

Build? Mobile Units? Renovate?

School Bd. Talks Junior High Problem

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Discussions of decisions for the Junior High School and narcotics were principal items discussed by members of the Board of Education last night.

Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood told the members: "We have any number of combinations we can arrive at, but two of these are the most logical to consider at this stage in our thinking.

"One is a single junior high school at Aycock, with all the seventh, eighth and ninth grades there. For this arrangement we would need to use our mobile units, perhaps get a few more than we have now, and buy four additional buses. The total cost would be about $54,000 for a one-year period.

"The second approach is one junior high at Aycock, and one somewhere else, if the board is against a report by engineers and other studies that show we could continue to use a renovated Eppes for a second junior high."

Dr. Cleetwood explained it would cost approximately $100,000 to remodel the main section facing Fifth Street, with two wings at the back.

"Another possibility is to use South Greenville as a second junior high. The expenditure of this would run to about $75,000," Dr. Cleetwood noted, "which would include requirements for temporary or permanent facilities for a larger cafeteria and a library space.

"These are just some of the possibilities," he concluded, "there are any number of combinations possible which would involve changing the whole grade structure pattern. I'd be reluctant to consider these, however, as only last year major shift occurred with the zoning, and this is working out well."

Mrs. Robert Kittrell asked: "If Eppes is remodeled, would the facilities be equal with those at Aycock?"

"No, in no way," Dr. Cleetwood replied.

"How would a single junior high school which would have 1500 or more students compare with other schools in the area," Mrs. Kittrell asked.

"Our local concept is that a school of 1,500 is large and not easily operated," Dr. Cleetwood responded. "But in other parts of the country, schools of 2,000 to 4,500 students are the accepted norm."

"It seems to me that dollar wise to use the estimated $54,000 required to get additional mobile units and new buses to make Aycock a single junior high would be far better than spending $100,000 to renovate Eppes, knowing it would only be a temporary measure," Dr. Badger Clark remarked.

Varied Items Acted On At Board Meet

Action on a number of items included on a large agenda of the Greenville Board of Education was taken last night. These included:

—Acceptance of 12 teacher resignations and the approval of 12 replacement teacher personnel. The majority of resignations were because of pregnancies.

—Approval of an East Carolina University easement request for underground wires across one corner of the Rose High School property.

—Approval of a request by the Pentecostal Holiness Church to use Elmhurst School as a Sunday meeting place while their church is under construction, with the church to compensate for utilities.

—Authorization for Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood to proceed with submitting plans for construction of a building to replace a temporary unit in the rear of Rose High School. Some $50,000 for this has already been committed. This construction will begin immediately after school lets out in June.

Refuse Lift Injunction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court declined today to lift an injunction against an Air Line Pilots Association strike at Piedmont Aviation, Inc.

The court rejected without a hearing the union's argument that federal labor law forbids injunctions to end peaceful strikes. The vote was 6-2.

The pilots struck the airline last July when Piedmont refused to continue three-pilot crews on Boeing 737 jets. Piedmont claimed the third pilot was unnecessary.

The injunction was issued last August by Federal Judge Eugene A. Gordon of Winston-Salem, N.C., and affirmed in September by the U.S. Circuit Court in Richmond, Va. Earlier, Judge Howard F. Corcoran of the District of Columbia had denied a preliminary injunction.

The union claimed it had a right to strike because mediation had failed and a 30-day "cooling-off" period that barred strikes and lockouts had ended. However, the circuit court concluded the union had failed to negotiate in good faith as required by the Railway Labor Act.

Justices Hugo L. Black and Byron R. White voted to hear the union's appeal. The request for at least a hearing fell short by two votes, since four justices must give their consent for one to be held.

Library is being used as a school library for Eppes High School and asked that an expression of appreciation be made to Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian, for the use of this facility.

—Approved make-up for three days at the end of the school year, which will result in a final school day of Monday, June 8, except for Eppes and Sadie Sautter, whose school year will end June 9, due to an additional day lost by each of these schools.

—Asked Principal Glenn Cox to work with Dudley Flood in preparing a preliminary plan for a human relations work shop for both student and faculty; and also to prepare a working plan for the establishment of a student-faculty senate.

—Requested the School Finance Committee to begin correspondence on the matter of collecting penalty clause money from contractors for tardiness in meeting construction dates.

—The superintendent revealed that a number of applications have been received for the Rose High principalship and that files were being compiled on the applicants. "We want to stress we are still open to applicants," Dr. Cleetwood noted. "The more we have to choose from, the better our chances will be of getting a really fine candidate."

—Announced an upcoming survey for getting five year old children in Greenville on file and ready for registration for the coming school year. More information will be published at a later date on this matter.

—Accepted the retirement request of Mrs. Louise Rush, Food Services Supervisor. It was noted Mrs. Rush had stayed on one year past retirement. Applications to fill this vacancy are being sought.

Disappointment Cuts Transplants

"All in all I think the results have been spectacular and very satisfactory," Dr. Denton Cooley of Houston told newsmen Monday.

Cooley performed his 21st transplant last June.

Arab Terrorist Policy Meeting Condemnation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Condemnation of Arab terrorism mounted today in the wake of the ambush of a busload of American Christians in Israel but the Cairo press was defiant.

A State Department spokesman said the U.S. government was shocked. Premier Golda Meir of Israel denounced Arab governments for financing and sheltering Palestinian guerrillas "lacking all conscience and respect for human life."

The Swiss and West German governments also condemned Arab terrorists, but their protests were a result of the crash Saturday of a Swissair jet bound for Tel Aviv in which 47 persons were killed. Arab guerrillas are believed to have set off an explosion that caused the crash.

The busload of American pilgrims was attacked Monday north of Hebron in Israeli-occupied Jordan. The wife of a Baptist minister, Barbara Ertle, 31, of Grandville, Mich., was killed, and two Americans and an Israeli guide were wounded. Mrs. Ertle's husband, Theodore, was sitting next to her but escaped injury.

The wounded women were Tabea Damico, 55, Ventnor, N.J., and Lucille Draper, Buffalo, N.Y. Both were injured slightly in the leg by bullets.

Mrs. Ertle and the two wounded women were sitting on the right side of the bus when a sudden burst of fire came from that side of the road.

Israeli troops began a massive search of the rocky hills in the area.

Hebron is a center of Arab agitation on the Jordan River's West Bank. Terrorists ambushed a bus traveling from Beersheba to Hebron last year and killed one American passenger.

Arab guerrillas have warned foreigners to stay out of occupied territories and have advised Christians not to make pilgrimages to Israel because "we are at war."

Robert W. Becker, a State Department spokesman, said in Washington the U.S. government was awaiting a report from its embassy in Israel but "deplores terrorism against innocent civilians."

Mrs. Meir met with envoys from 18 nations in Jerusalem, then told the Knesset, Israel's parliament, that effective steps must be taken against terrorist organizations "and against those Arab countries from which they come."

In a voice trembling with emotion she told the lawmakers Israel "will do its duty" to protect its air routes. She did not say what steps she planned.

Concentrated B52 Campaign In Eastern Laos

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The United States is waging the Vietnam war's most concentrated B52 bombing campaign in eastern Laos, informed sources said today.

Sources estimated that more than 500 sorties—a sortie is one flight by one bomber—have been flown over the Ho Chi Minh trail so far this month in an effort to slow the movement of North Vietnamese war supplies into South Vietnam.

At the beginning of the month, the sources continued, a target selection panel shifted the emphasis of B52 raids from South Vietnam to North Vietnamese supply depots just across the border in Laos.

"There are now better targets in Laos and more of them there," said one source. "If they are stopped there, they don't get into South Vietnam."

The source said the raids were aimed at "a massive storage area" along the lower half of the Ho Chi Minh trail just across from the A Shau Valley in northern South Vietnam.

There has been no firm assessment of the bombers' effectiveness. But U.S. sources say there has been a "fair number of secondary explosions" indicating direct hits on ammunition and fuel stores.

About 30 bombers, in the eighth consecutive day of heavy strikes in eastern Laos, dropped nearly 900 tons of explosives today.

The U.S. Command does not admit to air activity in Laos and reported only two B52 missions in South Vietnam. It said 10 bombers attacked North Vietnamese base camps in the central highlands.

Battlefield action in South Vietnam was generally light and scattered.

New Uniforms Being Issued Highway Patrol

RALEIGH (AP) — Highway patrolmen in Asheville's Troop F will be issued new winter uniforms today, and the rest of the patrol's 926-man force hope to get theirs soon.

Gov. Bob Scott held a ceremony at the capital Monday to announce the arrival of the first 270 of the new jackets and caps.

The fur-lined caps, and jackets with a thermal, zip-out lining and a fur collar, represent the first change in the patrol's uniform since 1950.

That was when the present short Eisenhower style jacket replaced the traditional coat.

The new uniforms vary only slightly from the current style, and the fur-lined caps will be optional, with troopers continuing to wear the wide-brimmed hats they now use if they want to.

Laird Gives Details On Safeguard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird unveiled today plans to defend a third U.S. missile base with Safeguard antiballistic missiles and to prepare five other sites for possible later expansion of the system.

The plans lay the groundwork for the administration to build at least two-thirds of a $12-billion system that some members of Congress fear will become even more expensive.

Laird, testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, called it "the minimum we can do and must do" to defend against missiles of the Soviet Union and the emerging Red Chinese nuclear threat.

The administration initiated the Safeguard system last year with defenses of two Air Force Minuteman bases at Malmstrom Air Force Base in Montana and Grand Forks Air Force Base in North Dakota.

Under the latest expansion, which will involve annual spending at this point of only $920 million because of the early stage, Laird said the administration plans to:

—Deploy an additional Safeguard defense site at Whiteman Air Force Base, and another Minuteman complex, near St. Louis, Mo.

—Begin advanced preparation work on five other sites "without a deployment commitment" in the northeast, northwest, the Washington, D.C., Warren Air Force Base in Wyoming and in the Michigan-Ohio area.

