Earlier Leaf Mart Opening Sought At Growers' Meet

Tobacco growers in the Eastern Belt will have to work together in order to achieve a much discussed earlier market opening comparable to dates on bordering belts.

"Not enough pressure has been put out yet," North Carolina Farm Bureau president, B.C. Mangum, told growers Tuesday at a meeting here called to find out where Eastern tobacconist stand on the earlier opening issue.

Although there was token opposition to the effort to move up the opening dates, over 100 persons voted to go on record favoring earlier auctioning.

A resolution passed by voting delegates at the annual tobacco meeting last November called for the earlier opening and Mangum pointed out that the policy would be pursued "regardless of what action you take here today."

Mangum said the meeting was not a policy-making session but an effort to get support for the implementation of the resolved policy.

In years past, Eastern Belt markets have opened in the latter part of August, following earlier dates in the Georgia-Florida Belt (late July) and South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt (early August).

Middle and Old Belt markets follow Eastern openings with a September beginning of sales.

Eastern Belt markets have argued that the earlier opening practices of markets south of North Carolina results in millions of pounds of tobacco being sold there by farmers trying to complete their sales early.

Figures presented by Bill Little of the Farm Bureau supported the argument that the Eastern Belt is losing tobacco sales to bordering markets.

According to Little, the Eastern Belt produced some 351,440,000 pounds of Type 12 tobacco last year but tallied only 320,714,759 pounds in sales. The 30-million difference is felt to be lost to other markets, primarily the Border and South Carolina-Georgia.

Border and South Carolina markets, however, reported sales of 37-million pounds of tobacco more than they produced. Georgia markets also topped their production with sales of 27-million pounds more than they actually produced.

Mangum said that the 35-member Tobacco Advisory Committee would meet in the future to consider opening dates and make their recommendations to the Warehouse Association and U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Arguments yesterday were generally in favor of the earlier openings. One grower pointed

Absent Leader Blamed For Crisis

Sihanouk Unseated By Cambodia's Parliament

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodia's Parliament overthrew Prince Norodom Sihanouk today, charging the chief of state provoked the political crisis gripping the nation, Radio Phnom Penh announced.

Asian diplomats in Saigon received reports that Cambodian troops surrounded the Parliament building and had sealed off the airport in the capital.

The news reached the 47-year-old prince, who had dominated his kingdom's politics for more than 20 years, while he was in Moscow en route home from Paris. He left later in the day for Peking.

The cause of the crisis was violent demonstrations last week against the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodian border regions. During the demonstrations, Cambodians sacked the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong embassies in Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian radio said the reigns of power as chief of state were turned over to Cheng Heng, president of the National Assembly. The assembly, the lower house of Parliament, met in joint session with the Royal Cambodian Council, the upper house, and voted no confidence in Sihanouk.

A report received by the government in Saigon said the real power rested with two men— Gen. Lon Nol, premier and chief of the military forces, and Sirik Matak, a top government minister.

The two men are known to share doubts about the mercurial Sihanouk's neutralist policy, and were opposed to the 40,000-60,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops using border sanctuaries for forays into South Vietnam.

Nol, a conservative, was credited by some sources in Saigon with organizing the demonstrations against the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops. Others noted Sihanouk's grip on the country and believed he himself possibly orchestrated them from Paris.

An unofficial translation of the Phnom Penh broadcast, as heard in Saigon, said:

"Following the political crisis provoked by Prince Norodom Sihanouk in the past days, the National Assembly and the Royal Council in joint session, conforming to the constitution of the kingdom, unanimously withdrew their confidence in Prince Norodom Sihanouk. From this day, 18 March 1970, at 1300 (1 p.m.) the Prince Norodom Sihanouk ceases to be the chief of state of Cambodia and will be replaced by Cheng Heng, the president of the National Assembly, who will assume the function of the chief of state until election of a new chief of state in accordance with the text of the nation's constitution."

The Cambodian Embassy in Singapore said the Phnom Penh radio said later: "The new head of state said Cambodia will follow the same policies of independence, neutrality, territorial integrity and will respect all international treaties signed by her."

The radio called on the people of Cambodia to remain calm.

Wooten Named Chairman Of Pitt Hospital Board

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Woodrow Wooten of Falkland was elected to a two-year term as chairman of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees yesterday afternoon.

Wooten has served on the Board since 1947 before Pitt Memorial was opened, except for the six years when he was a county commissioner and could not be a member of both boards. A Falkland merchant and farmer, he has served the people of this area in several other capacities, including being a member of the airport commission, the welfare board, the mental health association board, the board of health, the Sheppard Memorial Library board, and the Belvoir-Falkland School Board. He now serves as chairman of the Falkland Democratic precinct and as a director of North Carolina National Bank.

Other officers of the Board of Trustees are Wilton Duke of Farmville, vice chairman; Delton Perry of Bethel, secretary; Ed Waldrop of Greenville, treasurer; and J.H. "Hap" Moye of Greenville, assistant treasurer.

Wooten, Duke, and Perry are members of the executive committee by virtue of their offices. Serving with them will be Ed Warren of Greenville, Eugene James of Bethel, Kenneth Dews of Winterville, and Dr. Donald Tucker, representing the medical staff of the hospital.

Finance committee members include Wooten, Waldrop, Keith Brunson of Chicod, W.R. Johnson of Grifton, and William Francis Tyson of Stokes. Wooten appointed Ed Waldrop chairman.

James, Brunson, and Moye were renamed to the auditing committee.

Appointed by Wooten to the building and grounds committee were G.R. Gurganus of Bell Arthur. Otis Stokes of Stokestown, Ed Switzer of Pactolus, Ed Warren, S.M. Edwards of Ayden and Glenn Hardy of Grimesland.

The regular board meeting time was changed to 8 p.m. and will be effective beginning with the April meeting.

A chaplaincy program to be carried on by the Greenville Ministerial Association was approved by the Board. The ministers say each of them will serve one week at a time as hospital chaplain for those patients who do not have their own ministers readily available. During his week, the minister on duty will either be at the hospital or will be on call at his home at any time of the day or night.

A similar expansion plan is being considered for Pitt Memorial.

Blood Needed

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. and until 4:30 p.m. the Pitt County bloodmobile will be at the Moose Lodge to accept blood from anyone wishing to add to the quota of 165 units being sought by the blood mobile on this one-day drive.

The yearly quota is lagging nearly 300 units behind what was scheduled to be collected at this date.

Douglas Morgan, chairman of the drive, has expressed hopes that with spring weather in the offing, more possible donors will show up.

Higher Interest Rates Rejected In Ayden Vote

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — Voters here yesterday defeated by 71 votes, a referendum that if approved, would have allowed more than six percent interst to be paid to purchasers of some $350,000 in bonds scheduled to be sold for construction of a new municipal building here.

Some 355 voters cast ballots against any increase in the interest while 284 voters voted in favor of the measure, which would have insured the sale of the bonds by the North Carolina Local Government Commission.

Town Clerk Don Russell said, "the town has no choice but to wait. There is nothing we can do. . .about the sale of the bonds."

He explained there is nothing the town can do unless some bank or subscribers agree to purchase the bonds at six percent or less, or wait until the Local Government Commission will put the bonds out for bid.

"Hopefully," Russell said, "we can get one of the banks or some subscribers to purchase the bonds."

Earlier this week, Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger, said if the municipal building is not under construction within a reasonable time, the town may lose its sitting of the District Court and its jail. Jail and court facilities have been designed in the new numicipal building.

The $350,000 in bonds was approved by Ayden voters last May for the construction. At the time of the vote, the interest offered was the top allowed by state law. The 1969 legislature, however, removed that law and now allows and city administration to fix the interest, but only after the Ayden vote was held.

In order to raise the interest on the present bonds, a vote of the people was needed.

Strike Is Launched By New York City Letter Carriers

NEW YORK (AP) — Defying federal antistrike laws, letter carriers in Manhattan and the Bronx struck today for higher pay. Union officials said there would be no mail deliveries in those boroughs.

Post Office officials said the strike appeared to be the first in the history of the service. A successful walkout would cripple mail communications in one of the nation's busiest postal districts.

A department spokesman in Washington said contingency plans would be put into effect, adding, "We're going to deliver the mails in the best possible way we can."

The strike was voted at a meeting Tuesday night and pickets began appearing outside post office facilities in Manhattan shortly after midnight.

Gus Johnson, president of Branch 36 of the National Association of Letter Carriers, representing 6,700 mail carriers in the Bronx and Manhattan, reported the vote was 1,555 for a strike and 1,055 against.

Afterward, Jack Leventhal, president of the Brooklyn branch, said the 3,900 members there had authorized a strike and would join the walkout.

Two branches in Queens scheduled meetings today to decide on their action.

Morris Biller, president of Manhattan Bronx Postal Union, representing 25,000 clerks, mail handlers and other workers, said he expected members of his union would not cross the carriers' picket lines.

He called on the New York and Bronx postmasters to grant three days "administrative leave" to all postal employes to avoid "confrontations" where picket lines are posted.

Plastic, Patent Vinyl Are Very Fashionable

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Leather may be the fashion rage this year for the "Best Dressed List" set, but for those who modest means the best bet is what a saleswoman recently described as "the skins of unborn vinyls" —plastic.

Plastic, once used mostly in shoes, is now showing up in coats, vests, jumpers, hats and dresses. And the plastic garments are inexpensive, easy to clean (with a damp cloth) and often are hard to distinguish from the real thing.

Popular this year with manufacturers and buyers alike is patent vinyl—soft, shiney and produced in a wide variety of colors.

This reporter recently purchased a black vinyl patent jumper. My plastic-wearing debut was greeted with coos of praise from female friends but with sneers and jokes from the males.

"Hey, where's your whip?" one asked. Another was, "Where's your Honda?"

My more practical-minded boss merely asked if I "cracked" when the temperature got terrifically low. Assuming he meant did the vinyl crack, I assured him it did not, but I couldn't vouch for myself.

Vinyl garments definitely are cold-weather garb. They keep one snug and warm in the coldest temperatures and are great protection against bitter winds.

But in an overly warm room they tend to be uncomfortable. After a while, you find that you have developed a rather damp waistline from wearing a vinyl jumper such as mine.

But I can stand the soggy tummy and the joshing because I really like the jumper. And I can tell that my husband likes it too.

He was smiling when he paid for it.

Search Continues For Bald Indian

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR READERS: A reader recently asked me if it was true that Indians never lost their hair. Since I do not recall ever having seen a bald-headed Indian I appealed to my readers, and asked them to please send me a picture of a bald-headed Indian—if indeed one existed. Needless to say, I received pictures of enough bald and balding Indians to fill a reservation. However, many readers still have "reservations" about that. ABBY

DEAR ABBY, Well, you asked for it. I am inclosing a picture of a bald Indian. My husband. He is "Chief Deon"—a full-blooded Sioux, born on a reservation in Pine Ridge, S. D., in 1899. He claims he lost his hair because he put too much bear grease on it when he was young. Happy hunting, Abby! MRS. R. P. DEON, OGDEN, UTAH

DEAR ABBY: I worked for the Indian bureau for more than 30 years in every section of the United States and I do not remember having seen one bald Indian! My husband was one-quarter Sioux. He was over 80 when he died and he had a full head of hair. MRS. J. R. H., PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: Well, you can stop your search for bald Indians. There aren't any. Where I was raised there were more Indians than whites, and I can't recall ever seeing a bald Indian. It's just characteristic of their race. Nobody ever saw an Indian with hair on his chest, either. A WHITE FROM WATERLOO, IA.

DEAR ABBY: I have no picture to send you, but I give you my word that I have seen a bald-headed Indian. He was a full-blooded Choctaw from Oklahoma. We met at Alcatraz many years ago when he was doing life plus 99 years. At that time he was only 27 years old, and he was bald! CHARLIE IN JACKSONVILLE

DEAR ABBY: I am a Cherokee, and as you can see from my picture, I am completely bald.

I have met many Indians from various tribes and have seen a few bald-headed Indians, but they are rare.

Perhaps you recognize me. I am a professional actor. I've made several TV commercials and have played in Gunsmoke. SINCERELY, SKEETER VAUGHAN [GREY OTTER]

DEAR ABBY: Well, you asked for it! I am a Chickasaw Indian and bald as an onion, and have been since I was in my late twenties. I don't know why I lost my hair. I never curled it, dyed it, bleached it or sprayed it. I just washed it, brushed it, combed it and watched it go.

If you will find something that will make it grow back, I will pay you cash, and you can name your own price. I won't be choosey about color either. Hair is hair. LEONARD BROWN, OKLAHOMA CITY

CONFIDENTIAL TO BIG CHIEF NO BULL: That's funny. You don't LOOK Indian!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Street Foods Are Popular In Peruvian Capital City

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

LIMA (UPI)—The tantalizing aromas of street foods follow you everywhere in Peru.

Construction workers at a work site buy hot plate lunches from pushcart vendors, who serve on heavy restaurant-weight china. They also sell finger food—including empanadas, or meat pies, tamales and humitas.

But anticuchos are the hottest meat snack—literally and figuratively. They're bits of grilled beaf heart that have been marinated in a peppery sauce, then grilled and served with more peppery sauce.

They were served frequently to a group of North American newsmen and newswomen during a trip to Lima as guests of Improtur, S.A., to attend the opening of a new restaurant. The Peruvian firm is a subsidiary of Braniff International.

Makes Picarones

At a street fair, we watched a buxom young Indian woman make confections.

Street vendors of uncooked foods also are commonplace. You wonder who buys from the women we saw squatting at the entrace of a suburban supermarket with baskets of fruit.

The store itself resembled a North American one, except for the meat department. There everything was sold from an open cooler amply supplied with long-handled forks and skimmers that customers used to place the meat or poultry of their choice in plastic bags. Attendants weighed and ticketed the bags.

Picarone Recipe

Remove 1 cup of sifted flour from a total of 4 cups and combine the smaller amount in a large mixing bowl with ¾ cup of corn meal, ½ teaspoon of aniseed, crushed, ¾ teaspoon of salt and 1 package of granulated yeast. Mix well. Heat to 110-115 degrees 1 cup each of frozen, cooked squash and mashed sweet potato (½ pound of potatoes, peeled and boiled) and ½ cup of water. Add all at once to dry ingredients and beat with electric mixer at medium speed for 2 minutes. Stir down occasionally.

Stir in 1 egg. Add ½ cup more flour and beat 2 minutes at high speed. Stir down occasionally. Gradually stir in remaining flour until dough begins to clean bowl. Knead until dough is elastic. It will remain somewhat sticky. Place dough in oiled bowl, cover airtightly with plastic wrap and let rise in warm spot away from drafts about 1 hour, or until doubled in bulk.

Punch down vigorously. With hands, shape dough into strips about 6 inches long and 1 inch in diameter. Pinch ends together to form rings. Place about 1½ inches apart on waxed paper, cover lightly and let rise about 45 minutes or until light and puffy. Fry a few at a time in deep fat preheated to 350-375 degrees. Turn to brown both sides.

Serve hot with syrup made by boiling 1 pound of light brown sugar, 1 cup of granulated sugar, ½ cup of water, and yellow and orange zest from ½ lemon and ½ lime until slightly thick. Remove rinds before serving. If syrup crystalizes when cool, reheat to liquify it. Makes 24-26 picarones and about 2½ cups of syrup.

Teacher Recommends For Women: Fix It Or Junk It

By SANDY GOULD

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—An electric appliance is a marvelous gadget—until it breaks. Ten the housewife goes frantic.

Does she fix it, have it fixed or does she junk it?

"Drawing the line on fixing an appliance or junking it depends upon the age and amount of use the appliance has had, the women's intelligence, knowledge and honesty," said Milton R. Scheckner, an industrial arts instructor at Columbus Westmoor Junior High School.

Scheckner teaches a course to eighth grade students called "Fix It or Junk It." He firmly believes the course would be helpful to women.

In "Fix It or Junk It," Scheckner shows what can go wrong with an appliance, how to locate the malfunction, whether to fix it, have it fixed or buy a new appliance. He also gives the basic instructions on repair at home.

"So often a women will try to fix a malfunctioning appliance at home," Scheckner said, "and really she doesn't know what she is doing.

"If she would only be honest with herself and admit she doesn't know what she is doing, then she wouldn't have to tote the insides of the appliance to the serviceman," he added.

Scheckner also said many service calls to the home could be avoided if women were more alert.

"Many times I've seen a repairman come to the home with his tool chest in hand, only to turn the television around and put the plug into the set," he said. "If the woman had checked that first, she could have saved the repairman a trip and saved her husband some money."

Scheckner believes in starting at the beginning in his class, and the beginning is at the wall.

He progresses from the plug to the appliance in testing to see where the malfunction could be, ending with deciding whether to tear the appliance apart or send it to the repairman.

"The final decision really depends upon a women's ability," he said.

Scheckner's checklist includes:

—See if the cord is plugged into the wall and the appliance, especially if the cord is a separate item, and also if the switch is turned on.

