Patients To Computer

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Seventy patients at a Glasgow hospital are consulting a polite computer, and some prefer it to a human doctor.

The patients at the Southern General Hospital are taking part in 20-minute experimental consultations with the machine, called Docto.

It types out questions about their ailments, and to reply the patient presses keys marked Yes, No and I don't know.

One hundred questions are programmed, and the computer always says please and thank you.

"People have established a rapport with the computer," said Dr. Chris Evans, an experimental psychologist who taught the machine its manners.

"The computer has been given a personality. It is like a person talking, and I am working on a voice for it."

The patients all see specialists, after Docto's interview, and the findings of man and machine are compared.

Compromise Adopted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council approved a compromise resolution Wednesday calling on member states to sever all transportation links and diplomatic relations with the white minority government in Rhodesia.

The council adopted the resolution 14 to 0 after the United States and Britain vetoed a tougher African-Asian resolution Tuesday night. That measure would have urged U.N.

members to cut all means of communication with Rhodesia and condemned Britain's refusal to use force against its former colony, where the government declared a republic March 1.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost voted for the compromise resolution with reservations, saying: "We have serious doubts about the wisdom of seeking to impose a complete ban on all surface transportation."

Pollution Indictments

CHICAGO (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. and the superintendent of its Chicago plant were indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday on charges of polluting Lake Michigan.

The firm was charged with five counts of pollution. Charles Kay, superintendent of the company's South Works plant in Chicago, was accused of aiding and abetting in the deposit of solid wastes into the lake.

The company declined to comment until it received official notification of the indictments.

The indictment alleges that on five occasions between Sept. 26 and Sept. 30, the plant discharged iron oxide and other blast furnace waste solids from the steel manufacturing process into the lake.

Such discharges are barred under a federal law regulating navigable waters.

Division's CG Hurt

SAIGON (AP) — A helicopter carrying the commanding general of the U.S. Army's Americal Division crashed on a jungle hillside two days ago, killing two men and injuring the general and the other five persons aboard, the U.S. Command announced today.

The command also announced that 101 U.S. troops were killed in action last week and 620 wounded. It was the second week this year that the number of American battle dead exceeded 100.

The Americal Division's commander, Maj. Gen. Lloyd B. Ramsey, and other survivors of the helicopter crash were rescued Wednesday after an all-night ground and air search. Helicopters lowered medical personnel to them on slings through a 100-foot double canopy of jungle trees because the choppers could not land. Then the survivors and the two bodies were lifted out in helicopter slings.

Revolutionists Share

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Los Angeles police sergeant has told investigating senators an unknown percentage of $6 million in federal and private grants to legitimate local civic action programs has gone to allegedly revolutionary groups.

Sgt. Robert J. Thoms of the police department's intelligence division said $4.8 million of the total was from federal grants, $1.08 million from the Ford Foundation and $202,500 from various church groups.

Thoms told the Senate's Internal Security subcommittee investigating new left politics that he did not know what percentage of the incomes of groups he identified as subversive and violent came from such grants.

He said the bulk of the grants were given to so-called umbrella groups used as a respectable front to obtain money, support and office space by militant organizations.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Thousands of Moslems smashed and burned Chinese homes and shops in a six-hour rampage in the North Sulawesi-Celebes capital of Manado after they claimed a Chinese insulted "the name of the Prophet Mohammed," the official Antara news agency reported today.

Western Union Office Robbed By Masked Man

A masked man, brandishing a pistol, took an undetermined amount of money from the Western Union office at 313 Evans Street here last night.

The armed robbery took place about 8:45 p. m. just as the telephone office was preparing to close the night.

Police Chief T. E. Gladson said Miss Hilda Howell of Rocky Mount, the Western Union night operator, was alone in the office at the time of the holdup.

The police official quoted Miss Howell as saying a white male, in his early 20's entered the office and said, "This is a holdup. Don't be afraid. Just give me all your money. I am not going to hurt you."

The man, according to Miss Howell, was wearing sun glasses and a white mask across his face.

She told police the man then took the paper money from the cash drawer and left the building, heading North on Evans Street.

The incident was reported to the Police Department at 8:59 p. m. and officers immediately began a search for the robber. Investigation of the incident is continuing today.

Speight Denies Any Secrecy In Board's Action

"All we did was meet with them (the Board of Trustees of Pitt Technical Institute) at their request," in a joint meeting, Pitt County attorney W.W. Speight said today while commenting on actions last week by County Commissioners in approving a resolution calling for a referendum to provide financial support for the proposed Pitt Community College and Technical Institute.

Speight said newspaper articles published Tuesday and yesterday in the Daily Reflector, which termed the commissioners action belated and charged that Commissioners took action on the resolution at an unannounced meeting, "put commissioners in an unfair light."

Explaining, Speight said County Commissioners met with the PTI board "at their request (at the request of the PTI trustees)" at a luncheon at the Holiday Inn Friday.

At that time, Speight continued, the PTI trustees presented commissioners with a resolution requesting Commissioners to call a special election on the question of appropriating funds for financial support of the proposed community college.

"The law required the board of trustees (of PTI) to request the vote. There was nothing to have a secret meeting over. They (the commissioners) did not know it was going to be a secret meeting," He noted that the commissioners went to the meeting at the request of the PTI board.

"Nothing was secret," he explained. "The action has to be advertised in the papers anyway," he said, "to be done legally."

Emphasizing that there is "not a conflict between the two boards," the attorney said commissioners anticipated the need for a vote on the question of financial support for a community college quite a while ago. "I tried to get Fulford (PTI president William E. Fulford) to bring it up the first Monday in March (at the regular meeting of the Board of County Commissioners), but Fulford did not have their request ready at the time," Speight noted.

"All that the County Commissioners have tried to do," Speight commented, "is try to be able to levy a legally authorized tax to support the institution. There was a question whether we could support it (a community college).

Minipark Grant For Farmville Is Announced

FARMVILLE — Mayor Will Joyner announced today that the local Redevelopment Commission has received a grant of up to $35,000 for a minipark in the southern part of Farmville.

The amount of the grant will be dependent on the amount the Board of Commissioners decides to spend on the project, since the Department of Housing and Urban Development will match whatever the town puts up. The town's application and intentions must be filed by April 30.

The Farmville planning board instituted the plans for a recreational area for this section of the town; Lloyd Englehardt, Redevelopment Commission director, said.

Two Protestors Are Arrested

RALEIGH (AP) — Two anti-war, antidraft protesters were arrested today after one of them allegedly splashed a plastic bag of blood onto Raleigh's Armed Forces Induction Center building.

Charged with damage to real property were Beth Conway Mullin, 24, a student at North Carolina State University, and Hubert Hiran Thomason, a nursing assistant at Rex Hospital. They were placed under $100 bond each.

About 25 pickets had gathered at the induction center about 6:30 a.m., all members of the N.C. State University New Mobilization Committee to end the War in Vietnam. They stood quietly until a bus bearing inductees discharged its passengers at the front door.

Nixon Offers Govm't Student Aid Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposing a major reform of federal aid to college students, President Nixon asked Congress today to put even the poorest students on an equal financial footing with those coming from families earning $10,000 a year.

In a special message, the most arresting feature in a series of Nixon-advocated changes would greatly increase dollars available for grants and loans to students from low-income families. He said:

"Every low-income student entering an accredited college would be eligible for a combination of federal grants and subsidized loans sufficient to give him the same ability to pay as a student from a family earning $10,000."

The administration program would make federally guaranteed loans available to every qualified student, regardless of the income level of his family.

But, the President said, direct "federal subsidies would be directed to students who need them most."

Nixon said the effect of concentrating subsidies in the lower income brackets would nearly double the actual amount of assistance available to most students with family incomes below $7,500.

And, under his plan, "All eligible students from families of $4,500 annual income would be guaranteed a total of $1,300 each in grants and subsidized loans. This would constitute the financing floor; it will be supplemented by earnings, other scholarships and access to unsubsidized loans."

He said it is now time to achieve a long-held national goal that "no qualified student who wants to go to college should be barred by lack of money."

Another Nixon recommendation would create a national student loan association which could purchase student loan paper from banks and other financial institutions, thus making available additional funds for private loans.

He estimated the association would buy up to $2 billion in student loan paper in the 1972 fiscal year that begins July 1, 1971.

Under the Nixon plan, the government also would lay out $100 million in fiscal 1972 to launch a program aimed at strengthening vocational training by community colleges and technical institutes.

And $200 million would be spent to set up and operate a national foundation for higher education to promote and, in some cases, subsidize efforts at innovation and reform.

In the area of federally guaranteed student loans, the present seven per cent interest ceiling—a deterrent to the making of such loans—would be lifted and the maximum annual student loan would be increased to $2,500 from $1,500. Moreover, the maximum period for repayment of loans would be increased to 20 years from the present 10 years.

In his lengthy message, Nixon made reference several times to campus unrest. At one point he said:

"The turmoil on the nation's campuses is a symbol of the urgent need for reform in curriculum, teaching, student participation, discipline and governance."

Gray Files For Coroner's Race

John M. Gray, farmer and Greenville businessman, has filed with the county Board of Elections for the Pitt County coroner's position, subject to the May 2 primary.

A Pitt County native, Gray is seeking his first term as coroner. In filing for the county post, he paid his $23.60 fee to Elections Board chairman, Bruce Koonce, on Monday.

Gray is a 1966 graduate of the University of Cincinnati College of Mortuary Science. He holds both the funeral director and mortuary licenses.

The coroner candidate is a 32nd Degree Mason and a member of the Pitt County Shrine Club, Greenville Moose Lodge and Greenville Jaycees.

Gray will oppose the current coroner, E. H. Harvey Jr., in the Democratic primary in May. An Elections Board spokesman said this morning that Harvey filed as a candidate for re-election on March 2.

Young Girl Is Bad News To Town's Drug Pushers

DRUGS WAS THE TOPIC — This is Susan Dusio standing in front of her Newark home holding "Puppy" her dog. The interested onlooker at left is a neighborhood friend. (AP Wirephoto)

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, Calif. (AP) — Susan Dusio, 13, is bad news to local drug pushers.

The 4-foot-7, 70-pound eighth grader at MacGregor Junior High School is almost entirely responsible for arranging a week of drug-abuse education that taught 640 teen-agers what the drug scene is all about.

"The response was indescribable," says Vice Principal Kenneth Strange. "She had help, of course, but Susan carried the ball from the very beginning and virtually handled the thing by herself. It wouldn't have happened without her."

The fact that Susan knew some teen-agers on drugs led her to choose that topic for a special report in history class.

"A lot of kids smoke, but cigarettes are not as bad as drugs. A lot of kids picked air pollution, but that's not as bad as drugs, so I picked drugs because it's the worst problem."

She sent for some literature and learned that speakers, exhibits and movies were available. Her teachers responded enthusiastically to her suggestion for a week of programs.

"It's important that kids get the right information on drugs, not lies and exaggerations," says Susan, who politely refuses whenever she is offered drugs, usually out of school.

She got on the telephone—to the state Narcotics Bureau in San Francisco, Alameda County authorities, the private Synanon House in Oakland, and to Headway, another volunteer group in Oakland working to stop the spread of drug abuse.

Susan lined up a list of speakers, exhibits, and movies, and a week in March was set aside by the school for the show. Local service clubs and banks chipped in $150 to help with expenses.

At the conclusion of the week of discussions, she was pleased with the results.

"A lot of kids seem to know more now about what it means to take drugs," Susan says. "I think some of them have a different point of view about it now. I hope so."

Soviet Missile Tests Go On

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has tested more than 30 long range missiles since Strategic Arms Limitation Talks started last November, sources say.

During the same four-month period, the United States has test fired 15 missiles.

This 2-1 Soviet margin in missile testing is one comparison cited by Nixon administration officials challenging recent Russian statements attacking U.S. weapons policies.

In essence, the Soviets have accused the United States of stimulating the arms race, particularly by moving to deploy multiple warhead—MIRV—missiles this June.

Pentagon officials see this as a propaganda campaign aimed at weakening the American position at the upcoming arms talks by playing on U.S. public opinion.

