No Signs Of Cancer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coroner Robert A. Evans says an autopsy on Dr. Sam Sheppard turned up no visible signs of cancer.

While exact cause of death will not be determined until completion of chemical tests later this week, Dr. Evans said, there were no indications of injury.

He added that it was "obvious that Sheppard drank a great deal but I found no evidence to indicate he had consumed liquor recently."

Sheppard, whose murder trial more than 15 years ago created headlines, died Monday in his suburban home.

Speculation that he might have died of cancer arose after attorney F. Lee Bailey, who obtained Sheppard's release from prison and second trial, disclosed that Sheppard told him three months ago he had the disease.

Awaiting Blood Tests

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 13 crew practiced descending to the moon today while medical specialists hurried blood tests to determine if the astronauts' exposure to German measles is going to delay the $375 million mission a month.

The space agency said it expected a report on the measles investigation late today or early Wednesday.

James A. Lovell Jr., Thomas K. Mattingly II and Fred W. Haise Jr. went ahead with their normal training schedule as if they were going to take off for the moon Saturday on schedule.

Abandon Plant Plans

LUDWIGSHAFEN, Germany (AP) — West Germany's third largest chemical company, BASF, announced today it had suspended plans to build two chemical plants worth $200 million on the South Carolina coast because of difficulties over the dumping of chemical wastes.

The brief BASF Corp. announcement said the action was taken because "of intervention by the Department of the Interior in Washington with the BASF Corp. in New York." It said plans were suspended pending clarification of questions between Washington and South Carolina about air and water pollution.

Morgan Reviews Multiple Roles

State Attorney General Robert Morgan spoke to the Greenville Optimist Club last night on the topics of consumer protection, lawlessness, and crime.

Morgan explained briefly the duties of the state attorney general and gave a brief history of how the attorney general's position was established. He stated that the main job of the attorney general was the chief law officer of the state.

"I am a strong believer in a closer government to the people and a more responsive government to the people," Morgan stated.

"Senator Metcalf of Montana has proposed that a federal agency be established to represent the consuming public before any federal or state regulatory agency which is considering matters that affect the consuming public."

Continuing Morgan stated, "We have made it possible today for law enforcement agencies to do a good job. We have provided too little security for these law enforcement officers."

"In the last decade crime has increased nine times faster than the population, and with this, the major increase was among the every day type of crimes."

He also added that 65 percent of the petty crimes were in the 10-18 years old age group.

"Where have our youngsters been told the seriousness of pranks that were really crimes?"

Morgan closed by saying that the state has set up a program to inform young people of crimes. Talks have been prepared from state files of the 20 most committed crimes. These have been published and sent out to lawyers and local law enforcement agencies so they can be related to the young people in schools and organizations.

These speeches have been prepared around actual facts and comments from persons serving sentences for such crimes.

Handful Of Senators Say They Hold Key To Nomination Of Carswell

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Foes of Judge G. Harrold Carswell's Supreme Court nomination zeroed in today on a handful of senators they say hold the key to reversing an initial setback in the bitter Senate fight.

Although losing 52 to 44 in a first-round vote Monday, the opposition maintained they still have a chance to defeat confirmation of the 50-year-old Tallahassee, Fla., judge in Wednesday's showdown vote.

But Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and other key supporters said they are confident Carswell will be confirmed, although they conceded a tight margin.

Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, one of eight Republicans who voted to send the nomination back to the Judiciary Committee, told a newsman opponents can block confirmation if they get the vote of Arkansas Democrat J. W. Fulbright. Fulbright, who voted to return the nomination to committee, had said he would review the situation before deciding how to vote on confirmation.

The vote Monday on Indiana Democrat Birch Bayh's motion to recommit the nomination, and thus kill it, was not necessarily conclusive because three senators who voted against it—Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, and Robert W. Packwood, R-Ore.—already had announced they would vote against confirmation.

And a number of other senators, some of whom voted on both sides of the recommitment question, had declined to say how they stand on the show-down vote.

Thirty-three Republican senators were joined by 19 Democrats—most of them Southerners—in voting against Bayh's motion. Favoring it were 36 Democrats and eight Republicans.

The pressures from both sides on senators who have yet to take a stand is likely to be intense before the roll is called.

New Chairman Of Martin Bd.

ROBERSONVILLE — The Martin County Board of Education met in Robersonville last night in its monthly meeting as part of its plan to take the meetings to various parts of the county.

Board members reelected Leroy Harrison of Bear Grass as chairman of the board, and Exum Ward of Williamston was reelected vice-chairman.

Bids were accepted for construction of a cafeteria at West Martin High School in Oak City in an amount totaling $104,000.

A school site and property acquisition for a school in the Williamston area was again discussed. No definite plans for a site materialized, but reports were made on possible property acquisition. It was also noted that the architect is trying to develop a preliminary plat for such a school.

Announcement was made that the State Department of Public Instruction has allocated an occupational director slot to cover four school units — the counties of Martin, Beaufort and Washington, and the town. This person will act as a roving director, planning and directing activities connected with vocational activities in schools within the four units.

A delegation from the village of Everetts attended last night's meeting to seek information on school plans for the coming school year.

Lease Agreement Approved For New City Park Facility

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Housing Authority commissioners last night approved a proposed lease agreement with the city that would involve slightly over 17 acres of lowland in the northern section of Moyewood for possible city use as a park facility.

Attorney Kenneth Hite told commissioners that the lease, calling for one dollar a year from the city for 40 years, had been drafted and would now require approval for execution from the city before going to HUD.

The Authority-owned property lies between the Moyewood housing units and the river and has been found unsuitable for use as housing sites due to poor drainage, and flooding possibilities.

Known as the Moyewood Lowlands, the property would require substantial spending of money on the part of the Authority in order to make it usable for housing sites but would only require moderate spending to make it feasible as a recreational facility.

The lease specifies that the land will be used as a park only and no other development will be authorized.

Following city execution of the lease, it will have to be sent to HUD's regional office in Atlanta for approval.

In other business last night, executive director A. E. Dubber said that HUD's regional leased-housing specialist, Sid Curtin, had been in Greenville and had discussed with Authority members the possibility of the old Proctor Hotel on Evans Street being leased as a housing-for-the-elderly project.

Dubber pointed out that the owner of the hotel, Bob Smith, had approached the Authority with the idea of their leasing the structure for use as an elderly housing facility.

Smith, the executive director said, would renovate the structure and make it suitable for use as a housing facility. The HUD specialist informed the Authority that Atlanta would consider the idea if Smith comes up with a suitable proposal for bringing the building completely up to standards.

Dubber noted that a resolution would be required from the city council authorizing the Housing Authority to be involved in the leased-housing arrangement. The Authority has made no commitment to approve the elderly housing venture, it was pointed out, and will possibly make a decision after the proposals are made by Smith.

It was noted that a need for elderly housing facilities is becoming more evident. However the feasibility of renovating the old hotel structure was questioned.

Commission chairman, James Sutton, appointed a committee of himself, Charles Howard and Dr. John Wooten to meet with a committee from the city Planning and Zoning Commission for discussion of scattered sites for the proposed 100 housing sites in Newtown.

Final authority for selecting the sites lies, through continued policy, in the hands of the Planning and Zoning Commission and Housing Authority commissioners will act in an advisory capacity.

The occupancy report submitted by the director of tenant affairs, Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, showed that all 65 units in the N.C. 21-1 section of Meadowbrook were in occupancy with tenants paying an average of $40.87 monthly rent.

In the N.C. 22-2 section of Kearney Park, she said, 159 of the 160 units were occupied with residents paying an average monthly rent of $42.04. N.C. 22-3 Moyewood tenants occupied all 188 of the units in that subdivision and rent paid averaged $44.12.

All 40 units in the N.C. 22-4 section of Moyewood were full, she pointed out, with residents paying an average of $45.12 monthly rent.

Dubber told commissioners that the annual Carolinas Council will be held this year in Raleigh on April 19, 20, and 21. Commissioners authorized the attendance of two from their board and also two staff members to attend the sessions.

In addition, Dubber said that the annual SERC-NAHRO conference has been scheduled for June 7-10 in Atlanta, Ga.

Cambodians Drive Off VC Attack

CHIPHOU, Cambodia (AP) — Viet Cong Forces early today attacked this Cambodian town 10 miles west of the border with South Vietnam but were driven back after killing six Cambodian soldiers.

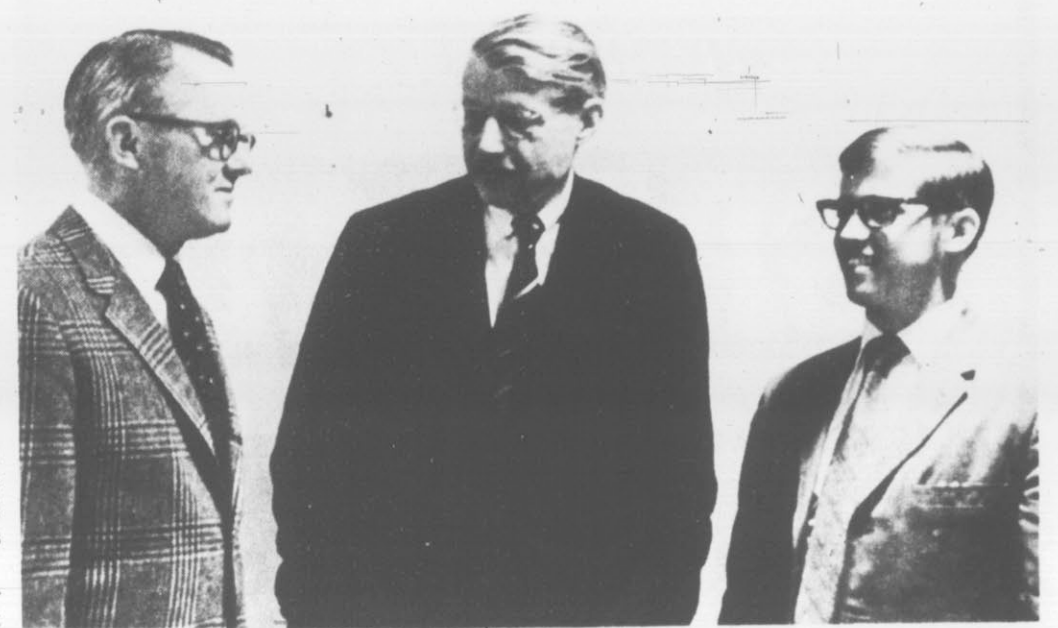

Military officials said 30 Viet Cong were killed, including a colonel.