—Check if the receptacle works. This can be done by plugging a lamp into each receptacle to see if there is "juice" in the circuit.

—Check the plug to see if the prongs are secure and the wires correctly wound around the inside screws.

—Check the cord for kink and breaks. Scheckner advises junking a worn or frayed fabric cord since such cords are found on the older appliances and the newer ones have the plastic for wires.

Decorated Legs Sparkle Colorfully This Year

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press Writer

For both mother and daughter, 1970 will be the leggiest season in years. Never has there been so much excitement in hosiery, especially since today's hosiery is not just leg covering but body covering and outerwear too.

On important evening occasions, today's "moon goddess" will wear a hooded, silver glitter bodysuit. The very contemporary moon siren will treat the bodysuit as a second skin, wearing it as is, with just a long pendant hanging from the neck, as an attention-getting accessory. Or, she'll team it with a short, swingy skirt for a two-piece ensemble.

The subtle, supple embroidered floral and zodiac designs on the instep or on the side of the leg in sheerest watery browns, gold and pales are very much part of today. Chiffons and crepes, the "in" fabrics for spring, especially take to the new subtle leg look.

Little girls can copy mother or sport their very own look. Can anything be more delicate on little legs than knee socks? Shiny solid, opaques, snowflake-like crochets in all the hose, look as fresh as newly fallen snow. And little girls have their own pantyhose, too! Their fuzzy wool panels are soft as cotton candy. Strips of lace in pales delight both mother and daughter.

Whatever the styling, color is everywhere—fir greens, Chinese reds, midnight blues, sparkling golds and frosty pastels, all bursting with high intensity. Strong, clear screen-printed designs of florals, geometrics and argyles do a super job of livening up an understated party dress.

Little legs and big legs alike will shine brightly this season.

Finger Code For Coeds

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (WNS)—Some Scandinavian coeds may not believe in marriage, but the new fad is to wear gold bands to indicate their romantic status of the mement, "It all depends upon which finger wears the ring," explained Elsie Menzel, 18. Current code: ring on index finger, hate a man; middle finger, want a man; third finger, have a man; little finger, not quite sure.

Be An Artful Seasoner With Spices And Herbs

Speices and herbs have added flavoring to food since the dawn of civilization. We often use the word "spice" in a very broad sense. We speak of the "spice shelf," or of "spices cookery." Here we mean any aromatic fresh or dried plant material added to food primarily for its flavor. But when we speak of "Spices and herbs," we use the term in a much more limited sense.

Spices are aromatic natural products which are the dried seeds, buds, fruit, flower parts, bark or roots of plants, usually of a tropical origin. For Examples: pepper (dried berry); cloves (dried, unopened flower buds); cinnamon (bark); and ginger (rootlike stem).

Herbs are the aromatic leaves and sometimes the flowers of plants. Examples include: "parsley, sage, rosemary, and thyme".

A seed is the aromatic, dried, small, whole fruits or seeds of plants. Examples are anise, caraway, and sesame.

At times spices may become infested by so-called "stored grain" insects such as the insects that attack flour and cornmeal. Members of the red pepper family and some of the dehydrated vegetables are particularly prone to inpestation.

The consumer who is interested in maintaining maximum quality on her spice shelf should observe the following points:

The container — A tightly closed, screw-cap glass jar is best. Cans and cartons are inexpensive and convenient but cannot be sealed or resealed.

The location — A cool, dry location away from bright light or sunlight is best. Enemies of flavor quality are heat, moisture, air and light in that order.

Under average conditions, one should expect to be able to keep whole spices for several years — almost indefinitely. Whole leaf herbs are somewhat less durable, and will lose their freshness in a year or two; color often fades sooner. Ground spices are seldom at their best after a year. Members of the red pepper family, red and chili pepper, paprika, and bell pepper flakes lose quality in 6 months.

Good seasoning is an art, but easy and fun to learn. The best flavor is one so smooth and well blended that individual flavor notes are hard to pick out or define. We have all heard some appreciative guest say, "My this is good. What is in it?" We can be certain that if the flavor were so strong or simple that he could tell what was in it, he would not have liked it as well.

There is no hard and fast rules for the use of spices. Two general hints:

—Experiment; be adventurous.

—Underseason, rather than overseason.

Beyond this, it is possible to list certain general groups of spices which possess flavors that lead themselves especially well to certain foods. Such a list suggests some likely uses, but every spice can be used much more broadly.

"Sweet" spices include all spice, cardamom, cinnamon, cloves, coriander, ginger, nutmeg and mace. Poppy and sesame seeds are in this group. Sweet spices go very well with pastries, fruit dishes, nuts, and ham. Of course, they can be used with good effect with many other foods besides these. Another group might be called "protein spices," since they are often used with meat, fowl, fish, egg, and bean dishes. This group includes red pepper, celery, chili powder, curry powder, marjoram, monsodium glutamate or MDG (which is not really a spice but a flavor enhacer), sage, mustard, poultry seasoning, thyme, and rosemary.

Salad herbs go especially well in salads and vegetable dishes. Basil, caraway celery, parsley, and tarragon are in this group.

A number of seeds are frequently used in baking breads and crackers. Caraway, poppy and sesame seeds are the most popular.

Several spices, herbs, and seeds are useful in so many ways that they belong to several groups. Among them are dehydrated onion and garlic, oregano, mace, marjoram, paprika, and of course, black pepper.

When astronauts speed into space, milk products go along for the ride. Cheese cake, custard, and peach and cottage cheese bars are among the items specially prepared for space travelers. Creamed soups and whole milk are also prepared in dry form.

Refusal Out Of The Question

Now that the county commissioners have belatedly informed the public that a referendum will be necessary to authorize necessary funds for operation of Pitt Comunity College, there is nothing for the public to do but give the tax a solid vote of approval.

Anything else at this point would be out of the question if Pitt County is to receive its full benefit from the technical institute which has proven so successful.

The county commissioners approved the referendum last Friday night, but neglected to tell the public, which must vote on the matter, until Tuesday morning when The Daily Reflector made an inquiry.

As we understand it, the vote is now considered necessary because the original authorization for Pitt Tech does not include broadening its responsibilities to include community college status.

Planning has been underway for sometime for Pitt Tech to open as Pitt Community College and Technical Institute next fall. Nothing should be allowed to interfere with these plans now. Pitt Tech authorities have frequently stated that community college status would not be allowed to interfere with the fine technical program now underway at the institution.

The important thing is that many Pitt County young people are now taking academic courses at Pitt Tech for which they cannot receive credit later if they decide to transfer to a four year college. Community college status would change this. If Pitt County is to keep faith these young men and women who are attending this institution then we must approve this tax levy on May 2. To do anything else would be to throw away years of planning and jeopardize the educations of many Pitt County young people.

We wonder how the county commissioners can be so unconcerned as to treat this manner in, at best, an unannounced and, at worst, a secret meeting. As frequently happens, however, we feel that the public will run ahead of its elected leaders and recognize the importance of this referendum. We believe the issue will be approved overwhelmingly by Pitt County voters.

Final Decision Is Up To The Board Itself

While the board of education has done well to call for public views on future plans for the city's junior high school, we still must remember that the final decision will have to be made by the board itself.

The decision will be made after the public has had its say, HEW has had theirs, and any court orders have been received.

The board is now considering three courses:

—operation of two junior highs, one at Aycock and the other at a remodeled Eppes.

—operation of two junior highs, one at Aycock and the other at South Greenville.

—operation of one junior high at Aycock.

We hope that the board will listen to all citizens who want to be heard on this manner. But in the long run it may be that there will be no concensus of public opinion, or that what the public wants simply will not fit legal requirements. In any case it will still be the board's final decision.

Adds Honor To Payne Farmers

(Today's guest column was written for the N. C. Association of Afternoon Dailies by Neil Greene, of the Hickory Daily Record.)

By NEIL GREENE

TAYLORSVILLE — When it comes to farming, Larry W. Payne of Taylorsville, Route Three, is no johnny - come - lately.

The 35 - year - old Payne comes from a long line of farmers and has added another honor to the Payne farmers by being named the 1969 Outstanding Young Farmer in North Carolina.

He had been chosen as Alexander County's Outstanding Young Farmer by the Taylorsville Jaycees in mid - January, and was entered in the state - wide competition at Goldsboro Jan. 31.

In competition with more than 50 farmers, Payne received a cash award of $150, and will be entered in the national competition in Belleville, Illinois, the first week in April. The state event was sponsored by the North Carolina Jaycees, Carolina Power and Light Company, Duke Power Company, and Virginia Electric and Power Company.

He was cited for his 16 years of progressive farming, but quickly says, "I've been a farmer as long as I can remember. Even when I was very young, I never considered doing anything else. And if any honors have come to me, they belong as much to my wife and two sons, as to me."

He is married to the former Shelby Sigmon, and their two teenage sons are Terry and Tim.

Payne is dairy, poultry and grain farmer in partnership with his father, Woodrow Payne, and his brother, Don. In 1957, the father's farm was cited as a Master Farm by the North Carolina Extension Service and the Progressive Farmer, and numerous other awards have been presented to his parents for their outstanding farm and community work.

"Although I own only 107 acres of farmland, our total acreage in partnership is 500 acres," Paynes said. "Of course, not all of it is under cultivation, since our cattle must have grazing space."

The Paynes milk 100 head of Jersey cattle daily, and are producers for Biltmore Dairies. Although the milking is done by machine, the process still requires three hours of milking time.

Their poultry is the special project of Mrs. Payne. They have 12,000 broilers every eight weeks, and Mrs. Payne spends about two hours daily with the feeding and care of the chicks. Automatic feeders make the chores easy, and Mrs. Payne finds she has sufficient time for her other household duties, and her knitting and reading.

Each year the Paynes produce about 6,000 bushels of grain, mostly corn, oats and barley. The grain is used primarily for their cattle.

Terry and Tim are well acquainted with farm work, performing specified chores daily. Both boys have their own cattle and have won a number of blue ribbons in 4-H shows, and in county fairs.

A 1952 graduate of Hiddenite High School. Payne compiled an impressive record in 4-H work while he was in school. He joined the 4-H Club when he was nine years old, and held every office on the local level. He also held many offices on both the district and national levels, and was a delegate to the National Camp in Washington, D. C., In 1953.

Members of the Hiddenite United Methodist Church, the Paynes are active in church and community projects. Payne is a member of the Taylorsville Jaycees, having held several offices. He is also a member of the Alexander County Hospital board of directors, and a director of the Davie Electric Membership Corporation. In addition, he serves on the North Carolina Agriculture Foundation, and was chairman of June Dairy Month in 1969.

Payne's parents live on the farm in the family's "home place," built about 90 years ago by his grandparents. The home has been remodeled several times into a modern farm residence, and is somewhat of a show place in the area.

All of the vast machinery used on the farm is the most modern, and is constantly being added to in order to operate the farm more efficiently.

A Polite 'No' Set By Nixon

By ROWLAND EVANS and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — The basic reason President Nixon is about to reject Israel's request for new jet aircraft, a move bound to have the most unpleasant political ramifications, is his finding that Israeli air superority in the Middle East is now so overwhelming it does not need them.

That decision does not mean Mr. Nixon will refuse to augment Israel's inventory with a few more F-4 Phantoms and A-4 Skyhawks, to be sold on generous financial terms. But the number — if any — will be far below the plea for 50 Phantoms (now scaled down to a formal request for 25) and 80 to 100 A-4 Skyhawks.

What has held up the President's announcement is not the lack of decision. That was reached several days ago. The delay is a direct result of the difficulty faced inside the White House and State Department on how to draft the denial in terms least offensive to Prime Minister Golda Meir's government.

Almost as important to Presidential wordsmiths is the reaction among the powerful bloc of pro- Israeli voters in the U. S., who are led by but not confined to the American Jewish community. Leading political figures within this pro- Israeli bloc are convinced that the wording of Mr. Nixon's decision is crucial to avoid a savagely anti-Nixon reaction.

Barring some last second change the gist of what Mr. Nixon will say is this: he stands on the basic policy enunciated Jan. 25 that the U. S. is "maintaining a careful watch on the relative strength of the forces and will not hesitate to provide arms to friendly states as the need arises."

The "need" has not yet arisen— a finding reached after exhaustive studies and meetings by Presidential advisers headed by Dr. Henry Kissinger, White House national security aide, Under Secretary of State Elliot Richardson, and Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard. Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, also sat in on the half-dozen or so top secret sessions.

Their aim was twofold: to analyze the present air strength of Israel and the Arab states and to project political reaction in the Arab states if Israel were sold all the aircraft requested.

On Israel's air strength, the Kissinger - Richardson - Packard task force decided that present deliveries to Israel of the F-4 Phantom, under former President Johnson's commitment to sell 50, are more than adequate to handle attrition of the Israeli force. These deliveries started last fall at the rate of about five a month and are on schedule.

Moreover, based on intelligence from the Soviet Union, this panel also ruled out any chance of Egypt receiving late-model Soviet MIG 23-fighters which are just starting in production and are earmarked for the Soviet Union's own squadrons.

Finally, they dedided that Israeli air supremacy is guaranteed for the foreseeable future because of the superiority of the F-4 and of the subsonic A-4 over their Soviet counterparts.

This specifically includes any power - balance switch from the projected sale of more than 100 Mirages to Libya by France. It is unlikely that these planes, not

Strength For Today

Past, Present and Future

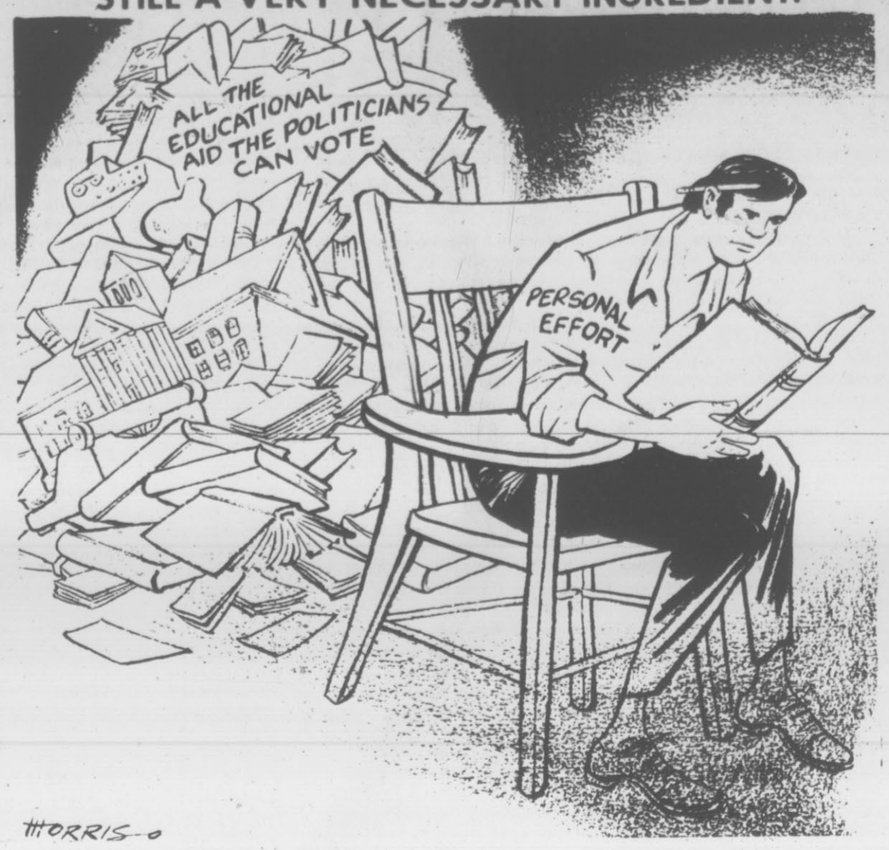

Some of us who regard ourselves as oldsters had a wonderful hour of enjoyment some time ago over a program called "The Golden Age of the Automobile." We laughed over the electrics that were designed to make it possible for ladies to drive a car. The old Stanley Steamer that couldn't move until it had twenty minutes of boiling was something that made us ask, "Why gasoline?" Those of us who were watching got particular satisfaction out of the so-called Tin Lizzie. People said that Henry Ford was crazy. He raised wages and brought down the price of his machine so that the men who worked on these machines would eventually have money enough to buy one. But while the wise-acres said Ford was crazy, his dream was gradually becoming true. People said that the end of the automobile was in sight. The confounded machine scared horses and sensible people were not going to put up with such nonsense much longer. We all remembered a large city park into which automobiles were not allowed to enter. People were particularly furious about a nasty little buggy that left a trail of smoke behind it and was called "Cadillac." A hundred - mile trip without a blow-out was unthinkable.

Maybe within fifty years everyone will have a helicopter, and houses will be built with flat roofs as a landing - place for the monster.

Prophecy? Yes. If the day ever comes when everybody has a helicopter, then prohibition will return. You don't want to be killed in your sleep, do you?

