'Suitable Compromise' Sought

President Wins Veto Test Issue Far From Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House refusal to override President Nixon's veto of the $19.7 billion education money bill has given the administration a surprisingly easy victory, but the issue is far from settled.

Even as a happy President invited the 191 congressmen who voted in support of him to the White House for a thank-you reception Wednesday night, administration and congressional leaders were mapping their next step.

The immediate problem is reaching a compromise between what Democrats want and what the Republican President will accept to pay for the departments of labor and health, education and welfare in the current fiscal year, which has only five months to run. A continuing resolution permitting the departments' programs to continue at their 1969 funding levels expires Saturday.

Differences between the President and Democratic congressional leaders on a key issue of impact aid to federally-affected schools may deepen even more Friday when Nixon presents his new budget for the fiscal year starting July 1. He is expected to repeat his proposals for drastic cutbacks in funds for the 20-year-old program to help schools in federally-impacted areas.

But the real test of the presidential veto—and the decision of 156 of the 188 House Republicans to uphold it—may not come until the fall elections. "The President was quarter-backing it very closely," said one White House official who called the 226-191 House vote a personal triumph for Nixon.

Republican House leaders agreed and said Nixon's action helped at election time. Nixon, who said he vetoed the bill because $1.2 billion added to it by Congress made it inflationary, immediately sent invitations to a White House reception to the 156 Republicans and 35 Democrats who voted to sustain the veto.

For the Democratic leaders it was far from a festive occasion. They huddled right after the session but were unable to decide what to do next. One possibility, which has bipartisan support in the appropriations subcommittee that must bring out a new bill, would be to leave the extra $1.2 billion in it but add a provision saying Nixon doesn't have to spend it.

Nixon suggested this possibility in his veto message and the White House has indicated that if it is left to him the President will spend $448 million of the additional funds. Although 86 Republicans voted for the extra funds when the House passed the bill last month despite the threat of a veto, only 27 stayed with it Wednesday and voted to override the President. House GOP leaders also worked hard for a strong party showing, making the issue a vote of confidence in Nixon and letting it be known defectors might have a hard time getting

Library Is Complete Loss

Fire Damages Eppes

By STUART SAYAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A fire, reported at 7:05 p.m. yesterday, heavily damaged one wing of the Eppes High School building, completely destroying the school's library.

The fire was reported first by telephone, and by the time fire units arrived, it was blazing out of control.

Four pumpers and the department's aerial truck were sent to the scene and an estimated 2,850 feet of hose were used in combating the costly blaze.

Fire officers, who said an investigation is under way in an effort to determine the cause of the fire, said a fire wall between the burning wing and the main portion of the Eppes building helped confine the flames. The fire was completely extinguished within two hours after the alarm was sounded, but not before most of the roof over the school library was burned away.

The burned wing was built in 1941 as a gymnasium and auditorium. Renovations made several years ago changed the main floor of the wing into a library, four classrooms and an audiovisual storage area.

According to the school's principal A.E. Murrell, three of the classrooms were being used as seventh-grade rooms while the fourth was used as a reading lab. About 120 to 130 students were involved in the four rooms each day, he explained.

Four classrooms in the basement of the damaged wing were not being used for classes, he said.

The main portion of the building, which was first begun in 1928, houses about 20 classrooms. Some 540 students in grades seven, eight and nine attend the school.

Murrell, who said all audiovisual equipment and library books were lost, said damage would probably run in the $30,000 to $40,000 range.

Although the major portion of the fire was confined to the area of the library, flames ate their way the entire length of the underside of the roof and the four classrooms received heavy smoke and water damage.

Firemen Tuesday night, received a false report of a fire at Eppes. Officers said the call came through a telephone company operator who said someone called the telephone company to report a fire at the school.

Two other false alarms were received by the department in the same manner Tuesday night, one reporting a fire at Keel's Warehouse on Dickinson Avenue and the other reporting a fire at the Catholic School on West Fifth Street.

One truck from the Winterville Fire Department was dispatched to Greenville to stand-by at the central fire station while local trucks were tied up at the Eppes blaze.

In their initial attack on the blaze, firemen laid heavy lines and played water on the fire—breaking through the roof of the building—and the adjoining area of the main wing in an effort to protect that portion of the building.

Firefighters then entered the building, stopped the spread of the fire in the roof area, and finally smothered the fire entirely.

Planning-Zoning Commission Endorses Next Step On CBD

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Planning and Zoning Commissioners last night voiced unanimous approval of further steps toward execution of the Central Business District Project and passed a resolution recommending City Council approval.

The action followed a public hearing on the project conducted by the Redevelopment Commission during which few dissenting opinions were aired and general support for future execution was voiced.

Redevelopment Commissioners approved the current rung of the "application for loan and grant" ladder immediately following the hearing.

The next step before the Part Two segment of the project can be sent to Atlanta for approval involves approval by the City Council. Law requires the Council to advertise publicly for 15 days following their concurrence and then to hold a public hearing. Action could come in early February at the next scheduled meeting of the Council.

Full support of the CBD project was voiced last night during the hearing proceedings by the chairman of the 17-member Project Advisory Committee, Hoover Taft.

"We are trying to prevent decay in the uptown area of our city," Taft commented. The federal government has made funds available for the project and "I think we are fortunate to have this type of project approved for the city," he said.

Taft conveyed full concurrence of the Advisory Committee and said the committee urged, after months of study, adoption of the CBD plan. Sam Worthington asked the commission if the idea of the project was to "absorb and take over all of the property in the project."

The Commission's executive director, Col. A. E. Dubber, explained that the purpose of the project is to rehabilitate and conserve property. Purchase of land would be necessary only for purpose of street widening.

"This project is not like the Shore Drive project," Dubber continued, which involved mainly, acquisition and clearance, but rather one which is aimed at total rehabilitation of the downtown district.

Worthington asked if the city's part of the project expense would evolve from the general tax funds. "The law requires that general tax funds will not be used," Dubber said. The Utility Commission, which is part of the city, will receive credit as part of the city's share for all work that is done within a quarter mile of the project, it was pointed out.

CBD project manager John Messick explained that only portions of Cotanche, Greene and Washington streets would be widened in reply to a question concerning land acquisition for street work.

City manager Harry Hagerty said that the money that would be spent by the city in the project would be spent for normal improvements anyway, so funds were not being channeled for needless work. "The work is needed and by doing it through the CBD project, credit will be received toward our part of the funds."

"This is an opportunity that will put us on equal footing with other cities of the state," George Coffman asserted. It is an opportunity that many other cities are dying to have, he said.

J.H. Hudson, a local builder, asked if there were legal rulings that would require a property owner to upgrade his building if structures were deemed sound and up to building code standards.

Dubber said that he knew of no law that would require the owner to remodel but that low interest loans were available for the owner who simply could not afford to carry out an upgrading of his business.

Chairman Billy Laughinghouse pointed out that normally the owners around the particular building that was not remodeled would probably want to talk to that particular owner and try to persuade him to concur with the rest of the project. Legally, if standards are met, it would be up to the owner as to whether to remodel.

In the Planning and Zoning meeting following the hearing, commissioners heard a report from Hagerty on the status of several of the priority highway projects that have been approved for Greenville and the surrounding area.

Hagerty said that he had learned from Highway Commissioner Arthur Tripp that Tenth Street construction would possibly be under execution by the latter part of August. The work, he said, would involve five-lane construction of Tenth Street, with curb and gutter, to reach 600 feet past the intersection with 264 bypass.

Money has been appropriated for a widening of the 264 bypass from Elm Street to Billmeyer Ford, he said, and construction should begin soon.

Setback For Rob't Williams

DETROIT (AP)—A judge today dissolved a temporary injunction barring the extradition of Robert Williams, former Republic of New Africa president; to North Carolina to face kidnapping charges.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Thomas J. Roumell also dismissed a petition for a declaratory judgment on the legality of the extradition proceedings.

Williams' attorney said the action would be appealed.

Williams, who resigned his office with the black separatist RNA in order to fight extradition, had argued that the indictment against him at Monroe, N.C., was not proper.

Williams fled the country after his indictment in 1961 and lived in China, Cuba and Africa before returning to Detroit last September.

Gov. William Milliken agreed to extradite Williams to North Carolina, and that's when his attorneys went to court to block the move.

Williams is charged with kidnapping a white couple during a racial disturbance at Monroe, N.C. He has declared he was trying to keep the couple from being mobbed.

Milliken's decision to extradite Williams was criticized by the Detroit branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

William H. Penn Sr., the branch's executive secretary, said, "It is of our opinion that the charges against Mr. Williams are questionable to say the least, and that all of us who have even a casual acquaintance with southern justice recognize that it is impossible for him to receive a fair trial."

Confer On Mutual Aid

A meeting planned for the purpose of discussing ways and means by which East Carolina University and various community colleges in the state can be of mutual assistance under a statewide cooperation program is being held today on the ECU campus.

According to ECU president, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, "The idea is to try to open new channels of communication between the community colleges and the university community."

The idea, he said, grew out of an informal meeting with three community college presidents early in January. The three college heads who are working with Jenkins on the program are William E. Fulford of Pitt Technical Institute, Ben E. Fountain of Lenoir Community College and Clyde A. Erwin of Wayne Community College.

The meeting was set for 2 p.m. at the Home Economics Building at East Carolina University.

Separatism Is A Joke To Mayor Charles Evers

By CAROL TYER

"Hatred will never win," Charles Evers, the first Negro mayor of a Mississippi town, told an audience at Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus last night.

And he admonished the black students who made up about a third of his audience, "Don't let anybody trick you into hating. Hatred isn't constructive. Revenge, even though you may be entitled to it, will not do you, your race, or anyone any good."

"Until we as Americans, black and white, rich and poor, have and have-nots, start looking on one another as human beings, all God's children, we ain't goin' nowhere."

He said unequivocally that the white man is responsible for the condition the South is in, but not necessarily the white man of today. "Black people in Mississippi, from the time of slavery on, were not treated like people for many years. We begged, we asked for consideration from those in power, but we got nowhere."

"Then came the 60's and we said, 'We want our share and we are going to have it. We started moving and we ain't gonna never stop."

"But I can't hate you because your granddaddy mistreated mine. We need each other. Black students, don't let anyone kid you, separatism is a joke."

"White folks respect black folks who've got something to offer other than talk," he said.

And he declared that he, as mayor of Fayette, Miss., is offering good representation and that he, as judge of its municipal court, is giving fair judgment to anyone who comes before him. He mentioned his brother, Medgar, who was killed from ambush by a white racist, but the references were natural and he did not dwell on the past.

Asked about G. Harold Carswell's nomination to the Supreme Court and whether he thought it should be approved, he said he knew little about the man, but that he admired the nominee's courage in admitting the racist statements he made as a young man and his refuting them now. He also said, as much as he disagrees with some of George Wallace's principles, he can see good that he has done for the poor people of Alabama and that he admires Wallace for saying the same things in Mississippi that he does in New York.

James Farmer, he said, has forgotten he is black. "He defends the Nixon administration better than Nixon

Ford Motor Co. Plans Layoffs; Idling 9 Plants

DETROIT (AP)—The Ford Motor Co. says it will close down nine production plants and lay off 25,700 employees during parts of February because of lagging sales and declining profits.

The shutdowns will last from one day to three weeks, a Ford spokesman said Wednesday. He indicated similar production halts might continue into March, saying:

"This only means we have the schedule for a month ahead. And that's all it means."

The halts are in line with belt-tightening by Ford and the other two leading automakers, General Motors and Chrysler.

Whedbee Seeks Judgeship Seat

District Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee announced today that he is seeking the Democratic nomination to the office of Superior Court judge for the Third Judicial District, a seat now held by Judge William

Prior to holding his District Judge post, Whedbee served for 17 years as judge of the Greenville Recorders Court. Before that, he was solicitor of the County Court of Pitt County.

Both the Greenville and Pitt County Recorders Courts were abolished when the state court reform measure established the District Court in the Third District in December 1968.

Judge Whedbee attended the Greenville City Schools, the University of North Carolina, and the UNC Law School. He received his license to practice law in 1932.

The judge is perhaps best known to thousands of Tar Heels as a regular member of the television panel show "Carolina Today" aired over a Greenville TV station each weekday. He is also the author of a book "Legends of the Outer Banks and Tar Heel Tidewater," published in 1966.

In announcing his candidacy, Judge Whedbee said, "I have decided to run . . . after much thoughtful and prayerful consideration."

"In so doing," he continued, "I am seeking the fulfillment of a lifelong ambition. (His father sat as Superior Court Judge in Pitt at the time of his death.) I have served long and faithfully in climbing the rungs of the judicial ladder in order to prepare myself for this office."

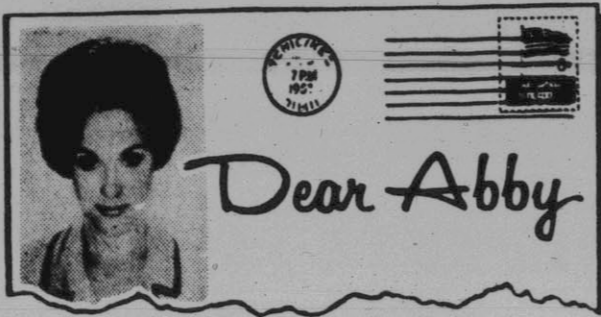

"I know first hand, Judge Whedbee said, "what it is to prosecute, to defend or to sit as an impartial judge in all kinds of cases, both criminal and civil. I sincerely hope that the voters of the Third Judicial District decide that I am qualified and will give me the office I seek."

"If I am elected, I solemnly promise to do my very best to see that every person receives (Continued On Page 10)

Should Guests Bring Their Own?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to Virginia, and like living here very much, but there is a custom here which baffles and disturbs us. It's giving parties and asking the guests to bring their own liquid refreshments!

We live in a neighborhood where the incomes range from $8,000 to $30,000 a year, and from time to time we have received invitations to cocktail parties, New Year's parties, etc. with the initials, "B. Y. O. B." printed on the invitation. This, we were told, means "bring your own bottle."

My wife and I have always felt that the host and hostess should provide ALL the refreshments, so consequently, we have refused all such invitations, and when we have told some of our friends why, we are met with a shrug of the shoulders and silence.

We recently received an invitation with "B. Y. O. B." [Bring your own food.] Abby, we aren't college kids in a housing project. Are we wrong to feel as we do about this custom?

DEAR HAPPY: Not in my book. Next it will be "B. Y. O. W." [Bring your own wife.]

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago Larry (not his name) and I were married. The plan was that I would work one year and then quit and start a family. Well, I've worked three years and Larry won't let me quit. He keeps buying things we can't afford and I have to work to keep up the payments.

Larry now says he doesn't want to be a father as kids get on his nerves. He does have an awful temper. Our dog got loose the other day and when Larry finally caught him, he threw him against the basement wall several times with all his might. It nearly broke my heart.

I'm an only child, Abby, and Larry takes me to visit my folks once a week for only one hour, and he keeps looking at his watch all the time we're there. I know my parents are hurt, but they don't say anything. My parents have a little money, and Larry curses them because they won't give us part of the money now that I will one day inherit.

I feel trapped. I know this marriage was a mistake, but I married Larry against the advice of so many people I feel determined to make a go of it. What advice can you give me?

DEAR TRAPPED: What's "trapping" you? If you spend the rest of your life trying to prove that you were right and everyone else was wrong, knowing that YOU were wrong, you are foolish. Take the dog [the four-legged one] and clear out.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very fine person and I love him very much, but there is something that upsets me terribly, and I just can't seem to get him to listen to reason. His dentures!

He got them years ago when he couldn't afford anything better. Now his face has fallen in, and his dentures don't seem to fit his face. His teeth look so big and artificial, and they are grey and ugly. Also, there are two teeth missing on the side and it's very noticeable when he laughs and smiles.

Believe it or not, Abby, he is a professional man, who speaks before groups! We are very well off financially, now, and my husband could certainly afford the best in dentures, but for some unknown reason he is so sensitive about the subject, I don't dare bring it up for fear that he will fly off the handle.

Abby, he knows that I'm his best friend and I don't say anything to hurt him. If he only knew how much better looking he would be if he changed those dentures? Oh, Dear, I feel so helpless. Sign me, "SILENT PARTNER"

DEAR "PARTNER": One's "best friend" is often the worst one to offer criticism of a personal nature. Ask someone else, whose judgment your husband respects, to wise up your darling. [P. S. Ill-fitting dentures are not only unattractive, they can cause serious complications to one's health later on.]

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THINK YOU'RE SQUARE" IN BAYSIDE, N. Y.: I speak only for myself, but I cannot concentrate with music or any kind of "noise" in the background. And they can keep their "canned" music in shopping centers! Whenever I hear Herb Alpert, I forget what I'm shopping for and am tempted to ask the floorwalker to dance with me.

It's best to clean the condenser and evaporator of your air conditioner each season, using your vacuum cleaner with a suitable attachment. Check your air conditioner manual to see if it needs oiling—not all air conditioners do.