Using 50-caliber American machine guns and B40 Soviet rockets, the attackers blew apart several buildings Cambodian troops had taken over.

The Viet Cong withdrew at dawn toward the border, and propeller-driven A1E Skyraiders could be seen above the border area attacking Viet Cong positions. The bombing lasted nearly an hour. The planes were believed to be from the South Vietnamese air force since they flew off toward Saigon, 50 miles to the east.

There were other reports, officially denied in Saigon, that South Vietnamese troops crossed into the "Parrot's Beak" area of Cambodia a few miles to the southeast of Chiphou.

Russia-China War Will Involve U.S.: Salisbury

AFTER THE LECTURE . . . Harrison King, noted journalist, center, chats with Rudolph Alexander, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs at East Carolina University, and Gary King, right, ECU student who introduced Salisbury at last night's lecture.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"I predict that if war breaks out between the Soviet Union and China, we will be in it," Harrison Salisbury, noted journalist and lecturer, said during the course of a lecture at Wright Auditorium in East Carolina University last night.

Salisbury, Pulitzer-prize winning journalist of The New York Times, said "Logic has nothing to do with a decision to participate in global hostility."

"We saw what happened to logic in World War I and again in World War II. We felt sure each time that logically we had no reason to get involved, but hostility on a global scale makes it impossible for any large country such as the U.S. to remain uninvolved."

Recalling that he had been in Russia four times since 1959 "to inspect, to observe, and to see what is happening," Salisbury expressed a vital concern from what he encountered on his most recent trip of last spring and early summer.

"Along the Mongolian-Siberian frontier," he stated, "activity was on a 24 hour rush bases. Missile, jets, all the hardware of warfare were being put in place."

"I couldn't get into China; however, a number of diplomats told me the same conditions existed on the Chinese side of the border."

Pointing to the ultimate consequences of a nuclear war, Salisbury warned, "We can protect ourselves, but there is no earthly way we can possibly protect our resources. The fall out of such a warfare would cover the U.S. and Canada, affecting our air, our streams, and our soil, for which there are no effective measures."

Emphasizing that a concerned awareness exists on the highest level in Washington about the seriousness of the tension and conflict between the two great powers, Salisbury commented "action is quietly being taken to establish new lines of communications with China in order to make our influence felt. The first opening came soon after Nixon's election, before he took office. The Chinese made an overture for discussions within the context of the Bandung Conference which had not been mentioned for 13 years."

Although initial plans for an American-Chinese meeting did not materialize, related,

Dallas Aces Possibly Best Bridge Team In World

DALLAS (UPI)—The team builds up its stamina with roadwork. In competition, coach and captain enforce a rigid curfew and supervise the players' diets. The team often works out more than 60 hours a week and uses a blackboard for what sports writers call "skull practice."

Football? No, bridge. Started two years ago as the "U.S. Aces," the team now is popularly known as the "Dallas Aces," and the man who assembled it believes one day it will be known simply as "The Aces."

The Aces may be the best bridge team in the world. The players have won the Mexican, Canadian and U.S. championships, the only U.S. team to win all three.

Aiming At Italians

In any event, the Aces will find out exactly how good they are in June when they play the Italian Blue team in Stockholm for the Bermuda Cup, symbolic of the world's bridge championship.

The Italians have held the cup for 13 of the past 15 years, a fact which rankles Ira G. Corn Jr., a financier who owns the team and is its captain.

Corn, 48, wants to put the Bermuda Cup on a mantel in his home and keep it there at least as long as it has reposed in the Neapolitan Club in Naples.

He is convinced that a champion bridge player has to have an unassailable ego. He has one himself and does not even concede the possibility of defeat in Stockholm.

"We will win," he says flatly.

Rigorous Training

If the Aces do win and bring the cup to the United States for the first time since 1954, it may mean a revolutionary change in the way major bridge teams train.

Corn, chairman of the executive committee and senior executive officer of Michigan General Corp., a conglomerate composed of nine of what Corn likes to call "flagship companies" and 13 "add-ons," is an avid bridge player and one of major repute. He won the 1963 national mixed pairs with his executive assistant, Dorothy Moore, and in 1968 the national men's team championship in New York.

Corn believed American bridge teams were not winning the big international matches because they did not train together like the Italians.

Picked Top Players

U.S. teams were put together from top players for a big match and after the match the teams dissolved. Temperaments—and top bridge players have king-sized ones—were largely ignored.

With the help of Bobby Wolff, 37, of San Antonio, Tex., one of the top master point holders in the country, Corn went through a list of the best professional bridge players in the country.

They eliminated prima donnas, hot heads and those with excessive temperaments and came up with six names: Billy Eisenberg, 32; Jim Jacoby, 36; Bob Hamman, 31; Bobby Goldman, 31; Mike Lawrence, 29, and Wolff.

Corn put each man under personal contract.

Joe musumeci, a retired Air Force officer, was hired as full-time coach, an innovation for a bridge team.

Jousting With Computer

Corn and musumeci also laid down training and match rules: physical exercise, no drinking during matches, a curfew, proper diet, homework and no chit-chat with opponents about plays after matches. The team has uniforms, a three-room office, a secretary and a hookup to a computer in Houston.

The computer the team has access to provides the team with tailored hands.

"You have to visualize trillions and trillions of different card combinations," Corn said. "There are so many there isn't any way to develop patterned hands by relying on ordinary dealing. A computer can produce a hundred such hands."

Members of the team now are permanently paired: Eisenberg and Goldman; Jacoby, son of the famous Oswald Jacoby, and Wolff; Lawrence and Hamman. In matches, Corn decides what players to play and what players to take out.

'Exactly On Schedule'

In practice, relatively little time is spent playing bridge. The team members work with the computer, analyzing hands they played in matches, or in separate rooms at their office, working on an exercise in which they describe hands bid over a loud-speaker system.

In June, when the Aces go to Stockholm, they will have been a team two years and three months.

"We are exactly on schedule," Corn said. "If we had won every match we could not have qualified for the international championship any sooner."

The Aces won the right to play for the international championship by winning the national team-of-four championship in Phoenix, Ariz., last November.

Corn has invested $250,000 in the Aces and he said that as much as winning the Bermuda Cup means to him, it is not worth that much.

He hopes to get his investment back, plus a profit, on television rights, books, syndicated columns and various other items produced by the Aces. The players also expect to profit.

PTI Outlook Told To Senior Citizens

Ed Bright of Pitt Technical Institute was the keynote speaker at the meeting of the Senior Citizens Club of Greenville Thursday at the Recreation Center.

He discussed the possibility of Pitt Technical Institute becoming a community college.

"It would not change the courses offered now nor would a person have to be a high school graduate to attend," Bright said.

Bright added, "It would greatly benefit a student who may be unable to attend a four year college entirely."

"By going to a two-year college and then transferring to a four-year college or university, many students would be allowed to further their education which otherwise may be impossible," Bright stated.

He said trade courses taught at PTI do not require a high school education.

Mrs. Eleanor Scheipers told the members who plan to attend the district meeting in Rocky Mount Wednesday to meet at the Recreation Center at 10 a. m. to leave for the trip.

Two new members, Mrs. Louise Briley and Sam Whitehead, were welcomed into the club.

Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, president, presided at the meeting. The Rev. Adrian Brown gave the devotional.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Savage, Mrs. Janie Johnston, Mrs. Hassa Napier and Mrs. Rosa Whitehurst.

The members played bingo after the program was concluded.

Troop Strength Gradually Falls

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that American troop strength in Vietnam dropped another 9,200 men last week, to 439,400. It is the lowest level in three years and results from continuance of President Nixon's third-phase withdrawal now nearing its final week.

The U.S. Command also announced that a detachment representing the 1st Infantry Division will fly Tuesday from Bien Hoa Air Base to the United States, completing the division's departure from Vietnam.

Don't Feel Guilty About Your Decision

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a school teacher who has been happily married for three years. We are expecting our first child, but that's not my problem.

Last summer my husband and I joined a nudist club and spent our vacation at their camp. I wasn't for it at first, but went to please my husband, and I must admit that the people there were the friendliest I had ever met.

Well, my husband wants to go again this summer, but I don't care to go. Why? That's my problem. I don't know why. Maybe I'm afraid the news will get back to my parents or some of our friends who think nudism is "wrong." Or maybe it's because I was brought up without ever having seen a naked adult body before I was married. [It still "bothers" me some, even now, but maybe that's a "wrong" attitude on my part.]

Should I force myself to go just to please my husband? Or should I follow my feelings and ask my husband to go somewhere else this summer? — FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: Follow your feelings, and don't feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrible problem. My beautiful 2½-year-old son is spoiled rotten. He still sucks a pacifier. I have tried everything from putting hot sauce to castor oil on it to make it taste bad, but he still asks for it again and again.

I am expecting another baby soon and I would like to have my 2½-year-old off that ugly pacifier by then. He wants it mostly at night and I'm determined not to give it to him but he keeps crying until I finally give in. I think he's much too old to be sucking that thing.

What can I do, Abby? I'm at the end of my rope. Don't tell me to just suddenly take it away from him. I've tried it, but I always end up giving it to him.

Please help me. It's about to drive me nuts! — UPSET MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: First, sucking on a pacifier will do your child no harm. But denying him the pleasure, comfort and security he obviously needs and derives from it can do him a great deal of harm. Let him have his pacifier as long as he wants it. And if you doubt the soundness of this advice, ask your pediatrician.

