Pitt Voters Have Choices To Make In May 2 Primary

As the filing deadline came and went Friday, Pitt County voters — at last count a little over 26,000 of them— were assured of being able to vote for candidates for more than a dozen elective offices in the May 2 primary.

Offices up for grabs ranged from U. S. Congressman to county posts such as county commissoner, and board of education member.

A list of offices for which candidates filed before the Friday noon deadline include: First District Congressman (that deadline was several weeks ago); Third Judicial District Superior Court Judge and Solicitor; Pitt County Clerk of Court, Coroner and Sheriff; Pitt's two seats in the North Carolina House of Representatives; two State senators from the Pitt - Edgecombe - Halifax - Warren Counties district; three seats on the Board of County Commissioners; three Pitt Board of Education posts and three township constables.

A break - down by office has incumbent First District Congressman Walter B. Jones of Farmville pitted against L. C. Nixon of New Bern in the primary for the Democrat Party nomination. The winner of that race will face Gene Leggett of New Bern, the American Party candidate, and Republican R. Frank Everett of Hamilton, in the November election.

Incumbent State Senators Vernon White of Winterville and Julian Allsbrook of Roanoke Rapids face opposition for the Democratic nomination. Marvin Blount Jr. of Greenville is seeking the nominatin to Seat Two held by White, while Greenville attorney Jerry Paul is a candidate for nomination to Seat One, now held by Allsbrook.

Candidates facing no opposition in the primary or general election include Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson who is seeking his second full term in office; Pitt Superior Court Clerk H. L. Lewis Jr. who is facing his first election after being appointed to fill the unexpired term of D. T. House Jr. who retired March 31, 1968; incumbent county commissioners Vernon Cox, Alton Gardner and J. Vance Perkins — all veteran members of the board; and Mark Owens of Fountain, seeking to retain his seat on the Pitt County Board of Education as well as Dr. Thomas H. Patterson Jr. of Farmville and William "Bill" McLawhorn of Route 1, Ayden, who are seeking their first appointment to the board of education (incumbants Robert Pierce of Farmville and T. G. Worthington of Ayden did not file as candidates for the seats they now hold). In addition, three township constables, Clarence Harris of Pactolus, Frank Peaden of Falkland and Samuel Heath of Grimesland, face no opposition in their bid for those township posts.

Not so lucky are Pitt's present members of the N. C. House of Representatives, David Reid and Horton Rountree of Greenville.

Reid will face Sam D. Bundy of Farmville in the primary for the Democratic no[illegible]ation for Pitt's Seat Two. The winner of that contest will face Republican Frank Steinbeck in the November election.

Rountree, who has represented the county in the 1967 and 1969 sessions of the General Assembly will face Charlie Tyer of Falkland in his bid to return to office.

Incumbent coroner E. W. Harvey of Greenville, who has served as coroner for the past 11 years, will face political new - comer John M. Gray.

Also in a race for votes are two candidates for the Superior Court Judge seat for the Third Judicial District.

Robert D. Rouse of Farmville, a former Third District Solicitor, was first to file as a candidate. Charles Whedbee of Greenville, currently a District Court Judge in the Third District, announced his plans to seek the nomination and filed as a candidate later.

The Third Judicial District includes the counties of Pitt, Pamlico, Craven and Carteret.

Judge William J. Bundy, who currently holds the Superior Court post announced several months ago he would not ba a candidate for re - election.

In another Third Judicial District race, incumbant soliscitor Luther Hamilton of Morehead City is a ca[illegible]idate for re - election to that post. He faces no opposition.

A Constitutional Responsibility

President Asserts The Mails Will Go Through

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told a news conference Saturday that if postal workers continue wildcat strikes Monday "I will meet my constitutional responsibility to see that the mails go through."

While declaring he was not issuing a threat, Nixon left the strong impression that Army or National Guard units will be mobilized to take over postal operations next week if rank-and-file members of postal unions repudiate a strike-ending agreement between their leaders and the government.

In a no-question-barred session with several dozen reporters in his oval office, Nixon said he recognizes that postal workers in many areas "have legitimate grievances." But he said the government never will negotiate with them so long as they are engaged in illegal walkouts.

While the threat of a nationwide mail strike loomed ever larger, the President expressed hope that "responsible union leaders" and government officials will arrange an orderly settlement.

"I believe there is still a chance," he said.

On other subjects, Nixon said:

—A 'preliminary" presidential decision apparently will deny an Israeli request for U.S. jet fighters. The decision, to be announced Monday by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, was based primarily on a desire to maintain the Arab-Israeli balance of power in the Middle East without giving either side a major edge.

—The chief executive is concerned about recent reports of the introduction of sophisticated Soviet weapons and Russian troops into the United Arab Republic. But he said information reaching him does not indicate "a significant shift in the balance of power" as a consequence. But he emphasized that the entire situation—including Israel's request for more jets—will be under continual review.

—Expressing confidence that administration policies "have taken the fire out of the economy," Nixon predicted that the rate of inflation will be significantly slowed in the months just ahead—and without plunging the country into a recession. He said in his view there is no recession now.

—He will issue Tuesday a very lengthy statement reviewing the school desegregation question, looking not only at the legalities of the matter as defined by the courts but laying down guidelines for all federal agencies in those areas—and most particularly de facto segregation in the North.

—On Wednesday, Nixon will send Congress legislative proposals aimed at strengthening the ability of state and local authorities to deal with the rash of urban bombings that has captured much attention in recent weeks.

The question of the mail walkouts was paramount at the informal session-the first of its kind ever held by Nixon.

In an accompanying formal statement, Nixon said that "were these unauthorized work stoppages to continue for any duration of time it would seriously jeopardize the national public interest."

He said he expected postal workers to uphold their official oaths as well as the tradition that the "mails must go through."

"There are legitimate grievances that have been brought to fore in the current postal crisis," he said. "But those grievances cannot and will not be negotiated or ameliorated in a climate of intimidation."

Asked directly if he would use uniformed troops to handle the mail should walkouts continue Monday, Nixon said he did not want to talk about that because it would perhaps add a disturbing element to an already delicate situation as union leaders try to enlist the rank-and-file to support the strike-ending agreement with the government.

Politics played only a small part in the news conference.

However, responding to a question, Nixon said he expects Republican Sen. George Murphy of California to win the GOP nomination for re-election. As a registered voter of the state, Nixon said he expects to vote for Murphy.

And, after predicting that "1970 is going to be a good year ecnomically," Nixon said he could not say how it would turn out politically.

Questioned about the movement of Thai troops into Laos by American-chartered planes, Nixon said that because of the many ethnic ties in sections of Laos bordering on Thailand, the Thai long have been interested in Laos and participating in the military struggle there.

A Communist triumph in Laos, he said, would represent an "enormous threat" to Thailand.

Asked if he would consider a return visit soon to Europe, Nixon said he thought that face-to-face meetings with leaders there would be helpful. But he said he has no plans to go to Europe in the next few months.

Defy Leadership Move

N.Y. Mailmen Vote Strike Will Go On

NEW YORK (AP) — About 6,000 city mailmen voted almost unanimously today to stay on strike, defying a back-to-work agreement reached by their union leaders and the Nixon administration.

The New York vote came as the strike spread to more cities across the nation. Substations in Boston and Cincinnati were struck.

"Only President Nixon can intervene and bring about a settlement," said Gus Johnson, president of the New York Letter Carriers union, after the mass meeting in a Manhattan armory.

"We have gone along a street of broken dreams for 19 months with nothing concrete in the proposals," he said.

Johnson was interrupted several times by loud applause and catcalls when he mentioned Nixon's name.

The tentative agreement announced in Washington Friday by Labor Secretary George P. Shultz called for an immediate return to work with a promise of quick consideration of the postal workers' demands, especially for a wage increase.

In New York, where the walkout started Wednesday, a post office spokesman said mail was already piled so high it would take 10 days to straighten it out if the strike were settled immediately.

At the New York mailmen meeting, an effigy of James H. Rademacher, president of the national union, hung behind the speaker's platform in the cavernous armory.

Members carried signs reading "Dump Rat'emacher," "Hang Rat'emacher," and "We won't take rat poison."

Postal clerks, handlers and drivers in the 25,000-member Manhattan- Bronx local of the postal union were voting by secret ballot on whether to support the letter carriers. Moe Biller, president of the local, called it "pretty much a foregone conclusion" they would join the strike."

In Boston, the strike spread to about half the 90 stations and branches, although the main post office remained open.

"Most stations and offices close on Saturday at noon anyway, so there is no way to tell how disruptive the strike would be," said George K. Walker, in charge of the Boston postal district.

The main Cincinnati post office also was operating, although carriers walked out in five areas of the city.

Bonn Considers Tanks For Spain

BONN (AP) — The West German government confirmed today it is considering a request from Spain for the purchase of a large number of German-built Leopard tanks.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said the application, which he said was received recently, "is being studied under the normal procedure."

Informed sources said the Spanish government application was for about 200 of the 39-ton tanks.

Britain's Foreign Office indicated this week it may veto the sale, since the tanks are equipped with 105 mm British cannon.

New Boss For Americal Div.

SAIGON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Albert E. Milloy of Fayetteville, N. C., will take command of the American Division in Vietname to replace injured Maj. Gen. Lloyd B. Ramsey.

Ramsey was injured Tuesday in a helicopter crash.

The 48-year-old Milloy will assume his new command Sunday. He has been commander of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division, called the "Big Red One."

Local SCLC Denies Charges

Local Southern Christian Leadership Conference board members Friday denied they were involved in the unauthorized soliciting of funds from Greenville businessmen as had been charged earlier last week by Golden Frinks, State Field Secretary for the SCLC.

Frinks, last Monday, said the Pitt SCLC chapter had been suspended for what he termed "putting pressure on the entire community for money in an unauthorized action."

Jessie Lee Daniels, field director for the Pitt SCLC unit Friday said "we, the board members of the Pitt unit of SCLC, are denying the statements . . . concerning the soliciting of funds for legal defense. This was false information given . . . Frinks by the . . . complainants."

Daniels said "the people involved were not SCLC members," but termed them "concerned citizens", not acting for the SCLC.

Daniels charged that action was taken by Frinks and news articles released "without the Pitt County Unit of SCLC first being given an investigation or hearing."

"We are still waiting for a hearing from . . . Frinks," Daniels said. Those involved in the fund-raising venture were "concerned citizens and not the SCLC," he again emphasized.

Wonders 'Out Loud' If Disruptions, Violence Planned And Instigated

RALEIGH (AP) — A Nixon administration official wondered out loud Saturday night if recent violence and disruptions in the U.S. were not "planned and instigated" by revolutionaries.

"Is it possible to believe that the riots, the lootings, the burning, the mob violence were all separate and spontaneous actions?" asked Mrs. Helen Delich Bentley, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission in a talk prepared for a 25th anniversary observance of the North Carolina Ports Authority.

"Or is it more within the realm of reason and sheer logic to beliece the vast majority of such incidents to have been planned and instigated by those who openly avow their revolutionary intent and carried out by their gullible dupes?" she added.

But Mrs. Bentley said she believes President Nixon "will achieve what all true Americans desire, the bringing of us together as a people."

"I believe it with the same certainty I hold that there is not one of us here tonight who is not long past the point of crying 'enough' to rioting on our campuses, disruptions of our courts, mob violence on the streets of our cities, with looting and burning and outright anarchy," she declared.

In discussing North Carolina's ports of Wilmington and Morehead City, Mrs. Bentley said that last year they generated nearly $47 million "in additional work, jobs and purchasing power."

Mrs. Bentley said that as a result of the ports' business, "the state of North Carolina... has gained by more employment of its citizens, improvement to its tax structure, and service to its business community and the industries located within the borders of the state."

Mrs. Bentley said the attitude of the Nixon administration "in regard to the nation's ports is one of cooperation" and one "that recognizes the importance of the ports to the nation and its foreign trade."

Gov. Bob Scott noted that since 1952, trade at the Wilmington port increased from 24,000 tons handled by 16 ships to more than 885,000 tons handled by 465 ships in 1969 and at Morehead City trade increased from 525,000 tons handled by 212 ships in 1953 to nearly 1.1 million tons handled by 260 ships in 1969.

Scott also pointed out that last year five major industries either completed manufacturing facilities or selected construction sites in the vicinity of Morehead City and Wilmington.

He said these industries represent a capital investment of more than $200 million and will generate several thousand new jobs.

"At Wilmington, Hercules, Dupont and General Electric completed their facilities, and the Diamond Shamrock Co. selected a site and is now building," Scott said.

"At New Bern, with service to be through Morehead City, the Weyerhaeuser Corp. has just completed its new plant.

Scott presented a distinguished citizen award to E. N. Richards of Raleigh former chairman of the authority.

Judge Bars Picketing Permit; $1,000 Demand?

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Supeior Court Judge William J. Bundy yesterday ordered Greenville Police Chief T. E. Gladson not to allow a group of black citizens to picket a Negro funeral home here, pending a hearing in the case March 27.

The police chief was served with a temporary restraining order, signed by Judge Bundy yesterday morning, shortly before he could have issued a permit to picket Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home at 1026 West Fifth St.

Application for the picketing permit, signed by George Garrett, Moses Teel, Bennie Roundtree, Jack Teel, and John Lacy Pearson, as "interested citizens of Pitt County," outlined their reasons for wanting to picket the Flanagan business as Flanagan's "failure to support the black community."

Judge Bundy's order was issued following the filing of a complaint by Walter E. Flanagan, owner of the funeral home, which charged that the picketing of his business would be an unlawful act upon his premises and a violation of his constitutional rights.

Flanagan said he offered those seeking the permit to picket a $50 donation which they rejected with a demand for a $1,000 donation. Flanagan charged that he was warned that his business would be picketed if he did not contribute the $1,000, within 72 hours.

Chief Gladson said the 72-hour waiting period required before the police department can issure a permit to picket or parade would have ended at Noon Saturday, and explained he had been informed by City Attorney David Reid he had "no alternative but to issure it."

Flanagan last week complained to City Manager Harry Hagerty about being pressued for contributions to help pay for the defense of a number of persons charged with parading without permits here whose cases are pending court action.

Last Monday, SCLC State Field Secretary Golden Frinks announced that the local SCLC unit had been suspended for "unauthorized" solicitations of funds.

On that same day, Garrett's was "erminated" by Hagerty.

According to the city manager, Garrett had been on the city payroll for about one year doing various odd jobs, including work with a neighborhood cleanup program and most recently with the local Good Neighbor Council. He was being paid about $30 per week for this work with the Good Neighbor Council, Hagerty explained.

Garrett has been identified recently as president of the Pitt SCLC UNIT.

Judge Bundy, in issuing the temporary restraining order, said the request by the applicants to picket was "not in the interest . . . of freedom of speach . . . expression . . . and the facts do not warrant issuring a permit . . ." to them.

The judge set the hearing on the injunction for 10 a.m. March 27.

The picket application requested a permit to picket from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day through March 31.

Unruly Student Is Found Guilty Of Two Charges

A Rose High School student was found guilty of assaulting a teacher and disorderly conduct in District Court here Friday by Judge Herbert O. Phillips.

The charges against 16-year-old Negro Lizzie Gilbert stemmed from a January 12, incident at the school.

Rose High teacher Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst testified that she was attempting to disperse a group of students who had congregated in a hallway when the assault allegedly took place. "She pushed me . . . with her hands", Mrs. Whitehurst said of the defendant.

The teacher termed the push "belligerent . . . defiant", and said Miss Gilbert used vulgar and profane language during their brief confrontation.

Mrs. Whitehurst's testimony was supported by other teachers at Rose High who were tendered as witnesses, but denied by Miss Gilbert and two defense witnesses who said Miss Gilbert did not put her hands on the teacher and used no profane language.

Prior to sentencing, private prosecutor M. E. Cavendish told the court, "People have to know we live in a society of law and order . . . students have to know that they have to obey teachers in the schools . . . "

In finding the girl guilty of the offenses, Judge Phillips said "it upsets me violently inside" to hear of students "addressing a teacher in this fashion. It strikes against the very heart of my background."

Judge Phillips ordered 30 day jail terms in each of the two cases, but suspended them on condition that Miss Gilbert attend school regularly and have no unexcused absence for two years, be obedient to the orders and directions of the school's administrative staff and faculty, not enter the school except during regular school teaching hours, not violate any law or commit any act resulting in suspension or expulsion from school for two years, and for two weekends, from 5 p.m. Friday until 7 a.m. Monday, remain confined in the Pitt County jail, and pay the costs of the actions.

Defense attorney Jerry Paul, who questioned whether the prosecution of the case was "an attempt to make Lizzie a scapegoat," immediately gave notice of appeal of the cases to Pitt County Superior Court.

New North Pitt High School Policies Are Outlined

BETHEL — A meeting to present the total student body as well as faculty members a positive position relative to desegregation in the new North Pitt High School next year was held Friday morning at Bethel High School.

Apporximately 1,000 students in the Belvoir, Stokes - Pactolus and Bethel areas, as well as faculty members attended the meeting.

Pitt County Superintendent of Schools Arthur Alford told the Group, "Education is too important to lose by failing to work hard at each task. This is truer today than ever before with more industralization in the county and an ever pressing need for good workers.

"Each student, regardless of his background, will be dealt with in a warm, fair, firm and consistent manner," the superintendent stated. "Good discipline will prevail — either in a happy and enjoyable atmosphere or in a tense and fruitless one."

Alford said students must show respect for their fellow students and must respect the teachers, principals and other staff members.

"The teachers must not embarrass students, and should listen to the students and their problems," he noted. "Teachers and administration should make the classroom a place for relevant learning to take place and should make decisions which are in the best interest of the individual student as well as the student body as a whole."

He continued, "Each person is as worthy an individual as the next; it is only his conduct and actions that he fails to earn respect."

"I am firmly convinced that we can and will have a good school. Some of the same old, day - by day school problems will come up, but these will be handled swiftly and with justice for all," Alford explained.

Teachers participating in the program included: Mrs. Thelma Switzer, English teacher at Stokes - Pactolus High School and E. R. McNair, science teacher at Bethel Union.

Student speakers included: Carol Hardy, Stokes - Pactolus student and presiding chairman of the Student Involvement Committee for North Pitt High School; Ann Spain, Belvoir - Falkland; Avis Purvis, Bethel Union; Russ Andrews, Bethel High School; and Ann Murchison, Stokes - Pactolus.

The Rev. J. R. Person and the Rev. Arthur Herron also participated.

Mrs. Switzer used the letters of the school mascot "Panther" in developing her presentation to the students. She stressed the following:

—P, Patience on the part of students, faculty members and parents

—A, Ability to get along by working at it;

—N, Need for concern by teachers for each student and his problems;

—T, Thoughtfulness on the part of everyone;

—H, Helpfulness as well;

—E, Effort on the part of each person in order to bring about success;

—R, Reason rather than anger, haste and frustration.

McNair reminded the teachers the classroom is where most problems begin and where they must be resolved.

"Teachers must work together in planning a program of instruction in which each child will be able to achieve to his potential," McNair emphasized.

McNair stressed the need for fairness and impartiality in dealing with all students — not as black or white students — but as students.

Andrews of Bethel pointed out some things students must do when attending North Pitt High School next year. They included: attending school regularly; going to school with the idea of getting down to work; and going to school with the attitude of getting along with fellow students.

"Our goal at North Pitt next year should be education," Andrews said.

Miss Spain said, "Despite the pessimism on the part of so many, the students at North Pitt must have faith in themselves that the school will become the best, most progressive school around."

She closed with an Edger Guest poem reflecting the thought that "some say it can't be done" but that students would prove differently by rolling up their sleeves and trying.

Miss Murchison, speaking on attitudes and changes, said, "When I was told I would be able to talk before you today, I was frightened. Since that time, however, I have done a lot of thinking."

"I have thought about changes in may own attitudes that have taken place during the last year. I can see myself changing and I can see my fellow students changing," she noted.

Miss Murchison was transferred to an integrated school during her eighth year of school. There were problems she admitted, but on the whole, the situation was good.

"I am no longer afraid, I am no longer unhappy. I have gained a great deal of confidence since coming to an integrated school," Miss Murchison explained.

Miss Murchison reminded students to be courteous and understanding and North Pitt would be a good school in which students can learn and work together.

"I sincerely hope that there will be an honest effort made by students, faculty and parents of North Pitt, so that our new school will grow strongly, both academically and spiritually," Miss Purvis told the group.

School spirit is essential to any winning team, not only in sports but in life, and in education, she noted.

"At North Pitt next year, we expect fairness, communication, opportunity, cooperation and justice," Miss Purvis emphasized.

Similar meetings are planned for the three other new high schools. A meeting will be held at H. B. Sugg School Monday at 9:15 a.m. for the Farmville area and a meeting will be held Wednesday at 9:15 a.m. at Winterville for students and faculty of the new D. H. Conley High School. The meeting for the Ayden - Grifton area will be scheduled after the Easter holidays.

Job Opportunity Slump Faces College And University Grads

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Students graduating from North Carolina's colleges and universities this May are facing job interviews with more anxiety than in the past.

Placement directors in the state say there's no more room this year for the "I'm here, what will you offer me" attitude.

The reason is a nationwide slump in job opportunities and what may be the lowest demand for college graduates in almost two decades.

Those hit hardest will be the PhD's and master's candidates who were planning on high-paying research jobs in aerospace and electronics industries.

But placement officials say the market for English, history and social science teachers is also glutted, and many liberal arts majors with teaching certificates are going to find it difficult to get jobs.

The slump has been attributed partly to a $4 million cutback in defense spending and a $350 million trim in the space program. Also, the tight money situation with high interest rates and a shakey stock market has brought on a period of austerity in most industries.

Raymond Tew, placement center director at North Carolina State University, said the situation has led to a demand for people with "now" skills— workers who produce immediately instead of researchers who might produce in the future.

Tew said while the demand for graduates in the pure sciences has gone down, the demand for chemical engineers and other types of engineers in general is at an all-time

Other fields in high demand are accounting, merchandising and sales, computer science and business administration.

Tew said about 12 per cent of the recruiters who had planned to visit NCSU this spring have cancelled. University of North Carolina placement director Joe Galloway said the cancellation rate there is running 8 to 10 per cent.

Miss Patricia O'Connor, placement services director at Duke University, said "we've been very fortunate" and the number of recruiter cancellations has not increased much over last year.

But even at Duke, students have been affected by the national publicity given to the job situation.

"They're concerned," Miss O'Connor said. She predicted the number of job interviews per student will go up as the students try to increase their chances of job offers.

Galloway said UNC students have "got the message" and are pouring in to the placement center to get an early start on job interviews.

"There's been a change in the attitudes of students," Galloway said. "They're more definitely selling themselves. There's no more of this 'I'm here, what will you offer me.'"

Tew said he expects that students who received three or four job offers from their interviews in the past will be getting one or two now, or maybe no offers at all.

But Tew said the job situation should not be exaggerated. . . it's not gloomy.

"It's not that our whole graduating class is going to be unemployed," he said. "It's just that some of them, particularly those in relatively unattractive fields or in the lower half of their classes, are not going to get their first career choice, and maybe not their second choice."

Galloway agreed that "this is not the year I'd pick to come out of school if I were a below average student."

All three agreed that a good student with a good personality and relatively flexible career plans should not be overly concerned.

No one seems to know just when the slump will end, since no one has figured out all the reasons for it. But Miss O'Connor said, "Unless something unexpected happens in the second quarter of this year, it could go on for several years."

Officials at the three schools, which graduate a total of about 5,000 students a year, said they will not know the extent of the situation until June or July when they compile complete reports on job acceptances and salaries taken by this year's graduates.

N.Y.-Bound Mail Held

Postmaster Joseph Dudley advised local residents Friday who have mail bound for the New York area not to mail.

Because of the walkout of mail carriers in New York and the threat of more walkouts in other cities, the U. S. Post Office Department has ordered that all New York mail be held back for the duration of the mail carriers' strike.

The local Post Office received notice late Wednesday afternoon to hold all New York mail, Postmaster Dudley said.

By noon Friday, about 3,500-4,000 pieces of letter mail, 300-400 pieces of airmail and about 25-30 packages bound for New York had accumulated in the local post office, according to Dudley.

Increase in the number of pieces of mail was slight early Saturday morning.

Other States Are Awakening

When southerners complain about school desegregation laws and rulings which apply only to the south, the stock answer is that segregation laws applied on only one portion of the nation's populace.

That much is true. However, there have been no laws requiring legal segregation of the races for a number of years now, and in this area we do not think many people are sorry to see them go.

In Greenville whites and Negroes attend the theatres and public facilities are open to all. There is no segregation at athletic events as there once was. Of course our school system, while it might not suit HEW, is highly integregated as compared most municipal school systems around the nation.

So legal segregations is dead here and throughout the nation, as well it should be.

This, however, is no justification for laws requiring school integration measures which apply only to the southern states that once had legal segregation. If we are to have laws requiring integration of schools they should be laws that apply in every part of the nation. What the government does in the way of enforcement in North Carolina, or Mississippi or Alabama or Virginia it should do with equal vigor in New York or Massachusetts or Pennsylvania or any other state outside the south.

Much has happened recently which indicates to us that the rest of the nation is coming realize that laws applied in the south will eventually be applied in other areas of the nation. Whether this slows down southern integration or not, it is certainly the way it should be.

We are one nation and if legal segregation was wrong, so too are laws which affect only one section of the country. We believe all Americans, white or black and from whatever section, can build a stronger society together, but to do so we will have to have equal application of the law everywhere.

Banks Seeing Area Potential

(Today's guest column was written for the N. C. Association of Afternoon Dailies by Charles B. Pegram, reporter for the Hickory Daily Record.)

By Charles B. Pegram

HICKORY — "The steady and solid economic and industrial growth of the entire Hickory and Catawba county area more than justifies the establisment of additional banking facilities."

That opinion was expressed by Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, N. C. (National Affiliate) in its recent announcement that it is seeking authority from the U. S. Comptroller of the Treasury to open a bank in Hickory without benefit of merger.

Hickory already has four strong banks, and in addition to Wachovia, an application is pending for the Bank of Granite of Granite Falls, to enter the financial field here.

