No Let-Up By Enemy During Tet Cease-Fire

By RICHARD H. PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The 24-hour allied cease-fire for Tet ended tonight, and preliminary reports said there were at least 91 enemy attacks in which 117 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, three Americans and four South Vietnamese were killed.

The allied cease-fire for the festival of the lunar new year expired at 5 a.m. EST. A four-day cease-fire declared by the Viet Cong ends at 6 p.m. Sunday EST.

The heaviest fighting was reported midway through the allied cease-fire six miles south of the demilitarized zone. Field reports said 45 North Vietnamese were killed, most of them by allied artillery and mortar fire.

Associated Press correspondent Michael Putzel reported from Da Nang that troops of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division encountered sporadic ground fire early today 17 miles northwest of Dong Ha. During the morning South Vietnamese and American artillery went into action, and after several more hours the North Vietnamese pulled out.

South Vietnamese headquarters also reported an attack on a Special Forces camp at Ba Xoai, in the Seven Mountains area of the western Mekong Delta near the Cambodian border. First reports said two Vietnamese in the camp were wounded, but there was no word of enemy casualties.

The U.S. Command reported 89 other enemy attacks during the first 18 hours of the allied cease-fire. It said 72 of the enemy, three Americans and four South Vietnamese were killed, 18 Americans and 46 South Vietnamese were wounded and three South Vietnamese were missing.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese said they suspended combat operations for the cease-fire, but they kept up aerial reconnaissance and security patrols on the ground. These activities were at least partly responsible for the numerous small incidents reported as the patrolling allied units brushed with enemy troops moving mostly in small groups.

The U.S. Command announced today that the U.S. Army will assume over-all command from the Marines March 9 of U.S. forces in the five northern provinces of South Vietnam, called the 1st Corps Zone.

The change will put the 3rd Marine Amphibious Force, located at Da Nang, under the Army's 24th Corps, now headquartered at Phu Bai, near Hue.

The announcement said the long-expected move reflects a "shift in field force structure" resulting from the withdrawal of the 3rd Marine Division last year and the 26th Marine Regimental Landing Team, which is to leave by April 15.

There are indications, however, that the move may foreshadow the pulling out of all remaining U.S. Marine forces from Vietnam within a few months as part of President Nixon's withdrawal program.

Public Gets To Pay Cost

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The General Electric Co. resuming production following a three-month strike, says prices on all major GE and Hotpoint appliances are going up approximately three per cent today.

Walter Bennett, public relations spokesman for the appliance and television group, said the price increases would apply to goods sent to distributors and "I have no idea when the cost will be passed on to the consumer. That all depends on the dealers."

Bennett said the price rise would be on air conditioners, home laundry units, ranges, dishwashers, garbage disposals, refrigerators and freezers.

E. L. Stehle, vice president and general manager of the appliance and television sales division, said in making the price-boost announcement Thursday that the higher prices were caused by a continued increase in manufacturing and distributing costs.

He specifically cited the higher costs of steel and copper as well as electrical and mechanical components.

Stehle added, "Of course, as a result of new union contract we will also have substantial increases in wages."

Asks Council Think Green

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"I'm here tonight to ask you to think green," Dr. Ralph Steele told Greenville's City Councilmen as he placed a green dollar bill and a small branch of green camellia leaves on the council conference table.

Dr. Steele, a member of Greenville's Recreation Commission and a faculty member in the Physical Education Department at East Carolina University, was appointed spokesman for the Recreation Commission at their January meeting to appear before the City Council.

"We all have 'the same purpose,'" he stated, "to make Greenville a better place to live. To do this, we need economic development and environmental development. The two concepts, economic and cultural, are not incompatible."

Citing what he termed two principal objective reasons for bringing this idea to the City Council, Dr. Steele said that: "First, people want it. This is borne out in a recent issue of Life magazine whose survey showed 95 percent of the people want green grass and trees.

"Second, it is economically profitable. Even Madison Avenue has caught on to the idea of going back to nature.—Right here in Greenville a few examples of greenery being an asset to business and industry can be cited. I'll mention two, Coffman's green garden behind his store and the park-like atmosphere of Union Carbide."

Besides the objective reasons, Dr. Steele noted other supporting reasons for asking the City Council to "think green."

"There are the practical reasons. It has been proven that trees and plants serve as deterrents to pollution, filtering out dust, odor and noise, absorbing carbon dioxide and increasing oxygen," he remarked.

"Greenery cools us in summer, and helps warm us in winter, as well as stabilizes the soil and provides cover for wildlife.

"The presence of greenery is not only aesthetically pleasing but is therapeutically effective," were other comments, Dr. Steele made.

"With these things in mind," Dr. Steele continued, "we're asking that in addition to thinking green, you also think in terms of the entire city being a park."

In explaining the park concept, Dr. Steele pointed out that "people can think in individual terms of their business, their homes, and their city — how greenery can add to its beauty and its value."

Enumerating a number of possibilities, he stated: "Why not think of terms of industrial parks, shopping and business parks, restaurant parks, such as the Europeans employ, housing parks, and school parks. With the Central Business Development plans progressing, it could be used effectively as a concept to continue a park like treatment to it in with the Shore Drive."

Concluding his remarks, Dr. Steele told the councilmen: "We're asking you to think on two things about a park concept — first, to adopt in principle the development of Greenville as a park; and second, to give serious thought to the study and approval of specific ordinances and budgets to help implement such an idea."

Commending Dr. Steele and the Recreation Department for "a good concept," Councilman Jerry Sutherland added, "if we don't watch out, the way things are developing, we will wind up paved from city limit to city limit."

"Steele has carried further the city's thought in this idea," noted City Manager Harry Hagerty. "For the past few years we have encouraged action in this direction by ordinances requiring more set back space, shrubbery in certain places as screens and by other means to help make Greenville more attractive."

"We can certainly encourage this concept, it's a great idea," Hagerty added.

Councilman Percy Cox told Dr. Steele, "Let the Recreation Commission know that they have the backing of the City Council, We are 100 percent with you."

Mid-East Regional Airport Resolution Is Approved By Greenville's Council

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A resolution calling for the creation of a Mid-East Regional Airport Authority, to be based initially in Greenville at the existing Pitt-Greenville Airport, was approved by the City Council last night.

Mayor Frank M. Woolen, Jr. read a letter from Carl Venters, Jr., Chairman of the Mid-East Economic Development Commission, which outlined the basic idea of creating an Airport Authority to move ahead in securing commercial air service for the mid-east area of North Carolina.

The mayor then read a draft resolution for the city of Greenville which sets forth guidelines for Greenville's participation in the authority.

Basically, in the beginning stage, the towns of Greenville, Washington and Williamston, and the counties of Pitt, Martin and Beaufort will constitute the members of the authority. Provision is also made to include other towns and counties in the Mid-East Regional Airport Authority.

Mayor Woolen commented, "It's not going to be an easy road, but it will certainly be beneficial to Greenville."

The Councilmen expressed approval of the idea of a group of neighboring counties participating in a plan for Multi-County regions.

The plan was proposed in a letter from the State Planning Division of the Department of Administration, suggesting that Pitt County be joined with Martin, Beaufort, Washington, Hyde, and Tyrell Counties for regional planning and economic development purposes.

Noting that this grouping is the same as the county grouping for the Mid-East Economic Development Commission, already active in regional planning and development, the councilmen agreed to express approval of the idea.

No formal motion was made. The commission was seeking a review by the city council, requesting comments on their reaction to the grouping under a multi-county region.

A first reading was given on a status report dealing with consideration of an ordinance to establish a capital reserve fund. Because of illness, City Attorney David Reid could not be present. City Manager Harry Hagerty read the draft report.

"Early in his administration, Mayor Woolen suggested an ordinance be drawn up making legal the carry over of unobligated funds into a sinking or 'capital reserve fund,'" Hagerty commented.

"Under current general statutes, such money must go back into the general fund as cash on hand and loses its identity. By means of an ordinance, unobligated money can be put in a fund earmarked for a particular purpose," Hagerty explained. "It can be put aside to earn interest."

Noting that the reading was the first of two readings before further consideration would be given, Hagerty remarked that such an ordinance would "designate specific institutions to receive these funds." Among these he noted — "construction, reconstruction, enlargement of plants for treating garbage, and sewage; construction, reconstruction and improvements of roads, streets, highway culverts, curb and gutter; fire fighting equipment; cemeteries; buildings for municipal government agencies; and other specified purposes."

Hagerty added that "any money placed in a reserve fund would be secured through deposit with adequate insurance coverage."

In the ensuing discussions, general comments both for and against the proposed draft ordinance were voiced. No action was taken since the reading constituted an initial introduction of the proposed ordinance.

This matter will be included on next month's agenda.

Other matters considered on the agenda were:

—Adoption of — the 1968 National Electrical code; the 1969 amendments to the 1968 edition of the N.C. Uniform Residential Building Code; and the accumulative supplement to the 1967 edition of the N.C. State Building Code, Volume 1, "General Construction," issued in September 1969. All these codes had been reviewed and approved unanimously by the Permanent Building Codes Review Board, who recommended their adoption by the City Council.

Word Passed To 'Discipline' Jock Yablonski

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five days before he was beaten at a rally, word was sent down from United Mine Workers headquarters "to discipline Jock Yablonski," a Senate group investigating the union has been told.

Joseph A. Yablonski Jr. told a Senate labor subcommittee Thursday the beating at a union rally in Springfield, Ill., was one of the first indications of the "reign of terror" that enveloped his late father's campaign for the union presidency and still haunts his family and supporters.

"I now go to sleep at night with a loaded pistol under my pillow," he said.

Yablonski, who unsuccessfully challenged incumbent UMW President A. W. "Tony" Boyle in the union's Dec. 9 election, was found shot to death with his wife and daughter at their Clarksville, Pa., home Jan. 5.

Three men, Paul Eugene Gilly, Aubran Wayne Martin and Claude Edward Vealey, have been charged in a Pennsylvania court with murder in the Yablonski deaths. Gilly's wife, Annette Lucy Gilly, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Cleveland Thursday and charged with interfering with the rights of a union member by force or violence, obstruction of justice and conspiring with others to interfere with a union member's rights by force or violence.

The slain unionist's son said his father accused Boyle of "playing Russian roulette with UMW pension funds" shortly after Boyle became a trustee of the union's welfare and retirement fund June 13.

Within days, Yablonski said, "word went down from Boyle to discipline Jock Yablonski, and don't worry how rough you are about it."

"Five days later, in Springfield, Ill., my father was beat up," he said.

Yablonski forces furnished the FBI with names of persons who attended the meeting and asked for an investigation, he said. At the same time, they requested FBI protection.

"If there was an investigation, I didn't know anything about it," Yablonski said. "And we certainly weren't provided with protection."

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP) — State Rep. Ruffin C. Godwin, a member of the House since 1965, died Thursday at age 78 after a long illness.

Godwin was chairman of the Veterans and Military Affairs Committee and was former national vice commander of the American Legion.

He is survived by his wife and a son.

Gasoline Dealers Voice Dismay Over Price War

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A city-wide competitive gas war that has caused local prices to drop as much as five cents at most stations currently has local dealers looking for an answer to solve the money-losing battle.

"The only man who comes out on top as a result of a gas war is the consumer; the dealers themselves don't make a cent," commented one irritated Sunoco dealer.

