

Reorganization Plan

Nixon Asks Budget Bureau Substitute

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon called today for establishment of a new domestic council to formulate policy and creation of an office of management and budget to replace the Budget Bureau.

In a special message to Congress, Nixon summarized his plan for revamping of the Executive Office of the President:

"The Domestic Council will be primarily concerned with what we do; the Office of Management and Budget will be primarily concerned with how we do it, and how well we do it."

Nixon said he was acting because the machinery available to him to manage the federal bureaucracy "has not kept pace" with governmental growth.

The planned reorganization would go into effect automatically unless either the Senate or House vetoes it within 60 days.

"We in government often are quick to call for reform in other institutions," he said, "but slow to reform ourselves. Yet nowhere today is modern management more needed than in government itself."

And, he concluded that the place to begin moves toward improved management was in his own bailiwick, the Executive Office of the President.

Nixon said the proposed domestic council would "coordinate policy formulation in the domestic area," and added: "This Cabinet group would be provided with an institutional staff, and to a considerable degree would be a domestic counterpart to the National Security Council."

The new office of management and budget, he said, "represents far more than a mere change of name for the Bureau of the Budget."

He said that while the proposed new office would still help the President prepare the annual federal budget, that chore "will no longer be its dominant, overriding concern."

Summarizing the change in concept and emphasis he has in mind, Nixon said:

"The new Office of Management and Budget will place much greater emphasis on the evaluation of programmed performance: on assessing the extent to which programs are actually achieving their intended results, and delivering the intended services to the intended recipients. This is needed on a continuing basis, not as a one-time effort."

The current budget director, Robert P. Mayo, is expected to head the new office if Congress goes along with the organization.

The President would be chairman of the proposed domestic council. It would include the vice president and most Cabinet members as well as the director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

"There does not now exist," Nixon said, "an organized, institutionally staffed group charged with advising the President on the total range of domestic policy. The domestic council will fill that need. Under the President's direction, it will also be charged with integrating various aspects of domestic policy into a consistent whole."

Nixon said experience with the Council for Urban Affairs which he created a year ago "has shown how immensely valuable a Cabinet-level council can be as a forum for both discussion and action on policy matters that cut across departmental jurisdictions."

Laos Premier Is 'Ready' For Cease-Fire Plan

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma said today his royal Laotian government is "ready for a cease-fire," but North Vietnam must withdraw its troops before there is a cessation of American bombing in Laos.

The chief of state acknowledged in an interview that American bombing raids had been stepped up in recent months at his request in response to an increased North Vietnamese threat.

Souvanna was asked about a new peace proposal by the Communist Pathet Lao, calling for a cease-fire and an end to U.S. intervention in Laos.

"Let's not talk uniquely about aerial bombardment," the premier said. "We must also talk about the presence of North Vietnamese troops. The two things are tied together, on one hand the withdrawal of the North Vietnamese troops and on the other hand the stopping of the bombardment...."

"In order to remove the effect, you must remove the cause of the bombing which is the presence of North Vietnamese troops in Laos."

Prince Souvanna agreed with President Nixon's statement that North Vietnam infiltrated more than 13,000 additional troops into Laos during the past few months, raising their total strength in the country to more than 67,000.

"There is now in Laos more North Vietnamese than last year," Souvanna said. "Some journalists think that North Vietnamese troops are mostly on the Ho Chi Minh trail, which is wrong."

Asked how he assessed the military situation in southern Laos, particularly on the Ho Chi Minh trail, Souvanna said:

"The situation is serious but not dramatic. We must not be too pessimistic. We must keep cool. We'll see what the great powers will do if Laos is actually totally invaded by North Vietnam."

"I think then, that the great powers will react and above all the signatories of the Geneva Accords who are the guarantors of our independence, territorial integrity, and neutrality."

Meanwhile, informed sources said heavy American bombing raids and bubonic plague apparently have halted for the time being an anticipated North Vietnamese drive beyond the Plain of Jars, which they captured Feb. 21.

The U.S. Command in Saigon announced for the first time the loss of an American fighter-bomber over Laos but refused to say what the plane was doing when enemy gunners shot it down.

A spokesman for the command also refused to say where the plane was shot down and where its two-man crew was taken after their rescue.

Pleads Calm In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The premier's office issued a statement today calling for calm after demonstrators sacked the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese embassies Wednesday.

Smaller demonstrations were also held Wednesday in two southern provinces of the country while crowds were storming the embassies in this capital. They were protesting the presence of Viet Cong troops in Cambodia.

The announcement said that a committee had been set up to work with the cabinet to determine measures which could be taken to assure that the Viet Cong keeps its promise to respect Cambodian territorial integrity.

The National Assembly met Wednesday to debate a resolution condemning the presence of Viet Cong troops on Cambodian soil. Thousands of anti-Viet Cong youths demonstrated before the assembly building while the meeting was in progress.

One of the signs carried by the demonstrators said "Viet Cong out of Cambodia."

against U.S. policy. Rogers was met by volunteers who openly wore black armbands, voiced their disapproval and turned their backs on him as he expounded American policy at the U.S. embassy.

Blatchford said, however, the volunteers who turned their backs on Rogers would not be punished because the demonstration was held in the embassy. "Not only was it in-house," said Blatchford, "but the secretary of state did not see them."

He also said he recalled two staff members from Kabul, Afghanistan, last month because of letters they wrote—which he described as "nasty"—but sent them back after talking to them.

Pushes Vote By 18-Year-Olds

WASHINGTON (AP) — After guiding his controversial proposal through a key floor test, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he is pushing for a quick decision on his bid to lower the voting age to 18.

"I'm going to stick with it until I get a vote," Mansfield told newsmen Wednesday after the Senate's 62-21 rejection of a move to table and thus kill the amendment to a bill extending the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

The tabling motion was offered by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who said afterward he recognized the vote as an expression of the will of the Senate in lowering the voting age.

The Democratic leader had wanted a final vote Wednesday but was set back momentarily when Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., proposed his series of amendments to the proposal. Mansfield said he detected no signs of a filibuster in the making. He said he hoped for quick passage of the amendment and the voting rights measure so the Senate can take up the nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court.

Adoption of the amendment, upheld by the courts, would extend the franchise to an estimated 10 to 11 million young people. Only Georgia, Kentucky, Alaska and Hawaii now permit persons under 21 to vote.

Mansfield's amendment stirred up sharp debate centered around whether the voting age can be lowered by an act of Congress or whether a constitutional amendment is required.

Allen sided with senators who contend Congress has no power under the Constitution to lower the voting age. He also strongly opposed the five-year proposed extension of the voting rights law, contending it discriminates against the Southern states in which it suspended literacy tests and authorized the use of federal registrars.

Supporters said the amendment is the quickest way to lower the voting age and decide its constitutionality by the courts.

Opponents contended the constitution specifically gives the states the power to determine the qualification of voters.

One of Allen's amendments, adopted by an 84-7 vote, inserted into Mansfield's amendment the phrase "except as required by the Constitution."

Mansfield raised no objection and others said it would have no effect since the amendment's constitutionality still will be subject to determination by the courts.

The Senate rejected, 66 to 22, another of Allen's amendments to strike the criminal penalties from Mansfield's amendment. These are fines of up to $5,000 and imprisonment for up to five years for denying the right to vote to persons 18 and over.

Also defeated by a 64-20 vote was a third Allen amendment to delete from the amendment a finding that the states have no compelling interest in denying the vote to persons over 18.

Near $1 Billion To Be Needed

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina school superintendent Craig Phillips said today the state will need between $700 million and $1 billion for new classrooms before the end of the decade.

In a statement released by his office, Phillips said that by 1978 some 5,932 new classrooms will be needed to replace those which will become obsolete, and 5,946 new classrooms will be needed to provide for increased and shifting student populations.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bombs exploded and caused extensive damage early today to the mid-Manhattan headquarters of three giant American corporations. No injuries were reported in the blasts, the second such attack on New York-based corporations in three months.

The explosions took place in the offices of the Mobil Oil Corp., the International Business Machines Corp. and the General Telephone and Electronics Corp. Each was evacuated after an anonymous caller warned of the impending blasts.

Bomb threats also were telephoned to the U.S. District Court buildings in Brooklyn and Manhattan Litton Industries Corp. and the mammoth New York Coliseum. All were being investigated by police.

Meanwhile, a group calling itself "Revolutionary Movement 9" claimed responsibility for the explosions in a special delivery letter to the United Press International news service.

The letter said the explosions were "to attack and destroy the forces of death and exploitation and build up a just society."

It said the bombed corporations were "enemies of all life" that profited from defense contracts.

The blasts were the latest in a series of bombings that have hit Manhattan skyscrapers and federal buildings. Five persons were charged in connection with a four-month sequence of bombings last November.

More recently there was the explosion of a Greenwich Village townhouse where police said members of a militant left-wing group were fashioning bombs and apparently bungled the job.

Police were reported checking any possible link between the townhouse group and the earlier case. Anonymous letters to news media said the earlier bombings were blows against American big business, the government and the military.

Today's blasts were supposed to have gone off at 1:40 a.m., the caller told police when he telephoned at 1:06 a.m.

The first went off on schedule in a 34th floor public hallway at the Mobil office on East 42nd Street. It caused extensive structural damage, the fire department said.

The second occurred 15 minutes later on the 12th floor of the IBM office at 425 Park Avenue at 55th Street. It blasted a 25-square foot hole in the floor, fire officials said.

The final blast came at 2 a.m. in the 21st floor office of Sylvia Electric Products, Inc., part of General Telephone & Electronics. It virtually demolished the floor and showered glass into the street outside the building on Third Avenue between 45th and 46th streets.

The FBI joined police in investigating the bombings.

Early last Nov. 11, bombs went off in the offices of Standard Oil of New Jersey, Chase Manhattan Bank and General Motors Corp. One person was injured slightly in that incident.

Will Nominate Draft Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon plans to nominate Curtis W. Tarr, an assistant secretary of the Air Force, as the new director of Selective Service.

Tarr, assistant secretary for manpower and reserve affairs, is a former president of Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis.

He would succeed Gen. Lewis B. Hershey who retired as draft director on Feb. 16.

Tarr's selection ended a long search by the administration for a successor to Hershey, who has become a manpower consultant to Nixon.

Tarr was president of Lawrence University from 1963 until his Air Force appointment in February 1969. He was also chairman of the Committee on Local Governmental Finances and Reorganization which was established by the Wisconsin legislature to study ways of improving state and municipal governments.

Born at Stockton, Calif., he is 45 years old. He has degrees from Stanford and Harvard universities.

He ran for Congress in California's Second District in 1958 as a Republican.

Students Take Responsibility

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — A group of students publishing a controversial newspaper on the Elon College campus received the school's permission today to sell their product on campus or off.

C. Fletcher Moore, dean of the college, said permission was granted when the publishers of "Veritas" signed an agreement accepting full responsibility for the newspaper's content. He said permission had been denied before because the students refused to sign the agreement on advice of their attorneys.

The second edition of "Veritas" came out Wednesday.

Twelve Volunteers Kicked Out Of The Peace Corps; Opposed Govm't Policies

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twelve volunteers have been thrown out of the Peace Corps during the past four months because of their public opposition to U.S. foreign policy, especially the Vietnam War.

Joseph H. Blatchford, Peace Corps director, says the volunteer agency will continue its policy of permitting dissent but not if it is done publicly in a host nation.

"The volunteer can express his dissent," he told newsmen Wednesday evening. "But he can't exploit his position."

Blatchford said volunteers whose tours of duty were terminated since Oct. 30 include:

three in Turkey, two in Ethiopia, two in Thailand and five in Ecuador. He also said a staff member in Turkey was fired for the same reasons.

None was identified. Most of the volunteers kicked out of the Peace Corps demonstrated during the Nov. 15 moratorium against the Vietnam War but those in Thailand were dropped because they threatened to picket Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on his recent visit to that country.

"Most of the terminated were more interested in demonstrating than they were in doing their jobs," Blatchford said.

He said more than 200 of the 9,500 volunteers overseas participated in the Nov. 15 moratorium but "they did it the way they should. They kept their dissent in-house. They went to their ambassadors and protested, some of them leaving petitions at the embassy."

Blatchford wrote a letter to all country directors Oct. 30 in which he said volunteers must be responsible for their actions.

"We simply cannot have it both ways; we cannot both claim to be a political and insert American foreign policy issues into the host country scene," he wrote.

