

Cambodia Is Asked To Release Ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American diplomat has appealed to Cambodian authorities for release of the U.S. ammunition carrier Columbia Eagle and its 13 crewmen.

A State Department spokesman said American Charge d'Affairs Lloyd M. Rives met with Cambodian officials Monday and also attempted to learn the fate of two men who sought political asylum after seizing control of the ship with a bomb scare.

There was no early indication action would be taken by Cambodian authorities, an embassy spokesman said.

The two men who allegedly seized control of the ship with a phony bomb scare were identified by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., as Clyde McKay of Escondido, Calif., and Alvin Glatkowski of Long Beach, Calif.

Glatkowski was a utility steward aboard the vessel, McKay was a fireman.

Both sought political asylum in Cambodia, authorities said. A spokesman for Hatfield said "they threatened the ship as a war protest."

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said Monday that "we're not charging anyone with mutiny. I want to be clear on that."

The freighter with its cargo of 34,000 tons of bombs was bound for Thailand when it was diverted to Cambodia over the weekend. The vessel is currently anchored about six miles off Si-hanoukville in the Gulf of Siam in the South China Sea.

All but three members of the crew have been taken ashore and appeared in good condition, authorities said. The three re-

Temporary Unit To Be Replaced

The replacement of the third temporary unit at Rose High school was authorized by the Board of Education last night.

This is part of the earlier approved long range plans for which the old metal buildings at the rear of Rose High are being replaced with permanent brick ones.

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of Greenville City Schools, pointed out this building has been funded in previous commitments.

In other regular agenda items considered last night, a decision was reached to have the Board Finance Committee meet with members of the Pitt County School board to discuss interchange of students between city and county schools.

This matter came up for discussion as a result of a memorandum from Arthur S. Alford superintendent of Pitt County Schools concerning the fact that 315 students who live in the Greenville District, but who attend county schools, are not paying tuition, whereas 87 students who are residing in the county and attending city schools are paying $60 per year in tuition to the city schools.

Break-Down

Delivery of The Daily Reflector was delayed yesterday because of a break-down in the electronics equipment which controls the Goss Urbanite press.

The Daily Reflector was printed on the Wilson Daily Times press late yesterday afternoon and the papers were brought back to Greenville around 8 o'clock last night.

A company technician arrived last night to repair the equipment and The Daily Reflector was scheduled to be printed on its own press today.

Yesterday's break-down occurred after around 2,500 of the 12,000 press run had been completed.

'Unprecedented Approach' Public's Views On Plans For Junior High School Solicited

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

An unprecedented approach to solicit public views on future plans for the city's junior high school was adopted by the Greenville Board of Education last night.

Harding Sugg, making the motion to set forth before the public three basic alternatives to be considered by the board for a junior high school plan for the 1970-71 school year, commented: "This is one time I call on, beg, plead and urge the citizens of Greenville to give us their views and preferences on the alternatives before the board."

"Not only individuals, but civic groups, agencies, PTAs, church groups and anyone interested in the welfare of our children should join in giving us their ideas," Sugg continued. Individuals and groups are asked to send their comments to the City School Office, 431 West Fifth Street, Greenville.

The three alternatives, from which the 1970-71 school plan for the junior high will most likely be selected, are:

1. Operation of two junior high schools. Aycock as it presently stands without additions, and operation of a restored, remodeled Eppes High School. In this case, there would further be freedom of choice or the matter of geographical zoning for attendance at junior high.

2. Operation of two junior high schools — Aycock as it now stands, with South Greenville becoming a second junior high school; again with either a freedom of choice or geographical zoning to determine attendance at one of the two junior high schools.

3. Aycock Junior High School as a single junior high school for the city, with necessary additions (mobile units, etc.) and additional busing to take care of transporting students to one school.

Immediately following adoption of the Sugg plan for public participation in voicing a choice of plan, board member Mrs. Robert Kittrell made a motion, which was approved, and which would broaden efforts to solicit public views.

Mrs. Kittrell's motion was to have the school administrative offices prepare and send to parents of all school children, grades one through 12, and to all teachers in the city schools, brief questionnaires on the same three alternatives.

These forms would be brought by the pupil back to their classrooms and combined with those of teachers, be presented, along with other written expressions of viewpoints on choices, to a special meeting of the school board.

The special meeting, to be held on March 31, will take into consideration the compilation of views gathered on this matter from the public by the two-fold means of canvassing.

Dr. Badger Clark asked that emphasis be given to the public that any plan approved by the school board for the 1970-71 did not give the viewpoint that such a plan would carry the suggestion that this would be a permanent solution.

"Sooner or later we all must realize that we don't have a black and a white community, but one community. We must think eventually in terms of another junior high school, in the western part of town."

School board members also voiced a consensus that although these expressions of public preferences would be seriously considered, the school board must make the final approval of a plan which in their opinion will best serve all the children in the city.

The decision to adopt the public approach came after diligent discussions of various other plans, none of which were acceptable to the majority of the school board members.

The idea of seeking public expression of viewpoints came into play early in the meeting and gained momentum as different members expressed the same thought from different angles.

"My idea is that we make plans, lay them before the public and call for a reaction," Sugg stated.

"I'm for making a decision after giving the public an opportunity to tell us what they think," was one of Dr. Clark's early statements on the subject. "I want one public hearing on this, in some form," Dr. James Bearden remarked soon after the junior high subject came up for discussion. Later he remarked, "I don't want to vote without knowing something of how the public feels about these plans."

In the discussions, findings of the Citizens Awareness Committee were mentioned. "So much of anything we do in these times hinges on public acceptance," Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of the City Schools, stated. "We need in some way to carry our plans before the public to create an air of public acceptance."

Chairman of the Board of Education Dr. E.B. Aycock cast the deciding vote against a motion made by Dr. James Bearden to request an additional extension of time in order for the board to reply to the case now before the district court against the City Board of Education.

Dr. Bearden's motion was "to ask for an additional 20 to 25 days to be granted by the court, in addition to the five days already granted, in order to make a reply."

The vote was three for and three against when Dr. Aycock cast his "no" vote, ending the deadlock. Two members, Leroy James, attending a meeting in Raleigh; and Mrs. Lucille Gorham, who has a member of her immediate family critically ill, were not present for last night's regular monthly meeting.

City Attorney W.W. Speight, assisted by Attorney William Brewer, Jr., stated their opinion, recommending that the Board of Education expedite their reply in the court case in order to get an early, clear cut decision which will permit the board to proceed with firm plans for the next school year.

"It is my opinion," Speight told the board members, "that you will get a quicker decision, a more permanent decision, if the district court rules on the matter."

Speight outlined the complexities which can conceivably be involved in a final outcome from the HEW hearing procedure. "After the final hearing from the examiner (due within 2-3 weeks), there is a 20 day period before an appeal by HEW or the city board can be entered to the Board of Review. From there it goes to a three member panel appointed by the Secretary of HEW. This panel is granted a reasonable time before making a decision which then goes back to the HEW Secretary."

When this stage is reached, Speight explained, "The HEW Secretary then has 20 days to approve or disapprove the decision. If a decision is reached that the Greenville Board of Education has not applied guidelines of HEW, the HEW Secretary must then submit his recommendation to a Congressional committee that federal funds be cut off."

"After 30 days of consideration before a Congressional committee, the Secretary can then authorize a cut off of federal funds, unless we appeal to a federal court."

Under these circumstances, Speight stated he feels the matter of action by the Board of Education in expediting a reply to the present court case is a twofold one.

"If we have a plan of desegregation which we can ask the court to expedite action on, this will have the advantage of quicker action and thus give the school board time to make plans for next fall. As a second point, if we obtain a final court order, and the board agrees to comply with that order, there will be no

S. Vietnamese Artillery Fire Helps Cambodia

By PETER ARNETT

CHAU DOC, Vietnam (AP) — Cambodian troops tried to drive a Viet Cong battalion back across the border into South Vietnam Sunday and Monday and called in South Vietnamese artillery fire to help, highly reliable informants reported today.

A Cambodian officer was in radio contact with the chief of South Vietnam's An Phu District, adjoining Cambodia, during the entire operation, these informants said. The officer directed 105mm artillery fire from the district's guns onto both sides of the border where the Viet Cong were moving.

American officials said it was the first time they saw Cambodians and South Vietnamese working together openly against the Viet Cong.

This Cambodian military operation was the second known to have been launched Sunday against Viet Cong and north Vietnamese forces which the Cambodian government had ordered to quit its territory by dawn Sunday.

For four hours before the deadline a Cambodian battalion exchanged fire with infantrymen guarding the base of the North Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division around Nui O Mountain inside Cambodia.

South Vietnamese forces were not called in then, but their aid was sought later Sunday when an estimated five companies of Cambodian infantry reportedly began pushing south toward the An Phu District, which thrusts into Cambodia along the Mekong River like a finger.

Referendum Is Approved For Pitt Tech Program

Pitt County Commissioners have approved a request from the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Technical Institute to call a referendum vote on the question of funding a proposed Pitt Community College and Technical Institute with a maximum seven-cents per $100 valuation levy.

Commissioners approved the resolution calling for the referendum at a special meeting and set May 2 as the date for the vote. May 2 is also the date for the regular primary election.

The county commissioners approved the referendum in an announced meeting Friday night. However it was not revealed until The Daily Reflector made inquiries today.

County attorney W.W. Speight explained that the vote is being held since the North Carolina Attorney General ruled a vote would be required.

Speight said PITI was established and financial support authorized as a technical institute.

"Now when a community college and technical institute is to be established, it is necessary to have a vote of the people," the attorney explained.

County auditor Reginal Grey explained that, at present, there is no ceiling on the amount that can be levied for support of PITI.

The proposed referendum would set a maximum levy of seven cents per $100 valuation. Grey noted that the maximum amount that has been levied by Commissioners for support of PITI in the past was 6.4 cents levied for the 1964 tax year.

The 1968-69 levy was 5.9 cents per hundred, Grey said.

Based on the same valuation, Grey explained that a 5.9 cents levy would yield $114,000 while the proposed seven cents maximum would yield approximately $135,000.

In effect, the May 3 vote is on whether to make PITI a community college.

If the vote is favorable, PITI will become Pitt Community College and Technical Institute and can be financed by a maximum seven cents per $100 levy. If the vote is unfavorable, PITI will still operate only as a technical institute without a ceiling on what can be levied.

The Nixon administration does not intend to take disarmament action by itself though it is prepared to do so through agreement with the Soviet Union. Roger rejected suggestions that deployment of highly sophisticated new nuclear missile warheads would set back the strategic arms limitation talks scheduled to be resumed in April.

The Cold War between the two great nuclear powers may be ending in Europe but that does not mean that competition between them will come to an end soon. On the contrary, Rogers thought the competition would continue for a long time.

U.S. To Reduce NATO Burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today "We are carrying more than our share" of the burden of NATO defenses in Europe and will give serious consideration next year to a cut-back in U.S. troops there.

Responding to questions on NBC's Today Show, Rogers told interviewers the future of U.S. North Atlantic Treaty Organization troop contingent is under review but the level will remain the same until mid-1971.

"I think we are carrying more than our share of the burden," he said.

In the middle of next year, he declared, "We will give serious consideration to some reduction."

'Nashville Sound' Has Been Broadening

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — He's a quiet, sensitive, young man—only 5 foot 7, but a giant in talent. He's a master pianist and organist, who is also at ease playing vibes, French horn or guitar.

He comes alive, somehow, when he walks through the doors of one of Nashville's recording studios. His friends are there—rapping about a new single by Johnny Cash, a new Vietnam story, a new store where leather vests can be found.