Defense officials said while Russia charges the United States with heating up arms competition, the Soviets are pushing ahead vigorously with their own intercontinental ballistic missile, submarine-launched missile, and antimissile programs.

Sources indicated the 30 or so Soviet missile tests since mid-November have included huge SS-9's, carrying triple warheads, as well as other types of ICBMs.

Among the 15 U.S. test firings were six missiles designed to carry multiple warheads.

U.S. intelligence analysts believe on the basis of Soviet testing the Russians could deploy multiple warheads late this year.

The Russians already have more land-based ICBM launchers than the United States—1,200-plus to 1,054—and are still increasing them, while American forces remain constant.

U.S. intelligence also is watching anxiously an apparent strong Russian effort to catch up with the United States in Polaris type submarines.

According to current intelligence estimates, the Soviet missile submarine program is moving at such a pace the Russians could overtake the United States and exceed the U.S. Polaris fleet of 41 boats in the 1974-75 period—a year earlier than had been forecast.

The Russians also are reported bearing down on their anti-missile development, with hard intelligence that the Soviets are testing an improved long-range ABM weapon and expanding their radar coverage.

So far U.S. officials believe the United States is ahead of the Russians in antimissile technology, but there is small optimism this situation will continue for very long.

U.S. authorities have chosen the course of a limited expansion of the Safeguard antimissile system to preserve the U.S. deterrent and are putting off for a year—to gauge progress or lack of progress at the arms talks—any hard decisions on whether to undertake new offensive weapons.

Maxi Style Appeals To Princess Margaret

By MARGARET SAVILLE
LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret is the first of the British royal women to buy a maxi coat. She chose a grey tweed one which she wears to take her two children, Lord Linley and Lady Sarah Armstrong Jones — for walks and also to go shopping and driving. It's a natural for Margaret. For some time, the fashion-loving princess has been choosing long-skirted dresses for private parties as well as official functions. She thinks they make her look taller. Princess Margaret always has been very conscious of the fact that she's only five feet two inches in shoes. Her husband, Lord Snowdon, likes her in the longer lengths, too. He takes close interest in everything she wears, offering frank comments and suggesting alterations if he thinks they're needed.

Princess Margaret usually accepts his verdict but there have been occasions when they've disagreed and a lively argument resulted.

Tony had some work as a designer of women's styles. Once he arranged a fashion show of ski clothes and winter sports outfits, but that was before his marriage.

While Princess Margaret and Tony were in Japan last year, opening British Week in Tokyo, the princess was presented with a wall banner of orange and gold embroidery. Tony decided it would make her an evening dress.

"There's hardly enough for a swim suit," the princess remarked. So the dressmaker was told to use the banner for the top, adding flame chiffon folds to the floor and wide sleeves trimmed with gold embroidery. Ever since it's been Princess Margaret's favorite after-dark outfit.

She's just acquired the very newest craze for daytime wear — a pair of soft leather boots, cowboy style, with square silver heels that clatter as she walks. A sombrero goes with them but it's said the princess was somewhat put out when a certain member of the royal circle asked: "Where's your horse?"

Bridge Partner Overplays Hand

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We're new in town. My husband's company transferred him here. I met a very nice woman at a women's club meeting and we hit it off very well. Since she and her husband are bridge players, and so are we, I invited them here for an evening of cards. The husbands also seemed to like each other, so we've had several fun evenings of bridge with them.

Well, at their house last evening, the husband of my friend started playing "footsies" with me under the bridge table. I tried moving my foot as far out of his reach as I could, until I nearly slid off my chair, but that didn't help much.

I didn't want to risk a scene because I really like his wife, but I was quite upset.

I certainly don't want this friendship to develop into anything like that, so how do you think I should handle it if he starts in again where he left off? DOUBLE IN SPADES

DEAR DOUBLE: At the first opportunity, get "Daddy Long Legs" alone and tell him his footwork is fine, but he's overplaying his hand. In other words, you got his message, and the answer is NO!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother-in-law. Rick and I were married last summer and are living with his parents as this is our last year of college, and frankly, the price is right.

Rick and I have our own bedroom, but we have absolutely no privacy. Like none. Rick's mother (I call her "The Inspector General") is forever bursting into our bedroom, unannounced, to "see if the windows are closed," or "if the radiator is on," or if "all the lights are out."

Yesterday I was standing in the hallway when she burst right into the bathroom, knowing that Rick had gone in there to shower. (She said she had to get the soiled towels.) She opened the door wide—and there stood Rick, stark naked!

Naturally he was mad, and shouted "mother!" So she calmly said, "Oh, be quiet, I used to diaper YOU."

So, if you know a nice way to get the message across to my mother-in-law that we'd like a little privacy, will you please let me know? STUMPED IN MADISON

DEAR STUMPED: Other than telling her, the key to the situation could be a key for those doors.

DEAR ABBY: You have printed much about kids who study with loud noise for a background; many say they cannot study without it.

It became my duty to navigate long range aircraft. It took lots of work to learn to do the rapid, intricate task despite the noise; I used to get lost just because my thinking was made fuzzy, and that meant even more, harder work to find myself again in time. But I learned, like all the rest.

The noise did another thing. Hours of it, not nearly as loud as the kids play their music, damaged my auditory nerve, destroyed my high frequency hearing. I can no longer understand conversation if there is a background noise—even a whispering fan—and no hearing aid can be fitted to help. Like so many others, I was grounded to keep me away from the noise; that cost me about $60,000 in flight pay. And being primarily a pilot, now of no further use in that job, the noise-caused hearing loss cost me the potentially best part of my career and caused me to become— F. C. WARE

Upheaval Among Bureaucrats

Recently 1800 HEW employees have demanded an accounting from their boss, Robert H. Finch for Nixon administration civil rights policies.

More that a third of the HEW's civil rights division protested the ouster of their director Leon E. Panetta, in a strongly worded letter to the president.

The Labor Department faces a minor rebellion from Neighborhood Youth Corps directors objecting to a 25 percent cut in money job trainees can earn.

Associated Press writer G. C. Thelen, Jr. saw this as "dissident young bureaucrats, angry over such issues as the Vietnam war and the Nixon administration's civil rights policies" who are ELIZABETH CITY — Kids are reckless rascals and it's a good thing most of them grow up otherwise civilized society would eventually deteriorate to the morals and customs of barbaric jungles.

The outrageous and illegal behavior if young people on our campuses and big city streets in recent months has frightened us and perhaps given us a false impression of the fibre of America's youth. We are learning that most of the worst behavior occurs as a result of dare devil leadership by wicked scoundrels who are in their twenties — and no longer kids.

Excluding the extremists and their fringe of followers, it seems that most of today's young people think and behave just about like kids have done for the past 50 years — or longer.

Perhaps one of today's biggest problems is that parents teachers and law enforcement officers are turning their heads and letting bad kids get by with murder. Kids are getting braver and adults are getting baffled.

In an effort to help develop effective methods of coping with the juvenile delinquency problem, several organizations have recently conducted surveys to find out what the majority of today's young people are thinking. A November study made by the South Bend, Ind. Tribune disclosed some discouraging reactions along with a few good reasons for optimism. The study was based on questionnaires filled in by the 1689 youngsters, ages 14 through 19. About half the participants were female and 3 per cent were black. About one half the respondents were 16 or 17 years old.

A good shocker for openers was the disclosure that one out of three approved of premarital sex!

However, further questioning revealed that some of the kids interpreted premarital sex to mean "necking", as well as more involved sex relations.

One out of six kids think marriage soon will be obsolete and this prospect is particularly frightening. The examples being set by adults must of course be considered a basis for the prevailing opinion among the young.

Eighteen per cent (about the same number of girls as boys) say they smoke cigarettes — and 10 per cent have tried marijuana. Twenty six per cent think marijuana should be legalized and 88 per cent approve of sex education in school.

Sixty per cent believe indecent literature has a relation to sex crimes and this disclosure may arouse additional opposition to the pornographic trash on our newsstands.

About half the 1689 participants said they attend movies which are recommended for adults only — and 69 per cent said morals are generally declining.

It was encouraging to learn that 91 per cent expressed belief in the 10 commandments and one out of two said parents are not strict enough with their children.

Generally speaking, the study indicated that the present young generation is following precedent so far as anti-establishment is concerned, 57 per cent approved of teacher strikers; 59 per cent favor immediate withdrawal from Vietnam; 62 per cent say the U.S. should grant amnesty to all those who avoided the draft by reason of conscience.

Fifty one per cent do not believe in capital punishment but 47 per cent favored continuing our present system.

As might be expected, youngsters are sold on the space program and favor its continuance. Fifty two per cent said the U.S. should make a strong attempt to land a man on Mars.

The youths were asked, "Do you believe in busing to establish racial balance in schools?" The responses were: Yes — 22.5 per cent; No — 75.6 per cent. There was no breakdown as to race.

Members of both races will be genuinely concerned about the youths' reactions as to intermarriage.

"Would you marry a Negro (a white) — 38 per cent of Negro respondent said yes; 14 per cent of whites said yes. Fourteen per cent of the white youngsters participating would amount to around 210 individuals. It may be assumed that most of those white kids who said they would marry a Negro would change their mind by the time they reached marriage — and vice versa.

To the question; would you date a Negro (a white) 72 per cent of the black said yes and 29 per cent of the whites answered in the affirmative.

Twelve per cent of Negroes would object if whites moved next door and 16 per cent of whites would object to having Negroes next door.

It should be pointed out that the Negro population of South Bend is not high — and that only 3 per cent of the participants in the Tribune survey were Negro.

"shattering the stereotype of the federal employee as a faceless civil servant."

"To the increasing discomfort of their politically appointed bosses, a vocal minority among the under 40 crowd in government is making discernible waves in a distinctly unservice fashion," Thelen wrote.

Funny thing. In reading the same news reports we had seen power mad bureaucrats—who were at last being told that they had to treat public funds as if they really did belong to the public—reacting with a last ditch effort to hold on to their dictatorial powers.

We were inclined to think of immature types who couldn't hold jobs outside of government finally being told that they had to treat all sections of America equally; that they weren't occupying troops from a conquering nation with license to destroy anything they chose in a defeated country.

We had seen government employees fighting for the glory days when they could snap their fingers at southern school boards and demand the impossible, with the threat of withholding the taxes the southerners had paid, to hang over them.

We had seen all the unreasonableness that had been so evident in every HEW plan which had come down to the various school districts with which we are familiar.

Of course, that is just from the point of view of southerners living under the oppressiveness of bureaucrats who have been in the delightful position of having laws at their disposal which apply to only one section of the nation.

Now, however, we have been enlightened.

School Lunches Prove To Be A Big Business

Obviously feeding school children is big business, as indicated by a recent news story.

Pitt County schools served 1,572,739 meals to students during the 1968-69 school year, while 463,210 meals were served to Greenville school students.

Pitt County schools were reimbursed $214,073.57 for free or reduced price meals. Greenville served 47,652 free or reduced price meals and was reimbursed a total of $35,955.41.

Colleges and universities seem to have seen a decline in students eating at their cafeterias. In the city and county schools, however, school-served meals are a major thing.

An Egyptian boy, writing about the year A. D. 200, sent the following letter after his father, who had gone on a journey. This choice bit of impudence was discovered at a place where the dryness of the Egyptian sand had insured its preservation.

"Theon to his father Theon. Greetings.

"A fine thing you did to me! You didn't take me with you to the town. If you won't take me with you to Alexandria, then I'm not writing you any more letters; I'm not going to talk to you or greet you any more. And if you are going to Alexandria by yourself, then I shan't stick up for you any more. I shan't even say hullo.

If you won't take me with you, that's what will happen! "My mother too would say to Archelaus: 'He makes me fed up; off with him.'

"Yes, it's a fine thing you've done to me! You have sent me presents, big ones: pips to you! They tricked me, on this twelfth day, the very day that you have taken yourself off. Well now, have me fetched, I shan't eat and I shan't drink. That's what I'll do!

"I hope that things may go well with you.

KILLED IN ACTION!

