

Deficit School Budget Is Tentatively Adopted By Board Of Education

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Tentative approval was given by Board of Education members to the middle of the road of three current expense budget proposals for the 1970-71 school year.

After discussing the merits of the three budgets at their regular monthly meeting last night, the board approved a motion by member Louis W. Gaylord, Jr. "to tentatively adopt the $193,660 deficit budget, plus the addition of necessary amounts to use IBM services and the inclusion of realistic attorney fees; to meet with the Pitt County Board of Education tonight to pursue means of meeting the deficit; and if the commitments cannot be met, to authorize the chairman of the City Board of Education to sign proper legal petitions with the County Commissioners which would authorize referendum elections."

The motion followed consideration of the three plans. Labeled "Austerity," "Proposed," and "Model 70," each of the three carried a deficit over present level income projections of total income from all sources, which now stands at $683,260.

The first, or "Austerity" proposal, in the amount of $775,490, would result in a $92,230 deficit. The second plan, the one tentatively approved, amounted to $876,920, with a $193,660 deficit; and the final "Model 70," also called the "dream budget," would have given a deficit of $339,660. The "Model 70" proposal received only brief attention from the board members.

Harding Sugg, chairman of the Budget Committee, in explaining the budget, remarked "Our problem is simply staying where we are... to do half of what has been proposed, it will take $193,000 more. The question is, where do you get it?"

The approved motion for tentative approval of the "Proposed" deficit budget also includes a capital outlay budget of $336,000, which is the amount of capital outlay income projected for the coming school year.

It was pointed out by Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the Greenville City Schools; that the "Austerity" proposal is really cutting back. It means giving up 13 of 20 teachers paid presently with local funds.

"The 'Proposed' budget," he continued, "has no fat."

A general category breakdown of the current expense budgets shows the following amounts arrived at by the Budget Committee:

—General control (wage salary increases, secretary - clerical staff), $34,630; instructional services (teachers), $468,930; operation of plant, $61,000; maintenance of plant, $71,130; fixed charges, $89,400; and auxiliary agencies, $151,830. Auxiliary agencies include additional buses, hiring a full time mechanic, and the trainable program.

In the capital outlay budget, the categories included in the tentatively proposed budget calls for: New buildings and grounds, $132,500; old buildings and grounds $132,000; and auxiliary agencies, $71,500.

Note was made of the fact that plans for a new junior high school will require long - range financing as capital funds needed - approximately $1,500,000, cannot be met with annual capital outlay. Work on this plan will require joint county - wide effort.

Of the $683,260 total income from all sources for the current expense budget, ad valorem taxes from Pitt County at $187,000 and from Greenville District, $220,000, account for the major portion of current income.

After determination of the action taken by the County Board of Education is known, the city board will meet again within a few days to consider action other than the tentative one taken tonight in reference to final adoption of the 1970-71 city school budget.

Three Before Board To Proffer Their Services

Three Greenville citizens — a young girl, a housewife - mother, and a man — appeared before the Greenville Board of Education with offers of service to the board and community.

William Glidewell, chairman of the City Council's Citizens Advisory Committee, was the first to appear. Stating "I understand it is intended to establish a permanent group as an advisory group for the Board of Education, I would like to present for your consideration one potential group which is already an established one."

Glidewell explained that the present City Council's Citizens Advisory Group, composed now of 38 members, all appointed by the mayor and City Council, "is a fairly representative one of a cross - section of the community, set up basically to work with the city on any problems which arise."

"Our purpose is to offer recommendations in any area. These recommendations are not official, but are designed to help inform of needs and to come up with means and methods that might help," Glidewell commented.

"Above all we try to develop a united community understanding," he concluded.

When board members asked if this group included some of the members of the recently active Citizens Awareness Committee, Glidewell stated that it did. Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the city schools, also noted that acceptance of assistance by the City Council's Citizens Advisory Group "does not preclude the ultimate creation of a board whose major responsibility would be advising the Board of Education."

