Mail Strike Crumbling Fast

Postal Union Leaders Called To Parley

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, encouraged by the fast crumbling mail strike, called postal union leaders in today to start negotiating a pay raise.

The only major holdout, the 6,700-member Manhattan-Bronx letter carriers local that started the week-old illegal strike, was ordered by a federal judge to return to work by 5 p.m. EST or start paying fines of $10,000 each day.

Federal troops ordered by President Nixon Monday were still working in the New York City offices, allowing some service there.

Brooklyn's letter carriers, the second major New York local involved in the strike, broke ranks and voted Tuesday night to return to work Thursday.

As workers returned to their jobs in Detroit, Newark, St. Paul-Minneapolis and Westchester, N.Y., Blount announced at a hastily called news conference Tuesday night he would meet with leaders of all seven major postal unions to begin negotiating a pay raise if the back-

He said he hoped a settlement could be worked out in less than five days but said he was setting no time limit.

Optimism for a settlement also was generated Tuesday when Congress broke a three-month deadlock over postal pay and agreed to a House-Senate conference on bills that could boost postal wages as much as 11.1 per cent.

But Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee, injected a note of caution, saying "This crisis is not over. This crisis hinges on the ability of the administration to negotiate a settlement downtown." McGee said only then or unless negotiations break down should Congress pass any bill.

The strikers demanded a 40 per cent pay boost to a range of $8,500 to $11,700 a year from the present $6,176-$8,442 range. But Congress holds the purse strings and it can go no higher than 11.1 per cent without restarting the time-consuming pay bill procedure.

The first major strike in the Post Office Department's 195-year history had spread to the six-state New England area and Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wisconsin.

At the strike's peak, more than 180,000 of the nation's 750,000 postal workers were off the job.

But strikers began going back to work over the weekend and then started returning by the thousands Tuesday.

The embargo of mail to New York City was partially lifted by Blount Tuesday night as soldiers sorted and dispatched the mounds of mail, and mail began flowing into Connecticut for the first time since the strike began.

Outgoing emergency mail resumed on a limited basis from New York—mail such as medical supplies, pension, welfare and other benefit checks, financial and legal records and mail for Vietnam.

National Guardsmen and reservists sorted mail, picked it up at airports and shuttled it between post offices but there were no street, office or home pickups.

Nixon Asks Stiffer Penalties, Even Death, Against Bombers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress today to increase penalties—even to the death penalty—and to extend federal jurisdiction to deal with the rash of bombings by "potential murderers."

The President proposed extending and strengthening laws involving the transportation and use of explosives in the wake of what he called an alarming increase in criminal bombings and threats in recent months that "have sent fear through many American communities."

Schools and public buildings have had to be evacuated, property has been destroyed and lives lost, Nixon said.

"Clearly many of these bombings have been the work of political fanatics, many of them young criminals posturing as romantic revolutionaries. They must be dealt with as the potential murderers they are," the President said.

He said these "anarchic and criminal elements who perpetuate such acts deserve no more patience or indulgence. It is time to deal with them for what they are."

Nixon issued the statement in connection with his request for strengthened laws and the Justice Department was to send the legislation to Capitol Hill today. Present law under certain circumstances makes it a federal crime to transport explosives across state lines.

Nixon proposed:

—Making it a federal crime to use explosives to damage or destroy any building, vehicle or property owned by the federal government or involving any business engaged in interstate commerce or any federal property or property of private businesses engaged in interstate commerce.

—Possession, without written authorization, of any explosive in a federal building or one leased to the federal government would be a federal crime.

—Incendiary devices would be included in the category of "explosives" to bring such devices under antibombing provisions of the law.

—The individual engaged in transport or use of explosives in violation of these provisions would be subject to the death penalty if a fatality occurs.

Other penalties for violation of federal law involving bombings would be increased also.

Anyone involved in transport or receipt of explosives intending their unlawful use would be subject to 10 years in jail and a $10,000 fine. The current maximum penalty is a year of prison or a $1,000 fine or both.

The maximum penalty would be doubled to 20 years in prison and a $20,000 fine if anyone is injured as the result of such transport of explosives.

And penalties for bomb threats would be raised from one year in prison to a maximum of five years and a $5,000 fine.

Nixon emphasized his purpose in bringing these crimes under federal jurisdiction "is not to displace state or local authorities." He said the aim is to assist these branches of government. Federal investigations and prosecutions will begin only after the attorney general determines such intervention is necessary in the public interest, Nixon said.

He also said he was asking Law Enforcement Assistance Administration funds be specially designated for state and local training programs to aid in coping with this latest threat to public safety and a free and open society.

Israeli Bag Four MIGs

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli pilots shot down four Egyptian MIG21s today in dogfights over the Suez Canal area, the Israeli military command announced.

All Israeli planes returned safely, the command said. It gave this account:

Israeli jets crossed the canal in the central and southern sectors at 9:40 a.m., attacking radar installations and artillery batteries.

For just over an hour they had the skies to themselves, with only antiaircraft fire to challenge them. Then at 10:45 Egypt's Russian-made MIGs went into action.

The Israeli and Egyptian pilots dueling at 20,000 feet. Two of the Egyptian pilots parachuted after their planes were hit.

Israeli forces now have claimed to have downed 80 Egyptian planes since the June 1967 war.

Attend, But No Books

HERTFORD, N.C. (AP) — Principal J. A. Dempsey said almost all pupils attended classes today at troubled Perquimans County Union School, where many boycotted Tuesday, but they did not bring their books.

He said teachers in the all-Negro school were holding classes, anyhow.

Meanwhile, the Perquimans County Board of Education was meeting to discuss demands by the pupils that the school be made a junior high school under a desegregation plan effective next year. It now has all 12 grades.

Dempsey said the pupils were considering a march through Hertford today if the board's decision was not favorable. He said Negro pupils and some parents feel Perquimans Union should be a junior high school, instead of a primary school as the board has proposed, because it is well equipped. They also want a black principal next year.

C. C. Walters, Perquimans County schools superintendent, said the blacks are anxious to preserve the Negro tradition at the school.

An estimated 300 to 400 of the 1,000 pupils walked out of their classes Tuesday after the school board Monday night deferred action on their demands.

Set Hearings On Health

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — A public hearing on two topics will be conducted Friday by the Legislative Research Commission's subcommittee on health.

The topics will be the feasibility and cost of teaching first aid courses in the public high schools, and the advisability of enacting a law for the licensing of commercial blood banks and the personnel employed in such banks who draw and handle human blood.

The hearings are scheduled for 2 p.m.

Highest Rating Awarded Rose High Newspaper

"The Rampant Lines", the J.H. Rose High School newspaper, has been awarded "All American", the highest rating given to school newspapers, in the National Scholastic Press Association (NSPA) sponsored by the University of Minnesota.

School newspapers from every state are judged by NSPA on coverage and content, writing and editing, editorial leadership, physical appearance, and photography. "The Rampant Lines" scored a total of 3,465 points, which placed it in the "All American" category.

"The Rampant Lines" was placed in the category of newspapers with a 1,500 to 2,000 enrollment. Enrollment, as well as frequency of issue; printing process; publication method; type of service; and marks of distinction are used to judge papers in comparison with other papers in the same circulation group. Each group has a different scoring scale.

Editorial written by Billy Armistead, editor, and assistant editor Vickie Morgan were praised for discussing real problems in a mature manner. The staff was complimented by

Deny Frinks' Authority

George Garrett, president of the Pitt Southern Christian Leadership unit, said today that the local chapter has received a telegram from the Atlanta office of SCLC saying State Field Secretary Golden Frinks has no authority to revoke any affiliate's charter.

Frinks, last week, announced that he had suspended the Pitt chapter for what he termed the unauthorized solicitation of funds for the SCLC's legal defense fund.

The telegram referred to by Garrett was a copy of a telegram which he said was sent Frinks and addressed to Mrs. Erma Daniels, who Garrett said is the Pitt SCLC secretary, was signed by T.Y. Rogers Jr., Director of Affiliates for the SCLC.

The telegram read: "You do not have the authority to revoke any affiliate's charter."

"Only the administrative committee acting in the absence of the board has the authority to do that. I strongly urge you to return the charter to the people or I will have to issue a duplicate. Any acts of violations of the by-laws of SCLC should be reported to this office with all details being given."

Neither Frinks or Rogers could be reached for comment on the local charter situation this morning.

At Each Precinct

Registrars will be available in each rural voting precinct in Pitt County Saturday to register voters for the May 2, primary according to I. Bruce Koonce, chairman of the county Board of Elections.

Koonce said Saturday will be the only day that registrars will be at each rural precinct.

The county now has full-time registration, he explained, with voters being able to register each day, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Board of Election's office at the Pitt County Court House.

Registration books on Saturday, when registrars will visit the various rural precincts, will be opened from 9 a.m. until 6:30 p.m.

Voters in Greenville (precincts one through nine) will be able to register at the Court House from 9 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Koonce explained, emphasizing that registrars will not be in each of the nine precincts in Greenville on that day.

The deadline to register to vote in the May 2 primary is April 3.

Koonce said that in order to vote, persons must be registered in the precinct in which they live. He urged that persons who have moved since they registered have their voting records transferred to the precinct in which they now live.

April 3 is the deadline for making such transfers also, Koonce noted.

Market Hog Show Honors To 190-Pound Duroc

Grand champion individual honors in the first annual Pitt County Market Hog Show held yesterday went to a 190 pound Duroc porker, owned and showed by Joe Moye Jr. of Rt. 2, Farmville.

A 230 pound Hampshire, showed by George Hines of Rt. 1, Greenville, took reserve grand champion individual awards while a 190 pound crossbred hog, showed by Gary Smith of Bethel, won junior champion individual honors.

In other hog judging yesterday, the grand champion pen of three award went to W.C. House of Bethel with his pen of Durocs. Tri-County Feed Mill of Bethel showed the reserve grand champion pen and Larry Bwoling showed the junior champion pen of three.

At the auction sale last night, the feed division of FCS, Inc., bought the grand champion individual at a bid of $75 per hundred pounds. Greenville Livestock Auction Sale was the purchaser of the reserve champion.

Other buyers last night included Swift and Company of Wilson, Gwaltney Packing Company's Tarboro buying station, and John Smith of Grifton.

The 58 on-foot hogs and seven carcass barrows were judged by Dr. David Spruill, Animal Husbandry Extension Specialist from North Carolina State University. Dr. Spruill termed the quality "exceptional" for a county show. Ed Yancey, chairman of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, commented, "I'm extremely pleased with the quality of hogs shown here today. We've had quality in cases where we haven't had quantity. Most of these hogs would show well anywhere."

The Pitt County Livestock Development Association, sponsor of the show, presented trophies to the various winners. In addition to the winning animals, John Smith of Grifton and Ricky Haddock of Chicod were presented trophies as winners in the adult and junior judging contest.

GRAND CHAMPION... individual hog in the Pitt County Market Hog Show yesterday was shown by Joe Moye Jr. of Rt. 2, Farmville. The winning porker, a Duroc, tipped the scales at 190 pounds.

Is Husband's Loan Business Or Pleasure?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town where everybody knows everybody else's business.

Well, my husband and I have two cars. He drives one and I drive the other. About a week ago he asked me if I would mind letting him use MY car because his had to go into the shop. Well, of course I said I didn't mind, even tho it meant my begging rides with my neighbors to haul my kids here and there, do my marketing, and so on.

It turned out that HIS car never did go into the shop as there was nothing wrong with it. Instead he let some red-headed divorcee who works for him use HIS car because HERS had to go into the shop. How about that?