District Speaker Gives Pilot Program

Mrs. Sarah Hunnings of New Bern, coordinator for Enlarging Pilot Membership of District VI, was guest speaker for the meeting of the Pilot Club of Greenville on Monday night.

She was introduced to the club by Mrs. Joseph N. LeConte, chairman of the Membership and Pilot Information Committee of the local club.

"Effective Leadership" was the subject chosen by the speaker. Mrs. Hunnings stated that effective leadership requires responsibility, guidance and the setting of a goal that will produce harmonious relationships. A leader must be able to influence human behavior, command respect, wholehearted co-operation; she must be intelligent and emotionally stable. She must lead with heart and hand. A leader has personal integrity. She must be able to hold a group to a purpose and guide it towards a goal. Criticism must be accepted by a good leader.

She develops through growth. Self-improvement is mental; attitudes and habits of leadership must be developed. Beginning of leadership is evident when one analyzes oneself, establishes a purpose and sets out to accomplish it. Edgar Guest's "Believe in Yourself" was read by Mrs. Hunnings.

A good leader is aware of her good traits and works to lose those less desirable ones. She can develop or cultivate traits of alertness, bearing (as shown in good posture, dress, and congenial friendliness), courage, decisiveness, dependability, endurance, enthusiasm, confidence, tact and a sense of humor, a contagious smile, initiative, humility, courtesy and loyalty added the speaker.

An effective leader plans, has an agenda, determines and delegates responsibility, increases membership participation and responsibility. She must know when to compromise what cannot be changed; she must have the emotional stability to know what needs doing and in what sequence, said Mrs. Hunnings.

To show self-preparation and to know the available resources, to motivate, to guide, to encourage, to maintain sustained supervision and follow up, to develop teamwork, to evaluate—these all mark a good and effective leader.

"It is not necessary to be born a leader; each person can learn to be a good leader," Mrs. Hunnings concluded.

Guests other than Mrs. Hunnings included Mrs. Carolyn Davis of New Bern, Mrs. Robert Klein, Mrs. Rudy Cox, and Mrs. Jane Davis.

Changes His Mind About Marriage

ROME (WNS)—Carlo Donati, now 48, swore that he would never marry again when he was sent to jail five years ago for bigamy. But now that he will get out in February, he has changed his mind and will wed the 58-year-old nurse who has been caring for his hills. It will be his sixth wedding in 20 years. "A man cannot live alone when a beautiful woman loves him," he sighed.

League Of Women Voters Plan Community Study

The Greenville-Pitt County provisional League of Women Voters on Tuesday night moved into action with every member being designated to take part in specific areas of the in-depth community study.

The study will be printed later and made available for distribution to the public.

Mrs. Marie McEnally is chairman of this study under which there will be an official League observer attending meetings of the city council, county commissioners, city and county school boards and other local governing bodies.

The speaker for the meeting, Mrs. Noel Smith, outlined national and state programs and encouraged those present to speak up on public issues.

Mrs. Smith is president of the Board of Operation Breakthrough, Durham's million dollar anti-poverty agency and former member of the State League with the portfolio of public relations chairman.

"If you have feelings about any kind of public issues and express them, people have more respect for you. The success of the Durham League is based on its members strong belief in participatory democracy," she said.

The local League President, Mrs. Philip Clark, announced that the next general meeting will be held at 8 p.m. on Feb. 19 in the district courtroom. Other meetings to be held meantime will be resource committee meetings.

Mrs. James Rees, Mrs. Harry Williams, Mrs. B.A. Bishop and Mrs. Wellington Gray served as hostesses for the coffee hour which followed.

COOKING IS FUN!

Holiday Cucumbers Chutney
Sherbet Fruit Cake

HOLIDAY CUCUMBERS

2 cucumbers, 8 or 9 inches long
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons distilled white vinegar

1 drained canned pimiento

Pare cucumbers; run the sharp tines of a fork lengthwise down cucumbers to score; slice very thin in a shallow dish with a fork, beat together, the salt, sugar and vinegary. Add cucumbers and mix thoroughly. Chill for a few hours or longer. Drain and turn into serving dish. Using a tiny star-shape cutter from a canape-cutter set, cut pimiento into stars; scatter over cucumber. Makes six servings.

Use leftover Sunday roast to make a supply of sandwiches for school lunches. Grind the meat, pickles, celery, olives; add mayonnaise. Wrap individual sandwiches and freeze.

1 1/2 cups salad (not olive) oil

1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed tomato soup, undiluted

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1 clove garlic, peeled and halved

Into a medium mixing bowl, in the order given, turn all the ingredients except the garlic.

With a rotary beater beat until thoroughly blended. Turn into a quart jar, insert garlic on a toothpick and add. Chill overnight. Remove garlic. Store in the refrigerator. Makes about 3 1/2 cups. Dressing will be rosy color; thick and will not separate.

Prime Minister Issues Invitation

LONDON (WUN)—Cora Mann, a 38-year-old housewife, has been sending letters of comment and criticism to Prime Minister Harold Wilson since 1964. Recently she received a reply from Mr. Wilson, inviting her to visit him at 10 Downing Street. After the visit, she confided, "I never expected an invitation. My letters were always frank and honest."

Will Probe Nursing Home Fire

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel is planning hearings to probe the puzzling death of 31 patients in a sudden fire in a modern nursing home built to be fire resistant.

Fire experts and Senate investigators indicated today the death toll—second highest in a nursing home blaze in the last decade—may have been caused by heavy black smoke traced to the carpeting in the facility at Marietta, Ohio.

Ironically, the fire-resistant construction, considered so good that no sprinkler system was required for the home, may have trapped the smoke inside the brick building, investigators said.

The Senate subcommittee on long-term care will open the hearings in Washington Feb. 9. Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, subcommittee chairman, said he wants to know how widespread the danger of fire deaths may be in similar new facilities.

Moss said he has asked for testimony from "representatives of a firm which supplied some of the furnishing materials used in the nursing home." He did not identify the firm.

The 31 deaths in the fire Jan. 9 at the Harmer House Center in Marietta were attributed by hospital officials to smoke inhalation and suffocation.

Half of the nursing home facilities in the nation have been built in the last seven years. The Marietta blaze was the first major fire in the country in such a modern nursing home.

In addition to the furnishings, the probe may touch also on federal regulations on nursing homes.

Medicaid regulations exempt one story, fire-resistant buildings such as the Marietta facility from requirements to have sprinkler systems. Medicare requirements for sprinklers also permit discretionary exceptions.

Fulford Says PTI Vocational Facilities See Heavy Demand

Pitt Technical Institute President Dr. William E. Fulford today declared that utilization of vocational facilities at the Institute are so great that often outside facilities are needed to fulfill obligations.

This is in direct contrast to a statement made by Assistant Rose High School principal T.S. Whitney that Pitt Tech facilities for vocational training primarily are used at night and Rose students not on the college level could avail themselves of this training in the day time.

Whitney made the statement at the Citizens Fact Finding committee probing into causes and cures for racial problems at Rose Senior High School. "Pitt Tech could be responsible for all vocational training and Rose High school be responsible for

Grateful, He Aids School

SANTEE, Calif. (AP) — Santana High School's library has an additional 400 square feet of study space because Greg Sanborn, 19, is grateful for his education.

"It's the least I can do for my school," says Greg, who was graduated last June.

With help from his brothers, the high school plastics instructor and $350 from the class of 1968, he built a plastic dome for the open-air library patio.

The 550-pound, 18-foot-diameter dome covers the patio which Supt. Robert Spencer says had been unused but now serves as a reading lounge.

Greg says he will build plastic furniture, also for free. He spent nine months on the dome between data processing classes at nearby Grossmont College.

"The school gave me the knowledge to do something like this," Greg said.

Offering Course In Real Estate

A survey course in fundamentals of real estate will be offered in Rocky Mount by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education.

Scheduled to begin on Thursday, Feb. 19, the course is sponsored by the Rocky Mount Board of Realtors and is designed to provide the beginner with a basic knowledge of real estate, finance, brokerage, appraising, real property law and mechanics of closing.

Although the course is being offered on a non-college credit basis, satisfactory completion will allow a student to take the brokerage examination of the N. C. Real Estate Licensing Board.

Two Attended N.Y. Sessions

Two East Carolina University professors, Dr. Helen Steer and James L. Rees of the speech and drama department, attended the annual convention of the Speech Association of America held recently in New York.

Rees and Dr. Steer attended seminars and workshops dealing with various aspects of public speaking and dramatic activities, including an actors' training workshop, a seminar on Current Research on Small Group Discussion and sessions dealing with minority groups in which opportunities for black actors and black broadcasters are emphasized.

all academic training" for Rose students who desired vocational training.

The citizens committee has been told on many occasions that some students feel unwanted because of the emphasis towards college preparation and limited importance on non-college preparation.

President Fulford stated: "I believe one should not state an opinion unless he has some facts. Evidently, the author of this statement has neither the knowledge of what we are doing nor information concerning the number of people we are serving in our full-time day curricula. A recent study by the North Carolina Commission on High Education reported that Pitt Technical Institute ranks second in the state with the highest utilization made of its facilities.

"During the day we frequently use the American Legion building, the old County Home, and other rented space. In our evening program we are using local churches, fire department facilities, municipal buildings, public school facilities, and industrial plants to meet the demands for services rendered by the Institute. To accept high school students in our program under present circumstances, would deny our services to many adults and out-of-school youths.

"There is no intent to imply that we are not concerned with the needs of our in-school youths. My intent is to share objectives and valid information with the public. Coupled with adequate and available funds, many things are possible in a democracy. To predict what the

Teachers Said The Trouble In Science

CHICAGO (AP) — The trouble with school science courses, a university science teacher says, is science teachers.

"There has been a long term view," Dr. John H. Shonle of the University of Colorado said Wednesday, "that science is something dreadful."

And the reason, he said, is that science teachers concentrate on abstract formulas and theories without showing how science relates to contemporary social problems.

Dr. Shonle, a physicist, expressed his views at a joint meeting of the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Physical Society.

He was supported by another physicist, Dr. Seville Chapman, chief scientist at the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory in Buffalo, N.Y., who said:

"Many physics texts and many physics courses, especially introductory courses, do not indicate much relevance." Shonle said that in an attempt to bring science down to earth he plans to offer at his school next year a course which will explore physics in relation to such things as pollution, weapons and transportation.

Chapman urged that "more physicists make more efforts to show how physics is relevant and not just intellectually stimulating or exciting to physicists." He said such phrases as "infrared absorption spectra of carbon dioxide" are enough to frighten students off the subject of science even though this concept is of considerable importance to life because it involves pollution of the earth's atmosphere.

Chapman said an increase of carbon dioxide in the earth's atmosphere over the past 70 years has caused a drop in the temperature of the world and might lead to another ice age.

Chapman gave this as an example of how the theories of physics can be made real for students and the public.

A Time For Tightening Belts

Vetoing the huge $19.7 billion welfare-labor appropriation bill was a brave move on the part of President Nixon, and we think it was an action that was necessary in the fight against inflation the nation's number one enemy at the present time.

The bill would have provided more spending than would have been prudent at this particular time, just as the nation seems to be winning its battle to bring inflation under control.

The veto, of course, does not mean there will be no spending for many worthwhile causes which are embraced in the Health, Education and Welfare spending. Rather it means there is a difference of opinion between the president and Congress over how much should be spent. Congress added approximately $1.26 billion to the spending which the president had proposed.

Already moves are underway to compromise the matter. The president has agreed to accept some increase in the impacted areas program, although not as much as was included in the original bill.

It has long been recognized that there is much of a pork barrel nature in the welfare-labor appropriations bill. Some congressmen and senators want to be able to deliver grants to their local governmental units, which will help improve their own political standing.

The nation today, however, cannot afford the luxury of the pork barrel. There is much that needs to be done in the welfare and education field and the government should not shirk its responsibilities here.

Nevertheless, inflation is robbing us — the poor and those of moderate means. There are a number of signs that inflation is being brought under control. Congress, which drug its feet for too long in beginning to fight inflation, should not now take actions which could refuel the inflationary fires. It owes the common man more than this.

Three Missing Links In I-95

(Today's guest column for the N.C. Association of Afternoon Dailies is written by Richard W. Hatch, state bureau manager of the United Press International.)

By RICHARD W. HATCH
RALEIGH — The only interstate highway in Eastern North Carolina seems to be the hard-luck project of the entire state system.

There is no hope of completing in 1970 any of the three missing links of I-95. Eventually, the highway will run from the Virginia to the South Carolina state line, roughly following the route of old highway U.S. 301.

A 37 mile gap in Wilson and Nash Counties is still in the stage of buying the right-of-way.

The Fayetteville by-pass is embroiled in controversy as it has been for more than four years.

Closest actual construction is a 6.68 mile section of the missing link from near Lumberton to the South Carolina line. Even here, there is a possible delay.

Sources in Raleigh said this week a bid for construction of the 6.68 mile section may be rejected as too high. It was learned the bid, opened Jan. 20, is about 10 per cent over what state engineers think the project ought to cost. The highway commission will review the bid February 5th and decide whether to accept or reject it. If rejected, the project would have to be advertised again.

Low bidder on the link is the C. W. Matthews Contracting Co. of Marietta, Ga., which bid $5,643,558.50.

Prospects are dim for any work in 1970 on the Fayetteville by-pass. A group of Fayetteville businessmen with interests in motels and eating places along the route of U.S. 301 through the city have not given up their hopes of blocking an I-95 by-pass to the East of the city.

The businessmen want the new highway to follow the old route of 301 through the city — and in front of their businesses — instead of swinging out into Cumberland county to the East of the Cape Fear River. They say the highway could pass through the city on a series of overpasses.

The Bureau of Public Roads decided back in 1968 this was too expensive and selected the eastern by-pass. The businessmen formed an I-95 committee which filed a lawsuit asking federal court to set the Bureau's decision aside and order a new public hearing.

The suit is still litigation, the project still has not advanced beyond the preliminary planning stage, and north-south through traffic still tangles with local Fayetteville motorists in one of the worst highway jams in the state.

Charles Dawkins, the area highway commission, says "because of the delaying tactics of a group here, it has not been possible to go ahead with the project."

Eb Smith, chairman of the I-95 committee, said the suit has not blocked construction.

"Every schoolboy knows that the real reason there has been no construction on I-95 and on so many other vital civilian projects is the money drain of the Vietnam war."

Smith contends that government attorneys have delayed the settlement of the suit with legal dilly dallying.

Meanwhile, the local newspaper publishes pictures of traffic jams on the old 301 route through the city and some say people are being killed and injured in accidents because the business won't drop their suit.

"We are losing lives because the link has not been constructed," says County Commissioner Luther Packer.

On the other North Carolina interstate projects, however, important links recently opened and others will be completed this year.

Traffic is expected to roll over three I-40 and three I-85 projects this year.

On I-40, the highway engineers expect to complete a short gap west of Asheville to Luray by fall.

On I-85, through the heart of the Piedmont, the long-awaited link from Concord to the Mecklenburg County line is timed for completion by late fall.

A short section from the Mecklenburg County line to the Charlotte by-pass will be opened in mid-1971.

When that section is complete, motorists will be able to speed through the Southern end of the Piedmont Crescent from Gastonia to Lexington without a pause.

Two vital parts of I-85 from Durham to Henderson will be finished this year — the Oxford by-pass and the Henderson by-pass. The remainder of this missing link which vies with 301 through Fayetteville as the perhaps worst traffic hazard in the state, will be completed in 1972.

Two late additions to the system, I-77 and the Durham-Smithfield link through Raleigh, both have a long way to go. One section of I-77, however, between Mt. Mourne and Oswalt is due to open this year.

A total of 838.7 miles of interstate highway is planned for North Carolina. As of Jan. 1, 482 miles was open to traffic. This is about 57 per cent of the system.

One Step All Can Take In Fighting Pollution

There is a great movement in this nation and around the world to halt pollution of the waters and atmosphere.

Calls have been made for controlling pollution brought on by autos, requiring industry to control their air and water pollution and passing laws for dealing with junk yards where millions of rusting hulks of worn out vehicles rest.

We agree heartily with all these moves. They are necessary if our environment is to be preserved.

However, right now there is something that every adult and every young persons can do to control pollution—that is to cease dumping beer cans, bottles, hamburger wrappers and other assorted trash along our streets and highways.

While this might not seem a glamorous way to fight pollution, it is an effective way. It not only will keep our roadways clean, but it will also save the taxpayers' money used to clean up the mess.

Anyone who is genuinely concerned about pollution should now commit himself to cease throwing trash out of auto windows to land along the streets and highways.

Campaign Year Plot By Hanoi

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the stalled Vietnam "peace" talks at Paris, top U. S. diplomats now believe Hanoi is plotting an intricate fight-and-talk strategy designed to put President Nixon under maximum political embarrassment in the 1970 U. S. election campaign.

The key ingredient of this Communist effort to exploit political election-year pressures in the U. S. is a peace offensive. Some of President Nixon's strategists now think the Communists will probe in two highly sensitive political spots with these offers: to release all U. S. prisoners of war and to join a standstill ceasefire.

