

Sec. Laird Warns

U.S. At The Edge Of Prudent Risk In Arms Decisions

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today "we are literally at the edge of prudent risk" in postponing decisions on major new offensive nuclear weapons to give U.S.-Russian arms limitation talks maximum chance for success.

Claiming a steadily rising

Russian missile threat, Laird said that "if the Soviet strategic offensive buildup continues, the risk to our nation will become too great to sustain without major offsetting actions."

In a major speech prepared for the 70th annual meeting of the Associated Press, the Pentagon chief expressed hope for success at the strategic arms limitation talks—SALT—which have just opened a hard-bargaining phase in Vienna.

But Laird rejected arguments that the United States should, at the outset of the negotiations, unilaterally hold up impending deployment of multiple independently targetable warhead missiles (MIRVs) and expansion of the Safeguard missile (ABM) system.

"The place to resolve these issues is at the conference table with the Soviets," he said.

"Let us try to find out at the conference table the meaning of the Soviet Union's increased weapon deployments and let us conduct these important negotiations with full recognition of these continuing Soviet deployments."

Laird said the risks in deferring "hard decisions" on whether to go ahead with advanced missiles and bombers are acceptable only if the United States proceeds with the long-planned MIRV deployment and what he called a "minimal addition" to the Safeguard system, as proposed this year by the Nixon administration.

Disputing critics who contend MIRV and ABM systems spur the arms race, Laird asserted these weapons are essential to preserve the U.S. nuclear force that deters Russian attack—the ABM by saving land-based U.S. missiles and bombers from surprise knockout and the MIRV by assuring that land-based and submarine-launched missiles can overwhelm formidable Soviet defenses.

The defense secretary said the United States seeks "no more than a posture of effective deterrence" and that "we obviously could recognize as legitimate a Soviet desire for a comparable deterrent to protect its interests."

However, he said that Russia for the past five years "has engaged in a major effort to change the balance of power" and added that "a clear strategic superiority on the part of the Soviet Union would affect our interests and our obligations throughout the world."

Since 1965, he said, "The United States has virtually been in neutral gear in the deployment of strategic offensive forces, while the Soviet Union has moved into high gear in both deployment and development of strategic nuclear weapons."

From 1965 to 1970, Laird said, Russia has more than tripled its arsenal of long-range nuclear weapon launchers from about 500 to about 1,700.

says.

About 150 of the approximately 200 Americans killed in Laos were airmen based in Thailand or aboard U.S. Navy carriers, testimony revealed. The remainder were described as U.S. civilians and servicemen based in Laos.

No clear estimate was made of the cost of the U.S. involvement in Laos. But the Defense Department did submit the following statement:

"The total cost of all U.S. activities in Laos including air operations against the Ho Chi Minh trail is about (deleted) billion a year. Of this approximately, (deleted) billion is related directly to our efforts in South Vietnam."

Saying the Nixon administration has emphasized the de-escalation of the Vietnam conflict at the same time it has heavily escalated U.S. military effort in Laos, Symington said:

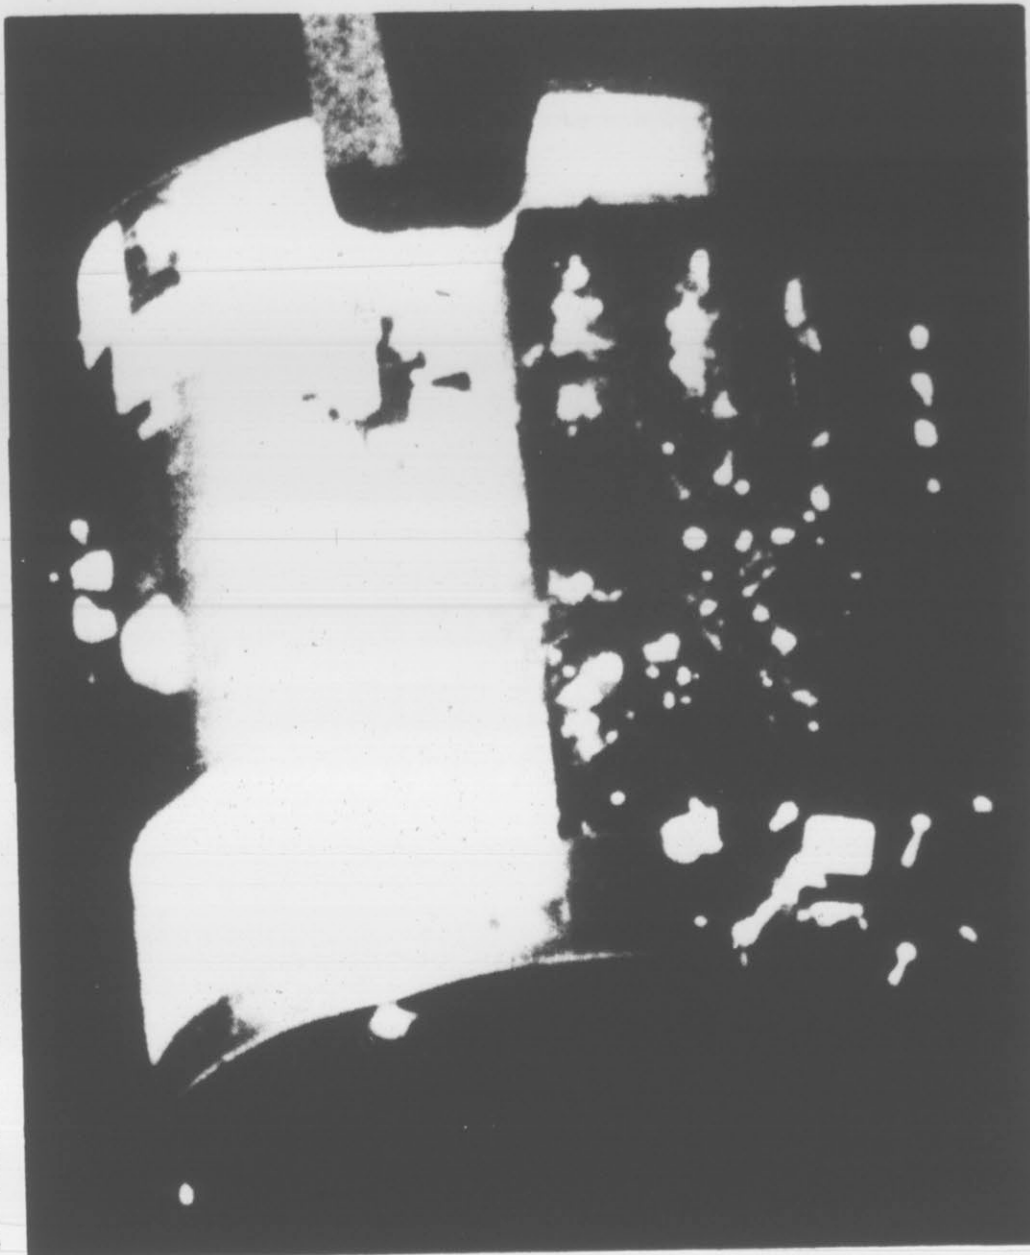

"It is not a question of whether it is right or wrong. The point we are trying to bring out is not only that the American people have no knowledge at all that this is true and neither does Congress—and neither does this committee nor the Senate Armed Services Committee. It could run us into new problems for this new administration."

Deputy Asst. Secretary of State William Sullivan, former ambassador to Laos and spokesman for the Nixon administration, testified that the Soviet Union has played a restraining role in Laos and appears unlikely to openly oppose Hanoi. The Soviet Union, he added, "would prefer neutralist solutions in Laos and Cambodia in order to provide buffers between the Vietnamese and Thai peoples."

Symington said the "figures which Col. Tyrell shows emphasize there had been a heavy escalation of our military effort in Laos."

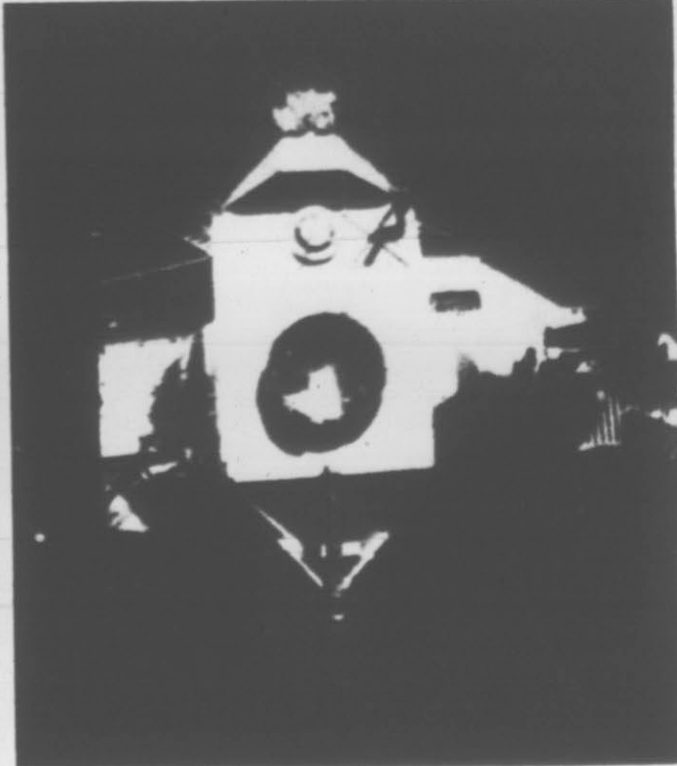

Escalation of the Laotian war came after the U.S. halted the bombing of North Vietnam in the fall of 1968, the testimony

Castro Reports Clash With 'Invader' Force

MIAMI (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro says an invasion force from the United States has landed in Cuba and that six persons have been killed in fighting.

Castro said in a communique broadcast Sunday by Havana Radio the armed men landed on Cuba's east coast Friday—the ninth anniversary of the abortive, U.S. supported Bay of Pigs invasion.

A "group of mercenaries coming from the United States, equipped with modern automatic arms of the Yankee Army, landed near the Yumuri River 14 miles east of the city of Baracoa Friday, April 17, at dawn," he said.

Baracoa is in Oriente Province, near the eastern tip of Cuba.

Castro said his troops and border patrol captured two prisoners soon after the landing, "seizing two automatic rifles, 2,000 bullets and numerous packages of plastic explosives."

A second battle occurred Saturday, Castro said, and "four courageous combatants of the revolution lost their lives and two were gravely wounded."

"During the action, two mercenaries were killed and a third one was taken prisoner," he said.

"A hunt for the mercenaries continues."

Militant exile groups in Miami remained quiet after Castro's speech, but one such organization—Alpha 66—said "an expedition like this was on our program."

Apollo 13 Crew Begins Report On Near-Tragic Journey To The Moon

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 13's astronauts today begin telling specialists about what happened on the near-tragic space journey.

What they report may help pinpoint the cause of the oxygen tank explosion that aborted man's third moon-landing attempt.