Everybody in town has seen this redhead driving my husband's car and I am plenty mad! My sister says I should go see this redhead and smash her nose in. What is your advice?

NO WHEELS

DEAR NO: Don't take your sister's advice seriously or you could have an assault case on your hands. Ask your husband if the redhead is driving his car for business or pleasure. If it's pleasure—give him the business.

DEAR ABBY: I am 27 years old and I'm writing to you with a problem I am too ashamed to ask anybody about face to face.

I grew up on a farm. We had 16 cows who had to be milked morning and evening and I did ALL the milking. We didn't have mechanical milkers, so I milked those cows by HAND myself.

Well, my problem is I have a forearm any man would be proud of, and I am a woman. Is there any way I can get those big muscles down? They aren't as firm as they used to be because I don't milk cows any more, but I would like to wear sleeveless dresses now and then. Thanks for any help you can give me.

"MUSCLES"

DEAR MUSCLES: When a formerly muscular person stops exercising, flab replaces muscle. If I were you, I'd wear sleeves.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please remind your readers to look after parents when they're old, senile, half blind, crippled, and unable to lead a normal life? Old parents need all their children. It's not always easy to cope with aging parents, but we weren't easy to cope with when they were raising US either. We OWE it to them. I just wish someone had reminded ME of these things when Mamma was still alive. It's too late now, and I haven't had a decent night's sleep since she died three months ago.

I knew she had a good home with my sister, so that was that. Why didn't I take her for a few weeks, or even for Sunday dinner, or for a little drive? I never had time for her, yet I had time for others, and anything else I wanted to do. Mamma was so lonely, and a change of scenery would have meant so much to her. Or even a meal at my home, but I was too busy. And I had plenty of excuses.

I suppose the only one in our large family who is sleeping is my sister who took Mamma to live with her. I've tried to ease my conscience by telling myself I wasn't really ashamed of her like my older brother was. Or I wasn't cheap, like another sister. I DID buy her things (which she never really needed or enjoyed much). But it's too late now. I hope Mamma forgives me.

CAN'T SLEEP

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

The North Carolina Education Association has raised a reasonable point in warning that the quality of "instant" private schools thrown up to avoid segregation may not be what is desired by parents or needed by students.

The resolution pledges the state's teachers to "extra effort" to maintain and improve the quality of teaching, whether it be in public schools or in "well housed, established and accredited private schools."

ROCKY MOUNT — The shad are running! That's an electrifying statement in these parts at this season of the year and always signals a mad dash to the banks of Tar River on the part of hundreds of citizens who would rather catch and eat a shad than gobble up a bowl of strawberries with whipped cream.

The shad appeal not only goes out to local fishermen but others for miles around and some from much greater distances flock here in quest of this member of the herring family.

When the head of a big corporation, which has a branch in Rocky Mount, was talking over the telephone to his local manager some year ago he startled the local man with the sudden assertion that "I think it's high time I made a personal, on-the-spot inspection of my holdings in your town."

Then, as the local manager was trying to collect himself, the big boss, who has an undisputed yen for a certain kind of fish, broke the tension by asking, "by the way, aren't the shad running now?"

Once again the shad are starting to come up the Tar River from the coast and once more shad lovers are expected to throng the banks of the Tar in this vicinity as they seek to entice these highly delectable creatures to partake of the latest lures.

Because of an ancient dam which spans the Tar at the site of Rocky Mount Mills, which has been in business since 1818, the shad and the rock fish must end their annual journey from the Atlantic Ocean at this Edgemont-Nash capital. The fish come up to spawn in fresh water after which the eggs start drifting seaward, hatching on the move. Of course, the male or buck shad accompany their females on the journey so that the anglers are able to take fish of either sex.

On the banks shortly after the first of the year the fishermen keep a constant vigil and the first to land a shad never is able to conceal his catch for long. Then, the anglers really turn out in full force. Some use nets, other catch fish from boats — but the majority will be found on the banks.

The rock, second coastal fish to invade waters each season, come later. Fishermen say it's usually after the first full moon in April.

It was not until the late 1950s when it became known that the shad could be taken by any means other than a net. The reason is that the shad's mouth, comparatively small, also is quite tender so that the fisherman, although sometimes able to hook a shad, found the hook tearing away and the fish escaping. Finally, somebody came up with a tiny, shiny spoon and somebody else found a small be-featured lure, each of which was able to hold a shad until he could be brought in.

Then, the post of catching shad on hook and line became so fascinating that most fishermen forgot about their nets.

Chief attraction in catching the shad is the roe, which is considered the best from any fish found in the state. The fish itself is most delectable, but possesses quite a few tiny fish-hook like bones. Some of the real gourmets when it comes to preparing fish have been able to overcome the bone menace by cooking the shad for several hours in an oven on low heat. The causes the bones to disintegrate so that they may be eaten just like the bones in canned salmon.

Shad found hereabouts run from one to five pounds and both the males and the females are highly desirable.

Expert fishermen who have made extensive studies of shad habits report that the female about to spawn usually is surrounded by a number of bucks. It is the latter which is responsible for swimming beneath the females and cutting, by means of a sharp fin the sac which contains thousands of eggs. They are fertilized by the male before they start their long journey to the coast.

Fish hatchery people discovered years ago that shad eggs would not hatch if kept in a tank of still water, but agitation of the water was found to produce the desired results.

Stories concerning shad and shad fishermen are legion in this area. Most fishermen who have had any luck at all usually consider themselves as experts. One of the stories going rounds here a few years ago concerned the church deacon, an ardent fisherman, who discovered his pastor sitting on the bank with a pole in hand.

"Parson, there's a right way and a wrong way to catch shad," the layman observed as he advised the minister to leave his site and accept another kind of lure. The preacher sat at the new site beside the member of his flock, but after an hour of steady fishing neither had received even a nibble. When the layman started to protest after discovering that the minister was about to move, the pastor waved him aside and completely hushed him with the assertion, "I believe I'll go back to my original site, using my first equipment. You see I had caught nine fish there before you came along."

the danger of sacrificing the quality of education offered youngsters when some purpose other than education is the over-riding factor in establishment of a school. Although North Carolina has seen more private schools established in recent years than in any comparable period in this century, it should not be concluded that all of them have been established at the expense of the quality of education offered their students.

Many of the private schools are proving themselves to be sound, well financed, with high academic standards, well rounded educational programs for their students.

There are some, however, that obviously are not offering their students the calibre of education available in the public schools. There are some in which the desire to avoid integration, rather than the quest for quality education, has been the motivating factor in their establishment. It is of this latter group that the NCEA warns in its resolution adopted last week.

Those teachers who make up the state Education Association have expressed a concern that should be shared by all other citizens. If any child is getting an inferior education in North Carolina, the entire state and its future are being penalized... not just the child himself. The degree to which citizens throughout the state strive to assure quality education in both public and private schools will in large measure chart the future for this state.

Like many other states, North Carolina too long has paid the price of unequal, inferior educational opportunities for some of its young people in public schools. This situation, rapidly being corrected throughout the state, must not be replaced by a similar set of circumstances where "instant" private schools are concerned.

Tobacco To Continue Playing Large Role

While there are great changes going on so far as production of tobacco is concerned, there is still much to indicate that the crop will be around for a long time.

The latest evidence of this is the Agriculture Department's report that tobacco consumption throughout the world increased by three percent in 1969. The Foreign Agricultural Service estimates that 153 billion packs were consumed during the year. This was true even though U.S. consumption is estimated to be down by about two percent.

The tobacco experts say that world cigarette output is expected to continue rising although growth may not be as rapid as it has been in the past. The U.S. tobacco industry will in all likelihood share in the increase because "The American blend requiring high-quality tobacco is a symbol of prestige," the report said.

So far as our own area is concerned, this should mean that there will not be any sudden disappearance of tobacco with the disastrous consequences this could have on our economy. Tobacco will continue to be under attack but it is going to continue to be an important part of our agricultural picture.

Wallace's Only Political Hope

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
POBERTSDALE, ALA. —

Before an all-white audience of 5,000 at a fish-fry in this south Alabama village climaxing his first full day of campaigning, George C. Wallace unveiled the strategy that holds his only hope for political survival.

The reason drives of newspaper columnists from up north were journeying to rural Alabama, said Wallace, was their awareness that the life or death of his "effort" are at stake. "I want this effort to continue," he said. "The eyes of the country are on you. You have the power in your hands."