—Deploy additional short-range Sprint interceptors in the originally defended missile complexes at Grand Forks and Malmstrom.

The primary aim of the Safeguard system is to protect the U.S. retaliatory force against Soviet missiles.

Near Panic, Says Specialist Of Hearings On Pill

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador John Eisenhower has wished Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., "an overwhelming victory" in his re-election campaign this year, squelching a suggestion he oppose Scott in the Pennsylvania Republican primary.

Eisenhower, son of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower and U.S. envoy to Belgium, extended the wish in a letter to Scott released by the senator's office Monday.

The letter apparently was in response to efforts by Charles C. Holt III of Philadelphia to draft Eisenhower to oppose Scott. Eisenhower said Holt apparently misconstrued his failure to return a telephone call about the campaign as consent to go ahead.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cambodia has requested a halt to transmission of diplomatic pouches in or out of Phnom Penh through March 7 unless embassies agree to inspection by the Cambodian government.

Diplomatic sources in Washington said Monday the move probably is occasioned by concern over smuggling of counterfeit Cambodian currency into the country.

State Department officials had no comment on whether the U.S. government considers the request legal or would protest it to Cambodian authorities.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board says airline and private plane safety improved last year despite faster aircraft and increased traffic.

Fatalities in 1969 resulting from airline accidents totaled 158, the lowest since 1967, the board said in a report Monday. It added that 1,388 persons were killed in private plane crashes, 11 fewer than in 1968.

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman birth control specialist told a Senate subcommittee today that its hearings into the safety of the pill had created international panic and prompted a wave of unwanted pregnancies.

Dr. Elizabeth B. Connell of Columbia University said a stepup in pregnancies "strikes profound fear in the hearts of those who deal daily with women and population problems."

She also criticized some of the conclusions reached by witnesses at hearings last month by the Senate monopoly subcommittee. Testimony then linked the pill to scores of suspected side effects, including cancer, fatal blood clotting, diabetes and heart trouble.

"From a purely scientific point of view, much of the information displayed thus far can be likened to the relationship between a drunken man and a lightpost—more for support than for illumination," she said.

Dr. Connell, a mother of six and the first woman to testify at the hearings, said even the most violent of critics of the pill had to concede his data was limited and that many of his conclusions were based on unsupported speculation.

She commented in testimony prepared for delivery before the panel headed by Democrat Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

The subcommittee is resuming for two days hearings on the pill. Dr. Connell was invited to testify at the insistence of Republican members of the subcommittee. Some of the GOP members have said the hearings and others in a three-year probe by Nelson of drug industry pricing and practices have been biased against the industry.

Dr. Connell, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Columbia and director of research and development for its International Institute for the Study of Human Reproduction, said:

"We are just beginning to see the first of the pregnancies of women who panicked in January, stopped their pills, and did not seek or use another means of birth control."

"These women will not be here to testify," she went on, "but they now bear within their bodies mute testimony to the effectiveness of induced fear."

Adding that it was "axiomatic" that illegal abortions also will increase, Dr. Connell said her conclusion that panic had been caused was based on statistics from planned parenthood clinics.

Dr. Connell said the panic she says she has detected may be catastrophic abroad "where the poverty, maternal deaths from abortion and all the consequences of the population explosion are most critical."

Dr. Connell characterized some of the previous testimony on the pill as not only untrue but in some cases "patently ridiculous."

For instance, she said, "with the single major exception of thromboembolic disease—blood clotting—there has been no proven relationship between any of the alterations reported here and the production of permanent damage."

Despite her defense of the pill, another witness indicted it on a new count—that it can cause severe mental depression which he said may end in suicide.

Dr. John R. McCain, an Atlanta, Ga., obstetrician, said emotional or psychiatric problems presented "the most serious potential danger" of 16 major complications he has documented in 52 patients since 1964.

Painting Greene Street Bridge

State Highway Commission bridge maintenance men are in the process of painting the Greene Street Bridge across the Tar River.

Eight men from Pitt's bridge maintenance crew started work last week on the project, which usually takes about six weeks to complete, a spokesman for the group said.

The bridge was painted in 1950, 1957, and in 1962, by the crew, which maintains more than 300 bridges in Pitt County. About 60 gallons of aluminum paint were used to cover the bridge in the 1960 paint project.

The top of the bridge, constructed in 1927, towers about 75 feet above the normal low-water level.

Property Damage Runs High In Day Of Traffic Accidents

Three persons were reported injured in a series of traffic collisions here yesterday that resulted in an estimated $3,370 property damage.

The heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Willie Heber Frizzell, 23 of Route 3, Greenville, and Christine Ensley Boomer, of Route 1, Pantego collided about 5:04 p.m. on U.S. 264 by-pass, 800 feet West of the N.C. 43 intersection.

Investigators, who charged Mrs. Boomer with failing to yield the right of way, placed damage to the Frizzelle car at $1,000 and set damage to the Boomer auto at $900.

A passenger in a car driven by Hubert Dewey Jr., 25, of 1711 B South Pitt St. was injured when the Dewey car collided with a vehicle driven by William Myles Nobles, 45, of 1608 Henry St.

Officers, who charged Nobles with failing to yield the right of way estimated damage to the Nobles vehicle at $400 and set damage to the Dewey car at $800. The mishap occurred at the intersection of Fifth and Hudson Streets at 10:30 a.m.

A 10-year-old bicycle rider and a passenger on the bicycle were injured when the two-wheeled vehicle collided with a car about 5:30 p.m. at the intersection of Third and Cadillac Streets.

Police investigators identified the driver of the car as Barry Woodman Littleton, 25, of 106 B North Meade St.

Operator of the bicycle was listed as Jannie Lee Riddick, 10, of 409 Darden St. and the passenger was listed as six-year-old Angila Denuse Riddick, of 409 Darden St. Both were taken to Pitt Memorial for treatment of injuries received in the mishap.

No charges were placed by investigators who set damage to the car at $100 and placed damage to the bicycle at $10.

The bidding:

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of 10
Today's hand produced an interesting series of trusts and counter-trusts between West and South—the declarer at four spades—with the latter eventually emerging with the decision.

West led the king of diamonds which South won with the ace. Prospects appeared quite dim for the ace of clubs was clearly marked with West, who had bid the suit. Declarer had three minor suit cards to ruff out but, if he tried to trump diamonds early, he was subject to a possible overruff by East.

At the price of using up some of dummy's spades, declarer decided to draw trumps so that he might do his ruffing without interference from the opponents.

Fortunately the spades split two-two. The ace of hearts was cashed and a heart ruffed in the closed hand as West showed out.

The jack of diamonds was led next in order to keep East out of the lead. West's diamond continuation was trumped in the dummy, and South reentered his hand by ruffing another heart. Declarer led his last diamond, and West was permitted to hold this trick as a club was discarded from dummy.

West saw that, if he now cashed the ace of clubs, it might establish declarer's king and thereby permit him to ruff his other club with the dummy's last trump. The only truly effective defense apparently was to give South a ruff and sluff, so West returned another diamond. Declarer could have discarded a club from dummy while he trumped in his hand, but this would permit him to ruff only one club in the dummy and he would still be left with two losers in that suit.

On West's diamond return, South came up with a spectacular but effective counter-stroke. He discarded a second club from dummy and also threw a club from his hand. Altho West now had three tricks, he was unable to take another. If he now led the ace of clubs, dummy would ruff and South's king would be high. If West underled the ace, declarer would win the trick with his king and then trump away his last club.

Attention Parents, Your Teenagers Aren't Infants

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am nearly 15 years old and my parents are all the time giving me big long lectures on what to do and what not to do with my boyfriend. Well, I know enough not to get into any trouble, but what bugs me is when my mother says I shouldn't give a boy a "serious kiss" because it's unsanitary!

I say, "How about you and Dad? YOU kiss, don't you?"

Then she says, "Yes, but we are IMMUNE to each other." Well, they haven't always been immune, have they?

Please answer this in your column. My Mom thinks I am a dumb kid.

NOT SO DUMB

DEAR NOT: There are better reasons for avoiding the "mouth-to-mouth resuscitation-type" kiss at your age. I think your Mom is giving you a kindergarten lecture when a baccalaureate sermon would be more appropriate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure this will sound like one of your more strange letters, but it's true. I wish my husband and his girl friend would make up!

Something evidently happened between them and now he is so miserable, he's practically sick. In turn, he is making me and our children miserable, as well.

When my husband is happy with her, he is happy at home and is so much easier to get along with. I suppose he treats me and the children better out of a guilty conscience, but at least we're treated with consideration and generosity, so it doesn't matter why.

Don't get me wrong. I most certainly do not approve of my husband's having a girl friend, but after all these years, there is nothing I can do about it, and I do not intend to give up all we have accumulated together and let her reap the rewards.

I love him in spite of her. He is all I've ever had and ever want, but somehow he must need her, too. I don't know what's in store for all of us, her husband included, the poor boob. He can't seem to put a stop to it either.

In the meantime, Abby, it's silly, isn't it? Wanting your husband to make up with his girl friend. What can I do?

UNDERSTANDING WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It strikes me that perhaps you're being a little too "understanding." But you know your husband better than I do, so if you are willing to settle for half a loaf, then bide your time, pray for the breaks, and wait for the weather to change. And lotsa luck.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to the home of a relative for supper. Just before leaving our house, she called and asked if we would please stop at the store and pick up a "few items."

We said we would be glad to, and we did. The items cost us $7.00. All we had was $11 to last us until payday, which was a week away, and that person knew we were short on funds when she asked us.

We didn't want to embarrass anybody, so we didn't say anything. How would you have handled the situation?

BROKE

DEAR BROKE: Simple. As I handed over the "items," I would have presented the receipt, with a request for my money.

DEAR ABBY: Re "hippies." My son was a hippie. He would not wash, shave, or have a haircut. If allowed, he would wear his clothes until they fell off him. He performed natural functions in public that are best done in private. If thwarted, he demonstrated with behavior most obnoxious until his wishes were partly met or some other recompense was made.