Glidewell's offer was accepted by the board. At future meetings, it is understood that two or three representatives from the advisory group will be attending board of education meetings.

Dorice Pollard, member of Girl Scout Troop 542 and a student at Junior High School, presented to the board a pamphlet containing anti - drug abuse campaign literature. Miss Pollard

Varied Items Are Taken Up By City School Board At Meet

In addition to the main topic of the school budget, members of the Greenville City Board of Education considered a variety of agenda items during their Monday night regular meeting held in the City Hall.

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, informed members that court depositions prior to the Federal District Court Hearing before Judge John Larkins would be taken on April 29. Depositions will be taken in the morning from school administrators; and beginning at 1:30 in the afternoon with D. E. B. Aycock, chairman of the board, depositions will be taken from members of the Board of Education.

Board members were also informed that a motion had been filed to have the initial decision of the hearing examiner rendered on March 31 remanded to the hearing examiner for further determination. "This motion was filed in light of the supplemental action taken by the board with regard to majority-minority pupil transfer option and the decision on one junior high school," Dr. Cleetwood noted.

Discussed and tabled a request from the executive committee of the Aycock Junior High School PTA that air conditioning be installed at the school. Air conditioning of the new junior high school would cost a total of $55,000. It could be accomplished in increments of eight classrooms per air conditioning unit.

Approved submission of bid for the replacement of the fourth and final temporary unit at Rose High School. Board member Harding Sugg disclosed that the Pitt County Commissioners have approved contributing $50,000 to the original $100,000 commitment voted by the city board on the cost of a new Wahl - Coates School. "This is not allocated funds," Sugg commented, "and we have an additional $25,000 not allocated, so we could replace the final unit at Rose High without interfering with the capital outlay items in the budget."

Approved a budget proposal for Driver Education program for the 1970-71 school year.

Announced planned dates for close of school activities — with the Junior - Senior prom slated for April 24; the Baccalaureate Service on May 31; and graduation exercises for Rose High on June 9 to be held at Ficklin Stadium, with consideration for seeking arrangements at Minges

Coliseum in the event of rain.

Accepted as of May 1 resignation of Zeb Mooring, maintenance supervisor, who has asked to resign to accept a job nearer his home. Dr. Cleetwood was asked to work out arrangements on this matter.

Approved in principle requests from the Greenville Boys' Club and the Greenville Recreation Department for use of the Recreational Facilities at Eppes Junior High School this summer. Final action will be taken upon receipt of a written request and agreement from each of the two agencies.

Approved the composition of the organization of the Board of Education for another year with its present chairman, vice - chairman and committee members.

Agreed to conduct a hearing requested by a student, and asked that steps be taken by the school administration to contact the attorney representing the student to set up an hour and date for the board to meet with the student.

Approved the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company as a participating agency in issuance of tax sheltered annuities.

Followed similar action taken recently by the Pitt County Board of Education in agreeing to jointly assume responsibility of the educational program of the Alcohol Information Center effective July 1, as a cooperative matter between the two school boards.

Pacification Is Succeeding: Nixon Withdrawal Of 150,000 Men In Vietnam Goal For Next Year

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has fixed a goal of withdrawing an additional 150,000 U. S. troops from Vietnam in the next year—sticking roughly to the pullout pace of recent months.

In a television-radio address to the nation Monday night, the President said the number would be boosted should there be a breakthrough in peace negotiations. However, he emphasized:

"I must report with regret that no progress has taken place on the negotiating front."

Nixon expressed concern about Communist military incursions in Cambodia and Laos, but took a generally optimistic view of the Southeast Asian situation.

"We finally have in sight the just peace we are seeking," he said.

"We can now say with confidence that pacification is succeeding. We can say with confidence that the South Vietnamese can develop the capability for their own defense. We can say with confidence that all American combat forces can and will be withdrawn."

