet Estonia this month as part of the campaign against the daily broadcasts of Voice of America. (AP Wirephoto by cable from Moscow)

Red Propaganda Aimed At VOA

By ANTHONY C. COLLINGS Associated Press Writer MOSCOW (AP) — With a homemade antenna, the Russian tuned his radio through the jamming until he heard a familiar theme song — "Yankee Doodle Dandy." "Ah," he said, "Golos Ameriki." The Voice of America. Small victories like this have stirred so much Kremlin concern that the Soviet press this month launched a new campaign charging Voice of America uses "lies, deceit, blackmail and slander." A cartoon showed a snake wrapped around a microphone, with the caption: "Radio-activity." Despite the warnings and the jamming, the VOA's nightly mixture of news, jazz, pop music and features gets through to thousands. The costly jamming, resumed in August 1968 during the invasion of Czechoslovakia, is most effective only against the strongest of 26 VOA frequencies beamed here. Use of special antennas and grounding the radio to a radiator help Russians pull in the weaker, unjammed signals. Another trick is to rewire the radio to expand the number of stations it can receive. Starting last year, Soviet factories stopped making short-wave sets that can receive the 13- and 19-meter bands. "So I just built in my own 13-meter band," says one Russian with some knowledge of electronics. "Last July, when they were jamming especially hard, I was able to tune in the Voice's report of the Americans landing on the moon." The VOA is trying to break through the jamming with new transmitters boasting three times more power than before. Deputy Director Henry Loomis is of the U.S. Information Agency was in Moscow last month and supposedly asked Soviet officials to stop jamming. He reportedly argued that VOA news and commentary programs are evenhanded and lack their previous cold-war tone. Apparently Moscow's answer was "nyet," for the angry, pulsating buzz of the jamming continues. VOA tells matters Moscow wants to hush up—protest demonstrations here and criticisms of Soviet policy by Communists abroad. One Western diplomat commented: "They resent the VOA's breaking their internal news monopoly." Russians report that the jamming is concentrated in big cities such as Moscow and Leningrad, and that VOA comes in loud and clear in the suburbs and vast rural areas. Georgians and Armenians, in the south, can get VOA without any jamming. The VOA has one-hour broadcasts each night in the minority languages of these and four other Soviet areas. But the biggest effort is in the Russian-language service totaling 11 hours daily. VOA's English-language broadcasts have never been jammed. Many Russians who learned English in school are believed to listen at least occasionally. Others tune in this English-language service for its music. The most popular is "Music U.S.A.," a late-night program that includes 45 minutes of jazz. Its disc jockey, Willis Conover, is well known here. When he visited Russia last July during a film festival he stirred almost as much interest as the film stars. His program is tape-recorded by budding Soviet musicians who want to learn from the jazz greats. In remote Alma Ata, near the Chinese border in Central-Asia, one Russian youth was heard in a cafe playing a Thelonious Monk composition he had learned this way. Some of Moscow's own radio programs have adopted tone, apparently to appeal the more youthful listeners of foreign broadcasts.

Houses Moves Toward Approval Showdown Looms On Education Money Bill

By JOHN BECKLER Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — A showdown both sides seem to want appeared certain today as the House moved toward final congressional approval of the $19.7 billion education money bill President Nixon plans to veto. Although both chambers had approved the bill, covering the current fiscal year, the House had to act again today to bring its original version in line with a minor change made by the Senate dealing with the antipoverty program. The promised attempt by the Democratic-controlled Congress to override Nixon's veto will be a test of strength that could have a telling effect on the fall elections. Nixon says the appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare goes over his recommendations by $1.2 billion and is inflationary. The Democrats, and many Republicans, say the issue is one of priorities—how important is it to meet the nation's education needs. Congressional leaders expected the bill would go to the White House and a veto by late today or sometime Tuesday. The override attempt will come first in the House, probably Wednesday. With only 145 votes—one third of the House membership plus one—needed to sustain a veto the Republican leadership has expressed confidence Nixon's position will be upheld. There are 189 Republican members. But 85 Republicans voted for the increased education funds last December when the House approved the bill despite warnings of a veto. If the House refuses to sustain the President the veto then goes to the Senate where the Nixon position would be in for some hard times. The Senate approved the bill last week 74-17, which is 13 votes more than needed to override a veto. Although all 17 negative votes came from Republicans, 21 GOP senators ignored administration efforts and voted yes. In an attempt to hold Republicans behind the President, the White House has talked compromise. Key GOP members have been assured the President, if his veto is sustained, would approve another bill containing a smaller increase.

Romney Won't Take Self Out Of Mich. Race

By JAMES PHILLIPS Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Housing George Romney expressed hope today that Michigan Republicans could agree on some candidate other than him to run for the Senate this year. But Romney declined to take himself completely out of consideration for the nomination to oppose the incumbent Democrat, Sen. Philip A. Hart. "Our department's new housing and urban programs are at a critical state, and the national program for voluntary action is about to be launched," Romney told a news conference. "As a result, at this particular time they require my complete attention." "Hopefully there can be agreement on someone else as a consensus candidate who can command the wide support needed to win the election," he said. Romney was asked why he did not categorically rule himself out of contention. "I don't think any human being can know with absolute certainty what future events will bring," he replied. The former Michigan governor said also that his wife Lenore is not an active contender for the job. "She will not be a consensus candidate unless they cannot unite on someone else," Romney said. "Only in that event will she consider it." Mrs. Romney has been mentioned as a possible candidate by House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, among others.

Last Rites Set For W. I. Bissette

GRIFTON — William Ivan Bissette, 67, died Sunday in Duke Hospital at Durham. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 p.m. at the Grifton Christian Church by the Rev. William Edge and the Rev. Ronald Nichols. Burial will follow in the Grifton Cemetery with Masonic rites. Bissette was mayor of Grifton for 12 years and held various state and Democratic Party offices. He served for more than 30 years as Democratic Party chairman for the Grifton Township, and was a delegate to the 1960 Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles.

W.I. BISSETTE Bissette was also appointed to the state Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service committee in 1961. A community leader, Bissette opened a fertilizer business in 1931 and served as manager until his retirement in 1968. He also served as president of the Planters Warehouse in Kinston until it was sold, and served on the board of directors of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Kinston and the Security Savings and Loan Co. of Grifton. State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham termed Bissette a leader in growth of agriculture in the area, and as head of the Grifton Development Commission, he was credited with bringing new industry to the town. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Raye Dawson Bissette; his mother, Mrs. Myrtle E. Bissette of High Point and one brother, Winston Bissette of High Point.

Death Said Thieu Calls For Continued Help

By DAVID MASON SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu, defending his oft-criticized regime, appealed tonight for continued aid from friendly nations, but said he will go his own way if the allies' policies do not accord with those of South Vietnam. In a major speech to newsmen and the Saigon diplomatic corps, Thieu said that his countrymen must accept "a certain discipline" in wartime. "We cannot let the Communists take advantage of our freedoms in our institutions to create disturbances, to cause confusion and to jeopardize our security," he added. He said South Vietnam must gradually achieve self-sufficiency and self-support, but called for additional help from the allies. "To lose South Vietnam," he said, "means the deterioration of a whole big and secure rear, namely the free world. Right at the moment when the Republic of Vietnam needs the support of the allies in this fierce struggle, the government is not submissive. Neither will it one day follow the allies' policy if we see that such policy or the timing of it is not in accordance with our national interests." He did not hint at what possible differences he had in mind.

Brandt And Allies Meet

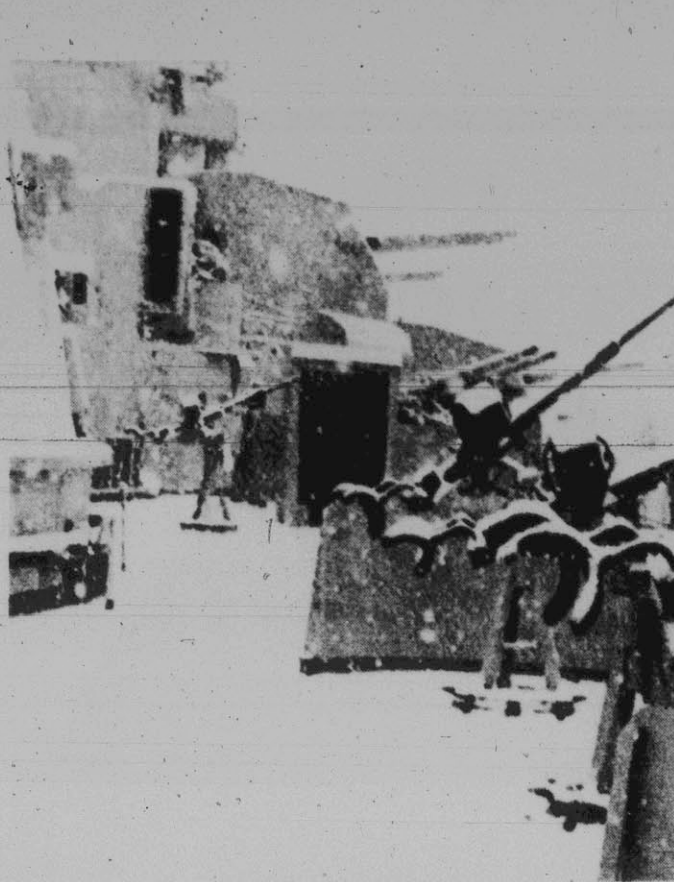

BERLIN (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt met today with the three allied commandants in West Berlin as East Germany continued its harassment of road traffic to and from the city for the sixth day. It was Brandt's first meeting with the U.S., British and French military commanders since he became chancellor last October. The delaying tactics by the East Germans were sure to be a leading subject of conversation although it was understood the meeting was set up a month ago. At the autobahn access points, the East Germans held up traffic periodically by flashing on the red light alternately against cars or trucks entering West Berlin, and occasionally against both in the outbound lanes.

Follow Green Line To Dentist's Office

By JAMES MCGREGOR MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — "Johnny, follow the green line."

Johnny Smith has been preoccupied with toys and books in a nook of the modern dentist's waiting room. But at the sound of his name over the intercom, he jumps up and follows the green stripe.

About half an hour later, the receptionist's voice says, "Mr. and Mrs. Smith, please follow the green line."

The Smiths follow the directions, toeing the green floor line like awkward ballet students.

Cheerful Room

They pass through a door which reads: "Mom and Dad, please wait here. The doctor and I want to be alone." Upon entering a cheerful green room, they find Johnny sitting on the dentist's knee, discussing football, astronauts and cavities.

The days of dread and screams are fading from dentists' offices — especially in the field of children's dentistry.

Dr. Joseph G. Stewart of Montgomery is one of the pioneers in a new concept of patient treatment. He is one of a handful of dentists across the country trying to make the once-fearful trip an interesting, rewarding and practically painless adventure for children.

Stewart, who in 1964 was voted Alabama's Outstanding Young Man by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is the president-elect of the Alabama Dental Association and had led many fights to get fluoride in drinking water.

Unique Office

He is proud of his unique office which was designed not only for the therapy of his young patients but also for efficiency.

The rows of little colored lines lead into an oval area which is surrounded by treatment rooms, labs and offices. Stewart is never more than a few steps from any patient and yet there is complete privacy.

