

Mayor Abstains As Long Road Ends In Victory

Go-Ahead For Rehabilitating Downtown

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The long road leading to rehabilitation of downtown Greenville ended in victory last night as the four city councilmen approved articles of agreement with the Redevelopment Commission for the implementation of the Central Business District

Project.

Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. abstained from voting on the agreement portion, thus removing himself from the action on this issue. The councilmen immediately passed a motion authorizing mayor pro tem Percy Cox to sign the document, which will now be dispatched to HUD headquarters in Atlanta.

This action, coming after more than three hours of testimony from proponents and opponents of the project, and a reading of the complete resolution and articles of agreement by City Manager Harry Hagerty, marks the beginning of a 10 year plan designed to revitalize and change the face of downtown Greenville.

A large interested audience remained attentive through the more than three hours of proceedings, listening to some two dozen persons argue for and against the project.

Mayor Wooten, opening the public hearing, called on Greenville Redevelopment Commission chairman Billy Laughinghouse to discuss the CBD project.

Laughinghouse gave a history of the project from its inception in October 1965 to the recent approval by the Planning and Zoning Commission, followed by a showing of film strips by Project Manager John Messick.

Following Laughinghouse, several citizens in turn appealed to the City Council to urge adoption of the CBD project. These included Hoover Taft, Sr. attorney; F.D. Duncan, a vice-president at East Carolina University; Clarence Tugwell president First Federal Savings and Loan Association; Charles White, president of White Stores; Mrs. Marie Cox, business woman; Bill Taft, Jr., businessman; Jim Leslie, president Greenville Jaycees; Owen E. Dowd, Jr. businessman; Charles Woodall, architect; George Shoe, architect; and Gene Skinner, president Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

Each stressed the deterioration of downtown Greenville in the past ten years, at the same time expressing a hope that the CBD project can be the means of halting the decay and bringing new life to the central section of Greenville.

"Urban decay is not something dreamed up, it is real, affecting our cultural environment, even the tranquility on our streets," Hoover Taft Sr. commented. "This is one of the most exciting adventures Greenville has ever had the opportunity to undertake."

ECU vice-president Duncan read a letter from Dr. Leo Jenkins, who could not be present because of a previous commitment. "I support the whole excellent farsighted plan," Jenkins had written, "and the Board of Trustees support the position I take... I trust this area will be salvaged... and that the downtown area will regain its position..."

Clarence Tugwell paid tribute to a mayor of years ago. "Mayor Lanier a man with foresight, around 1930 requested a 10 foot setback of stores so that streets could be widened. This was defeated by the Board of Aldermen."

"In the mid-fifties, a Blue Ribbon Committee worked to foster interest in some project. If a project was needed then, when Greenville had 19,000 citizens with 4,500 students at ECU, you can certainly see how much more a project such as this one being considered tonight is needed," Tugwell stated.

Explaining that he had been in business here for 45 years, Charles White, citing the downtown conditions today—ended his remarks with "If a city of more than 30,000 people cannot retire a bond issue of about $800,000 in eight years, and I mean without taxes, in order to receive five million dollars, we are not going to die, we are already dead."

Jaycee president Jim Leslie, saying it's not enough that a shopper can find the merchandise he wants in Greenville, pointed out "Greenville must offer something more. It must be made a city people want to come to because it has something different to offer. I urge you to endorse this plan."

"Greenville can only prosper when everything moves together for the good of all," George Shoe said. "In the long run, all citizens stand to gain, none stand to lose. It's the finest thing ever projected for Greenville."

Attorney William C. Brwer Jr., appeared at the hearing.

"Let me say I'm not in opposition to the plan as a whole," Brewer began, "I'm here on behalf of Mrs. Anna Long Joyner." Brewer explained that the plan with its provisions of widening Cotanche Street would seriously affect the business operated by Mrs. Joyner and also her home. "You can't split a business down the middle and still have a business there."

"If I interpret correctly, members of the City Council have in the past expressed there is no need to widen Cotanche at this point."

"Once the project is approved, it will be equivalent to a cease and desist order. When adopted, it will all be over for Mrs. Joyner. What she needs now is collective action from you," Brewer said.

Councilman Cox told Brewer. "I think you are mistaken. This plan or any portion of it can be amended any time we see fit."

At this point Redevelopment Commission Executive Director A.E. Dubber explained "While the project is in process, amendments can be made as they are needed."

The discussion of this matter involved considerable time, and was resolved with Cox suggesting that "if the plan is approved by the council tonight, then I suggest we set up a meeting to get Mrs. Joyner satisfied on this. She has suffered a long time in her concern for her property."

Attorney S.O. Worthington Sr. began his comments by declaring "I may be in bet-

Allies Seek New West Berlin Talks

LONDON (AP) — The United States, Britain and France sent off notes to the Soviet Union today proposing a time and place for new Big Four talks to ease West Berlin's situation.

All four governments have agreed in principle to hold such a conference, and only the arrangements for it remain to be settled.

Diplomatic authorities gave no details of when, where and at what level the notes proposed that talks be held.

It is known, however, that the Western allies, would like the talks to get under way within the next month or so and that they would not object to a meeting in West Berlin of deputy foreign ministers or ambassadors.

The allies think the talks should cover such issues as the air, land and water traffic to West Berlin, freer communications between East and West Berlin, and an easier flow of goods, traffic and ideas between the two parts of the city.

Informants said the Western powers do not plan to seek removal of the Berlin Wall at this stage, but that this is the sort of subject that could come up if there are signs of progress.

Honolulu Plans Convert Trucks

HONOLULU (AP) — The city's 1,000 trucks will be converted to the use of liquid petroleum gas in a major move against air pollution, Mayor Frank E. Fasi said Thursday.

He said the program would cost $400,000, but that tests indicate the city would save about $200 per truck on maintenance so the conversion cost would be returned to the city in savings.

Morgan Says Scott Can't Be Defendant In School Case

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan took exception with Federal Judge James B. McMillan Thursday, and said that Gov. Bob Scott could not be named a defendant in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school desegregation case.

In a written response to the court's naming Scott a defendant, Morgan held that making Scott a defendant amounted to suing the state, which is forbidden by the U.S. Constitution.

Morgan also called involuntary busing, "constitutionally unsound and legally invalid."

Vote Help To Airports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved without dissent a $15.6 billion 10-year program to modernize and expand the nation's airport system. Most of the money would come from new cargo and passenger taxes.

Responding to the 77-0 vote Thursday Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe said "this is one of aviation's finest hours and a day to be remembered by the American traveling public."

The measure now goes to a joint conference with the House for ironing out differences with a bill passed by that body last year.

The money will go into a trust fund where it will be available to states and localities on a 50-50 matching fund basis.

A minimum of $5.5 billion of the $15.6 billion is earmarked for construction with at least another $4 billion for traffic control. Sponsors of the program say they are sure all the money will be used by the time the program expires in 1980.

Scott was brought into the case by McMillan after the governor said that under a state law, he could not approve state money for financing the court ordered busing of approximately 23,000 pupils in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools.

Morgan said busing amounts to discrimination because some pupils are bused away from nearby schools while others get to go to neighborhood schools.

Morgan held that the U.S. Congress and the state legislature had outlawed involuntary busing to achieve racial balance.

In related action Thursday, civil rights lawyers criticized the use of state courts by lawyers and parents to "frustrate" the desegregation order handed down by the federal court.

Groups opposing the federal court order handed down by Judge McMillan have filed objections in state courts.

Civil rights attorney Julius Chambers charged that the effort is designed to "thwart, inhibit and frustrate" the federal court.

The parents had obtained a temporary restraining order against the federal court's ruling from a state court.

Sees Fading Federalism

WASHINGTON (AP) — A belief that the federal government is the best and possibly sole agent for solving the nation's domestic ills reached its peak in the mid-1960s but has now been given its ideological obituary, a government-sponsored report said today.

The 1960s began with a "layer cake" theory of intergovernmental relations and evolved into a "marble cake" system which thoroughly involved the federal government in the functions of the state and local jurisdictions and seriously threatened the country's traditional federal system, the report said.

The 88-page report of the bipartisan Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations reviewed federalism in the 1960s as part of the 26-member national panel's 11th annual report.

"According to the Commission's analysis the 60s ended with a significant emphasis on return of power back to the states and localities and with burgeoning public support for the 'New Federalism' which is a major goal of the Nixon administration."

Praise For Role Of Geo. Wallace

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Governor Wallace was the "best governor black folks ever had in America," says a veteran civil rights worker.

"Under Wallace, we got more hotels, motels and theaters integrated all over the country than under any other man," said Hosea Williams of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

He spoke Wednesday night before Wallace announced Thursday he would run for governor of Alabama again.

Brock Agrees Convene Board, Hear Simmons

The executive secretary of the State Board of Elections, Alex Brock, said today that the board will honor a request by Democratic Party chairman Eugene Simmons to convene for the purpose of discussing recent board decisions relating to county board appointments.

"I'm sure that Mr. Simmons will be most welcomed by the members of the board," Brock commented. "There is no question in my mind that if he wishes to meet with the board, such a meeting will surely be held."

Brock said that he had received the request for a meeting from the party chairman this morning and was drafting a reply stating that the meeting would be held.

A date for the meeting, he added, has not been set but a time convenient for both the board and Simmons would be decided upon.

The executive secretary, who as an executive officer is not a member of the board, said that the meeting would afford an excellent opportunity for Simmons to discuss with the board his feelings on the various matters and at the same time would offer the board a chance to discuss its position.

"He (Simmons) will appear as a friend to the group," Brock said, "and certainly not before a hostile board."

Brock added that Simmons would be notified of a date for the meeting soon. "It must be set at a time when a full quorum can be expected," he said.

Simmons could not be reached this morning for comment. Brock said his reply would be sent to the party chairman today.

Predicts Drop For Prime Rate

RALEIGH (AP)—Don Regan, president of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., stock brokers, predicted today the prime interest rate will drop within two months.

Regan made the prediction at a breakfast before more than 100 Raleigh businessmen. He was to speak later at Meredith College's Founders Day ceremonies.

The head of the nation's largest investment company said he felt the economy would continue drifting downward until the middle of summer or early fall.

"We are in a recession right now—make no mistake about that," Regan said. "And I think it will not be until the fourth quarter of this year before we see any upturn."

Regan noted that the Lincoln National Bank of Philadelphia, Pa., earlier this week dropped its prime interest rate (the rate banks charge their best customers) from 8½ to 8 per cent.

"They did a similar thing in 1967 and it turned out they were about two months too soon," he said. "I think they are on the same timetable now."

NO SHEARING

PRAGUE (AP)—Jiri Hluze, a 36-year-old engineer in Pilsen, has been given a one-year suspended prison sentence for shearing the heads of four girls who fraternized with Soviet invasion troops in August 1968.

Looking Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Duke Power Co. official says the demand for electric power in 17 Southern states will require construction of 70 additional nuclear power sites by 1990.