Ponder Welfare, Too

One trouble with presidential messages — especially long presidential messages — is that they tend to become instant classics. Everyone talks about them, but few persons really read them; such messages are interred in the tombstone type of the Congressional Record, and then are obscured in the rush of events.

The President's message of March 3, dealing with education, deserves a better fate. Mr. Nixon said some things about our schools, public and private, that need badly to be said. His major point is that in certain important areas of our society, current procedures in education — notably Federal aid to education — simply are not working; and before throwing good billions after bad, he want to know why they're not working.

For all the splutterings of the educationist lobby, the President's cool appraisal is undeniably sound. Yet the anomalous aspect of this recent message is that nearly everything Mr. Nixon said of our failings in education could be said with equal precision of our failings in public welfare.

Thus he began by observing that "our Federal education programs are largely fragmented and disjointed, and too often administered in a way that frustrates local and private efforts." True. And the same criticism exactly applies to Federal welfare programs.

The President singled out one program in particular as an example of recent disappointments. More than a billion dollars a year is going into "compensatory" education for disadvantaged children, most of them poor blacks in the central cities. Yet tests indicate that fewer than 20 per cent of these children are measurably benefited. Mr. Nixon, who is nothing if not pragmatic, therefore proposes to take in sail. He wants to find out what is wrong.

Other Editors Say One-Upmanship

(The Charlotte Observer)
One Frank B. Aycock Jr., an attorney in Currituck, says he has a friend in Hatteras who is irate at Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University.

In a letter to the Raleigh News and Observer, Aycock says he has been unable to disabuse the minds of several people in his area of the notion that Dr. Jenkins arranged for the center of totality in Saturday's eclipse of the sun to pass directly through Greenville.

Writes Aycock: "He (the man in Hatteras) said that he was grateful that Dr. Jenkins had placed a branch of ECU in Dare County. However, as to the eclipse, he felt that if Dr. Jenkins had kept out of it, Cape Hatteras would have been in the center of totality."

Aycock's efforts are in vain. There are two believable theories about why Dr. Jenkins arranged this event for Greenville. One is that he wanted to put to rest once and for all any assertions that East Carolina was not ready for university status. Another is that he had to do something quickly to restore the prestige ECU lost when it was upset in the first round of the Southern Conference basketball tournament.

For all we know, it could have been a mixture of these reasons. At any rate, scientific interest. Last Saturday was centered on the home of ECU, and the Hatteras man had good reason to believe his area had been done in. The sun may occasionally be eclipsed, but ECU and Leo Jenkins — never!

Revolving Credit Suit Impact

By ELMER ROESSNER
A New Jersey suit demanding millions of dollars of refunds from revolving credit plans under the state's usury laws may have far-reaching effects. If successful — and the final decision probably will be up to the Supreme Court — it may affect almost every revolving charge account in the nation. Even if it is unsuccessful, it may affect every taxpayer.

The suit is a class action filed in the Superior Court at Newark by A. Robert Rothbard and Sanford Schneider, representing a group using revolving credit plans, against a number of retailers, credit and plans and gas and oil companies.

It alleges that their revolving credit plans charge 18 per cent a year on unpaid balances but that any interest charge over 7½ per cent is usury under New Jersey laws.

Millions At Stake

The action asks that the defendants deposit an amount equal to all collections above 7½ per cent by the court — which would be many millions of dollars — and that any person who paid more than 7½ per cent be given a refund from the sum. It also asks an examination of the defendants' records and an injunction against further overcharges.

The crux of the case is that operators of revolving credit funds have always insisted that their charges include more than interest, paying for such things as credit investigations, accounting costs and other services in connection with the credit.

The Internal Revenue Service has gone along with this theory and has refused to allow shoppers to deduct the 18 per cent paid on revolving credit charges. Usually the IRS allows only 6 per cent as interest and rules the rest is a fee for service.

If the courts uphold that view in the current case, taxpayers could use the judgment that the interest they receive on bank deposits, bonds, etc., is not all interest, that part of it is a reimbursement for costs of getting the money to the bank, cashing interest checks or coupons and so on. However, the IRS would probably retort that it's all income anyway, hence taxable.

Repercussions Possible

Can't Rush Program

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

The galloping popular campaign to clean up the nation's polluted environment won't witness some magical quick fix.

And that is worrying some experts in pollution control.

They are concerned that enthusiasm will fade when the drive to clean up air, water and land runs into inevitable practical realities, even if given all the good will in the world to do the job.

Disappointment and fading interest could deflate the pressure to do what is really required—a continuing commitment and motivation to raise the money, to pass and enforce the laws, to develop technology and to do all the work first to halt and then correct man-made insults to the environment. And then to keep improving antipollution controls as population expands.

As one reality, take a river basin which is being polluted by raw sewage from a number of towns.

By popular demand, even law all towns are asked to halt their pollution, right now. People along other rivers make similar demand.

But would there be enough engineers to make the essential surveys, then to plan and design the sewage treatment plants, or would there be enough skilled construction firms—given contracts for the lowest bids—to build all the plants for all the towns and cities at the same time?

The point is raised by Reinhold W. Thieme, a deputy assistant secretary of the Interior, not in terms of suggesting any slowdown, but merely to point out that some cities might have to wait their turn to complete the clean-up of the entire river.

Another caution against expecting instant paradise comes from a distinguished leader in efforts to save man's environment, Dr. Rene Dubos of Rockefeller University, New York City. He says much basic knowledge is lacking concerning some actions to take.

While a river of dollars will be needed to stop pollution, "even if we had limitless resources we could not formulate really effective control programs because we know so little about the origin, nature and effects of most air pollutants," Dr. Dubos writes in Psychology Today.

Seventy per cent of the solid particles contaminating urban air have not been identified, and "no one really knows at present which of the air pollutants are most dangerous and where priority should be placed in control measures."

Even greater ignorance exists concerning chemical pollutants in water supplies, and about which ones may be harmful to health, he adds.

But it is essential that as a society Americans commit themselves to solving problems of pollution "not because we are threatened with extinction but because, if we do not understand what the environment is doing to us, something worse than extinction will take place—a progressive degradation of the quality of human life," Dr. Dubos declares.

Specialists such as Thieme and Dubos are not suggesting any excuses for not going ahead immediately with a mammoth attack against pollution, but to give perspective that the struggle will take time, and will involve more than the most obvious sources of pollution, such as sewage, chemicals pouring into the air and water, and noxious fumes from auto exhausts. Standards of control will have to rise with population growth, Thieme points out.

Suppose, he explains, that a city is treating its sewage so that 95 per cent of what is discharged into a river or lake is safe enough not to harm the quality of the water—at this time. If the city's population doubles, or more, then the 5 per cent of contaminated material could, by sheer volume, become a damaging amount.

Charles C. Johnson, administrator, and Dr. John J. Hanlon, deputy administrator of the Environmental Health Service, Rockville, Md., stress the importance of "channeling our energies and concerns into the right priority of needs."

While it is very important to protect wildlife and natural resources and to preserve recreational areas, they give the highest priority to cleaning up air and water to protect human health. And Johnson adds, in this respect: "What is good for man is good for animals, too."

The outlook is promising for truly effective control in a few years time of pollutants from automobile exhausts, but "the picture for control of pollutants from stationary sources is not so rosy," says Leighton A. Price of the Environmental Health Service.

Major problems are sulfur oxides and solid particles of matter coming from power plants, factories, incinerators and burning of coal, but "you just can't call on engineers now and say, 'Control my sulfur.' Some processes for doing this look good, but haven't been tested on a large scale yet. There's nothing on the shelf to do it with."

The dimensions of the problem of disposing of solid wastes are just becoming apparent to the public, says Richard D. Vaughan, director of the Bureau of Solid Waste Management of the Environmental Health Service.

What, for example, is to be done with seven million old automobiles abandoned every year? Only 10 per cent now are scrapped and the metal reused; the rest are eyesores, occupying more and more land.

Questions abound. Who should pay to have them transported for use as scrap—taxpayer, auto owner, auto maker? Should steel mills be required to use a certain percentage of scrap in making new steel—suppose their furnaces are not designed for this, who should foot that bill?

The national bill for collecting, transporting and disposing of solid wastes—paper, plastics, cans, bottles, broken furniture, whatever—is $14½ billion a year now, Vaughan says.

"Collection methods, while archaic, aren't too bad, but disposal surely is bad. Mostly the stuff is thrown into dumps. Only about 6 per cent goes into sanitary land-fills, and 8 to 10 per cent is incinerated, but only about one-quarter of the incinerators have adequate air pollution controls."

Research is needed to create more efficient incinerators and better land-fill techniques and devices, he says.

"But if we put all our eggs into one technological basket, we are bound to lose. The amount of our solid waste is doubling every 10 years, and that's a conservative estimate. One reason is more people. The other is that what we discard, as individuals, is increasing at an even faster rate than doubling every 10 years."

One great goal has to be to learn how to recycle more products, to use the same materials over and over again, and somehow to pay for doing this, Vaughan says.

The problem exists only with man's material things. Nature has always recycled all living things, after they die.

Kilpatrick . . .

millions of mothers with dependent children; the little research that has been done on work incentives is not encouraging.

Yet when it comes to welfare reform, the President wants 40 knots from the boiler room. He asks Congress to plunge ahead, through the unknown waters of a Family Assistance Plan, and never mind the fog. In view of his excellent approach to education, it seems reasonable to ask that he take some slow soundings on welfare too.

Political Doors Beckoning Sports Personalities

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Big Sam Huff says he doesn't see much difference in calling defensive signals for the Washington Redskins football team and throwing his weight around in the halls of Congress.

"Either way, it's largely a committee matter," explained the 235-pound retired linebacker, now busy campaigning for the 1st District congressional seat in his native West Virginia.

"On the football field, the 11 men are a committee and on defense I was the leader. Congress is made up of a lot of committees. It's a question of getting along with people, pulling together and getting the job done."

Huff, a Democrat, found support in his former New York Giants teammate, Andy Robustelli of Stamford, Conn., who is being urged to seek the Republican nomination for governor or lieutenant governor of Connecticut.

"Sports are closely related to every phase of life, and particularly politics," said the 220-pound former defensive end, who quit playing five years ago to become a travel and marketing specialist. "Government is the spirit of the people. Spirit is what motivates a successful team."

Huff and Robustelli are two in a wave of prominent sports personalities who are finding that an athletic background is a good starting point for a political career just as Hollywood figures found screen stardom similarly helpful a few years ago.

Exploits on the athletic field may introduce you more quickly to the voters but they won't get you elected or keep you in office, most of the politically minded sports idols agree.

"It opens the doors," says Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, former pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates who is seeking his second term as Republican congressman from the 5th District in North Carolina.

"But people are not going to vote for you or support you just because you're an athlete. You have to stand on the issues. You have to convince the people that you can do the job."

"However, I do think that experience in big time athletics help. Politics, like sports, is very competitive. Sports teach a man to lose today and come back tomorrow. It's the same in politics."

Republican Bob Mathias of Tulare, Calif., Olympic decathlon champion in 1948 and 1952 and now serving his second term in the House of Representatives agrees basically with his GOP colleague.

"As in the case of a movie star or an astronaut, the athlete doesn't have to spend thousands in public relations to get himself known," Mathias said. "But he can't get by on his sports record. He must build a good name. And he must produce."

Bill Campbell of Huntington, West Va., 1964 National Amateur golf champion who was beaten in a bid as a Democrat for Congress in 1952, now is seeking a state Senate seat as a Republican.

"It's a curious transfer of talent, but understandable," he said of the intensified move of athletes into government service.

"You have to have a tough hide. You have to be able to stand up to criticism. You have to be a fighter," he said. "All of this equipment you get in sports. Also you learn to play by the rules."

Campbell, a Princeton graduate, said the image of being a gentleman golfer did not work to his advantage in his West Virginia campaigns.

"In fact, my opponent used it as campaign material," he added. "But there was just the opposite effect in the case of Vice President Agnew. In the Bob Hope tournament, he sliced a ball and hit Doug Sanders on the head."