Stewart said he initially painted the lines to help parents find the right treatment room when they came back to pick up their child and talk to him. This left the receptionist or nurse free for more important chores.

"But it really caught on with the youngsters," he said. "It gave them a certain independence in coming in on their own and following the line."

Why does he discourage parents from holding the child's hand during the visit?

"I tried it with parents when I first started practicing," he said. "But one day I had a mother and a father in while I was working on their child's teeth.

"First, the mother fainted and it took the entire office staff to get her situated. The father came back in and minutes later he fainted."

"I suddenly realized we were spending more time taking care of the parents than we were the patients."

By HUGH MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent LAGOS (AP) — Fallen Biafra's homeless Ibos must get back to their villages before the spring rains, or Nigeria could be faced with a refugee problem akin to that of the Palestinian Arabs, an American relief coordinator said today.

"This is the yam planting season," he said. "Unless the seeds are put in before the rains begin in April, the people from the war zones will be dependent on relief supplies until the fall of 1971."

"If these people can get their crops in the ground now, there will be a harvest to feed themselves in September. If not, they will be refugees for another 20 months, existing on relief supplies."

"In that time a refugee psychosis could develop, saddling Nigeria with an African equivalent of the Palestine Arab tragedy."

The expert refused to be quoted by name because the federal government, through hourly radio broadcasts, tells the refugees in the bush to stay where they are until food reaches them.

Already, according to government figures, 600,000 displaced persons are in refugee camps, a jump of 20 per cent in the week since the war ended.

Long files of refugees, growing in number every day, are streaming down the roads. Some relief workers think it will swell into the millions.

Yams are a main staple of the Nigerian diet, especially in the rural villages. The great yam growing areas were the Ibo lands beyond the Niger River, in the war-devastated northeast corner of the Eastern Region.

During the war, behind the federal lines, the Christian Council of Nigeria, a Protestant agency, and the Catholic Secretariat joined in a yam seed project to keep the areas planted. As the Ibos fled their fields to remain with shrinking Biafra, many acres were kept under cultivation by the relief agencies so there would be seeds available for renewing the crop.

Clothing Standards Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is considering stricter standards for the manufacturing of three types of children's clothing to protect toddlers from fire.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans has ordered a notice placed in the Federal Register indicating that new or revised standards of flammability may be established for children's sleepwear, underwear and dresses.

Data gathered by government agencies has shown that children under 6 years of age are injured more frequently from clothing fires than most other age groups.

Any new standards the government may propose could not become effective until late summer or early fall, however.

Stans said Friday the action on children's clothing is a follow-up to last year's notice by the department that new or revised flammability standards might be needed for wearing apparel generally. He said it also was the latest in a series of moves to implement the Flammable Fabrics Act of 1953. The law was amended in 1967 to give the commerce secretary authority to propose more stringent regulations than the mild standards in the 1953 act.

The secretary noted that new flammability standards for carpets and rugs were proposed recently. He said new standards for bedding and general wearing apparel also may be considered.

N.C. Travel Figures Up

RALEIGH (AP) — The travel business has more than doubled in North Carolina since 1958, according to an official state report, and posted a 9 per cent increase last year.

The figures were contained in a report released Saturday by the Travel and Promotion Division of the Department of Conservation and Development.

The report showed the tourist business in North Carolina brought $752 million in spending last year — $484 million spent by out-of-state tourists and $268 million by Tar Heels.

The figures compared to 1968 spending of $446 million by out-of-state tourists and $250 million by North Carolinians.

Bill F. Hensley, division director, said the travel business "is going to continue to grow at a rapid pace."

The report said a total of 38 million out-of-state tourists visited the state in 1969 in 19 million groups. Each group spent an average of $25 per day.

The report added that during the last 11 years, spending by out-of-state visitors has increased an average of 7.3 per cent each year.

Divorced Wife At Her Request

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — An army informant says former President Sukarno has divorced his third wife, Japanese-born Ratna Sari Dewi, 29, at her request.

Dewi, a former Tokyo night club hostess, is believed to be living in Paris. Gossip here is that she wants to marry a Japanese businessman.

She is the fourth official wife Sukarno has divorced. Although entitled under Moslem law to have four wives at once, he now has only one remaining, Javanese-born Hartini.

Spanish Nun Is Declared Saint

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI proclaimed Maria Dolores Torres Acosta, a Spanish nun who died 83 years ago, as a saint of the Roman Catholic Church Sunday.

The ceremony took place before 6,000 persons in St. Peter's Basilica.

The saint founded the Sisters Servants of Mary nursing order.

"Perhaps new towns and villages will have to be built," said one.

"But keeping the uprooted in a temporary centralized place is not the answer," he continued.

"That only creates more refugee camps, and the world, sadly, has too many now. People can learn to live on relief. They survive but they lose hope. That is the greatest human tragedy."

Williams-Owens Vows Said In Ceremony On Sunday

FOUNTAIN — Miss Patricia Louise Owens and Steven James Williams were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Fountain Presbyterian Church. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Zack Thomas III.

Mr. and Mrs. James Leroy Owens of Fountain are the bride's parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Williams of Wilson.

Wedding music was presented by Miss Carolyn Long of Henderson, organist, and Dana Paul Oakley of Farmville who sang "More" and "Whither Thou Goest."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a formal gown of silk faced peau de soie and re-embroidered alencon lace fashioned with an empire waist and batteau neckline. The bodice was accentuated with clusters of pearls on appliques of lace. Wide cuffs and lace appliques also accented the long sleeves. The skirt was A-line with a chapel length train also appliqued with lace.

The bride's elbow length veil of imported silk illusion fell from a petal headpiece encrusted with bridal pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with three red roses and outlined with lace and French tulle tied with white satin ribbons.

Miss Mary Kathryn Owens of Fountain was her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Charles Mattox Owens of Raleigh, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. They wore floor length red velvet dresses fashioned with fitted bodices and bell sleeves. Each wore a red velvet headpiece trimmed with white fur and red veiling. They carried white fur muffs.

Bridesmaids were Miss Hazel Marie Gay of Fountain, Miss Harriet Rebecca Wallace of Kinston, cousin of the bride, Miss Lou Nichols Outland, Miss Mary Diane Hurley and Miss Sandra Faye Turner, all of Farmville. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Barbara Lynn Owens of Farmville, niece of the bride. All were dressed like the honor attendants.

Mr. Williams was his son's best man. Ushers were Robert Scott Williams, brother of the bridegroom, James Russell Kirby III, Michael Boyd Cates and Melvin Clayton Braswell, all of Wilson, Charles Mattox Owens of Raleigh, brother of the bride, and Jerome Anthony Quinn of Charlotte, cousin of the bridegroom.

MRS. STEVEN JAMES WILLIAMS

Reception
Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Owens Jr. introduced guests to the receiving line and Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Allen Averette of Oxford directed them to the reception hall.

Inviting guests to the refreshment table were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Baskett of Bowie, Md.

The table was decorated with an arrangement of white flowers flanked by burning tapers and graced with all silver appointments. Alternating in pouring punch were Mrs. Gordon Owens of Walstonburg, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. E. Donald LaBar of Dallas, Pa., aunt of the bridegroom. Serving the four-tier wedding cake were Mrs. Charles Edward Bradt Jr. of Jacksonville, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Hal Douglas Wallace of Wilson.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Hardy Johnson of Fountain, Mrs. Bobby Jones of Stanfordsburg, Mrs. Fred Moore of Fountain, Mrs. Thurman Barnes of Lucama, Mrs. Frances Moss Bennett and Mrs. Theibert S. Creech, both of Wilson.

Presiding at the register were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wallace of Kinston, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Kirby C. Owens of Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Gradley also of Wilson.

Following the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. They will be at home in Wilson after Feb. 1.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and Lenoir College. Kinston. She is employed by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Mr. Williams, a graduate of Ralph L. Pike High School, Wilson, is a junior at Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity. He also is employed by Oettinger's Men's Store, Wilson.

After-Rehearsal Party
On Saturday night following the wedding rehearsal, the bridegroom's parents entertained the couple at an after-rehearsal party in the church parlor.

Covered with a blue cloth, the serving table was centered with an arrangement of white flowers flanked by burning blue tapers in three branch silver candelabra.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. W.T. Etheridge, Mrs. Randolph Williams, Mrs. John Musgrave, Mrs. James Lee Griffin, Mrs. John W. Stallings Jr., Mrs. Starling Bissette and Mrs. Jimmy Harry Pappas, all of Wilson.

Mrs. William F. Taylor of Wilson presided at the register which held a portrait of the bride, burning candles and the bride's book.

The approximately 50 guests were members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Songbird Patti Page Hasn't Strayed From Country-Style Living

By DONALD MADDEN
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (WNS) — Just an old-fashioned girl who wants every kind of modern convenience. That's Patti Page, and her leanings toward the old and the new clash head-on in the kitchen.

The lovable songbird completely redesigned it when she first moved in with her husband, choreographer-director Charles O'Curran. She installed everything from a built-in toaster to hot and warming drawers.

But the country style of the girl from Claremont, Okla., also shows through. The floors are pegged wood planking, the island oven unit and some of the walls are faced with thin-sawed-briek. Hooked rugs are scattered on the floors, and there are a working grandfather's clock and an old wood hutch. Glass shelves at the windows hold a collection of coffee cups, mugs and old stemware.

(Patti's glassware collection extends into the living room, lining the bar shelves, cupboards and table tops.)

Patti and her husband have two adopted young children. Upstairs there's a big nursery, and downstairs a comfortable family room. There's also an auxiliary kitchen that leads to the children's playroom.

The O'Curran keep afire going every night in the big brick raise hearth in the family room. Around it are a squishy red and white print sofa and chairs, and an enormous copper cocktail table that was salvaged from an old hotel. The table has niches on all sides, now used to hold books, and a central well, now used for bottles of wine.

Patti Page hasn't wandered far at all from the homey style she was raised in, as one of eleven children.

Mrs. Joyner Is Club Speaker

The Bonae Artes Book Club was entertained by Mrs. James Tucker at her home on Tuesday. Mrs. Annie Ruth Joyner was speaker.

Mrs. Joyner spoke on hair pieces. Most hair pieces sold at popular prices today, are made from artificial materials and are not easily distinguishable from real hair, she said.

In order for hair pieces to look their best, professional help is needed in their selection, she added.

Mrs. Ed Petrie, president, conducted the meeting and books were exchanged.

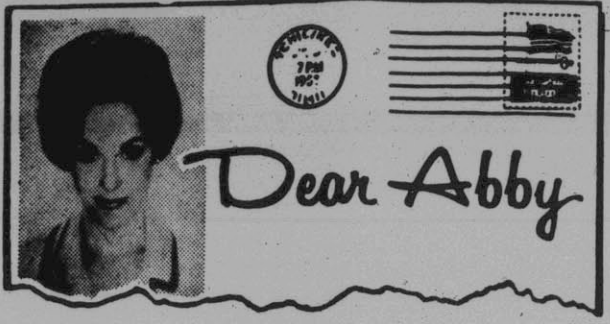

Mrs. Sherman Parks was a guest for the meeting.

Dear Abby Letter Draws Inquiries

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter signed "MORRIS WIFE." She complained because after her husband had been elected president of his lodge, someone said, "I heard Morris accepted the presidency of his lodge. That was real nice of him. I heard nobody else would take it."