He is what is known as a session musician—unknown to the public, but the core of the Nashville Sound.

The producer, Larry Butler, still on the front side of 28, talks casually with the musicians assembled for this master recording session—the drummer, the steel guitarist, the rhythm guitarists, the pianist, the bass player and the singer.

The producer says, "All right, let's get it together." With a flick of a switch, the "demo" a demonstration recording, is played and the musicians write down chord changes—not in the keys of C, F or E, but in numbers—1, 4 minor or 7 flat.

Returning to their posts at their instruments, the session musicians, most of whom don't read music, go through the song, "Set Me Free." After two run-throughs, the producer and engineer disappear behind the glass of the master control room.

"Let's make it a hit, man," Butler booms over the microphone, and the red light goes on. Ferlin Husky begins singing. It blends, it's smooth.

The session musicians, Ron Oates, 29, a native of Fayetteville, N.C., says the successful blend—known as the Nashville Sound, is "basically a rhythm section formula. It's a combination of all of the studio musicians thinking the same way about things, but at the same time, expressing their individuality."

"It's a feeling, man," Oates is one of 1,400 musicians in Nashville, but he is also one of the luckier ones. He averages between 12 and 15 sessions—either "demos" of masters—a week. And it's a lucrative business, if you're a master. The musician gets $86 per three-hour session and double that if he is a session leader. But it's tough competition.

The session musicians and some 400 "artists in residence" around Nashville, work at one of the city's 40 recording studios.

The studios can produce everything. They range all the way from the labeled giants at Columbia and RCA, big independents like Woodland Sound and Jack Clement Sound to the small but respected Cinderella Sound, a converted suburban garage where a revolutionary music group called Area Code 615 makes what many consider to be the recordings of tomorrow.

During the past 10 years, the scope of Nashville-styled music has broadened to encompass almost any mood of the American people. It ranges from Merle Haggard's "Okie from Muskogee" to Kris Kristofferson's "Sunday Mornin' Coming Down" to Guy Drake's "Well-fare Cadillac."

The giants—Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, the Mother Earth, Perry Como—come to Nashville to sing their different music within a few miles of, and sometimes at the same microphones, where Chet Atkins, reputed to have invented Nashville Sound, Roy Acuff, Boots Randolph and other "old-timers" still record after more than a decade.

The core of Nashville's appeal is the country music sound and the never-ending search for new material that it can handle in a new way.

Cecil Whaley, public relations director of the Country Music Association, says that nearly 52 per cent of all recorded music in the United States is put on tape in Nashville studios. About about 50 per cent of all music cut in Nashville is country music.

Working with the record companies and studios are numerous talent agencies, 400 publishing houses, 900 songwriters and some 400 artists ranging from Eddy Arnold to the unknown "picker and singer."

By conservative estimates the country music business in Nashville alone is a $200-million yearly industry.

It all springs, basically, from a single radio show—WSM's "Grand Ole Opry"—which began in 1925 as an impromptu show with a spur of the moment name.

On a Saturday night, after a broadcast of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, George D. Hay—the station's first program director—took the mike to say: "You've just been listening to music largely from Grand Opera. However, from here on out for the next three hours we will present nothing but realism. It will be down to earth for the 'earthy.' From now on we will present 'the Grand Ole Opry.'" The name stuck. After a decade of increasingly successful syndication of half-hour country music television shows featuring such performers as Bill Anderson, Porter Wagoner and Dolly Parton, and the Wilburn Brothers, two of the three major networks decided to try Nashville.

CBS-TV picked two West Coast country music stars, Buck Owens and Roy Clark, to cohost a montage of serious country music and the corniest country comedy brought off by a bevy of Nashville performers. The show is "Hee Haw."

ABC-TV chose Johnny Cash to headline a much different kind of show. Cash, a veteran and long-popular country singer, rose to sudden and unprecedented heights as a popular star with his live recording of a rough-talking, gut-singing performance in California's Folsom Prison.

Gourmet Corner: Russian Soups Are Not Skimpy

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

A country so vast that it stretches 7,000 miles between its eastern and western borders is bound to have a wide variety of foods.

The Soviet larder runs the gamut from the haute cuisine of modern Europe to the culinary delights of ancient Persia and the Ottoman Empire.

Russian eating habits never have ceased to astound foreigners. In the days of the czars, rich landowners often bemused their guests with 50 dishes at a single meal. Winston Churchill, on a visit to the Kremlin during World War II, sat in open awe while Joseph Stalin topped off an evening carousing by devouring a whole roast pig.

Ivan the Terrible may have been a far cry from an ideal ruler, but there was nothing niggardly about his ability as a host. One European told of an evening at Ivan's court when 300 nobles sat down to a banquet featuring such dainties as roast peacock, spiced swan, crane seasoned with ginger, loin of bear and saddle of reindeer.

Peter the Great combined the taste of an epicure with the voracity of a starving serf.

An average supper for Peter consisted of soup containing four varieties of cabbage followed by such incongruities as gruel, pig with sour cream sauce, lamprey eels, salted meat, ham and limburg cheese. The ruler washed down this conglomeration with a flood of beverages ranging from a sour beer called quass to vintage Burgundy.

The lavish days of the czars are gone, but the Russians are still prodigious eaters—and drinkers. Instead of imbibing cocktails, they usually precede a meal with several belts of vodka. And belt is the word—the Russians never were sippers. It may be the colorless, odorless liquor known in the West. Or it might be zubrovka, a yellowish, herb-flavored vodka, or gorilka which boasts a pod of red pepper in the bottom of each bottle and after a few months takes on the aspects of an active volcano. We tried gorilka in odessa more than 20 years ago and still wince at the memory.

The Russian meal, whether it be at the home of a top commissar or a tractor driver, invariably leads off with soup. There is hearty sauerkraut soup, spicy pickle and kidney soup and an epicurean creation of sliced sturgeon and dry white wine.

And there are the countless varieties of borsch, any of which would serve as an entire meal at most American tables.

Here are two Russian soups at either end of the spectrum: Ukrainian Borsch which one might find in a workers' kitchen and an exotic combination of champagne and salmon steak which one would associate with the fancier hotels in Moscow.

UKRAINIAN BORSCH

- 2 pounds bottom round trimmed (beef)
- 6 strips bacon cooked to crisp point
- 1½ pints condensed consomme
- 1 bay leaf
- 6 peppercorns
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 bunch parsley chopped
- 1 carrot diced
- 1 stalk celery diced
- 1 leek cut up in small pieces
- 8 medium-sized beets
- 1 cup shredded cabbage
- 2 large onions chopped
- 3 large potatoes peeled and halved
- 1 medium size can tomato puree
- 1 cup cooked navy beans
- 1 tablespoon wine vinegar
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 5 frankfurters sliced
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 pint dairy sour cream

Place soup meat and bacon in deep pan and cover with 1½ pints condensed consomme and 1½ pints water. Bring to boil and cook for half hour. Skim off fat from surface and add bay leaf, peppercorns, garlic, parsley, carrot, celery and leek. Cover pan and simmer for two hours.

Cook seven of the beets unpeeled in the soup. Peel remaining beet and grate. Mix with three tablespoons water and hold mixture for coloring. When the other beets are tender, peel and dice. Add to soup with cabbage, onions and potatoes. Add tomato puree, navy beans, vinegar and sugar. Cook for 45 minutes longer.

Skim off remaining fat, cut meat into serving chunks. Twenty minutes before serving add frankfurters. Thicken soup with flour browned in butter and bring to a boil stirring steadily. Add juice from grated beet and water for coloring. Serve hot in soup bowls. Garnish with sour cream. If desired, meat can be placed in side dishes. Makes about three quarts.

CHAMPAGNE SALMON SOUP

- 2 pounds salmon cut into 1 inch steaks (6)
- 2½ cups chicken broth
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 stalk celery diced
- 1 large onion diced
- 1 bunch parsley chopped
- 2 tablespoons fresh chopped dill
- salt and pepper to taste
- ¾ cups champagne

Place salmon steaks in a large skillet. Add heated chicken broth, bay leaf, celery, onion. Bring to boil; let bubble for five minutes, then simmer for 20 minutes. Add champagne and again bring to boiling point. Place in a heated tureen, adding parsley dill, salt and pepper. Garnish with lime slices. Serves six.

Reader Says: Don't Marry Jealous Man

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: During my childhood I often caught my mother crying. When I was 14, she told me, "Never marry a jealous man." I paid little attention. In fact, I gave it no thought until I married one myself.

All the signs were there for me to read, but when you're in love you think your love can conquer all. It can't.

When I married, I was a 27-year-old virgin because I wanted to be. Well, as far as my husband was concerned, I could just as well have been a streetwalker. After we were married he said it was impossible for a good looking girl to have married alongside men as I had always done, and remain a virgin. And he insisted no one [not even a doctor] could tell conclusively for sure whether a girl was a virgin or not. I should have said goodbye right then and there, but I had been raised to believe that "divorce" was a disgrace, so I forgave and tried to forget. Then he started to accuse me of every man I had ever known. I thought a "family" would solve everything, so in five years I had two babies.

Nothing changed. You would think that any man in his right mind would know that a 32-year-old woman with two babies and no money to spend on clothes would hardly be the type to run around with men, but he continued to accuse me.

For 22 years I lived in hell, but I won. Both the children have college degrees and have grown up to be worthwhile people. I have kept my mouth shut when the mere effort made my jaws ache.

When the youngest was 21 and established, I walked out on my husband and I "took" him for all I could. Since then, I have put him completely out of my life. I heard recently that he had died. The news [if true] leaves me cold. My "husband" died years ago.

Am I disloyal? I don't think so. I am probably writing this to get it off my chest after all these years. But there is more to it than that.

I didn't pay any attention to my mother when she told me not to marry a jealous man. And maybe nobody will pay any attention to me. But when some innocent little girl wrote to you saying, "I'm glad my fiancé is jealous. It just proves that he 'loves' me," I wanted to scream!

That poor little thing. Little does she know that it proves nothing of the sort. Wait until she finds out. Jealousy has nothing to do with love. It's a sickness. And no amount of patience, sacrifice, giving in or giving up will cure it. I know this is too long for your column, but I just had to have my PEACE AT LAST.

DEAR PEACE: It's long, all right, but I didn't have the heart to cut it. Some people do learn from the mistakes of others. You've paid the "tuition"—perhaps a reader will read this and get by on a "scholarship."

B. V. Payne and Mrs. Harold Geisler with Mrs. Guy Smith Sr. and Mrs. T. R. Cole.

Saturday afternoon winners at Elm Street Recreation Park were:

North-South, Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., first; Mrs. J. M. Horton and Mrs. W. R. Harris, second; Mrs. J. S. Willard and Dr. Graham Davis, third.

East-West included: Dr. and Mrs. George Martin Jr., first; Mrs. L. D. Harris and Mrs. Clifton Toler, second; Mrs.

Dorothy Williams and Mrs. Robert Barnhill, third.

Visitor Happy To Give An 'A'

Alex Barton, professional associate with the National Science Foundation in Washington, D. C., gave a good idea of how others feel about the things being done at East Carolina University recently.

Speaking at the breakfast where the American Credit Corp. Foundation $100,000 gift for a planetarium was announced, Barton assured the local university that its batting average with NSF, which approves grants to colleges and universities, was "very good."

Requests for funds from the foundation are numerous, he noted, and such funds are granted only when an institution shows evidence of growth and potential.

Barton said that there are many swollen institutions in the nation. They have doubled their enrollment and faculty. However, they have not grown.

"From our vantage point, we think East Carolina has grown." He said he had only met Dr. Leo Jenkins that morning, "but I have seen his shadow for some time."