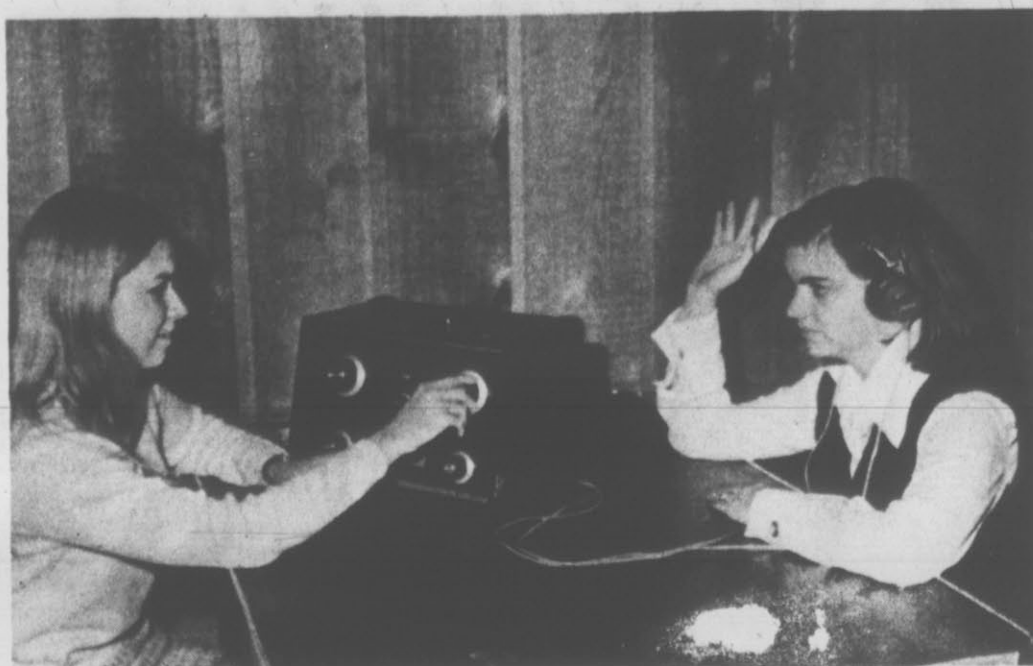

"People thought it was great. The vice president profited by being a poor golfer—people related to him. I suffer by being a fairly good one."

One of President Nixon's advisers is Charles "Bud" Wilkinson, who had a long and successful coaching career at the University of Oklahoma.

The roll call of prominent sports personalities in government goes all the way to the Supreme Court, where one of the seats is occupied by Byron "Whizzer" White, an All-American backfield star at Colorado, Pittsburgh Steeler and member of the Football Hall of Fame.

Emil "Bus" Mosbacher Jr., who piloted American yachts to two successful defenses of the America's Cup, is chief of protocol in Washington, D.C. Gene Rossides, former Columbia University quarterback, is assistant secretary of the Treasury.

Besides Huff, Mizell and Mathias, sports figures bidding for congressional seats in this year's elections include Demo-

Pitt Inter-Racial Committee Concurs

The final report of the Citizens Awareness Committee was the main topic of discussion at the regular meeting of the Pitt County Inter-Racial Committee last night.

Dr. Andrew Best, chairman of the committee, reports that the committee members "concurred in the concepts, aims and crat Ralph Metcalf, former Olympic runner, in Illinois, and Republican Bill McColl, ex-Stanford and Chicago Bears end, running in California's 24th District.

Ecologists Picket Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — A committee representing six ecology groups picketed the New York headquarters of Badische Anilin Soda Fabrik Wednesday in protest of the proposed establishment of a BASF plant in South Carolina.

BASF plans to build a huge facility in Beaufort County. The groups claim that the plant will discharge 2.5 million gallons of pollutants into the Colleton River.

The pickets said the pollutants will adversely affect the fishing industry on Hilton Head, an offshore island, which also has a plush resort area.

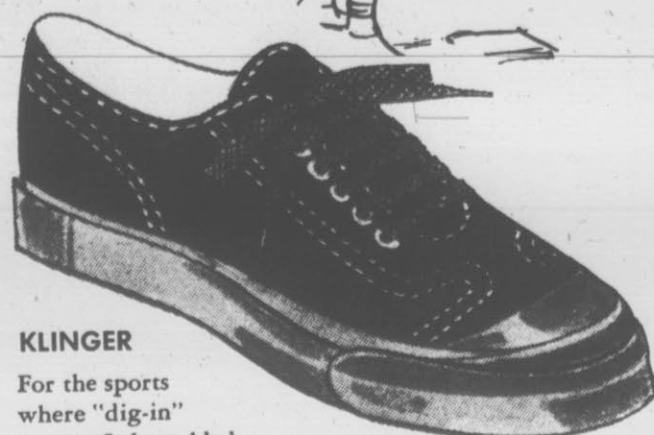

The six groups in the committee were the National Audubon Society, the Sierra Club, the Ecology Center, Ecology Action East, the Friends of the Earth, and Environment. They represent 2,000 persons in the New York area.

BASF is the seventh largest chemical industry in the world, according to a company spokesman. It also has facilities in New Jersey and North Carolina.

Grifton Gets New Town Hall At A Dollar A Year

DOLLAR DEAL . . . Grifton Mayor David Bosley (center) accepts the lease and the keys to the new Grifton

Town Hall from First-Citizens Bank and Trust Company officials, Clifton Gentry, left, and Waite Howard.

GRIFTON — The Town of Grifton will have a new town hall, and for only $1 per year. Town offices will move into the old First Citizens Bank building here in the near future. Arrangements have been completed with First Citizens for the town to occupy the building, in mid-town Grifton, for $1 per year.

Dr. C.F. Irons Is Re-Elected To Nat'l Ass'n

Dr. Cary Frederick Irons of Greenville has been re-elected to active membership in the American Academy of General Practice, the national association of family doctors. Re-election indicates that the physician has successfully completed 150 hours of accredited postgraduate medical study in the last three years. The Academy, founded in 1947, has been instrumental in the establishment of a new primary medical specialty in family practice. The country's second largest national medical association, it is the only national medical group that requires members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

Report Theft Of Plywood Supply

Approximately $250 worth of plywood was reported stolen last night from a new home under construction on Rt. 1, Grifton, according to Pitt County sheriff, Ralph Tyson. Tyson said that 35 sheets of interior plywood material was taken from the site of a new home being built by Joe Quinerly of Grifton. Deputies were continuing their investigation of the incident this morning, the sheriff said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of G. Harrold Carswell's nomination to the Supreme Court have dusted off a weapon that proved deadly to an earlier nominee—charges of possible ethics violations.

But an administration lieutenant says any attempt to draw such a comparison between Carswell and Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. was "reaching a long way."

Haynsworth, chief judge of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va., was rejected by the Senate last November, largely on the strength of charges he violated the Canons of Judicial Ethics by sitting on cases in which he had a financial interest.

Carswell, a Tallahassee, Fla., member of the 5th Court of Appeals bench who was nominated to the Supreme Court in January, has never owned any stock.

But Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., told the Senate Wednesday Carswell may have violated canons 5, 10 and 34 by displaying "a consistent pattern of bias and hostility toward anyone arguing a civil rights case."

These three canons of the American Bar Association's ethical code say that judges should be courteous, patient, temperate and impartial.

Cranston, a nonlawyer, said two witnesses before Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on Carswell last January had described the 50-year-old judge as openly hostile.

One of them, Leroy Clark, a Negro and an associate law professor at New York University, said Carswell had once turned his back on him while he was arguing a case and he had been known to do the same to other lawyers.

Cranston said this testimony was echoed in private conversations he has had since with two other lawyers.

Cranston's charge was the first time the opposition brought the Canons of Judicial Ethics into the Carswell debate, although the testimony of Clark and Rutgers law Prof. John Lowenthal received wide publicity two months ago.

Your Optician

In Cooperation With The North Carolina Opticians Association

(THREE FRIENDS)

Your eyes have friends. Know them.

It is understandable that your eyes number one and most important friend is you, yourself! Just as you think of yourself as number one, your eyes look to you first for day to day care and kindness. So give them the personal attention they require.

If you do need help, however, turn to your eye doctor for professional advice. He is your eye's friend, also. His training and competence will unquestionably help to reveal your source of discomfort and perform or prescribe the appropriate remedy for correction. If you need glasses to correct abnormal vision, see your independent optician to have your eye doctor's prescription filled. He, too, is your eye's friend. His training equips the optician to fill prescriptions written by eye doctors, in the same manner that a druggist is equipped to fill the drug prescription of a medical doctor.

Your eye's three friends are you, your eye doctor, and your optician. Each is necessary for proper eye health.

WATCH NEXT WEEK FOR (The Optician)

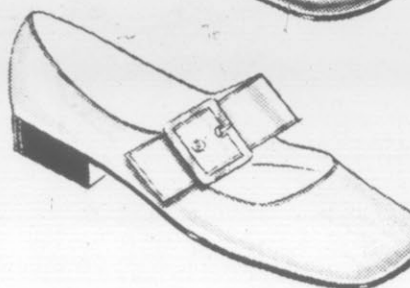

Have you often wished you had prescription sun glasses? Wish no more! Bring your regular prescription to HOLLINGSWORTH OPTICIANS and choose some attractive frames. We can grind your sun glasses to your exact prescription. Plenty of parking at HOLLINGSWORTH OPTICIANS, open daily 9 till 5:30.

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
6♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣
When North gave his partner a jump raise by bidding three hearts, the latter was convinced that there would be a good play for a slam. His hand revalued to 20 points after hearts were raised and North had promised at least 13. Holding three aces and a singleton in the other suit, South lost no further time in probing and proceeded directly to six hearts.

West opened the king of clubs against the slam and South won the trick with the ace. There appeared little more to the hand than to draw trump, ruff out the five of clubs and then rely on a three-two division in the spade suit which would assure the declarer of losing only one trick on the deal. South decided to go one step further, however, and projected his plans so that he might cope with an adverse break, should it exist.

A diamond was led to the ace and a small diamond, was ruffed in the closed hand. Dummy was entered with the ten of hearts to trump another diamond. The five of clubs was ruffed with the king of hearts and on the diamond return South trumped with the jack of hearts. The ace drew the outstanding heart and declarer's stripping operation was completed.

A small spade was led from the closed hand and when West played the ten, South followed with the four from dummy. East overtook his partner's ten with the jack and returned the queen of spades. Dummy won the trick with the king as West showed out, discarding a club. A spade was returned and when East followed with the seven, declarer covered with the eight—West again discarding a club. The jack of spades fell to South's ace on the next lead.

It would not have availed East to let his partner hold the first round of spades with the ten, inasmuch as West has no spades left and on the forced return of either a diamond or a club, South has the opportunity to discard a spade from one hand while he ruffs in the other. In either event, he will lose only one spade trick.

By JOSEPH ST. AMANT
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. Glenn Dumke sits in a skyscraper office on Wilshire Boulevard overlooking the La Brea tar pits, where they're digging for fossils. He presides serenely over a massive and a very much alive educational system.

As chancellor of California state colleges—19 campuses and 200,000 students—he is on the spot with the public and students but he appears unshakeable.

A big man with a mane of white hair, Dumke is quietly proud of the system which he has headed for almost the entire 10 years of its existence.

The state college system outnumbered the University of California, with its nine campuses and 100,000 students. The colleges turn out the people who Dumke says really get into the "mainstream of life" in California.

"We seem to be the bellwether of what goes on in higher education throughout the country," he said in an interview.

Seeks More Universities
One change he would like to see is the upgrading of the state colleges to university status. The variety of courses offered qualify many of the state colleges as universities, he pointed out, adding that a graduate has more prestige on the basis of education at a university.

Dumke is not suggesting that the colleges invade the field of the University of California. California's educational system is three-phased. UC puts emphasis on graduate professional work with a reasonable amount of undergraduate work. The state colleges emphasize undergraduate work with a reasonable number of graduate students.

The third phase is the junior colleges or community colleges in which half the curriculum is devoted to preparing students for further study and the other half to two-year vocation and technical courses.

