Nixon's Gesture Eases Strained Feelings Over Pompidou Discourtesy

NEW YORK (AP) — Both President Nixon and Georges Pompidou said Monday they were pleased with the result of Nixon's hurried trip to New York to offer his apology for any discourtesy to the French president by Americans.

Nixon's gesture on the last night of Pompidou's eight-day state visit appeared to have eased ill feeling resulting from demonstrations over France's agreement to sell 110 jets to Libya while refusing to release 50 to Israel.

Nixon brought cheers and laughter at a dinner for Pompidou when he said he had wanted the French leader to see the United States as an American president does. "And I must say we overdid it a bit, as we usually do."

Pompidou, who had been angered over what he termed insults to himself and his wife during pro-Israel demonstrations in Chicago, responded by praising Nixon and saying it was a "very great joy" to be at the dinner.

"France is our oldest ally and our closest friend," Nixon said. "That friendship is so deep and so long that no minor difficulties or bad manners are going to impair it."

Pompidou beamed as Nixon spoke and replied in a toast: "In spite of all, allies and friends."

Outside the hotel a pro-Israel demonstration drew up to 5,000 persons at one point, then dwindled rapidly away.

There were shouts of "Boo, boo, Pompidou!" Placards were displayed and some chanted Hebrew songs. Most were peaceful and police reported one arrest.

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler told newsmen on the flight back to Washington that Nixon was "quite pleased" with Pompidou's response to his gesture and the dinner.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that "American education is in urgent need of reform," President Nixon asked Congress today to set up a new agency to conduct research and experimentation in that field.

In a special message, Nixon said the country needs "a searching re-examination of our entire approach to learning."

He said: "We must stop pretending that we understand the mystery of the learning process or that we are significantly applying science and technology to the techniques of teaching—when we spend less than one-half of 1 per cent of our educational budget on research, compared with 5 per cent of our health budget and 10 per cent of defense."

To spearhead an expanded research effort, Nixon called for creation of a National Institute of Education within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The NIE eventually would take over existing research programs from the Office of Education.

Noting that his budget for the 1971 fiscal year that starts July 1 calls for $312 million for educational research—an increase of $67 million—Nixon said money to carry on the work of the institute he proposes would be in addition to that.

The message puts no dollar figure on the over-all cost of operating the institute.

In other areas, Nixon said he was establishing by executive order a President's Commission on School Finance with a two-year lifetime, to develop recommendations on the fiscal and organizational needs of both public and private schools in the United States.

"Because we have neglected to plan how we will deal with school finance," he said, "we have great instability and uncertainty in the financial structure of education."

He cited as a "cause for national concern" the gap in educational spending between rich and poor states and school districts.

LBJ Under Observation

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson—stricken with chest pains—was under constant observation today in his special penthouse suite on the top of an Army hospital.

One of his attending physicians, Col. Robert L. North, said hardening of the coronary arteries was reducing the flow of blood to Johnson's heart and that this was the source of the pain.

The physicians at the Army's Brooke General Hospital said there were no signs of a heart attack, although they noted a minor change in his electrocardiograms, which provide a graphic record of heart movements.

They expressed concern over the frequency of chest pains and said Johnson might be hospitalized for several days.

parochial and other schools, Nixon said their financial difficulties are to be "a particular assignment of the commission" because, he said, if all private schools were to close or turn public, the burden on public funds by the end of the 1970s would exceed $4 billion a year for operation. In addition, he estimated $5 billion more would be needed for facilities.

"In its deliberations," Nixon said, "I urge the commission to keep two considerations in mind. First, our purpose here is not to aid religion in particular but to promote diversity in education; second, that non-public schools in America are closing at the rate of one a day."

Nixon endorsed "the right to read as a national

Seized Boat Is Released By Cubans

MIAMI (AP) — An American treasure-hunting vessel seized at gunpoint by a Cuban patrol boat has been freed to leave the Communist island and the skipper's wife said she was informed it had sailed for home.

The Swiss Embassy in Havana sent word that the Jocelyn-C, captained by Stan Carlson of East Orleans, Mass., was released Monday 24 hours after it was boarded, the State Department said.

Jocelyn Carlson, wife of the owner, said from her home in East Orleans that she had been advised by the office of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that "all five had been released and were on their way back."

The vessel carried a crew of five when captured near Cay Lobos in the old Bahama channel about 15 miles north of Cuba.

The State Department and Rear Adm. Paul G. Prins, commandant of the 7th Coast Guard District, said there had been no contact with the boat.

The only U.S. vessel in the vicinity, the Coast Guard cutter Steadfast, had left the scene to go to a disabled fishing boat, Prins said.

Miami television station WLBW, quoting ship broadcasts monitored here, said the Steadfast and the Jocelyn-C had attempted to communicate during the late afternoon but radio interference blocked their conversations.

David J. Shamp, a spokesman for Sub-Mar Inc., of Washington, to which the Jocelyn-C is under charter, said the State Department told him the boat was expected to return to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He said he had had no direct contact with the vessel.

Earlier Monday, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference reports received by his office indicated the Jocelyn-C was in international waters when it was boarded.

McCloskey told a news conference he was satisfied that the American boat "had no connection with the U.S. government."

The red, white and blue vessel was escorted into the port of Caibarien as the Steadfast stood by three miles offshore, outside of territorial waters.

The Steadfast was sent to the area when Carlson radioed that he was being approached by the Cuban craft.

educational goal for the 1970s and said he will soon ask Congress for $200 million to promote reading programs in both public and private schools.

The chief executive also called for a three-year renewal of the federal charter of the Corporation For Public Broadcasting but said a portion of the corporation's federal funding should be based on matching contributions from private sources.

Finally, he said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Office of Economic Opportunity will set up a network of "early learning" centers to discover what teaching methods are most effective in early childhood. This would be financed by $52 million already in the Nixon budget.

Proposal For Planned Parenthood Mobile Unit Made To County Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

County Commissioners yesterday heard an idea for a new planned parenthood clinic and heard a report on progress of a study to find some solution to the crowded conditions at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Greenville gynecologist Dr. Ed Clement, with Pitt Social Services Department director Miss Dorothy Bolton told commissioners that something more should be done to make contraceptive methods available to all citizens in all areas of the county in order to reduce the number of unwanted children and unwed mothers.

Dr. Clement suggested that such a clinic might be operated in a mobile unit that could travel to all areas of the county, and said such an operation could be "an extension of our present program."

Presently, a number of Greenville physicians in cooperation with the Pitt County Health Department, operate a Post-partum and Planned Parenthood clinic (in addition to a pre-natal clinic) which in addition to other services, makes contraceptive medications and devices available to those attending.

Miss Bolton, who said some new program is "mandatory" under the 1967 Social Security act, reported that there about 5,100 women in the county at the present time who should be reached by such service. In 1968, about 800 women were reached by the Planned Parenthood Clinic.

Commissioners were told that several proposals have been received from private companies regarding local hospital operations. The board was told that a full report would be forthcoming after receipt of one more proposal that is expected in the near future.

Israel, Egypt Trade Air Blows

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli planes attacked Egyptian army positions along the northern sector of the Suez Canal for an hour today, then returned safely, the Israeli military command said.

Later Cairo radio said Egyptian jets attacked the southern sector of the 103-mile waterway and also returned safely to base.

The Egyptian broadcast quoted the military command in Cairo as saying the raiders left Israeli military strongholds in flames. "The Israelis were seen carrying off their casualties," it said.

Pitt Elections Board Incumbents Take Oaths

The three incumbent members of the Pitt County Board of Elections were sworn for another two-year term yesterday at noon during ceremonies at the courthouse. Clerk of Superior Court, H.L. Lewis Jr., administered the oaths to chairman I. Bruce Koonce, T. Eli Joyner of Farmville and Henry T. Smith of Fountain.

The swearing-in ceremonies yesterday came on the heels of recent action taken by the State Board of Elections in which a proposed slate of officers, submitted by the local executive committee, was turned down in favor of the incumbent members.

State Democratic Party chairman Eugene Simmons last week requested that a meeting of the state board be convened for the purpose of discussing with him several appointments made by the board to county post, including Pitt County.

This morning, the chairman of the State Board of Election, J. Brian Scott, said that he had talked to Simmons and both had agreed that a date for the proposed meeting would be set sometime following a state Democratic meeting scheduled for Saturday.

Scott said that he had told Simmons the meeting would be called and that he considered the proposal proper. It was agreed, he said, that a suitable date for both Simmons and the board could be decided on.

Both Koonce and Joyner man the county's Democratic seats on the board while Smith represents the Republican party. By law, the state majority party is entitled to two seats on the board and the minority party gets the other position.

The slate that was turned down by the State Board included Democratic Party nominees J.B. Spillman and Bernie Baker, both of Greenville, and Sam Nelson of Grifton.

Agree To Give Alternatives

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Housing Authority commissioners last night agreed to submit two alternative lease amendments to the city council towards reaching a mutual agreement concerning the description of the boundary lines of the N.C. 22-5 section of Moyewood.

Under an old agreement, the Authority leased to the city the old county school bus garage and roughly four acres of land for use and development of a social services center.

Currently, executive director A. E. Dubber explained, the Authority wishes to amend the lease with the city to transfer roughly two acres of the land in the project (N.C. 22-4) to the N.C. 22-5 project.

On the transferred land, and existing acreage, 17 units will be built including two along Conley Street.

City Manager Harry Hagerty last night said that the land left around the old garage after the transfer would not be enough for suitable recreational development unless the two units along Conley Street were deleted.

