

GOP Senators Urge Consultation

Nixon Silent About Next Court Choice

By JOHN CHADWICK

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After the Senate's rejection of a second Southern judge for the Supreme Court, Republican senators are urging President Nixon to consult them before submitting another nomination.

In the wake of the 51-45 Senate vote Wednesday against confirming Judge G. Harrold Carswell, the White House gave no hint of Nixon's third choice for the court vacancy.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said another nomination will be made "in due course," and he did not rule out the possibility Nixon might wait until after the November election.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., a strong Carswell supporter, suggested the administration take the issue to voters, but he also told newsmen "a little earthy discussion with senators" would be advisable before the administration selects another nominee.

Echoing the sentiment for prior discussion were Republican Leader Hugh Scott and his Pennsylvania colleague, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker.

Asked about this, Ziegler said he would not discuss procedures. The vote rejecting Carswell, now a judge on the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals, touched off a two-minute outburst of cheers, wild clapping and a few scattered boos by spectators, tourists and government workers in the packed Senate galleries.

Repeated calls for order by Senate leaders went unheeded.

Although Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, the presiding officer, cautioned spectators against demonstrations during the roll call, there was a brief outburst of applause when Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., cast his "no" vote.

That was crucial, for Cook was the first of the uncommitted senators to vote—and his ballot was the tipoff to the outcome.

The vote reversed the initial victory Carswell's supporters fashioned Monday when the Senate defeated, 52 to 44, a motion to return the nomination to its Judiciary Committee.

But the difference was that seven senators who voted against recommitment cast their votes against Carswell—and there were no switches the other way.

In this group were five Republicans, Cook, Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Charles H. Percy of Illinois, Robert Packwood of Oregon, and Hiram L. Fong of Hawaii. Democrats were Quentin Burdick of North Dakota and Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut.

Twenty-eight Republicans voted for the Tallahassee, Fla., federal judge and 13 GOP members against, while 17 Democrats favored the nomination and 38 opposed it.

Carswell said after the vote the President urged him to stay in his present post and "I intend to do so. After a little rest, we'll be back on the job."

Carswell's statement, issued at Tallahassee, called it "an agonizing experience for me, my family and my friends, but to have taken up the gauntlet and joined the debate would have been unbecoming of a nominee to the Supreme Court of the United States."

He added: "On a purely personal basis, we have no intention of becoming bitter or remorseful for there is no basis for it."

Reorganization Plans Ready In About 30 Days

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says a preliminary plan for reorganizing North Carolina's state government into 20 cabinet-level departments will be available in about 30 days.

Scott told a meeting of department and agency chiefs Wednesday that the report, compiled by the reorganization study director, Sen. John Henley of Cumberland County, has been completed and sent to the printers.

The plan sets up the proposed agency headings but does not go into how the existing agencies would be rearranged under them. This will be the task of a committee, to be headed by Henley, which will make final recommendations to Scott and the 1971 General Assembly.

Henley said Wednesday that Scott will appoint the rest of the committee within the next two or three weeks.

Henley's proposal calls for keeping the eight elected members of the Council of State and their departments and forming 12 new agencies, including a body governing higher education. The Council of State includes the secretary of state, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, auditor, commissioner of labor, commissioner of agriculture, insurance commissioner of labor, commissioner of agriculture, insurance commissioner and the attorney general (Justice Department).

New departments besides the one for higher education would be natural resources, economic development, transportation and safety, administration, revenue, industrial regulation or consumer affairs, correction, human affairs, local affairs and military and veterans affairs.

A separate commission will be named to study the controversial proposal for a body to govern higher education.

Henley said the reorganization would save $50 million over the five-year period, beginning in 1975, which is proposed for its implementation.

Voters will decide in November on a proposed amendment to the state constitution which would allow the reorganization.

Labor Scene At A Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RAILROADS—A bill imposing a nationwide railroad contract has been passed by Congress and sent to President Nixon. To prevent a nationwide rail shutdown Saturday, the bill orders acceptance for the rest of 1970 of an agreement tentatively made last December.

AIR CONTROLLERS—The Federal Aviation Administration has announced plans to ease emergency flight restrictions somewhat as some striking controllers return to work. Nonetheless, the "sick-out" protest continued to cause cancellations, delays and airline losses estimated to be $5 to $10 million a day.

TRUCKING—New trucker wildcat strikes in some cities counterbalanced some truck drivers' return to work. The strikes, protesting a proposed national contract, have led to layoffs of 15,000 industrial workers in Detroit and 6,000 in Chicago. Chicago trucking companies planned to decide today whether to begin a general lockout of all union truck drivers.

POSTAL WORKERS—The Senate has passed legislation increasing wages for postal workers—and nearly all other federal employees—6 per cent. The bill was developed in collective bargaining negotiations following the nation's first postal strike.

NEWSPAPERS—The mediator in labor talks involving New York's four major daily newspapers has called the negotiating situation "very bleak." Some of the 13,000 unionists are planning for a strike sometime this week-end.

Kirk Defies Court A Second Time In Fla. School Case

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) —

Gov. Claude Kirk has again taken over the Manatee County school system to block an integration plan, defying a hands-off order by a federal court.

Kirk suspended Manatee's school board and Supt. Jack Davidson Wednesday for the second time in four days and sent aides to Bradenton to take control of the system and its 17,000 pupils.

The Republican governor said he would take over personally today.

His action came 24 hours after U.S. Dist. Judge Ben Krentzman had reinstated the county officials and ordered Kirk to appear before him Friday on a contempt citation.

Judge Krentzman was not available for comment after Kirk's second suspension order, but Davidson said the jurist had advised him not to resist his ouster from office.

Davidson was originally suspended on the eve of his effort to implement a desegregation order by Krentzman calling for the busing of an additional 2,600 pupils.

Kirk, in an executive order issued in Tallahassee, contended that Krentzman's reinstatement of the Manatee officials conflicted with decisions "of the highest courts in the land."

Kirk said it has been held that courts have no jurisdiction over a state's chief executive in his performance of a "discretionary executive function."

The governor says he took over the school system here to gain access to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Krentzman ordered the Manatee desegregation in January after five years of litigation. Its implementation would require busing of some pupils up to 12 miles from their homes to achieve a ratio of 78 white to 22 black in all schools.

"I still maintain it is not a sound thing to do this late in the school year," Davidson said Wednesday, "but we are going to follow the law."

Scott Promises Early Statement On Baldhead

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says he will soon have a "significant statement" to make about the state's position in the Bald Head Island controversy.

Scott made the comment, but did not elaborate, during the organizational meeting of his new Advisory Committee on Economics, and Environment Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a private organization said it was proceeding with its plans to exercise an option to buy the subtropical island off Southport for a $228 million resort and residential development. The organization, The Carolina Cape Fear Corp. of High Point, made the statement in Greensboro through its chairman, W. R. Henderson. It came Wednesday, a day after the state announced that it was paying the Research Triangle Institute $19.826 for a study of the best use it could make of the island, now owned by Charlotte businessman Frank Sherrill.

The governor also told his advisory committee that there is no "inevitable conflict" between environmental quality and economic growth.

"I think some news editors would like to build up a confrontation on this issue," he said, "But I'm sure there is an an-

Billions More To Educate Crash Training For Backup Astronaut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee recommended Thursday $4.127 billion in new funds to finance expanded federal education programs.

In the first of a dozen money bills for the fiscal year starting July 1, the committee approved $744.5 million more than President Nixon requested and $312.9 million more than was appropriated for the current year.

The increase over amounts requested by the President included $440 million for school assistance in areas affected by federal activities. The President had said he would request $425 million for this purpose later in the year. The committee decided to make the money available without waiting for a formal request.

The committee approved substantial evaluation of existing programs.

The bill scheduled for a House vote next week included $1.8 billion for aid to elementary and secondary education. This is $194.2 million more than the President requested. Of the increase, $160.9 million was earmarked for assistance to educationally deprived children.

Other large allotments included:

Vocational and adult education, $490.4 million.

Higher education, $899.9 million, including $229 million for loans to college students and $167.7 million for grants to needy students. The grants are expected to average $580 in 1971.

And $71.6 million for various programs to support public libraries, college and university libraries and educational broadcasting facilities.

Travel, Study Grant Awarded

GREENSBORO (AP) — The president of North Carolina A&T State University has been awarded a special $5,000 travel and study grant from the Danforth Foundation in St. Louis.

Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy was one of 20 nationally prominent college and university administrators to receive the grant.

The A&T Board of Trustees granted him a 10-week leave of absence. Dowdy said he plans to visit Columbia, Yale and Harvard, as well as London University and the University of Paris during his studies.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Backup astronaut John L. Swigert Jr. practiced split-second maneuvers today in a crash program to see if he can replace a measles-threatened crewman by Saturday's moon launch.

Swigert and Apollo 13 astronaut James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. climbed aboard a command ship simulator to rehearse critical maneuvers that require close cooperation.

Included were launch, launch abort, docking with the moon landing craft, firing into lunar orbit and descent to within eight miles of the moon.

The descent maneuver is especially critical, because accidentally burning the spaceship's engine one second too long could send the astronauts crashing into the moon.

On the Apollo 11 and 12 flights, the landing vehicles were released at an altitude of more than 60 miles. Lovell and Haise are to start their descent from eight miles, a move which provides additional fuel and greater landing accuracy.

The big question is whether Swigert, who has never flown in space, can work smoothly with the other two in maneuvers that require close and rapid coordination.