Prices at his station, on Thursday reflected a drop of five cents a gallon from the previous week; 28.9 cents on economy gas, 29.9 cents on regular and one cent per gallon increases on up the Sunoco ladder of octanes.

The station owner pointed out that in cases where the gas war is started by local dealers effecting a sudden drop in their prices, the other stations that are "forced" to make their prices competitive are reimbursed only one quarter of a cent by their respective gas company suppliers.

"I would like to see it (gas war) over tonight," he commented, "because for every gallon I sell, I lose two-thirds of a cent on the sale. For the small dealer who doesn't sell much anyway, a gas war can take away all of the margin of profit," he added.

All local stations contacted said they had been involved in the price dropping and could give no idea as to where or why it started here in Greenville. Although one or two station managers said the war was caused by local dealers, most said it could be a result of prices across the state.

Reports have indicated that the competitive "war" has affected prices in other cities of the state, notably Wilson, Raleigh, Fayetteville and Greensboro.

As of Thursday afternoon, gas prices at nearly all local stations were comparable and only the "cut-rate" dealers of low octane fuels were quoting lower prices.

A local Phillips 66 dealer reported that his prices had dropped from 34.9 on regular and 38.9 on high test a week ago to 29.9 for regular and 33.9 for the premium brand.

This particular dealer credited the low octane dealers with forcing a gas war in Greenville by selling their products far below the normal competitive rates.

Esso rates were comparable to the Phillips prices as regular gas was selling for 29.9, "plus" for 31.9 cents and "extra" for 33.9 cents per gallon.

These particular prices had been steady most of the week, the dealer said, and were four or five cents below normal winter rates.

An area Gulf station reported that his regular gas was selling for 29.9 and high test was 33.9 cents per gallon. Here again, the rates were around five cents below week-ago prices.

A comparable five cent reduction in Union Oil station prices was quoted Thursday. Regular gas rates stood at 29.9 cents a gallon and high test was selling for 33.9 cents.

The impossibility of contacting every dealer in the city leaves open the possibility that some stations have not heeded the gas war competition. All owners contacted, however, did say that as far as they knew, most of the stations in Greenville had lowered their prices to some extent.

Naturally, no dealer can predict when the prices will again reach the level it had attained weeks ago, but the current situation has consumers smiling and small station owners hoping for a return to normal.

Federal Orders May Bring Merger Of Some N.C. Schools

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal government drive for greater racial mixed on college campuses is likely to have a profound effect in North Carolina, perhaps even eventually bringing mergers of some schools.

Exactly what will come isn't known, since the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's first set of recommendations for the state were made public only Thursday. They call for recruitment of more Negroes at three campuses of the University of North Carolina.

But officials of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education have been pointing out for months that mergers were recommended in other states under circumstances similar to some in North Carolina.

The mergers elsewhere were recommended for areas in which a predominantly white school and a predominantly black school stood close together.

North Carolina has four areas which fit that description — Greensboro, Elizabeth City, Fayetteville and Durham - Chapel Hill.

Thursday's recommendations affected the UNC branches at Greensboro, Raleigh and Chapel Hill.

They were told to step up their recruiting of Negroes to get a greater racial mix within a year.

As in public school integration matters handled by HEW, at stake eventually could be federal funds, of which North Carolina's state-supported universities now get about $20 million a year.

The recommendations involving UNC at Greensboro did not mention a merger. But a spokesman at predominantly Negro North Carolina A&T University in Greensboro said A&T had been commended by HEW for an integration plan which includes closer cooperation with the UNC branch.

The spokesman said A&T's president, Dr. L. C. Dowdy, had submitted the plan to HEW and had got back a letter praising his "commendable effort." A&T's enrollment of 3,700 is about 1 per cent white.

Dowdy's plan involved primarily increased recruiting efforts similar to those recommended by HEW for the UNC branches.

There was no mention of possible merger either in HEW's recommendations for UNC at Chapel Hill, which has the predominantly Negro North Carolina Central University close by at Durham. No report has been made public on the HEW team's visit to N. C. Central.

The dual facilities at Fayetteville are the predominantly Negro Fayetteville State University and a military center operated at Ft. Bragg by North Carolina State University.

At Elizabeth City there is the predominantly Negro Elizabeth City State University and the traditionally white College of the Albemarle.

Recommendations for other North Carolina universities are expected soon, perhaps within a few days.

Cameron West, director of the Board of Higher Education, said he was sticking by his previous statement — that HEW will call on the state to "dismantle the dual system of higher education."

He declined to predict exactly what a "dismantling" would involve.

Dr. Eloise Severinson, regional director of HEW's office for Civil Rights, told UNC President William Friday that she will check the campuses at the end of a year to "assess their compliance status."

Dr. Severinson said the UNC administration had shown "good faith" in its current effort, but added:

"Educational institutions which have previously been legally segregated have the affirmative duty to adopt measures necessary to overcome the effects of past segregation."

An admissions policy which is nondiscriminatory isn't enough, she said.

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠
West opened the deuce of diamonds against South's four spade contract and East cashed the first two tricks with his top honors. The latter shifted to the king of clubs and, when this held, he led another club ruffed by declarer with the jack of spades.

With three tricks already lost, South had to find some way to dispose of his heart loser. The only source for discards was North's club suit and East's bid of that suit indicated that it would require two more ruffs in order to establish the dummy's long cards. The only two obvious entries to North's hand were the ten of spades and the ace of hearts, and unless South could find a third entry he would be unable to run the club suit.

Presently he devised a plan that risked going down an extra trick if it failed, but that seemed like a modest price to pay with so much at stake. A small spade was led from the closed hand and when West followed with the deuce, dummy's eight was finessed—successfully. A club was ruffed with the queen of spades and the North hand was reentered with the ten of trumps in order to ruff out East's last club. South drew the last trump and was now able to get back to dummy with the ace of hearts to discard his losing heart on the nine of clubs.

East's play of a second round of clubs when he had the lead, gave South his chance, for it enabled declarer to obtain one club ruff that he could not have negotiated on his own—for lack of entries. When East's king of clubs holds the third trick, it is obvious that the only missing card in that suit—the ace—is with his partner, so that nothing is to be gained by leading another club. If East exits, instead, with a spade, South will be unable to avoid losing a heart trick subsequently.

Rehabilitation Post Assigned

A former rehabilitation counselor here and an East Carolina University graduate, William B. Waters has been appointed chief of the Rehabilitation Division of the North Carolina State Commission for the Blind, it was announced yesterday.

Commission Executive Director Grady Galloway, who made the announcement, noted that Waters is a former client of the rehabilitation agency.

Israeli Charmer Says 'Go Back To Kitchen'

By SHELDON ENGLEMAYER
NEW YORK (WNS) — Women in the United States are missing a lot by not going into the kitchen and cooking.

That's the opinion of Esther Tobi, whose sultry singing style has enchanted supper club and television audiences since she first came to the United States in 1964.

Miss Tobi, a dark-eyed Israeli, says she has a great deal of respect for American women. She believes they have a youthfulness not found anywhere else.

Nevertheless, she believes, American women, by trying to escape the kitchen and attain an equal footing with men, are losing their femininity. "Being feminine," Miss Tobi advises, "is a career in itself. Enjoy it! Have fun! Be a woman and don't be ashamed of it!"

"Trying to be 'equal' with men is ridiculous. Sure, women can do whatever men can do. But why bother? Why lose your femininity?"

The five-foot-five "Sabra" (one who was born in Israel) places the blame for the feminist movement in this country on TV dinners and canned foods.

Life's Too Easy
"All this ready-made food has made life too easy. Women in the United States are missing a lot by not going into the kitchen and cooking."

Miss Tobi isn't opposed to all worksavers, however. Although she may like to cook, she hates to do dishes. "So, I went out and bought a dishwasher."

She also feels American men must share the blame for the female revolt. She believes men in this country are too timid with women. "Their egos are too big. They're afraid those egos will hurt if they push too much. In Israel, men are not so afraid of women as they are in this country."

Considering her strong views on the role of the female in society, one had to wonder what Miss Tobi felt about women serving in the Israeli Army, as she herself had once been required to do.

"We survive the army," she said. "Men make wars; let the men get out of those wars themselves. Unfortunately, in Israel we are so terribly short-handed that women must learn to fight. Let's hope this situation won't last for long."

Esther Tobi did not start out as a singer. After completing her formal education in Israel, she worked as a secretary in the Knesset (Israeli Parliament). She also joined an acting school in Tel Aviv. Her main ambition, she says, "is to do parts like Anna Magnani; dramatic roles — so passionate, so feminine, so everything."

She has appeared at the Copacabana in New York, the Eden Roc in Miami Beach and in other hotels and nightclubs across the United States. She has also been the guest of such syndicated variety-talk show hosts as Mike Douglas, David Frost and Dave Garroway.

Mrs. Nicholson Gives Program

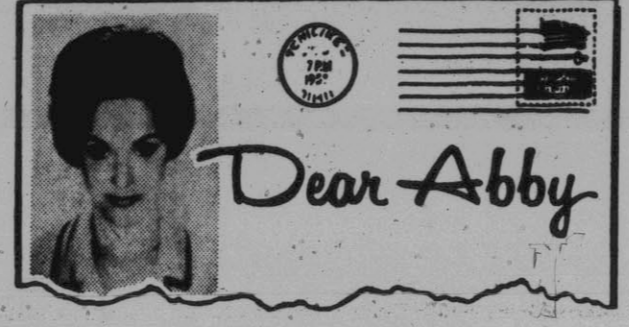

BETHEL — Mrs. Dan Nicholson presented the program at the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Bethel Pentecostal Holiness Church on Tuesday night.

She spoke on "Love and Friendship."

Mrs. David Whitfield, president, presided at the meeting. She announced that the W.A. spring retreat will be held in Falcon May 8-9. A house warming for Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Smith will be held on Feb. 20 and Mrs. Whitfield told of the proceeds from a recent back sale.

Mrs. Major James and Mrs. Whitfield were hostesses for the meeting. Hostesses for the March meeting will be Mrs. Elizabeth Lewis and Mrs. Elsie Nicholson.

Neighbor Is Just As Embarrassed As You

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Now that Alvin is retired, he's at home all day, but that's not my problem.

There is a young woman who rents the apartment directly across the hall from us, and her claim to fame is that she is "44-34-42"—or something like that. Anyway, last Sunday when "Miss 44" was getting her morning paper, the wind blew her door shut and locked her out. All she had on was one of those shorty see-thru peek-a-boo nighties.

Well, "Miss 44" rang our doorbell, and when poor Alvin opened the door and saw her standing there like that he was so embarrassed he didn't know what to do, so he yelled for ME to get the caretaker while HE stood there talking to her.

Now, Abby, there are two old maid sisters living in the apartment right next to hers. Why didn't she ring THEIR bell?

I get so nervous thinking this might happen again I can't sleep at night. What do you suggest? ALVIN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I suggest you forget it. Your locked-out neighbor was probably more embarrassed than Alvin, and it's not likely to happen again.

DEAR ABBY: My dearest friend whom I love very, very much is addicted to diet pills and sleeping pills. She goes to two different doctors and gets prescriptions from each. One doctor doesn't know about the other. This has been going on for years, and now she has found still a third doctor who doesn't know about the other two.

We have had long talks, and this woman confides in me. I have begged her to tell her family doctor what she's doing, but she refuses.

I am very worried about her, Abby. She used to be groggy all morning, and now it's mid-afternoon before she can shake herself out of the fog.