William S. Lee of Charlotte, vice president of Duke Power, said Thursday eight such plants could be located in North Carolina and five in South Carolina.

Each of the projected sites, he added, would have possible sources of cooling water, plus cooling tower supplement where needed.

Lee's remarks came at a hearing of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

By 1990, he said, the 17-state area will need 193,000 megawatts of nuclear-electric generating power. He said about 2,400 MW will be provided at 16 projects already announced.

Duke Power has recently announced plans for a new nuclear power site to be located on Lake Norman in the northern section of Mecklenburg County.

Lee also told the committee that nuclear power plants are not necessarily injurious to fish populations of lakes, whose water is used to cool the equipment.

He added that North Carolina and Texas officials have reported that warm thermal discharges can enhance the growth of game fish population.

Addict 'One Of The Gang'

YOUNG ADDICT — Twelve-year-old heroin addict Ralph DeJesus sits at a table during a state legislative hearing in New York Thursday. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph DeJesus is a heroin addict who says he started using drugs a year ago. He is 12. "I used to see my friend doing it and I didn't want to be left out," he said.

"I started mainlining about six months ago. I learned how to do it in the street—in my neighborhood. I even sold drugs in my school for $2 a bag. I had a lot of customers," he said.

The boy's matter-of-fact testimony was given Thursday before a state legislative committee hearing on drug addiction. The audience of 50 spectators and 10 legislators was hushed, leaning forward to hear his quiet voice. "Nobody taught me, nobody forced me," the frail, 60-pound youth testified, "but I didn't want to be left out when I saw my friends use drugs." He said he had taken his last fix eight days ago.

Ralph, dressed in a red sweater and brown plaid pants, sat on the lap of Dr. Judianne Densen-Gerber, clinical director of Odyssey House, where he is receiving treatment.

He said that none of his six older brothers and sisters used drugs.

Ralph said he stole pocketbooks, broke into apartments and "even mugged some people" to support his habit.

Gourmet Corner: How To Get Properly Stewed

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
United Nations officials recently ran a check on national dishes around the world. Of 76 countries polled, more than 40 listed as their national dish some variation of stew.

Not every country calls it by that name. It might be Hungarian goulash, French blanquette de veau or Belgian carbonnade. But in the final analysis, it's stew.

Served swimming in wine sauce from a silver platter or spooned from an earthen pot brimming with potatoes, stew is just about the world's most popular dish.

The entries appearing in the U.N. survey ranged from President Dwight D. Eisenhower's personal formula for beef stew to Saudi Arabia's Rus Bukhary, a tasty concoction of chicken, rice, onions, carrots and spices. Afghanistan favored a pungent mixture of beef, yogurt, beans and peppers while meat and bean combinations sharpened by tongue-tingling herbs were specialties of the Caribbean countries.

Stew's popularity is enhanced no doubt by the fact that it's very easy to prepare. You just let it simmer awhile, then pluck out a piece of meat and taste. Some cooks actually put in an extra few chunks of meat for just this purpose.

Stew, the oldest form of cookery, no longer means a family catchall for utilizing leftovers. Plush restaurants serve it with pride and guests who sample a family's special stew at a dinner party usually return for more.

Stews tell the story of a nation's diet customs and its homegrown foods. It is not the meat, but the accompanying ingredients that give this dish its national stamp. Potatoes are indispensable in Irish stew, while Italian ragout features macaroni or spaghetti. Scotch stew is known for its barley, and Hungarian goulash would not be complete without the flat, egg-rich noodles.

Stew is linked to the folklore of many nations. My wife, who was born and raised in Brazil, tells of a Sunday custom in rural areas. After church the family gathered to partake of feijoada, a rich mixture of black beans, salt pork, salt beef tongue, dried beef, sausage and bacon, and a host of torrid herbs. Old and young sat around the table and helped themselves from a great bowl containing the redolent mixture which had been simmering since early morning. White rice and orange slices give contrast to the main dish.

Latin Americans have a habit of classifying as soup hearty dishes that would pass anywhere else as stew. Ecuador, for instance, offers a specialty called corn soup. The recipe for six persons calls in part for one pound of chopped beef, half a pound of sirloin, eight ears of corn and half a dozen hard-boiled eggs!

Since soaring food costs are a major cost in most households, it is refreshing to note that experienced cooks agree that in a stew, expensive cuts of meat usually boil down to tasteless blobs, whereas cheaper cuts tenderize more slowly and retain their flavor.

The dish constantly challenges the innovative mind. There are always new possibilities, such as one suggestion for serving English beef stew in hot borscht, thus blending the specialties of two nations.

Belgium's most famous dish, Flemish Carbonnades, or beef stew cooked in beer, dates back to the Middle Ages. But add some English walnuts and a couple of spoons of Scotch whisky, and you have quite a different dish.

FLEMISH CARBONNADES WITH WALNUTS

- 1 1/2 pounds beef (chuck, boned neck or thin flank)
- 1 1/4 pound smoked ham hock
- 1 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 pound onions sliced thin
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 12-oz. bottle or can beer
- 1 can beef broth
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 pinch each of majoram, thyme and rosemary
- 1 clove garlic minced
- 2 carrots sliced into small chunks
- 3/4 cup shelled walnuts
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons Scotch whisky
- Cut beef into strips about 2 inches long and 1 inch thick. Cut ham into half inch cubes. Brown beef and ham hock in oil in large skillet. When browned, lift meat from fat, sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and set aside.

Brown onions in same oil. Lift from oil and place in separate dish. Set aside remaining oil, except about 2 tablespoons. Stir flour into oil in pan and make light brown roux. Gradually add beer and stir til mixture boils. Add broth, rest of salt, pepper, sugar, herbs and garlic.

Arrange alternate layers of meat, onions and carrots in a heavy casserole and add sauce. If needed, add more beer until meat is well covered. Cover casserole and cook in slow oven (300 degrees) for 2 1/2 hours, inspecting from time to time and adding more beer as needed.

Simmer walnuts in leftover oil, shaking pan occasionally til crisp. Pour over meat mixture. Just before serving add vinegar and Scotch. Good with ice-cold beer. (Serves six to eight persons.)

Add some dried basil to tomato juice and let stand in the refrigerator overnight; strain and serve icy-cold.

Mother-In-Law Meant No Insult

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago I scraped enough money together to buy my mother-in-law an electric knife for her birthday. She seemed real pleased with it when I gave it to her.

Yesterday was MY birthday, and guess what she gave me? She gave back the knife I had given to her, saying she didn't have enough money to buy me anything real nice. What do you think of that? INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: I think she probably wanted only to give you something as "nice" as what you had given her, and this was her way of reciprocating. If I were you I wouldn't be "insulted." An "insult" is a malicious act. In my opinion, there was no "insult" intended here.

DEAR ABBY: You are right. A woman who thinks she can change a homosexual by marrying him is in for a big disappointment.

There is only one combination which can accomplish that near miracle—the homosexual himself with the help of an expert psychiatrist. I know this is so because I struggled with homosexuality for years before I was "cured." I am now married to a fine woman who knew about my problem, and I am living a full, normal, healthy life.

I am not saying that everyone can do what I did. It takes time, patience, and money. But for me, it was well worth it. FATHER OF TWO

DEAR FATHER: I am pleased to have your testimony [and there were others] because according to my mail, there are very few "cures." I, too, believe it is possible, but only if the person himself desires it. Add no amount of pressure from friends, family, or society will help if the person himself doesn't sincerely want to change.

DEAR ABBY: I am still seething as a result of our annual family gathering over the holidays.

My son was home from college with a beard and his hair was a little long, but not shoulder length. He is neat and clean and is a good student, works part time, and we are proud of him.

We were greeted at my sister's door by her two teen-aged, mini-skirted daughters. All during the day, remarks were being made about my "hippie" son, and the conversation kept going back to the "long-haired irresponsible youth."

I don't think it is any more reasonable to link bearded students with hippies than it would be to consider all mini-skirted girls as street walkers or prostitutes, and this is what I said. Was I out of line? P. A.

DEAR P. A.: No. And I hope you said it clearly enough so that those who needed to hear it did.

DEAR ABBY: Noble try, Abby. Trying to speak out FOR little Sweden and sex education in our public schools, but it won't work.

I predict that the John Birchers will advise you that statistics from the World Health organization are "not reliable" since it is controlled by the United Nations, and the U. N. is controlled by the Communists, and the Communists are trying to destroy us by pretending that sex is enjoyable and desirable.

Perhaps my sarcasm is not quite sharp enough for the knot-heads, so I had better explain that as far as I know, storks are responsible only for baby storks. Signed, A MIDDLE-AGED PROFESSIONAL MAN

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Double-Checking Saves On Food Charges

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you are a newlywed shopper, play the grocery store game: invest in a small hand calculator and add up your purchases as you go along.

One young bride just assumed everyone was a whiz at math. After several incidents she's come to the conclusion that some store checkers must be math dropouts. "They can't even do simple arithmetic," she says. So she has equipped herself with a hand calculator.

Her first shopper vs. adding machine experience occurred at a little country grocery store where she bought two loaves of bread and a can of tomatoes. The proprietor was busy elsewhere so she added up the items in her head. They were plainly marked—two times 41 cents is 82 cents plus 20 cents adds up to $1.02. Right?

When the proprietor returned to the counter he punched out her purchases on his adding machine and asked her for $1.08. She timidly asked, "Is there 6 cents tax on $1?" He added the three figures again. "I'm sorry. I made a mistake. It is $1.02," he said.

It well may have been an honest mistake but our newlywed began to think of the extra pennies, going into her own piggy bank. "Figuring at the rate of 6 cents on a dollar, could lose $1 on every $17 worth of purchases," she reasoned.

But she still hadn't bought a calculator when she went shopping at the local supermarket. Back home she decided to check her itemized bill against her purchases before putting anything away. What a rude awakening!

She was charged 45 cents for a 15-cent box of soda crackers.

There was a charge of 95 cents on the itemized bill, but she hadn't bought anything for that price. The closest purchase was 75 cents for coffee.

Four cans of cat food that clearly were marked "2-35 cents" cost her 35 cents apiece.

A package of frozen foods cost her 45 cents. It should have been priced at "2-45 cents" but the ink had smeared. Other errors included being charged 30 cents for two unmarked 10-cent bulbs of garlic and paying an average of 5 cents on some single item that was marked "two for whatever."

The store manager explained the discrepancies this way: "In the first instance the checker must have hit a 4 instead of a 1 on the cash register. She probably was daydreaming when she priced the cat food and she really couldn't have known the difference when she priced the frozen food since it wasn't marked properly." The manager thought the checker had merely guessed at the price of the garlic and the overage on the single items occurred "because the checker probably couldn't divide."

The newlywed bought an inexpensive hand calculator that more than paid for itself within a month. And one shopper points out that it has other advantages such as keeping you aware of the amount of money you have spent.

"I now ignore extras—olives, other nibbles—until I'm through shopping for our staples," she says. "If I have a few dollars left, then I can splurge on goodies."