Nixon spoke from his office in the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif. Immediately afterward he and his wife Pat flew back to Washington.

A White House official who declined to be quoted by name told reporters Nixon plans to complete the withdrawal of 150,000 men during the next 12 months, give or take a few weeks. Barring the unforeseen, he said, the decision is irreversible.

If the Nixon plan is carried out, the authorized U.S. troop ceiling would drop by May 1971 to 284,000 men. The peak ceiling early in 1969 was 594,500.

Nixon said his decision "has the approval of the government of South Vietnam." He also consulted in advance with U.S. field commanders but did not claim his plan met with their wholehearted approval. There had been indications that some highly placed military men wanted the withdrawal rate slowed.

The exact timing and pace of the new cutbacks in troop deployments, said Nixon, "will be determined by our best judgment of the current military and diplomatic situation."

Declaring that Hanoi would take a grave risk should it jeopardize remaining U.S. troops through military moves in Vietnam, Cambodia or Laos, Nixon said:

"If I conclude that increased enemy action jeopardizes our remaining forces in Vietnam, I shall not hesitate to take strong and effective measures to deal with that situation."

While saying Vietnamization will proceed on schedule, Nixon said:

"There is a better, shorter path to peace—through negotiations. We shall withdraw more than 150,000 over the next year if we make progress on the negotiating front."

The chief executive cited three principles governing his view of a just political settlement of the war:

"First, our overriding objective is a political solution that reflects the will of the South Vietnamese people and allows them to determine their future without outside interference..."

"Second, a fair political solution should reflect the existing relationship of political forces within South Vietnam. We recognize the complexity of shaping machinery that would fairly apportion political power in South Vietnam. We are flexible; we have offered nothing on a take-it-or-leave-it basis."

"And third, we will abide by the outcome of the political process agreed upon."

Nixon said Hanoi had failed to win either militarily or politically in South Vietnam.

"They thought they could win politically in the United States," he said. "This proved to be their most fatal miscalculation."

"In this great free country of ours, we debate—we disagree, sometimes violently—but the mistake the totalitarians make over and over again is to conclude that debate in a free country is proof of weakness... America has never been defeated in the proud 190-year history of this country and we shall not be defeated in Vietnam."

Firm Closes Branches To Fly Employees For Greenville Visit

boarding for return to Lexington, yesterday.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Employees of National-Boat Works here (makers of G and W Boats), made a somewhat unusual tour of Greenville yesterday.

The firm's owner and president, Edward C. Smith Sr., closed national Industries' three Lexington branches — National Wholesale (a wholesale mail order outlet for ladies hosiery), Direct Mail Service and Creative Printing Co. — for a day, chartered two twin-engine Piedmont airliners, and flew the employees to Greenville for a tour of National Boat Works, and the city.

According to E.C. Smith Jr., president of the local boat manufacturing facility, the National employees were driven by bus from Lexington to Winston - Salem where they boarded planes for the flight to Greenville.

After their arrival here about 10:15 a.m. the group was taken by bus to Smith's residence for a coffee hour, then driven to the G and W Boat factory for a tour of the facilities there.

Following a luncheon at a local restaurant, the party toured various sections of the city, including the East Carolina University campus, then was allowed to shop in Greenville for a few hours prior to their departure at 4:10 p.m.

Smith said most of the National employees had never flown prior to yesterday's trip.

In addition to the day off, for which the employees were paid, and the free flight, about $700 from the firm's drink machine fund was divided among the travelers for their afternoon's shopping.

March Civilians Into VC Bullets

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

SAANG, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian riflemen marched a group of Vietnamese civilians carrying a white flag into the teeth of Viet Cong automatic weapons fire today at the order of a Cambodian general.

The Vietnamese were told to ask the Viet Cong in this village 18 miles south of Phnom Penh to go away and let them live in peace. The Viet Cong opened up on the group, wounding at least two of the Vietnamese.