Many government officials believe both Agnew and Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who recently toured Africa, were embarrassed by demonstrations of Peace Corps volunteers

Successful Model's Advice: 'Psyche Mind For Rejection'

By ARLENE ABRAHAMS
Associated Press Writer
"You should be a model!"
It's a rare day when Janie Doe, Hickstown's most notable local beauty, doesn't hear this comment. After winning her umpteenth local beauty pageant, Janie finally succumbs to her admirers' advice.
Wearing a big smile, and carrying all her worldly possessions and her $200 life savings, Janie invades New York—the mecca of the American modeling world. To no one's surprise, the first agency to which she applies hurriedly signs her. Within two months, her face is as well known as Uncle Sam's.

In today's age of truth and soul movies, this couldn't even pass as a story line for a Grade D movie. "Yet unbelievable as it may seem, hundreds of girls, thousands of girls, still steam to New York each year in search of a modeling career without even the slightest notion that they may be disappointed," says Carolyn Kenmore, one of the country's highest paid fashion models. "Most of the really attractive girls, if they discipline themselves, will be able to make a living in one of the many phases of the field, but very few will meet their aspirations," she adds.

Carolyn, who's currently taking courses toward her master's degree in psychology, says the most important equipment, in addition to basic good looks, a girl can take with her to New York is a proper state of mind. "You must psyche yourself for the big-city reaction—unless you're one in a million, the agencies aren't going to fall all over you."

The three possible reactions a potential model might encounter are:
1. Flat turnaround. "If you don't have the physical qualifications to be a model, an agency will level with you."
2. Accepted on condition. You may be told to change the color of your hair, get contact lenses. Most likely you will be told to lose weight.
3. Agency acceptance. "This doesn't mean automatic success," cautions Carolyn. "You're then sent on a round of look-sees, which may result in rejection after rejection. For a television commercial, a girl can average as many as 15 look-sees before getting one booking. And even an established model may run into an unproductive period—she may be over-exposed or out of fashion."
"It boils down to being emotionally mature," says Carolyn. "In this business that means being objective and prepared for rejection. People are buying you as a prop. They reject you, not because you're not pretty, but because your looks aren't what they have in mind for their product."
A model constantly must guard against being overly narcissistic. "It's very difficult when your face and figure is your fortune to keep your feet

Don't Nag Husband About Wearing Ring

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a husband who will NOT wear a wedding ring. We've been married for 10 months, and this is the only thing we ever had angry words about.

He wore his wedding ring on our honeymoon, but as soon as we got home, he took it off. First he said it was too tight, so I had it made larger. Then he said it fit all right, but it made him "uncomfortable." Why should a little ring make him uncomfortable? I would be uncomfortable WITHOUT mine.

He says he won't wear it to work, but he'll wear it to parties. Abby, that's the whole point. I'm WITH him at parties. It's when I'm NOT with him that I want him to wear it.

We really love each other, and I do trust him, but this bugs me. What should I do? LONG BEACH WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Get off his back. It's probably not the ring he objects to as much as your insistence that he wear it. You say you trust him. So TRUST him! He KNOWS he's married, and if you continue to nag him about it your problem will be much bigger than a "little ring."

DEAR ABBY: I think I am too flat for my age. My measurements are 27-22-27. I am eleven years old and am 4 feet 9. I have friends who are not much taller than I am, and they are wearing a 30 AA cup bra.

I wish my mother would get me a bigger bra so I would look more like my girl friends. I asked her once, and she said she would get me a bigger bra when I need it, and not until. Abby, I wouldn't want a bra that looked too padded for a girl my age, but don't you think just a little padding would look better? FLAT AS A PANCAKE

DEAR FLAT: Be patient. And when you get a little older, if you are still conspicuously "flat," ask your mother to take you to a good lingerie shop, and let the authorities there be the judges and make recommendations. In other words, at the proper time, what nature has forgotten—stuff with cotton.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago I married the most wonderful man this world will ever see. We had four wonderful children, and life for us could not have been better. Then cancer took him away, but not before he made sure that his family was provided for in every way.

When he first learned that he was not long for this world, he started looking around for his replacement. Yes, Abby, you heard me right. His replacement!

You see, he knew that no decent woman who had been married as long as I should be without male companionship, and he loved me enough not to leave me to the streets and bars and other places where lonely women go in search of men.

My sainted husband brought a very fine gentleman to our home, introduced us, and this man became like one of the family. He loved the children and they loved him. We all lived together for five months, then my dear husband died happy, knowing that his replacement and I were compatible in every way. Of course, the town gossips had a lot to say about this arrangement, but it didn't bother us. Our oldest (a girl, 16,) realized that a woman needs more than food and a roof over her head to make her happy. FULFILLED IN ARKANSAS

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DISAPPOINTED IN YOU": Yes, I am absolutely certain that the letter from the man who claimed his boss caught him in the hall closet chewing frantically on a rubber duck was as phony as a 3 dollar bill. The problem of "space" in this column sometimes necessitates "cutting" parts of the letter, but please believe me, my "rubber chewer" had his tongue (sans rubber duck) in his cheek when he wrote that letter.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Members Give Club Department Program Tuesday

Club members presented the program at the meeting of the Fine Arts Department of the Woman's Club on Tuesday.

Giving the program were Mrs. J. C. Lanier, Mrs. W. A. Pollard, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, Mrs. George Clapp and Mrs. Argent Smith.

They recently toured Hawaii, sponsored by the N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs. Dressed in colorful costumes, they gave highlights of the trip. The Fine Arts Chairman reported on the number of winners in the District Fine Arts Festival.

Mrs. Ivy Snyder, chairman, presided at the meeting. It was suggested that members tour the N. C. Art Museum in Raleigh and also to recognize artists in the public schools in Greenville. Hostesses for the meeting were Miss Eunice McGee, Miss Agnes Fullilove, Mrs. Etta Gill, Miss Laura Bell and Mrs. W. C. Harris.

Beauty Princess Claims European Women Age Most Gracefully

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

You may tint your hair, wear it in a snood, pile it high on top of your head, baby-curl it or decorate it with jewels. But if you aim to please a man, he would prefer your hair long—“bedroom style,” says lovely, blonde Princess Luciana Pignatelli of Rome.

“It always has been that way. Men think long hair is divine. But who wants to look as if she is in a bedroom when she is at a dinner party?” the princess asks.

Sometimes, she herself does, she admits. When this is the case, her long hair is groomed neatly. “But some women do look as if they just got out of bed,” she adds. Men do not seem to object.

“We must really do everything that men like. We must try to please them,” she says shrugging her shoulders. “It is the Italian way.”

Today, few men will complain about a woman's appearance. In America and Italy, women are better-groomed than ever.

“The difference is that middle-age women age more serenely in Europe than they do in the United States.

“American women fight age every minute,” she says. “An over-30 girl cannot dress as the young ones do. You can look marvelous-50s or marvelous-40s, but an older woman should not try to look marvelous-20s” she explains.

In her opinion, aging is “pretty much an hereditary thing” though today great things are done by plastic surgeons.

“Good skin will not wrinkle early. At 18, there are maybe 1,000 beautiful girls. At 30, there are 100 less, and by age 50, three are perhaps still beautiful. The beauty of the others has faded.”

Some women keep their good looks longer because they are more disciplined in their beauty care, she points out. Princess Pignatelli, who in her job as Fashion and Beauty Coordinator of Europe for Eve of Rome on the Via Veneto, sees women from all over the world, says, “Women know how to make the best of themselves in this generation. There is no interest anymore in having all those good (high priced) things. Years ago, one had two marvelous suits that you could wear for two or three years, but now you wouldn't dream of it. You can get so many good things for so little money now that you can have a larger wardrobe.”

Accessories are the answer to a chic look, she says. But it is a matter of taste. A person must stick to her own type when she chooses accessories.

“Frilly fashions make me look awful — my bones are too big for frills. If one doesn't know how to dress, one should stick with classical, simple things.”

She has a “pygmalion eye,” she claims. She sees people who look quite plain, and she can tell immediately how they can improve their appearance.

If you have that kind of eye, it is a blessing, even when you decorate an apartment, she says. An apartment might be horrible, but if you have good taste, you might see that you could make it look “quite marvelous.” Some people must see things finished, and some people are “immediately with it—they have the eye,” she says.

Beauty and fashion go hand in hand, she says. “You shouldn't spoil a marvelous dress by wearing the wrong makeup color,” she explains.

Princess Pignatelli doesn't use face powder.

Landscaping Project Report Given At Meet

A highlight of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club meeting was a report from Mrs. Kenneth Harris on the landscaping of the East Carolina Sheltered Workshop.

The members of the club financed the project and also did the actual work with the aid of the older youngsters attending the workshop.

Mrs. Harry Billica reported the Evans Street Cemetery will have been made possible by the Garden Fair, which is held every spring in Lakewood Pines.

A workshop for the annual fair was held at the meeting and was led by Mrs. Billica, chairman for this year.

Progress reports were given by the following chairmen: luncheon, Mrs. J. Fred Bauman, reported the lunch will be served from 11:30 to 1:30 in the gardens of the Bateman home;

Bakery, Mrs. A E Dubber said that homebaked cakes, pies, rolls, bread, cookies, candy and many other items made by members will be available; attic treasures, Mrs. Kenneth Harris stated there would be many interesting treasures and some things will be sold on consignment;

Long Wait For Tenth Street

At last it appears that the long-awaited improvements to Tenth Street will be made. At a hearing here Monday afternoon highway officials said the project should be underway by early fall and perhaps completed during 1971.

The 2.2 miles project is expected to cost around $800,000, plus engineering and right of way expenses.

Stretching from Lawrence Street to Greenville Boulevard the project will convert the street from its present two lanes to dual lane with a center turn lane. Traffic islands will be installed where the street passes through the university property for pedestrian safety.

Federal and state funds will be used to construct the project, which is on the highway system as U.S. 264 business.

Along with the highway construction work, the city plans to do its part toward beautifying the drive. City Manager Harry Hagerty said at the hearing that plans are to install boulevard lights. "We plan to make this a first class highway and thoroughfare for Greenville," he said.

Most Students Go Off-Campus

(Raleigh Times Associate Editor A.C. Snow, has just completed a comprehensive look of the problems of campus food services in North Carolina. He presents some of the facts and conclusions from the in depth survey.)

By A.C. SNOW

Whether their college-bound sons and daughters are to eat on campus or elsewhere is a question facing more and more North Carolina parents.

Apparently the parents are leaving the matter up to the students to the extent that campus food services are already facing a crisis at some of the larger universities in the state.

The University campus at Chapel Hill is a prime example. SAGA, a recognized national food service, is pulling out in May and the University must decide whether to find another food service, operate one of its own, or allow the students to fend for themselves.

At Carolina, only 440 of the 16,400 students subscribe to the campus food service by buying food tickets. Most of the students go downtown to a choice of 59 restaurants, 15 within walking distance. At a university where there are 8,000 automobiles and where 10,000 live off campus, eating in the university dining halls is passe.

At N.C. State, the second largest campus of the University, there is also a decline in patronage of the ARA Slater food service which admits a decline of 40 per cent between the fall and spring semesters of this year alone. The university has just given Slater's the formerly off-campus sandwich franchise, amid protests from the students. The move is designed to beef up Slater's revenue and compensate for operating losses in the cafeteria.

A survey around the state shows that those food services — college operated or leased by professional firms — that are paying their own way are those which require that all or some students purchase a year-round food plan when they enroll.

Colleges located in non-metropolitan areas such as Western Carolina at Cullowhee, Appalachian State at Boone and smaller colleges are more apt to win patronage through compulsory food plans or because of lack of competition. The University at Greensboro has a successful food service because on-campus residents of the predominately female school are required to eat in the dining halls.

The disdain for campus cafeterias and the growing rebellion and independence of college students whether it be living on campus or eating on campus is more apt to be found around the larger campuses. The situation at Chapel Hill and N.C. State may be unique to North Carolina but it is a part of growing nationwide trend of student attitude that the university is to function only as a place for learning — not eating or sleeping.

Duke University, and an exception probably competes most successfully for the students appetite. At Duke between 60 and 70 per cent of the 7,000 students are eating on campus with only 1,500 Duke coeds required to subscribe to the food service which is bringing in $1,500,000 annually.

Well-trained staffs from cook to manager, good food at competitive prices, constant innovation in serving techniques to eliminate long lines are among Duke's credits.

Duke's Ted Minah, who has managed the food services for 25 years and who is a consultant on food service on a national level, thinks keeping one step ahead of student demands is part of the answer to the food problem. On the nation's campuses, he believes that any college, including the University at Chapel Hill, must require a portion of the student body to eat on campus, in order for the food service to have some budgetary base to begin with.