Do you think I would be justified in calling her doctor and telling him what I know? If you say so I will call him immediately.

By the way, this woman's husband can't be too sharp because he doesn't know she is on pills. She has two young children and is such a wonderful person, I hate to see what she is doing to herself. Please advise me.

NAMELESS FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Tell your friend that you will give her three days in which to tell her doctor, and if SHE doesn't tell him, YOU will tell him, because you love her too much to stand idly by and watch her destroy herself. In this way, you'll be giving her a chance to save her face. I'll bet she tells her doctor.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from the widow whose son was turned away from a father-son night at the Y. M. C. A. I'm sure that the "Y" would not have turned her son away if this had been a "Y" function. Perhaps it was a private group, who had rented the pool for the evening.

As for her son getting involved in some activities where there would be a man around to look after him, why doesn't she enroll him in a good Cub Scout pack or Boy Scout group? Surely there's a local chapter of the Big Brothers, who would be more than happy to assist her. How about the local Boys Club in her town? These organizations would be more than glad to have her son as a member. Wise up, Mom, stop whining and start looking. Sign me,
BIG C IN ROCKFORD, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the benefit of "DISGUSTED SISTER" who wondered why her brother "Gordy" left a beautiful 36-year-old wife for an "old wrinkled grandmother of 50."

I happen to be married to a "young, unwrinkled grandmother of 50," and I couldn't be happier. This little grandmother is warm and affectionate and full of love. She has never said, "Not now—you'll muss my hair!" And when I am in a loving mood, she'll never say, "Is that ALL you ever think of?"

No man wants to be married to an "untouchable goddess."

Mini Skirts, Pants Upset Their Habits

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (WNS)—Mini-skirts or trouser suits for waitresses? Restaurateur Jan de Roo tried each system for a month and reports that gourmets don't like either one. "Customers who know-how to eat and spend well want a waitress who is interested in serving good food and looks like she knows her way around a kitchen," he declared. "Mini-skirts and pants upset their eating habits, so my girls are now forbidden to show their knees or breast bones."

Add Wheat Germ To Sandwiches

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Cooks who like to use nutritious wheat germ are always alert for new ways to add it to dishes.

Here's the latest wheat-germ invention we've come across. Cheese sandwiches are slathered with butter and dipped in wheat germ, then they are allowed to get golden-brown and toasted on a sandwich grill or in a skillet. Served with a tossed green salad these sandwiches make an excellent lunch or supper or evening snack.

Wheat germ may be used many other interesting ways.

Here are half a dozen suggestions.

Use it in a graham-cracker crust for cheese cake.

Add it to ground meat for hamburgers.

Mix it with biscuit mix for biscuits—the rolled or drop variety.

A little wheat germ added to the flour mixture used to coat chicken that is to be fried helps give a crunchy crust.

Wheat germ may be added to a bread stuffing for meat, poultry or fish.

A vegetable nut loaf, for a meatless meal, takes kindly to the addition of wheat germ.

heat melt the butter; brush generously over outer sides of sandwiches.

Sprinkle wheat germ on a sheet of wax paper. Dip both sides of each buttered sandwich in wheat germ, pressing lightly so that wheat germ adheres to entire surface.

Bake on sandwich grill or in electric skillet, turning once, until golden-brown on both sides. Serve at once.

Credit Women Plan Birthday Night Banquet

Plans were made for the annual Birthday Night Banquet at the meeting of the Greenville Credit Women International held Tuesday night.

The banquet will be held in March.

The speaker for the evening was Lee Moore of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. A merchant representative for Master Charge Card, Moore spoke on the subject "Credit Car Explosion."

According to Moore, bank credit cards began in the early 1960s and spread east across the nation. Today, credit cards are well known in this area.

The credit card customer no longer needs to carry large sums of cash, he receives only one monthly bill with all purchases itemized and these monthly statements can be very helpful in compiling income tax records, said the speaker.

Mrs. Carol Hardee, president of the club, presided at the meeting. Members discussed several money-making projects.

It was announced that the District Dixie Council convention will be held April 11-15 at the Admiral Semmes Hotel, Mobile, Ala.

Reception Given District Officer

James E. Smith was honored at a reception given by Greenville Chapter No. 149, Order of Eastern Star, following their regular stated meeting on Tuesday night.

Smith is District Deputy Grand Patron of the Seventh District of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina, the Order of Eastern Star. He was presented a gift from the chapter.

The chapter was celebrating their annual friends' night and a Valentine theme was used in decorations.

Mrs. Glenn Garner of Kinston, Grand Adah, of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina, was special guests. Other guests present were from Farmville, Kinston and Raleigh.

A baby dedication was held prior to the meeting, at which time, Mrs. Elizabeth Seinson presented her son, Michael Glenn, for dedication.

FASHION FORECASTS

by C. Heber Forbes

(You And Your Wardrobe)

Everyone knows some woman with a closet full of clothes but "nothing to wear". What she really means is that she failed to plan her wardrobe in relation to the life she leads.

With thought, ones wardrobe can be extended without mixing and matching everything in it and without placing too much reliance on the basic dress. Careful planning will assure an interesting wardrobe by replacing a few small things periodically. Take time to plan for and shop wisely for large items like a coat or special dress.

Each season, new styles in dressmaker suits are introduced. If becoming to its wearer, this type of suit seems almost timeless and is, therefore a wise investment. Other smart buys are knits, available in luscious shades and in weaves and weights to suit any taste or climate.

Yet Another Wants The Island

Just when most North Carolinians were thinking the state's big problem in acquiring Baldhead Island was finding the money, there comes the announcement that another group has taken an option on the valuable real estate.

There is a certain air of mystery surrounding this latest announcement since the island's owner has declined to identify the group except to say that they are involved in real estate firms.

What this latest development does to the state's tentative plan to acquire the island and preserve it in its natural state is a moot question. The developer who previously held an option on the island and planned to build it into a plush resort abandoned his plans "at least temporarily" when Gov. Bob Scott made it plain the state would not build an access route to the island.

Whether or not this factor will have a bearing on plans of the new group that has taken an option on the island remains to be seen.

Gov. Scott has said he favors the state purchasing the sea island and properly left the matter to the 1971 General Assembly which will not convene for almost a year.

With the amount of money involved — the previous option by the private developer was said to have involved a purchase price of $5.5 million — The governor had little choice but to let the legislature make the final decision.

North Carolina should acquire Baldhead Island and see that it is preserved as a sea island. With this new development, as in the past, Gov. Scott should use the influence of his office in an effort to assure the state an opportunity to acquire the real estate when the 1971 General Assembly meets.

No Better Start For Anti-Pollution Effort

President Nixon could do no better than to start with federal agencies in efforts to eliminate air and water pollution.

The president called the federal government "one of the nation's worst polluters" and ordered all federal facilities to eliminate air and water pollution.

He established a $359 million program over a three year period to provide government leadership in pollution control guidelines by Dec. 31, 1972.

The order not only includes buildings and installations, but also aircraft, vessels and vehicles.

If appears the federal government is going to take the lead in requiring a clean-up of water and air. The best place to start is with federal agencies.

Then industries and state and federal governments will have no legitimate complaint when new controls reach them.

Time Bomb In Using Oil Rig

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
CAIRO — An offshore oil rig now holed up for repairs in the African port of Dakar on the Atlantic Ocean will soon start the dangerous last leg of a journey that began in the St. Lawrence Seaway months ago, bound for the oil-rich Gulf of Suez and a dangerous escalation of the mini-war between Israel and Egypt.

The Egyptian government of President Gamal Abdel Nasser has privately warned three Western governments — the U.S., England, and Canada — that if the oil rig, which is under contract to Israel, actually enters the Gulf of Suez it will become "involved" in military operations.

Translated, that means Egypt will try to smash the rig from the air or by underwater frogmen, thus preventing it from tapping rich oil fields along the eastern bank of the gulf.

Israel has refused to cancel this drilling operation, despite most serious appeals from all three Western governments, on grounds that international law gives it a legal right to drill in waters off Israeli-occupied Sinai Peninsula, captured by Israel in the 1967 six-day war.

Egypt and the Western governments flatly reject this legal interpretation. They have informed Israel that international law clearly prohibits Israel from drilling along the east bank of the gulf. Further, they are warning that, if Israel persists in the underwater drilling operation, the result could be a major escalation of the war, with the U.S. backing the legal position taken by Egypt.

But there is much more to the time-bomb represented by the oil rig than the question of tapping offshore oil. As viewed by Western

Strength For Today

GOD EVER PRESENT
What do you believe about God?

For most people God is an abstract idea. Even when one thinks of God in highly personalized terms, He is usually regarded as a being dwelling above the blue dome in heaven, quite apart from this world and surrounded by regal splendor.

Now, this view is not wrong—it is only incomplete. The Bible teaches us that although God is apart from the world and reigning in heaven, he is nevertheless very much in the world, abiding in the hearts of millions of people who believe in him and submit their wills to his. To use philosophical terms, God is both transcendent and immanent. Our Lord's assurance was that He and the Father would come to the heart of the believer and make their abode there. In the closing chapters of the Book of Revelation, the declaration occurs that the swelling place of God is within man, and that He shall dwell with them and that they shall be his people, and that God himself shall be with them and be their God.

The God of the Bible is a personal God. He is in heaven yet He is on the earth also. His very essence comes in and mingles with the essence of mankind. His offer is to man's continual companion.

NO END OF WORLD CRISES!

Waiting In The Wings

WASHINGTON — If for some reason the Senate doesn't confirm Judge Carswell for Justice Abe Fortas' Supreme Court seat, the White House is already prepared to submit another name.

Waiting in the wings, in case the Senate balks on Carswell, is Judge Caleb Robert E. Lee, of the Fifth Circuit Juvenile and Bankruptcy Court of Juniper County, Ala. Judge Lee has already had a thorough security clearance check by Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who told intimates, "This is one man they'll never be able to smear."

I went to visit Judge Lee in his chambers at the Juniper County Courthouse.

"Your honor, are you aware that you are in line for the Supreme Court seat, if for some reason the Senate sees fit not to seat Judge Carswell?"

"Ah heard something about it," Judge Lee told me. "Course Ah'd consider it a great honor even though Ah would hate to leave Juniper County."

"Sir, I do not want to get personal, but do you own any stocks or bonds, or have interests in companies that could be considered a conflict of interest?"

"No sirree!" said Judge Lee. "Ah have no investments of any kind. The only thing Ah own of any property value are slaves."

"Slaves?" "Ah just own a dozen, and half of them are in my wife's name."

"But Judge Lee, don't you consider owning slaves a conflict of interest?"

"If anyone makes a fuss about it, Ah'm willing to sell the slaves or at least put them in trust for mah grandchildren."

"Sir, owning slaves is against the Constitution. How can you serve on the Supreme Court and be for slavery?"

"As far as the Constitution is concerned Ah'm a strict constructionist, except where it comes to slavery. Ah don't think a man has to be for everything in the Constitution just to sit on the Supreme Court."

"But didn't the Justice Department ask you about your slaves when they interviewed you for the Supreme Court?"

"The question never came up, and Ah didn't think it was worth bringing up. Ah never hid the fact Ah owned slaves. You can look at mah record. Ah always eliminated myself from any case which involved slaves in Juniper County."

"Judge Lee, aren't you afraid slaves will make it difficult for the Senate to approve of your nomination?"