I say, "was" because since his first birthday he has been giving up these bad habits.

W. J. P.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Strength Is Our Only Hope

We would like to see the nation stop drafting its young men into the armed services, particularly so that they may be able to plan their careers without facing years of doubt about whether or not they might be called upon to serve their country.

We wonder, however, —even as a presidential task force recommends abandoning the draft by mid - 1971 - whether this can be accomplished without seriously weakening our defenses.

The task force recommends an all-volunteer armed force and estimates the first year cost of this $3.3 billion. Much of the added cost would result from pay raises which were recommended for all first term officers and enlisted men, active and reserve, as well as proficiency bonuses. The increases would go into effect July 1.

Of course, the task force can offer no assurance that the raises they propose will entice officers and enlisted men to remain in service and on active duty. They can only hope that the estimated amount will be sufficient. But what if it isn't? In the years ahead it will take a true world crisis to reactivate the draft, so it is likely that the Defense establishment will constantly be calling on Congress for increased appropriations to attract volunteers to the armed forces.

Being drafted is no joy for any young man. Yet we live in the world where there is little enforceable law among nations and thus a strong defense establishment is our only hope at this stage of maintaining peace. Perhaps it should not be that way, but that is the way it is.

We, too, would hope that the draft can gradually be phased out. However, the United States had better be careful how it does it. Setting up a plan to end the draft next year could lead us to a point where we would have adequate manpower to carry out our international commitments. If that happened it might be near impossible to return to a system of drafting for the armed services.

Perhaps Some Good In The Visit By Pompidou

The visit of French President Georges Pompidou may be helpful in smoothing out French and American relations.

Affairs between our two nations have not been ideal during recent years, despite the fact that the United States and France were military allies for decades.

Most recently the two countries seem to be drifting farther and farther apart over their Middle East policies.

The differences have become so pronounced that New York, with a large Jewish population, is omitting its official welcome.

The talks between Pompidou and Nixon are expected to cover a wide field of subjects, although the White House has said Nixon will avoid sensitive subjects.

This is the first meeting between the two world leaders and we can hope it will lead to smoothing out some differences between the two nations.

Tryon Versus The Regulators

By DON BOLDEN

"Fire and be damned!" cried a Regulator.

And with that signal, muskets thundered and smoke covered a once peaceful North Carolina plantation. The serenity of the quiet morning of May 16, 1771, was broken.

On one side of the battleline were North Carolina Royal Governor Tryon and his militiamen.

On the other side were the Regulators, a group of North Carolinians who were risking their lives to oppose the corruption of state officials, unjust taxation by the British, and outright exhortation on the part of county officials.

When these people stood in opposition to these things, Tryon said they were in rebellion, and he marched against them.

The conflict occurred on a plantation located near Great Alamance Creek, and it became known as the Battle of Alamance.

Today, the site is in the bounds of Alamance County on Highway 62 southwest of Burlington, —though at the time the battle of it was in Orange County.

Now, where the blood of Regulators and militiamen stained the farmland, there is a state historic site, with facilities which attract many tourists each year.

In 1971, the site will take on even more prominence, as the battle will be commemorated on its 200th anniversary.

Last year, the Alamance County Historical Association was organized, with a goal of planning of the commemoration accepted as the first project.

The association was the brainchild of W. Cliff Elder of Burlington and George C. Colclough of Elon College.

Under their direction, plans are being formulated for a weeklong commemoration. There will be a pageant each night during the week, and each day will be given special significance.

There probably will be a reenactment of the battle, with local people playing the roles of the participants in the fight which many consider the first battle of the American Revolution.

For many years, the battleground stood bare but for a tall monument which was erected in 1880, though local interest in the site has always been high, in recent years, the state has allocated funds for facilities there, and finally, the battleground was designated a state historic site.

Other attractions at the site now include a museum, which contains many relics found on the battlefield through the years.

There is also a large bronze plaque which maps the battlefield and shows the location of the various units which participated in the battle.

Recently, a house dating back to the 1771 period was given the battleground, and it was moved and reconstructed on the site. The house originally was at Snow Camp in southern Alamance County.

The house now looks as it did in the Regulator period, and, in season, there is even a garden growing beside it.

One of the natural attractions is a large rock in the middle of the battleground. Legend has it that Regulator James Pugh, a noted sharpshooter, took cover behind this rock and killed 15 members of the Tryon force during the battle. Pugh survived the struggle, but later was hanged by the Tryon Government at Hillsborough.

The battlefield now is a peaceful setting-rolling green fields, covered with tall pines. But in 1771, it was a scene of bloodshed and death—a site where the Regulators poured out their lives in support of their principles of freedom which later would lead colonial America to rise up and take its independence from the British.

In 1971, the battle will emphasize festivities rather than war. Plans call for state and national officials to attend the event, and there is a possibility that someone, perhaps a high ranking official will represent Great Britain.

Leon Panetta Vendetta Over

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Leon Panetta, fired last week as civil rights chief of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, was literally hounded out of office by top Administration officials, including Vice President Spiro Agnew.

When Panetta moved to desegregate the higher education system of Maryland, former Maryland Gov. Agnew went to HEW Secretary Robert Finch to complain.

Likewise, when Panetta moved against the public school system of Wichita, Kans., where a clear showing of de jure (officially sanctioned) segregation was made, the White House itself bitterly complained to Panetta's bosses at HEW. Panetta went ahead anyway and cited Wichita for non-compliance.

President Nixon himself has been calling for equal treatment, North and South, in Federal school desegregation efforts. But in one of Panetta's first major actions in the North — at Wichita — the White House rebuked him.

The effort to get rid of Panetta almost came to a head last fall, but collapsed when some high officials at HEW let it be known that if Panetta were fired they might walk out, too.

The leading Panetta-hater then was Atty. Gen. John Mitchell (who derided Panetta behind his back as a "zealot") and his deputy, Richard Kleindienst (who got a venomous earful about Panetta from Robert Mardian, HEW's conservative general counsel, with whom he drove to work every morning). Most of the backstabbing was done out of range of Finch and HEW Under Secretary John Veneman. Both of them regarded Panetta as a major asset to the department who, far from making political trouble, was simply enforcing the law.

Recently, however, White House complaints about Panetta began to come directly to Finch himself. Two weeks ago Panetta, Finch, and Veneman decided that these complaints had reached such a peak that Panetta's ability to operate was becoming compromised. Panetta informed his bosses that under those circumstances he probably should resign.

But he never had a chance. When Southern Congressional sources leaked a story last Tuesday that Panetta was on the way out, the White House called Finch and demanded the resignation at once. It was announced by the White House before Panetta had had a chance to write it. He was fired for obeying the law.

President Nixon's sudden decision to elevate his able young legislative assistant, William E. Timmons, to the important job of chief White House lobbyist was a direct result of the smashing Nixon victory in preserving his veto of the Health, Education and Welfare appropriation bill Jan. 28.

Timmons, a conservative young (39) Tennessee Republican, who worked for Mr. Nixon in both the 1960 and 1968 campaigns, commanded that battle as head of the President's lobby staff in the House. Mr. Nixon had earlier informed top White House aides that he would much prefer elevating one of the five regular members of the White House lobby staff to replace Bryce Harlow than bringing in an outsider. But he wasn't sure the talent was there and was prepared to let Harlow double both as counsellor and chief lobbyist. Timmons's performance on the House vote to override the