Keeping Pace With Change
Dumke is an historian with a liberal arts background. He believes education should be balanced between the cultural and the technical, and feels the California system is keeping pace with the times.

"The most startling change in the curriculum is a response to urban problems, ethnic problems, and the new interest in environment and ecology is going to have an impact," he said.

He's optimistic about the future and happy that the state college campuses have had no major violence in more than a year.

"That doesn't mean that all social problems have been solved," he said, "but the violence seems to be cycling out. The majority was being used by a small minority and they got tired of it. We must remember that activities on campus are a reflection of the times. We still have a lot of things to work on in society as a whole."

Trustees' Board

Mrs. Martha E. Ayers of Greenville has been reappointed for another four year term on the Board of Trustees for the North Carolina Symphony Society, Incorporated.

Mrs. Ayers' term will expire on March 10, 1973. Another woman, Mrs. Nancy Bryan Faircloth of Clinton, was appointed by the governor as a new trustee to replace Mrs. C. A. Dillon, Jr. of Raleigh.

The Board of Trustees is responsible for the operation of the North Carolina Symphony Society. The Governor appoints four of the trustees and the Symphony appoints ten members.

JANITORS WIN

CHANDIGARH, India (AP)—Fifty-one janitors who stood outside the secretariat shivering in freezing cold in their undershirts won their point—they were granted woolen uniforms.

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Miss Cynthia Kaye Phillips, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Chester Phillips of 301 Martinsborough Rd., Greenville, N. C., has been elected secretary of Zeta Tau Omega Literary Society at Bob Jones University here. A 1965 graduate of Bob Jones Academy, she is a junior at BJU majoring in humanities.

Membership in one of the 40 literary societies is open to each of the more than 4,000 students who attend Bob Jones University.

Oil Slicks Defy Control

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Out-of-control wells on a platform 30 miles off the Louisiana coast fed an evergrowing oil slick today, defying efforts to choke them off.

In Washington, the Senate Interior Committee began an investigation into what went wrong and why at Chevron Oil Company's platform C, which stands in 40 feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Wednesday the committee was upset by Interior Department reports that Chevron had not complied with federal safety and control regulations at the platform. The extent and exact whereabouts of the great slick was masked by rain and fog which prevented any aerial survey Wednesday.

Of the 12 wells connected to the unmanned, automated platform two still gushed oil and another gas. The oil output was estimated at up to 1,000 barrels a day.

Pearl Bailey Is Hospitalized

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Singer Pearl Bailey, star of the musical "Hello, Dolly!" was hospitalized with chest pains and canceled a scheduled performance Wednesday night.

Miss Bailey has undergone treatment for exhaustion several times in recent years.

Pullman Car Hit By Fire

The Alabama 803, a long silver Pullman railroad car belonging to the East Carolina University Chapter of the National Railroad Historical Society, was extensively damaged by fire this morning.

Assistant Chief Jenness Allen, said the alarm was received at 10:03 a.m. this morning. Three units reported to the scene, a vacant lot at the end of Ridgeway Street, past the Garris - Evans Lumber Company where the Pullman is parked on a spur track.

"The fire evidently started in the bathroom of the car," Allen stated. "Damage to the inside was mostly from intense heat which parched the paint, but we have no way at this time to estimate the value of damage or to give an estimate of the value of the Pullman car itself."

Fireman Harvey Case remarked "This was one of the hottest fires I've ever encountered. The windows didn't break because of the thickness and the heat had built up inside the car without any means of escaping until we opened the door. The heat was simply terrific."

IRS Closes Big Nevada Brothel

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Revenue agents shut down Nevada's biggest brothel because liquor was sold without payment of a $50 federal tax stamp, the government says.

Owner Joe Conforte called it "the most dastardly single act in the history of the Internal Revenue Service" and moved his girls from a trailer cluster at Mustang Ranch, 15 miles east of Reno, to a nearby location.

The IRS said agents seized property and ordered the girls to leave Tuesday night.

Brothels are legal in some parts of Nevada, although local authorities can close them if they are deemed a public nuisance.

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Viola Burnham, wife of Prime Minister Forbes Burnham, gave birth Wednesday to a girl, her second. The prime minister also has three daughters by a previous marriage.

More Letter Carriers Join Illegal Strike

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Letter carriers in parts of three states today joined the illegal wage strike begun by New York mailmen. Despite a federal court back-to-work order, indications were the mail tieup would continue in the world's business and financial capital.

Locals of the letter carriers' union in several New Jersey cities, in parts of Westchester, Rockland and Orange counties north of New York City, and in Stamford Conn., voted Wednesday night to walk out. Votes were scheduled in other cities around the nation.

munty college) without a levy." The commissioners at their Friday meeting with the PTI board, approved calling for a special election May 2 on the question "of appropriating funds from non tax revenues and - or a special annual levy of taxes not to exceed . . . seven-cents per $100 valuation" to provide for the financial support of Pitt Community College and Technical Institute.

Speight earlier explained that PTI was established and financial support authorized as a technical institute. "Now when a community college and technical institute is to be established, it is necessary to have a vote of the people," the attorney explained.

Speight noted that the vote is being held since the North Carolina Attorney General ruled a vote would be required.

County auditor Reginald Gray said the seven-cent levy, based on current valuation, would yield approximately $135,000 per year.

Commissioners have levied as much as 6.4 cents for PTI (for the 1964 tax year). The 1968-69 levy was 5.9 cents.

A national embargo ordered at the start of the day-old strike already had diverted tens of millions of pieces of mail addressed to New York to storage bins in post offices around the nation.

The impact of the strike, the first of its magnitude in American postal history, was immediate. It was felt in brokerage houses, banks, businesses and law offices.

Gus Johnson, head of the striking Manhattan-Bronx local of the AFL-CIO National Association of Letter Carriers, publicly appealed to his men to return to work. The union attorney conceded in court that "the strike is illegal."

But Jack Leventhal, president of the striking Brooklyn local, said the union's constitution required three days notice before a membership meeting to vote on whether to obey the injunction.

That meant the earliest such a vote could be held was Saturday and the decision meanwhile on whether to return was left to the individual workers.

Only about 12 per cent of the 6,000 night shift workers showed up at Manhattan's huge General Post Office, and overnight pickets outside the facility said they were determined to stick it out

Charge Assault On An Officer

Guy H. Sumrell of 1306 B Willow St. was charged last night with assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer and assault on a female following an incident at the Sumrell's residence about 10:30 p.m.

Officers said Sumrell, 52, reportedly broke out a number of windows in his home, smashed furniture and shot a car window out before being taken into custody and placed in Pitt County jail.

Investigation of the case is continuing.

Blount said both he and President Nixon "are deeply concerned about this situation, since the mail system is the life blood of the economy and millions of Americans rely on it for their very survival."

In his budget, President Nixon provided $175 million for postal raises retroactive to last January. But he noted that a 5.4 per

Wooden Feels Jax Has Edge

By TOM SEPPY

Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach John Wooden of defending champion UCLA says he believes Jacksonville University has a slight edge in the NCAA basketball finals but he also wouldn't bet against his Bruins.

In fact, Wooden, whose teams have won five out of the last seven basketball titles, says only one of the four in the tournament has real problems—St. Bonaventure.

"I'm not knocking St. Bonaventure," he told newsmen, "but the loss of Lanier had to hurt them. They have other good boys but it's pretty late for them to change their style."

The Bonnies lost 6-foot-11 All-

American Bob Lanier in the regional tournament last Saturday. He underwent surgery Sunday for repair of a torn knee ligament.

"Had St. Bonaventure not lost

Lanier, this tournament would have been wide open with no one having the edge," said Wooden, who will be seeking an unprecedented fourth straight. "Now the three other teams appear to be in good shape with Jacksonville having a little break but not much."

Jacksonville, rapidly growing to be the sentimental favorite because it is the Dolphins' first time in the NCAA championship, meets St. Bonaventure tonight in the eastern finals scheduled to begin at 7:40 p.m. EST.

UCLA, which has reeled off 22 straight victories in NCAA tournament play, takes on New Mexico State in the western finals nightcap scheduled to begin 9:40 p.m. EST.

The winners of the two games meet Saturday at 4 p.m. EST on national television (NBC) for the NCAA championship.

Jacksonville has won 26 and lost 1 while St. Bonaventure is 25-1. UCLA and New Mexico State sport 26-2 records.

Wooden said he isn't looking past New Mexico State but would like to have a 7-foot Lew Alcindor, who led his UCLA's to their past three titles before going to the Milwaukee Bucks, if he should meet Jacksonville Saturday afternoon. The Dolphins boast 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, 7-foot Pembroke Burrows III, and 6-foot-10 Rod McIntyre.

His primary worry, however, is New Mexico State which, he says, will be looking for revenge. UCLA defeated the Amazon Aggies, as they like to be called, in the first round of the western regionals the last two years.

Joe Williams of Jacksonville said he hasn't looked beyond tonight's game with St. Bonaventure and has no "real information" on UCLA or New Mexico State.

Bucs Are Postponed

East Carolina University's Pirates, rained out in their attempt to play Ithaca College yesterday, were to try again today with a double header at 1:30 p.m. at the university field.

The Bucs, 0-1, are seeking their first win. Should the games again be postponed, they will be played Friday at 1:30 p.m.

East Carolina travels to Chapel Hill on Saturday to meet the University of North Carolina at 2:30 p.m.

There's No Loafing In The Kansas City Camp

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
FORT MYERS, FLA. (AP) — Charlie Metro, the new manager of the Kansas City A's, has the reputation of being a combination of Capt. Bligh, Gen. Patton and Capt. Hook. He says it ain't necessarily so.

"Nobody stands around in our camp," said Metro, who moved up from director of player procurement to manager when Joe Gordon quit. "The players are asked to work. I am no believer in standing around. If that makes me a Capt. Bligh okay."

Metro said he has one system of handling manager-player relations. "You tell them what you want done," he said. "If you can't take orders. . . . His voice trailed off and he reached into his pocket for a copy of baseball's playing rules. "We have to play under rules, don't we?" he asked.

The Royals, picked to fight it out with Seattle for last place in the American League West, not only beat out Seattle by seven games but finished fourth, one game ahead of the Chicago White Sox. They were only two games behind the third-place California Angels.

Metro, who has managed in the minors for years and also ran the Chicago Cubs under the old revolving coach system in part of the 1962 season, has intimate knowledge of the capabilities of every man in camp.

The Royals operated on the old "sink or swim" system in their first year last season. They threw the kids into the big league pool and kept throwing them in again and again until they learned to swim.

"Bill Butler was a relief pitcher in Double A at Montgomery," said Metro. "But he has one of the finest arms I ever saw. He's only 22 but he won nine games. We could have made a terrible mistake on Dick Drago. The first time he pitched he gave up 11 hits and nine runs but we stuck with him and he turned around and did some great pitching and won 11 games."

Butler, Drago and ex-Baltimore Oriole Wally Bunker are the established starters. Roger Nelson (No. 1 in the expansion draft), Mike Hedlund (only 23), Jim Rooker and ex-Red Sox Dave Morehead are potential starters. As is Bob Johnson, who came from the New York Mets with Amos Otis in the Joe Foy deal. But he may start out in the bullpen with Moe Drabowsky.

Otis is a key man because the Royals gave up an established regular, Foy, to get him. Handicapped early by a kidney ailment Otis will get every chance in center field where young Scott Northey, Ron Northey's son, is the competition. Lou Pinella, rookie of the year, is the left fielder and Pat Kelly is in right.

The infield in unsettled except for shortstop where Jack Hernandez is established. Mike Fiore and Bob Oliver are contending for first. Luis Alcaraz, up from Omaha after a .301 year, is trying for second.

Buc Netters Beaten Again

East Carolina University bowed for the second straight time in tennis Tuesday, falling to the University of Cincinnati, 8-1. The Bucs now stand 0-2 for the season.

The lone victory came in the singles when Mike Grady won his match in three sets.

East Carolina plays host to Virginia Commonwealth on Saturday.

Summary:

Arlo VanDenover (C) defeated Graham Felton, 6-3, 7-5.