DEAR ABBY: It has been a long time since I wrote to tell you that I was a compulsive gambler who had lost a fortune in time, money and self-respect. I also told you that I have written bad checks, embezzled money, served time, and lost my family. Not to mention one attempted suicide.

I just want to thank you again for recommending Gamblers Anonymous. I joined them and have not gambled since—and it's been three years! I still go to meetings and give strength and hope to others who were in the same shape as I was. I've met doctors, lawyers, cab drivers, school teachers, bartenders, millionaires and bell boys who couldn't resist betting on anything from the roll of the dice to the horses.

Thanks again, Abby, and God bless you in your work. — "STILL FIGHTING"

DEAR STILL: I'm not a betting woman, but I'll gamble on you! And if others want information about GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS, write to their home office: P. O. Box No. 17173, Los Angeles, Cal. 90017.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BIG ED": Better start looking around for another job. From too much YESSIR, NOSIR, a man can get an UL-SIR.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Trustees Had No Alternative

The East Carolina board of trustees had no alternative but to require that freshmen and sophomore students live in the dormitories which have been provided on the campus.

The newer dorms on campus were built to prepare for the steadily increasing enrollment at the university and they were financed with federal loans which are paid off with dorm rents. If there are empty rooms then obviously the revenues from the dorms will not be sufficient to meet the payments for these expensive housing facilities.

ECU officials say that there are now 1,200 vacancies in the dormitories which is a 20 percent vacancy rate. The enrollment at the institution far exceeds the number of dormitory spaces. What has happened is that more and more students have found off campus housing, usually with several students going together to rent an apartment.

However, as the dorms were being planned the university had to figure on expected enrollments and the probability of most of these future students needing dorm space.

A board chairman Robert Morgan said, "We cried long and loud to get these dorms and now we're obligated to make sure they get paid for."

Glum View Of Civilization

(Today's column was written for the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Dailies by David Kinney of the Burlington Daily Times - News.)

By DAVID KINNEY

BURLINGTON — A letter came from a friend recently. We went to high school together, then off to Chapel Hill. After his second year there, my friend tired of the grind and joined the Army. I still remember those years and the times spent talking with this fellow; enveloped in conversation, we often sat until the resurrected sun lightened an awakening sky.

We were and are good friends. The strange thing is as we talked, we usually found ourselves at complete odds. He is a staunch conservative, or rather a traditionalist. His main goal in college was to earn an officer's commission for a career in the military. My plans and ideals were far different. Yet we were united on a single common ground, a deep love of the South — he for what it had been, I for what it could be.

Now, my friend is undergoing advanced training at Ft. Sill, Okla., a barren stretch on the fringe of the great Staked Plains. There he passes his time reading and thinking. Though from a young man, a letter from him contains some of the best insights I have ever read into the mind and outlook of the rational conservative mind.

Here is a part of what he wrote:

"... What is (sic.) our civilization is falling apart, disintegrating. I have to prove this because it's true. I see it in the faces and hear it in the voices of the men and boys I'm surrounded by. Nobody seems to realize the army is dying too.

"Facts? I'm sure you don't need any, but here's one: In my section of 56 men, Saturday afternoon, no less than 12 were under the influence of drugs — mescaline, speed, black, beauties, reds, bennies, marijuana, diet pills. Now I must defend against the attack from the proof drug use is a sign of civilization decay's side.

"I can do it. Addiction isn't the problem. Have you seen a guy on mescaline? He gets languorous, retreats into himself, sees colors, talks softly, usually becomes something resembling a child in religious fervor. It's very pleasant, he can take it or leave it, the body won't cause any trouble. He doesn't have to have to take it again if he doesn't want to.

"I've heard one guy say all he wants to do is smoke or otherwise imbide hallucinics for all his life. This is my point. Let me drive it home: two weeks ago, only four were taking stuff, now 12... a miniature drug world blossoms: already there are pushers, knives, etc.

"This is just one symptom. It's in every phase, area and part of our society (moral decay). You don't have the contrasts of form offered by living with men from all over the U.S. Maybe the signs of moral collapse haven't reached home yet, but I don't see how our North Carolina society can survive the assault.

"From where I stand now, I can see the destruction, perversion or subversion of all I know and care for. For all its faults, which anyway are mostly of omission rather than commission, where you live right now offers more potential for the development of the human mind, spirit, even the body than anywhere else I've ever been or heard of. It's one of the last outposts in an ever — encroaching jungle.

"The jungle will win, I think. It will fight if I see a chance, retreat most probably before the jungle and end in futility. This may be the basic tenets of conservatism (Is it a wonder they call conservatism negative? But how can you tear yourself away from the awful spectre of a dying world long enough to plan and look positively to the future?)

"I could go on and on, but it's gloomy. There's hope; man was born to fight; if the jungle can't be defeated, maybe it will collapse of its own weakness.

The soldier — friend goes on to explain that this jungle is the jungle in man. He ends his letter by writing that an ambulance just came and took the first case of overdose of drugs in his outfit away. He said the man was in a coma but would live.

It is a problem that is facing most of the state's institutions of higher learning, which for the first time in years are finding themselves with surplus dormitory space.

East Carolina is facing the prospect of having to use reserve funds to make payments and some schools could possibly default on the bonds.

It may be proper for seniors in college to obtain an apartment and live off campus, since within a year they will be out on their own providing their living quarters.

At the same time there is no reason why the university should not require freshmen and sophomores to live on campus. After all, the dormitories, which have to be planned years ahead, were constructed so that space would be available for them.

An Example Of What North Carolina Needs

The Black and Decker plant which is being built in Tarboro is another example of the type industry North Carolina needs.

Gov. Scott called it a "clean high-wage industry."

"Black and Decker meets our highest expectations for new industry," the governor said at last week's groundbreaking.

The firm is building a $3 million facility which will employ 500 by 1971. It already has a plant at Fayetteville.

The plant is not in Greenville or Pitt County but when industries come into our area it helps the entire section.

As industries such as Black and Decker come into Eastern North Carolina we can expect to see a steadily improving economy.

The Limits Of Vietnamizing

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

FIRE BASE CARROLL, South Vietnam — The well-equipped 27th Regiment of North Vietnamese regulars was detected last week inching its way across the demilitarized zone (DMZ) into South Vietnam, setting up a brief but bloody battle that reveals both the success and the limits of Vietnamization.

One of the crack units of the South Vietnamese army — the 2nd Regiment of the 1st ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) Division — was sent out to intercept the Communist troops. They collided head-on about four miles north of here and four miles south of the DMZ. The leading North Vietnamese battalion was cut to shreds with 85 dead and the capture of new heavy machine guns made in China, as compared with five South Vietnamese dead. The retreating Communists disappeared into the rugged hill country.

The engagement, ending weeks of quiet along the DMZ, showed that the best of the South Vietnamese troops are more than a match for North Vietnamese regulars. The fact that the 1st ARVN Division, best in the South Vietnamese army under the dynamic command of Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, has successfully taken over the crucial DMZ sector from U.S. Marines is a showpiece of Vietnamization.

But last week's battle was by no means a wholly Vietnamese affair. Actually, two-thirds of the Communist deaths resulted from U.S. fire power.

U.S. B-52 bombers pulverized the 27th Regiment as it began to move off from the DMZ. U.S. Cobra rocket-firing helicopters further cut them up. Moreover, Fire Base Carroll — the heavily fortified forward position for the 2nd ARVN Regiment — can exist only if supplied by

Boondoggling In Skies

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe, speaking for the President, last week renewed the administration's appeal for funds to continue work on the supersonic transport plane.

The appeal contained at least a demi-semi-quaver of desperation. "The aviation industry is essential to our nation," Volpe said. If the SST should be dropped, "then in six or seven years you would have tens of thousands of employees laid off and an aviation industry that would go to pot."

Volpe also renewed a number of other arguments in support of the SST: Its sale would help our balance of payments. A successful SST would boost American prestige. And as for the problem of the plane's sonic boom, there would be no problem: The plane would never be permitted to fly at supersonic speeds over land. He concluded by contending that if the U. S. fails in the supersonic field, France, England and Russia will pick up the marbles.

A more specious line of reasoning seldom has been assembled. For the taxpayers to invest another $290 million in this venture — and that is the sum to be asked this week — would be a throwing of good money after bad boondoggles. Do we learn nothing from such wretched experiences as the military F-111? Do we ever examine all the implications of "progress"?

The SST does not represent a change in kind, in the fashion of jet planes replacing prop jobs. It is only a change in degree: It will fly faster than one of the new 747s. That is the sole advantage claimed for it. Except for speed, the SST offers not a single advantage in range, comfort, passenger volume, profits, safety, ease of handling — none of these. And unlike the 747, which the industry developed at its own expense, the SST would cost the taxpayers a fortune in subsidies unlikely ever to be recouped.

Who needs the SST? Well, the Boeing company, out in Seattle, needs the SST. But surely, with deference to the great State of Washington, something more than this is required. Who else needs the SST?

Not the traveling public. Relatively speaking, only a handful of passengers could be expected to pay the super-charges that would be required to make the SST a profitable operation. In theory, an SST flying flawlessly on schedule could carry 100,000 passengers a year; allowing for realistic factors of down-time and normal loads, the number is probably half that.

Not the people down below. Let us take with great grains of salt the promise that the SST would "never" be permitted to fly over the U. S. mainland. At less than

The Census, which began last Wednesday, could very well set the stage for political change during the decade of the seventies.

For instance, early estimates by the Bureau of the Census indicate that a dozen states may gain or lose seats in the U. S. House of Representatives. California, whose population has already passed that of New York, will become officially the most populous of all the states when the Census tabulation is completed. California is expected to gain four more seats in the House, for a total of 42 which would make it the largest of state delegations.

Strangely enough, other states expecting to gain lie in what is called the "sun belt" — Florida, Arizona, Colorado and Texas. States expected to lose some House seats include New York, Pennsylvania, North Dakota, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Reapportionment, however, isn't to be limited merely to this dozen or so

Zealot Of The Movies

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — William Wyler still takes a wistful pride in the $60-a-month disability payment he gets from Uncle Sam for damage to his right ear while filming high altitude scenes as a combat photographer during World War II.