"I am much impressed looking around the campus and seeing the kind of support this institution has been receiving from the state.

"Despite what students might think, teachers enjoy giving an A."

"I have enjoyed coming here and pasting an A on the forehead of East Carolina University," he concluded.

These were high words of praise from an official who is in a position to compare colleges and universities throughout the nation. Apparently East Carolina University's developing science program is doing very well.

We'll Have To Make Up Blood Shortages

The Bloodmobile is running 300 pints behind in its annual blood collections for Pitt County and this is obviously going to have to be made up if the program is to continue.

The Bloodmobile will be at the Community Building in Ayden tomorrow from 11:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. in a visit being sponsored by the Ayden Rescue Squad and the Ayden Jaycees.

Thursday it will be at the Moose lodge from 10:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. with the visit sponsored by the Moose. The quota for each visit will be 165 pints.

It is important that the quotas be met and some progress made on cutting the deficit, since it can be very difficult to make up the quota late in the year. Everyone who is able should pledge now to visit the Bloodmobile Wednesday or Thursday to donate blood.

Would Remove Racist Image

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When President Nixon called in a select assortment of intellectuals recently for a cozy chat at the White House, he was promptly confronted with this embarrassing recommendation: withdraw the nomination of G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court.

That advice and the fact that the President, of course, has no intention of following it symbolize the gap on the race question between the President and the intellectuals. Although his White House conversation with the intellectuals was quite amiable, the racial gap was painfully evident throughout it.

The meeting was set up by Presidential counselor Daniel P. Moynihan, himself on leave from Harvard. Among the intellectuals invited were Harvard sociologist David Riesman (author of "The Lonely Crowd"), Columbia political scientist Charles Hamilton (co-author with Stokely Carmichael of "Black Power"), Berkeley political scientist Aaron Wildavsky, and Harvard urbanologist James Q. Wilson.

While their discussion rambled all over domestic policy, race was the central topic. Moynihan's now famous memorandum urging "benign neglect" for the racial question did not leak into print until the next day, but present in the minds of the intellectuals was the White House firing of school desegregation chief Leon Panetta.

President Nixon asked his guests whether his Administration has a racist image. The answer was yes. Mr. Nixon invited suggestions on how to improve it. One intellectual asked him to withdraw Judge Carswell's nomination from consideration, and another concurred. There was no reply.

The President denied he was seeking political capital from the race issue. While opposing compulsory busing, he asserted, the Administration is filing many school desegregation suits.

To demonstrate there is little political gain in the issue, Mr. Nixon pointed to his Philadelphia Plan to force hiring of Negroes in construction work. While undermining the considerable Republican support in the building, trades unions, he said, it has given him no credit among Negroes. Similarly, a story in that morning's newspaper of fewer blacks in top government jobs was exactly contrary to the facts, the President added.

Some of the intellectuals were surprised that Mr. Nixon sees himself well to the left of the country at large. They got the impression he can move significantly to the right and still feel himself in the mainstream.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr., top domestic aide in the LBJ White House, is also at the top of Lawrence F. O'Brien's talent hunt for the Democratic National Committee.

O'Brien, who took over as National Chairman with no promises to party leaders, is searching (in the words of an aide) "for a bright young cadre of political activists."

Califano, a partner in the high-priced Washington law firm of Arnold and Porter, is almost certain to be one of them.

Califano and O'Brien were close friends in the Johnson administration. The 38-year-old native of Brooklyn then had no strong ideological overtones but has moved leftward since leaving office.

O'Brien also plans a major role for a longtime Hubert Humphrey aide: John Stewart, staff director of the Democratic Policy Council, headed by Humphrey. Stewart may be given a more active job inside the National Committee in addition to running the council which could be de-emphasized.

Strength For Today

SUNSHINE

How can we get the best out of life? There is, of course, no answer to that question which can be said to fit everybody.

A clear conscience is probably the most important factor in the living of a happy and satisfactory life. The next is a spirit of kindness, beginning in the home, going to the office, establishing itself at the discussion table, and finally lining up with the mourners on the day the undertaker steps into the picture.

Then let us never forget that we are about as happy as we make up our minds to be. Some people actually like to spend their lives griping about injustice, scolding their contemporaries because they are so stupid, declaring that the world is going to the dogs and declaring further that everything will soon be over for all of us. Wake up,

Brother, and get down your history book for an evening of reading. The world has always been in a mess and probably always will be. The hopeful thing is that as a matter of fact the world does get a little better with the passing of time. Would you have liked to have lived a thousand years ago? Things may be bad now, but they were even worse in those far distant years.

There are hungry people in the world — help feed them. There are lonely people in the world — drop in on them and pass the time of day. There are sick people who probably will not last much longer — try to lighten up the sick room with a few smiles and some gracious conversation (but don't stay too long).

Walk on the sunny side of the street.

That Impetuous Senate

There was a time, though it is getting harder and harder to recall it, when the United States Senate served as a sober brake upon the reckless driving of the House. The Senate was the upper chamber; its members were older; and because of their six-year terms, they were not so vulnerable to the voters' passing fancies. The House might be ruled by impetuous youths; the Senate would restrain them.

No more. In its top-down dash to achieve 18-year-old voting by simple statute, rather than by constitutional amendment, the Senate is careening down the legislative highway with 500 horses, dual carbs, racing stripes, and an air scoop on the hood. This is the Senate? The chamber looks more like a Cub Scout den, voting on when to eat the weenies.

This impetuous misadventure becomes all the more bizarre when one looks at some of the drivers. Barry Goldwater! That old States' rights! And Dominick of Colorado! He is one of the soundest conservatives in the body. Boggs of Delaware! More than 60 members — maybe 70 — are prepared to run this doubtful piece of legislation into law. What has come over the Senate?

From time immemorial, the fixing of a minimum age for voting has been regarded as a matter plainly within the reserved powers of the States. The notion that the Fourteenth Amendment vests such authority in the Congress would stagger the sensibilities of those who framed and ratified that amendment a hundred-odd years ago.

Indeed, the forgotten second section of the Fourteenth Amendment implicitly recognizes 21 as the accepted minimum age for voting. This section provides for a reduction in a State's representation in Congress if the State denies the vote "to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being 21 years of age." Everything in our constitutional history confirms the rule that age is one of those "qualifications requisite for electors" that each State may decide on its own.

It is not necessary to look back to Reconstruction days. Over the past 30 years, more than a score of States have exercised what they understand to be their exclusive power in this field. Georgia went to 18-year-old voting in 1943, Kentucky in 1955. Alaskans now vote at 19, Hawaiians at 20.

Through the old-fashioned devices of referendum, the people steadily are making their wishes known. Oklahoma rejected the 18-year-old idea as far back as 1952. South Dakota said no in 1958. Idaho rejected a 19-year-old minimum in 1960. Within the past two years, voters in Hawaii, Michigan, New Jersey and Tennessee have refused to accept the 18-year-old proposition, and voters in Maryland, Nebraska, North Dakota and Ohio have said no to nineteen.

Does all this make no impression on the Senate? Eleven other States have scheduled referendum this year on a lower age for voting. The (Continued On Page 5)

Public Forum

To The Editors,

It was my extreme pleasure to have made a recent visit to Greenville at the Solar Eclipse Conference held at East Carolina University last weekend. Before the Mood slips by, I should like to say a few thoughts that have come to mind relative to my experiences and impressions gained.

The first thought is why I continue to live in the kind of climate I came home to. People talk of the marvel of the theatre of the seasons and I understand what they say but now I cannot understand the reason they would brag about it in the first place. Unless it is to impress other people of the 'cross' they have to bear to undergo the winter season here.

The people we met at the motel, restaurants and school were all, without exception, so very helpful and friendly that it made a deep impression on both my wife and myself. The scenery was like a breath of fresh air to us snow laden people. The sight of the tobacco plants having been started so soon (to us) in the year, before the Vernal Equinox, in fact, made me realize how very late in the season it is before we have any sort of chance to get seed in the ground.

All I can say is that I hope you people meet with as nice an overall treatment in our part of the country when you visit hereabouts as we found all over your very fair city of Greenville. There are many times that it is a bit on the embarrassing side to see how some of the locals treat visitors when it is so unnecessary.

In any event, when I am in need of an older car to work on (as a hobby of mine) I know where I'm going to go to look for it.

Price Deflation Is Still Afar

By ELMER ROESSNER

It has been pointed out here and elsewhere that despite the war on inflation prices and wages keep on inflating. This is eminently true. But as a judgment on the effects of tight money it is premature. Looking back to the Depression that followed the stock market crash of 1929, it will be seen that many prices continued to rise long afterwards.

The consumer price index, 1938-39 base) averaged 122.5 in 1929 but was 119.4 in 1930. It was 108.7 in 1931, and did not drop below 100 until 1932, when it was 97.6. It reached a low of 92.4 in 1933, four years after the deflation of the stock market, and then turned up.

This suggests that if the present federal management's drive to curb inflation is successful, the effects on prices may be long in being felt.

Other Look - Ahead

Here are developments that may be expected in business in the nearer future: Expect a Civil Aeronautics Board crackdown on illegal plane charters on the East Coast. The CAB has brought charges against 5 carriers, 8 travel agents, 15 organizations and 17 individuals on the West Coast and is known to be investigating operations in the East.

Expect other banks to follow the Band of America's action in reducing "points," or extra charges, on home mortgages. But it will not kindle a housing boom. The cuts amount to only $200 on a $20,000 mortgage.

Expect new, tougher rules on the flammability of bedding. The Department of Commerce has been investigating and may find that burning bedding has been involved in one out of four residential fires. Expect also tougher rules on the flammability of carpets and children's wear.

Expect consumer and Congressional reaction to that Idaho "potato bake," in which millions of pounds of potatoes have been burned to create a shortage and thereby boost prices. With millions of people in the world underfed, it may provoke boycotts.

What It Is To Be Irish

EDITOR'S NOTE—Why do the Irish act the way they do on St. Patrick's Day? An explanatory column by Hal Boyle, written in 1953, later became a scrapbook favorite and a popular greeting card. It is here presented again to a new generation of Irish admirers—or detractors.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — What is it to be Irish?

On 364 days of the year being Irish isn't visibly different from being Scotch, French, Italian, Jewish, Serbian, Dutch, or—yes, even English.

The Irishman pays his bills, complains against his taxes, does his work, and listens to his wife like the man of any other race.

But on this one day of the year—holy St. Patrick's Day—the Irishman becomes an IRISHMAN.

And on this day you have to be Irish to know what it is to be Irish.

The outer signs, of course, can be seen by all. The Irishman overnight grows a foot taller and stalks the earth a giant. All traffic lights turn green before him, and if they don't, he sees red.

But this air of majesty is only token evidence of interior change. The men of other races who envy the Irishman his bearing on St. Patrick's Day would envy him far more if they could look inside the Irishman's soul.

What is it to be Irish?

How can you put the wonder of it into words? If a psychiatrist stretched himself out on his own warm couch after his last customer had gone home, and he dreamed of the man he himself would most like to be—well, he might be perfect, but he'd still be only half an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to have an angel in your mouth, turning your prose to poetry. It is to have the gift of tongues, to know the language of all living things. Does an Irishman pause and turn an ear to a tree? It is because on this day he wants to hear what one sleepy bud says to another as it opens its pale green hands to the warm sun of spring.

What is it to be Irish?

Oh, on this day it is music. Not just the cornet in the parading high school band, but the deep music of living, the low, sad rhythms of eternity. The Irishman hears the high song of the turning spheres. The dim lullaby of the worm in its cocoon. All the world is in tune, and he is in step with the tune, the tune that only he can hear.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to live the whole history of his race between a dawn and a dawn—the long wrongs, the bird-swift joys, the endless hurt of his ancestors since the morning of time in a forgotten forest, the knock-at-the-heart that is part of his religion.