"Also when I'm checking out, I know what my bill should be—within a few tax cents. Now that the checkers know I use a calculator, they make fewer mistakes."

Listening For The Fall Of A Shadow

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists around the world will be listening for the fall of a shadow on March 7.

There'll be an eclipse of the sun that day, as the moon passes slowly across the face of the blazing sun, darkening it. And the cooling shadow of the moon will fall on the earth.

The scientists want to see if the shadow produces a "solar-lunar boom." They want to see whether the shadow moving faster than the speed of sound through the earth's atmosphere produces a sound wave, just as an airplane moving faster than the speed of sound produces a "sonic boom."

When the shadow of the moon hits the atmosphere, according to the idea, it will result in a slight cooling of the air. Surrounding air would move in, pressure would drop and the wave would be produced.

If the "solar-lunar boom" does exist, it won't be like the startling sonic boom. You won't be able to hear it.

This unusual experiment, one of many to be performed when the moon plots out the sun, was described by Dr. Richard K. Cook, chief of the geoaoustic group of the Environmental Science Services Administration, ESSA, in Washington.

In the attempt to detect the "solar-lunar boom," if there is one, ESSA scientists at nine stations will each set up four to five large microphones, several miles apart to listen, measuring strength, direction and speed.

The ESSA stations are in Washington, Boston, Boulder, Colo., San Diego, Calif., Pullman, Wash., College, Ala., Huancayo, Peru, La Paz, Bolivia, and Tel Aviv, Israel.

The total eclipse will be the first since 1963 to be visible within the continental United States.

The shadow will touch down far out in the Pacific, then move across Mexico, eastern edges of the United States and through Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. It will leave the earth in the North Atlantic.

If it isn't too cloudy, millions of Mexicans, Americans and Canadians will be able to see the total phase. Partial phases will fall on virtually all of North and Central America and the northwestern section of South America.

The prime observation post for astronomers, however, will be in the mountains of southern Mexico, in the village of Miahuatlan.

There, at an elevation of 8,000 to 9,000 feet, in thin, dry mountain air, the chances are good there'll be a clear view of the spectacle.

One of the astronomers at Miahuatlan is Dr. Donald H. Menzel, who is in charge of the joint expedition of the Harvard College Observatory-Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory-National Geographic Society.

"The sun has been my specialty," he said, "and there is still no better method of observing the sun's outer corona than by watching an actual eclipse."

The corona, the gaseous outer part of the sun's atmosphere, stretches out from the sun, enveloping the earth, part of the environment our planet moves through in its orbit. Magnetic storms and communications disruptions can be triggered by the interaction with the earth's magnetic field and atmosphere, so studying the corona can be of practical importance.

Suspect Same Duo Behind 2 Crashes

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Two Jordanians wanted for the bombing of an Austrian airliner last Saturday also are suspected of being involved in the fatal crash of the Swiss airliner bound for Israel the same day, Swiss police said today.

The police said they had received a West German warrant for the arrest of Kaddoumi or Quaddoumi Sufian and Mussa Badawi Jawher, both of Amman.

West German authorities advised Federal Attorney Hans Walder the two men were believed to have crossed from Germany into Switzerland in a cream-colored automobile with German license plates.

The Austrian plane, a Caravelle jet, landed at Frankfurt after a bomb exploded in its baggage hold and tore a hole in the hull. All aboard got off safely.

The Swiss jetliner crashed shortly after it took off from Zurich, killing all 47 persons aboard. Radio messages from the pilot indicated there had been an explosion in the baggage compartment, and although the investigation has not been completed, Swiss authorities said there is a strong suspicion of sabotage. Arab terrorists generally are blamed.

Walder told a news conference German authorities advised his office the two suspects were believed to have bought an altimeter and a transistor radio in Germany to fabricate the bomb that exploded in a mailbag in the Austrian plane. The bomb was in a parcel mailed to Jerusalem from a German post office by two men.

Walder said the German authorities also advised that there were other sales of similar equipment in Germany at the same time under suspect circumstances.

"The fact that the still not fully explained explosion in the Swissair plane and that in the Austrian aircraft took place the same day very probably is not just a coincidence," he added.

Church Honors Mrs. Karsnak

Mrs. John A. Karsnak, retiring secretary of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, was honored by the church membership during morning worship Sunday.

She has served at the financial secretary of the church for 15 years. She was presented a diamond watch in behalf of the church by Luther Moore.

Words of appreciation for her service to the church were expressed by Moore and Dr. J.V. Early, pastor.

The Council on Ministries elected Mrs. Harold Daniel to succeed Mrs. Karsnak. Mrs. Daniel has served as the pastors' secretary for the past nine years. Mrs. Tony Southerland is the new secretary to the pastors.

Hail Insurance Change Studied

RALEIGH (AP) — Insurance Commissioner Edwin Lanier has taken under consideration a proposal for minor changes in crop hail insurance rates in North Carolina.

Lanier conducted a hearing Thursday on the rates proposed by the insurance industry. They include small increases in 13 counties and reductions in three others for tobacco. No changes are proposed for cotton, fruit trees, and other crops.

Foundation Sets Up Scholarship

RALEIGH (AP) — The Furniture Foundation, Inc., of High Point has set up a $100,000 scholarship fund at North Carolina State University in memory of James T. Ryan. He was executive vice president of the Southern Furniture Manufacturing Association for many years.

The income from the fund will provide scholarships for students in furniture manufacturing and management.

Pickets Greet Pres. Pompidou

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

French President Georges Pompidou, met by orderly picketing on his arrival Thursday night, embarked today on a busy schedule featuring a visit with local Jewish leaders who oppose his country's sale of Mirage jets to Libya.

A crowd of 600, by police estimate, met Pompidou with a mixture of boos and applause as he was whisked from a limousine into the St. Francis Hotel, where he and his wife are staying in a $350-a-day suite.

Barricades kept demonstrators across the street from the hotel's main entrance facing Union Square. Helmeted police ringed the hotel.

Pompidou's plane arrived an hour late from Cape Kennedy, Fla., where he made a whirlwind tour of the spaceport. A San Francisco rally protesting his visit already had subsided.

The only incident at the rally was the arrest of a man reported to be carrying a concealed knife.

Mayor Joseph Alioto presented the president the key to the city and Mrs. Pompidou was given a bouquet of long-stemmed red roses.

The French president's meeting with 15 local Jewish spokesmen was scheduled for late afternoon. They planned to give him a petition circulated at the hotel rally. It criticizes France for sending planes to an Arab nation while withholding arms that Israel already had paid for.

Before the meeting, Pompidou's schedule called for a visit at the hotel with Gov. and Mrs. Ronald Reagan, an address on the problems of youth at the Commonwealth Club, a visit to Stanford University's Linear Accelerator Center and a sight-seeing tour.

More than 1,000 guests were invited for a reception at 6:15 p.m. at the Palace of the Legion of Honor, to be followed by a private dinner in Pompidou's suite.

He is scheduled to leave for Chicago at 10 a.m. Saturday, and will leave Sunday for New York, where he is to visit the United Nations Monday. His party leaves for Paris on Tuesday.

Buses Able To Call For Police

By MIKE LANTRIP

Charlottesville Daily Progress
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Concern for the underlying cause of racial tension in this community has led to an attempt by school, police and private business to effect a solution.

The 20 buses of the Yellow Transit Co. used to transport children to and from school, often the scene of minor and major racial incidents, are now in near-immediate contact with the Charlottesville Police Department through a communications system of two-way radios and telephone.

The reality of racial disharmony was brought to light in Eighth Regional Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court last Aug. 18 with a story of assault with belts, belt buckles, rocks and fists at Walker Junior High School and on the school bus as it proceeded up Rose Hill Drive and to the Preston Plaza Shopping Center.

The incident went unreported for 2½ months. It occurred June 10, the last day of school.

The hearing resulted in sentences to eight juveniles ranging from a year and a half probation to 30 days in jail and indefinite probation.

Substitute Juvenile Court Judge Charles Haugh at the conclusion of that hearing instructed Charlottesville Commonwealth's Atty. J.T. Camblos to look into the school bus driver situation to determine his responsibility and authority.

A review of the problem revealed to Camblos that the school bus driver was, for all practical purposes, powerless. Due to regulations imposed on him by the company issuing the liability insurance policy to Yellow Transit, the driver is strictly forbidden from physically controlling a student who is causing trouble on a bus. He is further forbidden from putting the student off the bus short of his destination.

This perplexing problem was attacked by school officials, Charlottesville Police Chief C.O. Durham, Yellow Transit President Mrs. Helen Graves and representatives of the insurance company. The solution arrived at is one about which they say, "We are very hopeful."

The school bus driver is now instructed that in case of trouble of any kind on the bus he will stop the bus, keep the doors closed, call the Yellow Cab dispatcher on the two-way radio installed in all buses, and request that a police car be sent to the location.

"This solution has been successfully applied on several occasions recently," said Mrs. Graves.

In case of trouble of a less serious nature, a driver may take a child's name and turn it into the school principal who may then determine whether or not the child will continue to be allowed on the bus. "We leave the decision up to the principal," Mrs. Graves explained.

In order to increase the effectiveness of the plan, safety meetings are held once each month attended by all school bus drivers and a representative of the Virginia Mutual Insurance Co. of Richmond. At these meetings the drivers ask questions and discuss problems which have come up during the month.

"After all," says Mrs. Graves, "the drivers are probably more interested than anyone in preventing trouble on the bus."

Durham said his department is completely happy with the solution.

"It's our job," he said, "and our job depends to a large extent on cooperation." He said that in most instances a police car is only minutes away from any bus that may request assistance.

Re-Wed 30 Years Later

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "It's kinds like a fairy tale," said 78-year-old Charles Douglas Tucker, discussing plans for his wedding today at the Medcenter here.

"I always loved her," Tucker added, smiling at Mrs. Mary Ivy Martin, 79, his fiancée.

Tucker and Mrs. Martin were married 50 years ago at a private home in Memphis. Twenty years later they were divorced and today, at the urging of their daughter, they will be wed again. They will move to Mobile, Ala., to live with their daughter, Mrs. Donald Stainbrook.

After the divorce Mrs. Martin remarried, but Tucker remained single. Her husband died several months ago.

The two lived only a few blocks apart and Tucker recently has walked to her home to assist her.

Illness earlier this month brought both to Medcenter, and brought their daughter from Alabama.

Tucker said the daughter had suggested the marriage. "I am thrilled to death," he said. "I guess it was just fate."

FASHION FORECASTS

(Lace Revival)

Lace is back and it's going everywhere and doing everything. A modified tent of lace goes dancing, a lace-sleeved dress goes to church. The lace-trimmed shirtdress goes to school, a lacey swimsuit goes wherever the water is, and the bride wears-point or Chantilly lace.

Lace was a fifteenth century invention, first used as trimming for "body linen". It was a luxury item, made either with a needle or a bobbin. It supplied profitable work for thousands of women. Today, machines copy hand-made lace so perfectly that only experts can tell the difference.