My heart goes out to Morris. Here in Aschaffenburg, Germany, there are not many men named Morris who have recently been elected president of their lodge. Only me! Inasmuch as I happened upon this "honor" by default, my wife has been the recipient of many curious (if ignorant) inquiries, since the letter signed "Morris' Wife" appeared in your column.

I think all the Morris around the world should form a "MASTER MORRIS CLUB," wherein all men named Morris who have become lodge presidents may gather once a year to exchange views and share experiences. A prize could be offered to the Morris who could come up with the most novel reason for refusing the nomination for reelection next year.

In order to keep the club truly exclusive, gentlemen named "Maurice" need not apply. Sincerely,
MORRIS M. MANION,
ASCHAFFENBURG, GERMANY

DEAR MORRIS: Your sense of humor is delicious. And the fact that there is a Morris in Germany who still has a sense of humor is indeed a revelation. But please, no international clubs for Morris. I'm published in Rome, Ireland, Mexico, Tokyo, Thailand, Spain, Brazil, Canada and America, too!

DEAR ABBY: I am 15, and right now I am being punished because I told my mother that if she can't see what everybody else can see, she must be blind.

I have twin brothers who are seven years old. One is an average boy but the other one (I'll call him Mark) is not right. In the first place, he never learned to talk right. His speech has improved some, but it's far from normal. My mother keeps taking him for therapy, but she won't admit there is something wrong with Mark. That kid can't tie his own shoes, ride a bike or even blow his own nose. My mother does everything for him, and she gets mad if anybody says he's not normal. She says, "There is nothing wrong with him. He's just slow." Abby, he is like a two-year-old!

My father doesn't say much because he doesn't want to upset mother.

I can't wait until I am 18 so I can get out of this house. The strain is awful. I keep wishing there were some way I could help Mark. Have you any suggestions?

MARK'S SISTER

DEAR SISTER: It probably hurts your mother to "admit" that something is wrong with Mark. The chances are she not only realizes it, she's doing everything she can to "help" him. You can help, too (and minimize the strain at your house) if you quit harping on it.

DEAR ABBY: A few days before Christmas, our young son called from San Francisco to tell us that he was back from Viet Nam on schedule. We were shocked when he told us that he wouldn't be spending Christmas with us. He had decided to spend it with some friends, instead.

I know that parents write bitterly about such capers, but the generation gap is nothing new. Despite his absence, we had the happiest Christmas ever, and our son was happy with his friends. Our parental needs are only emotional, but after a year in the Orient, his emotional needs for his friends are far greater.

Santa, and "The Man" who flies above the highest jets have returned stateside, our boy doll, all in one piece. A bit worse for wear, fatigued, restless and somewhat cynical perhaps, but with two arms and two legs. It can walk and talk and dance! Don't give us that "Santa is dead," routine, "Virginia." We may be temporarily impatient and piqued to realize where we stand, but we adults can wait, if we know the package is on the way.

Cold Weather Hard On Needy

Relief agencies are finding a heavier than usual demand for clothing, blankets, food and fuel, apparently because of the cold weather this January and the resulting drop in work for common labor.

A Salvation Army spokesman over the weekend there was an immediate need for clothes of all sizes for both children and adults, as well as for blankets. The Salvation Army also reported that a reserve of canned goods had been about used up.

The Moose clothing bank reported that its supply of clothes and blankets had about given out and it welcomed the donation of such items to replenish its bank.

Red Cross representatives said they were standing by to assist anyone in need.

All three agencies said they would welcome donations of materials or cash to help the needy this year.

Greenville committed itself to cleaning up its delapidated housing some years ago and through urban renewal, low rent housing, and deligent inspection of existing housing much has been accomplished.

However, there are still people in need in the city and in the country. There are many without adequate heat and in poorly insulated dwellings. There are others without adequate clothing or blankets or even lackin in food.

Each citizen who makes a contribution of clothing, blankets or cash to one of the relief agencies can take satisfaction in knowing that perhaps someone will not go cold.

Bitter cold weather is an inconvenience to those of us who have adequate clothing and a warm place to stay. It is particularly hard on the poor, however. For many of them there is no place to find comfort.

Old Postal Building Soon Be In Use

The Old post office building at Third and Evans Streets will be put to a good use on a temporary basis.

It was announced last week that the building will be used by the Census Bureau as a district office for the 1970 population census.

Regional Director Joseph R. Norwood announced that Jerry C. Scott has been named director manager and that his office and staff would be located in the old post office building.

From this office, Scott will supervise the census in: Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Hertford, Hyde, Martin, Northampton, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimas, Pitt, Tyrell and Washington Counties.

The Greenville District office will be well located for supervising the census in these eastern counties. In addition the Census Bureau will be making use of a sound building pending its renovation for permanently housing government offices.

Preferential Vote Likelier

Where is the North Carolina Democratic Party going — and how? In this guest column, Church Mooney, Raleigh Times Capitol Square reporter, discusses this question.

A presidential preferential primary for North Carolina Democrats is more likely now than ever before — not by majority choice but as the lesser of several evils.

Such a primary would take the thorns out of selecting delegates to the next Democratic National Convention. It would avoid the real risk of increasing disunity among Democrats and driving some into Republican arms. It would take the wind out of some black sails.

Dr. Reginald Hawkins, the black Charlotte dentist who garnered 125,000 votes during the 1968 Democratic gubernatorial primary, may have done more to create such a primary than anyone else.

Hawkins unsuccessfully challenged the state delegation to the 1968 convention on the basis that blacks had been excluded from full participation. Hawkins contended that blacks should be represented on the delegation in a quota system based on the number of black Democrats.

This theory was generally poo-pooed until the national Democratic study group under Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) decided that future national convention delegations must "reasonably reflect" the racial make-up of the state parties.

The McGovern rule on this seems likely to bring another contest when the 1972 delegation is selected — a contest Tar Heel leaders would like to avoid.

With a GOP governor looking south from Virginia, Tar Heel Democrats are beginning to see a genuine threat from their own opposite numbers. This threat is magnified by the thin margin which elected Gov. Bob Scott over Republican Jim Gardner.

Delegates in the past have come from two sources: election in district meetings just before the state convention and a list prepared by the governor. The McGovern requirement will give governor's good reason to depart from the tradition of tapping the party's elder statesmen as delegates.

But many leaders fear a donnybrook will result no matter what sort of at-large list is proposed for the 1972 delegation. If the list follows the McGovern rule, it could alienate many conservative whites by including blacks.

If the list doesn't follow the McGovern rule, then blacks could successfully challenge the delegations before the convention credentials committee.

Even if the delegation does fit the McGovern rule, it could alienate militant blacks by including persons whom they would term "uncle toms."

Any of these three possibilities can't help the Democrats in November and could very likely hurt them if the GOP nominee is able to turn the dissent to his advantage.

The beauty of a presidential preferential primary is that it avoids all this and makes the question of who goes to the national convention moot.

Such a primary would be on the one-man-one vote principal which is universally recognized as fair, thus removing any complaints any group might have about being disenfranchised. Every registered Democrat would have as much voice as every other.

With the state's votes already committed by primary, the matter of casting them in convention is mere formality. Then a balanced delegation could be selected with very little fuss since the reason for going to the convention is to vote for the presidential nominee.

The question of how to select the next national convention delegation has yet to be decided by the Democratic Study Commission under Wilson Atty. Jim Hunt. The commission is to meet with in the next three weeks to consider it.

Hunt's group has already restructured precinct, county and district party organizations according to the McGovern rule.

A survey of the commission's members showed 15 favored a presidential primary, 13 were undecided and six opposed it. Other party leaders outside the commission already favor it and more are being converted.

See Fiasco In Miami Beach

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The overriding reason why the national Democratic fund-raising effort Feb. 5 is now assured of embarrassing failure can be found in the frigid response to a request that Boston join a proposed closed-circuit television hookup that night.

State Rep. David Harrison, the Massachusetts Democratic chairman, gave an unequivocal rejection. His own state party was so financially impoverished, Harrison explained, that he had not drawn a cent in salary since becoming chairman late in 1968. Consequently, he concluded, any money raised in Massachusetts was going to stay in Massachusetts.

That message, often less candid, came from every corner of the country in response to pleas of the national party. Such unconcern by state parties to the national Democratic financial plight doomed from the beginning the Feb. 5 gala in Miami Beach, Fla. More importantly, it points to the hopelessness of making a significant dent in the unprecedented national Democratic debt of $8 million — plus prior to the 1972 election.

The Miami Beach fiasco has, at least, confronted party leaders with grimy financial reality. If the Democratic party is to conduct a 1972 Presidential campaign worthy of the name, it must now consider something approaching political bankruptcy: defaulting on $3 million to $3.5 million in notes (largely held by Democratic fat cats) and settlement on a fraction of the money owed other creditors.

Such a humiliation was precisely what Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, Democratic National Chairman, sought to avoid last fall when he began planning the Feb. 5 fund-raiser. With National Treasurer Pat O'Connor having frittered away all of 1969, Harris stressed in internal party conclaves the necessity for national fund-raising early in 1970 before money demands by state campaigns became too intense.

Harris asked Lawrence F. O'Brien, one of the party's most respected pros and his immediate predecessor as National Chairman, to conduct the affair. When O'Brien declined because of other demands on his time, the lack of an experienced hand immediately became evident.

The hackneyed format selected, a gala from the Miami Beach Auditorium connected via closed-circuit television to some 16 dinners east of the Mississippi, elicited yawns. The fact that Frank Sinatra, sought for questioning by New Jersey crime investigators, was the gala's star produced outrage from some party leaders. Amateurism was obvious in soliciting $1,000 - ticket purchases with mimeographed letters and metered (instead of individually stamped) envelopes.

But even the most professional management could not have thawed the icy response from state party

Solution To Pollution

WASHINGTON — The big protest movement of the Seventies will concern itself with pollution. Students, teachers, conservation groups and public-spirited citizens are ready to wage war to improve the environment, and we can expect to see some very tense scenes between the antipolluters and those forces in the country which are suspected of pollution.

While the antipollution protesters are just trying to get organized, the propollution people have already hired a lobbyist to head an organization called the American Pollution Anti-Defamation League.

The lobbying group has a budget of $25 million to start with, and it will work to

Other Editors Say Three-County Airport

(Washington Daily News)

We are pretty well convinced that Washington, Williamston, or Greenville alone will get a commercial airport anytime in the foreseeable future.

Washington and Greenville today have very good airports for communities of the size they are. Williamston has a smaller airport. For years there has been talk of getting commercial service in the area, but sadly enough the efforts have been turned back every time.

The recent meeting between officials of Beaufort, Martin, and Pitt counties is a most wholesome and timely approach. The very fact that no one of the three can get the job done alone in no way means that the three cooperating together automatically will be denied.

The very fact that a three county airport effort means three times the effort any one could produce ought to mean something.

If we look at the area air service available right now, we find that the very area we are speaking about lies in a sort of "dead" region. To the North of us Elizabeth City has some airline service. To the South and Southwest of us New Bern and Kinston have some commercial service. To the West of us Rocky Mount has some service, but we go to Raleigh or Norfolk for trunk line service.