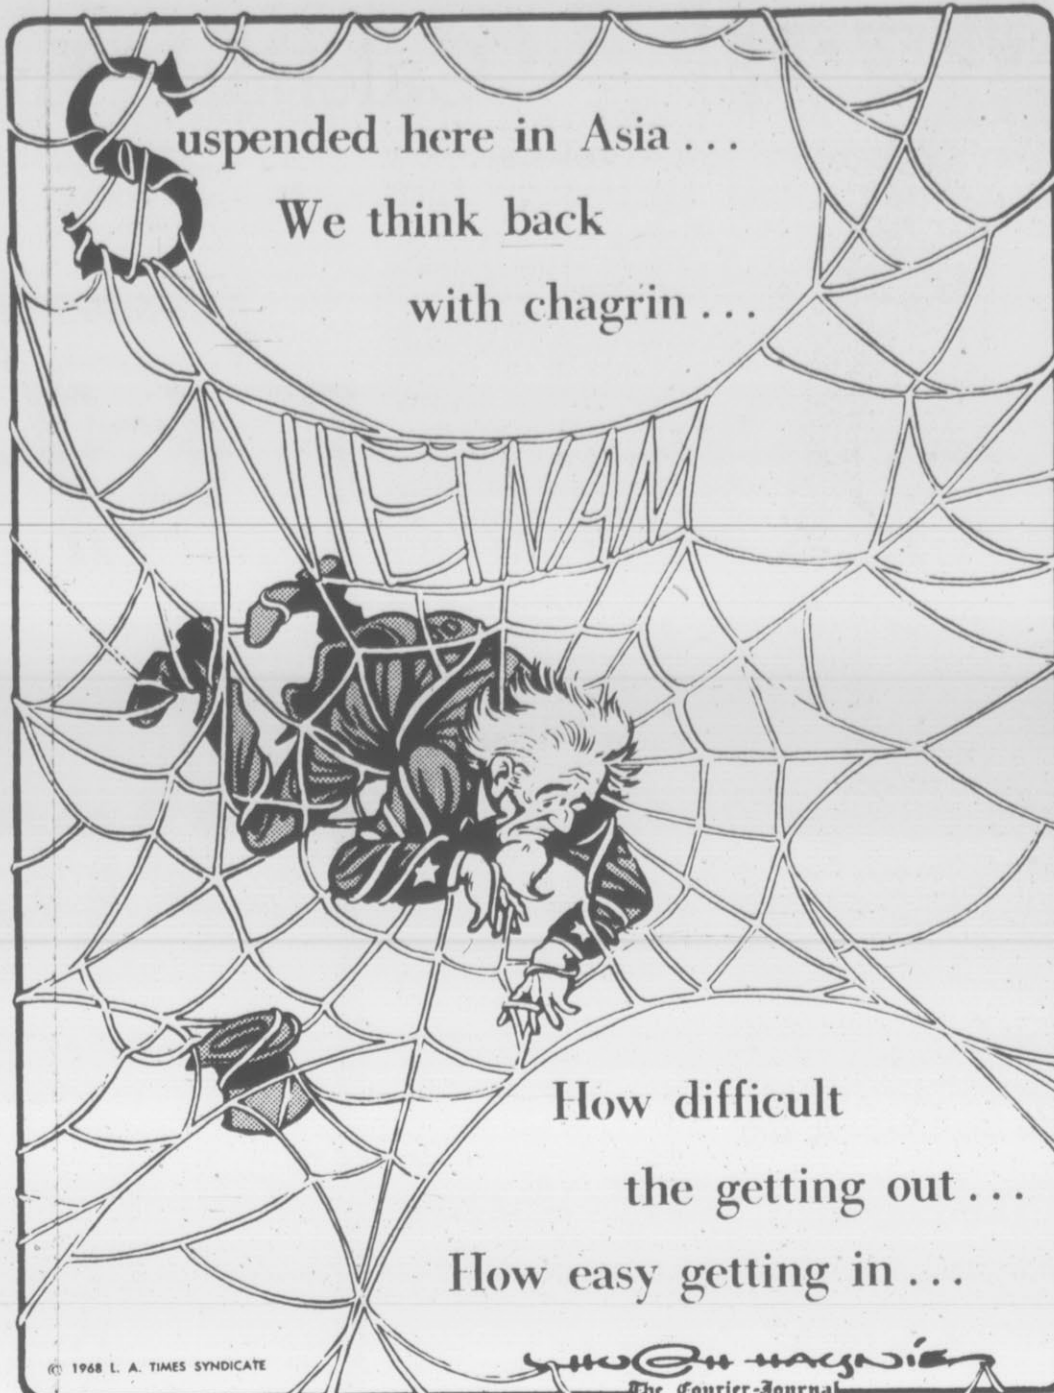

Wallace's appeal for election as governor of Alabama interms of national politics was fully expected by the forces of his opponent and erst-while protegee, Gov. Albert Brewer. What has surprised them is the timing. They thought Wallace would experiment with state issues for weeks before settling down to the one strategy capable of closing the gap between him and Brewer by the May 5 Democratic Primary.

Indeed, Wallace's national strategy is the cloud menacing the Brewer camp's euphoria, which stems from amazingly favorable polls plus defections of old Wallace courthouse politicians. The disquieting note is that even Alabamians who no longer want Wallace as governor still would support him for president. Thus, Wallace must prove that the only way they can vote for him for president is to make him governor again.

This means Wallace has come full cycle in two months. When he revealed early this year he might run against Brewer to save his third-party "movement," polls showed public indifference. Brewer then proclaimed that he, unlike

To Update Shakespeare?

WASHINGTON — Now that the best minds in the Western World have "improved" the Bible in the most modern edition, which is called "The New English Bible" (the new 23rd Psalm begins, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall want nothing. He makes me lie down in green pastures and leads me beside the waters of peace; He renews life within me and for His name's sake guides me in the right path..."), it has been decided to update Shakespeare and make him easier for people to understand.

With this goal in mind and using "The New English Bible" as our inspiration, a group of us has already managed to update some of Hamlet's soliloquy.

"To be or not to be" will soon read as follows:

Should I or shouldn't I? That is the question.

I don't know whether it would be better for me to take a lot of guff and that sort of thing or to fight back against all this trouble I've been having

Maybe I should drop dead, and sleep;

that's all. And by sleeping hope to end all this emotional conflict that everyone goes through; boy wouldn't that be a solution?

If you could just cop out, close your eyes and sleep. And maybe have a few good dreams. But that's the trouble.

If you're dead, who knows what kind of bad trips you're going to have leaving the station? It sure gives you something to think about.

You have to show some respect; if you don't you could be in for real trouble.

That's as far as we got with Hamlet. But we have also been working on "Romeo and Juliet."

So far it goes like this:

JULIET (on balcony to herself): Oh Romeo, Romeo. Where are you Romeo? Why don't you change your name? Or if you can't do it, I'll work it out some way so I won't be known as a Capulet.

ROMEO (underneath balcony to himself): I wonder if I should stick around and listen to what she's saying, or speak up and jawbone with her.

JULIET: The only thing I hold against you, Romeo, is your name. Personally I like you for yourself, and not because you're a Montague.

Like, what's a Montague? It isn't your hand or your foot or your face, or any other part of your body belonging to a man. Gosh, I wish you had another name.

But what's in a name? Suppose you saw this flower which was called something else besides a rose. It would still smell pretty good, wouldn't it?

And that's the way it is with Romeo. If his name, for example, were Irving, he still would be perfect in my book.

The Fat Man Is Happier

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Why do most fat people stay fat?

This is a perennial puzzle to thin people who like to point a skinny finger of scorn at corpulence. They think fat is a sign of a glandular problem, a sign of gluttony, a sign of inner guilt, a sign of some hidden neurosis, or a sign of all these things.

While mildly flattered by all the attention paid to their blubber by thin people, fat people themselves rarely take the trouble to reply to the accusations or insinuations leveled at them.

They have a secret of their own: they stay fat because they enjoy being fat. If they didn't, they'd worry themselves skinny.

Looked at objectively, a fat man has a number of advantages over the bone-thin critics who are always jabbing him in the stomach and asking, "When are you going to take it off, Tubby?"

A fat man takes things in slow stride and achieves a philosophical serenity denied many thin people. He runs after neither bus nor blonde but stands patiently on the corner waiting placidly for one or the other to pick him up. He is not a restless prisoner of time.

People trust him more and have greater confidence in him. When you think of a gossip, don't you think of a thin, hatchet-faced person rather than an overweight one?

The fat man finds it easier to borrow money or get credit. A banker looks at him and says to himself: "This guy ought to be good for the loan he's asking. After all, he's too slow to run away and too big to hide."

It is also easier for a fat man to avoid doing all the time-wasting and frenetic things by which many people seek pleasure. No one expects him to play tennis, ride horseback, or climb Mt. Everest. Even if he should be drafted to help fight a war, he is usually assigned to the safest place—bringing up the rear.

Sensible women prefer to marry a fat man because they instinctively know he makes the best of all husbands. It is the thin husband who is more likely to philander than the fat one. The fat man realizes that the energy philandering wastes is hardly worth any possible reward it may win.

The fat man is rarely lonely. At a cocktail party it is the thin man who stands alone, brooding like Hamlet. The fat man is in the center of the crowd, because people like to laugh with him as well as at him. They just like to be in his company.

No matter what he does, whether he is eating, joking, or simply taking a shower, he has more fun than a slender man because there is so much more of him to enjoy what he's doing.

Yes, the fat man stays fat because he enjoys being fat. He is an amiable sort and feels there is room in the world for both the fat man and the thin man, but he also feels that if one of them has to get crowded out,—well, it isn't going to be him.

Strength For Today

DAY OF SILENCE

Wednesday of Holy Week was evidently a day of silence. There is no record of his having contended with opponents. We can believe that he spent the day in meditation and prayer.

And so this day of Holy Week in which there is no record of teaching or controversy may have for us all a great lesson. We moderns are not given much to meditation. We are activists. We want to make the world a better place in which to live. Many go so far as to say that there is nothing in religion save the doing of good works, and especially good works for others. We can well agree that religious faith which does not emerge into good works is not religious faith at all but a vain delusion. There is, however, more beside good works in the religion we have come to call Christianity. The Christian cannot expect long to remain a Christian unless he prays. And his prayers must be continuous, a seeking, above all, to know the will of God and to be prepared to fulfill that will.

The Bible is our guide in preparing our minds and souls to know what God wills for us. Worship is not only listening to Bible — reading, prayer, and the message of the preacher. True religion consists in the bringing of our hearts to God through Jesus Christ daily in prayer, in good works, in kindly living.

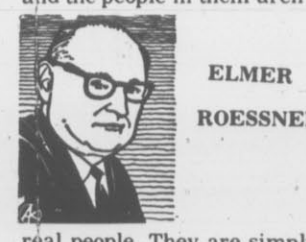

"Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matthew 11:29-30).

The Passenger Train Is Dead

By ELMER ROESSNER
The American intercity passenger train is dead.

What you see occasionally bumping over tracks may not be real trains but ghost trains, a favorite concept of fiction writers half a century ago. They aren't real trains and the people in them aren't real people. They are simply projections of iron horses long dead and of people who exist only in memory.

Murder On The Tracks
Passenger trains were killed by the buses.

They were killed by the airplane.

They were killed by the private auto.

And they killed with thrusts to heart by the robber barons who controlled them.

The death by buses, planes and autos is obvious. You who ride in those conveyances today shared in the slaughter.

The knifings by the robber barons were a little less obvious. But it is now apparent that they were the worst killers of all.

They were the managers, directors, executives and stockholders who kept taking money out of the roads. They didn't keep up the roadbeds, they didn't replace the rolling stock as it wore out.

The Chinamen and the hunkies drifted off to the cities; they refused to work ballast at wages railroads paid. My last long railroad ride was from New York to Montreal for Expo 67. I think I still bear the black-and-blue marks from the bounces on the rocky roadbed. The R-R-Rolling Stock Pullman beds are worse. Perhaps there are some cars built since 1912, but when I last slept on the saggy, ripe mattresses, I imagined I was smelling the stale sweat of William Jennings Bryan.

The railroads confess the rolling stock is poor because passenger revenue is not enough for replacement. That's true. But it leaves unanswered the question of whether it wouldn't be a lot better today if so much revenue had not been pushed out in fat executive salaries and high dividends in the lush days of railroad.

Anyway, passenger trains are dead, even if some go through the eccentric motions of running. Scores of intercity trains have been dropped. Penn Central now wants to drop 48 trains, including the Broadway Limited. The Twentieth Century and other famous trains have already flat-wheeled into history.

The Senate Commerce Committee wants the government to speak $435 million to rehabilitate railroad passenger service over the next four years. It's too late. No amount of money can put flesh on the rusted iron bones of American passenger trains.

World—Hic!—Is Getting Hap To Bottled Bourbon

American is bourbonizing the world. Bureau of the Census figures show that exports of corn-squeezings set a new record in 1969 of 2,152,417 proof gallons exported. This is an increase of almost 45 per cent over the previous year.

Biggest importers of the American tittle are West Germany, Italy, France, Switzerland, Britain, Australia, Belgium, Japan and Mexico, in that order.

Scott Wants Larger Role In Rural Activity

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says it's time for North Carolina to take an increasing role in rural development. And he wants a new council on state goals and policies created to direct this activity.

Scott told a conference on rural development Tuesday that the council would be concerned with "health, education, housing, economic development, transportation, environmental programs, and all other state functions which influence the type of future we create for our people."

"This council would be a high-level advisory body to consider across the board, all activities of state government that relate to the full development of our state."

He said he would ask the 1971 General Assembly to make the council a permanent state agency. It would be served by a full-time professional staff which would be attached to the governor's office.

"We are gradually accepting the idea that public expenditures on schools, highways, parks, utilities and public services can be used to give shape to both rural and urban development," Scott told the conference.

"A system must be developed to assure the publicly debated and agreed-upon goals and objectives guide these expenditures," he added. "Too many of our programs, both on the federal and state levels, are operating independently and often at cross purposes."

"If states are to assume the leadership in rural development, they must have well-defined goals and policies."

"This council, I am convinced, would help us marshal our full resources to the tasks of planning and directing the expenditure of local, state and federal funds to achieve the good life for our citizens."

A member of the North Carolina Board of Conservation and Development, Felton J. Capel of Southern Pines, told industrial leaders they should seek out black leaders to help with rural development.

"All America will benefit from increased earning power and improved economic status of the black community," Capel said. He told the group that boosting poor blacks above the poverty level would add $23.7 billion to the gross national product.

Capel said black leaders have not been involved in most communities "simply because they have not been sought out. They have not been asked to serve."