Lace comes by the yard as edging, insertion (two straight edges), flouncing, galloon (two scalloped edges) or as beading (with slits through which ribbon may be laced). It is made from cotton, nylon, silk, rayon and wool fibers.

Fitting Tribute To Efforts

We consider it fitting that the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center here will be named for First District Congressman Walter B. Jones.

Pitt Rep. David E. Reid, Jr. announced Monday that the center, to be dedicated next month, will be named the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. The decision was made by the State Board of Mental Health.

Rep. Reid recalled that Jones' efforts while serving as a senator from Pitt County in 1965 led to the construction of the rehabilitation center here, another in the west and expansion at Butner.

Jones sponsored and guided through the General Assembly a bill to increase the price of whiskey by five cents and to appropriate funds for the alcoholic rehabilitation centers.

"I can think of no better tribute to Walter Jones for his outstanding efforts in the field of alcoholic rehabilitation than by naming the Greenville facility in his honor," Reid said.

Therehabilitation center now stands on a 30-acre tract of land west of Greenville on N. C. 43. There are seven buildings there now and it is designed for expansion. Three cottages will house 100 patients and there are also an administration building, dining hall, infirmary and therapy building. In the future a gymnasium and occupational therapy building are to be constructed.

On March 13, Gov. Scott and other dignitaries will be here to dedicate the facility and honor Rep. Jones. It is fitting that the facility constructed in Jones' home county was named for him, for is it had not been for a great personal effort on his part the center would not stand today.

Disorderly Damaged Only Their Own Cause

Those 250 or so students who jeered former vice president Hubert Humphrey off the platform at the University of Massachusetts a few evenings ago, probably spoke louder against their own cause than any orator imaginable.

The demonstrators who broke up an audience of some 5,000 were intent on preventing the former vice president from making the address for which he had been invited to the campus. The fact that his address had nothing to do with their grievance—the conviction of five in the Chicago riots trial—was of no consequence. They obviously were determined to protest, regardless of whose rights they violated or how.

That they had no regard for the rights of others was unquestionable.

The former vice president was denied the right to make an address which he was invited to the campus to make. The other 4,700 or so in the audience who came to hear a prominent speaker who has something of importance to say. One may further conclude that if it had served their purpose, the demonstrators probably would not have hesitated to violate other rights of the members of the audience as well.

In too many instances in recent years, rights of a majority have been trampled under foot in the name of a small minority asserting they have rights of their own. Certain minorities have rights; but they are no more implicit than the same rights of the majority.

Whether the former vice president's address pleases the majority or minority or neither, like other Americans, has the right to speak and the right to be heard.

Agnew Adopts 'New Politics'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

ST. PAUL — While ecstatic rank-and-file Republicans cheered themselves hoarse for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's speech here last Friday night Minnesota party leaders were scowling and grumbling in the background.

Chieftains of the state's Republican party were incensed by the way Agnew handled himself here, were less than happy about what he said at the giant fundraiser in St. Paul Auditorium, and remain apprehensive about his bright future. The fact that Agnew is the unchallenged new hero of grass roots Republicans, even in traditionally liberal Minnesota, only adds to the leaders' anguish.

The divergent reaction to the Vice President here shows that he is practicing a Republican version of the New Politics, appealing directly to the people without concern for professional politicians or press. Among national figures, only Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has even approached the cavalier fashion in which Agnew treated his hosts last Friday. Moreover, he is just slightly more attentive to political niceties in states where the party hierarchy is friendly.

Actually, the Minnesota hierarchy did not seek out Agnew to ape here. Boasting the country's single biggest fund-raising dinner, the Minnesotans asked for President Nixon himself to address the 1970 affair. They were informed that the President would not be available for such functions but the Vice President would. With some misgivings, the Minnesotans accepted Agnew.

Even after Agnew's barn-burning polemics in New Orleans and Des Moines last autumn transformed him into the country's premier political attraction, the liberal Republican establishment in the Twin Cities area still sulked. Some noteworthy Republicans (including Wheelock Whitney, U.S. Senate nominee in 1964) decided to boycott the dinner.

But from the grass roots (in the Twin Cities and especially in outstate Minnesota) the excitement was intense. Although party leaders in the past had trouble giving away $100 tickets bought in blocks by fat cats, demand exceeded supply this year for the first time. An unprecedented capacity crowd of nearly 9,000 at St. Paul Auditorium was assured.

That was the situation last week when Agnew suddenly sent word that he would not fulfill his commitment to appear at a reception of the Minnesota Elephants Club ($500-and-up contributors) because of undefined duties. Furthermore, in response to pleas that Agnew moderate his rhetoric to conform to Minnesota's genteel politics, Agnew aides replied that even they often could not

Strength For Today

BALANCE

There is always danger that we will substitute orthodoxy of belief for reason, love and true religious faith. We must therefore sail a straight and not too easy course between firmness of belief on the one hand and a reasonable and tolerant attitude of differing beliefs on the other. If we veer too much on the side of strong belief we are likely to become censorious, controversial and ungracious in our attitude. If, on the other hand, we veer too much toward tolerating other beliefs we are likely to lose our own strong convictions.

Every individual has to settle for himself or herself the course that he or she will take between orthodoxy and liberalism. As a matter of fact, sound judgment is always a mixture of orthodoxy and liberalism. We have to have strong religious beliefs if our religion is going to accomplish anything worthwhile in our lives. On the other hand, we have to be tolerant of what other people believe or we will fall into a form of piety that will neither benefit our lives or the lives of those with whom we come into contact.

"Balance" is one of the most important words in the language. There is a right and left to everything. If we bear too far to the right our religion tends to grow into bigotry. If we press too far to the left people will come to have no faith in our judgment.

We need to ponder the importance of the word "balance."

The Unemployed Patriot

WASHINGTON — There has been a great deal of discussion by the government concerning unemployment. No one likes to be without a job, but it seems to me that if you explain it to someone in terms that he can understand, the unemployed person will be willing to go along with it.

"I beg your pardon. Is that a pink slip in your hand?"

"Yeh."

"Well, congratulations. You can consider yourself a front-line soldier in the President's fight against inflation."

"I can?"

"Yes, sir. And under government regulations you are entitled to a complete explanation as to why you find yourself in what we refer to as the 'unemployment-rate zone.' Incidentally, you will be happy to know that your being laid off came as no surprise to us."

"It didn't?"

"No, sir. Your government predicted that given high interest rates and a tight money situation, you would be out of work by February. Here it is, right on the graph."

"I'll be darned. You guys really know your stuff. But what do I tell my family?"

"You can tell them that although they will have to put up with a certain amount of inconvenience, the upward spiral in unemployment — will have a very definite effect on the stabilization of prices."

"They'll be happy to hear that."

"If it weren't for people like you, I'm afraid the economy would have kept overheating and your dollars would have lost their purchasing power. But if we can raise the unemployment level to a reasonable figure, say 4.5 percent, without putting the

Public Forum

To The Editor:

Thank you very much for the enlightening articles featuring "air pollution."

I believe that once the people in our city and others realize the graveness of the air pollution problem, they will take steps to help eliminate it. I believe that a very good place to start would be for each individual to ask the questions — Do I burn leaves? Do I burn wood or coal in my fireplace just for the early American atmosphere?

My sister came for a visit here in mid-winter last year. She greeted me with — "Boy, fireplaces sure must be popular in Greenville. I could smell the smoke from them as soon as I reached the city limits."

Most people who enjoy these fireplaces probably do not realize that they unnecessarily pollute the air.

I learned just recently that the burning of coal or wood in fireplaces is unlawful in the city of Los Angeles. Maybe the facts learned from your articles will help to eliminate the necessity for similar laws in Greenville.

Local television and radio stations would do very well to follow the trend set by your paper to educate the public on the problem of air pollution.

Sincerely,
Mrs. R. M. Boudreaux

Bride Gets A Bonus

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A friend of mine recently married a former airline stewardess. Meeting him on a bus the other day, I asked him how the marriage was working out.

"Not bad," he replied. "But things should be much better when I finish detaining her."

"What does that mean?"

"It means I've got a problem in making her forget her old airplane routines and getting her to treat me more like a husband and less like a passenger."

"Tell me more."

"Well, no matter how grumpy I get, she never quits smiling. That keep-the-customer-happy smile can get pretty unnerving. And about every other morning when I come to the breakfast table she forgets we're married and asks me whether I want coffee, tea or milk."

"Is she a good cook?"

"Well, she insisted that I buy her one of those infrared cooking gadgets, and the food comes out pretty much like you get on most airplanes. You know, the mashed potatoes have a crust on them and the steak is hot enough to burn your tongue on the outside but is still half-frozen on the inside."

"Any other problems?"

"Yes. Remember that sudden windstorm we had the other night? Well, as soon as it hit, my wife started running up and down our apartment corridor saying, 'Please extinguish your cigarettes and buckle your seat belts. We are going through a momentary turbulence.'"

"Ha, ha. That's pretty amusing."

"You think so? Well, last week I glanced out the window and asked her what she thought the weather would be like tomorrow. You know what she said? She said, 'I don't know about tomorrow, sir, but right now we are at an altitude of 300 feet, the temperature at Chicago is 35 degrees with visibility unlimited, and we should get there 10 minutes ahead of our scheduled arrival time.'"

"Anything else?"

"Yes. When I get home from work, all tired out, she goes through a routine that really gives me the creeps. As soon as I sink down on the sofa, she comes out of the kitchen pushing a trundle cart with two Martinis and a packet of Hawaiian macadamia nuts on it."

"Then she comes back carrying a pillow, the afternoon newspaper and a selection of five magazines."

"Then every five minutes after she comes by again, fluffs my pillow, and says, 'Isn't that more comfy, sir? If there is anything else I can do, please let me know.'"

"You lucky stiff. Most husbands I know would think they were in heaven if they got that kind of treatment."

"Well, maybe, but it has its eerie aspects. Just this week, for example, she came to me with tears in her eyes and when I asked her why she said, 'I guess as a bride I'm a flunkout. The last three months I was flying I won a company bonus every month for being extra nice to people, but since I married you, you haven't given me a single one.'"

"How did you solve that one?"

"I gave her a bonus. What else could I do?"

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives has unanimously approved a $952 million authorization bill which includes $105 million over the next three years to help states and cities build and staff facilities for treating drug addicts and alcoholics.

The measure calls on the National Institute of Mental Health to direct more attention to the problems and to try to stimulate more interest by the medical profession in those areas.

The overall bill extends for three years the Community Mental Health Centers Act, which also includes spending $270 million for the construction of community health centers, $155 million to help operate them and $62 million for a special mental health program for children.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill banning future unsolicited distribution of credit cards has been approved by the Senate Banking Committee on a party-line 9-6 vote.

Jenkins Day Proclaimed In Harnett

DUNN — March 3 has been declared "Leo Jenkins Day in Harnett County" in a proclamation signed by the Harnett County Board of Commissioners.