STILL A VERY NECESSARY INGREDIENT!

By ART BUCHWALD

For A Silent Majority

WASHINGTON — A friend of mine named Bill Rabe, who lives in Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich., heads a very successful phonograph company called Hush. Where Rabe's company differs with others is that the Hush label specializes in the recording of silent records. Realizing that as other companies raised the decibels of their records there would be a great market for silence, Rabe has been successfully recording silent records under the Hush label since 1960.

His first golden record which sold over a million copies was "Calvin Coolidge Speaks" which had on the other side of the label "More of Greta Garbo." Rabe followed up this silent LP with "Wall Street Cheering Herbert Hoover After the Stock Market Crash."

Every year, Rabe has put out three or four silent records that have been played and appreciated by Americans all over this country.

This year, Rabe has just issued a new release that could be the biggest hit Hush records ever had. It is titled "The Silent Majority" and has been recorded on LP as well as tape. Rabe and his brilliant staff of sound engineers traveled all over the country to get the exact silence necessary for each cut on the label. "The Silent Majority" is not only an electronic marvel, but an inspirational triumph as well. It could, with the proper playing by disk jockeys, become the biggest seller since "My Fair Lady."

I spoke to Rabe by telephone and he told me that Hush label was working day and night to meet the orders.

"I believe our timing was perfect. The Silent Majority wanted to hear themselves on records, and if I must say so myself the silence on this particular record is deafening."

"Where did you record 'The Silent Majority'?" I asked him.

"We went everywhere, but we still found the best quality of silence to be in Washington, D. C. For example, the first cut on the record is titled 'The State Department Explaining Our Commitment in Laos.' It's a silent triumph.

"We also recorded 'Civil Rights Leaders Listening to a Speech by Spiro Agnew,' 'The Pentagon at the Senate Defending Lockheed Overruns' and 'Strom Thurmond's Attack on the People Who Overturned the School Buses in Lamar, S. C.'"

"You certainly got some great silence there," I said.

"That isn't the half of it," Rabe said. "We recorded Atty. Gen. Mitchell when he was told his wife had just appeared on CBS television."

"But he was speechless."

"Exactly. We got it all on the record, as well as three minutes of 'The Wit and Warmth of Martha Mitchell.'"

"What other silences did you record?"

"We believe we got a wonderful cut of Lawrence O'Brien when he was told the Democratic Party owed $9 million, but we could never get Hubert Humphrey to stay quiet long enough to record

Other Editors Say 'Shock Tactics'

(Jacksonville Daily News)

Ohio educators have been accused of adopting "shock tactics" to force voters to approve more school taxes.

In its simplest form, the tactic involves forcing a local school board to grant immediate teacher pay raises which the system cannot afford. The taxpayers are then warned that the schools are in desperate financial trouble. If this fails to move them to vote for higher school taxes, the schools actually go broke and close down. No picket lines are needed.

This happened in Youngstown, Ohio, where in 1968 the school system closed its doors to 28,000 students when it ran out of money. After having defeated a tax levy six consecutive times, voters finally approved it.

The charge is true, says William E. Henry, director of Information Services of the Ohio Education Association.

"Shock tactic . . . coercion . . . call it what you may, the simple truth is that closed schools bring tremendous pressure on taxpayers of the community to vote more money for school operation," he writes in Today's Education, official journal of the National Education Association.

He denies, however, that it is a plot by teachers to bankrupt the school districts. Rather it is because they are concerned about quality education.

Teachers are weary of "subsidizing" the schools by foregoing salary increases and by accepting larger classes and making do with outmoded teaching materials and out-of - date textbooks.

"Rather than mislead the public that teaching and learning can continue under such circumstances," says Henry, "today's teacher, backed by his professional associations, has taken a stand. He has said, in effect, that he will not operate an inadequate program."

It is indeed a pity that reasoned presentations of a school's needs and dispassionate pleas for funds so often fail to impress the taxpayers. But while "shock tactics" have their uses, they also have their limitations. The public has a famous capacity for getting numb to shock.

Luxury Market Not Yet Hurt

By ELMER ROESSNER

While layoffs and fears of more to come appear to have slowed retail buying by the middle class, sales are holding up well in the luxury market.

The Department of Commerce's preliminary estimate for all retail sales in February showed a slight gain, the Department itself questioned the accuracy and announced that it was suspending its preliminary reports until a better sample is devised.

Meanwhile, the sales of diamonds, furs and other high-priced items go merrily on.

Michael Thomas, dapper 44-year - old president of Cartier, Inc., reports that sales of fine watches, diamonds and jewelry were never better. "We are at the top of the luxury market and from our vantage point things look good," he said. However, he said the market is changing.

"For example, diamonds won't sell themselves today, as they have done in years past. You have to sell them. But people are still buying diamonds for their beauty, their intrinsic value and their investment value. It was Cartier that sold the 69-carat diamond that Richard Burton bought for Elizabeth Taylor.

While At Tiffany's

Tiffany's, a few blocks up Fifth Avenue, reports that while the number of sales are up this year, the size of individual sales is smaller. "The $50,000 and $100,000 sales are fewer this year," said Fernham Lefferts, Tiffany president.

"People in general are more aware and desirous of quality," he added. "For example, men and women who were once satisfied with a plain leather strap for their watches now are buying expensive brands or precious metals and jewels."

Meanwhile, Cartier's parent company, Kenton Corp., which also owns such luxury establishments as Valentino high fashions, Ben Kahn furs, George Kaplan furs, Kenneth J. Lane costume jewelry and Mark Cross leather goods, reports all divisions are running ahead of last year.

Morton A. Lippman, president of Audemars Piguet Watch Co., which makes the world's most expensive watches, reports that it is easier to sell a $30,000 watch today than a $100 watch.

"We are keeping pace with normal sales of higher - priced models while selling more of the lower - range watch. A lower - range watch, kids, costs between $3,000 and $4,000."

"The luxury market remains steady even in most difficult times," he added.

High Fashion Affected

However, there has been some weakening in high-fashion sales. When Bergdorf Goodman closed its custom salon last May, Andrew Goodman said, "Everyone is much more conscious of worldwide problems and being overly extravagant is in poor taste as of the moment."

One fashion designer commented, "The rich are feeling a little guilty about being rich."

A Bonwit Teller executive said, "Women who are accustomed to wearing expensive clothing are still buying them. But instead of buying five, they may now buy four."

And Rolls Royce, asked if sales were slowed by the current recession, replied, "What recession?"

Looking Back To Then

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The human mind is the most tremendous theater on earth.

On its inner state great dramas of memory and fantasy are endlessly played ... days of ordeal and glory ... moments magical ... times palled by tragedy or made luminous by love.

Even in sleep that stage is never quite empty. For even in dreams we still imagine and remember. No manmade theater, however vast, could hold the actors and scenic backgrounds that flit second by second through the three-pound human brain.

Your own inner stage is well supplies with memories of places and faces if you can look back and remember when—

If an old-timer complained he wasn't feeling up to snuff, he didn't have to explain to the youngsters what snuff was.

A child's first reaction to a parental order was to obey it, not challenge it.

More Americans were awakened by the cock-a-doodle-doo of a rooster than the ring-a-ling-a'ling of an alarm clock.

It was a rare week that went by without a fellow seeing at least one dog fight in the streets. The usual way to break it up was to throw water on them and dampen their battle ardor.

You could buy a pound of hamburger for a dime and a bottle of catsup for a nickel.

The German Kaiser Wilhelm was regarded as mankind's worst villain—until Adolf Hitler came along and made him look like a philamthropist.

One of earth's greatest certainties in a good Catholic family was that, whatever might be set on the table on Friday, it wouldn't be meat.

A plumber had a hard time making a living.

If you asked a stranger what time it was, he reached for his watch pocket instead of glancing at his wrist.

It was taken for granted in a small town that if a girl went away to college she must have felt she was too homely to win a husband and had decided to become a schoolteacher.

A married housewife could call up an employment agency and hire a good reliable maid—just like that.

If a fellow had trouble with his eyeglasses, he could go to the dime store and pick out a pair that didn't make him squint.

Those were the days. Remember?

New Audio-Visual Aids For Library At Rose High

GIVING POINTERS . . . to the ladies, Allen Smith shows Mrs. Leigh Ledbetter, Colene Kelley, Mrs. Jean Creech, and Susie Hill the proper operation of the movie projector.

The newest student-aid at Rose High School is a group of audio-visual aids which have been installed in the expanded facilities of the school library.

Mrs. Leigh Ledbetter, in charge of the Audio-Visual Aids Section, says: "After the recent renovation of the library, we now have sufficient room to use the equipment as it should be used."

Noting that the microfilm machine was the one item they had on hand from last year, Mrs. Ledbetter pointed out that now, because of NDEA funds, this section includes a listening center with a record player combined with a film strip projector; another record player listening post with earphones; a film strip previewer; a 16 millimeter movie projector with screen, and the microfilm machine.

Mrs. Jean Creech, whose World History Class is a good example of the classes of students making use of the new equipment, remarked: "During the day students are constantly using the equipment of help them in their studies. There are always one, two, or more students making use of these items to help them in their studies."

"Teachers use this equipment too," Mrs. Ledbetter commented. "It's a wonderful means for them to prepare future lesson plans as it enables them to make use of newer materials which could not be utilized without this equipment."

Allen Smith, a young student teacher from East Carolina University, is currently on hand to help the students learn the mechanics of operating the equipment. He was busy showing boys and girls from the World History class the simple operating procedures necessary to operate the audio-visual aids.

ADJUSTMENTS . . . are made by ECU student teacher Allen Smith on headphones worn by Brenda Moye as Sydnor Bailey listens on a different type earphone at one of the two listening centers.

Industrial Arts In Four Pitt Schools

Three Greenville City Schools and one Pitt County School are four of the 218 public schools in North Carolina with Industrial Arts Courses.

Rose High School and the two junior high schools — Eppes and Aycock, in Greenville, and the Robinson Union School in Winterville are the four schools offering courses in Industrial Arts.

Dr. Craig Phillips, Superintendent of Public Instruction for North Carolina, stated "Industrial Arts in the Middle Grades contributes meaningful activity to the regular school program by providing laboratory experiences of an industrial - technological nature. It is an essential part of the basic educational program for both boys and girls."

Another state official, Dr. Charles Law, director of the Division of Occupational Education, said that the courses, "which include drawing and planning, wood technology, metal technology, electricity and electronics, graphics, power technology and industrial crafts, are offered to approximately 25,000 students from kindergarten through the twelfth grade thoughout the state."

Activities through organized laboratory experiences provide youth with an understanding of their own interests, abilities, limitations and opportunities that help them in their efforts to make satisfactory adjustments as producers and consumers of products and services. Such a program provides practical experience in the use of many of the tools, materials, products and processes used in a technological society, as well as provide occupational orientation and exploration that may contribute to an individual's place in the world of work.

due for first deliveries until 1971, will go straight to Egypt. Even if they did, the President's advisers are convinced they are not a factor for the foreseeable future.

Such hardheaded appraisals are the basis of the President's decision. Although some of his top advisors were furious ten days ago over the American Jewish protests against visiting President Pompidou of France, there is no evidence that this was a significant factor in denying the jets to Israel.

As for foreign policy, the Presidential panel decided that if Mr. Nixon met Israel's request it could destroy the last frayed links between the U. W. and the Arab states, particularly Egypt. This is especially true with the Phantoms, which Israel can use to penetrate air space far over Egypt and which Egypt claims has vastly more range and offensive weaponry than neeeded for self - defense.

The new aircraft that Mr. Nixon does decide to sell Israel will be financed on much easier terms than the first batch of 50 Phantoms.

The Nixon administration will take other steps to ease Israel's economic plight.

"Did you record Daniel Moynihan's reaction when reporters told him that his phrase urging the President to use 'benign neglect' in dealing with the blacks had been made public?"

"No, we passed that one up, though we did record President Nixon alone in the Oval Room trying to decide whether Texas or Penn State had the number one football team in the country."

Rabe said he was proudest of the last part of his record. He said he recorded 5,000 members of the Silent Majority shaking their heads while watching Huntley and Brinkley on television.

Ethel Accepts RFK Portrait

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — A portrait of Robert F. Kennedy by a motor company repairman who paints on the side has been accepted by the senator's widow, Ethel Kennedy.

The artist, Miland Black, said he had sent her a photograph of the painting, which shows Kennedy looking at a world globe.

He said Mrs. Kennedy told him the portrait would hang in the Kennedy home at McLean, Va., and eventually would be given to one of her children.

June Allyson Is Given Divorce

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — The seven-year, sometimes stormy marriage of actress June Allyson and Glenn Maxwell has been dissolved by Superior Court decree.

Judge Byron K. McMillian granted the divorce Tuesday and approved the settlement of about $3,000 in debts, most of which Miss Allyson agreed to pay.

She flew from New York to testify there were irreconcilable differences between her and Maxwell, 43.

Miss Allyson, 46, married Maxwell, a men's hair stylist in nearby Newport Beach, after the death of her previous husband, actor-director Dick Powell.

Uncover Complex Of VC Caves Near Da Nang

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines exploded charges of CS riot gas in a vast complex of caves they discovered near Da Nang to prevent the enemy from using them, Marine officers said today.

Some of the caves, in the Que Son mountains 35 miles southwest of Da Nang, are 15 feet high and more than 200 feet long. Officers said they are large enough to hide 400 to 500 soldiers.

Associated Press correspondent David Rosenzweig reported from Landing Zone Ross, the nearest Marine base, four miles from the caves that officers believe 40 North Vietnamese soldiers used the caves to escape Sunday when Marines arrived in the area.

By filling the passageways with the tear-gas-like CS, the Marines hope the hideout will be uninhabitable for several months.

The Que Son mountain range is pocked with hundreds of natural caves and tunnels formed over the years by rockslides. The Viet Cong have charted them and know them well.

Some of the caves are known to have been used in the French-Indochina war, which ended in 1954.

But after three days of searching, the Marines have failed to find the enemy troops.

"There are probably exits to those caves we will never find," said one officer. "The best thing we can do is deny them access for a while."

Battlefield communiques issued in Saigon today reported that three Americans were killed and four were wounded in an enemy attack on a 173rd Airborne Brigade Camp 38 miles northwest of Qui Nhon.

The paratroopers called in reinforcements and helicopter gunships, the U.S. Command said, but there was no word on enemy casualties in the 7½-hour battle.

U.S. 25th Infantry Division troops reported killing six enemy soldiers in a brief skirmish northwest of Saigon, about five miles east of the Cambodian border. U.S. losses were listed as one killed and five wounded.

In another action along the border, one American and 10 enemy soldiers were killed in a half-hour fight between U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division and North Vietnamese forces, spokesman said.

About two miles to the north, helicopter gunships of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment sighted the bodies of 13 enemy soldiers killed in an earlier air strike and killed two more in the same area.

The U.S. Command said an Army OH6 light observation helicopter was hit by enemy ground fire and crashed in Kien Giang Province Tuesday. Two Americans aboard were reported wounded.

NO DIFFERENCE

LONDON (UPI)—The only difference between a brown and a white egg is the color of the shell but Britain's largest poultry firm has spent 25,000 pounds ($600,000) breeding a chicken which will lay the darker variety.

"For some reason housewives insist the egg be brown," said Roger Mills, director of Sykes International. "We spent six years perfecting a bird to meet the requirements although there's not a speck of difference between a white and a brown egg."

Airliner Safely Landed By Pilot After Shot By Hijacker

BOSTON (AP) — A pilot shot in both arms landed an airliner with 73 persons aboard after a mile-high cockpit struggle Tuesday night left the copilot dead and a passenger seriously wounded.

The slain flier was James E. Hartley, 31, of Fort Lee, N.J.

Under police guard in a hospital was John J. DiVivo, 27, of West New York, N.J., identified by police as the gunman. He had two wounds in the arms and one in the abdomen.

Passengers reported there was no panic aboard the plane after the shots were fired.

An Eastern Airlines spokesman said a struggle for the gun broke out after the passenger told the pilot, Capt. Robert Wilbur Jr., 35, of Fairlawn, N.J.: "Take me east."

The plane was then a mile high over the town of Franklin, about 30 miles south of Boston, making its final approach to Logan International Airport after a flight from Newark, N.J.

When the airliner landed a stewardess went to the cockpit, where she saw the copilot slumped in his seat, the passenger lying on the floor and Wilbur taxiing the plane toward the airport terminal buildings.

"My pilot is shot—shot," Wilbur radioed the control tower. "Where the hell do you want me to park this thing?"

At Massachusetts General Hospital both DiVivo and Wilbur were said to be in satisfactory condition.

An airline spokesman said the passenger had told the senior stewardess Christine Peterson, that he had no money to pay his fare—normally collected in the air on such shuttle flights—and wanted to see the pilot.

Miss Petersen said the man drew a pistol and she led him to the cockpit door and told Wilbur the man wanted to see him.

"I'm busy," said Wilbur.