"Ah don't know. In left-wing liberal circles there might be some hollering, but Ah know the attorney general and deterioration of housing in the city. Rents are frozen, and neither the landlords nor the poor tenants make repairs. Hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of tenements have been abandoned by owners, who simply walk away leaving their property for eventual city condemnation. Meanwhile, they become pads for hippies, rendezvous for junkies and hiding places for criminals.

The influx of the poor appears to be related to the rising crime rate. In every section of the city are shops that have been shut because they cannot get police protection against robbers. And in every section there are stores still trying to operate behind locked doors. The doors are unlocked for customers only when the proprietors recognize them.

In Jackson Heights, an upper middle-class section, one tavern has gone back to a device of Prohibition days. The doors are kept locked and only if he recognizes a customer will the bartender press a button that opens the lock.

Double Talk Is A Skill

NEW YORK (AP) — The dull winter months are a good time to brighten up your conversational ability.

The best way, probably, is to spend an hour or so a day rehearsing your skill at using double talk.

Double talk, the art of saying one thing while thinking just the opposite, is the backbone—or is jawbone the word I'm seeking?—of social communication today.

While double talk is sometimes denounced as hypocritical, it is one of the chief cements that hold society together. If the truth be told, none of us really wants all the time to be told the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. That would be too disillusioning and unpalatable to the ego.

Here are a few typical examples of double talk, followed in each case by what the speaker actually was thinking:

"My wife and I have decided against taking a winter cruise to the Caribbean this year. After all winter at home can be fun."

—I couldn't steal enough from the office petty cash fund to make the trip.

"Our son is staying out of college this semester in order to solve his identity crisis."—He flunked in three subjects.

"No, I don't think any of us have heard that one, boss. Why "don't you go ahead and tell it."

—If I have to listen to that motheaten joke again, I'm going to ask for overtime.

"This is not just another campaign promise. It is a pledge to the people."—After the election, I'll forget the whole matter.

"Of course, you can trust me utterly. Wild horses couldn't force me to whisper a word of this to anybody."—I'd rather shout it from the nearest rooftop.

"Yes, Winifred, it is a lovely engagement ring. And the diamond in it—why, it must have cost your fiancé a fortune!"—If it was any smaller, I'd have to put on my bifocals to see it.

"Oh, this scar? Well, it's a little souvenir I got in Vietnam, but if you don't mind, I'd rather not talk about how I got it—it brings back too many bitter memories."—When I tripped and fell, I broke the gin bottle.

"Certainly you can have a car of your own, young man but not until the day you've earned the money to buy it."—Why should I let this kid talk me out of a car at 17? I was 19 before I talked my old man into buying me one.

"Can't you prescribe something that will give me a little more energy, Doc?"—Something like maybe a third Martini at lunch.

"Lend me $20, Jack, and I'll pay back bright and early Monday."—The Monday after the Monday after next Monday—that is, if I don't lay off sick that day.

"The speciality of the house we are featuring today is veal piccante."—The reason we are featuring it is that we still have a kitchen full of it left over from yesterday.

Other Editors Say A World Problem

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
Can the United Nations do anything about the growing world drug problem? Only if the member nations involved in creating anti-drug legislation are willing to cooperate fully and sincerely in such an effort. But, then, that is also true in efforts to promote world peace, isn't it?

The United Nations Narcotics Commission, for whatever it is worth, has drafted a treaty for international control of mind-altering drugs, such as LSD. The catch, however, is that drug-producing countries of the 24-nation group used a majority to block strictest control on barbiturates, or sleeping pills.

The draft covers three other major groups of synthetic drugs: hallucinogens such as LSD; amphetamines or pep pills, and tranquilizers. The draft follows much the same pattern of the universal narcotics convention controlling "hard" drugs like heroin. The treaty now goes before the U. N. Economic and Social Council.

The catch here is that each member country is free to accept or refuse any or all of the provisions. There is no guarantee that any effective drug control bill will emerge from such conglomerate action. Each country considering changes will be thinking about its own selfish interests.

The U. S. Senate last week approved a drug control measure which provides for semi-flexible control schedules regulating the import, manufacture and distribution of specified drugs.

The bill also prescribes penalties ranging from life imprisonment and a $100,000 fine for "professional criminals" convicted of large-scale narcotic violations and authorizes federal "no-knock" search warrants to be issued to agents who can show that evidence is likely to be destroyed if they knock before entering a suspected place.

One of the major difficulties in creating and enforcing an international drug act is the fact that too many countries involved may be making a great deal of money out of drugs. This is true of many nations, particularly West Germany, Japan, Turkey and even the United States. Where does the profit motive leave off and a desire to stamp out illicit drugs begin?

find some place for them to live. This is probably an exaggeration.

Spin-Off of Other Problems
This creates a spiral of other problems: high taxes, the flight of the middle class to the suburbs, the consequent transportation jams, and deterioration of housing in the city. Rents are frozen, and neither the landlords nor the poor tenants make repairs. Hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of tenements have been abandoned by owners, who simply walk away leaving their property for eventual city condemnation. Meanwhile, they become pads for hippies, rendezvous for junkies and hiding places for criminals.

The influx of the poor appears to be related to the rising crime rate. In every section of the city are shops that have been shut because they cannot get police protection against robbers. And in every section there are stores still trying to operate behind locked doors. The doors are unlocked for customers only when the proprietors recognize them.

In Jackson Heights, an upper middle-class section, one tavern has gone back to a device of Prohibition days. The doors are kept locked and only if he recognizes a customer will the bartender press a button that opens the lock.

Boom or Explosion? Still Manhattan grows. In the congested Times Square area six enormous office buildings are planned or under construction. Along upper Sixth Avenue, officially the Avenue of the Americas but few call it that, almost a dozen new giant office buildings or hotels are going up or have been completed. There are few nearby residential areas. Workers will have to come by bus or subway. Both are now jammed to overflowing and no one seems to know how the added employees will get to work.

Already employers lose millions of dollars in lost time because of subway breakdowns and more jammed conditions on trains help speed epidemics of respiratory diseases.

Some years ago there was a flight of big corporations from the city. Some came back, others still remain. Now there appears to be another exodus.

Today's quest column for the N.C. Association of Afternoon Dailies was written by Holt McPherson, Editor, of the High Point Enterprise.

LOS ANGELES, Calif — International Airport was brightly lighted as we made way through the filming there of a portion of "The FBI Story," a documentation of that agency's great work through the half century J. Edgar Hoover has headed it.

Just why they should welcome us in such fashion we do not know, but if you see three High Pointers therein treat it as purely coincidental!

The western continental edge, where the nation's future is said to lie, never fails to thrill with each visitation into what amounts increasingly to a different world. If the qualifications for a great city are density, variety of historical relevance, Los Angeles—described by many as the ultimate city—has them all.

Greater Los Angeles has now come to be a city of ten million souls to send fears into the new French government that a westward population growth may cause a switching of this nation from Atlantic to Pacific interests. Personally, we fear smog as the greater menace out there.

Red-tailed roofs, streets with Spanish names, and charming old missions reflect the city's Spanish heritage; freeways springing up everywhere, plus soaring glass facades along Willshire Boulevard and its institutions of higher learning attest its commitment to the future.

"But nobody," says the swank Beverly Hilton's Guest Informant, "has ever quite caught and defined the mystique of the place."

If you travel the Ventura Freeway, one of four which enclose the thousand acres of real estate which is downtown L.A., you go into the San Fernando Valley whose combined populations in its several communities makes it the nation's fifth largest city. Anaheim, a former orange grove, is the base of a Disneyland which sparked such amazing development that the late Walt Disney turned to Florida where he purchased 40 square miles to preclude the honky-tonk encrustation his California development attracted but that's another story.

A vast new skyline is developing in downtown Los Angeles as what once was a sprawl now is reaching upward between Century City's amazing development on the southern border to the gleaming new Music Center which is the crowning glory of artistic accomplishment and a monument to the driving efforts of Mrs. Norman Chandler. Last month several new projects designed to add $400 million of private redevelopment in downtown Los Angeles sparked the rejuvenation and renewal planned there.

Indeed, the Broadway-Hale's new Broadway Plaza, to include a 250,000 square-foot flagship store plus a six-level garage, nearly 1500 automobiles, and a 32-story office building and a multi-level shopping mall, is the place's first major downtown department store development in 25 years. But Atlantic-Richfield Plaza, a $160 million development will be completed this year as a joint enterprise of that oil firm, Kaiser Industries and Bank of America. Its 52 stores comprising 2.6 million square feet, will be fully leased before construction is complete. A huge new convention center will be ready for use next year, and a civic center will contain the largest concentration of government facilities outside Washington.

A Southern California magalopolis is shaping from Santa Barbara to San Diego, but somehow, L.A. expects to make its downtown the heart of it all with a vast renewal that staggers the imagination and causes one to wonder where all that money necessary for it is to come from.

Indeed, Los Angeles so long worried about decline of its downtown, and now its great worry is how to move people into and out of the vast complex that is developing in a city that until now hasn't seemed to care much for compactness.

Los Angeles never ceases to amaze—take, for instance, the play given a story about voluptuous Wendy Brown, a dancer at a Sunset Strip club working her way to a master's degree by doing research on the whole anatomy of the topless-bottomless culture, ranging from life of a dancer to community attitudes on the subject. Few other budding anthropologists resort to such felicitous methodology in their research. Arrested for indecent exposure and lewd conduct, she was acquitted in the Beverly Hills municipal court when she used her scholarly findings to qualify as her own "expert" witness to testify that a survey of 3,000 Californians showed most people don't consider nude dancing obscene. She earns $300 a week which enables her to support her husband through law school and afford to raise their 3-year-old daughter "properly". The notoriety has brought her three movie offers to work with such stars as Ann Baxter, Jan Sterling and others. Now she fears she may have difficulty in getting teaching credentials!

But there is much more to the time-bomb represented by the oil rig than the question of tapping offshore oil. As viewed by Western diplomats here, the intention of Israel to invest large amounts of scarce foreign currency to install new oil wells in the Gulf of Suez reveals a parallel intention to hold control of the Sinai Peninsula indefinitely.

"The Israelis are not stupid," one Western expert told us. "They aren't going to make that kind of investment for the fun of it."

Israel is already taking oil from the Belayin field, off the shore of the eastern bank of the Suez Gulf, but that is an operating well captured intact from Egypt in the six-day war. By unstated agreement between Egypt and Israel, both countries have allowed the other to continue pumping oil from wells that were operating before the 1967 war.

The Israeli intention to dig for new oil in the gulf — in waters that the U.S. claims are sovereign, Egyptian territory — would smash that unstated agreement to bits. Further, it could start an oil war between Israel and Egypt in which both would try and probably succeed in destroying each other's oil wells.

Some Western diplomats believe that just such an oil war was the objective of the Israeli decision to charter the oil-drilling rig and transport it across the Atlantic, around the southern tip of Africa, and up the Red Sea into the Gulf of Suez. The rig, damaged in the long transatlantic passage, is owned by Kenting, Ltd., of Canada, which leased it to Mid-Bar, a dummy corporation registered in England which is wholly owned by King Resources, Inc., the large international development company of Denver, Colo. Mid-Bar has a cost-plus-fixed-fee contract with Israel.