The day of recognition is the "gratitude for his many contributions to North Carolina, Eastern North Carolina and Harnett County."

To highlight the "Leo Jenkins Day," Dr. Jenkins will be honored at a county-wide Appreciation Dinner Tuesday night at 7:00 p.m. in the Wayne Avenue School in Dunn. Dr. Jack Hill, Dunn veterinarian is in charge of the event, which is sponsored by the Dunn Rotary Club.

This year marks the completion of Dr. Jenkins' tenth year as president of East Carolina University.

Among the score of high ranking State, county and city officials scheduled to attend the Harnett dinner are Attorney General Robert Morgan, who is also chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees. Morgan will introduce Dr. Jenkins.

Others planning to attend are: Congressman David Henderson; State C and D Director Roy Sowers; State Senator Bill Staton; several mayors—William C. Marshburn of Dunn, Leonidas Jackson of Erwin, Jack Marley of Angier, Lewis of Lillington, Godfrey Beasley of Coats; Chairman Jack Brock for the County of Harnett; County Attorney Gerald Mann, representing East Carolina Alumni in Harnett County; and Wiley Bowen, president of the Dunn Chamber of Commerce, as well as other leaders.

The proclamation points out that "President Leo Jenkins has lived up to the motto of ECU, which is 'To Serve' and that during the decade just past he led the efforts to provide Eastern North Carolina with more comprehensive health service; through his efforts a School of Nursing was established and also a School of Allied Health Professions."

first time a committee in either branch of Congress had voted for such a prohibition.

The six Republicans on the Senate panel supported a Nixon administration alternative which would have required a company wishing to send out unsolicited cards to notify the prospective recipients 45 days in advance. They would not then get a card if they advised the firm they did not want it, under the defeated plan.

The bill will now go to the full Senate for debate in two weeks, where its Democratic sponsors predicted it would be passed.

The bill also would limit to $50 the liability of the holder of a credit card which is stolen or misused by someone other than the authorized holder.

Denies Link To Smoking

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Carl C. Seltzer, senior research associate at the Harvard University School of Public Health, says he has found no evidence that cigarette smoking can cause heart disease.

Dr. Seltzer said he has studied hundreds of research papers summarizing pathological, experimental, clinical and statistical experiments. His report in the American Medical Association Journal of Archives of Environmental Health was released Thursday.

Seltzer wrote part of the surgeon general's report on the effects of smoking in 1964. He said in an interview Thursday there is "no proof" that smoking and heart disease are related and that it is "unfair and incorrect" to say that they are.

Seltzer, 61, who said he has been smoking since he was 16 or 17, said the Public Health Service and the American Heart Association "are doing a disservice to the public" by their claims that the two are linked.

Seltzer came to a similar conclusion in a 1968 report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, where he used only statistical evidence to support his contention.

Students Built Own School

CUZCO, Peru (AP)— School children in the mountain village of Chaupisuyo were tired of attending classes in the open. So they went to military authorities at a nearby base and asked for building materials.

With guidance from an elderly man in the village, the students built their own school.

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has called on the nation's governors to join in a fight to drive kooks, misfits and bizarre extremists from the nation's front pages and television screens.

In a speech Thursday to the National Governors Conference, the vice president said "It is time for the political, business and academic leaders of this country to lead a figurative march back to normalcy."

Declaring that "the threat of violent revolution" is a "clear and present danger," Agnew said the greatest threat to the nation is "not the war in Vietnam, nor inflation, nor the environment, it is: Will the government of this country remain in the hands of its elected official or will it descend to the streets?"

Agnew said his concern at the current American condition was not grounded in "fear of the kooks or demagogues themselves, but in their current respectability."

"Never in our history have we paid so much attention to so many odd characters," he said. "Twenty five years ago, the tragicomic antics of such societal misfits would have brought the establishment running after them with butterfly nets rather than television cameras."

"It is in this inordinate attention to the bizarre, this preoccupation with the dramatic, this rationalization of the ridiculous, that we threaten the progress of our nation," Agnew said.

He said elected leaders can assert firm governmental authority—if they will take decisive action and are willing to "withstand the criticisms of the liberal community."

"Of equal importance," he said, "we can begin to lead American opinion."

"I am convinced that the overwhelming majority of Americans will follow the lead of their governors and other elected officials if we will just launch a campaign to exert the force of public opinion to drive these bizarre extremists from their pre-emptive positions on our television screens and on the front pages of our newspapers."

"Most of them need treatment more than publicity," Agnew said.

Agnew was the windup speaker at a two-day conference of the governors, who came to Washington to hear the administration report on its programs, and to talk with members of Congress about their own.

When Agnew completed his 20-minute address, the governors gave him a standing ovation, but in talking to reporters later not all the state executives agreed with the vice president's assessments.

Gov. Tom McCall, a Republican from Oregon, said he preferred a more low key approach in dealing with dissidents and demonstrators.

"I think we'll have to each respond in his own way," McCall said after the Agnew speech. "His strategy is to shout at them."

Gov. John Dempsey of Connecticut, a Democrat, said he was uncertain about how to answer Agnew's appeal for better leadership, but he called the vice president's address "a pretty good speech, a typical speech of his, in tune with the times."

Evans-Novak

affect what he says.

After Agnew's plane arrived at 2 p.m. Friday, he gave uncommunicative answers to two questions from the assembled press and then hurried to more than six hours of seclusion at the Sheraton-Ritz Hotel in Minneapolis. Contributors to the Elephants Club were enraged to discover him absent from their reception and were not mollified by explanations from state chairman George Thiss about the Vice President's tight schedule. Finally, without explanation or apology, Agnew turned up an hour late at the dinner.

The Vice President did somewhat modify his pulse-quickening rhetoric to suit the bland Minnesota temper—but not enough for party leaders. Seeking the youth for Rep. Clark MacGregor in his uphill Senate race against Hubert H. Humphrey, they wanted a positive tone about campus dissent. Instead, Agnew was as negative as ever.

The upshot: Agnew, having disdained contact with party leaders throughout his stay here, is even more the demagogic ogre to them. He had not yet left town when the Minnesotans began discussing a drastic reduction in the Republican National Committee's promised $50,000 share (out of $850,000 dinner proceeds) on grounds that Agnew broke his agreement to meet with the Elephants Club.

But the vast majority of the elated thousands at St. Paul Auditorium were oblivious to such high-level rancor. When the Vice President attacked the Chicago conspiracy defendants as "societal misfits" and accused leading Democrats of "a weird desire to suck up the political support of organized dissidents," the crowd cheered what it had come to hear.

It provided counterpoint to the present sinking sensation of liberal Republican leaders that they are losing touch with their constituency over Mayor Charles Stenwig of Minneapolis, the former police detective elected last year as a law-and-order independent.

River Is Fouled By Oil Spillage

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A barge-freighter collision sent a bank-to-bank oil slick rolling down the St. Johns River today toward the Atlantic Ocean and Jacksonville area beaches.

The black mass, spilled into the river Thursday night when a freighter plowed into an oil-filled barge, coated both shores of the St. Johns for about 10 miles.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the sludge moved about two miles per hour on an outgoing tide toward the mouth of the river and the ocean beaches.

Coast Guard officials said the freighter Merc Buccaneer, inbound from the Bahamas, slammed into the barge Eastpet 1 seven miles east of Jacksonville ripping a three-foot gash below the water line. No injuries were reported.

J. W. Connolly, president of Eastern Seaboard Petroleum Co., said his workmen estimated the total spillage at 7,000 gallons. The ruptured tank held 30,000 gallons, he said.

Earlier this month, a 21,000-gallon spill in Tampa Bay formed a 100-square-mile slick which killed thousands of birds and blackened bay shores and Gulf Coast beaches.

Officials said booms were brought in hoping to contain the St. Johns spill but the equipment was never used. "It was really too dark out there to see anything," said the Coast Guard spokesman.

All traffic on the busy river—entrance to the Port of Jacksonville—was halted, but it was expected to be opened today.

"It's going to be messy, but it shouldn't present a hazard to shipping," the spokesman said. Officials said oil gushed freely from the barge for about an hour after the crash.

A second barge was brought alongside and fuel was pumped out to lighten the stricken craft's load and bring the gash above the waterline.

The Coast Guard said the fouled river banks were mostly industrial or uninhabited areas.

RABIES CONTROL

DOG VACCINATION CLINICS SCHEDULE

The General Statutes of North Carolina were amended in 1957 to allow dogs over 6 months old to be vaccinated every three years with "Chick Tissue Culture Vaccine." In keeping with modern advancements, the Pitt County Rabies Control Department will continue this program. All dogs 4 months old or older are to be vaccinated.

Dogs between 4 and 6 months old are to be vaccinated now in 1970 and in 1 year in 1971.

Dogs over 6 months old which have never been vaccinated before or which have never been vaccinated with the "Chick Tissue Culture Vaccine" are to be vaccinated now in 1970 and then in 1973.

Place the vaccination tag on your dog's collar to identify your dog if lost or strayed. This is required by State Law. Please note the time of the clinic nearest your home.

UMW Plans Own Inquiry

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle says the union will carry out its own investigation into the Joseph Yablonski family slayings.

Boyle announced Thursday he is organizing an investigative commission to "hear all who desire to speak." It will meet in Pittsburgh.

"We now offer a forum for those who have information to step forward," he said at a news conference.

The four commissioners, all members of the union's executive board, will have the power to employ private investigators and retain lawyers, Boyle said.

Boyle, who defeated Yablonski in the Dec. 9 UMW presidential election, said the commission would hold its first session as soon as possible. He said he would testify.

In Clarksville, Pa., where Yablonski, his wife and daughter were found slain Jan. 5, the UMW insurgent's two sons issued a statement calling the commission an attempt to divert attention from the grand jury probe.

Fire Damage Medical School

DURHAM (AP) — Damage of $5,000 to $10,000 was estimated in a fire on the sixth floor of the Duke University Medical School Thursday.

Firemen were on the scene nearly three and a half hours extinguishing the blaze caused by a faulty exhaust fan motor. They said the flames were confined to a small storage area of the top floor of Duke's Davison Building.

KEEPS DRY

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI)—A manufacturer of small arms ammunition here has come up with a .22 caliber ammunition plastic package that keeps the ammunition dry in the wettest weather. The Omark-CCI plastic dispenser holds 100 cartridges instead of the usual 50, and is the first change in .22 ammunition packaging in more than 50 years.

Lack Doctors To Staff Planned Rural Clinics

RALEIGH (AP)—For lack of doctors, a proposal to set up clinics in rural areas of North Carolina that have few or no medical resources is floundering, says Dr. Edward Beddingfield, president of the North Carolina Medical Society.

The society, in cooperation with the University of North Carolina School of Medicine, has been trying to set up three pilot clinics, but has been unable to find enough doctors to staff them, Beddingfield said.

Plans call for 15 to 20 physicians to man each clinic, with each doctor volunteering about half a day every two weeks. Doctors would come from nearby towns.