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Gov. William T. Cahill's 19-year-old son John has been arrested for the second time since January on marijuana possession charges.

Young Cahill and two companions were arrested Tuesday after state police said a black bag containing marijuana was thrown from their car when police stopped it.

After the new arrest, Cahill's bail on a previous charge in Philadelphia was revoked and he was taken to Holmesburg Prison there.

JULIET: Unless I'm stone deaf, you sound like Romeo Montague. Are you or aren't you?

As you see, we still have a little work to do, but if it took 20 years to rewrite the Bible, I believe we've gotten off to a pretty good start.

Wallace, had been a "fulltime" governor. To the glee of the Brewer camp, Wallace retorted lamely he had been a "double time" governor. That framed a debate over who was the most competent governor, an area where Wallace's emotional appeal would count for little.

Now, Wallace is back to a national strategy. "You and me," he tells audiences with dubious logic, "are responsible for Hubert Humphrey not being president of the United States, and that's something." Because of Wallace, President Nixon's speeches "look like they were written here in Robertsdale."

Thus, were he defeated for governor now, the South would lose its biggest watchdog on the Nixon Administration. In coming weeks, Wallace will be increasingly explicit that his repudiation here would convince Mr. Nixon that the South was in his pocket for 1972 and, therefore, he could move leftward to seek liberal votes.

Brewer's concern about this tactic is manifest. Implying that his soft-spoken approach is more effective nationally than Wallace's bravado, Brewer suggests to campaigning rallies it was his lobbying on the Senate floor that passed the Stennis School Desegregation Amendment—a boast so out of character for Brewer that a worried supporter relayed warning that he was sounding like George.

But Brewer knows he cannot outdo Wallace as protector of the South in national politics. Instead, he must concentrate on bringing "a moral tone" to Montgomery—in implicit contrast to what prevailed under George and Lurleen Wallace.

Brewer is a prominent Baptist layman who brings

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina's antibusing law, which a three-judge federal panel now has under consideration, may be the vehicle for the Supreme Court's first ruling on the constitutionality of busing pupils to achieve adequate school desegregation.

The panel heard arguments Tuesday from civil rights lawyers who asked that the law be struck down as denying Negro children equal protection under the 14th Amendment, and from state representatives who defended it.

The three judges did not say when they would issue their decision, but it is regarded as almost certain to be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The judges are J. Braxton Craven of Asheville, N.C., and John D. Butzner Jr. of Richmond, Va., both of the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals, and Dist. Court Judge James B. McMillan of Charlotte.

The law, passed by the 1969 legislature, forbids the use of public money to bus children to schools to create a racial balance. It also prohibits school boards from using race as the basis of assigning pupils or drawing school district lines.

The three-judge panel also will decide, in effect, whether such a state statute can legally be interposed to halt proceedings under a federal court order for desegregation of public schools, such as Judge McMillan's order for complete desegregation of Charlotte and Mecklenburg County schools this spring, which would involve mass busing.

an evangelistic style to the campaign stump and pulls it off nicely. "If you've been to your capitol lately," he orates, "you don't have to see these agents of corruption"—presumably influence peddlers—"going up and down the halls." With his new state motor pool, says the young governor, "you don't see state cars at the football game or the bench like you used to."

Courthouse Square crowds in Greenville and Evergreen—supposedly—Wallace country—liked Brewer's good government spiel. But whether they like it well enough to retire Wallace from politics, depends on one question: Just how decisive racial factors still are in Alabama politics.

Although both Wallace and Brewer sound the same indictment of federal meddling in Alabama's schools, there is a difference. Wallace remains a true believer in segregated schools and talks that way privately. But Brewer feels segregation as such is dead, and Alabama should get on to other business. In this campaign, Brewer is betting that the people of Alabama agree.

The 4th Circuit Court of Appeals, with headquarters in Richmond, is to hear an appeal of the Charlotte desegregation case on April 9 in Richmond.

The three-judge panel was convened to decide what should be done about the conflict between Judge McMillan's plan for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools and the state law which prevents the busing needed to follow that plan.

The judges attempted to stir debate on the purpose of the

'Adjusting To Race' Confronting U.S.: Michener

Editor's note: Noted author James A. Michener ("Tales of the South Pacific," "Sayonara," "Hawaii," etc.) believes that what he calls "adjusting to race" is one of the major problems confronting the United States today. HERE, he discusses the problem as he sees it and suggests some of the things he feels need to be done to meet and solve it.

Because he is a longtime resident of the Philadelphia area, Michener relates the problem specifically to the situation in his home city, but what he says applies in virtually full context to most major northern American cities today. What follows is an excerpt from a new Michener book, "The Quality of Life," written under commission for the Girard Trust Bank of Philadelphia and distributed by that firm to its shareholders in February as part of its annual report.

By JAMES A. MICHENER

(Distributed by UPI) Philadelphia will continue to be a city with a very large black population, and the surrounding area will be influenced by the existence of this population. If the city and its suburbs cannot learn to live with this basic fact, we are doomed.

No social agency, no educational institution, no business and no political party anywhere in our area will escape the necessity of stating what it believes about race relations and then acting upon those beliefs.

Black Americans comprise 12 per cent of our population. In the days of slavery our nation utilized their skills at top efficiency, and the South flourished as our most prosperous area. Chosen Negroes, taken from the fields, became especially skilled in the mechanical trades; they did the building, the repairing, the painting, the plastering, the bricklaying and the general caretaking. If we had slavery today, trained Negroes would continue to be our great craftsmen.

Unfortunately, at the end of the Civil War social customs arose which prohibited Negroes from utilizing their skills at maximum efficiency. In fact, they were prevented from doing those very things they could have done best. They were excluded from the mechanical trades and were condemned to lives of wasted talent. We adopted a national policy of utilizing one-eighth of our manpower at far less than capacity.

Wasting Men And Talent I know of no social or biological entity that can compete if it wastes 12 per cent of its natural capacity, and in the Philadelphia area the percentage of Negroes is now about 17 per cent and by the end of the century will be more than 25 per cent.

I am not for Negro rights because I love the Negro but because I love all citizens. I love the grand possibilities of this nation and do not wish to see them diminish because we fail to utilize one of our greatest resources, the abilities of our 25 million black people.

The problem of race must be seen in this light. We are cheating ourselves when we cheat any segment of our population.

The thrust of my argument, therefore, is not abstract, although abstract justice is precious to me, nor is it humane, even though I would want to be known as a humanitarian. It is practical and self-protective. I would like to see every Negro in Philadelphia with a good education, a good job and a good salary, so that the city and the state could tax him adequately for the maintenance of the services which he merits and the city requires.

I want to see the Negro move up so that I can move up with him.

Whites Can't Comprehend

Only the occasional white citizen can comprehend the burden of injustice under which the black has had to live, and until we make the effort to understand we will not be qualified to react to what is happening around us.

I agree with Negro leaders that the major problem right now is twofold: get jobs and generate pride in one's race.

Negroes are correct when they demand that restrictive practices which prevent them from joining labor unions be dropped. Labor unions are correct in demanding apprenticeships which ensure efficiency on the job, and responsible performance when a job is assigned. But tricky practices whereby Negroes are automatically excluded from apprenticeship are intolerable.

Even more important than jobs is the development of racial pride, for from this will grow all the good things we hope the Negro attains. If I were a young Negro today, I would put this first. Black is beautiful, as the Bible says, and the regeneration of the Negro will start from a general acceptance of that fact.

I am therefore in favor of black studies in our schools, not because they are a well organized body of subject matter, but because they can help to create the racial pride which is essential.

Finally (there is the question of) suppressing crime. We must not use this as a euphemism for antiblack movements. It is crime we halt, not legitimate Negro aspirations. The murder rate among whites in Texas is as high as it is among blacks in Philadelphia. When the depressed elements of the Philadelphia population were mostly Irish, crime was also Irish, and when Italians lived crowded together in slums it was Italian crime that perplexed us.

Now, Negroes occupy the unfavorable areas, and it is inevitable that they should produce the most crime.

'College Of Jungle Knowledge' Saving Many Lives

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK
CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (UPI)—Instructors at the U.S. Pacific Air Force's "college of jungle knowledge" are a proud group—and they have reason to be. Over the past six years of war in Asia, they have saved the lives of more than 1,000 American airmen.

Swanson Bids For Stage Role

NEW YORK (AP)— Gloria Swanson, a top movie star of the silent days, has had an audition to succeed Katherine Hepburn in the lead role of the sell-out musical "Coco."

saved the nation an estimated $1.5 billion in retrieved or salvaged military capability.

Formally, the "college of jungle knowledge" is called the U.S. Pacific Air Force Jung Survival School, established in April, 1964, for an investment of less than $1 million.

The school comprises three white-painted, single-story buildings set in green lawns dotted with tropical bushes and with a miniature zoo out back. Its 58 instructors and other personnel give mandatory survival training for all pilots and aircrews who come to serve in southeast Asia.

School Commandant Lt. Col. Fred B. Ewing, of Long Beach, Calif., said that since January, 1968, alone, more than 480 pilots and airmen shot down over Vietnam or other Asian theaters have attributed their recovery directly to the techniques learned here. Since April, 1964, the recovery figure is officially estimated at more than 1,000 men.

Ewing said that cost-analysis studies showed the average downed pilot or crewman was a captain with eight-and-a-half years service.

"All the costs of training, paying and maintaining this man have been worked out at $733,000," he told UPI. "And this doesn't include the cost of pensions and other payments that will be made to his wife and children if he's married."

BAYAMON, Puerto Rico (AP)— Mrs. Rose Kennedy unveiled a bust of her late son, President John F. Kennedy, at the Psychopedagogic Institute Tuesday.

"To arrive at what the loss is in monetary terms, double the $733,000 because that's how much it's going to cost to train someone else to replace him."

Results Worth Low Cost

Ewing said that the amount of money saved by plucking just one man out of the jungle is enough to operate the survival school for 18 years and 7 months.

The colonel took over the school two years ago after running a survival school at Langley Air Base, Va., for seven years. Before that he set up the first Air Force sea survival school at Namazu, Japan.

Since the school opened in 1964, almost 35,000 servicemen have taken the five-day survival course. The techniques taught to students are classified information, Ewing said, but the course starts with 10 hours of academic orientation.

"The first thing we have to do," he said, "is to get rid of that big neon sign that flashes 'fear, fear' at the mention of jungle."

"Most people we have through here were born and raised in the cities and have never had to fend for themselves. The only thing they know about the jungle in most cases is what Edgar Rice Burroughs has written about the adventures of Tarzan. If we can eliminate fear we have 98 per cent of the problem licked."

The academic course emphasizes hygiene and first aid and impresses on the student that the jungle in nature's own drug store. This is where the school's tropical plants come in as practical aids to what is dangerous to touch or catch and what can be used for medicinal or eating purposes. This also applies to the zoo with its pythons, monkeys, birds and beasts.

After class study the students are lifted out by helicopter to a dense jungle training area for 36 hours in which they acquire more survival techniques and try to dodge the pygmy Negrito tribesmen the Air Force uses as the "enemy" in simulated exercises.

Col. Ewing points to the record of the school to demonstrate its usefulness and adds the simple statistic that from every class going through the school, three students will be shot down somewhere in Southeast Asia.

One airman has been shot down 11 times during two years in Vietnam, he said, and recovered every time. Another 16 men have been shot down twice, all recovered.

Radio Relay Station To Be Set Up

The Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club of Greenville, affiliated with the American Radio Relay League, will set up a relay station at the Pitt Plaza Friday and Saturday prior to Easter. The express purpose is to relay messages for anyone desiring to send them to their friends anywhere in the U. S. A., its possessions and Canada, or to military personnel overseas.