No single aspect of the Vietnam war has disturbed the average American so much as the hopeless plight of families who, after months of waiting, still don't know whether the husband or son listed officially as "missing in action" is really dead or a prisoner of war.

The total missing-in-action figure is now close to 1,500, and the best estimates available here are that probably two-thirds of them are dead. But the North Vietnamese government has resisted all efforts to identify who is alive and who is in prison camps.

Accordingly, a sudden Communist offer not only to identify but to release all prisoners would have a powerful emotional appeal in the U. S. Such an offer could be linked to a ceasefire, the outlines of which can only be dimly perceived here. It might, of course, carry unacceptable conditions — Communist participation in the Saigon government, for instance.

Nevertheless, are mere offer of a ceasefire under almost any conditions would predictably have two immediate consequences here: first, it would provoke a high-volume political reaction in the currently dormant peace bloc; second, it would put Mr. Nixon on the defensive for the first time since his Nov. 3 speech on Vietnam, which has proved so immensely successful.

The conviction among some of Mr. Nixon's Vietnam experts that the politburo in Hanoi is plotting just such an election-year embarrassment for Mr. Nixon is strengthened by new evidence that there will be no serious Tet offensive this year.

Hanoi is now increasing infiltration of troops into South Vietnam, concentrating on the vulnerable

Propaganda By Teachers

NEW YORK — It is fine to introduce controversial subjects into the classroom, said New York's deputy superintendent for curriculum and instruction last week, but such topics "should be treated in a scholarly and objective manner."

Curiously enough, though the gentleman's comment was prompted by the General Electric strike, he voiced not one word of criticism of the outrageous "teaching unit" prepared by New York's AFL-CIO teachers for classroom use. The whole affair is unbelievable. I ask you to believe it anyhow.

In mid-December, a background piece on the G. E. strike appeared in "The United Teacher," official publication of the United Federation of Teachers. An editor's note announced that certain lesson plans had been prepared. The need for these lesson plans, said the editor, "arose out of UFT's conviction that the implications of the G. E. strike are so widespread as to require introduction of the subject into the classroom."

Toward that end, the union then published "The ABC's of the G. E. strike," a teaching unit for secondary school teachers prepared by Jeanette Di Lorenzo, of Junior High School 142K, District 15 representative of the UFT, edited by Sandra Feldman, assistant to the UFT president, and Abe Levine, vice president of the UFT.

The first lesson is captioned, "The Economic Issues in the General Electric Strike." The teacher is to begin by drawing the G. E. symbol on the blackboard, "Try to elicit the words, General Electric, from the pupils." Then the teacher is to aim at the question: Why are the workers at General Electric on strike?

"Content: Profits of G. E. have risen 78.5 per cent since 1960. Wages of G. E. employees have risen 25 per cent. Annual average wage of G. E. workers is $6,760. U. S. Labor Department statistics indicate $10,000 needed for moderated income for family of four. The 1966 salary agreement granted the workers 12.75 per cent increase over their previous salary. Labor Department statistics indicate the cost of living since 1966 has risen 12.9 per cent—wiping out the G. E. workers' raise of 12.75 per cent."

"Procedure: Write the following statistics on the chalkboard: 1960-69 increases—G. E. wages, 25 percent; G. E. profits, 78.5 percent. Ask pupils the following questions: Which figure do you think 25 per cent or 78.5 per cent, contributes more heavily to the 'inflationary spiral'? Why? . . . Ask pupils: Do you think the unions' (Continued On Page 5)

Memory: Makes The Man

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't clothes that make the man—his memories do.

Indeed, memory is the wardrobe of his mind. In it he stores the raiment of his past. In it, hung like old garments of yesterday in a darkened closet, are the memories that make him who he is.

Your own wardrobe of memories is pretty crowded if you can look back along the years and

remember when—
The children ate cold snacks for dinner when Mother was learning to play mah-jongg, the biggest game craze since checkers.

A juvenile delinquent was a young boy who secretly smoked cubed cigarettes and like to hang around the gymnasium and leer at the members of the girls' basketball team, who practiced in black bloomers.

A kid who hadn't learned to spit through his teeth was regarded by the other guys in the gang as hopelessly backward.

A young man's biggest ambition was to have his name on one of the gilded shaving cups which the barber reserved for regular customers.

Bread tasted like real bread when it emerged redolent from a kitchen oven. "Why, as I came home, I could smell it clear out to the sidewalk," said Dad, as Mother blushed with pride.

Many a farm grandmother made no complaint if the men-folks smoked cigars in the parlor on Sundays, because she liked to puff on a corn-cob pipe herself.

There were words a man could utter in a roomful of women that would make them all blush, but, of course, no real gentleman ever did.

People worried more about the plight of heathen natives in darkest Africa than they do today about the fate of nations emerging there.

A poor family was one in which the children had to spread lard on their bread rather than butter and sorghum. Homes which used margarine tried to keep that fact a discreet family secret.

There was always a lively feud between the doctor and the druggist in a town in which the physician himself rolled and sold the pills he prescribed for his patients.

You could afford to hire a plumber for a day without first having to go to the bank and float a loan.

Only wealthy people complained about the income tax.

There was less fear in the land. Fewer doors were kept locked, and the only thing a fellow worried about while taking an evening stroll with his girl was that one of them might trip over a "Please Keep Off the Grass" sign.

Those were the days. Remember?

Social status. What is it? Some people seem to think they have a lot of it, and they make much of this distinction. Is there any ground for satisfaction and pride over the matter of high social status?

It is a great blessing to be well born. We see this occasionally when we encounter a definitely criminal family. There are such in our country. Criminals beget other criminals. First offenders are given a course in prison by hardened criminals who know all the evil tricks of the trade. It just seems in the case of some people that they cannot avoid being criminals because they have criminal blood in their veins and have grown up in a criminal atmosphere and have lived in an environment which makes criminals.

When we look to the opposite extreme we see people whose ancestors have been distinguished, able, energetic and successful. People who are members of a family such as this may well take pride in their ancestry. The trouble comes when they get to the place where they begin to look down on their contemporaries and put a high board fence around themselves and their ancestors. Such an attitude is mean and ridiculous. Fortunately, the ridiculous aspect of the situation appears to push ahead and make the high and mighty the laughing stock of everybody in town. We all know a few people who look down upon us because (according to their convictions) they were made out of better clay than the rest of us.

By ELMER ROESSNER
The computer has clicked and buzzed to the rescue of the Federal Trade Commission and enabled it to squirm out of a rather silly ruling.

In its regulation covering games of chance used by gas stations and supermarkets to attract customers, the FTC declared that winning and losing pieces had to be mixed, distributed and dispersed totally and solely on a random basis throughout the geographical area covered by the game.

This brought protests from the companies that invent and manage these games. They pointed out that there was no machinery available to mix the millions of pieces—cards, coins, envelopes, etc.—required in a national game. Even if the Rose Bowl were held and the millions of pieces swirled around by a hundred beautiful girls, the proper mixing could not be achieved.

FTC Stands Firm

The FTC had insisted on this random mix because evidence had shown that winning pieces had not always been randomly mixed. They had been put in by hand so that there would be winners everywhere and sometimes the percentage of winners was increased in areas where the gas company or supermarket chain wanted to attract attention. In fact, there was some evidence winners were picked in advance, in one case a popular local minister, perhaps to imply that God had a hand in picking winners.

But games companies protested the strictness of the regulation and proposed several modifications, such as using existing mixing machines in which a certain number of winning pieces could be mixed in each half-million or so pieces, or inserting winning pieces at random in boxes of losing pieces, and so on.

But the FTC insisted the regulation be followed. This stance was not only regarded as silly by the games companies, but it also threatened to put them out of business.

Computer Saves The Day

Then someone came up with an idea that enabled the FTC to wipe that silly look off its face and keep the games companies in business. The plan is to manufacture the winning pieces first and to mix them thoroughly. Then the losing pieces are made and a computer is programmed to select random numbers out of the total number of losing pieces. The mixed winning pieces are then to be inserted among the losers according to the random numbers generated by the computer.

The FTC happily bought the idea and said it complied with the rule. It added a few little qualifications, such as requiring that winning and losing pieces be indistinguishable from each other when packaged, and that the seeding and packing processes be physically separated so no one would know which boxes had most winners.

Now the commissioners and the game companies are happy.

Sidelights Reflect More On Practices In Business

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Current business and economic analysis so clouded with great gray reas—warnings, fears, forecasts, failures—that sometimes very little light is reflected. idelighting sometimes is more revealing.

Many houses purchased during depression years for $5,000, however, rose in value during the same 30 years by 300 per cent or more. The difference: $20,000 versus $0.00. What isn't measured here is the income that could have been derived from either.

SIDESTEPPING TAXES
Salaries really don't tell the alue that companies place on heir top executives. Stock opions, company cars, club memberships, moving and relocation xpenses, tax-sheltered annuities are popular nonsalary compensation.

The 10-year life span of the automobile is derived from a 1968 report by the U.S. Department of Transportation. Since depreciation is slower for older cars—although repairs are higher—the individual who turns in his car every three years might have paid more than the owner who held his car until it was scrap.

In a recent survey, the Bureau of National Affairs found hat 65 per cent of top executives have company cars, that 2 per cent have expense accounts and that 47 per cent had heir social club dues and 90 per cent their professional fees paid by the company.

Everyone, however, knows of cars that never seem to wear out, giving their owners as much as 20 years of service. But then there are houses that have risen in value not 300 per cent, but 400 and 500 per cent.

Almost all the firms surveyed ay moving expenses for transferred executives. More than 90 per cent pay all the moving expenses, and one company reimburses its executives at the rate of 135 per cent of moving costs.

ECONOMIC PRACTICE
Not many years ago hard-headed businessmen tended to do their own thinking despite the presence in some obscure office of an economists. In some firms they were kept almost as pets: they performed but weren't taken seriously.

CARS VS. HOUSE
In some recent years six times as many cars as housing units were produced in the United States, but apparently not for investment reasons. Both cars and houses provide services, but one appears to be a better investment: the house.

It's a bit different these days. Pierre Rinfret, the ebullient economic consultant to many large firms, estimates that in one recent four-week period he visited 20 cities and shook and with at least 2,000 persons.

If a person purchased an automobile in 1938 at $1,000, held it for 10 years and scrapped it, bought another for $2,000 in 1948 and held it the same length of time, and another for $2,000 in 1958, he would have spent $5,000 and had scrap.

Moreover, he made as many as four speeches in one day and answered about 300 questions "from worried and concerned Americans."

Mekong Delta in the far South. But these fresh regulars from the North, Hanoi watchers now believe, will be broken up into small units and trained for guerrilla warfare before they are committed.

CHEMISTRY'S SUCCESS
What would you guess is the chemical industry's greatest success in the consumer market

To attempt a serious Tet offensive at the end of January patterned on the bloody Communist onslaught of 1968 would be to ignore the political possibilities of late spring and summer, when the U. S. Congressional campaign starts to unfold.

NEW FIELD
NEW YORK (UPI)—Modern medicine is opening many new opportunities for young women in the steadily widening field of radiology and nuclear medicine, according to Dr. Joseph P. Arcomano, chairman of the department of radiology of the Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens.

Other facts also argue against any major offensive during the Tet holidays. For example, the South Vietnamese army is primed to expect an attack then, because of the experience of the past two years. That eliminates the vital element of surprise so important in 1968.

Young high school graduates are reaching out for such careers, and are finding open doors to training in hospitals and medical centers, Arcomano said. The center includes La School of Radiological Technology.

More important, the U. S. is now withdrawing an additional 50,000 troops from combat with expectations of still more troop pullouts before summer. The fewer U. S. combat troops left in South Vietnam, the better chance the North Vietnamese will have to capture targets such as bridges, waterways, and military outposts and to overrun hamlets and villages.

Accordingly, the prospect for Tet is heavy shelling and perhaps one or two showcase attacks, but not a serious offensive that would impede the U. S. withdrawal. The serious Communist offensive will be saved for much later and may be timed to follow a highly attractive ceasefire offer at the Paris negotiations.

According to government analysts here, this is the probable scenario by Hanoi: Hanoi would propose a genuine ceasefire taking effect on a certain date. President Nixon, one eye on the Congressional elections, would accept. In the intervening time between Hanoi's offer and Washington's acceptance (perhaps three weeks), the Communists would mount their major offensive and take military control of strategic areas. When the standstill ceasefire took effect, they would then hold these areas as bargaining counters in the political struggle to follow.

That the strategists in Hanoi think this strategy can work is only because of the 1970 elections in the U. S. In 1968, the Communists exploited the Presidential election to get President Johnson to stop the bombing of the North at minimum cost to Hanoi. In 1970, they are hoping for much more.

proposal for salary increases is reasonable? Do you think that it is unreasonable? Subsequent lessons in the teaching unit treat "the issue of Boulwarism in the General Electric Strike," the issues as seen by the company, and the issues as seen by the union. The unit includes vocabulary, definitions, leading questions, and suggestion for pupil activities. Sample pupil activity: "Explain the G.E. boycott to parents, relatives, and friends."

Now, brace yourself: The teachers' union suggests that the lessons be worked into match classes. "It would be highly beneficial to the pupils if a lesson on statistical material and understanding percentages and relationships of figures could be taught to them during the same week that this topic was being taught in social studies."

The distortions in this teaching unit can barely be touched in a few words. From 1960 through 1968, G.E.'s profits increased by 63.8 per cent, not by 78.5 per cent, but in this same period sales increased by 90 per cent. Earnings as a per cent of sales actually declined. To compare a 25 per cent increase in individual wages with a gross increase in company profits is a fraud on scholarship. In the period chosen by the union, while profits increased by 63.7 per cent, total employee compensation increased by 90 per cent. And so on.

Question: Define the obligation of a teacher. Define integrity. Define bias, propaganda, and abuse of privilege. Explain why the unionization of teachers is a demonstrable threat to our public schools.

Narcotics Control Bill Given Approval Of Senate

Suspend 16 In School Scuffle

Sixteen junior high students, nine of them Negro and seven white students, were suspended from Aycock Junior High School as the result of a scuffle in the school building early yesterday morning.

Principal John Jones, commenting on the incident, said: "The faculty was able to break up the incident quickly, without any personal bodily injuries or property damage resulting."

Threat By NEA Prexy

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The president of the National Education Association, the nation's largest teachers' group, says, "We want to beat five or 10 congressmen who switched their vote on the HEW (health, education and welfare) veto."

"We will use them as an example. We will put the fear of God in politicians all over the country," George D. Fischer of Des Moines, Iowa, told a teachers' meeting Wednesday.

The NEA had the "most massive" lobbying drive in history working to pass the education bill, which President Nixon vetoed Monday night, Fischer said.

"We have plans to let every executive committee in the nation know how their congressman voted on this and every other education question," Fischer said.

"We plan to make it political suicide to vote against the kids and education."

The NEA can not take a stand on any individual candidate without endangering its tax-exempt status, he said, but the organization is considering setting up separate bodies to take political positions.

Tougher Rules Considered For Early Marriage

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California, which recently made it easier for people to get divorced, is now considering making it tougher for young couples to get married.

Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, introduced a bill Wednesday to require persons under 18 to discuss their marriage plans with a clergyman or a marriage counselor for at least six hours.

If the adviser thought the marriage a poor idea, he would be obligated to tell the judge. The minors then would have the task of persuading the judge to let them marry anyway.

Hayes said his purpose is to reduce the number of divorces among young couples. Current divorce figures for California show half of all marriages ending in divorces.

Would Put Limit On Noise Volume

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A special state House subcommittee is trying to decide how loud is too loud.

A bill proposed by Rep. McKee Hargrett of Jesup, an osteopath who says he wants to run for governor, would require promoters of musical events in the state to print warnings on the tickets that the sound may damage listeners' ears.

It is being studied by the special subcommittee of the House Hygiene and Sanitation Committee, of which Hargrett is a member.

Nureyev Play Movie Role

LONDON (AP) — Rudolf Nureyev, the Russian ballet dancer who defected to England in 1961, has been signed to play the part of his famous dancer countryman, the late Vaslav Nijinsky, in a movie.

It will be Nureyev's first screen role. Producer Harry Saltzman said Wednesday the movie would be directed by British director Tony Richardson starting in July.

In 1968, American motorists for the first time drove more than 1 trillion miles in a one-year period.

about 8:30 in the morning, just inside the back door. We took all the boys involved into the conference room and talked to them for two hours to determine who was responsible. It developed that the fist-fight started essentially because of one student accusing another of taking something from his locker."

The Aycock principal suspended all 16 students pending further investigation and a hearing. "We are meeting with the students of all the parents tonight," Jones reported, "and expect to return the students to school Friday morning, perhaps with the exception of the principal participants, who might receive additional days of suspension."

Yesterday's incident was the first to mar the peace of Aycock Junior High since the large-scale scuffle which took place there the second day of the school year.

Demos Will Hear Bible

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Democrats will hear Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nevada, at their annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Raleigh March 7.