"You don't understand, he has a gun," Miss Petersen said.

She said the pilot then told her to bring the man in and to go back and tell the passengers everything was all right.

The struggle for the gun, the airline spokesman said, broke out after Miss Petersen left the cockpit.

In West New York, police said DiVivo had been working as a short order cook and had been living with his mother and sister.

Raleigh Office Proposes City Abandon Facilities At Eppes

A recommendation that C. M. Eppes facilities be abandoned for instructional purposes for the 1970-71 school year and that all students in grades 7-9 be housed at the E. B. Aycock site for the immediate future, was received from the division of School Planning in Raleigh.

The letter, to Superintendent Dr. C. C. Cleetwood from J. L. Pierce, director of the State Division of School Planning, made this recommendation following a study conducted by a six-member survey committee, consisting of Robert A. Pittillo, Howard Reinhardt, Lacy Presnell, Ben D. Quinn, Rolf Seifert, and Pierce.

The committee spent one day in Greenville, at the request of the Greenville City Board of Education and the superintendent. The survey they conducted involved the total administrative unit but with special consideration for the organization and housing for the junior high school grades.

Other school usage recommendations made by the committee were:

—That the J. H. Rose Senior High School continue to serve grades 10-12 for the entire school system (unit).

—That the present seven elementary schools — Agnes Fullilove, Eastern Elementary, Elmhurst, Sadie Saulter, South Greenville, Third Street and Wahl-Coates be used for elementary grades.

The report added "in the event . . . permanent facilities will be insufficient, the committee suggests the use of available mobile units or temporary facilities as needed.

The final recommendation contained in the letter touched on long range plans. "During the next two to three years the Board of Education should study carefully the pupil population trends. If evidence develops that pupil population will begin to increase appreciably, the board should be prepared to consider construction of a second junior high school to generally serve the western and southern areas of the district.

"When and if the need for this move is indicated, we suggest consideration be given to the following organizational pattern: kindergarten through fifth grade elementary schools; sixth through ninth grade junior high schools; and one senior high school, grades 10 through 12."

New Tire Plant In Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) —Kelly-Springfield Tire Co., the builder of a new plant in Fayetteville only one year ago, announced plans Tuesday to construct a second one which will employ 1,500 persons.

The new plant, to be 1.5 million square feet, is expected to fully staffed by the spring of 1972.

'Unacceptable' Plans Offered By 19 School Systems In State

The Greenville City School system is one of 19 units in North Carolina with school plans ruled unacceptable in some detail, according to information released by the Division of Human Relations in Raleigh.

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, presented a compilation of the status of 157 school units throughout North Carolina on which the Division of Human Relations had furnished information.

"We are among the 19 units whose plans are being negotiated with HEW and the Office of General Counsel," Dr. Cleetwood stated.

The list of the other 18 units in the same category as Greenville schools shows a major portion of them located in the eastern part of the state. It includes the Eastern North counties of Camden, Currituck, Edgecombe, Martin, Nash, Pasquotank, and Wilson, as well as the towns of Goldsboro, Kinston, Elizabeth City, Rocky Mount, Tarboro and Wilson.

Piedmont and Western schools with plans in negotiation are: Burlington, Greensboro, Raleigh; and the counties of Guilford, Robeson and Rutherford.

Five other categories of current status groupings within North Carolina at this time shows:

—37 units with acceptable voluntary compliance plans in effect two or more years;

—12 units with acceptable voluntary compliance plans effected in the fall of 1968;

—34 units with acceptable voluntary compliance plans effected in the fall of 1969;

—21 units with acceptable voluntary compliance plans to be effected in the fall of 1970; and

—34 units following court ordered plans. These are chiefly county schools except for High Point, Asheville, Tryon and since last week, Greensboro.

This status report shows that 104, or more than two thirds of the schools in this study, are operating or will begin operating by the beginning of the 1970 school year, under voluntary plans which have proven acceptable.

Requests Being Met

GREENSBORO (AP) — Dr. Grimsley T. Hobbs, president of Guilford College, has told black students that some of their requests — such as a Negro culture center and more Negro teachers — are being met —and others are being studied.

The requests were made last week by the Brothers and Sisters in Blackness (BASIB).

Hobbs told the students Tuesday that two offices will be opened for the establishment of the culture center, and that the college is trying to recruit Negro teachers. But competition among colleges for such teachers is great, he said.

The students also had asked for a list of all campus job openings and a guarantee of an average grade of C for Negro students.

Hobbs said the minimum grades request would be studied by the faculty and every attempt would be made to assist Negro students in their studies. The list of jobs also will be provided, he said.

She Still Plans To Try Raise Tiny Bear Cub

By STEVE MOORE
Associated Press Writer

THOMPSON FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Mrs. Leslie Hodges admits there "may be a tussle," what with the Siamese cat and all, but she's still planning to raise the 8-inch long baby black bear her husband recently brought home saying, "Here's your Valentine present."

He weighs 1½ pounds. His eyes still are closed. Now and then he sleeps with a Siamese cat.

"At first the cat's nose was out of joint half a foot—wouldn't have anything to do with it. Now they get along, but I don't know what'll happen when his eyes open," said Mrs. Hodges.

The cub is one of two found recently by Dick Vinson, a logger who ranches near this northwest Montana community just east of the Idaho border.

"I felled this big tree and the mother came right out of the stump. It was hollow," said Vinson. "Scared hell out of me and hit me on the leg with a paw."

He ran one way; the bear the other.

The cubs were in the bottom of the stump, squealing because their winter den had been invaded.

Vinson said if he hadn't taken care of them they would have frozen. The mother bear didn't return that day or the next.

Mrs. Vinson and Mrs. Hodges each decided to rear one of the cubs.

"The formula now is a mixture of half canned milk, half water and a dab of honey--all in a baby bottle," said Vinson.

"We have wild bears all the time so we just as well have one of our own breaking the limbs," said Mrs. Hodges, referring to the 200 apple trees on the family ranch near Thompson Falls along the Clark Fork River.

"He looks just like a pup. It's my husband you know--he's the one likes it the most ... Gets down on the floor and tries to play with it and it kicks and scratches and bites just like a little puppy," Mrs. Hodges said.

In both cases, the bears are rather well off. Both sleep in boxes lined with heating pads, pillows and blankets. There's a cat for added warmth and a fully wound clock in one box.

Patricia Vinson said she's not really looking too far into the bear's future. "We just want to keep her and aren't thinking about turning her over to a zoo."

The female the Vinsons are rearing is the largest of the two. She measures about 10 inches, not including the tail—which the male cub is minus.

"I don't anticipate any real problems—we have bears on the land all the time. This way it will be fun," Mrs. Vinson said.

Vinson said there's now a steady stream of people coming to the ranch to see the cub.

"I've never seen one this small before and neither has anyone I've talked to around here," he said.

Neither family has specific plans for house breaking the cubs. Mature black bears generally weigh between 200 and 300 pounds.

New Curator Of Museum Announced

RALEIGH (AP) —Charles W. Stanford Jr., curator of education and director of the North Carolina Museum of Art's Gallery for the Blind, will become director of the Museum April 1 succeeding Dr. Justus Bier.

The museum trustees voted 6-3 Tuesday to promote Stanford to the $19,420-a-year post. He now receives $14,844 in his twin job. Bier will become director emeritus and curator of the new division of research.

Egbert Davis Jr. of Winston-Salem, chairman of the selection committee, presented the majority report containing Stanford's name. Others on the committee were Mrs. James Semans of Durham, Dr. Joseph Sloane of Chapel Hill, Mrs. L. Y. Ballentine and State Treasurer Edwin Gill, both of Raleigh.

Sloane offered a minority report representing himself in which he said, "We (ought) to do everything we can to get an external appointment ... We have serious staff problems and since we do, it seems to me unwise to find our new director from within those problems."

Sloane also said he felt "the internal affairs of our museum are such that there is imperative need for a fresh approach, a fresh sense of purpose, a fresh personality to guide it."

Stanford, a native of Chapel Hill and a graduate of the University of North Carolina, came to the museum in 1958. He has won wide recognition as the originator and director of the museum's Gallery for the Blind, the first of its kind.

Agrees Rehire The 'Best Men'

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — Cicero Fowler, owner of the Post Exchange barbering concession at Ft. Bragg, says he will rehire striking barbers only if they are "the best ones."

Fowler won the concession through bids last month. He said he has hired about 20 non-union barbers to work for less than the striking barbers had demanded.

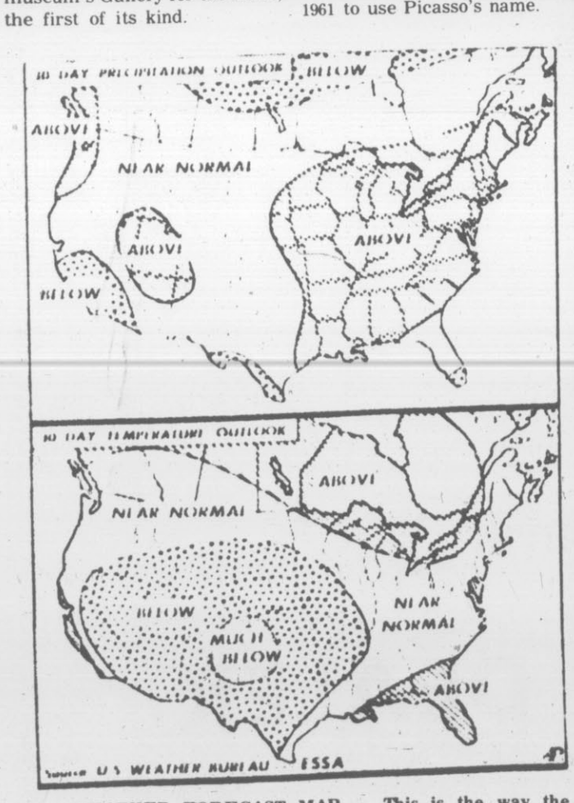

One meeting has been held between him and the unionize strikers.

Picasso's Son Seeks Legality

GRASSE, France (AP) — Claude Picasso, 22-year-old illegitimate son of artist Pablo Picasso, has asked a court to hold that the painter is legally his father.

The 89-year-old artist's attorney argued Tuesday that Picasso was still married to his first wife, Olga, when Claude's mother, Francoise Gilot, bore him. Under French law, a man cannot recognize paternity of children born of an adulterous relationship.

Claude and his sister Paloma, now 20, won the right in court in 1961 to use Picasso's name.

Bomb Explodes At High School

Greenville police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation are investigating the explosion of a small, homemade explosive device ignited on the second floor of Rose High School yesterday morning.

The explosion, which scattered fragments over a wide area of the second floor hallway, followed an anonymous telephone call reporting a bomb was set to go off in the building at 1 p.m., according to Police Chief T.E. Gladson.

An unidentified caller at 10:12 a.m. reported a bomb would explode in the school at 1 p.m., and officers were enroute to the building when the homemade bomb went off at 10:25 a.m., the police chief explained.

Thr "bomb," according to investigators was made from a small plastic bottle (about two inches high and one and one-fourth inches in diameter) that had been filled with shot (about number four, six and eight) taken from shotgun shells. A cherry bomb-type firecracker had then been inserted in the bottle and the bottle wrapped with black electrical tape.

The device had been placed against a wall near the audio-visual aids room door and a cardboard box placed against it to conceal it.

When the device exploded, it blew a hole in the box and scattered shotgun pellets over the hallway floor for some 15 feet.

There were no students in the hallway at the time of the explosion and no one was injured, Chief Gladson noted.

KILLED IN ACTION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense department has announced that Army Sgt. Harry L. Cearnel of Hurdle Mills in Person County, N. C., has been killed in action in the Vietnam war.

Mrs. Lillia Taylor Addresses Banquet

Mrs. Lillia Ringold Taylor, a retired teacher noted for having taught in the elementary schools of Pitt County and in Greenville for nearly half a century, was the guest speaker at the recent District Number 6 Order of the Eastern Star Annual Banquet.

Mrs. Taylor, who retired in 1968 after teaching for 46 years, is an active member of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church and also takes part in work of three church clubs. She helped to organize five United Orders of Tents, is a Past Matron of Ladies Delight Chapter Number Ten, Order of the Eastern Star, and is a member of the Matrons Council.

Speaking on the subject, "Today's Challenges," Mrs. Taylor told her audience "today we are urged to accept various and many challenges by laying aside the old methods and accepting the new..... let us meet the challenge of love by asking God to enrich our lives with more of his heavenly grace that we may not overcome evil with evil, but overcome evil with good."

Touching on the problems of young people today, Mrs. Taylor remarked: "We must sympathize with youths as they go through their present crisis. We must admire their courage, lead them to speak out for their needs, but to control their emotions."

Blackboards were first used in the United States at Rumford, Me. in 1814 by Samuel Read Hall.

Muskie Urges Change Of Priorities For Pollution

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, D - Maine, urged the nation Tuesday night to "a wholesale change in our priorities and our values" in the war on pollution.

"We must redefine our standard of living, reflecting the knowledge that both our human and natural resources are at stake," the 1968 Democratic vice presidential candidate said in a speech at a symposium on environmental problems at the University of North Carolina.

He proposed a four-point program to fight the war on pollution: political action, education, formation of a national survival corps, and a citizens lobby for environmental protection.

The war against pollution, Muskie said, "is a struggle with ourselves to put life ahead of comfort and convenience ..."

Under political action, "You must take your campaign where most of the important battles are fought — to the state and local levels," Muskie said.

He said the state and local agencies responsible for environment have "functioned in the abyss of public neglect ... If we destroy our environment through public neglect of the political process we will have only ourselves to blame."

Earlier, Abe Wolman, water resources expert from Johns Hopkins University, urged a coalition of "you and I and the government" in conserving America's open space wilderness and recreation areas.

Gov. Bob Scott told the symposium Tuesday that unless North Carolina and other states take the lead in controlling pollution problems, "we'll have additional federal controls imposed upon us."

"We at the state level have a responsibility" to deal with these problems, Scott said.

"It is our obligation to correct past mistakes and to set up safeguards for the future.

"We cannot eliminate pollution. But we can and should try to control pollution and to reduce it as much as possible."

He told the symposium preliminary reports indicate that state government is doing an excellent job in controlling its pollution problems. A committee is now compiling date on what government is doing to pollute the atmosphere.

"There are no cases of serious pollution of the air, water or landscape by state government which have not been identified or which are not in the process of being corrected," Scott said.

"Next, we will begin to detect and compile data on all sources of pollution in our environment," he added. "We have laws that definite standards of clean water, clean air and sanitation. These laws will be vigorously enforced."

The governor said he will ask the 1971 General Assembly "to appropriate the funds necessary to step up" the correction of pollution problems.

"We speak of the urgent need for 'law and justice' on our streets and in our slums," Scott said. "A need just as urgent is for 'law and justice' in our environment."

Special Course For Home Ec Teachers Set

The School of Home Economics at East Carolina University will offer a special course, Occupational Programs in Home Economics, to high school home economics teachers, beginning June 8.

The course, designed for home economics teachers who offer or plan to offer occupational training programs in their schools, ends June 29. Deadline for enrollment is May 1.

According to Dr. Vila Rosenfeld, chairman of the Department of Home Economics Education, the course has three objectives: to help prepare participants for teaching in occupational training programs concentrating on the Child Care Services or Food Service Clusters; to provide an opportunity for participants to select and organize teaching materials for teaching in occupational training programs; and to provide experience in planning for and working in laboratory situations in child care and food services.

Home economics teachers must be currently enrolled at ECU or be admitted before May 1. Tuition and fees will be $59.00 for in-state residents and $156.00 for non-residents of N. C.

For further information contact Dr. Vila Rosenfeld, Chairman, Home Economics Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Travel-Adventure Film Set Thursday

The next to the last Travel-Adventure Film os the East Carolina University series is to be presented Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. at Wright Auditorium.

"Incredible Iceland", filmed by Robert C. Davis, pictures the easternmost country of Europe, the large island which brings to mind the thought of new constant winter.

David explores the island by plane, boat, jeep and on foot to show the wild rock formations, spectacular waterfalls, the magnificant glaciers, some of the island's almost 200 volcanoes, as well as the hot springs, the Great Geyser and the strange lava fields.

One of the most democratic of nations, the proud people in 1930 celebrated the 1,000th anniversary of the Althing, which is the name of their parliament, the oldest in the world.

It is one of the few old civilizations to maintain the purity of its original language, although English and Danish are taught along with the native Icelandic language.

Its population of about 200,000 is located mostly in the vicinity of Reykjavik, the capital, and along the southern coastline strip.

Admission to the film is by season ticket or by individual admission ticket which cost $1.00 and are available at the door Thursday night.

The final film of this series will be Gezade Rosner's film, "The Navel of the World, Easter Island," scheduled to be shown on March 25.