Strength For Today

We Have To Stand Straight

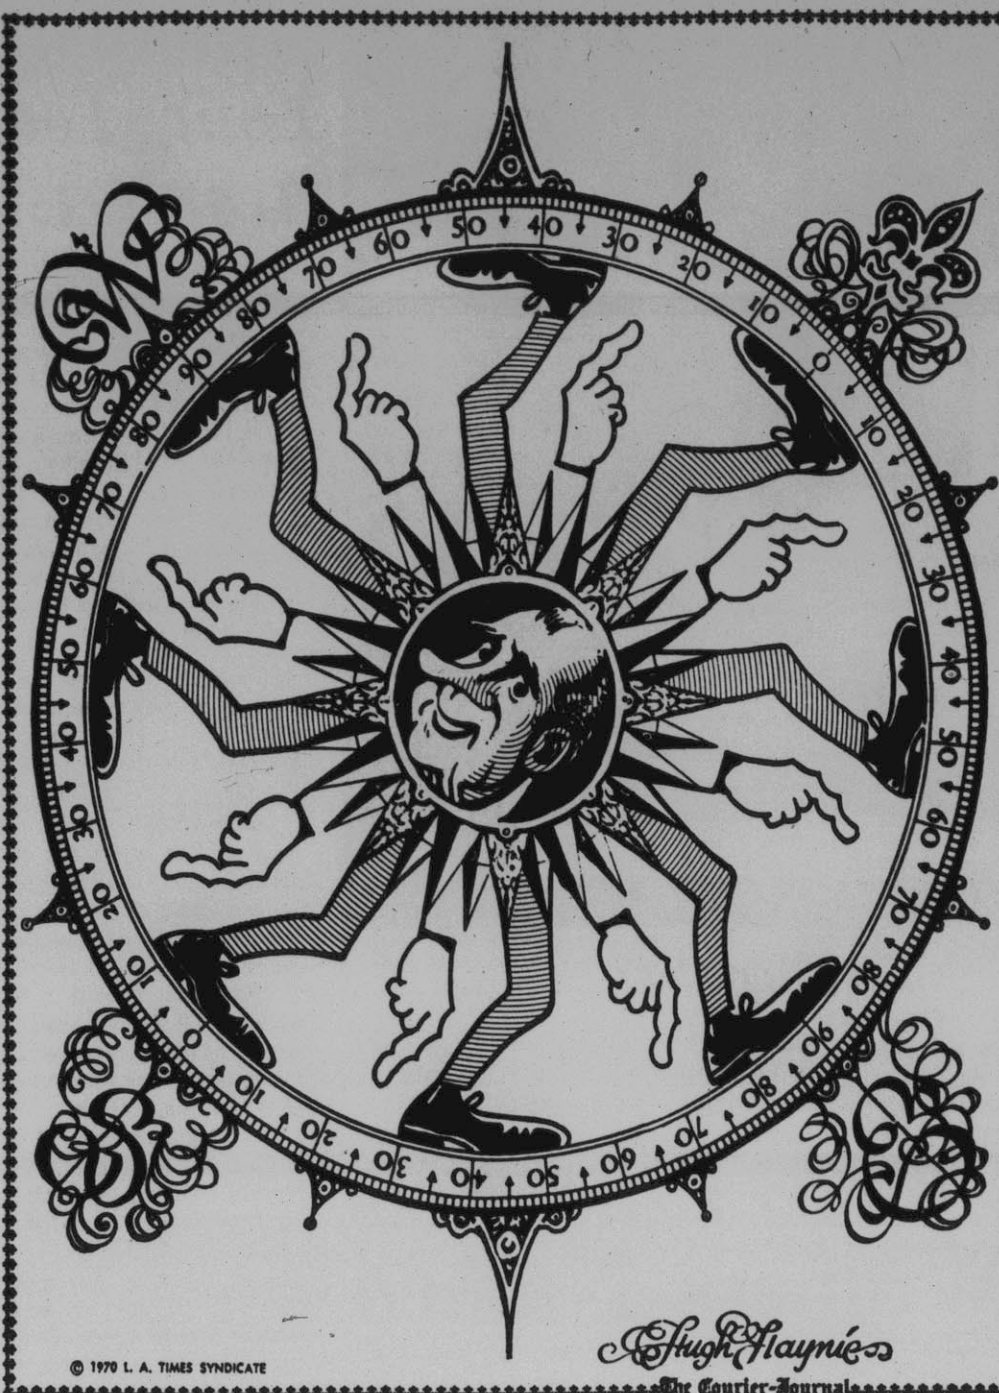

God has made the universe — something so immeasurably vast that the mind of man cannot compass it. Yet, singularly enough, God does not seem to be interested in bigness.

When a moral question is at stake, God does not count noses to see how many are on the side of right. He often gives the victory to mere handfuls of undistinguished folk who defy the pretensions and wrath of multitudes. Often in human history one man has stood against a nation. It has often been said that one man and God constitute a majority. History bears out this contention.

Jesus said on one occasion, "Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them." This means therefore that two or three persons may be right and a nation may be wrong. It means that two or three Christian believers may be doing more for world peace by their prayers and genuine piety than the UN is doing with its hurrah, and frequently, with moral compromise.

Our hopes are centered in the UN. But let us never forget that just as an individual has to stand straight morally, so the UN will have to do the same. Right and wrong sometimes rise above the code of nations and the character of international agreements.

Old Federalism Better

ATLANTA Ga. — There was a time in American politics, bounded roughly by the century between 1750 and 1850, when our political scientists battled one another with pseudonymous broadswords. Newspapers carried long letters from Publius, or Cato, or Algernon Sidney, to which Seneca, Callimachus and Protogoras would venture windy replies.

To speak of them as political scientists is off the mark, for politics is no science. It is at best a rough art, like playing card poker or selling used cars. But if these lusty warriors were not men of science, they were genuinely scholars of political thought. Madison Hamilton and Jay, who wrote the pseudonymous tracts that became The Federalist, were men of first-rate minds. Their forgotten contemporaries were equally steeped in classic thought. It was a quieter time, with no telephones. Such men wrote letters to exercise their minds. Today our statesmen play golf.

The lost art revives. In recent weeks, a new "Publius" has emerged in the White House, in the person of William Safire, and a new "Cato," scarcely concealing the identity of Tom Huston, has stepped forth to break a literary lance with him. I have been flying around the country—if this is Tuesday, it must be Atlanta — reading their essays and yearning to get in the act.

Publius Safire is defending the "New Federalism" of the Nixon administration as a policy of "national localism." Cato Huston is thundering back in the name of "principled convenience." It is an exchange in grand style. But if I were Publitheanthropus, joining the fight, I would opt for the old federalism; and I would strike a blow for political principles that rise above convenience.

One hopes, forlornly, that Nixon is following the in-house battle between his speechwriters, reading their stuff, and urging them on. Safire and Huston are dealing here with fundamentals of political life: the nature of power, the locus of power, the checks upon power, the uses of power. They understand, both of them, that power is what the game is all about. Cato Huston understands it more clearly, and he has the better of the duel; but Publius Safire is an able opponent.

Safire's idea, in the New Federalism, is to dress an old girl in a new dress. States' rights, he suggests, should be viewed as State duties, and it come when we can wait no longer to repair the damage already done, and to establish new criteria to guide us in the future." This sense of urgency is a necessary ingredient of the new program. Complacency has for too long robbed us of what should have been instituted years ago: a sane, long-range program for controlling pollution of our total environment.

There should be no misunderstanding about the costs of such an effort. Peanuts won't buy for us the kind of environment we need. But its no longer a question of whether we are investing in some kind of luxury. This is life insurance.

"The task of cleaning up our environment calls for a total mobilization by all of us," President Nixon declared. "It cannot be a matter of simply sitting back and blaming someone else. This task is ours together. It summons our energy, our ingenuity and our conscience in a cause as fundamental as life itself."

We can hardly imagine Richard Nixon losing any votes because of his efforts in this direction.

Clues To Your Status

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—In a civilization where prestige is almost everything, it pays to make a periodic checkup of how your own is faring.

For example, your status is still probably on the upgrade if—

When a neighbor comes over to borrow a cup of gin, he stays respectfully outside the back door for fear of tracking dirt on your new kitchen rug.

In contributing to an office collection, you reach for your billfold instead of scrounging through the coins in your side pocket.

If you go to the funeral of a prominent man, your name is printed as being one of the mourners.

When ordering a foreign wine at a restaurant, you can pronounce it without the waiter either looking mystified or smirking up his sleeve.

If the executive vice president of your firm gets new draperies in his office this month, you know that next month you'll get some too—and without having to ask.

Instead of having to depend on the stenographic pool, you have two secretaries for your very own self—one to look at, one to do the work.

Your wife still feels she is entitled to call you by your nickname when the two of you are alone, but in public she invariably refers to you as "Mister—"

Before starting to repair the potholes along your block, a foreman from the street department phones to apologize for the noise his work gang will make.

No longer is your wallet stuffed with dozens of credit cards. You carry a single credit card rated so highly it will buy you anything except passage through St. Peter's gate.

You don't have coffee breaks. They are for the white collar peasants. What you have twice a day are "broker breaks," when your stockbroker phones to give you his latest inside tips.

When you start to tell a joke at the office water cooler, the faces of the hangers-on there begin to twitch prematurely—so they'll be sure to be ready to chuckle or laugh appreciatively when you reach the punchline.

The robins don't sing outside your bedroom windows until noon on Saturdays and Sundays because they don't want to disturb your weekend slumbers.

Quotes

Perhaps the least praiseworthy part of the American way of life, these days, is the conclusion of psychiatrists, doctors and health experts in all fields, that the fast pace of living in the United States is one of our most serious problems." — Beach Haven, N. J., Times.

Mutual Funds Losing Glamor

By ELMER ROESSNER

Real estate trusts are likely to become the new pop investment. Mutual funds are momentarily in disfavor. All but a handful of mutual funds lost money last year. They paid heavy fees to advisors, few of whom foresaw the decline in the stock market, the very foresight they were collecting fees to have.

So the new excitement is real estate trusts, which are very much like mutual funds except that their investments, instead of being in stocks, are largely in real estate and mortgages. A sin the depression showed in the thirties, real estate values hold up far longer than stock market prices do.

Connecticut General Insurance Corp. this week announced plans to market $100 million shares in a new real estate investment trust. The insurance company registered 50,000 $2,000 shares with the Security and Exchange Commission. The $100 million will be invested largely in long-term realty situations, half on mortgages and half on equities.

Kickers For Kicks

It appears that Connecticut General has its eye on "kickers," a term that covers a lot of extra profits in the mortgage market. Kickers may be a percentage of any increase in rents of mortgaged property, some percentage for advancing the mortgage, and other gimmicks to increase the return above the apparent interest rate.

Connecticut General should not be frowned at for seeking kickers. Everybody with lending money insists on them. In fact, if Connecticut General did not demand them, some stockholder might sue alleging that his equity was being wasted.

Meanwhile several big New York banks are considering launching really investment trusts and soon they may be popping up all over the country.

More Look-Aheads

And here are other look-aheads in business:

The General Electric strike settlement will be expensive, not only for GE but Westinghouse, rubber companies and auto makers. Unions are talking up the fat GE settlement as a floor, and demanding that other wage agreements go up from there.

There's an about-face in inventory planning. As reported here, many companies have been working off inventories because it costs to carry them. Interest on investment in inventories runs 8 per cent more, and costs of rent, insurance, protection, etc., may be half as much again. However, the threat of decline in the stock market, the very foresight they were collecting fees to have.

Sees Overreaction To Pollution Threat

WINSTON - SALEM (AP) — Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, one of President Nixon's science advisors, believes some conservation enthusiasts have overreacted to the pollution threat.

"We have been inconsiderate of the environment in the past," DuBridge said Monday at a Winston - Salem symposium. "But in recent years we have improved. Now, with federal interest and growing public interest we're going to turn this thing around."

DuBridge said some conservationists, in their zeal to awake concern among the apathetic, have depicted a black future for the environment that he could not accept.

Some localities indeed are faced with decaying environments, he said. But the government is taking action now to prevent the spread of environmental decay.

DuBridge said some of what he called the overreaction probably was necessary to capture public attention and train it on the need to combat pollution before it becomes generalized.

DuBridge appeared at North Carolina Bell System's 1970 Engineers Week Symposium.

He pointed to suits brought by the U. S. attorney general against 16 firms accused of polluting the air and water in Chicago and Gary, Ind., as examples of the Nixon administration's determination to check pollution.