Predicts Space Business Ahead For Airlines

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Najeeb E. Halaby, president of Pan American World Airways, predicts Pan Am and other carriers will be in the space transportation business in the 1980s. He said airlines, using a version of NASA's space shuttle, could carry passengers from earth to an orbiting space station for a roundtrip price of $5,000 to $6,000, based on recent estimates. By 1978, the space agency plans to have an operational shuttle to ferry astronauts and scientists to orbiting laboratories. On return it would land on an earth runway, ready to fly again.

ly, "There is not a thing in this world that I can't do — except see!"
Blind since age 13, Hedrick took a considerable cut in pay last year when he gave up a lucrative practice as an attorney in Statesville to accept the $26,000-a-year judgeship. "I wanted more than anything to prove that I could do the job," said Hedrick, a quiet-mannered, graying man of 47. He and his wife have four children. Hedrick, who uses a Braille

Judaism In U.S. Seeing Changes

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — "American Judaism is losing its distinctiveness and becoming increasingly like Protestantism," Dr. Harold Weisberg, a Brandeis University philosophy professor, told a gathering here. He said the shift is "not so much in theology as in life style." Increasingly, he added, "the notion of praying and attending a house of worship defines American Jewishness," as it does Protestantism, in contrast to traditional Judaism which consists "not only of worship but of acts." Under pressure of American life, he says, U.S. Jews are conforming to the "behavior pattern of the majority religion."

typewriter, typed himself a message before he went in to attend his first hearing last year as a member of the court: "Keep your big mouth shut!" Hedrick lost his sight at as a result of an accident on the farm where he grew up. He was chopping wood when a piece flew up and hit him in one eye. An infection developed which spread to the optic nerve and caused him to lose the sight in his other eye. "Perhaps if we had had the wonder drugs of today the doctors might have been able to have saved my sight," he said. Hedrick, who can only distinguish light from dark, attended the Governor Morehead School for the Blind in Raleigh and was graduated from the University of North Carolina with a bachelor of arts degree. He completed his three-year law course at UNC in 2 1/2 years. "I just worked hard with the help of many others," says the Iredell County native. "I don't feel I have accomplished anything unusual that a lot of other people couldn't have done. I just hope that what I have done might serve to help the 10,000 people in North Carolina who are blind."

Hedrick's constant companion is a Seeing Eye dog, a Golden Retriever which he obtained last year. His first Seeing Eye dog died in 1959 after being with him 10 years. "My office was near the courthouse in Statesville, so I managed to get around all right without a dog. But I began to get a little thick around the middle and wanted to do more walking to lose weight. I got my present dog last May." Hedrick, who goes horse back riding and fishing, is a ham radio operator. He has sung "at literally hundreds of weddings." "I have a great interest in sports," Hedrick said. "I follow the college basketball and football teams, perhaps too closely." Hedrick, who possesses a lot of patience, said he learned after the loss of his sight to discipline himself. "You've got to learn to discipline yourself," Hedrick, who specialized in civil law practice, served as prosecutor in Iredell County from 1950 to 1958. He was judge of Recorder's Court at Statesville from 1958 until 1969 when he was appointed by Gov. Bob Scott to the Appeals Court. When he was sworn in last year, the attorneys in his county came to Raleigh embass for the ceremony. Hedrick said he never sat any goals for himself after the loss of his sight. "My philosophy has been to try to do the best that I could in everything I've undertaken. I just hope that what I have done can make the road easier for similarly handicapped persons." Hedrick said he has no political aspirations for the future, adding: "I just want to do what I am doing as good as I possibly can."

NETS NUGGET
LICHFIELD, England (UPI) —Someone on George Atkinson's newspaper route gave him about 3,000 pounds ($7,200) without knowing it. In his collections Atkinson found a penny with a 1933 date—a valuable collector's item in England.

With all but complete mastery of the skies over the Suez Gulf — and with its recent purchase of five swift naval patrol boats from the French — the Israelis would undoubtedly win an oil war against Egypt. Even if both sides succeeded in knocking out the other's producing wells in the gulf, Israel would come out ahead, because by far the richest offshore field (called El-Morgan) is owned by Egypt in partnership with Standard Oil of Indiana's Amoco Company. Israel already has completely destroyed Egypt's refineries on the west side of the Suez Gulf. In the last two weeks, moreover, Israel again knocked out a key pumping station on the only pipeline from the gulf to Cairo. But a decision to drill for new oil in the gulf would be of far greater magnitude. It would, in fact, raise the interesting possibility of military action against U.S. property in the El-Morgan field, a risk that should be very carefully considered.

"Ah don't know how owning a few darkies could affect the way Ah decide the constitutional issues. Besides, you have to have some balance on the court, and right now it's heavily weighted in favor of the antislavery forces." "One more question, sir. Besides owning slaves, is there anything else the Justice Department security people overlooked when checking you out?" "Can't think of anything. Ah once organized a lynching, but that was when Ah was a kid, and Ah don't think that should be held against me now. We all do stupid things when we're sowing our oats."

Every Man a Philosopher
Everybody holds some view about life and its meaning. Whatever confronts us in our daily round is the substance out of which we weave our "philosophy of life."
But merely to have an isolated thought or an opinion does not help us find a foundation on which to base our entire lives. We need encouragement and guidance.
The message of the Church has been, through the ages, concerned primarily with the deeper meaning of life. It lends wisdom to those who are striving to relate themselves to the total pattern and purpose of human existence. It helps us maintain a reasonable stability amid the flux of human endeavor and events. It helps us relate the totality of all that has been, is now and ever shall be.
Let the Church help you weave these golden threads into the finished fabric of life.

Moratorium For Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strike-lockout moratorium until Feb. 21 has been agreed to by the nation's railroads and four shopcraft unions.

The disputants were already subject to parallel court orders barring strikes by the unions or lockouts by the carriers through Wednesday.

Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz who announced the agreement Thursday, also said bargaining talks in the dispute are being transferred Monday from Washington to Miami Beach. He said the move was being made because many of the principles are committed to AFL-CIO midwinter meetings in Miami Beach during the next two weeks.

There was still no break in the continuing talks. They focus on a work rule change in last month's tentative settlement. The change was accepted by three of the unions but rejected by the membership of the sheet metal workers.

The other union involved are the machinists, boilermakers and electricians.

Telerama Funds Go To March Of Dimes

The Greenville and New Bern Jaycees, along with 10 other Eastern North Carolina Jaycee Clubs, in cooperation with WNCB, Channel 12 TV, will present a special March of Dimes Telerama tomorrow and Sunday.

In addition to Greenville and New Bern, Jaycee Clubs participating in this big event include Beaufort, Morehead City, Jacksonville, Havelock, Kinston, Washington, Newport, Swansboro, Sneads Ferry and Mattamoskeet.

To highlight the two day affair, National and local talent, businesses and industries in the area are cooperating in a series of activities designed to boost fund raising efforts for the March of Dimes.

In many areas, citizen band radio and Jaycee volunteers have been organized to pick up pledges secured through the telerama.

Hosting the event are the New Bern Jaycees, who will serve as overall coordinators, as well as provide manpower to assist the TV station.

More than 40 regional performers and entertainment groups have volunteered their time for the March of Dimes Telerama which begins at 10:30 p.m. Saturday evening and will run continuously until 4:00 p.m. Sunday.

Nationally known entertainment stars Jo Ann Castle of the Lawrence Welk show and Billy Lee (Mr. Tap Toes) will host the program and will be joined by the current Miss North Carolina, Patricia Johnson of Raleigh, and last year's Miss North Carolina, Anita Johnson of New Bern.

All funds pledged on the telerama will be returned to the March of Dimes Chapter in the home county of the person making the pledge, thus enabling more local children to take advantage of the three birth defect treatment centers in North Carolina.

Frogmen Damage 2 Israeli Navy Ships

TEL AVIV (AP)—Egyptian frogmen blew holes in the sides of two Israeli navy supply ships in Eilat harbor early today, sinking one and causing the other to be beached in shallow water.

Later in the day two Egyptian jet fighter-bombers streaked across the Suez Canal and attacked a U.N. observation post near the southern end of the

Approve CP&L's Proposed Atomic Power Plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Safety and Licensing Board has approved a proposal by Carolina Power & Light Co. of Raleigh, N. C., to build a $285-million nuclear power plant in Brunswick County, N. C. The approval, which was announced Thursday, authorizes the Atomic Energy Commission to issue a permit.

An AEC spokesman said it is expected to do so within a few days.

CP&L plans to use two units on a 1,200-acre site near Southport. Each unit will use a boiling water reactor and will have a net output of some 821,000 kilowatts. Heated water for condensers will flow into a canal which will empty into the Atlantic Ocean.

canal, an Israeli spokesman said.

The spokesman made no mention of casualties to U.N. personnel but said two other Egyptian planes made bombing runs south of Port Taufiq and wounded one Israeli soldier.

An Egyptian military spokesman in Cairo confirmed Israeli suspicions Egypt was responsible for the attack at Eilat.

Israeli military censors would not allow newsmen to identify or describe the ships attacked, but the Egyptian spokesman said they were the tank carrier Beit Shafai and the troop transport Beit Yam. Both were being prepared for a military operation, the spokesman claimed.

Ships of those names are not listed in Jane's Fighting Ships, the standard reference on navies of the world, but apparently both ships were landing craft 50 to 100 feet long.

Flags Stolen From Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department is looking for two flags stolen last weekend from the main entrance to the Pentagon.

Missing are the secretary of the Army's ceremonial flag, valued at $750, and a U.S. flag worth $50. The banners, each several feet wide, were removed from their big brass poles.

A third flag, representing the Army chief of staff, was not taken.

Angler Hooked Rare Dolphin

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Casting his line off a local beach one night, angler Améd Boxer caught what he thought was a whale. He couldn't believe his eyes when he saw the 9 feet long marine mammal flopping through the surf at the end of his line, but he had no trouble landing it as it was in a weakened state. He nursed it through the rest of the night by pouring buckets of water on its back.

Next morning he telephoned the local aquarium and curator John Ballard sent a truck to fetch it. "It is certainly the first time we have had a whale on display," Ballard said as he eyed his new acquisition—christened "Sammy"—languidly swimming around his fish tank. Later the "whale" was identified as a rare Risso's dolphin, believed the only one in captivity. But five days later it died, despite injections and forced feeding—apparently from the illness that had first weakened it.

Judge Pays Filing Fee

District Judge Charles H. Whedbee, who last month announced that he would seek the Democratic nomination for Superior Court Judge for the Third Judicial District paid his filing fee to the State Board of Elections in Raleigh, Tuesday.

Whedbee said the $220 filing fee was donated by "lawyers of the Third District bar," who support his candidacy.

The Third Judicial District includes the counties of Craven, Carteret, Pamlico and Pitt. Currently Whedbee serves as a District Court Judge in the district. He was elected to the post in 1968 and took office when the state-wide Court Reform Bill abolished the old system of inferior courts, including the Recorders Courts, and set up a system of magistrates and district courts.

Prior to becoming a District Court Judge, Whedbee served for 17 years as judge of the Greenville Municipal Recorders Court and before that for 15 years was solicitor of the Pitt County Recorders Court.

Whedbee said in seeking the post, "I am seeking the fulfillment of a lifelong ambition. . . after 'climbing the rungs of the judicial ladder in order to prepare myself for this office.'"

Collisions A Way Of Life

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—With 3,000,000 people jamming this city and another 4,000,000 packing the suburbs, the area keeps busy coping with the usual 'big-city' problems: an acute housing shortage, crowded slums, and chaotic traffic snarls.