The banks presently established are: First National Bank of Catawba County, considered by many to be the largest "county bank" in the southeastern United States — serving virtually one county; the Northwestern Bank; First-Citizens Bank and Trust Company; and North Carolina National Bank.

Only First Union National Bank, among the major five banking chains in North Carolina, has no offices in Hickory. It does, however, serve nearby Lenoir.

Of course, banking operations no longer are confined to the immediate area in which they are located. Branches usually are established in the outlying areas and even in cities and towns within a radius of as much as 20 miles. Wachovia has a branch of the Morganton office at Holdebran, a few miles west of Hickory.

In mid-1969 North Carolina National Bank located in Hickory. Several years earlier, First-Citizens Bank and Trust Company came to the city. And now two others are wanting in.

What is the plum they savor?

Among other things, there is the wide diversification of industry in the Hickory area: testiles, including the entire gamut of hosiery and accessories; furniture, both casegoods and upholstered; electrical components, such as General Electric's residential transformer division; huge building and roadway construction corporations; packing houses, milk processing, piano manufacturing, foam and rubber manufacturing and processing; steel fabricators; agriculture and dairying, and a plethora of others.

The Hickory area — or, perhaps better known as the Catawba Valley — embraces a wide area that properly includes Morganton, Drexel, Valdese, Hildebran, Icard, Lenoir, Hudson, Granite Falls, Taylorsville, Bethlehem, Conover, Newton, Maiden, Longview, Catawba, and Claremont.

The North Carolina Council of Governments Region Four, known as the Unifour Complex, composed of Alexander, Burke, Caldwell and Catawba Counties, has its headquarters in Hickory. It was formed many months before similar councils were organized in North Carolina, and is promoting area projects for inclusion in state and federal grants for public works.

Hickory has Highways 64-70-321 and 27, and Interstate 40 as spokes for vehicular traffic. It has the Southern Railway line running from Greensboro to Asheville, and the Carolina and North-Western, from Chester, S. C., to Lenoir; and it has a jet-size municipal airport served by Piedmont Airlines.

Lenoir Rhyne College, established nearly 80 years ago, is located in Hickory, thereby adding culture to the expansive industrial strength.

Hickory also is a major distribution point, serving the upper and western Piedmont. Its wholesale distributors, M D I (Merchants Distributors, Inc.) is the largest firm of its kind between Washington and Atlanta.

The North Carolina Department of Revenue reports show that Hickory regularly ranks eleventh or above in retail sales among the state's major 39 cities, and Catawba County generally ranks ninth among the 100 counties.

Retail sales in Catawba County average about $25 million monthly, with about $18 million being reported in Hickory. In the Unifour Complex, the four-county total averages about $45 million monthly.

These figures would be most attractive to bankers, for it represents a total monthly payroll of about $30 million in Hickory, and $54 million in the four-county area of Unifour. Hickory's bank debits to customer accounts average about $120 million monthly.

If Wachovia, and the Bank of Granite, which has principal offices in Granite Falls with branches in Hudson and Lenoir, do come into Hickory, this city may become a hub of financial interests.

Hickory already has two savings and loan associations, and 18 loan companies — and one pawn shop.

A 13-Year-Old Shows What Can Be Done

We like Susan Dusio of Newark, Calif. Even though she is only 13, 4-foot-7 and 70 pounds she is almost entirely responsible for arranging a week of drug - abuse education which taught 640 teen-agers what drugs are all about.

"The response was indescribable," said the vice principal Kenneth Trange. "She had help, of course, but Susan carried the ball from the very beginning and virtually handled the thing by herself."

Included was a list of speakers, exhibits and movies and a week was set aside for the show.

"A lot of kids seem to know more now about what it means to take drugs," Susan said. "I think some of them have a different point of view about it now. I hope so."

We hope so, too, and we hope Susan, and other teen-agers who recognize the seriousness of the drug problem, will keep up the good work.

Wallace Loses Ala. Strength

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BIRMINGHAM — George C. Wallace has lost so much support from the white workingman of Alabama, once the indestructible keystone of his national movement, that he will likely be beaten for Governor in the Democratic primary May 5 unless he can somehow conjure up his old campaign stump appeal in the weeks ahead.

This menace to Wallace's political career, with all that it portends for the 1972 Presidential election, is now evident in both comprehensive statewide polls and the feel of courthouse politicians. Moreover, it is buttressed in dramatic nature by interviews we conducted in Alabama this week under the direction of pollster Oliver Quayle.

Out of 55 registered voters interviewed, we found a moderately large edge for Gov. Albert Brewer against Wallace's challenge: 26 for Brewer, 17 for Wallace, 4 for other candidates, 8 undecided. But what makes this so startling is the nature of the voters we interviewed (accompanied by Quayle's cantral Alabama supervisors, Dean Creel and Polly Graham).

We purposely limited interviews to the industrial suburbs of Birmingham and blue - collar neighborhoods of Tuscaloosa. Accordingly, we interviewed no Negroes, no upper - income suburbanites, no professional people, no Republicans — the heart of the anti-Wallace coalition.

To counteract this coalition, Wallace must register a substantial majority among the lower - income whites we interviewed.

Indeed, the voters we encountered were preponderantly Wallaceites. Four years ago, they told us, they gave Lurleen Wallace 88 percent of their vote for Governor. In 1968, they gave Wallace 65 percent of their vote for President. Wallace's old record as Governor gets a 65 percent favorable rating from them (identical to the rating they give Brewer).

Nevertheless, they don't want Wallace back in Montgomery. "I don't think Wallace should bust in right now," a steel plant machinist told us. "The state is getting along fine without him." The wife of a teletype - writer installer said: "He's using us this time, getting ready for the next Presidential election."

Whatever happens in the race for Governor, both of these voters would back Wallace against President Nixon in 1972. But deeper disaffection with Wallace's raucous platform style is setting in with other voters. "I'd like a politician that acts dignified and is not so loud," said a packinghouse worker who always had voted for the Wallaces but will vote for Brewer in '70 and Nixon in '72.

This indicates no Southern liberalization here on the race issue. Rather, these voters felt Wallace's flamboyant methods unwittingly accelerated integration. Surprisingly, they ranked Wallace third (begind the Supreme Court and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and

Sunday Morning Notes

Pham Dong Duoc, an ECU student, was on a coastal trip last Sunday.

Stopping at a service station on the outskirts of Plymouth, he was told the rest room was around the corner.

There was only one room there, however and it was marked "Ladies".

Duoc went back in the station and told the elderly lady about the situation.

"Law, honey," the lady replied. "You go right ahead. If there's ladies in there, they won't mind, pretty as you are."

Dr. James Bearden, member of the city board of education, directed a question to Glenn Cox, acting principal of Rose High School, at a recent meeting.

Cox answered all right, but his voice came from the hall outside the room.

Seems things were so crowded in the board room several people were having to sit in the hall — including the high school principal.

The cup of coffee which a customer was served at a lunch counter was from a pot which had been standing for some time — and, to say the least, it was strong.

"Is the coffee all right?" the waitress asked.

"I thought so," the customer replied, "until I bent the spoon."

The waitress quickly served a fresh cup.

And two ladies in the middle age class were discussing their fondest desires.

"If at all possible, I'd like to live to be a hundred," one said.

"We'll soon find out, dear," her friend replied sweetly.

Other Editors Say Networks Refuse

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

The current issue of U. S. News and World Report reveals a survey showing that millions of Americans around the nation have been actively carrying out projects to show appreciation of our fighting men.

Among the projects mentioned is the Wayne County barbecue for wounded soldiers at Walter Reed Hospital.

But it also discloses many others we never heard of:

In Grand Rapids, Mich., a "Project Thank You" has resulted in more than a million packettes being sent to GI's in Vietnam.

The packettes included paperback books, toilet kits, playing cards. This year it spread across the country.

"Vietnam Mail Call" was founded in Columbus, Ga., and more than a million encouraging letters were sent to men serving in combat areas.

Christmas mail alone reached 230,000 pieces with much of it coming from churches, 4-H Clubs and college campuses, U. S. News reports.

Some cities and towns have "adopted" front line units and citizens correspond regularly with men serving in those groups.

The effort was designed to off set the numerous protest demonstrations around the country.

As one promoter said, "We wanted the men over there to know where Rochester, Minn., stood."

U. S. News and World Report listed cities and towns alike where it had found similar such projects backing up our men in service.

The astounding thing about the whole story is that not a mention of any of them has been made on most of the national TV networks.

These same networks have diligently focused on the dissenters and the freaks of American society, promoting their plans and building up their following.

Through their promotional efforts, the TV networks and some of the nation's major newspapers have been an essential party to pulling off such tragedies as occurred at the Democratic National Convention and in so many other places.

They have sided with the dissenters until many young people have been convinced that it is their patriotic duty to hide in Canada or in a church to avoid the draft.

But while the networks have zealously promoted the efforts of the Anti-American and the pro - communist forces in this country, they have just as diligently kept from the American people the other side of the story: The activities of the millions of Americans who are standing up for the country and backing its servicemen wherever they are required to be.

'Liable' For Oil Spills

By WILLIAM MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congress is expected to complete action shortly on legislation making oil companies liable for the cost of cleaning up their spills.

The bill, a compromise between differing Senate and House versions passed last year, was approved by a joint conference committee March 12. Final enactment by both chambers is virtually assured in the near future.

It applies to spills from tankers and from offshore drilling operations, such as the disastrous spillage in the Gulf of Mexico this month and off Santa Barbara, Calif., last year.

In the past, the government could make a tanker company pay for cleanup costs only if it could prove that the spill was due to gross or willful negligence. There was no legal provision for seeking reimbursement from oil companies for repairing damage done by spills in offshore wells.

'Absolute Liability'

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, a principal architect of the pending bill, said it would impose "absolute liability" on oil operators for cleanup costs, without any necessity for the government to show that a spill resulted from negligence.

The operator's liability would be limited to $14 million for any one spill, or $100 per gross ton of weight of a tanker, whichever is lower. Muskie said that sum would more than cover the cost of cleaning up any oil spill in history, and allows some margin for the increasing size of supertankers.

The American government is acting on several other fronts to cope with the oil spill problem.

Secretary of Interior Walter J. Hickel, following last year's Santa Barbara spill, issued strict new regulations covering offshore drilling in federally-leased waters. These regulations make federally-licensed offshore drillers liable for the cost of cleaning up spills.

My Seek Prosecution

Hickel has indicated he may ask the Justice Department to bring suit against the Chevron Oil Co., for the spill this month from underwater wells in the Gulf of Mexico southeast of New Orleans. He said inspection turned up 147 violations of federal regulations in the leaky Chevron wells.

The U.S. Coast Guard is pressing a major research program to develop new ways of dealing with spills after they occur. Now under test are inflatable rubber bladders capable of holding up to 140,000 gallons of oil each. They could be flown to the side of a leaking tanker, dropped by parachute, and used as a floating receptacle into which the tanker's oil could be pumped. They would then be towed to a safe anchorage for disposal.

Both the Coast Guard and the Interior Department are financing research on new techniques for cleaning up spilled oil from waterways and beaches.

Strength For Today

TRIUMPHAL ENTRY

The arrival of Christ in Jerusalem was hailed by the multitude as triumphant, yet many of the people who on what we have come to call Palm Sunday cheered Jesus as the king "that cometh in the name of the Lord" cried out a few days later "Crucify him, crucify him."

Why this immense change? For the simple reason that Jesus was not a military hero. The multitude was sure when he entered Jerusalem on Palm Sunday that he would marshal the nation that his kingdom was not of this world. They hoped for a Deliverer but instead got a teacher, preacher and healer who said nothing about revolt.

On Monday of what we have come to call Holy Week Jesus cleansed the temple. It was necessary that booths be erected in the vicinity of the temple, supplying the needs of those who came to worship therein. But little by little the booths had forced themselves into the holy precincts of the temple itself.

John declares (2:15) that Jesus made a scourge of cords and drove the merchants and money - changers out of the temple.

The money - changers were especially despicable for they scraped a bit of gold or silver off every coin. Our coins today are milled with fine grooves on the edge of the coin, whereby the scraping—off of precious metal is easily detected.

The merchants violated the sanctity of the temple. The money - changers were thieves, and Jesus drove them out of the temple with a scourge of cords.

Mail Service Can't Get Worse

By ELMER ROESSNER

The proposal to turn the postal service over to a semi - independent authority appears to have a good chance of passage.

After President Nixon asked Congress for such legislation, the House Post Office Committee, which had been holding up a bill to that end in fear of the postal workers unions, suddenly approved it. The committee appears to fear Nixon more than the unions.

All that remains now is for the Senate to pass a similar bill and to compromise the differences in conference.

The results will be: postal services will be more expensive. However, it can't get any worse.

Last week it took five days for an airmail letter to get from Kansas City to New York; the week before that it took four days for a surface letter to go from Washington to New York.

A Mixed Bag

The authority, which the House committee proposes to call the U. S. Postal Service Authority, will present business and the public with a mixed bag:

● Postal wages will rise. The House bill, to gain the support of the unions, wrote in a provision for a 5.4 per cent wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1, and gave the authority power to negotiate future increases with the unions. Postal wages are now comparatively low.

● The authority will be empowered to issue bonds backed by the U. S. government. Bond issues will probably run into the billions because the postal plant is in a sorry state, with only mini automation. And automation will require extensive rebuilding because some of the floors in existing buildings can't support automatic machines.

● The Post Office may eventually be free of the costs of political domination, which has made it an adjunct of the national chairman of the prevailing political party, and has made postmasterships political plums. Hiring executive employees for their ability instead of party position may improve service.

Up, Up and Away

● Postage costs will soar. Higher wages will increase costs and the interest rates on billions of dollars in bonds will skyrocket rates and the general public in one way or another will have to pay more billions of dollars in interest on governmental debt.

● The new authority may stop building lavish post offices in small towns to please Congressmen. Maybe.

Under the House bill, the President would select seven of the directors of the postal authority, with not more than four of the same party. Congressional leaders would name four more, and the eleven would name two more. One director would then be named director general, or top boss.

The proposal to turn the postal operations over to an independent authority was first made to President Johnson in 1968. It was made by a commission headed by Frederick R. Kappel, retired chairman of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., whose services is almost as lousy as that of the Post Office.

Observations From Editorial Columns

MATTERS OF IDENTITY

In Idaho, the state senate has passed a bill requiring that newspaper editorials be signed or initialed by the person writing them.

This proposal, now before the Idaho House, seems to overlook the fact that, in every newspaper, there always is some individual, by whatever title know, who is prepared to accept the responsibility for an editorial declaration. But perhaps of more interest to the general public would be the answers to two questions which come to mind out of the Idaho situation:

1. Are the legislators willing to record their individual votes on all issues by insisting that every vote be by roll-call ballot?

2. Will the Idaho legislators now required politicians to disclose the names of their speech-writers on every occasion and likewise require judges to reveal the law clerks or attorneys who prepare their decisions?

We would expect some livly discussion in the Idaho House if these considerations come to be part of the debate. — Columbia (S.C.) State

SUBSIDIZING STRIKERS

Unemployment benefits paid to people who are out of work through no fault of their own have served a constructive, humanitarian purpose, easing people over difficult periods of hardship. But do you think unemployment aid programs ought to be used to subsidize strikes?

It has been suggested that one reason the recent major strike against General Electric dragged on for 14 weeks is that a large number of the strikers lived in states that allow strikers to draw unemployment pay. It is reported New York gave the strikers between seven and eight million dollars, Massachusetts nearly three million, while the Rhode Island figures are unreported but substantial.

Helping a man who is out of work through no fault of his own is one thing. Paying benefits to people who walk off their jobs and stay off on purpose is quite anyother. It is bad policy to have governmental programs subsidize strikes and promote unemployment chosen by the unemployed. — Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press

CREDIT RISK

If you had a $5,000 bill in your purse or billfold, would you feel uneasy? Most likely the answer is yes. But the fact is, you very likely do have the equivalent of a $5,000 bill in your possession at this very moment. This is the amount that a simple credit card is worth in the hands of a resourceful swindler. Credit card swindling is a booming business.

Authorities in Chicago broke up one of the biggest swindles of all time. Using credit cards, a 32-member ring managed to rake in more than $10 million before they were apprehended and indicted for mail fraud. Many of the cards used in this epic swindle were stolen from mailboxes of people who had received the cards, unsolicited, without prior notice. — Montgomery (Ala.) Journal

LOSING BATTLE

The latest Labor Department statistics shows that in spite of a gain in take-home pay for the average worker of 13 cents per week and a 22-cent boost as a result of the lower income tax surcharge, the Consumer Price Index rose and nullified all the gains.

Which merely proves that ancient adage, "Just when a guy gets to the point where he can make ends meet, someone moves the ends." — Roanoke (Va.) Times

WITH WOODEN LIGHTER?

A mail-order house offers a lamp that gives "a gracious, intimate glow to your dinner table."

It comes complete with a windproof glass globe that keeps it lit, indoors or out. "Fills with kerosene at the base — just like those of the earlier era! No need for outlets — no cords to trip over!"

Wow! Ain't progress wonderful! — Anniston (Ala.) Star

OR IS IT NOT TOO LATE NOW?

Keeping up with the decline of language and the increase of jargon, we present this from a publication of the Air Line Dispatchers Association:

"In the SST planning phase at ICAO, in which ALDA is a participant . . . there is a proposal to swing the whole ICAO NOTAM system to plain language. . ." — San Antonio (Tex.) Express and News

WHO HAD CONTROL?

Amidst all the adult carping going on about young people, we are indebted to Oren Arnold in The Kiwanis Magazine for a pertinent comment:

"People who can't keep from criticizing the younger generation apparently can't remember who raised it" — Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times

A Conservative View

Appreciation For That Chicken Salad Circuit

By J. J. KILPATRICK

Malcolm Muggeridge turned up the other day in the Chicago Tribune Magazine, of all places, to announce a private joy all his own: He has made his last American lecture tour. He is through with the rubes for good.

Muggeridge is the terrible-tempered Mr. Bang of British journalism, onetime Washington correspondent for the Daily Telegraph, who took over in 1953 as editor of the fading Punch. For a time, at least, he made of Punch an excellent jab. Most Americans, especially students and women's club members, probably know him best for his lecture tours.

In his corrosive farewell to the platform, Muggeridge sounds every sour note ever hit by a dyspeptic trouper on the sawdust trail. He complains of tasteless food and tasteless ladies, of dull professors and stale introductions, of dank hotels and dreary airports. No more for him! To borrow a marvelous noun, coined by an old pol I used to know, Muggeridge speaks here as a disgrunt; and his valedictory comes up like a burp gone wrong.

Now, Muggeridge staggered home from his five triumphant visits with enough loot to upset the balance of payments. He might have found something pleasant to say of his American hosts. But it is fashionable, you see, to bellyache about such tours. John Ciardi, the poet-critic, moans even more piteously than his co-sufferer from Britain. Every lecturer of my acquaintance carries on in this querulous way.

It is high time, it seems to me, to put in a few words by way of balance. I, too, have jounced by jet buggy on the chicken-salad circuit, making 30 or 40 speeches a year, and I, too, have limped home bone-tired, dragging one of those Sheraton bags full of dirty shirts, but my view of these tours is wholly different: I love 'em.

Living here in Washington, just as Mr. Agnew said, we pundits talk mainly to each other. We cover the same sources, make the same conferences, hover like old hummingbirds, toothpicks in hand, before the same bowls of shrimp. Our tight little universe revolves around familiar poles, the morning Post, the Evening Star. "This is where the action is," we say, and we fall into the false notion that this is where all the action is.

A couple of weeks on the road tend to restore a man's perspective. The great value of these tours, apart from the loot, lies in the new voices and different faces, the give and take with unfamiliar accents, the regional news one never sees or hears in Washington. I am not much on people en masse; but the reporter is dead who loses his love for people one at a time. Here you meet them, and if you have big curious ears, you listen.

The student audiences usually are the best, and Muggeridge to the contrary, their questions vary widely from one campus to the next. Under the long hair lie some first-rate brains; wise eyes peer through granny glasses. The beer and bull sessions after a lecture often are best of all. We break pretzels and lances, the students and I, God to sex in two hours, sipping Schlitz and Aristotle.

But the adult audiences — club women, businessmen — listen more attentively and reveal a little more of themselves. Maybe Muggeridge's ladies snore through a lecture. My gals, most of them anyhow, have minds as quick as knitting needles. They spot a loose argument like a dropped stitch. And I encounter this intelligence and maturity all across the land.

To be sure, the circuit has its drawbacks. I have been hissed at Harvard and heckled at Cornell. Once at Antioch, a long blonde co-ed, clad in black leotard, reversed her chair to indicate dissent; and for an hour I lectured on the Constitution to her silent, shapely rear. At a cow college in New York, a dozen barnyard intellectuals once exhibited their skill in civilized debate by sprawling on the floor grunting oink. These are exceptions. Most engagements are fun, and I'm sorry Muggeridge found them barely bearable. He was a popular speaker and doubtless will be missed; but I think he missed something, too.

Attitudes Are Changing On Abortions Under A Combination Of Factors

— By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Three years ago, the New York State Assembly Codes Committee took only 90 minutes to kill an attempt to reform the state's 19th century abortion law.

Four days ago, the state Senate, considered the more conservative of the two houses, passed and sent to the Assembly a bill that not only reforms the law but repeals all restrictions on abortions performed by licensed doctors.

The Assembly will consider the bill next week and chances of passage are considered good. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is on record as favoring abortion reform, although he has not endorsed this particular bill.

An Associated Press survey of the 50 states and Washington, D.C. disclosed that in more than half the states it is still impossible for a woman to get an abortion unless her life is threatened.

But the change in climate in New York is typical of much of the country, with relaxed moral standards and strong pressure from women's groups, doctors and social workers combining to make abortion reform if not politically popular, at least not politically suicidal.

There has been more reform since 1967—when Colorado became the first state to liberalize its abortion law—than in the century before that.

"The progress that's been made ... is fantastic," said Dr. Alan Guttmacher, head of the Planned Parenthood-World Population Association. "Nobody could have dreamed this degree of progress. We're now more concerned with the quality of population than the quantity."

Since 1967, 11 states have followed Colorado's lead, adopting laws that permit abortion if the mother's mental or physical health is threatened; if the pregnancy results from rape or incest, or if there is a substantial chance the baby will be born deformed.

All require that abortions be performed by licensed physicians and some require approval by a hospital board. Most have residency requirements. And, despite fears, none has become an "abortion capital."

There still are 33 states that prohibit all abortion except to save the mother's life. But attempts at reform are pending in 10 of these states, including New York.

In a 34th state, Wisconsin, a U.S. District Court ruled earlier this month that the ban on abortion was unconstitutional. The court said, "We hold that a woman's right to refuse to carry an embryo during the early stages of pregnancy may not be invaded by the state."

Similar court challenges exist in other states.

But many areas, including Washington, D.C., are faced with the possibility that should court challenges of old abortion laws be upheld, they will be left with no statute at all on termination of pregnancy. The Washington, D.C., law was overturned by a district judge last November and an appeal is pending.

The State of Washington is putting the issue to the voters. On the ballot this November will be a referendum repealing a 1909 law making it a felony to perform an abortion other than to save the life of the mother.

The Washington referendum would allow abortion providing it is performed within the first 16 weeks of pregnancy and that the woman has been a state resident for 90 days. If the woman is under 18, her parents' consent would be required and if she is married and living with her husband, his permission would be needed.

The remaining three states— Hawaii, Pennsylvania and New Hampshire—have widely varying statutes.

Early this month, a law took effect in Hawaii that repealed a century-old statute and allows abortion providing it is performed by a qualified physician or osteopath in a licensed hospital and providing the fetus is nonviable—incapable of living outside the mother's body. There is a 90-day residency requirement.

Pennsylvania, where the law has remained essentially unchanged since 1960, provides penalties for anyone who "unlawfully administers to any woman pregnant or quick with child" a device or drug to cause a miscarriage. The term unlawfully never has been defined, however; and abortions generally are performed on the Colorado standard.

Because of a printer's error late in the 19th century, the New Hampshire law allows abortions only after the fifth month of pregnancy—exactly the opposite of what the legislators intended. Attempts to update the law were defeated by the 1969 Legislature.

Many reformers would like to see abortion completely removed from the criminal code and left strictly a medical matter—like an appendectomy for example.

Guttmacher said he thinks the Hawaii bill is a "good law. It's about the most liberal law we could want." Asked if he thought it would set a trend, he replied, "I would expect that."

In Colorado, Democratic State Rep. Richard Lamm, sponsor of the original abortion reform measure, said recently, "I feel the law isn't working because it isn't strong enough."

In 1968, Maryland liberalized its law to conform with the Colorado standard. This week, the House of Delegates approved a bill to repeal all abortion laws.

Few states keep statistics on abortions, legal or illegal. Those that do report there has been an increase in legal abortions after a liberalization of the law, but there has been no stampede for termination of pregnancy.

Arkansas, which liberalized its law last August, has not compiled statistics yet. But Dr. Byron Hawks, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Arkansas Medical Center in Little Rock, said that since liberalization no more than 12 abortions had been performed that could not have been performed under the old law.

ECU Planetarium Should Be Fascinating And Educational

There's no telling how many people, subject to that human frailty which causes us to sometimes doubt laws of cause and effect, consider something which happened on or about March 7 a result of the solar eclipse.

For us at East Carolina University, it could well be the fact of a gift of $100,000 for a planetarium, presented to us on the morning of eclipse day.

We are reassured, however by logicians in our Department of Philosophy that there is no connection. The gift was a direct result of deliberate human planning — and generosity.

The interest and concern of the people at the American Credit Corporation Foundation of Charlotte are what caused them to plan the gift. The nature of the gift dictated that eclipse day would be highly appropriate for the presentation.

Along with a check, the foundation gave us a challenge to raise another $200,000 to pay for a $300,000 facility. And so we have begun.

Dr. Floyd Mattheis, chairman of the Science Edueation Department, tells us that plans are shaping up nicely and that a tentative construction date of about 12 months from now has been set. Of course, a go-ahead for construction depends entirely on the time it takes to raise $200,000. Dr. Mattheis says he and his fellow faculty members are already working hard to raise the money.