"It's a shame that only war and common danger bring out the best in men," he said.

But at 67 Wyler, a landmark Hollywood director and producer whose films have accounted for 40 Oscars and 140 Academy Award nominations, is still trying himself to bring out the best in men.

HAL BOYLE

"It is my philosophy that a man should stand up for something," he said. "I like to make entertaining pictures, but I also get great satisfaction out of making a film that hopefully can contribute something to the improvement of our society."

Right now he is hopeful that his latest film, "The Liberation of L.B. Jones," a drama of lust and revenge, will help the plight of the Negro in the South.

A careful craftsman who takes two years or more to complete a picture, Wyler has been remarkably successful in turning out films that ring the cash register whether they are pure entertainments or also carry a message.

The director came to this country at the age of 18 from his native Alsace and started as a film company clerk at $20 a week. By 1925 he was earning $60 a week turning out two-reel westerns budgeted at $2,000 each.

His work since then has won him 13 personal Academy Award nominations and three Oscars. They were for directing "Mrs. Miniver," "The Best Years of Our Lives," and "Ben-Hur." He has also won critical acclaim for such other films as "Wuthering Heights," "The Little Foxes," "Roman Holiday," "Detective Story," and "Funny Girl."

What are the chief requirements of directing?

"I'd say they are a knowledge of your craft and a passion for your subject," replied Wyler. "You have to have both. One alone is not enough."

"And that's a big problem. It isn't always easy to find a story or a subject that stirs a passion in you."

And what are the rewards of directing?

"Well, it is fascinating because there are no two days alike," he said. "And when you do something good, the rewards are tremendous."

"People remember what you've done for 20 years or more. That's very gratifying, when you consider that so many millions of people who do good work every day in other fields get only a slap in the back."

More Soft Drinks Than Ever

By ELMER ROESSNER

Despite the ban on cyclamates and doubts raised about saccharine, Americans will likely drink more soft drinks this year than ever before. Bottlers' profits will fizzle merrily upwards.

ELMER ROESSNER

Earnings forecasts for 1970 range from 12 to 22 per cent over last year, depending on which company is doing the crystal gazing. On average, the industry expects a 9 per cent sales increase to more than $4 billion.

A moderate economic recession would not affect soft drink sales to any degree. Soda pop is low-priced and one of the last products to feel the drought of an economic slowdown. It's the big ticket items that are affected soonest and hardest. Besides being about the cheapest thirst quencher available next to water, soft drinks are often substituted for higher priced refreshments when budgets are cut.

Then, there is the immense youth population growing by leaps and bounds. This market accounts for a major part of soft drink sales.

Water Cure

In the unlikely event of a winding depression the picture would change drastically. Everyone would go back to drinking water. But then we would have bigger things than soft drinks to worry about.

What is true for soft drinks is partly true for beer. Those who like a wee drop of the hard stuff tend to switch to beers and ales when money gets short. The 21- to 40-year olds, the biggest beer drinking market segment, is growing with a 10 per cent rise in the last decade.

And it's drinking more with per person consumption going up about a half gallon a year.

This leads the brewers to anticipate a 3 to 4 per cent gain in beer guzzling this year — 120 million barrels for the 12-month period.

Champagne, too, is enjoying greater popularity. However, because the French also have more money for such goodies, the amount available for export will probably only increase slightly this year. French champagne prices can be expected to rise even faster than our cost of living.

Other Lookaheads

● A renewed attack will be mounted on antiquated building codes and zoning restrictions because of the low construction rate, housing shortage, high costs and interest rates. There will be some easing of bars to new materials and constructive techniques. Pre-fab houses and mobile homes will find wider acceptance. But conservatism and inertia will limit reform.

● Credit cards will be harder to get as the FTC tries to extend its May 18 ban on mailing unsolicited cards by department stores, oil companies and others. FTC pressure will next be applied to airlines and banks — if Congressional action doesn't beat the Commission to it.

● Before summer is over, almost everybody will have an opportunity to try a soft drink out of a plastic bottle. They'll be tested in many areas. And by next year, you may get bourbon that way.

Motion Picture Academy Is Making Its Awards Tonight

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie academy stages its 42nd annual Oscar awards presentation tonight and it's likely one of the most emotional and star-studded ever.

Besides a galaxy of contenders, 17 stars—against last year's 10—will present the statuettes. Among them is Elizabeth Taylor, wearing the $1.05 million diamond given her by husband Richard Burton, a nominee for best actor honors. Another presenter will be John Wayne, himself nominated for "True Grit."

Nixon Invited To Dedication

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — President Nixon is expected to attend the official dedication of a Confederate memorial carving on Stone Mountain May 9 if he can fit it into his schedule.

State Republican officials said Monday the visit was definite. In Washington, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler described it as a "good possibility."

The carving, which measures 303 by 190 feet, on the granite mountain east of Atlanta depicts Jefferson Davis and Gens. Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

supersonic speeds, the SST is a dead loss; it offers no advantages whatever. But when it flies beyond the speed of sound, the plane leaves a destructive path of sonic booms behind. Before a House Appropriations subcommittee grants the requested sum, it should study recent reports, notably from France, on the damage this phenomenon causes.

It becomes increasingly doubtful that even the airline industry needs the SST. The latest cost projection puts the cost of each supersonic transport at $60 million. How do you recoup that capital investment? Pan-American, our largest airline, is beginning to wonder.

In February, Aviation Daily and Business Week reported some highly pessimistic observations by Pan-Am's president Najeeb Halaby. The British-French Concorde, he remarked, may wind up with only 112 comfortable seats. Its tube-like cabin will seem cramped and narrow to passengers grown accustomed to the airborne living rooms of the 747. High costs per seat-mile indicate poor profits; and if there is one thing Pan-Am does not need, it is a new plane with a poor profitability picture.

Let us pause. The overriding question, here and in many other areas of our civilized society, is the extent to which man will let himself be victimized by his own machines. A needless surrender of values to speed and noise isn't progress. It's a needless surrender.

ing at 10 p.m. EST. In the first satellite transmission, the show will be seen live in Brazil and Chile.

The academy estimates at least 200 million persons in 40 countries will see the ceremonies live or by delayed broadcast.

The honors have been secretly voted by the 3,100 members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Leading with nominations in 10 categories, including best picture, was the historical drama "Anne of the Thousand Days." Challenging it for best film of 1969 was "Midnight Cowboy," the seamy life of a Texas drifter and a Manhattan bum.

"Hello, Dolly!," "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and "Z" also were nominated for the best picture award.

Favored among best actor nominees, in pre-award speculation, were the durable Wayne and the six-times nominated Burton, up for "Anne of the Thousand Days." Burton has never won.

Opposing them from the youth-oriented sector were Jon Voight and Dustin Hoffman for "Midnight Cowboy." Another contender was Peter O'Toole of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

attack killed eight women and children in the village of Le Vang. A team of Communist terrorists, assigned to assassinate local political leaders in the port city of Dan Nang south of here, could not find their targets and ended up blowing up the home of an ordinary citizen.

Despite these failures and the lack of support from the population, the Communists are not about to quit. Nor are they a ragged horde. In contrast to hungry, often demoralized Communist regulars farther to the south who are never quite the same after their long journey down the Ho Chi Minh Trail from North Vietnam, troops along the border for last week's engagement were well-fed, well-groomed, and well-equipped.

With U.S. bombing of the North halted since 1968, these sleek North Vietnamese units have complete sanctuary above the DMZ and can pop back and forth across the border without great difficulty. This raises the possibility of an invasion from the North of two divisions or more once the Communists feel defenses are sufficiently thin—because of U.S. troop pullouts.

That's what worries the South Vietnamese commanders.

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala is threatened with an exodus of ambassadors in the wake of the terrorist slaying of Count Karl von Spreti, the West German envoy.

Msgr. Gerolamo Prigione, the papal nuncio and dean of the diplomatic corps, said Monday night that nearly 70 per cent of the ambassadors "have said they are seriously considering asking their governments to reassign them or withdraw them from Guatemala."

Von Spreti was kidnapped last Tuesday by four members of the anti-government Rebel Armed Forces, or FAR, and was found shot to death Sunday night in a mud hut outside Guatemala City. The government had refused to meet the kidnappers' demands for the release of 22 jailed FAR members and $700,000 in ransom money.

The West German government in retaliation announced it would withdraw the rest of its embassy staff and indicated Guatemala's ambassador to West Germany, Antonio Gandara, was no longer welcome in Bonn.

An army spokesman said special protection was being given to all ambassadors. The army continued its search for Von Spreti's abductors, patrolling streets and making

Goldwater Hits Wage Demands

ELON COLLEGE, N. C. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., accused striking truckers, air controllers and postal workers of playing with inflation in asking for raises at this time.

The 1964 Republican presidential candidate said the federal government should use the full power of the law to deal with the workers. He spoke to the Alamance County Executives Club Monday night.

Goldwater also spoke out against the nomination of U.S. Dist. Judge Harold Carswell of Florida to the U. S. Supreme Court. He said, however, that if the Senate rejects the nomination the President would nominate another Southern judge.

house-to-house searches under the 30-day state of siege declared by President Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro following the kidnapping. But there was no indication that the arrest of the kidnapers was near.

Countess von Spreti spent Monday at the funeral home beside her 63-year-old husband's body, which lay in a cedar casket surrounded by huge wreaths.

The body was to be transferred today to the National Palace to lie in state there until it is returned to West Germany.

Mendez Montenegro declared three days of national mourning and wrote West German Chancellor Willy Brandt that his government had done everything it could to achieve the ambassador's release. The government said to release the prisoners would violate the constitution.

PTA Meeting Slated Thursday

The Agnes Fullilove Elementary School PTA will meet Thursday at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The program will be presented by the school chorus.

Officers for the 1970-71 school year will be elected and year-end reports will be given.

Brandt, visiting the United States, said earlier that the Guatemalan government had shown itself "unable to give accredited diplomatic representatives the necessary security."