James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. plan to discuss the accident with Space Center officials before meeting with the head of the Apollo 13 review board Tuesday.

A team of experts here examined radio data and photographs in an effort to learn the cause of the tank rupture.

Lovell, Haise and Swigert returned to their homes near the Space Center Sunday night after a flight from Honolulu. They were greeted by more than 5,000 persons who gathered at nearby Ellington Air Force Base.

Lovell told the crowd: "Needless to say, Jack and Fred and I are very proud and glad to be back here in Texas tonight because there were many times when we really didn't think we'd make it back here."

"And I can say with all sincerity," the Apollo commander added, "we would not be here if it was not for the people on the ground, in Mission Control Center, helping us all the way."

Swigert, a last-minute replacement for measles-exposed Thomas K. Mattingly II, echoed Lovell's words, "Of all the welcomes home we've had, this one means the most, because it was these people out here who made it possible for us to be here."

Haise said, "We had the prayers and good wishes from people all over the world and we appreciated that very much."

Mattingly, without measles, was in the welcoming group. It was the fourth tumultuous welcome since the spacemen returned safely to earth Friday with a bull's-eye splashdown in the Pacific.

The others were aboard the recovery carrier Iwo Jima, on their first landfall in Samoa, and in Honolulu where President Nixon Saturday gave them the nation's highest civilian award, the Medal of Freedom. The President praised their poise and skill in bringing their spaceship in after it was damaged last Monday night 202,000 miles from home.

Nixon took the wives of Lovell and Haise and the parents of bachelor Swigert to Honolulu to greet the astronauts.

Churches around the world Sunday offered prayers of thanksgiving for the safe return of the spacemen.

Edgar Cortright, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., was named Friday to head the Apollo 13 review board that will investigate the accident.

Cortright said he planned to meet in Washington with NASA Administrator Thomas O. Paine and assistant administrator George Low "to begin selecting the board members and determining what other support personnel will be necessary to conduct this investigation."

He said names of the board members would be announced as soon as possible later this week.

Cortright said he would be at the Space Center Tuesday to talk with the astronauts. He said the review board probably would do most of its work in Houston.

Rap Brown Fails To Attend Trial

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — H. Rap Brown was not with his lawyers when they arrived today for resumption of his trial, postponed eight times and transferred twice, on charges of arson and inciting to riot and arson.

William M. Kunstler, the chief defense counsel, reiterated that he did not know Brown's whereabouts.

The 26-year-old black militant reportedly left his home in New York March 8 for the start of his trial in Bel Air, northeast of Baltimore. There has been no word on his whereabouts since.

That trial was interrupted by explosions. One demolished a

U.S. Strength Sees New Low

SAIGON (AP) — American troop strength in Vietnam dropped to 425,000 last week, the lowest level in more than three years, the U.S. Command announced today.

The announcement was made 16 hours before President Nixon's radio speech in which he was expected to announce plans to withdraw more troops.

Nixon's third round of withdrawals, completed April 15, reduced the authorized troop ceiling to 434,000 men. The total strength last week was 8,500 below that, but spokesmen said actual strength is always 1 to 2 per cent below the ceiling.

U.S. strength in Vietnam was at a peak of 543,400 men a year ago, in April 1969. Nixon began his withdrawals in June.

From the battle fronts, the U.S. Command reported five American helicopters shot down Sunday in scattered action. It was the largest number shot down in one day in nearly a year. Four Americans were killed and six were wounded in the crashes.

The Communist command's offensive launched April 1 appeared to be losing some of its steam.

The U.S. Command reported 20 enemy rocket and mortar attacks during the 24 hours before 8 a.m. today, and said only six of them caused casualties or damage. One American was reported wounded.

During the height of the offensive, 65 to 100 rocket and mortar attacks were reported in 24-hour periods.

Regional Planning Areas To Be Named 'Soon'

RALEIGH (AP)—Director G. Irvin Aldridge of the state Department of Local Affairs said today that multi-county regional planning areas in North Carolina will be announced soon.

"If we are to create life-enhancing surroundings in both the cities and the suburbs, the first requirement is the power to plan and implement programs which encompass the total problems of the metropolitan regions," Aldridge said.

He added that because North Carolina is a growing state and will continue to grow, it must plan development carefully.

In a talk prepared for the N. C. Council of Housing and Redevelopment officials, Aldridge said, "There are going to be times we must say 'no' to the price of progress. There are times we are going to have to pay the price to protect our environment."

"We must plan and preserve our pure air and water, open space areas, our recreation sites, our historic sites, our wild and scenic rivers."

Aldridge told the housing and redevelopment officials that the situation caused by a 6 per cent official ceiling on bonds of North Carolina housing authorities and redevelopment commissions is "critical," because the national interest rate is above 6 per cent. The state faces the possible loss of $133 million in federal funds for low-cost housing and redevelopment projects.

"We hope a solution is near," Aldridge said. He noted that when new industry comes, "town fathers promise the moon," but in a year or so "sewer lines are overloaded, water pressure drops, city fathers begin a desperate search for larger treatment plants and new water systems."

"It is a search made in panic," he said. "The need is apparent and there is no choice but to pay the price. Then come the tax increases and increased burdens on local residents."

"The time has come to ask if it is worth the price," Aldridge asserted.

Merchandising Trend For Banks

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Banking really isn't changing as much as it might appear. The purpose still is to make money on money — by accumulating deposits and then lending them out or investing them in real estate and securities.

The mechanical business of banking is, however, becoming less obvious to the eye. Seldom do you see grim faced men counting coins in public. It's all disguised now. Merchandising has come to this ancient craft.

To better sell their services, bankers often offer such a variety of prizes, premiums and other inducements that it sometimes seems the only thing not available at the local bank is a loan.

Innovations are evident everywhere. Remember when bankers had the best hours of any businessman? Now a bank in Huntington, W. Va., and another in Arlington, Va., are keeping their doors open 24 hours a day.

The new hours are merely experimental and it's still too early to gauge the success of the moves. But an officer of the Huntington institution says the results to date have been more than satisfactory.

One reason for the experiments is that the customary 3 p.m. closing hardly suits the needs of, let us say, a customer who must cash a check Friday evening or delay his vacation until Monday.

Bankers once had the attitude that the less exposure to the public the better it was. That meant short hours and iron bars on the tellers' windows. The public was poor, and the banker often had the attitude that anyone who walked through his door was looking for a touch.

Customers now come through the door with money — and the banks want it. So badly, in fact, that they are happy to forego dusty old traditions.

As they shed the great depression syndrome, some remarkable changes occur. The bars come down, the tellers smile, soft music is piped in, brighter lights are installed, checks are offered in rainbow colors instead of black and white.

During the past few years some progressive bankers have experimented with a wide range of special services, such as on-the-job and in-plant banking, sales of airline tickets, tourist information and automobile license renewals.

Each year more banks develop income tax services, a logical move since they are in a good position to understand the financial complications that come with the growing affluence of their customers.

Some of the innovations cannot be translated directly into profits but are meant to generate good will. Among them: stocks of umbrellas to lend out on rainy days, sales of transit tokens, adding machines for public use.

In Alabama a bank published a job wanted list for high school pupils. In West Virginia a bank has a library of new cars to tie in with its auto loan department. In many banks there are "kiddie corners" equipped with toys.

Jukeboxes have appeared in banks which are interested in color television receivers in a club-like atmosphere and used to encourage deposits from well-to-do businessmen.

How long will it last? As long as it's profitable. Underneath the new facade banks really haven't changed that much. Profit is still the name of the game and always will be.

And how long will the new techniques be profitable? For many years, it would seem, based on observations of current attitudes. Money no longer comes automatically to the bank. Savers have options these days.

True, individuals are accumulating greater reserves; but they also have a greater variety of ways in which to invest those reserves. The banks now must fight other investment mediums in order to get their share.

Twenty-five years ago, for example, banks didn't worry about mutual funds. Since then, however, mutual funds have developed into a $50-billion competitor for the saver's dollar.

Richard Crenna To Pope Voices Become A Producer Unity Hope

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Is this Crenna's last stand? The actor Richard Crenna was here for a movie location which might—or might not—mark the end of his movie acting career.

The movie is "Doctor's Wives," a saucy tale of the high times among affluent medics. It is being produced by Mike Frankovich, the man who gave you "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice" and directed by George Schaefer, ditto of "Generation."

If this is indeed Crenna's final flick, he is going out with a bit of sensation. He has bedroom scenes with Diana Sands, who plays his mistress, and with Janice Rule, who plays his wife. "She rapes me—my wife, that is," Crenna explained. "Imagine this happening to me—the guy who always played Mr. Clean!"

The reason why "Doctor's Wives" may—then again, may not—mark the finis of Crenna's film career is that he is going into partnership with Danny Thomas in a production company. First off, Crenna will act as executive producer of Thomas' new series for ABC, "Make Room for Granddaddy."

"That'll just be the beginning," said Crenna. "We expect to get a couple of spinoffs out of the series—spinoffs are pilot films that appear in a regular series. And Danny and I also have a deal to make three films for ABC's Movie of the Week."

This development in Crenna's career came as a surprise to those who know him only from his acting in television—"Our Miss Brooks," "The Real McCoys," "Slattery's People"—and movies—"The Sand Pebbles," "Star!" "Marooned."

"But they don't realize that I have also directed between 50 and 60 television shows," he observed. "I also directed pilot films for two series that later sold—"No Time for Sergeants" and "Wendy and Me," as well as a couple that didn't sell. I've always been interested in production."

He began doing something about it during the run of "The Real McCoys." After the third year of the bucolic series, he decided the only way to keep his sanity was to direct some of the segments.

Co-star Walter Brennan told him: "If you're crazy enough to want to do it—go ahead."

Crenna did, found he liked being on the other side of the camera, ended up directing 13 Andy Griffith shows as well. He was offered the chance to direct a feature, "If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium," but passed

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI says the Roman Catholic and Orthodox churches should merge into "one single faith and in one single church for all Christians."

The pontiff expressed this view Sunday during his sabbath blessing to an audience of thousands in St. Peter's Square. He cautioned, however:

"We cannot think to re-establish a sincere union of the Roman Catholic and the Orthodox churches at the cost of damaging the Oriental Catholic churches or through doubtful ways of intercommunion that put aside the demands of the true doctrine and could cause illusions and confusions."

Eastern churches include the Orthodox, headed by Patriarch Athenagoras of Istanbul, and a grouping of the Nestorian, Armenian, Coptic, Ethiopian and Syrian Jacobite.

Phyllis Diller Out Of Hospital

BLUFFTON, Ohio (AP) — Comedienne Phyllis Diller left Community Hospital here Sunday after recuperating from surgery performed earlier in the week.

Miss Diller, a native of Lima, Ohio, came here for the operation because she knew one of the surgeons at the hospital. The operation was described by a hospital spokesman as "remedial surgery of a female nature."

It up to act in another film, "The Midas Run." An error in judgment, he now admits.