Some may question the reasoning behind construction of a planetarium at East Carolina. Aside from the fact that our gift so stipulated, there are other sound reasons.

We think of the planetarium primarily as a gigantic tool for the education of our sons and daughters. Dr. Mattheis, pointing up the immediate value of such a tool, says that some 2,000 students at ECU will be immediately and directly involved with studies at the planetarium when it is completed. In addition, the planetarium will serve as a valuable and fascinating means of introducing the wonders of astronomy to thousands of elementary and high school pupils and the general public in Eastern North Carolina.

When completed, the ECU planetarium will compare favorably with facilities in Chesapeake and Newport News, Va. It will not be as large as the renowned facility at Chapel Hill; but there is no other planetarium within 100 miles of Greenville.

We believe the educational value of such a tool is justification enough for its existence. And if that tool can double as a servant to the needs and interests of the community, then its existence cannot be decried.

In summary, all of us at ECU and the people at the American Credit Corporation Foundation, are convinced that construction of a planetarium on our campus will yield a value much higher than the sum of $300,000.

We would be pleased to know how the public — our stockholders — feel about this important project. I take this opportunity to invite your comments. These may be addressed directly to the president's office at East Carolina. — Leo W. Jenkins.

ahead of President Nixon) as a cause for Alabama's school desegregation.

Young Al Brewer, handpicked as lieutenant governor by Wallace in 1966, is looked upon by these voters as sharing Wallace's racial views. They see the difference in tactics. "Brewer is not so boisterous," says the wife of a foundry worker switching away from Wallace. "He is mild-mannered and yet doing much as Wallace did."

Wallace still has his old guard of dependables, particularly among older voters who dislike Brewer's utilities tax for state school aid. The true Wallaceite suffers from no indecision. "I really think, hope, truly, that he is for the workingman and Brewer is not," a hospital cook told us. In addition, memories of past struggles persist — in the words of a steel plant welder: "George Wallace has stood up for Alabama when the nigras tried to integrate us. We remember that."

Although Wallace has lost significant ground against President Nixon among these voters, he remains their favorite for President — partly because of state pride, partly because of secretly voiced complaints that Mr. Nixon has broken his promises to the South. Because of "wishy-washy" positions on desegregation, Mr. Nixon is holding a 41 percent job rating from our interviews (though, of course, he is infinitely more popular than Hubert Humphrey or Edmund Muskie).

with a group therapy scene where the couples are being urged to express their true feelings.

At a recent showing here there were two couples, one seated in the row in front of the other.

Both men got up at the same time to visit the refreshment stand. One of the men soon returned and took his seat.

In a few moments the lady beside him tapped him on the shoulder. "You're in the wrong seat," she informed him.

"Oh, my god," the man exclaimed and vaulted to his proper seat beside his wife.

"How do you really feel now," the lady behind him asked laughingly.

"I feel terrible," the man replied.

Week Showed No Real Evidence Inflation Controls Working

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Developments this week failed to provide any hard evidence that "the turn" has been reached in the Nixon Administration's fight to bring inflation under control.

The decision to relax the freeze on construction spending seems aimed at a special problem — rising unemployment among construction workers, now about 7.2 percent, compared with the overall average of 4.2 percent.

The impact of this will be some time in coming. It will take about six-months to get the projects, amounting to about $1.5-billion for roads, schools and hospitals, cranked up and going. And this time factor may be stretched even longer because many projects call for matching state and local funds at a time when some can't borrow because of ceilings on interest they are allowed to pay.

But in this development, called anti-recession by some commentators, there was no sign that President Nixon is weakening in his determination to cool the economy and slow price inflation to a point where stability can be calimed. The heart of the Nixon program is a balanced budget and restraint on the supply of credit.

But the easing of policy for construction may offer some guidance on how the administration will react as the slowing economy develops other severe pinches. It introduces a thread of "selectiveness" into what critics have called a shotgun approach to inflation.

Washington keeps talking of help for home building, the hardest hit segment of the huge construction industry. What is desired, apparently, is some sort of "gimmick" program which can make more loan funds available to home buyers at an interest rate of around 8 percent, or even a bit lower. In other words, Washington wants some sort of program which gives home buyers a better deal than they can get in the open market.

In the money markets, there seems to be a considerable doubt that interest rates have hit their peaks. Borrowers of all types are making a tremendous demand on the bond market, with the result that prices are under heavy down pressure and interest rates are again moving up.

Borrowers and their underwriters naturally try to "guage" the market and time offerings with consideration for the supply-demand situation. But in recent weeks bonds have poured in at such a rapid rate that accumulations in the hands of dealers have become a problem.

The "Blue List" gives some measure of the "excess" in the market. This is a catalog of dealer-to-dealer offerings. "comfortable" is considered to be in the range of $300-to-$350 million. The Wall Street Journal noted this week that the current "Blue List" is approaching $600-million.

Why all the rush to get into the bond market when the scramble not only gives support to high interest rates, but tends to push them higher? There are several answers, depending on circumstances.

Many borrowers simply can't wait in the hope that the market will shift in their favor. Utilities, for example, are having to expand their facilities to serve the rising demand.

Some corporate borrowers are simply pressed for funds. Their reserves have been drained down and their bank credit stretched. So they are forced to the bond market for new capital and also for funds to cover maturing bank loans.

States and municipalities are forced in by the absolute needs of funds. Others ignore the rates and go ahead while incumbent governors and mayors can get their names on public projects.

There are, however, borrowers who could wait, but don't. They fear that interest rates some months hence may makes today's lofty quotations seem like bargains.

And underlying the whole credit situation is that fact that the shortage of loan funds and the high interest rates have forced many would-be borrowers to hold back. Just what this amounts to is not known, of course. But most experts think it is huge.

The combination of demand on the current money market, plus the growing backlog of demand, makes the Administration's handling of its anti-inflation policy something of a tight-rope act.

Nixon, politically sensitive, is well aware of the spreading resentment against high interest. He has made comments at times to the effect that he would like to see interest come down and soon.

But Nixon is on a tough spot. Getting rates down in any significant way under present conditions would call for action by the Federal Reserve System to increase the amount of loan funds available in banks. Any such increase could be translated, quickly, into new demands on the economy, which would mean a resumption of the spiral Nixon has been trying to break.

There is a considerable body of opinion in market circles that interest rates probably will simply "stabalize" around present levels. This, as they see it, will become the new "normal". For many, many years, money was traded with 6 percent as the key interest rate. And if held about there, while the cost of other things more than doubled.

It may well be that the wages of savings, capital, are simply doing a little belated catching up.

One-Story Provides Easy Living

By Gerry Bishop

For easy living, there's nothing like a sweeping one-story. Add a wood deck for a healthy exposure to the elements—and there's no finer form of shelter.

Such a paragon is the Morgana, designed by the Associated Architects. This expansive one-story has the added charm of the South Seas. It is evident in the exterior design which suggests graceful informality.

The roof dominates, creating distinctive lines that make this a truly outstanding home for an active modern family.

There are three large bedrooms, two and a half baths, a dining room-living room combination, family room with log-burning fireplace, modern kitchen with breakfast area, large laundry room, double garage with storage room, outside wood deck and full basement.

Beamed Ceiling and Fireplace

The family room is a prize with a sloped beamed ceiling which follows the shape of the roof. The fireplace is flanked by sliding-glass doors leading to the wood deck. In good weather the deck would tie in with the family room to enhance entertaining as well as everyday living. Measuring approximately 20 feet by 14 feet, the family room would be an ideal activities center.

A porch runs across part of the front of the Morgana and the main entrance leads into a foyer equipped with a coat closet.

To the left is the dining room-living room combination, a long chamber, approximately 24 feet by 12 feet, that would serve its dual purpose well.

The kitchen is exceptionally well designed and is strategically located to serve both the dining room and the family room area. Built-in appliances and cabinets are efficiently arranged and there is a pantry across one end of the kitchen. The large breakfast area is an asset.

In addition to space for the washer and dryer, the laundry room has enough area to be used for sewing and other homemaking endeavors. There is a powder room connected it.

Garage Connected To Kitchen

The double garage opens into the kitchen, a handy arrangement for shopping. The garage entrance is on the side but could be shifted to the front if the lot were narrow.

The master bedroom is a fine layout with a dressing room, walk-in closet and private bath. There also is a second closet, and sliding-glass doors connect with the wood deck.

The other bedrooms, each approximately 14 feet by 11 feet, flank the main bath.

The large basement provides room for future expansion. This would be an especially attractive alternative on a lot that slopes from front to back.

The outside dimensions are approximately 68 feet by 60 feet and the living area totals 1,967 square feet.

GRACEFUL INFORMALITY — The Morgana, a one-story with a South Seas influence, offers the ultimate in graceful living. It has three large bedrooms, two and a half baths, a dining room-living room combination, family room with log-burning fireplace, modern kitchen with breakfast area, large laundry room, double garage with storage room, outside wood deck and full basement for future expansion.

Floors Of House You Plan To Buy May Need To Be Kept Carpeted

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Here's advice to house shoppers from a new home owner: If the prospective seller wants to give you the floor carpet with the house, ask to see the floors. You may find that they must be kept covered.

After accepting the carpet offer from the former owners, the new owner decided that she didn't really want it. She would cut it up for another room and put down hooked rugs in the old Colonial living room.

"The floors are stained and gauged as if someone took a huge knife and tried to slice them. They are old random-width planks ..." (Dogs can make large scratches, especially on soft wood floors. You may find indications of a dog's nail-prints by looking at the doors.)

What can she do to improve the appearance of such floors without spending a mint?

If the floors are wide pine planks, the early-house theme may be emphasized by reconditioning the boards—filling the large gauges with filler and then scraping and sanding.

One woman, who had a floor problem, revived the appearance of old floors by sanding before using filler, although you must be careful to get a flush finish with the filler if you do it that way. She couldn't afford to have the job professionally done, and she made a back-breaking all-day job of sanding the scratched floors by hand, trying various methods. She had great success with mineral wool, and most scratches were smoothed away because the floors were soft pine.

The floors were discolored badly. She tried bleaching, but that didn't work, so she finally applied a stain that would cover the discolorations, and she brought back the patina with wax.

She did the waxing job board-by-board, sitting on a pillow. She was determined to restore the beauty of the old floors in the 11 by 24 ft. room (more rewarding, she says, than spending the day playing bridge.) "You couldn't do such a project in a large room with children or dogs about. It is extremely tedious ..." she advises.

If bad floors are narrow, one may have them cleaned, sanded and painted for pretty effects. The bowling alley finishes can be lovely, although the white finish takes a bit of care. Clear, dark red, blue and green are used on floors, and the color choice depends on the decorative scheme. Green is an ideal color in an old dining room, especially if walls and baseboards are painted in a matching color. Wallcovering above wainscoting could have the same background, but the color green must be carefully chosen.

Dark paint stains on narrow boards can provide a rich finish. There are coffee-colored stains with matching waxes that do not blank out the grain of the wood. These stains are great with hard floors, such as oak.

Hooked rugs are flattering to old rooms. Needlepoint rugs are enjoying tremendous popularity. Cross-stitch, heavier than needlepoint has captured the imagination of many needleworkers. One advantage of using area rugs in old houses is that they can be used over sections of floors that are not good.

The consensus is that all-over carpet does not look good in an old house, but it is a way to cover up bad floors and area rugs may be used over them. Interior designers frown on the idea of carpeting any living room, old or new, but many designers consider carpet a good choice for bedrooms.

Romney Hopes End Confusion

By LARRY BRYANT

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Housing and Urban Development Department has completed a reorganization plan intended to streamline the operation Secretary George Romney once called "a bureaucratic conglomerate."

The departmental shakeup revised established concepts and traditions, abolished entire divisions and changed titles and transferred staffs.

The plan was announced in November and completed just recently.

The most extensive changes took place in the Federal Housing Administration, which is responsible for all housing production programs.

Eugene A. Gulledge, FHA Commissioner, said housing programs will be split into two main categories, subsidized and unsubsidized.

The subsidized programs, under Assistant Commissioner Morton W. Schomer, will include low-rent public housing, home ownership assistance, rental assistance and supplements and housing for the elderly and college students.

The unsubsidized housing program, under recently appointed Acting Assistant Commissioner T.M. Alexander Jr., includes mortgage financing, multi-family housing, the basic rental housing program and unsubsidized rental housing.

Manager

Lawrence A. Cox, Assistant Secretary for Renewal and Housing Management, will be responsible for the social and financial management of housing after it has been produced. He will be concerned with the people who live in homes to be built or rehabilitated under HUD programs.

In addition to administering swum clearance and urban renewal programs, Cox will handle the social, physical and financial aspects of housing managements.

The new Office of Housing Management was created under Cox to manage low rent public housing, multi-family housing, college student housing, rent supplement housing, and housing for elderly and handicapped.

Samuel C. Jackson, who serves as General Assistant Secretary and Assistant Secretary for Metropolitan Planning and Development, will be in charge of all departmental planning.

His division will administer programs to help communities with comprehensive planning and in carrying out the plans.

Romney said the reorganization applied only to the department's Washington headquarters. He said the 10 regional offices will be reorganized by next September.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT: A wallcovering trimmer designed to do a fast, accurate job of trimming corner, ceiling lines, baseboards, window and door frames, cutting strips of wall coverings and removing selvage edges.

THE MANUFACTURER'S CLAIM: That this trimmer, small and easy to handle, can be used for regular wallpaper, paperback vinyls, fabric-back vinyls, silks, grasscloths, foils and special finishes, and flocked wall-coverings ... That its sturdy construction of tough plastic will enable it to last indefinitely ... That it comes furnished with a standard single-edge razor blade that snaps out for quick replacement ... and that the little "wings" on the trimmer hold the wallcovering in place while it is being cut, assuring a perfect trim result.

THE PRODUCT: A bonding agent for the repair of joints, resurfacing of sidewalks, patios, basement floors, cracks, holes, walls and foundations.

THE MANUFACTURER'S CLAIM: That this concrete repair mix combines epoxy and vinyl in a single can and does not require the mixing of these two ingredients by the purchaser ... That it is ready to use after the addition of water ... That it can be used indoors and outdoors ... and that it is not necessary to pre-wet the surface to be repaired.

THE PRODUCT: A plastic garden hose that lies flat when water is not flowing through it.

THE MANUFACTURER'S CLAIM: That the hose occupies an area about one-third that of ordinary round hose ... That it is very light in weight so that it can be carried easily ... That, when not in use, its flatness enables it to be readily rewound ... and that it is made of poly-vinyl chloride plastic reinforced with nylon.

THE PRODUCT: A brush-on sealer and varnish created to achieve hand-crafted finishes in decoupage, which is the decorating of a surface with paper cutouts and the adding of sufficient coats of varnish to make the picture appear to be part of the original surface.

THE MANUFACTURER'S CLAIM: That the sealer is safe to use on any dry painted surface or stained object ... That it will not yellow after it has aged ... That the varnish adds an almost clear film with great depth of gloss, giving a mellow tone to decoupage prints without affecting the underlying colors ... and that surfaces coated with it are impervious to boiling water, alcohol, ammonia, fruit juices, salt and soap.

THE PRODUCT: A unit to lightup carports, garages, driveways and other dark areas and used in conjunction with a garage door opener.

THE MANUFACTURER'S CLAIM: That this system can be matched to existing garage door opener radios or used independently ... That it is remotely controlled from an automobile ... That, while it can be installed by a local dealer, the instructions that come with it enable it to be installed by a home owner.

(The wallcovering trimmer is manufactured by Red Devil, Inc., 2400 Vauxhall Rd., Union, N.J. 07083; the concrete repair mix by Master Brush and Roller Co., 45 West 17th St., New York, N.Y. 10011; the garden hose by Colorite Plastic, 101 Railroad Ave., Ridgefield, N.J.; the sealer and varnish by Illinois Bronze Powder and Paint Co., Lake Zurich, Ill. 60047; and the light system by Berry Doors, Dept. PID, Birmingham, Mich. 48012.)

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—When I was very young, I remember my grandfather spreading talcum powder on wood before he sanded it. Is this a good idea and what is the purpose of it?

A.—You probably know about the practice of using powdered pumice and oil to smooth and remove irregularities from wood surfaces. The use of talcum powder accomplishes the same purpose, but generally does not achieve the same high degree of excellence. With powdered pumice, a rubbing oil is paced on the same surface. The two are then rubbed lightly with a cloth or rubbing pad. With talcum powder, no oil is used, but it is necessary to sand the surface with a fine grade of sandpaper. The powder acts as a lubricant.

Q.—I recently purchased some enamel for a job I intend to do shortly. The instructions on the back of the can say to use an enamel undercoating or primer on raw wood or wood from which the previous finish has been removed. Since I bought more enamel than is necessary for a single coat, won't two coats of it do just as well as one coat of primer and one coat of enamel?

A.—Two coats of enamel are better than one, but most of the time one coat of primer and one of enamel are even better. That's because a primer acts as a sealer to prevent the enamel from soaking into the wood too much. The primer also enables the topcoat to cling more securely. If possible, attempt to purchase a primer made by the same manufacturer as that of the enamel. Otherwise, ask the paint dealer to suggest the proper undercoater for the enamel you already have on hand. Incidentally, since you have the extra enamel, why not use one coat of primer, then two coats of enamel? You'll be surprised at how good it will look.

Talk Assistants For Physicians

NEW YORK (UPI)—The newst proposed solution to the doctor shortage in the United States is the physician assistant. Training programs to place such assistants alongside the doctor have increased from one a few years ago to some 20 in medical institutions through the country. Four more institutions are planning to add similar programs shortly.

A survey by Medical World News, a weekly newsmagazine, shows that the programs are training child healty aides for pediatricians, surgical assistants, emergency medical care technicians, associates in anesthesia and ophthalmic.

The programs range from an eight-week course for those with two years of college to a four-year degree-granting program offered to qualified high school graduates.

Oregon ranked fourth in the nation in 1969 in total value of vegetables grown for processing —an estimated $31.4 million.

Cancer Soc. Volunteers Gird For 1970 Crusade

"With determined and dedicated people like you, we'll win this fight against cancer," President Jerry Sutherland told Pitt County American Cancer Society volunteers who gathered at the Unit's annual kick-off dinner Thursday night. Many of the hundreds of Pitt County volunteers met for the purpose of launching the annual fund raising crusade which will commence April 1.

"We'll be asking people in the County to 'Fight Cancer with a Checkup and a Check.' The slogan is a familiar one, but the 1970 April Crusade will have an additional message, specific information on cancer safeguards. When cancer touches one out of every four American families, is it any wonder that Crusade has special meaning to people?", Mr. Sutherland said. "We regard it as an opportunity to remind the public that there are 1.5 million Americans today who are cured of cancer."

Special introduction were given area chairmen and volunteers who will conduct the crusade throughout the city and county, Mrs. Percy Cox, Crusade Chairman, and Mrs. Mary Higginbatham, ACS Area Director.

Mrs. Phyllis Martin introduced a special film, "Many Faces of Fear", which related one man's actual experience with cancer. It emphasized the necessity of heeding any of the 7 warning signals because the earlier cancer is detected, the better the chance for cure. Mrs. Martin was assisted by Dr. Dan Jordon.

The entire emphasis of Crusade 1970 is on action: the action of protecting oneself against cancer; the action of protecting others through support of cancer research. Each dollar given to the American Cancer Society goes to work in many ways to fight this cruel disease. Through its three-fold program, the ACS educates the public, keeps the medical profession informed on the latest in treatment and research, provides services to the cancer patient while searching for a final solution to cancer through research.

Spring Ball Staged Friday Night

The Junior Cotillion Spring Ball for the 1969-70 season was held Friday night at the Moose Lodge.

Greeting guests were Miss Annis Paschal, Miss Susan Clark, Holt Glenn, Grayson Hufford, Mrs. N. O. Van Nortwick Jr., director of Cotillion, Mrs. N. O. Van Nortwick III and Miss Annie Cobb, assistant directors.

Leading the grand march were this year's king and queen, Miss Paschal and Holt Glenn, assisted by Miss Clark and Grayson Hufford.

Music for the evening was presented by the "Jay McCraken Trio."

The foyer of the Moose Lodge was decorated with a large basket of mixed spring flowers and bunny rabbits.

The background of the stage was bright green — with two four-feet bunny rabbits in deep pink holding baskets of spring flowers. They were standing on either side of a garden scene, where the new king and queen were crowned. Spring flowers and butterflies covered the front of the stage. Garden lamps across the front of the stage gave the impression of foot lights.

The refreshment table was covered with a pink cloth with silver candelabra holding deep pink tapers. The centerpiece was a large basket of mixed spring flowers held by a bunny rabbit.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the new king and queen by this year's king and queen: Mary Charles Stevens, queen, Robin Smith and Gail Porter, runners-up.

King: Griff Garner, and David King and George Martin, runners-up.

Members of the cotillion select each year, the friendliest and most congenial girl and boy in the seventh grade group to reign the following year.

An arm bouquet of red roses and a tiara were presented to the new queen and cymbidium orchids were given to the runners-up. The boys were presented boutonnieres.

Marshals for this year were: Ted Moseley; Jimmy Thompson; Mike Thompson; and Al Winn.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Here's a dessert that's newer than new—an orange chiffon cake with an orange rum syrup poured over it.

The syrup is added after the cake is baked. But don't have any qualms about pouring on the syrup—the texture of the chiffon cake absorbs it beautifully and the syrup adds flavor.

ORANGE RUM CHIFFON CAKE

1½ cups sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup freshly squeezed orange juice
½ cup salad (not olive) oil
6 large eggs
2 tablespoons freshly grated (medium-fine) orange rind
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
Orange Rum Syrup, see recipe below

Into a medium mixing bowl sift together the flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add orange juice, oil and egg yolks. (Put egg whites in large mixing bowl.) With electric beater at medium speed, beat egg-yolk mixture until smooth; stir in orange rind.

With clean beater, beat egg whites and cream of tartar until frothy; at high speed continue beating until whites hold stiff straight peaks when beater is slowly withdrawn. Gradually pour egg-yolk mixture over whites; at the same time fold in gently just until blended.

Pour into ungreased 10-inch angelfood cake pan.

Bake in preheated 325-degree oven until cake springs back when top surface is slightly touched with finger—65 to 70 minutes. Immediately invert on wire rack to cool—no rack necessary if cake pan has feet.

When cold, use a small metal spatula to loosen around sides and tube; ease out of pan.

Place cake, top side up, on cake plate. Slowly pour hot Orange Rum Syrup over top, letting cake absorb it.

ORANGE RUM SYRUP

¾ cup freshly squeezed orange juice
1 tablespoon freshly squeezed lemon juice
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup light rum
Dash of salt

In a small saucepan over low heat stir together all the ingredients. Bring to a boil. Boil gently for three to four minutes. Use as directed in Orange Rum Chiffon Cake.

To prevent scratches and scars on linoleum, put rubber crutch tips over the feet of kitchen chairs and stools.

Milk is perishable. Keep the containers out of the refrigerator just long enough to pour the amount you plan to use. In the refrigerator, the milk container or cover should be covered so that the milk does not absorb odors of other foods.

Miss Lynda Lee Spears Weds

Miss Lynda Lee Spears became the bride of Ben Rives Mann in a formal candlelight ceremony on Saturday at 4:30 p. m. at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. Joyce V. Early officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ray MacFarland Spears of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Joe Mann of Sanford.

A program of wedding music was presented by Michael Howe, organist, and Gafford Pearce, soloist, who sang "Thou Art Our Refuge" and "The Lord's Prayer." Preceding the ceremony, the "Wedding Song" was sung.

Brass wedding accessories decorated the church. The altar vases were filled with white snapdragons and crystal clear chrysanthemums. In the background were pyramidal candelabra overflowing the bouquets of white gladioli and white mums flanked by tall woodwardia ferns and fifteen semi-circle candelabra. At the altar was a profile prie-dieu where the bride and bridegroom took their vows and knelt for the closing prayer and benediction. Pews were marked with bridal satin and greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal Annis original of candlelight ivory silk organza with detachable chapel train. The A-line gown featured long calla sleeves of beaded, re-embroidered alencon lace. The empire bodice, wedding ring neckline and hemline were trimmed in the beaded lace.

She wore a chapel length mantilla of ivory illusion and beaded re-embroidered alencon lace. She carried a full cascade formal bouquet of ivory gardenias and cattleya orchids tied with fern green satin.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Ray MacFarland Spears Jr., sister-in-law of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Sheila Wood, Miss Ann Cobb and Miss Linda Bullard of Greenville, Mrs. Paul Craig of Sanford, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Percy Bloxam of High Point.

They wore formal gowns featuring a full skirt and long Bishop sleeve of ivory satin organza. The empire bodice of avocado Venise lace was accented by a belt of avocado satin. The back of the gown was enchanced with long avocado satin streamers extending the full length of the gown.

They wore headpieces of picture natural straw hats with long streamers of green satin ribbon. The matron of honor carried a natural wicker fireside basket filled with tulips, daisies, iris, snapdragons, and baby's breath tied with bows of fern green satin. Bridesmaids carried baskets fashioned after the honor attendant.

Miss Deborah Spears, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of ivory satin organza with Bishop sleeves fashioned after those of the honor attendants and carried a petite basket filled with ice blue and pink petals tied with bows of fern green satin.

James Mann served his brother as best man. Ushers were John Gaffney and Rick Sauve of Greenville, Ray MacFarland Spears Jr. of Spartanburg, S. C., brother of the bride, Gary Graham of Ringgold, Ga., cousin of the bridegroom, and Paul Craig of Sanford, brother-in - law of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore an aqua silk worsted linen and lace costume with matching accessories and a white cattleya orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a Capri pink silk worsted costume suit with matching accessories with a white cattleya orchid.

The grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Carl Lannie Gilbert, wore a two-piece dress of pink silk shantung with matching accessories and white orchid corsage.

The grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Lemmuel Chester Mann, wore a midnight blue three-fourth length sleeve crepe dress with matching accessories and white orchid corsage.

The bride received her B. S. degree in primary education from East Carolina University. She is now teaching in the Winterville school system.

The bridegroom is a student at East Carolina University and is presently employed at Coffman's Mens Wear.