What is it to be Irish?

It isn't only the realization that he is descended from kings. It is the realization that he is a king himself, an empire on two feet striding in power, a strolling continent of awe.

What is it to be Irish?

Why, on St. Patrick's Day, to be Irish is to know more glory, adventure, magic, victory, exultation, gratitude and gladness than any other man can experience in a lifetime.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to be in complete mystical understanding with God for 24 wonderful hours.

U.S. Refusal To Aid Laos Not New Policy: Rogers

A NEW LOOK... Highway Patrol cars now being issued to North Carolina's more than 900 Troopers have a new look and a new sound. The old type blue light and sirens are being replaced by a new revolving beacon with greater light intensity, while the mechanical sirens are being replaced with electronic sirens (with speakers in the base of the new blue lights). The same speaker which projects the siren sound can also be used by the officers to monitor their radios while out of their cars on the highways. Troop A commander, Capt. R.F. Williamson said 65 of the newly equipped new cars have already been placed in service in the 24 counties of Troop A. The troop has 114 cars, the officer said, and the remaining portion of the fleet will be replaced with new vehicles in the near future. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Committee received $40,000 in sustaining party memberships on the three working days following O'Brien's installation, in contrast to a $4,500 daily high for the previous several months.

Robert Strauss, the party's new national treasurer, is eyeing $75,000 to $100,000 a month in sustaining memberships — enough for operating expenses (compared to 1969, when the committee added $1 million in red ink to its now $9 million-plus debt). In contrast to his part-time predecessors, Texas Strauss is treating the treasurer's post as a full-time job.

Nobody could have been more surprised at President Nixon's appointment of Robert Mardian as staff chief of Vice President Agnew's Cabinet committee on school desegregation than Mardian's erstwhile colleagues at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Imposed by the White House a year ago on Secretary Robert Finch as Hew's general counsel, Mardian was a hard-line conservative in the Nixon administration's most liberal department and was slowly edged out of decision-making. Mardian let it be known at HEW he would quit soon and return to law practice in California. HEW officials had not been consulted when Mardian, to their amazement, was put in charge of the new committee. Mardian, who maintains intimate contacts with Southern Republican leaders, in his new job further subverts fading desegregation efforts at HEW.

God And Country Award For Scout

Eagle Scout Paul Vernon, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Vernon of Greenville, received the God and Country Award during ceremonies at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday.

Vernon earned the award after completing a minister - director program of study, action and service in the church. Rev. Richard R. Gammon made the presentation.

most elementary principles of comity and federalism suggest that Congress wait upon these expressions from the States. No hearings have been held in committee. What's the mad rush? Where's the fire?

On the merits of 18-year-old voting, to be sure, Goldwater and his bedfellows make a persuasive case. It does seem absurd, when you think about it, to cling to an age limit derived, if I am correctly informed, from 18th Century laws of inheritance. Eighty per cent of today's 18-year-olds are high-school graduates. They work, pay taxes, drive automobiles. Nearly a million young men, 18 to 21, are serving in the armed forces. Eighteen-year-olds are tried in our courts as adults. The proposition is plausible that 18-year-olds should have a right to vote. I have nothing against it beyond my politically misanthropic instincts which tell me, here and elsewhere, the less democracy the better.

But there are right ways and wrong ways of seeking change. If two-thirds of the Senators are so confident of their judgment, why don't they whip up a constitutional amendment, abide by the speed limits, and stop this drag-racing around with the law of our land?

Lectured At Raleigh Meet

Minister of New York, D. J. Thomas presented the lecture at the Sunday session of Jehovah's Witnesses held in Raleigh. The lecture was the climax of a three-day circuit convention in eastern North Carolina and was attended by the local congregation.

C. L. Corey, resident minister of the local congregation, said that several witnesses from this area assisted in some of the convention's 23 departments.

Meetings at the Kingdom Hall will resume as usual this week.

On Dean's List At Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM — One student from Greenville and one from Winterville have qualified for the first semester dean's list at Wake Forest University.

The students are Martha Elizabeth Daniel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Daniel of 227 Orton Dr., Greenville, and Richard Earl Worthington Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Worthington of Winterville.

Miss Daniel is majoring in history and Worthington is majoring in psychology. Both are juniors.

PAUL VERNON

Reverent.

All Scouts strive to show reverence by being faithful in their religious duties. Some, however, pursue a program under the direction of a minister, as Vernon did in achieving his award.

In earning the God and Country emblem, the Scout is not receiving a scouting recognition. Rather, it is a religious emblem conferred on a Scout by his church for meritorious effort in religious activities.

Young Vernon's efforts were carried out over a period of 16 months.

Prior to earning the God and Country Award, Vernon has been recognized with the Bronze Palm for work beyond the coveted Eagle Award. He is a member of Troop 205, sponsored by Memorial Baptist Church.

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers' secret testimony that the administration has no present plans to prevent any Communist invasion of Laos with U.S. ground combat forces is not a new declaration of American policy, a State Department source says.

Rogers' testimony, in which he said "We have no present plans if it (Laos) is overrun to use combat troops," was made public Monday by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, at the request of several committee members.

Rogers testified before the committee in executive session March 3. References to his testimony came up Monday as committee members quizzed Undersecretary of State Elliott Richardson on U.S. Laotian policy in an open session.

The State Department source, who adopted the background policy of speaking without attribution and without direct quotation, said Rogers' statement, taken in context of his testimony, did not signal a new U.S. policy in the Southeast Asian nation.

Rather, the source said, Rogers merely sought to reassure the committee there are no plans at present to commit U.S. ground troops to Laos.

The Rogers testimony as read into the committee record by Fulbright:

"Well, we have no present plans if it is overrun to use combat troops (in Laos). Now whether we would—I don't want to say that we would never think about it. But there are no present plans of that kind."

The parenthetical reference to Laos was added by the committee.

The senators also released a bit of Rogers' earlier testimony in which he appeared to commit the administration to seeking advance approval before putting U.S. troops in Laos. Under questioning from the committee, Richardson said Rogers had meant consultation with Congress rather than a request for a resolution to authorize troop use.

The State Department source said that, despite some confusion about Richardson's testimony later, both the undersecretary and Rogers meant the administration would consult with Congress but did not feel affirmative congressional action to be required.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield warned that U.S. operations in Laos follow "a familiar pattern, akin to that which drove us ever deeper into Vietnam."

Because of that pattern, Mansfield said, both Democrats and Republicans have hoisted warning flags in the Senate.

"... The Senate senses that it is vital to the future of this nation... that what transpired in Vietnam not be repeated in Laos," the Montana Democrat said. "Unless this bleeding of men and resources can be halted now, where on the Asian mainland does it end? What lies beyond Laos? Thailand? Cambodia? China?"

Mansfield discussed the Laotian conflict in a speech prepared for the convention of the American paper industry in New York.

He called on the Nixon administration to renew efforts to reach a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war. A major step would be to name a replacement for Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. negotiator who resigned.

Mansfield also renewed his proposal that the Geneva conference on Laos be reconvened, and broadened to cover the situation in all Southeast Asia.

"From the point of view of the interests of this nation, it is time to seek, I believe, the neutralization, not only of Laos, but of all of Indochina and the entire Southeast Asian mainland," Mansfield said.

Richardson told the committee that if there was a signal that meaningful negotiation is possible, a new man would be named to head the U.S. delegation to the Paris peace talks.

He also said, in respect to Laos, total U.S. withdrawal now might lead to the collapse of the neutralist government lead by Prince Souvanna Phouma.

The White House, meanwhile, confirmed a report Monday that more than a dozen Americans died two years ago when Communist troops overran a U.S. base in Laos.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the deaths were included in the less than 50 the administration previously had announced had been killed in Laos since 1962.

Doctor O.K.'s This Hemorrhoid Treatment For N.J. Couple's Son

Treatment Shrinks Piles, Relieves Pain In Most Cases

Wharton, N.J. Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jeffers report: "Our son suffered from hemorrhoids. I asked the doctor about Preparation H and he gave us the O.K. Our son is now fine, thanks to Preparation H!"

(Note: Doctors have proved in most cases — Preparation H® actually shrinks inflamed hemorrhoids. In case after case, the sufferer finds prompt relief from pain, burning and itching. Then swelling is gently reduced.

There's no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like doctor-tested Preparation H. It also lubricates to make bowel movements more comfortable, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.)

Pitt Schools Saw 1.5 Million Meals

RALEIGH — Public schools in Pitt County served 1,572,739 meals to students during the 1968-69 school year while 463,210 meals were served to students in the Greenville City during the same period.

Pitt County served 751,634 free or reduced price meals to needy children during 1968-69. The school unit was reimbursed a total of $214,073.57.

Greenville served 47,652 free or reduced price meals to needy children and was reimbursed a total of $35,955.41. Funds for the reimbursements came from various federal sources, according to Ralph Eaton, director of School Food Services.

"Reimbursement for 1968-69 was variable throughout the State," said Eaton. Schools were reimbursed on the basis of their average daily attendance, the sale price of the meals, the percentage of free and reduced price meals served, the percentage of children participating in the school's food service program, the sale of supplementary food items, and the type of school (junior or senior high, for example).

The reimbursement schedule for 1969-70 has been changed and is based on the percentage of free or reduced price meals served.

Total reimbursement for the State for 1968-69 was more than $14 million. Total school food service funds for this year will exceed those of last year by some $4 and a half million, according to Eaton.

The Florida Keys are made up of a total of 1,000 islands. Only 62 of them are inhabited.

Big Oil Slick Still Spreading

deferral of funds." Speight pointed out that "once a final court order is handed down by the district court and the board of education agrees to abide by such an order, HEW will then be out of the picture." He added, "but HEW will not be out of the picture until that time."

"Should we let nature take its course, or actively seek to secure a decision or plan; to let the court approve or disapprove?" Speight asked. "Otherwise, HEW action could drag on until summer or even later. That is my opinion."

The feeling was expressed that an extension, as asked by Dr. Bearden, would serve to let the board receive the results of the hearing examiner on the HEW case prior to drafting a reply to the court case. "If we can set forth the HEW ruling, would we be in a better position?" Louis W. Gaylord, Jr. asked.

"Not necessarily, we are already in court," Speight replied. "I feel the federal court will expedite a hearing."

"But you are not sure expedited action would result in the case coming before the court within two to three weeks, are you?" Mrs. Robert Kittrell inquired.

"I'm not at all sure," Speight answered. "However, this group that brought action is going to persist in further action on this suit. . . . They are going to push it, and I would like to expedite our reply."

"We have struggled and worked so hard on the plan sent to HEW," Mrs. Kittrell commented, "it would help me make my own decision more quickly if we could first hear from HEW."

Speight explained that even with expeditious action, the board members can still submit their original plan as presented to HEW, or submit the plan ruled on by HEW, or even another plan.

Following the defeat of the motion to seek an additional extension, board member Harding Sugg entered a motion to authorize the city attorney to pursue the matter of making a reply to the court case.

School board members approved the city attorney filing the necessary reply to the district court.

When this is received in the district court, notification will be given to the School Board for the date of hearing on the case pending against the city schools.

Pitt Co-Chairmen For Ass'n Drive

Mrs. Horton Rountree and Mrs. W. Arthur Tripp of Greenville have been named co-chairmen of the Pitt County for the 1970 Roanoke Island Historical Association membership campaign.

The appointment of Mrs. Rountree and Mrs. Tripp was announced by Mrs. Walter B. Jones of Farmville and Washington, D.C., who is general chairman for the campaign.