Lovell, Haise and Thomas K. Mattingly II have practiced together as a team more than two years, first as backup pilots for Apollo 11, man's first moon-landing mission, and then as the prime crew for Apollo 13. Observers say they are a superbly coordinated team.

Mattingly hasn't been dropped from the mission, but all indications are that he will be because of his exposure and lack of immunity to German measles.

Lovell, the Apollo 13 commander and a veteran of three previous space flights, reportedly voiced initial opposition to a late substitution, but later agreed to give Swigert a chance. Lovell may make the final decision after the trials are complete Friday.

The commander, according to informed sources, preferred postponing the flight from Saturday until the next favorable launch date, May 9, so he could keep his crew intact.

Lovell and Haise hope to land in the ancient lunar highlands of Fra Mauro, and Saturday is the only day in April in which they could be launched to reach that target.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' personal physician, said Wednesday night that Mattingly's chances of catching German measles are "very, very high."

Mattingly would be retained as a member of the Apollo 13 crew only if his blood samples showed a sudden rise in antibodies to German measles. Berry said this was unlikely, but tests were continuing.

The carrier of the disease who exposed the other Apollo 13 crewmen is Charles Duke, one of the backup astronauts along with Swigert and John W. Young. Blood tests showed that Lovell, Haise and Swigert are immune to the disease, but not Mattingly.

Berry said Duke apparently caught the measles from children of a friend in the astronaut community near Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center.

Inquest Record Claim Denied

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court today

turned down a bid by a court stenographer who claimed he alone had the right to make copies and sell the inquest record into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

The high court also ordered the clerk of Suffolk Superior Court, Edward V. Keating, to pursue his plan to release the transcript and the judge's report on the inquest, expected sometime next week.

The action came one day after the Supreme Court had ordered a temporary halt to release plans, until attorneys for the court stenographer, Sidney R.

Lipman, could argue his case.

The attorneys filed the motion today at opening of court, and the high court heard arguments, and made an immediate decision.

Lipman, a professional court reporter, claimed he should have custody of the documents, and his firm—not the Superior Court—was entitled to make copies of the impounded records.

Lipman and his associates took the notes and typed the transcript of the 960 plus pages of testimony during the inquest at Edgartown into the death of Miss Kopechne, 28. The former secretary to the late Robert F. Kennedy drowned when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy went off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island last July 18.

Will Close Road Stretch In Pitt

RALEIGH — The State Highway Commission announced today that it will close a stretch of N. C. 903 in Pitt County while its forces construct a bridge.

N. C. 903 will be closed April 14 from N. C. 33 to SR 1551 for a period of eight weeks while a bridge is being constructed over Briery Swamp.

During the eight weeks, the traffic will be detoured for three and one half miles over SR 1538 (John Gray Road) and N. C. 33.

In Good Condition Following Stabbing

NEW BERN — There have been no further developments in the investigation of a stabbing incident here Tuesday that involved a former East Carolina University nursing student.

Miss Claudia M. Blanford was stabbed four times in the stomach and once in the chest

Tuesday morning at her home 1604 Tryon Rd. here, according to Police Chief L.M. Toler.

Miss Blanford, a senior nursing student at ECU, was at home recuperating from an illness which prevented her from registering from classes at the university this quarter, officials reported.

The stabbing occurred between 10:10 a.m. and 11:35 a.m., police reported, when Miss Blanford was alone. She was found slumped on the first floor of the two-story house by her father, Irving I. Blanford.

According to Chief Toler, Miss Blanford is in a New Bern hospital in good condition.

While enrolled at ECU earlier this year, Miss Blanford had been a resident of Fletcher Hall.

Investigation of the stabbing incident is continuing. Chief Toler emphasized.

Wife Claims Her 'Duties' Are Ended

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for 11 years and have three children. My wife thinks she has done her duty, and now it's got to be Christmas or my birthday before she will let me near her.

I kept a record. Last year I was turned down 97 times. (She gave in 14 times.) Now, don't tell me that's normal!

I keep myself clean and I am not rough or anything like that. I do route work and am in contact with women all day who look like women, then I come home to a wife who is wearing pants! She hardly ever puts a dress on anymore.

Please tell me what to do. But don't send any letters to my house. If she knew I wrote to you, there would be a fight. Thank you.

FED UP WITH NOTHING

DEAR FED: I think I know who wears the pants in your family, which could be part of your problem. I can't perform any hokus pokus to magically transform that drill sergeant you're married to into a "loving wife." A normal wife doesn't "give in"—she gives because she wants to. If you can't persuade her to get some professional counseling, you had better learn to live with a sad, but not uncommon problem.

DEAR ABBY: I worked for a large company back east for 20 years. A few years ago I moved to California, near Disneyland. Some of the people I worked with never came to my house when I lived in the east, but they come out here to spend their entire vacation with me, use my home as a hotel and even expect transportation to and from the Los Angeles airport—45 miles away.

I'm sure most of these people wouldn't be so happy to visit me if I lived on a farm in Nebraska, so I guess I owe my sudden popularity to my California location.

Abby, I like these people but not that much. There must be others who have the same problem. How can I say "NO" without hurting their feelings?

TIED AND BROKE IN SANTA ANA

DEAR T AND B: Shake hands with your "cousins" in San Francisco, New Orleans, Florida and Honolulu! It's inconceivable that anyone would call you from the airport and say, "Come and get me," but if that's the case, you will have to screw up the courage to say, "Sorry, full house here." I see no reason under the California sun for anyone to play the role of an unwilling host.

DEAR ABBY: After six years of trying to become parents, my husband (I'll call him John) and I underwent the usual tests, and my John was found to be sterile. We consulted with adoption agencies when we learned that the Oklahoma legislature had legalized artificial insemination.

We found a doctor who was familiar with the procedure, and I became pregnant from an unknown donor. Five months ago we became the parents of a darling baby girl!

Only our lawyer, doctor and we know it was accomplished thru artificial insemination. (Even John's parents and mine do not know.)

Actually carrying the baby, and delivering it makes the baby ALL mine, and our doctor did such a good job in selecting a donor whose description matched my husband's, that our baby looks more like John than ME!

It has been a terrific ego booster to my husband as he was very deflated when he was told that he was sterile. (He has often said when looking at the baby that he thinks the tests could have been wrong and that she is really HIS baby after all.)

This letter is to share our secret with others who may not know about the miracle of artificial insemination.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My daughter, who is at school in Wenatchee, Wash., requests a recipe of yours for Jelly Apples. I recall saving it, but now I can't find it anywhere. Won't you please give us the recipe again?

NAVY MAN
You wrote me just in time. A delightful cookbook, written for young people, has just appeared. It's "Cook-In" by Kathleen Dunning Fisher and it contains an outstanding recipe for Jelly Apples. The author teaches home economics in high school and so she knows what young people want to cook and can cook successfully.

KATHLEEN DUNNING FISHER'S JELLY APPLES
6 medium red eating apples
6 wooden lollipop or craft sticks
1 1/2 cups sugar
1-3rd cup light corn syrup
1-3rd cup water
1 1/2 teaspoons white vinegar
1/2 teaspoon red food coloring

Wash and dry apples; remove stems and insert lollipop sticks about half inch into stem ends.

In a heavy two-quart saucepan, stir together the sugar, corn syrup, water and vinegar. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved; over medium heat bring to a boil. Continue cooking over medium heat, without stirring, until temperature reaches 300 degrees on a candy thermometer or until a small amount of the mixture dropped into very cold water separates into threads that, when removed from the water, feel hard and are brittle. Remove from heat. Stir in red food coloring just until blended.

Coat apples quickly, one by one. To do so, hold an apple by its wooden stick, tip pan and slide apple into syrup twirling to coat evenly. Withdraw apple quickly from syrup and while twirling, let excess syrup drip into pan. Place on greased cookie sheet, with stick upright, to harden.

No Trust In Southern Justice

The Senate's rejection of Judge Carswell for a seat on the Supreme Court is not so much a measure of the judge's abilities and fitness to serve as it is an indication of the Senate's hypocrisy.

The plain fact is that a narrow majority of the Senate could care less about any southerner's abilities or his capabilities in the legal field. They just don't want a southern judge sitting on the U.S. Supreme Court.

After all, if too many moderates take on the Supreme Court, a majority of the justices sooner or later might rule that integration laws should be applied equally throughout the nation. And for these senators who have enjoyed watching the south squirm under the burden of unequal application of the law this would indeed be an unwelcome turn of events.

We have seen a majority of the Senate turn down Judge Haynesworth and then throw up their hands in horror at the suggestion of any bias on their part because the man happened to reside in a southern state. Now we have seen a Senate majority turn down another distinguished judge and, of course, Judge Carswell, too, just happens to be from the south.

These senators are again disclaiming any prejudice against southern white justices, as they wipe the mud from their hands.

As we southerners were often reminded back in the days of legal segregation, prejudice runs deep and it is difficult to root out.

However, legal segregation is gone in the south and wit it there is a considerable change in attitudes of southern whites toward their Negro neighbors.

Apparently a majority of the non-southern senators are determined that no similar changes will take place in their own states. Their greatest fear today is that the same laws which they so enthusiastically supported for application in southern states will be enforced in their own areas. As long as they can keep justices off the bench who believe in equal application of the law, they consider their areas reasonably safe from this. A southern justice, in these senators' minds, could not be trusted to continue bending the constitution.