Together Beaufort, Martin, and Pitt counties represent a population of 123,186 people, according to the 1960 census. The census very likely will show in the neighborhood of 130,000 people living in the three counties.

The naming of a Mid-East Airport authority, as asked by the leaders attending the three county meeting, is definitely a step in the right direction. It is our hope that such an authority will be named without delay. The urgency of the matter might be debated, but the sooner we get the wheels in motion, the sooner we shall be bringing in need and the problem directly to those who can help us.

Air travel today is not a fad or a luxury. It is a need, and communities and areas denied air travel service are in a difficult position.

We must ask ourselves right now a few questions. How much do we need commercial air service in our area? Can we really justify the need? Are we willing to continue working together on a three county basis to get the results we wish?

If we answer these questions clearly and firmly, we then and there have the basis for going ahead. And this effort should generate full support of the people of all three counties.

Stated very simply, this is an effort by three counties with the knowledge that no one of them alone can get the job done.

persuade Congress and the public that pollution is not as bad as everyone makes it out to be.

Mr. Caleb Tergent, executive secretary of the APADL, told me in his offices in Washington. "We are providing all the good things in life to the American people, and we can't provide them if we are constantly being harassed by people yelling for clean air and clean water."

"You feel that the antipollution people are being unrealistic then?"

"That's putting it mildly," Tergent said. "The keystone to American industry has been its ability to get rid of its chemical waste through the skies and the streams. When you criticize pollution in America, you are criticizing the American way of life."

"Mr. Tergent, are you

Look To Outside Protest

By ED ROGERS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Southerners smarting under court orders for total school desegregation are looking to a federal crackdown in the North and West as the only hope for saving neighborhood schools.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., told the Senate last week that Georgia schools are in "turmoil" because of court orders to shift masses of pupils and teachers to achieve full racial balance by Feb. 1.

The next day his colleague, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., warned senators from outside the South they should give more heed to the South's school problem because their regions may be next.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., sought last fall to lay a foundation for Russell's idea. In eight Senate speeches he cited eight big states outside the South where he said there are segregation patterns as marked as those in the South.

Congressional Hope

The idea is that if all regions were forced to bus children across racial housing lines as the South now must do, the clamor in Congress would become so overwhelming that the courts would back off.

Thus far the House twice has written prohibitions against forced busing into school aid bills and the Senate twice watered them down so they became meaningless.

In neither House have the Southerners gained enough support from outside their region for stronger legislation they seek to reverse the courts' "racial balance" doctrines.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford told a visiting group of protesting Atlanta businessmen last week: Without help from outside the South you don't have enough votes.

The Department of Justice itself has spurred hopes that help may soon be on the way as congressmen from northern and western states face the loss of neighborhood schools.

Stepup Action

Jerris Leonard, head of the department's Civil Rights Division, wrote Rep. Fletcher Thompson, R-Ga., that he intends to step up court action outside the South.

Thus far litigation has been skimpy compared to the multitude of southern suits, some embracing whole states, that touch almost every school system in the region.

Justice Department records show five suits were filed in 1968 and two in 1969. None was filed before 1968. Here is the department status report on the 1968 suits:

— As a result of one suit a school district in the Chicago suburb of South Holland, Ill., is under a consent order to desegregate its faculties and students.

— At Indianapolis, Ind., there have been two consent orders requiring faculty integration. The government is now seeking a trial date to debate the issue of student integration.

— The court granted a desegregation order for Tulsa, Okla. and it is now being appealed in the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

— A desegregation consent order has been issued in a suit involving a school system at East St. Louis, Ill.

— A federal court last Tuesday ordered a system at Pasadena, Calif., desegregated by

Save By More Standardization

By ELMER ROESSNER

Everybody talks about the weather and standardization in auto design but nobody does anything about it. While nobody wants Cadillacs to look exactly like Ramblers, there are some points of standardization that might provide economies and perhaps, save a few lives.

There is some standardization of auto parts now. Sparkplugs, for example, are largely interchangeable. Some other parts are identical in several makes. In fact, some manufacturers have borrowed parts from competitors, although they seldom say much about it.

The auto makers themselves might like a lot more standardization, but there is always the danger that if they got together to plan them, the federal government would break it up by charging violation of the antitrust laws which, in fact, it might be.

More Government Control?

The Highway Research Board, which is sponsored by the American Association of State Highway Officials, has advocated standardization as least as far as highway usage is involved. A team of researchers from the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory have concluded that some vehicle design standards should be imposed on the auto industry and, for the sake of uniformity, probably some agency of the federal government.

There are several areas where, further standardization might be explored.

Headlights. Most states do regulate headlights to some extent, but there is no uniformity. The Cornell researchers suggested a study of the optimum location in relation to the height above ground of drivers' eyes. This might involve some standardization of seat heights, too, with adjustable heights for short drivers.

Perhaps even enforcement of existing laws might help.

Those Taillights!

Taillights. The configuration of taillights is a rainbow of confusion now. Most highways at night now look as if all the motorists in the world were racing madly someplace to dispose of last year's Christmas trees with the strings of lights still turned on. Now there is talk of placing rear lights on the top of cars. But wherever, many motorists would like to see a little less confusion.

Bumpers. Here some standardization might save repair bills and lives. A simple solution would be to have all bumpers front and rear, located at exactly the same heights. Later such factors as strength, resiliency and materials could be standardized.

Gear and drive controls. Perhaps this is too much to ask. Yet the vast variations are confusing. Some garage mechanics refuse to drive foreign cars!

And there are may more: location of ignition keys; location of horn buttons and bars; uniform seat-belt operation, and what's your pet annoyance?

Polystyrene Containers Approved For Poultry

A study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture finds that the use of polystyrene containers instead of wirebound veneer boxes for shipping ice-packed poultry may save industry hundreds of thousands of dollars. Strength For Today

THROUGH THE AGES

People often remark that the Bible is a hard book to understand. This is both true and false. One reason it is hard to understand is because the Bible is the product of ancient civilizations. The Bible is not a textbook or an almanac — it is God's revelation of his nature and purpose.

Mark Twain once declared that the things in the Bible that troubled him were not the things he could not understand but the things he could understand. The Ten Commandments are not always easy to take, but God has not seen fit to modify or alter them through the ages.

Because the Bible deals with life it is as modern as today's newspaper or magazine, but we have to submit to certain requirements before we can understand the Bible or apply its teachings to our lives.

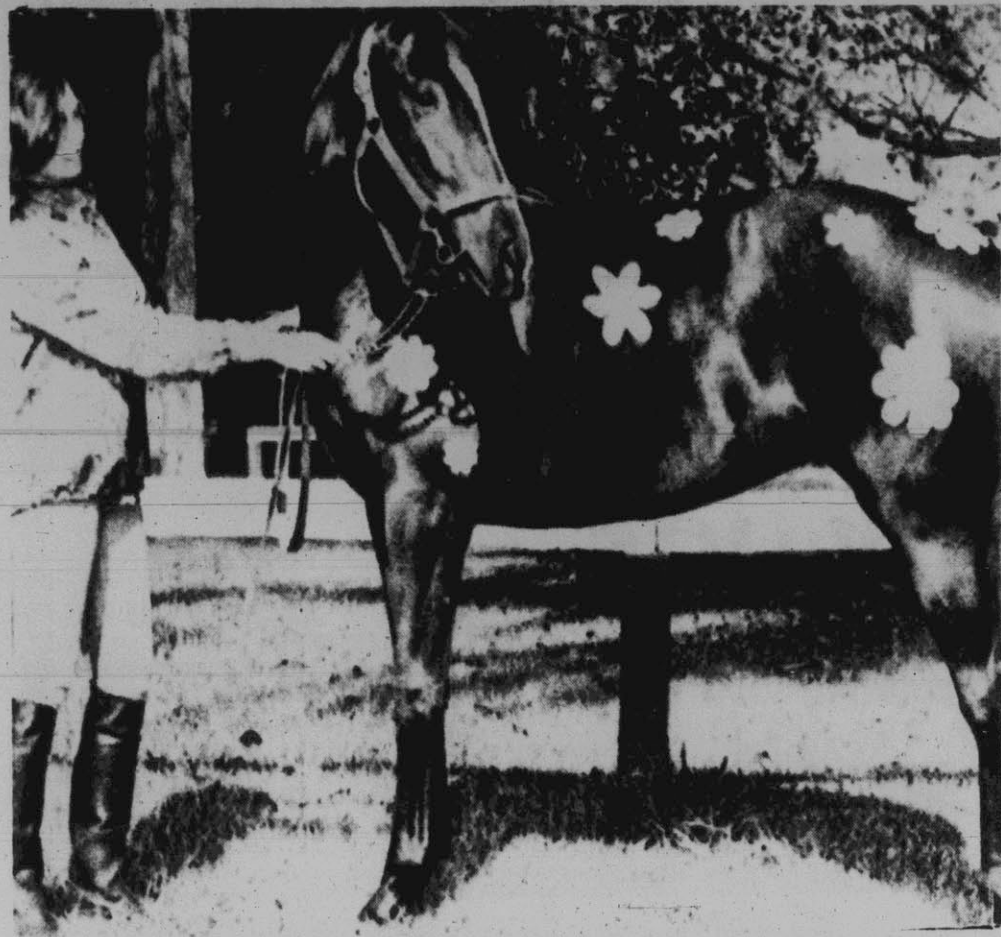

First of all, we must be sincere. We must want to know what the Bible teaches and be willing to submit to the moral requirements of its teachings. Then we must read it regularly. Bible-reading without prayer is incomplete. We may get impatient at times over its "begats," but those "begats" have historical significance and were especially significant to the people who first read the Bible.

Does this mean that we have outgrown the Bible? Not at all. Human nature — as well as human nature — change little with the passing of time. The problems confronted by patriarchs, prophets and apostles were much the same as the problems we confront today.

Read. Ponder. Pray. And you will find the ancient book coming to life.

Death Camp Of Auschwitz Retains Grimness

OSWIECIM, Poland (AP) — Fresh snow covers the ground around Auschwitz but a gray grimness hangs over the Nazis' death camp, liberated 25 years ago this week.

It is a deserted hell, made into a museum and monument to four million victims of Adolf Hitler's inhumanity. The thick wire fences still stand. So do the wooden watchtowers, once manned by soldiers guarding the Third Reich's biggest factory for annihilation.

In places, human ashes and bone fragments are still visible. The "Arbeit macht frei" sign, so hideously ironic, still reigns over the entrance way to Auschwitz I, the main camp. It means "Work brings freedom."

Below the sign have passed more than 7½ million visitors, including one million foreigners, since the Polish government made the camp a museum in 1947.

Inside the gate are the red-brick blockhouses in which prisoners lived. They are now filled with the remnants of mass murder found after the camp was reached Jan. 27, 1945 by the Soviet army.

One display has two tons of hair, cut from 40,000 gassed women in the last days. Another is filled with shoes, another with artificial legs, another with shaving and clothes brushes. One shows a great heap of suit cases bearing the names of Jews who were brought like cattle in freight cars from all over Europe to be liquidated in Auschwitz's gas chambers.