He and President Nixon planned to discuss possible ways of dealing with international terrorism when they meet in Washington later this week.

In Washington, the White House called the murder "most unfortunate" and expressed President Nixon's sympathies to the ambassador's family. The State department said it was "shocked by this brutal and indefensible act."

A spokesman refused to say whether the U.S. government was considering withdrawing any of its diplomats from potential trouble spots.

In Santiago, Chile, meanwhile, a top-ranking security official said leaders of a dozen Latin American terror groups are planning to meet this month in La Paz, Bolivia, to "coordinate action." He said some Bolivian authorities want to stop the meeting but others want to let it be held in hopes of gathering information about the terrorists.

Volunteers Will Turn Out To Clean Up Roads

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — About 4,000 volunteers are expected to turn out Saturday to clear trash from along 1,837 miles of road. Their slogan: "Make Stanislaus County the Cleanest in California."

The idea is the joint brainchild of Paul Philbin of nearby Riverbank, a stockbroker and member of the conservationist Sierra Club, and County Supervisor Richard Vander Wall.

Civic clubs, country clubs, student groups and individual citizens headed the call.

The Stanislaus Disposal Association, an organization of professional garbage men, volunteered to put trash bins at strategic locations along the roads and to pick them up.

Philbin estimated that one six-member crew could clear one mile of road an hour.

Misdemeanor To Leave Key

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The city council has passed an ordinance making it a misdemeanor to leave a car unattended with a key in the ignition.

The ordinance, approved Monday and effective July 1, will subject violators to a ticket calling for a $4 fine.

At Least Five Perish In Quake

MANILA (AP) — At least five persons perished and more than 175 were injured today by a shattering earthquake that shook the central Philippines for nearly a minute.

Most of the known casualties were in Manila. There were fears that the toll would rise when reports come in from the provinces.

Lossers were leading advances by about 100, however, among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers say many investors are remaining on the sidelines and that some are wary because of the recent weakness in glamor or stocks.

Some analysts say the glamor and other widely swinging stocks will have to stabilize before the market can embark on any general advance.

One Wall Street observer does not think glamor issues will be able to level off until after first-quarter earnings are in. A poor quarter is generally expected for the glamors.

$7 Million For Children's Fund

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Children's Fund is richer by $7,626,000—a treat from American children who went trick-or-treating last Halloween, and from other U.S. contributors.

The Children's Fund was given a check for that amount Monday by the U.S. Committee. It represents about 15 per cent of the agency's worldwide budget.

Salisbury . . .

Salisbury believes, "to the intensification of the Russian-Chinese border disputes which occurred at the time," other actions, hardly noticed by the press and the public have taken place. Among these he mentioned a decision by the U.S. to permit certain qualified and interested persons, such as serious students, scholars and doctors to get passports for China.

"Of course China has not issued any visas, but still such small events are a diplomatic gain, a certain mark of progress in relations," he noted.

Earlier he said, "We are so preoccupied with the question of Southeast Asia that we have hardly begun to notice the great threat to the security of the world that is mounting. For the last two years this situation has become worse, and today it is the most critical crisis on the international front. The two powers have virtually been on the brink of nuclear war."

Briefly touching on the continuing history of Communist developments, Salisbury said, "Nobody fights more often among themselves than Communists. Their history is a long, deep, bloody one."

Conjecturing on the chain reaction of possibilities which could evolve in the event of active war, Salisbury enumerated developments he feels could occur.

"India has an undeclared war with China that still exists. Russia has often expressed interest in liberating the Sinkiang Province of western China. India makes no secret of its interest in Tibet, so a possible alliance might be worked out."

"Southeast Asia is the second area. The Hanoi government is totally dependent on the help of Russia and China. Both are in Hanoi. If hostility occurs between the two, Peking would immediately issue Hanoi an ultimatum to eliminate the Russians. With Hanoi's traditional hostility to the Chinese, Hanoi would likely reject such a demand, resulting in the Chinese attempting to enforce it," Salisbury commented.

"Korea is in reality an armed camp, itching for an opportunity to fight. A major conflict would open the Korean front again, and American interest would immediately be involved. Japan would also turn to us for assistance."

Stating that the situation created "the most delicate diplomatic maneuvers the U.S. has ever been engaged in," Salisbury readily admitted he could see no miraculous solution. "Actually, food is probably the key to the whole problem. China's population is enormous and continues to grow. They need a reliable food source. Although we cannot solve the basic problems, we can do something if we use our technology, resources and imagination to produce a surplus of food to use to good ends."

"I think the creation of a world food bank would be the best way to take care of this pressing need," Salisbury said.

Plan Begin Class For Radiological Monitors

A class in Radiological Monitoring will begin Monday, April 13 at Pitt Technical Institute, according to Junius H. Rose, director of Pitt County Civil Defense Council.

The course will be offered by the joint efforts of the council and Pitt Tech, with James N. Hoover of the Pitt Tech faculty as instructor for the course.

Rose reports there is still a need for more trained radiological monitors in Pitt County, even though the course has been taught several times before. The radiological course covers a series of lessons in protection from bomb blasts and - or radioactive fallout.

A total of 16 hours will make up the course, which will meet five times for over a two week period.

There is no charge for the course and necessary equipment for instruction is furnished by the Civil Defense Agency.

Persons interested in taking this course are asked to notify the Pitt County Civil Defense Agency, telephone 758-2008 or the director, J.H. Rose, at 752-3277.

Managing Your Money

PNB PLANTERS NATIONAL BANK

Lets Look At The Records

A prerequisite to a sound money management program is some simple, yet effective, method of keeping records.

Records, as everybody knows are essential for tax purposes. If you don't believe it, try to support a tax deduction without a receipt, cancelled check or some other acceptable record.

Over and over again, above this essential consideration, records are an invaluable source of information for the year to year comparison of recurring expenses. This can prove invaluable as a yardstick in preparing a budget. It also serves as a means of checking the efficiency of such items as the heating plant or the refrigerator.

For about six months each year, the typical homeowner swaps a snowshovel for a lawnmower. The heating plant is shut down and forgotten. During that time, people are inclined to forget about the size of last year's fuel bills. Having a month to month comparison handy, a homeowner can estimate the efficiency of his heating system. It might be working but its performance is so inefficient that the homeowner could be spending more on fuel than the cost of a replacement unit.

Few people consider the amount of money that can be wasted in this fashion. They are usually content to "leave well enough alone".

The same applies to a refrigerator or other major household appliances. They age. They become less efficient—and more expensive to operate. A sharp increase in utility bills would be a tip-off on these conditions.

Just as a matter of curiosity, do you recall the date you purchased your refrigerator or installed a heating plant? One of the miracles of American industry is the amount of trouble-free service they build into the products they sell. But, none of them can issue an eternal guarantee.

A family is a small business enterprise, as I have mentioned a number of times. As a business enterprise, we should recognize the fact that some of the equipment we use to operate the household will wear out. It will have to be replaced. We should prepare for such contingencies. We can do that by maintaining adequate records. A checkbook and cancelled checks can do this automatically.

Major corporations set aside funds to replace the equipment they use. A family, as a business enterprise should do the same.

Dear A. B.:

I read your article in our local paper with a great deal of interest.

Several months ago when the Board of Directors of Pitt Technical Institute were discussing this change over to a community college I contacted some of the board members in reference to the fact that I felt that a Vocational School was of prime importance to this area.

We have E.C.U. in Greenville. There are community colleges in several of our neighboring cities. To me, first and foremost, emphasis must be placed on having a place to train the unskilled labor and give him a skill that will enable him to support himself in his own community. We are in only the early stage of industrialization here in the East. Vocational Schools must be available if we hope to continue to bring industry to Eastern North Carolina.

I was assured that Vocational courses to train new skilled labor would not be deemphasized. From your article it appears this is taking place.

The only way I know to prevent this is to oppose making Pitt Technical Institute a community college and insist on their development to the highest extent in the program for which it was originally organized.

Sincerely,

Ray D. Minges

Think you can't afford an Olds? Here are two reasons to think again!

Our own surveys indicate that quite a few people think an Olds costs a lot more than it really does. Result? Many people buy an ordinary car and end up with a lot less car and value for their money.

It's so unnecessary, too, because Oldsmobile has many models that are priced right down with so-called low-priced cars. See your Olds dealer. He'll prove that you're closer to Olds than you think.

Cutlass S: The sporty Olds—priced right down with the low-priced names. Included as standard equipment: Recessed wipers. Hidden antenna. Deluxe steering wheel. Wall-to-wall carpeting. Door side-guard beams. Flo-Thru Ventilation.

Knicks Bump Bullets, Advance In Playoffs

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick

Barnett, the wondrous Old Man of the New York Knicks, was skirting friendly, verbal pokes about his age and stamina.

"It's performance that counts, not my age," said the National Basketball Association veteran who's on the verge of 34. "I believe I've still got five more years in this league."

Believe, believe. He looked as agile as a startled gazelle Monday night, scoring 29 points to pace New York's 127-114 victory over Baltimore that gave the Knicks their Eastern Division semifinal series, four games to three.

The victory, before a rowdy

full house of 19,500 at Madison

Square Garden, shot the Knicks into the Eastern finals against

Milwaukee. The best-of-7 series starts Saturday afternoon in

New York.

Phoenix, holding a 3-2 edge in the best-of-7 Western semifinals with Los Angeles, hosts the Lakers in the only NBA action tonight.

Barnett, guarded by Baltimore's magnificent Earl

Monroe, admittedly went for the basket often "to try to put Monroe on defense more ...

and maybe affect his offensive

game."

Monroe wound up with a game-high 32 points, but his performance wasn't enough to offset the Knicks' well balanced effort that had Barnett crowing,

"It was a heck of a team

game."

The Knicks' Willis Reed

agreed: "We came to play, asking ourselves if we wanted to start our vacations early ... or continue the playoffs.

"It was the best all-around game we've played in the playoffs. I wasn't going so well, so

Guy hit others who had the hot hand."