So Young, And So Far To Go

(Today's column was written for the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Dailies by Jim Lasley of the Burlington Daily Times-News.)

By JIM LASLEY

BURLINGTON — He was going to Miami on his thumb, but he had a long way to go when I picked him up on 54, 10 miles out of Chapel Hill Tuesday afternoon.

"You going to spend your holiday there?" I asked, shifting down into fourth gear.

"Yeah," he said. "Spring vacation doesn't start until after classes tomorrow but I'm getting a head start, like a lot of the others."

He wore light brown trousers, white tennis shoes, no socks and a navy colored jacket that looked new and bore the Carolina emblem. He had peculiar looking red spots below and above his eyes, like he'd been in a fight or had been stung by wasps.

We bounced along the narrow, wavy road a minute, not saying anything. He looked into the back seat, where he'd stowed his belongings, making sure something hadn't been left beside the road. I shot a glance his way. His jacket was zipped about three quarters of the way up, and I wasn't sure, but it didn't look like he had on a shirt.

"You a student at Carolina?"

"No," I said. "What about you?"

"A sophomore, majoring in economics."

"Where you from?" I asked.

"Fort Lauderdale, but I don't think I'll stop by there," he chuckled, like he wanted to impress me.

"You're not going to miss it by far, though being in Miami, are you?"

"Yeah, I will to," he said. "Miami's on the other coast from Fort Lauderdale."

We were silent again. I reached over and turned on the heat, glancing at him again. He had dark blond hair, cut in a flat top that was growing long and combed forward. He was trying to grow a beard but his whiskers weren't stiff enough.

"I'm really going to check on my summer job," he said. "It's on a ship going to Honolulu. I'm going to be a mate and watch the radar, and the pay's good too, $400 a week."

"Sound's interesting," I said, turning the heat off.

"Hope it doesn't rain," he said. It'd been sprinkling off and on and it was cloudy in the west. He sat up straight in the seat, with his right hand tucked under his left thigh. He'd been that way since I'd picked him up.

"How long you think it'll take you to get there?"

"I had a roommate that did it thumping in nine hours on three rides," he said. "I ought to be there this time tomorrow if I don't stop and sleep somewhere tonight."

Then he looked down at his feet and said the heater had felt good. I turned it back on.

"You're the fifth ride I had since Chapel Hill," he said. "Hope things are better on the highway ahead. I'm going to take 85. It goes to Atlanta, doesn't it?"

"I think that's right."

Well, does that mean I should go north or south?" he asked.

Not quite sure how to take the guy, I told him south and that 85 wasn't much further. We fell back into silence. He was still sitting on his hand, and I wondered whether to question some of the things he'd said.

"I started to fly, but I was afraid I'd end up in Cuba," he said.

"Why didn't you take a bus?"

Figured if I was going by wheels it'd be thumping, and besides it costs $30 on the bus."

By that time we were heading onto the Interstate. I told him to make sure he didn't go wrong on the other side of Greensboro and take 40 to Winston.

I wished him luck and let him out on the exit near Fleetwood Motel. He put his unzipped overnight bag, laundry bag and suit bag on the road at his feet. In the rearview mirror, I could see him holding his sign with Miami printed in big letters in his left hand and his right arm jutted out toward the traffic; his thumb was up in the air.

I wonder if he ever made it.

Recreation And Park Facilities Are Needed

The city can have another park with the agreement approved by the Housing Authority to lease Moyewood land.

Included is about 17 acres of lowland in the northern section of Moyewood which will be rented to the city for $1 a year.

The land would be difficult to prepare for housing sites but the authority says it can be converted to a park area with relatively little cost. The lease arrangement has to be approved by the city and then by HUD.

Greenville needs more recreation and park areas, particularly in the western part of town. This lease arrangement is an example of how the city and Housing Authority can work together to provide park space, just as the city and the Redevelopment Commission have done.

Gen. Hershey Finds It Slow

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I haven't had much to do over here," said former draft director Lewis B. Hershey, now an adviser to the President, "but then I haven't had many people to help me."

For 29 years Hershey directed thousands of workers whose activities affected the lives of tens of millions of Americans. Today his domain is two rooms in a big federal office building; his staff, one secretary.

"I can show you around my whole place here in 35 seconds," he told an interviewer.

The tone conveyed not bitterness but the self-mocking humor of a man who says his formula for happiness includes "an ounce of worry — but only if somebody else furnishes the adrenalin."

Despite growing criticism last year, Hershey had stuck to his guns as draft director until President Nixon finally "reassigned" him effective last Feb. 16.

"It was inevitable," Hershey said in the interview. "And there's always a question whether you wait the way I did too long. But I would feel I was running away."

"I haven't allowed myself to regret it," he said of his reassignment. "I enjoyed the damn turmoil I went through over there. But I don't think I ever wake up at night and miss it."

And yet, after an Army career spanning 59 years, he said on his last day that he would miss having a command. At Selective Service he tried to know every headquarters employee by name, and was repaid with unswerving loyalty.

Since leaving Selective Service for the presidential advisory post, Hershey admitted, "I haven't worked a great deal."

"I've been out on the hustings a bit making speeches. I've got more traveling ahead of me."

"I do some reading," he said, pointing to a copy of the report by the President's commission on an all-volunteer Army.

To read, Hershey must perch his chick glasses on his forehead and hold the page about four inches from his left eye. A 1927 polo accident blinded his right eye.

"I write a memorandum or so," he continued, "but I don't think they're a matter of public discussion. I don't know if anybody reads them or not. I don't think you sit around and wait until somebody asks your advice."

"I attend a meeting now and then. I have seen some of the White House people, but I have rather religiously stayed away from the Selective Service."

The phone rang and, after a brief conversation, Hershey recalled how as draft director he was deluged with calls from draft registrants and their families and friends. Congressmen would call, too, about defense matters and legislation.

Now the phone doesn't ring as often.

Another phone call was from an officer at the Pentagon—it had to do with providing Hershey a chauffeured car.

Yes, his pace is slower now, Hershey says, "but I see a lot of retired people who have less to hang on to than I have. I'm 76 and some people think that's old, but I'm still active."

States' Rights Dwindle

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in all its sovereign majesty, rared back the other day and passed a remarkably fatuous law. This act of the General Court would prohibit any son of Massachusetts from serving his country in an undeclared war.

Just reading about the legislation, this aging advocate of interposition wiped a tear from a rheumy eye. There was a time in Richmond — it seems a thousand years ago — when the Commonwealth of Virginia undertook to throw its sovereign powers into the breach of school desegregation. Throughout the South, other States as solemnly interposed. Seen in retrospect, as a gambit for gaining time, and for letting passions cool, the tactic had its points; but as a matter of law, or so the Boston papers kept telling the South, the idea was futile.

Well, history has a way of spinning like one of those non-stop record players: It repeats itself. And if you want another maxim to live by today, remember that the doctrine of "States' rights," like the fable of the farmer, depends upon whose ox is gored.

In the matter of Massachusetts, we may look back precisely 161 years, to the winter of 1809. Some months earlier, the Congress had adopted a series of Embargo Acts, aimed at halting trade with Britain. The acts were hotly resented by New England shipping interests. The Massachusetts General Court, charging the Congress with despotism and tyranny, adopted a resolution declaring the acts "unjust, oppressive, unconstitutional and not legally binding on the citizens of this State."

Forty years later, Massachusetts was interposing again, this time against the Fugitive Slave Act. The Constitution explicitly provided that fugitive slaves were to be "delivered up" to their owners, but Massachusetts undertook to nullify the law and to override the Constitution. One act of Massachusetts fixed a $1,000 fine on any local sheriff who might even detain a slave.

These furiously ineffectual avowals of the Nineteenth Century were cut from the same cloth that Florida's Governor Claude Kirk employed last week. Wrapped in a toga of State sovereignty, his excellency commanded Manatee County to ignore the desegregation mandates of a Federal court. He might with equal success have commanded the tide to come at two instead of four.

Other Editors Say Times Do Change

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Here's the situation: The year is 1939 and a United States senator is making a speech before the Senate on the situation in Europe, where Hitler and Nazi Germany are making noises.

The senator says: "Germany is far too small a power to have any serious hope of conquering all of Eastern Europe, much less posing any kind of threat to the United States." And the senator further states that the United States should accept Nazi German domination of Eastern Europe as a political fact of life that poses no threat to American security.

"We ought to welcome Nazi Germany's pre-eminence in East Europe, because while Nazi Germany has shown itself strong enough to dominate Europe if let alone by outside powers, it has also shown itself willing and able to resist Russian domination."

What kind of reception would that United States senator get if he made that speech in 1939? The answer is obvious.

But times do change, don't they?

And they have changed to this extent: In the foregoing narrative, replace the word Nazi Germany in each instance with the word North Vietnam, and replace the word Eastern Europe with Indochina. And instead of Russian domination, make it Chinese domination.

And there you have a speech made by Sen. W. F. Fulbright in the Senate last Thursday on the situation in Southeast Asia where the Reds are threatening to take over and make a mockery of Richard Nixon's Asian policy.

So Fulbright has finally stopped hemming and hawing about his sentiments and has come right out in favor of domination of Southeast Asia by the Communists operating from Hanoi. And he says such a victory would make not the slightest difference as far as the security of the U. S. is concerned.

Did anybody stand up on the Senate floor and chide Sen. Fulbright for his pro-Hanoi statement? Of course not. Like we said, times have changed.