At Carolina, extremely poor patronage, and high production costs prompted greatly by labor-management strife in the past year, have made the situation a losing one for SAGA.

Few college food managers think a food service can survive on competition alone. Eating on campus is losing its appeal. Parents are losing their control over how their children spend money at college, particularly in the food line, and today's college student is highly mobile. He has the gas and the wheels to go out to eat if he doesn't live out already.

There is no reason why this long-needed project should not promptly get underway, although we share Highway Commissioner Arthur Tripp's concern about any further delay. It was under consideration in 1967 but funds for it failed to materialize.

We also share the concern of some who appeared at the hearing that the project ends too abruptly at Lawrence Street. Without doubt it should be extended to Charles, or to Cotanche if Charles is to be brought into that intersection as seems likely now. Planning should also be underway for further widening of Tenth westward to Dickinson to make the thoroughfare effective. One side of this portion was widened a few years back.

Still we are most pleased that the Tenth Street project is so near execution. With steadily increasing vehicle and pedestrian traffic it has been a source of concern to local citizens for a number of years.

Planners Need Ideas For Park Area Plans

Col. A E Dubber called on the Recreation Commission Monday for ideas on the development of the Shore Drive park area between First Street and the Tar River.

Dubber, appearing at a Recreation Commission meeting, told the members it was up to them to decide how the riverside park area would be developed. He invited them to meet with Bob Anderson, who is planning the park as well as doing work on other urban renewal projects underway here.

The planners need all the ideas they can get on the development of this park area. It is rare for a city to have this much land so strategically located for development as a park, with the planners and funds for development available.

This park, which even in its present state evokes so much comment from visitors, should be developed with much care and thought. It is well that the Recreation Commission will be in on the planning.

A 'Primer' On MIRV Plans

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the Pentagon's new pieces of armament that some senators want to shelve is MIRV, a weapon that was so hush-hush two years ago that Defense officials prohibited the very mention of it.

For people who will still wonder what MIRV is all about, here is a primer:

Q. What is MIRV?
A. MIRV is a hydrogen bomb. Literally, it is an acronym which stands for Multiple Independently Targeted Re-Entry Vehicle. As a warhead on a missile, it packs an explosive punch equivalent to the blast of many hundreds of thousands of tons of dynamite.

Q. What does MIRV do?
A. MIRV rides, in groups of three to a dozen, in the upper stages of missiles aboard what is called a space bus. One MIRV flies to one enemy target; another can soar toward a different target hundreds of miles away.

Q. How does it work?
A. After the main booster engine of a U.S. missile cuts off, the space bus proceeds outside the atmosphere toward enemy territory. Heading in one direction, the bus drops off or launches one of its lethal passengers toward the first target, the location of which is stored in a computerized brain on the space bus.

The bus then makes minute adjustments in speed and directions with its retro rockets, ejecting a warhead after each adjustment. Each warhead can be ordered to a different enemy base or city, or all can be delivered against the same site.

Q. Does the United States need MIRV?

A. Defense officials say MIRV is needed to counter the Soviet Union's fledgling deployment of an antiballistic missile defense and its increasing number of offensive ICBM sites.

Q. What is the big debate about MIRV?

A. Some members of Congress fear MIRV will escalate the arms race and carry the United States across the threshold of a new era of hard-to-control nuclear weaponry. Because photo satellites cannot tell whether a missile carries one warhead or many, a strategic arms limitation agreement would almost certainly require on-site inspection—something the Soviet Union has long opposed. The Soviets already are testing some sort of multiple warhead system. Neither major nuclear power has actually deployed MIRV components.

Q. Does this mean that all U.S. missiles have only one warhead?

A. No. Some missiles aboard Polaris submarines are equipped with a multiple warhead upper stage referred to as MRV, a sort of junior MIRV.

MRV—Multiple Re-entry Vehicle—throws about three warheads toward an enemy target in a scattershot fashion.

Q. How many missiles will carry MIRVs?

A. The United States plans to convert two-thirds of the Navy's 41 Polaris submarines to the Poseidon missile which can carry the space bus. Each sub carries 16 missiles.

Fresh Status Clues

HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — How can you tell whether your prestige is slipping?

"Recently you listed a number of ways a fellow could tell if his status image was okay," writes a reader. "But what if he has begun to slip, doesn't realize it, and even his best friend doesn't want to tell him?"

Well, if he's alert to his own welfare, that shouldn't be too difficult for him to figure out. There are certain unmistakable signs.

For example, you can be sure you're on the toboggan slide if—

The office boy starts using your hanger on the coatrack.

The boss still calls you Charley when, after 15 years, he should know darned well that your name is Jim.

HAL

When you clump down in the company cafeteria during a coffee break and start telling a story, everybody else at the table gets up and leaves before you reach the punchline.

You work under 10 guys who used to work under you.

The PTA throws you out for nonpayment of dues—$5 a year.

When you go to a cocktail party, none of your neighbors' wives is willing to go out into the kitchen with you to hold hands or kiss.

The guys in your block organize a tennis league and you're not asked to join. Tennis anyone? Why, heck, you can't even find anyone to pitch horseshoes with.

If you phone your dear old Mom on Mother's Day to congratulate her, she declines to accept the call until she is sure she won't be stuck with the charges.

You sit down on a park bench and the pigeons and squirrels, instead of approaching you for a handout, immediately flutter or scurry to the next bench.

The barber never asks whether you want a tonic or a massage; he knows he'll be lucky if he gets a dime tip for cutting your hair.

You hate to lug your briefcase to and from the office because it has so many patches on it.

No longer does your wife go through your pockets after you fall asleep. She knows it isn't worth the trouble because there's nothing in them.

At the zoo when you toss a peanut to the elephant, he turns the shell over and over with his trunk, suspicious that you ate the nut in it yourself.

Your family car is so old and fender-broken that your teenage children never ask permission to drive it. When you take your wife on a trip in it, she slides down low in the seat in hopes that no one she knows will recognize her.

Even the postman doesn't bother to ring twice at your door. He jabs the bell once and goes on.

If all these things are true of you, you don't have to worry about where you stand in the big rat race. You are already a rodent dropout. About the only chance you have left to gain status is to try to get into a mouse race.

Diagnosis And Remedies

It might have seemed impossible, a hundred million words having been written on the topic, for anyone to produce so much as a single novel paragraph on the matter of campus violence. Behold: Two clear-headed economists have done this and more. They have written a remarkable little work of both diagnosis and prescription.

The book is "Academia in Anarchy" (Basic Books, $5.95). The authors are James M. Buchanan, professor of economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and Nicos E. Devletoglou of the London School of Economics, now visiting professor of economics at the University of California in Los Angeles. The two of them have some refreshing things to say, and they merit a hearing.

In times past, most of the commentary on campus violence has flowed from familiar rhetorical fountains. We have heard from educators, sociologists, psychologists, and moralists of high and low degree. We have heard from soft-headed liberals and flint-hearted conservatives. But never, until these two gentlemen came along, has anyone professionally examined the economics of it all.

This is the contribution of "Academia in Anarchy." With a marvelously deadpan detachment, the authors analyze the business of higher education as if they were analyzing the market in soybeans. They find some curious anomalies here.

What is wrong with free, universal higher education? The first mistake is that it is free (or at least that it is provided the student—customer at far below cost); the second is that it is universal, which is to say, non-competitive. The student who pays little or nothing for his education is likely to place little or no value on it; and in this business, as in any other, the customer whose needs and desires are seldom consulted is not likely to be a satisfied consumer.

Seen from this perspective, student militants are not behaving irrationally at all; they are behaving in terms of classic economic theory. In a market characterized by low price and over-supply, they are kicking the product around. What else would economists expect?

In the typical corporate structure, the owning stockholders delegate day-by-day management to officers and a board of their own choosing. It is up to management to produce favorable earnings. If management fails, the stockholders reach for their proxies and move in.

Unhappily, in the typical public or private university, the pattern gets diffuse—and this is a part of the trouble. Taxpayers and alumni, unlike investing stockholders, appear to have little interest in the results produced by management. Until recently, State legislatures and large foundations have provided funds with docile deference to "academic freedom." Boards of trustees, unlike the boards of corporations, have exercised feeble authority. And college presidents often have been mere prisoners of their faculty.

The problem is complicated by disregard of the old principles of property. Who "owns" a State

Other Editors Say Weyerhaeuser Acts

(Jacksonville Daily News)

With scientist predicting an ice-age, within the next three-to-four decades, as a direct result of the massive pollutants being released throughout the world, Weyerhaeuser Company is to be highly commended as a result of steps it has taken in its Jacksonville plywood plant.

Weyerhaeuser, one of the world's largest landowners, has been recognized for years for its intense interest in maintaining our natural resources through a stable plan of replanting forests from which it is cutting timber.

As a leader in the industrial field, in the production of wood products, Weyerhaeuser demonstrated to newsmen last week how it is cutting down on pollutants emitted from its plywood plant here.

Weyerhaeuser is voluntarily spending over $300,000 to cut the emission of pollutants to a bare minimum. This is being done by more efficient burning of the waste materials. And one can see the results by just looking at the huge "smokestacks" at the plant on highway 17 North, and comparing the barely visible stack emissions with belching "smokestacks" of other commercial enterprises.

Inside improvements also include enclosed dust-tight conveyor systems for sawdust for the protection of the lungs of employees.

And as further step Weyerhaeuser is aerating, (replacing the oxygen to sustain plant life), the waste water from the plant before it is returned to Onslow County streams.

This is what one major company, in the United States is doing to protect our environment... now all we need is the cooperation of all other industries, and the same cooperation in thoughtless burning and littering from every individual and pollutants will shed their scare role in life today.

And future generations will have something to look forward to.

Strength For Today

CHURCH UNION

Are we any nearer to church union than we were a decade or a century ago? We certainly are, and it is the most encouraging factor in world history today. A broken and dismembered Church is an affront to everything the Bible teaches and to the undoubted desire of Jesus himself.

But we are not going to get church union simply by gathering together all Christian believers the world over. Each branch of the Christian Church stands for some great truth, and the only successful church union we can have is a church union which recognizes this and will attempt in the united Church to bring all Christian believers together, agreeing to disagree on certain love and power of God, the power of Christ to save, the conviction that the earth on which we live has a destiny and that it is a privilege for Christian brethren everywhere to unite in achieving that destiny.

Differences of opinion will remain regarding minor matters. The thing that will make Church union real will be the conviction that something happened two thousand years ago in the ministry of Christ that is destined to change humanity and establish among all believers a brotherhood that will last through the ages and achieve what God evidently intended true believers to achieve.

Church union will not come about easily. The important matter is that it come about in sincerity, honesty, and a true spirit of tolerance on the part of all.

Boating Supplies See A Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

Talk about a recession is so much bilgewater to the boating industry. Boat manufacturers and boating accessory makers are counting on fair winds this year. New craft are being rushed to market and new equipment abounds.

Some boat builders are offering a new gimmick for those faint of heart or faint of dividends. It's this:

"Buy a boat. Use it as much as you want. Then turn it back to us for weekends, weeks and months you aren't using it, and we'll charter it to others. The charter fees will keep up your payments."

The accessories market, counting on a boating boom, is down wind with new products. Many have been reported here in recent months. Here are more:

Everything But First Mates

Instant glass fiber repair compound and a gel coat patching compound have been brought out for quick repair of glass fiber boats. Incidentally, there are scores of new models of glass fiber boats. They are inexpensive and seaworthy. (Compounds by Woolsey Marine Industries, 201 E 42nd St., New York 10017.)

Tempo Products (6200 Cochran Rd., Cleveland 44139), one of the leaders in the accessory field, has a long line, including:

Polyethylene water tanks in 10, 15 and 23 gallon sizes;

new aluminum and rubber holders for firm retention of fishing rods and guns; new tension straps to tie down oars, water skis and other gear; a new remote-control searchlight, and large epoxy-lined aluminum fuel tanks.

Also, an electrically controlled, revolving remote power hailer, with a horn that can be beamed in any direction from the helm control console; a power watch that checks battery voltage and automatically recharges them; plastic coated hooks for easy access to such on-board accessories as rods, oars, ladders, etc.; new vulcanized sponge rubber gunwale guards; adjustable aluminum trim tabs for boats under 16 feet, and new rod holders for lazy trollers.