The camp was opened in June 1940 to hold Poles arrested for resistance to the Nazi occupation of their country. Later it was expanded and designated by the Nazi hierarchy to be the center for the "final solution of the Jewish question." Three-quarters of Auschwitz's victims are believed to have been Jews, but in nearly five years of operation some 28 ethnic groups from 24 countries were counted among the dead.

From the main camp the visitor can go by bus to Auschwitz II, the camp known as Birkenau, 1½ miles away. Here were located four gas chambers and crematoria, destroyed by the Nazis before they fled, but preserved as ruins. Here, under a watchtower crowning a long, low barracks, came the trains bearing human cargo to the death factory.

Under a cover of snow, the outline of the tracks can still be seen. Here the selections were made by doctors: Those who were to go directly to the gas chambers of those deemed capable of heavy labor, which meant usually a slow death by starvation or disease.

Rudolf Hoess, the commandant of Auschwitz, stated at the Nazi war crimes trial at Nuernberg in 1946 that each Birkenau gas chamber could hold 2,000 victims at one time.

Hoess, who was hanged at Auschwitz by the Polish government in 1947, described the Birkenau facilities as an "improvement" to those at Treblinka, another death camp in Poland, where the gas chamber could hold 200 persons a one time.

The third camp at Auschwitz was a chemical complex—the Buna Werke—which the Nazis built for the German I. G. Farben Company with slave labor. Prisoners were forced to work there under inhuman conditions. After three or four months, according to survivors, many men died from beatings, hunger or overwork. In three years an estimated 30,000 prisoners died there.

In 1945 the retreating Nazis destroyed most of the plant. But on the ruins the Polish government erected one of the country's largest chemical works. The Oswiecim chemical complex, producing over 150 varieties of synthetic rubbers and plastics, employs some 11,000 workers.

Most of the 42,000 inhabitants of the town of Oswiecim, where Auschwitz is located, earn their living either directly or indirectly from this plant.

"It is the symbol of life with which the people here associate themselves," said one citizen, "rather than Auschwitz, the symbol of death."

The museum at Auschwitz is directed by Kazimierz Smolen, 49, a former prisoner. He was arrested by the Gestapo as a 19-year-old in Silesia in 1940 for having distributed anti-occupation leaflets. The tattooed number on his arm signifies he was the 1,327th prisoner sent to the camp.

Smolen worked as a clerk in the reception shack for political prisoners.

"I was young and strong and had the good luck to work in the office," he says. Seven or eight Poles who worked with him also survived.

After the war, Smolen studied law and worked with the Nazi war crimes commission in Krakow. He was appointed museum director in 1955.

Occasionally when he is working intensely preparing material for an Auschwitz exhibition he has nightmares.

"This happens particularly after sorting through the picture files for the most vivid photographs," he says.

Smolen heads a staff of about 120, including researchers, guides, watchmen and cleaning women. Visitors include Polish school children and heads of state. Charles de Gaulle, Jospin Tito, Leonid I. Brezhnev and Alexei N. Kosygin, Jawaharlal Nehru, the Shah of Iran, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, and Robert F. Kennedy have been among prominent visitors.

There have been six Auschwitz trials in West Germany involving 74 defendants who were among the camp staff. Dr. Horst Schumann, extradited from Ghana in 1968, is to go on trial soon, accused of conducting sterilization experiments on Jews and Gypsies at Auschwitz.

The Polish war crimes commission says Dr. Josef Mengele, who experimented on twins, is the last major Auschwitz criminal whose whereabouts is not known. Some authorities believe he is in South America.

School Attitudes Changing In Regard To Child Mothers

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — School officials are developing more enlightened policies dealing with the growing numbers of pregnant teen-agers, including keeping them in school and assuring the medical care, according to a report to a conference on adolescent parents.

The weekend conference also was told the change in policies, including an end to punitive expulsions, results in a lower dropout rate for girls, much better health for mother and baby and fewer repeat pregnancies.

Pregnant teen-agers were "an unserved population until a few years ago," Dr. Dorothy Lyons, a Los Angeles physician who began a pioneer program to help them in 1962, said during the "Parenthood in Adolescence" conference.

"Most had been kicked out of school and sent to a home or relative," she said.

Few got regular medical attention or nutritional advice, she said, heightening the risk which teen-age mothers already face in birth. Their births frequently were premature and premature babies are more susceptible to mental retardation and deformities, Dr. Lyons said.

And the newly delivered mother who was allowed or who chose to return to school was a rarity. At least 50 per cent of the female dropouts from high school are pregnant, she said.

Followup studies on the 350 girls in the seven Los Angeles special schools show nearly all return to graduate, many go on to college when they might not have before, and some use scholarships which they had been awarded before they got pregnant.

Equipped with more information about themselves and family planning methods, Dr. Lyons said, most do not become pregnant again soon. This is a medical victory, since rapid successions of pregnancies in young women tend to produce deformed children, she said.

"We keep them in the classroom right up to delivery," she said. "They may have their first labor pains there. They come back 10 days after delivery and stay for 6 to 8 weeks and then return to the regular school," Dr. Lyons said.

Dr. Carl R. Komer, director of special education at Kalamazoo, Mich., schools, said his countywide program serves about 80 girls at any one time out of the population of 200,000. "I see no defense for any community of any size not having a number of options available to a pregnant girl," he said. "They should be able to stay in school and get special services there, go into a comprehensive group program such as ours, or have residential classroom study."

Dinner Guests Of Pres. Ordaz

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Former President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson were Sunday dinner guests of President and Mrs. Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

Also a guest was former President Miguel Aleman, now head of Mexico's tourist council. The Johnsons, here for a vacation expected to last several weeks, are staying at a house he owns at nearby Puerto Marques.

Episcopal Church Plans Close Six Seminaries

NEW YORK (AP) — The Episcopal Church will close at least six of its 11 seminaries because they have been reduced to "begging for money ... simply to keep their doors open," a church official says.

The Rev. Almus M. Thorp Sr., executive director of the church's Board for Theological Education, disclosed the reduction of seminaries in a sermon Sunday.

He said the seminaries, which range in enrollment from 200 students each at General Seminary in New York City and the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va., to 32 students at Bexley Hall in Rochester, N.Y., sought funds one Sunday a year to keep open.

Another problem, Thorp said, was "too few seminarians in too many schools." During the last decade enrollment at the 11 schools remained about 1,000, he said.

It was not immediately clear which seminaries would close under the reduction plan.

The Board of Theological Education has recommended reducing the number of seminaries from 11 to five or less, Thorp said.

He said the seminaries were aware of the plan and were prepared to carry it out "with dispatch."

There are about 3 million Episcopalians in the United States. Thorp said they had more per capita seminaries than other Protestant groups because "we're about 50 years behind."

Thorp delivered his sermon at St. James' Church on Madison Avenue.

Navy Observer Studies Army Race Seminars

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — The Navy may be thinking about taking some advice from the Army.

A Navy Department representative, Ensign Daniel Cornejo, visited the Army reservation of Ft. Bragg last Thursday to study the results of recent interracial seminars held at the post.

Cornejo said, "There is no evidence of an organized movement by minority groups in the Navy. But it is known that racial tension exists, and the department wants to put out guidelines to commanding officers on how to prevent problems."

The seminars were held at Ft. Bragg and white and Negro soldiers discussed what was bothering them. Participants agreed the seminars had served a useful purpose.

Exiled King's Son Is Baptized

ROME (AP) — Prince Nicholas, 5-month-old son of exiled Greek King Constantine and Queen Anne-Marie was baptized Sunday at Rome's Greek Orthodox Church.

At the ceremony in addition to the parents were the queen's mother and father, King Frederick and Queen Ingrid of Denmark; Constantine's mother, Queen Frederika of Greece; and his sisters, Princess Irene and Princess Sophie.

Also present were Constantine's and Anne-Marie's other children, Princess Alexia and Crown Prince Paul.

leaders. Sorry, said state chairman John Bailey in Connecticut (himself National Chairman for nearly eight years), but we have our own Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner March 7. Sorry, said Illinois Democrats, but we have our own Roosevelt Day dinner in Springfield Jan. 30. Sorry, said Ohio Democrats, but we have our own fundraiser in Columbus Jan. 13.

Result was a radical scaling down of the affair. With only four sites signing up, plans for closed-circuit television were dropped. Moved from the auditorium to the Fontainebleau Hotel in Miami Beach, the gala itself lost its star Sinatra, hounded by New Jersey subpoenas, suddenly discovered a conflicting movie-making commitment and cancelled. The original goal of bringing $3 million net to the National Committee successively dropped to $2 million and then to $1 million. Now, sponsors will be exceedingly fortunate to clear $750,000 — insignificant when measured against the party's staggering debt.

Little can be expected from the four sites originally signed for the closed-circuit TV and proceeding with local affairs: Charlotte, N. C. (on Feb. 4), Philadelphia, Florence, S. C., and Little Rock, Ark. At $20-a-ticket, the dinner in the Florence Country Club will be doing famously to send $10,000 to Washington. Tickets at $100 apiece are selling poorly in Little Rock (where no local program has yet been substituted for the cancelled TV), and the goal of $15,000 for the national party seems unattainable.

Two Suits
The two 1969 suits, both still in the pre-trial stage, involve systems at Waterbury, Conn., and Madison County, Ill.

In addition, the department has sent Chicago schools a letter complaining about faculty segregation but no suit has been filed.

One southern governor has decided not to wait for the Justice Department and is making "equal treatment" the grounds for a suit filed directly with the Supreme Court.

Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida showed up at the court early Friday and dropped in a suit demanding equal treatment for his state, and naming the 49 other states as defendants.

In addition, Gov. Lester G. Maddox of Georgia has ordered his state attorney general to draw up a suit, expected to be filed in the federal district court in Washington, complaining about "discriminatory" desegregation orders issued in his state.

Brooks On Leave In The Netherlands

CHAPEL HILL — Dr. Frederick P. Brooks Jr., formerly of Greenville, left Thursday for the Netherlands where he will spend the spring semester on a Kenan leave.

Professor Brooks, chairman of the Department of Computer and Information Science at the University of North Carolina here, will serve as visiting professor at Twente Technical University in Enschede. The purpose of his leave is principally to do research in computer programming systems and to write. In addition, Dr. Brooks will lecture each week on computer programming systems. Dr. Brooks and his family plan to spend July traveling in England.

Twente is a six-year old technical university, the third established in Holland, and is located near the German border. It has pioneered on the continent by offering a four-year engineering degree and in building a residential campus. Before coming to Chapel Hill in 1964 to establish the Department of Computer and Information Science, Dr. Brooks was with IBM Corporation in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. As a computer architect, Dr. Brooks also participated in the design of the Stretch and Harvest Com-

Miss Buck is a graduate of South Ayden High School and is a member of the Alpha Phi Chapter of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority. She is the daughter of Mrs. Emelia B. Gardner of Grifton.

Birth Control Service Offered

SEATTLE (AP) — "Conception control" service now is available to unmarried women students at the university of Washington, a spokesman for the university's student health center reports.

The service ranges from prescriptions for birth control pills, contraceptive devices and morning-after pills to information and counseling, center director Dr. Gordon Berg says.

The service is the result of a policy change adopted in November after review and discussion, Dr. Berg said, but there has been no "run" on the center for conception-control material.

Paladins Face W&M

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Furman's Paladins, bloody but unbroken after a mid-January excursion into a basketball Valley of the Giants, buckle down tonight to the task of making a liar out of the Southern Conference standings.