Conley Street, at the present time, terminates at West Third Street and proposals for its extension will not meet with HUD's approval in Atlanta unless housing units are constructed on the street.

In effect, Dubber said, without the construction of the two units on the Conley Street extension, the cost of the extension could not be justified.

The two alternative lease amendments will involve: 1) transfer of the land from the original lease and development of the 17 units and completion of the street, or 2) transfer of the land, less the two units on proposed Conley Street and not developing the street.

Without the development of suitable housing units in the proposed Conley Street area, chairman James Sutton, said Atlanta would not justify the expense of the street.

The two proposals will be submitted to the city council at their next meeting.

In other matters last night, commissioners adopted a revised version of the tenant dwelling lease. Dubber explained on page 10)

Martin Board Clears Way For Selling Of Bonds

WILLIAMSTON — A bond sale of $2,100,000 for the new Martin County hospital and another bond sale of $200,000 for construction of Martin Technical Institute were approved by Martin County Commissioners yesterday.

These are expected to be sold sometime around the 15th of May. The commissioners also agreed to place $50,000 in next year's budget to take care of an additional expenses over and beyond the $200,000 for the technical institute construction.

Five members — (Vance L. Roberson, chairman, W. C. House, Oscar B. Roberson, L. G. Taylor, W. B. Long and Ghurman Ange were named as directors for the new hospital to be constructed.

A Martin County Planning Board was also named, consisting of ten members: Ralph Mobly, Robersonville, four years; Mrs. Thad Harrison, Williamston, four years; William J. Morris, Williamston, four years; Mrs. Eugene Rogers, Williamston, three years; Albert Martin, Jamesville, three years; N. C. Hyman, Oak City, three years; Henry B. Winslow, Hamilton, three years; Milton Council, Hassell, two years; John C. Rogers, Bear Grass, two years; and Wilbert Gardner, Williamston, two years.

Bruce Beasley and Worth

Chesson, both of the Mid-East Economic Redevelopment Commission, outlined the requirements of the Positive Action Program (PAP) and the changes in public housing legislation regarding public housing for a rural area. A new application under the changed housing program will be submitted for 475 units in Martin County exclusive of the towns of Williamston and Robersonville.

The commissioners also passed a resolution to request the State Highway Commission to approve N.C. 171 between U.S. 17 and U.S. 64 as a heavy traffic road due to the large number of logging trucks using this road, which connects Old Ford on U.S. 17 south of Williamston to Jamesville on U.S. 64 east of Williamston.

Tim Malone, a county commissioner, was named to attend a meeting in Raleigh dealing with methods of solid waste disposal.

The commissioners agreed to an effort by the Board of Education to negotiate for additional land adjacent to land already owned by the Board of Education at the proposed site of a new consolidated school near Jamesville.

In a final action, the county clerk was directed by having the county attorney draw up an ordinance prohibiting the sale of beer on Sunday.

Bridge-Tunnel To Reopen Soon

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — The Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, closed since it was struck by a Navy ship Jan. 21, probably will be reopened Thursday, a spokesman said today.

Five 75-foot concrete sections were knocked out when struck by the attack cargo ship Yancy. The last of five replacement sections was lowered into place Sunday by a floating derrick.

Before the 17.6-mile crossing can be reopened to traffic, the replacement sections must be paved and hand railings and light poles installed.

While the bridge-tunnel has been out of service, the state has provided a flying service for commuters between the mainland and the Eastern Shore, and the Navy a ferry service for trucks.

Reader Complains About Age Fraud

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am employed in the records department of a government agency, and I would like to use your widely syndicated column to air a gripe.

People who lie about their ages! They louse up our Social Security records, insurance and pension payments. They do the same in private business.

We've had cases where people have lied about their ages from 1 to 15 years and what a Godawful mess that leaves us in!

So, be a pal, Abby, and tell the people out there, it's a sin to tell a lie.

OLGA IN RECORDS

DEAR OLGA: While I do not condone lying about anything, I can certainly understand why so many people have lied about their ages. Private companies as well as government agencies have been so unfair, and unrealistic in their hiring and retiring practices that they have practically forced many otherwise scrupulously honest men and women to lie about their ages in order to survive a few years more. When big business admits that age is not as important as the ability to do the job, people may quit lying about their ages and losing up records. And I'm for that!

DEAR ABBY: There is a fellow in one of my classes who digs me, but I don't dig him. He's just not my type. He asks me for dates months ahead, so he knows I can't possibly have a date for that night.

What can I tell him? If I say I'm busy on a Friday night, he asks me for Saturday. Or the NEXT Friday, or the NEXT Friday. It's really ridiculous, Abby.

I hate to hurt this guy's feelings, but I just don't care to go out with him. So what should I do? I feel sorry for him.

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED: The next time he asks you for a date level with him. Tell him to ask somebody else. And if you can dig up a girl who you think might dig him, suggest he call her. It's not as unkind as it sounds. It's better than going with him and wasting his money and your time.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer I wrote to you about my problem and inclosed a self-addressed envelope for your reply. You answered that letter, but I never did see your answer altho it helped to save our marriage. Do you know why?

My husband got the mail before I did that day. He saw a letter addressed to me in my own hand, became curious, and opened the letter, read it, and never showed it to me. He told me later that at first he was very angry with me for having written to you, but after he thought about it for a while he decided to take your advice, which was for us to see the family counseling service.

I never could figure out why, out of the clear blue sky, my husband decided we should get professional help.

I thought you'd like to know, Abby, that altho our marriage is far from ideal, it is a lot better, and it's improving all the time.

So thanks, Abby, for a letter you wrote to me which I never read, but helped me all the same.

Boutique Collection Dazzles The Eye

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Brooks fans will jump for joy at the news of his boutique collection. And thanks to the $75 to $250 price range of the clothes in the collection, the woman who previously could afford only to look at, but not wear, her dream designer's creation, can do her celebrating in a Brooks-designed outfit.

The boutique collection, which blends resort and spring fashions, utilizes many fabrics, including printed silks especially designed by Julian Tomchin, unused colored linens and matte jerseys. Even weather can't prevent a dedicated Brooks fan from showing off his designs—raincoats and rainsuits, as well as the more-to-be-expected beach shifts, are included in the collection.

Black and white cotton plaids are big with Brooks. Bias plaid dresses come with their own accessories—poker chip scarves and black leather pull-through hip belts. Plaid hip-hugging trousers are topped by an overblouse of black matte jersey belted with red, black and white leather tie.

Gals who go for prints will want to note the tunic dress or trousers with a tunic top executed in a black, red and white puzzle print on silk linen. Red crepe makes its mark in a shirt-sleeve shift with front vertical tucking running from neck to hem. The black poker chip belt worn with this outfit really isn't a gamble at all—it's sure to be a success.

Lemon yellow and poppy red with dashes of black and white form a third color grouping. Especially eye-catching is a poppy-red poplin raincoat with yellow top stitching worn over yellow low wool jersey trousers and overblouse which is belted with chain and woven red leather. A red poplin rainsuit is sure to provoke both rainy and sunny day smiles.

What's spring without flowers? Daisies, poppies and dandelions in pink, blue, white and burnt orange adorn bare midriff halter top pajamas, full skirts and pants worn with cottonwrap blouses and vests. Slit above the knee, the resortwear informals are lined in pink polished cotton.

Brass bamboo belts, cuff links and/or buttons accent white crash linen beach shifts. Jumpsuits are everywhere, in both jersey and linen. One eye-catching, a blue jumpsuit, is completely covered with silver nailheads and belted with metal hinges laced with red suede. Handkerchief hemlines in jumpsuits are another Brooks' boutique collection trademark.

Metal fake reptile stretch belts, leather ties, matching rainscarves, spaghetti-fined vests and pants and skirts worn with halter tops or shirt-type blouses in multi, multicolors splashed on silk, complete the diversified Brooks' boutique collection.

This Cold Souffle Uses A Pudding Mix

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
This cold souffle is made with a package of chocolate pudding mix and is for those tasters who do not like a very sweet dessert. Because the flavor is on the mild chocolate side, the cook who originated the recipe took a hint from Mexican cooking and added cinnamon.

Walnuts go into the dessert, too. And nowadays they come in convenient packages—shelled in see-through bags and in vacuum cans as well as in-the-shell in see-through bags.

CHILLED CHOCOLATE WALNUT SOUFFLE

1 package (4-serving size) chocolate fudge or dark sweet chocolate pudding mix
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs
2 1/2 cups milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 container (8 ounces) heavy cream
1 cup finely chopped walnuts

Tie a 1 1/2-inch wide collar of wax paper around the outside top rim of a 3 1/2-cup souffle dish. In a saucepan stir together the pudding mix, gelatin, salt and cinnamon. Add the egg yolks (put whites in a small mixing bowl) and 1/2 cup of the milk. With a whisk beat to combine; add the remaining 2 cups milk. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until mixture reaches a full boil. Remove from heat; cool.

Beat egg whites until stiff; beat in 2 tablespoons of the sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time.

Without washing beater, beat 1/2 cup cream until stiff. Into the cooled pudding fold egg whites, cream and 2-3rds cup of the walnuts.

Turn into prepared dish. Chill until firm.

At serving time remove paper. Beat the remaining cream until almost stiff; add the remaining 1 tablespoon sugar and beat until stiff. Garnish top of pudding with cream; sprinkle with remaining 1-3rd cup walnuts.

Makes six servings.

Report Loss Of Three 'Copters

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong and North Vietnamese gunners shot down three more American helicopters Monday, while 156 of the enemy and five Americans were reported killed in other action across South Vietnam.