Bible's selection as principal speaker at the $50-a-plate fundraising dinner was announced Wednesday by Rep. Kenneth Royal Jr., D-Durham, dinner chairman.

In other Democratic party action Wednesday, Jim Hunt, the chairman of its study commission, said there aren't likely to be any takeovers by youths or Negroes in the party this year, despite recent changes.

"I hope everyone in our party will come out to precinct meetings on June 6," he said in a speech in Johnston County. He said he didn't think there would be any great increases in party participation by people in the 18-21 age bracket or by blacks.

The way was opened for both groups to get a bigger voice in party affairs when the party's executive committee recently adopted changes in party structure recommended by the commission.

The Wilson laeyer's comments came in a speech to the county Democratic women's organization, which was released in Raleigh.

China Policy To Be Discussed By Panel Sunday

"Our China Policy" will be the topic for a panel discussion Sunday evening at St. James United Methodist Church.

Dr. Robert Gowen and Dr. William White of the East Carolina University History Department will be participants. Dr. Gowen will discuss Chinese-American relations in historical perspective and Dr. White will concentrate on Christianity in recent Chinese history.

The panel will be moderated by John Coon, also of the History Department. A question and answer session will follow.

This program concludes a month-long mission study on China at St. James Church. A snack supper at 5:30 p.m. will be followed by the panel at 6:15.

The public is invited to attend.

Barbra Attends With Trudeau

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau escorted American entertainer Barbra Streisand to the National Arts Center Wednesday night for ceremonies marking Manitoba's centennial year.

The prime minister, a bachelor, had two dates with Miss Streisand when he was visiting New York last November. She is separated from her husband, actor Elliot Gould.

Wins Plaudits For Stage Role

LONDON (AP) — Diana Dors, blonde former sex bomb of British movies, won critical plaudits today for her first stage role in London in 17 years.

The play, in which Jill Bennett co-stars, is Donald Howard's "Three Months Gone." It opened at the Royal Court Theater Wednesday night.

Miss Dors, who gives her age as 38, plays the blowsy mother of a young man on the verge of maturity.

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved its second major anticrime bill in a week, a narcotics control measure strengthening weapons of U. S. agents while softening penalties for drug experimenters and possession of marijuana.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told the Senate after the 82-0 vote Wednesday that it now has passed 14 of the 20 anticrime measures asked by President Nixon. Last Friday the Senate sent the House an omnibus organized crime control measure.

Senators battled four days over amendments to the drug control legislation before pushing it along to the House. Bill drafters fought off efforts to wipe out the most controversial part of the bill, which gives authority for courts to issue no-knock search warrants to federal narcotics agents in certain circumstances. Just before passing the bill, the Senate also rejected an attempt to trim the maximum penalties for possession of marijuana even further than the original measure proposed.

Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, submitted the amendment, which would have made the maximum penalty six months in jail for simple possession of marijuana, instead of one year as provided in the bill. This was rejected 58 to 24. Present law makes possession of marijuana a felony and provides a 2-to-10 year sentence for first offense, but allows for suspension or probation. Hughes argued so little is known about marijuana that even the reduced penalties in the original bill are not justified, but Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, floor manager of the measure, didn't agree.

Dodd pounded his desk with what he said was a marijuana brick worth $3,000 as he contended the law should make it clear smoking the drug "is not a schoolboy prank." Authors of the 100-page, administration-backed bill said they had two goals: To provide new penalties and tools for a crackdown on professional criminals trafficking in drugs and to substitute the opportunity of rehabilitation for jail for youths experimenting with drugs.

The bill would make it a misdemeanor to possess marijuana for a person's own use. A first offender could have the violation erased from his record if he lived up to conditions a court might impose. A conviction for a second offense would carry a penalty of up to double that imposed on first offenders. A professional criminal—defined in the bill as a person over 21 who with at least five other persons has acted to organize supervise or manage illegal drug traffic—would face much tougher penalties. A first conviction could carry a prison term of from five years to life.

The bill sets up a commission to study the effects of marijuana and provides for creation of a listing of narcotics, drugs and substances that would be regulated in the United States and could not be imported.

Experimental Drug Said Effective Against Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hitherto little-known experimen-

Revival Through Sunday Night

The Rev. George Milton of Greenville is conducting a revival at Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church, located nine miles south of Greenville on the Black Jack Highway.

Services, scheduled to continue through Sunday night, begin each night at 7:30.

The Rev. Fred Jones, pastor, invites the public to attend.

tal drug called BCNU is proving to be "one of the most promising" of the new anticancer weapons developed by a government testing program, the National Cancer Institute said today.

The NCI indicated it is one of the first drugs, for example, to show any progress against so-called "solid" cancers, such as those of the lung and gastrointestinal tract, as well as some much-less prevalent non-solid malignancies like Hodgkins disease.

It also differs from most other previously used in cancer con-rol in that it possesses remarkable powers for crossing the body's mysterious "blood-brain barrier." This raises hopes for attacking cancer cells that originate in, or are carried to, the brain, the report further indicated.

However, BCNU is rated as a temporary control treatment, not a cure, and is not available for general use by doctors.

The Cancer Institute told about BCNU in a statement backgrounding a national conference, opening today, designed to bring to the attention of practicing physicians the latest research findings on BCNU, and an older anticancer drug called 5-fluorouracil, or "5-FU" for short.

The meeting is the first of a series of national conferences to be sponsored by NCI to summarize and interpret current information on various drugs, new and old, being employed against various forms of cancer.

The NCI report said "5-FU"—which is available to physicians generally—has been known since the mid-50's to be temporarily useful in some cases of gastrointestinal and breast cancer.

But the institute added that "important new findings" about it have lately been achieved by Dr. George Higgins of the U. S. Veterans Administration Hospital, Washington, D.C., in employing the drug as a follow-up to surgery for cancer of the large intestine.

Longer, symptom-free periods were achieved when 5-FU was given to certain patients after surgery—as compared with results achieved by surgical treatment alone—said the NCI account.

BCNU's formal name is 1,3-bis(2-chloroethyl)-1-nitrosourea.

It's one of a new class of synthetic chemical compounds, called "nitrosoureas," that have the power to cross the "blood-brain barrier"—a natural mechanism preventing certain foreign substances, such as many drugs, from being carried by the blood into the brain.

But BCNU is the only one of them so far extensively tested in humans.

The first Westerners to visit Japan were Portuguese traders who arrived in 1543.

Today In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The increasing pace of electric utility mergers, if left unchecked, will produce power industry giants impossible to regulate, says a consultant to the Justice Department.

Dr. Charles R. Ross told the Securities and Exchange Commission that the federal government and the states already have trouble regulating the larger electric utilities effectively.

"Soon the consumer will not think of his electric utility as the friendly local supplier of power but more as a distant giant to whom the individual outage or voltage reduction is a mere statistic," said Ross, a University of Vermont economist and former Federal Power Commission member.

The Justice Department's antitrust division requested his testimony, filed in an SEC hearing on a proposal by New England Electric System, Eastern Utilities Associates and Boston Edison Co. to form a single holding company.

The proposal is one of a score of merger proposals pending before the SEC or in the planning stages. Utilities claim the mergers would bring lower rates to the consumers. Ross said the anticompetitive effects outweigh the economic considerations.

The labeling that lists dangerous and side effects goes only to physicians, who pass on whatever information to patients they think is necessary.

But, Jennings said, the new "age of consumerism" may change that. "A well-informed public is best protected," he said in an interview.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., has told the Agriculture Department that marketing of chickens bearing cancer virus might establish a precedent for widespread sale of other meat products with similar viruses.

Rosenthal, chairman of a special House consumers subcommittee, wrote Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin urging that public hearings be held before any change is made in chicken inspection standards.

It was disclosed Monday that a government panel of scientists had recommended that chickens having avian leukosis virus be allowed on the market as long as they don't look too repugnant. The panel contended leukosis did not pose a threat to human health.

The Senate has sent President Nixon a $1.8 billion foreign aid bill, one of the lowest allotments ever for the program. It was approved by voice vote Wednesday after House approval a day earlier.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A requirement that drug manufacturers furnish warnings directly to women using oral contraceptives is under consideration by the Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. John Jennings, acting chief of FDA's bureau of medicine, confirmed Wednesday that the warning requirement is being considered by FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards.

Oral contraceptives are now dispensed to patients by prescription without any warning information required on the bot-

Quarantine Sees Boredom Set In

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The first group of passengers to board the typhoid-struck Oronsay, a quarantine vessel, is high on boredom but low on morale.

"Ping pong, ping pong, ping pong," quipped a smiling elderly passenger when asked Wednesday what he did for two weeks in Vancouver Harbor.

"Bridge, bridge, bridge," said his wife.

The 154 passengers toured Vancouver by bus after leaving the P and O luxury liner, then departed for New Zealand and Australia aboard a chartered jet.

They were cleared for the flight by federal health officials, although the vessel and the rest of its 1,500 passengers and crew remained in voluntary quarantine.

The Oronsay has been tied up in Vancouver since Jan. 14, when its England-to-Australia cruise was interrupted by the outbreak of typhoid. A total of 66 suspected or confirmed cases have been discovered. The liner is expected to sail Monday for Hawaii, the South Pacific and Sydney, Australia.

"The typhoid wasn't P and O's fault," said Elsie Burbury, 60, of Surrey, England, who boarded the 28,000-ton liner at Southampton early in December. "I think the company and the crew treated us well—they did their best to make it as pleasant as possible."

Della Wilson of Minneapolis, bound for Sydney with her two teen-age daughters and 13-year-old son, summed up the feelings of some of the American passengers:

"We've been at sea for two weeks and haven't sailed anywhere. I got on at Los Angeles and only got as far as Vancouver."

P and O officials said that another 250 passengers are expected to disembark before next week's sailing. In the meantime, a spokesman said, the company has received permission to conduct bus tours of Vancouver, although the passengers won't be allowed off the buses.

A Goanese crew member, who joined the Oronsay in England, is believed to be the source of the typhoid.

Leaving U.S., Taking 12-Year-Old Drug-User

NEW YORK (AP) — The parents of a 12-year-old drug user who was missing for three days but returned safely say they will take her abroad because, the mother says, "This is a jungle, this country."

Isabel Salazar called her parents Wednesday and returned home a few hours later after a trip into the youth drug culture of New York City.

Her father, Dr. Guillermo Salazar, a psychiatrist who works with drug addicts, said Isabel was an addict hooked by friends she accompanied to Central Park. Her drug trip started Monday on Manhattan's lower East Side and ended on the upper West Side.

Among the drugs Isabel used were LSD, amphetamines, and mescaline.

Mrs. Caroline Salazar said, "Now Isabel and I are leaving the country forever. This is a jungle, this country. It's going down the drain faster than anyone realizes. We're moving to Hong Kong, maybe Africa. I'm just getting our visas and getting out of here."

Billie Sol Faces $4,371 Suit

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Billie Sol Estes, convicted in 1963 of fraud in the mortgaging of non-existence fertilizer tanks and up for a parole hearing Friday, is being sued for $4,371 by the Texas Employment Commission.

In a court action filed Wednesday, the commission alleged Estes, a grain dealer, owed the money as payroll taxes on wages of $252,527 he paid in the first quarter of 1962.

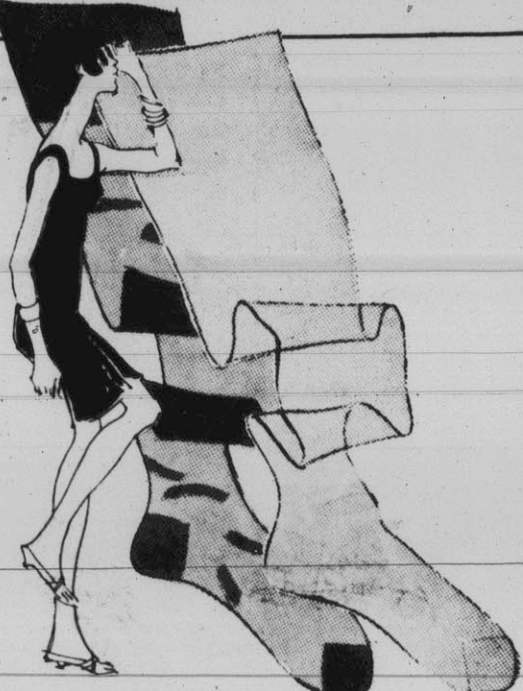

ARREST THREE
DURHAM (AP) — Three Durham men were arrested late Wednesday night on a federal charge of robbing the Haymount branch of the First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. at Fayetteville. Three men robbed the bank of $29,411 on Jan. 13.

Hopland, Calif., was named after the many hop fields nearby.

Flies Home Police Still Hunt Heroin Supplier For Three Boys With Bruises

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned home from America today with bruised ribs, a cut lip and a sore wrist suffered in a fall in Washington Wednesday night.

Wilson fell at the British Embassy five minutes before he was to give a news conference, his office said. An aide said a styptic pencil checked the bleeding from his lip and he went ahead with the news conference, making no mention of his fall.

Newsmen at the conference did not notice anything amiss. After the news conference, Wilson's physician examined him and advised precautionary X-rays which were to be made after his appearance in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Wilson rested on his transatlantic flight during the night but has remarked several times in London today that he feels "damn sore."

Wilson spent five days in Canada, New York and Washington. He was accompanied by his wife, Foreign Minister Michael Stewart and Mrs. Stewart.

NEW YORK (AP) — Police arrest three boys they say were peddling heroin on Mermaid Avenue in the Coney Island section of Brooklyn. They say the boys—ages 11, 13 and 15—are not users, just pushing after school for profit.

"I don't know a thing about it," said the proprietor of a pizza parlor on the avenue when asked about the case. "I take care of my own family. That's the best way."

"It happens," shrugs a shoe repairman, sitting on the shoeshine stand in his shop.

"I'm maybe a little surprised at the ages, but otherwise ..."

said his middle-aged woman customer. The Mermaid Avenue drug problem has grown "terribly," said Doris Hart, director of an adult education center for the area. "It has become very, very serious in the last few years."

One storefront is occupied by

Cidra Club whose president, Henry Rivera, is also chairman of the local Puerto Rican Council. "The drugs are very bad," he said, shaking his head. "I'm afraid to let my kids go outside."

In the back of the club is a weight-lifting set and two doors away is another club with two pool tables and a jukebox blaring Latin tunes as young men chalk their cues. The club offers this instead of the street.

Further up the avenue is another store with a green sign reading "Education Center." Inside is Doris Hart. She is blunt about the problem: "We have everything from elementary school kids glue sniffing on up."

"Nothing is being done about it," she said. "We've had parents who've come in here after they get the runaround trying to get their kids committed."

"We have no future," she said. "They get the first bag free and they're started and they know it's the hospital, jail or the grave or something ... You've got no life."

Meanwhile, detectives continue their search for the person who was supplying the three youngsters arrested Tuesday. They said the supplier gave the boys up to 90 envelopes of heroin at a time. The boys then worked their way up and down the avenue, dealing with a clientele that included men, women, school kids—just about anyone who was buying, police said. The price was $10 a bag. The supplier left them $50 a week profit, police said.

Fifth Delay On Answering Suit

GREENSBORO (AP) — U. S. District Judge Edwin M. Stanley has granted Cannon Mills of Kannapolis a fifth delay for answering a Justice Department suit charging it with racial discrimination.

The delay, signed Wednesday, gives Cannon until March 31 to reply to a suit filed April 8.

U.S. Attorney William Osteen, who prepared the latest extension order, said he did so at the request of the Justice Department.

The suit charges Cannon with practicing discrimination against Negroes in assignment of company houses, job classifications and promotions. The company owns some 2,000 houses in Kannapolis.

'Copter Downed By MIG

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Antiaircraft guns shot down an American F105 fighter-bomber along the border between North Vietnam and Laos Wednesday and two hours later North Vietnamese MIG jets shot down a big rescue helicopter searching for the F105 crew, official sources said today.

All eight Americans aboard the two aircraft were reported missing.

It was the first report of MIGs attacking American aircraft since President Lyndon B. Johnson ordered the bombing of North Vietnam halted 15 months ago.

The sources said they believed this was the first helicopter shot down by North Vietnamese MIGs.

There were two men flying the F105 and six in the crew of the HH53 rescue helicopter.