For a wedding trip, Mrs. Mann changed to a costume dress of beige with a sleeveless coat of green floral print. She wore a beige and green hat and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Reception

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor. The refreshment table was covered with a white satin cloth with improved smilax and wedding bells on the corners centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons, pom pons and baby breath in a five branched silver candelabra.

The bride's table was centered with a five-tier wedding cake. The mantel held an arrangement of white gladioli and burning tapers. A bride doll graced the register table.

Assisting in receiving the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Amos Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh. Presiding at the register were Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Taylor.

Alternating in pouring punch were Mrs. Lemmuel Mann and Mrs. William Patrick Boland. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Ruby Finch, Mrs. Edward Laughter and Mrs. Earl Brinkley. Mr. and Mrs. William M. Swindell said good-byes to the guests.

Immediately following the reception, Mrs. Russel Lee Mann of Sanford, aunt of the bridegroom, served wedding cake to the wedding party and relatives of the bride and bridegroom.

An after-rehearsal party was given Friday night by Mrs. Carl Lannie Gilbert, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray M. Spears Jr.

The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers. Assisting in serving were Mrs. William P. Boland of Laurel Hill, Mrs. Dorothy Waters and Mrs. Robert Hall of Durham.

On Saturday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Joe Mann, parents of the bridegroom, entertained at a wedding breakfast held at the Three Steers for members of the wedding party and relatives of the bride and bridegroom. Arrangements of mixed spring flowers were used throughout the room.

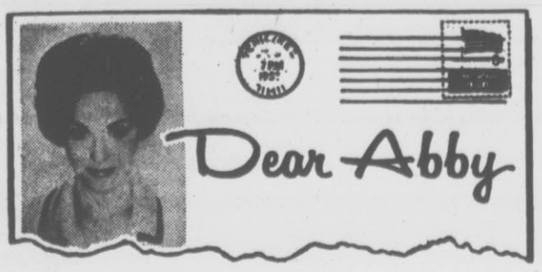
The Value Of Being Too Nice



By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I am an advisor for a girl's teen club. The mother of one of the girls told me that about three years ago you had two letters in your column dealing with how boys really felt about girls who were "nice" and girls who weren't. She said one was signed "TOO NICE, TOO" and the other was signed "NOT SORRY," and you printed them both on the same day.

If you can locate them, will you please run them again? Thank you. MRS. A. D. R.

DEAR MRS. A. D. R.: A sharp-eyed secretary found them in the 1967 file, and here they are:

DEAR ABBY: No offense to you, personally, but you're nuts! I agree with that girl who signed herself, "TOO NICE." She's right. If a girl is too nice she sits home. It's the fast girls who are popular. I am only 16 and I know from experience that the only reason a boy asks you out is for one thing, and if he doesn't get it, you don't see him again. That's no lie, either. When you said, "If a girl has to fight with a boy to keep his hands off her, she must have led him on," you were wrong. She can be sitting next to him, doing nothing, and he will almost attack her. Since January I have had to break up with three boys because they all tried to go too far. But I'll stay nice because I have my self-respect. But so far it hasn't got me anywhere. "TOO NICE, TOO"

DEAR TOO NICE: Another "nice" girl had this to say on the subject:

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and have just completed my freshman year at college. I want to tell all those girls who wonder if boys really like a sweet, old fashioned girl what I learned from experience: Don't be shocked if even the best boys try. After I painstakingly explained my views on the matter of morals many more dates and fine friendships resulted. Some jokingly called me prudish and mid-Victorian, but I was elected to a position of high honor by the student body. There were times when I actually pitied the girls who allowed boys liberties, thinking it would increase their popularity. [I have a brother, and boys talk.] The girls who parked with boys on dark roads at night were ignored by the same boys in broad daylight. Keep telling young girls that it pays to be nice, Abby. I am, and I am—

NOT SORRY

DEAR ABBY: I have been married nearly two years, and I will never forget one wedding present because 16 of my husband's relatives pitched in and bought it for me. It was an electric appliance which they got wholesale. I figured out that they each put in one dollar!

One of my husband's sisters happens to be very well off, and now she is moving into a new home and is telling everyone not to buy her a house gift. She wants "cash" instead as she is afraid they might select things which won't look right in her house.

What do you think I should give her?

EYE FOR AN EYE

DEAR EYE: Since you obviously are an "eye for an eye" believer, give her a dollar. But she's your husband's sister, so pass the buck, and let him decide.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to the person who said shampooing the hair too often "damages" it. I am a student of hair chemistry, and I can tell you that shampooing, permanent waving, bleaching, and dying hair will not harm it one bit.

Hair is damaged by pep pills, sleeping pills, diet pills, tranquilizers, and the worst offender being birth control pills! Also, surgery, shock, and nervous disorders rob the hair of lustre and life.

Medication of all types is filtered out thru the hair shaft within two weeks. Anyone knowledgeable in the field of hair chemistry can tell by running his fingers thru a person's hair whether that person is healthy or not. Sick hair accompanies a sick body.

Youthcraft COATS

STYLE 3552
Like Gemini, the twins . . . collar points perch at the neckline. A little trickery in the sleeve . . . set-in otward the fore, dolman 'round the aft. The look of fit. Gathered at the frontside waist, the flim-flam pocket flap half surrounded by sectioned stitching. Real pockets lurk in the seam. The inverted back pleat for swinging into the action . . . fast. Sizes 4 - 16.

B.
STYLE 3259
Slightly pebbled, slightly slubbed. And confined to Youthcraft. Backed for shape retention. A lot of shape to retain. You don't need an astrologer to tell you the signs are all "go" for this one. Front stitching divides . . . and conquers. Again, the belt, beginning side front. Sizes 6 - 18.

C.
Another example of the elegance of cut on this starkly simple design. This basic woman's coat has been trodding the Youthcraft boards for the past several years. The true classic. Sizes 6 - 20.

D.
STYLE 3530
What a whopper-y potential! Youthcraft's mini-swingers. Length? Mini. Size 10's are cut to 34". Flapover double-buttoned back belt. A deep-inverted pleat falls from the squirrel-ing yoke. A yawning king of a collar . . . but you'll get no yawns from your admirers. (Maybe squeals of enthusiasm!) And this one deserves it. Sizes 4 - 14.

Full Accreditation Granted ECU Chemistry Dept.

The Chemistry Department at East Carolina University has been granted full accreditation by the American Chemical Society.

The announcement was made in Charlotte by Dr. Leo Jenkins, President of ECU.

Addressing a gathering of Mecklenburg County alumni, Dr. Jenkins said he had received a letter from the Society saying that the Committee on Professional Training was impressed with the development of the chemistry program at ECU.

"This is another step toward building a great University in Eastern North Carolina," he said. "We are moving ahead in all areas in order to serve the community and to offer first - class educational opportunities to the youth of North Carolina."

Jenkins commended Professor R. C. Lamb, Chairman of the Chemistry Department, for the progress that has been made over the past several months in developing the program in chemistry.

There are some 350 schools in the United States that are accredited by the society. In North Carolina, only Duke, Wake Forest, Davidson and four units of the consolidated university have been accredited by ACS.

In his presentation in Charlotte, Dr. Jenkins also called for more cooperation between the educational institutions in the Tar Heel State. He said the alumni should work toward developing a strong spirit of cooperation with the state.

"We have shown cooperation in the past and we should continue to do so in the future," he said.

He pointed to the fact that Attorney General Robert Morgan, who is Chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees, signed a bill making Charlotte College part of the Consolidated University System. He also cited the support that he gave to the work of the Carlyle Commission.

"We can only stand to gain through cooperating with one another," he said. "We can build a better educational system and a better society through cooperative effort of our colleges and universities, both public and private."

UCLA, Marquette Take Tournaments

Bruins Pull Away At Half

By STEVE SMILANICH
UPI Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) —UCLA's iron-man Bruins, after trailing by as much as nine points early, unleashed their fury in the second half Saturday to trounce fired-up Jacksonsville, 80-69, and win an unprecedented fourth straight NCAA basketball championship.

The favored Bruins, proving once again that team play is the name of the game, put the clamps on the gallant Dolphins during the first 10 minutes of the second half when the Florida team scored but four field goals.

Meanwhile, Sidney Wicks, Henry Bibby, John Vallely, Steve Patterson, and Curtis Rowe began popping them in from long range and, with 12 minutes left, coach John Wooden's poised UCLA charges had a 55-44 lead.

For all practical purposes that was the ball game, as the Bruins coasted to the triumph before 14,390 at Cole Field House.

The 1970 championship gave the Bruins a record six NCAA basketball crowns.

The cool and confident Dolphins, who won the admiration of the fans for their audacity in dominating the contest for most of the first half, began to feel the pressure in the second half.

Both teams played erratically in the opening moments of the second half with 3:28 elapsing before either could get a field goal.

Then Wicks hit from the outside, Patterson followed with a jumper, Wicks added a field goal and a pair of free throws and Bibby scored from the corner to give UCLA a 50-40 bulge with 13:35 left.

The Dolphins, bidding for their first national championship, began to fall apart at the seams, missing shots and making bad passes and losing the ball.

With 1:50 remaining, Wooden made his first substitution of the game and UCLA fans began chanting "We're No. 1." The Bruins finished No. 2 in the United Press International basketball ratings.

Four Bruins hit in double figures with Rowe leading the way with 19, Patterson and Wicks had 17 apiece and Vallely 15. Bibby contributed eight.

Artis Gilmore, Jacksonville's 7-foot-2 center with a 26 point average, finished with 19. Teammate Pembrook Burrows had 12 and Vaughan Wedeking 12.

The triumph was UCLA's 24th consecutive NCAA tournament victory in a string dating back to 1963. Jacksonville went into the game with a 101 point average.

The Dolphins forced the Bruins into 14 turnovers in the first half but Gilmore's inability to hit more consistently prevented the fired-up Florida club from taking command.

Gilmore, even though he had 14 points in the first half, hit on only seven of 20 attempts while trying to work under the basket against Wicks.

The battling Bruins also compensated for their turnovers by outrebounding the nation's tallest club in the first half, 34-17, with Patterson and Wicks each getting 10 caroms.

The Dolphins grabbed a 4-0 lead on baskets by Rex Morgan and Gilmore and at one time built a 22-13 cushion.

New Mexico State, getting help from substitute forward Roy Neal in the second half, beat St. Bonaventure, 79-73, to take third place in the NCAA championship.

Warrior Press Is Too Much For St. John's

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pressing Marquette, harassing St. John's into turnovers all over the court, utilized its sticky defense and Jeff Sewell's outside shooting to rout the Redmen, 65-53, Saturday in the finals of the 33rd National Invitation Tournament.

The loss spoiled the farewell to college coaching of St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca, who will join the New York Nets next year, but his team refused to fold when it fell behind 29-14 in the first half and got the deficit down to five points with four minutes remaining.

But Sewell, who scored 22 points, hit a long jumper to put Marquette ahead by seven again at 56-49 and five straight free throws by Sewell, Joe Thomas and Dean Meminger gave the Warriors to a 61-49 lead with less than two minutes to go.

In the consolation game, Jim Oxley scored 28 points as Army downed Louisiana State, 75-68, to gain third place. Pete Maravich sat out the game in street clothes with an ailing ankle.

While Sewell's outside shooting kept the Warriors out in front in the second half, it was their devastating full-court press that forced five turnovers in the first five minutes and put them ahead to stay.

Forward Gary Brell, a native of Germany, stole the ball from Joe DePre and made a driving layup to put Marquette ahead 11-2 and Meminger followed with another driving layup to make it 13-2 with the game just 5:06 old.

St. John's got the deficit down to 13-6 but Marquette quickly sprinted ahead 20-8 and 29-14 with 7:26 left in the first half and St. John's was forced to play catch-up the rest of the way.

It was a sweet victory for Marquette coach Al McGuire, who played for St. John's 20 years ago when Carnesecca was a student at the school. McGuire, who said he felt his team could have won the NCAA tournament snubbed a bid to that tourney when the NCAA tried to get Marquette to play in the Midwest regional instead of the Mid-East regional.

Marquette finished its season with a 26-3 record while St. John's, which failed to duplicate the NIT championship the Redmen won as a farewell to Joe Lapchick in 1965, finished at 21-8.

Bucs Continue Drills Despite Poor Weather

Weather caused some problems for the East Carolina University football team this week, as Coach Mike McGee put the Pirates through the first full week spring drills.

The Bucs had one planned drill washed out, and worked out Saturday under adverse conditions, including a 40-minute controlled scrimmage.

Despite this, McGee feels that the Bucs are progressing, perhaps faster than had been expected.

"We have three problems," McGee said. "One — we are starting spring practice with no experienc. Two — we are starting with a new staff. And three — we are putting in an new offensive formation, and a new thought in both offense and defense. If we had an experienced quarterback, it would be less of a problem.

"So, taking all this into account, it has been a very good week."

The Bucs worked three times, out of a planned four days. "And we are ahead of expectations," the coach said. "Defensively, we have gotten our basic defense in, and it is in good shape.

"Offensively, there is a lot more change involved, We have what could be construed as a basic offense in. We have involved most of our patterns for the running game. Passing is being taken step - by - step. The timing and blocking is coming along okay, but the throwing is taking more time. Some of the receivers look like players with a lot of potential."

McGee said he was not trying to push this area of the game, since it will be the main basis of his attack next fall.

"Currently we are practicing half the squad on offense, and half on defense, and the switching them around halfway through the day," he said. This will all be changed, however, after two more drills next week.

While the team and the ECU student body takes Easter holidays, the coaching staff will divide the team into offensive and defensive units, and work will then be entirely one-way on a two-platoon system.

While McGee said that a number of players are going a good job at this point, he feels it is too early to start singling out anyone. "We have four or five who had a real good week," he said. "But generally, this is an outstanding group of young men who are really working hard. They have spent a lot of extra time and effort to learn what we want, and they are getting it extremely fast. The attitude is remarkable, but this must be maintained."

McGee was also impressed by the results of the conditioning program the players have gone through. "We have some good hard contact in the scrimmage today, and we didn't have anyone hurt. I was impressed with that. The offense looked a little ragged, but the defense looked good.

"I think the weather was a factor for the offense, however, since it handicapped the passing. We also had a run of fumblitis. But we looked real good in our hitting."

The main job of the coaches is to find a quarterback. Currently three people are working there, John Cazza, a junior college transfer from Chowan, and veterans Pete Wooley and Jack Patterson. "We are rotating all three at the position, and none of them is the number one man right now," McGee said.

Ferraris Take Sebring Lead At Halfway Mark

By RABUN MATTHEWS

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI)—The blood red cars of Ferrari howled at record shattering speed past the halfway point of the 12 hours of Sebring Saturday, taking a commanding lead over the favored Porsches and actor Steve McQueen.

The Ferraris of Mario Andretti-Arturo Merzario and Jackie Ickx-Peter Schetty traded the lead through the first six hours of the race, followed closely by the third Ferrari factory car, that of Ignazio Giunti and Nino Vaccarella.

Porsche, supremely confident of victory, entered only two cars. One was knocked out in a wreck and the other, handled by Pedro Rodriguez and Leo Kinnunen, sagged to seventh. The Porsche challenge to the Italian cars was taken up by actor McQueen, driving with a broken foot in a cast, and cost, and cosmetics heir Peter Revson in their privately-entered Porsche 908. They were running fourth at the midway point, 50 miles behind the leaders.

Andretti in the lead, Ferrari turned a lap at 121.6 miles an hour, shattering the old mark of 115.6 set last year by Chris Amon in a Ferrari.

Ironically, race officials black flagged driver Paul Fleming of Raleigh, N.C., and accused him of wrecking the Porsche of Vic Elford, forcing Elford from the race and damaging a Ferrari driven by Chuck Parsons and Sam Posey. Fleming was ordered from the race. Later, now knowing what had been done, driver Rod Kennedy of Austin, Tex., apologized for causing the accident and said Fleming was not involved. But it was too late for Fleming to continue.

A corner worker at the track, Don Lyle of Clinton, Ohio, was injured when he ran onto the course to remove some trash and was struck by a car. Lyle was taken to a St. Petersburgh Hospital, which reported him in serious condition. The car that hit him was not identified.

A cheering crowd of upwards of 50,000 lined the 5.2-mile road course and cheered in the early going when the Siffert Porsche battled for the lead with a factory Ferrari driven by Mario Andretti and Arthuro Merzario.

Andretti, who had the pole position when the race began shortly before 11 a.m, flashed to an early lead. Showing the speed that led the Ferrari to a record qualifying speed, Andretti led early by as much as 300 yards before Siffert began closing the gap. Siffert overtook Andretti on lap 18, surrendered the lead briefly 10 miles later, then took command when Andretti pitted for gas.

Running at 200 miles on the long stretches, then downshifting to less than 35 mph on several of the torturous hairpin turns, the cars were averaging about 120 miles per hour—well over the record for the race.

Still in contention early in the race were two other factory Ferraris, a pair of Alfa Romeos and two French Matras.

A hot March sun beamed down on the twisting concrete track when the race got under way in an unusual—for Sebring—manner. For the first time in history, the exciting LeMans start was cancelled by orders of the International Racing Federation. The cars thus lapped the track behind a pace car, got the green starter's flag, and blazed toward the tricky first turn, scarcely 500 yards from the starting line.

Officials had feared the 68 starting cars would be so jammed at the first turn there would be a collision, but only one car was slightly damaged when it left the track.

Pit Steward Tom Carson, 25, was struck by a Ferrari during a pit stop. Carson, who was removed by ambulance, suffered injuries to his right ankle and left hand. Officials said the injuries did not appear serious.

Douglass Grabs Two Shot Lead

By DAVID MOFFIT
UPI Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) —Thin-man Dale Douglass, who finally came into his own last year after a long dry spell on the pro golf tour, capitalized on his competitors' troubles with hard greens and wind Saturday to seize the third-round lead of the Greater Jacksonville Open.

Douglass, a 6-foot-2, 115-pound Oklahoman who won the Azalea and Kemper Opens last year and the Phoenix Open earlier this year, shot even par 73 Saturday. That was good for a 6-under-par 210 that gave him a two-stroke lead over four runnerups.

In that logjam at 212 were host pro Dan Sikes, who has played at the site of this $100,000 tournament more than any other touring pro and had a 72 Saturday; Dick Rhyan with a 71; Don Bies with a 72; and Lionel Hebert with a 71.

The second-round co-leaders, Lee Trevino and Bobby Mitchell, both skied to 4-over-par 76s Saturday to wind up at 213 along with Jack Nicklaus (72) Don January (70) and Dave Stockton (70).

Hebert blamed the wind for the exceptionally high rounds Saturday, saying it made it difficult to putt. But Homero Blancas, who had a 73-215 said he though the real trouble was the extremely hard greens that made approach shots "bounce as high as basketballs."

Saturday's round drew a gallery of 15,000 but only a fraction of that number remained by time the leaders came in. Most deserted golf to rush to their television sets and radios for the Jacksonville University-UCLA NCAA national championship basketball game.

Douglass, a 34-year-old pro who didn't even start making expenses on the tour until 1968, started the day a stroke behind Trevino and Mitchell.

He was still in arrears after nine holes as the lead seesawed between a half dozen different golfers. But the field began falling back as the wind heightened and Douglass moved into the lead for keeps with three holes to play and then widened that lead with a birdie putt on the final green.

Douglass said he knew he had a one-stroke lead when he came to the final green and "considered playing it safe" with the 20-foot putt he had remaining.

"But I had a 10-footer for a tie Friday and left it short and I told my caddy I didn't plan to leave it short again."

Douglass said he couldn't explain the high scores Saturday. "We've played in the wind plenty of times before," he said. "Maybe everybody was concerned about JU (Jacksonville University)."

There were only two rounds in the 60s Saturday. Bob Lunn had a 68 and Bert Green a 69 and both wound up at 214—four strokes back.

Douglass had two bogeys and two birdies in his "uninspired" round. "I used the wrong club at No. 7 and three-putted No. 13 to go two over for the day and then got those shots back with a three-footer at 14 and that 20-footer at the end."

England's Tony Jacklin had a 72 Saturday to tie with Lunn and Green at 214. In at 215, as only 18 of the 74 golfers still in the field were able to break par for 54 holes, were Larry Hinson (71), Blancas, R.H. Sikes (72), Jack McGowan (74) and Ron Cerrudo (74), who was tied with January for the lead at the end of the opening round Thursday.

Sunday's closing round will be nationally televised (ABC).

Weather Washes Out Atlanta 500

By JACK WILKINSON

ATLANTA (UPI)— The rains had another day at the races Saturday forcing a one-week postponement of the $110,000 Atlanta 500 stock car classic.

That makes it an Easter race for the 40-car field which will be gunning for the $22,800 winner's purse.

It was a lost weekend all around. Qualifying runs also were rained out and are now scheduled to begin next Thursday. Weather permitting, the first 15 places in the starting order will be decided that day, with 15 more on Friday and the final 10 on Saturday.

Thus, the Atlanta 500 was saddled with its second straight rainout. Last year's race over the 1.5-mile Atlanta International Raceway was postponed a week, although drivers did get in their qualifying tests.

This week was a washout almost from the start. After practice runs on Wednesday, the drivers were greeted Thursday with heavy rains that made impossible attempts to qualify. Track officials then decided to double up and qualify 30 on Friday.

But it rained Friday, too, although a break allowed a few practice spins during the afternoon. Then the rains returned in full force Friday night and came down harder than ever Saturday.

Cale Yarborough, Ford's main hope seeking his fourth straight Atlanta 500 title, was one of the few drivers standing in the open-end garage watching the downpour Saturday. Someone asked him his opinion of the weather and he glumly shook his head.

"Boy, I wouldn't mind being a farmer around here," big Buddy Baker said with a broad grin. "You sure wouldn't have to worry about a drought."

When qualifying runs do get under way, Baker will be rated the favorite in his orange Dodge Charger. Last year he set a track record in qualifying at a speed of 158.730 miles an hour and has turned in practice runs of 160 mph and better this week.

But, as Baker says, "Once you've qualified, you gotta start all over again."

That's the way it is with the Atlanta 500. It hasn't even qualified yet, but it's got to start all over again.

Red Sox Continue To Lose Their Top Stars

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox, unbothered by anti-trust suits, gambling probes and holdouts, still lead the major leagues in missing stars.

Ever since the Cinderella American League pennant in 1967, the Red Sox have had health problems losing Jim Lonborg for much of two seasons, Jose Santiago in 1969, Tony Conigliaro for 1½ years and Ray Culp the end of last season.

This spring, Conigliaro broke a rib and is out 10-14 days, Reggie Smith has been suffering from a sore shoulder, Carl Yastrzemski missed several days after fouling a ball off his toe and Joe Lahoud pulled a muscle and is out 10 days.

Now, it's Rico Petrocelli, the Red Sox All-Star shortstop.

Petrocelli entered Winter Haven (Fla.) hospital Friday after suffering another attack of nausea and dizziness, and there's no telling when he'll be back. Only intensive tests this weekend will tell.

The loss of Petrocelli put a damper on Boston's 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

However, baseball did get one of its stars back when Jim Maloney signed his contract with Cincinnati at a slight drop from his $60,000 after a 20-day holdout.

The Reds celebrated by bombing Philadelphia 10-5, although Johnny Briggs of the Phillies slugged three home runs, all with none on.

Petrocelli is only the latest stars who has been sidelined this spring by some ailment, Ken Harrelson of Cleveland broke a leg, Ron Reed of Atlanta broke a collar bone and teammate Felix Millan has a glandular problem and Willie McCovey of San Francisco is suffering from an eye ailment.

Houston is still missing holdouts Jimmy Wynn and Tommy Davis, and then there is Curt Flood and Denny McLain.

Petrocelli set a league record for shortstops by hitting 40 homers last season and tied another mark by committing only 14 errors. He left the lineup Wednesday because of wooziness, but played Friday and doubled in four times at bat as Gary Peters ran his shutout string this spring to 15 innings with six in his first appearance against his former teammates, the White Sox.

Richie Allen continued his heavy hitting for St. Louis with his third homer in three days—a two-run blast that settled an 8-4 victory over Pittsburgh.

The Minnesota Twins, meanwhile, continued their slump by losing for the 12th time in 13 exhibition games under new manager Bill Rigney. Bill Freehan tripled for one in the 11th inning and scored on an error as Detroit beat the Twins 8-6.

Tom Seaver went six innings and gave up one run for the New York Mets in a 4-3 victory over Kansas City as Ed Kranepool doubled home the winner in the eighth inning, and Oakland hammered Seattle for 13 hits and took advantage of five errors for an 11-5 triumph.

Baltimore also belted 13 hits in a 7-5 victory over Los Angeles and the New York Yankees beat Montreal 4-3 on Thurman Munson's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning.

In other games, Houston scored the first earned run off Jim Nash this spring and added two unearned runs for a 3-1 victory over Atlanta; Cleveland's Barry Moore, Phil Hennigan and Dick Ellsworth stopped the Chicago Cubs on six hits in a 5-1 victory, and pinch-hitter Jim Spencer singled in the winning run in the ninth inning for California's 2-1 triumph over San Diego.

Tomjanovich To Go NBA

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Free Press said today it has learned that University of Michigan's standout Rudy Tomjanovich has signed with the National Basketball Association.

The article said the NBA, which had opposed college signings by the American Basketball Association of college players, has signed a contract with Tomjanovich "estimated at $300,000 over several years."

Tomjanovich would be picked up by the NBA team choosing him in the annual draft Monday the Free Press said.

New Pirate Assistant

Carl Reese is the latest addition to the East Carolina University football staff, joining Coach Mike McGee's personnel last week. He will serve as defensive line coach for the Bucs, currently in the midst of spring practice. Reese is a graduate of the University of Missouri, where he was a standout co-captain.

New Assistant Reese Likes To Hunt, Fish

Editor's note: This is the first of a five-part series on the members of the all-new football coaching staff at East Carolina University.

(First of a Five-Part Series)

"How's the hunting and fishing around here?"

That's the first thing a smiling Carl Dwayne Reese asked when he arrived at East Carolina University last week to assume his new duties as defensive line and linebacker coach of the Pirate football team.