Gen. Sosthen Fernandes told newsmen: "It was a good way to discover where the Viet Cong have their automatic weapons. Now we know where they are so the mission was an extremely fruitful one for us."

Buses brought the Vietnamese to Saang, the village on the Bassac River which the Viet Cong took over Sunday. The Cambodians said the Vietnamese were residents of Cambodia who had volunteered to "talk some sense" to the Viet Cong.

In the middle of the afternoon the group set out on a road leading from the last Cambodian position through no man's land to Saang. Every 40 yards the group stopped and appealed to the Viet Cong by a portable bullhorn. They also planned to distribute leaflets in Vietnamese and Cambodian.

When the group reached a bridge just before the first structures in Saang, the Viet Cong opened fire. The Vietnamese and newsmen with them scattered into banana fields as Cambodian troops answered the Viet Cong rounds. The Vietnamese and the newsmen were caught in a crossfire.

The general said most of the Vietnamese crawled to safety.

"This exercise now gave us a good reading for our 105mm cannon," he said.

As he spoke the big guns opened up.

The Vietnamese were mostly Catholics—men, women and children. Many prayed as they walked up the road.

A young seminarian who held the white flag on a bamboo pole was asked if he was really a volunteer. He shook his head and said he and the others had been rounded up in four villages.

Indicate Appeal On Rate Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — Spokesmen for the insurance industry and for the public have indicated they may appeal a court decision upholding an order by Insurance Commissioner Edwin S. Lanier granting a 2.8 percent increase in automobile liability rates.

Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey made his decision Monday. Lanier's order had been appealed to him both by the insurance industry and by the attorney general's office.

The industry, which had asked for 5.3 percent boost, said the entire amount should have been granted.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Jean Benoy, representing the consuming public, contended that the industry had not adequately proved the need for any increase.

Judge Bailey had stayed the effective date of the boost pending the outcome of the Superior Court decision, and is expected to continue the stay while the case is further being appealed.

At the heart of the state's appeal has been Benoy's contention that statistical evidence presented by the insurance industry in support of an increase was "hearsay evidence."

Bailey sided with the industry Monday when he ruled that its statistics did constitute "substantial" and therefore admissible evidence.

Judge Carswell Now Senate Candidate

MIAMI (AP) — Judge G. Harold Carswell, rejected Supreme Court nominee, has decided to seek election to the U.S. Senate "to join President Nixon in his goals of restructuring our country and its government along constitutional, conservative lines."

Carswell's announcement Monday, two weeks after his Senate turnaround, sets up a Republican primary battle with U.S. Rep. William Cramer—who claims support from the White House.

The Senate rejected Carswell 51 to 45 on April 8.

Carswell, who said he had resigned as a judge of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, announced his candidacy at a Miami news conference called by Gov. Claude Kirk.

With Kirk and Carswell standing beside him, Lt. Gov. Ray Osborne declared he was withdrawing from the Senate race in the interest of party unity. Osborne, Florida's first lieutenant governor, had been actively campaigning for the Senate nomination for months.

In Washington, Cramer, a member of the House for 16 years, said:

"President Nixon personally urged me to run for the U.S. Senate. This has not changed. "He also urged Judge Cars-well to remain on the bench where strict constructionists of the Constitution are needed. I am heeding President Nixon's call and I hope Judge Carswell will do likewise."

Carswell, 50, said "For 17 years, I have served as prosecutor and in the judicial branch of our government ... Now, the same sense of service and duty to principle leads me to the Senate race. In reality, I am seeking to serve in the same tradition but with a new direction and dimension."

Carswell and Cramer are seeking the Senate seat to be vacated through retirement of Democrat Spessard Holland, Florida's Republican senator, Edward Gurney, was present at Carswell's news conference.

Democratic candidates in the Sept. 8 primary are Fred Schultz, speaker of the Florida House of Representatives, and state Sens. Lawton Chiles and Robert Haverfield.