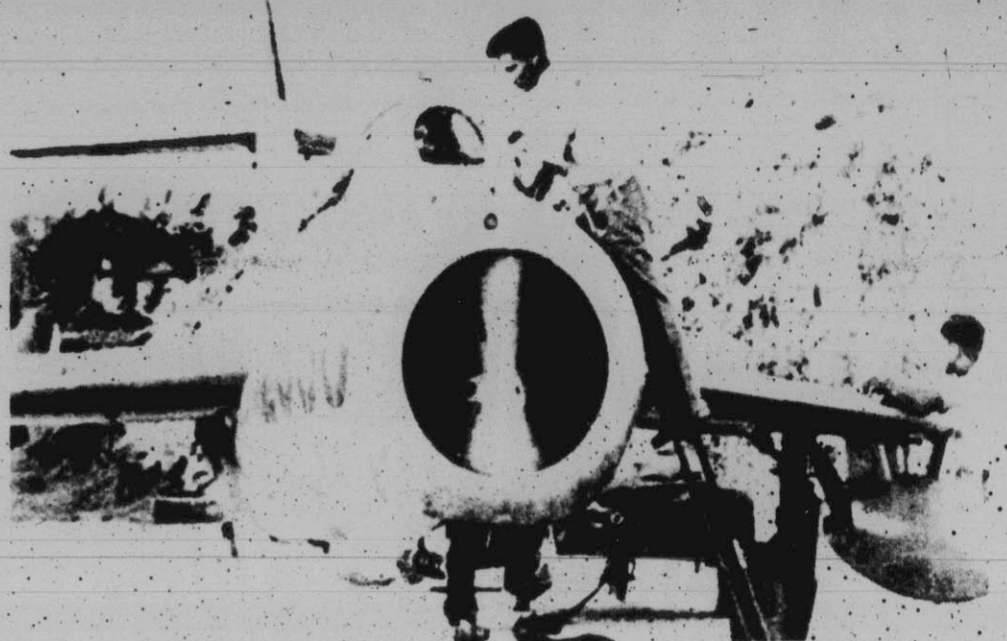

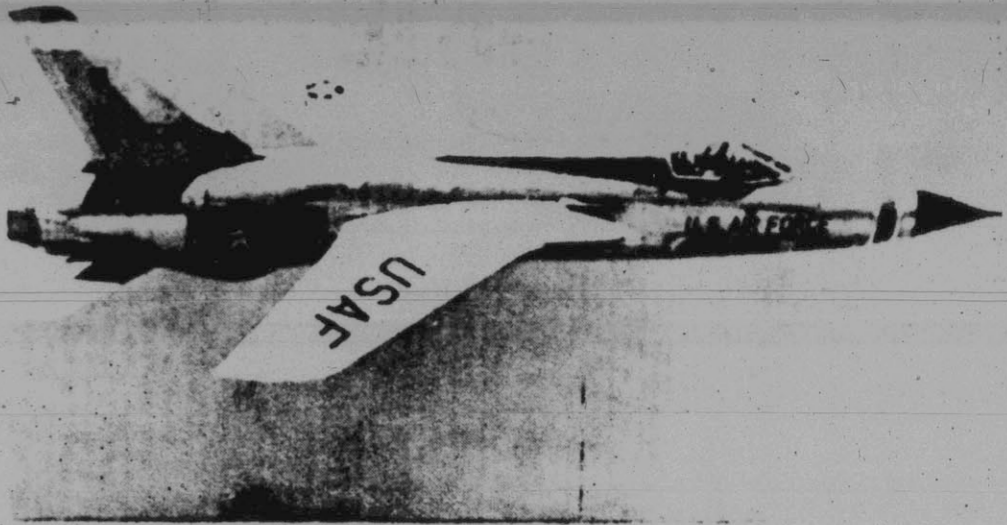

The sources said SAMS—surface-to-air missiles—also were fired at the flight of F105s, but these apparently missed.

A spokesman for the U.S. Command said he had nothing to report on the downed aircraft "at this time."

The sources held out little hope for the crewmen of the HH53 helicopter since it was hit by an air-to-air missile fired from the MIG.

North Vietnam claimed its forces shot down three U.S. planes Wednesday and damaged many others during American air raids on the North Vietnamese provinces of Quang Binh and Ha Tinh, which border Laos along the Mu Gia Pass, the main entrance into Laos for North Vietnamese supply traffic.

The sources said it was not yet clear whether both of the American aircraft went down in

Doctor Speaks On Health Legislation

Dr. Ed Beddingfield of Stantonburg was the keynote speaker at the Kiwanis Club in Greenville Wednesday night.

Dr. Beddingfield, president of the North Carolina Medical Society, is a member of the American Medical Society Committee on Legislation. He recently made a two-day trip in Washington where he met with the North Carolina Congressional Representatives.

Speaking on Health Care Legislation, Dr. Beddingfield said the recent national legislation has had an enormous impact on health care and has created a demand for health care services beyond the resources currently available in manpower and facilities.

"Much good has resulted from these programs in that many people were benefitting from medical care who would not have done so without these federal programs," Dr. Beddingfield said, "but, at the same time, there is a need to train more physicians and paramedical personnel, as well as improving the administration of health care services and properly utilizing facilities now available."

He discussed the new emphasis in health prepayment plans that will encourage patients to use less costly outpatient services rather than inpatient services.

Dr. Beddingfield reviewed the impact of the Medicare, Medicaid, Regional Medical Program and Comprehensive Health Planning laws passed by Congress in the past few years.

Pills Killed 2 Children

ANDERSON, S. C. (AP)—Authorities say two children in Anderson County have died and 10 are hospitalized from overdoses of tranquilizer pills.

Coroner Wesley Page said the 12-unrelated incidents occurred in the county last week. He said John Browning, 3, died a week ago after swallowing 22 pills and Calvin Brock Jr., 18-months, succumbed Saturday after taking nine.

Page said the flurry of cases last Thursday through Saturday "probably was because of the bad weather those days that kept children in. All were under six."

The coroner said the cases were scattered around the county.

"Those pills mostly are bright red or yellow and look just like candy to small children," he explained, indicating he feels some of the children may have thought they were eating candy. Page said various doctors had treated the youngsters and each attributed the illnesses to tranquilizer overdoses.

The Atacama desert in Chile is noted for its nitrate deposits.

Assassinations Threaten East Africa's Stability

By JOHN PLATTER
NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—Political assassination has suddenly come into vogue in Eastern Africa, threatening the region's stability as it begins the new decade.

The assassins of 1969 chose their victims with care and moved with deadly precision.

The murdered men, Kenya's Tom Mboya, Somalia's President Abdi Shermarke and the Liberation Movement's Eduardo Mondlane, were all key figures, stabilizing and energetic forces.

In Uganda, where on Dec. 19 a gunman shot and gravely wounded President Milton Obote, the country stood close to anarchy as he struggled to recover and regain control.

After the attempt on Obote, Nairobi's Daily Nation suggested editorially the wave of killings "cannot be considered in isolation."

Begins In Dar Es Salaam

The process began on a bright morning in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, last Feb. 3. The lanky, scholarly Mondlane had just collected his mail and was settling down to work at a friend's beach cottage along fashionable Oyster Bay.

He started by opening a "personal and confidential" parcel. Seconds later it blew him apart.

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere gave the 49-year-old guerrilla leader a hero's burial and, as a 19-gun salute boomed out over the Indian Ocean, vowed Mondlane's spirit would never die.

But it did. The movement first faltered, then dissolved in shambles as the men who headed the liberation campaign fought crudely among themselves for the vacant post.

Investigations turned up nothing.

The killers harvested more impressively. The Portuguese were quick to deny implication but they can only be relieved by the respite his removal brought them.

The gunman who fired two shots at Mboya July 5 was no less effective, but in a different way. Kenya reeled in confusion at the loss of a man who engineered the nation's prosperity and was a possible future president.

Old Enmities Flare
 Old tribal enmities flared dangerously and scattered rioting broke out between Mboya's Luo tribesmen and the dominant Kikuyus.

Kenya has never been the same since. The country has been stripped of its calm and orderly progress.

A young Kikuyu tribesman was later convicted and hanged for the murder, but few believe he acted alone. Even fewer think the tremors of instability sparked off in July are over.

While East Africans were pondering the dramatic assassination in Kenya news was flashed from adjoining Somalia that President Abdi Shermarke had been slain by a member of his own bodyguard on Oct. 15.

The motives of the killer remain obscure. But a week after he riddled his president with bullets, the military seized power in the sleepy, coastal capital of Mogadishu.

New Militancy Evident
 A new militancy was evident in the first broadcasts of the new revolutionary council and observers detected a decided shift to the left, in line with earlier military coups in Moslem Sudan and Libya.

Next, an assassin struck in Uganda. This time his weapon jammed after the first shot. President Obote was maimed but spared. No news of the killer has been announced, nor of his possible motives.

But the attempt can only deepen already serious rifts between Obote's Nilotic northerners and the southern and Bantu Bugandans, whose kind died in lonely exile two months ago after he was deposed by Obote in mid-1966 and fled to London.

Doctors say Obote is recovering. But he's doing so silently, and his troops have already rampaged through Kampa, killing at least seven persons and beating up civilians indiscriminately. The tribal divisions, carefully being rehealed in the past two years, have been re-opened and nine million Ugandans look forward uneasily to the 1970s.

himself."

"He spoke out strongly for law and order and fair business practices and competition. In Fayette, he said the blacks opened a shopping center of their own and shopped there only for a while. Now every store in town has black cashiers, etc. and prices downtown and in this shopping center are competitive. Since he has become mayor, policemen no longer carry guns, but neither do any citizens legally carry guns. Also it's against the law to swear on the street or to "spin a wheel" within the city limits.

Twice he told his audience of mostly ECU students, "It's in your hands now. Go home and tell your mamas and daddys how wrong they've been, that white and black men can live together peacefully."

This was Evers' first speaking engagement in North Carolina.

care."
D. D. Garrett noted "This seems to be an indictment of the teachers. What is it the teachers did or did not do to cause students to feel they may not have cared?"

Earlier, West had mentioned "Today, there was again a feeling of tension. It can be sensed. Mr. Roundtree (Benny Roundtree) was the only person present in the school at lunch time. Again, I stress to you my strong feelings that parents should be on hand during lunch hour."

Several persons—Roundtree, Mrs. Irma Daniels and Mrs. B.W. Bond — among others, expressed an opinion that based on talks with students, if the committee failed to continue to show interest or did not offer concrete recommendations, students would accuse the committee of being another group, just making more talk. All agreed many students were waiting to see what would happen.

Break Mafia Theft Ring

NEW YORK (AP) — A Mafia-dominated, 10-state ring of luxury automobile thieves has been cracked with the arrest of 21 persons, Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold says.

Gold said the arrests Wednesday ended an operation that sold $5 million worth of Cadillacs, Lincolns and other luxury cars in three years.

Some of the stolen-car customers, who paid an average cut-rate of $3,000 for the big cars, included a professional-football player, a popular singer and a movie star, according to a source in Gold's office. He said they knew the cars were stolen.

Gold said the ring operated in New York, California, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Virginia, Florida, Alabama and Georgia.

Louis Astuto, 40, a reputed gangster in the Joseph Colombo Mafia "family" was the head of the "highly sophisticated" ring, Gold said.

The 21 arrested persons, including three women, were charged with grand larceny, forgery, possession of stolen cars, conspiracy and possession of stolen motor vehicle registration forms.

Gold said the thieves took orders for cars specifying make, color, style and accessories. They then checked a supply of stolen cars they kept in four Brooklyn garages for the right one. If they didn't have the desired item, one would be stolen, he said.

Co-chairman Taylor remarked, "One observation should not be overlooked. Because of the period of tranquility, the administration has been able to do some thinking. I understand Cox (principal, Glenn Cox) is ready to put before students and faculty, changes in procedure, and that he is to talk to the faculty tomorrow, to put recommendations before them. I also understand that early next week, after exams, he is to have an assembly of the student body."

Miss Kathleen Flanagan, teacher, informed the committee that the faculty was scheduled to meet with the Board of Education on Monday night. "We have tried to have an opportunity to meet with the board," she remarked, "and we now have our chance to talk to them about some of the issues."

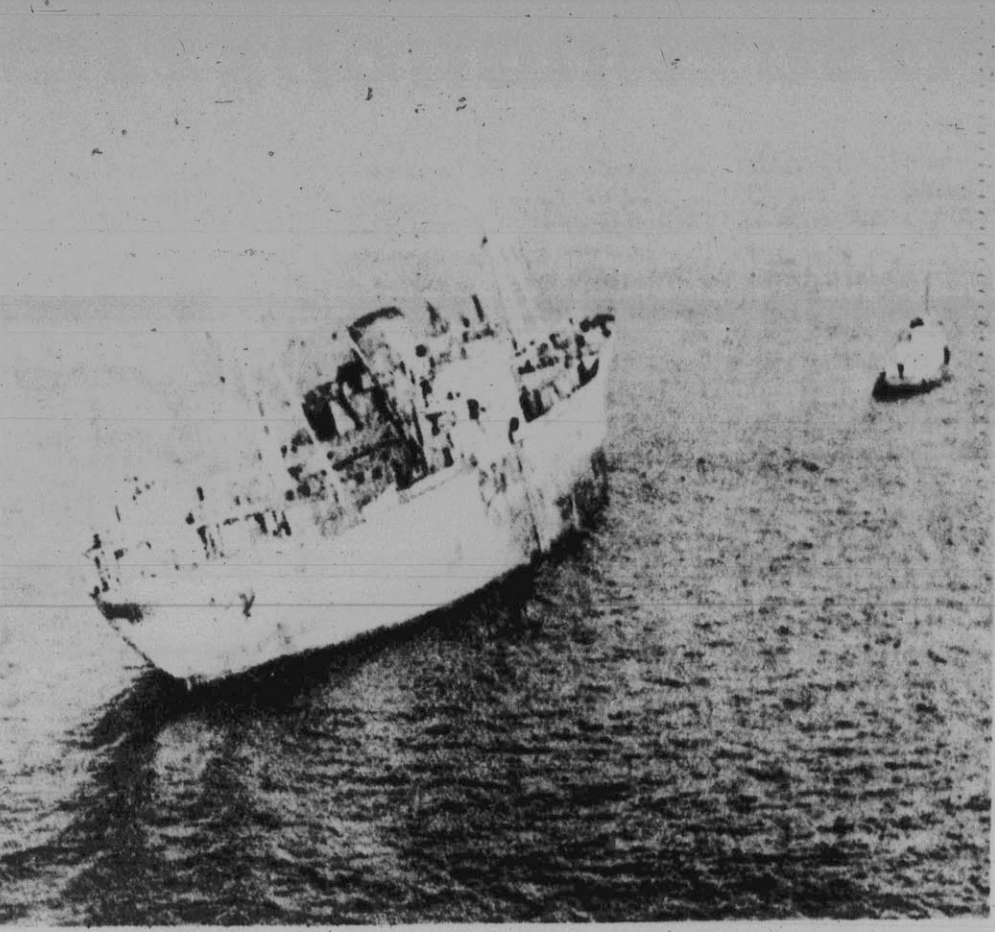

Three Children Burn To Death

CHERRYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Police say three young children burned to death Wednesday afternoon when fire charred their Cherryville home.

Authorities said the youngsters' mother was at work when the fire occurred and the children were apparently locked in a bedroom.

Names and ages of the children were not available this morning.

May, And May Not Have, New Selective Service Boss

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's wide-ranging and frustrating search to fill the shoes of Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey appeared over today, but the White House wasn't sure Charles DiBona would take the job.

Since Nixon abruptly announced last Oct. 10 Hershey would be replaced, the search for a new director reached unsuccessfully into the ranks of college football coaches and state governments.

But Tuesday, the White House confirmed Rhodes scholar DiBona, former Pentagon "whiz kid" systems analyst, had been offered the post, but hadn't accepted it yet.

DiBona is the 37-year-old president of the Center for Naval Analysis in Rosslyn, Va., where his work included research into Nixon's proposal for an all-volunteer armed force.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler acknowledged the offer to DiBona after it was learned the 1956 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy had discussed the appointment with Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the senate Armed Services Committee, and Sen. Margaret Smith, R-Maine, the ranking Republican member. Stennis' committee must consider the nomination.

The White House set a Feb. 16 deadline to find a replacement for Gen. Hershey, who directed the draft since it was started just before World War II. The White House said last October it wanted to give the new man on-the-job training.

DiBona graduated second in his class from Naval Academy and, later, as a Rhodes scholar, he received top honors in economics.

W. Allen Wallis of the University of Rochester, which manages the Center for Naval Analysis, said DiBona "would be a brilliant appointment."

"He possesses an extraordinary combination of educational qualification and professional accomplishments. He has a broad understanding of both civilian and military aspects of the armed services," Wallis said.

Wallis is a member of the President's Commission on an All-Volunteer Draft. DiBona has done much of the research for the commission under a contract with the University of Rochester.

Joe West Signs Football Grant With East Carolina

Joe West, quarterback for Rose High School's Rampant football team, has signed a grant-in-aid at East Carolina University.

West was signed to the grant by new East Carolina head football coach Mike McGee last night.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. West, both teachers in the Greenville City Schools, West is a three-sport athlete at Rose. He served as the starting quarterback for the Rampants for the past two years.

His senior season, he completed 119 of 207 passes for 1,236 yards. Twelve went for touchdowns. He had only five passes intercepted, for an amazingly low percentage.

He was named to the All-East team this year, and was selected to the All-Eastern Conference team. He was recently chosen to participate in the annual East-West All-Star Game to be held in August in Greensboro.

West also participates in basketball, where he serves as a reserve guard, and in baseball, where he is a starter who can play several positions. At East Carolina, he will limit his participation to football.