One American was killed and six were wounded in the three helicopters. One went down near the Laotian border 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone, a second near the Cambodian border 90 miles northeast of Saigon, and the third 15 miles northwest of Hue.

This raised to 6,459 the number of American aircraft reported lost in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961.

The biggest claim of enemy casualties came from South Korean forces, whose headquarters announced 81 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed in a number of clashes along the coast from Cam Ranh Bay to Hoi An. It was the Koreans' biggest day of action this year, and they said their casualties were one man killed and 11 wounded.

Thirty-seven North Vietnamese were reported killed by warplanes supporting South Vietnamese irregulars led by American Green Berets near Superstition Mountain, in the lower western Mekong Delta bordering Cambodia. A spokesman said the ground troops killed three more North Vietnamese and there were no U.S. casualties.

Tanks and armored personnel carriers from the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment ran into more North Vietnamese troops in jungles 75 miles north of Saigon. Helicopter gunships and artillery were called in, and the Americans claimed 27 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed in 45 minutes. One American soldier was reported wounded.

About 10 miles farther south along the Cambodian border, another unit from the 11th Armored Cavalry reported killing six enemy soldiers without an American casualty in a 30-minute fight.

Ninety miles south of Da Nang, North Vietnamese troops opened fire with rifles and grenades on patrolling American infantrymen from the American Division's 11th Brigade, triggering a 2½-hour fight. Three Americans were killed, eight were wounded, and enemy losses were not known, the U.S. Command said.

Seventy miles to the north Viet Cong troops ambushed a small U.S. Marine patrol, killing two Marines and wounding three others. The patrol killed two Viet Cong.

U.S. B52 bombers kept on pounding major North Vietnamese infiltration routes from Laos and Cambodia.

About 40 of the bombers dropped 1,200 tons of bombs on infiltration routes, base camps, bunkers and storage areas. The heaviest raids were in a jungle region 65 miles north-northwest of Saigon called the Fishhook, because at this point the Cambodian border hooks into South Vietnam's Tay Ninh and Binh Long provinces.

Urges Help On Housing

DURHAM (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott has called on rural electric cooperatives to take the lead in a program to provide rural North Carolina with decent housing.

"What I'm asking you to do is to give housing the same priority that you gave rural electrification," Scott told a joint meeting of the Tar Heel Electric Membership Association and the North Carolina Electric Membership Corp. Monday.

He told the coop members that the rural housing situation will not be remedied "unless you accept the challenge."

He told them they must "take the initiative and become the local leaders who develop programs, obtain funds, work with governmental agencies, find solutions."

As a first step, Scott asked the electric cooperative officials to call a conference on rural housing within three months.

"Better housing will not solve all of the many problems that beset rural North Carolina," Scott said. "But these other problems will never be solved until there is decent rural housing."

Scott said the 1960 census showed 48 per cent of the state's rural housing units—about 250,000 dwellings—were substandard.

Adults Turning To Bicycling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bicycle riding is "spreading like wildfire and the increase is mainly among adults," said Clifford L. Franz, California head of the League of Wheelmen.

"The antipollution preachers have jumped on the bandwagon," Franz said, because unlike cars, bikes don't pollute the air.

Franz says recent surveys show that 60 million Americans ride bicycles.

The League, which expired for lack of interest in 1942, was reorganized in 1964 when biking began a comeback as a health fad.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reserve Officer Training Corps enrollment dropped more than 25 per cent in 1969, apparently reflecting increased hostility toward ROTC on some college campuses.

The Pentagon said Monday that the drop of 56,471 from the 1968 enrollment of 212,417 was chiefly caused by the fact that 49 colleges and universities no longer require compulsory ROTC training.

"To some unknown degree, it may also reflect the growth of animosity toward the military on the campus," the Pentagon said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign scientists and women will be invited to participate in an undersea living experiment called Tektite 2, Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel has announced.

Teams will stay underwater for 14 to 20 days. The experiments will be conducted in the waters of Great Lameshur Bay off St. John Island in the Virgin Islands from April 1 to Oct. 30.

Scientists from Japan, Britain, France, Australia, Canada and West Germany have volunteered for the project, Hickel said. Neither the female team nor the international team has been chosen, he added.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft boards can require conscientious objectors to perform civilian service in lieu of military service, the Supreme Court has ruled.

In a 7-1 decision, the high court rejected the appeal of Vincent J. O'Connor, who was convicted in U.S. District Court for northern California of willful failure to report for civilian service as an alternative to military service.

O'Connor, who was sentenced to three years in prison, argued that Selective Service law has no moral or legal basis to require him to serve in the armed forces and therefore did not require him to do substitute civilian work.

Apollo 13 Crew To Face Quarantine Of 21 Days

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Because Apollo 13 will land on a different area of the moon next month, its three-man crew will have to endure 21-day quarantines like the men of Apollos 11 and 12.

"The risk of back contamination is very low indeed, but the extent of hazard is potentially so great that many people are not willing to accept that small risk," said Dr. Alan Brown, a University of Pennsylvania biologist.

Brown was a member of an eight-man scientific panel named by the American Academy of Sciences to assess the need for quarantine on Apollo 13. The panel's report, with the quarantine recommendation, has not been published yet.

No signs of life have been detected in materials brought back from the two previous moon landings and the space agency had been expected to abandon the quarantine.

Astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., Thomas K. Mattingly II and Fred W. Haise Jr. are the crew of Apollo 13, scheduled for launch from Cape Kennedy, Fla., on April 11. Lovell and Haise will land on the moon.

The Sea of Tranquility and the Ocean of Storms, sites of the previous landings, are in mare—or flat—areas of the moon. Apollo 13 is aiming for the Fra Mauro region in the highlands, 110 miles east of the Apollo 12 site.

"The question foremost in my mind is whether one can really extrapolate from the 11 and 12 experience to 13," said Dr. Brown.

"The question is then: is the Apollo 13 landing site sufficiently different from Apollo 11 and 12? If it wasn't, we might have cogent reasons to terminate quarantine."

"The Apollo 13 landing site is targeted for the highland regions and in addition, some deep drilling will be attempted and if successful, a sample of the moon at the depth of 8-10 meters will be sampled. These two facts do make the site different."

"It was the judgment of the committee that this was sufficient difference."

Dr. Brown emphasized the report will be considered by the space science board of the National Academy at its next meeting and that formal transmission of the report to NASA will follow.

Ready To Air Planning For Martin Schools

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Superintendent of Schools, Eugene Rogers, was requested by the Board of Education, yesterday, to contact a number of interested groups within the county.

The superintendent has been asked to explain to PTA and other groups seeking information on the organization of the public schools next year, that the Division of School Planning is now conducting a survey in the county to determine how the schools will be organized. The board issued a statement that it will be happy to meet and discuss the organization with any group after the report based on the survey is made.

Discussion continued on the Mother Objects To Draft Board

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — When Robert L. King got his draft notice last weekend, his mother refused to let him go.

For one thing, she told the draft board, her husband, M. Sgt. Arthur L. King is a career soldier serving in Vietnam.

For another, she said, Robert is only 4 years old.

A records check showed the notice was for another Robert L. King, address unknown.

matters of a site for the Williamston High School and on acquiring additional property adjacent to the property now already owned in the Jamesville area.

The board approved the sale of an old activity bus belonging to the Oak City School, and approved the request of one student to transfer to a Washington County school. Approval was also given to the Bear Grass Fire Department to conduct a circus on school property located on the by-pass.

Bluebird Named 'Official Bird'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — As the state Assembly gave final legislative approval to a measure making the bluebird New York State's official bird, Assemblyman Seymour Posner cast the only dissenting vote.

Posner said Monday a bird more familiar to residents of his district in the Bronx should be chosen. He said bluebirds are rarely seen in New York City but its residents can associate readily with sparrows, pigeons and "the chicken, plucked or unplucked."

Smiles Over Prison Term

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary, with a broad smile on his face, was taken to California by federal agents after being sentenced to 10 years in prison here for drug smuggling.

Leary, 50, a former Harvard instructor who openly advocates the use of marijuana and LSD, was sentenced Monday by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Ben C. Conally, who denied bail pending an appeal. He called Leary "a danger to the community."

Leary was already being held without bond in Santa Ana, Calif., after conviction on a state charge of possession of marijuana.

The Houston sentence arose from Leary's conviction Jan. 20 in Laredo, Tex., on a charge of smuggling marijuana into the country. It was the second time Leary had been convicted on charges growing out of the 1965 incident.

Leary was first convicted at Laredo of failing to declare marijuana and pay a tax on it and was sentenced to 30 years in prison.

The Supreme Court threw out that conviction, saying to declare the drug for taxation would lay a defendant open to prosecution on drug possession charges.

'Windfall' For Our Neighbors

A number of neighboring counties are going to come in for a windfall because of the extra one percent sales tax which went into effect Sunday.

The counties are among the 25 whose voters approved the additional tax to provide revenue for local governments.

Lenoir County, for instance will realize $823,043. Cumberland will get $2,624,376 annually from the tax. Some other counties and the annual revenue: Chowan, $140,376; Currituck, $50,664; Duplin, $384,074; Durham, $2,125,303; Greene, $113,352; Hertford, $275,840; Jones, $71,607; New Hanover, $1,443,730; Onslow, $937,782; Pamlico, $73,091; Pasquotank, $389,049; Perquimans, $83,784; Wayne, $1,193,920.