Memberships in the Association are as follows: regular—$5; sustaining—$10; sponsoring—$25; and patron—$50. Each type of membership entitles the member to one reserved seat ticket for each $5 value of the membership and a free copy of the Lost Colony Benefactor memberships cost $500 and the donor receives two lifetime passes and his name is inscribed on the Benefactors' Panel in the Lost Colony Building. All memberships are tax deductible.

Memberships for corporations and other businesses are available at $100 and entitle the donor to 20 reserved seat tickets on request.

To become a member, contact Mrs. Rountree or Mrs. Tripp at Route 3, Box 605, Greenville, N.C. 27834 or write directly to "The Lost Colony," Box 68, Manteo, N.C. 27954.

Tax Change Slated Raise Booze Price

RALEIGH (AP) — A revised tax formula that will bring liquor price increases of from 5 to 25 cents per bottle has been approved by the Board of Alcoholic Control.

The board noted that under the new formula, local ABC units in North Carolina will collect an estimated $2.3 million in liquor taxes above the $19 million they collected last year.

The new formula was adopted Monday after officials of at least two localities — Greensboro and Mecklenburg County—complained that an "outmoded formula" was forcing them to use their local liquor profits to pay for state tax collections. "In my opinion, this is a very fair formula," commented State ABC Chairman W. Charles Cohoon. "It is as fair and equitable in taxing as we can be."

The new formula is expected to raise prices of lower-priced liquor 5, 10 or 15 cents per bottle, while the cost of more expensive brands will go up as much as 25 cents.

"I don't care how smart you are, I think it's just about impossible to figure out," said one board member, Lawrence Rose of Wilmington, he said he was bewildered by the complex plan even after studying it.

Search Continues For Two Missing Boaters

SWAN QUARTER, N.C. (AP) — The search continued today for two persons reported missing in a boating accident Saturday that resulted in the death of a woman.

Hyde County Sheriff Charlie Cahoon said a tugboat was hailed early Sunday by M. Sgt. H. R. Robinson of the Cherry Point Marines.

Robinson said there had been an accident on the intracoastal waterway near the Wilkerson

Creek bridge. He reported that his wife who was with him was freezing and two others were missing.

A helicopter lifted Robinson and his wife to an Elizabeth City hospital where Mrs. Robinson died soon after arrival, apparently from exposure and over-exertion.

Coast Guard and Marine helicopters and 30 Marines, along with a number of volunteers, conducted an intensive search Sunday and all day Monday for S. Sgt. C. R. Bouch, 36, of Cherry Point and Robinson's 14-year-old stepson, Jacob.

The two were last seen near the bank in what appeared to be knee deep water going for help.

Snowfall In Great Plains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A record snowfall, worth millions to farmers, put a stranglehold on business, schools and traffic in a narrow band from southwestern Kansas into southern Missouri.

The storm was expected to move into western Kentucky and southern Ohio today.

Up to two feet of snow fell on the area across southern Kansas and northern Oklahoma into Missouri and northern Arkansas.

The snowfall came at a time when much of the wheat farming areas across Kansas were beginning to suffer because of a lack of moisture. The Agriculture Department had warned that some parts of the Great Plains were on the brink of one of its most severe droughts in several years.

Peace Groups To March

DURHAM (AP) — Two anti-war groups have announced plans to stage marches in Durham Wednesday in connection with National Antidraft Week.

They are the Duke-Durham Vietnam Moratorium Committee and the Chapel Hill-based United Citizens for Peace.

A spokesman, Donald Olson, said the marches would converge on the Durham Federal Building around 12:30 p.m.

He said a rally and a "silent watch" by five black-robed protesters would be held at the office of the Durham Draft Board in the federal building.

Olson said the group is calling for "the end of the Vietnam war and the draft now."

Impulse Buying And Casual Credit

Impulse buying and its companion, casual credit are the bane of every budget-conscious person's existence. They act like financial termites eating away at the solid core of a budget until the outer shell collapses of its own weight.

Actually there is nothing wrong with either of these practices as long as we are aware of them and the number of times we indulge the habit. You might even call it luxury.

A purchase made on the spur of the moment is usually a luxury. It is an item we didn't anticipate buying. Otherwise, we would have provided for it in our budget. It is something we don't actually need but we overpowered our sales resistance with reasons for needing it and buy it anyway.

There is mute evidence of this weakness in every home. You will find it in the recesses of bureau drawers or the box where the costume jewelry is kept. Some items are so bulky they have to be hidden in the attic or basement.

Casual credit is more serious than impulse buying because of the financial hangover it creates in the form of installment payments. However the tendency to treat credit casually is usually an extension of impulse buying. The only difference being that the purchases are large and more costly. But that doesn't phase the chronic impulse buyer. "It only costs $10 a month or $5 a week," is the usual line of reasoning used to justify the purchase.

However, too many $10 a month or $5 a week, entered into without thoughtful consideration can lead to serious trouble. There were close to 200,000 personal bankruptcies filed in the federal courts by individuals last year. If we were to examine the circumstances which lead to these financial disasters, the casual assumption of credit obligations would be one of the major contributors.

Young-marrieds are most susceptible to impulse buying and the attraction of easy credit. But there is a defense against both. Plainly and simply stated, it is self discipline. Exercising will power with strength of one's determination to plan for expenditures—plan for the future.

The next time you are tempted to make a sizable purchase for "only $10 a month" stop in at your bank and ask one of the men to figure the interest cost on such a purchase.

For ACC Teams, 1971 Could Be Repeat Year

By JIM CLARK
Associated Press Writer

The cry of the disappointed basketball fan in the Atlantic Coast Conference is, "Wait 'til next year." But unless there are some surprising changes, next year shouldn't be much different.

At South Carolina, coach Frank McGuire will have four of his five starters back. All-ACC players John Roche and Tom Owens will be in the starting lineup, along with Tom Riker. The Gamecocks, who had a perfect 14-0 ACC season this and finished fourth in the nation, should have the scoring and rebounding strength next year also.

McGuire says that although the loss of team captain Bobby Cremins will be a tough blow, there are four freshmen ready to compete for his spot in the starting lineup. One, Kevin Joyce of New York, averaged better than 25 points a game on the freshman team and pulled down 15 rebounds a game.

McGuire, along with most of the other ACC coaches, is keeping his eye on Maryland. There, Coach Lefty Driesell, seeking to carry out his promise to make Maryland the "UCLA of the East," will be in his second year.

Driesell will be looking largely to newcomers to do the job.

Jim O'Brien, an All American high school star from Falls Church, Va.; Barry Yates, a transfer student from Nebraska, and Howard White a high school All-American from Hampton, Va., probably will win starting positions.

Returning from this year will be Sparky Still, a 6-5 center.

North Carolina is in for the greatest turnover in players next year. Coach Dean Smith will lose second-team All-American Charlie Scott, and key playmakers Ed Folger and Ed Delaney.

Returning for the Tar Heels will be Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuyck, Lee Dedmon and Steve Previs. The fifth position is wide open with George Karl, a 6-1 guard favored for the spot if he recovers fully from a slipped disc. As a freshman this year he averaged 22 points a game before he was sidelined with the injury. If he can't play, the spot may go to veteran Dale Gipple. In any case, Smith admits that next year the Tar Heels will "be the decided underdog."

North Carolina State loses All-ACC Vann Williford, but will hold onto Paul Coder and Ed Leftwich.

If Leftwich and Coder continue to improve, they could provide a replay of this season, when N. C. State won the ACC championship tournament and finished with a 22-8 record, being ranked 10th in the nation.

Duke, which came on strong the second half of the season, will have the benefit of four returning stars in 6-10 Randy Denton, Dick DeVenzo, Rick Katherman and Larry Saunders.

Coach Bucky Waters should have a good season. It will be his second year at Duke.

Wake Forest, has All-ACC player Charlie Davis coming back, and additional strength from 6-7 center Gil McGregor and 6-3 forward Dickie Walker.

The Deacons blew hot and cold this year, beating North Carolina twice, and Davidson once, only to lose to Virginia Tech.

Virginia has a chance to improve next year and many find itself battling for more than a way out of the ACC second division.

Mike Wilkes, who led the Cavaliers two years ago with a 15.7 average, but sat out this season, will be returning, along with 6-7 Bill Gerry who led the Cavaliers in scoring with 18 points a game.

Clemson, which won just two league games this year, will have a new coach next year, but little chance of moving far from the league cellar.

Coach Bobby Roberts announced earlier this season that he would not return.

Seniors Butch Zatezalo and Richie Mahaffey will not be back either, which apparently means the Tigers will have a long, cold winter.

MONTREAL (AP)—Norris E. Gwin, director of racing and racing secretary of the Detroit Race Course at Livonia, Mich., has been named racing secretary for the 63-day thoroughbred meeting at Blue Bonnets Raceway here. The meeting starts Aug. 8.

Announcement of the appointment of Gwin, a 44-year-old native of Cleveland, was made Monday by S. J. Langill, president of the Mount Royal Jockey Club.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The state collected $10,992,689 in parimutuel revenues from the 52-day spring meeting at Roosevelt Raceway, the N.Y. State Tax Department reported Monday.

St. John's Nips Tech; Army Tops Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP)—Coach Lou Canresecca of St. John's says "patience and perseverance" win basketball games...but it never hurts to have a little something extra in reserve.

St. John's persevered until the final minute, then reserve forward Greg Cluess hit the winning layup with 21 seconds left as the Redmen from New York nipped Georgia Tech 56-55 Monday night in the quarter-finals of the 33rd National Invitation Tournament.

Army turned back Manhattan

77-72 in the first game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader and advanced to a semifinal meeting with St. John's Thursday night.

The other semifinalists will be decided in Tuesday night's LSU-oklahoma and Marquette-Utah matches.

St. John's almost didn't win. The Redmen, who had a 30-23 halftime advantage and controlled the tempo of the contest before 15,132 rowdy fans, had their hands full with Georgia Tech's Rich Yunkus in the second half.

Yunkus scored 23 of his game-high 27 points in a one-man show that kept the Yellow Jackets in the game.

The Yunkus touch almost decked St. John's in the closing, heart-thumping minutes.

The partisan crowd roared its approval when John Devasto delivered a foul shot to give St. John's a one-point lead, 54-53, with 51 seconds left.

Yunkus countered with one of his eye-catching jumpers from the outside. Then, with 21 seconds remaining, Cluess scrambled down court and laid in his killing field goal as St. John's streamers filled the stands.

Army's unyielding defense carried the day for the Cadets, who took a 38-18 halftime lead, then held off Manhattan's inspired second-half comeback.

Henry Seawright helped Manhattan make a game of it in the second half, logging 21 of his game-leading 27 points.

Two foul shots by Brian Mahoney brought the Jaspers to within three points, 70-73, with 30 seconds left in the game. But a breakaway layup by Army's Max Miller with 28 seconds remaining killed Manhattan's upset hopes.

Doug Clevenger's 22 points lead the Cadets.

ABA Strikes Again: Scott

BY TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The young American Basketball Association has made it three in a row, with promises of possible six straight, in its fight with the established National Basketball Association over the recruiting of college seniors.

"We have won the ballgame," said Earl H. Foreman, president of the ABA's Washington Caps. "We're signing the draft choices and they're not."

Foreman made his comments during a news conference Monday in which he announced the signing of Charlie Scott, the two-time second team All American from North Carolina, to a three-year contract.

"He'll be the highest paid professional athlete in Washington," said Foreman, adding Scott will earn more than home-run hitting Frank Howard who reportedly signed with the Washington Senators for $125,000 a year.