"We think Joe has an outstanding future at East Carolina University," McGee said. "We are pleased to have a Rose High School product as a member of our 1970 freshman football squad."

West Signs With Pirates

Controversial John Carlos To Ask $600,000 For His Services

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — controversial sprinter John Carlos, the world's fastest human, will seek a whopping four-year pro football contract totaling between $600,000 and $1 million although he has never played organized football, according to his advisor.

"He's going to be some drawing card; his drawing power is fabulous," Robert "Pappy" Gault said Wednesday night after the 24-year-old Carlos became a 15th-round draft pick of the Philadelphia Eagles, who will try him as a wide receiver.

Carlos was en route from California to New York, where Gault said he will make his final track appearance in Friday night's Millrose Games.

"His reaction to being drafted was that it's the greatest thing in the world," Gault said. "He wanted to play on the East Coast. And we're going for $600,000 to a million dollars."

Gault coached the U.S. boxing team in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City, where the 6-foot-3, 210-Carlos, along with Tommie Smith, staged a Black Power protest during the playing of the National Anthem.

Carlos was one of two track stars chosen Wednesday as the 26 pro football teams selected 260 more players, bringing the two-day total to 442.

The other was Willie Davenport, who won the 110-meter high hurdles at Mexico City. Davenport, who has played some cornerback for Southern University, was taken on the 12th round by New Orleans. The 6-1, 185-pound hurdler was drafted last year by New Orleans and later by San Diego but both picks were nullified because he had college eligibility remaining.

"I'm serious about pro football," said the 26-year-old Davenport, who has run 100 yards in 9.4 seconds to Carlos' 9.1. "I was serious last year. But I'll keep on hurdling until I become a pro."

The two-day draft took 20 hours and 45 minutes and saw 187 major college players selected, compared to 155 from the smaller schools.

The Pittsburgh Steelers made Louisiana Tech quarterback Terry Bradshaw the No. 1 pick Tuesday and two of his favorite receivers were drafted Wednesday—tight end Larry Brewer on the eighth round by Atlanta and wide receiver Sonny Spinks on the 14th round by Minnesota.

Two ninth-round picks were Ohio State's 214-pound fullback Jim Otis by New Orleans and wide receiver Eddie "The Flea" Bell of Idaho State by the New York Jets. Otis gained 1,027 yards and scored 16 touchdowns in nine games while the 5-9, 165-pound Bell led the nation with 96 receptions, 1,522 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Larry Schreiber of Tennessee Tech, the fourth leading rusher in college history with 4,421 yards, went to San Francisco on the 10th round.

On the 13th round, Chicago took Jimmy Gunn, a 210-pound All-American defensive end from Southern California who has been offered a management training position with a large

San Diego industrial firm, and Houston grabbed Jess Lewis, a defensive tackle from Oregon State who skipped the 1968 season to wrestle in the Olympics.

Two more All-Americans were drafted on the 14th round. The New York Giants took Arkansas center Rodney Brand while Baltimore chose Michigan safety Tom Curtis, who holds the NCAA career record for interception return yardage.

Cliff Gasper, a 300-pound defensive tackle who was shot by a teammate during the season, was one of nine players taken from little Grambling College, a perennial pro gold mine. Gasper, who received superficial wounds, went to New Orleans on the 16th round.

Later in the same round, Minnesota took wide receiver Bruce Cerone of Emporia State, a two-time small college All-American and the top pass-catcher in NAIA history.

At least two basketball players were selected—Seaburn Hill of Arizona State by Dallas on the 16th round and Don Crenshaw of Southern California by Los Angeles on the 17th and final round.

Furman Ups Grants

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP) — The Furman University trustees have approved a request by the school's athletic department to increase the number of football grants-in-aid.

The trustees also reaffirmed the Southern Conference school's athletic commitments.

In a statement released Wednesday, the board decided that 50 scholarships are needed in football every two years, compared to the 35 to 38 now awarded.

A spokesman for the university said a drive will be started among alumni and friends to solicit funds for the extra grants.

"The athletic department is most encouraged over the recommendation by the trustees to upgrade the football program and all of our coaches are enthusiastic," athletic director J. Lyles Alley said.

"This is a very definite step in the right direction," said football coach Bob King. "Our goal this year will be to recruit more full scholarship players." His squad had a 1-8-1 record last season.

Bucs Face Richmond

East Carolina University's Pirates take on the University of Richmond tonight at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The Pirates will be looking for their fourth conference victory and a chance to pull back into a tie for second place in the Southern. They also will be out to avenge one of their two loop losses.

A freshman preliminary between the two schools is slated for 5:45 p.m.

Lefty Driesell May Be Ready To Keep Promise For Maryland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If he keeps on winning, folks around the Atlantic Coast Conference might start believing Lefty Driesell when he says he'll make Maryland the UCLA of the East.

His team hasn't knocked over any Top 10 teams yet, but Wednesday night it upset previously ranked Duke, 52-50, and proved that the Terps are not the same league doormat they used to be.

The victory came on a dramatic 30-foot jumper by Will Hetzel which swished through the basket as the final buzzer sounded.

Maryland led, at the half, 25-23, but Duke forged ahead. With the Blue Devils in front, 37-35, Driesell called time out, lectured his team, then watched them pop in 11 straight points.

Duke rallied and gained a 50-

50 tie with 16 seconds left. The Blue Devils then called time and tried to hold the ball for a game-winning shot.

That hope ended with nine seconds left, when Sparky Still of Maryland knocked the ball loose. Teammate Mickey Wiles snatched it up, and with three seconds to play, Wiles hit Hetzel with a bullet pass for the game-winning shot.

Hetzel and Rod Horst were the Terps' top scorers with 16 points apiece.

With the victory, Maryland is 3-4 in league play and Duke is 2-3. Overall, Maryland's record is 10-6 to Duke's 9-4.

In other games, fourth-ranked South Carolina walloped Virginia Tech, 86-54, for its 13th straight victory. Clemson beat Furman and North Carolina won an exhibition.

The South Carolina Gamecocks outscored the Gobblers, 31-6, in the first 10 minutes and the outcome was never in doubt.

Bobby Cremins, who has been primarily a defensive player, hit 11 of the Gamecocks' first 15 points.

John Roche led the scoring for South Carolina with 27 points. Lloyd King was the Gobblers' top man with 20.

Ninth-ranked North Carolina scored an exhibition victory over Athletes in Action, 85-63, at Chapel Hill. Charlie Scott led the Tar Heels with 16 points and 10 rebounds. The visitors, sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ, stayed within a few points in the first half, but fell behind soon after the break.

Clemson rolled over Furman, 93-67, in the 100th basketball game between the schools.

Richie Mahaffey scored all of his 19 points for the Tigers in the first period but spent the rest of the game on the bench. Coach Bobby Roberts played his reserves for most of the second half.

Clemson trailed the Southern Conference team in the early minutes, but a 17-point scoring burst, engineered by Mahaffey and Greg Latin, smothered the Paladins.

The Tigers held 30-point margins twice during the second half.

Lisco Thomas was Furman's top scorer with 18 points.

Tonight Virginia plays William and Mary of the Southern Conference in Williamsburg, Va., in the only game scheduled involving an ACC team.

Mills Warns His Spiders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Richmond's Spiders are looking forward to their first home game in two weeks, and a regionally televised appearance as well, when they take on Furman's Paladins in a Southern Conference basketball game Saturday, coach Lewis Mills has a slight reminder for them.

Before the Spiders can afford either luxury, they have a conference date tonight at East Carolina in their first game since midterm examinations and it isn't one guaranteed to put them in the proper frame of mind.

At the moment, Richmond is locked in a three-way tie with Furman and Virginia Military Institute for the league basement. All have won once in five conference starts. East Carolina, on the other hand, is third with a 3-2 record, and could tie George Washington for second by winning tonight.

Richmond is 4-11 over-all going into the game while the Pirates are just above the .500 mark at 9-8.

It's one of three games tonight for league teams, the other two being of the nonconference variety.

VMI, also 4-11 over-all, may have the toughest assignment. The Keydets are host to redhot Old Dominion, which has won 11 straight for a 12-1 record and which just might be the best team in Virginia.

The other encounter sends William and Mary, 5-9, against Virginia, 4-10, for a Virginia Big Five tussle at the Hampton Coliseum.

Wednesday night's only action saw Furman take a 93-67 drubbing from Clemson, a team to which the Paladins lost only by 81-80 when they met a couple of weeks ago.

Richie Mahaffey scored all his 19 points in the first half as Clemson overcame an early 8-3 Furman lead to go in front by 45-30 at intermission. Mahaffey sat out most of the second half. Five Clemson players hit in double figures. Lisco Thomas led the Paladins with 18 points.

Caddies May Outshine Pros

By PAT THOMPSON

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Mini-skirts are out for the 1970 U.S. Open Golf Championship, but fashion-plated caddies will be in June 18-21 at the Hazeltine National Golf Club near Chaska.

Naniy Jupp, tournament manager in telling about the quickening pace of preparations for the 70th Open, talked about the fashion-minded approach Wednesday.

"Just wild," Miss Jupp said in describing caddy uniforms, part of 1,000 which have been ordered for various workers and officials.

Caddies will be decked out in blue and gold plaid slacks, matching blue-gold caps, gold T-shirts and white sneakers.

Tournament officials will wear gold jackets, blue slacks. Marshals will be outfitted in blue and gold striped shirts and blue slacks.

Tournament colors, obviously, are blue and gold.

And the women officials will wear gold blouses, blue skirts. Mini-skirts?

"Semi-mini," joked Miss Jupp, who has been in the Twin Cities since last July 1 working on the Open.

Swimmers Ranked

An East Carolina University swimmer and a Pirate relay team are listed among the nation's best in the latest rankings by Swimming World.

Paul Trevisan, a freshman member of the team, ranks ninth in the 50-yard freestyle swimming event. Trevisan joins Greg Hanes, Wayne Norris and Jim Griffin in the 400-yard freestyle relay team that ranks 12th in the nation in the latest standings.

The Pirates, who swam Florida State this afternoon, play host to Maryland on Saturday.

Nicklaus Feels He's On Way To His Best Year Of Career

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, the most awesome figure in pro golf, may be en route to the best year of his remarkable career.

The authority: Jack Nicklaus. But he offered a disclaimer today before beginning his first round in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

"You never know what's going to happen from week to week," Nicklaus said.

"But right now, over the last few months, I've been driving the ball better than I have in the last four years. And that's a big part of the game. I've gotten away from hitting it all over the lot. I finally got something worked out of my swing. "I got that out. It's something that can come back, of course, but if I can keep it out," he didn't finish the sentence, but noted:

"I've played pretty well the last few times out. That last round at the Crosby was one of the best I've played in some time."

He came from five strokes off the pace with a stunning, seven-under par 95 on the tough Pebble Beach Golf course last week and closed in within one stroke of winner Bert Yancey. That gave him a record of two firsts, two seconds and a sixth in his last five starts, the best of the tour. Over that period he had a stroke average of 69.45 and won $82,916.

"I'd like to make it $100,000 in six tournaments," he said. He'd have to win to do it. And that would make him the first man to successfully defend a tour title since he won consecutive Western Open championships in 1967-68.

Nicklaus, who has just turned 30—"I don't like to talk about that too much"—has carved out one of the most outstanding records in the game's history.

He won the national amateur twice before turning pro. Since then he's captured all the world's major titles—two U.S. Open titles, a British Open, three Masters and the PGA.

He was the youngest ever to complete that sweep and last week became only the third man—and the youngest—to go past the $1 million mark in career earnings.

He was the favorite in the field of 144 that began the 72-hole test on the Torrey Pines Golf Club course, with Billy Casper, George Archer, Frank Beard and Dave Hill also threats. Arnold Palmer skipped this event.

Attack On South Africa Grows After Ashe Denied Entrance

By JUSTIN PAINE
CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Support for Arthur Ashe, the Negro tennis player who was refused a visa by South Africa, began to build today.

The American Committee on Africa issued a two page statement attacking South Africa's position and called upon U.S. athletes to refuse to participate there.

"It comes as no surprise that the South African government has denied Arthur Ashe a visa," said George Houser, executive director of the American Committee on Africa. "It is patently clear that black athletes are not welcome in South Africa."

"The importance of this decision is not confined to the sports field," Houser continued. "It is a dramatic demonstration of the commitment of South Africa to a racist position and its denial of human rights to the non-white South African majority."

Dr. Hubert Eaton, president of the American Tennis Association, issued a similarly strong statement calling on American players to boycott South African competition in sympathy with Ashe.

Another American, Bob Lutz, said he thought the decision might result in South Africa being excluded from future Davis Cup play.

The decision, which was announced by Frank Waring, South Africa's sports minister, stirred a lively debate in the local press.

The anti-government Rand Daily Mail called the refusal "predictably obtuse" and said the ban "will be seen as naked racialism, a remarkable compound of opportunism and prejudice."

Die Transvaler, organ of the ruling Nationalist Party, defended the decision against Ashe, who, it said, after tried to publicly embarrass South Africa. Ashe himself seemed unperturbed by the turnout. "I won't miss it at all," he said.

The American star admitted that he was surprised at being refused a visa.

"I thought I was doing South Africa a favor," he said. "I've bent over backwards to be nice to them to the extent that some of the black militants back home think I'm nuts."

In New York, Alastair B. Martin, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, said his group was greatly interested in the Ashe affair.

"We expect," said Martin, "that South Africa's membership in the International Lawn Tennis Federation will be suspended. It is a clear case of racial discrimination and rules of the ILTF expressly prohibit this and any violation of those rules is ground for expulsion."

South Africa's stand on Ashe's visa refusal is that the tennis player application was, in Ashe's own words according to Waring, an attempt "to put a crack in the racist wall down there" and not just for the purpose of playing tennis.

The country's apartheid policies forbid whites and non-whites from competing together and have previously led to South Africa's expulsion from the Olympic Games and six other international sports.

Porsche Gets Daytona Jump

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
DAYTONABEACH, Fla. (AP) —Porsche got the best of Ferrari in the first formal practice for the Daytona 24-Hour Endurance Race, but a spokesman for the Italian works team said "We haven't even warmed up yet."

Three of the new Porsche 917 prototypes, backbone of German efforts to retain the world endurance title they won last year, turned the fastest laps in day and night sessions Wednesday to win the initial showdown between the two foreign behemoths.

One of the 5-liter, 12-cylinder Porsches lapped the 3.81 mile Daytona track and road course at 126.765 miles per hour—more than four m.p.h. over the old course record.

Two more practice sessions are scheduled today, in the afternoon and at night. Qualifying for final grid positions in Saturday's 3 p.m. starting field will be held Friday. Until then all practice times are unofficial.

A Ferrari spokesman said two of the new 600-horsepower 512 prototypes suffered gear box trouble in Wednesday's sessions. Another member of the team put it more succinctly:

"This is a new car. We'll need a couple of days to get sorted out. After that, we'll go as fast as anybody."

Whatever the new car's troubles, a couple of last year's Ferrari, 312 prototypes—3-liter machines that give away more than 100 horsepower to their more sophisticated brothers—showed they will not be counted out.

The two smaller cars, entered by the North American Racing Team of Boston, were handled in practice by two Connecticut drivers, Sam Posey of Sharon and Tony Adamowicz of Wilton. Both lapped just under the course record. Posey at 121.811 m.p.h. and Adamowicz at 120.952.

Jo Siffert of Switzerland was at the wheel of the fastest Porsche Works car, an orange and blue, 12-cylinder, 600-horsepower machine entered by J. W. Wyr Engineering of Britain. Another Wyr entry, this one assigned to Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico, was clocked at 124.014 m.p.h.

Vic Elford of Britain, who co-drove the Porsche winner here in 1968, had a lap at 122.973. Elford also holds the present course record at 122.246 set last January.

The top Ferrari, driven by Mario Andretti, posted 122.028.

Jon Joins Lew In Leading Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lew Alcindor cost Milwaukee more than a million dollars and Jon McGlocklin came considerably cheaper. But they shared equally in point production Wednesday night, leading the Bucks to a 126-114 victory over the Cincinnati Royals.

The victory moved Milwaukee to within 5½ games of idle New York in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division race.

In other NBA action Wednesday, Boston whipped Philadelphia 112-100, Baltimore clipped Chicago 123-115, Los Angeles trimmed San Diego 113-108 and Seattle edged Atlanta 120-119.

In the American Basketball Association, Carolina topped New Orleans 95-91 and Kentucky edged New York 108-107.

Alcindor and McGlocklin each scored 33 points for Milwaukee as the Bucks ended a six-game Royal home winning streak and withstood a Cincinnati record-tying 11 straight field goals by Johnny Green.

The Bucks shot a sizzling 67 per cent in the first half but needed a 13-4 streak midway through the third period to wrap up the victory.

Boston, embarrassed by a 33-point loss in New York the night before, rebounded against Philadelphia.

Rookie Jo Jo White came off the bench to score a career-high 28 points to lead the Celtics past the 76ers, White and John Havlicek teamed to keep Boston in control. Havlicek finished with 22 points, 10 assists and 11 rebounds while Philadelphia's Archie Clark led all scorers with 30 points.