Under the plan, "no one doctor would have to give up his practice and bear all the weight of the clinic," Beddingfield said.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady to slightly weaker Thursday, supplies adequate, demand slow to fair. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets.

Grade A large whites: 54½ to 55; medium whites 46 to 47; small whites: 42 to 43.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were steady. Tops of 26.25-27.25 at Rocky Mount; 26.25-26.50 at Wilson; 25.50-26.50 at Tarboro; 27.00 at Salisbury. Others unreported.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market was unsettled today. Supplies about in balance with fair demand. Weights mostly desirable. Prices at farm on broilers and fryers 11½-12 cents. Hen market tone firm, supplies barely adequate to short. Demand good, too few sales of any weight hens to report prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market bounded ahead vigorously early today as investors saw new hints that lower interest rates might be fairly near.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11 a.m. had gained 5.35 at 769.809.

The advance was on a broad front, with gainers topping losers by a margin of better than 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was moderately active.

Some price changes ran to a point or more.

Rails, chemicals, aircrafts and drugs were mostly higher.

WOTM Chapter Plans For Wilson Meet

The Mid-Winter Conference in Wilson was discussed and planned at the monthly business meeting of the Women of the Moose Chapter 1308 Thursday night.

The conference will be held on Sunday.

Mrs. Georgia McCollum, Senior Regent, asked all officers, committee chairmen and co-workers to attend the conference.

It was announced that a tacky party will be held at the Moose Lodge on March 7 with music by the Empalas.

NAACP Leaders Meet Saturday

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Nixon administration's stand on civil rights, and programs for the 1970s, will be the featured topics at a meeting of state and national NAACP leaders Saturday.

Clarence Mitchell, director of the NAACP Washington office, will discuss civil rights and the Nixon Administration. Althea Simmons, director of training programs for the group, will evaluate the NAACP program for the 1970s.

Other speakers include Mrs. Leigh Pleasant of the U. S. Office of Education, who will discuss federal programs for poor people.

Effort To Beat A 'People Jam'

NEW YORK (AP) — Some tradition-bound Wall Street financiers are changing their 9-to-5 time-honored ways: On April 1, about 35,000 of their employees will begin working an 8:30-to-4:30 shift.

In an effort to beat a projected people jam—an estimated 120,000 new workers in the financial district over the next two years—a Wall Street business group announced Thursday staggered working hours to ease the rapid-transit crush at peak hours.

"The prospect is staggering," said Edmund F. Wagner, president of the Downtown-Lower Manhattan Association. "If we don't do something about it now, we'll be walking on each others' shoulders."

Wagner said the area's workaday population is now 460,000.

TERMINATING BANGKOK (AP) — The Thai government served notice today it is terminating the treaties of friendship, commerce and navigation with 17 countries in Askia and Europe.

Report Sales Tax Take Rise

RALEIGH (AP) — Sales tax collections in North Carolina last year totaled nearly $255 million and were up 10.42 per cent from the previous year, Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton reported Thursday to Gov. Bob Scott.

Clayton told the governor sales tax collections were up in every county last year except Polk and Transylvania. He said Avery County, with $326,224 in collections, had the largest increase percentage-wise — 25.39 per cent.

Collections by industries included $23.4 million from automobiles and boats, a 20.65 per cent gain; $9.9 million from apparel, a 11.71 per cent gain; $68 million from food and beverages, a 9.14 per cent boost; $13.6 million from furniture, a 3.74 per cent rise; $50 million from general merchandise, a 10.96 per cent increase; $27.6 million from building material for a 10.03 per cent gain.

Mecklenburg County led in the collections with $30.8 million and a 10.79 per cent increase; Guilford had $20.7 million and a 9.87 per cent gain; Forsyth had $13.8 million and a 12.50 per cent increase; Wake had $17.7 million and a 11.91 per cent rise; Buncombe had $8.5 million for a 7.16 per cent increase, and Durham $7.9 million for a 7.71 per cent gain.

Other counties' collections and percentage increases included: Alamance, $4,911,279, 14.87; Beaufort $1,591,208, 11.23; Burke $2,001,054, 9.02; Cabarrus $3,483,440, 6.03; Catawba $5,903,833, 11.26; Cleveland $3,196,245, 14.92; Craven $2,827,593, 19.97;

Would 'Ration' Vehicle Traffic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A University of Rhode Island professor has a suggestion for fighting air pollution and crowded freeways—"vehicle ration days."

At a meeting Thursday of New England congressmen, Prof. Roy G. Poulson explained his plan: Auto license plates would be issued in different colors and on certain days, cars with certain color plates would be banned from the roads.

He said, "It would provide the affluent motorcar users, who are the major dispensers of air pollution and the moving power in forcing the carving of white commuter expressways through Negro housing areas, the opportunity to join the poor one or more days of the week in traveling via public transportation."

Repeated Shellings Across Suez Canal

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israeli military command reported today one Israeli soldier was killed and two wounded Thursday night after a day of repeated artillery exchanges with Egyptian forces across the Suez Canal.

The Egyptians recently have been concentrating on low-level air attacks across the waterway rather than on artillery bombardments which were a daily feature of the fighting only a few months ago.

A military spokesman also reported that three Arab guerrillas were foiled in an attempt to sabotage a settlement in upper Galilee, near the Lebanese border.

The guerrillas fled after guards spotted them, the spokesman added. He said an explosive charge that had been placed under one house was dismantled.

Hand grenade explosions today killed an Arab boy and wounded 39 other persons, including three Israeli soldiers in the occupied Gaza Strip, the military command said.

One grenade was tossed at an Israeli civilian car as it passed through Gaza's busy fish market. None of the occupants was injured.

Shortly after, another grenade was thrown at an Israeli army patrol at Gaza's Red Cross headquarters. The soldiers were wounded in this blast, a spokesman said.

In all, 36 Gaza Arabs were wounded, several seriously. The dead youth was identified as a 13-year-old Gaza resident.

The army began a house-to-house search of the area and several arrests were made.

Form Joint Narcotics Team For City, County

The county sheriffs department, city police force and state Bureau of Investigation personnel have jointly formed a narcotics investigation team to handle drug related cases within the city and county.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the team will be made up of representatives from both the city and county departments and will work with members of the SBI office on drug complaints.

Tyson said the exact number of team members has not been decided on yet but representatives from each department would make up the team.

A seminar is scheduled for next week at E.East Carolina University, Tyson said, for orienting the team members concerning aspects of drug investigation and related matters. He pointed out that a number of his personnel had already completed schools on drug investigation.

Joint Study Of Law, Genetics

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston College Law School and Tufts-New England Medical Center have created a joint center for the study of law and human genetics.

Vast scientific advances in the field of genetics may require new laws in the field, founders of the center said Thursday, and the center would provide information and assistance in mapping such laws.

Colonels Are Going Down

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — On Jan. 15 the Kentucky Colonels were in the best shape in their three-year American Basketball Association history—12 games above .500 and pressing Indiana for the Eastern Division lead.

Since then the Colonels have dropped 13 of 17 games, the most recent a 113-106 loss Thursday night to Pittsburgh.

The defeat also left Kentucky only 2½ games in front of fast-closing Carolina in the division race, with Indiana out in front by 13½ games.

Kentucky stayed with Pittsburgh for most of the game but never could gain the upper hand, despite 19 second-half points by Louie Dampier, who led both teams with 27. The Colonels also got a 25-point, 20-rebound performance out of pivotman Gene Moore.

In the third quarter, the Pipers' Stew Johnson knocked the bottom out of the basket for 16 of his 22 points, pushing Pittsburgh to a 13-point lead.

Kentucky came back in the closing minutes and cut the gap to 100-96 with 5:17 left, but another Piper burst put the game out of reach.

Warren Davis led the winners with 26 points, followed by Johnson and Barry Orms' 19. The contest was the only one scheduled in the ABA.

In the lone NBA clash Thursday night, Phoenix defeated Detroit 131-123.

Tarheels Hold Swim Lead

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Host North Carolina held a narrow lead after the first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference swimming championships Thursday night.

North Carolina had 125 points, followed by Maryland with 121 and N. C. State with 118. South Carolina had 65, Virginia 32.

WNCT Takes Carbide In Overtimes

WNCT downed Union Carbide 64-62 in a double overtime game in the Industrial League Basketball tournament, to make the semi-finals. In the second game, Fieldcrest eased by the Jaycees 92-44. These two wins, set the semi-finals parring, with WNCT meeting State Highway March 3, while Fieldcrest will take on Wachovia the same night.

Last night, WNCT and Union Carbide battled it out after the regulation game ended in a 52-52 tie. Joe Jenkins tossed in two free throws and Ikie Arnold two of the same, while Robert Mills and Harold Armstrong tossed in a field goal apiece to keep Union Carbide in the first overtime.

Jenkins tossed in the winning shot for WNCT, with :32 to go. Arnold led WNCT with 33 while Jenkins had 16. Mills had 15 for Union while Richard Hardee had 16, and Armstrong 12.

In the second game, Fieldcrest ran over the Jaycees, taking a 48-19 first half lead.

Billy Stocks led Fieldcrest with 39, while Hertford Parker had 15, Clarence Taft 15, and Sammy Perkins 11.

Bob Turner and John Bell had 10 apiece for the Jaycees.

East End Downs Ayden

AYDEN — East End downed South Ayden last night 70-58. East End took a 13-6 first period lead and ran it up to 29-17 at the half.

The second half was more of the same for East End, except for the fourth period, which saw South Ayden toss in 29 to 24 for East End.

Kalvin King led South Ayden with 22, while Tommy Gorham had 12 and Charlie Grimes 13. Feggins led East End with 24 while Crandall had 13, and Purvis 11.

In the second game, Fieldcrest ran over the Jaycees, taking a 48-19 first half lead.

Billy Stocks led Fieldcrest with 39, while Hertford Parker had 15, Clarence Taft 15, and Sammy Perkins 11.

Bob Turner and John Bell had 10 apiece for the Jaycees.

Stokes Upsets Bethel, 72-60

By CARL TYER
Reflector Sports Writer

Defending champion Stokes, of the Pitt County Tournament, will have a chance to defend their title, after upsetting Bethel last night 72-60.

After downing Ayden Tuesday night, Stokes Coach Jim Abrams said "we want Bethel, and nobody else." Last night the Blue Jays came on strong in the first period, taking a 16-9 lead, and Bethel had to play catch up for the remainder of the evening, while Stokes was setting a fast pace to keep up with, led by Donald White and John James.

Earlier in the evening, the Bethel girls had to scramble to take a 41-27 victory over Winterville, after the Lady Wolves had

Kansas St. Makes Tourney

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer
The Wildcats from Manhattan did it.

That is to say the Kansas State Wildcats from Manhattan, Kan., today are in the NCAA post season championship tourney for the national collegiate basketball title. "I know not many people thought we could do it, but our kids thought we could," said Cotton Fitzsimmons, the K-State coach. "The credit goes to them. They stuck together all season."