Pitt-Greene PCA Stockholders Told

Of Ass'n Growth

Stockholders from all sections of Pitt and Greene Counties assembled in the Pitt County Courthouse Saturday morning to hold the 30th annual stockholders meeting of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association.

An address by Robert A. Durr, President of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and the Federal Land Bank of Columbia, South Carolina, highlighted the program. Durr discussed the high cost of money to farmers and stated that the country may have to live with 7 percent to 8 percent interest rates for many years in the future. In his address Durr stated that only 1 million farmers were producing 80 percent of farm commodities and he predicted we would need to increase our agricultural production one-third by 1980.

Farm credit has doubled in the past eight years and in the future the PCA's will furnish 36 percent of all short and intermediate term credit to farmers.

Alton Gardner, president, presided at the meeting and gave a brief report of the Executive Committee.

Director David Harold Smith presented the Board of Directors report in which he stated the authorized capital of the association during the past 12 months had been increased from $7,000,000 to $1,200,000.

Police Hunt Attacker

Greenville police are continuing their hunt today for a man who allegedly entered a West Third Street house Saturday night and attacked two people with a knife.

Chief T.E. Gladson said Louis Gilder of 412 West Third St. told investigators William Hart Jr., of 405 Darden Dr. had entered the Gilder home while both Gilder and his wife were asleep and stabbed and cut both of them.

Gilder received several cuts on his legs and neck, while Ammie Lee Gilder was stabbed and cut about the left chest and left body, the police official reported.

Officers, who are continuing their investigation of the incident, said the cuttings occurred about 10 p.m.

A warrant, charging Hart with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, has been issued for his arrest.

Seattle Shaken

SEATTLE (AP) — Four bombs which exploded within nine minutes damaged a state representative's home, a church and two business establishments.

No injuries were reported in the blasts, latest in a string of more than 65 in Seattle in recent months. All the explosions Sunday occurred in the predominantly black central area.

Asst. Police Chief Gene Corr said the bombings probably were caused by "more than just a loose knit organization."

'New' People Making World Of Wiggy A Booming Business

By CAROLYN A. BOWERS
NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. American housewife, after a 12-hour day of child corralling, housecleaning, and shopping, looks in the mirror at her tangle of hair and at the clock which shows she has 30 minutes to get ready for her much deserved evening out.

Does she panic? Of course not—she slips on a beautifully coiffed natural looking synthetic wig, tucks a stray strand of her own hair under it and goes out in a blaze of crowning glory.

Her husband, whose pate is as clean and shiny as a polished pot, gives his new hairpiece a couple of pats, slips it on and feels and looks 10 years younger.

These are some of the "new" people who are making the world of wiggy a booming multimillion dollar business that's expected to reach close to $1 billion in sales this year.

A study by wig manufacturers Reid-Meredith, inc., reported total industry volume of $610 million last year, up from $30 million in 1960. The survey showed the boom beginning around 1965 when retail sales jumped to $150 million from $30 million the year before.

"And the surface has not even been scratched," said wig designer-manufacturer Jerome Alexander, whose company (Jerrax Imports, Inc.) reported a $2 million volume its first year (1968); $7 million in 1969; and Alexander estimated a volume well over $20 million this year.

"Human hair," he said, "is dead."

Industry spokesmen agree this boom of the '70s results from the increasing appeal and acceptance of the improved synthetics with their better qualities and mass produced prices.

The new wigs are made of modacrylic (modified acrylic) fibers either U.S. produced dynel or kanekalon, a Japanese fiber. The basic difference between the two fibers is demer or thickness. Dynel is 40 demer and kanekalon about 50, both within the texture range of real hair.

The wigs generally retail between $25 and $60, depending on whether they are machine or hand made, with the latter more expensive. Most offer at least three style variations in some 20 naturally blended shades, and the industry reported that most women, in selecting a wig, choose a shade slightly lighter than their own hair.

Because of the over-all advantages and price appeal of the modacrylics, most industry spokesmen feel that human hair wigs are on their way out. One factor: it's scarce and expensive.

Reid-Meredith's survey found 80 per cent of the wigs sold in 1967 were human hair and only 20 per cent fiber, but with the rapid improvement of fiber, by 1968 human hair had dropped to 60 per cent.

It's Harder Being Man Than Father

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, my husband and I received the final word that we can never have a child of our own because my husband is sterile. [We've been married for 9 years and have wanted a family right from the start.]
I heard about artificial insemination, and it interested me. That way I will be the baby's natural mother, which I think is preferable to adopting a child.
My husband is against the idea in principle. He says there is something immoral about it. [He can't explain it logically. He just says that he doesn't want me to carry another man's child.]
I think he's wrong. I will never see the man, and I can't see anything immoral about it. I would appreciate your views.
THINKING IT OVER

DEAR THINKING: I agree with you. Perhaps your husband feels inadequate because he cannot produce a child, and he resents any other man who can. Tell him that it's easy to be a father. It's far more difficult to be a man.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say if your boyfriend called you up and said, "Hey, if I asked you to marry me last night, I must have been drunk." SUE

DEAR SUE: I'd have said, "And if I said 'yes', I must have been crazy."

DEAR ABBY: Recently I received an invitation to a baby shower given for my daughter-in-law. At the bottom of every invitation the hostess wrote, "No children, please." Some of the invited guests later said they thought her "no children please" request was the rudest thing they had ever seen. I would like your opinion. EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: I have more admiration for the hostess who prefers that children be left at home, and plainly says so, than the one who doesn't want them, lacks the courage to say so, and later complains to everyone who will listen about the "nerve" of those who drag their children along to adult parties. [This goes double for people who don't care for their friends' pets.]

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a mother whose college son was living with a girl, and insisted that he didn't need a "piece of paper" to live with his girl friend. He said, "What's a piece of paper?"

Very likely he is old enough to have bought a car. He certainly didn't take it out of the car lot without a "piece of paper" called a title. And he will never buy a house without a "piece of paper."

And if he ever graduates from college, he will no doubt want that "piece of paper" called a diploma.

He will live his life with "pieces of paper," beginning with his birth certificate, and ending with another piece of paper—his death certificate. And one of the most important "pieces of paper" he will ever have will be his marriage license. Mrs. R. S.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

If the Shoe Fits...

Is foot trouble due to faulty foot design?
A doctor who studied engineering before entering medical school has stated that the human foot is the best designed machine in the world for the transfer of stresses. Man, the inventor, can point to no greater achievements than the round wheel and the arch, which is still our strongest structure. The round heel of the foot has all of the advantages of the round wheel and the heel comes equipped with its own tubeless puncture— healing fire. As for arches, the foot has five of them—they are strong, yet flexible.

The percentage of babies who are born with deformed feet is very small. When we look for someone to blame for foot trouble, it isn't necessary to go beyond our own or our parents' unwillingness to properly clothe the foot. The foot is well structured for its job. Foot trouble comes from improper footwear, or abuse of our feet.

Area Hospitals Would Benefit

East Carolina University's plan for using community hospitals for training medical student could strengthen the hospitals of Eastern North Carolina, as well as saving construction and operating funds.

Dr. Edwin Monroe, dean of the School of Allied Health Professions, recently explained the proposal to the Legislative Research Commission subcommittee on health.

He told the group that several million dollars could be saved by "farming out" medical students rather than building a large teaching hospital.

State Flowers Attain Glory

(Today's guest article was written by Holt McPherson, Editor of the High Point Enterprise.)

By HOLT MCPHERSON

Flowering dogwood is adding to the beauty of Spring's floral show and also brightening scenery as sunshine and warmer weather, in wake of a bitter winter, bring out the most spectacular flower show in recent memory. High Point shows its share of North Carolina's official state flower coming into its perennial spring glory just now. From the Piedmont to the seashore dogwood and redbud brighten Spring's advent.

Nature has so generously endowed North Carolina with the dogwood that a little cooperation from its citizens, home owners, garden clubs and beauty-minded groups can, with its help, distinguish this further as a state of unexcelled beauty. Encouragement as is being given our official flowering trees is paying off so handsomely as to warrant extended investment of time, attention and money in its primping.

There is a legend that at the time of the Crucifixion the dogwood had been the size of the oak and other forest trees. So firm and strong was the tree that it was chosen as the timber of the cross. To be used thus for so cruel a purpose greatly distressed the tree, and Jesus, nailed upon it, sensed this, and in His gentle pity for all sorrow and suffering said to it:

"Because of your regret and pity for my suffering, never again shall the dogwood tree grow large enough to be used as a cross. Henceforth it shall be slender and bent and twisted and its blossoms shall be in the form of a cross - two long and two short petals. And in the center of the outer edge of each petal there will be nail prints, brown with rust and stained with red, and in the center of the flower will be a crown of thorns, and all those who see it will remember."

The Legend of the Arbutus, from Wildlife in North Carolina, is timely now, too:

In the moons of long ago, there lived an old man alone in his lodge beside a frozen river. Long and white was his hair. He was clothed, too, in rich snowy furs, for it was Winter everywhere. Snow and ice covered the ground; the chill winds wailed through the forest. The birds had flown away, and the animals were hidden in their holes to escape the bitter cold. The old man sat gloomily in his wigwag by the side of his dying fire.

Suddenly a warmer breeze blew aside the flap from his doorway, and into his lodge stepped a most beautiful maiden. Her cheeks were like wild roses; her eyes twinkled with starlight; her hair, which hung over her shoulders in rich and silken tresses, was decked with bright blossoms; her dress was woven of dainty grasses and trimmed with bursting buds; her moccasins were white lilies. In her breath was the mingled perfume of the most fragrant blossoms.

The old man rose to greet her as she entered: "Welcome, my daughter," he said with a trembling voice. "My lodge is cold and cheerless, but it may give you some shelter from the biting blast. Be seated there on my mat of furs and tell me who you are that dare to enter thus my snowy realm."

"Did you not know that I am a Manitou - Peboan, the God of Winter?"

"I, too, am a spirit with power," returned the maiden. "The Goddess of Spring. But I came, Peboan, to hear of your mighty deeds."

"When I blow my breath," replied the Winter King Proudly, "the rivers and lakes stand still."

"When I breathe," returned the maiden laughing, "flowers spring up o'er all the meadows."

"When I shake my hoary locks," the old man boasted, "snow comes falling and drifting to cover all the earth."

"I toss my tresses," said the maiden, "and warm, showers sprinkle all the thirsty plain."

"When I wander o'er the world," said Peboan, "the leaves fall, the animals run to their holes, the birds fly in haste to realms of sunshine."

"When I come dancing o'er the earth, blossoms deck the naked trees, birds return with joyous songs, and all the world grows glad again."

While they talked, the air became warmer; the old man grew drowsy; his hoary head dropped on his breast. He slept, and as he slept, the maiden passed her hands above his head, and he began to dwindle away. His cold body gradually melted into streams, which laughed and glistened as they danced along.

When this was done, the Spirit of Spring tripped away, took from her bosom the most delicate of white flowers and hid them under the leaves. Then she breathed upon them and said, "I give thee all my virtues and my sweetest breath. Let him who plucks thee do so upon bended knee."