Words To Irk Wives

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that suburban wives get tired of hearing:

"You've got it pretty easy. Why, my mother used to do the laundry for a family of seven by hand—and I never heard her complain."

"There's a strange dog in the backyard, Mom, and he's acting kind of funny. You'd better get a broom and scare him away."

"It's the plumber on the phone. He says just to tie a rag around the broken pipe, and he'll try to make it here by next Wednesday."

"Sorry to trouble you, Mrs. Grubbs, but if your husband doesn't make the mortgage payment before our bank closes tomorrow, we'll have to take legal action."

"Mom, can't you drive me to school today, please, please? If you don't I'll be late, and if I'm late just one more time I might as well become a dropout."

"My mother didn't spend every afternoon watching soap operas or playing bridge with her cronies."

"Why do we have to live way out here in the sticks, Mom? It's like being a prisoner. The kids in the city have lots more things to do."

"Do you think it's any fun for me to have to ride standing up in a crowded train 40 minutes every morning and afternoon going to and from work?"

"Congratulations, Mrs. Grubbs, a little rabbit told me that you and Mr. Grubbs are going to have another baby. That will be your fourth, won't it?"

"Why do you have to have another dress? Anyway, if you do, why don't you make it yourself? My mother made all her own clothes."

"I don't want tuna fish for lunch. I don't want a baloney sandwich for lunch. I don't want..."

"Oh, boy, are we lucky, Mom! The new family is moving into the house next door—and guess what—they've got six kids."

"I'm running a little short this week, Honey. Can you lend me $10 from your household allowance?"

"If you want little Marybelle to have a normal smile, Mrs. Grubbs, we'll have to start straightening her teeth now. It's a two-year job, but I'll give you a low estimate of $1,500."

"Yep, I missed the 5:41 and the 6:24. I'm aiming now at the 7:10—shut up, you guys, I'm talking to my Missus—so meet me at the station. If I miss the 7:30, I'll be on the 8:19 for sure."

"Don't tell me you're still stuck in the suburbs, Rosemary Grubbs. Since we moved back to the city, I bought an entire new wardrobe, go to all the matinees, and my husband insists we go out to dinner at least four nights every week. It's a whole new life!"

Strength For Today

KEEP STEADY

We all have to admit that the world today is in a pretty sad state — even more so than usual. Crime is on the increase. Armament of incredible power could blow a nation off the planet any time an enemy decides this would be advantageous. Drug addiction has now come in to create one of the most terrifying situations our nation or any other nation has confronted in centuries.

Is the trouble with us or with the world in which we live? Both. The more we examine our own lives, the less do we feel we have to be proud of. The more we regard the horrors that scientific advancement has laid open, the more we are willing to admit that so-called "civilization" may after all be pretty much of a delusion.

Is this the counsel of despair? Not at all. It is the counsel of intense anxiety. Statesmen, editors, preachers are all saying the same, and well they may, for the future is appalling unless conditions change, and change quickly.

Most of us are not willing to give up in despair, to throw in the sponge, to bury our faces in our hands and start weeping. We still believe that the world is not coming to an end and that we shall survive the present crisis as we have survived moral and political crises in the past. "Now the end of the commandment is love out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned" (1 Timothy 1:5)

Profit In Obscure Old Books

By ELMER ROESSNER

The publisher's catalogue reads like something out of a Lewis Carroll spoof. Indeed, many of the books listed were published in the 19th century about the time of Mr. Dodgson's "Alice in Wonderland."

The catalogue includes such delightful titles as including "The Everyday Book" of 1827 and "An Introduction to the Study of Bibliography" of 1814.

The highest priced item on the list is "Appleton's Cyclopaedia of American Biography" at $168. Lowest priced volumes are "Place Names in Imprints" for $4.50 and "Bygone England" for $4.75.

These are not rare old volumes — not at those prices. They are limited reprints catering to a highly specialized audience of authors, editors, researchers, historians, bibliophiles, and the like.

Single Market

Most are sold to libraries. None are marketed through bookstores and few ever find their way into private collections.

The economics of the rare book reprint market are unusual. Demand is small and conventional reprinting would be prohibitive. Instead, ye olde rare volumes are reproduced by photo offset. This makes it practical for short press runs at fairly reasonable prices and preserves the appearance of the original book.

Break-even on a given title is reached at sales of somewhere between 100 and 200 copies. After that, profits mount up. A book selling more than 1,000 copies is a best seller in this field. And since the inventory is small the publisher can wait years for sufficient sales to be made.

Crowded Field

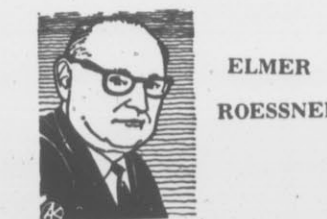

One of the leaders in the specialized reprint field is the Gale Research Company. The above titles were taken from its catalogue.

The company and its Singing Tree Press and Folklore Associates subsidiaries have reprinted more than 500 titles in the categories of reference, social history, regional history, folklore and children's literature.

Gale Research employs more than 100 and has annual sales of some $3 million. This compares with total industry sales of some $40 million by an estimated 100 companies in the field — indicating how fractionalized rare book reprinting is.

Hardly surprising since almost anyone can get into the game. All that's needed are some old, unusual, obscure books; a little capital; and an offset printing shop with some free time on the presses. It's no trick at all to turn out 100 reprints a year.

All of which goes to show that American industry has gotten so big and diverse the enterprising entrepreneur can find a pretty comfortable, profitable, not-so-small niche for himself if he looks.

ELMER ROESSNER

"Curious Punishments of Bygone Days," published in 1896; "Freaks of Fanaticism and Other Strange Events," brought out in 1891; "British Goblins" of 1880; and "Goody Two-Shoes" of 1881.

Many of the books listed are over 100 years old, in-

Can Get Along If No DeGaulle

PARIS (AP) — A public opinion poll reports most Frenchmen feel they can get along without the renewed leadership of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, even in case of grave national crisis. The nationwide poll showed that 64 per cent of those with definite views said they would not favor recalling the general to the helm. The report said 68 per cent thought the policy of the present government is about the same as the one pursued by De Gaulle before his retirement a year ago.

Separation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After three years of marriage, actress Liza Minnelli and her Australian entertainer-husband, Peter Allen have agreed to a "friendly separation" because of the pressures of their careers, her agent says. The 24-year-old Miss Minnelli, who started in show business at age 5 with her mother, the late Judy Garland, was escorted to the Academy Award ceremonies Tuesday night by her father, director Vincente Minnelli.

Students, Teachers Review Transition

The fourth in a series of programs to familiarize students of the county's four consolidated high schools, now under construction, with what will be expected of them when they enter the new schools, was held for students of the Ayden-Grifton School Tuesday at H. B. Sugg High School.

Sevenspeakers, including four students and three teachers, voiced their ideas at the morning session.

Joseph Burney, a student at South Ayden High School, told the group, "togetherness is an essential ingredient for a successful transition," and explained that togetherness involves planning, working and achieving.

Another student, Kelvin King, also of South Ayden School, told the group, "The time to start preparing for total integration is now."

"Those who have already had experience in an integrated situation have found that every man, regardless of race, is a man, that every man has his faults, that every man has his good points, and that every man is human," King said.

He continued, "Without a will to work, to cooperate, and to understand one another, there can be no society, only a world filled with hatred and prejudice. The time has come to become more familiar with people who are not just like you."

According to King, "I think we should try to get to know one another. This is what integration is all about. Integration provides us with this opportunity for learning, sharing and experiencing, for cross-racial line thinking. Integration helps to eliminate racial prejudices."

Saying that some people in Pitt County are standing by just waiting for the fireworks to start when the county schools merge into four consolidated facilities, Frederick Parks, a faculty member at South Ayden School noted, "these people are going to be very disappointed for we in Pitt County realize the importance of a sound education and we must do everything that we can to keep from impairing our system."

"The success of a smooth transition," Parks stated, "will be centered around four factors: the cooperation and understanding of the students, the parents, the teachers and the administration."

He continued, "Students furnish the main key to the successful integration. You are going to have to respect your fellow students and teachers regardless of race or creed; you are going to have to judge a person not by the color of his skin, but by his performance; you must govern yourselves by the rules and regulations of the school; respect the ideas of others even though they may not coincide with your own; and remember the main purpose of going to school is to obtain a good education."

Ayden High School coach Nelson Gravatt said, "All it takes is understanding. Not just on the part of the students, but teachers and administration as well. Not just on the part of the blacks, but the whites."

"We must understand what we want and we must not stop until we get it," Gravatt said.

Robert Twilley, Ayden High School student, told the group, "Unrest is a disease caused by students who are passive, by students who enter the school system expecting different areas to be the same as they used to be."

"The cure for the disease," Twilley said, "students must obtain the willingness to walk away from trouble, look for new areas, different areas, and not for the way things were run in the school they came from."

"Students," he noted, "should accept responsibility for formulating a peaceful atmosphere and respect the school as your institution of learning, rather than the institution of somebody of selected students."

Tim Bright of Grifton High School said, "today begins the most important part of the preparations for our new school. Today, we begin preparing ourselves for consolidation."

"We must approach consolidation with a positive attitude. We must realize that consolidation will work if we make it work," Bright said.

Claude Kennedy, teacher at Grifton High School, discussed the athletic phase of the consolidation program.

"Sports activities will play an important role in your new school," Kennedy said. "Athletics and academics go together, because if you don't pass — you don't play."