These additional funds will, without a doubt, be of great benefit to the county and municipal governments involved. It is well known that local governments are hard pressed for funds because the property taxes, which they depend upon mainly, have not kept up with the steadily increasing demand for local government services.

On the other hand the fact that 25 counties will have a four percent sales tax while the remaining counties have a three percent tax is bound to create some confusion. It may even give merchants in counties bordering those with the additional tax an advantage in attracting shoppers. Since the tax applies to all items covered by the state levy it will mean a one percent rise in the consumer's cost for items purchased in counties with the local tax.

However, it is almost certain that the one percent local sales tax is something that is here to stay. In one way or another we expect it to be extended to all the state's 100 counties in the next few years.

Gov. Scott Rings A Bell With Refusal

Gov. Bob Scott is absolutely right in refusing to cut back on North Carolina's highway construction.

Over the weekend the governor said the U.S. Department of Transportation has asked the state to reduce its road program. "But I am not about to reduce our road building efforts at the state level," the governor said. "If they want us to cut back in North Carolina, they are going to have to cut off funds coming from Washington."

For North Carolina this year road building is in a special category. The state legislature approved additional gasoline and other taxes to get the state's lagging highway program moving again.

In Pitt County a number of projects have already been outlined for construction in the near future. Every one of them is badly needed today and will be even more so in the future. It would be regrettable if the projects are not gotten underway soon, especially at this time when construction is relatively slow and favorable bids can be expected.

North Carolina has cooperated in a number of ways in the fight against inflation. However, by the time the road building projects are actually underway inflation should be easing and spending of the funds will be desirable. At any rate it would be a mistake to put off these badly needed projects when the state is providing its share of the funds.

Separatism Trend Grows

(Today's guest column was written for the N. C. Association of Afternoon Dailies by Chuck Mooney, staff writer of The Raleigh Times.)

By CHUCK MOONEY

Raleigh — The refusal of Tar Heel Democrats to contribute to the National Democratic Party is hardly surprising since it continues a trend of disassociation begun in 1964.

If this trend continues, the North Carolina Democratic Party could find itself in a position of seceding from the National Democratic Party.

Everything was coming up roses in 1960 when Jack Kennedy was the presidential candidate. The gubernatorial candidate, Terry Sanford, welcomed Kennedy with open arms and worked hard for the Kennedy - Johnson ticket.

But in 1964 when Dan Moore was the gubernatorial candidate the national party was held at arms length. Moore only reluctantly admitted that he and the Johnson - Humphrey ticket were in the same party.

Gov. Bob Scott, then running for lieutenant governor, played a large part in the Johnson campaign.

When Scott ran for governor in 1968, he shoved the national party completely to one side and made overtures to the movement behind third party candidate George Wallace.

The Humphrey - Muskie Campaign had to build it's own, completely new organization in North Carolina.

The major reason behind this trend of separatism appears to be the increasing liberalism of the national party.

And it isn't just party officials who are dissatisfied with the national party. It's the old line conservative voters who are dissatisfied with civil rights legislation, mandatory welfare programs, school guidelines and similar federal programs.

A striking example of this voter dissatisfaction is the last presidential election where the Democrat placed third behind Wallace in second and Nixon in first.

Refusing to associate with the national party at this point is relatively harmless with a Republican in the White House. The State's Democratic members of Congress can look after Tar Heel interests.

But what if the White House should change hands?

During the first two years of Herbert Hoover's administration things were going great. But the bottom fell out of Republicanism when the Stock Market crashed.

Or take Lyndon Johnson. He won by the largest landslide any president since Washington had enjoyed. But two years later it would have been hard to elect him a constable.

Nixon now rides a crest of high popularity. But will he be there in 1972? If he isn't, North Carolina could become the red-headed stepchild of American politics.

State officials would obviously like to avoid this but they can't ignore voter sentiment.

They, therefore, have apparently chosen a middle course of trading back - scratching. They're not going to scratch the national organization's back with any funds until national leaders scratch the state's back by paying at least lip service to causes dear to Southern hearts.

If this should fail to work, the safest bet is that state Democratic leaders will remain true to their conservative supporters and take their chances with a hostile Democratic president.

State Democratic officials are well aware of the truth to an observation made recently by former Minnesota Rep. Walter Judd speaking at the Wake County GOP Lincoln Day Dinner.

"There are a lot of good Republicans in North Carolina," Judd said. "They're just misregistered."

Democratic leaders feel they must do something to keep those voters from changing their registration.

Ivory Tower

'Richard Frankenstein'

Young Doctor Frankenstein built himself a monster, as everyone recalls, and at first the monster was a lovable fellow. Eventually, of course, the monster went berserk and returned to destroy his creator. These were hard lines for Doctor Frankenstein.

Richard Nixon would do well to ponder the moral. His Family Assistance Plan of welfare reform has emerged from committee in the House.

It now appears so much more "conservative." God save the mark, than the alternative plan advanced for the Democrats by Senator Harris of Oklahoma, that the House may even pass the bill. But the President's baby FAP is in fact a little monster. By 1972, if Congress breathes life into this welfare program, it will be hard lines for Mr. Nixon.

Most men learn by experience. Presidents ought to learn this way as well. And one of the most curious aspects of Mr. Nixon's radical scheme is that a prototype model of FAP already has been tested — and the model has flopped. It is as if the Ford Motor Company, having failed with 110,000 Edsels by 1959, decided in 1962 to build a million more.

The heart and soul of the President's plan is "workfare in place of welfare." This was the dominant theme of his August message unveiling the plan. A minimum Federal payment of $1,600 a year for a family of four would be scaled "in such a way that it would always pay to work." The President proposed a proliferation of new manpower training programs, featuring $30 - a - month bonuses for the trainees. With such incentives, he said, "most recipients who can work will want to work."

Mr. Nixon sounded another clarion note in August: Decentralization. He could "hardly overemphasize this last point." For the first time, under the New Federalism, "administration of a major established Federal program would be turned over to the States and local governments, recognizing that they are in a position to do the job better."

Presidents cannot be expected to read everything; but just two months before his welfare message went to Congress, a devastating publication had emerged from the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress. This was a 95-page analysis by Frederick B. Arner of the experimental Work Incentive program (WIN) launched by Congress in 1967 under the

Sandoval Won Against Stans

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Concern about both the Mexican-American vote and Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans' grasp for more power has saved Hilary Sandoval, the only Mexican in high Federal office, his job running the embattled Small Business Administration (SBA).

The showdown came at a White House Meeting last Wednesday between Sandoval and Presidential aides. Sandoval was informed he would stay on as Small Business Administrator through the 1970 elections and that his nemesis — Donald W. Brewer, deputy administrator and Stans' candidate to succeed Sandoval — would be eased out of SBA within a month or so.

That seems to end a long power struggle waged with unusual venom inside the Nixon administration and the White House itself with Stans the loser in his goal of complete power over the SBA and, thereby, the entire Minority Business Enterprise program.

Stans was winning last fall when he talked President Nixon into naming Brewer, a fund-raiser under Stans during the 1968 Nixon campaign, to be Sandoval's deputy. As Stans' protégé, Brewer immediately acted as though he were already administrator — issuing orders without even talking to Sandoval. William Murfin, former state Republican chairman of Florida and a Sandoval man, was so concerned about Brewer's takeover that he quit his SBA post and returned to Florida politics.

Moreover, Brewer and Stans were backed by White House aide Peter Flanigan, whose influence on economic questions is growing. Just two weeks ago, Stans and Flanigan appeared on the verge of easing out Sandoval and replacing him with Brewer.

They did not figure on the strong reaction in Sandoval's behalf by two Texas Republicans: Sen. John Tower and Rep. George Bush. Tower argued that the dismissal of Sandoval, an El Paso, Texas, businessman and Republican leader, would alienate Mexican voters not only in Bush's campaign for the Senate against Democratic Sen. Ralph Yarborough, but also in California and New Mexico statewide races. The Texans were vigorously supported by Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland, Republican National Chairman, and White House political aide Harry Dent.

Moreover, the idea of Stans' building an empire did not set well with some Republicans not interested in the Mexican vote. Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, for one, told the White House Stans should not have full control of the moribund black capitalism program on the basis of his mediocre record in that area.

But Sandoval's survival will not be universally popular on Capitol Hill. Some Republicans there feel Sandoval has bungled so badly at SBA that any change would be by the White House.

Other Editors Say Indians On The Rock

(Fayetteville Observer)

The question of who will win the "Battle of Alcatraz" apparently has turned into a waiting game between the Indians camped there and the federal government.

Some 100 Indians now remain on the offshore California island which, until the "takeover" three months ago was known chiefly for the notoriety of the criminals harbored within its prison walls.

The Indians claim the island as theirs, citing an old treaty which at one time gave Indians the right to unused federal property.

They have organized a governing council and announced plans for an educational and cultural complex to be built there. Uncle Sam isn't saying much one way or another, and obviously is not as interested as the new inhabitants to come to a quick decision.

The Alcatraz Indians, of course, realize they are going to need help to achieve their goal. They have created an outside advisory committee to aid in transforming their ideas into the proposed development there, which would be funded by the government and private foundations.

Though the plan admittedly has possibilities, it also presents problems. For instance, the emphasis at the federal level these days is toward getting the Indian off the reservation, not creating new ones.

And making "The Rock" a self-sustaining proposition for any group of people is not going to be an easy task.

In addition, it isn't really likely that the federal government is going to recognize the "treaty" which the settlers supposedly are operating under.