When this was done, the Spirit of Spring tripped away over the plains and through the woods, and wherever she stepped, there and nowhere else, grew the arbutus.

Dr. Monroe estimated this might save the state $18 million in construction costs and $3 million in operating costs. He suggested the formation of an Eastern Regional Health Authority with members appointed by the governor. The authority would manage state funds to be used for teaching programs in larger community hospitals.

ECU was granted funds by the 1969 Legislature to plan for a two year medical school. That planning is now underway and the community hospital concept outlined by Dr. Monroe is a part of it.

ECU still has considerable way to go before its medical school becomes a fact. However, the evidence is overwhelmingly in the university's favor that the medical school is needed. The shortage of physicians, particularly in the east, is proof enough that the medical school is needed on the local campus. If as an added benefit the fine hospitals which are now being built in eastern cities can be strengthened through the medical school's teaching program, then North Carolina will be even better off.

New Plant Is Welcome News To Pitt County

Sunnyside Eggs decision to build a modern processing and feed plant between Greenville and Winterville is welcome news.

The announcement was made by Agriculture Commissioner James Graham in a talk before the Winterville Kiwanis Club last Thursday night.

"This plant will be a real boost to the agricultural economy of Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina," Graham said.

Sunnyside has been providing a market for eggs produced on Pitt County farms for some time. This new plant will improve the outlook for egg production.

Our area needs more plants which will process the products that come from our farms. Sunnyside Eggs is of this type and its new plant should be most helpful in improving our farm economy.

Thieu Could Wreck Efforts

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SAIGON — A gnawing fear has developed among a wide spectrum of the Vietcong insurgency the past two years could be crushed by the political ineptitude of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

To the handful of old Vietnamese hands in the American official establishment here, there are incipient signs that Thieu is following in the tragic footsteps toward personal dictatorship taken by Ngo Dinh Diem a decade ago. That comparison may seem grossly premature today, but Thieu's increasing isolation and tendency toward peremptory decisions are disturbingly reminiscent.

The most immediate danger posed by Thieu's recent actions is the impetus he has provided the anti-war bloc in Washington now demanding that the U. S. precipitously disengage from the Thieu "dictatorship." But in Saigon as well, Thieu's mistakes have played into hands of politicians intriguing against him.

This is by no means a political crisis of the magnitude that destroyed Diem in 1963. A coup against Thieu is not remotely possible, and, in any event, would not be tolerated by the U. S. Rather, with Thieu favored for reelection in 1971 in the absence of effective organized challenge, there is growing doubt whether he is the man to consolidate the gains of pacification into the building of a nation.

Such doubts are now entertained by U. S. officials who a few months ago felt that Thieu, though scarcely a charismatic figure, was on his way toward becoming an effective politician. What has changed that view is their observation that he has isolated himself, ignoring his cabinet and relying on a palace guard.

The most disturbing member of the palace guard is Gen. Dang Van Quang, the president's assistant for national security. A classmate and close friend of Thieu, Quang was removed from command in the Mekong Delta on charges of corruption. The fact that he today receives all intelligence information at the palace is not reassuring.

Nor is the presence there of Nguyen Cao Thang, a millionaire pharmaceutical importer who is the President's closest political advisor. The recent ham-handed political decisions made by Thieu are blamed partly on Thang's advice.

The worst of these blunders was Thieu's prosecution on security charges of opposition deputy Tran Ngoc Chau, perfect fuel for charges of dictatorship from the American peace bloc. Although U. S. officials disagree sharply in their assessment of Chau, they unanimously regard Thieu's prosecution of him as a disaster.

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, staunchest supporter of Thieu in the official U. S. community, personally urged him to back away from the Chau case.

Thieu replied that he could not offend military elements clamoring for Chau's scalp. However, many U. S. officials feel Bunker was insufficiently firm in pressing Thieu, including two high officials who came within a

Strength For Today

NO COMPROMISE

In reading the Bible we frequently encounter the word "publican." The men who bore this title were tax collectors. Today the tax collector is a person honorably employed and doing an honest job.

In our Lord's day it was different. The Roman authorities called in their tax gatherers, indicated how much money had to be raised by taxation and then told the publicans that whatever they could squeeze out of their victims in addition to the required tax total would constitute their fee. Since the publican (tax collector) had the whole power of government behind him, he was able to carry on his lucrative and cruel business almost without hindrance.

One thing that above all others annoyed the opponents of Jesus was that he sought the company of these publicans and in fact chose one of them (Matthew) to be one of his twelve apostles. Later he chose a certain Zaccheus, not as an apostle, but as a friend. And when Jesus accepted the hospitality of Zaccheus and went to the home of the publican for dinner, the people were scandalized. "He has gone," they said, "to be guest with a man that is a sinner." But the result was the transformation of the life of Zaccheus.

Jesus, with the fullness of his nature, hated sin, but he never hated the sinner. His purpose was to overcome evil with good. He did not need to suffer crucifixion if he had been willing to compromise a little here and there.

He became the world's Saviour because he would not compromise.

The Edelweiss Incident

WASHINGTON — The dismissal of Rory Edelweiss from the Internal Revenue Service has been upheld by Bureau 1040 as well as 1040A of the IRS and has been confirmed by Clark Mollenhoff, the White House assistant in charge of income tax returns.

Edelweiss has become a cause celebre in taxpayer circles because he tried to simplify the federal tax form, much to the horror of everyone in the Department of the Treasury.

His supervisor, Glenn Hindsight, said that the IRS was perfectly right to fire Edelweiss.

"He was a troublemaker," Hindsight said, "and could have destroyed the entire tax collection system in this country."

"What did Edelweiss try to do?"

"He tried to write a tax form that the average taxpayer could understand."

"What on earth for?" I asked.

"Who knows what goes on in a mind like that? Some think he was working under too much pressure. Others say if he had been given a test when he was 6 years old, we would never have hired him."

"In any case, Edelweiss came to us eight months ago with a simple tax form which anyone could have filled out. He had eliminated references to forms 2440, 3903, 2106 and 2950SE, and such phrases as 'see tax rate schedule III on T-1 and tax table B on T-2.'"

"What did you do?"

"We thought he was joking at first. But Edelweiss said he was dead serious. He had worked on the return for over a year and felt that the implementation of it could cut down the taxpayer's work to three hours."

"I hope you told Edelweiss where to get off," I said.

"As his immediate superior, I tried to talk sense into him. I told him that if we simplified the present federal tax form so people could understand it, they might decide not to pay their taxes. The real purpose of a complicated tax return form was

Other Editors Say Heard It Before

(Henderson Dispatch)

Governor Scott has "warned" heads of State departments and agencies to cut their budget requests to the bone because, he said, "there are some disturbing economic signs around, particularly in the textile industry." He said he was optimistic about North Carolina's economy but "the economy of our State is tied in tightly with the national economy."

The Governor cited declines in employment in the textile industry and reports of unusually high rates of business failures as reasons for caution in spending plans.

Well, that sort of advice, without the specific background mentioned, would have been excellent advice to the last Legislature, but was not given. Instead, the Governor himself led the demand for higher appropriations here and there and for unnecessary taxes on cigarettes, bottled drinks and gasoline. There has been talk of efforts in the 1971 Legislature to repeal one or all of these excises, and the Governor's comment may be designed as a means of heading off such a movement should it develop.

Notes On A Quick Global Trip

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are postscripts on a round - the - world trip that included the inaugural flight on Japan Air Lines from Paris to Tokyo via Moscow:

Boom In Japan

The Japanese economy is booming, although the determination of fully half the Japanese to see Expo 70. The fair will lose money, but the Japanese don't seem to care. Times are good, better than ever before, and the Japanese want to splurge. There was a boom during the 1964 Olympic Games in Japan, then a recession. Many expect a letdown after Expo closes. But no one seems to worry about it.

Banzai!

Inagural Frig Tour

Most of the guests on the inaugural flight visited Nara, the ancient capital, where they were served lunch at the Nara Hotel. The menu, headed, "JAL Inagural Frig Tour," included such items as Consumm Florentin, Cream of Vegetal Soup, Grilled Chicken a la Diable, Vegetables and Salad in Sason. It was delicious.

Pampered Cattle

Kobe beef is famous through the orient. Kobe cattle are fed beer to make their meat sweeter and they are said to be massaged every day to make it more tender.

Wherever the JAL guests were taken, they were offered Kobe beef which is as tender and sweet as massaged, beer-fed beef should be. One guest remarked that, judging from the beef's availability, the Kobe stockyards must be slightly larger than Texas.

Incidentally, the U. S. Department of Agriculture recently helped arrange parties at Tokyo, Nagoya, Osaka and Fukuoka to promote American beef and U. S. beef suppliers made on the spot sales of $225,000.

Bargains In Hotel Shops

Prices are high in boutiques and shops in American hotels. It's just the other way in the shops in Japan's top hotels. The shops in the arcades often sell silks, pearls, electronic devices and other goods at prices lower than in the Ginza stores.

However, all prices are higher than they were a few years ago.

Language Problem

The Japanese appear to have as much trouble with the English language as Americans have with chopsticks. Incidentally, the quickest method to learn to use chopsticks is the hunger method: You eat nothing you cannot pick up with the sticks. It teaches fast.

The Japanese have trouble distinguishing between the English Ls and Rs. I almost missed my plane from Tokyo to San Francisco because the confirmation of my flight had been transmitted over the telephone.

There was no confirmation of a Mr. Roessner although, as it was discovered minute before the plane took off, there was a confirmation for one "Mr. Loessner."

Learned It All By Mail

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you are fair-complexioned and want to avoid premature skin-aging, stay out of the sun's glare—particularly between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.—even though you are young. This is the recommendation of a University of Pennsylvania medical investigator who found that sun exposure significantly damaged the skins of 80 per cent of youths between 10 and 20 years old.

Slowly the world shows signs of growing more humane. For example, in Costa Rica laws prohibit the working of horses, mules and oxen more than 48 hours a week.

This compares ironically to the praise given by humanitarian novelist Charles Dickens in the last century to textile mill operators in Lowell, Mass., for providing free instruction in music and other female accomplishments to their girl employees. But the girls worked from five in the morning till seven at night.

Do you wear contact lenses? Then it's a good idea to wear also a medical identification bracelet saying so. Should you lie unconscious for hours after an accident, the lenses can seriously injure the corneas.

Teen-age precocity: The 49th state flag—Alaska's—was designed by a 13-year-old orphan, Benny Benson.

Know your language: Our phrase "forlorn hope" results from a slight mistranslation of the Dutch term "verloren hoop," which means "lost troop" not "lost hope." It referred to a group of soldiers given a desperate mission likely to result in all their deaths.

Folklore: Skunk grease will cure lameness. Further bad luck will follow unless the clocks in a home are stopped when a member of the family dies. To prevent a bad dream from coming true tell it to someone after—but not before—breakfast. A tingling left ear means someone is speaking ill of you, but if you pinch the ear that person will bit his tongue.