Scott thus follows Purdue's Rick Mount and Davidson's Mike Maloy who signed multi-year contracts with the ABA's Indiana and Pittsburgh clubs.

Mount's contract, which reportedly could earn him more than $1 million, allegedly calls for $40,000 for five years, a $20,000 bonus and an investment program starting in 20 years and running for 20 years which could yield up to $50,000 per year.

It was understood that Maloy's contract in Pittsburgh calls for $150,000 for three years.

James Gardner, president of the ABA and head of the Carolina Cougars, said his league will sign five of the top six seniors and could possibly get all six.

"You'll see several more announcements made in the next few days," Gardner predicted.

The other college seniors considered to make up the top six are Pete Maravich of Louisiana State University, Bob Lanier of St. Bonaventure and Bob Issel of Kentucky.

"We have a very good chance of getting Pete," said Gardner whose Cougars drafted Maravich. He said Carolina had talked to Maravich in New York where LSU is playing in the National Invitational Tournament.

He said the New York Nets met in Buffalo Monday with Lanier who injured his knee last Saturday in Columbia, S.C. and will be out of the NCAA finals. Issel was reported near terms with the Kentucky Colonels.

Bulls Clinch Playoff Berth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chet Walker dropped in 44 points but it was the four Bob Weiss scored that clinched a National Basketball Association playoff berth for the Chicago Bulls.

In the only NBA game Monday night, Chicago got two baskets in the last 85 seconds from Weiss in a 142-140 overtime victory over Cincinnati at Omaha, Neb., as the third-place Bulls moved 2½ games ahead of Phoenix in the West Division.

Weiss snapped a 138-138 tie with 1:25 left and hit again 20 seconds later to cement the triumph. Tom Boerwinkle's two-pointer with 29 seconds left in regulation time had tied it for the Bulls. Tom Van Arsdale had 42 points for Cincinnati.

In the only American Basketball Association contest, New Orleans swept past Dallas 111-95.

The loss dropped third-place Dallas 3½ games behind Western Division leader Denver while the Bucs got to within one-half game of Dallas in a bid for a playoff berth.

Steve Jones dropped in 21 points for the Bucs while Red

Lotz Takes Money Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Lotz, winner of the Monsanto Open Sunday, vaulted past Bob Lunn in taking over the PGA money earning lead, according to statistics released Monday.

Lotz, 27, earned $30,000 with his victory Sunday for a total of $54,925 for the year. The Californian leads Lunn, who is next at $51,718.

Other leaders in order: Bruce Devlin, $39,794; Lee Trevino $33,974; Mike Hill, $33,477; Pete Brown, $32,393; Bert Yancey, $30,898; Tony Jacklin, $28,001; Jack Nicklaus, $27,628; Billy Casper, $27,248.

He Overcame His Handicap

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP)—Like many 12-year-old boys, Brent Bockun plays golf and baseball in the summer, in addition to water skiing and swimming.

And like other youngsters in this northern Minnesota hockey hot spot, Brent plays organized hockey in the winter.

But Brent has only one leg. He uses a crutch, designed for ice by his grandfather, to help maintain balance while he's playing.

When he shoots the puck, Brent tucks the crutch under his left arm and holds the hockey stick with both hands. Brent is a regular defenseman in a Lions Club league for youngsters.

"He has one of the most feared slap shots in the Pee Wee League," said Duane Kerry, sports editor of the International Falls Journal.

Brent's left leg was amputated at the hip in 1963 after his aunt, a registered nurse, noticed "a growth on his thigh. Brent's father died of cancer shortly after the boy's surgery.

Brent started skiing this winter and already has mastered the expert slopes of Lookout Mountain near Virginia, Kerry said.

Brent bats one-handed in baseball. He uses one crutch to get to first base and picks up the second from a teammate for the rest of the way. He catches and plays third base defensively.

There's also water skiing and surf boarding.

"He conquered these sports after just a few tries," Kerry said.

Golf may turn out to be Brent's biggest sporting challenge. He started that sport last summer and entered a junior tournament at Fort Frances, Ont.

Brent, who shoots in the low 70s for nine holes, used one club in the tournament.

"He came in last," said Kerry, "but he vows to do better this year. He received a full set of clubs for Christmas and hopes to lower his score this summer."

Yaz Back, But Tony Is Ailing

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Yaz is back. But now Tony C is out and Reggie still is ailing. Yaz of course is Carl Yastrzemski, the three-time American League batting king, and lone Boston Red Sox regular outfielder that remains healthy.

Monday Yastrzemski crashed two towering home runs and drove in four runs in the Red Sox 11-7 victory over Cincinnati. However, it also was learned that Tony Conigliaro, the young veteran leftfielder, who has had his share of physical miseries, would be lost for about 10 days with a broken rib.

Tony C was injured Saturday attempting a diving catch against the New York Mets. Conigliaro made a remarkable comeback last year after sitting out the entire 1968 season with a serious eye injury after being hit in the face by a pitch.

And Reggie Smith is the middle third of what might be the finest outfield trio in the major. Smith still is idled by a pulled muscle in his right shoulder.

Smith batted .309 last year with 25 homers and 93 runs batted in. Yaz fell off to .255 after leading the league in 1967-68, but clubbed 40 homers and had 111 RBI while Conigliaro hit .255 with 20 home runs and 82 RBI.

Also helping the Sox Monday were homers by George Scott, Mike Andrews and Luis Alvarado. John Bench had a two-run shot for the Reds.

Atlanta beat Houston 2-1 on Mike Lum's RBI single in the sixth inning but the Braves lost 18-game winner Ron Reed with a broken collarbone. The 6-foot-6 right-hander, who was injured while participating in a first base drill, tripped over the bag and fell hard on his shoulder. He is expected to be out for three to four months.

Minnesota's winless streak was stretched to nine as the Chicago White Sox ripped last year's AL West champs 9-4. The Sox got homers from Walt Williams, Syd O'Brien and Bob Spence. Spence's was a three-run clout.

Tim McCarver drove in three runs and pitcher Mike Jackson chipped in with a three-run homer in the Philadelphia Phillies 14-2 rout of St. Louis.

The world champion New York Mets came up with one of their patented finishes as pinch hitter Dave Marshall slammed a two-out three-run ninth-inning homer in the Mets' 3-2 victory over Detroit. Tom Seaver pitched five strong innings, surrendering only a homer to the Tigers Willie Horton.

Montreal came up with four ninth-inning runs, capped by Ron Fairly's bases-loaded walk in nipping Washington 11-10. Paul Casanova had four hits and four RBI for the Senators.

Andy Messersmith tossed five scoreless innings and Rick Reichardt drilled a homer in California's 4-2 victory over Cleveland. Seattle's A and B teams came up with victories. The A's, on Ted Kubiak's two-run triple got by San Diego 6-4 while the B's belted San Francisco 9-3.

Rick Monday's three-run homer helped Oakland to a 7-5 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Charlie O. Wants To Put More Color In Ball

OAKLAND (AP)—Charlie Finley wants his Oakland Athletics to see red when they head for first base this baseball season. When they get to second, they will see yellow, and when they turn toward third base, they'll see blue.

It's all part of Finley's plan to bring more color to baseball—specifically to the Oakland Coliseum basepaths.

Finley said Monday he wants to color the bases red, yellow and blue.

"Under the lights, it will be beautiful. . . Simply beautiful!" the colorful owner exclaimed in a telephone interview.

It won't violate American League rules, Finley says, because the rules say only that home plate must be white.

Finley has already brought several innovations to the Oakland Coliseum—a scoreboard that explodes in a predetermined rhythm, a ball-carrying bunny that pops up behind home plate for the umpires, Charlie O. the mule, and bright uniforms of green and gold, plus white shoes.

The board of directors of the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Complex, Inc., had not heard of the idea but William Cunningham, coliseum manager said he expected the directors to approve. Finley said the idea came in a letter from 15-year-old Bryan Barsamian of Oakland, who, Finley said, will be his personal guest on opening day.

Finley thinks the bright bases may be easier for outfielders to see as they throw to catch the runner, but concedes that some players may protest that they are distracting to hitters.

The reaction in the A's training camp at Mesa ranged from "Oh no," to loud guffaws.

Finley's idea for painting the bases was first made known in a column by Prescott Sullivan in the San Francisco Examiner.

Seattle Man Wants To Buy

SEATTLE (AP) — A freelance Seattle promoter, Fred Ruge, told the American League Monday night he has the money to buy the Seattle Pilots and demanded a chance to prove it.

Ruge said the baseball league has ignored his repeated attempts to purchase the team although he has oral pledges for financing from 22 firms he said are recognized nationally but won't allow identification until the league agrees to hear him.

He also said he has a deed to property worth $500,000 and that the document is in a confidential account in Seattle "awaiting escrow instructions" from him.

In a telegram to Joe Cronin, league president, Ruge said Monday he has "written commitment for funds to purchase Pilots and build domed stadium. We can save situation for benefit of all and demand answer to wire."

The league was to meet Tuesday in Tampa, Fla. The Associated Press learned from unimpeachable sources a Milwaukee group would buy the year-old expansion team.

Ruge said he planned to build a domed stadium with private funds, as well as buy the Pilots and construct a convention center at the stadium site. Current plans call for a domed stadium at the Seattle Center, site of the 1962 World's Fair. The stadium would be built with county funds already approved by voters.

Roy Hamey, league-appointed financial overseer of the Pilots, had told Ruge March 6 in Seattle there was no hurry in completing funding arrangements for the purchase, Ruge said. The promoter said Hamey assured him the Pilots would open the 1970 baseball season in Seattle as scheduled April 7.

Then, Ruge said, came news of the Milwaukee purchase, hence his last-minute demand bid to league officials.

Pilots May Be Brewers Before The Day Is Over

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Seattle Pilots may become the Milwaukee Brewers before this day is over. The American League is just about ready to approve the transfer at a special meeting in the International Inn.

After weeks of indecision in which they tried to sell the club to Seattle interests, turned down a bid from a nonprofit group and then voted to back the original owners with a $650,000 loan, the American League is ready to make a move.

Nine of the 12 clubs must approve the transfer and the votes are understood to be in hand. The probability is that the one club within 90 miles which might have veto power on territorial rights, the Chicago White Sox, will go along.

A transfer is certain to generate new threats in Congress to baseball's immunity from antitrust laws. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., has said he would urge Congress to revoke the game's immunity from the trust laws because "when you move these franchises around like pawns just because you think you'll do better in some other town, then you're in business."

In King County, Wash., Superior Court, two restraining orders have been granted against the move. The American League and the Pilots have been ordered to show cause later this week why a temporary injunction should not replace the restraining orders.

The latest suit was filed Monday by the State of Washington and the City of Seattle asking more than $80 million in damages if the franchise is moved.

Joe Cronin, league president, has said repeatedly that every effort was being made to keep the club in Seattle. He has been huddling with lawyers for months and is fully aware of all the legal complications involved.

It appeared the American League exhausted its last hope of settling the Seattle situation without shoveling more money down the drain when Seattle bidders of February said Friday they were no longer interested.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, stepping into the case, approached Edward Carlson, Seattle hotel executive who headed a nonprofit group, about the prospect of resubmitting its bid. The bid had been turned down Feb. 11 when the league voted $650,000 to the old owners to tide them through spring training.

In rejecting the show of renewed interest in the proposal, Carlson, the group's spokesman, said the economic analysis on which their bid was based no longer was valid. Furthermore, Carlson said it was the group's firm belief that the league must carry through its commitment to remain in Seattle.