Other cases will follow, he predicted, and the administration will push for new antipollution legislation. George E. Symons, editor of Water and Wastes Engineering, a trade journal, agreed with DuBridge that some conservationists were sometimes guilty of decrying pollution evils without checking their facts.

Despite the claim that Lake Erie is dead water, said Symons, the lake produces a larger fish crop than the other Great Lakes and still supplies drinking water for many cities.

Opines U.S. Can't Afford 'Wretched'

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The chairman of the North Carolina Good Neighbor Council, Brooks Hays, says America cannot survive "four-fifths affluent and one-fifth wretched."

"If Americans continue to view this as someone else's problem, they will have to meet the wrath of historical vengeance," Hays said Monday night. "We have almost sinned away a 100-year day of grace."

The former Arkansas congressman spoke before a short course for newsmen at the University of North Carolina. In addition to his post on the Good Neighbor Council, which works for racial amity, Hays is director of the Ecumenical Institute at Wake Forest University.

Hays said young people who are "challenging society's conventional wisdom" today are taking one of two directions — either "opting out" or following the path of activism and militancy.

Hays said the activists and militants "participate vigorously in the life around them to advance" the causes they believe in.

He said the reaction of "elder white America" to the restlessness of the young has often been one of considerable apprehension.

"If young people, black or white, are to regain their sense of identification with the mainstream of American society, that mainstream will have to show them that it is prepared to make the kind of commitment necessary to deal meaningfully with America's problems, both at home and abroad," Hays said.

He said that unless Americans can "achieve that sense of commitment and national dedication to human values, America will be torn asunder from within and without ..."

Food Service At UNC Said Up To Students

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The future of food service at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill depends on the students, a UNC official says.

The company which has been providing it is pulling out after its contract expires May 27. It has been beset by labor troubles.

Joe Eagles, vice chancellor for business and finance, said Monday night that a questionnaire will be circulated on campus soon to determine how many students would probably patronize the dining halls if they were kept open.

Speaking on the weekly "North Carolina News Conference" program on educational television, Eagles said the university has "an obligation to provide services which the students indicate they want."

But he said a recent decision to let students keep refrigerators in their dormitory rooms and a nationwide trend away from on-campus dining are causing a severe drop in patronage at campus dining halls.

Last week a report on the situation written by Eagles was presented to the UNC trustees. In the report he said each of the 6,000 students living on campus spends only about $5 a week in the campus cafeterias.

Eagles recommended that the university not try to operate its own dining facilities again when the present contractor, SAGA Inc., leaves.

UNC gave up operation of its own cafeterias last spring after a strike by food service workers. SAGA took over in the fall, but announced it would give up the contract in the wake of a month-long food workers strike.

Eagles said if the dining halls are closed altogether, the university would give priority to food workers when other campus jobs became available. But he said the university would not have enough jobs for all the workers.

Nomination For Kivett

Frank Kivett, executive director of the Mid-East Economic Development Commission of Washington, has been nominated for the position of vice president of the National Association of Development Organizations.

Kivett's nomination came during a recent meeting of the NADO board of directors in Washington, D.C. All nominations will be voted on during the annual meeting in March in Atlanta, Ga.

Roy Fogle of New Bern, executive director of the Neuse River Regional Planning and Development Council, was nominated to a two-year term on the board of directors.

NADO, an affiliate of the National Service to Regional Councils, is an organization from across the U.S.

Other affiliates include the National League of Cities and the National Association of County Officials.

UNUSUAL APPETIZER
LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — The food didn't improve at Nick's restaurant, but truck drivers suddenly started arriving in droves. They came to be served by blonde Diane Belle, who waited on tables wearing a see-through negligee. The police forced Nick to scratch the added attraction off the menu.

Texas multi-millionaire H. Ross Perot has privately informed Democratic leaders that he will offer his immense wealth and growing prestige to neither the Democratic nor the Republican party, but instead will remain rigidly non-partisan.

The meeting between Perot and the Democrats took place Feb. 5 in Miami Beach just before the Democratic fund-raising gala. Confering with Perot in a suite at the Fontainebleau Hotel were former Vice President Hubert Humphrey, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, and Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, the Democratic national chairman.

The very fact that Perot had come to Miami Beach with a plane full of Texans for the $5,000 - a - ticket affair had raised some eyebrows. Many Republicans had assumed Perot was a conservative with pro - Republican leanings. When Perot agreed to attend the Miami Beach fund-raiser, Democrats greedily eyed his energy and his bankroll.

But Perot informed them he would be strictly non-partisan. His goal, he explained, is to energize the public to take more interest in public affairs and get involved in major issues. His hiring of astronaut Frank Brrman and his plans for a "Forum of the Air" on national radio and perhaps television are parts of the campaign, Perot explained.

The Democrats were amazed. "I had expected a real conservative, but Perot sounded like a liberal Democrat," one party leader commented.