British Get Into The Act

The British, who knew about boats and ships before we did — in fact, that's how our ancestors got here — have been busy introducing new products. They have exhibited at almost every American boating show, and they are still sending things to what they expect will be a prosperous market.

There's a kayak scientifically designed for maximum safety in rough water. It can be heeled on one side and righted quickly, and has a raised foredeck to employ the hydrofoil principle. (By Endcliffe Designs, Whitechurch, Shropshire.)

Also new is an easily installed depthometer, with a 5 degree accuracy down to 30 fathoms, powered by a mercury battery. There is also a speed-sensing device, indicating up to 15 knots for 9,999 miles. (Both from Chetwode Marine Sales, 6 Hobart Pl., London, S.W. 1.)

Pentagon To Limit F-111 Production; All Grounded

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It is now official: the Pentagon will end production of the troubled F-111 aircraft at a maximum of 556 planes—less than a quarter of the number originally proposed six years ago.

Lab Director Will Speak

John W. Mentha, director, Burroughs-Wellcome Chemical Development Laboratories, will speak at East Carolina University on Friday, March 13 at 3 p.m.

Mentha, who will be in charge of the development laboratory when the Greenville Burroughs-Wellcome plant opens soon in Greenville, will speak on the "Relationship of the Chemical Development Laboratories and Pilot Plant to the Overall Operations of Research and Manufacturing."

The public is invited to attend both the social hour scheduled at 2:30 in room 207, Flanagan, and the lecture immediately following in room 209 of the same building.

Gen. James Ferguson, head of the Air Force Systems Command, told the Senate Armed Services Committee Wednesday the Pentagon will spend no money on F-111 production beyond the budget year ending in mid-1972.

This, he said, will round out payments for four F-111 fighter wings, although there is some doubt whether Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird will approve purchase of the final 40 planes of the fourth unit.

All but six test models among the 225 operational F-111s have been grounded for intensive X-ray and sonic inspection as a result of the crash of the 13th F-111 at Las Vegas, Nev., last December.

Officials found the Nevada accident was caused by a steel flaw which caused a wing to break off.

Laird has said he will await the outcome of the Air Force inspection before committing himself to the final 40 of the fourth fighter wing.

A decision to buy those 40 in the budget year beginning next July still will mean a reduction of 121 planes and about $1 billion under the Air Force's planned buy last year.

Altogether, the Navy and the Air Force once proposed buying 2,411 F-111s with the approval of then-Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in March 1964.

It was expected at that time each model would cost about $2.8 million. With one program reduction after another, however, the price of one F-111 fighter has risen to almost $9 million, according to latest official figures.

McNamara had looked upon the F-111 series as a way of adapting one base plane to the needs of both services.

That concept, however, all but died when the Navy decided its F-111B would have difficulty operating off carriers.

The Air Force has high praise for its F-111. Ferguson told the committee: "The F-111 has encountered problems no more numerous and no more severe than have other weapons systems."

One Of Luther Hodges First Needs: Find New Secretary

RALEIGH (AP) — Former Gov. Luther Hodges and his new wife are expected to return to Raleigh this weekend from a European honeymoon. And one of Hodges' first tasks will be to find a new secretary.

The 72-year-old Hodges married his secretary of six years, the former Mrs. Louise Finlayson, 48, in New York almost two weeks ago and they left for Portugal.

The newlyweds have been touring in Europe since then. In Raleigh, the Hodges are expected to make their home in an apartment complex, Meredith Townes.

The wedding, performed by the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale in the Marble Collegiate Church, caught even the couple's close friends by surprise.

It became known when engraved announcements arrived in Raleigh several days after the Feb. 28 ceremony.

Hodges' wife of 47 years had been killed last June in a fire which destroyed their Chapel Hill home, and Mrs. Finlayson had divorced her husband of 24 years in January.

At the time of her divorce, Mrs. Finlayson had been separated more than a year from her husband, Oren A. Finlayson, a Southern Bell Telephone Co. executive.

The Finlaysons had lived in Raleigh until the separation, when Mrs. Finlayson moved to Chapel Hill and Finlayson moved to Charlotte.

Mrs. Finlayson's duties as secretary to Hodges were at the research triangle foundation, of which he is chairman. He is a former U. S. secretary of state.

A weekly newspaper which serves the Raleigh-Durham Chapel Hill triangle area, the North Carolina Leader, reports in its current issue that the new Mrs. Hodges said of the governor in an interview more than two years ago:

"He's younger in many ways than anybody I've ever known."

The new Mrs. Hodges has two children by her previous marriage — Joan, 15, and Oren Alexander III, 21.

Hodges has three children, all married.

Only A Few N.C. Hospitals See Abortions Rising

By YVONNE BASKIN
RALEIGH (AP) — Abortions have increased substantially in only a few hospitals in North Carolina since the state became one of the first to liberalize its abortion laws in 1967.

Medical authorities say the greatest increase has been at the state's three medical schools, but even there the new law has been given a rather strict interpretation. The 1967 law replaced an 1881 statute which allowed abortions only to "preserve the life of the mother."

The new law, patterned after a model code of the American Law Institute, allows abortions when pregnancy might threaten the life or impair the health of the mother; when there is a substantial risk the child would be born with a grave physical or mental defect; or when pregnancy results from rape or incest.

The law requires that the woman be a resident of North Carolina for four months and that a panel of three doctors certify that the abortion is justified. The medical schools have established abortion panels to handle this requirement.

Spokesmen for the schools said that because there are no centralized records on abortion patients, no information on how many of the women are married is available.

They said most of the increase in applicants has come under the "impair the health of the mother" clause when psychiatric indications have shown that the mother's emotional health was threatened by pregnancy.

The clause is open to broad interpretation, depending on which set of doctors is giving the judgment.

The most liberal interpretation has come at the University of North Carolina Medical School at Chapel Hill. Dr. Charles Hendricks, head of the Obstetrics Department, said only four abortions a year were being performed under the old law.

But last year, 165 abortions were performed at UNC.

This is eight to 10 times the number of abortions performed last year in any other hospital in the state.

Dr. Roy Parker of the Duke University Medical School said abortions at Duke have gone from about four per 1,000 live births each year under the old law to "12 to 15 or higher" per 1,000 live births now. About 1,500 babies are born at Duke each year.

Dr. Richard Burt, head of obstetrics at the Bowman Gray Medical School at Wake Forest University, said abortions there have increased about three-fold since 1967.

But since only three or four abortions a year were performed there under the old law, the rate is not very substantial. Burt said the rate now is probably about 14 to 16 abortions a year.

Public and private hospitals in the state have noted very little increase in the abortion rate. Wake County Memorial and Charlotte Presbyterian Hospitals, two of the state's largest, report no noticeable increase. Only a few abortions are performed in each of the hospitals every year.

Most city hospitals do not have abortion boards. Therefore, a woman and her doctor must decide if an abortion is justified and then seek out the other two concurring opinions required by law.

No one knows how many illegal abortions are performed in the state each year, but during legislative debate in 1967 the estimate used was 5,000.

Dr. Ted Scurletis, director of the Personal Health Division of the Health Department, said no one knows whether the actual number of abortions has increased since 1967 or whether the increasing number of legal abortions has just dipped into the number that would have been performed illegally.

If the number of total abortions has remained constant, only the UNC Medical School has cut substantially into the number performed illegally.

Burt said that although some other hospitals "have really pulled out the stops," Bowman Gray plans to continue to be strict in its use of the law.

He said the present law "is something we can live with." But he said since abortions have social, economic, religious and other consequences beyond physical ones, he believes the decision should not be placed solely on doctors. He said clergy, lawyers and other professional persons could be added to abortion panels to share in the responsibility.

Parker said although the present law is more liberal than the 1881 statute, many doctors in the state question whether there is a need for the panels. He said many feel it should be a doctor-patient decision.

Burt said he doesn't think doctors would want the responsibility. Hendricks said there is probably an increasing feeling all over the country that a woman and her doctor should be allowed to make the decision on an abortion.

He said the ideas of many physicians are going to have to change along with society's attitudes in the face of grave population problems.

One indication of change has come at the large Charlotte Memorial Hospital during the last six months. Dr. R. P. Rankin, associate chairman of the Obstetrics Department and a member of the UNC medical faculty, said there had been no significant increase in abortions at the hospital in the first year and a half since the new law was passed.

But Rankin said in the last six months there has been an "absolute increase" in abortions for "psychiatric indications that would not have been considered valid a year ago."

He said although the increase involves only about a dozen cases, it indicates some kind of liberalization of attitudes among some doctors in the community. Charlotte Memorial is a teaching hospital, but it has no abortion panel.

Rankin said a large part of the change has been triggered by liberalization of attitudes on abortion in large medical centers such as Johns Hopkins and UNC - Chapel Hill within the past year.

He said a poll of Charlotte doctors would still bring out "every conceivable opinion" on abortion, but a reappraisal in attitudes is taking place.

Ask More Time To Prepare Suit Reply

An extension of five days has been requested by the Greenville City School board to make a reply to the federal suit filed against it in federal district court on March 5.

The School Board, meeting in a special noon session Wednesday, conferred with attorneys W. W. SPpeight and William Brewer, representing the schools, to review the impact the civil action filed against the city schools might have.

"The five day extension has been requested," remarked Superintendent of Schools Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, "in order to give the board members more time to study the entire matter."

Dr. Cleetwood says if the judge (Federal Judge John D. Larkins in Trenton) permits the extension, this will give the school board an opportunity to discuss the matter further at its regular meeting next Monday night. Granting of the extension would set the new deadline for a reply on March 20. The current deadline is March 15. "The attorneys need to be given our direction in drafting up a reply to the federal suit," Dr. Cleetwood noted.

Dr. Cleetwood stated that copies of the reply will be furnished to Judge Larkins and to the attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Doctors Report LBJ Progress

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Army doctors say former President Lyndon B. Johnson is progressing satisfactorily after 10 days in the hospital and that he remains in "excellent spirits."

"There has been no chest pain for several days," a medical bulletin reported Wednesday.

Chest pain that erupted from hardening of the coronary arteries sent Johnson to the Army's Brooke General Hospital March 2.

Officials said the former president is gradually being allowed to take more walks around his penthouse hospital suite.

Defense Dept. Spending Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department has announced it is asking Congress to authorize $9,778,000 worth of military construction and housing projects in North Carolina in the fiscal year starting July 1.

The largest share, $6,764,000, would go to the Cherry Point Marine Air Station.

Other amounts: Seymour Johnson Air Force Base near Goldsboro $1,428,000; Camp Lejeune Marine Base $1,384,000; Ft. Bragg $202,000.

Fellini To Try Career In TV

ROME (AP) — Federico Fellini, who won international fame as a movie director with "Dolce Vita," has announced he will embark on a television career.

Fellini said Wednesday he will film a series of specials for Italy's state-owned TV system, beginning with his impressions of the world of the circus.

Hartford, Conn., was settled in 1623.

Three-Reservoir Plan For Tar River Proposed

WILMINGTON—Three multi-purpose reservoirs, recommended by the U.S. Corps of Engineers, would provide for the water resource needs along the Tar River Basin for 100 years, according to a report released here Tuesday.

The first step in the planned three-reservoir project would include a $11,300,000 reservoir on the Tar eight miles South of Oxford in Granville County. This project, termed the Grey Rock project, according to the Corps, would reduce flood damage along the Tar by about 42 percent and provide a dependable water supply for industry and municipalities along the basin.

The Grey Rock project would cost, the Corps said, an estimated $118,000 a year to operate and maintain.

The second phase of the project would be the White Oak reservoir project on Fishing Creek — which has come under fire from the State Wildlife Resources Commission for its anticipated adverse effects on fish and wildlife resources.

The Spring Hope reservoir would be the third phase of the project.

Fishing Creek, according to the Wildlife Resources Commission, rises in Warren County and empties into the Tar River 58 miles above Washington.

It is one of the best fishing streams in the East and is one of only three streams known to be the habitat of the Roanoke bass, which is like an overgrown bluegill.

The Tar River begins in Person County and passes through Rokeby Mount and Greenville on its way to meet the Pamlico River at Washington.

A public hearing on the Tar River Basin project will be held in Rocky Mount, March 19.

The plan presented Tuesday is the result of a survey study by the Corps of Engineers and requires approval and funding by Congress before it can be put into effect.

Nearly Lost A Head Of Hair

CHICAGO (AP) — Vincent DiCola nearly lost a full head of hair after a hearing in divorce court.