Those standings show Furman 1-3 in SC play—a sixth-place team. But the impression is abroad that the Paladins are better than that—a view in which they concur, and which they hope to start substantiating in an 8 p.m. conference game at William and Mary.

"They'll be tough," says Paladin coach Frank Selvy, and indeed the Furman job is complicated by the fact the game will be in cozy Blow Gymnasium, where in good years and in bad the Indians usually reign supreme.

Still, after generally narrow losses in the Valley of the Giants to third-ranked South Carolina, Georgia Tech, Clemson and 11th-ranked Davidson's SC leaders, W&M must look rather inviting to the Paladins.

The game tonight is the first of seven Southern Conference tests remaining for Furman, all but one of which—a Feb. 14 homecourt meeting with George Washington—are against teams in the conference's second diviwas shooting a 65," said Bert Yancey. "I might have taken the big apple."

But Yancey not knowing of the charge being mounted by the awesome Nicklaus, calmly cut out a final round 69 Sunday and won the $25,000 first prize in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, who moved past 15 players on the final day with his sterling, seven-under-par effort, had to settle for second, one stroke back at 280.

But the $14,300 check for second pushed Big Jack's career earnings past the million dollar mark. He joined Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper—who had some difficulties on the final round—as the only players in the game's history on the exclusive list.

Nicklaus started birdie-eagle, toured the front nine at the oceanside Pebble Beach golf links in a six-under-par 30, moved into a share of the lead with a 20-foot birdie putt on the 15th, then parred in.

Yancey, a tour regular for seven years who had won five previous pro titles, bogeyed the 11th, where he was buried in a trap, about the same time Jack birdied the 15th.

But Bert, a former West Point cadet, laced a three iron three feet from the pin on the next hole, canned the putt and was back in the lead again.

Even he didn't know it. "I didn't know what Jack was doing," the 31-year-old Yancey said. "I didn't want to know. I told my caddy not to tell me."

Yancey played it on the conservative side coming home, taking pars on 13, 14 and 15.

"The 16th is playing pretty tough today, Bert," Nicklaus muttered to a television set in the clubhouse.

But Bert took his par there, too.

Then, after his tee shot on the par-3 17th, Yancey asked his caddy about Nicklaus.

"I got pretty tight when I heard that 65," Yancey said. "Jack's a Big Bear."

He promptly missed his birdie putt, but tapped in to remain one ahead.

"It was just one of those days you hope for," said Yancey.

who led or shared the lead all four days. "I woke up feeling good, smooth and I couldn't wait to get at 'em."

Only Nicklaus made it close. Bobby Nichols and Howie Johnson were four shots back in a tie for third at 283. John Jacobs, Don Massengale, defending champion George Archer and Paul Harney were tied at 284.

Palmer had a final round 79 and was far back at 292. Casper was disqualified when his caddy, who had his clubs, failed to arrive at Billy's scheduled tee time.

Bob Rosburg and San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie took the pro-am, tied with a best ball of 252.

And Winning Putt Drops

Maravich Selected By Cougars Draft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pete Maravich, the nation's leading collegiate scorer, has been selected by the Carolina Cougars in a "secret" American Basketball Association draft, it was reported Sunday.

The Los Angeles Times said the first two rounds of the draft were drawn up weeks ago but that no names had been released. The Times printed a list of the two rounds.

Maravich, college basketball's second all-time high scorer, was Carolina's top pick. The Cougars have assertedly been interested in getting Pete and his father Press in a package deal. Press would presumably coach the Cougars. He currently coaches his son at Louisiana State.

Rich Mount, Purdue's high-scoring guard, was listed as a first-round pick of the Indiana Pacers and the New York Nets took Bob Lanier as its territorial selection. Lanier is St. Bonaventure's 6-foot-11 center.

UCLA's only senior, guard John Valley, was Denver's only pick. The Rockets lost their first pick by signing Spencer Haywood last year before he had completed his senior collegiate season.

The first two rounds of the American Basketball Association's "secret" draft as reported by the Los Angeles Times: Los Angeles — Dave Cowens, Florida State; Jim McMillan, Columbia.

Indiana — Rick Mount, Purdue; Dennis Awtey, Santa Clara.

Miami — John Hummer,

Princeton; Sam Robinson, Long Beach State.

Carolina — Pete Maravich, Louisiana State; Bob Linehard, Georgia.

Pittsburgh — Mike Maloy, Davidson; Calvin Murphy, Niagara.

Kentucky — Dan Issel, Kentucky; Claude Virdean, Murray State.

New York — Bob Lanier, St. Bonaventure; Geoff Petrie, Princeton.

New Orleans — Sam Lacey, New Mexico State; Wendell Ladner, So. Mississippi.

Denver — No first choice; John Valleley, UCLA.

Dallas — Bobby Croft, Tennessee; John Cannon, Grambling.

Washington — Charlie Scott, North Carolina; Greg Howard, New Mexico State.

Maravich Nears Scoring Record

By SHEILA MORAN Associated Press Sports Writer Pistol Pete Maravich of Louisiana State continues his assault on the college career scoring record tonight, needing only 69 points to replace Oscar Robertson as the all-time leader.

Maravich, who averages 47 points a game, could possibly break the record at home tonight against Tennessee, but it would require a super effort against one of the nation's top defensive teams.

It is more likely that Maravich will bridge the gap between second place and immortality and top the 9,273 total achieved by Robertson at the University of Cincinnati when LSU hosts Mississippi Saturday night.

Maravich whipped into second place, 21 points past Elvin Hayes on the all-time list, by scoring 55 for a 2,905 career total in LSU's 109-96 loss to No. 2 ranked Kentucky Saturday night.

At San Antonio, meanwhile, little St. Mary's of Texas surprised Hayes' alma mater, Houston, the nation's seventh ranked team, 76-66 in one of the most notable upsets of the season. St. Mary's, a college division standout, overcame an early 12-point deficit and dealt the Cougars their second loss in 14 games.

Elsewhere, top-ranked UCLA whipped Wyoming 115-77 at Los Angeles with Curtis Rowe's 25 points and Sidney Wicks' 24 leading the charge. However, UCLA Coach John Wooden directed his post-game comments to the Pacific 8 Conference game at Seattle where Washington and Washington State bogged down in a slowdown struggle in Washington's 37-36 nod.

"The rules committee had better get busy," Wooden said. "They can't do it (change things) with marks on the court. If teams really want to stall, you just can't stop them."

St. Bonaventure ranked fourth in The Associated Press poll, kept pace with UCLA and Kentucky on the dwindling unbeaten list by pounding Canisius 62-49 and No. 5 New Mexico State, 16-1, stopped Texas-El Paso 90-77.

Gamecocks To Face Clemson, Duke

By KEN ALYTA Associated Press Sports Writer South Carolina's basketball team, its 11-game winning streak intact despite recent varied slow-down tactics by upset-minded opponents, comes out of midyear exam hibernation tonight at Clemson.

While Coach Frank McGuire's third-ranked South Carolina hasn't played in 11 days, Clemson has compiled a 3-2 record during that time.

The game is one of three this week for South Carolina, 12-1 for the season and 5-0 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. After Clemson, the Gamecocks are at home Wednesday against Virginia Tech and play at Duke Saturday.

Clemson sharpened up for the Gamecocks with a 87-79 victory at home over Virginia Tech Saturday night. Butch Zatezalo, who's after his third ACC scoring title, was top cat for the Tigers with 25 points.

Tonight's other game has North Carolina State at home against American University. The State Wolfpack, No. 10 in the nation, is ACC runnerup at 4-1 and is 13-1 on the season, following its 77-76 victory at Duke Saturday afternoon.

Vann Williford led State with 25 points, but none was more vital than the three freethrows Al Heartley made in the last minute to nail down the comeback victory. State led 43-41 at the half after trailing by 11. In the last half the teams never were more than four points apart as the score was tied eight times and the lead changed hands six times.

Randy Denton's 32 points paced Duke, now 2-2 in the ACC behind North Carolina (4-2) and Wake Forest (4-3). Duke playmaker Dick DeVenzio returned briefly after missing three games with an injured foot but was scoreless and not up to his usual standard.

Before his Duke team met N. C. State, Coach Bucky Waters observed, "There's no question State is for real."

Next, Waters will find out if Maryland is for real. Lefty Driesell's revitalized Terps manhandled Maine 97-68 in Saturday's only other ACC action and plays host to Duke Wednesday.

Maryland has won three in a row and seven of its last nine for a 9-6 record and is 2-4 in the ACC. In their first year under the coach who built Davidson into a national power, the Terps already have chalked up their best record in three years.

Sophomore Sparky Still's 27 points paced Maryland to its highest score since it opened the season with 97 points against Buffalo. Another sophomore, Charley Blank, added 16 points and Maryland bested Maine (1-10) on the boards 56-30.

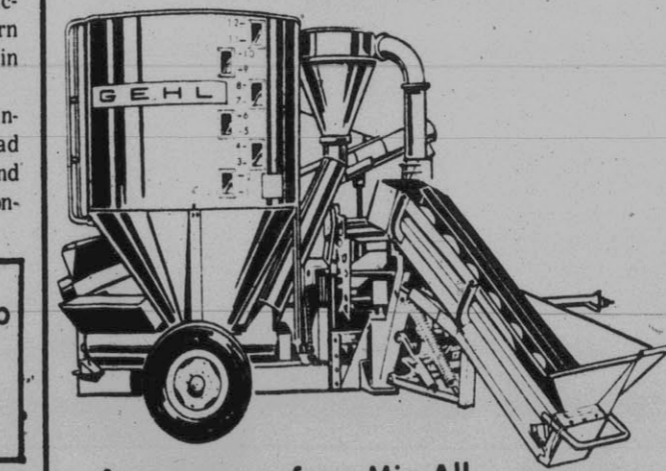

North Carolina's Tar Heels, No. 9 in the nation, end a 10-day layoff with a home court exhibition Wednesday night against a group of former collegians billed as Athletes in Action. Furman of the Southern Conference plays at Clemson in another Wednesday game.

Virginia ends two weeks of inactivity with a Thursday road game against William and Mary, also of the Southern Conference.

Coaches Deny Prior Meet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Darrell Royal of the University of Texas and four other head football coaches at major colleges have denied they met with black coaches in Washington

Jan. 12 prior to the American Football Coaches Association Convention.
Royal also said Saturday night that statements attributed to him were "a vicious invention." He said he was in Austin, Tex., that night attending national champion Texas' annual football banquet and did not arrive in Washington until Jan. 13. The coaches, in addition to Royal, are John Pont of Indiana University, Lloyd Eaton of Wyoming, Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama and Cal Stoll of Wake Forest.

Head Coach Tom Caldwell of Elizabeth City, N.C., State told The Associated Press Jan. 12 that black coaches had invited the five major college coaches to meet with them to discuss the possibility of getting blacks named to postseason all-star coaching staffs.

whole thing is a vicious invention."
Both Royal and Pont said they did not receive invitations. Pont said he and Stoll were "the only two of the five coaches in Washington when the meeting was reportedly held" and that "I was having dinner that night with my brother and Stoll also had another engagement."