The booth at the Plaza will be open for message relaying on Friday, March 27th from 4:00 P. M. until 9:00 P. M., and on Saturday from 11:00 A. M. until 5:00 P. M. Amateur radio operators handling these radiograms are engaged in the hobby solely for self-training and the pleasure of operating without pecuniary interest, and may not accept any fee for this service. Delivery cannot be guaranteed, but the messages will be relayed through the National Traffic Systems (N.T.S.) and the military (M.A.R.S.).

The public is cordially invited to come out to the Pitt Plaza and observe the set-up in action and send a message to someone.

Women Urged Add New Dimensions To Politics

whom she talked before the Democratic Women's luncheon at which she was guest speaker.

She also said, "Run yourselves. Add a vital dimension to public life."

Earlier during the luncheon, which was attended by those who had been at previous meetings plus many local women and several political candidates and party officials, Miss Janice Hardison, women's director of the First Congressional District, introduced "her boss," Dr. Leo Jenkins, who made a brief appeal to the women to enter politics themselves instead of merely supporting their menfolk. "Women have not yet fully arrived; they have not fully asserted themselves," he said. "The time is ripe. You are a vital resource."

Rampants Hold Off Ayden Rally, 4-3

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

AYDEN — Rose High School held off a last-inning rally by the Ayden Tornadoes yesterday for a 4-3 victory. The Rampants had taken a 3-0 lead in the first inning, and had built that to 4-0 before the bottom of the seventh when Ayden erupted.

But the Rampants were able to get the last out, as pitcher Jimmy Bond recorded his ninth strikeout of the game. It was a rocky one for Bond, who walked seven, hit one, and allowed four hits. He had a no-hitter for the first three innings, and a one-hitter going into the seventh, when he was tagged for two doubles and a single.

Rose, meanwhile, banged out eight hits off two Ayden pitchers, who combined to strike out five and walk just two.

The Rampants quickly pushed ahead in the game, getting three runs in the first. After the leadoff man went down, Ronnie Leggett rapped a double down the third base line. He moved to third on a passed ball, and Russ Smith drew a walk. The two worked the double steal with Leggett coming over with the first run.

With two outs, Jimmy Paige lofted the ball deep to center field. The Ayden fielder chased after it, but it was just out of reach over his head. Smith scored easily, and Paige streaked all the way, just beating the relay to home.

On the play, however, Ayden catcher Robert Twilley was injured in a freak accident as Paige slide home on his stomach. Twilley had to leave the game with a bad cut on his forehead.

Rose threatened again in the second with one out, when Bond reached on an error and stole second, only to wait out the inning there.

In the third, the Rampants loaded the bases, on a single and a double and an error, but still were unable to score.

Another threat came in the fifth, when Paige singled and moved to second on an error on an attempted pickoff play.

Finally, in the sixth, Rose scored what proved to be the winning run. Bill Lee smacked a single to left, and Bond doubled to right, sending Lee home for a 4-0 lead.

Ayden, meanwhile, had been threatening on its own. Runners reached second in the first, third and fifth innings, and moved to third in the fourth without scoring.

The fourth inning threat came about by the first Ayden hit off Bond. Mike Griffin lofted a single to center, then stole second, and moved on to third on an error on the throw.

A double play removed Rose from a sticky situation in the fifth, when two men reached with only one out.

But in the seventh, the Tornadoes finally got their game together and came roaring back. With one out, Ken Cleaton walked. The next man was out, but Bennett Tyson slammed a double into right field, moving Cleaton to third.

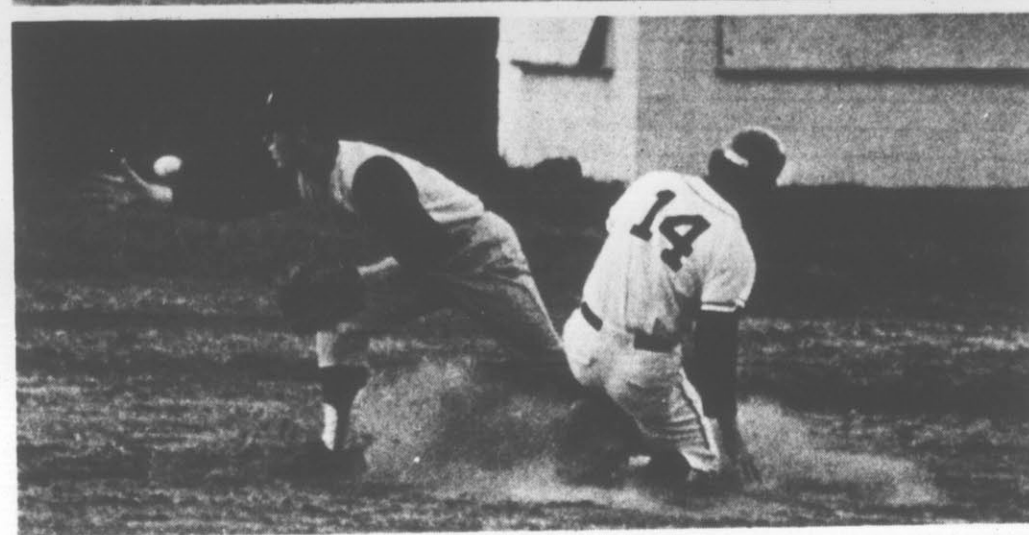

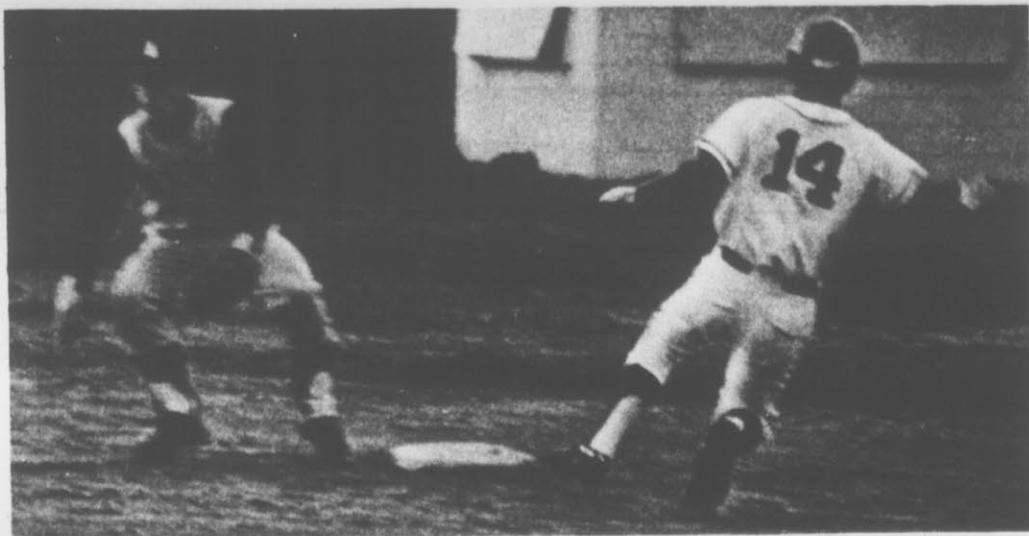

Mike Tripp hit a sharp grounder to third that the Rose third baseman tried to block, but the ball went off his foot and into the bleachers along the sidelines, enabling Cleaton and Tyson both to score. Tripp moved on to second on the play. Debro Blount then lined another double into right, scoring Tripp for a 4-3 score. Bond struck out the final Ayden batter, however, ending the scare.

The Rampants, now 2-0, play host to Robersonville on Tuesday.

Eagles, 'Dogs Battle To Tie

GRIFTON — The Grifton Bulldogs and the Velvior-Falkland Eagles battled to a 10-10 tied yesterday in a Pitt County Conference baseball game. The contest was halted after nine innings of play and will be completed when Grifton visits Belvoir later in the season.

Belvoir moved into the lead in the first inning with two runs, but Grifton came back with five to take the lead.

Adonis-Grant was hit by a pitched ball and Drew Harper reached on a fielder's choice. Tim Craft walked to load the bases, and Ray Eubanks was hit by a pitch, forcing in Grant. Walks to Neil Vanneman, Lee Cherry and David Whaley forced in three more runs for a 5-2 lead.

Belvoir came right back with five in the top of the second for a 7-5 lead. Tyner singled and Coburn, Brewer and Cobb all walked, forcing in Tyner. Moore reached on an error, and another error, on Sutton's long fly, cleared the sacks and put Belvoir back on top.

Belvoir picked up two more in the third, but Grifton matched that with two in the fourth.

Then, in the sixth, Grifton took the lead again, 10-9, with three more runs.

Belvoir tied it up in the seventh.

Homers Spark Spring Exhibitions

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The rabbit ball is out of season, effective today, in Florida and Arizona. But there's still no limit on gopher balls.

While Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was discontinuing the Wednesday-only use of the experimental X-15 baseball—a souped-up hare with five percent more resilience—for the duration of the exhibition schedule, conventional balls continued to orbit over fences all along the Grapefruit and Cactus circuits.

Boog Powell's first exhibition homer helped Baltimore down Montreal 6-1; Frank Howard's second spring blast was a factor in Washington's 8-0 romp over Kansas City and St. Louis' Richie Allen slammed his fifth homer in seven games as the Cardinals bowed to Pittsburgh 7-3.

Ed Kranepool's two-run homer paced the New York Mets to a 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees and Los Angeles routed the Chicago White Sox 13-4. Willie Crawford, Andy Kosco and Steve Garvey belting two-run homers for the Dodgers and Duane Josephson homering twice for the losers.

California nipped Seattle 2-1 on Joe Azcue's homer; Paul Ratliff's two-run wallop led Minnesota past Cincinnati 4-0 and the Chicago Cubs outscored Cleveland 10-8 with the help of homers by Boots Day and Randy Hundley.

Elsewhere, Boston edged Houston 4-3 despite Denis Menke's three-run homer; Philadelphia throttled Detroit 5-0 and San Diego cuffed Oakland 15-6.

In New York, the commissioner said the ultra-lively baseballs, previously used in 22 Wednesday games and widely criticized as hazardous after several pitchers were low-bridged by vicious line drives, would no longer be put in play. Data pertaining to the new balls, Kuhn said, "will now be assessed and will be released when the results have been fully tabulated."

Dave McNally hurled seven strong innings for Baltimore's defending American League kings and Cy Young Award winner Tom Seaver shackled the Yanks through six innings as the world champion Mets ended a nine-game Florida losing string against their cross-town rivals.

Minnesota's Jim Perry and Tom Hall scattered eight hits as the Twins won for the second day in a row after sputtering to a 1-14 getaway. Grant Jackson and Billy Watson spun a four-hitter for the Phillies and four Washington hurlers combined for the Senators' successive shutout victory.

While most roster cutdowns involved youngsters, the Red Sox sent veteran pitcher Jose Santiago to their Louisville farm club in the International League.

Santiago, a 12-4 standout in the Sox' 1967 pennant drive, is due for minor surgery in Boston

Friday for the removal of two metal staples from his pitching arm, result of an earlier operation. He pitched only eight innings last season.

Red Devils Nip Greene Central

FARMVILLE — Farmville High School picked up its first Eastern Plains Conference win with a 3-2 victory over Greene Central Tuesday.

The Red Devils pushed over the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning after both teams had scored twice in the second.

Greene Central grabbed the early lead with a pair. Taylor led off with a single and Pridgen walked. Allbritton drove in both with a double.