DiCola, 31, was standing in a corridor Wednesday talking with his attorney after the hearing on his wife's pending suit. His estranged spouse, Marlene, 31, sneaked up behind, grabbed DiCola's $450 dark-brown hairpiece and jumped back.

"I paid for it," she said. "It's my hair." With that she stepped back a few more feet, threw the hairpiece to the floor, stomped on it several times and fled to an elevator.

DiCola, almost bald, retrieved his hairpiece and joined by standers in laughter. He insisted that he, and not his wife, had bought it.

Governor Robert W. Scott will be the featured speaker at the dedication ceremonies for the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center Friday at 11 a.m.

Donald R. Dancy, program director of the RC, said, "I hope that people from all the areas the Center serves will be present at the dedication to see the Center, see how it is operated and be able to use it to its maximum potential."

"The Center staff is very appreciative of the support and interest shown by the community in helping toward making this a successful dedication, particularly the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association members," Dancy noted.

Dancy explained the objective of the Center is to treat the "whole man," socially, physically and emotionally and help him gain insight into himself. The Center staff is hopeful that it can find solutions to the problems alcoholics are faced with so that they will not have to use alcohol to release their anxieties.

"I think the ARC is one of the most humane and social concerns that the state performs," said Howard Dawkins, regional Alcoholic Program Coordinator. "Everyone in the alcoholic rehabilitation program is concerned with human beings as person."

Dawkins continued, "We believe the problem can be effective for at least 50 percent of the patients who are treated at the ARC."

"Alcoholism is a physical, social and emotional illness. The problem is not alcoholism but a deeper psychological problem that must be dealt with for the person who understands himself," Dawkins said. Clear up the problems and a person will more than likely stop drinking."

Open house will be held at the ARC facility from 9:30 a.m. until 11 a.m. Refreshments for the open house and the food for a picnic lunch will be furnished by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

Attendance at the ARC facility continued to increase at a Lamar high and elementary school complex today, the scene of a violent clash March 3 between white adults and state troopers.

Supt. Cliff Severance said attendance today totaled 409, about double that of Wednesday. Severance said there was no trouble at the campus this morning. "We certainly hope that now we can get back to the job of educating the children."

The attendance breakdown showed 68 whites and 141 Negroes in Lamar high and 31 whites and 169 Negroes in the elementary school.

The school reopened Tuesday under heavy police guard after being closed for a week. On that first day, only 76 students reported for classes. The number grew to 251 Wednesday.

State highway patrolmen continued to guard the campus today and state authorities said they would remain on hand as long as necessary to insure the protection of the pupils.

Governor Robert W. Scott will be the featured speaker at the dedication ceremonies for the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center Friday at 11 a.m.

Donald R. Dancy, program director of the RC, said, "I hope that people from all the areas the Center serves will be present at the dedication to see the Center, see how it is operated and be able to use it to its maximum potential."

"The Center staff is very appreciative of the support and interest shown by the community in helping toward making this a successful dedication, particularly the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association members," Dancy noted.

Dancy explained the objective of the Center is to treat the "whole man," socially, physically and emotionally and help him gain insight into himself. The Center staff is hopeful that it can find solutions to the problems alcoholics are faced with so that they will not have to use alcohol to release their anxieties.

Greensboro And South Mecklenburg Will Meet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Greensboro Grimsley and South Mecklenburg will face each other Friday night in the semifinal round of the North Carolina 4-A High School Basketball Tournament in Greensboro.

Greensboro won a berth by defeating Winston - Salem Parkland 69-44 and South Mecklenburg repelled Goldsboro 79-73 in the opening round Wednesday night.

Other semifinals opponents Friday night will be determined in two games tonight, which will complete the first round. Durham Hillside will play Asheville and Gastonia Ashley will play Wilmington Hoggard. The championship game will be Saturday night.

Bobby Jones pumped in 35 points and collected 14 rebounds as he paced South Mecklenburg to the victory over Goldsboro.

The 6-foot-8 Jones scored the first 11 points in a game that had South Mecklenburg leading all the way although it was outscored in the last two periods.

Don Lane was the big gun for Goldsboro with 26 points.

Turnovers proved the undoing of Parkland as it gave up the ball 18 times.

Mike Dempsey was the top scorer for Greensboro with 18 points. Paul Cloud paced Parkland with 11 points.

In the opening game of the 3-A tournament at Durham, Carl Bell with 34 points led Reidsville to an 80-74 victory over Cape Fear. Wilbur Carroll had 18 for Cape Fear, which pulled to within one point three times in the fourth period. In the second game of the opening round's first doubleheader, Bertie Central defeated South Stokes 59-46. The score was tied 25-25 at the half.

The first round will be completed with another doubleheader tonight, Pinecrest vs. Central Cabarrus and Pisgah vs. Cary. Forest Hills and Northern Nash advanced to the semifinals of the tournament.

Forest Hills defeated Wake Forest 76-64 and Northern Nash downed Alleghany 76-50 Wednesday night at Winston - Salem.

Wake Forest and Forest Hills played a nip-and-tuck game in the first three periods before Wake took control of the game in the final period with an eight-point shooting spree.

Charles Bailey of Northern Nash sparked a late rally in the final minutes and that proved too much for Alleghany. Bailey was the high scorer for the night with 32 points.

Two other opening - round games will be played tonight to decide the pairings for the semifinal round Friday night and the tournament championship Saturday night.

Hendersonville will play Wallace - Rose Hill and West Columbus will play Dallas tonight.

In the 1-A tournament in Raleigh, unbeaten St. Pauls won its 25th game 103-56 over Louisville. Alton Cogdell had 23 points for St. Pauls, but the game's high scorer with 24 was Benny Edgerton of Louisville. Union of Sampson County defeated Cullowhee 77-62 in the other first-round game Wednesday night. Ruffin plays Bethel and Youngsville meets Hidenite tonight.

brass. However, Allen, in Philadelphia, agreed to terms late Wednesday for a reported $85,000 and said he would report to training today.

"We ain't gonna give in," said St. Louis owner Gusie Busch earlier in the day of Allen's request for a $125,000 contract. Allen, who clouted 32 homers and batted .288 for the Philadelphia Phils last year, reportedly earned $70,000-80,000 last year.

"He's going to play at our figure or he's not going to play for the Cardinals," Busch said.

Meanwhile, Hague, who figured to battle Allen for the first base job, cracked a home run and added a single in the Cards' 4-3 victory Wednesday over Detroit.

Hague, a slugging left-handed hitter, batted .332 with 16 homers for Tulsa of the Texas League. Dal Maxvill also had a two-run single for the Cards while Don Wert slammed a homer for the Tigers.

Washington made it five in a row, stopping the winless Minnesota Twins 12-11. Gene Martin crashed a grand slam homer and Mike Epstein a solo shot for the undefeated Senators. The Twins, 0-5, had homers by Cesar Tovar and Jim Nettles and a pair by Tony Oliva.

Rick Monday cracked a three-run blast and Oakland snapped a four-game losing string with an 8-3 triumph over California. Tom Reynolds and Randy Duncan also had a round-tripper for the A's while Rick Reichardt connected for the Angels.

The Baltimore Orioles swept to a 12-10 thriller over the Chicago White Sox on the slugging of Paul Blair, who cracked two 400-foot plus homers. Andy Etchebarren drilled a homer for the Orioles with Duane Josephson and Walt Williams rapped homers for the Sox.

Willie Crawford's two-run ninth inning homer climaxed a four-run inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Houston 15-14. Bill Sudakis also connected for the Dodgers while Andy Kosco had five hits for the winners.

Norm Miller and Doug Rader homered for the Astros in the game, featuring 38 hits, 21 by the Dodgers.

Ron Hansen cracked a game-winning 11th-inning single as the New York Yankees topped Atlanta 5-4. Bill Robinson had the Yanks first homer of the spring while Marlan Murphy crashed a two-run blow for the Braves.

Home runs by Bob Oliver and Lou Piniella powered Kansas City over Montreal 6-4. Ruben Amaro had four hits for the Expos.

An eighth-inning sacrifice fly by Cleo James gave the Chicago Cubs their 5-4 victory over Seattle.

The New York Mets rolled to a 6-3 victory over Philadelphia with Al Weis leading the attack with two runs batted in. Byron Browne slammed a two-run triple for the Phils.

Sloan's ACC Champions Play As Underdogs In NCAA Tourney Despite Dramatic Win Over Arnie Palmer, Bob Lunn Shuns Star Title

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Bob Lunn, who burst out of the shadows of obscurity with a dramatic victory over Arnold Palmer, could be pro golf's next big winner.

But he's not yet ready to claim the status of a star. "No," he said when asked if his nationally-televised triumph in the Florida Citrus Invitational last week should boost him into such a category. "I don't think so. I have a lot to do to prove myself yet."

The comment was typical of the big, quiet guy who ranked as one of the favorites today in the first round of the $150,000 Monsanto Open.

He's only 24 and has made one of the fastest starts on the pro tour since Jack Nicklaus. He has been on the tour since 1966, has claimed four titles in the last three years, has one $100,000 season behind him, and currently leads the 1970 money winning list.

But—at least until last week—he was a virtual unknown to the casual golf fan. Lunn, a native of San Francisco, is a burly 215 pounder who looks more like a football linebacker than a golfer. He has the shoulders of a weight-lifter, the arms of a blacksmith and the disposition of a cherub.

He's non-controversial, mild-mannered and quiet. He traditionally wears a floppy, brim-down hat that hides dark blond hair rapidly thinning in the front. About the only thing spectacular about him is his golf game.

"The difference in scoring well comes when I'm putting well," he said, and credited putting with last week's victory. And a national audience had to agree with him. They saw him run a 70-foot putt to within four inches on the final hole for a tap-in that gave him the title.

He also won the Memphis and Atlanta Opens in 1968 and the Hartford Open last year and now has a chance to make it two in a row. Other major contenders for the $30,000 top prize at Monsanto include Palmer, South African Gary Player who is making his first start in this country this year, defending champion Jim Colbert, Lee Trevino and British Open champion Tony Jacklin.

Dave Hill, the No. 2 money winner last year, was a late withdrawal.

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—All-

America Bob Lanier is so big at 6-10, 260 pounds that you can hardly see around him. But Coach Norman Sloan of North Carolina State says there's a lot of basketball team behind the big pivotman.

Sloan's Atlantic Coast Conference champions are decided underdogs in tonight's NCAA Eastern Regional Tournament's second game against the nation's No. 3 St. Bonaventure team for which Lanier stars.

"Their guards are fast, skillful and high scorers," Sloan said, singling out Billy Kalbaugh who pumped in 17 points as the Bonnies beat Davidson last week to make the regionals.

"The other three starters are great ball handlers and excellent scorers," Sloan said of Matt Gantt, scoring at a 15.1 pace; Paul Hoffman, averaging 11.4; and Greg Gary, hitting at a 10.8 pace.

"Our problem is to slow down their fast break and keep them from getting the ball to Lanier," the N. C. State coach said.

Coach Larry Weise of the Bonnies thinks N. C. State's 10th ranked aggregation "is unusually aggressive and has real good size. We have a lot of respect for their high scorer, Vann Wilford. I think we'll have our hands full."

"It's great to be here," said Lanier as he stepped off the plane Wednesday in his shirt sleeves under sunny skies in temperatures in the 70s. It was snowing when the squad left Olean, N. Y.

"I hope we can take home the winner trophy and go to the national finals," Lanier said. "But then, so do the other three teams here. The scout reports we get on State make me think it must be a real tough team to handle."

That game will be the 9 p.m. (EST) nightcap of the opening double bill. The first game at 7 p.m. pits 17th ranked Niagara and All-America Calvin Murphy against unranked Villanova, the only team to beat St. Bonaventure this season. The opening games will be televised except for a 180-mile blackout.

Losers meet at noon Saturday in a consolation game, with the winners meeting at 2 p.m. in a televised contest.

Tonight's blackout means that Raleigh, N. C. State's home town, will miss the telecast, as will such North Carolina population centers as Charlotte, Asheville, Winston - Salem and Greensboro. No South Carolina cities will have the games. Augusta, and Savannah, Ga., also come under the blackout.

Set Bowling Tournament

The Greenville Men's City Bowling Association will hold its Seventh Annual Tournament on March 21-22.

The tournament will be open to teams, doubles and singles. Entries should be made to Howard Hemric, Route 1, Box 52-A, Farmville, N.C.

The Greenville Women's Bowling Association is holding a Scotch Doubles Tournament on April 5. All ladies are urged to participate, and trophies will be awarded to the top four teams.