Traffic is the most obvious problem, particularly since many of the city's 575,000 motorists ignore traffic lights if they don't care for the color of the signal.

An Argentine official explained how the unwritten code of the road operates: "The foreign-made car yields to the American-type because it's bigger. The American car yields to the bigger colectivo—bus. The colectivo yields to the truck. But when two trucks arrive at a corner together, choque!—crash!"

Acquitted Of Murder Charge

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP)—A minister's son has been acquitted of a murder charge in the slaying of a Shelby youth. A Superior Court jury Thursday cleared Rudolph Lemmons Jr., 20, of Grover, who had pleaded innocent. Lemmons admitted he shot 18-year-old Glenn Patterson last Sept. 6, but said he did so as the youth advanced on him during an argument.

Lift Quarantine In 3 Counties

RALEIGH (AP)—Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham announced Thursday that a hog cholera quarantine has been lifted in Cumberland, Edgecombe and Halifax counties.

Graham said several other counties "are under survey with the hope that they too can be freed soon" from the quarantine.

Bucs Fall, 111-94, To Dolphins

Baby Buc Rally Carries By W&M

East Carolina University's freshmen battled to an 85-73 victory over the William & Mary yearlings last night, as they won their seventh victory against eight defeats.

The Bucs fought back from as far as eight points back in the early minutes of the second half, and then used its superior speed pull away from the Papooses.

The Bucs also controlled the boards, pulling down 56 in comparison to 41 for William & Mary, and that combined to give them four extra changes at the basket, and they made good on three of those to outthrust their opponent, 64-58.

After the two teams swapped the lead in the early minutes, William & Mary gained the lead on a jumper by Steve Moore at 7-6. John Christensen added a basket and Randy Davis hit at the line. Christensen added another basket and Moore struck from the line, making it 13-6 with 12:42 left in the half.

A few seconds later, Moore connected to run the margin out to eight, at 15-7, and it appeared the Papooses were on their way.

But Dave Franklin and Al Faber went to work and began to pull the Bucs back into it. East Carolina battled back and finally tied it up at 26-26 on a shot by Faber with 1:44 to go. A pair of free throws by Faber put the Bucs ahead by two, and after a Papoose free throw, Ernie Pope hit to run the lead to three. But William & Mary fought back to cut the margin to 32-31 at intermission.

In the second half, William & Mary got hot at the start and powered into the lead again. Davis hit to put them ahead, 33-32, and George Spack added a bucket. After the Bucs swapped one with them, Moore pushed the margin to five and a basket by Davis and a free throw by Moore ran it back to eight again, 42-34 with 17:41 left.

But again, the Bucs fought back and tied it at 46-46 as Phil Shafer hit on a rebound. William & Mary went back out by three, but the Bucs came back and tied it again as Shafer connected to make it 55-55. Shafer then put the Bucs ahead with another shot, 57-55. After that, the Bucs pulled away, and built up the final 12-point margin. They were helped along by four three-point plays in the half.

Dave Franklin led the Bucs with 28 points, while Faber had 22. Pope had 15 and Roland Leggett had 10.

Moore finished with 30 for William & Mary, while Spack had 16 and Davis had 13.

The Baby Bucs travel to Greensboro Saturday to face Duke University's freshmen in a preliminary to the Duke-West Virginia game.

William & Mary — Davis 13, Moore 30, Christensen 8, Spack 16, Strong 2, O'Connor, Pinder 4.
East Carolina — Faber 22, McKenzie 2, Pope 15, Shafer 8, Franklin 28, Leggett 10.
William & Mary 31 42-73
East Carolina 32 53-85

Fairley Moves In

East Carolina's Jim Fairley (6-7) goes between Pembroke Burrows (7-0), and Artis Gilmore (7-2), for a basket in last night's game between the Pirates and Jacksonville University. Jacksonville won, 111-94, but Fairley popped in 24 over Gilmore, while Jim Gregory, seen over Burrows shoulder, had a game-leading 31. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Jacksonville Burns Nets In First Half To Set Up Margin

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Ten minutes after the opening tipoff, East Carolina University began to realize that they were a basketball team. And for the next 30, they played shot for shot with the eighth-ranked Jacksonville Dolphins.

But that first 10 minutes was fatal to the Bucs, as they fell to Jacksonville, 111-94 last night. It was the ninth loss of the season for the Bucs, who list five of the nationally ranked teams, plus unranked giant-killer Wake Forest among those nine.

In those first 10 minutes of play, Jacksonville was devastating. They hit 71.4 per cent from the floor in the first half, and at the halfway mark, they had hit on 15 of 20 for a blistering 75 per cent.

But in the second half, the Bucs gained more courage and fought the Dolphins on even terms. They even outrebounded them in the game, 61-52, despite being towered over by 7-2 Artis Gilmore, 7-0 Pembroke Burrows and 6-10 Ron McIntyre.

And Jim Gregory and Jim Fairley played perhaps what was their best games as members of the East Carolina varsity. Gregory led the Pirate scoring with 31 points, while Fairley pumped in 24 and have five assists. Gregory pulled in 17 rebounds, while Gregory had 15 and Jim Modlin, who finished with 22 points, had 10.

All that against that front line that averages 7-0.

Gilmore is everything that has been written and said about him. He is a deadly shooter. He hit on 11 of 17 shots from the floor, five of eight from the line, and pulled in 19 rebounds. He blocked a dozen shots, but was unable to handle the moves Fairley put on him. The cagey sophomore again proved that he is one of the standouts of the Southern Conference as he tested Gilmore's defense to the utmost. But it was not so much Gilmore that hurt the Bucs in those first fatal 10 minutes. It was Greg Nelson, who started in place of Burrows, and 6-5 guard Rex Morgan, and McIntyre. They were all deadly from 15 feet and more, and that's where Jacksonville got most of its points.

Gilmore didn't scratch from the floor for nearly seven minutes, and had only seven of the first 34 points of the Dolphins, when they ran out to a 17-point spread.

Jacksonville led the entire game. East Carolina missed on its first opportunity, which could have put them into the lead, and Nelson popped in a jumper from the top of the key for the lead. Gilmore added a free throw for a 3-0 lead before Tom Miller's jumper put the Bucs on the boards.

But the Dolphins continued to flip in the points, while the Bucs had their trouble with tightness. With McIntyre and Nelson swishing them through, the Dolphins moved steadily away. By the halfway point, they had built their lead to 34-17, and went on from there to make it even more.

With the clock moving into the final quarter of the first half, Gilmore tossed in five straight points to run the lead out to 48-22, the biggest margin of the night.

East Carolina then came to life. With Gregory hitting from the outside and Fairley carrying the game to the middle, the Bucs battled back. Fairley hit a three-point play to cut the margin back to 19, and then, with two seconds left, Gregory canned a jumper to cut the lead to 17 again, 57-40.

The second half proved to be a real horse race. Both teams poured in 54 points. The Bucs raced early and cut the lead down to 12, and it looked like they might just get back into the game. Fairley hit after a minute, and Modlin followed with a pair of baskets to slice the margin down to 58-46. But the Bucs could come no closer. Jacksonville began to hit again, and they pushed back into an 18-point spread at 73-65. The margin ran anywhere from 14 to 22 the rest of the way, but East Carolina refused to let Gilmore and Company do any further damage.

So when it was all over, the margin stood just as it did with 10 minutes left in the first half, at 17 points.

Besides the high scoring of Fairley, Gregory and Modlin, Miller hit one of his better games recently, getting 16.

Adding to Gilmore's total of 27, was Morgan with 21, McIntyre with 16, Nelson with 15, Vaughn Wedeking with 12 and Burrows with 10.

The Bucs get back into the Southern Conference tonight, as they play host to William & Mary's Indians at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. The game will be video-taped and replayed at 12:30 Saturday afternoon as part of a Southern Conference regional network doubleheader.

Immanuel Baptist gained sole possession of first place last night in the Church League, with a 40-36 victory over St. James. In the other games, Piney Grove downed Mt. Pleasant, 48-34, and Black Jack beat Oakmont, 73-39.

Wake Slips By Carolina Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Giant-killing Wake Forest slew another nationally-ranked basketball team Thursday night.

The victim was seventh-ranked North Carolina in an 88-85 decision between the two Atlantic Coast Conference foes. Earlier in the season the Deacons had upset the Tar Heels 91-90. The Deacs' other victory over a ranked team came last week in a 74-73 squeaker over Davidson, then No. 11.

A key factor in Thursday's game was a technical foul called against the North Carolina bench in the final minutes, which gave the Deacons a foul shot and possession of the ball.

They used the opportunity to collect three quick points and move ahead for good.

Referee Ralph Stout called the technical after UNC Coach Dean Smith leaped off the bench following a penalty call against Tar Heel Eddie Fogler.

Charlie Davis, who fired a game-high 41 points, converted on the free throws.

"Certainly it hurt us when they got the extra point and the ball," said Smith, who seemed surprised at the technical call. "When he called the foul against Eddie, I stood up. He (Stout) looked to me as I put my hand to my neck. I didn't realize he had called a technical until the crowd roared."

Swimmers To Meet Catholic

East Carolina University's swimming team pays a visit to Washington, D.C., tomorrow to face Catholic University.

Coach Ray Scharf of the Bucs notes that Catholic has beaten Southern Conference member VMI by a handy score, and that the Pirates must be prepared for a tough meet.

Monday, East Carolina returns home to play host to Louisiana State University, a growing power in the Southeastern Conference. LSU is coached by East Carolina graduate, Layne Jorgensen.

Rose Matmen Highwaymen In Division Meet Get Another

Rose High School's wrestlers travel to Goldsboro Saturday to take part in the Davison II tournament, seeking to capture the championship.

"I feel that it'll be between us, New Bern and Goldsboro," Coach Bud Phillips said. New Bern captured the regular season championship, while Rose finished second and Goldsboro was third. Wilson, Kinston and Rocky Mount make up the rest of the division.

Rose will send four unbeaten wrestlers into the tournament, although one has been out with illness for some time, and will not be a top strength, Gary Snyder. He finished the season with a 3-0 record, getting two pins and one decision. But he didn't not compete against conference foes. He will enter the 188-pound class.

At 101 will be Glenn Nichols, 10-0 overall, and 5-0 in the conference. He won three by pins, four by forfeit, and three decision. At 148 is Chuck Brown, 4-0 in division competition and 9-0 overall. He took three pins and six decisions. Rounding out the unbeaten ranks is David Bullock at 158. He was 11-0, winning all five of his divisional matches. He won five by pins and six by decision.

Other who will compete in the divisional tournament include Angelo Daniels at 110, 4-3-1 for the year, Paul Carr, 126, 3-4; John Barber, 133, 4-6; Curtis Garris, 140, 5-4; Steve Williams, 168, 7-2; Greg Williams, 178, 6-5; George Harris, 188, 3-2; and Sidney Hardee, heavyweight, 7-4.

New Bern has a real strong dual meet team, but sometimes that goes out in tournament competition," Phillips said. "Goldsboro has a couple of strong wrestlers, and it's really up for grabs."

Phillips feels the Rampants have top candidates in Nochols, Brown, Bullock, Steve Williams and Hardee. "Greg Williams and George Harris could also come through for us," Phillips said. "I feel we have a real good shot at it, though a lot will depend on seedings."

"If Greg and George come through for us, we'll be in real good shape."

State Highway widened its lead in the Industrial Basketball League last night with a 63-51 victory over second place Wachovia. In the other games, Fieldcrest downed Union Carbide, 55-45, and WNCT won by forfeit over the Jaycees.