Dave DeBusschere, the Knicks' graceful forward, was one of them. He scored 29 points, 18 in the second half as the Knicks blew Baltimore off the court.

Most of the players pointed to the ear-splitting, partisan rooters as a factor.

Coach Red Holzman of New York summed it up succinctly:

"Our crowd beat their crowd, four games to three."

ABA Gives Help To Floridians

NEW YORK (AP) — The

American Basketball Association is giving temporary financial aid to its Miami franchise

while the Floridians undergo reorganization.

This disclosure was made

Monday night by ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph, who also said the ABA and the National Basketball Association are again conducting talks which could lead to an eventual merger.

Dolph said the reorganization of the Miami team should be "completed next week and it is not known at this point how the Floridians' ownership will be constituted."

His brief statement concluded

by saying: "The ABA has no plans to move the Floridians to another location."

In response to questions,

Dolph said "we are exploring" the possibility of converting the Floridians into a regional franchise, "looking at such towns as

Jacksonville, Orlando, Tampa

and St. Petersburg. It is our intenition to keep the base of operations in Miami."

He also said there was a possibility the New Orleans franchise would be shifted elsewhere because the Buccaneer owners are interested in selling if they can't raise additional capital by taking in more partners. He confirmed that Salt

Lake City and Kansas City were prime contenders for the Bucs if they are moved and added

Memphis to the list.

On the merger subject, Dolph said: "We are having meetings

this week to see if we can expand our areas of agreement and at the same time reduce our areas of disagreement."

Asked if the biggest stumbling block was the objections of the

NBA's Baltimore Bullets to the retention of a team in Washington, which has an ABA team,

Dolph would only say: "That problem is unresolved."

Player Caddie Beard, Hill Feel They Said Threatened Are Ready To Challenge But The Tigers Had Support, Senators Won It

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The caddie who has carried Gary Player's bags for years, won't in the masters tournament this weekend.

The caddie, Ernest Nipper, didn't say why.

A fellow caddie said the reason was that Nipper had been warned by a militant activist group, which has made veiled threats against Player because of his country's apartheid policies.

Player was asked the reason for the change.

"Nipper isn't caddying for me this year—I have a new caddie," he said. He declined to elaborate.

Asked the name of his new boy, the South African shrugged and replied, "It's a local boy."

The local boy is Carl Jackson, a stringbean regular at the Augusta National Club.

"I know nothing of no threats," said Jackson. "Nobody's said anything to me."

Fred Bennett, the caddie master, acknowledged that the change was a bit irregular but declined to comment on it. "I'll have to ask Nipper," he said.

He said Nipper's case is different because Nipper is a traveling caddie. Most of the Masters caddies are local boys. Nipper was assigned the bag of Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Meanwhile, despite efforts to play down and cool the situation, an atmosphere of tension prevailed at the normally serene Masters, renowned for its relaxed southern setting.

Every time Player strikes a ball or walks from green to the next tee, a cordon of uniformed Pinkerton security police may be seen forming a protective circle around him.

They try not to be obvious, but they can't help it.

One young cop always at his elbow has a mustache and long sideburns. He admitted Player was his personal responsibility. There are others equally responsible.

How many?

"I'm not permitted to say," one of the cops said. "But how many do you see?"

At least a half-dozen, guns on hips, stood by menacingly.

"I think you'll find a few plain's clothesmen around also," one of the security officers said.

When Player finished Monday's practice round, shooting a sparkling 67, he was hustled into one of the private rooms at the club where he went into a brief conference with Masters' officials.

Nobody would divulge the purpose of the secretive meeting.

"I have no comment," a disturbed Player said. "I think it would be better if this whole thing were dropped. I am not mad at anybody. I love everybody—regardless of race or religion."

At the PGA championship last year in Dayton, Ohio, a demonstrator tossed a cup of ice in Player's face. There also was a scuffle on one of the greens.

There were rumors of threats when Player rejoined the tour this spring in Florida, but so far there has been no incident. He had a trench-coated security guard in Miami.

Player, winner here in 1961, is one of the top favorites this week. He won the $36,000 first prize in the Greater Greensboro Open Sunday.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Two of golf's emerging superstars, Frank Beard and Dave Hill, are ready to challenge the pro game's establishment for the coveted green jacket that goes to the winner of the Masters.

Those two, tour veterans in their early 30's, came into their own last year and, as much as anyone else dominated the pro tour. Neither, however, has won a major title.

But now, they say, they're ready.

"I guess you could say it's more of an obsession with me now than ever before," said the soft-spoken Beard, a relatively bland, colorless character in the mold of a Billy Casper.

Like Casper, about the only thing outstanding about him is his golf game. It brought him to titles in 1969 along with $177,000 that made him the leading money winner.

"Sure, I'm shooting for it, more than ever before," the flamboyant, outspoken Hill said after a practice round Monday. "I've been off for four weeks just practicing for it."

Hill, a thin, dark young man who came up from the caddie ranks and spent years of obscurity on the tour, won three events last year, captured the Vardon Trophy for the best stroke average and was second on the money list.

Both are among the favorites in this first of the world's four major championships, a 72-hole test that begins Thursday on the famed Augusta National Golf Club course.

And each said his game is whipping into shape.

"I'm playing pretty good right now," said Beard, a Louisville, Ky., native who took one of his rare week's off just prior to the Masters to rest.

"I'm playing a lot better than I have in some time," he said.

"Maybe not as good as I'd like to, but better."

"Yes, you could say I'm gunning for this one. It's not that I'm doing anything differently, but with the accomplishments I was fortunate enough to achieve last year, well, winning a major title or possibly the Vardon Trophy is about all that's left."

Hill, sporting a new pair of granny, wire-rimmed glasses—"It's a whole new world for me!" Davy out there now that he can see it—"has been in Augusta since Friday sharpening his considerable skills."

"The ball is coming off the club just about the way I want it to, now," said Hill, one of the game's greatest perfectionists. "It's not 100 per cent yet, maybe, but it's coming around."

"I've always faded the ball. For a while there, I was hitting it left. When you aim it left, then hit it left, well, sometimes it's pretty hard to find."

"But now it's coming off the way I want it."

"I know this is supposed to be a hooker's course. Every driving hole here is for the hook. But I'm not going to change my game for it. My game's been pretty good to me of late."

"Besides, I seem to remember that Jimmy Demaret bumped it around here with that little slice of his pretty good a couple of times."

Demaret won in 1940, 1947 and 1950.

A Nixon and Eisenhower graced the Washington rooting section. Ted Williams barked encouragement from the dugout and a micro-skirted cutie hugged Frank Howard at home plate.

With that kind of support, how could the Senators miss?

Detroit's Mickey Lolich had the answer, but he was keeping it a secret Monday after taming the Senators 5-0 in the American League's traditional season opener—to the dismay of late-arriving President Nixon, first-ball pitcher David Eisenhower, the curvy Howard-hugger and a chilled Washington crowd of 45,015.

"I worked on a new pitch and I threw it a lot today," said the Tigers' stocky left-hander, who scattered seven hits and struck out 10 in a rain-delayed, three hours and 43 minutes marathon. "I call it the classified pitch."

Pressed for elaboration, he said: "I refuse to answer on the grounds the hitters may incriminate me."

While Lolich, subbing for suspended Tiger ace Denny McLain, was pinning Washington with its eighth straight opening day loss, Cincinnati gave new Manager Sparky Anderson a solid sendoff by trimming Montreal 5-1, behind southpaw Jim Merritt's three-hitter in the National League opener.

"I just sat on the bench and enjoyed a nice relaxed time," Anderson said after watching Merritt hold the Expos hitless for 6 1-3 innings and the Reds' Lee May, Bob Tolán and rookie Bernie Carbo rock Montreal's Joe Sparrma for fourth inning.

home runs. All the other clubs were set to play today, with the exception of the St. Louis Cardinals, who open Wednesday at Montreal.

Tom Seaver got the starting call for the world champion New York Mets at Pittsburgh against the Pirates' Steve Blass. Baltimore's American League defenders opened at Cleveland, with Dave McNally pitching against the Indians' Sudden Sam McDowell.

The Chicago Cubs were at Philadelphia, Atlanta at San Diego, Houston at San Francisco and Cincinnati at Los Angeles in other NL action.

Milwaukee's new American League club, the Seattle Pilots, entertained California while Oakland was at Kansas City, Minnesota at the Chicago White Sox, Boston at the New York Yankees and Detroit at Washington.

With Nixon detained at the White House because of a key Senate vote on the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell and Vice President Agnew also unavailable, young Eisenhower was assigned to throw out the first ball.

After a 55-minute rain delay the President's son-in-law flipped a bloop from his box seat to the first base line, where Senators' outfielder Hank Allen made the catch. Allen also caught Nixon's first throw a year ago.

When Howard came to bat in the bottom of the first, Morgana Roberts, an exotic dancer, bolted from the stands and embraced the towering Washington slugger. She had made a similar unscheduled foray last summer at Atlanta, planting a kiss on the Braves' Cleve Boyer as he went to the plate.

Thus fortified, Howard grounded out. He and Ed Brinkman divided six of the Senators hits, but by the time Nixon arrived in the fifth inning, Lolich still was ahead 2-0.

At Cincinnati, a crowd of 30,124 saw Merritt stop the Expos cold until Rusty Staub tripled with one out in the seventh. Ron Fairly followed with a run-scoring single but Merritt allowed only one more the rest of the way.

Stickers Defeated

DURHAM — The Duke University junior varsity lacrosse team came back strong after rain interrupted its game with East Carolina in the third period yesterday. By the time Duke had cooled off again, they had taken an 8-6 victory over the Bucs.

East Carolina held a 4-1 lead at the half, but during the third period, it rained, and the game was halted. When it resumed, Duke came up with six goals in the third period, while East Carolina only got one. Both teams made one more goal in the fourth frame.

The East Carolina scoring was done by Gary McCulloch with three goals, while Eric Schandelmeyer had two goals and an assist. David Lord added one goal.

Coach John Lovstedt cited Will Mealey, Ed Grotzel and goalie Jim Frank for their defensive work in the match.