Extend Deadline To Suit Berries

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — When the berries are ripe, they have to be picked, the federal appeals court here decided Tuesday in extending a school desegregation deadline to the fall term.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had ordered schools in strawberry-rich St. Helena Parish to implement a new desegregation plan by March 23. But the court issued an amended order Tuesday which gave the parish until July to implement the plan.

The school board asked the court to reconsider the March 23 deadline because schools in St. Helena Parish close by the end of April so youngsters can help on the strawberry harvest. Schools reopen for the fall term in July.

The musical traditionally has had members of the audience join performers in a final dance number, although the London production did not.

Tour Vepco's Northeastern North Carolina without leaving your chair.

1. Your mind has just transported you to Roanoke Rapids, North Carolina and you're at an informal reception and dinner, getting the facts about North Carolina from the local Vepco people and Area Development Group.

2. The next day, you leave for Murfreesboro. Where you learn about North Carolina's system of Technical Institutes. Their job is to train the workers for your plant. And they do it free of charge. One less problem to snip away at profit.

3. Does the airport here seem familiar? It was featured in the national advertising of a business aircraft manufacturer. And if they thought it was worth visiting, you should, too. Because it puts you at the doorstep of major northeastern markets.

4. As you inspect plant sites in Tarboro, keep this in mind: You're within 24-hour trucking distance of Miami, Atlanta, New York, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland. Yet you can produce goods here at far less cost than industries located in those areas.

5. During your aerial tour of sites in Williamston, you should know that North Carolina offers many possibilities for new industry locating here. It's hard to make a profit these days. But North Carolina makes it a little easier.

6. To prove that all is not work here, we fly you over Nags Head. This great fishing, boating, and beach resort is just minutes away from the site of the Wright Brothers' first flight in 1903. They started an industry here and look how it grew. Maybe if you started something here, you'd get the same results.

7. The last stop is one of the finest inland harbors on the Atlantic seaboard. You'll find good wharfage here; a marine railway system, and a plentiful supply of water. This not only makes it easier to do business here, but elsewhere as well.

Okay. You have now been safely deposited back in your chair. And what you need next is the actual tour and some hard information. To get both, call Jack A. Runion at (919) 792-2113. He can help you find a place where profit isn't so hard to get. Virginia Electric and Power Company, Williamston, North Carolina 27892.

Byrd Severs Demo Links

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr.'s declaration of independence from the Democratic party has sent a shock wave through the Virginia political structure.

The 55-year-old orchardist and newspaper publisher, son of the late U.S. senator who headed Virginia's dominant Democratic organization nearly 40 years, announced Tuesday he would leave the party and seek reelection in November as an independent.

He said he "would rather be a free man than a captive senator."

Byrd cited a stiff party loyalty oath adopted by the state organization last month as his reason.

Rep. Roger C.B. Morton, the GOP National chairman, commented in Washington that Byrd's decision to give up the Democratic label "suggests an excellent opportunity for an outstanding Republican" to capture the Senate seat.

Liberal Democrats already had two candidates opposing Byrd for the nomination in the July 15 primary.

Congressmen Rush Explosives Control

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alarmed by the lack of federal laws dealing with the rising tide of bomb violence, congressmen are rushing to propose legislation restricting current easy access to explosive materials.

Not only must the lawmakers grapple with the problem of actual bombings like those that have rocked New York offices and claimed the lives of two young blacks in Maryland recently, but they also must deal with threatened bomb assaults —threats that cannot be ignored.

A sample of the latter was disclosed Tuesday by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, who reported evacuation only minutes before of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving due to a bomb threat.

Scott, at a press conference at the White House, also said President Nixon had asked his staff to draw up recommendations for laws to protect federal property against bombings and bombing threats.

The spate of bombings and bomb threats also has stirred action in state capitals.

Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel has urged his state's legislature to restrict sales of explosives and provide life imprisonment for convicted bombers. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has said his state's laws also must be strengthened.

In Congress, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, has a bill making possession of untaxed explosive materials a federal crime. The measure would levy a tax on transfer of blasting material and require registration of parties to such a transaction.

His bill also would make persons convicted of—or under indictment for—a felony, aliens or mentally ill persons ineligible to purchase explosives.

Scott said the President had asked his aides last Friday to prepare legislation that "would deal with bombings and with conspiracies to commit that act."

Despite the current rush to get new laws on the books, one Capitol Hill expert on weapons regulations says an obscure provision of the gun control law permits federal authorities to stop bomb carriers simply by nailing them for having an unregistered "destructive device."

Another official says this ban has been effective as far as it goes—with some arrests and a few convictions—but the problem seems to be getting out of hand.

And, while no one loves a bomber, notes of caution on how far the law can go in its controls of explosive material are being raised by officials who want to continue protecting legitimate use of such things as a kid's chemistry set.

Vanik's aides said their research has uncovered no state with legal controls to compare with those in his proposal, although New York City has a comprehensive law forbidding unauthorized transportation, possession or use of dynamite or other explosives.

Rep. William E. Mitchell, R-Ohio, says he has hunted through all federal legal provisions dealing with explosives and failed to find one which "would vitally affect, control, or restrict" distribution or sale of dynamite and other blasting material.

None require keeping records of such sales—except under the Federal Explosives Act, he added, and that law operates only under a declaration of war or national emergency.

Minshall has proposed legislation to amend the 1968 gun control law to include explosives, make sale of such a destructive device illegal, and require the seller to keep records.

An Internal Revenue Service official said the 1968 gun control law's current provisions on destructive devices are slanted toward the explosive or bomb designed to be used as a weapon.

"If the explosives are in such combinations that it obviously becomes a weapon," he added, "then the law makes that illegal and provides us with a charge against the individual."

But, he said, when a person buys dynamite, "there's no way to read his mind and no way to trace every commercial stick of dynamite from its sale to its use."

Tells Story Of Ship-Hijacking

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

SATTAHIP, Thailand (AP) — The second mate of the hijacked munitions freighter Columbia Egle said today he was reading in his bunk shortly after noon Saturday when the abandon ship whistle sounded and he hurried to a lifeboat.

"When that happens," said Robert W. Stevenson, 46, Los Angeles, "you don't go around asking questions. The ship was loaded with munitions."

Stevenson said the abandon ship order was repeated from the bridge and "someone said there was a bomb on board."

As the two lifeboats with Stevenson and 23 other crewmen lowered away, he said he hailed the bridge and was ordered to stand off.

"Someone yelled, 'Do it now! Hurry! I did not see the captain. Then after about 45 minutes the ship took off at full speed.

"When the ship moved away, we were baffled. We made plans to try to contact the Rappahannock which we knew would be passing in a few hours on a track about six miles away."

The Rappahannock picked the Castaways up in the Gulf of Siam and arrived at Sattahip two days ago. When U.S. Embassy and military officers finished questioning them about the hijacking, they came ashore today and described the events of last Saturday.

The ship's third officer, George Roush, 44, Hayward, Calif., said the crewmen spent seven hours in their lifeboats before they contacted the Rappahannock.

The Columbia Eagle, with the captain and 14 other crewmen sailed to Sihanoukville in Cambodia where the two hijackers, identified as Clyde McKay and Alvin Golatowski, asked for and received political asylum.

The pair was believed to have gone to the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh. Both men are Californians, McKay from Escondido and Golatowski from Long Beach. They reportedly took over the munitions ship to protest the Vietnam war.

Raleigh OKs Bond Issue

RALEIGH (AP)—Raleigh city officials can prepare to issue $3,050,000 in bonds for urban redevelopment.

Voters gave overwhelming approval to the issuance of the bonds Tuesday. The money will be used along with $5.5 million in federal funds to clear away Raleigh's southside slum area.

The slums will be replaced with 644 housing units plus a highway complex.

In a referendum last November, voters defeated an effort to raise the city's share of the redevelopment program. The ballot then had seven parts to it.

Tuesday's ballot had two parts. The unofficial vote was 10,327 for and 4,643 against a $2.5 million bond issue. The other ballot, for $550,000, received 9,523 votes for and 4,837 against it.

Monday. He said they flew by chartered jet along with some other North Carolinians to the American Structures plant there at the expense of the company to see the construction of the modular units planned for use as a children's wing at Rex Hospital in Raleigh. They were told that the 10 x 44 feet units they saw being built will begin being delivered to Rex next week. Rex is buying 34 units. Each will house two private rooms. This is one of several ideas for expansion of hospital facilities now being investigated by the Pitt County Commissioners.

out that some farmers need to sell their crops early but could not afford to haul their production to markets beyond the Eastern Belt limits.

Another said that treatment on the Georgia market is better than on local floors and similar treatment here might result in more farmers selling locally.

The possibilities of labor shortage on the Eastern markets was pointed out by Greenville warehouseman, Arthur Tripp. Earlier opening could lead to a good part of the crop still remaining in the fields when labor leaves for the factory job, he said.

A successful effort to open the Eastern Belt markets earlier could mean a difference in two to three weeks in sales over normal opening dates.

Mangum said that the committee has not set a date for meeting as yet but would probably call a meeting in the near future to consider the Eastern Belt opening dates.

No Success In Sit-Down

PARIS (AP) — The wives of two U.S. Navy airmen missing over North Vietnam staged a brief sit-down strike in Hanoi's diplomatic mission building today in an unsuccessful effort to learn the fate of their husbands.

Carolyn Dennison, 30, Corpus Christi, Tex., and Susan Hanley, 21, San Diego, Calif., went to the mission because North Vietnamese diplomats said they had a letter for them. The letter contained no news of their husbands, who were shot down Jan. 1, 1968.

The women sat down in arm chairs and refused to leave. A member of the mission summoned two French police officers, guarding the mission.

But 20 minutes after the police were called in, the women agreed to leave the premises.

"They have the answer to our questions, but they won't give it to us," Mrs. Dennison said. "We will not give up and we will not leave Paris."

Rampants Edge Past Edenton By 2-1

EDENTON — Rose High School opened the 1970 baseball season with a 2-1 victory over scrappy Edenton yesterday. The two teams meet again on Friday, as the Aces help the Rampants open their home schedule at 3:30 p.m. in Guy Smith Stadium in Greenville.

Russ Smith, the ace hurler for the Rampants, was tagged for four hits in the win, two of them doubles, but most of the time his control was perfect. He walked three batters, but struck out 14.

The Rampants, meanwhile, proved good with the stick. They struck out only six times, and produced an equal number of hits, including a double of their own.

Only in the third inning did Rose fail to put a man on the basepaths, when they went down in order. And only in the first did they fail to leave a man standing after reaching.

That came when Joe West opened the game with a single to center. He was thrown out, however, trying to stretch it to a double.

In the second, the Rampants got a man as far as second, as Tommy Durham opened with a single to left, and was sacrificed to second, only to die there.

The fourth inning finally produced the first Rampant run. Ronnie Leggett led off with a double to left down the line. He moved on to third on Smith's ground out, and then scored when Durham picked up his second hit of the day. Jimmy Paige kept things going with a bunt single, but a double play after that erased any further Rose hopes for the frame.

Edenton had not exactly been idle during the first part of the game. John Barrow singled with one away in the first, but did not advance. Wilson Furlough reached in the third, breaking a string of five strikeouts by Smith, on a walk. But Smith picked him off to end that threat.

The first real threat came in the fourth. With two outs, Fred Keeter singled to right, and a couple of wild pitches allowed him to move around to third. Ferrel Pavlich walked and stole second, but Smith struck out the next man to end the inning.

Rose moved a man as far as second in the fifth, but couldn't bring him around, and Edenton used its half of the inning to bring in the tieing run.

Al Hughes led off with a double to left center, but things appeared to be easing off as the next two men went down with no advance. But Gigi Leary slammed the ball to the fence for another double, and Hughes scored easily with the tieing run.

Rose came right back to gain what proved to be the winning tally in the top of the sixth. Leggett led off with a sharp rap to third, which the third baseman blocked, but couldn't find the handle of in time. Leggett then stole second, and advanced to third on another ground out by Smith. Durham hit back to the pitcher, and Leggett streaked home on the relay to first, making it 2-1, the final score.

Farmville Rolls Past Belvoir

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Red Devils opened their 1970 baseball season with an 11-2 victory over Belvoir - Falkland High School.

Belvoir scored a pair of runs in the top of the first to take an early lead in the game. Cobar led off with a single and Cobb followed that up with another hit. Both came around to score on outs later in the frame.

Farmville cut into the lead in the bottom of the first with their first run. Wilson led off with a walk and Bryan got a hit. Styers then singled Wilson across.

The Red Devils followed that up with two more in the second. Sermons doubled and scored on a single by Blair. Wilson then got a hit, driving in Blair.

Farmville went on to score two more in the third to lead 5-2, and then break it open with six more runs in the sixth inning.

Cobar led Belvoir with two hits, while Styers had two for Farmville, and Burnett had two including a double for the Red Devils.

Vanceboro Ties Grifton Nine

GRIFTON — Grifton's Bulldogs battled to a 2-2 tie with Vanceboro here yesterday in the baseball opener for the two schools. The game was halted after seven innings by darkness and will be completed when Grifton visits Vanceboro later in the year.

Vanceboro took the lead in the third inning with a run. William Grant walked and two more walks loaded the sacks. Jim Nobles then hit a sacrifice fly to score Grant for a 1-0 lead.

Grifton tied it up in the fifth. David Whaley reached on an error and stole second. Two straight passed balls brought him the rest of the way.

Vanceboro went back out in the top of the sixth. Rich Lilly walked and a wild pitch moved him to second. An error on the play brought him the rest of the way.

Grifton again tied it in the sixth. Mike Coles singled, for the only Bulldog hit of the day, and an error on the play moved him to second. A passed ball and a wild pitch brought him home.

While Coles had the only Grifton hit, Lilly had the best of the three Vanceboro hits, a double.

Sonics Win To Keep Playoff Hopes Alive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lenny Wilkens wasn't named the National Basketball Association's most valuable player and he probably won't win Coach of the Year honors either, but he's got to be the most valuable coach.

Player-coach Wilkens popped in 23 points, including four free throws in the final two minutes, as the Seattle SuperSonics turned back the Chicago Bulls 109-102 Tuesday night and kept their playoff hopes alive. The Sonics still trail Phoenix by 1½ games in the race for the last playoff spot in the Western Division, though, after the Suns whipped San Francisco 133-121.

Elsewhere, the Atlanta Hawks increased their first-place lead in the West to 1½ games over idle Los Angeles with a 128-125 come-from-behind triumph over Philadelphia, the New York Knicks trimmed Detroit 122-106 and San Diego beat Boston 125-117.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Kentucky 119, Denver 110; Los Angeles 126, Pittsburgh 114 and New Orleans 110, Washington 104.

Even if the SuperSonics miss the playoffs, it will not be a disappointing season for Wilkens because, he said. "We've really jelled the last few weeks and we've become a first-class ballclub at last."

Dick Snyder and Bob Rule helped Wilkens with 22 and 21 points, respectively.

Phoenix broke away from a 108-all tie and raced to a 10-point lead in less than three minutes as rookie center Neal Walk contributed 11 of his 17 points in the final period.

Gail Goodrich led the Suns with 36 points and Dick Van Arsdale had 30 while Jerry Lucas paced the Warriors with 25, including the 10,000th point of his career.

Atlanta wiped out a 12-point deficit in the final 8½ minutes and edged Philadelphia behind Joe Caldwell's 45 points. It was the Hawks' first triumph in Philly since Jan. 10, 1968. Wally Jones topped the 76ers with 34 points.

Seven players were in double figures for the Knicks as they whipped Detroit, led by Dick Barnett with 25 points. Bill Bradley, returning to a starting after an ankle injury, chipped in with 19 but Willis Reed, named earlier in the day by his fellow players as the NBA's MVP, was held to 12. Jimmy Walker scored 32 for the Pistons and Otto Moore outfought Reed for a career high 28 rebounds.

San Diego staved off a late Boston rally and moved to within three games of sixth-place San Francisco in the West. Elvin Hayes of the Rockets and John Havlicek of the Celtics shared scoring honors with 30 points apiece.

Tough For UCLA?

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach John Wooden says his UCLA team is physically and mentally prepared to defend its NCAA basketball championship title but he expects quite a battle from New Mexico State.

Wooden also disputes State coach Lou Henson who says the Amazin' Aggies are as physically strong as UCLA but lack the Bruins' speed and quickness.

"I've never run across two players more agile than Collins and Criss," said Wooden Thursday night after his team held a one hour workout at Georgetown University after arriving from the West Coast.

He referred to New Mexico State senior guards Jimmy Collins and Charley Criss.

UCLA, winner of 26 and loser of 2, was the first team to arrive for the finals at the University of Maryland this week. The others, New Mexico State, Jacksonville and St. Bonaventure, arrive today.

All but State work out at College Park today. The Aggies will hold a session Thursday morning.

Wooden said he brought his team in a day ahead of the others because he wanted the players to adjust to the time difference between the west and east coasts.

Church Loop To Start Tourney

Black Jack, Piney Grove and Presbyterian picked up wins in the final round of games in the Church Basketball League last night. The games wound up the end of the regular season.