"Just a country boy" is what Reese calls himself, but a lot of people in the football world recognize the 26-year-old Missourian as one of the most promising young assistant coaches in America.

That's what University of Missouri Coach Dan Devine, one of the most highly respected men in the profession, says of Reese. He ought to know because Reese was the Tigers' 196-pound starting fullback for three years and a graduate assistant there in the spring of 1966. In 1965 Reese co-captained a Mizzou team which knocked off Florida and Steve Spurrier in the Sugar Bow.

"I'll never forget that game," says Reese. "We got in front by 20-0 real quick and then tried to protect that lead. But Spurrier wouldn't quit. Our defense must have dropped him seven or eight times in the first half, but he would just get up and go back to work.

"In the second half," recalls Reese, "Florida scored three times, but each time they went for two-points and missed. The game couldn't end soon enough for us. If it had lasted five minutes longer they'd probably have beaten us, but we won 20-18."

The other co-captains on that Missouri team were running back Johnny Roland and lineman Bruce Van Dyke. Roland is now a star for the Cardinals and Van Dyke is with the Steelers.

"They made the big time . . . and I became a coach," laughs Reese. "But I'm happy with my life."

As a high school star growing up in Springfield, Mo., Reese was a big fan of the NFL Cardinals and one of his favorite players was pass receiver Sonny Randle, or "No. 88" as Reese calls him now that the two are working side-by-side on Mike McGee's young ECU staff. Randle retired as a pro after the '69 season and joined the Pirates in January.

Reese, or "Bull" as he is known to many, comes to East Carolina by way of Southern Illinois University and Northern Michigan University. He was at SIU one season, 1969, where he worked with Mike McGee's brother, Jerry, coaching the Saluki defense. Jerry also is now a member of the ECU assistants crew.

"Jerry and I have the same positions here as we had at Southern Illinois," says Reese. "We worked real well together out there and I think it'll be the same here."

Reese coached the Northern Michigan defense for three years (1966-68) and the team made the NAIA Playoffs in '67. That same year Reese, a phys ed major at Missouri, got his Master of Arts in Education degree at Northern Michigan.

"Carl was an Academic All-American and was listed in Who's Who at American Colleges and Universities in 1965," Mike McGee points out. "That's the kind of student-athletes we want here."

Reese loaded all his furniture on a rental truck and drove it across the mountains to get here from Carbondale, Ill., in time for spring practice. His wife, the former Pamela Cornwell of Springfield, and 20-month-old daughter Jennifer came in the family car — with a canoe tied to the top.

"I'm really looking forward to hunting and fishing around here," said Reese. "Of course there won't be any time for that for awhile. Football is going to keep me plenty busy. Spring practice is such an important time for any team. Everybody was hard at work before I got here. I've got some catching up to do."

But — when he does find time — the newest Pirate should find the hunting and fishing in Eastern North Carolina very good.

Bucs, Tar Heels Are Rained Out

Baseball once again highlights the spring sports action at East Carolina University this week.

The Pirates, winners in two of their first three games, will host a three - game stand with Dartmouth College this week.

The Bucs open with Dartmouth Friday at 2 p.m. and the two teams will meet again Saturday and Sunday, also at 2 p.m. Friday and Saturday's games will be played here at University Field and Sunday's game will be played in Kinston at Granger Stadium.

Coach Earl Smith's Pirates were shut out 1-0 by Duke in the opener, but came back strong last week against Ithaca, sweeping a double header 3-1 and 6-3.

Sophomore Mike Aldridge from Greenville, N. C., was the big gun for the Bucs in the doubleheader, banging out four hits in six trips, inclucing a two-run homer and a double.

Don Oxidine and Tim Bayliss, both sophomores, pitched the wins for the Pirates.

A scheduled game last Saturday against North Carolina at Chapel Hill, which would have been the first road game, was rained out and rescheduled May 14 at night.

The golf team will open its season Friday against Trenton State. Coach John Welborn's squad, defending Southern Conference champions, will be missing Mike Schlucter, Marshall Utterson and Jack Williams, all graduated.

But the Pirates linksmen are still loaded with twin brothers Vernon and Joe Tyson, freshman whiz Rocky Rocket, Phil Wallace and Vance Whicker. The 1 p.m. match will be played at Greenville Country Club.

The tennis team will be at home Wednesday against Bowling Green. The Pirates lost their first two matches to East Stroudsburg State and Cincinnati and played Virginia Commonwealth this past Saturday.

Coach Bill Carson's track team heads to Florida over the Easter holidays for the Floride Relays in Gainesville. The Pirate thinclads participated in the News-Piedmont Relays in Greenville, S. C., this past Saturday.

Issel Signs With Colonels

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Dan Issel, Kentucky's All-American, has signed with Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association, club president Wendell Cherry said early Saturday.

The Louisville Courier-Journal said the ABA team signed Issel for $1.4 million dollars in salary, bonuses and deferred compensation.

It also said the ABA team has signed Issel's teammate Mike Pratt for an estimated $400,000, giving the Colonels the two high scorers from the Kentucky team which No. 1 in the final Associated Press college basketball poll.

"I confirm we have signed both players, but I have no comment on terms of the contract other than it is multi-year," Cherry said.

The Colonels scheduled a Louisville news conference at 2:30 p.m. (EST) Saturday to formally announce the signings.

The deal rivals the $1,400,000 paid Lew Alcindor of the Milwaukee Bucks in the National Association as the largest amount ever paid an athlete in this era of escalating prices.

The rival National Basketbll Association has yet to begin its draft, but the ABA has claimed four of the nation's top pro prospects. Already signed by ABA teams are Rick Mount of Purdue, by Indiana; Mike Maloy of Davidson, by Pittsburgh; and Charlie Scott of North Carolina, by Washington.

The 6-8 Issel set an all-time scoring record of 2,138 points at Kentucky and averaged 33.9 points this season. Pratt, 6-4, averaged 19.3 points a game this season.

Pistol Pete Forced Out Of Last Game Of NIT With Leg Injury

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Old Floppy Socks bowed out of college basketball Thursday but even incomparable All-America Pete Maravich didn't know it then.

Although the Pistol suffered an injury and didn't have things going his way at New York's National Invitation Basketball Tournament, Pete still wasn't complaining.

"This is where basketball is ... the fans are more sophisticated here and appreciate you more," Maravich said.

And although Pete was expected to play Saturday with his Louisiana State teamates for third place against Army before Marquette played St. John's, N.Y., for the title, Maravich's father and coach Press said late Friday night that Pete would miss the game.

Press said his son is suffering from strained ligaments in his left ankle and has a bruised hip suffered in earlier tournament games. The coach felt he didn't want to endanger his son's future professional career.

The flamboyant Maravich, whose trademark is a pair of floppy socks he's worn since a freshman, didn't have an outstanding point-making tournament.

"I stunk," he admitted over again, unabashedly.

But the New York fans came, saw and loved him. College basketball's all-time leading scorer was sub-par with games of 20, 37 and 20 points—but it was his ball-handling artistry that coaxed roars of delight from the standing-room-only crowds.

"Way to go, Pete ... way to go, baby," they'd chant while the Pistol, his shoulder-length hair flopping like ragweed, unfurled circus passes by the basketful.

On Tuesday night, his best of the tourney, Maravich put on a gaudy show in the Bayou Tigers' 97-94 victory over Oklahoma.

Running at full tilt, he'd look one way and throw the ball to a teammate in the opposite direction.

"Ooh," the crowd response rolled down from the top-most seat in Madison Square Garden.

"Basketball to me is show business," Maravich has said. "I'm here to put on a show ... and win the fans over. But first I want to win."

Marquette's unflappable defenders shut down LSU's one-man show with a runaway 101-79 victory in the semi-finals ... but it didn't diminish the Maravich spirit.

"I had a bad night ... but I've had my share of good ones, too," he said.

Press perhaps said it best after LSU lost to Marquette:

"I don't feel sorry for Pete. He's a great ball player. He's given me some great games. He'll be back—and even better—as a pro."

The Marquette-St. John's match was touted as a backyard brawl since the Midwesterners have New York roots—Coach Al McGuire said stars Dean Meminger and Ric Cobb are New Yorkers.

Lou Carnesecca, the St. John's coach who leaves the school after this year for a pro career, said he wanted his players to "win it for themselves, not me."

"You like to walk with kings some day ... and when you win a championship, you do walk with kings," he said.

MONTREAL (AP) — Sam Snead, who lost the Canadian Open championship here last year to Tommy Aaron in an 18-hole playoff round, has agreed to a return battle with the 1969 champion.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced today that Snead and Aaron have both agreed to appear in this year's classic July 2-5 at the Londonn Ont., Hunt and Country Club.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Smith Barrier of the Greensboro N.C. Daily News was elected Friday as president of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Reed, the New York Knicks center, was named the winner today for the second straight year of the Sam Davis Memorial Award, given annually by the Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association to the season's outstanding professional player.

It completes a sweep for Reed of all the top pro basketball awards this season. He was named the National Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player earlier this week and won the MVP award in the NBA all-star game.

All-Area Cage Team For 1970 Given

Champions and also-rans contributed to this year's Daily Reflector All-Area Basketball team announced today.

And for the first time, the Reflector Sports Staff has named a Player of the Year among the girls, joining the usual Player of the Year selection for the boys.

This year's selection from the 20 boys teams in the area is Bethel's Eddie Stokes, who led the Indians to fourth place in the State Class A Tournament.

The girls selection goes to Marion McLawhorn of Grifton, a standout for the past four years for the Lady Bulldogs. While Grifton didn't win the Pitt or district title, Miss McLawhorn's play did carry them to the threshold against more balanced Bethel.

A total of 13 girls teams compete in the area. Nine girls are selected for the All-Area team, while 10 boys were named.

Stokes, a 6-2 senior at Bethel, averaged around 20 points per game for the Indians, and pulled down in the neighborhood of 15 rebounds. He scored more than 20 points in each of the three state tournament games, and was one of the more outstanding players in the competition.

"He was our outstanding player for the year," Coach Coby Deans said. "He is probably one of the best jumpers around for his size, and is a good outside shooter. He has good moves under the baskets, too."

Deans added, "Naturally I enjoyed having him on our team."

Miss McLawhorn, a 5-9 senior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luke McLawhorn of Rt. 1, Grifton. She averaged around 16 points per game for the year.

"For her scoring ability," Grifton Coach Carlton Gray said, "she's the best we've ever had at Grifton."

Miss McLawhorn plans to go into physical therapy and will enroll at East Carolina University this fall.

The rest of the boys team shows entries from three conference champions, and a group of runners-up. From Eastern Plains Conference champ Greene Central, Robbie Hill is the choice. Gary James joins Stokes from Bethel, and Phil Blount of Jamesville represents the Martin County champ.

Others include Ivey Bryant of Robinson, the area's scoring champ, Mike Harrington and Charlie Harris of Rose, Don White of Stokes, and William Shivar and Joey Moore of Belvoir.

Harrington, a 6-4 senior at Rose averaged around 18 points per game. He was an outstanding rebounder, and was the team's leading scorer.

Harris, a 6-1 sophomore, was another standout on the Rampant team that showed remarkable balance. He hit around 15 points per game, and showed a hot hand from the outside. He had the ability to drive, and on a number of occasions, kept the Rampants in the game.

Hill, a 6-2 senior at Greene Central, was one of the leading scorers for his team. He also was an outstanding rebounder, as he helped lead the Rams to the Eastern Plains title for 1970.

James, a 6-1 senior at Bethel averaged around 17 points per game. He is described by his coach at a "real hustler, a devoted player who likes to win."

Bryant, 6-2, and a senior at Robinson, was the leading scorer around. He averaged 32 points per game, and pulled down 12.4 rebounds. He also hit on 52 per cent of his shots. His coach, S. W. Marsh feels he is one of the outstanding players in the East. "He's the best overall player I've had at Robinson in the past five years."

White, another 6-2 senior, averaged around 17.4 points per game for the Stokes-Pactolus Blue Jays. "He's a real good shooter," Coach Jim Abrams said. "He showed a great improvement on his defense during the year, fnd hit 20 or more in 10 games during the final two months."

Blount, the Jamesville representative, is a 5-10 guard, and is just a junior. He pushed through 18 per game for the Red Devils as they won the Martin County crown. "He's one of the best guards around," Coach Billy Duckett said. "He has improved on his ball handling and is a fine shooter."

Shiver, at 6-6, is the tallest man on the team. Just a junior, averaged around 17 points per game this year. "As far as his shooting is concerned, he's deadly inside 15 feet," Coach Butch Ricks said. "He is an excellent rebounder, and we rate him as a good defensive player."

Moore, the other Belvoir player, is also a junior, and is a 5-9 guard. "He is a good ball handler, and a good outside shooter. He drives well and is a good floor general." Moore averaged 14 points per game.

The girls team is made up of champions, too. Joining Miss McLawhorn is teammate Debra Leonard, a guard; along with Katherine Edmondson of Oak City; Susan James, Carolyn Whichard and Gail Michaels of Bethel, Jean Johnson of Farmville, and Debbie Keel and Kay Coburn of Robersonville.

Miss Leonard is one of the tallest guards around at 5-11½. "She has really come around as a defensive star," Gray said. "Rebounding is her strong point, and her height intiminates smaller girls. She blocks a lot of shots, and her ball handling has improved."

Miss James was the leading scorer for the championship Bethel team, with a 14 point average. Just a sophomore, she is 5-8. "She does it all," Deans said in praising her.

Teammate Miss Whichard is a 5-8 senior with a 10.5 average. "She is a good outside shooter, and is a real hustler," Deans said.

Miss Michaels is a 5-6 guard. "She's probably the best defensive guard in the county," Dean said.

From Robersonville comes Debbie Keel, a 5-11 senior and 5-6 junior Kay Coburn. Miss Keel is a guard, and rates as "outstanding" by her coach Churchill Grimes. "She is an excellent rebounder, and moved well for her size."

Miss Coburn is the Ewes' leading scorer with a 14 point mark. "She has an exceptional jump shot and is real quick. She was one of the big forces in our winning the Martin title," Grimes said.

Miss Edmondson, a 5-10 junior at Oak City, played about every position. She started the season at guard, and played at rover and forward, depending on what her team needed. She averaged scoring about 10 points per game. "She was the backbone of the team," Coach Phil Griffin said. "She did it all for us. She also rebounded well, getting 12 to 14 a game."

Rounding out the team is Jean Johnson, a 5-11 forward from Farmville. Just a junior, she averaged 13.5 per game. "She was an all-Conference and All-Tournament selection in the Eastern Plains, Coach Carol Brewer said.

FALKLAND — Belvoir - Falkland High School edged past Winterville here Thursday in a Pitt Conference baseball game, 6-5, with a last inning rally.

Winterville pushed into the lead in the first inning of play, picking up two runs. Smith led off with a single, and Gleason reached on a fielder's choice. Webb was safe on an error, loading the bases. Weatherington then singled to drive in Smith and Gleason.

Hawks Celebrate

By ED SHEARER

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "Even Dr. Naismith would be happy about this situation tonight," shouted a champagne-drenched Walt Bellamy Friday night after the Atlanta Hawks had captured the National Basketball Association Western Division championship.

"This is my first championship, and how sweet it is," said Bellamy, often accused of having a bad attitude during his nine-year NBA career that has carried him from Chicago to Baltimore to New York to Detroit and finally to the Hawks last month.

The acquisition of Bellamy has been instrumental in Atlanta's drive for the flag that saw the Hawks win seven of their last eight games.

The clincher came Friday night, a 110-102 triumph over the Eastern Division champions, the New York Knicks. Bellamy scored 11 points, pulled down 12 rebounds and had a game high 10 assists in the game which marked Atlanta's fourth straight victory over New York.

The Hawks are the only team with a season edge over the Knicks, 4-2.

"We've got it going now, baby, and we're going all the way," said Jumping Joe Caldwell, who tallied 26 points, supporting the 38-point performance of Lou Hudson, who ran his season total to 2,013 points.

Eleven East Carolina Athletes Honored With OAA Selections

Eleven East Carolina University athletes will be honored in the 1970 volume of the Outstanding Athletes of America.

The Outstanding Athletes of America is sponsored by the Outstanding Americans Foundation, a nonprofit organization dedicated to honoring Americans for their achievements.

The ECU athletes honored are Butch Colson and Roger Bost in football; Jim Gregory and Jim Modlin in basketball; Jim Griffin in swimming; Stu Garrett and Roy (Skip) Taylor in baseball; Walter Davenport in track; Bill Ransome in tennis; Vernon Tyson in golf and Tim Ellenberger in wrestling.

The award honors approximately 5,000 young athletes who have proven themselves outstanding in sports, campus activities and curriculum. Nominations for the awards are made by athletic departments of colleges and universities throughout the country. Criteria for selection include an athlete's sports achievements, leadership ability, athletic recognition and community service.

The eleven athletes selected at ECU represent eight of 13 varsity sports sponsored by the school.

Colson, of Elizabeth City, N. C., was a three-year starter at fullback on the football team. As a sophomore he set a Southern Conference season rushing record of 1,135 yards and went on to set the ECU career rushing record of 2.512 yards.

Bost captained the football team last season and started at defensive end. The senior from Statesville, N. C., started for the Pirates his junior and senior years.

Gregory, a junior physical education major from Elbert, W. Va., has started at forward on the basketball team for the past two seasons. The 6-7 leaper scored 12.2 points a game as a soph and led the team in rebounding with 11.2. This past season he scored 16.5 points a game and grabbed 10.4 rebounds.

Modlin, a 6-7 senior center, captained the basketball team and led the Pirates in scoring in 1969-70 with an 18.5 scoring average and pulled down 10.5 rebounds. He became the first ECU player ever to score 1,000 points in a three-year career this past season.

Jim Griffin represented the swimming team in the select group. A sophomore from Norfolk, Va., he led the Pirates to their fifth consecutive Southern Conference Swimming and Diving championships this season. For the second straight year, he was voted the most outstanding swimmer in the conference meet. He holds three conference individual records and was a member of two record setting relay teams. This season he qualified for the NCAA National championships in the 100 and 200-yard freestyles.

Garrett was the only two sport star to be picked. A starter on both the football and baseball teams, he is fromNewport News, Va. Garrett started at safety both his junior and senior years and saw a lot of action at the position his sophomore season for his football service. On the baseball team, Garrett has started in centerfield the past three seasons and this season serves as co-captain along with Taylor.

Taylor is a senior from Charlotte, N. C. This season the husky infielder will be the main supply of power for the Pirates with his bat. The versatile Taylor can play first base, third base or catch when called upon.

Walter Davenport is the only freshman in the select group. A native of North Wilkesboro, N. C., he set a Southern Conference indoor track record in the long jump of 23 feet 5½ inches. His best indoor jump was 23 feet 5¾ inches.

Bill Ransome, a senior from Washington, N. C., played number one on the ECU Tennis team as a sophomore, but has played No. 2 the past two seasons.

The golf team was represented by Vernon Tyson, a senior from Durham, N. C. Tyson was a key to the Pirates' winning the Southern Conference championship a year ago. This season, he will probably play No. 1 or No. 2.

Tim Ellenberger, a senior from Glenshaw, Pa., represents the wrestling team. Ellenberger won three straight conference titles in the 126-pound class and helped the Pirates finish second in the conference match behind William & Mary. He also won his weight class at the North Carolina Collegiate Wrestling match.

New Law Could Help Keep Up With Advances

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI)—New proposed federal boating legislation envisions repeal of present equipment requirements for please boats and instead would give the Coast Guard authority to adopt equipment requirements by regulation.

The object would be to make it easier to alter equipment requirements according to current safety needs and advances in technology.

With this in mind, the Coast Guard in 1968 asked a representative boating panel to evaluate the adequacy of present federal equipment requirements and make recommendations as to which should be continued, which modified, or any other safety equipment which ought to be included.

The group—the Advisory Panel of State Officials to the Merchant Marine Council of the U.S. Coast Guard—appointed a study committee which during 1969 conducted a quiestionnaire survey of state boating law administrators to obtain a consensus on equipment regulations which the states felt to be necessary or desirable.

Based upon the information gathered, coupled with their own experience and knowledge in boating safety, the committee recently submitted a number of recommendations. Here are some of them:

Life-saving Devices: The Coast Guard, in cooperation with with industry, should endeavor to approve life-saving equipment that will be more acceptable to the public from the standpoint of comfort and wearability. Require approved devices on all vessels. Consideration should be given to removing buoyant cushions from the list of Coast Guar approved equipment and to approving buoyant clothing. All life-saving equipment should be colored International Orange. Hardware appendages for fastening devices should be located so as to facilitate ease in attachment and release.

—Fire Extinguishers: Require them on all motorboats. —Sound Signals: Eliminate the ship's bell requirements for Class II vessels, but keep it for Class III. Require soundproducing devices on all vessels. Prohibit the use of sirens on pleasure craft.

—Lights: Consider adoption of a single standard system for pleasure craft, preferably international light rules. Delete the light intensity requirement. Require all nonmechanically proplled boats under way between sunset and sunrise to display a 360 degree light.

—Ventilation: Publish specific minimum standards therefore, and spell out acceptable formula for determining required open space for natural ventilation.

—Anchors and Line: Require on all vessels, suitable for water depth and size.

—Battery Cover: Require battery insulated cable, cover and tie down straps for all vessels having battery ignition or other battery operated apparatus.

—Additional Requirements: Require distress flag, flashlight, flare, bilge pump, bailer and dye markers.

Cougars Down Kentucky Five

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Washington Caps, fighting to overtake first-place Denver in the American Basketball Association's Western Division, are pretty good at coming from behind.

The Caps showed Dallas how they do it Friday night by overcoming a 23-point deficit in the second half with an explosion that produced a 157-155 victory over the Chaparrals.

The triumph moved the Caps within one game of the idle Rockets.

In other games, third place Carolina pulled within a game of second-place Kentucky in the East with a final quarter rally that beat the Colonels 113-106, runaway East winner Indiana downed Pittsburgh 119-114 and Los Angeles defeated New Orleans 91-88.

In the National Basketball Association, Atlanta defeated New York 110-102, Milwaukee hammered Philadelphia 138-112, Baltimore outlasted Chicago 138-131, Seattle slipped past Boston 123-119, San Francisco trimmed Cincinnati, 118-111, Phoenix downed San Diego 127-104, and Los Angeles topped Detroit 117-111.

Ira Harge's two free throws with six seconds left gave Washington its victory, but not after Rick Barry had scored 47 points —he hit 13 straight field goals in one stretch—and George Carter scored 28.

Cincy Powell and Manny Leaks each scored 30 points and Glen Combs 29 for the Chaps, who lost their fifth straight game and fell 3½ games behind Denver.

Kentucky led most of the game until Carolina pulled even at 81, and then Bob Verga and George Peeples led the Cougars away. Verga finished with 34 points and Peeples 15.

Indiana alternated teams by quarters—eight Pacers each played 24 minutes—and led most of the way in beating Pittsburgh. Fred Lewis had 20 points for the Pacers but John Brisker of the Pipers took scoring honors with 34.

Los Angeles posted its 11th victory in 12 games to take over third place in the West, dropping New Orleans to fourth. Andy Anderson paced the Stars with 25 points as they wiped out an 11-point deficit in the third period. Gerald Covan's 21 points led the Bucks.

Trevino Happy On Windy Day

By F. T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Blustery winds sweeping across the Hidden Hills Country Club had a lot to do with second-round play in the Greater Jacksonville Open, and Lee Trevino was perfectly happy with the results.

"Let the winds blow," he said after soaring to a tie for the lead with Bobby Mitchell of Danville, Va.

"The more it blows, the more I feel like I'm home in El Paso."

As Mitchell and Trevino settled into their tie with seven-under par 137s, other golfers were cursing the breezes that sent shots flying right and left of the narrow fairways.

Trevino negotiated the 6,943-yard course five strokes below par at 67.

"I've been on tour regularly for a couple years, so I've kind of lost that El Paso low ball," said the colorful National Open champion of 1968. "But I still feel comrotable in the wind."

Mitchell took his share of first place on a spectacular eagle on the 440-yard sixth hole, tacking a 68 to his opening day 69.

The 30-year-old Trevino and 27-year-old Mitchell took a one-stroke lead over Dale Douglass of Denver into today's third round.

Ron Cerrudo, the mod young Californian who shared the first round lead with 68, slipped to 73 and was tied with six others at 141.

A trim Jack Nicklaus was one of them, but the others of the fading "Big Three" blew out of contention.

Arnold Palmer shot 77 for a 147 total and it was his second bad experience of the day. A partially constructed Jacksonville apartment development in which he is co-owner had an early morning $35,000 fire loss.

Gary Player soared to a 79 and missed the cut with a halfway total of 151.

Phil Rodgers, a veteran from La Jolla, Calif., shot the best round of the tourney, 66, but with his opening 76 he was five strokes off the pace at 142 along with British Open champion Tony Jacklin and five others.

It took a score of 148 or better to survive the halfway cut to 70 players and ties for the run at the $100,000 prize money Sunday.

Bowling

Johnny Nash, a student at East Carolina University, has established a new house record for a three-game series at Hillcrest Lanes.

Nash recently recorded games of 278, 206, and 244, for a 728 series, while bowling in the Monday Men's League.

The series represented only the second 700 bowled in league play in Greenville. The previous high was a 707 bowled by Paul Brohawn in 1964.

Nash also has a perfect game to his credit, bowling a 300 last summer in league play. Nash carries a 190 average in the league.

Mildred Cunningham, bowling in the Strikettes League, picked up a 609 series with a 235, 161, 213. Only three or four women have accomplished a 600 series at Hillcrest Lanes, and her score is the high for this year.

Rod And Gun: More On Pollution Problem

By ROD AMUNDSON

Another one of those wolf-type animals showed up in Wake County, this one about five miles from where one was hit by a car a couple of weeks ago. At a glance, the second critter looked like a malamute, or sled dog, but the legs were too long for this, and the tail resembled that of a coyote. It obviously is a coyote - dog hybrid, and these animals have been destroying a lot of livestock this winter. When you combine the sagacity of a wolf with the intelligence of a dog, you get a critter that will be hard to control. This latter one was shot by Charles Langston, a fire warden who lives near Apex.