The stickers go to VMI on Saturday for a match, hoping to improve their 1-1 record.

Hawks Would Like Stanley

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks bid adieu to the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League by winning the Prince of Wales trophy.

Now they would like nothing better than to take the Stanley Cup with them when they become members of the Western Division under the Expansion program of the 1970-71 season.

"We're not going over there as second rate citizens," crowed general manager Tommy Ivan following the Hawks' 10-2 victory over Montreal Sunday night to give them the Eastern Division crown.

The Hawks, who became the first team in NHL history to climb from last to first, haven't won the Stanley Cup since 1961.

They won the Prince of Wales trophy and the NHL title in 1967 but were knocked out in the opening round of the playoffs. They are determined on giving it a better shot this time when they open the playoffs at home Wednesday and Thursday nights against Detroit.

"This club is ready," said Stan Mikita. "Three years ago I was more elated and we had a bigger celebration because it was the first time we had won the championship. This time we'll hold off the big celebration for later."

"The last time we won it big," continued Mikita. "When the playoffs started, we were flat and Toronto didn't have much trouble with us. But this year we've had to battle all the way. We're mentally sharp and in good shape physically, too."

Bobby Hull, who like Mikita is a holdover from the 1961 Stanley Cup champions, feels the Hawks can go all the way this time.

"This is the greatest team I've ever played with," said the Golden Jet. "We might have had better individuals in other years but for hustle, spirit and pride this has to be one of the greatest teams in league history."

New Orleans In Fateful Trip

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Scrambling to nail down a playoff berth, the New Orleans Buccaneers start a crucial road trip today — Riding a winning streak.

In Monday's night only American Basketball Association action, the Bucs held their finger-nail grip on fourth place in the Western Division by beating California, 111-106.

The victory boosted New Orleans to a relatively fat half game edge over cellar-dwelling Los Angeles. The previous margin was a mere splinter of one statistical point.

Carolina's Cougars, secure in the ABA's Eastern Division third place slot, went all-out with a last minute rally that concentrated on Bob Verga's ability to hit from the outside.

He hit two of the three-point long shots, boosting his total to 29 points, high for the game. Gerry Govan was high man for the Bucs with 23 points and contributed 14 rebounds. But Coach Babe McCarthy was happiest over the fact that six Bucs hit in double figures.

With six games left on the regular season schedule, McCarthy figures the one against Los Angeles Thursday will decide which team plays on or packs up until next year.

"That's got to be the biggest one of all for us because Los Angeles is at the bottom now—and if we can't beat them we're liable to be," he said.

Battle Ends For Stokes

By JOHN W. CHACE
CINCINNATI (AP) — A long, "courageous" battle has ended for former National Basketball Association star Maurice Stokes who had lived basketball from his stricken by encephalitis in 1958. "He was always watching or listening to games," Jack Twyman, Stokes' guardian and one-time

"Mighty Mo" who died Monday from a heart attack. "We talked a lot about the days when he was an active player."

Stokes, NBA's rookie of the year in the 1955 season when he played for the old Rochester Royals who moved to Cincinnati in 1958. He was headed toward becoming one of the sport's greats when he was stricken following an injury in a game.

Encephalitis, a brain injury, left him paralyzed and bedridden most of the time but he managed to regain the ability to feed himself, write and type.

"You'll never know, meet or read about anybody as courageous as Maurice," Twyman said. "I never heard the man complain in 12 years of lying on his back."

Stokes averaged over 15 points a game and 15 rebounds in his last season. He was selected to the all-NBA second team all three years.

Only a few weeks ago, he received one of the thrills of his life. He was voted by fans to the Cincinnati Royals' Hall of Fame.

He managed to view a couple of Royals game at the Cincinnati Gardens from a wheelchair. His mind appeared unaffected and while his speech never returned to normal, he was cheerful and witty.

*Ford's suggested retail price for the base Maverick model. White sidewall tires are not included, they are $30 extra. Since dealer preparation charges (if any), transportation charges and state and local taxes vary, they are not included, nor is extra equipment that is specially required by state laws.

Our little Maverick is America's best selling small car. The reason is simple—solid value. Maverick is simple to drive. Turn on the engine and you turn loose the power of 105 horses. Yet Maverick rivals the economy imports in gas mileage. Simple to park. Maverick can U-turn in a tighter circle than the leading import. Simple to service. Maverick requires fewer oil changes, fewer chassis lubrications. You save time and money. Simple to repair. The Maverick Owner's Manual has 24 pages of instruction for routine maintenance jobs you can do yourself. Simple to own. Save right from the start—the Simple Machine is your Ford Dealer's lowest priced car.

For a little more...it's a GRABBER!

The new Maverick Grabber has all the same features as our Simple Machine but we've added an extra sporty flare to it. Here's what Grabber gives you: 1. Racy body-side tape stripes, choice of five hot Grabber colors, 14-in. whitewall tires and wheel trim rings. High excitement, yes. High price, no. 2. 200 CID Six and 3-speed fully synchronized manual transmission. Lots of pep, but not hard to tune. Grabber adds to your fun, not your mechanical problems. 3. Dual racing mirrors. But no high "muscle car" insurance rates. 4. Three-spoke woodgrained steering wheel just like the racing cars. But no hard, stiff ride. Grabber's sprung for comfort, not for the track. 5. Black-painted hood and grille. Grabber puts on a great front, but maintenance costs are low. Service is fast and simple. With lots you can do yourself. 6. Rear deck-lid spoiler. Even an economy car can dream, can't it?

Don't Bow To Cancer Phobia

Judge Harry had such a secret phobia about cancer that he was willing to seek quick death by some other route. But don't jump to such hasty conclusions. Many supposedly terminal cancer victims are still alive, years after being told they had only a few months to live! And don't be stampeded unduly by "You MIGHT get cancer!"

By-GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE M-574: Judge Harry, aged 54, was recently hospitalized.

"Dr. Crane," his personal physician informed me, "Judge Harry had a perforating peptic ulcer.

"But we also found that he was in the final stages of terminal cancer.

"We didn't tell him of that fact, for he seemed abnormally scared about a malignancy.

"However, an intern was in his hospital room a day or so later and being unaware of the Judge's cancer phobia, this intern casually informed him he better put his house in order.

"For the intern then told him he had possibly no more than 6 months to live.

"A couple of weeks later, the Judge was released from the hospital.

"But he hadn't been home three days when he filled his automobile's gas tank.

"Then he drove it into the garage, where he had carefully plugged up all the cracks in the doors.

"He sat at the steering wheel and started the motor. He was found a few hours later, dead from carbon monoxide."

Many patients have this abnormal phobia of cancer death so they check out earlier via some form of suicide.

And other patients are so suggestible, that if they even imagine they have a malignancy, they may lose their appetite, become victims of insomnia, and die prematurely, just from fright, alone.

In ancient times, a terrible plague struck Damascus, killing thousands.

So a wealthy merchant loaded, his jewels and other valuable possessions on a string of donkeys and fled from the city.

Soon he encountered a distinguished looking gentleman, who trudged along beside the merchant.

As they engaged in conversation, the merchant finally asked the stranger for his name.

"I am called the Black Death," replied the latter.

"Oh, go away from me at once," shouted the merchant, "for you have already slain 50,000 in Damascus!"

"Nay," protested the stranger, "I slew but 1,000. Fear killed the other 49,000."

And this story merits the attention of a ill sick folks!

For fear can kill your appetite, zoom your blood pressure, destroy your restful slumber, cause peptic ulcer and spastic colitis and produce many other neurological symptoms.

So be a Doubting Thomas and a fighter.

Get more than one medical opinion, if you have been diagnosed as approaching death.

Then refuse to "chicken out" and surrender. Instead, fight till the end.

For a fighting spirit has often defeated Death.

Thousands of needless gall bladder operations have thus been performed because the surgeon shook his head dolefully and warned that "You might develop cancer if you don't have the gall bladder removed, for it is full of stones."

So what!

Millions of people carry a gall bladder full of stones to their death in a ripe old age.

And you MIGHT get run over by a car en route to the supermarket, so don't be unduly scared of a "might" type of cancer! Send for my booklet "How to Control Our Emotions," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: King of ♠ North was reluctant to settle for what he feared might be a negligible profit by doubling West's preemptive four spade overall. Had he done so, the deal would have been a washout, for the 100 honors wipes out the one trick deficit that West would have incurred.

When North raised his partner to five hearts, instead, East doubled in the expectation that his trump holding and the ace of diamonds together with one trick from partner—would be sufficient to defeat the opponents.

West opened the king of spades and East began a high-low by playing the six. West continued with the queen, North ruffed with the four of hearts and East followed with the five of spades. It appeared to South that his right hand opponent must hold all of the missing trumps to have any signs of a double, in which case it would be quite a task to do East out of a heart trick. As an initial step, declarer led the seven of hearts from dummy. East covered with the eight, South put up the jack and West showed out.

The queen of diamonds was led. East played the ace and returned a club which was won in dummy with the king. The king of diamonds was cashed and a small diamond ruffed in the closed hand with the three of hearts as both opponents followed suit. Next came the ace of clubs and the jack which was overtaken by North's king to produce the following four card position:

SOUTH

A diamond was led from dummy and in order to prevent declarer from scoring a cheap overruff, East trumped in with the nine of hearts. South topped this with the jack of spades, trumping in dummy with the ace of hearts as East helplessly undertruffed with the deuce.

On the diamond return, East's 10-5 of hearts were trapped under declarer's K-6, and the defender's apparently sure trump trick had vanished into thin air.

Coalition A 'Landmark'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mrs. Harry B. Caldwell, master of the North Carolina State Grange, said a meeting of a coalition of 32 farm organizations here was a "landmark."

The coalition said American agriculture is in danger of losing gains it has made unless the Nixon administration moves to seek continuation and improvement of farm programs.