Both tournament will be held at Hillcrest Lanes.

Newcombe Won Top Net Honors

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—John Newcombe started out as the goat, but came back with a clutch performance to lead his Australian team to victory and gain top individual honors in the $20,000 "World Title" tennis competition.

The 1967 Wimbledon and U.S. champion, now a contract pro, blew an early lead in the opening match of the three-day competition Monday and wound up being upset by Cliff Richey in three sets. He surged back Tuesday and Wednesday, however, winning his other two singles matches and teaming with Fred Stolle for a pair of doubles triumphs as the Aussies took the best-of-seven event, 5-2.

Newcombe's comeback earned him the vote of writers covering the matches as the top individual performer. It also gained the $11,000 first prize for the two-man Aussie team in the charity competition with the defending U.S. Davis Cup Champions.

Newcombe's loss and a victory by Stolle over Arthur Ashe created a 1-1 standoff Monday, then the Aussies took a 3-1 lead on the second day as Newcombe defeated Stan Smith in straight sets and joined Stolle for a doubles victory over Ashe and Clark Graebner.

Richey, a big hero in the losing U.S. cause, staved off an Aussie triumph by battling from behind to defeat Stolle 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 in the most exciting match of the entire competition Wednesday evening.

That gave the fiery Texan the distinction of being the only undefeated player in the event.

But then it was Newcombe's turn, and he demolished Smith in straight sets for the second day in a row, this time by a 6-3, 6-3 score.

Smith, who won the U.S. indoor title last weekend at Hampton, Va., on a fast, synthetic surface, continued to have trouble adapting to Harvard University's indoor courts.

Newcombe's victory clinched the title for the Aussies, and they then added to their margin of victory by defeating Smith and Ashe 6-2, 2-6, 7-5 in the concluding doubles match.

UNC In Top Shape

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith, whose Tar Heels play Manhattan College Saturday in the opening round of the National Invitation Tournament, says his team is in the best physical condition since early December.

Smith told a news conference Wednesday that forward Bill Chamberlain, plagued throughout the season with a thyroid deficiency, and had his best practice Tuesday in preparation for the game in New York.

He said sophomores Dennis Wuyck and Steve Previs were rounding into shape after a mid-season bout with mononucleosis. "Manhattan is a dangerous team," said Smith. "They proved that by beating a tough Temple team in Philadelphia."

Manhattan Coach John Powers told the conference by telephone hook up that his team would probably use the same pressing zone defense against UNC that it has used most of this season.

Henry Vansant Resigns From ECU Coaching Staff

Carl Reese, a star on the 1965 Missouri Sugar Bowl team, will join the coaching staff at East Carolina University, it was announced Thursday morning by Head Coach Mike McGee.

At the same time McGee announced with regret the resignation of defensive line coach Henry Vansant. The 34-year-old Vansant is leaving ECU because of personal reasons and plans to go into high school coaching.

"East Carolina has been extremely good to me," said Vansant, "but I have come to a point in my life where I feel I would like to get involved in an endeavor for which I am completely responsible."

Reese comes to the Pirates directly from Southern Illinois University where he served as a defensive assistant and chief scout during the 1969 season. Previous to that he had coached the defensive backfield at small college power Northern Michigan for two years and had worked on Dan Devine's Missouri staff for one season. The 27-year-old Springfield, Mo., native will report here within several days.

"Carl will be working with the defensive line and our linebackers," said McGee. "He brings an outstanding background from the Big Eight Conference with him to ECU."

"He is an extremely hard working and highly regarded young coach and we are fortunate to have him on our staff."

Reese was the starting fullback for three years at Missouri and captained the Tigers in 1965, the season they compiled a 7-2-1 record and went on to defeat Florida in the Sugar Bowl. In 289 carries he was thrown for a loss only one time — and that for only one yard. He gained 1,119 yards, scored four touchdowns and was rated an excellent blocker by Devine.

Other ECU assistants are Jerry McGee, brother of Mike and himself a Duke standout, who will head the defense; former NFL star Sonny Randle, in charge of the receivers; and Henry Trevathan, who guided Fike High in Wilson to three straight state championships and now will coach the ECU freshmen.

Vansant, a Virginia native and ECU alumnus, had been the only assistant McGee retained when the former Duke All-American succeeded Clarence Stasavich as head coach following the 1969 season.

"Henry is a tremendous person as well as being an excellent football man," said McGee. "I understand completely his reasons for wanting to enter high school coaching. All I can say is we'll miss him a great deal. He did an outstanding job here at East Carolina."

There's Less To Laugh About Football Scholars: The Big, Dumb Tackle Is Near-Extinct

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — James Thurber once wrote a story about a big, dumb tackle who, to remain eligible for football, had to answer one question correctly. The conversation went something like this:

Professor: "Name a means of transportation."

Tackle: "Duh-h-h-h."

Professor: "How did you come here?"

Tackle: "Muh father sent me."

Professor (exasperated): "Choo-choo-choo."

Football players, for the most part, have changed. A survey by The Associated Press on the academic prowess of last fall's All-Americans turned up some interesting items.

Mike McCoy, the Notre Dame tackle, took the following courses during the football season: Intermediate macro theory, urban economics, credit and banking, advanced statistical inference and social disorganization. Hardly snap courses.

Dennis Onkotz, Penn State's linebacker, once got up at 7 a.m. the day of a game to take an exam in biophysics, his major subject.

Four members of the All-America team also made the academic All-America. They are quarterback Mike Phipps of Purdue, tight end Jim Mandich of Michigan, Onkotz and defensive back Buddy McClinton of Auburn. Phipps also won a $1,000 postgraduate scholarship from the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Only three of the 19 seniors majored in physical education — tackle Bob McKay, Texas; center Rodney Brand, Arkansas; and defensive end Jimmy Gunn, Southern California.

The other 16 seniors had the following major subjects: Mandich, economics; wide receiver Walker Gillette, Richmond, math; offensive tackle John Ward, Oklahoma State, forestry; guard Bill Bridges, Houston, secondary education; Phipps, industrial economics; halfback Bob Anderson, Colorado, business; halfback Steve Owens, Oklahoma's Heisman Trophy winner, general business administration; fullback Jim Otis, Ohio State, marketing.

Defensive end Phil Olsen, Utah State, personnel and industrial relations; McCoy, economics; defensive tackle Mike Reid, Penn State, music; linebacker Steve Kiner, Tennessee, secondary education; Onkotz, biophysics.

Farmville Girls Win In Opener

In the opening night of play for the five area girls basketball teams in the championship title in the District One Tournament, the Farmville Girls' Team overcame stiff opposition from the Roseboro - Salemburg team to win 37 to 28.

The two teams played at the gymnasium of the North Duplin School located near the village of Calypso.

In the starting line-up, Farmville girls were Smith, Hardy, Pierce, Johnson, James and Gorham. Substitutes were Allen, Flake, Mooring, Joyner and Anderson.

For Roseboro - Salemburg, the starting line-up was Denning, Watson, Bullard, B. Sessoms, Blackmar, and Parker, with substitutes Butler, Honeycutt and I. Sessoms.

Jean Johnson of Farmville led the evening's scoring with a total of 14 points. Other high scorers were Carol Smith, Farmville, 8 points, and for Roseboro - Salemburg, Kaye Denning and Alene Watson each scored 11 points.

Scores by quarters are: Farmville 12-2-12-11 and Roseboro - Salemburg 5-13-5-5.

'Coach Of Year' Honor Is Habit

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina State basketball Coach Norman Sloan, named Wednesday as Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year, is an old hand at winning this type of honor.

Before coming to N. C. State in 1966, Sloan had been named coach of the year in two other conferences.

Sloan, 42, will receive the Gerry Gerard Award for being chosen in the ACC by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Bethel Girls Edge By Robersonville

The Bethel Girls Basketball team edged past Robersonville by a score of 45 to 40 in a game which went into overtime following a fourth quarter tie at 37-37.

Playing at Edenton last night in the first round game of the District One Tournament, Bethel played without the use of substitute to finish five points ahead of their neighbor Martin County team.

The starting line up for the Bethel girls was Carolyn Whichard, Brenda Ipock, Christa Price, Debbie Purvis, Susan James, and Minnie Hollis. No substitutes were listed for the starting line up.

On the Robersonville team, the starting line was Nan Roberson, Debbie Edmondson, Kay Coburn, Jenny James, Debbie Keel and Margaret Johnson. Robersonville's substitutes were Sandra Crandall and Becky James.

High scorer was Kay Coburn of the Robersonville team who tallied a total of 14 points. Other Robersonville high scorers were Debbie Edmondson, 10 points, and Nan Roberson, 9 points.

For the Bethel team, Susan Jones ran up 13 points, with Debbie Purvis having 10 points, and Carolyn Whichard and Brenda Ipock getting 9 points each.

Quater scores were: Bethel 9-8-10-10 and an overtime of 8 points. Robersonville was 16-5-7-9 and 3 in the overtime play.

Prospects For Beautifying Shore Drive Look 'Greener'

Prospects for beautification of Shore Drive look much greener now, following a meeting of officials of agencies closely connected with the park project. Working together on preliminary plans, Billy Laughinghouse, chairman of the Redevelopment Commission; Colonel A E Dubber, Executive Director of the Redevelopment Commission; Boyd Lee, Director of Greenville Recreation Department; City Manager Harry Hagerty; and John Messick, Project Manager for the Redevelopment Commission; met with Robert Anderson, a planner from the City Planning and Architectural Association of Chapel Hill; Jon Condoret, a landscape architect of the same firm; and William Joe, HUD representative.

"The consensus of everyone at the meeting is that Shore Drive, the area between Greene Street and Town Creek north of First Street, should be a passive recreation area," Messick, spokesman for the group, stated. "By this we are thinking in terms of lots of greenery, lights along the esplanade, observation benches (formerly termed park benches), possibly a boat landing and a bandstand, walking trails, trees, and even an arboretum or two," Messick explained.

He noted that the representatives from the Chapel Hill firm were employed by the city to make a preliminary study. "They will sketch out a first plan, bring it back to Greenville to be considered before further plans are undertaken," Messick said. Immediate plans, however, are being made for the city to plant more grass in the entire area and to finish up the work already started on laying pipes and filling in the culvert at the site where Town Creek enters the Tar River. "This meeting today, although a preliminary planning one," Messick commented, "is a definite step in making progress in park planning for the area."

Machine Equals Rock Group In Winning Grammy Awards

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A nine-man rock group, a pop song and a machine that looks like a small computer did better than any individuals when 44 Grammys were awarded for the best recordings of 1969.

Three Grammys apiece went to the rock group Blood, Sweat and Tears, the pop song "Games People Play," and the album "Switched-on Bach" which is performed on the Moog Synthesizer, a computer-like machine that can sound like any instrument in an orchestra.

Winners of the Grammys, statuettes shaped like gramophones, were announced Wednesday night.

"Blood, Sweat and Tears," the group's second LP, combining rock, jazz and classical music, won as the best album of the 1969 contest year. Group member Fred Lipsius won the arranging award for the group's hit "Spinning Wheel." "Variations on a Theme by Eric Satie" won for BS&T in the best contemporary instrumental performance category.

"Games People Play" was named song of the year and best contemporary song, with two Grammys going to writer Joe South. Saxophonist King Curtis' playing of the song won for him in the rhythm 'n' blues instrumental performance category.

"Switched-on Bach" was named the classical album of 1969, the best solo instrumental classical performance and the best engineered classical recording.

Crosby, Stills and Nash were acclaimed best new pop artists of 1969.

Peggy Lee won the best female vocal performance Grammy for "Is That All There Is?" and Nilsson won as best male vocalist with "Everybody's Talkin'." Written by Fred Neil, in the movie "Midnight Cowboy." Composer John Barry's instrumental theme for "Midnight Cowboy" won as best theme tune.

"A Boy Named Sue" won "best country song" for its writer, Shel Silverstein, and "best country male vocal performance" for Johnny Cash. Cash won a second Grammy, for best album notes, those he wrote for Bob Dylan's "Nashville Skyline."

"The Love Theme from (the movie) Romeo and Juliet" won "best contemporary performance by a chorus," as performed by Percy Faith's group, and "best instrumental arrangement" for arranger Henry Mancini. Mancini has won in that category five times previously during the 12 years Grammy awards have been given by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

(Confusing Names)

There are many professions involving the care of the eyes. Sometimes confusion occurs over which profession performs what specific services in behalf of eye health. Here is a brief clarification of each profession and its special work.