But if sufficient public sentiment is generated for their cause, Uncle Sam just might consent to "smoke the peace pipe" and work out some agreement for them to stay on and see if they can make their dream a reality.

If this should happen, it would have to be described as the Indians finally getting a better deal from Uncle Sam than did their reservation forefathers in days gone by.

Strength For Today March To See Ups And Downs

Whose Fault Is It? The recent crime investigation conducted by the Senate Committee has been very revealing. Most decent Americans have been startled and shocked to learn on what a large scale organized crime is operating.

One of the most alarming features has been the assurance and even arrogance of some of the well-known criminals. Confident in the possession of great wealth and counseled by expensive lawyers, they have refused to answer questions, left the courtroom, and otherwise defied the investigators.

Part of their assurance, the testimony has made quite clear, comes from their close association with some of our leading politicians and public office-holders. We are once beginning to see what has so often been revealed in the past, that we find in office occasionally men who are not only willing to shut their eyes to crime but eager to profit by it.

Why are such people in office? Because, of course, we, the people, put them there. Behind the crime that dishonest politicians have allowed lies our own almost criminal negligence. We ourselves have not been honest and God-fearing enough to demand that our leaders be honest and God-fearing, too. Our failure to insist on a high moral standard has sometimes permitted them to adopt a low one.

The Senate Committee has made only too clear the need for a reform. By all means, let us have it. But let us make it a real reform, starting where all real reforms start, at home, in our own hearts. By Earl L. Douglass

By ELMER ROESSNER The business prospects for March are mixed.

On the down side are: Price rises will continue. Labor demands will be tougher. March is the month when the showdown between Teamsters and employers begins. Contracts expire March 31.

ELMER ROESSNER

While money may become a little more plentiful, no general lowering of interest rates is in sight.

Retail sales, which are barely keeping up with last year's week-to-week marks, may slump toward the last half of the month as consumers worry about income taxes.

Big investors will probably remain out of the stock market.

On The Other Hand

Auto production will increase. Recent layoffs and price cuts are reducing inventories. Makers and dealers will be inclined toward slightly higher inventories as spring weather stimulates sales and labor contract time approaches. Contracts expire in September, but dickering will begin earlier.

Spring weather will generate the annual upturn in other lines: in construction, housing sales, highways, apparel, travel, civic improvements.

All over America telephone and other utilities

Take it away, Old Goldie! will intensify efforts to catch up with demands for services. Many phone companies have floated millions of dollars worth of bonds and the biggest one, the multi-billion-dollar A.T. & T. issue, is yet to come. All this means spending, employment.

Other Forecasts Here are other look-ahead in business:

Real estate commissions may rise. More than 200 suburban Chicago dealers have raised rates from 6 to 7 per cent, citing higher costs, declining sales and the high interest-rate squeeze. If it works, real estate companies everywhere will try to boost rates.

More carpeting will be laid in schools as the floor-covering industry pushes its campaign for a bigger share of the big school dollar.

Newest pitch: carpeting on walls to deaden sounds.

A new azalea will be unveiled at the second National Lawn and Garden Week show starting March 20 in Washington. The Department of Agriculture developed it from a Japanese variety. It is a compact plant about three feet in height and diameter and has yellow-orange blossoms in May. It is deciduous.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The environmental woes that have beset the nation's industrial centers are creeping up on the Evergreen State of Washington, and the state legislature has taken strong preventive action.

As the lawmakers met in a special session which ended late last month, environmentalists argued time was running out for this land of thousands of lakes and miles of forests.

To the east, snow-clad 14,410-foot Mt. Rainier stood above a haze of smog. To the south, workmen were building a power plant which will burn 10,000 tons of coal per day. To the west, investigators studied oil slicks on Puget Sound.

Republican Gov. Dan Evans, a politician with a taste for the outdoors, called it an environmental crisis. To meet it, the skiing, mountain-climbing governor proposed a range of tough bills which brought strong opposition from industry.

"When he cleared his desk last week of bills passed by the session, most of his environmental protection measures became law.

Despite grumbling by some ardent conservationists that the laws are not as tough as they could have been, they are widely regarded as among the strongest in the nation. They include these provisions: Surface miners now must obtain permission of the state to operate, granted only after approval of a reclamation plan for the mined-over area. The state can control water pollution at its source rather than waiting to prove its harmful effects. Those accidentally spilling oil in public waters were made liable for the cost of cleaning up the spill.

The legislature centralized state environmental control with a State Department of Ecology and a council to approve proposed locations of nuclear and thermal power plants.

Responsibility for air pollution, water pollution and solid waste disposal control had been fragmented. A firm could satisfy one agency that it would not pollute the air only to find that solution unacceptable to another.

The new ecology department has no additional enforcement powers but is able, through a single director, to apply existing controls in a coordinated manner. An advisory commission was given partial veto power over the director and an appeals board will consider objections by industry.

The accidental oil spill act closes a loophole in an otherwise strict antipollution act. The state will not have to prove negligence in order to assess the carrier or owner of oil for cleaning expense.

The act came as plans are under discussion for supertankers to bring oil from Alaska's North Slope fields to Washington for refining. The breakup of one of these giant vessels could completely cover the 90-mile long inland sea of Puget Sound, environmentalists argued.

Creation of the thermal power plant site evaluation council gives the state a single voice in acting on applications for location of generating plants.

Previously, several agencies shared the authority. Others—although having an interest—had no official basis for action. The council includes directors of the dozen agencies concerned. Utilities have been looking to alternate methods of electric power as the region's hydroelectric capabilities become used to the maximum.

Water pollution control laws were stiffened to permit the state to set standards for effluents poured into its waters, instead of merely on the quality of the water after the effluents enter it.

Under the previous law, it had to be proven a specific discharge was responsible for pollution before it could be stopped. This had been one of the main blocks in the 10-year fight to halt the decline of Puget Sound quality.

The legislature also acted to hasten enforcement of pollution control with a "quick justice act." It requires superior courts to hear contested cases within 90 days.

Labor and Welfare Departments.

The differences between the existing WIN and the recommended FAP are mere matters of detail. Fundamentally, the two plans are identical. Both are predicated upon the notion that welfare rolls may best be reduced, and human needs fulfilled, by coaxing employable persons into paying jobs. Both depend upon administration at the State and local level.

Sad to say, for the President's program sounds so good, WIN has proved a loser. "Almost every element of the program has been disappointing," Arner reports. In March of last year, 1,571,000 adults were receiving benefits through Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Barely 30,000 actually had entered WIN training programs.

Arner found wild and inexplicable variations in State processing. California assessed 54 per cent of its welfare mothers appropriate candidates for workfare; New York approved 3.5 per cent only.

Arner could detect no wild enthusiasm among welfare recipients for job opportunities. He found a swamp of bureaucratic conflicts. He reported all this publicly. His report should have been enough to kill FAP in its cradle, but it hasn't worked out that way.

Appeals will bypass the intermediate stage and go directly to the State Supreme Court, which will be required to hear arguments within six months. The hope is to eliminate lengthy litigation during which enforcement is stayed. Implementing a constitutional amendment approved two years ago, the legislature passed an "open spaces" act, allowing undeveloped land to be taxes on its current use rather than at its potential as developed land.

It is designed to preserve green zones around rapidly urbanizing areas where owners complain soaring property values make retention of undeveloped land economically impossible.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas—If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. If they believe that the treatment will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days and see for yourself.

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any weak hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

For more information, write Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., and if they believe the treatment will help you, they will advise how you can take advantage of this 32 day trial at a special introductory price with a money-back guarantee. Just send them the information listed below.

Charlotte Schools Muddle Increased

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The legal muddle surrounding the desegregation order requiring massive busing handed down to the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education has increased with a request by the board to the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals to stay the order.

No action was taken Monday on the request or on a request, by civil rights lawyers, that the board be held in contempt for failing to follow the federal order handed down Feb. 5.

Attorneys for both sides met Monday with Dist. Court Judge James B. McMillan, who issued the order. An attorney for the board said after the meeting that the appeal had been made to the 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The motion comes from the board's decision last week to stop plans to implement McMillan's order because of an injunction by state Superior Court Judge Frank W. Sneed.

Sneed ruled on the basis of a suit filed by white parents charging that if the board implements McMillan's order it will violate their constitutional rights and violate state and federal laws.

In addition to Sneed's injunction, the legal entanglement includes an injunction by Superior Court Judge W. K. McLean directing the school board not to obey the federal court because it allegedly violates a state law which prohibits the use of public funds to finance the compulsory busing of pupils to schools outside their neighborhoods to achieve racial balance in schools.

The state law was passed in the last General Assembly, and Gov. Bob Scott has said that unless it is declared unconstitutional, he will invoke it to prohibit forced busing.

Ironed Out Merger Plans For Teachers

RALEIGH (AP) — Obstacles which blocked the merger of the predominantly white North Carolina Education Association and the predominantly black North Carolina Teachers' Association have been worked out, leaders of the two groups say.

Joint boards of the NCEA and the NCTA agreed Monday on a proposed constitution and signed a compact pledging just and fair treatment of members in all matters involving race.

The new constitution will be submitted to the 40,000 NCEA members and the 10,000 NCTA members this spring. The leaders predicted it will be approved by both groups in time for the merger to be effective July 1.

Under the agreement, the new group will be known as the North Carolina Association of Educators. During the first eight years, its board of directors will be composed of 13 whites and 8 blacks. Its president the first year will be white and the second year a Negro. Again in the fifth year he must be a Negro.

The NCAE will include most of the state's public school teachers, and will have a potential membership of more than 55,000.