Bob Greene of The AP's Milwaukee bureau said Saturday Caldwell approached him the night of Jan. 12 at the coaches convention hotel in Washington an described what Caldwell said had occurred at a meeting of the five white coaches and several black coaches.

Caldwell's account included the quoted material attributed to Royal, Greene said.

Greene said Caldwell introduced him to two other black men wearing tags bearing the names of Cy "Jack" McClaren of Bethune-Cookman, Fla., College and Eddie Robinson of Grambling. These two men, Greene said, repeated word-for-word everything Caldwell had told him.

Greene said Caldwell told him "such thoughts are not in my heart, and I could not have made these statements. The

Murray said, "It's absolutely untrue."
Last Friday, Caldwell told The AP in a telephone conversation that no members of the organization's executive board met with black coaches at the convention.

Banks said he did not attend any meeting such as Caldwell described.

Rockets Blast Phila. 159-131

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
You would have thought they were pitching marbles into a washtub the way the 76ers and San Diego Rockets were putting the ball through the hoop at Philadelphia's Spectrum.

In their greatest offensive show ever at home, the 76ers out-bombed the Rockets 159-131 in a National Basketball Association game Sunday.

Archie Clark of the 76ers was the chief marksman, hitting on 15-of-18 shots from the floor and finishing with 36 points. Wally Jones added 31 for Philadelphia, while Elvin Hayes poured in 27 for the Rockets, who lost their sixth straight.

In other NBA action Sunday, New York edged Boston 102-96 Milwaukee whipped Atlanta 131-116, Los Angeles took Phoenix 118-106 Cincinnati topped

New York beat Indiana 96-83, Pittsburgh took Carolina 108-101, Denver drubbed Dallas, 127-115, and Washington topped Miami 113-106 in the American Basketball Association.

Cazzie Russell came off the bench to key a New York drive that gave the Knicks a 44-32 lead in the first half and then, with the score tied 79-79 early in the fourth quarter, came off the bench again to score three straight baskets and put New York in front to stay, 85-81.

Russell finished with 25 points. John Havlicek topped Boston with 24.

A national television audience watched Milwaukee stay five games behind first place New York in the Eastern Division and cut Atlanta's Western lead to three games over second-place Los Angeles.

Flynn Robinson scored 33 points and Lew Alcindor 31 for Milwaukee, which broke the game open in the third quarter as Atlanta went 6½ minutes without a field goal. Joe Caldwell led Atlanta with 22 points.

Jerry West gunned Los Angeles to its fourth victory in four night with 38 points. Phoenix was paced by Gail Goodrich with 22.

Oscar Robertson did his thing for Cincinnati and to Baltimore. The Big O hit 14-of-25 field goal attempts and all 13 of his foul shots for 41 points, handed out 15 assists and grabbed 10 rebounds.

He got 17 of his points in the final quarter as the Royals won their sixth straight at home. Ray Scott collected 28 points for Baltimore.

Walt Simon led New York with 21 points. McDaniel topped Indiana with 20.

A pair of foul shots by Mike Barrett and Rick Barry's field goal clinched Washington's victory over Miami. Barry finished with 25 points, while Don Freeman poured 33 for Miami, which announced after the game that Willie Murrell had been traded to Kentucky for cash and an undisclosed draft choice. Howard Sparks Denver Drive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There is a two-word definition of the word rejuvenated in the case of the Denver Rockets: Spencer Haywood.

The big rookie, a key figure in Denver's drive toward the top of the American Basketball Association's Western Division, scored 28 points and grabbed 26 rebounds as the Rockets topped Dallas 127-118 Sunday for their 15th straight victory.

A Denver victory in New York next Friday would tie the league record of 16 set last year by Oakland, now Washington.

New York beat Eastern leader Indiana 96-83, Washington took Miami 113-106 and Pittsburgh downed Carolina 108-101 in other ABA action Sunday. Saturday, the West trounced the East 128-98 in the All-Star game, with Haywood voted the Most Valuable Player.

In the National Basketball Association Sunday, New York topped Boston 102-96, Cincinnati belted Baltimore 129-122, Milwaukee whipped Atlanta 131-116.

In the boys contest, Lenior led 19-12 at the end of the first frame, but Farmville cut it to five points at the half, with 16 points in the second to 14 for Lenior.

Lenior came on strong in the third, again with 16 while the Red Devils had 11 to take their win, as both teams had 16 in the fourth.

Winterville put up a five point lead in the second quarter of their game, then saw Oak City cut it to three in the third when they outscored their visitors 9-7.

Both teams hit for eight in the fourth.

In the boys contest, the home team fell behind by five in the first period, but came on strong in the second to go into the lead 20-20, as they pumped in 22 points to 12 for Winterville.

J. Cowey led the Oak City scoring with 19 points, while J. T. Whitfield had 15, and Rudy Edmondson had 13.

For Winterville Edgar Wall had 12.

Guilford Forfeits

GREENSBORO (AP) — Guilford College has forfeited two Carolinas Conference football games since it was discovered the Quakers used an ineligible player in those contests.

During a recent coaching meeting in Washington, D. C., the Guilford staff learned that senior quarterback Ray Tavalara had attended Arkansas State in the fall of 1964.

Under league rules, a player's eligibility expires five years after he enters college. Therefore, Tavalara's eligibility ran out at the end of the 1968-69 school year.

The forfeited games were against Newberry and Catawba.

Hay Feeding For The Calves

By LEROY JAMES

More beef calves are wintered on hay than on any other kind of feed and there are several reasons for this. First, it suits the small producer better. If he has less than 100 calves, he can hardly go into a silage feeding program. The cost of extra equipment and overhead is prohibitive, unless he is also feeding other classes of livestock. Also, most farms produce considerable hay which has to be used for some purpose. If beef calves are available, they are a likely market for this hay.

Remember that any time one has calf feeding in mind he had better have quality hay making also in mind. It is true that a beef cow can eat almost anything and survive, but a beef calf must have the finest quality of feed. So, this means cutting your alfalfa when it is not more than a tenth in bloom, your clover when it is barely one-fourth in bloom and your orchard grass by the time the seed head first shows itself. Over-mature hay has no place in calf feed.

Legume hays are best for calf feeding. Usually calves will do better and less grain and protein is needed if only alfalfa and clover hays are used. However, this does not rule out grass hays at all. If they are available and cut at the proper times they should be used.

For 400 pound calves, a full feed of alfalfa hay and two pounds of corn will suffice for those that are to be grazed the following year. Clover hay that tests seven per cent digestible protein can also get along with two pounds of corn, but mixed clover hay that comes under seven per cent digestible protein had best have one-half pound of oil meal or a 50 per cent complex protein supplement added to the corn. When feeding the grass hays, one had best plan on using a pound of protein supplement and two pounds of corn.

If you plan on selling on the spring market then you must stir your concentrates up to four to six pounds. With alfalfa this can all be corn as well as real good clover hay. However, with clover mixed hay or with grass hay protein supplement must be added. In all of these rations one should go to feeding tables to determine the approximate amount of protein to be added. You can get this information by calling your county extension office and discussing your feeding problem with the extension agent.

By all means send samples of your hays to the forage testing laboratory through your county extension office before planning any big winter feeding program with hay. This will allow you to more accurately plan your rations.

If you are planning to develop a steer finishing unit, you might want to study several types: partial confinement or total confinement on concrete.

The production of corn for grain or silage will be a basic factor in determining the size of unit most suitable. With just good corn silage and some supplement, approximately four tons of corn silage is needed for a gain of 300 - 325 lbs. - animal.

Knowing the amount of feed that can be produced economically, you can then determine the approximate number of steers you can feed.

At this point, you determine the size and type of silo or silos and grain bins required. Realistic planning is needed to include all units in the system of the appropriate size.

Large silos will cost less per ton of storage than small ones. Therefore, the largest silo that is consistent with other units in the system should be selected.

Tower silos, equipped with silo unloaders and mechanical silage conveyors are used at many feedlots. A minimum of labor is required for feeding, usually 15 to 30 minutes twice daily.

Feed troughs should be of sufficient length to give each steer a space of 20 to 24 inches. A width of four feet will permit 500 to 800 pound steers to reach the middle.

For a total confinement lot, about 30 to 35 square feet of pavement per steer is recommended. This space is provided on both sides of the silage trough. Also, some shelter is required. It should equal 30 to 35 square feet per head.

A semi-confinement lot usually has a fence-line feeder with 12 to 14 foot concrete apron along side the silage trough and an unpaved lot of no less than 300 square feet per head. This lot should be well drained. A south or east exposure is desired. Shelter may or may not be provided.

Less labor is required for cleaning the semi-confinement lot, but at times, there will be more mud, and possibly less gain.

Horizontal silos can also be used for steer-feeding lots. Steers can be self-fed or the

Progress In Feeder Pigs

RALEIGH (AP) — Development of the feeder pig industry in North Carolina "has been a real life-saver for many areas of our agricultural economy," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says.

"I am extremely proud of the progress this program has made," Graham said in a statement released Sunday. He said the industry has helped farmers of tobacco and other row crops to diversify their incomes.

The Department of Agriculture announced that despite hog cholera quarantines and restrictions, the 1969 crop of feeder pigs brought in more than $7 million for swine producers in the state.

A total of 147,256 pigs were sold through 228 regular quality feeder pig sales in six markets: Hillsborough, Greensboro, Fayetteville, Wallace - Chadburn, Norwood and Statesville.

Another 123,164 pigs sold through the weekly non-graded Rocky Mount and Dunn markets brought the total to 270,420 feeder pigs sold.

The first regular sales began in Rocky Mount in 1960. The first graded quality feeder pig sales were started in 1965 by the agriculture department and North Carolina State University.

silage can be hauled in self-unloading wagons to fence-line feeders.

Detailed planning of feed storage and feeding requirements, concrete pavement, and shelter is important to get an economical unit that can be operated with a minimum of labor.

Results have consistently shown that in fields where root knot nematodes are a problem, root knot resistant varieties show a good response from chemical soil treatment.

Operation R-6-P (Reduce 6 Pests) Campaign is also effective in reducing tobacco disease losses. Tests have shown that this practice can reduce the nematode population as much as 70 percent. R-6-P can also reduce brown spot, mosaic and certain insects that attack tobacco.

Plans for the 1970 R-6-P Campaign should be started "right now" for your farm. It is very important that there is a thorough understanding between the landlord and tenant as to who will be responsible for the different phases of the R-6-P operation. Plan now to carry out all of the steps in this important program for your 1970 crop.

Tobacco TIPS

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt Tobacco Agent

Diseases reduced the tobacco income in Pitt County by approximately $730,000 in 1969. This loss can be greatly reduced in 1970 if all farmers will conduct a good disease control program on their farms.

One of the major pests attacking the tobacco crop is the root knot nematode. There are four different species of the root knot nematode that attack tobacco.

The nematode population can be greatly reduced by practicing a good crop rotation. A simple two-year rotation (tobacco every other year) works well and is far superior to continuous tobacco. Results from an area crop rotation test in 1969 showed that when tobacco was grown in a rotation, there was an increase of $171 to $228 per acre over plots where tobacco was grown year after year.

Chemical soil treatments are also effective in controlling nematodes. Tests have shown that when materials such as DD, Telon, EDB 85, Penphene, Vorles, Mocop, and Dasanit are properly applied the incidence of root knot will be reduced. The proper use of these materials will increase the performance far beyond the cost of materials and application.