Chris Evenson (C) defeated Bill Ransone, 6-1, 6-3.

Bob Helmers (C) defeated Bill Van Middlesworth, 6-2, 6-0.

Mike Grady (EC) defeated Joe Foley, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

John Dreier (C) defeated Bruce Linton, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

Gary Tremblay (C) defeated Fred Mitchell, 6-2, 6-4.

VanDenover - Helmers (C) defeated Felton - Ransone, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5.

Evenson - Foley (C) defeated Van Middlesworth - Grady, 6-2, 6-2.

Dreier - Tremblay (C) defeated Mitchell Jones, 1-6, 6-3, 7-5.

"They jump like jackrabbits and they're as quick as cobras," was the way LSU Coach Press Maravich, Pete's father, described the Warriors. "If we play as we did the last two games, they'll run us off the court."

Press referred mostly to the play of his son, a three-time All-American who fell far below his 46.6 point a game average with games of 20 and 37, and also threw away the ball a number of times, although making five and nine assists for a total of 14.

Should the Tigers get by Marquette in the 9 p.m. EST game at Madison Square Garden, waiting for them in Saturday's nationally televised 1 p.m. final would be either St. John's, N.Y., or Army. Army, 52-0, is the nation's best defensive team, and

St. John's, 63-6 is eighth. However, Press Maravich has enough troubles worrying about Marquette, 24-3, after watching his team blow all but two points of a 17-point lead against Oklahoma when the Sooners went into a pressing defense in the quarter-finals.

Al McGuire, the Marquette coach, promised a zone press and a tight man-to-man against LSU, which has been averaging 94.9 points a game, fourth best in the country.

While the LSU-Marquette clash has the glamor, the first game at 7 p.m. between Army and St. John's also should provide plenty of action, bruising action.

St. John's beat Army 54-44 in a small war earlier this season, and Lou Carnesecca, coach of the Redmen, wants this one as a farewell gift—he is leaving after the tournament to coach the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

However, instead of emotion, Carnesecca will rely on 6-10 Bill Paulitz and sharp-shooting Joe DePre to cut down the Cadets.

Although the Cadets are little known individually with no starter more than 6-6, Carnesecca knows he is in for trouble.

Boston Stadium Is In Trouble

BOSTON (AP) — Three of the nine Boston city councilors have gone on record against a site in the Neponset section, close to the Quincy city line, for a sports stadium that could become the home of pro football's Boston Patriots.

The 3-2 vote Wednesday threw a new snag in the path of the Boston Redevelopment Authority's effort to gain approval for a $16 million stadium at Neponset to be financed by the proceeds from 12 extra days of horse racing at Suffolk Downs track in East Boston.

The new turn in the discussions came at a time when the National Football League owners were meeting in Honolulu and were expected to decide whether to grant the Patriots more time to acquire a playing field that meets the league's requirement of at least 50,000 seats.

Unless Patriots' President Billy Sullivan can convince his colleagues that there is a chance for such a stadium in Boston, the team could be instructed to transfer its franchise to a city that could provide the desired facilities.

The three councilors who voted against the Neponset site said they preferred a location near South Station in the heart of the business district, an area that stadium proponents gave up on long ago. The councilors' recommendation is subject to a vote later by the full council.

Barry Fires In 49 For The Caps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Barry has found the range again, brightening the hopes of the Washington Caps of catching Denver in the American Basketball Association.

Barry broke loose for 49 points to lead the Caps to a 135-129 victory over Pittsburgh Wednesday night to stay two games behind first-place Denver in the Western Division.

The Rockets maintained their lead by defeating Indiana, the Eastern Division champs, 128-112. Los Angeles went two overtimes to beat New Orleans 124-115 in the other ABA scheduled game.

In the National Basketball Association, Milwaukee beat New York 116-108, Philadelphia defeated Baltimore 119-113 and Boston humbled Los Angeles 137-122.

Barry got his 49 points on 19 field goals and 11-of-12 free throws as the Caps broke a 124-124 tie in the last quarter to gain the lead for good. Barry also grabbed 12 rebounds.

John Brisker topped Pittsburgh with 43 points.

Ayden

Ayden kicked off spring with the first Carolinas Golf Association tournament of the year last week. And a number of Ayden golfers were winners. The tournament was divided into three classes, low, medium and high handicap players.

In Class A, Emmett Koonce of Ayden shot a 72 for first low gross. Dean Wingate of Ayden had a 77, less his eight handicap for a 79, taking first low net. Second low net went to Ray Wooten of Ayden, 77-7-70, while Boyce Barwick of Ayden, took third, with a 76-5-71.

In Class B, Bill Adams of Fuquay took first low net with his 77 less a 14 for a 63. Donnie Gay of Kinston was second with a net 69, while Jeffrey McAllister of Ayden was third with 71 and Brownie Tripp of Ayden was fourth with a 72.

In Class C, Norman Wooten of Ayden had an 85, less 15, for a 70 for first low net. Jerry Hockaday of Fuquay had second with a 71, while Kenneth Snow of Washington was third with 72 and Roy Joyner of Ayden was fourth with 73.

Over 100 golfers participated in the one-day tournament.

During the tournament, Tom Boyd of Ayden eagled the par-four 400-yard eighth hole. He hit a three-iron into the cup.

Brook Valley

Bobby Boone had an eagle two on the par four 15th hole at Brook Valley Country Club. He hit a nine-iron into the cup. Percy Ashby also picked up an eagle two at 16.

Best scores recently included Clotus Jackson 90; Jack Frost 74, Joe Dudley 77, including four birdies and an eagle; Don Conley Jr. 70, Dr. Dick Evans 69, and W.L. Allen Sr. 69.

Greenville

The Carolina Senior Golf Association will play the first tournament of the 1970 season at Greenville on April 11-12. Pro Boyd Huff said he expects to have some 120 men 55 and older to participate. Last year, the Association finished off its 1969 season with a tournament at Greenville.

Robersonville

The Roanoke League Men's season will open on April 5. Clubs participating in the league include Robersonville, Williamston, Tarboro, Windsor, Edenson and Plymouth.

Grifton

The Bright Belt Ladies League holds a match at Grifton today. Some 75 women were expected to participate. Members include Grifton, Falling Creek, Happy Valley, MicoPines, Ayden, Farmville and Wedgewood.

Pitchers Not Thrilled With New Lively Baseball After Pounding

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

They used the livelier X-15 baseball in spring training again Wednesday and most of the pitchers weren't exactly thrilled with the experiment.

But the new wrinkle didn't mean a thing to old pros Hoyt Wilhelm and Bob Veale. They might as well have been throwing the regulation ball for all the good X-15 did the hitters who swung against them.

Both Wilhelm and Veale hurled five scoreless innings, shrugging off the rabbit ball that hopped all over most other camps. Wilhelm allowed one hit in his stint as Atlanta trimmed Montreal 7-5 while Veale allowed two safeties in his stretch and Pittsburgh topped St. Louis 4-2.

Elsewhere the X-15 ran wild. Washington nipped Kansas City 18-13 in 11 innings, Detroit topped the Chicago White Sox 19-13, Seattle edged Cleveland 19-14 and the Chicago Cubs slipped by Oakland 12-11.

In other more sedate games, Boston topped Philadelphia 6-5, Los Angeles whipped Minnesota 8-2, Houston whacked Cincinnati 10-5, San Diego dropped California 8-5, the New York Yankees slugged the New York Mets 8-1, and Baltimore defeated the Mexico City Tigers 9-4.

Wilhelm, who'll celebrate his 47th birthday at mid-season, knuckled the life out of the X-15 and the Montreal Expos.

He protected a two-run lead produced by Mike Lum's pinch triple in the sixth inning, and allowed only two base-runners in his stint. Coco Laboy homered for the Expos.

Veale also worked five innings in the Pirates' victory, allowing just two hits and striking out three. Dave Cash homered for Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals, who learned earlier in the day of the loss of third baseman Mike Shannon with a serious kidney ailment, gained some solace from a home run by Rich Allen, who was making his St. Louis debut.

Washington scored five times in the 11th inning to beat Kansas City. Rookie Tom Grieve drove in four runs for the Senators, two in the 11th, and Ed Brinkman, who has had three homers in three American League seasons, homered. Lou Piniella, George Spriggs and Ed Kirkpatrick homered for the Royals.

Dick McAuliffe cracked two home runs and shortstop Cesar Gutierrez collected four hits as Detroit walloped the White Sox with a 21-hit attack. Rookie Rich McKinney had four hits and five RBIs for Chicago.

Al Dark, manager of the Indians, called the X-15 experiment "a disgrace" after Seattle cracked four home runs including a pair by Gerry McNertney to beat Cleveland. Sam McDowell, strafed for six runs, also bad-mouthed the X-15, calling it "a lousy joke." Jack Heisemann hit two homers and Ted Ford had a grand slam for Cleveland.

Jim Hickman had a pair of homers and the Cubs won a 32-hit showdown with Oakland. Ron Santo's third hit of the game delivered Chicago's winning run in the ninth inning.

Joe Lahoud had a homer and a game-winning single as Boston edged Philadelphia. George Scott had three hits including a homer for the Sox.

Rookie Bill Buckner crashed a single, double and triple to raise his spring average to .349 as the Dodgers clipped Minnesota. Alan Foster, Pete Mikkelsen and Fred Norman overcame the X-15 with a combined four-hitter.

Denis Menke and Joe Pepitone tagged back-to-back homers helping Houston past Cincinnati. Tony Perez connected for the Reds.

Baltimore pushed across five unearned runs in the third inning to beat Mexico City.

N.C. Teacher Contract Termination Law Under Attack In Three Courts

RALEIGH (AP) — A North Carolina law governing termination of teacher contracts is being challenged in court by three teachers who contend they were unfairly dismissed last year.

They are seeking a total of up to $300,000 in damages in suits filed Wednesday in three courts. The suits are backed by the North Carolina Education Association.

Two of the suits were filed by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Still, former teachers at Clyde Erwin High School in Asheville. Still filed his in U. S. Western Dist. Court at Asheville and his wife filed hers in Buncombe Superior Court, also at Asheville.

Mrs. Dorothy J. Bridgeman, a former teacher at Manteo High School, filed in U. S. Dist. Court at Raleigh.

The three contracts were terminated at the end of the last school year.

Under state law, a teacher is reemployed unless he is notified to the contrary prior to the end of the school year. A board is not required to tell a teacher why he is not being reemployed.

The suits, filed against the boards of education in the counties involved and other school officials, contend the state law is unconstitutional.

Dr. A. C. Dawson, the education association's executive secretary, said the association wants the state law changed. Hearings are required for dismissals during a school year, he said, and should be required for refusals to renew contracts at the end of a year.

Mrs. Bridgeman, a science teacher for three years at Manteo, contends in her suit she was dismissed because she criticized operation of the schools and was "a vocal advocate of teachers' rights."

The Dare County Board of Education said at the time her contract was not renewed because she "failed to communicate with children and to impart to them the necessary subject matter in science."

Still taught band and his wife choral music and English. The Buncombe County Board of Education said they were dismissed "in view of the betterment of the schools."

The Stills contend they should have been given a hearing. He said he was dismissed "arbitrarily, capriciously (and) without cause."

Mr. and Mrs. Still are seeking an injunction to require a hearing before the Buncombe County Board of Education and payment of $30,000 each in damages. In the event the injunction is not granted, they seek $100,000 damages each.

Mrs. Bridgeman is asking for reinstatement and $30,000 in damages. In the event she is not reinstated, she is seeking $100,000 in damages.

Agrees East Needs Roads

WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP)—The state highway commission chairman, Lauch Faircloth, says more industry and better highways are needed to halt the population loss in eastern North Carolina.

"In the eastern section of the state, disadvantaged counties have been losing population steadily for over 30 years," Faircloth told the Washington Chamber of Commerce Wednesday.

"The threat of industry to our environment didn't cause this exodus of people," he added. "There isn't enough industry in the east to cause people to leave. The population loss and the state of economy have been caused by the lack of industry and the jobs industry provides."