Public awareness of the need for cleaning up and restoring our environment has been the fastest - growing phenomenon since the integration. The following is quoted from the January 1969 LUTHERAN WITNESS:

When Are We Going To Stop?

"Karl Menninger, the widely known psychiatrist, had some advice for preachers not long ago.

"If I were a clergyman," he said, "I don't think I could preach about anything else than 'When are you going to stop destroying this beautiful plante?' . . . It is time for clergymen to speak out. It is a matter of our survival . . ."

"Dr. Menninger's remark gets to the heart of the growing discussion of ecology, the interrelationship of organisms and their environment.

"According to a number of respected scholars and observers of American life, ecology may well become the foremost public interest of the 1970s, at least in the early years of the new decade. It is a matter touching all citizens, young and old, rich and poor, black and white, countryman, suburbanite, and city dweller.

"When indeed are we going to stop polluting air, spoiling water, ravaging forests, destroying wildlife, littering roadsides and poisoning the earth?

"Late last year the National Wildlife Federation issued a report which amounted to an indictment of individuals and corporations who were, in varying ways, upsetting the balance of life. The pollution problems which have long plagued our big urban centers have now accumulated into a major national health hazard.

"Christians should see ecology from the perspective of God's act of creation. Misuse of that creation is rebellion against God - SIN, to put it bluntly. When the Creator entrusted mankind with the care of this planet, He expected responsible stewardship, not irresponsible pillage.

"We have been shown the results of our irresponsibility. With noxious air and scummy water, with blackened timber and stripped land, the Creator reminds us of the tasks we have left undone."

Teen-Age Students Enthusiastic About Junior High Science Fair

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Nature in all its bewildering fantasies and hidden mysteries served science students at Aycock Junior High School as a springboard for more than 100 eye - catching displays last week.

The Aycock Junior High Science Fair last Friday was one of several being conducted throughout North Carolina. Such fairs serve a dual purpose — to discover pupils who may become scientists, mathematicians, teachers, doctors, nurses or engineers in industrial and research laboratories — and to give students an opportunity to display their skill and interest in creating something tangible based on what they have learned in the classrooms.

Choosing one of many specialized branches or subjects within the major divisions of biology and physics, the students were able to come up with ideas giving wide diversification to the display. Very few subjects were repeated, and none received the same approach even for those used by more than one pupil or a group. In most instances, two or three students pooled their resources and talents for displays.

The creation of mock-ups and scale models, working models and visual diagrams showed remarkable ingenuity. Some had a professional touch, others were made from materials readily available. fashioned into telling graphic representations of nature's manifold processes involved in life, growth, forces, changes and decays.

The air, the earth, plant life and the sea were all sources of inspiration for the imaginative students — who, judging from the detailed extent in which most subjects covered, spent considerable time and effort coordinating knowledge and art work into displays.

Bones of animals, molecular studies with colored molecules, a couple of miniature gardens grown in bottles; the story of matches; the history of oysters; fossil collections and studies; plant transpiration; electrical devices and circuits; water purification processes; an elaborate mechanism to explain the formation of bubbles; a perpetual motion machine, diagrams and aids to show the phenomena of a total eclipse; food bacteria processes, and the digestive tract's function were only a portion of the total subject coverage the eight and ninth grade students chose for their projects.

A three member panel of jurors spent considerable time studying each display separately, reading the text and evaluating the effectiveness and appropriateness of the visual aids.

Dr. Frank Eller, of the Department of Science at East Carolina University; Willie Pate of Pitt County's Health Department; and Joe Hayes, with the Greenville office of the State Highway Commission, judged the entries in the Science Fair.

Judging was based on a system recommended by the North Carolina Science Fairs for 1970. This included 30 points for creative ability (originality of thinking and illustrating a scientific principle); scientific thought, 30 points (extensive researching for facts, or the use of controlled experimentation); skill, 10 points (good workmanship in handling of materials and whether exhibit was made of raw material or materials purchased); and 10 points each for thoroughness, clarity and dramatic value.

"There's so much here commendable and worthwhile that making a decision is difficult," Pate remarked after having studied all the exhibits.

The three judges were restricted to awarding first and second place prizes to the most effective overall exhibits in two fields — biology and physics.

In the biology category, first prize went to Helen Waldrop and Beth Thomas for their joint display and explanation of fossils. Second place winner in this field was awarded to Jim Proctor for a display leaning heavily on explanatory text with few visual devices — a study of streptococci.

Margaret Little took first place in physics with an electric motor model. It was a simple model, but constructed entirely of home-made materials, one that required lots of time to build. Second place in physics was to Walter C. Gray, Jr., for a model set up showing the process of desalination of water.

Two honorable mentions were given. One went to Will Moore for a large reproduction of the Tesla coil. "Mostly Mollusks" a collection of shells by Cathy McConnell and Mary Charles Stevens was the other honorable mention winner.

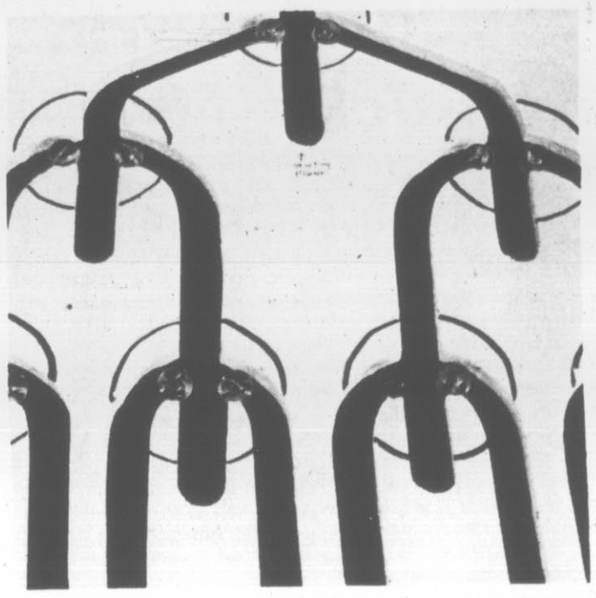
Mrs. Nannie F. Shearin, a science teacher at Junior High, in charge of the program, was excited about the results of the science fair. "I knew many of the children were interested, but I had no idea they would come up with displays as spectacular as this. This is our first science fair and I'm sure it will not be the last," she commented.

Dr. Eller stated "I make a claim to being the first to start the science fair movement for high schools in North Carolina . . . that was in Charlotte in 1946."

Remarking that "in the past few years I had about concluded that science fairs no longer served a useful purpose, but now I feel differently." Dr. Eller added "so often these students are faceless names in a large crowd, but taking part in a project such as this gives the student a chance to distinguish himself, to become an individual."

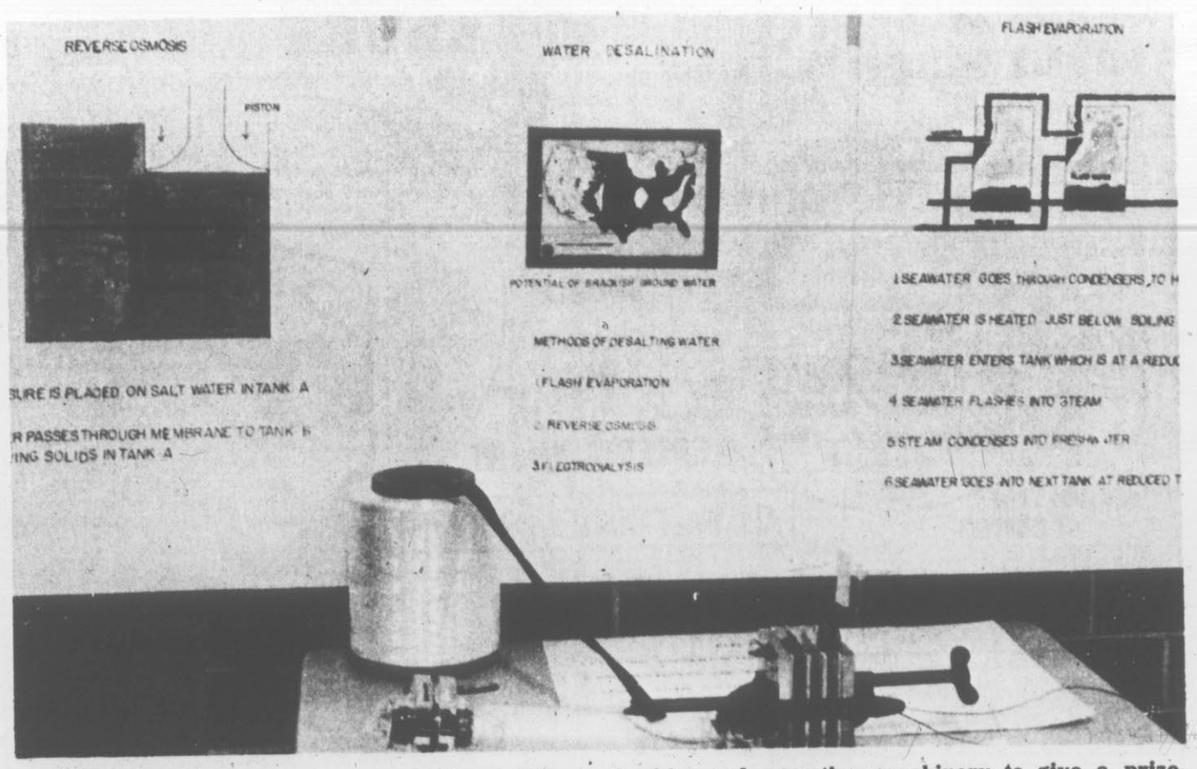
When the school bell rang at the end of school day on Friday, the extent of student interest was marked by the sudden appearance of several hundred students. They moved about the exhibits, making comments, asking each other questions, expressing admiration for a number of projects, and were eager to see everything on view before having to leave to catch the bus or their ride home.

"We are proud of these kids and the work they have done in this project," principal John Jones said. Jones and the teachers were as totally absorbed in viewing the displays as the students were.

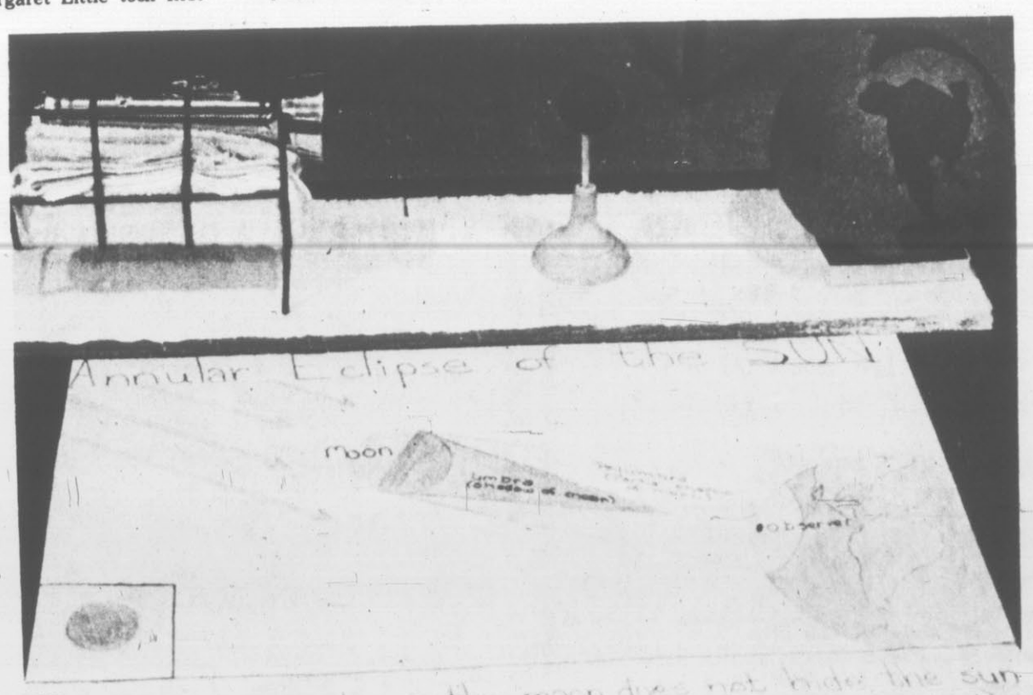


GROOVED PLYWOOD . . . painted dark red against white, with clear marbles, shows a simplified picture of "Nuclear Chain Reaction". Rachel Jensen and Gail Jones prepared this display.

LEAVES . . . always fascinating to students, resulted in a white and green presentation by Karla Metcalf and Lynn Bullock.



DESALINATION OF WATER . . . by Walter E. Gray, Jr., combines the use of charts, an explanatory booklet and operative machinery to give a prize-winning treatment to this subject.



THE SPECTACULAR ECLIPSE ... in Greenville early this month inspired Terry Pollard and Susan Raynor to recreate the event with models, charts and booklets.

King Of Vibes Touches All The Bases

By DONALD E. MULLEN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lionel Hampton has to be about the travelingest and busiest jazz musician around.

If he isn't on a State Department good will tour or playing one night stands, he's raising money for kids to obtain instruments and instruction, or he's raising money for Harlem hospital or playing benefits for Israel, or helping Catholic or Protestant organizations.

"I touch all the bases," he explains with a chuckle. "I wear the Star of David, I have a Catholic medal and I carry a Protestant bible."

Now the "King of the Vibes" has a new project underway: College courses that will teach youngsters the Negro contribution to America's musical heritage, and further the cause of blues, folk and jazz.

The pilot programs will be started at Xavier and Dillard colleges in New Orleans, with hopes they can be introduced to other schools around the country.

And with it comes a full professorship for "The Hamp" to lecture at both colleges.

Just saying that he is enthusiastic about the idea would be an understatement. In an interview at his Manhattan office—crammed with souvenirs and mementoes of 40 years of jam sessions with everyone from Louis Armstrong to King Bhmibol Adulyadej of Thailand—Hampton outlined the program, then grinned and said: "Just call me Dr. Hampton.

"I've been wanting for some time to get Negro musical history taught in schools. I talked bout it for years while playing those one nighters, and then I was dismayed to find out it's not even taught in black colleges.

"Nobody's teaching about the way it all grew up, how it traveled the Mississippi River from New Orleans to Kansas City and St. Louis and Chicago.

"I want to see a curriculum in black schools that could be a major study program. They should know how spirituals were protest music, pleading music—pleading for help and deliverance.

"Such a course would teach how Negro music integrated into the music everyone else brought over. It was a true melting pot.

"And did you know, for example, that a Negro wrote Dixie?

This month Hampton and Dr. Norman Francis, president of Xavier, an integrated Roman Catholic college, and Dr. B. Butler, president of Dillard, a Negro college, are getting together to set up a curriculum seminar in New Orleans for later this year.

The two-week seminar will involve musical historians and famous jazz musicians such as Duke Ellington, Louis Armstrong, Al Hirt, Benny Goodman and Stan Kenton, who will evaluate what is needed to set up the course.

LIONEL HAMPTON, the "king of the vibes", strikes away on the vibraphone in this file photo. He has a new project underway: courses that will teach youngsters the Negro contribution to America's musical heritage. (UPI Telephoto)

ECU Playhouse To Stage Brecht Play

"The Good Woman Of Setzuan", Bertolt Brecht's parable of the confrontation between good and evil, will be presented by the East Carolina Playhouse April 15-18 in McGinnis Auditorium on the E.C.U. campus.

Written between 1938 and 1940 and first produced in 1943, "The Good Woman Of Setzuan" is generally considered to be the best of Brecht's plays.

Set in Chinese trappings, the play deals with three gods who come down from heaven in search of a truly good person. They discover Shen Te, a prostitute, to be the only person on earth worthy of being called virtuous. The gods reward her with gold, and immediately she becomes the victim of parasites, because in her goodness she cannot refuse help to the less fortunate.

In order to survive she impersonates an imaginary evil cousin, Shui Ta, whose harshness in business matters keeps Shen Te solvent. Thus the play is a parable of man's enforced dual nature — his desire to be good thwarted by his need for self - preservation.

Directed by Robert Chase, guest director - in - residence with the Department of Drama at E.C.U., the cast includes Nancy Cherry as Shen Te; Cecil Willis, played by Mark Ramsey, and Ron Love as the three gods; Jim Leedom as Yang Sun; Margaret Marshall as Mrs. Shiu; Bruce McKeown as Wong; and Joan Bowen as Mrs. Mi Tzu.

Tickets will be available at the McGinnis Auditorium box office April 8.

Children's Concert At Public Library

The first in what may possibly become a series of children's music programs will be held 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Children's Room of Sheppard Memorial Library.

The East Carolina Woodwind Quintent, composed of students from the School of Music of East Carolina University, under the direction of Eugene Isabelle, will present a program of music aimed primarily at children in the third to sixth grades. "However, children of all ages are invited to attend," states Mrs. Margaret Reid, Children's Librarian.

For this program, each musician will introduce his instrument — flute, clarinet, oboe, bassoon, and French horn — and demonstrate how it is played. Short pieces featuring the various instruments will be played. The children will be told what to listen for.

"If this program is well received," Mrs. Reid explained, "we are thinking of future programs on April 21 and May 19, and have already made tentative arrangements with other ECU instrumental groups for this purpose."

Greenville Children In Art Center Show

They're all here. A blushing George Washington with too many curls; Abe Lincoln, his pipe much too large (did he smoke?); smiling witches; a cockeyed Geisha girl; and overweight Penguins.

These and scores of equally delightful uninhibited works by Greenville's youngest generation goes on view today at 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. at a reception held at the Greenville Art Center especially in honor of the boys and girls from the first through the sixth grades.

This is one of those truly happy occasions which should be seen by children, teen-agers, parents and everyone else. It's difficult to say which is the most fascinating — the sheer joy of a garden of wild colors these assembled works present — or the tender, shy, hilarious, smug or fantastic interpretations young children can bring to a work of art.

These children too show an ingenuous method of salvage which might be a key factor for conservation. Sculpture is made of assembled boxes, painted and arranged into wonderful decorative devices which would enhance any department store display or add a wistful note to a home. Bits of string, paper straws and other left-overs, as well as foil covered bottles, provide fine usage of scraps.

Mrs. Wellington Gray, director of the Art Program in the Elementary Schools and the individual art teachers have wisely hung the show at a low level so that little ones can see most of the show on eye level.

All conceivable media except metal sculpture has been used by the children. There are works in mixed media; crayons, watercolors, finger paints, tempra paint, acrylics, pencil, ink. Sponges, cut potato sections, sticks and wool thread, have all been successfully used as tools and materials.

Realtiy means little to them — witness a lineof rescuers in one drawing where all the rescuers face on-camera, while the poor victim falls with a puzzled look, completely ignored by those there to save him. Or papier-mache masks, looking more like Phyllis. Diller with an overabundance of make-up. In one, a turkey is larger than the little girl pictured with the bird.

Its noteworthy that many first and second grade children show kids helping around the house — but, this theme suddenly disappears along about the fourth grade, when TV monsters and moon men take over. By the fifth and sixth grade level, perspective and a more sophisticated choice of subject matter becomes noticeable.

This show once again proves that for first rate excitement and for a glimpse into the minds of children, nothing is more provocative than an assembled show of their art work. — JERRY RAYNOR

BARTOK TO CABBAGE

NEW YORK (AP) — The Amboy Dukes almost had to retape a cut on their latest LP, "Marriage on the Rocks ... Rockbottom" because they used a theme from the second movement of Bartok's "Second String Quartet" without permission.

But attorneys for the Bartok estate heard the cut, "The Inexhaustible Quest for the Cosmic Cabbage" and gave Polydor Records the go-ahead to release.

FOREIGN OPERA DIRECTORY

NEW YORK (AP) — A "Directory of Foreign Contemporary Opera" is available from the Central Opera Service sponsored by the Metropolitan Opera National Council.

The 70-page reference volume covers the lifetime output of foreign composers who have had at least one premier since Jan. 1, 1950. It lists 1,564 operas by 581 composers from 40 countries, and costs $5.

Confederate Propaganda Is Subject Of Brief New Book

Dr. Charles P. Cullop packs a great deal of fascinating history into "Confederate Propaganda In Europe — 1861-1865" (University of Miami Press, Coral Gables, Florida, $6.95).

Dr. Cullop, a professor of History at East Carolina University, states this monograph grew out of research into the subject for which previous information was available only in rare, scattered sources.

First and last, it is the story of Henry Hotze, a subject worthy of the close scrutiny Dr. Cullup gives him. Hotze, a Swiss born American, was sent to Europe in the early days of the Civil War by the Confederate Secretary of War L. P. Walker to check on funds. In Europe, Hotze quickly sensed a lamentable lack of effective progaganda for the southern cause — in contrast to the work for the north being carried out by such stalwarts as Thurlow Weed, General Winfield Scott, Catholic Archbishop John Hughes of New York and Henry Ward Beecher.

On the return trip to America, Hotze conceived the idea of establishing a newspaper in England to serve both as a direct propaganda outlet and as a school to train young British journalist writing for influential newspapers.

Although only 28, Hotze's character had been molded early in life. His moderation and tendency to suspend judgment ideally suited him to the difficult task which become his in four exhausting war years.

How this relatively unknown, inexperienced but capable young man fulfilled his dream — and the unexpected success he made of a weekly newspaper, "The Index" — is the heart of Dr. Cullop's study.

Hotze's effort was not the only one supported by the Confederate government in Europe. Edwin De Leon, member of a wealthy South Carolina family and a personal friend of President Jefferson Davis, set up an operation in Paris which eventually was terminated by Secretary of State Judah Benjamin. De Leon succeeded mostly in lavishly spending money, and in alienating both American and French associates.

In a few sharply drawn pages, Cullop outlines the dramatic story of southern attempts to focus European attention on northern conscription of Irish immigrants into the Union forces. The pathetic choices faced by poverty stricken Irish youth — to starve at home or face initiation into the promised land by being drawn into a bloody national conflict as a fighting man — is indeed a poignant reminder of the strange fate youth must sometimes face. (This theme incidentally, would be a perfect vehicle for a full scale historical novel).

Napolean III of France, known to favor the southern cause, nevertheless followed the British lead in maintaining a strict neutrality. He was also influenced by the strong French public attitude against slavery in any form and by his involvement in Mexico during the Civil War Years.

Striking parallels in efforts by European nations to negotiate a peaceful settlement in the complex conflict are echoed in today's efforts by concerned countries seeking to help America solve its Vietnam dilemma.

The account of widespread mourning in England over the death of Stonewall Jackson is reminiscent of Europe's grief when John F. Kennedy was assassinated a century after Jackson's death.

Brevity is the chief fault of "Confederate Propaganda in Europe 1861-1865". Dr. Cullop over - compacted his material where a little more illumination would have given it richness and scope that is missing in his concise treatment. He is guilty of understatement, but the virtues of this fast - paced study surely outweigh the sense of loss one feels in wishing there had been much more. — JERRY RAYNOR.

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN IS STILL YOUR BEST FRIEND

Although we rarely hear about the physician that follows the old ways of daily house rounds, there are still some of them left. In some remote areas it is the only way for a doctor to bring health care to a community.

Today's modern physician serves in a very specialized but much more efficient manner. He knows that if it is possible for someone who is sick to get to the office, he is better equipped to help them. With the facilities available he is able to more quickly diagnose and treat his patients. Should the services of a specialist be required, he will suggest one.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Open House Tuesday By Sierra Club At ECU

America's oldest conservation club, the Sierra Club, founded by famed naturalist John Muir in California in 1891, is having an open house at East Carolina University.

Dr. Philip J. Adler of ECU's History Department, states the meeting, which is open to anyone, is to be held in the Biology Department Building at 7:00 p.m. Tuesday.

"The Sierra Club, which is now four years old in North Carolina," Dr. Alder remarked "is sure to appeal to persons interested in conservation matters as well as nature outings and hikes."

A special CBS TV film, "Bulldozed America," will be shown at the meeting. This film is an account of the abuse of the American earth in the process of progress.

A number of speakers will be on hand to discuss briefly local conservation issues. Other speakers will furnish information on the Sierra Club and ways in which interested persons can participate in it's activities.

Dr. Adler says the club is "dedicated to the proposition of reserving three percent of America's land area in a state of wilderness."

Coffee will be served at the informal meeting.

Set Artificial Flower Arrangement Lessons

With spring just around the corner, the Greenville Recreation Department announces a course in Artificial Flower Arrangement.

This program begins Tuesday, and will last approximately four weeks. It will consist of lessons in the balanced composition and arrangement of artificial flowers. The course will also deal with various "coloring" techniques for artificial flowers, These include Flemish Florals, Pearlized, Gold'n Color, and Antiqued methods.

Interested adults are asked to bring their own artificial flowers and flower containers of simple form and surface. No flowers will be available at the Recreation Department. All other floral supplies will be available. The class hours are Tuesdays 9:30 a.m.-2:00, and 7:30 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.

Mrs. Linda Burrell, crafts instructor with the Recreation Department, will give a preview of artificial floral arrangements Saturday, March 21, on the Nancy Middlleton "Hospitality House" program, WITN-TV, Channel 7.

PIG'S PERIL

IPOH, West Malaysia (UPI) —The Chinese Year of the Dog may be dangerous for pigs in West Malaysia, veterinary experts warn. The danger of an outrbreak of swine fever is real, they say, although it may not be on a scale larger than the epidemic of 1966-67 when about 10,000 pigs perished in West Malaysia.

Set Revival At Citadel

Revival services will be held at The Salvation Army Citadel beginning Monday and will continue through Sunday, March 29, by Maj. C. R. Collins.

MAJ. C.R. COLLINS

Maj. Collins was born in Stokes County and received his schooling at the Antioch School near Mount Airy. He did his graduate work in the school for Officers of The Salvation Army, Atlanta, Ga.

He completed 30 years as an officer in The Salvation Army and served in Wilson, Fayetteville, High Point, Greensboro, Kinston and Wilmington.

A resident of Wilmington, he started evangelistic work shortly after his retirement.

Services will start each night at 7:30.

Local Pastor Attended Church Merger Talks

Adlie E. Barefoot, pastor of the First Wesleyan Church of Greenville and chairman of the Evangelical Christian Association, recently took part in a conference in the Bahama Islands about joining the Evangelical Christian Association with the Wesleyan Church.