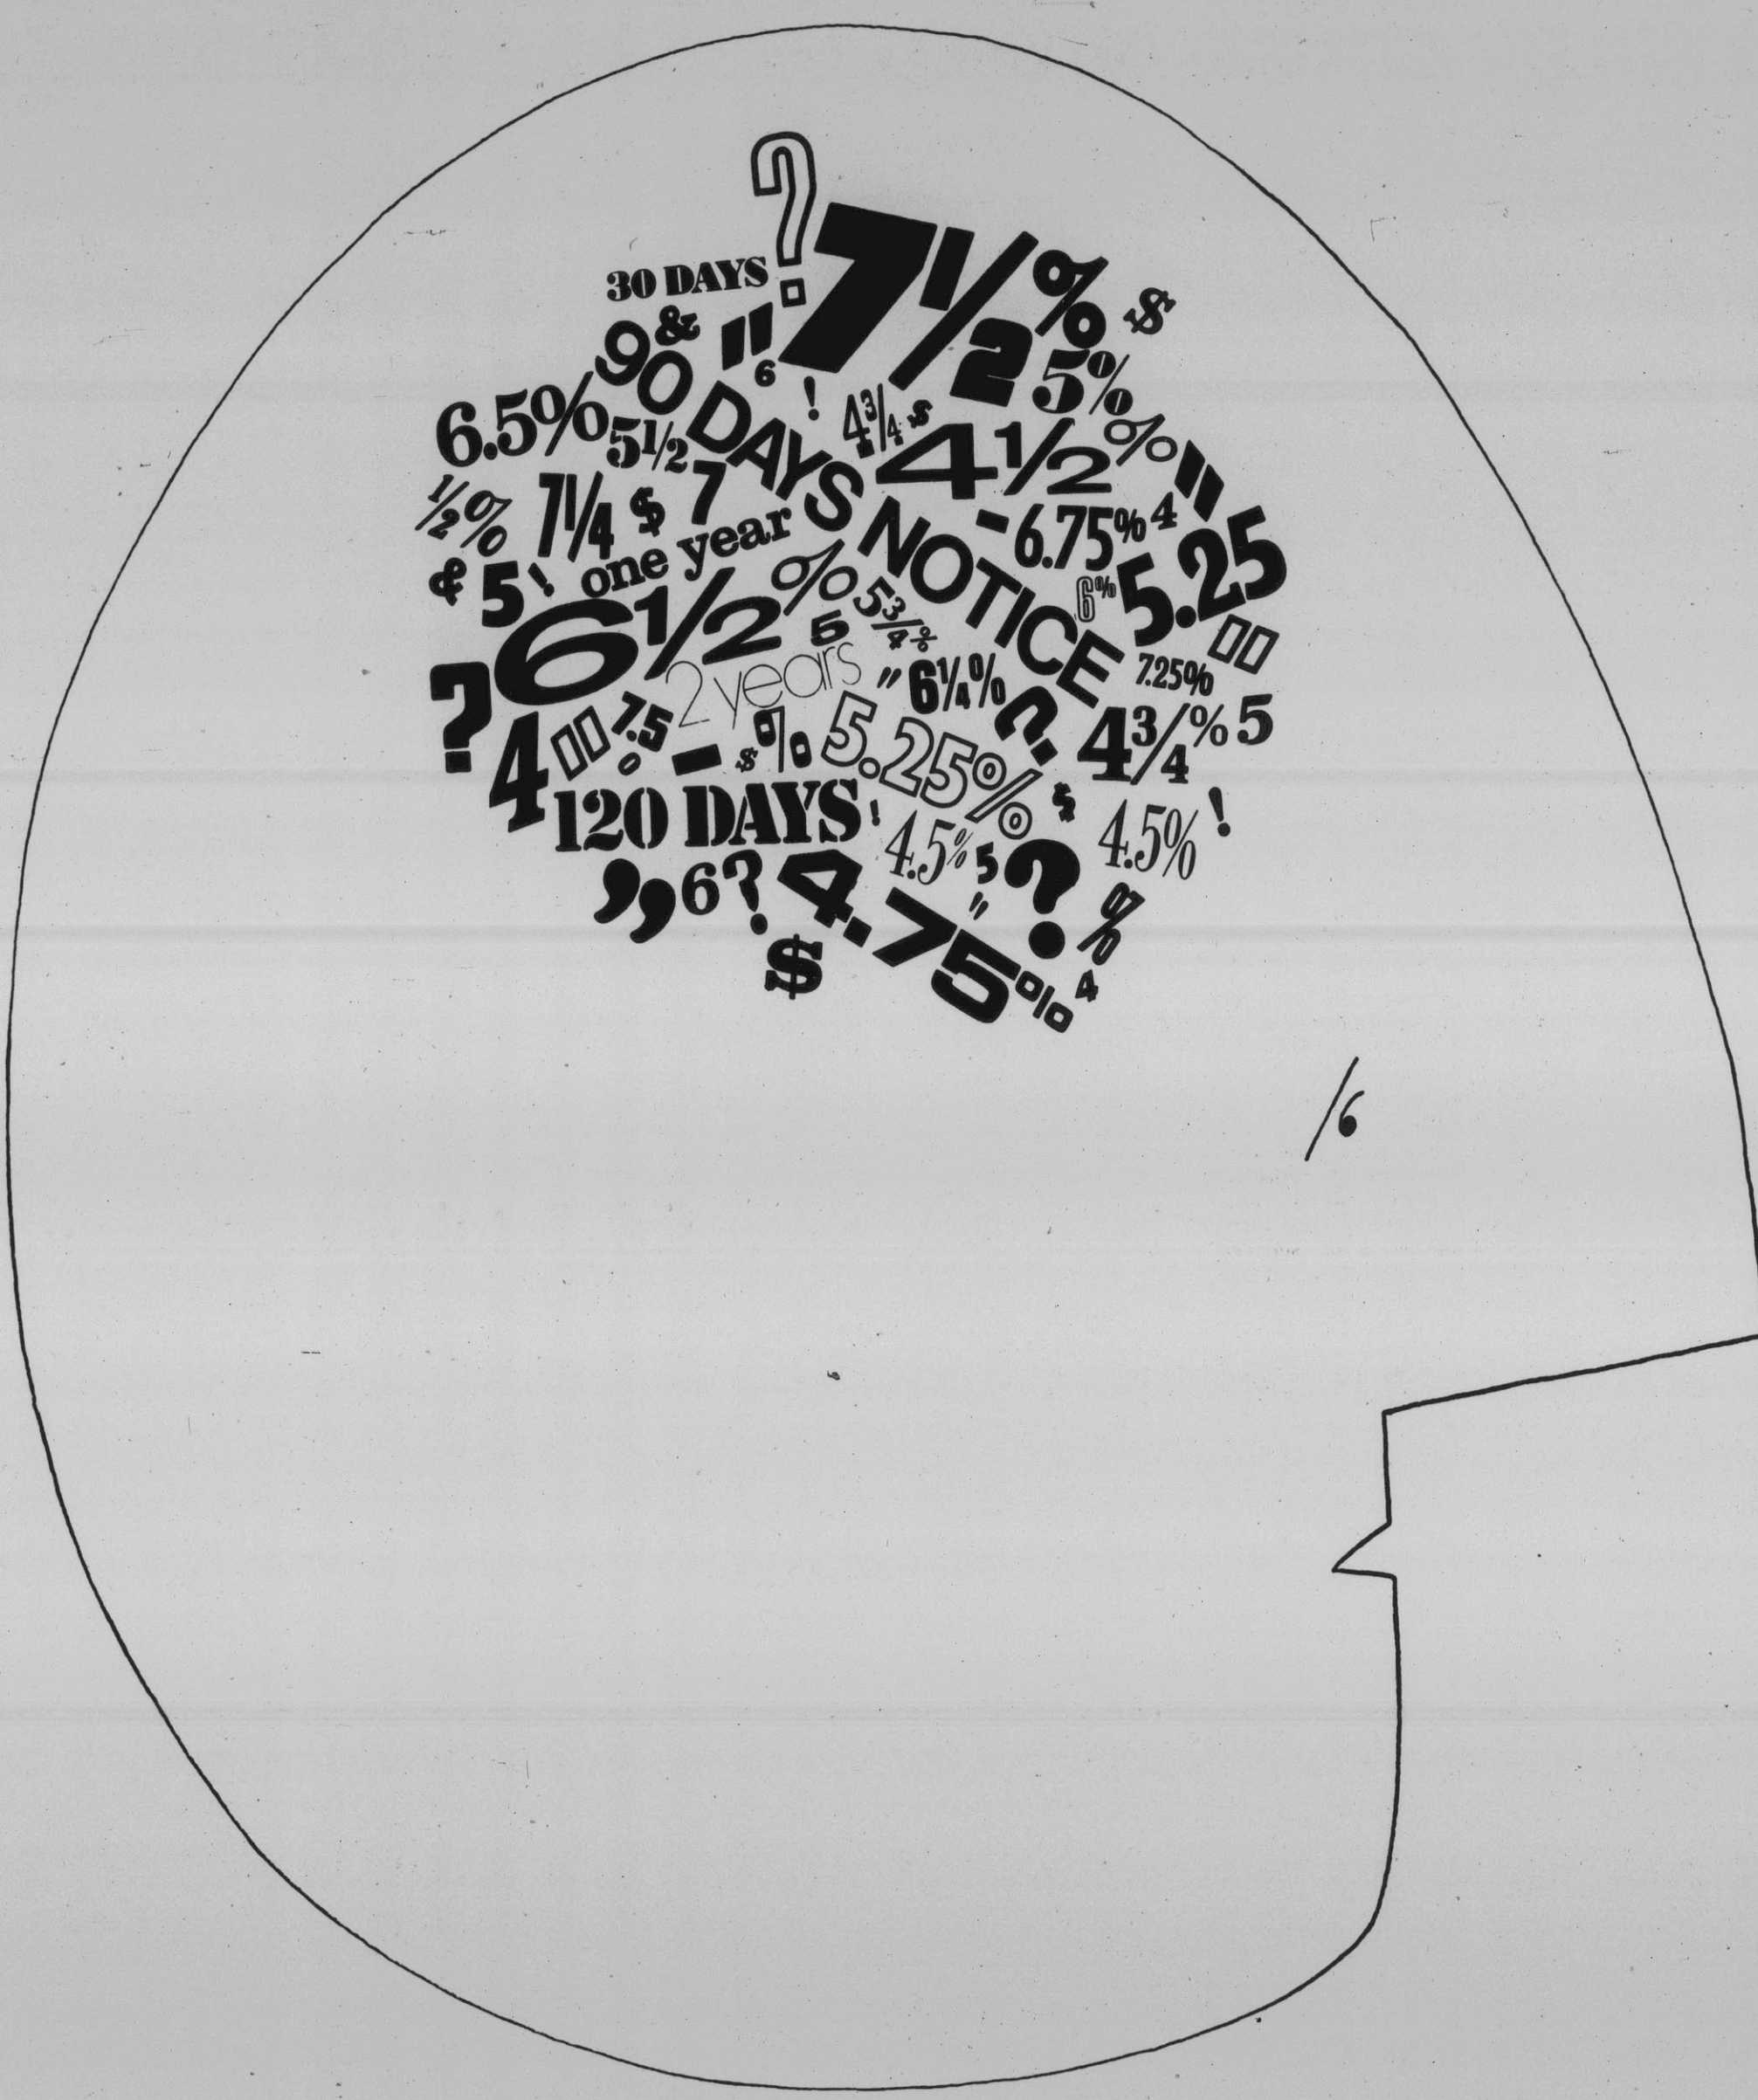

Kilpatrick . . .

is the function of the national government to define them. His national localism would give the States and cities increasing authority, but it would not transfer ultimate power. "National localism says to communities, 'Do it your way,' adding coolly, 'but do it.'"

Plainly, this new dress is an old muu-muu. Beneath the flowery yard-goods, nothing of the old federalism can be perceived. As Huston properly points out in his riposte, "no man is free who lacks the power to say No." If the national government is to assume authority to define all national needs in terms of a national conscience, and to grant the States no more than a right to go along or be overrun, the prettiest rhetoric cannot disguise the end result: We wind up with all the power that means anything in the national government. The States are reduced to impotence.

This is precisely what has been happening over the past forty years. The trend is what many of us hoped Nixon would resist, not disguise. And to give the President his due, he is himself a pragmatist, not a philosopher; he knows more of power than Safire and Huston put together, and his political instincts are more finely honed. Nixon knows how necessary it is, every day of his life, to fly by the seat of his pants. Political decisions, in actual practice, cannot be tailored closely to the pins and chalk-marks of philosophers down the hall. Which is to say that Nixon's federalism will be whatever he can wring from Wilbur Mills.

The Pitt County Tournament opens tonight at the Winterville High School gym, with three games on tap. Elsewhere, the Martin County Conference starts its play Wednesday in Williamston, while the Eastern Plains 2-A opens tonight at several locations, and the Albemarle starts at Plymouth.

Three games are planned for Winterville's gym tonight in the Pitt loop tournament. In the first, the Grifton and Stokes girls meet at 6:30 p.m. That will be followed at 8 p.m. by Ayden and Stokes in a boys battle. The evening winds up at 9:30 with Belvoir and Winterville meeting in a girls clash.

Player Of The Week

Jim Fairley, East Carolina's sophomore star, was named as Southern Conference Player of the Week today by the Southern Conference News Bureau. Fairley was chosen for the honors after being chosen runner-up for four weeks during the year. He is the second Buc to be honored this year. Tom Miller also received the selection earlier this year.

Kentucky Regains Top In AP's Basketball Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky is back atop the college basketball heap for the first time in eight weeks, which is just fine with Adolph Rupp—until the next four weeks go by. "Naturally, we're delighted to be there," the Baron said Monday night after his Wildcats deposed UCLA by a whisker as the nation's No. 1 team in the weekly Associated Press poll. "We just hope we're up there when March 20 comes along."

Rupp's target date happens to be the night of the NCAA championship game, which could pit the Wildcats against the defending champion Bruins.

UCLA's stunning 78-65 loss to Oregon last Saturday night, which snapped the Bruins' unbeaten streak at 25 games several hours after Kentucky outgunned Louisiana State and Pistol Pete Maravich 121-105, helped put the 'Cats on top for the first time since Dec. 29.

Kentucky received 14 first-place votes, to 11 for UCLA, and outpointed the Bruins 534-532 in the weekly ballot of a panel of 29 sportswriters and sportscasters. The Wildcats, who won twice last week, and the Bruins each took 21-1 records into this week's play.

St. Bonaventure, 19-1 through last weekend's games, remained in third place, followed by South Carolina, New Mexico State, Jacksonville, Pennsylvania, Marquette, Iowa and Florida State, in that order. South Carolina received three first-place ballots and Jacksonville got the other.

Kentucky was No. 1 until the poll of Jan. 5, when UCLA moved up following a 108-77 romp over high-ranked Notre Dame. The Wildcats had nipped the Irish 102-100 six days earlier. UCLA held the top spot until Monday, tightening its grip after Kentucky was upset by Vanderbilt 89-81 on Jan. 31.