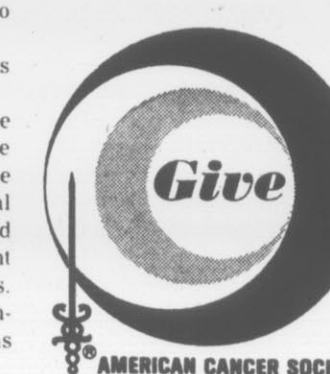

It was Goethe who observed, "Being brilliant is no great feat if you respect nothing."

Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev is general secretary of the Soviet Communist party. As such he is supposed to be concerned primarily with its affairs. He has been charging with such vigor and authority into the affairs of the government and the economy since December that it seems likely he has become, if not a new strong man, at least the first among equals in the Kremlin's collective leadership. What might this mean for East-West relations? What might it mean for such important matters as SALT, the strategic arms limitation talks in Vienna?

Experience indicates that fixed Soviet, Russian and Communist attitudes survive regimes and personalities. Nations, like people, can be captives of habit, and in the Russians' case it would be more difficult for the leaders to abandon their Communist notions that it would for a chain smoker to quit cigarettes.

Like other Kremlin leaders of the moment, Brezhnev is a Stalin-era product and thinks that way. This means that whether or not he is top man, whether or not Premier Alexei N. Kosygin is pushed aside, it is going to continue to be extremely difficult for the United States to reach an understanding with Moscow.

One Kremlin habit is inherited from Czarist Russia—suspicion of all outsiders. Even what might seem an obvious concession to Moscow is likely to be viewed with deep distrust. Stalin liked to quote a Russian proverb: "An obliging bear is more dangerous than an enemy."

Another habit is fidgeting about security, something the Russians have been doing for centuries. The nation's leaders continue today to search for security through such devices as creating satellites and buffer zones.

Moscow's insistence that it dominate the application of "socialist" ideology in its camp is a manifestation of this obsession. The Brezhnev Doctrine, claiming a Soviet right to intervene wherever "socialism" is endangered, as in Czechoslovakia, is the Kremlin's current security blanket.

For hundreds of years East Europe has been a center of the Russians' obsession. Today "European security" is a key plank of Moscow policy. If a security treaty came about, the commander of Warsaw Pact forces wrote in the latest Kommunist, there would be no need for the Warsaw or NATO organizations. What he neglected to say was that the Warsaw Pact would remain in all but name, because of the Brezhnev Doctrine.

Another repetitive Soviet process is the shift from committee to boss rule. In the past the emergence of one man at the top generated excitement abroad. This time the inclination is to shrug and ask "So what?" obviously, from the words of the leaders, Communist attitudes are frozen anyway.

How, then, might the current shifts in the Kremlin affect so important a matter as SALT? One answer suggests itself. Brezhnev, despite his adherence to dogma and slogans, has the look of a plodding realist, far less likely to gamble than his predecessor, Nikita Khrushchev.

Brezhnev's activity since December, when he read the riot act to ministries and managers of the lagging economy, indicated that he shares with President Nixon a lively interest in easing the heavy economic burdens engendered by mutual nuclear deterrence. It would be in his interest at least to explore the possibilities of SALT, which could be his last chance.

SALT, even if it seems bogged down for a long time in-wrangling, can eventually provide a valuable indication of how much the suspicious Russians under Brezhnev are willing to risk in return for a large measure of relief from the arms burden.

hair of resigning.

Besides predictably riling up Washington, the Chau case was a signal flare for Saigon's most opportunistic elements to start agitating. Recent violent demonstrations against the Thieu regime by disabled veterans were stage-managed by the leftist Progressive Nationalist Movement with some help from the always troublesome An Quang Buddhist faction (which in 1963 spearheaded opposition to Diem).

But these mischievous elements could not have made front-page headlines had it not been for fumbling in the presidential palace. Actual grievances by the veterans about housing were legitimate and should have been quickly satisfied by the government. The dispersal of demonstrating veterans by lavish use of tear gas revealed no political finesse.

Similarly, Thieu opened the door for student demonstrations coinciding with the veterans' protests when the arrest of 40 Saigon university students was mishandled. Although there was hard evidence of a student Vetcong cell, the government invited protests by not pushing for a quick trial.

Broader criticism of Thieu concerns his inability to weld together a real nation. In truth, Thieu has worked hard at this most difficult task, constantly traveling in the countryside. His political problem lies not there but in Washington and Saigon, where enemies are using his mistakes to promote confusion with the potential to undermine the presently successful conduct of the war.

to wear the taxpayer down, so by the time he finished making out the return, he was so exhausted he would be willing to pay whatever he had just to get the return out of his house.

"He must have seen the logic in that," I said.

"Edelweiss was adamant. He said under his system the tax forms were so simple that he could save the country the 1,700,210,000 man-hours of work which are now devoted to filling out the 1040 return."

"But I told Edelweiss that if God wanted the American people to have a simple tax return he would have created one for them. He wouldn't budge, so I had no choice but to turn him in to the authorities."

"They must have been upset when they heard Edelweiss was trying to make a tax return that anyone could understand."

"Absolutely furious. The IRS has a staff of 1,400 people who do nothing but complicate the income tax forms. Whenever they discover that an item is comprehensible, they immediately take it out and replace it with something so vague and confusing that no one will get it. When they heard one of their own was trying to simplify the life of the taxpayer, they considered it treachery of the first order."

"So he was fired?"

"We made an example of him. After what we did to Edelweiss, it's going to be a long time before anybody comes up with any bright ideas on how to save the taxpayer his sanity and time."

Douglas Impeachment Effort Touches Off Doubt, Dismay

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald Ford's decision to head a move to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has touched off doubt and dismay among many of his GOP colleagues.

Although the move is a popular one among conservative Republicans, a sampling of liberal and moderate GOP sentiment discloses serious reservations about it.

"I think it is fair to say there is a good deal of anguish among the members," says an influential Republican moderate.

One complaint against Ford is that he failed to discuss his intention to spearhead the anti-Douglas drive with his fellow leaders, so other opinions might be expressed.

The party's national chairman, Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, R-Md., expressed misgivings about the timing of the move at a GOP leadership conference Friday.

Coming on the heels of Senate rejection of two of President Nixon's Supreme Court nominees, he said, the attack on Douglas might be construed as an attempt at retaliation.

He also expressed concern that it could become a political issue in this year's congressional elections. "If I had my druthers," he said, "the timing would be different."

Although Ford did not formally sign the resolution of impeachment introduced last week by 104 Democrats and Republicans, he launched the drive with an hour-long speech to the House Wednesday that laid down the charges on which the resolution is based.

Ford accused Douglas of a wide variety of improper conduct, including "involvement with pornographic publications and espousal of hippie-yippie style revolution," and being "the well-paid moonlighter for an organization whose ties to the international gambling fraternity have never been sufficiently explored."

The resolution, whose chief sponsors are Reps. Louis C. Wyman, R-N.H., and Joe D. Waggonner, D-La., calls for the establishment of a special six-member committee to investigate the charges and recommend whether the House should proceed with impeachment.

Ford, who said during his speech he would vote to impeach Douglas now, would name the three Republican members of the investigating panel.

House Democratic leaders seem equally discomfited by the developments of last week and have declined to comment about it. Fifty-two Democrats—all but a handful from the South—signed the resolution and the leadership can't dismiss it as a partisan attack on Douglas by the Republicans.

They are looking now to Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, to give them a means of forestalling action on the Wyman-Waggoner resolution.

The Judiciary Committee meets Tuesday and Celler said he hopes it will decide then on a course of action.

Meantime, former Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark said Sunday he sees no impropriety in Douglas' activities and sees

Home Again After Adventure In Space

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — James Lovell stepped briskly from the White House jet, paused briefly to smile hello and headed straight for a station wagon out of sight of the welcoming crowd.

Inside was a frail lady, beaming. Lovell opened the door and brushed his lips against her cheek.

"Hello, Mom," he said. "It's good to see you."

Only then was there time for the 5,000 who had come to cheer Lovell, Fred Haise and Jack Swigert home.

Home Again. Back to the home they thought they might never see again.

Although their mission to land on the moon was not achieved, their return was a triumph.

They'd had other welcomes: from the swimmer who first reached their capsule after splashdown Friday, on the carrier Iwo Jima that brought them to Samoa, from President Nixon and their families when they reached Honolulu.

But the welcome Sunday night from their Space Center community was different.

This is the place where they trained for man's third visit to the moon, an effort thwarted by an explosion. These were the people who, by the thousands, were totally committed to bring them home.

There were the officials who run things. There were Mission Control personnel.

But there were, too, the children from the astronauts' neighborhoods of El Lago and Timber Cove. Everywhere there were kids—the Space Center kids learn about thrust and apogee before they finish the alphabet.

These were the people who worked the hardest while the world rooted the loudest.

In front of the platform, in back of the ropes reserved for VIPs, stood a slender, nearly bald man. When the speeches were over he moved toward an airman guarding the way.

At first the airman hesitated about letting him through. The man showed his badge and finally got in. He was Edwin Aldrin, who with Neil Armstrong was the first to step on the moon. He got a welcome like this last July, but now it was Apollo 13's turn.

Also back in the crowd, watching quietly, was Joe Kerwin—another of the four main flight directors. Lovell spotted him, pointed a finger and said, "I see you, Joe."

Later, while the handshaking was going on, Lovell walked over to a friend wearing a sport shirt, pinioned his arms and looked with mock intensity at his face.

He didn't find what he was looking for—measles spots. The man was Thomas K. Mattingly, the third member of the Apollo 13 crew whose place Swigert took. Officials had worried that Mattingly might get the measles; he hasn't.

Hal Baird tossed a one-hitter at Virginia Military Institute yesterday, as East Carolina University rolled to a 7-0 win over the Keydets.

The win boosted the Pirates' Southern Conference record to 6-2, and kept them safely in first place in the southern division of the loop.

Baird was almost perfect in tossing the shutout win. He held VMI hitless until the sixth, when a slow roller was beat out. The first VMI runner reached in the fourth, when a ball was errored at third.

Only two Keydets were allowed as far as second. Steve Otwell, who got the only hit, reached there in the sixth after Steve Friski was safe on another error. In the eighth, Clint Cowardin walked and was moved to second when Baird balked.

The Pirate lefthander struck out 16 in the game, and walked three, all in the late innings.

East Carolina meanwhile, was working over three VMI hurlers. They ground out five hits in the first inning to score five runs and chase starter Vern Beitzel. Fred Carver came on to relieve him, but went out at the start of the second. Otwell replaced him. He was tagged for two runs and eight hits going the rest of the way.

The Pirate action all got going in the first inning after two men were out. Stan Sneed got it going with a single between short and third. Skip Taylor then drilled one down the third base line for a double, scoring courtney runner Bryan McNeely, running for Sneed.

Matt Walker lofted a high fly to short left that fell in between the fielders for another double, scoring Taylor for a 2-0 lead.