In Milwaukee, the American League will have a 45,000-seat stadium ready for an April 7 opening game with the California Angels. The Seattle park seated only 28,000 and attendance was only 677,944 in the city's first year of major league ball with a last-place team. Plans have been made and a bond issue approved to build a domed stadium that would be completed in 1973.

By a strange twist of fate, Milwaukee will be gaining a club in the face of legal action, similar to the action Milwaukee itself took when the Braves moved on to Atlanta after the 1965 season.

Milwaukee was the first site of a big league franchise move in recent years when the Boston Braves moved west in 1953. The date was March 18 and the switch was accomplished without difficulty while the club was playing an exhibition game in St. Petersburg.

The Pilots, of course, already are playing exhibitions. Ticket sales have lagged in the light of the uncertainty over the club's future and a radio contract has been renegotiated with considerable loss of revenue.

The Milwaukee Brewers Inc., headed by Bud Selig and Judge Robert Cannon, former counsel for the major league baseball players, are expected to pay $9.5 million, with another $1.5 million in reserve as operating capital.

NFL Boots Out Two-Point Play

HONOLULU (AP) — Uniform rules adopted by the newly merged National Football League kicked the two-point conversion attempt out of the game.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Monday night the executives of the 26 NFL clubs approved adoption of the old NFL practice of allowing only a one-point kick after touchdown. The old NFL had the option of one point by kick or two points by pass or run.

"The conversion rule," Rozelle told newsmen, "drew the most pros and cons. Oddly enough, most of the coaches at the meeting favored the two-point conversion."

A four-man competition committee studied the rules changes forced by the merger of the NFL and AFL for four days prior to Monday's opening of the weeklong NFL meeting here, the first since the two leagues joined forces.

All four of the committee's recommended rule changes were adopted, Rozelle said.

Other league differences resolved Monday included the shape of the ball. The one approved was the NFL's, less pointed than the one used by the AFL.

But the competition committee favored the AFL on two counts—names on the back of players' jerseys and official time kept on the scoreboard.

Previously, the NFL had an official timekeeper on the field.

Rozelle said the discussion on the conversion rule lasted nearly an hour and a number of votes were changed.

"There was a feeling that the two-point conversion gave the coaches more of a gamble," Rozelle said, "that it added a certain element to the game."

Football Had Biggest Year

HONOLULU (AP) — Professional football had its best year ever at the gate in 1969, Commissioner Pete Rozelle has announced.

Both the American and National football leagues broke all attendance records. The combined average turnout per game was 49,118.

Rozelle released the figures Monday at the opening of the weeklong NFL meeting here, the first since the two leagues merged.

Boston Delays Stadium Move

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston City Council delayed action Monday on a proposed sports stadium in the Neponset area.

The delay to Wednesday was ordered despite a report from Honolulu that the National Football League owners want assurances by 5 p.m. today that the Boston Patriots will have a 50,000 seat stadium.

The council was off today—a holiday in Boston. It is St. Patrick's Day, but legally the holiday marks the evacuation of Boston by British forces in the Revolutionary War.

The league owners some time ago set a 50,000 seat stadium as the minimum they would require for a league team to remain in any particular city.

Boston's Patriots have been playing in Fenway Park, the home of the Boston Red Sox, and Boston College Alumni Stadium. Neither has a seating capacity near the 50,000 minimum.

The New York Racing Association distributed purses totaling $19,125,710 in 2,087 races at Aqueduct, Belmont Park and Saratoga in 1969. Of these, 116 were stakes events. Average purse per race was $9,164.

Are you going to go through another year thinking you can't afford an Oldsmobile?

Our own surveys indicate that quite a few people think an Oldsmobile is out of their reach. They think it costs a lot more than it really does. Result? Many people buy an ordinary car and end up with a lot less car and value for their money.

It's so unnecessary, too, because Oldsmobile has many models that are priced right down with the so-called low-priced cars.

So why settle for the ordinary when you can step up to an Olds and all the value that an Olds represents. Take this big, exciting Delta 88, for example. It starts out with a surprisingly modest price. Add to this the features that make it such an outstanding value—extras that are included in the modest price: □ Regular-gas Rocket V-8 □ Power Steering □ Power Brakes, front discs □ Nylon-loop carpeting □ Bias-Belted Tires □ Door Side-Guard Beams □ Hidden Radio Antenna □ Flo-Thru Ventilation □ Bigger, better riding 124" wheelbase. Check these extra values at your Olds dealer's today!

Fantasies Can Hurt Partner

Olga's husband is guilty of "Fantasy Wife Swapping." So he reduces her to tears and has driven her to the brink of suicide. Yet Olga can easily stop his false accusations by using the "strategy and booklet" described below. Scrapbook these frank diagnoses of the sex dilemmas in marriage for the sex can help stop divorce! They stabilize happy homes!

By-GEORGE W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.
CASE M-545: Olga P., aged 29, has been married 5 years.
"Oh, Dr. Crane," she begged, "I need help with my marriage. For my husband keeps ac-curring me of having an affair with his brother - in-law. "And he expands his charges to include several other men of our acquaintance. "But, Dr. Crane, I have NEVER been guilty of unfaithfulness!"

"And I have finally suggested that we go to a psychiatrist where I will take truth serum injections or submit to a lie detector test, just to make him quit his chronic accusations. "But he will not do it."
"Yet he keeps on and on with his wild charges about my sexual unfaithfulness till I am in tears and have even thought about suicide."

"Why will a husband persist in such false claims against his wife?"
You readers have read numerous cases where husbands will actually swap wives for the night.
And I have explained the underlying sexual inferiority of such men, which requires the novelty factor and a new sex mate to help them function in the erotic realm.

Well, there are many husbands, like Olga's, who indulge in imaginary wife swapping as a means of perking up their sexual vigor.
This is what we call the "Fantasy Wife Swapping" strategy of men who are waning in their erotic vigor.

Olga's husband has been envious of his brother - in-law, who has 7 children, while Olga and her mate have had none.
And Olga has expressed a desire for babies, so her husband has subconsciously evolved the idea that she might be thinking favorably of that brother - in-law.

Another factor also contributes to these false charges of sexual misconduct, for Olga has been less ardent than her mate had assumed wives should be.

For he, too, has absorbed the erroneous notion that all women are wildly passionate. This misconception has been foisted on mankind by skillful prostitutes all throughout history.

For such paid paramours realize that a man is usually very sensitive in the realm of his sex ego.

So, to win return patronage and also get a big tip, the prostitutes put on an act and make their customer feel that he is thrilling them into a wild state of sexual orgy.

But it is merely a clever act. Yet the men believe it, and thereafter retain an entirely false notion about a wife's erotic

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠
Today's hand aroused considerable interest when it was dealt at the Fall National tournament recently concluded in Miami Beach.

Three no trump was reached with dispatch at virtually every table and the six of hearts was the opening lead. East played the jack and was permitted to hold the trick. The heart continuation was won by South and the king of spades was led to drive out the ace. West was in and another round of hearts cleared South's remaining stopper in the suit.

A casual examination reveals that declarer has nine running tricks at this point—three spades, two hearts, one diamond, and three clubs. In a duplicate contest, however, the mere fulfillment of a contract may not necessarily yield a good match point score. It is frequently important to strive for overtricks in order to do better than one's competitors on the deal. Sometimes the safety of the contract may even be risked in the attempt to secure the extra trick.

Declarer observed that a 10th trick appeared to hinge on a successful diamond finesse, but he decided first to run the spades. On the second spade, West parted with a diamond, but on the next round—the discard was not exactly to his liking. He was reluctant to throw either a diamond or a club, for that would involve the surrender of his protection in those suits. West therefore usually chose to discard one of his established hearts. On the fourth spade, West threw his last heart.

It was quite apparent to South that his opponent's abandonment of the hearts indicated that he was protecting something in the other suits. Instead of attempting a diamond finesse, therefore, South decided to try for an end play. The ace, king, queen of clubs were cashed and a fourth round of the suit threw West into the lead forcing a diamond return away from the king into the declarer's tenace.

At one table, West attempted to bluff his way thru by casually discarding the six of diamonds after the three. When he was forced to throw one of his established hearts on the fourth round of spades, however, South became alerted to the possibility that West was concealing something in the other suits. When it came time to try the diamond finesse, declarer decided to go up with the ace from his hand and dropped the king which West had bared. The queen and jack of diamonds were now established for two overtricks and a top score on the deal to the declarer.

Hearing Tests
Launched Today

All Committeemen and personnel engaging in the Hearing Screening Testing Program sponsored by Greenville Lodge, of the Loyal Order of Moose, have now undergone thorough training and are ready for the opening of the Hearing Program on this afternoon.

The Hearing Testing Station will be set up in Greenville Moose Lodge No. 885 and will run from today through March 19. The station will be open from 4 p. m. until 6 p. m., and will again be open from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m., each day.

The test, which is designed for all age groups, will determine only that the person being tested hears normally or has a hearing defect. The personnel in charge of this hearing program make no diagnosis, but merely compare one's hearing with a known normal hearing level. Each person tested will receive a report, showing the test results for each ear, and where the possibility of a hearing deficiency is revealed, that person is advised to contact his family physician.

Olga has shown but casual interest in marital relations, so her husband has often wondered if she might not be dissipating her excessive eroticism in clandestine affairs. So he accuses her, for it is his sweet music to his ears to hear Olga's tearful and sincere protests of her innocence.

He really knows she is a virtuous wife, which is why he refuses to take her to a doctor for a "truth serum" seance.

Wives, like Olga should send for my medical booklet "How to Prevent a Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope, plus 20 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

is Dr. W. Garrett Hume, East Carolina University, assisted by Student Technicians from the University. Parents especially are invited to bring their children for a hearing test inasmuch as many children may have some slight hearing deficiency not known to the parents or to the school authorities. According to the hearing specialists of the Zenith Radio Corporation, the majority of such hearing deficiencies can be treated and cured during childhood without the use of any mechanical hearing aid appliances. Normal hearing is just as important as good eyesight.

Sponsoring Fish
Supper Friday

A fish supper, sponsored at Chapman's United Methodist Church, will be held on Friday, March 20.

The supper will begin at 5:30 p. m. and continue until 9 p. m. There will be a choice of stewed or fried fish, with drink and dessert for the price of $1.25.

The church is located on Highway 43 near Dudley's Cross Roads. Proceeds from the supper will be used for the building fund.

April 1 Deadline
For Special Course

April 1 is the deadline for high school rising seniors to apply for a special course in human heredity to be offered this summer by the East Carolina University Biology Department. Applicants should have already taken high school biology and chemistry. Applications forms and further information may be obtained by writing to Dr. Patricia Daugherty, Box 2577, Greenville, N. C. 27834. Selection of students will be made before April 15.

The course will consist of an intensive series of lectures, laboratories, and independent study dealing with the method of investigating the principles underlying human genetics. Biology staff members teaching the course will include Dr.

Patricia Daugherty, Dr. W. James Smith, Dr. Wendall E. Allen, Dr. Everett C. Simpson, and Dr. Clifford B. Knight. The project is one of a number

Service Station Attendants In Charlotte Are Now Armed

By BILL McKEITHAN
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — A motorist who pulls into a Charlotte service station may not be prepared for what's under the jacket of the attendant who is cleaning his windshield.

Six stations visited Monday night had the attendants armed with handguns.

The pistol-packing petrol-pumper is the result of the deaths of three attendants during robberies in the Queen City this weekend. No arrests have been made, but an oil company and the city have offered rewards totaling $7,000 for information leading to conviction.

One of the station managers said the answer to stopping the robbers is "killing two or three of them." He raised his jacket and pulled a .38 pistol from his belt.

The manager called an attendant over. He had a .38 and a .32 in his coat pockets.