Faircloth noted the Highway Commission is "extremely aware of the threats of our environment. We want to do everything possible to aid in the fight against pollution."

"However, there will inevitably be times when conservation and progress will be in conflict, and in eastern North Carolina progress must be our most important consideration."

Lost Penguin Finds A Home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Any-one lost a penguin? In Southern California?

Mrs. Felix Chappellet has found one. Or, vice versa.

She reports that she drew the drapes at her Bel-Air home Wednesday and "there was the penguin looking in ... looking at me. I have no idea where he came from. I checked with my neighbors—Jennifer Jones and Eddy Fisher—and he didn't belong to them."

Mrs. Chappellet led the bird to her swimming pool, fed it some shrimp and fish—and said she would call the zoo.

Students Leave Sinking School

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Harmony Grade School is sinking so the pupils were moved out this week.

The school, said to be located above an abandoned coal mine, has been sinking about one-quarter of an inch each week for the past several months.

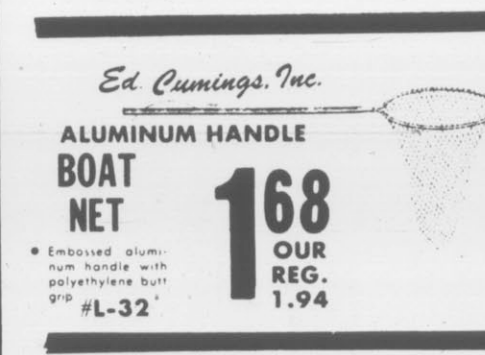

"The engineers said we had better move out until we can find out more about what's going on," said Leonard Parrish, superintendent of the Harmony, Emge and Ellis schools. The Harmony students were being transferred to the other two schools.

Daniels

Robert Daniels of Baltimore, Md., died Wednesday morning in a Baltimore, Md., hospital. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Survivors include two brothers, Jordan and Isiah Daniels, both of Greenville.

Riddick

AYDEN — Mrs. Susan Gay Riddick, 93, died at the home of her son, William Riddick, in Glen Burney, Md., Wednesday.

Mrs. Riddick was the widow of Dr. C. R. Riddick. She was a member of the Ayden United Methodist Church and a native of Ashland, Va.

She had resided in Glen Burney since 1958.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at Britt and Farmer Funeral Chapel, Ayden, with the Rev. T. D. Jenkins officiating. Burial will follow in the Ayden Cemetery.

Surviving in addition to her son, is one granddaughter.

Williams

Mr. Leroy Williams, husband of Mrs. Rosa Williams of Farmville, died Tuesday morning. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Cox

AYDEN — Funeral services for Mrs. Emily Langley Cox, who died in New Haven, Conn. Monday, will be conducted Saturday at 3:00 p. m. at Zion Chapel F.W.B. Church, Ayden, with the pastor, the Rev. Stephen Jones, officiating. Interment will follow in the Ayden Cemetery.

Mrs. Cox, daughter of the late Joe John and Mary Nobles Langley and the widow of Raymond Ray Cox, was born and had lived most of her life in the Ayden community. She had lived in New Haven, Conn., for the past two years.

She was a lifelong member of the Zion Chapel F.W.B. Church and was a member of the Senior Choir.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Emily May Cox Davis of New Haven, Conn.; one foster-grandson and four other grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Martha L. Jones and Mrs. Letha L. Dixon, both of Ayden.

The body will be at the Norcott Chapel from 5:00 p. m. Friday until one hour prior to funeral services.

Russia Again Disclaims

Attack Planned

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda revealed today that Soviet-Chinese border negotiations in Peking have run into serious trouble because of widespread rumors that the Soviet Union plans to attack China.

A long article in the Communist party newspaper denied that any such strike was planned and warned Peking leaders that China "should not speak to the Soviet Union in the language of weapons."

This was the third time in five weeks that the Soviet Union has denied that it is preparing to attack China.

And today's article was the first admission that Chinese exploitation of the rumors has affected the talks.

Goldie Acquires Easier Name

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedienne Goldie Hawn, the giggling blonde pixie of television's "Laugh-In," has a new legal name.

Superior Court approved the change for Miss Hawn and her husband Wednesday because the couple said their old name was difficult to spell and pronounce.

The old names: Kostas and Goldie H. Trikonis. The new: Gus and Goldie H. Trikonis.

Report 4 Traffic Wrecks Wednesday

Greenville police estimated $1,570 damage resulted in a series of four traffic collisions investigated here yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 10:50 p. m. collision at the intersection of Line and Wilson Avenues and involved cars driven by Alene Brewer Harris of 404 Arbor St. and Samuel Earl Smith, 33 of 110B Contentnea St.

Officers, who charged Smith with exceeding the stated speed, placed damage to the Wilson car at $200 and set damage to the Smith vehicle at $500.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9:35 a. m. collision at the intersection of 10th and Cotanche Streets, police reported.

Drivers involved in the mishap were identified as Katie H. Griffin of 1801 Rosewood Dr. and Elizabeth Cox Messick, 1704 Englewood Dr.

Mrs. Griffin was charged with failing to stop for a red light. No charges were reported in a 4 p. m. mishap at the intersection of U. S. 264 and Charles Street which involved vehicles driven by Millicent Evelyn Speedie of Route 1, New Bern, and Alvah Edison Haydon Jr., 54, of Richmond.

Damage to each of the vehicles was set at $125. Bertia Jewell Mercer of 1108 Meadowbrook Dr. was charged with operating under the influence and driving left of center following investigation of a 1:40 p. m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Fifth Street.

Police reported the Mercer car collided with a vehicle driven by Lester Lee Sutton, 55, of 211 Pine St. and caused an estimated $120 damage to the Sutton car and about $100 damage to the Mercer vehicle. No injuries were reported in the series of wrecks.

London's Clean Air Act Purified Its Atmosphere

Speaker For Annual Meet

Sam D. Bundy, principal of the Sam D. Bundy School in Farmville will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Federal Land Bank Association of Washington on Saturday.

Hackney High, manager of the Association, said that the annual stockholders meeting will begin at 4:30 Saturday at the Washington High School.

Other activities scheduled include a report on Association progress during 1969, the election of two directors, and the report of the board of directors on actions taken during the year.

The Association deals in making long-term Land Bank loans to farmers, growers, and ranchers in Martin, Pitt, Tyrrell, Beaufort, and Hyde Counties. It is owned entirely by its borrower-members.

LONDON (UPI)—Not long ago, London was a place where the sky was always dingy, where the only birds were pigeons, where people lived in dread of a thick yellow smog which sneaked up on the city and strangled thousands.

Today, Londoners live in one of the cleanest atmospheres in the world. Hawks, wild ducks, and bullfinches have returned to nest in the parks. The sun, when it shines, shines brightly. Even the wash on the line dries whiter.

The reason—Britain's Clean Air Act which 14 years ago deprived the Englishman of his traditional glowing coal fire for the privilege of breathing fresh air.

The 1956 Clean Air Act was the first legislation of its kind in the world. As a result, London now has one of the lowest air pollution rates of any industrial city on the map.

The main feature of the act was to ban the burning of soft coal—a move which meant homeowners had to board up their fireplaces and switch to electric or gas heaters. Only the well-to-do could afford the hard, smokeless coal required by the new act.

"There was a bit of a stir over the act," said Lord Kennet, air pollution expert at the Ministry of Housing.

"The hearth has always been the focal point of an Englishman's living room. The sight of a glowing coal fire is built very deep in him and people felt very lost at first without it.

"But it was the domestic hearth which was the killer," he said. "Three-fourths of the terrible concentration of smoke in the air in 1956 came from the chimneys. They were a health horror."

The long-range advantages of the act have far outweighed any temporary disgruntlement. Even the most home-loving Englishman has conceded a preference for clean air over glowing hearths. The amount of smoke has been reduced by 75 per cent in London and 50 per cent countrywide.

"London is much cleaner than New York, for instance. You can smell it immediately," Lord Kennet said.

The number of chest diseases and heart complaints have been greatly reduced. The hours of sunshine have been increased by 50 per cent since 1956. Buildings are whiter. One can see the dome of St. Paul's cathedral from Westminster Bridge, several miles away, on a clear morning—you couldn't in the fifties.

Clothes are cleaner and wear longer. Plants flourish in the parks and a range of bird species have come back to London.

Yet Another Court Suit For N.C. American Party

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's struggling American party is headed for another court battle over its leadership. And no matter who eventually wins, the loser for now is the party itself.

The current legal tilt is serving to keep alive in auro of unrest and uncertainty which both contenders for the leadership agree is stunting the fledgling party's growth.

Compounding the turmoil is the spectacle of the party's current legal leadership disavowing its only major candidates in this year's election — two men seeking seats in Congress.

The leadership struggle pits Walter Green, a Burlington lawyer and former Republican, against Reid Stubbs, a Charlotte restaurant operator who headed George Wallace's surprisingly strong presidential bid in North Carolina in 1968.

Green won a court battle earlier this year, after months of litigation, against another leadership challenger — Wayne Rayburn, a Black Mountain service station operator who turned out to be a registered Democrat.

But last week, Stubbs filed papers in Secretary of State Thad Eure's Capitol office incorporating the American party as a nonprofit corporation, with him as its top officer.

No political party had ever been incorporated in North Carolina before, so the effects of the action were pretty much open to speculation. About the only thing certain was that it meant another court battle.

"I'll take this ridiculous action to court as soon as I can," said Green from the Burlington law office from which he runs the party's affairs as chairman of its executive committee.

Stubbs planned to beat Green to the punch, however, by seeking a court injunction aimed at barring Green from further actions as party chairman.

A few days after the American party's incorporation, effort was made to incorporate the Democratic and Republican parties, too, but the secretary of state wouldn't accept the papers.

Eure had an explanation for the different treatment. He said it was well known that Stubbs had been the American party's first North Carolina leader, but that those who tried to incorporate the other parties had no particular standing with those parties.

They not only had no particular standings with the parties, but one of the would-be Democratic party incorporators turned out to be a Republican.

Although both Stubbs and Green denied it, political insiders continue to speculate that the moves to incorporate the Democratic and Republican parties were fostered by them in anticipation of court action over the American party's incorporation.

Despite their differences, both Stubbs and Green are clinging staunchly to their avowed allegiance to the American party's titular head, Wallace.

Neither is claiming publicly to have Wallace's support in their struggle, but Stubbs says he is passing along information on his moves to T. Coleman Andrews of Richmond, Va., the American party's national chairman.

It is at the state level where Green and Stubbs differ sharply.

Green has disavowed party support for the only two men running as American party candidates in the coming congressional election — Gene Leggett of New Bern and Lynwood Bullock of Greensboro.

Stubbs not only supports the right of both to run under the American party label but he lists Leggett as vice chairman and Mrs. Leggett as secretary-treasurer of his faction of the party.

Stubbs says he's so confident his court action against Green will be successful that he's going ahead with plans to hold a state convention April 4 and elect a new slate of officers.

Whoever winds up with control of the party will find himself facing a tough task of reorganizing the remnants of Wallace's presidential campaign — and paying off a few left-over debts.

Stubbs says he knows of $3,000 in pending debts from the 1968 race and Green says he's been running things "pretty near without any party funds."

American party membership is still tiny, despite Wallace's edging out democrat Hubert Humphrey for second place in North Carolina in the 1968 election, which provided the rate of the state's going Republican.

Latest figures of the Board of Elections show 6,795 persons registered as American party members out of a total registration of about 1.8 million in North Carolina.

Despite the American party's scant numbers and the obvious disarray of its organization, leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties couch their public pronouncements about it in careful terms.

Neither major party wants to run the risk of offending those in its own membership who rallied enthusiastically to Wallace's cause in 1968.

Says Republican State Chairman James Holshouser: "On the basis of what I know about the party's offering of candidates for 1970, it would not appear to have a firm grass roots hold in North Carolina. I'm inclined to think President Nixon's popularity in the state is such that it will probably tend to draw to him many of the people who worked for Gov. Wallace in the last campaign."