Until they bowed at Eugene, Ore., the Bruins were the only unbeaten major power. Except for the flip-flop at the top, the order of the first seven teams was the same as last week. Florida State, beaten 85-81 by Jacksonville, dropped from the No. 8 spot to 10th; Marquette and Iowa moved up from 10th and 11th, respectively, and Davidson dipped from No. 9 to No. 11.

Completing the Second Ten, in order, are Western Kentucky, Notre Dame, North Carolina State, Houston, Drake, Kansas State, Columbia, North Carolina and Utah State.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points awarded for first 15 places, based on 20-18-16-12-10-9-8-etc.:

2. UCLA (11) 532
3. St. Bonaventure 420

Pirate Soph No Longer Bridesmaid Of The Loop

"The Bridesmaid" finally made it down the aisle.

Jim Fairley was named today as the Southern Conference's Athlete of the Week. It marked the second time this year an East Carolina player has been chosen for the honor Tom Miller was earlier named to the position.

For Fairley, however, it came as something that he had been within grasp of for some time. Four times this year, including three straight weeks, he was named runner-up for the selection. But this week, as he led the Pirates to second place in the Southern's final standings, he got to the top of the heap. He nosed out the other outstanding sophomore in the conference, Brian Adrian of Davidson, for the honor.

During the week, Fairley hit on 15 of 28 shots from the floor for a fine .536 percentage. He earned eight of 12 free throws, and pulled down 27 rebounds. That gave him 38 points for the week, a 19-point average for the three games.

Fairley's overall field goal percentage, and his rebound average rank him third in the conference in each category.

Against The Citadel on Saturday, he had his best night of the week. He scored 24 points and pulled down 17 rebounds. He had scored 14 and picked off 10 rebounds against William and Mary earlier in the week.

Now, Fairley and the Pirates face Richmond, one of two Southern teams to have beaten them during the season. That comes in the first round of the loop's tournament, starting Thursday in Charlotte.

"Jim has been very consistent throughout the season," his coach, Tom Quinn said. "His steady improvement from game-to-game has qualified him as one of the future stars of the Southern Conference."

"With increased stamina and added weight, Jim will become a better defensive player and an ever greater rebounder. By next year, we also expect him to be a good corner shooter, too."

Fairley has come a long way in a year. Last season, as a freshman, he performed only adequately. This year, however, he has blossomed into a fine player, and is well on his way to becoming one of the best oever for the Pirates.

So far this year, he has scored 419 points, better than a 16-point average. He has pulled down over 300 rebounds, and is within easy reach of the single season ECU record set last year by Jim Gregory.

One thing is for sure. Fans, coaches and sportswriters are all going to be taking a good look at Fairley come Thursday when the Bucs take the floor for their meeting with Richmond.

Bang, bang, bang!

The lower ranked teams went right down the line last night in the City Basketball League and pulled off three straight upsets. Watson Electric beat Campus Corner, 65-48; ROTC beat Coca-Cola, 50-48, and the Jaycees stopped Book Exchange, 64-62. It was the last game of the regular season.

Tournament play is scheduled to start Wednesday, but one tie will have to be resolved before then. Book Exchange, 12-3, will get a bye in the first round, as will the team to be seeded second. That will be decided by a coin toss between Coca-Cola and the Jaycees, both 10-5. The loser will meet sixth-place Watson Electric, 2-13, at 8:15 Wednesday in the first round of the tournament. The other game, at 7 p.m. will pit Campus Corner, 6-9, against ROTC 5-10.

In the opener, Watson pushed out into a 33-23 lead at the half. Then, in the second half, Watson continued to pull away, dumping in 32 points to 25 for Campus Corner.

Tommy Jamieson led Watson with 16, while Carawan Wainwright had 15, Sam McDonald had 14 and Jim Woods had 14. Campus Corner was led by Ed Carlton with 13 and Ted Whitely with 12.

ROTC built up enough of a lead to win in the first half of its game. The team led at the half 28-22, then held off a Coke rally. Coke outhit ROTC, 26-22, but it wasn't quite enough.

Ashby Elmore led ROTC with 17, while Gary Schaal had 15 and Joe Johnson had 10. For Coke, John Lynn had 25 and Lindsay Hardee had 11.

In the final game, the Jaycees used the same method to gain their win. They built up a 35-24 lead in the first half of play, then held off The Exchange for their win. The Exchange scored 38 points to 29 for the Jaycees, but again, couldn't catch up.

Tex Everett led the Jaycees with 33 points and Bob Haubenreiser added 11. For the Exchange, Johnny Hardison had 20, and Charles Whitehurst had 14.

Cavaliers In Upset Of Duke

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Virginia Cavaliers provided the surprise Monday night in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

After losing their first 10 league games, the Cavaliers have staged a tardy comeback to win their last three games, Monday's against the fourth-place Duke Blue Devils.

The loss meant an even 6-6 record for Duke in ACC play and a 3-10 mark for Virginia.

Virginia triumphed with three sophomores and two juniors playing the whole game. The Cavaliers first went in front in the second half at 41-40, while the Blue Devils were struggling for six minutes without making a point.

But Duke crept back up to tie at 51-51 before Virginia went ahead for good on a free throw by Frank DeWitt with five minutes to go.

Neither team plays tonight, but Duke travels to Raleigh to meet the nationally 14-ranked North Carolina State Wolfpack in both teams' second-last game of the season. Virginia finishes the regular season at Maryland Saturday.

Elsewhere Monday night, ACC teams reacted true to form. South Carolina, ranked No. 4 nationally, piled up its 13th straight ACC triumph, 67-51 over Wake Forest, 67-51.

The Gamecocks traded the lead four times until John Roche pushed through a goal with about 11 minutes to play to give South Carolina the lead for good. The victory was the Gamecocks' 22nd this season, with only 2 losses. The mark is a school record.

With the regular-season period under their wings and top tournament seeding guaranteed, the Gamecocks rest until Saturday, when they wind up the regular season at home against North Carolina State.

Hunger Behind Irritability?

Nina is a modern twin for the heroine in Shakespeare's classic, "The Taming of the Shrew." Consciously, she didn't know why she kept nagging her husband constantly. But "nagging" is a clever device that wives subconsciously evolve to prod their mates into a "laying on of hands."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE M-537: Nina G., aged 28, is in trouble.

"Dr. Crane," her husband told me, "Nina is a nagging wife."

"She constantly keeps picking on me. Nothing I ever do seems to please her."

"And the more I give in to her, the worse she nags."

"My friends think I am a perfect 'doormat' under her feet and I guess they are about right."

"What makes a wife become such a nagging shrew?"

Hunger is one of the basic reasons for general irritability, as well as nagging wives.

But after the age of 40, many men also become nagging husbands!

At the zoo, if a papa lion hasn't been fed, he will bat his own cubs around and snarl at his mate.

But feed him a few pounds of raw beef and what happens?

Why, he becomes almost as docile as a housecat!

His cubs may then climb over his back and even nip at his ears but he doesn't protest seriously.

In the modern American home, gastric hunger is not very evident.

Nina has access to her own cooking and her husband indulges her with a very liberal allowance for running the house. So she has plenty of food of the dinner table sort.

In which case, what is her basic hunger?

It is erotic, for her husband had never been instructed in the proper marital technique.

"But, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "you tell us that women are not as hungry for eroticism as men."

Quite true, but they are hungry for their more limited quota, just as they also aren't as desirous of gastric calories as men, but they still crave 2,000 dinner table calories daily.

After the honeymoon and the first baby has arrived, wives are barely 25 percent as hungry for complete erotic satisfaction as are their mates.

But they do crave satisfaction of that 25 percent hunger!

Yet most husbands rarely if ever fulfill their wives' infrequent appetite for erotic satiety.

So a sexually hungry wife will nag at her husband in the vague hope of arousing him, even in anger, to a laying on of hands.

Naughty children often engage in similar "provocative naughtiness" though they know it may lead to a spanking.

For such youngsters are hungry to take corporal punishment in order to regain the spotlight on the family stage.

Shakespeare also understood this case of sexual nagging when he wrote "The Taming of the Shrew."

Remember, an erotically hungry wife often doesn't consciously know what she craves. But subconsciously she picks on her mate, hoping he will seize her and even shake her till her teeth rattle.

For intuitively she realizes that if she can prod her mate into such vigorous physical contact, he may also grow erotic and satisfy her unexpressed erotic hunger.

Speaks To Association

James B. Mallory, Dean of Men at East Carolina University, spoke to the 40 members and guest attending the February meeting of the Pitt County Association of Life Underwriters on Friday.

Mallory, utilizing the critical drug situation as his topic, urged members to be aware of possible drug usage in all areas of society, especially involving their own children.

The former professional baseball player cautioned that contrary to the belief that drug users are found primarily in the ghettos, drug abuse is becoming more prevalent in other aspects of society, mainly in our public schools and colleges.

Mallory gave the alarming statistic that only ten per cent of the people who get "hooked" on heroin ever "kick the habit."

Association president Ray Nichols presided at the luncheon meeting.

CapPistol Bandit Surrenders After Chase

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Police swooped in on a bank bandit wielding a cap pistol and forced him to surrender $6,350 and two hostages taken during an afternoon holdup Monday at a Charlotte branch of North Carolina National Bank.

The hostages—David Arthurs, bank manager, and Rachel Warwick, a customer service employee—were unharmed after a two-mile flight during which the gunman held the toy pistol to Mrs. Warwick's neck and forced Arthurs to drive toward a freeway.

Police charged 38-year-old James Crosby Graham with two counts of kidnaping and held him in the city jail. The FBI was called into the case to handle any charges arising from the holdup.

Arthurs and Mrs. Warwick told police a man emerged from a bank restroom about 5:05 p.m., just a few minutes after closing time at the eastern Charlotte branch bank.

The man brandished what appeared to be a pistol and ordered Mrs. Warwick to have a teller fill a shopping bag he was carrying, the two hostages said after their release.

He then put his pistol to Mrs. Warwick's neck and ordered her out with him through a back door. Arthurs said he followed the two and took the wheel of a car in the parking lot as the bandit threatened to shoot the slight, gray-haired woman.