The ophthalmologist is a medical doctor who specializes in the care and treatment of the eyes. He examines the eyes for glasses and uses drugs, surgery, or corrective exercises when necessary to treat eye illness.

The optician prepares the glasses or contact lenses to the prescription of the eye doctor. He is professionally trained and licensed to take the necessary measurements and make optical aides. He conducts no eye examinations. The optometrist is a non-medical practitioner who measures the eye's ability to see. If corrective measures are indicated, he prescribes them. These corrective measures may take the form of corrective lenses or corrective exercise.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The little war in Laos has blossomed today into one of the major issues occupying the Senate, with critics of President Nixon's policies in the tiny Asian nation basing their objections on two grounds:

—Fear of another Vietnam.
—General disagreement with U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.
Two leading Republicans—Minority Leader Hugh Scott and Sen. George Aiken of Vermont—charge politics plays a role in the predominantly Democratic criticism of the President.

But virtually all Laos critics, including some Republicans, are those who have repeatedly objected to U.S. policies in Vietnam under both the Johnson and Nixon administrations.

The President's effort to clear the air by issuing a detailed statement on U.S. activities has clearly failed to still Senate criicism.

Some senators now say privately that, if everything the administration says on Laos could be believed, their fears would be substantially lessened.

But their experience on Vietnam, when they believed the Johnson administration to their later regret, makes them wary. Many see a repetition of the course that got the United States into Vietnam. "It is following the same pattern," Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said, "first aid, then logistics support, then air power, and then GIs," adding quickly "I don't think the GIs will go into Laos."

A resolution introduced Wednesday by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee—which would put the Senate on record as reaffirming the need for congressional action before U.S. armed forces become involved in combat "in or over Laos"—is designed to keep pressure on the administration to prevent an increase in U.S. involvement.

The doubt about the administration's intentions has been heightened by the events of the past week, in which the President originally said "no American stationed in Laos has ever been killed in ground combat operations."

This was followed by the disclosure that one, and then 27, and then nearly 50 Americans had died during operations on the ground in Laos.

Although the administration has admitted it erred, and pledged to list casualties in Laos each week, the damage to its credibility had been done.

To many senators, such as Mansfield, Fulbright and Republican John Sherman Cooper, the basic problem in Laos is not solved by mere disclosure of the U.S. role there.

It isn't the statement, "it is the actions we're interested in," Fulbright said.

They carefully differentiate between U.S. operations against the Ho Chi Minh trail in southeastern Laos and those against the Plain of Jars in the northern part of the country. These senators feel it is against U.S. interest to be involved militarily in the latter.

Cooper has called for an end to U.S. air and ground activity in Laos except that related directly to the Ho Chi Minh trail.

The administration says such activity is necessary to protect U.S. troops in Vietnam and to keep Laos as a viable buffer against North Vietnamese efforts to move towards Thailand.

"The question," Mansfield said of the recent North Vietnamese push, "is will they go beyond the present line and go towards Luang Prabang (the royal capital) and Vientiane (the administrative capital) or just stop where they are?"

The Nixon administration clearly hopes—and there is some initial evidence it may be right—that the North Vietnamese won't go further, in part because of the U.S. airpower used against their supply lines. But if they do, the President would be faced with a basic decision of whether or not to commit greater U.S. resources to prevent the fall of Laos.

It was this question, when faced in Vietnam, which led to the massive buildup starting in early 1965.

Complicating the issue is the administration's basic U.S. policy for Southeast Asia.

Both President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew have said the United States will defend Asian countries against outside aggression but will not become involved in internal difficulties.

But what Mansfield regards as largely a civil war in Laos, with the North Vietnamese helping the Pathet Lao and the United States helping the Royal Lao Army, the administration considers outside aggression, part of the North Vietnamese effort to take over Southeast Asia.

Administration officials have admitted there has been a deliberate effort to keep such distinctions fuzzy. They do not want to tip the Communists off to United States intentions.

The result has been to leave doubt among many senators, as well as among the American public, as to how far the administration intends to go in Laos.

Theatrical Evening Set

The E.C.U. Theatre Workshop will present an evening of experimental plays on Saturday, March 14 at 7:15 and 9:30 P.M. in the auditorium of the Methodist Student Center, Fifth and Holly Streets in Greenville.

The program includes "The Interview," a section of "America Hurrah" by Jean-Claude Van Itallie, "It's called the Sugar Plum," a one-act comedy by Israel Horowitz, and "The Tidget of Greva," a farcical interlude by Ring Lardner.

Also included is an original mine performed by workshop students.

The Directors, all students in the Drama program at E. C. U., are Mark Ramsey, Lindsay Bowen, and Vickie Bartusiak.

There will be a short panel-audience discussion after each performance. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Opening lead: Three of ♠ North's three club response is an attempt to probe for a major suit contract over partner's opening two no trump bid. If the opener rebids three diamonds which would deny the holding of a four card major, North can return to three no trump. When South showed a four card heart suit, North carried on to game in that suit.

West opened the three of spades and East put up the king to force out declarer's ace. Declarer observed that he had a ready discard available for dummy's losing spade on his club suit. He proceeded to draw two rounds of trumps first, so that if anyone ruffed in as the clubs were being run, it would be with a master heart. When East showed out on the second trump lead, however, South found himself confronted with a serious complication.

His next step was to run the club suit discarding a spade and a diamond from dummy. Had West been obliging enough to ruff in the third or fourth club, declarer would have regained control of the hand for, the West can draw a third round of trumps, the dummy and South each retain one heart and the latter has time to develop the diamond suit. West was content, however, to discard on the long clubs, and when a diamond was led subsequently, he was in with the ace and now drew all of the remaining trumps. The defenders' spade suit took the balance and a two trick setback was registered. The declarer irrevocably surrendered control over the proceedings as soon as he cashed the second high heart. Inasmuch as there is every reasonable expectation that he can get rid of the spade loser on the third round of clubs, that is—before an opponent is able to ruff in. South should be willing to give up two hearts and a diamond if necessary. In other words, the odds for a four-one division of the adverse trumps are distinctly greater than a six-one break in clubs, and South should take out insurance against the former possibility.

It is suggested that he cash only one high heart, before proceeding to run the clubs. Now, if West refuses to ruff in on the third club and waits instead until he gets in with the ace of diamonds, South retains a top heart which prevents his opponent from being able to draw all the trumps. Declarer can get in again in time to run the diamonds, and the defenders are limited to two hearts and one diamond trick.

Will Offer Courses For Businessmen

East Carolina University's Division of Continuing Education will offer within the next month two non-credit courses for businessmen, one in oral communications and one in accounting for non-accountants. Oral communications, a 20-hour course, will be taught by conferences, participate in meetings, give clear and interesting instructions, and generally improve his image and that of his organization.

Accounting for non-accountants, taught by Mrs. Mavis Brown, accounting instructor for the Undergraduate Evening College, will begin April 6 at 7 p.m. in Room 101 of Rawl Building. This course is planned for those who need knowledge of accounting principles and techniques but do not intend to practice accounting.

Each course costs $25. Each is financially self-supporting, so the University reserves the right to cancel either course if there is an insufficient number of registrations. Only 20 students will be accepted for the communications course.

To register or obtain further information, contact Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Box 2727, Greenville, N. C., 27834. DCE offices are located in Erwin Hall at the corner of Seventh and Charles Streets.

THE PHANTOM

The Worry Clinic Varied Causes For Untypical

Anne's sexual complaint is true of many other husbands, so analyze the data below. Some men resent having children and may even avoid marital relations in lieu of the "Pill." But other may suffer from one or more of the medical reasons I have tabulated. But they are not "average" or typical mates:

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph. D., M.D.

CASE M-551: Anne L., aged 30,

is protesting.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "you that the average husband is much more erotic than his wife.

"Well, I've had ENOUGH of your arguments!

"For I am attractive, weigh only 125 and am 5' 5" tall.

"We have been married 10 years and have 2 children.

"And I have been praised for my neatness and immaculate appearance.

"Yet my husband is stodgy and disinterested in our boudoir!

"For the past 6 months, he has not shown any desire for sex.

"So I am the one who has to proposition him!

"I don bikini sleepingwear. It is I who comes to bed smelling clean and sweet, only to be rebuffed with his argument:

"I'm too tired tonight."

"Or, he may even say, 'You're acting like a sex maniac."

"Although I enjoy sex and feel that it is clean and proper for a married couple, my husband avoids and evades it. Why?"

My statement is still true that average husbands are far more erotic than the average wife.

Anne's mate is not a typical, healthy male.

And many other husbands react much like him, for one or more of these vital medical reasons:

(1) Their vitality in general

may be low, due to such medical reasons as anemia, undiagnosed diabetes, etc.

(2) Cigarette smoking tends to dull erotic appetite and thus make a husband prematurely platonist.

(3) Obesity likewise can fatigue a man unduly so that he is more sleepy than amorous

when bedtime arrives.

(4) An inflamed prostate gland can also drive a husband into a celibate life, yet he may never have admitted this prostatic problem to his wife despite his regular visits to a genito-urinary specialist.

Also, men often contract

gonorrhea from a dissolute evening at a sales convention in a distant city.

And gonorrhea, as well as other germs, can make an irritable prostate gland.

In such cases, not only is the marital act a painful process

but the husband deliberately stays away from his wife lest he infect her with his venereal disease.

(5) Frequently a husband may be having an outside affair, so he

World War II and during the conflict. It will cover the period when Lindbergh was a leading opponent of American involvement in the war, a stand which prompted President Franklin Roosevelt and others to question his patriotism. (AP Wirephoto)

Four Persons Injured in Six Traffic Accidents Yesterday

Four persons were reported injured and more than $3,100 property damage resulted from a series of six traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

The heaviest damage resulted from a 9:45 a.m. collision on Cotanche Street 50 feet north of the Fifth Street intersection, and involved cars driven by Joy Norris Pate, 25, of Route 5, Greenville and Dalmar Lindon Cox, 69, of Greenville.

Officers, who charged Cox with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, reported Mrs. Pate and her four-year-old daughter were injured in the mishap.

Damage was placed at $600 to the Pate car and $500 to the Cox vehicle.

A passenger in a car driven by Larry Worth Vestal, 22, of Route 1, Jacksonville was reported injured when the Vestal car collided with a vehicle driven by Ralph David Betesh, 20, of Brookley N.Y. about 9:45 p.m. at the Fifth and Meade Streets intersection.

Police, who charged Betesh with operating left of center, placed damage at $230 to the Betesh car and $550 to the Vestal auto.

Eric George Schandmeier, 20, of 503 East Ninth St. was charged with failing to stop for a SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Three busy traffic cops with army and hand-to-hand combat training have offered their services at a nominal fee to protect public or private functions from "gate-crashing thugs." In a newspaper advertisement they said: "We do not want to break any heads, but if anyone looks for trouble, well..."

stop sign following investigation of an 11:50 a.m. collision at the intersection of Ninth and Cotanche Streets.

Police said the Schandmeier car collided with a car driven by William Ray Bunting, 29, of 1607 Longwood Dr. and caused an estimated $400 damage to the Bunting car and about $175 damage to the Schandmeier vehicle.

No charges were made when vehicles driven by Gabriella Olivera, 2605 East 10th St. and Edward Mayhew Haddock, 17, of 2509 Jefferson Dr. collided on 10th Street, 100 feet West of the Williams Street intersection about 8:15 a.m.

Damage was set at $400 to the Olivera car and $25 to the truck driven by Haddock.

A pedestrian, Linwood Worthington, 33, of 1002 Van-Nortwick St. was injured when struck by a car driven by Joseph Thomas Sellers Jr., 21, of Statesville at 8:06 p.m. at the Greene and Martin Streets intersection.

No charges were made by investigators who reported an estimated $25 damage resulted to the Sellers auto.

Worthington was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of leg injury.

Again no charges were placed following investigation of a 3:55 p.m. collision on Charles Street, 200 feet South of the 10th Street intersection.

Police reported a car driven by David Loren Gradis, 21, of 2003 Forrest Hill Dr. collided with a parked car owned by Hubert Allen Smith, of Route 10, Greensboro.

Damage to the Smith car was set at $25 while damage to the Gradis car was set at $200.

Coach McGee To Speak At Boys' Club Dinner

Mike McGee, head football coach at East Carolina University, is to be the keynote speaker at the second annual meeting and dinner of the Boys' Club of Greenville.