Says Democratic chairman Gene Simmons: "I don't ignore any political opposition, but I truthfully don't know anyone who is a member of the American party or anything much about the party."

East Germans Cheer Brandt

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

ERFURT, East Germany (AP)—Shouting "Willy! Willy! Brandt!" thousands of East Germans broke through police barriers today to greet the West German chancellor upon his first meeting with East German Premier Willi Stoph.

The noisy welcome took place outside Erfurt's main railway station as Brandt and Stoph walked 50 yards to a hotel where their political talks started.

Police had lined up steel barriers about 150 yards from the government chiefs' path but the pressure from the huge crowd was so great that the barriers toppled.

Unofficial crowd estimates ranged from 2,000 to 5,000. The cheering continued when Brandt entered the hotel, and at one point he appeared at a window and made a hand motion calling for calm.

Conrad Ahlers, West German government press chief, also appeared at a window and was cheered.

Brandt made the brief window appearance after the crowd shouted: "Brandt to the window! Brandt to the window!"

There were some counterattacks for Stoph to appear at a window also.

The historic talks between Brandt and Stoph began on schedule half an hour after Brandt's arrival. It is the first meeting between chiefs of the two German governments, and Brandt is the first West German chancellor to set foot on Communist-controlled German territory.

East German police set up road blocks around Erfurt and checked all vehicles entering the city. It appeared that Brandt's hosts were anxious to avoid an influx of East Germans during his visit.

Similar measures were taken in Communist Romania last August when President Nixon visited Bucharest.

Brandt's trip is being billed as a working visit and ceremony is being kept to a minimum. East German propaganda media have been stressing that the purpose of the talks is to discuss Bonn's diplomatic recognition of East Germany.

Brandt has said he is not prepared to do this but is willing to talk about it. East German officials, like Brandt, expect that the meeting will be the first of a series. The two sides agreed in preliminary talks to hold a second session in West Germany.

East German officials said tonight they expect that this meeting will take place.

The general feeling among observers in Erfurt was that the first ice-breaking talks would go comparatively well but would produce little in the way of concrete results.

The optimism was fueled by a last minute addition to the program—Brandt's visit to Buchenwald, the former Nazi concentration camp, where thousands of members of Brandt's Social Democratic party as well as Communist died.

Scout Earns Eagle Badge

Jeff Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Moore of Ayden, received the coveted Eagle Scout Award during recent ceremonies at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Jeff, a member of Troop 362 sponsored by the Lodge, was presented the award by troop scoutmaster, Thomas Butts.

The young scout completed requirements for his Eagle Award over a period of two years, successfully earning 21 different merit badges while working towards the Eagle promotion. For his conservation project, Jeff chose to build a number of Wood Duck boxes.

An eighth grade student at Ayden High School, Jeff has been a Boy Scout for two and a half years and was a member of the Cub Scout program prior to joining Troop 362.

He currently is working towards completing requirements for the Bronze Palm Award and will be eligible for the honor after earning five additional merit badges.

The next step in the award progression, Jeff pointed out, is the Silver Palm Award, presented after 10 merit badges are earned, and then the Gold Palm Award, given after a Scout earns 15 merit badges.

Arthritis and rheumatism rank second only to heart ailments among chronic ailments disabling Americans.

FINALLY IT COMES WITH THREE MORE BEHIND-

The Worry Clinic People Need Compliments

John Blaine surprised me by his "Golden Pen" letter after I substituted in Dr. Pierce's Chicago pulpit. I have donated my Sundays for over 40 years as a Sunday School teacher and occasional pulpit speaker. John's appreciative letter is par for the course! Even Jesus got only a 10 percent "Thank you"

after healing 10 lepers. By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D. CASE M-548: John Blaine is an Eagle Scout, living near Cleveland. "Dr. Crane," he began, "you don't know me but I was one of the Scouts coming back from Philmont a year ago. "We stopped at the Chicago Temple on Sunday and found that the pastor was away but you had been invited to give the sermon. "You spoke on the topic, 'Why God Likes America.' "I am sure it will remain a pleasant and inspiring memory to all the members of our Philmont Expedition 805-C for the rest of our lives. "Soon I shall leave to study in Austria and I shall certainly remember your words, especially when we visit Prague to observe the Communist regime. "Thank you for reinforcing my belief in America." On that Sunday while Dr. Robert Pierce, the pastor, was away on a trip to the Orient, I addressed both the 9:30 as well as the 10:45 congregations. There were 2,200 in the audience. Except for a note of appreciation from Rev. Herman Seimworth, the assistant pastor, nobody else ever took time to write me a "Thank you" letter, except for this splendid note from John Blaine a year afterwards. And this is about par for the course! For most of us may have good intentions, but we fail to harness them to the extent of offering a bit of praise. Jesus once attempted Socialized Medicine and thus healed a group of 10 lepers from sure death. Yet not one of them even invited Christ home for a meal or offered him a sandwich! And only ONE of the 10 even said "Thank you." Oddly enough, that appreciative patient was a foreigner, being a Samaritan! So we human beings are usually very negligent about offering praise to our mothers, our wives, our children, and co-workers! Which is why I launched the "Compliment Club" project among my psychology students at Northwestern University. For when we pay our companions an honest compliment, that is really a verbal bouquet which can stimulate them to renewed fervor in their good works. Parents and teachers also are noted for their negative criticisms. "No-no-no" is their trademark. And children usually merit much of those scoldings. But they also crave a word of praise when they do actually perform a constructive task or chore. In my case, as an experienced writer and teacher, I have learned that one's friends seldom send a note of thanks or praise. But the critics are quick to damn and indict or write red hot letters to editors. This doesn't ruffle me, for I realize it is typical of human nature. But a lot of children, plus devoted wives and teachers, as well as faithful co-workers in factories and stores, haven't my breadth of experience and self-assurance. So they may be starving for a cheery smile or pat on the back of verbal compliment! Don't wait till their funeral to become contrite! Send for my "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c, and harness your good intentions every day. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

But the critics are quick to damn and indict or write red hot letters to editors. This doesn't ruffle me, for I realize it is typical of human nature. But a lot of children, plus devoted wives and teachers, as well as faithful co-workers in factories and stores, haven't my breadth of experience and self-assurance. So they may be starving for a cheery smile or pat on the back of verbal compliment! Don't wait till their funeral to become contrite! Send for my "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c, and harness your good intentions every day. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

sure death. Yet not one of them even invited Christ home for a meal or offered him a sandwich! And only ONE of the 10 even said "Thank you." Oddly enough, that appreciative patient was a foreigner, being a Samaritan! So we human beings are usually very negligent about offering praise to our mothers, our wives, our children, and co-workers! Which is why I launched the "Compliment Club" project among my psychology students at Northwestern University. For when we pay our companions an honest compliment, that is really a verbal bouquet which can stimulate them to renewed fervor in their good works. Parents and teachers also are noted for their negative criticisms. "No-no-no" is their trademark. And children usually merit much of those scoldings. But they also crave a word of praise when they do actually perform a constructive task or chore. In my case, as an experienced writer and teacher, I have learned that one's friends seldom send a note of thanks or praise. UCYM Raising Program Funds

The local United Christian Youth Movement group is currently sponsoring a drive to raise $2,300 to finance Greenville's Community Ambassador program.

Shares in Community Ambassador Stock are being sold for $1 per share. Contributions from interested individuals, organizations and businesses make possible Greenville's participation in the Community Ambassador program.

Greenville's two ambassadors are Susan Leggett, who will go to Italy, and Elizabeth Jones who will spend the summer in Greece.

All expenses for Greenville's two ambassadors will be financed with money raised during the drive.

Community Ambassadors are chosen according to the applicant's flexibility, adaptability, intelligence, responsibility, spirit of cooperation and sincere interest in the Experiment in International Living.

The Experiment in International Living was founded in 1932 by Dr. Donald B. Watt who first introduced a group of American youths to their counterparts in Switzerland.

It has since developed into a worldwide operation with representatives in 58 countries, involving some 4,000 young men and women annually.

An Outbound Experiment group usually comprises 10 men and women between the ages 16 and 30 under the guidance of a specially-trained leader.

Contributions, which are tax deductible, may be mailed to: Community Project, P.O. Box 1100, Greenville, N.C.

Accept Student For Fall Term

ROCKY MOUNT — Stanley Eugene Gray, a senior at Stokes-Pactolus High School, has been accepted for admission to North Carolina Wesleyan College here for the 1970 fall term.

Gray is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray of Rt. 5, Greenville.

N. C. Wesleyan is a fully accredited coeducational Methodist liberal arts college currently in its tenth year with an enrollment of 677 students.

Higher Education Board Will Survey Student Body Make-Up

A study of student body composition in traditionally white and traditionally black colleges and universities in North Carolina will be begun soon for the Board of Higher Education.

Development of the study plan, which will be conducted by Dr. J. A. Davis, director of the Southeastern office of Educational Testing Service, was in progress more than a year before the receipt by many institutions of letters from the U. S. Office of Education urging a better racial balance among students.

The study, to be financed with a grant from the College Entrance Examination Board of New York, will attempt to determine what factors attract black students to traditionally white colleges and white students to traditionally black institutions. It is hoped that the findings will serve as a guide toward improving guidance and recruiting practices which will insure access to higher education regardless of race. It is also hoped that the study will reveal what educational experiences are needed for "atypical" students and how and where these can be offered.

The study will involve about 20 public and private colleges and universities, including East Carolina University here, and will represent a broad range of higher educational opportunity in North Carolina. Interviews will be conducted to determine what factors influenced the choices of colleges by whites attending traditionally black schools and vice versa. Representative freshmen who entered during the current academic year will be interviewed by a team of junior and senior college student interviewers of the same racial background, using a standardized interview guide.

Another study, supported by State funds, has been underway since last fall. It examines the validity of using admission test scores and previous academic records in predicting academic performance for minority students in the State's 15 public universities. The results are scheduled for release to admissions officers and guidance counselors in early summer.

Dr. John Davis, director of institutional research at ECU, is a member of the advisory committee which will have continuing responsibility for the project. He said, "This is an area we at ECU have been interested in for a long time and we welcome the opportunity to participate in research on the problem. Interviewers will working here this spring."

Society Tapped Rose High Grad

STAUNTON, Va. — Miss Martha Murphy Davis, a junior at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, is one of 18 students tapped this spring for membership in The Laurel, a leadership society.

Miss Davis, who graduated from J. H. Rose High School, is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas McIlwaine Davis of 610 Oak St.

At Mary Baldwin, Miss Davis has been a member of the college Judiciary Board and a member of the Choir.

Student Cited At Honors Day

WELLESLEY, Mass. — Miss Norma S. Harrell of Greenville has received recognition for excellence in scholarship at the annual Honors Day Convocation at Wellesley College here.

Wellesley confers upon outstanding upperclassmen the citation of Distinguished Scholar for highest academic attainment. Miss Harrell, a member of the Class of 1971, was named a Distinguished Scholar.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Harrell and a graduate of J. H. Rose High School.

Gleason Arrives To Seek Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Jackie Gleason, who is seeking a divorce from his wife of 34 years, arrived in the city Wednesday with Beverly McKittick, a blonde ex-secretary he says he wants to marry.

Gleason and his wife Genevieve have been separated since 1954. The comedian obtained a New York court ruling earlier this year that he could seek a divorce under a new state law which makes prolonged separation grounds for a decree.

The scarlet carnation is the official state flower of Ohio.

To Intervene In Milk Case

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina attorney general's office will intervene in an Asheville hearing Monday by the Milk Commission on complaints of the sale of milk below cost.

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan said Wednesday that if the hearing turns up evidence of anti-competitive practices, the companies involved should be ordered to stop.

The commission called the hearing after some dealers and distributors complained that some stores in Asheville were selling milk at low as 89 cents per gallon. The price generally across the state is $1.26.

Morgan said that unless "anticompetitive behavior is established by evidence at the hearing," he is opposed to any price-setting by the commission "unless there is substantial evidence that such action is necessary to protect the public interest."

Under state law, the commission has authority to establish minimum prices if it finds a market situation threatens to "disrupt or demoralize" the milk industry.