Kennedy said, "You students have to work hard to build a strong and unified athletic program — both in participation and support."

Similar programs for students who will attend the North Pitt, Farmville, and the D. H. Conley high schools were held recently.

Plan Open House And Workshop On Saturday

GRIFTON — A workshop and open house will be held at the eastern branch of the North Carolina Material Center here Saturday.

A workshop, planned to introduce the center, will begin at 10 a. m. Open house will be held from 11 a. m. until 2 p. m.

The local center, housed in the Grifton Elementary School, is one of four such facilities in operation or planned for the state.

The local instructional center was started by Pitt County three years ago as an Elementary and Secondary Education Act project to work with handicapped children.

Last November, the center became a cooperative program between the Pitt County Board of Education and the State Department of Public Instruction and is being developed as a regional center.

The instructional center is designed to provide a central source of materials and equipment, to field test materials, techniques and equipment in the area of special education.

Staff members at the center include: Mrs. Betty Levy, supervisor for special education for Pitt County and director of the Instructional Material Center; Mrs. Jean Averette, speech therapist, serves as librarian; Miss Maxine Brown, field service coordinator; and Mrs. Becky Chauncey, secretary and bookkeeper.

The workshop is open to all special educators in eastern North Carolina.

Everybody Was Wearing Patch

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Everyone on the movie set of "Rio Lobo" turned their backs on John Wayne when he returned from Los Angeles with his first Oscar.

The 62-year-old actor grinned when they turned around Wednesday, all of them sporting black eye patches—including his horse.

The patches were part of a gag to commemorate the Duke's portrayal of a hard-drinking, one-eyed lawman in the film "True Grit" which won him the Academy Award's best actor prize.

Behind the actors was a replica of the Oscar, also wearing a patch.

Professionals specialize in their particular field of interest. The optician is a professional who may specialize in any one of several areas of interest within his field.

However, the most familiar optician specialist is the dispensing optician. He offers professional eyeglass service to those who wear glasses or contact lenses.

Although his primary goal is to become a licensed professional optician, the optician may branch off later into other areas of professional endeavor.

After you see your eye doctor, see your specialized independent dispensing optician.

He may find that his professional acumen directs him toward design of eyeglass frames. In this specialty he draws upon his training as an optician and puts to use his knack for creativity to design eyeglass frames which not only enhance a person's appearance but contribute to that person's emotional need to accept the wearing of glasses.

The doctrine dies by inches. Up in Massachusetts, a copy of the Vietnam act — and 25 cents — will buy you a ride on the subway. A Supreme Court test of the law can have but one result.

"I do not think the United States would come to an end," Holmes once remarked, "if we lost our power to declare an act of Congress void. I do think the Union would be imperiled if we could not make that declaration as to the laws of the several States."

The dramatic interpositions of Massachusetts and Florida, in any critical view, are no more than constitutional curiosities; they have about as much relation to the realities of power as a letter of marque and reprisal. It is in other, mundane areas that the cause of State sovereignty is perishing. In theory, the States still are individual members of a Federal republic, entitled to exercise their reserved powers "respectively." The fact is something else.

I say all this with regret — not regret, mind you, for the vainglorious sincerities of Massachusetts and Governor Kirk, but regret for the slow withering of the federal concept. This was the finest flowering of our constitutional genius. In the original grand design, the States were seen as the first barriers to an abuse of centralized power at the national level. Nothing of these barriers remains.

The theory is still sound.

Set Library Week Theme

"Reading is for Everybody" is one theme of National Library Week April 12-18.

School libraries—2,359 of them in North Carolina—are responding to changing needs by becoming "media centers." Media Centers provide a wide variety of printed and audiovisual materials, instructional equipment, and professional services.

One such center is located at Elmhurst Elementary School. Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips has noted that Commissioner James E. Allen has set a goal of establishing universal literacy in America as a target for the Seventies.

Public libraries, according to Phillips, are also becoming centers of community life, not just storehouses of material. Multi-purpose rooms are available in many for a variety of uses: story hours for preschoolers, art exhibits, jazz concerts for teenagers, and various educational courses.

Public, school and college Sir Charles Wheatstone patented the concertina in 1892 in London, England.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N. C.—Thursday, April 9, 1970—7 libraries across the State will be celebrating April 12-18 during planning special functions and National Library Week.

End Of The Royal Rule In N.C.

By H. G. JONES
N.C. Dept. Archives and History
Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Royal rule in North Carolina was virtually ended 195 years ago on April 8. It was on this date in 1775 that Gov. Josiah Martin dissolved the colonial General Assembly after finding its existence to be "incompatible with the honor of the crown and the safety of the people."

Martin had moved into the gleaming new Governor's Palace at New Bern in 1771 when King George III appointed him to succeed William Tryon who left North Carolina to become governor of New York. Initially there was a feeling of amiability between the governor, the legislature, and the citizenry, but this did not last long, for in the developing struggle between the mother country and the American colonies Martin's allegiance was to the crown.

Trouble began between the governor and the popularly elected lower house when the legislative body voted to abolish the sinking fund tax. Martin objected to the bill. The house retaliated by adopting a resolution to offer compensation to the sheriffs for not collecting the tax. The governor won this round by dissolving the General Assembly before the resolution could be entered in the journal. Speaker Richard Caswell spread the word that sheriffs should not collect the tax; the governor countered with a proclamation directing its collection, but this directive was ignored by most officials.

The governor waited nearly two years before calling a new assembly. Tension was growing, and in 1773 the body was in an even more independent, if not belligerent, mood. The main issue was the court law which the assembly attempted to amend by adding an "attachment clause" which would have authorized the attaching or seizing of North Carolina property owned by nonresident debtors. An impasse was reached and, though statutorily there were no criminal courts in the province after 1773, Martin used royal prerogative to create emergency courts only to have the assembly refuse to appropriate the funds for their operation.

North Carolina was not alone with its troubles between the crown's appointee and the legislature. In 1774 Massachusetts invited each colony to send delegates to a continental congress to meet in Philadelphia in September. In order to prevent North Carolinians from sending a delegation, Martin refused to convene the General Assembly. The people, however, responded to the call by a citizens' meeting in Wilmington to select delegates to a convention "independent of the governor." Accordingly the First Provincial Congress met in New Bern in August, 1774, and adopted resolutions condemning parliamentary taxation, pledging to discontinue imports and exports, and electing delegates to a general congress.

English America was rapidly being swept toward revolution. Gov. Martin, seeing his province caught up in the tide, in desperation called a new assembly to meet at New Bern on April 4, 1775. John Harvey, moderator of the First Provincial Congress, countered with a call for a second congress to meet concurrently with the assembly. Harvey was also speaker of the house, and all but one of the 52 members of that body were also members of the Second Provincial Congress. In effect, one set of men dominated two assemblies—one constitutional, sitting by authority of the royal govern-nor; the other extralegal, sitting in defiance of his authority.

Martin denounced to the assembly "the monster, sedition, which has dared to raise his impious head in America." The assembly rebuked him, endorsed the actions of the Continental Congress, and approved the Continental Association. Now every member of the council, formerly loyal to the governor, deserted him, and on April 8 Martin dissolved the General Assembly. Eleven days later in Massachusetts occurred the "shot heard round the world."

The Provincial Congress and committees of safety now ruled North Carolina. Even so, British authorities hoped that the loyalty of North Carolina could be salvaged, and toward that end the province was excluded from a parliamentary act cutting off trade. North Carolinians were not assuaged, however, and on Aug. 8, from an offshore ship on which he had taken refuge, Gov. Martin issued his "fiery proclamation," denouncing the "evil, pernicious and traitorous councils and influence" of the committees of safety. A couple of weeks later the Provincial Congress meeting in Hillsborough labeled the proclamation "false, scandalous, scurrilous, malicious and seditious libel, tending to disunite the good people of this province," and ordered that the document be "burnt by the common hangman."

Jail Conditions 'Unfit For Dog'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Los Angeles federal judge says jail conditions at the Hall of Justice here are so bad he wouldn't want to keep his dog there.

U.S. District Court Judge William P. Gray said 3,000 prisoners are crowded into facilities designed for 1,700, and these are individuals who haven't yet been convicted of any crime.

Before addressing a meeting of Town Hall—a Los Angeles luncheon club—Gray told newsmen that America's prisons, in general, are "bleak places, with an atmosphere of futility."

Announce Grant Made To Pitt Sheriff Dept.

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department has been notified by the Mid-East Economic Development Commission-Law Enforcement Planning Division that a grant of $3,328 for new equipment has been approved.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the grant, federally allocated and channeled through the state, was approved subject to $2,220 matching funds from the county.

The total of $5,548 will be used primarily, he said, to purchase three .38 caliber pistols for deputies who are now having to furnish their own arms, a pair of binoculars, two shotguns, four riot helmets, handcuffs, body shields, a pepper gun (tear gas) and four walkie-talkies.

The announcement of the forthcoming grant, Tyson said, was made by Frank Kivett, executive director of the Mid-East commission.

The sheriff added that Mid-East is also working on a state car contract arrangement whereby the county departments may buy their cars through the commission.

Another False Name Grifton Student Alarm Sounded Scholarship Runner-Up

Greenville firemen responded to a false alarm last night from Box 145 at the intersection of Fourth and Contentnea Streets.

Officers said the alarm was turned in at 7:25 p.m.

The City of Greenville offers a $100 reward to anyone giving information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone turning in a false alarm.