Fitzsimmons' comment came after his kids had beaten Colorado 79-69 at Manhattan Thursday night, thereby clinching the Big Eight Conference crown and the automatic NCAA berth that goes with it.

Jerry Venable paced the Wildcats with 31 points, 13 of them coming in the last six minutes after Cliff Meely, Colorado star, fouled out with 5½ minutes left. At the time K-State led by only one point 60-59.

Kansas State, which won only 14 of 26 games last season, now has a 19-5 overall mark and are 17th in The Associated Press Poll. They have a 10-2 mark in the Big Eight and lead Kansas by three games with two left.

Kansas State drew a first-round bye in the NCAA. The Wildcats' first game in the NCAA will be in the Midwest Regional at Lawrence, Kan. March 12 against the winner of the New Mexico State-SWC tilt at Fort Worth, Tex., March 7.

Down at Atlanta the nationally sixth-ranked Jacksonville Dolphins wiped Georgia Tech 86-81 in a battle between NCAA and NIT-bound teams.

The Dolphins, in the NCAA, won their ninth straight and upped their season record to 22-1 by coming from behind to beat the NIT-bound Engineers.

A layup by 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore with about seven minutes left put Jacksonville ahead for good at 67-66. Rich Yunkus of Tech was the game's high scorer with 36 points. Gilmore got 27 for the Dolphins.

The favored Davidson Wildcats, No. 11 in the AP Top Twenty, had little trouble whipping Virginia Military 72-46 in the first round of Southern Conference Championship Tourney at Charlotte.

Two free throws by Picot Frazier with 23 seconds left gave Richmond an upset 75-73 victory over East Carolina, and Mike Tallent's two free throws in the last five seconds accounted for George Washington's 66-64 triumph over The Citadel.

William and Mary beat Furman 82-67 in the other first-round game.

Davidson meets William and Mary and Richmond takes on George Washington in the tourney semifinals tonight.

First place again changed hands in the Western Athletic Conference scramble. Texas, El Paso, beat Brigham Young 81-70 and took over the top rung from Utah. The Redskins were beaten by New Mexico 93-74.

Jamesville Takes Rams

WILLIAMSTON — Jamesville downed Robersonville 64-60, while the Oak City girls took Jamesville 33-28 to make the finals of the Martin County basketball tournament tonight.

The finals have Robersonville's girls meeting Oak City at 7:00, and the Oak City boys meeting Jamesville at 8:30.

Last night, Jamesville made use of one poor quarter by the Rams to take a 16-6 first period lead; then held the Robersonville team off the remainder of the game as they tried to get back in it with three top quarters.

The Rams tossed in 18 in the second to make it 34-24 at the half, then pushed in 16 in the third while Jamesville had the same.

The Robersonville tried to take in it in the fourth with 20, while Jamesville had 14, but did not have the time.

E. L. Martin led Jamesville with 21, while John Barber had 14 and Phil Blount 10.

Tyward Perkins had 15 for Robersonville, while William Coppage had 16, and Timmy James 11.

Presby.-Immanuel Lead League

Presbyterian downed Black Jack 53-49, Immanuel went past Mt. Pleasant 52-29, and St. James took Oakmont 65-51 in church league basketball last night.

Immanuel and Presbyterian are tied for the league lead with both teams having 10-4 records, while Black Jack and Piney Branch are in second with 8-5 marks.

Last night, Black Jack held a slim 24-23 lead at the end of the first half but Presbyterian tossed in 30 in the second half to 25 for Black Jack to give Presbyterian the edge.

Tal Adams led Black Jack with 16 while Philip Smith had 12. Grazel Moore led Presbyterian with 19.

In the second game, Immanuel put on a fast paced second half to take Mt. Pleasant, as Mt. Pleasant had led 16-14 at the end of the first. Immanuel tossed in 34 in the second half to 13 for Mt. Pleasant to take it 52-29.

Clinton Gentry led Immanuel with 22, while Fred Carroll had 15.

St. James took command of their game with Oakmont, and led 29-26 at the half, then pushed in 36 in the second to 25 got Oakmont to take the final game of the evening 65-51. Ray Carawan led St. James with 19, while Van Britt had 18 and Chester Schultz 15.

Bon Benton led Oakmont with 18, while Don Parrott had 11.

come back in the second quarter of their game to tie it up at the half 15-15, with the Bethel girls falling below their normal scoring performance.

The Stokes upset was the big game of the evening however, as White put on a show of rebounding and accuracy from the field, hitting 12 shots from the floor. He was not acting alone however, as Lester House tossed in 15, John James 13, and Ronnie Briley 12 for the Jays.

James, nicknamed the "rabbit" by his teammates because of his speed, is the only returning Stokes player from last years team with tournament experience, but some of it must have rubbed off, as the Blue Jays surprised the crowd, with their fighting spirit, and their fast pace game late in the contest, no trying to put on very much of a stall.

Bethel did not just let them take the win that easy however, as they cut the lead down to nine with 1:41 remaining.

Eddie Stokes paced the Indians with 28 points, coming in the second period. Bethel did not hit a field goal in the first period, as Stokes built up a 15-2 lead before Bethel could cut it down to 16-9 at the end of the period.

Everything that went wrong for Bethel, Stokes seemed to do right, as the Blue Jays made taps and got the rebounds, while Bethel had everything they threw at the basket in the first period seem to shy away from the mark.

In the second period, Stokes continued to put on the steam, hitting 20 points, to 11 for the Indians, and taking a 36-20 lead into

Ford Signs Himself Out Of Doral Open

MIAMI (AP)—Jack McGowan put his game on the shelf for a while, Dave Marr put his financial house in order and Doug Ford put himself out of business.

The veteran Ford, 22 years on the pro tour, signed his scorecard which had a 40 for the score on the ninth hole, was charged with that, and took a 116 total in the first round of the $150,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

"I don't remember writing in the 40," Ford said. "I just remember writing the 79 total and signing it."

The 40 was his total for the first nine holes. But the figure appeared in the blank for the ninth hole, and under the rules of golf, Ford was stuck with it when he signed the card.

A similar incident occurred in the 1968 Masters when Roberto de Vicenzo signed an incorrect card and was knocked out of a tie for first place in the Masters.

Marr, who hasn't won since he took the 1965 PGA Championship, and the veteran McGowan the half.

In the third period, Bethel cut it down to 11 points, with it 48-37 at going into the final period.

Any hopes they had of pulling it out in the fourth period were snuffed when Stokes started going to the foul line and making them, building up their lead after Bethel had cut it down to nine points at 64-55 with 1:41 remaining.

Along with Stokes, Gary James was in double figures with 13.

In the girls game, Bethel came on in the third period to go into the lead and take the game, after it was tied at 15-15 at the half.

The Squaws built up a 23-18 lead, but Winterville cut it down to three at 23-20 going into the final period, but Bethel showed their old strength in the fourth hitting for 18 points, while the Wolves had seven.

Susan James led Bethel with 12, while Winterville did not have anyone in double figures.

Tonight, Belvoir meets Chocid in the boys game of the semi-finals, while Ayden, will take on Grifton in the first game at 7:00.

Congressional Fight Sidetracked By Committee

By JOHN BECKLER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lid has been clamped, at least temporarily, on a potentially explosive congressional fight over the federal government's role in school desegregation.

By a narrow 8-7 margin, the House Rules Committee has sidetracked an attempt by critics of the present federal desegregation effort to open the subject to exhaustive inquiry.

But before it got the lid back on Thursday, the committee brought to light a deep and bitter division in the House that imperils any education legislation in the near future.

The split is centered in the Education and Labor Committee, where Oregon Rep. Edith Green, the panel's second ranking Democrat, has long been at odds with most of her fellow Democrats.

It was her resolution calling for the creation of a special committee to conduct the investigation on which the rules committee had to act.

Once the darling of the education lobby, Mrs. Green has grown increasingly critical of government education programs and now finds most of her support among Republicans and Southern Democrats.

Tired of being outvoted in her own committee, she sought to have a new one created that would be more responsive to her views.

Most of the Democrats on the Education and Labor Committee appeared before the Rules Committee to oppose her resolution on the grounds it was unnecessary or would create jurisdictional problems.

But one, Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., told the Rules Committee what was really going on.

"The kind of police call that a patrol car hates worst of all to get is one that says there is family trouble," said O'Hara. "Well, we're having family trouble in the Education and Labor Committee and you gentlemen would be well advised to stay out of it."

After three days of hearings and a tense closed session, the Rules Committee heeded O'Hara's advice. It voted to defer action on Mrs. Green's resolution and expressed the hope the Education and Labor Committee would carry out the investigation she sought.

The vote probably killed Mrs. Green's resolution, at least for this year, but the issue raised by it is far from settled.

She had 114 co-sponsors and she is known to be a determined battler.

A former schoolteacher and an early champion of civil rights legislation, Mrs. Green is now convinced the schools should not be asked to bear the burden of righting the racial wrongs that have afflicted the United States for centuries.

The quality of education is suffering under the burden of forced desegregation, she feels, and it was this problem she wanted a special committee to look.

The Education and Labor Committee, dominated by Northern liberals committed to the present course of action, is unlikely to take such a look.

The issue was never really faced by the Rules Committee or by her opponents. They made her the center of their counter-attack and in a last effort to save her resolution she vowed she would not even serve on the special committee she sought to create.

Reach Debate Stage On 'Hot' Spending Measure

By JOE HALL

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate reached the debate stage today on a $19.4 billion appropriations bill carrying the explosive issues of slower school desegregation and new spending curbs to prevent a second veto by President Nixon.

Floor fights loomed on both issues, attached as amendments to the huge spending measure for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

The Senate Appropriations Committee set up the fight over spending controls by adopting an amendment Thursday that gives Nixon discretion to cut the appropriation by 2 per cent.

The provision, sponsored by Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., also gives Nixon authority to cut any item by more than 15 per cent. Republicans said they believed Nixon would not veto the bill if the provision is retained.

Last month Nixon vetoed before a nationwide television audience a $19.7 billion spending program for the two departments because he viewed it as inflationary. Nixon objected to the addition of $1.3 billion over his budget recommendations, most for education and health programs.

The House approved the second spending measure last week after turning down a GOP proposal to give Nixon power to make cuts totaling 2.5 per cent. That immediately raised the possibility of another veto.

Some senators, primarily Democrats, feel the 2 per cent provision in effect gives the President item veto power, something Congress has long refused to do.

The Nixon administration has asked that the three amendments designed to slow down school desegregation be deleted.

Two amendments, sponsored by Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., legalize freedom of choice plans and forbid cutoff of funds to school districts which refuse to bus students to overcome racial imbalance. The third, by Rep. Charles R. Jonas, R-N.C., also legalizes freedom of choice plans.

The new money bill as passed by the House carries $364 million less than the vetoed measure but $324 million more than Nixon said he would accept in a compromise offer.

The 2 per cent reduction power permits slicing of $347 million, thus bringing the bill below the total he said was acceptable.