State Highway holds a 9-1 mark in the league now, while Wachovia falls off to a 7-3 mark. Fieldcrest takes third with a 6-4 record, followed by WNCT and Union Carbide, both 4-6, and the Jaycees, 0-10.

In the opener, Fieldcrest Mills slipped out into an uneasy 25-24 lead in the first period. But they came back to outscore Union Carbide, 30-21 in the second half for the 10-point victory.

Billy Stokes led Fieldcrest with 26 points, while Clarence Taft had 10. Larry Daniels led Union Carbide with 15, with Chuck Grazielski adding 10.

In the other game, State Highway gained a 33-29 advantage at the half, and continued to pull away in the second half. They outthrust Wachovia, 30-22 to take the win.

Wiley Brown hit 30 to lead the Highwaymen, while Carlos Cannon added 11. For Wachovia, Walker Jones had 19 and Terry Sparrow had 11.

Ring enlarged to show detail.

Goldsboro Holds Off Rampants, 94-85

Palmer Tops Poll As Athlete Of The Decade

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Palmer, whose boyish charm and faculty for miraculous comebacks sent professional golf into a multi-million-dollar spiral, was chosen today Athlete of the Decade.

The 40-year-old fairway slugger from the little mill town of Latrobe, Pa., beat out Bill Russell, towering basketball star of the Boston Celtics, in a nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters to select the top performer of the 1960s.

It was a victory for personal magnetism.

Although he did not dominate the game as thoroughly as Bob Jones in the 1920s, Byron Nelson in the 1940s and Ben Hogan in the 1950s and failed to overshadow his rivals as did men in other fields, no individual made such an impact on golf and the sports world generally during the period.

Arnie received 231 of 655 votes in a poll by The Associated Press, with Russell a close second with 194.

The blue ribbon personalities of the nation's major spectator sports—pro football and baseball—trailed far behind these two men, each a legend of his time.

Sandy Koufax, the left-handed pitching ace of the Dodgers, was third with 56 votes, followed by Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts, outstanding in a dazzling parade of football quarterbackbacks, 47, and Mickey Mantle, the home run punch of the New York Yankees, 43.

Rounding out the Top Ten, in order, were Willie Mays, baseball; Bart Starr, football; Jimmy Brown, football; Wilt Chamberlain, basketball, and Bobby Hull, hockey.

Palmer became the epitome of the modern athlete—part actor, part ham, sports idol and business tycoon. He turned into the darling of the TV tube.

He is perfectly equipped for the role.

Son of a professional golfer, he has the build of a light heavyweight fighter with powerful sloping shoulders, arms like wagon tongues and the calloused hands of a blacksmith. He represents the new bold generation of golfer—the go-for-broke swinger who disdains style and hazards, sledge-hammers courses into submission and makes birdies and eagles the target instead of pars.

When he strikes a ball, it is pure thunder.

Palmer created a new breed of fans who dubbed themselves "Arnie's Army." Largely they know little of golf—and cared less. They storm over the course—running, pushing, yelling—exhorting their idol to fresh heroics.

Even when Palmer went into a prolonged slump—in 1968 and 1969, going 14 months without a victory—they refused to desert him.

Although his hair has begun to thin on top of his strong, rugged face and he fights a losing battle with the paunch—as he alternately kicks and returns to the cigarette habit—Arnie delights his galleries with a gamut of expressions. They have become trademarks.

He furrows his brow in watching a plane fly overhead. He runs the extremes of joy and anguish as vital putts fall or fail. He carries on running conversations with his fans.

Look! Up In The Sky

Jacksonville University's Artis Gilmore leaps high into the air to look down on Jim Moldin, but it doesn't prevent Moldin's shot from going into the hoop. Gilmore's hand is not in the basket, but behind it as his attempt to block failed. The 7-3 giant did block another dozen shots, however, as he led the Dolphins to a 111-94 win over the Pirates.

Cougars Rally From First Half Deficit

By CARL TYER
Reflector Sports Writer
GOLDSBORO — Goldsboro's Cougars got a late start, but managed to scratch out a 94-85 victory over Rose High School last night. The Cougars fell into a cold spell in the first quarter, while Rose was turning it on, to give the Rampants a 20-3 lead in the first quarter, before the home team began to find the hoop and start narrowing the lead.

Goldsboro was sparked by Horace Thompson, who ended the game with 31 points, coming from every angle of the court, and the free throw line, which accounted for 15 of his 31.

Rose was led by Ray Peszko with 20 and Willie Smith with 21. The win was an important one for Goldsboro, which leads division II in the 4-A conference.

The Rampants jumped into a 3-1 lead, then began stretching it out as Goldsboro fell into a cold spell. The Cougars went from 6:30 remaining, until 1:46 to go before hitting their fifth point, that coming from Ricky Homes.

From there, Rose stretched it out to 26-13 at the end of the first quarter.

Goldsboro began to cut the lead down in the second frame, making it 32-23 with 5:30 remaining in the half, but Rose caught fire again and padded their lead to 37-25.

However, the home team wanting to protect their clean slate in division play, worked at the lead again, and had it down to three at the half, 45-42.

Goldsboro went ahead for the first time with 7:00 minutes remaining in the third frame at 46-45, and Rose never led again, although they did tie it up with 3:37 to go, with two by Joe Hunter, who came in as a sub and picked the Rampants up when they were dwindling.

Hunter poured in six points for Rose within two minutes to pull them from a 55-49 deficit to a tie.

From there, Goldsboro went on to lead again at 62-56, but the scrappy Rampants cut it back to two at 62-60 with 2:23 remaining.

It was tied once again in the third at 64 all with 1:38 on two by Peszko but Goldsboro managed to squeeze in five more to three for Rose in the closing minutes to make it 69-67 going into the final frame.

The Cougars managed to establish a more comfortable lead in the fourth, and used a stall tactic in the closing minutes, forcing the Rampants to foul in order to get the ball.

Goldsboro made good on most of their trips to the line in order to protect their lead, and with them holding onto a four point lead with 2:36 remaining, those trips wrapped it up for them.

Charlie Harris had 16 for Rose and Hunter 10 to round out the high scorers, while Danny Kepley had 16, and Don Lane 10.

Rampant Cubs In Second Loss

GOLDSBORO — Rose High School's Junior Varsity basketball team was handed their second defeat of the season last night by the Goldsboro Cougars, 65-56.

Goldsboro came on strong in the second half, to stretch a four point lead into nine, as it was 25-21 at the half.

The Baby Cougars also made use of 21 trips to the foul line, as compared to eight for Rose to take their upset victory.

Robert Kear led Rose with 21, while Linwood Staton had 15.

Atkinson had 14 for Goldsboro, while Parks had 17 and Gooding and Ham had 10.

Wrestlers In Four-Way Meet

East Carolina University's wrestling team goes into a quadrangular match Saturday afternoon at Old Dominion College in Norfolk, Va.

The Bucs will face Old Dominion, Virginia Tech and Appalachian State University during the afternoon, as the four teams exchange opponents throughout the day.

East Carolina, unbeaten this season, will be handicapped by the loss of one wrestler to an injury this week. Steve Morgan, the 134-pound grappler for the Bucs, will be sidelined, and Coach John Welborn is uncertain of who will replace him for the meet.

We crawled out of the sea and it looks like we're crawling right back again. Half the world's known oil, huge mineral deposits and tomorrow's dinner are down there. It isn't easy to go to work underwater. There's a lot of pressure. At only 200 feet with compressed air you feel like a senseless drunk. Go deeper and it can kill you.

Union Carbide's Ocean Systems, Inc. has developed a helium oxygen mixture that allows divers to do a job even below 600 feet. We're experimenting with other gas mixtures to eliminate the squeaky duck-like voice that hampers underwater talk.

We designed and operate habitats that allow men to swim in for a little coffee break 600 feet under. And then go back to work without wasting time with decom-pression until the return trip home.

Ocean Systems has a lot of men under a lot of water a lot of the time. And not just fishing around. But working on practical jobs.

We have divers assisting in oil exploration off the coast of four continents, welding pipelines at the mouth of the Mississippi, inspecting cables sitting on the ocean floor.

We've even devised an underwater dry welding process that's as effective as welding on dry land.

The world knows more about the back of the moon than about the bottom of the sea. But if we can help put a man a quarter of a million miles away, we're not going to let a little water keep us up.

Here we are.
Right back where we started from.

Martha's husband angrily called her a "fat hog," for she had lost her romantic allure because of her excess blubber. But when she tried my dehydration diet, and saw she had dropped 10 pounds in the first 10 days, she was encouraged to shed an extra 18 pounds. Notice the way her husband then reacted! Wives, go thou and do likewise! You'll save enough on groceries to buy a new Easter outfit!

"Dr. Crane," she moaned, "my husband rarely kisses me or shows any affection."
"Last night we had a violent argument and he even called me a 'fat hog.'"
"Well, I'll admit I have put on a little extra weight in the 12 years we've been married.

"For I was only 120 on my wedding day but now I tip the scales at 160."
"So how can I take off weight? I've tried to diet but never had any success at it."

glass (8 ounces) of total fluids the 1st day; then 2 glasses the 2nd, and 3 glasses from the 3rd through the 10th day.
This restriction in fluids kills much of your hunger and thus permits you to stay on your low calorie intake more easily.
Your mouth feels cottony and your gastric juice likewise seems to be less, so hunger pangs are not as evident.
Besides, as you melt away your surplus fat, it turns to water, for every half pound of fat produces a full glass of water inside your body.
Thus, you manufacture additional water inside, even though you are restricting your fluid intake from the outside.
A camel's hump is chiefly fat, but as the camel goes without food and drink for many days, it consumes that fat for energy and meanwhile the hump produces 10 to 12 gallons of water from the metabolism of its fat.
And a short period of dehydration in cool weather is not a serious threat to your health if you are otherwise a normal person.

In fact, the natives of North Africa and Arabia are dried up and weather beaten, yet they attain a ripe old age on much less liquid intake than we Americans consume.
Meanwhile, women should limit their food intake to 800 calories per day and men, to 1,200.
Include a lot of protein in this food intake for fresh protein is necessary each day to make up for the destruction of muscle cells.
Remember, the body does not store protein though it has plenty of fat, sugar and starch!
And protein foods lose 15 percent of their calories in the process of digestion! No other food does so.

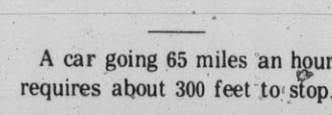

Cottage cheese is an ideal dieting menu for protein. A full cup counts only 200 calories, yet fills your stomach quite well.
Lettuce, cabbage, carrots and other raw vegetables are filling, yet not very high in calories.

Order Pupil Trusting God Has Busing For A Sense Of Humour Charlotte

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A federal judge has issued a desegregation order for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system which provides for the busing of perhaps 10,000 pupils in the state's largest system.

In a ruling Thursday, U. S. District Judge James B. McMillan ordered the desegregation of elementary schools by April 1 and of junior and senior high schools by May 4.

High school seniors will be permitted to finish the year at the schools they are now attending.

McMillan cited recent desegregation rulings by the U. S. Supreme Court and the 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals as the basis for his decision.

In rendering his decision, McMillan rejected a plan drawn up by the city-county school board for the integration of elementary schools, but accepted its plan for the high schools.