Others at the meeting included

ed Mrs. Caldwell's husband, who represented the Farmers Cooperative Council of North Carolina, Henry Winchester of Greensboro, representing the North Carolina Association of Farmer - Elected Committee-men, and S. Womack Lee, who represented peanut growers of North Carolina and Virginia.

Mrs. Caldwell said the week-end meeting showed that farm organizations and commodity groups are working together in a spirit of unity. She said out of this has evolved "a true consensus that farm programs must not be abandoned or brought to a halt."

They'll Rock Again For Easter Seals

There will be two rocking chairs at Five Points this year as both the Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity and the East Carolina University Swimming Team plan to place a rocking delegate at this central point beginning April 16 and continuing through April 19.

Like last year and previous years, the manned rocking chairs or "Rock Around The Clock" will focus attention on the annual "Easter Seal" drive to raise funds for the Society of Crippled Children and Adults.

Ron Cundiff of Virginia Beach, Virginia has been chosen to rock in one chair. Cundiff represents the fraternity.

Steve Weisman from Washington, D.C. is to rock for the ECU swimming team. Both these young men hope to establish a new record for the annual "Rock Around The Clock" affair. Michael Leakey, a native of Norfolk, Va., and chairman of the "Rock" this year noted, "Last year, our representative managed to rock for 56 hours. This idea, which was originated by the Alphas Epsilon Pi Fraternity, is now used by other schools.

"In fact, because we have our first, Wilmington was able to beat our record with a 56 and one half hour rockathon, so we're going to try for 57 hours this year."

Another representative, Ronnie Roth, who was active in last year's drive which netted $1,538, remarked, "We hope to surpass that amount this year. We'll have 25 or 30 representatives, as well as some coeds to help in collecting. These helpers will be stationed at different points around town."

Dr. James Butler is chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the State Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults campaign this year. All benefit funds raised by the "Rock-Around-The-Clock" effort, according to Roth, will be spent locally. "Whatever is collected will be spent in this area," he commented.

Two Injured In Three Traffic Mishaps Here

Two persons were reported injured in a series of three traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday.

Wilse Manuel Drake, of 404 Hillcrest Dr., was injured, police reported, when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Ruth Corbitt Coleman, of 921 Howell St. about 5 p.m. at the intersection of Millbrook Drive and Sunset Avenue.

Police, who made no charges, set damage to the bicycle at $10 and reported no damage to the Coleman car.

Johnnie Lee Daniels, 27, of 2713 Glendale Dr. was injured in an 8:25 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Third Street and Memorial Drive.

Police said a car driven by Daniels collided with a vehicle operated by Willie James Loyd, 26, of Shady Knoll Trailer Park, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Daniels vehicle and about $400 damage to the Loyd auto.

Loyd was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Jerals Lynn Blackburn, 20, of Eden was charged with failing to yield the right of way in another 8:25 a.m. mishap, at the intersection of U.S. 13 and the Belvoir Road.

Officers reported the Blackburn car collided with a vehicle driven by Roscoe Tyson, 51, of Farmville.

Damage was set at $400 to the Blackburn vehicle and $200 to the Tyson car.

Manson 'Family' Claims A Life Of Love, Kindness

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson—is he a Rasputin who sent a band of hippies on murderous forays? Or a gentle troubador, a teller of tales, a singer of songs, a dreamer of dreams?

His upcoming trial is currently scheduled to start here April 20.

The state of California is expected to try to prove that Manson, who spent more than half his 35 years in reform schools and prisons, was so enraged by the refusal of Terry Melcher, (the son of Doris Day) to sponsor his recording career that he ordered a group of his followers to kill everyone at Melcher's house.

Melcher was not in his home the night of Aug. 9 last summer, but pregnant actress Sharon Tate, who was renting the Benedict Canyon house, was so were three guests and a youth visiting the property's caretaker. All died from vicious gun and knife attacks.

A Tale Of Horror
Subsequently the county grand jury was told a grisly tale by Susan Atkins, 21, a winsome brunette who lived with Mason and his "family." She said members of the group, including herself but not Manson, committed the murders.

The next night, Miss Atkins' story went, Manson did accompany the group to the home of Leno LaBianca, a grocery chain owner, and there ordered them to kill LaBianca and his wife, Rosemary, so "we wouldn't lose our nerve."

On the basis of Miss Atkins' testimony, murder and conspiracy indictments were issued against Manson, Miss Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel, Linda Kasabian, Leslie van Houten and Charles "Tex" Watson. All except Watson, who is fighting extradition from Texas, are scheduled to be tried together. Miss Kasabian's case may be detached. It's been reported she may be a prosecution witness.

His Influence The Issue
There has been no contention that Manson was present at the Tate home or that he remained at the LaBiancas' while the couple was killed.

The Beginner's Bridge Class, usually held at the Recreation Center on Elm Street on Tuesday nights, will be held this week on Wednesday night. The change of nights is necessitated by arrangements made prior to beginning of bridge classes for use of the center by another group for the one night.

Gold-Plated Tub

Draws Bathers

YUGASHINA, Japan (AP) — The Funabara Hot Springs Hotel says it's doing rush business charging $2.75 for a two-minute dip in a gold-plated bathtub. It costs more to soak longer.

The hotel paid $360,000 for the tub six years ago and estimates that 600,000 bathers have used it since. Most stayed in for the minimum two minutes, but one honeymooning couple from Hong Kong paid $14 for 10 minutes.

The tub is 5 feet 11 inches long, 2 feet 7 inches deep and plated with 22-carat gold. The hotel said it heard bathing in a gold tub promoted longevity.

has been depicted as a satanic leader whose gaze mesmerized his female followers.

Ex-convicts who knew Manson in jail and the flower people who call themselves the "Manson family" picture him in a different light.

"He didn't do it, that's all," said Phil Kaufman, the producer of Manson's new record album who met the defendant while both were serving time in a federal penitentiary.

"They know who did it, and they know Charlie didn't, but they want to prove a conspiracy."

She May Recant Story
Davey Shinn, 52, a Korean-American lawyer who helped Manson prepare motions when he was acting as his own attorney, now represents Miss Atkins, apparently at Manson's suggestion.

Shinn says the girl, called Sadie Glutz by the family, will repudiate her entire confession as "lies."

"Sadie was always looney," said Paul Watkins, 20, a member of the tribe. "Like she would wear shoes that didn't match or the finest dress she could find, with combat boots. She's just looney."

One of the family who visited Miss Atkins in jail said she told him, "It's all a big movie, and I'm the star."

Family Lives On
The family, which scattered after the arrests, has regrouped. More than a dozen have returned to the Spahn ranch near Chatsworth, where Manson was living when the murders occurred. The girls told a UPI reporter who visited the ranch that they take care of George Spahn, the blind, elderly owner of the ranch where segments of Western movies are filmed, and he buys some of their food.

Family members clean stalls and tend horses rented to weekend riders. The Santa Susanna mountains provide a rugged, old West backdrop for the ramshackle buildings and trailers with mattresses covering the floor. There are a few chickens and swarms of flies.

The girls are barefoot, their hair seems clean, their faces are bare of makeup. The young men, fewer in numbers than the girls, are bearded, long-haired and soft-spoken.

"They may think they have Charlie locked up, but his spirit is here. You can't lock up love," says Brenda McCan, 19.

New Members Joining
Publicity about the murders has attracted new members to the group.

Jennie Gentry, 19, is one. A pretty girl with long, carrot-colored hair, pale blue eyes and a faceful of freckles, she met two of the family last Christmas Eve, after the arrests. She spent several hours talking with them before a gas station attendant told her "Those two girls are members of the Manson family."

"He said it like it was in red letters," she recalled. "I thought, heck, I talked to them and I like them anyway."

She joined the group. "I met Charlie after I had been living with the family for about a week," Miss Gentry said. "Everyone was showing all this concern and I began to be concerned, too. They took me down to the jail to meet him. It was like seeing an old friend. He was beautiful."

Inmate's Memory: Gentle
A man who shared a cell with Manson at McNeil Island federal prison says Charlie is a gentle man.

"Charlie is a card. He's a comic. He makes you laugh. I don't recall one time in prison that Charlie ever got into a fight, and in prison, that isn't hard to do. Charlie always had a smile on his face.

"Charlie's never had a break. He was like a guy who walked around with a black cloud over his head. Charlie did 10 years in prison for a $34 check. Charlie won that check in a crap game. He didn't know it was stolen. All his life he's walked through the same kind of scenes."

"A man usually speaks of his woes and his misery when he's lonely and needs someone to relate to. I knew Charlie's every thought during those years. He's changed, of course — everyone changes. But substantially, I think he's the same."

The underground press, which views Manson as a symbol of the establishment's oppression of the hip, has made him a martyr.

It reports Manson's own complaint that the establishment press "has already convicted me, sentenced me, executed and buried me. I'm a dead man, speaking from the grave."

What Do Many Doctors Use When They, Themselves, Suffer From Hemorrhoids?

A survey among doctors showed 58% of the doctors reporting either use Preparation H themselves or recommend it for their families.

Preparation H gives prompt, temporary relief in many cases from pain, itching of tissues and actually helps shrink swollen tissues of hemorrhoids caused by inflammation and infection. It also lubricates to help protect the inflamed, irritated surface area and helps make bowel movements less painful. There's no other formula for hemorrhoids like Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories. (Adv.)

If you don't have three months' salary in the bank right now, we have some disturbing news.

According to family money management counselors, you should keep from three to six times your family's gross monthly income in your bank savings account.

Because, sooner or later, you're going to face an emergency. Extended illness. Loss of job. (Or any of the many other financial disasters we don't like to think about, but should.) These emergencies happen.

And they can happen to you.

When they do, you need a ready source of cash. Cash to meet those big monthly bills. Like house payments and life insurance premiums. Cash to pay the grocery bills, the electric bills, and the water bills. And all those other bills that just won't wait.

You owe it to both yourself and your family to be prepared for emergencies with a regular savings program.

The time to start is now. The place to start is Wachovia.

Wachovia Savings earn True Daily Interest, paid and compounded every month. Stop by the Wachovia office near you this week. If you work it right, we may never have to disturb you again.