Farmville came right back with two of its own, however. Frank Styers, Fred Sauls and Simon Cox all drew walks, loading the bases. William Sermos reached on an error, and Styers and Sauls both scored on the play.

The game remained in a 2-2 deadlock until the bottom of the seventh when walks again got Greene Central in trouble. Don Blair, Cloyce Wilson and Phil Lewis all walked, loading them again. Ken Bryant then bunted Blair across with the winning run.

Farmville is now 1-1 in the Eastern Plains Conference, and 2-1 overall.

Immanuel Takes On Presbyterian

Immanuel and Presbyterian will clash Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. for the Church Basketball League playoff title. Both gained the finals with wins last night.

Immanuel downed St. James, 59-52, while Presbyterian got by Black Jack, 54-51.

In the opener, Immanuel built up a four-point lead in the first half, 26-22, and made it stand in the second half. Immanuel just outpointed St. James in the second half, 33-30, to take the win.

Clinton Gentry led Immanuel with 23 points, while Fred Carrol had 14 and Al Gold had 12.

For St. James, Guy Howell had 18 and Jim Foster had 17. In the second game, Presbyterian built up a 29-20 lead in the first half, then had to hold on to avoid a comeback by Black Jack. Black Jack did try it, outlasting Presbyterian, 31-

25, in the second half, but it wasn't quite enough to catch up. Bill Glidewell led Presbyterian with 14 points, while Robert Oswald and Bit Johnson each had 12.

Tal Adams led Black Jack with 24 points while Ephraim Smith had 14.

Griffin Heads For Nationals

East Carolina University's sophomore swimming sensation Jim Griffin left here by plane Tuesday morning for Salt Lake City, Utah, where he will compete in the 1970 NCAA Championships starting Thursday.

The championship meet, which runs through Saturday, is being held at the University of Utah pool and the top collegiate swimmers from all over the country are entered.

Griffin, who already holds numerous ECU and Southern Conference freestyle records, will compete in the 100-yard and 200-yard freestyle events. His best times this year in those two races are 48.12 in the 100 and 1:48.09 in the 200, both set at the Eastern Championships at Hanover, N. H., Mar. 12-14.

The 6-5, 185-pound Griffin first began swimming competitively only four years ago, at Granby High School in Norfolk, Va.

Accompanying him on his trip to Salt Lake City is Ray Scharf, ECU's head swimming coach, who has helped produce five consecutive Southern Conference Championships for the Pirates.

Pilots Appear Going Again

SEATTLE (AP) — Unless someone comes up with an offer at least as good as one a Milwaukee group has made, the Seattle Pilots appear to be practically on their way to the Wisconsin city, a state official says.

ant state attorney general, made the statement Tuesday as the first part of a federal bankruptcy hearing concerning the Pilots' plight ended.

Dwyer said Sidney Volinn, federal bankruptcy referee, would sign an order Wednesday, when the hearing was to resume, lifting all restraints on the sale of the American League team to the Milwaukee group.

Volinn decided on the action, Dwyer said, so he can judge the merits of the sale at a hearing March 30.

At noon Tuesday another hearing in King County Superior Court on sale injunctions sought by the state, Seattle and Alfred Schewpe, Seattle lawyer, was recessed pending the outcome of the hearing before Volinn.

The bankruptcy referee said during the hearing Tuesday that his first concern is for the Pilots organization, which put itself in his hands under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in a petition to A.S. District Court last week.

Although various arguments have been presented to keep the Pilots in Seattle, no one has offered a financial plan to support it. Volinn said, whereas the Milwaukee group already has agreed to buy the club for $10.8 million.

He said the deal could be closed April 30.

Bucs Announce Latest Signing

Kenny Moore, a two-year All-Conference fullback and linebacker at Union High School in Clinton, N. C., has signed a football scholarship with East Carolina University.

The signing was announced this week by Mike McGee, the Pirates' new head coach.

Moore, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stedman Moore of Route 4, Clinton, was named to the All-Southeastern 3-A Conference team his junior and senior years, was honorable mention All-East as a senior and was voted his team's Most Valuable Back last fall.

"Kenny has a lot of potential either offensively or defensively," said McGee. "He's got the size and speed it takes to play for East Carolina and we're extremely happy he's decided to come with us."

Moore, a 6-3, 195-pounder, does the 100 in 11 seconds flat. He won four letters in football, two in basketball and three in baseball while at Union High.

He also attended the Tri-State Summer Football Camp for three years. The camp is run by ECU athletic director and former football coach Clarence Stasavich.

Southern Wayne Downs Farmville

DUDLEY — Southern Wayne High School defeated Farmville Monday in an Eastern Plains baseball game, 6-3.

Farmville took the initial lead in the third inning, pushing over two runs. Don Blair and Cloyce Wilson both drew walks, and advanced when Fred Sauls grounded out. Kenny Bryan sacrificed to drive in Blair, and Wilson came around when the relay in was overthrown.

But Southern Wayne came right back in their half of the third to tie it up. Clay Best singled and Roy Whitfield got a hit. Both advanced on a sacrifice by Bruce Sasser, and Eugene Smith singled to drive in both runners.

Then, in the fourth inning, Southern Wayne pushed ahead to stay with two more runs. Russ Taylor was hit by a pitch and was sacrificed to second. He moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on an error when Best reached. Best moved up on a sacrifice and scored on a double by Bruce Sasser.

Southern went on to add a run each in the fifth and sixth, while Farmville picked up its other run in the fifth.

The Nit-Picker

Raymond Horton is a perfectionist. And rightly so. It's his job, and that of his fellow Meter Technicians, to keep every one of Vepco's 1,114,000 electric meters running with Swiss watch accuracy.

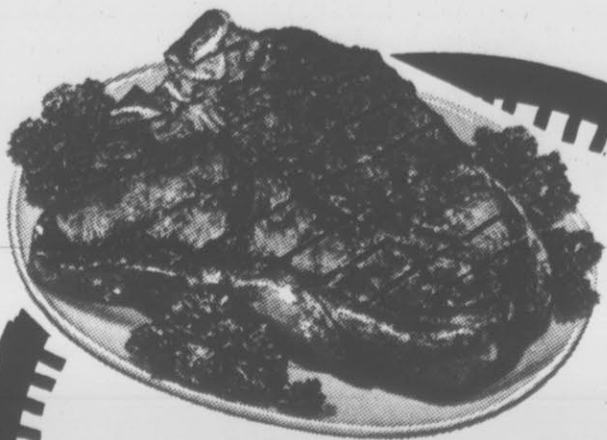

Almost eighty thousand meters go through the Vepco shop each year. Of these, 99.5% prove accurate. (If a meter is inaccurate, incidentally, the odds are almost 3 to 1 that it's running in the customer's favor—slow rather than fast.)

But Raymond Horton is here to make certain that no Vepco customer is charged with a single unused kilowatt hour. That's why he's a nit-picker.

"The Light of History"
By H. G. JONES
Dept. of Archives and History
Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP)—What North Carolina father and son were both members of the state legislature and the U.S. Congress, governors of the state, delegates to constitutional conventions, and trustees of the University of North Carolina? Who was the first native born governor? Who was the governor when the capitol moved to Raleigh? What former governor was killed in a duel? Who was the last governor to be elected to office by the General Assembly?

The answers to all these questions will be found in the careers of Richard Dobbs Spaight and Richard Dobbs Spaight Jr.

The first Richard Dobbs Spaight was born near New Bern March 25, 1758. He was the son of an Irishman, Richard Spaight, who came to North Carolina in 1754 and served on the Crown Council.

Richard Dobbs Spaight Sr. was educated in the British Isles, but he returned to North Carolina in 1778 and joined the Colonists in their fight for independence. He served periodically in the House of Commons and in 1785 was its speaker. From 1783 to 1785 he was a delegate to the Continental Congress, and in 1787 he was a delegate to the Philadelphia convention which adopted the federal constitution. He also served in the state convention which declined to ratify the constitution.

In 1789 he began a 13-year service on the University of North Carolina board of trustees. He returned to the House of Commons in 1792 and two years later attended the first session of the General Assembly held in the new state house in Raleigh. A decade later he went to the State Senate.

Spaight served in Congress from 1798 to 1801. Due to ill health, he relinquished his seat to John Stanly, a political enemy. Spaight, formerly a Federalist, had become an Anti-Federalist or Republican; Stanly remained an ardent Federalist. Their enmity grew with bitter charges and countercharges. Stanly challenged Spaight to a duel, and Dec. 5, 1802, the two met behind the Masonic Lodge on Hancock and Johnson streets in New Bern. On the fourth salvo Spaight was mortally wounded and on the next day he died. Gov. Benjamin Williams granted Stanly a pardon.

Spaight had married Mary Jones Leech, and among their four children was Richard Dobbs Spaight Jr., born in 1796. The younger Spaight graduated from UNC, became a lawyer of considerable wealth, and served in the legislature (1819-1822, and 1825-1826), in the U.S. Congress (1823-1825), and was elected governor by the General Assembly of 1835, the last governor to be so elected.

Like his father, he too was a delegate to a state constitutional convention—the one held in 1835. One of the adopted amendments provided for gubernatorial election by popular vote. Ironically, in the election in 1836, Spaight was defeated for a second term by Edward B. Dudley in the first popular election for governor. He then retired from politics and settled down in New Bern to practice law and to attend to his extensive business interests. Also like his father, he was a trustee of the university, serving from 1821 until the year he died, 1850.

Records of their estates reveal that both father and son were wealthy. Both were great land owners, and farmers and both had many other business interests. The father owned 89 slaves at his death and the son owned 170. Interestingly enough, the inventory of the younger Spaight lists titles of the books in his extensive library.

Neither Richard Dobbs Spaight Jr., nor his brothers married, so there are no direct descendants bearing the name Spaight. Their sister, Margaret Elizabeth, married John Robert Donnell, wealthy lawyer and judge, and many of their descendants have achieved national and prominence.

Now Vote In Pueblo Election

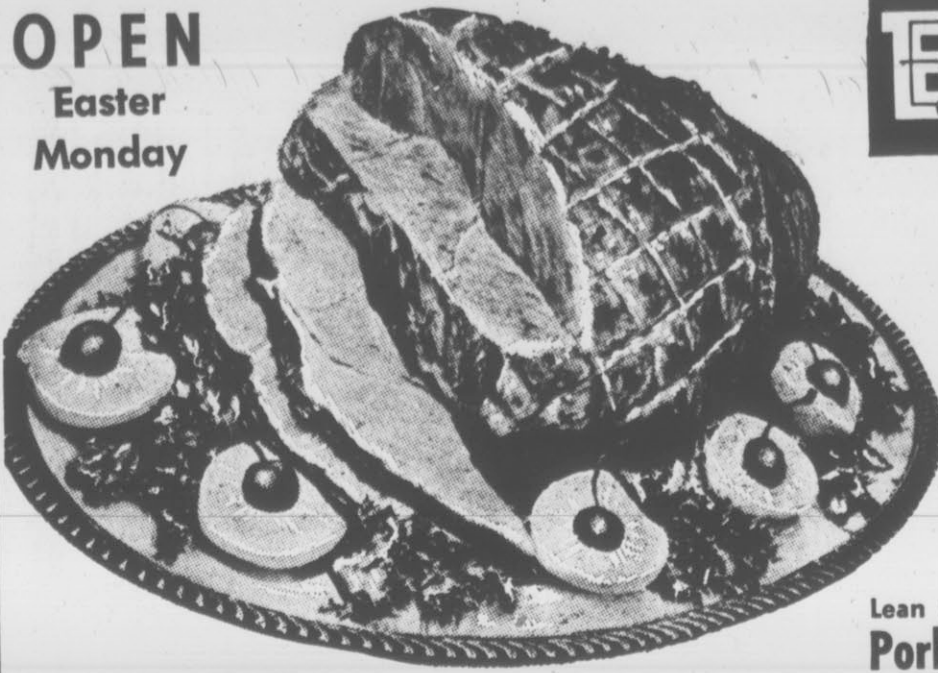

ISLETA, N.M. (AP) — For the first time in their ancient history, women at Isleta Indian Pueblo now can vote in pueblo elections.