He accepted a plan for elementary schools drawn up by a court-appointed educational consultant, Dr. John Finger, of Providence, R. I.

Attorneys for the board were unsure whether they would appeal.

The board's plan, McMillan said, would have maintained nine elementary schools with a predominantly black enrollment. It also would have left about half of the system's 31,500 white elementary pupils in schools with largely white student bodies.

The Finger plan provides for clustering and pairing elementary schools in black neighborhoods and white suburban areas to achieve desegregation.

It also provides for massive busing to achieve racial balance.

"The board plan for elementary schools openly rejects the duty to eliminate the black schools," said McMillan.

The judge approved the board's plans for senior and junior high schools with minor reservations, but added that unless certain provisions are changed, he will reject the plans totally.

The high school plan calls for the restructuring of attendance lines.

Home Society Meeting To Be Held Monday

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Inc., will hold an area meeting for couples applying for adoption Monday at 7 p.m. at Oakmont Baptist Church, Red Banks Road.

David F. Herbert, executive director, will lead the discussion in conjunction with Miss Mary Ruth Divine, supervisor of the Society's Eastern Area Office. The discussion will center on state adoption laws and on the Society's services.

Anyone interested in adoption may attend the meeting.

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina is the state's only licensed, private, non-sectarian, voluntarily supported and statewide agency. Through its services, about 300 babies are annually placed in permanent homes.

Gunman Robs Drive-In Bank

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — A young man walked up to the drive-in window at the downtown office of the Southern National Bank Thursday and stole some $1,800 from the teller at gunpoint.

The teller, Mrs. Janice DeCarlo, had been transferred downtown recently from a suburban branch after it was robbed several weeks ago.

Bank manager Bill Prigden said the man was armed with a small-caliber revolver. He escaped after jumping over a fence and fleeing into a wooded area nearby.

Police and the FBI were investigating.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A Jesuit priest said to his bishop: "Your Excellency, an official of your chancery office has informed my superior that I am not to take part in any more racial demonstrations. I would like to know whether this was done with your knowledge and approval."

The bishop: "Father, it was done without my knowledge but with my approval."

That's the sort of ecclesiastical ambiguity and absurdity, collected mostly from church publications and parish bulletins and sent in by readers, which are the object of zesty, often peppery satire in a lighthearted column "Cry Pax!"

Subtitled "A Column Without Rules," it appears in the National Catholic Reporter, an independent weekly published in Kansas City, and it gleefully lampoons each week's accumulated accounts of oddities and inanities in the church.

A selection of the "The Best of Cry Pax," has now been issued as a paper-bound book. As for the purpose behind such material, Editor Robert G. Hoyt says simply, "It is to make you laugh, an altogether sufficient function."

Some people feel it is irrelevant to laugh about the church, he says, but "our premise is that God must have a sense of humor."

Here are a few examples from the glimpses into the comic side of the religious enterprise, along with the editor's postscript comments in some cases: —The Baltimore Catholic Review reports the wording of a sign on the wall of a local estate: "Trespassers will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Sisters of Mercy."

—Headline in the Michigan Catholic, Detroit archdiocesan newspaper: "Minister Marries Son in Catholic Church." Comment: "Ecumenism gone wild."

—A Church of England bishop, interviewed by the Gloucester Citizen on the question of admitting women to the priesthood, said "You can't just think of women priests, you have got to think in terms of a woman bishop. And you can't have a 'Father-in-God' in a skirt."

Comment: "The Citizen carried a photo on the same page showing the bishop in his, uh, robes."

—The spiritual director of the Holy Name Society in Cleveland defended a petition circulated in the diocese backing Pope Paul and Humane Vitae—(his encyclical against contraception). The petition, he said, "gave the great mass of people a chance to stand up and be counted."

According to National Catholic News Service, however, he declined to give the number of signers.

Comment: "A chance to stand up and be counted in the dark."

—An advertisement sponsored by the Lutheran Laymen's League announces availability of a free booklet entitled, "Life After Death—Fact or Fiction," and asks, "Why not find out for yourself?"

Year Saw New Records By Carolina Telephone

TARBORO — Carolina Telephone, in 1969, established new records in nearly every phase of its operations, according to H. Dail Holderness, company president.

During the year, the company gained the most telephones in its history, 35,425; invested more in new plant facilities, more than $33,000,000; handled more long distance conversations, more than 32,000,000; spent more for salaries and wages, over $22,000,000; and had more people on its work force than ever before, with 4,094 employees.

A highlight of the year was the installation of the company's 400,000th telephone. A special gold telephone commemorating this event was installed at Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount.

Another noteworthy event of the year was the inauguration of Direct Distance Dialing at Williamston and nearby exchanges. This service is now provided in 108 of the company's 114 exchanges.

At the end of the year, Carolina Telephone served over 406,000 telephones and had more than $267,000,000 in plant investment. The company's 1970 construction program is expected to exceed $40,000,000.

Across the state, a year-end survey showed that North Carolina's 30 independent (non-Bell) telephone companies were providing service to some 950,000 telephones, as compared with 867,000 at the end of 1968.

"These statistics," Holderness said, "reflect a growth trend that will see the independent industry operating upwards of two million telephones within the next 15 years."

Several factors contribute to this trend. "There is a movement of people and industry from large urban centers into suburbs, smaller cities and rural areas. Industry is placing branch plants in smaller communities for more efficient distribution and better access to raw materials and regional markets. Generally speaking, this is the area we serve."

Gunman Robs TGS Facilities Drive-In Bank

The Stokes Ruitan Club toured the facilities of Texas Gulf Sulphur Company, Aurora, Wednesday night.

Wilton Smith, public relations director at TGS, conducted the tour and spoke to the group on the TGS plant.

It was announced the Stokes Club cleared approximately $900 on its farm auction sale held recently. Procees will go toward the purchase of a new fire truck for the Carolina Township Fire Department.

Robert Briley and John Richard Barnhill were installed as new members.

The next club meeting will be held March 4.

Year Saw New Records By Carolina Telephone

Holderness noted. "Another factor is the population explosion. By the year 2000, we anticipate a phone for each person in the state. People, more and more, are recognizing the telephone as a necessity rather than a convenience."

"The almost daily innovations and changes in communications technology are creating new services for business, industry, government and the home. As an example, the volume of data relayed over telephone lines from computer output and input devices already threatens to surpass the ever increasing volume of vocal traffic," he concluded.

Public Invited To Hear Debate

"Should federal tax revenue be shared with the states?" will be the question for a debate featuring members of the award-winning East Carolina University debate squad Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Nursing Building at ECU.

The ECU team has won honors several times this year in debating this question with teams from other colleges and universities. The event is being sponsored by the ECU Political Science Club. Attendance by the public is invited.

Women Voters Are Welcomed

Observers from the Provisional League of Women Voters, Greenville-Pitt County Chapter, were welcomed to the meeting of the City Council last night by Mayor Frank M. Wooten Jr. and members of the City Council.

Mrs. Phillip Clark, president of the provisional league, introduced Mrs. Carlton Heckrotte and Mrs. Ernest Marshall, who will be regular attendees at meetings of the City Council as unofficial observers.

Other observers have been appointed to be in regular attendance at meetings of the City Board of Education, the County Commissioner meetings, and at various other governmental meetings in Greenville and Pitt County.

Council Considers Need For Sidewalks

Safety on Greenville streets was the subject of other-than-agenda discussions at the City Council meeting last night.

Councilman Percy Cox, making reference to the accident on Tenth Street Wednesday night in which three girls were injured, commented: "Sidewalks are badly needed in this area. Already plans had been laid out earlier for a public hearing in March on this."

City Manager Harry Hagerty remarked that "state highway and federal authorities have agreed to prepare sidewalk grades from Lawrence Street to a point 600 feet beyond the 264 by-pass intersection out past Billmyer Ford."

Hagerty said "Neither would agree to building the sidewalks, but would go along with grading them. We have proposed to our regular policy of purchasing material, and put curb and gutter in all the way, at the cost of $1. per foot for property owners if they want a five foot sidewalk, and $2. per foot if they rather have a ten foot sidewalk."

The councilmen observed that in its present condition, that stretch of Tenth Street is a hazardous one for pedestrians.

Mayor Wooten also asked that immediate attention be given to Third Street at Memorial Drive. "This is a critical area," he noted, "where lots of children cross." Hagerty added that Fourth Street as well needs attention there, and stated "plans are already in progress to make these two points safer."

Woman Said Conspirator

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Annette Gilly, 29, a slender blonde, has been named by a federal grand jury as a fourth conspirator in an alleged murder-for-hire plot to kill Joseph Yablonski.

Mrs. Gilly, whose husband, Paul, 36, also is charged in the case, was to be arraigned today. Her attorney, Gerald S. Gold, said he would seek a reduction of her $250,000 bond.

The grand jury, which was expected to conclude its second week of hearings today, earlier indicted Gilly along with Claude E. Vealey, 26, and Aubrao W. Martin, 21, on the conspiracy charges. All are from Cleveland.

The three men also face murder charges in Washington County, Pa., where Yablonski, 59, a United Mine Workers union executive board member, his wife Margaret, 57, and daughter, Charlotte Joanne, 25, were found fatally shot in their Clarksville home Jan. 5.

Burger Urges Prisoners Receive Prompt Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger today urged the states to adopt simple, workable procedures to give every prisoner with a grievance the opportunity for a prompt and fair hearing.

Burger, in a speech prepared for the National Association of Attorneys General, proposed also that staffs of lawyers be available to all prisoners to advise them and help prepare appeals.

The chief justice said such reforms would help "restore state supreme courts to their rightful place in the sun as the primary arbiters of the state cases."

Burger said prisoners' habeas corpus petitions to federal courts usually are without merit, constitute "an undue burden" on federal courts and have been "sand, if not gravel, in federal-state relationships."

Therefore, to "reduce the flood of federal-state cases to a small stream," he recommended adoption of state procedures "by which every prisoner in confinement who has, or who thinks he has, a grievance or a complaint can be heard promptly, fairly and fully."

The chief justice urged the attorneys general to use their power and prestige to achieve adoption of such procedures, either by the courts or the state legislatures.

Speaking of prison reform generally, the chief justice said such countries as Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Holland "do some things better than we do."

For instance, he said in Holland a ministry of justice team of lawyers, psychologists and counselors regularly visits all prisons to hear grievances and to "flush out the rare case of miscarriage of justice."

"The mere existence of such an avenue of communication exercises a very beneficial influence which is in many respects far superior to our habeas corpus process," Burger said.

"With us, the prisoner hopes that some distant proceeding before a remote judge will enable him to have his cries heard. With them, the prisoner meets face to face with trained counselors who give him a sympathetic hearing, ask questions, make a record of his complaints and bring his valid grievances to the attention of higher authority," he said.

"In their greater experience with prisons and prisoners they have become patient and tolerant of human weakness. They know that people confined want freedom and that they will complain and press for freedom whether they deserve it or not."

Town Losing Its Only Physician

ANDOVER, N.Y. (AP) — This southern tier town of 2,000 is about to lose its only physician, four years after it brought him here as the result of a recruiting campaign.

Dr. Alan Folsom, a general practitioner, announced this week that he was leaving Andover at the end of the month to join the staff of a clinic in New Mexico.

Folsom moved here in 1966 after answering an advertisement in a medical journal. The community spent $8,000 on a medical center that he used rent-free for a time and for which he now plays nominal rent.