Kevin Loughery's 34 points paced Baltimore's victory over Chicago. Clem Haskins had 32 for the losers.

Jerry West and Happy Hairston combined for 69 points giving Los Angeles its victory over San Diego—the sixth straight triumph for the Lakers. West finished with 36 and Hairston 33 while Jim Barnett led the Rockets with 25.

Lucius Allen's free throw with 15 seconds left moved Seattle past Atlanta and enabled the Super Sonics to climb out of the West Division cellar by a mere four percentage points over San Diego.

Dick Snyder led Seattle with 23 points while Bill Bridges hit 24 for Atlanta.

Cougars Claw Bucs

GREENSBORO (AP) — Carolina mastered New Orleans' tight defense in the fourth quarter and sealed a 95-91 American Basketball Association victory Wednesday night.

Bob Verga popped in a pair of field goals to break an 87-87 deadlock in the final period and give the Cougars a lead they never lost. Rich Niemann bucketed 11 of his 13 points during the fourth period to help overcome the Bucs.

New Orleans led by a single point at the end of the third period after trailing throughout the first half.

Carolina, working the ball well against the Buccaneer defense, registered 22 assists to only nine for New Orleans.

Verga was Carolina's top scorer with 18 points and Gene Little added 17. Steve Jones paced the Bucs with 21 points.

The Cougars have tonight off, but Friday Pittsburgh comes to Greensboro and Saturday streaking Denver of the ABA's Western Division comes to Charlotte to play Carolina.

Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten college athletes from North Carolina and South Carolina were selected by professional football teams Wednesday during the final day of the annual draft.

Among those chosen was Furman basketball center Joe Brunson, who was picked by Chicago in the final round. Brunson is 6-foot-6 and weighs 235 pounds.

Others chosen were Ike Hill of Catawba, by Oakland, ninth round; Robert Morris of Duke, by Houston, 11th round; Ivan Southerland of Clemson, by Dallas, 11th round; Richard Dawkins of Johnson C. Smith, by Houston, 12th round; Jack King of Clemson, by San Francisco, 13th round; Tyrone Caldwell of South Carolina State, by San Diego, 13th round; Julian Martin of North Carolina Central, by Dallas, 13th round; Julian Martin of North Carolina Central, by Dallas, 13th round; Joe Johnson of Johnson C. Smith, by Cincinnati, 14th round; and Warren Muir of South Carolina, by the New York Giants, 15th round.

Seattle Gets Additional Time

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The next chapter in the continuing saga of the Seattle Pilots will be written Feb. 6 at a location yet to be made known.

The American League baseball club, which has seen deadlines come and go, was given nine more days — to within two weeks of the opening of spring training — to find enough cash to keep them in Seattle.

A business group, headed by hotel executive Edward Carlson, was handed that deadline here Wednesday by league owners as representatives of Dallas-Fort Worth and Milwaukee stood by ready to step in if Seattle conceded defeat.

American League President Joe Cronin announced that the meetings had been recessed in order to give Carlson more time to arrange for the financing that would allow his group to buy the Pilots for $9 million.

For reasons best known to himself, Cronin declined to say when or where the next meeting would be held, but Carlson confirmed the Feb. 6 date.

"I would say that's encouraging," Carlson said of the deadline. "We told the owners we thought we could get the money. There's a hell of a lot of work to be done."

At Monday's session it was announced the present owners of the Pilots, headed by Cleveland businessman William Daley, had lowered their asking price from $10.3 million to $9 million. Daley would retain 25 per cent of the club, lowering the actual cost still further.

But a stumbling block still remains in a $3.5 million bank loan that is recallable if the club is sold. In addition, at least $2 million is needed to operate the club this year.

Carlson remained optimistic about the financing of the sale though, and was even hopeful that the bank loan might be worked out.

The bank said, "Bring us a proposal." Carlson said, "We've got to finalize the financial package."

The league owners never even heard from the Milwaukee or the Dallas-Fort Worth groups, though two owners, Bob Reynolds of California and Ewing Kauffman of Kansas City, did inform these groups of their decision.

Water Wheel Still Serves Tar Heel Mountaineer

By LEE ALLEN ELLIOTT
Written For The AP

WEST JEFFERSON, N. C. (AP) — A narrow path winds around crags and up a mountain and ends abruptly at Monroe Jones' house.

Jones and his son Paul are the only ones living on top of the mountain. It has been home for them 29 years.

A large water mill sits just below the house, one of few such mills still in existence.

Monroe Jones was working inside the weathered mill room.

"Come on in," he said. "We're always glad to have company. Didn't figure on seeing anyone today, so I didn't shave this morning."

At 77, he's tall and rugged, with a brown, leather face that shows a man who has toiled long and hard.

"Guess you've never seen anything like this. We have no electricity this far back in the woods, so I rigged this mill up about 20 years ago. It's water powered. The wheels here are my lathes and grinders," he said, pointing to gadgets in the corner of the room.

He pulled a wire lever, and the water leaped into a wooden chute and gushed down the track and over the wheel.

Up on the ledge, Paul was hollering, "Get ready. Here comes the water."

Inside the shed the lathes and grinders attached to an axle leading to the wheel began to turn, causing a chain reaction with all the other wheels. Monroe smiled and took a piece of steel and guided it over the stone, grinding the edges smooth and sharp. When finished it would be made into a knife blade.

"I spent one whole winter fixing this contraption out. I needed something to do so I just started working on it. Finished it up in about four months," he said.

The water mill is something he is proud of. It is not only a hobby but provides an income. He makes gun stocks, chairs, knives and grinds corn with the water wheel.

"I ground 72 bushels of corn and chicken feed one fall. Could have done more, but it got so cold the wheel kept freezing up."

Monroe's house rests on a craggy slope, nestling into the land's contour, overlooking Buffalo in Ashe County. A clear stream runs by his home.

Much of the house was built by Monroe's own hands; he laid the foundation and carved the frame work. Music drifted from inside the house.

"Aw, that's Paul's transistor radio," Monroe said. "We don't have any electricity in the house either. I did have one light in the house here a while back. Hooked up two old car batteries to the mill. Didn't have a reducer to control the juice. Like to have burned the dadgum house down. That done it. I went back to using kerosene lamps at night."

He took out a wooden banjo and his hands moved delicately over the strings.

"Paul likes me to play 'Smethport Blues.' That's one of his favorites," Monroe laughed.

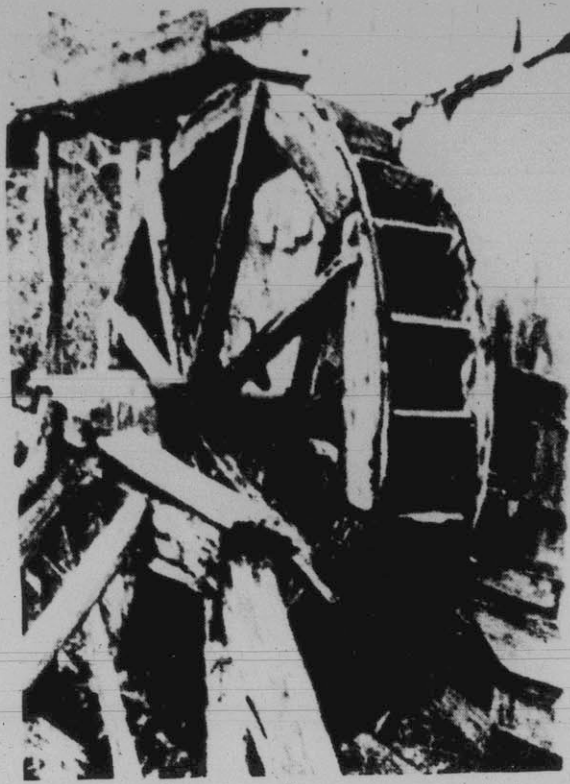

It is seven miles from the mountain to West Jefferson, but Monroe walks to town each week to buy his groceries.

He is isolated from many problems of everyday living. But only because he wants it that way.

Outside, darkness had veiled the mountain, and leaving was not easy.

"People are always welcome to visit me. I like people, they are my friends," Jones said.

He gave a hearty handshake and it was obvious that he meant it.

Basic Economics In Primary Grades

By DIANNE GAGE
Jonesboro Sun Writer

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Teach children all the principles of economics in grades one through six? Impossible, you say. Guess again, because it can and is being done in the Arkansas public school system.

Workshops for teachers in economic education, such as one conducted at Arkansas State University, are the main impetus responsible for making the program click.

The program is designed to make economically literate an American population which, for the most part, lacks an understanding of the subject. And although no formal economics courses have been added to the public school curriculum, a new dimension has been added to the existing subject matter.

In 1962 the program's parent organization, the Arkansas State Council on Economic Education, was formed. A major part of its program involves teaching teachers to teach economics.

More than 5,000 public school teachers have thus far taken part in the training and are passing along their new knowledge to their students.

"In a good program of economic education," says Dr. John V. Terry, "students should have learned most of the principles of economics by grade six." After that, he adds, it's more a matter of sophistication as their background in economics expands.

Dr. Terry, a professor of economics at John Brown University, is a member of the Arkansas State Council on Economic Education and chief economist of the ASU workshop staff.

"The most logical way to solve the problem (of economic illiteracy)," he says, "was in the public school system."

But how is such weighty economic subject matter as Depression, and inflation, monetary and fiscal policy, capital and consumer goods, banking, supply and demand, translated and applied to the elementary school level?

The teaching begins at the lowest grade level. For example, in the first grade, where the home and family are still the major portions of the pupil's outlet, family members are divided into buyers and consumers. And so, it works from there.

"The kids love the big words," said Grace Mosely of North Little Rock High School, a curriculum consultant. "It's easy to interest them."

"Say, for instance, a student wants a new pair of shoes," Dr. Terry reasoned, "but the family can't afford them. The resources are not enough. This is a slice of real life to which all kids are exposed. All you have to do is translate this and make him see he is actually studying economic principles."

Gov. Names C.Q. Brown

RALEIGH — Dr. C.Q. Brown of East Carolina University has been appointed to serve on the North Carolina Marine Science Council by Governor Bob Scott.

Dr. Brown, chairman of the Geology Department at ECU, will be one of 21 members serving on the council.

The council will be responsible for fostering education and training in ocean science technology in the State; of maintaining a liaison with corresponding authorities of nearby coastal states; and of encouraging the use and study of the ocean, estuarine and coastal waters by citizens and industries in the state.

Members appointed by Scott are from public and private academic and scientific institutions in the State and from the various industries and professions concerned with the exploration and use of the sea.

LEES LEAD

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Honolulu telephone directory shows the most numerous surname is Lee, with 1,144 listings.

The Lees are followed by the Wongs at 907. In descending order after that comes Chun, Young, Chang, Chin, Nakamura, Smith, Lum, Yamamoto tied with Johnson, Higa, Tanaka, Kim, Lau, Watanabe tied with Kaneshiro and Oshiro, Williams and a four-way deadlock of Ho, Miller, Sato and Chong.

ABANDONED — This is "Bobby", about 18 months old, that was abandoned in a shopping center in Gainesville, Fla., last Friday. Jack Gamble, counselor at the Alachua County Juvenile Court, said, "Anyone having information on 'Bobby' should contact his office at once." (AP Wirephoto)

Expect Objections On Regional Planning Groups

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina officials are expecting a barrage of objections to a proposed grouping of the state's 100 counties into 15 planning regions.

Formation of the regions is aimed at streamlining outside aid to a growing number of regional programs involving health services, law enforcement and many other matters.

The state Planning Division mailed maps to 1,200 local authorities Wednesday showing the grouping and told them to file protests by Feb. 16.

"There's almost no opposition to the concept of creating the regions, but a lot of counties probably won't be happy with the group they've been placed in," a division spokesman said.

Some of the strongest objections are expected from a region grouping the Triad cities of Winston-Salem, Greensboro and High Point in a sprawling collection of 11 counties, the largest area in the plan.

State Planning Officer Ronald F. Scott, in a letter accompanying the maps, told local officials the system of multicounty regions should eliminate "serious problems of conflict and needless duplication."

As things now stand, a county may find itself linked with one group of counties in one federal or state program and another group in another program.

Bertie County, for example, is linked with counties north of it in the Choanoke Development Program and with counties south of it in the Mideast Economic Development Project.

Scott said existing multicounty arrangements will be changed gradually to conform to the new grouping. He said the federal government, in its aid programs, has promised to have its agencies abide by whatever grouping the state draws up.

A number of states work on the multicounty regions plan and the neighboring states of South Carolina and Virginia recently undertook it.

Gov. Bob Scott is expected to proclaim creation of North Carolina's regions within a few months.

Here is the proposed composition of the 15 multicounty regions:

Region 1—Cherokee, Graham, Clay, Macon, Swain, Jackson.

Region 2—Haywood, Transylvania, Henderson, Buncombe, Madison.

Region 3—Mitchell, Yancey, McDowell, Rutherford, Polk.

Region 4—Burke, Caldwell, Alexander, Catawba.

Region 5—Avery, Watauga, Ashe, Alleghany, Wilkes.

Region 6—Mecklenburg, Gaston, Lincoln, Cleveland, Iredell, Rowan, Cabarrus, Stanly, Union, Anson.

Region 7—Forsyth, Guilford, Alamance, Randolph, Davidson, Davie, Yadkin, Surry, Stokes, Rockingham, Caswell.

Region 8—Wake, Durham, Orange, Chatham, Person, Granville, Vance, Warren, Franklin, Johnston.

Region 9—Montgomery, Moore, Lee, Hoke, Scotland, Richmond.

Region 10—Harnett, Cumberland, Robeson, Bladen, Sampson.

Region 11—Columbus, Brunswick, New Hanover, Pender.

Region 12—Onslow, Carteret, Duplin, Wayne, Greene, Lenoir, Jones, Craven, Pamlico.

Region 13—Wilson, Edgecombe, Nash, Halifax, Northampton.

Region 14—Pitt, Martin, Washington, Beaufort, Hyde.

Region 15—Bertie, Hertford, Gates, Currituck, Camden, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Chowan, Tyrrell, Dare.

She Teaches In Prison School

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Mrs. Lane Murray is behind bars at the Texas State Penitentiary. She is the schoolmarm.

The red brick prison is her school house and convicts fill her classroom.

Mrs. Murray, or Dr. Murray if you take into account her doctor of education degree, is superintendent of the Windham School District, serving the Texas Department of Corrections.

It is listed as the nation's first school district inside a prison.

Mrs. Murray, 47, administers an approved Texas Education Academy program—both academic and vocational—through the high school level. Alonzo Langley, director of education for the prison system, continues to supervise the prison's college level program.

Mrs. Murray, a teacher at both high school and college levels previously, is married to Dr. Thomas Murray, a professor in the education department at Sam Houston State University.

She likes the challenge of the prison job—"This new program (it was authorized by the state legislature) offers many opportunities for serving humanity. I am happy that I will have a role in a program that will mean so much to so many."

A native of Celina, in Collin County, Mrs. Murray was graduated from Sudan High School, earned a bachelor's degree from Texas Tech, her master's from Sam Houston State, and her doctorate from the University of Houston.

The prison program stipulates that inmates with less than a fifth grade education are required to attend classes six hours a week. Convicts above the fifth grade level may enroll in the school voluntarily.

Their work will be evaluated to determine if they are ready for higher academic training. Those who do not meet the standards of the academic program will be given vocational training under direction of Robert Gillam, director of vocational training.

The Windham School District will issue its own diplomas to high school graduates.

Opponents Face Uphill Battle On Judge Carswell

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge G. Harrold Carswell and a major supporting witness have completed impressive appearances before the Senate Judiciary Committee, leaving opponents an uphill battle against his Supreme Court nomination.

With about a dozen witnesses still to be heard by the committee, major opponents of Carswell's nomination to the high court sought to delay their appearance and gain time to build their case.

Republican leaders indicated

Wednesday they expect a fast and overwhelming confirmation of President Nixon's choice for the high court despite the request by opponents for more time.

"I believe there is a general awareness here now that he is going to be confirmed—and by a big vote," Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, senior Republican on the Judiciary Committee, told a reporter.

Hruska made no issue of a move Wednesday that forced a delay in the testimony of a number of witnesses.

Civil rights spokesmen opposing Carswell's nomination had objected to testifying before next week.

In contrast with the GOP optimism, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told a reporter it was "awfully early" to assess what the Senate will do.

However, he said Carswell dismissed as a witness Wednesday after a day and a half of questioning, "seems to have made a good defense." He also said Carswell had "a good advocate" in former Florida Gov. LeRoy Collins.

Collins testified that Carswell, a judge on the 5th U. S. Court of Appeals who lives in Tallahassee, is a man of "unquestioned integrity and an extraordinarily keen mind" who would be a fine Supreme Court justice.

A federal civil rights official during the Johnson administration, Collins also told the Committee:

"Judge Carswell is no racist. He is no white supremacist. He is no segregationist. I am convinced of this."

Carswell himself swore to this in testimony when he said white supremacy statements he made in a political speech 22 years ago are now abhorrent to him.