Presbyterian nipped Mt. Pleasant, 57-54 in the opener, while Piney Grove slipped past Oakmont, 47-46, and Black Jack downed St. James, 65-42.

The league's post-season tournament opens Thursday night. First place Immanuel gets a bye. Second place Presbyterian meets seventh place Mt. Pleasant at 8:15, while third place Black Jack takes on sixth place Oakmont at 9:30 p.m. Opening the evening will be fourth place Piney Grove against fifth place St. James. The winners advance to the semifinals on Tuesday, with the finals slated for Thursday, March 26.

In the opener, Presbyterian managed a slim 27-26 lead over Mt. Pleasant in the first half. The Presbyterians managed to tack two more points to their lead in the second half, outscoring Mt. Pleasant, 30-28, to take the win.

Robert Oswald led Presbyterian with 12, while Gene Briley had 11 and Brazel Moore had 10. For Mt. Pleasant, D. R. Daniels had 24, and Willie Wallace had 15.

In the second game, Piney Grove held a slim 23-20 lead in the first half, then had to hold off Oakmont in the second half. Oakmont outscored Piney Grove, 26-24, but it fell one short of being enough.

Jimmy Mills led Piney Grove with 17, while Lewis Hardee had 13. Oakmont was paced by Carlton Hardee with 14, while Bob Benton had 11.

Black Jack streaked away to a 23-16 lead in the first half, and had little trouble in its win. It outscored St. James, 42-26 in the second half for an easy victory.

Tal Adams led Black Jack with 22, while Ray Hardee had 17 and Steve Peele had 12. For St. James, Dave Wilcox and Guy Howell each had 14.

Giants Leave For Tour Of Japan

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Seattle Pilots aren't going to Milwaukee just yet, but at least one major league baseball team is on the move this week. The San Francisco Giants leave today for a nine-game tour of Japan, the first time a big league club has made the trip before the season.

The entire squad is making the trip, including slugging first baseman Willie McCovey, whose inflamed right eye has been diagnosed as a side effect of a drug prescribed for arthritis in his right arm.

Dr. San Kimura of the University of California Medical School prescribed new medication and said McCovey's trouble should disappear before the Giants return to the States March 31, one week before the start of the season.

The Giants prepped for their trip by dropping an 8-6 exhibition contest Tuesday to the Chicago Cubs. The winners snapped a 6-all tie on eighth-inning singles by Cleo James and Paul Popovich.

Most of the baseball news, though, was made off the field.

—All sorts of papers were served on American League owners meeting in Tampa, Fla., preventing transfer of the Seattle franchise Milwaukee for the time being.

Pitcher Steve Carlton, the St. Louis Cardinals' last holdout, signed a two-year contract and said he was "completely satisfied." The Cards had ordered him to report under a section of baseball's reserve clause.

—Commissioner Bowie Kuhn disclosed that voting for the all-star teams is being given back to the fans.

The Grapefruit League highlight was Minnesota's first exhibition victory after nine defeats, a 5-2 triumph over the Cardinals. Jim Kaat hurled six strong innings, Tony Oliva drove in three runs and manager Bill Rigney had a ball — the game ball.

"Leo Cardenas came up to me after the game," Rigney reported, "and said, 'We waited a long time for this; you should have the ball.'"

While the Twins were breaking the ice, the Detroit Tigers continued to be beset by problems. They committed eight errors and the Kansas City Royals clobbered Mike Kilkenny, Fred Scherman and Dennis Saunders for 19 hits in a 12-4 rout.

Kilkenny took the loss, one of the few Irishmen who wasn't whooping it up on St. Patrick's Day.

Slick-fielding Ron Woods continued to wield a hot bat in his bid to crack the New York Yankees' outfield. Woods hammered a two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning, capping a huge rally — the Yanks trailed 8-0 after three innings — that climaxed in a 9-8 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. It was the third consecutive game Woods won with his bat. He hit .181 last season.

Gary Nolan pitched five scoreless innings and Johnny Bench and Ted Savage homered as the Cincinnati Reds tripped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2. Claude Osteen of the Los Angeles Dodgers worked a similar shutout span and rookie Steve Garvey slammed a three-run homer in a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Montreal Expos, aided by two Atlanta errors, punched across two runs in the ninth inning and nipped the Braves 4-3. Tommie Agee's run-scoring single in the 10th inning gave the New York Mets a 6-5 win over the Chicago White Sox. The Cleveland Indians and downed the Oakland A's 4-1.

Home runs by Paul Blair, Don Buford and Terry Crowley paced the Baltimore Orioles over the Mexican League All-Stars 11-1 in a night game at Mexico City.

Griffin Heads For Nationals

Sophomore freestyler Jim Griffin will represent East Carolina University in the National Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City, March 26-28.

Griffin scored 18 of ECU's 24 points in the Eastern Collegiate Swimming and Diving Championships held last weekend at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H.

The Pirates finished 15th in the 40-team meet which was won by Yale.

Griffin, a native of Norfolk, Va., placed sixth in the 100-freestyle, seventh in the 200-freestyle and 11th in the 500-freestyle. Only the first 12 finishers in each event counted in team scoring.

The Pirate standout set ECU records with him times in both the 100 and 200 races. He swam a 48.12 in the 100, shattering his own mark of 48.23 and again broke his own record of 1:48.09 in the 200 with a 1:46.51 timing. His time in the 500 was 4:59.0, seven seconds off his best time in the event.

Griffin is the first ECU swimmer ever to go to the Nationals.

Clinic Set By ECU Grid Staff

East Carolina University will hold its first spring football coaches clinic in conjunction with the Purple-Gold Football game here Saturday, April 25.

High School coaches from all over the state will attend. Coaches who have not sent in their registration are encouraged to do so as soon as possible.

The clinic, for high school coaches only, will feature talks by members of the ECU football coaching staff headed by Mike McGee.

The program will start with registration at 8:30 a.m. and McGee will follow with the introduction and basic philosophy at 9:30.

Assistant coach Sonny Randle, former All-NFL pass receiver with the St. Louis Cardinals, will talk on training the receiver at 10 o'clock. Carl Reese, the newest addition to the coaching staff, will follow at 10:30 with drills and techniques for developing the offensive blocker.

At 11:15, Pirate freshman coach Henry Trevathan will give tips on how to build a winning tradition at high schools employing the ideas he used at Wilson's Fike High where he won the State 4-A championships the last three years.

The talks will be concluded by assistant coach Jerry McGee, who will speak on East Carolina's defense.

The Purple-Gold game will follow at 2 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

All coaches are invited to bring their teams for the contest. Admission will be only 25 cents per boy.

LSU Edges By Oklahoma, 97-94

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Maravich, the Louisiana Lulu, was doing his incomparable thing as 19,500 appreciative Basketball fans roared ear-splitting approval at Madison Square Garden.

"Way to go, Pete, way to go, Babyn" voices exhorted through the animated audience as Louisiana State University's prize in purple shorts shot the eyes out of the basket.

Maravich himself didn't appreciate his performance — "I stunk" - but it was strong enough to lead LSU over Oklahoma 97-94 Tuesday night and into the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

Marquette won the opener over outgunned Utah 83-63 for a semifinal match with LSU Thursday night. St. John's of New York meets Army in the other game.

Maravich boosted his all time career scoring mark with 37-point—but it wasn't his scoring that pumped the crowd with Adrenalin.

Maravich's reckless abandon with a basketball-behind-the-back passes, between-the-legs dribbling and illogical, off-balance jump shots—coaxed "oohs and ahs" from the fans. They even applauded his unspectacular foul shooting.

"I appreciate the fans," said Maravich after plopping his angular 6-foot-5 frame into a chair. "I'm very appreciative of the crowds m.. but I was still terrible."

The Pistol was obviously down on himself for several passes that went astray, causing turnovers in critical situations. And he apparently held himself to blame after the Bayou Tigers blew a 17-point lead and had to fight for their lives at the end.

Coach Press Maravich, Pete's father, had a different interpretation.

"They lost their poise," said the coach after Oklahoma came back to within two, at 94-92, with 48 seconds left after trailing 75-58. "They just choked. My team doesn't have the killer instinct, that's all."

"We should have beaten Oklahoma by 35 points. I'm very unhappy."

He scored his son for what he termed "loss of animal instinct."

"He's thinking, not playing basketball," said Press Maravich. He must play by instinct and not think about what kind of a shot he'll take or pass he'll make. That's what's hurt us."

Garfield Heard, Oklahoma's high scorer with 27, brought his team back within two with a field goal after a steal.

Then Maravich took things into his own hands, dribbling 19 seconds off the clock before he was fouled at the 29-second mark. He then put in two fouls to nail it down.

Dean "The Dream" Meminger, had his finest game at the Garden—scoring game-high 28 points—to lead Marquette to a runaway first-game victory.

"Coach (Al McGuire) just told me to go and try to penetrate Utah," said Meminger, "and I took advantage of that opportunity."

"He's gotten over his Garden-itis," said McGuire of his brilliant guard. "We're now physically—and mentally—ready to play. We're good and loose."

American Heads For Court

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The American League was headed for court today, trying to clear three legal hurdles blocking transfer of the Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee—or face the possible alternative of operating as an 11-team league this season.

That possibility existed following Tuesday's developments in which:

—The reported transfer of the Pilots to Milwaukee was blocked by a restraining order obtained in Tampa and papers served by the State of Washington, both prohibiting the American League temporarily from moving the financially plagued club.

—The American League adopted a resolution in which it said, "There are ... reasons why the American League ... cannot continue financial support of the Pilots beyond the amount already committed."

"Our hands are tied right now," said American League President Joe Cronin after the day-long session, during which the owners were served papers by deputy sheriffs from Tampa and a representative of the attorney general's office in the State of Washington.

Cronin also said, "It's almost impossible to operate with 11 clubs," but the league's attorney, Sandy Hadden, admitted it's a "theoretical possibility."

The possibility could arise if the legal restraints cannot be removed in time for the opening of the season less than three weeks away and the Pilots' current owners, apparently running out of money, are forced to continue operation.

They, naturally, could only do that as long as their funds held out.

American League owners already have given the Pilots a loan of $650,000 to tide them through spring training. As for the possibility of the American League coming up with more money, the resolution seemed to rule that out.

Neither of the two most interested parties, meanwhile, had much to say after the latest developments in the muddled situation.

Bud Selig, president of Milwaukee Brewers Inc., a 14-man group seeking to acquire the Pilots, said, "There's not much I can say at this time." Max Soriano, representing the Pilots, said, "I have no reaction."

The rug was pulled out from under Al owners just before the start of their meeting, supposedly called to officially sanction a move from Seattle to Milwaukee, when Tampa deputy sheriffs appeared on the scene with temporary injunctions forbidding the move.

The injunction was sought by Alfred Schweppe, a Seattle attorney and season ticket-holder, who has paid $775 for tickets and parking for the next four seasons.

At the same time, the State of Washington appeared on the scene through an attorney who served papers in an $80 million suit brought Monday to stop the transfer or sale of the Pilots. Schweppe also has a suit pending in Seattle.

Those are the three legal hurdles that have to be cleared before the American League can make a move. It is apparent that, barring the restraining order, they would have moved — to Milwaukee. They all but said so in the resolution, pointing out:

"But for that restraint at this meeting it (the American League) would have given consideration to a transfer."

They still can do that if the legal restraints are removed in time.

Scramble On In ABA's West

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's a wild scramble in the Western Division of the American Basketball Association with four of the five teams separated by only two games in the important loss column.

New Orleans kept the Western race close by beating Washington 110-104 in the feature of a doubleheader at Fresno, Calif., Tuesday night, that kept the Buccaneers even in the loss column at 33 defeats, the same as Washington and Dallas.

First-place Denver, whipped by Kentucky 119-110, holds a two-game edge over Washington with a 41-31 record to the Caps' 39-33. Dallas is 37-33 and New Orleans 35-33.

Even Los Angeles, which humbled Pittsburgh 126-116 in the other half of the Fresno twin bill, is within hailing distance at 35-36.

Two free throws by Gerald Govan with 20 seconds left helped New Orleans stop a late Washington rally. Rick Barry got 32 points for the Caps, James Jones 25 for the Bucs.

George Stone paced Los Angeles to its 10th victory in 12 games with 27 points against the Pipers. Stew Johnson also tallied 27 for Pittsburgh.

Louie Dampier threw in 23 points to lead Kentucky of the Eastern Division over Denver at Louisville. The Rockets cut a 19-point deficit to three at 92-89 before the Colonels pulled away again. Spencer Haywood was high for Denver with 27 points.

Pressure For Curbs On Credit Appear Growing

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Pressure for some sort of credit controls appears to be growing among some influential public and private officials.

Reason for the pressure is growing discontent with the uneven and unfair impact the anti-inflation program is having on different segments of the economy.

Raising the likelihood of controls is the vast power given to the President by the little publicized Credit Act of 1969, which all bul gives him a blank check to deal with credit problems in any way he pleases.

Housing is the prime example of an industry bearing more than its share of the fight against inflation, but some city and state governments also are near desperation in their effort to borrow for vital programs.

One possibility of controls involves consumer spending, which private economists here expect to begin growing strongly once again later this year. Such spending, it is feared, would siphon off funds from longer term investments.

One of the big problems in the credit market is just that: the use of funds for short-term transactions rather than for investment.

Because of the quick turnover and the higher interest rates, lenders have not curtailed short-term instalment loans. But longer-term loans, such as for mortgages, have all but dried up in some areas.

In theory, a raising of minimum down payments on instalment loans, and a shortening of the payment period, would divert funds from consumption to investment, including housing.

Among groups advocating credit controls is a special committee of the U.S. Savings and Loan League, whose members are the chief suppliers of funds to the housing market.

In a report released this week, the committee listed 10 recommendation, the first of which was to "Impose credit controls immediately for a more vigorous and equitable attack on inflation."

"For the typical American," the committee commented, "it is easier to finance a vacation than it is to buy or sell a home." A vacation involves short-term, high return money; a mortgage is a long-term commitment.

The housing industry is disturbed that, as the committee put it, "large corporations can borrow to build new plants and buy equipment while home builders cannot finance new housing starts."

To some extent this is true, because the high yields on corporate bonds have siphoned some funds from the savings and loan associations.

However, some corporations also are complaining about the lack of funds. The solution, some economists say, is to divert money from consumption, such as by restrictions on installment loans, to longer term investments.

Resigning Tryon Post

RALEIGH (AP) — Gertrude Carraway, director of Tryon Palace restoration at New Bern for the past 14 years, is retiring because she wants "to go places and do things."

The executive board of the Department of Archives and History said Tuesday she has asked to be relieved of her duties "as soon as convenient."

Dr. H. G. Jones, head of the department, was instructed to look for a successor.

"There's nothing wrong," Dr. Carraway said. "I'm just tired of working so hard and long seven days a week. I want to go places and do things. As a matter of fact I've been offering to resign for seven years."

She has been connected with Tryon Palace restoration for 25 years.

Tryon Palace was North Carolina's first state capitol. The original palace was once termed "the most beautiful building in colonial America."

Sex Lure Trap May Eradicate Boll Weevils

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — That Sexy old devil of the cotton patch, the boll weevil, may be digging his own grave, but he's stubborn about it.

To mere humans, a male boll weevil is no great shakes as a sex symbol. He is about one-fourth inch long, colored a faded battleship gray and has a long snout that would put Jimmy Durante to shame.

But to a female boll weevil, and to some sexually undecided males, a virulant male boll weevil is the bottest thing on a cotton stalk.

And that's why sex lure traps are being used in the latest experiments to control or eradicate the pest that for so many years bored into the unripe cotton boll or pod, and destroyed the cotton seed and lint before it reached harvest age.

"We don't have the answer yet, but we got some good survey results," said Charles Chapman, director of the Plant Quarantine Division of the Texas Agriculture Department. "I imagine it will be three to five more years before we decide if a complete eradication program would be feasible."

Last year the department, in cooperation with the National Cotton Council, the High Plains Cotton Producers Association and the Agriculture Research and the Plant Pest Control divisions of the U.S. Agriculture Department, tried trapping boll weevils.

About 26,000 Phermone traps were scattered over 40,000 acres of cotton on the eastern edge of the highly productive High Plains cotton area of West Texas.

Each trap is divided into four parts with a glass vial containing two healthy he-boll weevils in each section. They eat and as the food—choice bits of the cotton plant—passes through their body, Phermone is manufactured and ejected.

Humans can't smell Phermone but to a she-boll weevil the scent does what the advertisements say highly seductive shaving lotions do to lovesick teen-agers.

The Phermone spread by the decoys will attract females, along with an occasional mixed-up male, from as far as 50 feet away. When they get to the trap, with nothing but sex on their minds, they are captured by an ultra gooey substance smeared on the four vanes of the trap.

The 26,000 traps last year captured 12,000 boll weevils.

"That may not sound like many weevils," said Chapman, "but you can figure that a female boll weevil caught in April or May would have produced 30,000 others through three or four generations by Sept. 1. That adds up."