GREENSBORO — Miss Rebecca Jane Bosley of Grifton has been named a runner-up in District One for a coveted Katharine Smith Reynolds Scholarship at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Miss Bosley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Emerson Bosley of Dupont Street, Grifton.

A senior at Grifton High School, Miss Bosley has received many awards including the French, Biology and Chemistry awards, scholastic awards for three years, and has served as marshal for three years. She has attended Governor's School and was a National Merit semifinalist.

If for any reason, the winner in any of the 11 districts of the state is unable to accept the scholarship, it automatically goes to the runner-up in that district.

The scholarships are valued at $1,600 annually, and are renewable for three years of study beyond the freshman year. Thus, each Reynolds Scholarship is worth a total of $6,400 for four years of study. The awards cover board, room, tuition, fees, books and miscellaneous expenses.

Salem, Mass., was founded in 1626 by Richard Conant.

Three Cars In Collision Here

A three-car mishap at the intersection of Second and Cotanche Streets at 6 p. m. yesterday resulted in an estimated $2,900 property damage.

According to police, drivers of the vehicles involved in the mishap were Nancy Carol Fulk, 22, of Pilot Mountain; Mattie Harlen Carroll, 42, of Route 1, Stokes; and Robert Lee Belcher, 57, of 413A West Third St.

Damage was set at $1,200 to the Fulk vehicle, $1,300 to the Carroll car and $400 to the vehicle driven by Belcher.

Mrs. Carroll was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of the collision.

Club Marks FHA Week

WINTERVILLE — The Future Homemakers Club of Winterville High School has participated in various activities this week in observance of National FHA Week.

The group Monday night painted trash cans to be distributed around town in an effort to aid the problem of pollution of trash.

Welcoming signs were also constructed and painted. These will be placed at the town limits entering from either Ayden or Greenville.

The FHA girls have been delivering devotional services over the school intercom system during homeroom periods.

The group, with the help of the home economics class, prepared snacks for the teachers of the school.

The group hopes these projects will help solve some problems faced by the people of today in school, community, state and the nation.

The warrant charging Leggett with indecent exposure was signed by Mrs. Alice Faye Harris.

Investigators said an artery and tendons in Harris' wrist were severed by the cut.

Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange led losers 492 to 458.

Many financial analysts believe the market is readying for a successful assault of the 800 level of the Dow industrial average. What is needed now for this to occur, they say, is a positive economic development, such as tangible evidence of further easing of credit.

Some glamor stocks were recovering from their prolonged recent selloff. The issues apparently have reached prices and price-to-earnings multiples that are more attractive to investors.

City Principals At Conference

CHAPEL HILL — Two Greenville School principals were among the 150 North Carolina junior high school principals who attended the 13th annual conference of Junior High School Principals April 7-8 here.

Among those attending were Alan E. Murrell and John Jones, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips, speaking on Tuesday, said that increasing school desegregation often presents new challenges and difficulties to both administrators and classroom teachers.

School personnel, he said, soon learn they must give new force and direction to their commitment to bring out the full potential of each student, as individuals and group members.

Insurance For Drug 'Bust' Sold

the client's arrest record—like auto insurance.

G.F. and S. Contracting Co. Ltd., operating here and in Vancouver, says it will provide the service. An employee says that in its first month of business more than 100 contracts were signed.

VICTORIA, British Columbia (UPI)—The insurance business and the drug scene are an unlikely combination — but youthful entrepreneurs have made the jump, and are writing "bust insurance."

Payment of a premium of from $30 to $125 gets the purchaser a 12-month policy providing legal counsel in case of arrest on a narcotic charge. The names of the clients are, as could be expected, kept confidential.

And the premium depends on

The spokesman, 23-year-old Gordon Callow, describes himself as a student and says he plans to enter the ministry.

He is acting as "front man" for the operation because the three principals who formed the company, all in their early twenties, suffered "harassment" since they launched their venture, he said.

Four Types
Callow explained the four types of contracts offered.

The basic $30 fee is for persons with no record of criminal convictions. Individuals with one conviction pay $50, those with two convictions pay $80, and those with three or more convictions pay the maximum $125.

The contract goes into force when an individual is charged with a drug violation, and continues until a decision is handed down in court. No coverage for appeals and the company makes no guarantee of acquittals.

According to Callow, the premium charge is based on 30-to-1 odds against a contracting party being charged during the year coverage is provided. "It is low," Callow says, "and we're taking the gamble there will be no big busts this year." According to Callow, the cost of legal counsel through normal channels on a simple marijuana possession charge could run as high as $600.

One of the difficulties the company has faced is the fear, which potential contract holders have voiced, that written records could fall into the hands of police.

Tourism is the nation's third largest industry.

Greenville's Union Carbide Plant Is Given New Manager

NEW PLANT MANAGER... at Union Carbide, Fuller T. Motsinger (R) talks over prospects for the local plant with outgoing manager, Thomas J. Moran, who is leaving to assume managerial duties at the Fremont, Ohio UC plant.

Fuller T. Motsinger has been named plant manager of Union Carbide's Consumer Products Division plant here replacing Thomas J. Moran. Announcement of the changes was made Tuesday by P.S. Keen, district production manager for Union Carbide.

Moran, who has served in Greenville the past four years and as plant manager the last year, will assume the duties of plant manager at Carbide's Fremont, Ohio facility.

Motsinger is a native of North Carolina, having been born in Winston-Salem. He received his degree in Industrial Engineering from North Carolina State and upon graduation began his career with Union Carbide at Charlotte in 1956.

Since that time, he has served at plants in Cleveland, Ohio; Red Oak, Iowa; Bennington and St. Albans, Vermont. Mtsinger served as plant manager at St. Albans for three years. He will begin his duties here in early May.

He is married to the former Barbara Guin of Southern Pines and they have two sons. Union Carbide began battery operations in Greenville in 1947 and have been in their present location since 1964. An addition to the plant was made in 1967, bringing the total area to 178,000 square feet. The company's Consumer Products Division also has plants in Charlotte and Asheville.

Denver Clinches Tie In The West

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spencer Haywood popped in 40 points in Denver's trouncing of Dallas, clinching a tie for the top spot in the American Basketball Association's Western Division and the Rockets can clinch the title with a victory Friday.

Wednesday night was Haywood's as he triggered the Rockets to a 152-113 triumph over Dallas. The rookie hit on 17 field goals and six-of-nine free throws. He also grabbed 26 rebounds as the Rockets set a league record, snaring 93. The old mark was 87 by Pittsburgh. Denver needs only to beat Miami at home Friday to win the West.

The clinching was delayed as runnerup Washington, 3½ games back, knocked off the Floridians 141-137 in the opener of a doubleheader at Los Angeles before the Stars downed New Orleans 108-102. In other games, Carolina stopped Kentucky 110-106 and Pittsburgh downed New York 117-107.

Rick Barry scored seven of Washington's last 11 points in the Caps' victory. In all, Barry had 36 points while Don Freeman led Miami with 32.

Los Angeles' triumph over New Orleans enabled the Stars to open a 1½ game lead over the Buccaneers in their struggle for fourth place and the final playoff berth in the West.

Craig Raymond and Mack Calvin topped Los Angeles with 24 points apiece. Red Robbins was high for the Bucs, also with 24.

Bob Verga's 28 points led the Cougars past Kentucky. The backcourt ace hit 23 points in the opening half while Darel Carrier had 33 for the Colonels.

John Brisker hit for 22 points and George Thompson 21 in Pittsburgh's thrashing of the Nets. Levern Tart had 28 points for the New Yorkers.

Hogan Is No Longer Ice Man

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Defending Masters champion George Archer had never felt the firm grip of a Ben Hogan handshake until this week, but Augusta National's reigning hero knew of the Texas hawk's history as a cold-staring, unfriendly demolisher of golf courses.

"It's not that way any more," said a surprised Archer. "Ben Hogan is a warm, gentle person and you find it hard to understand how he could have earned that reputation."

Hogan attended the Tuesday night dinner for former Masters kings and Archer said "Ben was obviously touched by all the attention. He got up and asked all of us to try to attend these former-champion dinners for life."

The 57-year-old Hogan won the Masters in 1951-53, but has been idled for two years with bad knees. He flew from his Fort Worth home just for the pre-Masters dinner of champions.

"Maybe he earned that tag of "Ice Man" when he played," mused Archer, "but he's melted now. He couldn't have been friendlier."

Archer claims the statement that winning a Masters means $1 million to a golfer is "a lot of baloney." He said Wednesday he's "far from being a millionaire and not worrying about it."

"It's just not so," he said. "What you gain is being put in a certain, elite class for life. But, in money, winning here is highly overrated."

Detroit Shuts Out Washington Second Time

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer
As far as the Washington Senators are concerned, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn suspended the wrong Detroit Tiger pitcher.

Joe Niekro is the latest Tiger hurler to take up some of the slack caused by the gambling suspension of Denny McLain, ace of the Detroit staff.

The 25-year-old right-hander, obtained from San Diego in an off-season trade, made his American League debut a rousing success Wednesday night with a six-hit, 3-0 blanking of the Senators.

It was the second shutout of the slugging Senators in three days by the supposedly weakened Detroit mound corps, although they were battered for 17 hits and 14 runs in the middle game of the series. Mickey Lolich stopped Washington on seven hits opening day.