Carswell's only previous try for elective office was in 1948 when he made an unsuccessful bid for the Georgia Legislature. It was in that campaign that he publicly declared a belief in the concept of white supremacy—which he renounced after his nomination for the Supreme Court.

Her Success Formula: Work Hard At Life

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Hard work can be an education. Perhaps it is more helpful in attaining maturity than books are, says pretty blonde actress Sharon Farrell.

Sharon, featured with Steve McQueen in the movie "The Reivers," speaks from experience. While she worked at establishing herself as an actress in New York City, she held many jobs. She's been a hat check and cigarette girl, a night club dancer, a dog walker, a waitress and a short-order cook.

One of her more profitable jobs was dressmaking. This, she says, not only taught her the fine points of the trade, but gave her pointers on how to dress well on very little money. The chic suit with real gold buttons that she wore at the interview was one she had designed and sewn herself.

"You've got to work hard at life and knowing people in order to portray a variety of roles," says the petite former beauty contest winner who has acting credits in more than 50 television drama and soap operas. "It is the people one meets who contribute to knowledge that is useful in making acting roles come alive," she explains.

Sharon was not quite 16 when she arrived in New York to seek a career in the theater. She lived with a nice Puerto Rican family and learned to speak Spanish, but the neighborhood on Manhattan's lower East Side where she lived was "horrible."

Growing up with all kinds of people has made her "learn to deal with them," she says. "Being from the Midwest makes you like that."

In a way, life in the Midwest might have been harder, she commented. "I'd spend my days hoping for rain and praying that the crops would come in." But some day, she says, "after I am married and have a family, I'll go back." She hopes to organize her own production company in the Midwest and "do character parts when I am 80."

"I've saved almost every penny I've made in the movies. I'm going to spend it wisely," she says with determination.

Since she made "The Reivers," she's been up for parts in three movies, two of them nude roles, which she refused.

"They were written for shock value. They had nothing to do with the script and I'll never play nudity for nudity's sake," she says. "I don't think Raquel Welch or Faye Dunaway or hundreds of other good actresses would take off their clothes for such roles. Even Steve McQueen rebels at the undress bit."

"Steve has a fantastic build, but he doesn't even like to remove his shirt."

Sharon's film debut, "A Lovely Way to Die," starred Kirk Douglas. Six months later, she was in the "Little Sister" with James Garner.

"I'm sort of 17 going on 26 in those roles. I can be a madonna-type, a little sister, a sophis-ticate, and I don't have to remove my clothes to be sexy. In 'The Reivers,' I'm sexier than anything you've seen on the screen...."

Sharon is convinced that if you want a good role, you must write your own script.

"I've a big box of scripts and one I like I've been working on for about six months. It should really sell. It certainly compares favorably with the last role I was offered—playing a hippie who stands around with a finger in her mouth."

Her new manager has made her aware of her talents. But she feels apologetic about having a manager since previously she has always gotten along on her own.

"People were taking advantage of me in little silly ways," she explains. "I used to get up at 4:30 and get home at 10 at night. I was working for nothing. I wanted to get the show finished, so I'd never say no. Then I'd try to set up appointments and I'd wait hours to see the person... and the studios would assign people to take me out when I was on tour. They would keep me up until the wee hours and the write-ups about me would say 'She looks tired and haggard,' 'She looks terrible' and so on. Then, too, I was bothered a lot by men...."

Her manager has solved these problems. Now her work schedule is a normal day. He sets up appointments and they are kept promptly, and Sharon doesn't sit up all night impressing people (unless she wants to.)

Sharon would like to meet a man who "is smarter" than she is, she says. She'd like him to be people-smart as well as book-smart. "When you want to know how great a man is, you look at how happy his wife is. Steve McQueen's wife is that kind of woman," Sharon observes.

"I, too, want the kind of man who makes me look beautiful," she says.