The benefit dinner, to be held at 7:00 p.m. March 25 at Aycock Junior High School is open to the public. Tickets for the dinner are $5 per person. Funds raised from the dinner will be used to help expand the growing activities of the Boys' Club, now just more than a year old.

More than 200 boys are active in this program, which is supported primarily from funds and facilities made possible by public and business support.

Anyone wishing to purchase a ticket for the dinner-speech annual meeting event is asked to contact the Boys' Club by telephoning 758-4029. Director Dick Ullom or Assistant Director Dave Wilcox will make arrangements to provide tickets for any caller.

Kidnapers' Call Awaited

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Police expressed belief today that the kidnapers of Japan's consul-general in Sao Paulo would surface soon with demands for release of jailed terrorists in return for the envoy's freedom.

A widespread dragnet has failed so far to turn up any trace of the abductors of 56-year-old Nobuo Okuchi, who was hauled from his limousine Wednesday. Five terrorists armed with submachine guns kidnaped Okuchi and drove away with him in a small sedan after releasing his Japanese chauffeur unharmed. Police assumed that the kidnapers were antigovernment terrorists seeking the freedom of jailed comrades.

Last September, terrorists kidnaped U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick in Rio de Janeiro and held him for several days until the Brazilian government allowed 15 political prisoners to go to Mexico.

Last Wednesday, terrorists in Guatemala abducted U.S. diplomat Sean M. Holly and held him for 38½ hours until Guatemalan authorities freed three leftists and let them fly to Mexico.

Expect Million Expo Visitors

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — More than a million overseas visitors are expected to view Japan's Expo '70, the first Asian international exposition.

Hiroshi Ueda, director of the Japan National Tourist Organization office in Chicago, said to facilitate a smooth visit, hotel accommodations and local transportation should be booked in advance through an American tour operator.

"However," Ueda said, "the Japanese people are known for their organizing skill and efficient handling of tour groups so that all visitors—despite their numbers—can be assured of a pleasant reception and visit if they plan their trip sensibly."

Down Payment Is Big Obstacle

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
NEW YORK (UPI)—Many a would-be homeowner today wonders if he ever will move into that dream house.

He's ready for home ownership. He has a good income; good prospects. But he's caught in a vicious circle.

He can carry a good sized monthly payment—he's probably paying plenty for rent anyway. The down payment is another story, however. Thanks to spiraling land and building costs, and to tight money, a big cash down payment is the rule today and it is a major obstacle to home ownership for the average family.

Average Cost $30,000
The average house now costs $30,000, although it isn't always easy to find the one you want, where you want it, with a price tag this low. To purchase it may well require a down payment of 25 to 30 per cent. This means a cash outlay of $7,500 to $9,000 or more, not counting the money needed for closing costs, the move itself and the inevitable purchases required for a new home.

Such a nest egg takes some saving, particularly when just living costs so much and when the costs of home owning go up and up even as a family waits and saves.

The answer? For some families, it could be private mortgage insurance, first introduced in 1957, and now offered by 10 or a dozen firms across the country. It is not available directly to the home buyer, but through savings and loan associations, commercial banks, insurance companies and mortgage bankers.

Max Karl, president of Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corp., Milwaukee, largest of the private insurers, says such private programs offer a way for the family with an adequate

Pick Protestant, Negro Officers

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — A Negro and a Protestant swept the student body election Wednesday at the University of Notre Dame.

David M. Krashna, 21, a junior from Pittsburgh, became the first Negro elected student-body president at Notre Dame. Junior Mark E. Winings, 20, of Elwood, Ind., a Protestant who ran with Krashna, was elected vice president.

Notre Dame has 87 black students among 6,200 undergraduates. The enrollment is 96 per cent Roman Catholic.

Jimmy Sutton, Mrs. Lindsay Savage, S. M. (Booger) Scales, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Mrs. Joseph Squires, Dr. Donald Tucker, W. C. Taylor, Bill Talton, Clarence Tugwell, Julian Vainwright, Gene Ward, Raymond Williams or Warren Whitehurst.

Visitors are also encouraged to make a tour of the Boys' Club facilities, located at the site of the former West Greenville Presbyterian Church on Skinner Street and the Moyewood Branch located at the Old County School Bus Garage in Moyewood.

Down Payment Is Big Obstacle

monthly income, but with limited cash reserves, to obtain the necessary down payment.

Guarantees Top 20 Per Cent
Such plans, he explained, guarantee the top 20 per cent of a mortgage, with lenders accepting the guarantee in lieu of a portion of the down payment. This makes it possible for a family to buy a house with only 10 per cent down.

Other Advantages
The private insurers, he said, have a premium cost about half that of the FHA, and do not have the $30,000 loan restriction of the government program. In addition, he said, lenders find little of the red tape so often encountered when dealing with the government.

Since private companies place no ceiling on the amount of interest charged, Karl said, there is no need for discounts or extra closing costs, often charged on loans with FHA or VA backing where the interest rate is limited by law. Such charges, since they are not tax deductible, financially penalize the homebuyer, he said.

Storks Nest In Corkscrew Swamp

CORKSCREW SWAMP, Fla. (AP) — More than 3,000 storks have come to Corkscrew Swamp in the Everglades to raise families.

An airplane census announced by the Naples Chamber of Commerce placed the stork population in the cypress forest at 3,800.

Storks arrive annually at the 10,000-acre sanctuary, one of the last remaining nesting areas for the vanishing long-legged bird. It is maintained by the National

Governor Opens Growers Trade Fair

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) —Gov. Bob Scott says that 10 years ago few farmers thought the day would come when they could take their tobacco to the warehouse without grading and tying it.

"Now, of course, that day has come, and you are selling your tobacco loose-leaf," Scott said Wednesday as he formally opened the Tobacco Growers Trade Fair at Rocky Mount.

He told the audience that during the three-day fair "you will see what is new in the way of tobacco harvesting, production and marketing."

New President Bright Belt Ass'n

RALEIGH (AP) — Lawrence H. Wallace of Smithfield is the new president of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association, succeeding P. R. Floyd Jr. of Fairmont.

Other officers elected at a meeting in Raleigh earlier this week were John S. Watkins Jr., of Oxford, vice president; Mrs. Ann H. Fleming of Henderson, secretary - treasurer; Fred S. Royster of Henderson, managing director, and Joyner and Howison law firm, Raleigh, general counsel.

Members of the association operate tobacco auction warehouses in the flue-cured producing region of the southeast.

TRAFFIC SLOWS

HELSINKI (UPI)—The Helsinki (population 530,000) Traffic Department reports its trolleys and buses carried 126.8 million passengers in 1969, a decrease of more than 7 million from 1968.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

MODEST AND LOW-PRICED this three bedroom, one-story dwelling is estimated to cost under $19,000 to build in the high-priced New York City suburban area. There's a one car garage which can be expanded to two, large closets, an optional fireplace in the living room, and two terraces — one in the rear, separated from the dining area by sliding glass doors; the other in the front, alongside the main entrance.

Inside, a central foyer separates the living-dining area from the bedroom wing. The kitchen has a counter top range, dishwasher, garbage disposal, and a spacious corner for informal dining. Off the kitchen is the laundry room, which also serves as a service entrance. There are bathrooms both in the master bedroom and in the bedroom hall.

The cottage-like exterior is of wood shakes, accented by vertical siding. Plan HA636P, with 1,185 square feet of living space, was designed by architect Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 Street, Jamaica, N.Y.

U.S. Deaths In Vietnam Drop

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
SAIGON (AP) — The total of U.S. combat deaths in Vietnam dropped to 88 last week, a reduction of 22 per cent from the previous week's three-month high of 113. But the wounded total jumped 72 per cent, from 465 to 803.

The U.S. Command's weekly summary of casualties raised the total number of Americans reported killed in action in Vietnam to 40,846 since Jan. 1, 1961. A total of 269,099 Americans have been reported wounded, and another 1,363 are listed as missing or captured.

The allied commands claimed 2,105 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed last week, bringing the reported enemy total for the war to 607,886. The Saigon government's battle dead exceeded the U.S. total for the 42nd consecutive week, with 343 men reported killed and 742 wounded.

The U.S. Command reported three American helicopters were destroyed by ground fire Wednesday, including an OH58 Kiowa observation craft, the latest model chopper to join the Vietnam war. It was the first Kiowa loss reported.

The two-man ship was on a reconnaissance mission over Bien Hoa Province just north-east of Saigon when it was hit and crashed. One of its crewmen was wounded.

The other two helicopters lost were an OH6 shot down in Tay Ninh Province, wounding three men, and an AH1 Cobra gunship that went down southwest of Da Nang, killing one crew member and wounding the other.

Three other U.S. Army helicopters were shot up Wednesday night—but not destroyed—

Israeli Jets Renew Raids

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets streaked across the Suez Canal today for the first time in six days, striking at Egyptian targets along the southern sector of the waterway and penetrating up to 15 miles inside Egypt, Israeli spokesmen said.

The military command said all planes returned safely following the 10-minute raid. No Israeli air attacks across the canal have been reported since last Friday. Military observers say jets have been grounded by bad weather and poor visibility caused by desert sandstorms.

In other action, Arab guerrillas wounded six Israeli soldiers today at the fog-shrouded northern end of the occupied Golan Heights. An Israeli spokesman said the body of one guerrilla and four mines were found after the attack. The mines were dismantled.

Firemen Quench Moonshine Fire

IRVINE, Ky. (AP) — Irvine firemen found the unexpected when they were called to extinguish a blaze in a small out-building.

Officials said the building contained a three-gallon moonshine still and that artificial gas used to operate it exploded, touching off the fire.

GIRLS WANT SPORTS

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The girl students of a Calcutta college have threatened to complain to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi if cricket and soccer are not introduced in their college. They say they got the inspiration after reading reports of women playing soccer in the United States.

Seaward Winds Ease Oil Fears

OFF THE LOUISIANA COAST (AP) — Brisk winds blowing seaward brought hope today that a massive oil slick might spare coastal oyster beds and a wildlife refuge which is a winter home for hundreds of thousands of seafowl.

The slick escaped encircling booms and barges Wednesday when high seas broke up the protective chain which had been containing most of it.

The oil was spewing from wells on a Chevron Oil Co. platform, 30 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico, where a month-long fire was put out Tuesday.

A company spokesman said the fire would be reignited "if oil keeps moving to the oyster beds." The company also was ready if necessary to frighten the threatened birds away with explosive charges.

Interior Secretary Walter Hickenlooper arranged to inspect the oil-spewing platform today after a flight from Washington to New Orleans. Included in his party was Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, assistant secretary for Fish and Wild Life, Parks and Marine Resources.

Chevron crews were kept at work through the night in an effort to repair breaks in the chain of booms linking barges carrying oil-skimming equipment.

High winds and choppy seas prevented the oil-skimming vessels from operating Wednesday, and portions of the oil slick slithered past Breton Island—the bird refuge—and Grand Gosier Island into Chandeleur Sound, where 400,000 acres of rich oyster beds are located.

Safety engineer Will Billon of Chevron said the oil flow was still an estimated 18,000 to 30,000 gallons daily.

He said that the retrieving devices—skimming the mixed oil and water into barges—had been recovering about 85 per cent of the oil from the surface.

Earlier this week, a spokesman for the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission said a million waterfowl were in the Breton Island area.

1.7 Million Pounds Of Bombs Nearby

AURORA, Neb. (AP) — How does a quiet little town react when word spreads that 1.7 million pounds of bombs ticketed for Vietnam are strewn at its doorstep by a train derailment?

It happened Wednesday to the central Nebraska town of Aurora; population 2,500. And the people reacted quietly, taking almost a ho-hum attitude.

Mrs. Robert Willis, who lives near the scene of the derailment at the edge of town, said: "I suppose it's normal to worry when you hear the word 'bomb', but there was no panic. People just figured it just happened and there wasn't much danger."

The Willises were among several families who decided to leave their homes after a Burlington-Northern freight train derailed. "Thirty-four boxcars—13 of them loaded with 750-pound bombs—left the tracks when wheel trouble caused the cars to pile up 'like matchsticks,' a railroad spokesman said. Damage was estimated at $1 million.

The big bombs, the type used in B52 bombers, were not armed or fused.

"It didn't bother me to walk among the bombs," said Aurora School Supt. Robert Cothren. "There were people all over the place ... No one seemed worried."

After conferring with officials of the Cornhusker Army Ammunition Plant at nearby Grand Island, where the bombs were manufactured, Cothren ordered town schools closed for two days.

A bomb team from Ft. Riley, Kan., arrived late Wednesday and assured the town there was no danger.