Elsewhere, pitching also was the order of the day—and night. Kansas City's Dick Drago stopped Oakland 2-0 on a four-hitter. Mike Cuellar hurled Baltimore past Cleveland 3-2 and three California pitchers combined to hand Milwaukee its second straight setback 6-1.

In the National League, St. Louis trounced Montreal 7-2, Atlanta whipped San Diego 6-1, San Francisco edged Houston 5-4 and Cincinnati beat Los Angeles 5-2.

Bill Freehan's two-run homer in the seventh inning following Willie Horton's single broke up a duel between Niekro and Washington's much-traveled George Brunet, now with his eighth major league team.

Niekro worked out of three jams in the first six innings, getting Ken McMullen for the third out each time with runners on base.

Drago didn't permit Oakland a hit after the fourth inning and allowed only four runners as far as second base. He got the only run he needed in the fourth inning when Amos Otis singled, took second on an infield out and rode home on Ed Kirkpatrick's single.

The Royals picked up an insurance run in the eighth when Bob Oliver doubled, moved up on Kirkpatrick's grounder and scored on a perfect suicide squeeze bunt by Luis Alcaraz.

The defending champion Orioles made it two in a row over Cleveland, scoring all three runs in the second inning and holding on behind Cuellar's five-hit pitching.

Baltimore scored off loser Barry Moore on Dave Johnson's single, Andy Etchebarren's pop fly double, a walk to Don Buford, Mark Belanger's two-run single and a passed ball by Ray Fosse.

The Indians got one run back on Tony Horton's fourth-inning homer and closed out the scoring in the eighth on Larry Brown's triple and Eddie Leon's sacrifice fly.

Bill Voss drove in four runs with a triple, two doubles and a single to pace California past Milwaukee. Voss singled home a run in the first, doubled home another in the third, tripled one across in the eighth and knocked in his fourth with a ninth-inning double.

Tom Murphy started the Angels but needed help from Rudy May and Ken Tatum, both in the seventh.

Greenville Stars Win

WHEAT SWAMP — Greenville's All-Star team advanced to the finals of the North Lenoir All-Star Invitational Basketball Tournament with a victory over the Atlantic Christian College All-Stars last night.

Greenville won the game, 115-93, pulling away after a 51-50 lead at halftime.

Tom Miller led Greenville with 46 points, while Jim Modlin tossed in 27.

Gilmore led ACC with 32, and Hussey had 28.

Greenville meets Grady's of Kinston for the title Friday at 8:30 p.m. at North Lenoir High School. Grady's features former UNC players Ray Hassell, Ray Respass and Jim Hudock.

Strategy Wins For The Giants

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ah, strategy. There's nothing like a good piece of it to turn a ball game around.

There were the San Francisco Giants trailing Houston 4-2 with two out and nobody on in the bottom of the eighth inning Wednesday night. The Giants had lost their opener to the Astros Tuesday and clearly, something had to be done and fast. It was.

Hal Lanier singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Steve Whitaker delivered a pinch double for one run. Now the wheels started turning in earnest. Manager Clyde King sent up left-handed Bob Burda, who had six homers and 27 RBIs last year to bat for righty Bobby Bonds (32 homers, 90 RBIs last season).

That move so shook Houston skipper Harry Walker that he yanked righty Jack Billingham for southpaw Jack DiLauro. King played the percentage game all the way, sending up righty Ron Hunt to pinch hit for pinch hitter Burda. Naturally, it worked.

Hunt singled the tying run across and moments later scampered home with the winner on rookie Allan Gallagher's double. That took no strategy by King. Gallagher already had delivered two hits earlier.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Atlanta thumped San Diego 6-1, Cincinnati trimmed Los Angeles 5-2 and St. Louis took Montreal 7-2 in the only games scheduled.

Until the managerial wheels began spinning, the Giants and Astros had been engaged in a long ball duel. Dick Dietz tagged a two-run homer for San Francisco and Doug Rader and pinch hitter Jim Beauchamp—a strategy coup by Walker—cracked Houston homers.

Rico Carty drove in four runs for the Braves—three of them on an eighth inning homer that broke the game open, as Atlanta whipped San Diego.

Pat Jarvis hurled a five-hitter and Bob Tillman added a bases-empty homer for the Braves.

Cincinnati won its third straight with Jim McGlothlin beating the Dodgers in his National League debut.

Bobby Tolan tripled and singled, driving in two of the Reds' runs and Clay Carroll nailed down the victory, stopping the Dodgers after McGlothlin tired in the eighth.

It was the third straight strong hurling performance for the supposedly pitcher-poor Reds who got a two-hitter from Gary Nolan Tuesday and a three-hitter from Jim Merritt in Monday's opener.

Richie Allen staged an explosive debut for St. Louis, walloping a homer and two doubles in the Cards' victory over Montreal.

Cougars Get Win

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Gene Littles and Randy Mahaffey combined to hit seven critical foul shots in the final minutes Wednesday night to lead the Carolina Cougars over the Kentucky Colonels 110-107, in an American Basketball Association game.

Carolina cut Kentucky's second-place lead to 3½ games, but has only a handful of games remaining in the regular season to catch up.

The Cougars held a lead most of the game, but the Colonels began a comeback in the final period and cut their deficit to two points at one stage. Bob Verga was the high scorer for Carolina with 28 points. Darel Carrier scored 33 points for Kentucky and was the game's high scorer.

Indiana has a 56-23 record and has clinched the Eastern Division title. Kentucky is No. 2 at 44-37 and Carolina is third at 40-40. The No. 3 finisher will have to meet Indiana in the opening round of the playoffs.

sounder than it has been in five years opening the Masters." Coming from a four-time champion, it sounded like a warning to all the rest.

Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and 80 lesser-known Masters invitees started Thursday in the 34th fight for that magic green coat awarded winners at Augusta National Golf Club.

"I feel physically up to it," said the 40-year-old Palmer. "Although I'm not hitting the ball better than past years, my overall game has as much muscle as, well ...as it did in the

Passing 190 Is Thrill For Fryar

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Freddy Fryar has joined auto racing's ultra high speed club and says he just might begin collecting dividends in Sunday's Alabama 500 for stock cars.

Fryar, 34, from Baton Rouge, La., ran the fastest lap of his 12-year career Wednesday, 191.631 miles per hour in a winged Plymouth, to win the ninth starting position in a select field of 40 cars.

"I drove 180 here last November to qualify for the Vulcan 500 for older cars," said the handsome ex-high school boxer, "but going over the 190 mark was a brand new thrill for me."

Fryar, a short track specialist who usually drives slower machines in NASCAR's modified and sportsman divisions, was hired by Bill Ellis of North Wilkesboro, N.C., to drive the newly built Plymouth in Sunday's $138,100 event at Alabama International Speedway.

Although he was 8 m.p.h. slower than Bobby Isaac's pole winning speed of 199.658 m.p.h., Fryar and Ellis were happy.

"He had only about a dozen laps in the car during the morning practice session," said Ellis, whose car was driven to victory by Richard Brickhouse in Talladega's inaugural race last year.

"We figured he'd need a lot more work than that to get the car up to a speed that would early 1960s."

Palmer won the Masters in 1958-60-62-64 but hasn't scratched since facing middle age. His following is still the largest, his fans the most adoring, his appeal far above anybody else's. But, Arnold knows that one more green coat and they'll remember forever.

"I can't think of many things I want more than a fifth Masters," he said. "Sure, I'd like to have a PGA championship, too, since I've never won that one. But I'm eager to see what happens at Augusta National this week."

The rolling Augusta National course is a subject of controversy. Some, like Bruce Devlin and Dan Sikes, say it appears in poorer shape than any of their past years here. Nicklaus, on the other hand, says it's not as pretty but is super for pure golf.

Nicklaus has gone through a trying 1970 so far because of the death of his father by cancer. It had been a rich, close father-son relationship since Jack's pee-wee golf era.

"I am as ready as I could have possibly been...under the personal circumstances," he said.

Nicklaus said the bullet-fast greens of Tuesday were not as quick for Wednesday's final tuneup rounds.

Jack and his close pal from amateur golf days, Deane Beman, agreed that the greens are slicker for this Masters than any since 1965.

Devlin agreed.

"The 18th green is so fast that I dropped a ball near the back of the green several times and each time it rolled past the cup located on the front of the green," said the veteran from Australia who now lives in Miami. "Man, that's fast."

Devlin has threatened the past two years to win the Masters, but each time a key happening cut him down. Two springs ago it was a quadruple-bogey eight at the 11th hole. Last year it was a 40 front nine on Saturday morning.

"Since I'm now in the course-designing business, I look at each layout differently," he said. "In every tournament I pick up the six key holes that can win or lose it for you. Here at Augusta National, it's No. 4, 5, 10, 11, 13 and 18."

Devlin said that any golfer who "plays those six in one under par for the week will win the Masters. I know I will." The slim pro—who turned from plumbing to golf—said the stretching out by 20 yards to 540 on the par-five 15th "will add about two strokes to the winning score."

"I would say that the widened trap on the first hole would add another stroke," he added. "I would take 280 right now for four days and 284 might handle it."

Although the Palmer-Nicklaus-Player gang won everything here from 1960 through 1966, there have been outsiders grabbing the green jackets for three years running. Gay Brewer did it first, followed by Bob Goalby and then, last April, 6-foot-6 George Archer.

The odds are against Archer pulling off a double. Nicklaus is the only man in 32 years who has been able to back up one Masters title with another, accomplishing the feat in 1965-66 with an 18-hole playoff victory against Brewer and Tommy Jacobs in the second year.