Dating Fine, But Kissing Is Out

By Abigail Van Buren
(c 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Except for one thing, I have a perfect relationship with an older man in my neighborhood. He loves to go to nice dinner spots; good theater, etc., but he doesn't drive, so I do the driving. [I am a divorcee.]

He knows I am not interested in marriage, and he admits he is too old for me, but he keeps telling me what a charming "dating companion" I am, and how much he enjoys this arrangement. Well, I enjoy it, too, until he starts begging me for a "good night kiss." He knows how disgusting I find it, but he continues to beg me anyway.

I would hate to dump him, as I find this arrangement very convenient and even enjoyable, until we say good night. Abby, tell me, why would a grown man beg for a kiss from someone he knows hates it?

KISSLESS DIVORCEE

DEAR KISSLESS: Because he's still trying to build a little romance into the relationship. If he is all that disgusting to you, remind him that a kiss on the hand is more continental, and that if he attempts to go beyond the continental limits, he'll lose his chauffeur and charming dating companion.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I have a big mouth. It's not a big mouth, exactly, but a loud voice. It's not high and shrill, it's just loud in volume. I have been embarrassed many times while speaking in what I consider to be a normal tone, and someone will say, "Please, don't talk so loud!"

Maybe you can give me a few pointers on how I can keep my voice toned down.

BIG MOUTH IN BOSTON

DEAR BIG MOUTH: First, have your hearing tested. Many people talk loud because their hearing is defective. If your hearing is all right, find a speech therapist who will teach you to control your voice. And may I say in this connection that the number of otherwise attractive, charming, and intelligent people who desperately need voice and speech lessons is amazing. This could be one of the best investments you'll ever make.

DEAR ABBY: My parents died when I was an infant. I know what cemetery they are buried in, but there are no markers or headstones on their graves. I went to the people in charge of the cemetery and told them that I wanted to buy a headstone or marker with my parents' names on it, and I was told it wasn't possible because my parents were buried in a pair of plots paid for by a church organization, and only a member of that organization could give permission to mark those graves.

I went to that church and spoke to the priest, and he said the organization had long been dissolved and none of the members were living, and he could not give me permission.

I have talked to many people and no one can tell me what to do. Can you?

MRS. B.

DEAR MRS. B.: Talk to a lawyer. If there is a legitimate reason why your parents' graves cannot be marked, someone should be able to tell you what it is. If there is no existing reason why you can't put up a headstone, then your lawyer will protect your right to do so.

The compact in your purse should contain a shade lighter powder than the one on your dressing table. A lighter shade for re-powdering is recommended as a second application, since using the same shade would create a darker look...

Carrying a couple of cotton tipped swabs in your purse is a good idea as they are excellent for quickie repairs on smudged lipstick or eyeliner. Sample sizes of all your regular beauty aids will prevent an unsightly bulging purse or handbag.

Many fashion-minded women once approached pregnancy with dread, thinking of many months in shapeless dresses and smocked blouses over skirts or slacks. But nevermore! Today's mother-to-be can choose a wardrobe as chic and individualized as her regular clothes in special departments of large stores or specialty shops created just for her.

Even the mod Madonna has met her match in boutiques with knit jump suits, paisley tunics, and mini-skirt maternity fashions. And whether you are tall and slender or a short-waisted junior petite, you can find maternity clothes proportioned to your figure.

Look for well-cut dresses with interesting seam treatments and slightly curved silhouettes in bright paint-box colors. Many of them are so attractive that you'll want to wear them after the baby arrives — with chain or ribbon belts. The new long tunics are versatile additions to any maternity wardrobe since they go over dresses, slacks, or skirts, and tend to slenderize the figure.

It is a good idea to build your maternity wardrobe around one basic color so that you can take advantage of today's fashion freedom to wear dresses over pants, mix patterns, and make each article of clothing you buy do double — even triple duty.