The merger should be effected sometimes in July. Meeting with Rev. Barefoot were the Rev. R. S. Shelton, district Superintendent of the Wesleyan Church, and Dr. J. A. Abbott, general superintendent of the Wesleyan Church.

The Wesleyan Church does worldwide denominational work in some 31 countries. Its headquarters are in Marion, Ind.

ENTRENCHED

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (UPI)—Trenches dug by Confederate soldiers during the Civil War are now campus walkways at Western Kentucky University here.

A local church was built recently at Bell Forks near here and Rev. Barefoot become its pastor. It was in the Evangelical Christian Church until almost two years ago when its membership decided to unite with the Wesleyan Church.

The Evangelical Christian Association has Greenville as its headquarters. It has operated under a charter and corporation under the laws of North Carolina. Upon the merger of the Bahama field with the Wesleyan Church, the Association will cease to exist.

Barefoot said there is yet another courtship taking place between the Wesleyan Church and the Free Methodist Church. Both believe strongly in the Word of God as taught by John Wesley.

IN MEMORIAM

IN APPRECIATION

Perhaps you sang a lovely song,
Or sat quietly in a chair.

Perhaps you sent some lovely flowers,
If so, we saw them there.

Perhaps you spoke the kindest words
That any friend could say.

Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day.

What ever deed done, great or small,
The family thanks you for it all.

On The Young Side

By JANE JACKSON

Music from favorite record hits rang out Thursday in the Rose High School cafeteria for the first time as students enjoyed a newly acquired jukebox.

The idea of a jukebox came up in a Student Government Association meeting several weeks ago when students were discussing ways to earn money.

A committee consisting of chairman Ernest Adams, Philip Harvey, Sheila Teel, and Jane Jackson was set up to look into the suggestion more thoroughly.

Renting the jukebox for $50 per month, the SGA will receive all profits. A variety of present and past records are included in the jukebox.

Report Cards

Students spent this weekend either happy or sad, depending on their report cards which were distributed Friday.

There are two more marking periods before the final closing of school on June 9. Everyone will enjoy Easter holidays beginning Thursday afternoon and lasting until the following Wednesday.

Seven Rose High students won first place awards recently in the Woman's Club Fine Arts Contest.

Senior Jonnie Cassick captured the female vocal award while Steve Adridge, also a senior, received the male vocal award. Linda Shearin and Meg Sencendiver won awards, Linda in piano, and Meg in public speaking.

Three art students won awards in the contest. Vickie Morgan received first place in the painting category, Betsy Droegemeyer in drawing and Mitchell Cobb in prints.

Ambassador Drive

The United Christian Youth Movement is sponsoring a drive to finance the Community Ambassador program.

Over $2,000 is needed in order to send the two ambassadors to the chosen countries. Susan Leggett will travel to Italy while Elizabeth Jones is going to Greece.

All expenses for the trips will be paid for by money raised during the drive.

Shares in the community Ambassador Stock are sold for $1 per share. Individuals and businesses are urged to make contributions. This money may be sent to last year's ambassador, Suzy Stocks, or mailed to: Community Project, P. O. Box 1100, Greenville, N. C.

On Annual Tour With Singers

Between March 20 and 26, the group will perform in eight churches and high schools in North Carolina and Georgia.

Miss Dawkins sings in the first soprano section of the Meredith Singers.

SCIENTIFIC RIDDLE
Can Stress Affect the Sex of Your Children?

Ask Them Yourself

FOR LT. GEN. LEWIS HERSHEY, former Director of Selective Service

What will happen to the draft dodgers who are living in other countries? Will they be able to return to the U.S. after the war is over?—Mrs. Joseph Sitar, Waterbury, Conn.

● They can voluntarily return to the U.S. any time; however, they may be prosecuted for violation of the Military Selective Service Act. Persons convicted of such violation may be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years or a fine of not more than $10,000 or both.

FOR ALDEN BARBER,
Chief Boy Scout Executive

How many of our Chief Justices of the U.S. were Boy Scouts in their earlier days?—Joseph Hille, Burien, Wash.

● One—Chief Justice Warren Burger, who earned the rank of First Class Scout. His court predecessors, Earl Warren and Fred Vinson, were beyond scouting age when the Boy Scouts of America began in 1910 but have been active in scouting as adults.

FOR GRACE DAVALL,
New York Zoological Society

Are there any animals not in any zoo today that are being sought? —Mrs. George Hill, Langdon, N.D.

● Probably the animal most desired by American zoos at the present time is the Giant Panda from western China. The species was last exhibited in the New York Zoological Park in 1951. The only one now to be seen outside the Iron Curtain is in Regent's Park Zoological Society of London.

FOR REV. ROBERT E. HOWES,
national co-ordinator, Citizens for Public Prayer

What would happen if everyone who believes in prayer in the classroom marched on Washington?—H. A., Austin, Texas

● A prayer march on Washington would make the recent Moratorium demonstrations look like a mere handful. A constitutional amendment restoring the civil right of free prayer to our public-school children could be the cutting edge in a great national return to God. On few issues are the American people more united.

FOR WOODY ALLEN

What do you think of the mini-skirt and nudity?—Mrs. R. L., Utica, N.Y.

● I'm crazy about mini-skirts. I think the more you show off a girl—up to a certain point—the more flattering it is. However, complete nudity is not as sexy as near nudity. And then, of course, there are some girls who would look great completely encased in armor.

FOR JACQUELINE SUSANN, author of "The Love Machine"

Why did you give up acting to write? Are you happy with your decision?—Mrs. Ralph Holmes, Waco, Texas

● I always wanted to write. I always wanted to act. Unfortunately these talents cannot be put together. As an actress, I had to accept the roles I "looked" like. As a writer, I can write the way I want.

FOR DR. H. BOSLEY WOOLF,
Managing Editor, Merriam-Webster dictionaries

What's the longest word in the dictionary?—Bill Christie, San Mateo, Calif.

● It's not "antidisestablishmentarianism," as many generally believe. That word was only created as an example of a long string of letters, and it isn't in our dictionary. The longest word is "pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis." It's an ailment that hits miners as a result of inhaling very fine rock dust.

FOR CHARLES NELSON REILLY

What make of car do you drive for your tv part as real-estate agent Claymore Gregg in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir"?—Ina M. Kaul, Rapid City, S.D.

● I drive a 1934 Ford touring car owned by 20th Century-Fox. Incidentally, a lot of dry ice is used to make all that "steam."

What in the World!

Baby-Sitting Beauty Comedienne Edie Adams, mother of three girls, believes "you're never too young to start looking your best." So she added a special "Sugar and Spice" salon for toddlers to her regular chain of 125 beauty shops across the country. The youngest patron is two. While Mommy is getting cut and curled, little daughter gets the same but in a high chair and low dryer—with balloons and lollipops. The tot reactions range from shy to fearful to "in love with the beautiful little girl in the mirror." Says one satisfied mother: "Now I don't have to hire a baby sitter when I get my hair done."

Edie Adams and lovely lass

End of an Era The Delta Queen is the last stern-wheel passenger steamboat to cruise down the full length of the Mississippi. Come Nov. 2, she will be retired because her 1926 design and construction do not comply with new safety-at-sea laws. Capt. Ernest E. Wagner polled some regular passengers on the old Queen on what they'll miss most. One thing was the big steam calliope, which belts out music heard as far as five miles away. Another was the bright red 26-ton stern paddle wheel, with its curtain of spray conveniently watering an important accessory: two boxes of growing mint plants. That's for the mint juleps, suh (and sorely missed, too).

Knotty Problem One of the problems with today's wide neckties, according to the Men's Fashion Association of America, is simply tying them. Typical customer complaint: "It isn't easy to make a neat, attractive Windsor knot, especially with the wide heavy silks." Tip: don't try for a Windsor at all. Tie instead a four-in-hand style or half-Windsor. If you never learned how, your favorite men's-store clerk can show you.

Long Run for Safety What's the longest-running musical show in the country —"Hello, Dolly!"? The correct answer, as far as high schoolers are concerned, is "Music for Modern Americans," now in its sixth year. It's a live driver-education safety stage show. The performers are the Chrysler Spurrlows, 27 young professional singers, dancers, instrumentalists. By the end of this school year, they will have traveled 65,000 miles through

Safety to music

45 states and performed in 500 high schools, playing to 510,000 teen-agers and educators.

Make This Your Loveliest Year Ever

Every year of a woman's life should bring with it a new phase of beauty, for today the discovery of a remarkable tropical moist oil at last assures her that each passing year can bring added loveliness to her complexion.

Extraordinary scientific achievement is embodied in this unique moist oil with its ability to contribute to the unfolding and blossoming of a radiantly beautiful complexion.

All skins need supplementary ministration of a particular kind after the age of twenty-five, when the glands gradually become less active and manufacture only a fractional quantity of vital skin fluids. Sometimes this deprivation of the essentials is brought about even more prematurely through unfavourable weather hazards, difficult climatic conditions or any one of a dozen other circumstances exclusive perhaps to the twentieth century that directly or indirectly have a depletory effect on natural dermic fluids.

A lavish application of the scientific moist oil to the face and neck helps sponsor nature's every effort to provide the skin with regenerative, sustaining elements that work to restore balanced functioning.

Optimum benefit is obtained from the natural balance of oil and moisture which this beauty fluid possesses. Cosmetic scientists have aptly described it as a "peeled" beauty oil, by which they mean it does not contain the heavy sealing elements common to normal oils. Its rapid softening and beautifying values are immediately available to the complexion and prove their worth most dramatically when applied to alleviate skin dryness, for the complexion quickly takes on a smoother, dewier, lovelier appearance.

Another great, beneficent property of the tropical moist oil is its readiness to further the skin's natural hygroscopic tendencies, and a healthy bloom is soon established as moisture is constantly attracted from the atmosphere to the complexion.

This moist tropical oil is obtainable in most countries of the world and here in America is available from druggists as oil of Olay. Smoothed over your skin daily and used as an ideal sub-foundation for make-up, it brings your complexion the richest dividends of beauty and heralds the attainment of your loveliest year ever.

Beauty Skin-Care Consultants Recommend

To gain the best benefits of the beautifying properties of this moist oil and to keep your complexion clear of wrinkle dryness always smooth on a film of oil of Olay beneath your make-up to protect and beautify your complexion whilst ensuring your make-up has perfect matt beauty.

Radiance is restored to the complexion when it is cherished with rich cream at night. Before you go to bed, massage gently with the oil of Olay, paying particular attention to the crow's-feet area where ageing lines first appear.

* * *

Towards maturity cherish your skin with a little extra care to smooth wrinkle-dryness and help keep facial lines at bay. Before retiring, apply a generous film of oil of Olay, massaging it with the fingertips in circular movements that spiral upwards and outwards.

Can Stress Affect the Sex of Your Children?

Some psychologists back up this startling theory with statistics

By ALAN D. HAAS

THE SEX of your child may depend, in part, on the mood you and your mate are in at the time of conception. At least that's a theory advanced by one husband-wife research team.

Exactly what determines the sex of an unborn child is, of course, a complicated biological process that begins at the moment of conception. Science knows that there are 46 chromosomes; 44 are neutral, one is for male, and one is for female. The proper combination to get either a boy or a girl has long been thought to be purely accidental.

But now psychologists Donald H. Schuster and his wife Locky of Iowa State University claim that a given amount of emotional stress creates an unfavorable physical environment, and some biological mechanism selectively eliminates the sex factors which would create a child of the same sex as the stressed parent.

In other words, the hyper-ambitious father is unlikely to produce a son. And if he should marry an aggressive, equally ambitious wife, the union very probably will not be blessed with offspring at all.

Here is the way stress affects childbirth, according to the test results compiled by the Schusters:

- If neither the father nor the mother are under stress, they could produce a large family of both boys and girls.
- If the father is under mild stress and his wife is not, they are likely to have mostly girls.
- If both father and mother are mildly stressed, they may have one boy, one girl.
- If the father suffers no stress but the mother is mildly stressed, they will have mostly boys.
- If both parents are under more than mild stress, their chances of having children are sharply reduced, in some cases to the vanishing point.

"A man with a determined drive, a burning desire to succeed, or a need to gain ego strength," according to the Schusters, "keeps his body in a mild state of low-level continual anxiety, thus inhibiting the male sex gamete, resulting in the siring of female offspring most frequently.

"Conversely, a woman who wants to climb the social ladder, make a career for herself in a competitive business or profession, etc., is also creating conception problems."

The Schusters initiated their research into this subject by giving a standard psychological test to 95 Los Angeles parents whose family composition was known. Working in reverse, they drew up a set of some 16 personality traits which repeatedly showed up in parents of opposite-sex offspring.

With these traits as guidelines, they then tested a group of graduate students at Iowa State, all of whom were married and had children. The researchers were unaware of the sex of the offspring in this group. The Schusters were able to predict with some 73 percent accuracy whether the couples had a majority of male or female children.

In a laboratory experiment, the Schusters tested their theory on rats, getting them upset by confining them in a small-screen funnel one hour a day for a week and then mating them. The sex ratio of the offspring was additional proof to them that they were on the right track.

Whether or not the Schusters have stumbled onto something important will depend upon much more research and study. Their advice to couples for creating healthier emotional climates at home, however, goes far beyond determining the sex of an infant.

Mental stress and excessive professional drive can lead to a destructive breaking point somewhere along the line. So what they are saying is to relax a little and get more out of life—perhaps a boy, perhaps a girl. Or maybe even both! ◆

Heart Transplants — Their

32,000 Americans a year solutions to many

THERE ARE patients like Will Gray in every hospital in every city in the world. His heart was so diseased that he couldn't speak and could barely breathe.

He needed oxygen constantly and was extremely emaciated. In fact, while the doctors were preparing him for surgery, Will didn't have enough breath to whisper.

Six months, a year, nearly two years—anything which could give Will this much more life, and a fairly normal life at that—must be considered a success. And this is the hope heart-transplantation surgery holds out to Will and many others.

Only a few years ago there were those whose hearts, like Will's, were damaged far beyond anything medical science could cope with. These sufferers, with nothing to lose, welcomed the hope of a heart transplantation—in fact, only for these advanced cases is such a procedure even suggested. Amazingly, of nearly 150 such victims of heart disease who have had transplantation, 20 survived a year or longer. This included 13 persons still alive on Jan. 1 of this year.

What is significant is not that the highly publicized Philip Blaiberg lived only slightly less than two years after a heart transplant, but that he was able to live a relatively normal existence.

Seemingly doomed to a short bedridden existence, Blaiberg was able to undergo this surgery and, with some effort, become fairly active, swim, and even travel. He lectured on his experience and wrote a book. His operation was performed in January, 1968—just a month after the first two transplants were performed! Much has been learned since, and there are guarded hopes for longer lasting successes.

The transplant itself is actually less complicated than many other forms of open-heart surgery. The first steps of a heart-transplant operation are not unlike preparing a pumpkin for Halloween—except, of course, that it's a deadly serious business, for a human life is literally in the surgeon's hands.

The diseased bottom three-quarters of the patient's heart is removed, leaving the stem intact with all its connections to the major blood vessels of the body. The donor's heart is then attached. The insertion of the new heart is generally successful—the organ starts beating immediately and supplies blood to the body. Then the patient is placed under intensive care. Other biological factors, however, may limit the degree of his recovery as well as the length of his survival.

The surgery is well perfected, and most competent heart surgeons can perform it. But long-range successes will be made possible only by other specialists, such as immunologists.

Surprisingly, one possible source of help also may be the psychiatrist. Dr. Aaron Paley, chief of the department of psychiatry at Denver's National Jewish Hospital, joined with two psychologists in a team which found convincing evidence that one element in the success of heart surgery is the "personality structure" of the patient. The team was able to predict accurately in 24 out of 27 cases whether the patient would survive. As they put it: ". . . the prediction equation was disturbingly accurate."

In this study, Dr. Paley and his team interviewed each patient twice before he underwent surgery. Part of these two sessions was devoted to simply talking—but specialists can learn a great deal about an individual from this technique. In addition, psychological tests were used as well as special intelligence tests.

Problems and Their Promise could benefit from such radical surgery—but not until science finds the perplexing problems

By Dr. ARTHUR S. FREESE

All the information, including the patient's age and specific physical and health data, added up to some 50 different factors, which were then put through a computer to find their relationship to one another. The team discovered that the more mature patients and those better able to cope with anxiety and stress had a better chance of survival.

The patients involved were not heart-transplant cases, however, but there is no reason at all to think there will be significant differences between them and Dr. Paley's subjects, who underwent both open- and closed-heart surgery.

These findings show that there are more than physical problems involved in the survival of these patients, and cardiac surgeons may, before long, routinely request psychological tests before surgery.

Dr. Paley explains that his team had zeroed in on a new facet of heart surgery. He adds that they have a method which, "if it proves out, may provide a very valuable tool and may prevent failures—even explain failures we don't understand on a physical basis."

The brain is also involved in the success of transplants. Dr. Reginald Bickford, professor of neurosciences at the University of California, has described the brain as the "organ of personality, the body's most sensitive organ." He believes that here is where the scientists must look for evidence of the exact moment of death. This is important in deciding when surgeons can legally and ethically transfer the heart from the donor. Transplants have created new definitions of death, one of which says that the brain activity ceases although the heart may be still beating.

Dr. Bickford devised a small analog computer which, attached by electrodes to the scalp, will "tick" as long as the living brain waves continue. When the clicking stops, brain activity will have ended and death occurred. In this way, a donated heart can be taken for transplantation before deterioration has had a chance to set in.

In some cases, however, the heart itself may generate electrical impulses of its own to confuse the computer. In these cases, a larger computer must be coupled to Bickford's. The larger one is so programmed that it can "subtract" any spurious signals and show only those emanating from the brain.

The scientist foresees the possibility of a day when these larger computers will be set up at key points throughout the nation and information fed into them through telephone lines from the area's hospitals. Final decision of the moment of death will then be centrally controlled.

One of the major difficulties in heart transplants has been getting the right donor and the right recipient in the same place at the same time, for at this time most surgeons will not use a heart more than an hour after the donor's death. A new portable unit has been developed; in it, animal hearts have been safely preserved for more than 14 hours. This would make possible, for example, the use of a donor heart from a person who died in Los Angeles, for someone in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Cooley

At Tulane University, Dr. Terence H. Williams, professor of neuroanatomy, also has turned to animals to learn more about heart transplants. He has found that heart valves are not just passive doors which open and close according to the pressure of the blood. On the contrary, they contain nerves which communicate with the brain.

He believes that nerve regeneration may go on very rapidly in transplanted hearts, and this may be of use to the surgeon who performs heart transplants.

Furthermore, evidence from complicated tests on animals indicates that heart-valve nerves act as sensors to measure the blood flow so that the brain can properly regulate the working of the heart.

Another of the major stumbling blocks in this new surgery has been the problem of rejection, the body's system for eliminating foreign material, whether it is microscopic bacteria or transplanted hearts. After the first transplant by Dr. Christiaan Barnard on Louis Washkansky in December, 1967, cobalt irradiation and massive doses of immunosuppressive drugs were used to prevent the natural process of rejection. Washkansky succumbed to pneumonia 18 days later because the postoperative treatment weakened his defenses against infection. The use of irradiation and anti-rejection drugs was stopped.

Irradiation is again being utilized, but of a radically different type. It represents another new hope for long-term success. Instead of irradiating the heart or the whole body, nuclear power has now been pinpointed to knock out the specific cause of rejection.

The chief villain in this drama of the body's rejection is presently believed to be white blood cells, the small lymphocytes. Blood or lymph from either artery or lymph vessel is sidetracked through a plastic tube, which winds around a radiation source (a sort of miniature atomic pile) before it carries those body fluids back to a vein.

The latest suggestion has been to use a simple plastic bracelet which would contain the radiation source; thus the flow could be continued as long as necessary, destroying the small lymphocytes which are especially sensitive to radiation—all without anything more elaborate than having the patient wear a bracelet and a small plastic tube.

The immunosuppressive drugs that have been used to control rejection have been steadily improved, and new ones are being steadily developed. The aim is to control the rejection mechanism without weakening the patient's resistance to infection.

Tissue-matching also reduces the likelihood of rejection (the first successful kidney transplant was between identical twins with their perfectly similar tissues). In heart transplantation, a dozen or more factors are now checked for similarity, and these are being increased nearly every month.

Houston's Dr. Denton A. Cooley, world-famous heart-transplant surgeon, has been the only doctor to try an artificial heart in a human being. The use of this device has been professionally questioned, and its use for terminal sufferers like Will Gray is still a matter of doubt. It may be a way of tiding the person over until a transplant is ready, but many problems are involved—clot formation, lack of a reliable long-term power source, and others.

Dr. Cooley summed up transplants in this way: "The initial experience with cardiac transplantation has been encouraging. In fact, nothing has been encountered which was not anticipated from the outset. The remarkable prolongation of life and restoration of good cardiac output has been most encouraging and somewhat beyond expectation.

"In the future, the challenge remains with the prevention of rejection. Once this and other obstacles are overcome by the immunologists, then cardiac transplantation will hold greater promise."

In short, it's likely that in the foreseeable future heart transplants will spell "life" to innumerable suffering human beings—but not without first overcoming some major obstacles, both inside and out of the operating room.

A review of heart transplants released by the National Heart and Lung Institute observes that some 32,000 Americans under 65 could benefit annually from transplants—but only 22,000 hearts are likely to be available each year. Further experiments with animal and artificial hearts will have to be undertaken, and the possibility of strategically located "organ banks" around the country may have to be explored.

Obviously the road ahead is a complex one: but the journey has had a hopeful beginning. ◆

JON VOIGHT SAYS:

"I'd Like to Remain an Unknown"

This potential Oscar winner wants to stay out of the limelight—but it's too late now!

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

Jennifer Salt is Jon's girl friend on screen and in private life.

I NEVER MET anyone more afraid of success than Jon Voight, whose title role in "Midnight Cowboy" might well earn him an Academy Award on April 6.

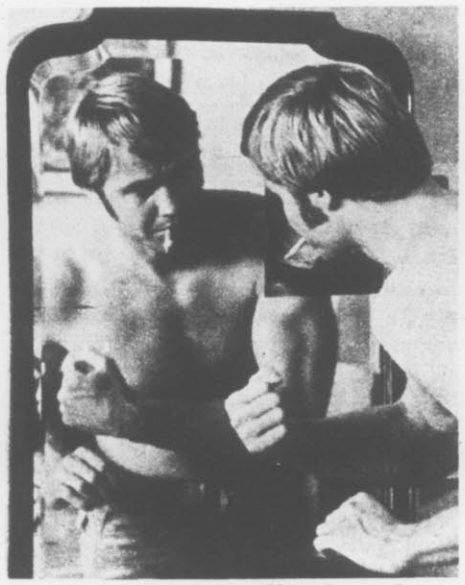
"He is so nervous about publicity that he would prefer not to get his name into print at all," said a United Artists' publicist, who nevertheless talked Jon into having breakfast with me at the Dorchester Hotel in London. Jon was in England to dub his latest film, "The Revolutionary."

Jon showed up at the hotel 10 minutes early—somewhat of a first for an actor who has received so much attention. He insisted that the publicist who introduced us leave us to ourselves. He felt more at ease that way, he explained.

As he put it, "I don't want to be surrounded by an atmosphere that encourages me to take myself seriously. Acting is fun for me. That part is good and healthy. But right now I am aware—maybe overly aware—of how even one film success can distort a person's values."

Jon is certainly not going to change his set of values if he can help it. That is evident in the way he talks, dresses (neat but indifferently), and most of all lives his private life.

In London, for instance, instead of staying in the fashionable West End he got a room in a small place opposite an air terminal which most American tourists would have turned down as much too unimpressive.



Joe Buck role may get Voight an Oscar.

In New York, he has a one-room apartment in a low-rent district on the West Side. At this stage of his life, creature comforts simply don't seem to mean much to Jon.

My first impression of Jon was that he is an intelligent, literate, and highly sensitive person who is deeply involved in all that is going on today and who would much rather talk about politics, Vietnam, and social conditions than himself. He avoided no question and asked that his answers be off the record only when they involved some contractual matters or criticisms of a couple of associates.

The latter certainly did not include John Schlesinger, the director of "Midnight Cowboy," for whom Jon has the highest regard. Schlesinger at first rejected Jon, who auditioned for both of the leads in the film. In fact, Voight got the part of Joe Buck as a result of a mistake made by the projectionist.

Schlesinger had tested a good many actors for the part of the Texas hustler who tries selling himself to rich women. Among those rejected from the very beginning was Jon. At the time, Michael Sarrazin was first choice, but his agents wanted more money than Schlesinger was willing to pay.

While the bickering went on, the British director decided to take another look at half a dozen of the more hopefuls he had tested before. Jon was not among them.

Fortunately for the young actor, the projectionist showed Jon's test again by mistake. This time Schlesinger was impressed and asked Jon for another audition. As a result, the actor Schlesinger had so readily rejected before got the part.

"Unlike anything else I have done before and since, I felt that I absolutely had to play Joe Buck, that I was the only actor really qualified to do it," Jon told me.

This statement might have been out of character with my impression of Jon if it hadn't been said with such sincerity. It was simply an honest self-appraisal of a man who insists he is more critical of himself than most actors he knows.

In spite of all the attention he has received in the past few months, 30-year-old Yonkers-born Jon Voight is no "instant success." He had had nine years of stock, television, and small movie roles before he portrayed Joe Buck.

Jon, whose father is a golf pro and who himself earned his first pocket money caddying for his father at age eight, did not grow up with visions of becoming an actor.

He graduated from the Catholic University of America with a degree in fine arts. "I was set on stage design as a profession. I also felt I had a strong talent for painting. But somehow at the back of my mind I must have wanted to become an actor, although I didn't want to admit it."

At school Jon showed a pronounced feeling for literature and philosophy as well as a keen sense of self-criticism which dismissed anything that seemed too dogmatic and too pretentious to him. "I always enjoyed digging for logic at the heart of things. I believe this paid off when I became an actor."

After a brief spell in summer stock, Jon spent a year with drama coach Joss Shelley in New York.