Women's voting rights are part of a new constitution recently approved by the small Indian village.

The pueblo is about 13 miles south of Albuquerque on U.S. 85. The pueblo first was established by the Spanish government in 1689. This was confirmed by the U.S. government in 1858.

Opening lead: Four of ♠
South appeared to have only one chance open to bring home his four heart contract, but when a second opportunity unexpectedly appeared, he was quick to capitalize on the situation.

West opened the four of diamonds, the seven of diamonds was played from dummy and East put in the ten, which was allowed to win the trick. The queen of diamonds was returned to dislodge declarer's ace. A small spade was led, West played the six and the queen was put up from dummy. A small heart to the jack put South in to make another spade play, and this time West put up the ace.

West cashed the king of diamonds to complete the defensive book and then shifted to a club. East put up the king and South was in with the ace. Everything appeared to hinge on a three-three spade break, for declarer required a parking place for his two losing clubs and the North hand lacked the entries needed to ruff a spade in the event that suit divided four-two.

South played the king of hearts from his hand intending to draw the third round of trumps with dummy's ace. When the ten fell from West's hand, however, North's nine of hearts was promoted to master rank in the trump suit and this became another entry to dummy. The king of hearts was overtaken by the ace and a small spade was trumped in the closed hand as East showed out. A small heart to North's nine drew the last trump and the king of spades dropped the jack and established the nine of that suit for declarer's 10th trick.

The Worry Clinic Bible-Reading Can Be Pushed

Joel's case shows how a little Applied Psychology on the part of a Sunday School teacher can revitalize Bible reading. In fact, Joel hastened home and was "showing up" his pagan parents within an hour! That's par for the course, pedagogically speaking. So stabilize your youth's moral foundations with the booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE M-564: Joel J., aged 10, was a religious pagan.

But on Sunday, one of his pals invited him to attend Sunday School.

Joel accepted. And he became enthusiastic about the Bible that very first day!

For his teacher used the objective quiz formats illustrated in the "Bible Booklet" mentioned below.

Had she asked Joel, "Who killed Goliath?" then Joel would not have been able to answer, for his Bible knowledge was nil.

Instead, she gave the class a "multiple choice" or 4-answer set of questions, including:

The man who killed Goliath was — JONAH-DAVID-ADAM-SAMSON.

Now Joel was stimulated to guess, for he figured he might get the right answer just by chance alone.

And having guessed, his attention was held until the teacher offered the right answers.

Thus, Joel and the other Sunday School classmates gave the teacher close attention.

At the end of the period, the teacher then urged the youngsters to take their Bible Quiz home and try it out on Mother and Daddy.

This was a very good suggestion, for the children relish "showing up" their elders.

And Joel's parents were also almost pagan in their knowledge of the contents of the Bible.

Joel thus hastened homeward to confront his parents with his Bible Quiz.

Daddy was reading the newspaper and Mother was watching TV.

But Joel insisted that they listen to his Bible Quiz.

Because he was so fervent about it, they felt they should cooperate.

And Joel was gleeful whenever they missed a question, which they often did.

Next week, Joel eagerly accompanied his pal to Sunday School to get another set of Bible questions so he could "show up" his parents.

Now please notice the benefits of this method of making Bible narratives come to life in this 20th Century.

For within an hour, a pagan youngster had entered his first Sunday School, been delighted with the object quiz formats of the Bible questions, and then gone home as an "assistant

Sunday School teacher."

This is what we call "par" in the realm of pedagogy.

It also shows what a little Applied Psychology can do to perk up the interest and zoom the enthusiasm of youngsters for Bible knowledge.

Alas, a lot of churches are now offering children Sunday School papers and classroom work sheets that are merely duplicates of the kindergarten coloring with crayons.

In fact, much of the Sunday School literature I have analyzed in recent years could fit into a Communist classroom quite well, for even the name of God is ignored and the stories are usually not about Bible characters!

So send for my booklet "How to Stimulate Bible Reading," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

It returns the Sunday School to its proper place in youth education, much as the return to phonics has again made facile readers out of the illiterate youth who were nursed on "sight reading" the past 30 years!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Machine Rental

Solves Problem

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A few Madison County farmers are finding that leasing farm machinery is one way of controlling one resource. Farmers have found that rapid changes in technology and the expanding farm business have created a need for new machines. This can cause a severe strain on the normal sources of investment capita.

Custom hiring to get the job done or renting the machine by the job or by the season can relieve a tight capital situation and keep capital free for other uses in the farm business.

Stolen: 6,400 Gallons Of Gas

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The owner of an Albuquerque gasoline station recently reported to police the theft of 2,400 gallons of gasoline.

Pete J. Chavez told police, "I thought the one pump had broken on me so I called for repair. Then the other pump quit so I checked the tank."

"Whoever took the gas," he said, "would have had to have a tanker truck with a pump." He valued the missing gasoline at about $800.

Gig Young's Acting Career Given Boost

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It doesn't matter where your dressing room is; it's what's up there on the screen that counts." So philosophizes Academy Award contender Gig Young.

He should know. For nearly thirty years he has been applying his considerable talents to movie roles, quite often as the semi-alcoholic friend of the leading man.

Gig Young's career has taken a different turn during the past few months as the result of his performance in "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" In it he plays a non-Gig Young role as an entrepreneur with heart of brass, the hustling promoter-emcee of a marathon dance in depression era Ocean Park, Calif.

"It's the best part I ever had in movies," says the actor. "It's a part that nobody would ever have hired me for but Marty Baum."

Happily, Marty Baum was at one time Gig Young's agent. In recent times the agents of Hollywood have virtually taken over the studios, and Baum became head of film operations for ABC. One of the projects he inherited was "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" taken from Horace McCoy's bitter novel of the 1930s.

Another actor had already been put under contract for the role of Rocky, the schlocky boss of the marathon dance. Baum paid off the actor and hired his former client, Young.

Young discussed his role with the director Sydney Pollack, and researched with the rest of the cast by watching newsreels

Found Customer Locked In Bar

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — A hotel owner at nearby Alice opened his bar to find he had locked one of his customers in all the previous night. The man, a stranger, offered to pay for the drinks he had to pass the hours and the money changed hands. Only when the man had disappeared did the hotel owner discover the money had come from the till in his bar.

of marathon dances—a youthful Red Skelton appeared in one of the old films.

"Rocky wasn't really a bad guy," Young analyzed. "He simply was dedicated to putting on a show. He was perfectly willing to turn tragedy into success, if it would entertain the paying audience. He was a realist."

Some critics saw derivation from the oldtime orchestra leader-comedian Ben Bernie in the trademark "Yowzah, yowzah, yowzah," which Young employed before the dance audience. But Young said he patterned the portrayal after no one in particular.

As a result of "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" Young has been flooded with scripts. The roles are varied, and he senses omens that he might be able to escape the type casting that has plagued his film career.

Plaintiffs File Answer In Local Civil Action

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

An answer to the Civil Case pending in federal court against the Greenville City Schools has been filed with District Judge John Larkins in Trenton by County Attorneys W. W. Speight and William C. Brewer, Jr.

The paper, filed March 21, contains point by point answers to those listed in the March 5 motion for further relief, filed in the district court by Douglas Edwards, a minor and his mother, Eula Edwards.

"We have also set forth the history of desegregation within the city schools," Speight commented, "and have asked that a hearing on the operation of our schools be expedited and heard as soon as possible by the court."

In the first point, the answer notes "the defendants deny that any racial discrimination is being exercised against the plaintiffs or any other members of their race."

Point number two in the motion for further relief... that "prior to the beginning of the 1965 school year, the defendant Greenville City Board of Education operated and maintained racially segregated schools" was answered with the notation "the allegations of Section Two are admitted."

A denial was contained in the reply to the third point, which was "as a result of defendants' freedom of choice plan..."

schools remained segregated."

The statement contained in point four "which perpetuated defendants' dual school system" was denied in the answer. Other statements in this point, which outlined city schools' action for desegregation in accordance with requirements of HEW were admitted by the defendants in their reply.

The fifth point in the plaintiff's motion for further relief — claiming continuous operation of school on a racially discriminatory basis — received the most detailed answer of any point. The reply, in part, reads...

"the allegations of Section Five are untrue and are, therefore, denied. As the plaintiffs must know, all elementary schools are operated on a neighborhood, geographically zoned basis with all students attending the schools nearest their homes... All students... in grades seven through nine have freedom of choice to attend either school (junior high school)..."

The charge in point six that the "Board of Education continues to operate and maintain a racially segregated, dual transportation system..." was denied in the answer. "The allegations... are untrue... buses are used... without regard to race."

In response to the seventh point which charges that construction plans are underway that would further segregate the school system, the answer was they were untrue. "There are no building plans presently under consideration... and no construction has been completed which resulted in further segregation of... the school system."

"The defendants are at present operating a unitary school system and not a dual one," is the answer for point eight, in which the charges that the city school board "is maintaining and operating a racially segregated... unconstitutional school system" was denied.

The ninth and final point charges the Greenville City Schools with "no plans to adopt and implement a plan of desegregation which will effectively remove all vestiges of racial discrimination from its school system."

To this, the city answer is "the allegations are untrue and denied." Following the point by point replies to the March 5 motion for further relief, Speight outlined additional information "as a further answer and by way of defense."

This section included a history of progress in Greenville's desegregation pattern since 1965 — when the percentage of integration was 1.0 per cent through the 57.7 per cent now applicable this year, to 76.7 per cent for next years school plan.

This portion further points out that "the teaching and professional staff... is fully desegregated... with a reasonable ratio on a racial basis."

On bus transportation the information set forth includes "buses that end up being filled with students of one race are of necessity filled with that race because of residential segregation in areas where children of one race reside in a neighborhood."

Another paragraph submits that "the... board has built schools 'where the children are' in order to provide neighborhood schools in the case of elementary schools... these decisions have been made at open hearings fully attended by... both races. There are no present plans for construction... the funds obtained from... bond issue have been exhausted."

The final of additional sections reminds the court "The Greenville City Board of Education is engaged in an administrative compliance proceeding required by... HEW. The Hearing Examiner has not rendered his decision... it is felt that the defendants have made every effort to comply with the guidelines of the Supreme Court... and are now operating a unitary school system... It is believed that the Board's Plan of operation is consistent with requirements of the Federal Court and will be approved."

In consideration of the facts set forth in the reply, the attorneys for the defendants,

Damages Run High In Three Mishaps

An estimated $1,085 property damage resulted from a series of three wrecks investigated here yesterday, according to reports from the Greenville Police Department.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 10:13 p. m. mishap at the intersection of Eighth and Cotanche Streets which involved cars driven by Roger Harold Wood, 25, of Pittsboro, Pa., and Madeline Stanley Jones, 27, of 111 North Meade St.

Police made no charges in the mishap, and reported damage at $175 to the Wood vehicle and $300 to the Jones car.

A 6:45 p. m. mishap at the intersection of Charles Street and Sanford Road involved cars driven by James Edward Brown Jr., 20, of Raleigh, and Charles Franklin Wynne, 16, of Route 1, Stokes.