And Larry Walters kept things moving with his second homer in three games. He lined the ball over the left field fence, 345 feet from home, scoring Walker ahead of him.

But the Bucs weren't through. Dennis Vick ripped a triple into deep center field, and then came home on a wild pitch with the final run of the frame.

After threatening again in the third, the Bucs scored again in the fourth. Vick had doubled with two out in the third, but was unable to advance.

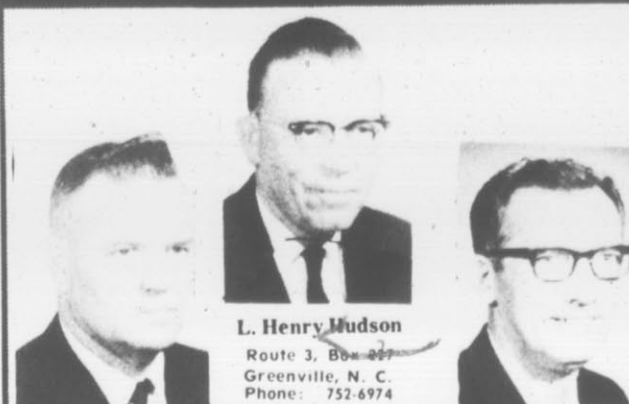

Baird led off the fourth with a single into center. Dick Corrada followed up with a double down the left field line, and with two outs, Taylor walked. Walker then drew another walk, forcing in McNeely, who came on as a courtney runner for Baird.

The final Buc run came in the sixth. Len Dowd reached when his fly to right was dropped, and McNeely replaced him in the lineup, officially. He moved to second on an out, and then scored when Taylor doubled to left.

The Bucs banged out 13 hits all

Two Greenville Swimmers Take Firsts In Time Trials Event

Two Greenville swimmers took first places in the time trials held Saturday, in Minges Coliseum by the East Carolina Swim Association.

Don Tucker of the 9 and 10 boys age group won first places in 3 events, the free style competition with a time of 1:18.6, the back stroke 38.8 and the individual medley 1:29.3.

Jane Elam in the 15-17 girls age group took first place in the back stroke with a time of 1:18.6. Tucker also took second place in the breast stroke for his age group. Miss Elam was second in the individual medley.

Don McGolhon in the 8 and under boys events took seconds in the free style, breast stroke, butterfly and individual medley events with a third place in back stroke.

Greenville swimmers dominated the 9 and 10 girls competitions, several girls placing in each event.

In the free style 5th was taken by Janet Gant, 6th by Susan Tucker, 7th by Kiela McGolhon, and 8th by Kathy Collie.

Foyt, Petty, Lund And Cannon Rack Up Wins

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
The old pros of racing — Par-nelli Jones, A. J. Foyt, Richard Petty, Tiny Lund and John Cannon — were winning major motorsports events across the country during the weekend as if they really needed the money.

Jones, 40, got Mustang back into the winner's circle by taking the first event in the 1970 Trans - American series for sporty sedans at Monterey, Calif. Ford's pony car won the Trans-Am manufacturer's title in 1966 and 1967 but gave way to the General Motors Camaro in 1968 and 1969.

Mark Donohue, whose road course driving skill carried Camaro to victory the last two years, switched to an American Motors Javelin earlier this year and wheeled one of them to a second place finish behind Jones — in the same lap but 40 seconds in the rear.

Jones' average speed for the 114 laps over the 1.9-mile Laguna Seca course was a record 91.375 miles per hour.

Foyt, who is counted among 'auto racing's millionaires along with Jones, won a 200-mile race for United States Auto Club stock cars at Phoenix, Ariz., beating another veteran, Roger McCluskey, across the finish line by one second.

Foyt, one of Ford's most prolific winners over the years, trailed the 37-year-old McCluskey for 134 of the 200 laps over the one-mile oval before beating the leader by six seconds on a pit stop to grab an advantage he never gave up.

Petty, at 32 the winningest driver ever in Southern stock car racing, breezed to an easy victory in the 250-mile Gwyn Staley Memorial at North Wilkesboro, N. C.

Starting 16th in a field of 30 after encountering engine trouble on the first day of qualifying, Petty got his Plymouth around the early pacesetters

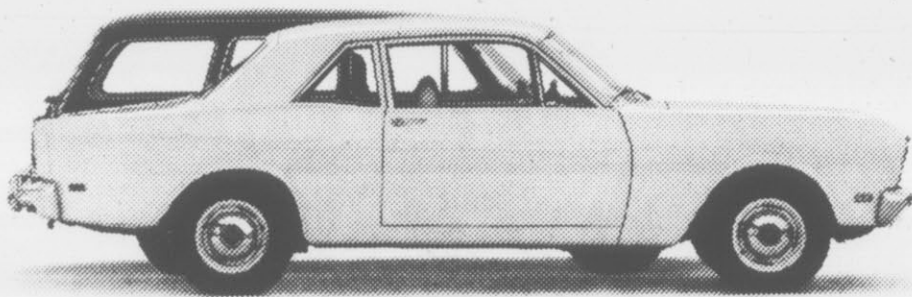

Bobby Isaac and Lee Roy Yar-brough on the 52nd lap and never was headed. Isaac's Dodge finished second, just over a lap behind, while Yarbrough's Ford was third, two laps back.

It was Petty's 104th career victory. The $6,025 winner's check brought his lifetime winnings to more than $700,000. The final hour and a half of the race was carried live by the ABC television network.

Cannon, long one of road racing's most consistent drivers, won the first event in the Continental series for stock - block, open-wheeled Formula A cars at Riverside, Calif. The 33-year-old native of Canada averaged 113.577 m.p.h. in a McLaren-Chevrolet as he roared to the front at the start and kept the lead for the 101.6-mile distance.

Dave Jordan of Cypress, Calif., was second.
Lund, 41, won his fifth straight race for NASCAR Grand American cars — Mustangs, Camaros, Javelins, etc. — at Augusta, Ga., and is threatening to make a runaway of the series.

Our story begins where other sedans end.

As we go to press, nobody has found a use for the rear deck of a conventional sedan, except of course pigeons.
Well, the Volkswagen Squareback doesn't end in a rear deck.
Instead, as you see, it ends in a square back—neatly grabbing an extra 24.7 cubic feet of luggage space out of thin air.
Then, for its next trick, the Square-back gives you an 8.1-cubic-foot trunk up front where most cars have their engines. And a rear seat that folds down to add another 17.7 cubic feet of space.

With all this you can fit more than twice as much luggage into the Square-back as any other sedan.
And yet you don't need a big space to fit the Squareback into. It's shorter and narrower than most other sedans.
So you can park it in places that other people didn't even know were places.
How's that for a happy ending?

When do you like your no-hitters broken up—early or late?
The National League had them both ways Sunday—Wayne Simpson losing his chance in the first inning and Tom Griffin letting the suspense build a bit before losing his in the seventh.

Simpson, Cincinnati's sensation rookie, one-hit San Francisco 6-0 Sunday while Houston's Griffin handcuffed San Diego on one hit, 5-1.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles battered Atlanta 10-1 with the game enlivened by a short fist fight between Larry Jaster of the Braves and Willie Davis of the Dodgers, and Philadelphia split a doubleheader with New York, winning 3-2 in 10 innings before losing 10-2. Montreal at Chicago and St. Louis at Pittsburgh were both postponed by rain.

In the American League, Minnesota stopped Oakland 6-3, Kansas City went 13 innings to top California 4-1 and Baltimore split a pair with New York, winning 4-3 before losing 8-5. Doubleheaders with Chicago at Milwaukee and Washington at Cleveland as well as Boston's single game at Detroit were rained out.

Simpson, who has created quite a stir with two shutouts and three straight victories, surrendered a two out first inning double to Ken Henderson and nothing else. He struck out nine but experienced some control problems, walking seven.

Ten days ago, in his major league debut, the 21-year-old right-hander shut out the Dodgers on two hits and in 25 innings pitched, he has allowed just one run.

Simpson got all the offensive support he needed from Tony Perez, who drove in four runs with two singles and his sixth homer of the young season. Houston's Griffin gave up a first inning run to San Diego on a walk, a stolen base and two ground outs, and then held the Padres hitless until Clarence Gaston doubled with one out in the seventh. Ironically, Gaston was the victim of a diving catch by Jimmy Wynn in the fourth with the shot being turned into a double play and preserving Griffin's hitless string.

"After Jimmy made that play," said Griffin, "it ran through my mind the way it happens when guys pitch no-hitters. There's got to be one good defensive play. At least it always seems that way. I thought maybe this was mine." said Griffin.

"Closest I've ever come?" said Griffin, repeating a news-man's question. "Oh, yeah, sure, it may be the closest I ever come."

Wes Parker clouted a two-run homer and Ted Sizemore cracked three straight hits pacing a 14-hit Los Angeles attack that carried the Dodgers past Atlanta. Alan Foster rode the heavy hitting to his second victory in three decisions.

The battle between Jaster and Davis broke out in the eighth inning. Davis was backed away from the plate with a close two-strike pitch and then bunted down the first base line. As the ball rolled foul for the third strike out, Davis exchanged words with Jaster and then punches.

After taking one punch, Davis sprinted away from Jaster and into the Dodger dugout as both benches emptied. "I accused him of throwing at me deliberately," said Davis. "He hit me on the right cheek and since I had it broke before, I didn't want it hit again, so I ran." Jaster denied throwing at Davis. "When he ran," said the pitcher, "I just gave up."

The Phillies ended a seven-game losing streak, pushing over two 10th inning runs to beat New York and Jerry Koos-man in the first game of their doubleheader. Hits by Larry Hise and John Briggs drove in the runs and Rick Wise went the distance for the victory.

Donn Clendenon drove in four runs—three on a homer—as the Mets blitzed Philadelphia in the nightcap. Winning pitcher Jim McAndrew kicked off a six-run rally with a double.

Robersonville Defeats Mattamuskeet By 2-0

MATTAMUSKEET — Robersonville High School pulled out a 2-0 victory over Mattamuskeet here Saturday.

Glenn Forbes tossed a two-hitter to get the victory. He struck out 12 and walked none in going the distance.

Robersonville scored once each in the third and fourth innings to get the victory. In the third, Hal Knox led off with a bunt single, and advanced to third on an out and a wild pitch. Phil James then brought him home with a single.

Then, in the fourth, the Rams came up with their other run. Probes doubled and Ed Warren reached on an error. He stole second, and an error on the play allowed Forbes to score from third.