"He said to go to Interstate 85 and that if I didn't do what he said he'd kill Mrs. Warwick," Arthurs recounted later. "He had his gun at her neck."

But police, FBI and Highway Patrol cars had been alerted and it was only minutes later that two Charlotte policemen raced up behind the getaway car and followed it into a parking lot.

Arthurs got out of the car and walked over to a patrol car to talk with police. The police, afraid to move for fear of provoking the bandit into shooting Mrs. Warwick, held their distance.

After a tense 10-minute wait, the gunman, a ski mask pulled down over his head, eased out of the car with his hands up.

The police rescued Mrs. Warwick, pale with fright but without a scratch, and recovered all the loot. About $500 had been stuffed into the gunman's shirt pocket; the rest was still in the shopping bag.

It was then police realized the bandit's only weapon was a toy pistol.

RALEIGH (AP)—The executive committee of the Consolidated University of North Carolina trustees will discuss March 13 a federal demand for greater racial mix on its campuses.

The full board of trustees listened without comment Monday as university President William Friday presented the federal report to them.

Friday's report simply recalled that a directive from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare made public several weeks ago had been received by him and relayed to the trustees in a memorandum.

The directive called for steps—mainly increased recruiting among Negroes—to increase racial mixing at the university's main campus at Chapel Hill, its branch at Greensboro and at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

Friday said that since then, HEW teams have visited UNC campuses at Charlotte and Wilmington, but no reports on those visits have been received. He made no mention of the campus.

DOUBLE FOURTH

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI)—Rhode Islanders celebrate Independence Day twice a year, May 4 and July 4. The state was the first to declare its independence of Great Britain—on May 4, 1776.

At the end of its regular meeting, the board went into executive session for about five minutes. But Friday said after the session that the HEW action was not discussed.

He said the purpose of the closed-door session was to discuss the awarding of honorary degrees and the selecting of a recipient for an annual university award.

Gov. Bob Scott, chairman of the trustees, left after the regular meeting ended. Scott received a letter from HEW last week directing North Carolina to take steps to increase racial mix at all state-supported institutions.

In other action, the trustees: —Approved the appointment of Nelson Ferebee Taylor, a New York attorney, as vice president of administration for the consolidated university.

Taylor, 49, an Oxford, N. C., native, graduated from UNC in 1942 and from Harvard law school in 1949 and then attended Oxford University in England as a Rhodes scholar.

He will serve as the principal liaison officers of the university with the trustees and as the university's principal officer on legal matters.

—Went on record objecting to a reduction by the Advisory Budget Commission in the projected enrollment for the university's health schools.

The cut of 23 for the first year of the next biennium and 21 for the second would mean a reduction in funds allocated for the schools. They have about 3,000 students this year.

The commission said the cuts in projected enrollments were made because they could not be met without lowering standards, accepting more out-of-state students, or interfering with potential enrollments at private schools.

The chairman of the trustees' committee on health affairs, George Watts Hill of Durham, said there was "not a shred of evidence" to support these predictions.

More Observers Attend Meetings

Increasing evidence of public interest in meetings of official agencies and boards in Greenville was illustrated last night at the monthly meeting of the Greenville City School Board.

Where normally only members of the Board of Education are on hand for the regular monthly meetings, several observers sat in on last night's proceedings.

Those present last night were: Mrs. Aline Hamblen, representative of the League of Women Voters; Mrs. Helen Parks, Greenville Writers Club; Mrs. J.L. Sledge, president of Classroom Teachers, North Carolina Teachers Association (NCTA); Mrs. J.M. Bell, local unit president of the NCTA; Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, teacher, Wahl-Coates School; and Charles Ross, principal, Wahl-Coates School.

Dudley Flood, formerly principal of Bethel Union High School and recently appointed Assistant Director of the Division of Human Relations, State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, was present at the board meeting. Flood was called on several times to give suggestions for human relations plans for faculty and students.

Board Chairman Dr. E.B. Aycock said "We are always delighted to have interested observers attend our meetings."

Program Of Visitation By Council On Aging

The Pitt - Greenville Council on Aging is sponsoring a regular county wide visiting program because of the enthusiastic response shown on visits already conducted with shut-ins in the area.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman Jr., coordinator of the council, says workers are already visiting homes of the aging and shut-ins in the city and county.

Workers will make a special effort to seek out the isolated and lonely persons throughout the county in an effort to bring these people into contact with others.

Mrs. Spilman remarked "Due to lack of transportation, many aging citizens have very little outside activity or contact with other people, and accept a friendly visitor with much joy."

Urging all citizens to think about visiting these aging persons whenever possible, she noted: "Even though the strong should help bear the infirmities of the weak, it will also be found that the aging person freely offers great wisdom that has been gained with the years of trials as well as joys."

Anyone interested in offering their services to participate in this program is urged to contact Mrs. Spilman at new Council office, located at 313 Cotanche Street in Greenville.

Club President Mrs. Elizabeth Savage presided at the meeting. The devotion was given by the Rev. Adrian Brown.

A covered dish luncheon, headed by Mrs. Phoebe Bland, club hostess, was served at noon.

Guests were Miss Annie Turner, Mrs. McAndrews and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hill.

Appreciation Dinner Slated In Dunn For ECU President

A Leo Jenkins Appreciation Dinner to honor the president of East Carolina University, will be held in Dunn on Tuesday night, March 3, at 6:30 p.m.

This second dinner honoring Dr. Jenkins is being held for the benefit of citizens throughout this area who were unable to attend the first dinner in honor to Dr. Jenkins held recently by the citizens of Greenville.

Dr. Jack Hill, a veterinarian from Dunn who is heading up arrangements for the Dunn event, said: "Dr. Jenkins is now completing his tenth year as head of the rapidly-growing institution and is regarded as the man who has done most for Eastern North Carolina in modern history."

The Dunn appreciation dinner is being sponsored by the Dunn Rotary Club, but since its inception has developed into a county-wide event, with the Dunn Lions, Kiwanians, members of the Dunn Chamber of Commerce and various other local groups joining in.

The Erwin and Lillington Rotary Clubs are also being invited to attend the event, which is being held at the Wayne Avenue School Cafeteria.

Among dignitaries being invited to attend are Governor Bob Scott, Attorney General Robert Morgan, Roy Sowers, director of the State Department of Conservation, and dignitaries from the area, including legislators and public officials of the county and various towns within the county.

Attendance will be limited to approximately 300 for the dinner. "Our only limitation will be space," Dr. Hill commented in reporting an unusual amount of interest in the event.

Automakers Report New Car Sales Lag

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's top three automakers report their new car sales for this year are running 16.6 per cent behind 1969.

Ford Motor Co. also announced a drop in profits for 1969.

Chrysler Corp., Ford and General Motors Corp. said their sales for the new year through Feb. 20 were 853,416 compared with 1,023,042 in the same period a year ago.

The Big Three automakers said they sold 185,871 new cars in the Feb. 11-20 period, an 18.8 per cent decline from 229,029 a year ago. Nine selling days were in the period both years.

American Motors Corp. did not release its new car sales figures Monday for the mid-February period.

Meanwhile, Ford reported net earnings fell 12.8 per cent during 1969.

Ford said its profits for the year totaled $547 million or $5.03 a share, compared with $627 million, or $5.73 a share in 1968.

Sales in 1969 reached a record $14.8 billion, however, a spokesman said Monday. Fourth quarter sales also hit a record, $4.1 billion, but earnings were down by 12.2 per cent for the final three months.

"The decline in earnings on a higher sales base resulted primarily from higher labor and material costs," Ford said.

GM earlier reported its profits fell 1.2 per cent last year. Chrysler said its net earnings fell by 69.41 per cent.

Haircuts Given To Six Of Chicago 7

CHICAGO (AP) — Six of the seven defendants in the recent Chicago riot trial have been given haircuts to conform with standards at Cook County Jail.

Warden Winston E. Moore said their hair was clipped to "a reasonable length" for sanitary reasons Monday.

David T. Dellinger, at 54 the oldest of the group, is balding and conforms to jail standards, Moore said.

Dellinger; Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, 29; Thomas E. Hayden, 30; Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, 31; and Jerry C. Rubin, 31, were convicted last week of crossing state lines with the intent to incite rioting at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

They were sentenced to five years in prison and fined $5,000 each, plus the cost of prosecution.

The U.S. District Court jury acquitted John R. Froines, 31, and Lee Weiner, 31, but they and the other five had been sentenced earlier by Judge Julius J. Hoffman to varying terms in prison for contempt of court.

Abbie Hoffman, quipped, "You're ruining my movie career," when another inmate began applying the shears and clippers.

Lawyers for the seven have asked the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to let their clients out on bond pending appeal of the sentences. Judge Hoffman refused bail at the end of the trial, saying the men were dangerous.

Tickets Earn Front Row Seat

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Tickets held by a Charlotte man earned him a front row seat in Mecklenburg District Court, but the man would have preferred to pass up the performance. It cost him $185.

James Edward Henderson accumulated 14 parking tickets over an 11-month period beginning last March.

But Henderson put off paying the fines, and Monday a judge ordered him to pay $185. That includes fines, court costs and late penalties.

Judge P. B. Beachum also gave Henderson the word that if he receives any more tickets within the next two years he goes to jail.

Secondary Education told the board members that "part of the curriculum of grades 7 through 11 have periods dealing with narcotics. The sixth grade too, I understand a section in a course dealing with the problem."

Dr. Frank Fuller, City councilman noted, "The parents are the ones who need a program on narcotics, they're the ones we need to reach."

The board members recommended that Dr. Cleetwood prepare a large number of the mimeographed booklets to give to parents at PTA meetings.

"I know I would not have had the opportunity to have this information in once concise publication," Mrs. Kittrell noted, "if it were not for the fact I'm a school board member. As a parent, I feel I need this information, and I think other parents feel as I do."

He is married to the former Helena Matthews of Bethel and they have two sons.