Results have consistently shown that in fields where root knot nematodes are a problem, root knot resistant varieties show a good response from chemical soil treatment.

Boy Sleepy And Cranky

MIAMI (AP) — Little Johnny Reynolds went home from a hospital Sunday with a "side-walk burn" on his arm and a cranky disposition.

Twenty-four hours earlier the 2-year-old boy was trapped in a nine-inch well shaft 12 feet below the surface, his legs dangling in water and his arms jammed hard into the earth around him.

He was plucked from the opening after rescue workers drilled a shaft parallel to the one where he was trapped.

"He's tired, very tired, sleepy and cranky because he hasn't had a nap," Mrs. John L. Reynolds Jr. said after her son went home from the hospital.

"But otherwise he's doing fine, no broken ribs or anything. All he got was—call it sidewalk burn—something on his arm."

The boy fell first into the irrigation well while his parents were picking tomatoes in a public field in southern Dade County.

Really Was A Camel In Yard

AMERICUS, Ind. (AP) — When Robert Bohner's son came home from a basketball game at 1 a.m. Sunday and said there was a camel in the front yard, Bohner suspected his son had been drinking.

But when the family woke up later Sunday, there really was a camel in the front yard—dead of exposure.

State police checked Indiana zoos and the remaining winter circus quarters at Peru, Ind., but no one was missing a camel.

Park Wedding Request Okay

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A 20-year-old Charlotte woman will be married in a local park April 11.

The City Parks and Recreation Department approved the ceremony at the request of Juanita Gurley, a secretary for a local equipment company.

"I'm not a hippie," she said. "I take my little nephew to the park to play, and I think it's just so beautiful."

The groom, Jack Spencer Jr., is in the Army at Ft. Hood, Tex.

B52 Fleet Strikes North Viet Depots Inside Laos

ACE HIGH—A U.S. soldier with the ace of spades stuck in his helmet moves down the slopes of Black Virgin Mountain, 55 miles northwest of Saigon. The ace of spades represents death and is left on the battlefield in an effort to intimidate the enemy. (AP Wirephoto)

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP)—U.S. B52 bombers made their heaviest raids in nine months overnight, attacking North Vietnamese supply depots inside Laos, across the frontier in the A Shau Valley and farther south along the Cambodian border.

About 60 B52s, four-fifths of the Strategic Air Command's bomber fleet in Asia, flew from bases in Thailand, Guam and Okinawa to drop nearly 2,000 tons of explosives.

The targets of the raids were North Vietnamese supplies being moved into South Vietnam.

The raids on Laos and the A Shau Valley were ordered after trucks were sighted in the valley for the first time in more than a year.

American bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery attacked the trucks and a warehouse. The U.S. Command said 14 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed, but heavy enemy machine-gun fire kept American spotter pilots from assessing the damage to the trucks and warehouses.

Later the B52s went after the North Vietnamese depots in Laos that receive supplies coming down the Ho Chi Minh Trail and feed them across the border to the A Shau Valley, the biggest North Vietnamese supply base area in South Vietnam.

Official sources said truck movement along the Ho Chi Minh Trail is "very heavy this year, heavier than last year." They said however, that enemy movement always increases at this time of year because it is the dry season. "They are maintaining this option of launching an offensive," one source said. "Whether they are going to exercise it or how they're going to use it remains to be seen."

Pointing out that the Tet festival of the lunar new year comes in two weeks, on Feb. 6, one source said the U.S. Command expects to see an increase in enemy offensive activity, "but the current pattern of enemy actions makes it clear that he wants to avoid attacks that might result in large numbers of casualties."

Increased action was reported today in all four military zones of South Vietnam. The U.S. Command said there were 29 enemy rocket and mortar attacks between 8 a.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. today, about half of them in Tay Ninh Province north of Saigon. Three Americans were reported wounded, and South Vietnamese casualties were reported light.

Store Lost To Flames

An early morning fire destroyed the E. S. Dail Store and Service Station at Ballards Cross Roads near Greenville Sunday morning.

Pitt County Fire Marshall Mike Worthington states the building and contents amounted to an estimated loss of about $15,000. He noted, however, a large trailer home, valued at about $10,000 and located almost adjacent to the store, about three feet away, was saved by efforts of firemen from three departments fighting the blaze, with the only damage occurring being broken windows.

The alarm was turned in at 5:15 a.m. Sunday, with Bell Arthur answering. Units from Winterville and Red Oak soon joined in fighting the blaze.

Origin of the fire has not been determined. Worthington also reports there were four grass fires occurring in the county over the weekend.

Film Shown At Ass'n Meeting

A film depicting activities at Camp Menteo for Retarded Children highlighted the Greenville Youth Association for Retarded Children meet held Friday.

Dr. William B. Martin showed the film which included scenes of activities of retarded children and adults at the camp.

A Valentine party is being planned for the youth group and children of the Trainable Class at Aycock Junior High School will be invited as guests for the party.

A Very Mundane Explanation

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—There is a very mundane explanation for those unidentified flying objects observed flying over Myrtle Beach recently.

Police Chief W. C. Newton says the UFO's were balloons made of plastic laundry bags with a wire frame, candle and wick inserted.

He explained that when the bags were filled with hot air they rose giving the appearance at night of a nearby star. Newton said some of the bags came down before the flame burned out and constituted a fire hazard. No fires were reported, however.

The police chief said a number of youngsters in the Myrtle Beach area reportedly bought a large quantity of plastic bags from cleaning establishments.

ties were reported light. Allied ground and air forces claimed 161 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed in a dozen fights during the 24 hours. Nine Americans were killed and five wounded. South Vietnamese losses were reported as seven wounded.

One unit of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade had five men killed and four wounded in an ambush on the coastal plains. Only two enemy soldiers were reported killed.

To Announce Resignation

RALEIGH (AP)—Gene Anderson, the North Carolina Republican party's first executive director, planned to announce his resignation this afternoon to take a new party post on the national level.

Anderson called a news conference for 4 p.m. to make the announcement. Anderson reportedly will take a post with the National Republican Governors Association. James Holshouser, state party chairman, said by telephone from his home at Boone that the choice of a new executive director has not been made.

"Things have moved rather quickly and I really have not had a chance to spend much time on the matter," Holshouser said.

He said a new executive director would be chosen by the party's central committee. Anderson declined to comment on his plans before the news conference.

Anderson, 31, became executive director in June, 1967. He headed the party's gubernatorial, congressional and legislative campaigns in 1968.

Vandals Damage School Unit

An act of vandalism that occurred at Rose High School Saturday night is under investigation by police.

Officers said someone entered a trailer at the rear of the school through a window, then turned on two faucets causing water to spill onto the floor of the mobile facility.

The incident was reported at 9:40 p.m. Saturday. No estimate of the damage caused by water was given.

Trailer Suffers Damage By Fire

Extensive damage was reported by firemen to a trailer at College Park Trailer Court which was hit by fire early Sunday.

Officers said they were called to the mobile home, occupied by Benjamin Shelton Runkle about 12:18 a.m.

The fire, investigators reported, started in the living room from a candle.

Barbara Avers Still Tough Life

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Barbara McNair has no complaint; she's working as much as any performer could. But to other actresses of her race, she feels, the path to success in the entertainment world is still not easy.

Miss McNair is now appearing as Sidney Pottier's wife in "They Call Me Mister Tubbs," a continuation of his character from "In the Heat of the Night." She stars in "The Barbara McNair Show," a variety series which is syndicated to 30 television markets by Metromedia. She also makes records and appears at the better supper clubs in Las Vegas and elsewhere.

But it wasn't always so. "When I started out in the business, my ambition was to be in a Broadway show," she recalled. "I went to New York and made all the rounds of the casting offices, looking for chorus work. It never occurred to me that they wouldn't hire me because I was a Negro."

"But I found out that was true. Nor has the New York stage changed much. Oh, you see a few black faces in the chorus—and blacks always dance with blacks, never with white dancers."

David Merrick put on a black "Hello, Dolly," with Pearl Bailey. That used up almost all of the Negro performers in New York. There aren't very many, because performers know there simply isn't enough opportunity for a Negro to be employed on Broadway.

And despite the increased use of Negroes in films and television, those fields are still limited, Miss McNair believes.

"The producers never consider using a black person unless the part is written for a black," she said.

If these comments make Barbara McNair sound like an angry young woman, the fault is mine. They were drawn from her during an hour's conversation which touched largely on her own career. And because that career is flourishing, she seems to be a happy, well-adjusted person.

A beauty with a warm, expressive singing voice, she could have contented herself with a musical career. But the challenge of acting presented itself with a role on the television series, "The 11th Hour."

"Someone on the show wanted to experiment with turning singers into actors, and that's how I was chosen," she recalled. "I found it fascinating, a real challenge."

"I suppose there is some connection between selling the lyrics of a song and performing a role. But on a stage you can only get engrossed in one song at a time; when you're doing a role, you must get deeply involved and sustain it emotionally."

WASHINGTON (AP)—A decision by the postal unions to back President Nixon's postal corporation plan in return for an ironclad pay-raise agreement has improved the plan's chances for congressional approval this year.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., who is trying to work out a compromise among the unions, the White House and opponents in Congress, says, however, it may take another month to write an acceptable bill.

Udall said the bill "will fly" after some work is done on it, but he added the White House is not ready to go as far as the unions would like on pay raises. Nixon's plan, intended to wipe out inefficiencies and put the mails on a self-supporting basis by 1976, would replace the Congress-controlled Post Office Department with a government-owned corporation known as the U.S. Postal Authority.

National Education Association says the 1968-69 school year brought a record 131 teacher strikes and work stoppages. NEA said Sunday that unofficial tallies for the current 1969-70 school year show the trend is continuing. Nearly 100 teacher strikes were recorded for the first two months, it said.

NEA president George D. Fischer said the teacher strikes have spread from large urban systems to smaller ones in suburban and rural areas.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spacecraft designed to test how one type of electric rocket engine operates will be launched soon, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration says. NASA said the test thrusters are two electron-bombardment ion engines, such as might be used to position earth-orbiting spacecraft or to push spacecraft to far away planets.

It said the ion engine, first tested successfully in space in July 1964 in a suborbital flight, produces tiny amounts of thrust but is potentially more efficient in space than chemical or nuclear rocket engines.

If the Shoe Fits...

BY LARRY VERETTE

Are feet bigger today?

People today are aware that feet are bigger than they were a generation or two ago. However, if you're active or that they participate more in sports, this would not tend to make feet larger. In fact people walk less, ride more and are less foot active.

Today, people in the U. S. are bigger because of our bountiful food supply. The average 14 year old boy, as an example, is 10 to 20 pounds heavier and 2 to 3 inches taller than his grandfather was at the same age. Obviously, his feet will be proportionately larger—two to four sizes larger.

At one time a size 8 used to be common for a four year old child. Today they've passed that size at age 2 or 2½ years.

Women's shoe sizes 4 and 5 were common numbers during World War I. Today they're hard to find. At one time, a woman's size 10 and 11 had to be specially ordered or made up. Today, they are commonplace.

No wonder we have given up drinking champagne from a slipper.