"At this time I was so heavily involved with a girl that I was much too busy and preoccupied for such mundane things as learning lines. Moreover, when I played Happy in 'Death of a Salesman' I almost fainted on the stage with tension.

"No wonder the notices about me stated that I could neither walk nor talk! And the rest of the season was worse! After this, when I went back to New York for a small part in 'The Sound of Music,' I was a total wreck. After all, I had just proved to myself that I knew nothing about acting."

Jon feels that he got his hard core experience "working for television people who were always very good to me when I was broke and needed to work. That is why I will always try to come back for a show if they ask me."

Following the tremendous success of "Cowboy," Jon was swamped with offers for roles, almost all of them for more money than he got for "The Revolutionary." He accepted the film not so much because he liked the script but out of a feeling of obligation to director Paul Williams and producer Edward Pressman, who had given him his first important role in "Out of It."

"It was a good part, but, unlike that of Joe Buck, it could have been played by any number of actors as well," Jon explained quietly.

The female lead was played by Jennifer Salt, who readily confesses that she developed "a huge crush" on Jon Voight after first seeing him on television in "The Dwarfs." In "Midnight Cowboy," Jennifer played his early girl friend. And in private life she has been Jon's girl for over a year, with odds heavily in favor of her becoming Mrs. Voight.

Jennifer—who also likes to keep out of the limelight—shares Jon's point of view of working for the enjoyment of it and not for the sake of publicity or even money. As Jon put it as he left, "I would love to go on making movies without anyone knowing who I am." ◆

SELF-IMPROVEMENT

Are You Getting the Most Out of Life?

If not, science has some advice, ranging from love to well-fitted shoes

YOU'LL GET more out of life if you look and feel your best —and researchers have recently made some intriguing discoveries which can help. Let's take a look at their findings in this quiz.

1. You should always force yourself to take exercise.

2. You'll stay younger longer if you get plenty of sunshine.

3. A meal that you enjoy will do you more good than one eaten just because "it's good for you."

4. Too much sleep can be dangerous.

5. It's simply impossible to feel fit if your shoes don't.

6. You should stop worrying.

7. If you want to get more out of life, you should concentrate your efforts on achieving only personal goals you feel will make you happy.

8. As long as you feel unlucky, you'll be unlucky.

ANSWERS

1. False. While exercise is an important factor in keeping youthful and maintaining physical fitness, the exercise should be pleasurable. Dr. Thomas Hodge McGavack, lecturer at George Washington University, has made a study of the dynamics of exercise and finds that if it is done under pressure, it is usually worthless.

2. False. Studies at the University of Miami school of medicine have shown that exposure to the sun does more than the aging process itself to produce the skin conditions associated with growing old. Light blondes are most subject to the ravages of too much sun exposure; dark brunettes are the least vulnerable.

3. True. Unless you have some specific dietary problem, a meal you really enjoy and take pleasure in eating will do you more good in terms of a general feeling of well-being than food eaten just because "it's good for you."

4. True. Medical statistician E. Cuyler Hammond analyzed the records of 800,000 Americans over a six-year period. It was found that persons who averaged nine or 10 hours of sleep were far more subject to heart disease or stroke than sleepers averaging seven hours a night. On the other hand, psychological studies have shown that many people suffering from psychosomatic ailments are ill because they fail to get enough sleep—and recover within a short time when they are induced to get an adequate amount.

5. True. On this point, Dr. Rene Gailliet, clinical professor of medicine at the University of Southern California's school of medicine, points out that your feet don't stay the same size all day. They tend to get bigger as the day gets longer because standing and walking cause the ligaments to relax. Therefore, he advises, buy shoes in the afternoon when your feet have expanded to their maximum if you want to avoid the unhappy disposition which goes hand-in-hand with unhappy feet.

6. False. It's perfectly natural to worry whenever you're faced with real dangers and threats. As one leading psychiatrist has observed, to remain unworried in threatening or hazardous situations is often a sign of mental disturbance. However, "free-floating" anxiety—or worry about vague and fanciful dangers which have little likelihood of occurring—is a habit which should be broken.

7. False. Psychological studies have demonstrated that a self-centered attitude has a negative and inhibiting effect on the personality and sharply diminishes the capacity for pleasure and enjoyment. The best way to get more out of life is to give more. And people who share in the hopes and disappointments of others—people who give of themselves—get the most out of life.

8. True. Studies at the University of Santa Clara have also shown that a person's attitude and general outlook determine to a very large extent the degree to which his efforts are crowned with luck or good fortune. So if you haven't been getting the breaks lately, take science's word for it—you can change your luck by changing your mental attitude.

Down to the Beach in Dune Buggies

By NORMAN SKLAREWITZ

Buggy racer jumps dunes and flies through air during race on beach.

Starter marks distance buggy made up hill (above). Spectators drive own buggies up to racing site at Pismo Beach, Calif.

IF YOU THINK you're too old for a hot rod, but too young for a rocking chair, maybe what you need is a "dune buggy."

These odd-looking little cars are the hottest things on wheels—but on the beach, not the highway. That's because they're designed to chug around on sandy stretches only.

Almost any weekend, thousands of dune-buggy fans take to the sand, from the great dunes of the Arizona-California border, to the flatlands outside of Salt Lake City, and from the beaches of Florida up to Cape Cod in New England during the summer months. In Hawaii, they're painted wildly and called "love buggies."

Old-timers will snort that there's nothing really new about dune buggies. And they're partially right. For years, fishermen and hunters have taken old cars, lowered the tire pressure to get traction on sand and gravel, and driven off paved roads to find the best grounds. The dune buggy is really a super model-T Ford—and then some.

Success of the dune buggy (price, $400 to $3,000) was probably inspired by the popularity of the Volkswagen in the U.S. These little cars have their engines in the rear instead of the front. And this placement of the weight over the rear axle means the car has the ability to develop better traction—that is, to get a grip on such slippery surfaces as sand and push itself up steep inclines.

Standard tires are replaced with all sorts of oversized rear tires to gain greater grabbing power in the sand. When in action, air pressure is reduced to about two pounds. Result is that the vehicle rides atop the sand instead of sinking down.

And, of course, wherever two or more vehicles gather, there's bound to be a race of some kind. But the dune-buggy variety generally turns out to be a combination competition and family picnic since kids and grownups alike find dune-buggy driving a groovy way to scoot on sand. ◆

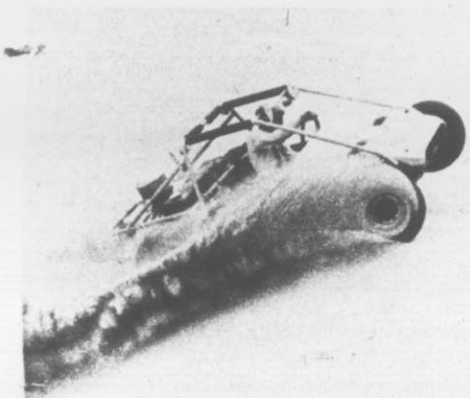
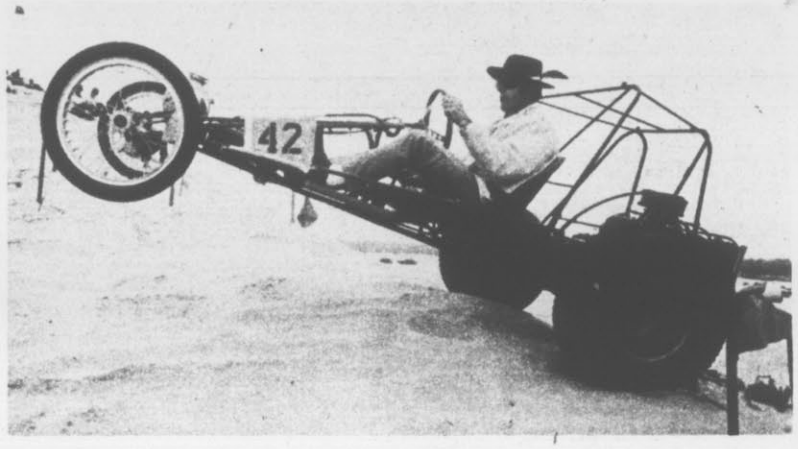
Front wheels are way off ground as No. 42 clears top of hill while speedster (below) slices sand in hot pursuit!





Dune-buggy fan took family on sandy outing but took it easier than speed fan (left) who kicked up a wake.

An Important Message

To Every Man And Woman In America Losing His Or Her Hair

If you are troubled by thinning hair, dandruff, itchy scalp, if you fear approaching baldness, read the rest of this statement carefully. It may mean the difference to you between saving your hair and losing the rest of it to eventual baldness.

Baldness is simply a matter of subtraction. When the number of new hairs fail to equal the number of falling hair, you end up minus your head of hair (bald). Why not avoid baldness by preventing unnecessary loss of hair? Why not turn the tide of battle on your head by eliminating needless causes of hair loss and give Nature a chance to grow more hair for you? Many of the country's dermatologists and other foremost hair and scalp specialists believe that seborrhea, a common scalp disorder, causes hair loss. What is seborrhea? It is a bacterial infection of the scalp that can eventually cause permanent damage to the hair follicles. Its visible evidence is "thinning" hair. Its end result is baldness. Its symptoms are dry, itchy scalp, dandruff, oily hair, head scales, and progressive hair loss.

So, if you are beginning to notice that your forehead is getting larger, beginning to notice that there is too much hair on your comb, beginning to be worried about the dryness of your hair, the itchyness of your scalp, the ugly dandruff — these are Nature's Red Flags warning you of impending baldness. Even if you have been losing your hair for some time, don't let seborrhea rob you of the rest of your hair.

HOW COMATE WORKS ON YOUR SCALP

The development of an amazing new hair and scalp medicine called Comate is specifically designed to control seborrhea and stop the hair loss it causes. It offers the opportunity to thousands of men and women losing their hair to bacterial infection to reverse the battle they are now losing on their scalps. By stopping this impediment to normal hair growth, new hairs can grow as Nature intended.

This is how Comate works. (1) It combines in a single scalp treatment the essential corrective factors for normal hair growth. By its rubifacient action it stimulates blood circulation to the scalp, thereby supplying more nutrition to still-alive hair follicles. (2) As a highly effective antiseptic, Comate kills on contact the seborrhea-causing scalp bacteria believed to be a cause of baldness. (3) By its keratolitic action it dissolves ugly dandruff. By tending to normalize the lubrication of the hair shaft it corrects excessively dry and oily hair. It eliminates head scales and scalp itch.

In short, Comate offers you in a single treatment the best that modern medicine has developed for the preservation of your hair. There is no excuse today except ignorance for any man or woman to neglect seborrhea and pay the penalty of hair loss.

Note To Doctors
Doctors, clinics and hospitals interested in scalp disorders can obtain professional samples and literature on written request.

Male pattern baldness is the cause of the great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss. In such cases neither the Comate treatment nor any other treatment is effective.

COMATE IS UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED

To you we offer this UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Treat your scalp to Comate in your own home, following the simple directions. See for yourself in your own mirror how after a few treatments, Comate makes your hair look thicker and alive. How Comate ends your dandruff, stops your scalp itch. How Comate gives your hair a chance to grow. Most men and women report results after the first treatment, some take longer. But we say this to you. If, for any reason, you are not completely satisfied with the improvement in your own case — AT ANY TIME — return the unused portion for a prompt refund. No questions asked.

But don't delay. For the sake of your hair, order Comate today. Nothing — not even Comate — can grow hair from dead follicles. Fill out the coupon now, and take the first step toward a good head of hair again.

A Casual Springtime Luncheon

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Spring seems to bring with it a magical charm that awakens our overtired taste buds. It excites a lively desire for little luxuries such as the fresh asparagus and tender young rhubarb now appearing in most markets—included is a special recipe for each.

Plan luncheon around this Greek-style salad, featuring lamb and ripe olives.

Spring-Green Soup

- 2 medium-sized cucumbers, pared and cut in pieces
- 1 small onion, quartered
- 2 teaspoons parsley
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon dill weed
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1½ cups warm water
- 1 cup light cream
- 1 or 2 drops green food coloring
- Seasoned salt

1. Put into a blender container cucumber, onion, parsley, bouillon cubes, lemon juice, dill weed, butter or margarine, and flour; blend until puréed. Gradually add one half of the water and continue blending.

2. Empty one half the contents of container into a saucepan. Continue blending while adding remainder of water; empty into the saucepan. Stirring occasionally, bring to boiling and cook 2 min. Stir in the cream. Heat or chill thoroughly before serving.

3. Tint a pale green by blending in the food coloring. Mix in seasoned salt to taste.

4. Set small mugs or cups on a serving tray. Ladle hot soup into each. Or ladle cold soup into small clear glasses. Accompany with assorted crackers. About 2½ cups soup

Fresh Asparagus with Lemon Sauce

How to Cook Fresh Asparagus

Break off and discard lower parts of stalks from desired amount of fresh asparagus as far down as they will snap. If necessary, remove scales to dislodge any sand. Wash the spears thoroughly. Cook 5 min. in an uncovered skillet containing boiling salted water to a depth of 1 in. Cover and cook until just tender, 5 to 10 min.; drain.

To Serve Buffet Style

Line up drained asparagus spears parallel to ends of a heated oval platter; accompany with serving tongs. Set on the buffet with the Cooked Lemon Sauce (see recipe) and a pepper mill. The sauce will keep hot throughout serving if it is in a heat-resistant bowl set on a candle warmer. If desired, guests may grind pepper over the sauced asparagus.

Greek-Style Lamb and Olive Salad

Prepare an assortment of hot rolls using available refrigerated fresh doughs.

- Greek-Style Salad Dressing (see recipe)
- 1½ lbs. roast lamb, trimmed of fat and cut in strips (see note)
- 1 large cucumber, pared and sliced
- 4 medium-sized tomatoes, sliced and quartered
- 1 cup pitted ripe olives
- Curly endive

1. Pour the dressing over lamb in a bowl and marinate, covered, in refrigerator at least 1 hr., or until thoroughly chilled.

2. Before serving, toss cucumber, tomatoes, and olives with some of the dressing and turn onto a bed of curly endive in a large salad bowl. Spoon meat over vegetables and pour more dressing over all. 6 servings

Note: To roast lamb, set a leg of lamb on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Roast in a 325°F. oven until a meat thermometer registers 175°F.

Greek-Style Salad Dressing

- ½ cup olive oil or all-purpose oil
- 1 cup red wine vinegar
- 3 to 4 tablespoons honey
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
- 2 teaspoons crushed dried mint leaves
- ¼ teaspoon crushed oregano
- ¼ teaspoon crushed thyme
- ¼ teaspoon anise seed

Mix together the oil, vinegar, honey, and a blend of remaining ingredients. About 2 cups dressing

Cooked Lemon Sauce

This satiny smooth sauce—hot or cold—is a superb complement to vegetables and fish. With the addition of various herbs, this elegant sauce can be the basis of many more.

- 2 eggs
- 2 egg yolks
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 wide strips of thinly sliced lemon peel (do not cut into white)
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- ¾ cup warm water

1. Put eggs, egg yolks, lemon juice and peel, and bouillon cube into an electric blender container; cover and turn motor on low. Add the water gradually while blending.

2. Empty container into a double boiler top and set over simmering water. Stirring constantly, cook until sauce is thickened and coats a spoon (about 7 min.). About 1½ cups sauce

Rosy Rhubarb Pie

- Pastry for a 2-crust 9-in. pie (prepared from your favorite pie crust mix)
- 1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca
- 6 cups 1-in. fresh rhubarb pieces
- ¼ cup grenadine
- 1¾ cups sugar
- ½ cup flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel

1. Prepare pastry and fit lower crust into pie pan. Sprinkle tapioca over bottom of pie shell; set aside.

2. Toss rhubarb with grenadine, then with a mixture of sugar, flour, salt, and orange peel; turn into pie shell, heaping slightly in center. Dot with butter or margarine.

3. Moisten edge of bottom crust with water for a tight seal. Cut a decorative design in top crust and carefully lay over filling. Seal edges and flute.

4. Brush top lightly with egg white; sprinkle with 2 teaspoons sugar.

5. Bake at 450°F. 15 min.; turn oven control to 375°F. and bake 20 to 25 min., or until golden brown. Cool on a wire rack. One 9-in. pie

Panty Pair vs Pantyhose.

To put it simply, Hanes' Panty Pair® is pantyhose taken a step further.

If one leg goes, you don't have to throw the whole thing out.

It doesn't bag. It doesn't sag. It doesn't bunch up. It doesn't slide down.

All this without a garter or snap or bump to spoil the smooth line from waist to toe. And without having to haul on a girdle to keep your pantyhose up.

Panty Pair comes in two parts: A two-way stretch panty with a gentle touch of control. Plus a pair of replaceable Cantrece® II stockings.

Putting on Panty Pair is simplicity itself. You slip on the stockings. Ease on the panty. Adjust the panty legs to just the height you want. And that's it. The stockings stay up because the panty's flat cuffs automatically grip the tops of the stockings—without putting any pressure on your thighs.

At $5* complete, Panty Pair costs a little bit more than pantyhose to begin with. But at $1 a leg for replacement stockings, it ends up costing you far less in the long run.

For women with more to control, there's also a Panty Pair with more control: Panty Pair Plus.™ Either way, you get a perfect fit that stays that way without constant tugging and smoothing and fidgeting.

Won't that be refreshing after some of the pantyhose you've tried?

Hanes

*Suggested retail price. Panty Pair—a detachable panty hose—patent pending.

I stopped crash dieting and lost 70 pounds.

By Farley Heward—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

I LIVE in a hotel. Alone. And I can't tell you how many times I used to call on the help to zip up my dresses. My problem, of course, was my weight. I'm only a little over five feet one inch tall, yet, at one point, I weighed as much as 198 pounds. Most of this I carried in my upper arms and from my waist down. When I walked, I waddled. Was I ever fat! A big reason, I think, why my marriage broke up.

As long as I can remember, I've had to fight fat. Once, I recall, a friend of mine sent me a snapshot, showing herself, her brother and me. I was so disgusted with it that I took a pair of scissors, cut me out of the middle, glued the two pieces together, and sent it back to her. She was furious.

Perhaps one reason for my weight problem was that I've always been a good cook. When my husband married me, I was fairly thin. But when he left me, I was fat. He really went for my cooking. In the beginning, he used to want me to put on weight. "I don't want anybody else to look at you," he'd say. And I believed him. But in the end, he didn't want to look at me, either. So we were divorced.

After that, I crash-dieted. I think I've been on every diet ever invented. The banana-and-milk diet. The grapefruit diet. The low-carbohydrate diet. The cottage cheese diet. The liquid diets. I can't remember which one I tried at the time, but whichever it was, it worked. Temporarily. At least, I lost enough weight to satisfy me for a while. But only a short while. As soon as I went back to my regular way of eating, I began to gain. My appetite was enormous. Pancakes, French toast, spicy Italian foods, baked beans, ice cream, candy—I ate anything that was good. And fattening. In about one-eighth the time it had taken me to lose the weight, I had put it all back on again.

It wasn't a very good example to set for my daughter, I must admit. But I guess I didn't give it much thought at the time. As a result, she learned young what it's like to struggle with the scale.

The years rolled on, and eventually, I came to Buffalo, New York, to work in a very large beauty salon. I'm a hairdresser and wigger, by profession. At the shop, the wig ovens are on the second floor. And each time I had to climb those stairs, I really puffed. Everybody knew when Farley was going to shrink a wig. Too bad I couldn't shrink myself.

Finally, my weight began to affect my health. My blood pressure was high. And headaches were frequent. I'm ashamed to say, however, that it was not until I had to spend ten dollars on alterations of a size 22½ dress that I decided I had to do something about my weight. But what? I'd already tried diet fads, gimmicks and reducing pills, and all I did was go down and up and down and up the scale.

One day, during a break at the beauty parlor, I picked up a magazine and saw the story of the woman who'd lost close to one hundred pounds with the help of a little vitamin and mineral reducing plan candy. It was called Ayds. And it contained no harmful drugs.

I thought if she could do it, maybe I could, too. So, on the way home, I bought a box of Ayds at the drugstore. The chocolate fudge-type, though I've since tried the vanilla-caramel and the new chocolate mint ones.

How did I take them? Before meals with a hot drink, just as the directions say. And I didn't have to make any special meals. Fact is, I don't have any cooking facilities at the hotel, so I eat out. In the morning, I'd have my Ayds and coffee in my room, then go down and have juice, two eggs, toast with a pat of butter, and more coffee. At noon, I wouldn't be very hungry. But I'd have another Ayds with coffee, and maybe a cup of soup and a sandwich. And for dinner, after still another Ayds, I'd order a regular meal. Often I wouldn't even feel like dessert. That was the great thing about the Ayds Plan. I really felt like eating less. I'd found something, at last, to help me cut back my appetite. If I did get the urge to eat between meals, there were always more Ayds. They taste just like ordinary candy, so they satisfied my craving for sweets.

Soon, the weight began to come off. Pound after pound. I weighed myself daily in the five-and-ten across the street, so I know. I've got to admit that I also did some isometrics to help tighten up the muscles. But they're easy.

I realized, suddenly, the stairs were easier to climb. The headaches were less frequent. And my clothes were getting big. By the time I'd lost seventy pounds, nothing fit. But I felt great.

I lost so much weight in the thighs and legs that I can now wear medium-length stockings, instead of extra-long ones. Even my shoe size has gone from 8½ D to 7 C. You should see me scurry up to the wig ovens these days.

One thing more that makes me feel good. When I was heavy, and friends used to introduce me to a man, everything would go along fine—while I was sitting down. But the minute I stood up, that was the end. Today, thanks to Ayds, I'm as popular standing as sitting. Who knows? I may even marry again.

BEFORE AND AFTER MEASUREMENTS

Before		After
5′ 1½″	Height	5′ 1½″
198 lbs.	Weight	128 lbs.
42″	Bust	36″
36″	Waist	24″
46″	Hips	34″
22½	Dress Size	8

Too bad you can't see how big my legs were here. They were some sight. But I never wanted to keep snapshots like that around.

Now look at me—at 128 pounds. My thighs and legs still aren't as small as I'd like, but at least I'm able to raise my hemline to a more fashionable length.

UNAWARE THAT AN AMERICAN EMBASSY MAN IS SEARCHING FOR HIM, TERRY PROPOSES A LONG SHOT SCHEME TO ATTRACT ATTENTION.

UNTIL A MORE REASONABLE MANNER OF ESCAPING THIS PLACE TURNS UP, I SUPPOSE WE COULD TRY YOUR SIGNAL. HOW DO WE GET TO OUR BAGS?

THEY'RE HERE SOMEPLACE, AND THE GUARD WHO IMPROVED OUR CHOW IS AVAILABLE FOR PETTY GRAFT...

THEN, WHEN THE TWO PRISONERS ARE LET OUT FOR EXERCISE...

...NO HARM IN A PAIR OF CLEAN SHIRTS IS THERE? IN HERE?

GOT THEM, KARSOV?

UH, HUH... LET'S GET OUT OF HERE BEFORE THE TIN SOLDIER NOTICES WE ARE NOT PACING THE YARD.

LATER...

I SUSPECT OUR BOY GOES OFF DUTY RIGHT AFTER HIS NIGHT INSPECTION. LET'S HOPE HE HAS A PROPER SOLDIER'S PREFERENCE FOR JOINING MILLING THRONGS.

SO! MUCH BETTER! IS PROPER MILITARY COURTESY.

JUST SHOWING OUR REGARD FOR A FIRST CLASS OFFICER, SERGEANT. AS MILITARY MEN, WE ADMIRE THE ELITE MANNER IN WHICH YOU CARRY OUT YOUR DUTIES.

MATTER OF FACT, AS A TOKEN OF OUR PROFESSIONAL ESTEEM, WE'D LIKE TO FORMALLY PRESENT YOU WITH INSIGNIA RESPECTED BY FIGHTING MEN THE WORLD OVER.

AFTER ALL, A SOLDIER OF YOUR STATURE IS ENTITLED TO BE NOTICED, TO HAVE ALL EYES ON HIM...

HE'S NOT VERY FRIENDLY, IS HE?

YOU COULD SAY THAT

WHAT DO YOU THINK WOULD HAPPEN IF I TURNED AROUND AND GAVE HIM A BIG KISS?

WHO KNOWS?

HOW SHOULD I DO IT? JUST WHIRL AROUND, AND KISS HIM?

WHY NOT?

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Our Story: SUMMER IS AT AN END AND THERE IS A HINT OF FROST IN THE WIND THAT SWAYS THE BARE TREE BRANCHES. BUT ALL IS GAY, FOR THIS IS THE TIME FOR THE HUNT AND ALL MUST BE IN READINESS.

IT IS ALSO THE TIME FOR TOURNAMENTS, BANQUETS AND DANCES. THE LADIES DESCEND TO ALL MANNER OF CHICANERY TO SECURE THE SERVICES OF THE BEST DRESSMAKERS.

YOUNG KNIGHTS PRACTICING FOR THE JOUSTS TAKE THEIR TRAINING SO SERIOUSLY THAT MANY WILL VIEW THE TOURNAMENT FROM THE INFIRMARY WINDOWS.

THE FIRST HUNT IS IN THE KING'S DEER PARK. WITH SOUNDING HORNS, BARKING HOUNDS AND MERRY SHOUTS, THE PARTY RIDES THROUGH WOODLAND AND MEADOW.

AT MIDDAY THE KING HALTS: "NOT ONE BENIGHTED DEER HAVE WE SEEN THIS DAY," HE SCOWLS. "HAS SOME WITCHCRAFT MADE THEM INVISIBLE? WELL, I SEE THE SERVANTS HAVE ARRIVED WITH FOOD. WE WILL TRY AGAIN AFTER WE DINE."

"SIRE, I PASSED THIS WAY SOME DAYS AGO AND MANY DEER WERE SEEN. BY YOUR LEAVE I WILL TRY TO SOLVE THE MYSTERY."

AFTER A FEW HOUR'S RIDING VAL COMES TO WHERE THE PARK ENDS IN A DENSE THICKET. THERE ARE NUMEROUS DEER TRACKS ALL LEADING INTO IT. NOW, WHO WOULD PLAY SUCH TRICKS ON THE KING?