It sure does—about 360 million boll weevils bit the dust.

But Chapman stresses that at present the sex lure traps must be used in conjunction with spraying. This combination will increase the cotton production of any field at least 20 per cent.

"In some places last year treated areas with traps produced 625 pounds of lint to the acre while untreated fields did good to make 100 pounds an acre," he said.

More survey traps will be put out this year, but not equal to the 26,000 spread in 1968.

Agriculture scientists also are working hard on a sterile weevil program, similar to the highly successful sterile screwworm fly program. "But the amount of radiation that makes a screwworm fly sterile just makes a boll weevil turn over and die," said Chapman.

Then there is the experimental program for a systemic poison—a poison that could be used to treat cotton seed and any plant growing from that seed would be lethal to a boll weevil's bite. But the systemic poisoning is not perfected yet.

Meanwhile, that "ole debbil boll weevil," as it is called in folklore of the South, eats and reproduces mightily for about six months of the year, then goes to sleep for five or six months. In hibernation it is safe from any known eradication program.

"When they leave the cotton patch and hibernate in piles of trash and such, they put on a thicker layer of fat and enter a diapause or resting stage," Chapman said. "It doesn't do any good to spray them because they don't eat anything while hiberating and you can't trap them because they don't manufacture Phermone if they don't eat."

You just wait for spring to see how much sex life the boll weevils had the year before.

Helping Finance Polk Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Appalachian Regional Commission will help finance a $2,997,000 hospital to replace the St. Lukes Polk County Hospital at Tryon, N. C.

The commission has approved a $300,000 grant to be added to a $660,000 grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The new building of 75 beds will replace the existing obsolete facility of 52 beds.

Beneath Gloomy Facade, People Are Still People

By ALINE MOSBY

BUCHAREST (UPI)—Communist nations present to the world a stiff, gray facade through their controlled press. But burrow beneath and you can find people busy living lives not reflected in this official image.

Bucharest really is not the Bucharest of the newspapers heavy with economic quotas and political dogma. It is a four-year-old boy sitting on a wooden horse in a kiddies barber shop sobbing through his first haircut, his father in a heavy overcoat and felt hat bending over him.

Bucharest is a young couple getting married in an ancient Eastern Orthodox church. It is the vogue now to return to the churches since virtual freedom of religion is arrued. A home movie photographer records the ceremony. The bride in her long white gown giggles at some of the colorful touches in the rites and some of the guests wear mini-skirts.

In a square in front of the ornate Ateneul Roman concert hall down the street, elderly couples sit on benches in the chilly winter sunlight. A young couple on one bench argue, and suddenly the man with slicked-back hair slaps the girl on her heavily made-up face. She screams and covers her face with her hands. Off they hurry, the man holding her arm, the girl sobbing and teetering along in her spike-heeled shoes and tight short skirt.

Nationality Snobs

In Communist Romania, Marxism-Leninism notwithstanding, there are nationality snobs as in other countries. A group of university students talking to this foreigner stressed that they were from the Transylvania region of Romania populated by many Germans and Hungarians, that they had gone to German-language schools and that Transylvanians "have fine, clean-cut features not like these Latins in Bucharest from the old kingdom" (referring to Romanians of Roman-Dacien descent).

Bucharest shop windows show that family photographers flourish under communism as under capitalism, with the same type of pictures of the young brides, the gurgling babies, the family kittens. Romanian wine, judged quite good by foreigners, was on display in many windows, along with Romanian gin, which is not good. Romania does not make whisky but the windows displayed whisky from Communist China—yes, Chinese scotch.

In the next block, out of a hotel tripped a prostitute in a black leather mini-skirt and low-cut sweater, blonde hair to her shoulders. The class A hoels here allow young and pretty prostitutes to operate openly in the lobbies, apparently as a gesture of hospitality to tourists. One week you see the girls in the hotel dining room with Arab businessmen, the next week with visiting Germans.

In front of the post office on the main street, Magheru Boulevard, one middle-aged man was so pleased at discovering an America visitor that he rushed inside to buy for her a Romanian postage stamp commemorating the first Apollo moon landing.

Want Ads

The newspaper kiosks across the street give very little information about real life in Romania, unless you turn to the small want ad page that appear in only one newspaper.

"Want to buy: Louis XV furniture, even if damaged," says one ad, either from an antique lover or a citizen eager to put his money into objects of value in fear of inflation or other economic problems.

"Exchange two room house, hall, kitchen, pantry, garden, stove heating with wood, for 2-3 rooms with bathrooms and kitchen, even if used communally," goes an ad from a bathroomless home dweller, desperate for a bathroom even if he has to share it and the kitchen with other families, as many do despite recent construction of thousands of new modern flats.

Other ads: "for sale: Grundig tape recorder. And wish to buy Skoda car," and "Lost, Jan. 2, 1969, in No. 76 bus near north railway station, brown handbag with identity card for Dmitru Alexandrina. Three savings checks, family photos. Reward to finder."

TV Tests Bar To Courtroom Camera

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The days of Perry Mason's winning a case and wide viewship with piercing eyes and polished histrionics may give way to the real thing: the actual televising of criminal trials.

The issue of whether television belongs in the courtroom will be examined by television itself on "The Advocates" Sunday, March 22.

The public television network program will debate the question: "Should your state give every criminal defendant the right to allow television to cover his trial?"

But instead of the well-rehearsed dramatics of Raymond Burr and his staff, this "trial" will be argued live by outstanding members of both the legal profession and TV industry.

"The Advocates," which employs a courtroom format that includes direct and cross-examination of witnesses, will air the testimony of CBS News Anchorman Walter Cronkite, group vice president Richard Jencks of the same network, Marshall McLuhan, NBC correspondent Jack Perkins, and Chief Justice Thomas E. Brennan of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Sitting in judgment of the testimony will be Joseph Ball, ex-president of the American College of Trial Lawyers and a member of the American Bar Association's legal advisory committee for television and motion pictures.

Currently only two states, Colorado and Texas, permit cameras in the courtroom, and this at the discretion of the judge, not the accused.

Couldn't Abide 'Wicked World'

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A baby born with an abnormally long nose in the Marang district of southeast Nepal was immediately accepted by villagers as the reincarnation of the Hindu god Ganesh, the elephant-headed son of Lord Shiva. Villagers began to flock to the birth site, but the baby died six hours after birth. Priests explained to the villagers that "Ganesh" had departed because he could not suffer existence in a wicked world.

In Tears Over Recovered Cash

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Employes in a Louisville branch bank were really in tears over the recovery of $7,800 taken in a holdup.

The robber dropped the money bag in flight from police and an unidentified man returned it to the bank. When officials opened the bag, they accidentally set off a tear gas bomb and had to call firemen to clear the fumes.

Van Pao is the commander of the 7,000-man guerrilla army of Meo tribesmen which the U.S. government finances.

A HOME FIT FOR A SENATOR — Nathaniel Macon, landowner, congressman and senator, lived in this two - bedroom house. A challenge grant opens the way for its restoration. (AP Wirephoto)

May Preserve Old Homeplace

By H. G. Jones
N.C. Dept. of Archives and History
Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP) — A county, town, college, and fort are named for Nathaniel Macon, one of North Carolina's most influential national figures of the 19th Century. Now it appears that his homeplace in Warren County may be preserved.

The recent announcement of a Smith Richardson Foundation challenge grant to the Warren County Historical Society has stimulated renewed interest in restoring and preserving the three remaining structures at Buck Spring near Vaughan.

The society is seeking private donations with which to qualify for the Richardson grant, and the county of Warren has been asked to lend its support. Mrs. Horace P. Robinson of Littleton is chairman of a restoration committee, and Mrs. James P. Beckwith of Warrenton is president of the society.

The once-great plantation has diminished to fewer than 100 acres and is now owned by the county. The simple two-room living quarters occupied by the thrifty Macon, an architecturally significant log corncrib, and a smokehouse were all heavily restored by the Works Progress Administration in the 1930s, but neglect has since resulted in rapid deterioration. Restoration historians say work must begin within a year if the structures are to be saved.

They see in the Macon homestead the potential of a popular historic site for two reasons: First, Macon deserves to be remembered as a figure of great national importance in the formative years of the Union; and second, the property is directly between two interestate highways and within three miles of Lake Gaston, a fast-growing recreational area.

Nathaniel Macon was born in 1758 near Shocco Springs. He attended Princeton University, served briefly in the American Revolution, and represented Warren County in the State Legislature for several terms. In 1791 he was elected to Congress where he was an intimate friend of Thomas Jefferson and John Randolph. When Jefferson became president, Macon was chosen speaker of the House of Representatives.

In 1815 Macon was elected to the Senate, where he served three periods as speaker pro tempore prior to his retirement in 1828 when he returned to his cottage near Hubquarter Creek. At the age of 77, he again was called upon by his state for service: he presided over the Convention of 1835 which heavily amended the Constitution of 1776.

Macon was a conservative both in personal and political affairs. Though he was a large land and slave owner, his life was simple. A neighbor described his home as "a neat little single-storied frame house sixteen feet square, with an upstairs and a cellar furnished in the plainest style for his own dwelling, with a sufficient number of outhouses to accommodate comfortably his visitors."

Politically, his opponents called Macon the "High Priest of the Status Quo." His name was synonymous with conservatism and states rights in the first quarter of the 19th Century.

Proof of Macon's fame in his own lifetime is found in the fact that Macon County, the town of Macon in Warren County, Fort Macon in Carteret County, and Randolph-Macon College in Virginia were all named for him before his death.

The tradition can be accepted, Nat Macon carried his philosophy of individual responsibility to his death in 1837. He is said to have ordered his pine coffin and paid the carpenter so that he would leave no debt.

Then, as death approached, he got out of bed, put on the clothes in which he wished to be buried, gave specific instructions to his servants as to how arrangements were to be carried out, then went back to bed and died. He was buried beside his wife under the trees near the corncrib. He wanted no tombstone. He suggested that if visitors wished to pay him tribute, they could toss rocks upon his grave.

For 133 years these wishes have been carried out. Today thousands of small stones are piled upon the graves of Nathaniel and Hannah Plummer Macon. A patriotic group has since put up a monument, but the stones represent the tributes that thrifty Nat Macon would have appreciated most.

Old Bottles For Chickens

That's not a joke. Chickens need grit to help them digest their food, and an organization in Oklahoma is now grinding up old bottles salvaged from household refuse to meet that need.

John H. Abrahams Jr., manager of environmental pollution control programs for the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, said this is just one of several uses being developed for the recycling of old bottles to make new products.

Research currently is being conducted on ways of automatically separating glass from raw refuse and then separating it again, by color, for use in making new bottles.

The University of Missouri has developed "glassphalt," a new street paving material in which crushed glass substitutes for crushed stone.

The U.S. Bureau of Mines is perfecting the technology to convert glass from incinerator ash into building blocks, insulating wool and aggregate for construction purposes.

See Padded Shoulders

NEW YORK (AP) — Has the emancipated woman of the 1970s emerged the victor in her battle for equality and independence only to be thrown back into the 1930s fashionwise?

The midi-length skirts and turn-of-the-century Gibson hairdos popular now indicate just this. But this may not be all. Next we're in for padded shoulders.

That's the forecast of the students of the Traphagen School of Fashion here, who are focusing on the 1930 styles in their 47th annual fashion show entitled "Reflections and Projections '70."

Of special interest at the show, to be held May 7, are outfits combining such lengths as midi and mini, and an abundant use of fake fur to achieve the pelted look. All the garments will be designed and modeled by Traphagen students.

URBAN TREND

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The University of Missouri at Columbia has projected that by 1990, 85 per cent of the state's estimated 6.2 million residents will be living in cities.

Tallahassee has been the capital of Florida since 1845.

The Worry Clinic

Eating Partly A Social Event

Biddy whould be an object lesson to all of us who are bothered by a little too much upholstery around the equator. So scrapbook her case or mail it to all those who wish to take off some ugly blubber. For we must work on our "mind" more than our "stomach" in order to regain a slender figure!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE M - 546: Biddy, aged 2 years, is a normal hen.

A German psychologist named Bayer used her and other hens for several experiments of value to human dieters!

He would starve all the hens for 24 hours, to be sure they had a healthy appetite.

Then he would place hungry Biddy in front of a 100-gram pile of wheat.

She peeked steadily till she had consumed 50 grams. Then she stopped, apparently quite full.

But as soon as Bayer placed another hungry hen beside her, Biddy resumed eating at once and actually ingested 60 per cent more wheat!

And she ate still more when 3 hungry hens were pecking beside her!

Which shows that eating is partly a social event, even among the biddies of the poultry yard.

Apparently, too, it applies to us human beings, for it is customary to "have a bite before we go" to bed or a snack before we leave our host and hostess, if we have been guests.

Prof. Bayer also tried another experiment with Biddy, after first starving her again for 24 hours to whet her appetite.

He found, as mentioned above, that she would eat 50 grams if placed in front of 100 grams of wheat.

But if he placed her before a much larger pile, Biddy would eat from 33 to 50 additional grams!

This means that Biddy would consume from 66 per cent to 100 per cent more food, if she looked on a much larger amount of food.

Which apparently also applies to us human beings, so we medics urge all dieters to heed the Biblical adage and "Look not on the wine while it is red."

That means, don't tempt your stomach to expand by viewing a heavily laden dinner table!

Dish up your limited food portions in the kitchen and then serve them in the dining room, but have no additional food on the table.

Avoid dinners of the "family style" sort, if you wish to lose weight!

And figuratively strip the deck for action, which means, don't tempt breakfast dinners by placing half a dozen boxes of various types of cereal in front of them.

And don't have candy or various types of cookies or other pastries around the house to tempt you.

When I diet, I find that I am much like Biddy for my stomach is more content if I view a fixed amount of food.

Sometimes Mrs. Crane and I will divide a single 16-ounce bottle of soft drink between us.

"Go ahead," she will suggest, "for I'm not very thirsty."

But I always insist that she drink first!

And it is not because of mere gallantry of the "Ladies first" sort.

For if I try to drink my upper half of the bottle and see her 8 ounces left, my stomach seems to scream for "More, More!"

But if she drinks the upper 8 ounces, then I view my remaining 8 ounces and my stomach then adjusts to that visible 8 ounces and doesn't crave more!

Indeed, I am so suggestible about food that if I read about starving Biafrans or ghetto folks, I develop a terrific hunger and raid the refrigerator!

So send for my booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: Queen of ♣

Despite the fact that the declarer had carefully set him up for an end play, West eluded the trap and with the careful assist of a cooperative partner, he uncovered the killing defense against South's four spade contract.

West opened the queen of clubs and the ace was played from dummy. The king of spades was led dislodging West's ace and declarer ruffed the club return. Two more rounds of spades cleared up the trump situation and now the ace, king, and another diamond to the ten put West on lead again with the queen.

The defense had two tricks in—a spade and a diamond—and West could cash the ace of hearts if he chose, to complete his book. In order to defeat the contract, East must hold an honor in hearts. If he has the king, then cashing out becomes a routine matter. If he has a lower honor, however, then the partnership must proceed with caution.

West was reluctant to release the ace of heart prematurely, so he returned the nine. North followed with the five and now it was East's turn to make a judicious decision. Observe that, if he puts up the queen of hearts, South will cover with the king and the defense is subsequently limited to one heart trick—the ace.

East realized the danger involved in releasing his honor, and he followed with the four of hearts, permitting his partner's nine to dislodge declarer's jack. When the dummy was reentered subsequently with the eight of diamonds to lead another heart, the defense was assured of cashing the setting tricks in that suit inasmuch as West retained the ace-eight behind South's king-three — while East's queen of hearts covered the dummy's ten.

If West had cashed the ace of hearts earlier, declarer would have had a finesse position against East's queen subsequent'y, thereby limithis loss in the suit to one trick.

Marriage Boom Under New Law

LOVINGTON, N.M. (AP) — The Lea County clerk's office says the marriage license business is booming.

It all started Jan. 1 when a new Texas law went into effect requiring a six-months waiting period before divorced persons can remarry.

"They are flocking over here to get married," a spokesman noted. Lovington is on the New Mexico-Texas border in southeastern New Mexico.

My Lai Investigators Want More Indoctrination

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army investigative panel that charged two generals and 12 lower ranking officers with violating military regulations involving the alleged My Lai massacre has called for increased troop indoctrination against mistreatment of civilians and prisoners.

The special panel also urged revamping reporting procedures to ensure that inquiries into any future incidents will flow up the chain of command and not be blocked at company or battalion levels.

The recommendations were included in a report made public Tuesday that resulted in charges of dereliction of duty and failure to obey regulations against 10 field grade officers and three captains in the alleged massacre.

Lt. Gen. William R. Peers, who headed the Army investigation, refused to characterize the original field probe—which produced negative results—as a cover-up of the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians March 16, 1968.

But he stated "our inquiry clearly established that a tragedy of major proportions occurred there" March 16, 1968.