An announcement said a budget for the first year of operations has been worked out and that all the professional and clerical staffs of the two organizations will be retained.

NCEA Executive Secretary A. C. Dawson will be executive secretary of the new group and NCTA Executive Secretary E. B. Palmer will be associate secretary. Dawson and Palmer will be ex officio members of the board of directors.

Registration

At Kindergarten

The Protestant Kindergarten registration will be held Wednesday from 2 to 5 p.m. at Hooker Memorial Christian Church.

Children registered must be five years old by October 15. A registration fee is required.

It is not necessary for children to come with their parents. All registered children will be invited to visit the kindergarten and attend a party at a later date. Anyone needing further information should contact Mrs. Bill Williams at 756-2862.

The compact reached by the two groups pledges that in all matters "every member's rights and interests shall be protected and that no members, for any reason whatsoever, shall be mistreated or deprived of privileges, moral, legal or human, which are judged to be his by his colleagues."

If any member feels "he has been dealt with unfairly by the new board . . . he shall be guaranteed the privilege of taking his grievances to the proper appeals committee."

Riddick Named Purchaser For School System

Greenville native, Mike G. Riddick, has been appointed purchasing agent of the Hampton, Va. school system.

The Greenville High and East Carolina College graduate was formerly chairman of the industrial arts department at Pembroke High School in Hampton. In the past he has been a school athletic director, also. He was chosen on the basis of his purchasing experience in both the industrial arts and athletic fields. Dr. DeWitt T. Miller, Hampton assistant superintendent for administration said, "He will be working under Dr. Miller."

The job, which involves handling almost a million dollars a year, has to do with acquiring instructional supplies, including textbooks, and maintenance and custodial equipment for the entire school system.

Sum To Protect Police Stations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Board of Supervisors has approved a $100,000 emergency allocation to floodlight and fence police stations vulnerable to bombing attacks.

The unanimous action Monday was requested by police after Park Station was bombed Feb. 16, injuring eight police men, one fatally.

Some supervisors had expressed concern that fencing might create problems of community acceptance, but the board was told by a police spokesman that the fencing would be "relatively innocuous, such as is used at some industrial plants."

Douglas Jones Two-Day Meet Invited Attend

RALEIGH — Dr. Douglas Jones of East Carolina University will attend a two-day meeting of the Early Childhood Education Committee to be held March 11 and 12 at Quail Roost convention center near Durham.

The Early Childhood Education Committee, in cooperation with the State Department of Public Instruction, is in the process of reviewing State guidelines for the preparation of teachers in the area of early childhood education.

The guidelines developed by the Early Childhood Education and the Department of Public Instruction will be used by the State Board of Education and the Division of Teacher Education and Certification in developing programs to prepare teachers in early childhood education.

Agnew was engaging in some convenient forgettery with his recent denial that he had issued any statements of support for the Greek military dictatorship.

When Agnew came to St. Paul, Minn., on Feb. 20 for a political speech, he was asked by newsmen to comment on a statement in Minneapolis that day by exiled Greek leftist Andreas Papandreu that the Vice President is the Greek junta's leading supporter here. "I really haven't made any public statements on the Greek government," Agnew replied, adding that President Nixon makes foreign policy.

In truth, however, during a campaign speech at the National Press Club in Washington on Sept. 27, 1968, Agnew asserted that the junta "has not proven itself to be as horrendous a spectre to contemplate as most people thought it would" and that "this particular military government has done a bit to stabilize the Communist threat in Greece." He commended the dictatorship as trying "to provide a salutary climate in which a free elective system can take place," ending with an attack on "Communist forces under Andreas Papandreu."

The colonels in Athens made good use of Agnew's friendly comments. Spread across page one of the government-controlled press, the Agnew endorsement also became ammunition in the dictatorship's campaign for a favorable vote on its new constitution in the nationwide referendum Sept. 29, 1968.

The Worry Clinic Many Reasons For Sterility

Velma's case applies to thousands of marriages so study it carefully. It also shows the paradox of woman kind. If wives think they can't get pregnant, then they nag and grow upset, like Rachel and Hannah of the Bible. But if they are fertile, they try to evade and avoid pregnancy!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE M-531: Velma Z., aged 27, is tearful.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "it upsets me terribly to read about wives who use the 'Pill' to avoid pregnancy."

"For I have been married 5 years and still can't even get pregnant!"

"Yet my husband and I want children. We have both been checked by several physicians. 'And they say there are no organic reasons why we should not have babies.'"

"But we don't!"

"So what could be our trouble? Am I at fault somewhere?"

"Many organic or anatomical reasons can explain sterility in young married couples."

"For example, a wife may have an infantile uterus (womb) or her Fallopian tubes may be closed."

"Or she may have had her uterus surgically removed (hysterectomy) due to fibroid tumors or early cancer."

"And her husband's sperm may be absent or so weak that they cannot fertilize an ovum when it ruptures free from her ovary."

"But Velma says she and her husband have been thoroughly checked and both have been pronounced O.K."

"In such cases, here are some of the rules by which such couples have often obtained children of their own:

(1) Wives, relax and quit being an irritable, nagging person.

For inner psychological tensions can upset your glands of internal secretion and thus cause peptic ulcers, spastic colitis, high blood pressure and probably disturbance of sexual functioning."

"Thus, many a formerly sterile wife who adopts a baby, will then get pregnant within a year or so."

For she then relaxes and the stimulation of the cooing adopted infant causes her bodily physiology to get back to normal."

(2) Determine your most likely ovulation date. This is usually about 15 days BEFORE the onset of your next menstrual period."

But it can vary a few days either way, so the usual "Pregnancy week" is determined by marking 3 days on each side of the expected ovulation day."

(3) Since some researchers estimate that the male sperm may lose their vigor within a mere 6 hours and the female egg or ovum may deteriorate so much within 12 hours that it cannot be fertilized, then try to have marital relations night and morning during that pregnancy week."

(4) Many a wife has an excessively acid vaginal secretion and acid paralyzes the motility of the sperm, thus preventing conception."

As a simple and safe type of insurance, then place a heaping teaspoonful of baking soda in one quart of warm water and employ it as a douche just prior to marital relations."

Do this each time during your pregnancy week."

(5) Meanwhile, indulge your parental yearnings by teaching a Sunday School Class or becoming active in the Scouts' or Camp Fire Girls' organizations."

For many of the best parents on earth never had kiddies of their own."

But they helped teach and implant moral idealism in other youngsters."

So send for my medical booklet "facts About Pregnancy and Foster Children," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents."

Velma got pregnant the very next month by using the above data!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

South's setback in his vulnerable four heart contract reveals a lack of planning that may occasionally afflict even the more seasoned player.

West opened the queen of clubs which South won in his hand and proceeded to draw trump in two rounds. The diamond suit appeared to offer the best prospect for developing a 10th trick, so South led the ten of diamonds next.

When West played low, declarer was confronted with a guess. He finally decided to let the ten ride in the hope that West had the queen. East, however, turned up with that card and, after he returned a diamond to his partner's ace, a spade shift by West netted two more tricks in that suit.

While declarer was somewhat unlucky to suffer a setback on the deal, he could virtually have eliminated all guesswork, had he merely been willing to do a little inventory taking. South requires only one additional trick to supplement the nine winners he has available in hearts, clubs, and club ruffs. He can afford to test both the spades and diamonds, therefore, but, since the spade suit can only be played in one way, it is suggested that he turn his attentions in that direction first.

After drawing trump, declarer should lead a spade from his hand and put up the king when West plays low. East will win two spade tricks and then attempt to cash a third. South ruffs in his hand as West shows out. East is known at this point to have started with a five card spade suit headed by the A-Q-J. If he had the ace of diamonds as well, he would surely have opened the bidding in third position. Therefore, when declarer subsequently leads the ten of diamonds, if West plays low, the king can be put up from dummy with complete confidence that it will win the trick.

Prince Attracts Usual Cluster TV Log

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Prince Philip of Britain, setting his plane down at this resort city briefly for fuel, encountered the inevitable cluster of newsmen and officials. He was friendly but commented:

"It's like if you pull up at a gas station and each time you are subjected to this."

Asked if he had considered stopping elsewhere because of recent disturbances at the University of California community nearby, he replied, "I don't think they were taking place at the airport."

The 48-year-old prince was piloting a twin-prop plane Monday from Mexico City to Vancouver, B.C., to meet his wife, Queen Elizabeth.

LONDON (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt mingled with pop singers, soccer stars, politicians, diplomats and their ladies at a party given in his honor Monday night at No. 10 Downing Street by Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

A reporter for the Daily Mirror said she asked Brandt whether he was enjoying himself and "he told me, in I felt, a rather resigned voice, that it's all part of the job."

Refund Money And Citations

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Rummaging through an old file, Doris Lind found two traffic tickets issued 18 years ago and mailed them to city officials, with a check for $2.

A records check showed that one citation had been paid the same month it was issued in 1951. The second was never paid.

City Judge Floyd Gowans reviewed the case and ordered that "in light of the long delay and the honesty displayed" the tickets and the money be returned to Mrs. Lind.

Pre-School Child Census Will Get Underway During March

Greenville's Pre-School Child Census gets underway this month in preparation for receiving first graders into the school system for the 1970-71 school year.

Roy Marsh, director of Elementary Education for the city schools, announced that two dates have been set for orientation-registration meetings for parents. These are:

—Tuesday, March 10 — Third Street, Agnes Fullilove, and Sadie Sauter Schools.
—Thursday, March 12 — Eastern, Elmhurst, South Greenville, and Wahl-Coates Schools.