Another station operator pointed across the street from his downtown discount gas station and said, "See that car next to the building? I've got a man in there with a 30-30 rifle. He can stop them."

A third station had a "help wanted" sign on the door. The operator said that he has not had a response to any advertisement since the shooting rampage began. "You probably couldn't get one for $50,000 a year," he added. "Not until this is stopped."

All of the operators and attendants agreed the reward may be part of the answer. Humble Oil and Refining Co. posted a $5,000 reward Monday for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the shooting death and robbery of attendant Ralph Wise.

The 41-year-old Charlotte man was shot to death during a robbery Sunday at a station on Sugar Creek Road and I-85. Two other attendants, John Freeman, and James Kendrick, 21, were killed in a downtown station Saturday operated by the Star Service Co.

The City Council offered a $2,000 reward Monday for those whose information helps convict the killers. The council also asked taxi drivers and private citizens with two-way radio equipment to report unusual incidents they see while touring the city.

The service station operators have asked customers to carry exact change for their purchases. They said the attendants will only carry $1 in change while working.

Police have asked that gasoline businesses which have a cash and carry trade have two attendants on duty at night.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says police were able to solve only 20 per cent of the serious crimes committed in 1969, a year in which the nation's crime rate jumped 11 per cent.

Hoover said Monday the 11 per cent rate was the smallest increase in four years. He noted, however, that armed robberies increased 16 per cent last year.

The biggest increase in violent crimes was in forced rapes which went up 16 per cent over the previous year.

Paraded In March, 1776

NEW YORK (AP) — The first St. Patrick's Day parade ever held in the United States took place here on March 17, 1776—a few weeks before the Declaration of Independence was signed. The Grand Marshal of that first parade was Gen. George Washington. Washington held honorary membership in the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, an organization founded in Philadelphia in 1771. Unlike the 194th parade up Fifth Avenue this year, the first St. Patrick's Day parade was entirely military in nature.

Since then many other American cities—Chicago, Boston, Cleveland, San Francisco, Detroit, Dallas, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Newark, Jersey City, Mineola, Yonkers and Garden City, N.Y., have inaugurated parades on St. Patrick's Day. And in Canada, the city of Montreal has a parade of its own to honor the saint on March 17.

Two Tar Heels Die In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest Vietnam war casualty list includes two North Carolinians.

Marine Sgt. James R. Bowers of Lake Lure died in action and Army 1st Sgt. Donald R. Donaldson of Fayetteville died not as a result of hostile action.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission has prohibited the unsolicited mailing of credit cards after May 18.

In announcing the rule Monday, the FTC said it did not apply to credit cards issued by banks, airlines, bus lines or railroads except when issued for purposes other than their function "in commerce."

The FTC ruled the unsolicited mailing of credit cards constituted an "unfair method of competition and an unfair trade practice."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William L. Scott, R-Va., says Justice William O. Douglas should be impeached because he is "incapable of impartially deciding issues before the Supreme Court."

In a House speech Monday, Scott cited a book published by Douglas entitled "Points of Rebellion."

"When the statements in this book were coupled with his other activities and conflicts of interest," Scott said, "it seems to me that we have an obligation to remove him as a justice of the Supreme Court."

"In my opinion his obsession with criticizing the government and the free enterprise system renders him incapable of impartially deciding issues coming before the Supreme Court," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The April draft quota calls for induction of 19,000 men, the Pentagon announced Monday. Alp will go into the Army. The total is the same as draft calls announced previously for February and March.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrial production in February dropped for the seventh consecutive month, the Federal Reserve Board announced Monday.

The index of industrial production fell from 170.2 per cent of the 1957-59 average in January to 169.4. The index is considered a key guide to the state of the nation's economy.

At the same time, the Commerce Department noted housing starts rose in February to an annual rate of 1.3 million units, compared with the January rate of 1.2 million units.

Last Day To Join Program

Farmers were reminded today that Friday is the last day for signing applications to take part in the 1970 cotton, feed grain, and wheat program.

Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, pointed out that in order to be eligible for program benefits farmers must sign an application.

The cotton program offers small farm payments, price-support payments, and price-support loans to participating farmers.

The feed grain program offers diversion payments, price-support loans, and marketing certificates on their 1970 crop wheat.

Evans said all farmers have received notices pointing out the benefits they may expect from each program. He urged all farmers to give these programs very careful consideration and to sign up by the deadline Friday if they wish to participate this year.

America's first air meet was held in Los Angeles in 1910.

Urge Private Projects On Intracoastal Waterway

ACTRESS JANE FONDA and her attorney hold an impromptu news conference after filing suit against Defense Secretary Melvin Laird in federal court at Seattle. They charge their rights were violated when they were ejected from Army posts. Miss Fonda said she fears her political activity will hurt her chances for an Academy Award. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coastal Plains Regional Commission suggested Monday that private capital invest about $4 million in recreation projects along the 578-mile intracoastal waterway through North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

G. Fred Steele Jr., formerly of Durham, N.C., is the federal chairman of the commission, which is a partnership of the federal and state governments. He said the commission hopes to help these coastal areas to go from an average wage about $1,000 below the national average of about $6,000 a year to equal it or even go above it.

Undersecretary of Commerce Rocco Siciliano told a group representing the states, developers, architectural firms and others that "tourism is one of the easiest ways for an area to blossom with industry."

Elliott Lewis, president of Leisure Firms, Inc., located here, outlined a study his organization made of the possibilities for developing the waterway. He said, "there is real opportunity in this area to compete without being overshadowed by one of the giants of industry."

Lewis said an investment in projects along the waterway of $4,012,300 would generate $2,343,900 gross revenue the first year with net return of 6.3 per cent.

Lewis said his study of the area was aimed at private investors although there are some federal programs which could be applied.

The waterway roughly parallels the coastline of the three states.

The projects recommended would create 109 jobs with payrolls of about $520,000 a year plus other jobs.

"There is very little to do along the waterway now," Lewis said.

Among the recommendations were: aquabuses with terminal space at Charleston, S.C., and at Savannah, Ga., with two boats of 100 capacity each, costing about $100,000 each. Capital investment in this project, which could include moonlight cruises, would be $210,800 with net return the first year of 5.1 per cent. Eventually this would be expected to extend south to Brunswick, Ga., and north to Georgetown, S.C.

Also proposed were house boat rental areas at Elizabeth City, N.C., and Wachesaw Landing, S.C., and a most exclusive type of development at Hilton Head, S.C.

New marinas to include one near Georgetown, S.C., Little River, S.C., Skidaway Island, Ga., McClellansville, S.C., and Cape Romain were also recommended.

They recommended also a

Beach Gateway development to attract boaters from such places as Wilmington, N.C., Wrightsville Beach, N.C., Southport, N.C. and Myrtle Beach, S.C., to a place like Topsail

Beach, N.C. by creating primarily day-use facilities.

They said a restaurant with 100 seats would be profitable at Awendaw, S.C., where there is an oyster dock now.

Reports Theft Of Cash, Ring

An estimated $260 in change and a diamond ring has been reported taken from an Eastern Street home during the past seven weeks, according to Greenville Police.

Chief T. E. Gladson said E. H. Byrum of 117 North Eastern St. reported yesterday that he had been out of town for the past seven weeks. During that time, Byrum reported, someone forced open the rear door to his home and took about 64 silver dollars, $200 in change and a diamond ring valued at about $50.

Investigation of the incident is underway.

Prohibitions Against Strike By Postal Employees Still In Effect

By WILLIAM BARTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department has told its 750,000 employees recent court decisions do not loosen prohibitions against strikes by federal employees and any government worker walking out is subject to criminal prosecution. In a notice in the weekly Postal Bulletin, dispatched to all its employees, the department's Bureau of Operations gave its interpretation of recent court rulings that may have spawned preliminary discussions about possible strikes.

The bureau noted a recent federal court decision held that laws prohibiting federal workers from asserting their right to strike are unconstitutional under the First Amendment's guarantees of free speech.

"It should be clearly understood, however," the bureau added, "that the decision in no way altered the prohibition against federal employees participating in a strike against the federal government."

"This provision . . ." it warned, "remains in full force and effect. Any violator of this prohibition may not hold a federal position and is subject to criminal prosecution . . . which provides a penalty of imprisonment and/or fine."

There currently are two suits pending in federal courts challenging the constitutionality of laws denying postal and federal workers the right to strike.

One suit, now before the Supreme Court, was upheld last October by a three-judge federal panel, which said workers cannot be barred from asserting their right to strike. The court also struck down a requirement that postal employees swear a no-strike oath as a precondition to their employment. The Justice Department has appealed.

Another suit, still pending before federal district court in Washington, challenges the constitutionality of the law barring federal workers from striking.

Since both actions were initiated by postal unions, the Post Office—despite earlier claims that strike threats were only rhetoric—began taking the situation seriously.

Adding to the department concern were surveys undertaken last month in some of the nation's largest post offices by unions seeking membership views on the possibility of a strike.

So far, the unions have not announced the results.

Meeting To Incorporate

RALEIGH (AP) — Representatives of Electricities and officials of rural electric cooperatives will meet in Raleigh Thursday to incorporate Electric Power in Carolina (EPIC).

In forming EPIC, the co-ops and cities with their own power systems are proposing a $1 billion, 20-year program to construct a power generating and transmission system to provide for their own needs.

The REA coops and municipalities now buy their power from investor-owned power companies.

Incorporation of EPIC is expected to be followed by detailed legal and engineering studies in preparation to getting initial approval from the federal government. Construction is planned to begin in 1972 and continue through 1990.

The proposed system would include three nuclear-conventional power generating plants, a hydroelectric plant, plus gas turbine generators as needed and a transmission system.

N.C. Expected

See Increase In 1970 Corn Crop

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1970 North Carolina corn crop is expected to be much larger than last year's while the tobacco crop is expected to be about the same at 377,000 acres.

The North Carolina Crop Reporting Service says it anticipates a corn crop of 1,549,000 acres, up 74,000 acres from 1969, when the acreage was the second lowest on record.

The 1,037,000-acre soybean crop forecast would be down 21,000 acres from 1969 and the 170,000-acre peanut crop would be virtually unchanged.

A cotton crop of 175,000 acres, smallest on record, was forecast.

Lawsuit Filed Against Army By Jane Fonda

SEATTLE (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda has filed a lawsuit which seeks to keep the Army from running her off two of its Seattle area forts which she invaded March 8 with a group of Indians.

Designated as co-plaintiff in the action Monday was Miss Fonda's lawyer, Mark Lane, who was ejected with her from Ft. Lawton and Ft. Lewis. They said the Army had violated their constitutional rights and asked a court injunction against a repetition.

Miss Fonda said they went to the Army posts "to talk to GIs about the war." The Indians were trying to claim a part of the land at Ft. Lawton which the Army no longer has a use for.

Named defendants in the U.S. District Court suit were Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor, and the commanders of the two forts.

Why AMIBEN is today's No.1 soybean herbicide

Because it gives you, in your choice of liquid concentrate or granules, the broadest range weed and grass control on the market.

Other soybean herbicides are essentially grass killers. AMIBEN™ preemergence weedkiller not only controls a full range of grasses but also, as a bonus, controls a full range of broadleaf weeds. In fact, Amiben controls more grassy weeds and more broadleaf weeds than any competitive chemical you can buy.

Amiben gives you these advantages with safety to your crop (even in wet weather), safety to adjacent crops and to crops you may plant on the same ground next year. Other soybean herbicides may perform well within their own limits, but they are no match for Amiben... the nearest thing to a perfect soybean weed and grass killer that science has yet come up with. That's why more farmers use Amiben than any other soybean herbicide.