The Appropriations Committee was told if the President were given the authority, he would trim $100 million from higher education programs, $95.7 million from Elementary and Secondary Education programs, and $45 million from vocational education.

The remainder of the $347 million would be made up of a variety of smaller reductions in health and education projects.

Myriad Of Labor Rules, Building Codes Pushed Housing Costs Up, Up

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) —
In a Chicago suburb, an architectural control commission required a builder to add a $135 nonfunctional gable to a garage roof.

In Kansas City, plumbers and plumbing contractors are still trying to overthrow in court a voters' referendum permitting builders to use cost-saving plastic pipe.

In Los Angeles County, it can take six weeks to process an application to build housing for sale under FHA mortgages—four weeks longer than it takes in the next county.

Narrow examples? Perhaps.
Costly? Only in the tens of hundreds of dollars each—per house.

But these and a myriad of other seemingly minor restraints—labor rules, building codes, regulations and restrictions—
join such factors as tight money, high interest rates and soaring land costs in adding to the cost of housing.

For example, one expert says
a single construction code change on spacing of 2x4s could save home buyers $100 million a year nationally.

Northbrook builder Richard
C. Harwood, chairman of the National Association of Home Builders' codes committee, cited the consumer, government and labor as the principal constraints on building cost.

The consumer, says Harwood, is a "rather backward ignoramus who cannot appreciate technology and is afraid of change."

"Ten years ago when we started using roof trusses instead of rafters and joists," he said, "the consumer thought it was skimpy. Yet it could carry 40 per cent more load and could save $120 a house."

"He's afraid of plastic pipe, too. Yet HUD (Department of Housing and Urban Development) and FHA (Federal Housing Administration) and the code groups (which write model building codes) have tested it and approved."

Harwood said some communities have imposed through their building codes such requirements as a 300-square-foot living room, 150-square foot kitchen and 50-square foot bathroom to boost house sizes and thus the income level of buyers.

He said one inspector was asked how the footage requirements were arrived at and replied: "We think this is what it should be."

Harwood said code differences mean the same house that builds for $48,000 in Northbrook costs $1,200 more two miles away in Glenview, Ill.

The combination of labor union influence on codes in the Chicago area and union work rules themselves also add to costs, said Harwood.

He said a group of builders offered to help the city of Chicago develop a building code for rehabilitating old buildings. The builders said they would proceed if the city could get an agreement with plumbers to handle plastic pipe, and with electricians to handle flexible sheathed wiring instead of stringing all wiring through metal conduit.

"The city never went ahead with the project," Harwood said. "It was solely a labor constraint. It was not economically sound for the builder to go into rehab work because the code was too restrictive. The codes are creating slums and aggravating the housing situation."

Harwood estimates it costs $75 to $125 extra per house where plumbers and/or codes prohibit use of the more flexible and easier-to-handle plastic pipe for drain, vent and waste systems.

The biggest recent battles in the code and union area have centered on plastic pipe. Builders almost unanimously say they can save money using plastic pipe. Plumbing unions, plumbing contractors and the Cast Iron Soil Pipe Institute, a trade association, have fought its approval in building codes.

A legal dispute in Kansas City, Mo., is a classic example of how complex and prolonged a building code battle can become.

The Kansas City Council, after months of hearings and study, adopted a revised city plumbing code Aug. 9, 1968, over opposition of local unions and a group
they started called the Citizens Plumbing Committee.

The new code, allowing plastic pipe for some construction projects, was backed by a group called Citizens for an Up-To-Date Plumbing Code—strongly backed by the Home Builders Association, Chamber of Commerce and local chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

After the code was adopted,

code opponents obtained 18,000 signatures and forced the code to a referendum. Kansas City voters approved the new code by a 6-to-5 margin.

Plumbers and plumbing contractors then went to court attacking the code. But a circuit court judge upheld the code last May.

Court fights are continuing, complicated by a dispute over plumbers' licensing that is involved in the new code. The case is expected eventually to reach the Missouri Supreme Court. Meantime, plumbers' supporters introduced a bill in the Missouri Legislature to ban use of plastic pipe throughout the state.

If the Kansas City plastic pipe dispute sounds confused, multiply it by the number of local governments in the United States, then multiply that by the number of structural components and separate elements that go into a house.

That would give an idea of how tangled the entire building code situation is in the United States.

The states have historically handed responsibility for building codes down to local units of government. As a result, there are more than 8,000 separate building codes in the United States.

In a few cases, however,
states are reclaiming the responsibility. California and Ohio have passed laws giving the state inspection power over housing mass-produced in factories. And in Connecticut a statewide building code for all construction will go into effect in October.

What standardization there is in building codes mostly results from efforts of four essentially regional, private organizations to develop model codes and encourage their adoption.

T. H. Carter, executive director of the International Conference of Building Officials—one of the four groups—said differences in building codes are not as great from one jurisdiction to another as sometime is charged

Church Plans Sunday Services At School

Holy Trinity United Methodist Church will begin holding Sunday services at the Aycock
Jr. High School beginning Sunday. The church has been meeting in the Masonic Temple on Charles Street.

Rev. James A. Starnes, minister of Holy Trinity since November, 1968, says of this move, "The Junior High School is located opposite our future building site on Red Banks Road and we are very pleased to receive permission to use these facilities until we can build the first unit of our church."

In addition to the new location, the church has been assigned a new minister, Rev. Roy Turnage of Ayden. Rev. Starnes has accepted a teacher - counselor - preacher position at Southeastern Community College in Whiteville.

Rev. Willis Stevens, district superintendent of the Greenville Area, has announced that Turnage will assume his ministerial responsibilities at Holy Trinity on Easter Sunday, 1970.

Holy Trinity United Methodist Church was sponsored by St.
James in 1966 and Jarvis Memorial supplied most of the members. This joint effort by the two large United Methodist Churches now offers to the Greenville community a small church of Jesus Christ of the Wesleyan tradition.

Lyman Daughtrey, chairman of the administrative board, extends this invitation to all interested persons: "We welcome visitors to study and worship with us this Sunday at the new Jr. High School. Come and help us build a small United Methodist Church."

Traffic Tied Up By Light Rains

LIMA, Peru (AP) — It almost never rains in Lima, and when it does the rainfall is light.
Nonetheless, even the slightest downpour almost immediately bottles up automobile traffic.

The reason: thieves steal all windshield wipers found on cars, so owners keep them locked up inside the car, where they do no good in a sudden rain.

For Women, But Ladies Only

CAMPBELLSVILLE, Ky.
(AP) — A small brass sign on a door at the end of a corridor at the Taylor County Courthouse apparently has been misunderstood.

That sign reads: "Women's Toilet."
Beneath the brass sign hangs a larger sign painted on cardboard: "Ladies Only."

SPRING makes the difference

As you gaze at this scene of snow, ice, and leafless trees, your mind may skip ahead and picture green grass, abundant foliage, and a rippling stream. The very thought brings happiness. Spring makes the difference.

As grass, trees, and streams are fettered by winter, so some lives are bound by doubt, unbelief, lack of faith, and false ideas. When they come in contact with the Church, the love of God sets them free. They see new beauty in everything about them, and others see new beauty in their lives. As spring brings all nature to new life, so God's love makes human beings happier, gives them life more abundant.

No matter how strong the fetters which bind you, freedom can be yours through the Church and the message it brings to all. Why not accept that freedom today?

The Worry Clinic Vaccinate For Homesickness

Annette's tragedy is duplicated at least 100,000 times during the opening semester of college! And it is due to the most common medical ailment at the university, namely, "campus nostalgia." So vaccinate your children against this hazard, even before they enter kindergarten! Cut mama's apron strings early!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
PH. D., M.D.

CASE M-340: Annette B., aged 18, dropped out of college. "Dr. Crane," her worried mother began, "Anne was a good student in high school. So she should have carried her college work with ease. But she was always so homesick that she'd return to visit us almost every weekend, for we live only 100 miles from her college town. And sometimes she'd delay going back till Monday morning. As a result she dropped behind in her homework assignments and before last Christmas, she was overcut in

Grifton Girl Donations Will Aid Is Finalist Estuarine Research

GREENSBORO — A Grifton student is one of 22 finalists in the competition for a Katharine Smith Reynolds Scholarship to the University of North Carolina here.

The student is Miss Rebecca Jane Bosley, a senior at Grifton High School, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Emerson Bosley of Dupont Street, Grifton.

The finalists will be interviewed by the Reynolds Scholarship Central Committee at UNC-G March 16. The committee, composed of alumnae and faculty members of UNC-G, will select 12 young women as winners.

Each of the 12 will receive a Reynolds Scholarship valued at $6,400 for four years of undergraduate study. Each scholarship is valued at $1,600 annually, and covers board, room, tuition, fees, books and miscellaneous expenses.

School from the very start so it can play with other toddlers and thus be away from mamma for 30 minutes, even though it knows she is in the same church building.

Enter it into Nursery School, too, to socialize it even before the usual kindergarten age of 5 years.

Also, send it to your church summer camp when it reaches the teens and to Boy or Girl Scout or Camp Fire Girls' camps.

Meanwhile, launch the "Compliment Club" project as an all-family experiment in learning to win friends and to become socially more self-reliant.

So send at once for my "Compliment Club Booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

Remember, even before kindergarten, you should insure your child's future college education and his social independence!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Whenever values somewhat above the minimum are held, many players are reluctant to rebid one no trump after they have opened the bidding.

They labor under the misconception that such a rebid is a "denial." A denial of what? Opener surely won't deny that he has an opening bid, because everyone at the table heard his initial call.

If we must employ the word "denial" [a much abused term], the rebid of one no trump denies that the opening bidder has a power-house. That is all. It couldn't mean that he has a poor hand, else he would not have opened the bidding.

Such a bid purports to say, "Partner, I have a hand which falls within the limits of a minimum opening. That is to say, it is evenly balanced and ranges in high card count between 13 and 16. If your hand is below average we cannot go game, and might as well play it at no trump. If your hand is above average [more than 10 points], you should make one more bid, for in that case there is a fair chance that we may have game in hand."

In other words, the rebid of one no trump is frequently made on a hand which contains 15 points, which makes it a rank somewhat above minimum.

How much then should opener have to justify a jump to two no trump on the second round? Roughly about an ace and a queen above a minimum hand; in other words, 19 points.

In today's hand South held 16 points and his one no trump rebid was in order. If it is argued that South should have opened with one no trump, the answer is that it is not our practice to open a no trump with a hand containing a worthless doubleton.

East made a thoughtful play to prevent declarer from making overtricks. Upon winning the first trick, declarer led a heart to the jack and East permitted it to hold, and this prevented the heart suit from being brought in. As the cards lie, declarer can win nine tricks by ducking the first heart completely and finessing the jack on the next round.

You've got a lot to live Pepsi's got a lot to give

What we mean is this: living isn't always easy, but it never has to be dull. There's too much to see, to do, to enjoy. Put yourself behind a Pepsi-Cola and get started. You've got a lot to live.