Meetings at both schools will be at 8:00 p.m. Marsh noted it is not necessary to bring the child to these meetings. The child's birth certificate should however, be brought by parents.

Documents which will be needed prior to opening of the school year 1970-71 are records of immunization to show that the child has been vaccinated against smallpox and immunized against tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough and polio. These immunizations may be obtained at the Health Department Clinic (located near Pitt Memorial Hospital) on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday each week from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon, and from 1:00 to 4:30 p.m. in the afternoons. If a child has already had these shots, the parent is requested to bring this record with them.

Parents will also be furnished a form for a school medical examination to be completed and returned to the school at opening time or before.

By mail, the City School office is this week sending out request for admission sheets to all known parents who will have a child eligible for the first grade in the coming school year. Where possible, the forms received in the mail are to be filled out prior to reporting to the orientation-registration meeting, in order to save time.

Marsh remarked "We have made attempts to reach all the families who have pre-school children, but it's likely we have missed some. Any parent of an eligible child has not receive a request for admission should come to the meetings and get the form there."

He also asked that parents make an effort to report to the school to which their child will attend in the coming year. "Also," he noted "parents who cannot make it one of these two nights are asked to contact the principals of one of the elementary schools at the earliest possible time in order to get orientation-registration started."

It is pointed out that the North Carolina Compulsory Attendance Law requires that children between the ages of 7 and 16 attend school. The seven year mandatory beginning age is based on the recognition that an immature child of six makes better progress if he doesn't start school until he is seven years old.

'Pill' Said Potential Time Bomb Committee On Hunger Said Exceeding Limits

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A surgeon with half a century experience in breast cancer told Congress today The Pill is a "potential time bomb with a fuse 15 to 20 years in length."

"Although there is no conclusive evidence that oral contraceptives cause breast cancer, the potential hazards involved in their protracted use by young healthy women cannot be ignored," said Dr. Max Cutler.

Cutler is medical director of the Beverly Hills, Calif., Cancer Research Foundation. He commented in testimony prepared for delivery before a Senate monopoly subcommittee that has kicked up a storm of controversy during a month-long investigation into the safety of The Pill.

Underlining that controversy, another witness today questioned the subcommittee's right to even hear such testimony, blamed it for causing a wave of abortion-seeking and said attempts to project future harm were irresponsible.

"Scientific information cannot be resolved in a democratic approach or by majority vote," said Albert Schulman, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at New York's Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

"The pills," said Schulman, "have probably been the most carefully scrutinized medication in medical history and we have been hard-pressed to find any significant permanent or harmful effect from using these agents."

Rejecting attempts to predict The Pill will cause cancer in 20 years or less, Schulman said: "This kind of yardstick cannot be applied ... for if it were, penicillin would only have been released for usage during the past two or three years and thereby have deprived millions of its benefits."

Schulman was called at the request of Republican members of the subcommittee. They have been among the strongest critics of these hearings.

Cutler stopped short of recommending a ban on The Pill, saying "it is neither dangerous enough to condemn out of hand, nor safe enough to prescribe as a universal panacea."

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's hunger committee—which has influenced bills improving the food stamp and school lunch programs—has been accused of overstepping its authority and providing a forum for critics of President Nixon's welfare plans.

The chief accuser, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Chairman George McGovern, D-S.D., a possible Democratic presidential contender, uses his power to schedule witnesses who oppose Nixon's welfare plans.

The attack came Monday, little more than a week after the Senate gave the controversial committee a one-year reprieve and, on a 47-12 roll call vote, granted it authority to spend $246,000 this year to delve into the medical and nonfood areas of malnutrition.

Dole, a committee member, said McGovern should adjourn his hearings, which are weighing several competing income-maintenance plans, in deference to the Finance Committee which has legislative jurisdiction over them.

He said it had already overstepped its rights when it considered the food stamp and school lunch programs, both of which fall under the Agriculture Committee.

The chief opposition to extending the McGovern committee's life span came from conservative and Southern elements of the Senate, many of whom have quarreled with the committee's hunger findings and recommendations.

McGovern read the committee's charter and said: "It seems to me to be a broad mandate to this committee to look at the problems of hunger, of health, of human needs."

"I'm fully aware that this committee has no legislative power," he said, but I think we've demonstrated that we do have some capacity to influence the course of legislation in the U.S. Senate."

Later, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a young civil rights leader and key aide to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., issued a challenge to the President to visit the nation's impoverished areas personally, to "touch the hands of the people," and to get a first-hand feeling of their needs.

Jackson, head of the Southern Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket, said the President's proposal of a guaranteed

$1,600 annual family assistance program bore no relationship to the actual needs of the poor in an inflated economy.

Deters Abandoning Of One-Way Street

WILLIAMSTON — Mayor N. C. Green cast the deciding vote at the meeting of members of Williamston's Town Board to break a tie and defeat a petition by a group of merchants to change a one-way street back to a two-way thoroughfare.

The petition, submitted by interested merchants, asked that the one-way stretch from Elm to Main Street be changed back to two way as it affected their businesses. The board members voted two for and two against the petition.

Bruce Beasley and Worth Chesson, members of the Mid-East Economic Development Commission, explained necessary action the two board must take the secure federal assistance for water and sewer lines to be extended to the proposed site of the Martin Technical Institute in the Kehukee Park area. This project is expected to get under way within the next couple of weeks.

On the recommendation of the Williamston Planning Board, the two board approved consideration of rezoning from residential six to highway commercial Griffin Street east to the Jamesville by-pass. A public hearing on this matter will be held at the next regular board meeting.

Another planning board recommendation was approved. This calls for updating the building permit schedule to increase the amount of collections made for building permits, based on a scaled fee depending on the cost of construction of individual buildings.

A motion to ask Rivers and Associates of Greenville to get bids for a water line to the site of the proposed hospital was approved. Action on this is expected to be put into effect within three weeks.

Mrs. Eugene Rogers presented a group of student landscape planners who reported their findings to the board. They will draw up plans based on their preliminary survey of the town and report back to the board at a future meeting.

Scientists On Road To A 'Smart Pill'

By ROBERT STRAND
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A pill to improve human intelligence may be just around the corner.

Dr. David Krech, a psychologist at the University of California, says development of a real IQ pill depends considerably on chance, but scientists are close enough to the secrets of brain chemistry to make such a pill "highly likely" in the next 15 years.

Biochemists and psychologists in the past 15 years have sought to identify physical forms of the brain in which memories are retained.

The experiments suggest to many scientists, although some scoff, that any memory involves chemical changes in the brain.

Processes Of Brain
Krech says these are either production of new proteins, the release of differentiated molecules of ribonucleic acids or the increase of enzyme activity.

If these processes can be identified and altered—drugs not only to improve intelligence, but to diminish it, or to erase memories, or to emphasize selected abilities, have arrived.

Around the nation various researchers have achieved some success in changing animal mental abilities. Human experiments with mental retardates and the senile are in progress.

In one experiment, rats, which have highly developed brain structures, were 40 per cent better in learning and remembering their way through mazes when treated with metrazol. Similar results have been obtained with strychnine.

Goldfish Injected
Goldfish taught to swim to particular points in an aquarium were unable to retain their ability when injected with antibiotics preventing formation in their brain of new proteins or ribonucleic acid.

Flatworms, fed pieces of other flatworms trained to respond to a simple light signal, appeared to acquire the same ability.

Krech himself has demonstrated that rats living in an "intellectually enriched environment," therefore having more memories, showed chemical and structural brain changes.

For rats, Krech's theory is that their freedom to roam in a large, object-filled space was the responsible factor—and not visual stimulation, physical activity or the loving care of graduate students who fondled them.

Winterville Zoning Hearing Last Night

WINTERVILLE—Approximately 50 people attended a public hearing Monday night held by the Winterville Board of Aldermen to consider several changes in the Winterville Planning Board that E. Blount Street be changed from one and two family dwellings to multiple family dwellings. After a discussion concerning the town board and the people living in the area, Vernon Cox, one of the property owners, withdrew his recommendation so the property is still zoned for one and two family dwellings.

The board approved changing the zoning of West Blount Street from residential to industrial.

The board also approved one mile zoning of the town limits as recommended by the Winterville Planning Board. The new zoning includes the Pitt Technical Institute property.

The property was zoned residential and will allow one and two family dwellings to be constructed in the area.

Mayor Walter Dail was appointed to be the town representative on the EPIC committee (for all electric cities) for the town of Winterville.

It was announced Northstate Constructors of Dunn will begin work on the project to run water and sewer lines to Pitt Technical Institute Monday, March 9. The firm will have 180 days to complete the project.

Marchers Dispersed

MANILA (AP)—A series of explosions and gunshots scattered a crowd of demonstrators tonight as they approached the U.S. Embassy on a march to protest what they called Philippine "fascism" and U.S. "imperialism."

Antiriot police protecting the embassy pursued the demonstrators who dashed in all directions.

Early reports said at least one person had been wounded by a bullet and several others were being treated at hospitals for minor injuries.

It was not clear what caused the explosions, which were variously described as gunshots in the air from the police and fire bombs from the demonstrators.

The crowd numbered about 800 and was the advance party of a group estimated 2,000 headed for the embassy after a peaceful march through the city. Some 5,000 students, laborers and peasants had paraded.

Crawford Files For Alderman In Winterville

WINTERVILLE—Bobby Crawford of Winterville has filed as a candidate for the position of alderman in the May 4 municipal election.