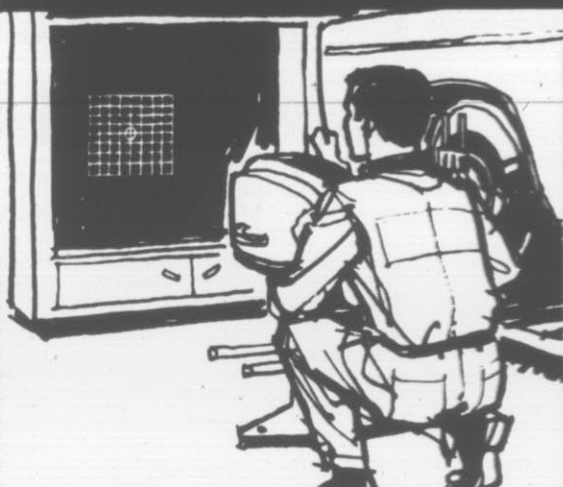

Forbes led the Robersonville hitting with three, while James and Warren each had two.

Pragmatism In The Classroom

Mattie Coney rates as one of America's foremost pragmatic educators. For she employs gumption or what used to be called "horse sense." And she tries to practicalize education via the case method. So study the "Fear Party" strategy as a "group confessional" technique. Youngsters often make superb psychiatrists!

By—George W. Crane, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE M-558: Norman Brinsley is a former newspaperman. At present he is working with Mattie Coney, of Indianapolis, on a project to practicalize more fully the citizenship training of grade school kiddies.

"Dr. Crane," Mr. Brinsley asked me during a recent luncheon, "I have been gathering advice and suggestions from teachers, principals, and all other interested civic leaders. 'One of the teachers, during our discussion, mentioned the fact that out of 30 children maybe 5 are the ones who cause most of the trouble, while the 25 are quite cooperative and well behaved.

"She wondered how a teacher could thus do the best job on those 5 without wasting the time of the other 25.

"For we can never afford to hire a personal psychiatrist for every school youngster, can we?"

In previous years I have addressed numerous State Teachers Associations.

And I have urged those educators to conduct an afternoon "group confessional" which I termed a "Fear Party."

For almost every child has some hidden dread or phobia, yet he tries to hide it from his classmates lest they consider him "sissy" or "chicken."

Alas, this hidden phobia often drives its victim into abnormal behavior that may label the youngster as a disciplinary problem or maladjusted child who is then sent to the principal's office periodically for punishment.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(c 1970 by The Chicago Tribune)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ 42 ♥ 8 ♦ 743 ♣ A J 9 7 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What do you bid?
A—Pass. While it is tempting to double, such strategy is not recommended, for someone is sure to rescue. If West should not run to hearts and partner doubles that bid, you will not know what action to take.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable. You have 30 part score and as South you hold:

♠ A 9 7 6 5 4 3 ♥ 9 4 ♦ A Q ♣ 7 6

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Dbble. Rdbble. 2 ♠ ? Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Despite possession of the seven-card suit, our preference is for a pass. Partner's redouble does not necessarily show spade support. A three heart bid, however, must designate a very good suit. When you bid two spades, ignoring partner's redouble, which calls for your pass on the next round, partner should have gathered that you had a very big spade suit. Nevertheless, he chose to bid hearts, and that would be our choice for the final trump.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ K 5 3 ♥ A J 6 ♦ A K 10 7 ♣ Q 8 3

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 NT Pass Pass 2 ♠ Pass Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. When partner passed your one no trump bid, he made it clear that there was no hope to go places. He is now merely competing for a part score with some very weak hand containing perhaps five diamonds.

Q. 4—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ A Q J ♥ A K 6 2 ♦ 10 8 4 ♣ J 7 4

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Dbble. Rdbble. Pass Pass 2 ♦ ?

What do you bid now?

A—There is no doubt that you are going to go to game, but there is no necessity for haste. A bid of two hearts will serve the purpose, for a new suit by responder is forcing for one round. On the next round you will support spades.

Q. 5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 ♦ 10 9 7 4 2 ♣ Q

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Dbble. ?

What do you bid?

A—Pass. It is poor tactics to anticipate that the double of the one spade bid will be left in, and a bid of two hearts is not recommended as offering safety. With hands of this kind, it is better to let nature take its course.

Q. 6—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ K 10 7 3 ♥ K 5 4 ♦ J 10 8 ♣ A J 8

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—You have 12 points and a balanced hand. After a previous pass, it is our practice to respond with two no trump, which is not forcing. The lack of a full diamond stopper should not be a serious objection with this type of holding.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as dealer you hold:

♠ A 9 5 3 2 ♥ K 7 6 5 4 3 ♦ A ♣ 6

What is your opening bid?
A—One spade. On hands of this type, where considerable bidding may be expected from other players at the table, it is better policy to treat the heart suit as the it were the same length as the spades. In this way both suits may be shown in the most economical manner during the competition.

Q. 8—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ K 8 2 ♥ A Q 1 ♦ A 7 3 ♣ K 10 6 4

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♥ ?

What do you bid?

A—While this hand contains the textbook requirements for a jump to three no trump, our own preference is for a cue bid of two diamonds which is forcing to game. This might more readily lead to a slam in the minor suit if partner's hand is slightly unbalanced, a slam which might not be available at no trump.

School Board To Meet Monday

The monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held Monday night at the Council Room of the City Hall at 8:00 p.m.

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of city schools, stated the change of location was necessary due to several interested groups who had announced plans to attend the meeting, which will primarily be concerned with firming up the finance budget for the coming school year.

Almost half of all water used in the United States is for cooling and condensing by industries.

Car Pool Trial Reduces Traffic

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A one-day car pool experiment reduced morning traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge by nearly 1,000 cars and air pollution by 2.36 tons, officials say.

KGO radio put up signs, broadcast appeals and got newspapers' help in encouraging car pools Thursday.

Dale W. Luehring, general manager of the Golden Gate Bridge Highway and Transportation District, said 16,226 cars from 6 to 9 a.m., compared with 17,200 on a normal day, crossed the bridge southbound

About 1,000 Campuses Plan Observe Earth Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina and South Carolina colleges and universities will join about 1,000 of the nation's campuses in Earth Day observances Tuesday and Wednesday.

University of North Carolina students and Chapel Hill area residents will visit an ecological food store, hear lectures, participate in workshop discussions and help collect beer cans.

A four-day "teach in" on environmental problems will get under way tonight Duke University at 8 p.m. when Dr. William C. Siri, professor of physics at the University of California and a past president of the Sierra Club, will discuss "wilderness ecology."

The Tuesday program at Duke will focus on the population crisis. On Wednesday, designated as Earth Day in the nation, symposiums will be held at Duke on air quality, land use and water use.

On the high school level, the 34-club Carolina District of Circle K International, an organization sponsored by Kiwanians, will hold a weeklong series of lectures and other anti-pollution activities in North Carolina and South Carolina.

At Greensboro, a "walk for survival" and an environmental multimedia show will be held Wednesday. The walk along Main Street is sponsored by Guilford College students and will include students at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and Greensboro College. A silent vigil downtown will follow the march.

The multimedia show at the university Wednesday night will climax a two-week symposium on ecological problems.

In South Carolina, events are scheduled at the University of South Carolina and at Erskine College.

Assistant Interior Secretary Klein will speak at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and Chapel Hill this week—Tuesday in Charlotte and Wednesday at Chapel Hill. His topic will be the Nixon Administration's role in water quality and research, which is his specialty in Washington.

At Wake Forest, there will be a burial service for an internal combustion engine and other "pollution culprits."

Dr. Robert Colwell, an ecologist from the University of Chicago, and Vernon Lyon, special assistant on legal and public affairs for the Agency for International Development, will speak for an environmental convocation at the Winston-Salem campus.

At Chapel Hill a store will feature such items as organically grown foods free of pesticides, preservatives, stabilizers and other additives.

Students in UNC dormitories, sororities and fraternities are participating in a beer can collection contest. A $50 prize will go to the group collecting the greatest volume of cans.

Appalachian State University students will clean up local streams Wednesday as well as the campus and community.

Former Congressman Basil Whitener will speak on "Pollution—What Government Can Do To Stop It" that night on the Boone campus. His talk will be followed by a film produced by members of the Appalachian student body especially for Earth Day: "All About Boone: In Search of Eden."

Plants Need That Potassium In Soil

By EDWIN L. YANCEY
The Soil Testing Division of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture has been testing soils more than thirty years for the farmers of North Carolina. One of their major concerns has been that of measuring the amount of potassium the farmers crop can get from his soil. They are also concerned with how much will have to be added as fertilizer.

Many of our soils may contain more than 10,000 lbs. of potassium in the top six inches of each acre. With such large quantities present one would think that any crop should be able to get 150-200 lbs. per acre. This is about all any farm crop needs.

This is not the case, more than 99 percent of the total potassium may be in minerals and as such would not be usable by plants. A small part of the total is in a form which is about as hard to dissolve as the rust on the tobacco setter and is of little value to fast growing plants. Even less, perhaps 80 of the 10,000 lbs., is available to the crop plant. This part might be thought of as being similar to marbles on a checker-board which can be bumped off or replaced by opposing marbles. Once they are replaced they would go into the soil solution or directly into the plant roots.

The smallest fraction of the soil potassium, perhaps only a pound or two per acre, is in the soil solution at any one time.

The exchangeable of checker-board fraction and the solution fraction are the parts which are of concern in soil testing procedures.

Research over many years has shown that a measure of the exchangeable and the solution fraction is a good indicator to use to predict the need for fertilizer potassium. The Soil Testing Division does this testing without charge for any resident of North Carolina. We will be happy to furnish the necessary supplies to any of our farmers or homeowners who would like to use the service.

In general, potassium is present in the soil in four different forms. The amount in each form and the conversion rate from one to another are important. These are the factors which put a little science into the art of growing plants through the chemistry of soil testing.

Tobacco TIPS

By S.J. Weeks

Tobacco mosaic is one of our oldest known diseases. It is caused by a highly contagious virus. The virus is spread by contact and has been known to live in cured and stored tobacco for 50 years. Mosaic often originates in the plant bed and is caused by the mosaic virus in manufactured tobacco coming in contact with the young tobacco seedlings. Once the infested plant is transplanted in the field, it is easy to spread the disease to other plants by contact. Losses caused by this disease vary to some extent between seasons, but little progress has been made in reducing losses during the past 25 years.

Considerable research has been done on the use of plain, ordinary milk for the control of mosaic of tobacco. It has been found that the use of milk in any form at transplanting time will greatly reduce losses. Two types of treatment have been used: (1) Spraying. This consists of spraying the plant bed 24 hours before pulling the plants with five gallons of whole or skim milk, or five pounds of dried skim milk mixed with five gallons of water, applied to 100 square yards of bed. (2) Dipping. This consists of dipping the hands about every 20 minutes in whole or skim milk, or a mixture of one pound of dried skim milk to one gallon of water. The hands are dipped during pulling and transplanting in the field.

In experiments conducted to test the effect of milk in controlling this disease, hands of workers handling tobacco plants were contaminated with the mosaic virus. Plots of tobacco were planted where treatment was not used, where the plants were sprayed, where the hands were dipped, and where spray and dip were used. At the Whiteville Station, the spray treatment produced 446 pounds more tobacco per acre and sold for $326 per acre more than the tobacco grown in the untreated check plot. The dip treatment was more effective than the spray.