Dr. Humber Leaving Today For 3-Day Nat'l Education Meeting

Dr. Robert Lee Humber, president of the North Carolina Association of Community Colleges and Technical Institutes, leaves today for San Francisco to attend a three day meeting of the National Boards of State Education of Secondary schools.

"This meeting is the result of a decision made by the Steering Committee of the National Council which met a few weeks ago," Dr. Humber remarked. "We will have representatives from all the states in attendance at this three day meeting."

After the meeting, Dr. Humber will fill a number of other engagements in California before returning to Greenville. He is being accompanied by Mrs. Humber on this trip.

On April 22, he will speak to the Lions Club of San Francisco on the subject "World Peace — The Crisis Of Our Times." Noting that "Everything we do, everything we say, in these times should somehow be related to stability in the world community," he added, "Peace is the most pressing need in our lives today in the realm of all our activities, whether it is education, community life or world affairs."

Dr. Humber, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the N.C. Museum of Art and well known throughout the nation for his long years of activity in the world of art, has been asked to speak on "The Role of the Museum in Community Life" at Pacific University in Stockton, California on April 27. "This is a matter dear to my heart," he commented, "In the past few I have been gratified to see in North Carolina the growth of community art museums and center. These institutions have played a vital role, not only in art, but in assisting in the program of saving and preserving historic landmarks in our state."

Dr. Humber mentioned he plans to donate his fee for the lecture at Pacific University to establishing a scholarship at the university.

His activities in California will follow participation in a three day meeting and seminar at New Bern celebrating the 25th anniversary of the restoration of Tryon Palace.

"This has been a notable example of what can be done in an authentic restoration project," Dr. Humber said. "After 25 years of continued work in research and searching out records, it can be reported

Merger Plans Face Friction

RALEIGH (AP) — New friction has arisen between North Carolina's Negro and white teacher organizations which officials say could complicate July 1 merger plans.

The disagreement came Wednesday when he predominantly white North Carolina Education Association opposed the National Education Association's support of federal Dist. Judge James McMillan's desegregation order for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools.

E. B. Palmer, executive director of the black North Carolina Teacher Association, said he was distressed by the NCEA statement expressing "regret" over the NEA's endorsement of McMillan's plan in a friend of the court brief filed with the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va. That court hears oral arguments today on the school board's appeal of plan.

McMillan's desegregation order is part of a continuing suit which Palmer's organization helped file against the Charlotte schools in 1965.

NCEA president Charles Pearson said the national organization's action could complicate merger of the groups by creating "new animosities" between the teachers.

The Worry Clinic

Clergyman Can Aid 'Patients'

Heed Dr. Menninger's sage advice. For he has neatly shown how clergymen can serve as superb practical psychiatrists. Remember, Christ was called the "Great Physician," and much of his influence was of a psychiatric effect. Topnotch pulpit orators can serve as "group therapists" in practical psychiatry!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE M-578: Dr. Karl Menninger is one of the medical titans of America.

Recently he lectured at the Princeton Theological Seminary.

"Some of the people we psychiatrists work with," he began, "don't really belong to psychiatry.

"Instead, they belong to a pastor!"

Then he outlined an essential psychological difference between disturbed parishioners who seek pastoral advice, vs. the patients who flock to us psychiatrists.

"The interviewees of pastors know they are doing wrong.

"And when people come to a minister for help, they also take the responsibility for their own misbehavior.

"But when they come to a psychiatrist, they often try to shove it off upon him."

Bravo to Dr. Menninger! This is a neat distinction.

It highlights the former tendency to "heal one's self" versus the modern trend to "let Uncle Sam do it."

Woodrow Wilson would turn over in his grave at the "buck-passing" age in which we now live.

For millions of people are blaming their own misfortunes on a rival race or on the fact they started out in poverty or that they were born in a so-called ghetto.

That's malarky and plain buck-passing!

A large percentage of the men in WHO'S WHO came up from poverty or were members of minority races.

But they had ambition and used elbow grease!

They hitched their wagons to a star and struggled, instead of blaming Uncle Sam or our school system or Capitalism, etc.

Woodrow Wilson abhorred the present political sentiment that is a glossed-over attempt to buy votes with appeals to the ghetto. "All any American should desire," stated Wilson, "is a free

Opening lead: King of ♥
A spirited bidding contest took place in today's hand and when East persisted to five hearts, South was reluctant to defend inasmuch as he concluded that the opponents had an excellent save and the profit from doubling would be negligible. He accordingly bid five spades and the auction subsided.

West opened the king of hearts and the ace was played from dummy. A spade was led to the jack and West was in again with the ace. He continued hearts and declarer ruffed.

South cashed the queen of spades and West showed out, revealing that East had as many trumps left as the declarer. A diamond was led to the ace and the queen of clubs was put thru for a finesse. When East did not cover, the lead was retained in dummy. A small diamond was played next and East discarded his remaining club, the king.

South put up the king of diamonds and led a third round, putting West in with the jack. A club return was ruffed by East as declarer's ace fell. East shifted to the ten of spades to remove dummy's last trump, and South was obliged to lose another diamond trick to West's queen—for a 200 point deficit on the deal.

South could have averted the loss altogether by utilizing dummy's two entries to coordinate his attack. Leading a trump from the North hand at trick two was a wasted play. Instead, it is suggested that declarer take an immediate club finesse.

East will presumably not cover. Now, South may turn his attentions to spades, driving out the ace by leading to his jack. He trumps the heart return and cashes the ace of clubs. When East's king falls, the dummy's suit is established and declarer has a parking place for all of his small diamonds.

Since he has lost only one trick so far, South can afford to make a safety play in trumps to protect himself against a four-one division. He does this by leading a low spade from his hand, deliberately conceding a trick. Observe that by this play declarer retains a trump in dummy to protect himself against another force in hearts.

East is in, and whatever he returns, South is in position to draw the remaining two spades with the king and queen, cross over to the ace of diamonds and run the dummy's clubs.

field and no favors!"

But far too many Americans want favors!

They wish to be coddled by politicians who compete for votes by promising increasingly bigger doles or federal subsidies.

This dangerous psychology is infecting Uncle Sam till his former rugged political health is declining fast.

So clergymen can serve as superb "group psychiatrists" by helping place more starch in the backbone of their parishioners.

For Dr. Menninger also has stated that it was a mistake for psychiatry to be regarded as merely a special field of medical doctors.

"Psychiatry," he added, "is a method!"

As such, it should be used by all leaders, whether teachers, preachers, dental surgeons and other counselors of mankind.

The only prerogatives that the M.D. psychiatrists have above that of clergymen, is their right to inject medicines or use shock therapy, etc.

But those are relatively rare aids in the treatment of most of the patients who need helpful advice and emotional steering in the right direction.

So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Nervous Breakdowns and Insanity," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

It shows you how to "vaccinate" against mental and emotional breakdowns!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Windshield Losses Vary

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—West Coast drivers are more likely to get a broken windshield or a cracked window than motorists in New York, Dallas or Cincinnati.

Drivers in Atlanta have the best chance of avoiding such accidents.

But regardless where the victims of broken automotive glass may live, there is only a 10 per cent chance they will have to dig into their own pocket to replace it.

These are some of the findings of extensive, computerized surveys by PPG Industries, the nation's largest supplier of automotive replacement glass.

Robert Wardrop, PPG's manager of automotive replacement glass, said quarterly surveys of 20,000 families from all parts of the country show:

—About 55 per cent of all broken windshields are caused by stones thrown up from the road.

—Traffic accidents account for only 13 per cent of all glass breakage.

—Insurance companies foot all or part of the bill for more than 89 per cent of auto replacement glass.

—The windshield breakage rate of the West Coast is almost twice that of the Atlanta region.

—On a percentage basis, glass breakage by traffic accidents is twice as high in New York as in Pittsburgh or Denver.

—Vandalism accounts for 13 per cent of the windshields broken in New York each year, but for only 3 per cent of those broken in Chicago.

Pizza Rolls Are All-American

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP)—As American as apple pie! As hot dogs! As hamburgers! As pizza rolls! As pizza rolls? Yes, according to the International Relations Club of the Wisconsin State University campus here which has requested that the hot snack food represent the U.S. at a collegiate "Feast of Nations" to be held at the Student Union on April 26.

The cultural exchange program will include an international buffet featuring traditional dishes from Hong Kong, Iceland, the Philippines, Nigeria, Ghana, Greece, Syria, and the United States.

"Roget's Thesaurus", written by English physician and philologist Peter Mark Roget in 1852, is still in use.

Electric Paint May Heat Home The Wrong Time

LONDON (AP)—Researchers say an electricity-conducting paint developed for use on American space vehicles may revolutionize home heating. When voltages too low to cause fires or shocks are used, painted walls and ceilings become heat sources. A wall at a London research center has been giving off heat for more than eight months.

HEIDELBERG, South Africa (AP)—Farmer Theunis Durny was not satisfied with the lock on the truck of his new car, so he climbed into the trunk to investigate. The lid fell down and the lock, for once, worked perfectly. Durny smashed the tail-light to get air but had to wait until his wife brought him some tea to be released.

Tires Chewed By Hungry Hyena

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP) — Large ragged holes extending right through the walls in two car tires baffled the car's owner. The holes were made while the auto was parked at Mlangi airport. Experts from a major tire manufacturer examined the tires and decided they had been partly eaten by a hungry hyena.