Crawford, 28, has been a Winterville resident since October, 1968, and has been employed as a warehouse foreman for Eastern Lumber Company for 10 years.

This is Crawford's first try for any political office.

He and his wife live in the Maizefield Subdivision and have two children.

Incumbent Alderman James Ray Stocks has announced he will not seek re-election.

Not Soliciting For The Legion

Officials of the Pitt County Post No. 39, the American Legion, have stated they have received reports of a saleswoman soliciting subscriptions for magazines in this area in the name of the Pitt County American Legion.

Post No. 39 officials said they have not endorsed nor sponsored anyone to solicit subscriptions to magazines in the name of, or for, the American Legion Post in this community.

Mothers United In Safety Role

MONTREAL (AP)—A group angry mothers has formed the West End Traffic Council to keep careless motorists in line. An infant safety program will teach tots how to watch for sloppy driving, teen age courses will focus on defensive driving and bicycle safety, and street signs and marches will focus attention on double-parking, jay walking, tire squealing and speeding.

Want To Avoid Etonian Accents

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—Working class mothers of children with speech defects in parts of Lancashire are wary of letting their children go to speech therapy classes. They're afraid their youngsters will pick up Etonian accents—that they will sound like students at the well-known English prep school, Eton.

A report by a group of leading British therapists recommends that more should be done to persuade parents that the courses are designed only to deal with stammering and other speech problems.

Starring Role Set For Goldie

NEW YORK (AP)—Goldie Hawn the former "dumb blonde" star of television's "Laugh-In" series who recently made her first movie debut in "Cactus Flower," has been signed to play the female lead in the film version of "There's A Girl in My Soup." The Columbia Pictures comedy from the Broadway play is set to start shooting in England this spring.

Says Court Order Will Increase Walkout Risk

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A union leader says "the possibility of a nationwide rail strike looms larger" because of a federal court order barring a selective walkout against any single railroad.

"If we have to strike, we'll have to strike them all," William W. Wimpinger, chief labor negotiator, said before today's meeting of leaders of the four shopcraft unions.

The meeting was called after U.S. District Court Judge Howard Corcoran Monday prohibited a single "whipsaw" strike in the dispute over job jurisdiction.

A nationwide strike would throw 525,000 rail workers off the job and paralyze the nation's transportation system unless Congress intervened.

"The court concludes that the shopcraft unions' 'whipsaw' strike against the Union Pacific Railroad violates the Railway Labor Act" because the unions had agreed to bargain with the railroad on a national basis, Corcoran said.

Wimpinger, vice president of the International Association of Machinists, said that left the unions only the alternatives of a nationwide strike or an appeal to a higher court that would mean months of litigation and further anger by the workers who have waited more than 14 months for a back pay settlement.

The drawn-out labor quarrel is holding up a tentative 68-cent boost in current wages of $3.60 an hour, including several hundred dollars per man in retroactive pay.

The Machinists, Electricians and Boilermakers unions had agreed to the tentative settlement, but the Sheet Metal Workers rejected it. All four unions had agreed all must accept any settlement or none would.

Sheet Metal Workers voted down the tentative proposal in December out of fear the job jurisdiction provision would have eliminated many of their jobs. It would allow members of all four unions to do a limited amount of work in each other's traditional jurisdictions. The 45,000 shop workers include only about 6,000 Sheet Metal Workers.

"We are naturally very pleased that our long-standing contention that the whipsaw strike is an illegal union maneuver has been upheld," said chief rail industry negotiator John P. Hiltz.

Corcoran also refused to ban the industry's threatened retaliatory, nationwide lockout shutting down all railroads if one were struck. He said that question is moot because he barred the strike.

Temporary restraining orders had previously halted the strike against the Union Pacific and the industry's threat of a retaliatory nationwide lockout since Jan. 31.

President Nixon has exhausted all legal ways to delay a strike, but a nationwide shutdown presumably would trigger a special act of Congress to impose a settlement.

Stolen Moon Dust Returns Undamaged

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A stolen vial of moon dust has been recovered undamaged from a mailbox by police tipped off by an anonymous telephone caller.

Dr. George Wetherill of the University of California at Los Angeles, to whom the sample was assigned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Monday the two-inch vial had not been tampered with.

Police gave the dust to a NASA representative Monday afternoon.

The vial, containing 2.3 grams of dust—about half the weight of a nickel—vanished Saturday while on display with a chip of moon rock at a charity benefit in a department store.

The anonymous caller told police where to find it Monday morning.

Steven Lawrence, business manager of UCLA's Institute of Geophysics and Planetary Physics, said he took the sample from his office safe and put it on display at 7 p.m. At 10:15 he noticed it was missing.

Lawrence acknowledged that the display had not been authorized by NASA as required by the agency.

Wetherill said the sample, from Apollo 11 moon rock No. 50, had been ground into dust from a rock chip. He said it had undergone inconclusive tests for age and was scheduled for more tests which probably would consume the entire sample. He said much of its scientific worth "already had been extracted," but the possibility still existed it might yield knowledge of great value.

Getting Used To Auto Inspection

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The number of cars which flunk Kentucky's motor vehicle inspection has dropped to 17 per cent in 1969, the second year of the program, and fewer motorists are complaining.

Motorist complaints against service stations or mechanics giving the inspectors have fallen to about 12 to 30 a month, considerably fewer than last year, the state reports. In 1968, 25 per cent of the vehicles failed to pass inspection on the first try.

Easy Living For Fraud Dentists

ARUSHA, Northern Tanzania (AP)—Bush "dentists" in the Kilimanjaro region of northern Tanzania have been making an easy living by telling mothers that their babies' first teeth are "nylon." They charge one pound to remove the teeth with a sharp knife.

An official warning poster issued by the regional medical officer says that a number of children aged between 6 and 12 months have been seriously injured by the self-styled dentists. The poster points out that the sicknesses which the "dentists" claim are symptomatic of "nylon teeth" are characteristic of normal teething, and warns parents not to be misled by the slick talking tricksters.

Offers Sell His Lucky Number

HARROW, England (AP)—Businessman Robert Evans has never had a parking ticket, nor has he ever been hauled up to police court for a traffic offense. Now he wants to sell his good luck—his automobile registration plate, 999MP. London policemen usually assume he is a member of Parliament, or a member of the metropolitan police, whose emergency number is 999.

Managing Your Money

PNB PLANTERS NATIONAL BANK

What Would It Cost To Replace Your Home? Periodically, we have indicated the fact that your present insurance coverage on home and housefurnishings might not be adequate to cover their replacement in case of loss by fire or other insurable risks. As a reminder, we are pointing up some of the factors to consider and act upon—if necessary.

It is a natural tendency for people to be careless about matters that could become extremely important to them. This applies, particularly, in the matter of insurance coverage on their homes and household effects.

Generally, speaking, fire insurance policies are written for a period of three years. At expiration, we receive notice of renewal along with the bill and automatically, we renew the existing policy for another three years.

If this has been a routine procedure for the last couple of renewals, it is time to sit down and review the changes that might have brought or older pieces you might have replaced with newer and, invariably, more expensive items.

For instance, did you have a color TV set when the fire insurance policy was renewed the last time? If not, consider its replacement value if it was destroyed. The same thought should be given to the refrigerator-freezer or hi-fi stereo equipment or the new living room furniture or power tools.

Companies writing fire insurance policies follow this general pattern. The total replacement value of your property equals 100%. If you insure the property for 80% of its total value, then, in case of total destruction, the policyholder would receive the face amount of the policy. However, if through oversight or neglect or habit your policy only represents 60% of the full value of the property, you would only receive half the face amount of the policy. As you can see, automatic renewal of a policy without giving thought to the appreciation in value of your property or the addition of new items could be costly.

The casual or thoughtless renewal of property insurance policies is probably due to a psychological quirk. For, nobody anticipates a fire or other disaster. It couldn't happen to them. Don't you believe it! Last year, fire losses, alone, amounted to over $1.7 billion and for the first five months of this year, they exceed $649 million.

If you have been treating the matter of your insurance coverage lightly, now is the time to sit down and take an inventory of your possessions. Do it physically, room by room and item by item so that nothing will be overlooked. You can get an estimate of their replacement costs by checking current prices for comparable items in the newspaper or local stores. Homeowners can determine the value of their property by comparison with houses of comparable construction in similar neighborhoods. Or better still, check values with your banker. He would be familiar with property values in the area.

When you have finished your appraisal, prepare yourself for a surprise. If averages hold true, you will find you are underinsured. The question to ask yourself, then, is "Can I afford the risk?" The chances are that the average family can't. It never anticipated the extraordinary expenses that crop up at a time of disaster. If we believe, as the old song says "There's no place like home," we should also realize there's nothing more valuable than our home.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

FLORIDA RETIREMENT HOME—A widely-projecting saddle roof protects the walls of this six-room home from both rain and direct sunlight, and provides for a dry connection between the garage and the house. A covered space for a boat may easily be added along the bedroom wall.

Exterior walls are 8-inch thick concrete block with stucco outside and insulation and plaster inside. Floors are terrazzo over concrete slab. The gently-pitched roof is covered with tar and gravel. The projecting eaves eliminate the need for gutters.

The living-dining area has cross-ventilation, yet the rooms can be separated by a folding door. The front bedroom has cross-ventilation and two four-foot closets with bi-fold doors. The screened porch doubles as an outdoor dining area, and offers access to the garage and laundry space. Plan HA640R has 1,024 feet of living space and requires a minimum lot of 60 by 100 feet. It was designed by architect Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd St. North, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33710.