Police, who set damage to the Brown car at $100 and damage to the Wynne vehicle at $250, charged Wynne with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

James Edward Moyer, 30, of 821B Fleming St. was charged with failing to yield the right of way in an 11:45 a. m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets.

The Moyer auto, officers reported, collided with a car driven by William Earl Mills, 35, of 2603 Tyson St. and caused an estimated $200 damage to the Mills car and about $60 damage to the Moyer vehicle.

Southeast Asia Symposium Held Audience Interest

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University and Rose High School students, representatives of the League of Women Voters and interested citizens of Greenville Monday kept the questions coming fast in a three session symposium on Southeast Asia held at the School of Nursing auditorium.

Frederick Flott, a senior Foreign Service Officer with the State Department who served with the U.S. Embassy in Saigon from 1963 until late 1966, and who was part of President Johnson's team observing the 1967 Vietnamese elections, as well as a State Department representative for the 1962 International Conference on Laos, devoted most of his session to answering questions on the war in Vietnam, and current developments in Laos and Cambodia.

On several occasions Flott emphasized that State Department policy, reflecting Nixon's policy in turn, is "to avoid a third world war. That being the case, we are using all measures at our disposal to reduce the causes of war, trying to contain aggression. But at the same time we must be prepared, when we have committed ourselves, as we did in Vietnam, to come to a country's aid, and in a manner to make it stick."

"It is for these reasons," Flott remarked, "that Nixon has emphasized the idea of each country being responsible for its own protection as much as possible."

On the question of the extent of U.S. military involvement in Laos, and the likelihood of escalation there, Flott stated "We will probably not get involved in a brisk ground war in Laos or Cambodia to prevent a take-over there. For example, if North Vietnam massed forces along the Mekong River, we would attempt to protect Thailand by air support and depend on the native forces to do the ground fighting, with the U.S. providing air support."

"Right now, there are 1,066 American government employees in Laos, but we all realize this is not the important thing there. What is most important is our involvement by the military in more than 200 air sorties a day over Laos."

Flott pointed out that this involvement was one of the strange quirks of history. "When the Royal Lao government was first set up, with the approval of 14 signatory countries, including Red China and Russia, one of the clauses was that the government, as a neutral one, could call on outside assistance in case of attack."

"The U.S. at the time accepted the Royal Lao government as the best of bad choices. Now, we find ourselves the ones to whom they turn to for aid."

"Our whole policy is not to grab more bears by the tail as we did in Vietnam. We are not about to put more troops into Laos and Cambodia. However, we can never foreclose the possibility to react if our government considers a situation as one vitally affecting our national security."

Flott noted several times that "we are beginning to realize that some situations are better solved without our presence."

Flott mentioned that there has been a noticeable change in general American opinion in recent months—one not noticed so much by the press. "There is much less strident criticism of American involvement in Vietnam," he commented. "The public is beginning to understand the difficulties of this complex situation and to be less critical of every decision."

On his feelings about the average South Vietnamese's attitude toward their own government, he commented, "their goals are simple. The people want two basic things, a greater measure of honesty and efficiency in their government, and a greater measure of social justice."

Another session leader, Dr. Elmer Plischke of the University of Maryland, spoke on more technical matters connected with U.S. foreign policy.

"There is so much involved with analysis of policy adopted by the U.S. in respect to Southeast Asia," Dr. Plischke noted. "Policy matters must be developed in a logical process identifying the various stages or the options open to us. All the advantages and disadvantages, both short and long range, must be considered before firm policy decisions are made.

"It is a matter of a series of logically related questions in which the various elements are considered systematically," he noted. "We cannot work in a vacuum, but must consider Southeast Asian policy in the light of foreign policy throughout the world."

Another symposium speaker, Professor Richard Butwell, like Dr. Plischke, the author of a number of books on the area, covered the entire Southeast Asia area rather than concentrating on the Vietnamese theater of operations.

Butwell, who has spent considerable time in Southeast Asia—since his student days in Singapore in the early 1950's, and most recently as a teacher-lecturer in the Philippine Islands, touched on the general situation in a number of countries.

"... Communist aggression in Southeast Asia is most conspicuous in Vietnam at this particular moment," he noted. "The Vietnamese Communists are warring against Laos and Cambodia and to some extent in northeast Thailand... not too much emphasis is given this critical situation, but there are probably 60,000 Communist Vietnamese aiding the Pathet Lao in Laos and maybe as many as 40,000 in Cambodia at this time," Butwell commented.

On the often expressed fear of Chinese intervention in conflicts in smaller Southeast nations, Butwell said his personal opinion is that China is for many reasons in no position to effectively wage full-scale intervention. "The Chinese can no more fight for them (the Communist factors in Southeast Asian countries) than the Americans can substitute effectively for a Saigon government in the Vietnamese war."

He stressed a belief that in the 70s Indonesia, the world's fifth most populous country, will emerge into a position of leadership in the area. "Indonesia will probably be the chief force for stability in the area," Butwell remarked, "as Indonesia goes, so probably will go the rest of the region."

"It's important to remember that strong Communist efforts in 1948 and again in 1965 failed to topple the Indonesian governments," Butwell said, "and this country has great potential in people and resources."

He reminded his listeners to take North Vietnamese designs into account. "Hanoi wishes to occupy and to dominate conditions not only in South Vietnam, but in Laos and Cambodia as well. They have a long term goal to possess the old political region of Indo-China, which included Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia."

The Philippines, at the beginning of the 70s, Butwell noted, "is a country gripped by continuing insurgency by the Huk. They will likely expand their scope of operations, especially if the second Marcos term turns out the same as the first term."

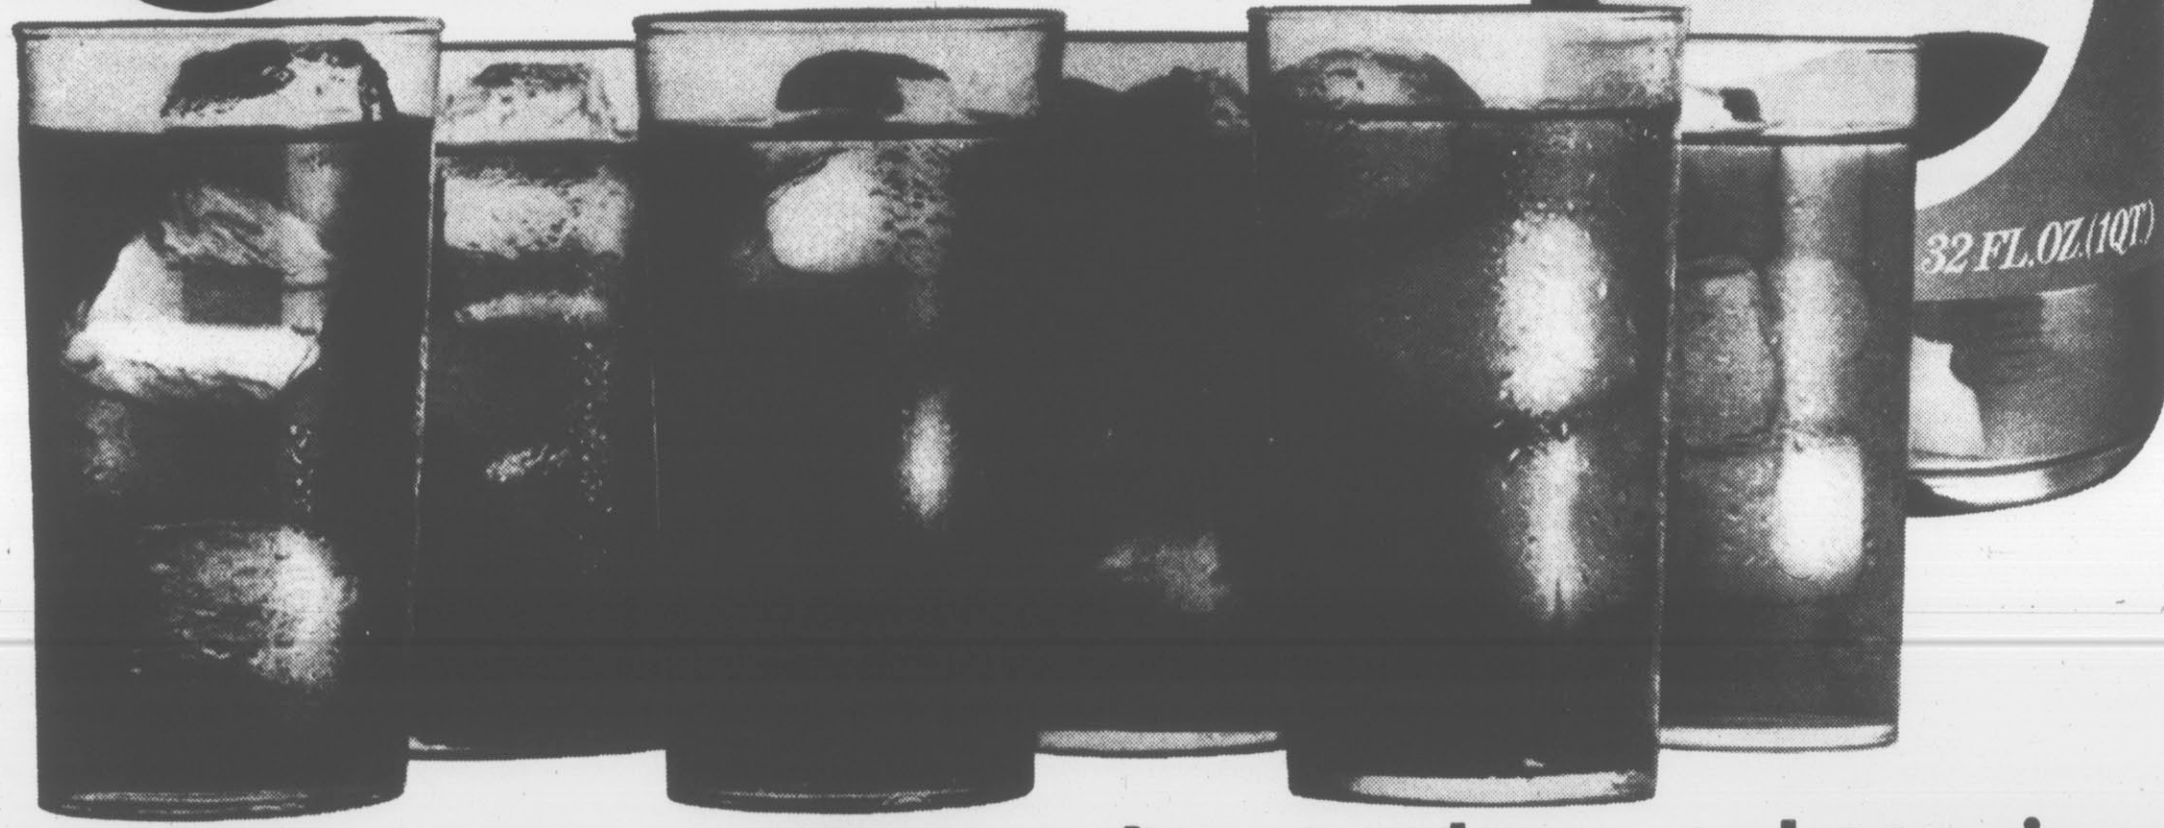

All three speakers agreed that U.S. policy needs to be low-keyed, in contrast to the stronger stands taken by the U.S. to conditions in Southeast Asia in the 1960s.