When both spray and dip treatments were used, the per acre yield and value was higher than when either spray or dip treatments were used.

If mosaic has been a serious problem on your farm in the past, it would probably be a good idea for you to try the milk treatment on your farm this year to help prevent the losses caused by mosaic.

Farm Scene

The announcement of the construction of a five million dollar, 1,000 ton per day soybean processing plant to be built in the Fayetteville area as announced by Cargill, Inc. will likely cause the state to have a deficit in soybean production, but should prove to be a boost to soybean producers.

According to officials of the N.C. Soybean Producers organization, North Carolina growers could increase production by 50-60 percent in 1970-71. This would mean an increase of 14-15 million bushels immediately, and the forecast is for the need to double our production in the next few years. This will mean 40-50 million dollars to farmers, if we can meet the demand.

How do we go about it? First, we can increase yields through better cultural practices: (1) Select some of your better land for soybean production; (2) Raise the soil pH to 5.7-6.2; (3) Buy good quality seed; (4) Inoculate seed and use molybdenum at planting time; (5) Follow a good weed and insect control program, and (6) Plant early and harvest early. Pitt County growers have the potential of raising the yield of soybeans from the present average yield of 26 bushels per acre to 35-40 bushels per acre on most farms. We feel this can be done by treating soybeans with the same care that is given other cash crops.

Over the last three years, North Carolina has harvested an average of about a million acres of soybeans each year. The average yield has been 22.7 bushels an acre. We had a yield of 26 bushels in 1969, just two-tenths of a bushel lower than the national 3-year average. However, the average in Illinois was 32 bushels per acre. So, the challenge to North Carolina growers is clearly defined. We must set our goal to increase our acreage by at least 50 percent, and at the same time boost yields to the Illinois average.

For information on soybean production, contact the County Agricultural Extension Office at 203 W. Third Street, Greenville, or call 758-1196.

Propose New Control Body

RALEIGH (AP)—Creation of a new state agency that would regulate the distribution and use of pesticides and other pollutants in North Carolina was proposed to a legislative study group Saturday.

Dr. Fred Barkalow Jr., a N. C. State University professor and a director of the N. C. Wildlife Federation, told the study group, "the decisions on a pesticide's potentially harmful effects must be made before a chemical is authorized for release in the environment."

He called for creation of a regulatory agency composed of three elements: industry, including agriculture; existing state agencies involved in conservation work; and health agencies.

Barkalow told the study group: "Each of the three areas must be given a veto power over the other two," so that the agency's approval of a pesticide would have to be unanimous.

Sen. Elton Edwards, chairman of the study group, said the panel will hold additional sessions before it drafts recommendations for the 1971 General Assembly.

"Man has an inalienable right to a decent and healthy environment," Barkalow said. "We recognize the necessity for the proper use of thoroughly tested pesticides that do not pose an environmental and health hazard to man."

Forest Fire In Cherokee County Could Be Arson

MURPHY, N. C. (AP)—Fire fighters worked during the night Sunday in an effort to bring a forest fire under control. It has leveled 1,000 acres in the Nantahala National Forest in Cherokee County, Tennessee border.

Ranger Harold R. Fisher said he had found 12 separate fires and is investigating the possibility of arson.

He added the first have been fed by high winds from Tennessee and that late Sunday night the flames were out of control. Fisher said airplanes dropped chemicals on the first Sunday in an effort to put them out.

Developer Says He Might Run For Governor

HIGH POINT (AP)—William R. Henderson says if the state keeps trying to block his plans to develop Bald Head Island into a plush resort, he just might run for governor.

Henderson, an advertising executive and chairman of Carolina Cape Fear Corp., made the statement in a recent interview.

He said he has never seriously considered running for governor, but "after doing what we considered the responsible and courteous thing by offering to stand down from our option, I would be seriously concerned to the point of seeking those who would run or even running myself."

The High Point executive was referring to the offer Carolina Cape Fear made several weeks ago to relinquish its option to purchase Bald Head, a semi-tropical island in the Cape Fear River near Southport, if the state would reimburse the firm $400,000 for "expenses."

Gov. Bob Scott rejected the offer and later commented that Carolina Cape Fear appeared to be "trying to make a fast buck" at the expense of the state.

Carolina Cape Fear is seeking to acquire the island and convert it into a resort comparable to Hilton Head Island, S.C. Scott says the state should acquire the island and preserve it in its natural state.

Scott announced last week a conservation group, Nature Conservancy, had agreed to put up $5.5 million so the state can acquire the island, but its owner, Frank Sherrill of Charlotte, says he cannot negotiate with the state as long as Carolina Cape Fear holds the option to purchase Bald Head.

Henderson expressed hurt that Scott had accused him of seeking to profit at the state's expense.

"I might sound like a squeaky clean square," he said, "but I'm a Christian businessman. I've tried to point out to the governor that if he can advise of any commandment or law that I've broken, I will be the first to back away from this thing."

Henderson bought Bennett Advertising Inc. at High Point in 1962 after holding top state jobs during the administration of Gov. Luther H. Hodges.

Nixon Talks To Nation Tonight

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP)—President Nixon will outline his approach to further U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam in a television-radio address tonight—and perhaps unveil a surprise or two.

Nixon will speak at 9 p.m. EST.

Sources at the Western White House cautioned today against advance speculation that Nixon would announce a successor to Henry Cabot Lodge as chief American peace negotiator in Paris. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler indicated earlier in the month that such an announcement might be imminent.

At the same time, these sources did not rule out the apparent likelihood that Nixon, in what is billed as a 10- to 15-minute "update report" to the nation, would go beyond mere discussion of troop levels and break new ground in presidential discussion of the Southeast Asian situation.

Since Nixon last took to the airwaves to discuss the Vietnam war, last Dec. 15, the conflict has broadened, particularly in Cambodia which seeks U.S. arms following a coup that overthrew the neutralist government of prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Through Ziegler, the United States has deplored reported Cambodian massacres of Vietnamese living in that tiny country. And the State Department has said the arms request is under study.

The Nixon administration also has taken an interest in a statement last week by Jacob A. Malik, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, that indicated possible interest from that quarter in a new Geneva conference to take up the entire Indochina situation. However, Malik told ABC-TV News Saturday that "convening such a conference is unrealistic at the present time."

U. S. troop levels in South Vietnam last week were put at 428,000 or 5,800 below the last announced authorized ceiling. Nixon was expected to announce plans for a fourth-phase withdrawal of around 50,000 additional men, although perhaps stretching out the movement over a longer period than the four months that saw the latest withdrawal of 55,000.

Lauren Bacall Shares In Tony Awards

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Lauren Bacall said "wow!" and tried to kiss everybody within reach. Cecil Beaton thought it "simply spiffy." Alfred Lunt spoke of "sheer enchantment." And little Melba Moore wept just a bit.

So with jubilation, sentiment and a few surprises Broadway Sunday night awarded its 24th annual Tony awards for "distinguished work in the theater."

The top-winning musical was "Applause" with silver medallions as the best song-and-dance show, for Miss Bacall as the top feminine star, and two to Ron Field for direction and choreography.

Picked as the best drama was "Borstal Boy," based on Brendan Behan's story of his years in a youth reformatory. The play, originally done in Dublin, was written by Frank McMahon, an American.

Cleavon Little of "Purlie" was picked as the best male musical star, with Miss Moore of the same show winning the trophy for supporting actress in a musical.

The stellar drama honors went to Tammy Grimes in "Private Lives" and Fritz Weaver of "Child's Play."

The most conspicuous aspect of the selections was the virtual sweep of top honors by first-time nominees. Candidates were chosen by a panel of reviewers appointed by the League of New York theaters and voted upon by 500 representatives of the theatrical crafts.

For super-radiant Miss Bacall it was the first run ever for any prize.

In addition to her, Little, Miss

Moore, Miss Grimes and Weaver, performers who topped Tonys for the first time were Blythe Danner, supporting dramatic actress in "Butterflies Are Free," and Ken Howard, supporting actor in "Child's Play."

Field won in his first directing assignment, while Joseph Hardy on his initial nomination won as a drama stager with "Child's Play."

Veteran talents weren't totally routed in the 16 competitive categories. Among them were Betty Comden and Adolph Green, authors of "Applause," Charles Strouse and Lee Adams, composer and lyricist of the same show; Cecil Beaton, costumer of "Coco;" and Jo Mielziner, with two medallions for scenic design and lighting of "Child's Play."

The biggest name competition was between Miss Bacall and Katharine Hepburn, star of the musical "Coco," whose participation in the program was taped for the NBC network telecast in advance. Miss Hepburn did not attend the star-studded ritual at the Hellinger Theater.

In addition to the competition awards, special citations were awarded. Two of them—to Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, another to Sir Noel Coward—evoked the warmest ovations of the evening. Barbra Streisand was honored as "performer of the decade," and another award went to Joseph Papp, founder of New York's free Shakespeare Festival.

Dental Meeting Tuesday

Dental disease and systemic disorders such as cancer, stroke and diabetes, when coexistent, become the joint responsibility of dentist and physician.

Greenville and Washington dentists will convene at Pitt County Memorial Hospital April 21 for the third in a series of meetings designed to study the joint responsibility of recognizing, treating and managing the patient with coexistent dental - systemic disorders.

Funded by the North Carolina Regional Medical Program, and administered by the School of Dentistry of the University of North Carolina, the three-year pilot "Continuing Education in Dentistry" project is reaching out to dentists in communities - throughout the state to help unite the efforts of physicians and dentists.

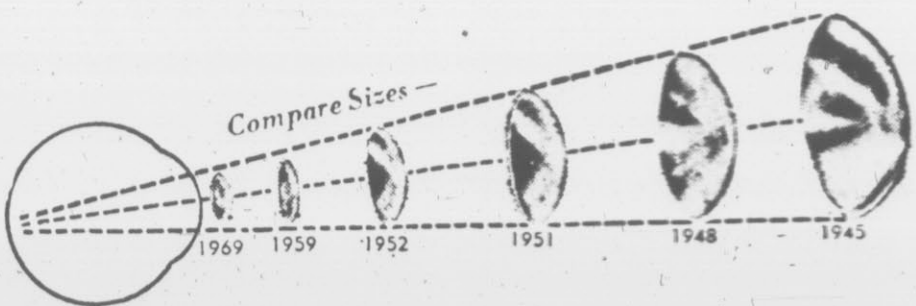

In cooperation with Pitt County Memorial administrator, C. D. Ward, dentists will meet for an intensive lecture and study session directed at improved cooperative service to the patient, whether in the hospital or in the dentist's office.

Under the direction of project director, D. L. Marbury, D. D. S., M. P. H. specific objectives of dentist education, physician education and consultation on hospital dental service and facilities have been set.

According to Dr. Marbury, 95 to 100 per cent of all dentists in the area are participating in the project.

Now in its second year of operation, the project was involved last year in planning and development of a curriculum. Plans for next year call for concentration on dental facilities the hospital can provide, and continuation of the educational programs.