Most of Wednesday's hearing was taken up with Republican members of the committee, including GOP Leader Hugh Scott, complimenting Carswell on his testimony and assuring him of their support.

The only flare-up occurred when Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., kept asking Carswell why he contributed $100 to a Tallahassee golf club organized in 1956 to take over a municipal course threatened with desegregation.

"The $100 I put in was for no racial purpose," said Carswell, who previously had testified he had heard nothing about any discriminatory practices when he was asked by a friend to help in the financing.

Scott, after listening to Bayh's and Kennedy's questioning, said "I am well aware that the press deadline is almost over."

Bayh bristled at the suggestion he was fishing for headlines and Kennedy insisted they were pursuing "a legitimate line of inquiry." Scott apologized.

Okay CP&L Water Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — State approval was given Wednesday to Carolina Power and Light Co.'s water use plan for its proposed nuclear power generating plants near Southport.

A permit for CP&L to pump 1.9 billion gallons of water a day from the Cape Fear River and discharge it into the Atlantic was approved by the pollution control committee of the North Carolina Board of Water and Air Resources.

The action left no apparent major barrier to construction of the plants, scheduled to generate 821,000 kilowatts of power.

Water from the Cape Fear will be used in the plants' cooling processes.

The first plant is expected to be completed by 1974 and the second by 1976. They will cost an estimated $385 million.

The committee approved the permit without debate after hearing from Earle Hubbard, assistant director of the Water and Air Resources Board.

"We have conferred with the federal Water Pollution Control Administration and prepared a permit with such controls as to provide a project which will serve the best interest of the public," he said.

After the meeting Hubbard said CP&L will need other permits from both state and federal agencies, including construction permits pending before the Atomic Energy Commission.

Washington (AP) — Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N. C., rolled into the House chamber in a wheelchair Wednesday to cast his vote to sustain President Nixon's veto of the $19.5 billion Health, Education and Welfare and Labor Department appropriations bill.

However, most of North Carolina's House delegation voted to override the veto.

Democrats for overriding were Galiafinakis, Henderson, Jones, Lennon, Preyer and Taylor. Democrat Fountain was against.

No Republicans from North Carolina were for overriding the veto; all four — Broyhill, Jonas, Mizell and Ruth were against.

Most of the South Carolina delegation, however, stuck with Nixon's decision.

Democrat Dorn voted against Nixon's veto while Democrats Gettys, McMillan, Mann, Rivers favored the veto.

Republican Watson supported Nixon.

Opening lead: King of ♣ Today's hand produced a significant swing when it came up at a recent team-of-four match. A contract of six hearts was reached at both tables on an identical sequence of bids.

West opened the king of clubs at both tables but the play varied thereafter. One declarer, seeing nothing more to the hand, than a successful finesse in diamonds—proceeded after winning the first trick with the ace of clubs, to draw trump with three pulls.

West showed out on the second round of hearts, discarding the eight of spades. A diamond was led next and the jack was played from dummy. East won with the king and, having observed West's signal returned a spade. West scored the setting trick with the ace and South claimed the balance.

At the other table, South adopted a more subtle approach, for he observed that all was not necessarily lost even if East did hold the king of diamonds. The important consideration was to put the latter to the guess, if he did get in.

Accordingly, after winning the opening club lead, South immediately led a diamond and took the finesse. East was in with the king, however, he was confronted with a choice of returns, and since his partner had no opportunity to signal the situation was something of a guess.

If South had another club, then the proper return was a club since West was marked with the queen of that suit by virtue of his opening lead. If South has a singleton club, however, then East must shift to a spade in the hope that partner holds the ace.

East pondered at length and finally he returned a club. South ruffed and drew dummy and when that suit divided evenly, he was able to discard all of his spades and claim the slam.

The Worry Clinic Marriage Is A Partnership

Lana's questions should challenge all husbands. For the usual male is lazy as soon as he enters his own home. And he is socially shy, which is why he shuns letter-writing, even to his own mother. He also wants his wife to do most of the

"Dr. Crane," she began, "isn't marriage supposed to be a 50-50 partnership between husband and wife?"

"But many husbands slouch down in an easy chair as soon as they get home at night."

"And even if their wives are working outside the home, these husbands often assume no responsibilities after they enter the house."

"So they fail to help their wife with the household chores and even act as if rearing their children is all the wife's job."

"Dr. Crane, what is the proper husband-wife arrangement about work in the home, especially when both hold outside jobs?"

If a couple are childless and the husband is the sole outside breadwinner, then his wife is supposed to perform the household chores.

But a generous husband even then may volunteer some aid in washing windows or the dishes, especially if they've entertained guests.

When both husband and wife are working full time outside the home, then they should divide the household chores evenly.

Alas, most husbands haven't been properly "house broken" in childhood, for their indulgent mothers may have done all the cooking, dishwashing and even making of beds.

At our house, Mrs. Crane and I have a rule that the last one out of bed must make the bed that day.

Since I usually work at my typewriter till late at night, and since Mrs. Crane would be up early to get the children ready for school, I have usually been stuck with making our bed for the last 35 years!

And when the children are home or we have a big family dinner, we have a clever system to pick dish washers.

Our daughter Judy brought home from Northwestern University a card game called "Oh, Heck."

We play it routinely after a big dinner party, with the penalty that the one making the lowest score must wash the dishes, while the next lowest dries them, and the 3rd lowest carries out the garbage!

That adds a lot of post-dinner excitement, for our sons never did relish dishwashing, so the rest of us are doubly delighted when we see them stuck with the dishes.

In case a couple have children and the father is the only outside job-holder, even then it is also his duty to help discipline, entertain and care for the youngsters.

For a wife's normal duties consist of cooking, shopping, laundry and housecleaning.

Being a parent is thus a special career that implicates both the father and the mother.

Even so, the usual husband is sluggish about shouldering his half of the parental obligations!

And most husbands shun a pen or pencil, so they seldom write a letter to their own parents.

Instead, they expect their wife to be their personal secretary and often do most of the telephone calling, as to protest about defective household machines or leaky pipes, etc.

For men are less socially more shy than women, so virile males grow timid about telephones, letter-writing and requests for department store refunds.

They panic at entering the lingerie section of a store!

Speaks At Club Meet

Dr. Sam White was the featured speaker at the meeting of the Greenville Senior Citizen's Club Thursday.

Dr. White cautioned the members to be careful of falls, fires and grease fires. He said many older citizens are living alone.

"Elderly citizens should be extra careful of scatter rugs, bath rugs, waxed floors and ladders," Dr. White explained.

The devotion was given by the Rev. Adrian Brown and Mrs. Eula M. Cannon read a prayer for the new year.

Mrs. Elizabeth Savage presided at the meeting.

The Rev. Brown and Mrs. Eleanor Scheipers, the club advisor, attended the district meeting in Tarboro Monday.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eva Harris, Mrs. Bertie Gowans and Miss Nettie Brogden.

Students To Complete SCUBA Course At ECU

Some 17 East Carolina University students will complete a non-credit course in Basic SCUBA Technique at various times during the next few months when each will make an open ocean drive to 50 feet.

The formal part of the course, which has been underway since January 6, will end this week with a written final exam. Bob Eastep, a Marine stationed at Cherry Point who is certified Underwater Instructor, teaches the course. Students pay a fee of $25 for the course, which will be offered again during spring quarter.

According to Dr. Patricia Daugherty, the course was organized by the Departments of Biology and Geology to train estuaries properly.

Pitt County students enrolled in the January class are Eldon Nelson of Greenville and Susan Darden of Farmville.

Oklahoma's land area is 69,919 square miles.

Czech Auto Accidents Running High

VIENNA, (AP) — In relation to the number of cars on the roads, Czechoslovakia has the highest traffic accident rate in the world, according to Czech traffic minister Josef Stary.

Stary quoted in the Prague paper Lidova Demokracie, blamed the high accident rate on an antiquated road network and the bad condition of most Czechoslovakian cars.

The minister, who declined to disclose the number of traffic accidents, said that last year nearly one-tenth of all registered cars were involved in accidents which killed more than 2,000 persons. This number of deaths, he said, would be "justified only if Czechoslovakia had a population of 60 million—not the 15 million it has."

Stary said that three times more accidents occurred in Czechoslovakia than in other countries, adding that although every 300th vehicle in the world was operated in Czechoslovakia, every 100th traffic death occurred here.

He said the condition of Czechoslovakia roads made driving a game of chance with human lives.

Lidova Demokracie—the organ of the Czechoslovak Peoples Party which is tolerated by the Communist regime as having no political importance elaborated on the minister's statement.

It said that an inspection of 234 vehicles—half of them in private hands, the other half owned by the state—turned up only 10 without serious mechanical faults, and most of the car's owners, the paper said, were aware of the poor condition of their autos, as well as the facts that no parts were available. Repair work takes an immensely long time.

In conclusion, the paper said that as long as a thorough service for automobiles was unavailable, authorities could not demand strict enforcement of regulations demanding perfect mechanical conditions for automobiles.

feet; N. 430 E., 719 feet; and S. 69 E., 236 feet to the point of beginning, containing 15 acres, and being Lot No. Two (2) as shown on a certain map entitled "Division of Property, Mrs. Debbie Harris", made by the M. Dresbach, R.S., dated March, 1942, which map is on file with the Will of Debbie A. Harris in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, and being the identical tract of land devised by Mrs. Debbie A. Harris to the five children of her deceased son, Samuel Alexander Harris, as described in her will of record in Will Book 14, at page 570 in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County.

The above tract contains estimated 1970 base allotments of 2.04 acres tobacco (3,792 lbs.), 1.4 acres cotton and 8 acres corn.

Also the following right or easement pursuant to the Will of the late Debbie A. Harris: The exclusive use of one tobacco barn, being the tobacco barn nearest to the tenant house on the property described aforesaid, and located on land devised to Mrs. Susie Mae Corbett, for the period up to and including October 26, 1978.

This property will be sold subject to ad valorem taxes for 1970 and subsequent years. The successful bidder will be required to deposit ten percent of his bid for the first $1,000.00 and five percent of any excess over $1,000.00, to show good faith, pending final confirmation or order of resale by the Court.

This the 14th day of January, 1970. William I. Wooten, Jr., Commissioner. W.I. Wooten, Jr., Attorney Greenville, North Carolina Jan. 15, 22, 29, Feb. 5, 1970.

NOTICE OF RESALE

North Carolina, Pitt County. WHEREAS the undersigned, acting as Trustee, in those two certain deeds of trust of record executed by Nannie Mozingo, divorced, and recorded in Book N-36, at page 278 and Book 1-37, at page 525, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, foreclosed and offered for sale the land hereinafter described; and whereas within the time allowed by law an advance bid was filed with the Clerk of the Superior Court and an order issued directing the trustee to resell said land upon an opening bid of THREE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED ($3,200.00) DOLLARS.

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of said order of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, and the power of sale contained in those two certain deeds of trust, the undersigned trustee will offer for sale upon said opening bid at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, at 11:00 o'clock on Monday, February 16, 1970, the lot or parcel of land conveyed in said deed of trust and described as follows:

Living and being in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina at the southwest corner of Contentnea and Ward Streets, more particularly described as follows: BEGINNING at the intersection of the western property line of Contentnea Street, and the southern property line of Ward Street, fifty-two and five-eighths (52 5/8) feet to a stake; thence southwesterly, parallel to the western property line of Contentnea Street, to a corner of L.A. Clayton's lot; thence easterly with the line of L.A. Clayton, fifty-two and five-eighths (52 5/8) feet to the western property line of Ward Street, the beginning point.

It being the identical parcel of land that was conveyed by R.M. Garrett and wife, Frances D. Garrett, to Helen L. Stokes by deed dated April 27, 1945, recorded in Book J-24, at page 59, and also conveyed to Hughes Peede and wife, Alpa P. Peede, by Helen L. Stokes and husband, R. C. Stokes, Jr., by deed, dated June 27, 1951.

This sale will be made subject to that certain deed of trust executed by L. Hughes Peede and wife, Alpa P. Peede, to W.W. Speight, Trustee, dated the 7th day of March, 1966, and recorded in Book Z-35, page 84; to all ad valorem taxes or other assessments now due or which constitute a lien on the above described lot or parcel of land and all other liens. The highest bidder at said sale will be required to deposit with this said Trustee, 10 percent of the amount of his bid up to $1,000.00 and 5 percent on all in excess of $1,000.00 to show his good faith.

This the 13th day of January, 1970. FRANK M. WOOTEN, JR. TRUSTEE GAYLORD AND SINGLETON BY JAMES C. MILLS ATTORNEYS Jan. 22, 29, Feb. 5, 12, 1970.

The Nutria, By Any Other Name, Is Still Just A Big, Fat Rat

By LAURA FOREMAN
NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A nutria by any other name is a big fat rat. There are lots of them in the Louisiana swamps. A decade or so ago, a rat fur coat would have been anathema to the chic. But with the rise of the pop generation, with attendant inverse snobbery, rat coats are in. Very in. Maybe millions of dollars worth of in. Plucked nutria has been mildly popular for years for use in coats and coat linings. The plucked variety—smooth, velvety and very soft—comes from nutria pelts from which the long bristly hair has been removed. Plucked nutria is beautiful and expensive, as mink is, and therefore very out of it for swings, as mink is. Too establishment. So, it's the unplucked, shaggy nutria that promises to become the reigning fur in American fashion—as it has been for years in Europe. Louisiana is far and away the nation's leading nutria-producing state, to the joy of the revenue collectors. In the 1968-69 season, state records showed that some 1.75 million nutria produced pelts worth $3.67 million. Nutria meat, a nutritious food for ranch mink, accounted for another $945,000 for a grand total of $4.7 million. For the same period, rival muskrat skins and meat, which once far surpassed nutria as a revenue producer, brought in only $1.88 million. And with the fun fur boom just getting under full sail, markets and revenues from nutria are expected to soar. If the lowly nutria has become a success, it must be noted that his beginnings were no better than Horatio Alger's. It all started in 1937 when a man named E. A. McIlhenny imported 13 nutria from South America and set up a nutria ranching experiment on Avery Island, La. During a hurricane, the original rats and about 300 descendants escaped from their escape-proof hutch and took to the swamps. There they set about to compound and multiply semi-annually, and it wasn't long before farmers, trappers and the populace at large regarded them with the same affection they would the plague. Nutria are bigger than muskrat—some of them weighing as much as 20 pounds. Baby nutria would spring traps set for muskrat. And mother, daddy and baby rats would poach and pilfer in the rice fields. They were good for nothing and bad for everything. Making a virtue of necessity, trappers began catching the pesky critters during the 1940s. In 1943-44, the first season nutria appeared on the state records, the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission noted that 436 nutria were trapped. Their skins sold for 50 cents apiece. Muskrat trapping was a million dollar business at the time. But by the early 1960s, nutria had passed muskrat and was still enjoying an upward trend. This season, nutria pelts from Eastern Louisiana sold for $1.50 a pelt, while the Western variety, considered superior, brought $3 per pelt. Even while nutria were being sneered at in their home state, they were valued overseas. Most Louisiana nutria were, and still are, exported, mostly to Germany. But a domestic market is in the making. In a recent market bulletin, United Fur Brokers of New York said: "There has continued to be good selling of the long hair furs... this situation apparently confirms a fashion trend away from the 'dressy' type furs, which have been in vogue for the past one or two generations, to the so-called fun furs." "Prices for these newly wanted furs can be expected to

Israeli Air Force Has Put Stress On Quality

NEW YORK (AP) — For a young Israeli it's probably easier to get into Mecca than into the Israeli Air Force. The Israeli Flight School is so tough that once the entire graduating class consisted of one man. NBC producer Bob Rogers learned this recently while filming a report on the Israeli Air Force for the Feb. 3 edition of "First Tuesday."

"The Israelis operate a system with a few of the best pilots rather than many average pilots," Rogers says. "I firmly believe that the Israeli Flight School has the highest washout rate in the world." As a result, he says, Israel's air force is "far smaller than Egypt's."

"Numbers don't tell the story," he added. "Many experts, including some in the Pentagon, believe that the IAF is pound-for-pound the best combat air force in the world."

The producers says the exact size of the IAF is a closely guarded secret and censorship prevented him from showing the size of the flight school's graduating class. Rogers and his crew who spent a month in Israel filming the report, flew over the country with the IAF. It was the first time non-Israeli newsmen were permitted to film a jet squad exercise in the air.

Advise Use Of Litterbags In Winter Sports

NEW YORK (AP) — Ice fishermen and snowmobilers have been urged to pack along a litterbag with their other equipment. Allen H. Seed Jr., executive vice president of Keep America Beautiful, Inc., reminded winter sports enthusiasts that any litter they drop carelessly can cause real problems when the snows melt away. "Snowmobiles have carried trash into wilderness areas that were thought to be practically unreachable, while the leftovers of ice fishermen can become a hazard to summer bathers," he said. "A litterbag takes up very little room," he concluded, "but will help make outdoor activities far more enjoyable and safe the year around."