Peers said his group received testimony and evidence "to indicate that certain individuals, either wittingly or unwittingly, by their action suppressed information from the incident from being passed up the chain of command."

The Army said the Peers inquiry prompted them to file charges against Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, who commanded the Americal Division, elements of which swept the Son My-My Lai area at the time of the alleged killings of more than 100 civilians.

Also charged with dereliction of duty and failure to obey regulations was Brig. Gen. George H. Young Jr., who was assistant commander of the Americal Division at the time.

The 12 other officers, ranging from colonel to captain, were charged with such offenses as false swearing, failure to report possible misconduct, making false official statements, dereliction, failure to obey regulations and orders, and "misprision" of a felony, which is defined in military law as knowing of a felony and concealing that knowledge from authorities.

Grand jury-type formal investigations now will be held to decide whether the officers should be court-martialed.

Koster asked to be relieved from his current position as head of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and said goodbye Tuesday to the 3,700 cadets who gave him a standing ovation.

Army officials said Koster will serve as assistant to Lt. Gen. Jonathan Seaman who is 1st Army commander at Fort Meade, Md. Most of the 14 officers charged are to be transferred there.

A heavily censored 50-page version of the Peers board report indicated units of the 11th Infantry Brigade, which sent three companies into the Communist hard core area of Son My-My Lai, had received somewhat skimpy instruction in the Geneva Convention and regulations on handling and treatment of civilians and prisoners.

Peers withheld details on certain recommendations to Westmoreland and Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor.

He voiced the hope that the report, "the reviews which it will receive and the actions stemming from the reports and such reviews will prevent an incident such as this from ever again occurring."

The great bulk of the report, running about 225 pages, was withheld, Army officials said, to avoid prejudicing the rights of the men facing legal action.

In hearings starting last Dec. 2, Peers, civilian counsel Robert MacCrate, and other members of the investigating group interrogated about 400 witnesses and took some 20,000 pages of testimony.

Five or six of the witnesses refused to answer questions on Fifth Amendment grounds, MacCrate said.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, was understood to have already instructed his staff to explore ways of improving troop training procedures on the handling of civilians and prisoners.

Army sources said only about two hours a year are devoted to such training for most troops, although men bound for Vietnam are supposed to get extra instruction.

New Telephone Office Here Now In Operation

Carolina Telephone began providing service Sunday morning to more than 10,000 Greenville telephone subscribers from their new telephone office on Fifth Street. This office also provides long distance call service to more than 20,000 subscribers in the Ayden, Farmville, Fountain, Greenville, and Snow Hill areas.

The service change Sunday of all telephone subscribers with telephone numbers prefixed by 752 or 758 was the result of over three years of planning and the expenditure of over $3½ million on the part of Carolina Telephone.

L.R. Langley, local manager for the company, said the change to the new office also provided the opportunity for Carolina Telephone to change the service codes to the service code numbers being standarized for nation-wide use. The service codes changed for all Greenville telephone subscribers and also for the subscribers in Ayden, Farmville, Fountain, and Snow Hill.

Langley reviewed the major service changes and cautioned that these codes should be used now. All subscribers dial "1" before the area code or called number for access to Direct Distance Dialing of long distance calls — do not dial "120".

In Greenvlle, dial "411" for Directory Assistance and "611" for Repair Service. In Ayden, Farmville, Fountain, and Snow Hill, dial "1411" for Directory Assistance and "1611" for Repair Service.

Langley said "The new Direct Distance Dialing equipment has a 3 to 5 second delay after the operator records your number and the time you hear ring-back or busy tone. "This" he said, "could cause a customer to think he has been disconnected unless he is aware that the delay is normal."

A few subscribers in the town of Farmville, Fountain, and Snow Hill have been trying to dial numbers in Greenville on a local calling basis. Langley said, "It is still a regular long distance call between these towns and Greenville."

Langley said, "All of us with the telephone company were well pleased with the efficiency and quickness of the change-over and credit the results to the many months of planning and testing which preceded the actual change. We also want to thank the telephone users in this area for adjusting their dialing habits to the new service codes."

Burton Pushing Academy Award

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a man who claimed he had no chance to win, Richard Burton seemed to be campaigning briskly.

Burton and his wife, Elizabeth What's-her-name, had ventured northward from their Puerto Vallarta hideaway for the first interview they'd had with the press in some time, and that may or may not have been caused by his candidacy for the best-actor Oscar because of "Anne of the Thousand Days."

Whatever the reason, it was a pleasure to see Burton, one of the best conversationalists of tne occident. He seemed almost reverential when we met.

"Oh, God!" he muttered.

The setting was on a Bel-Air knob overlooking the smog-shrouded Stone Canyon reservoir. This was the home of Elizabeth's mother, and it had been chosen for a chat between the Burtons and Charles Collingswood for a "60 Minutes" show to be aired by CBS Tuesday. Mrs. Burton hadn't appeared, so there was time for a chat.

"I'll be coming back next month to lose the Oscar," Burton said blithely. "I must keep my record intact. Some people did research at the Academy and discovered that I hold the record for the number of nominations for an actor who has never won. Six in all."

During his stay here, Burton also taped a 90-minute interview with David Frost.

I wondered whether the film depression and the resistance to huge salaries for stars had affected the Burtons. He indicated that they continue to get offers but are willing to adjust to the new economics:

"Of course you know Elizabeth was the first star to receive the million-dollar salary, and she remains the highest paid—now she gets $1.25 million plus 10 per cent of the gross. As for myself, poor fellow, I have been unable to break the million-dollar barrier.

"Our next picture will be 'The Defector,' based on my friend Charles Collingswood's novel about North Vietnam; he was one of the few journalists to be allowed into the country. We also will have Gregory Peck in the picture, and his normal salary is $750,000.

"That would mean three million dollars for some film company to pay in star salaries at the outset, and I don't think that's realistic. We would be willing to work at a smaller fee in return for a share of the proceeds.

"I think that's fair. And the gamble can pay off, too. The only other time we did it was in 'Taming of the Shrew,' and we came off very well. Made more than we would have on salary."

Mrs. Burton finally arrived, and her husband greeted her across a crowded room with gestures and sounds of a begging dog. She responded like a clawing cat and disappeared in a bedroom with her hairdresser.

"Milady is not too pleased with me today," Burton said quietly.

Next Term

The first day of school for the 1970-71 school year will be the 27th of August, as another cycle of 180 days of school was approved by the Board of Education at their Monday night meeting.

The previous day, August 26, is pupil orientation day, with Monday and Tuesday, August 24 and 25 being teacher work days in making preparations for school opening.

Regular and student holidays scheduled for the school year follow:

September 7 — Labor Day.

In October (date to be announced) — student holiday due to NCAE District Meeting.

November 26 and 27 — Thanksgiving.

December 21 — January 1 — Christmas holidays (10 days).

January 18 — student holiday — fourth teacher work day.

April 9, 12 and 13 — Easter holidays (three days).

Tuesday, June 1, is the last scheduled day of the 180 day school term. This date of course will be changed in the event school days are missed by the entire student body for any reason during the school year.

The following day, June 2, will constitute the final and fifth teacher work day for the school year.

Flurry Of Fires In Pitt County

After a lull of several days of no fires in the county, Fire Marshall Mike Worthington reported that the last 24 hours has brought a sudden flurry of fires.

A grass fire spread to a smoke-house on the John Mayo Farm on Road 1527, the Oak City Road north of Bethel in a fire reported at 11:09 a.m. yesterday. The Bethel Fire Department reported with three units to the scene. Damage was approximately $100.

Yesterday afternoon a grass fire on the C.S. Whichard farm on the Pactolus Highway at Stokes got out of control, threatening a barn. An alarm was called in at 2:03 p.m. and answered by the Carolina Township Fire Department. No damage resulted.

A trailer house owned by Charles Sutton at Joyner's Cross Roads was discovered on fire by a Farmville policeman. The Farmville Fire Department answered the 4:45 p.m. alarm. Damage was confined to burned curtains and smoke damage, estimated at $150 on the $6,000 trailer home.

At 5:35 p.m. an alarm was received for a fire in the home of Mrs. John Edwards at the intersection of roads 1249-1250, Sharp Point. Fountain Fire Department responded. Damage to the frame house is estimated at $700.

This morning, an alarm was turned in at 8:18 a.m. for Helen Taylor's residence at Bells Fork. The fire started from a portable heater which had an extension cord wired to it. The joint of the cord was wrapped with cloth which caught fire. The Winterville Fire Department saved the building with only minor damage from smoke.

At 9:18 a.m. this morning, a house occupied by Jesse Rouse, located at 208 Blount Street in Ayden, caught fire from a gas heater, setting fire to curtains. The Ayden Fire Department, responding to the call, extinguished the blaze with damage estimated at $35 to the $15,000 home.

Maddox, Jr. Free On Bail

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Lester Maddox Jr., son of the governor, has been released on bail after his second arrest on a burglary charge.

The younger Maddox, 26, was picked up Tuesday in connection with a burglary of a service station in Fulton County just north of Atlanta.

He was arrested on a similar charge in 1965 and later was convicted and placed on five years probation.

The governor, with tears streaming down his face, told a news conference Tuesday that his son had been arrested.

Police said the burglary, in which seven automobile tires were taken, occurred Monday night. They added that the investigation was not complete and declined further comment.

FOUND DEAD — The body of Miss Diana Oughton, 28, has been identified as the second body recovered from the wreckage of a Manhattan, New York townhouse. Police said the girl from Flint, Mich., was also known as Diana Houghton. (AP Wirephoto)

Town Raided By Guerrillas

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab guerrillas from Lebanon blew up a power line and a water pump at an Israel settlement today, pushing the troubled frontier closer to a major new flareup.

Villagers reported that after the explosions they heard shooting inside Lebanon, indicating that guerrillas had clashed with Lebanese government troops.

A dispatch from Beirut said that one guerrilla was killed and three injured in the encounter with Lebanese troops, according to guerrila sources.

It said the gunfight took place in the outskirts of the market town of Bint Jhail after guerrillas from Al Fatah and the Palestine Liberation Organization crossed back from Israeli territory.

On the Egyptian front, Israeli warplanes attacked targets on the central and southern sector of the Suez Canal today. The military command said an Egyptian jet was riddled during the three-hour bombing mission.

"One Egyptian plane was hit," the military spokesman said, although he said the aircraft was not seen crashing.

Asking Sum For Building

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1971 Carolina General Assembly will be asked to approve an appropriation of $1,635,000 for an addition to the state Archives and History-State Library Building.

The executive board of the Department of Archives and History approved the request Tuesday after Dr. H. G. Jones, department director, said the proposed annex is badly needed for office space.

The board approved all of the department's budget requests for the 1971-73 biennium. They are "A" budget, $2,994,359; "B" budget, $722,701; and capital improvements, $2,475,000. The "A" budget is to continue services at the present level. The "B" budget includes new or expanded services.

Jones announced the appointment of Fred F. Harbin, a former assistant Inspector General of the Marine Corps, as assistant director of the department.

The other night there was one —where's the team?

Answer—they got lost in a taxi on the way to an interview. The start of the program was delayed five minutes.

CALLS MEETING

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration called a meeting today of negotiators in the nationwide railroad labor dispute that prompted congressional intervention to block a nationwide strike.

TOP DOGS

THE HAGUE (UPI)—Dogs are winning out over cats as preferred household pets, according to a nationwide poll. The poll said shortly after World War II 30 out of 100 Dutch families kept cats, but the number has dropped to 11. Dogs on the other hand have been gaining favor and are now in 18 out of 100 households, the poll showed.

First U.S. Veto In 24 Years For Security Council

Wahl-Coates Class Receives Letter From President Nixon

One second grade class of students received a happy surprise when the postman came by Whal-Coates Elementary school Tuesday morning.

Included in the usual run of school mail was a letter dated March 11, 1970. This letter, from the President of the United States, Richard Nixon, was addressed to the pupils of Class 2-C, taught by Mrs. Lou Cavendish.

"It was heartening to learn of youg strong interest in stopping the pollution of our natural environment," the president wrote. "All American citizens, young and old, must work together if we are to succeed in making our country the clean and healthful place all of us want it to be. You can help in this effort first by learning all you can about the causes and effects of pollution, and the ways of remeding it, and then by setting an example for others to follow.

"With my best for the years ahead."

The letter was signed "Sincerely, Richard Nixon."

Mrs. Cavendish explained that the students in her class, in studies within a science unit, talked about a plan for the ways they could help. In discussing this idea, it was decided to write a letter to the president and to Governor Scott, asking each how boys and girls could help.

"You can imagine my delight and that of the students when we received the President's letter today," Mrs. Cavendish commented. "Each child wanted a copy to take home to their parents, so we've had mimeographed copies made so that each child can have a copy of their own."

Mrs. Cavendish says the young children are sincerely interested in learning as much as they can about pollution in Greenville and how it can be dealth with.

THE POSTMAN CAME . . . to Mrs. Lou Cavendish's second grade at Wahl-Coates, bringing a letter from President Nixon to the children telling them they can help in solving the pollution problem. (Reflector Photo Tommy Forrest)

Students Demand Principal Stay

DETROIT (AP) — About 800 students of Beaubien Junior High School in Detroit—most of them black—demonstrated Tuesday to demand that their white principal, George C. Monroe, be retained.

The students milled around the Northwest Side school for two hours and refused to enter classes. Leaders of the demonstration said they were responding to rumors that some black parents were demanding Monroe's dismissal.

The oldest college in Rhode Island is Brown University, founded in 1764.

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After 24 years, the United States cast its first Security Council veto Tuesday night in rejection of an African-Asian demand for complete isolation of Rhodesia and its white government.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost voted with British Ambassador Lord Caradon to kill a resolution sponsored by African and Asian countries condemning Britain's refusal to use force against the government of its former African colony and calling on all nations to sever all relations and means of communication with Rhodesia.

Yost said the United States had closed its consulate in Rhodesia, but the resolution "would amount to barring American citizens in Rhodesia from contact with the outside world and this we cannot support. "We cannot agree now not only to cut off all their communications with the rest of the world, but even to cut off all means by which they might leave Rhodesia."

Yost also said his government opposed the condemnation of Britain for not using force. There was speculation that the American veto was cast so that Britain would not have to stand alone, but a spokesman for the U.S. delegation refused to say whether the British had asked for such support.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik told the council the U.S. vote was "a dark page in the annals of the United Nations" because the veto had been used "to protect ... racist countries.'

Yost replied that the Soviet Union had "exercised the veto more than 100 times, the last time to prevent council action over the Soviet invasion of a small country in Central Europe."

Malik admitted that he had vetoed a 1968 resolution condemning the invasion of Czechoslovakia but said he did so to protect that country from imperialism.

Since the council first met on Jan. 17, 1946, the Soviet Union has used the veto 105 times, Britain and France four times each, Nationalist China once and now the United States once.

The vote on the African-Asian resolution was nine in favor, Britain and the United States opposed, and four abstaining. The nine votes would have been enough to pass it had Britain and the United States not used the veto which the five permanent members of the council have. And Britain's veto alone was enough to kill the resolution.

On another vote, 10 abstentions defeated a British resolution condemning the Rhodesian government's proclamation of a republic on March 3 and calling on all U.N. members not to recognize or aid that action.

Finland then proposed a compromise resolution calling on U.N. members to sever relations with Rhodesia and "immediately interrupt any existing means of transportation to and from" Rhodesia. Debate on this was put off until today.

'More Damagable'

RALEIGH (AP)—The Governor's Study Commission on Auto Liability Insurance and Rates has been told automobile manufacturers are to blame for the rising cost of auto repairs.

"Cars are made to make the manufacturers wealthy," said Roy Tunstall, president of the Independent Garage Owners' Association. "I think that the engineers take particular pains to make the parts uninterchangeable."

Richard Bennett, chairman of the North Carolina Insurance Adjusters Advisory Board, blamed the high costs on the distribution system of "captive parts" that must be purchased from an authorized manufacturers' warehouse.

Another witness Tuesday, H. A. Lansman, executive vice president of the Kemper Insurance Co. in Chicago, said one of the means that insurance companies are considering to cut their losses was a surcharge on the premiums for "more damagable" cars.

The commission met again today to hear further comments from insurance industry representatives. It will begin public hearings in Charlotte March 31.

The commission will report its recommendations on the auto liability insurance system to the 1971 General Assembly.

Family Didn't Want Second Son To Go To War

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — John G. Francis wanted to ask military authorities not to send his son, William, to Vietnam because the family already had lost one son there.

"But Bill wouldn't let me do anything about it," the father said after learning the youth was killed March 9 in a fall from a helicopter on a training mission.

The older brother, Sgt. Michael Francis, was killed in action in Vietnam in September 1967.

The family didn't want William, 23, to go. "But he wanted to do his duty. That was the way he felt, so he went,' the father said.

William, a private first class, had been in Vietnam a year. Besides his parents, he is survived by 11 brothers and sisters.