The greatest inventions for mother-to-be are the synthetic and knit fabrics which know no seasonal boundaries and are readily washable. The importance of easy-care in maternity clothes cannot be over-estimated — since pregnancy is a time to conserve energy. Even more, most families are budgeting in anticipation of the heir apparent. So it is wise to read care tags on maternity clothes before you buy to ensure their practicability and sustainability.

Pregnancy requires a new wardrobe of underclothes as well as outer fashions. As your figure changes, you will need maternity bras for proper comfort and support. Maternity bras are cut higher under the arms and stretch across the back to accommodate you as you expand. And you may need a maternity girdle — even if you never wore a girdle before in your life! A maternity girdle won't hold your stomach in, but rather support its weight from underneath. It also provides support to your back to prevent the nagging backache which can keep you from enjoying your expectant months.

It is important to try on maternity underthings before you buy — you undoubtedly will need a larger size than you usually wear. And don't buy in quantity until you have the chance to wear and wash one garment at least once. If it is still comfortable after wearing and sudsing, then you can safely buy more.

Your maternity clothes can mean a great deal in the way you feel during your pregnancy — so choose them with care. Years ago, many women feared that as their figures expanded, their glamour would decrease. But no more could be farther from the truth. With the chic young fashions available today and the natural glow pregnancy brings, every lady-in-waiting can be a very attractive woman, indeed!

Outsiders See Growth Of City

It is natural for us here in Greenville to boost Greenville as a rapidly growing city. Most of us feel that the smaller cities of the east will be comparable in size with those of the west before this century closes. Here in Greenville we believe our city will be the leader in the east.

Of course, everyone feels that way about his town if it is growing and prospering. For us, however, it is interesting to see how someone else feels about our prospects.

Recently a group of NCNB Corporation executives made a presentation before financial analysts in Boston, New York and Baltimore. North Carolina National Bank recently came to Greenville through a merger with State Bank and Trust Company. NCNB has historically been centered in the Piedmont. It now in the east has banks at Wilmington, Fayetteville, Greenville and Tarboro.

Thomas L. Storrs, president of NCNB Corp. and N. C. National Bank discussed the trend toward higher wage industries coming to the state. He mentioned Gilbarco, a manufacturer of gasoline pumps in Greensboro. Others he named were IBM in Raleigh, Western Electric, General Electric at Wilmington and Burroughs Wellcome, which of course is building its drug manufacturing facility in Greenville.

"In other words we are in the process of upgrading labor into higher paying jobs," Storrs, also pointed out that his firm had merged with a bank in Fayetteville in 1967. "And last year we merged with a bank in Greenville, North Carolina, which can well be called the 'capital' of the eastern part of the state. We expect to use this as a base for further expansion over in the eastern part of the state, an area which is presently receiving a substantial part of the new industrial growth that is coming to North Carolina."

It has long been our judgment that the east is at last coming into its own and that Greenville would be a leader in this economic renaissance. We think observers in the business world are backing up this judgment.

New ECU Degrees To Bolster Its Services

The addition of a masters program in geology and two BS degrees, all approved by the Board of Higher Education, significantly expands the services offered by East Carolina University.

The board approved the geology masters and BS degrees in Park, Recreation and Conservation and School and Community Health Education Friday.

The geology program will be housed in Graham building and the Manteo field station will also be utilized for teaching. Graduate students will concentrate on marine science and shallow water research.

In our Coastal Plains area such a program is most logical at ECU.

Senators Fear Douglas Vote

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Only

hours after Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan announced that he would seek impeachment of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, and before Ford actually made his anti-Douglas speech, liberal Democratic Senators running for reelection began calling their friends in the House with this warning: don't let the impeachment resolution get to the floor of the House because it might pass and come to the Senate.

What worries these Democrats is the prospect of having to vote in the Senate on a House impeachment resolution just before the November election.

Sen. Joseph Tydings of Maryland, who still has no serious Republican opposition in his reelection bid, laid it on the line to friends in the House. A vote against convicting Douglas in the Senate, Tydings said, would be turned by the Republicans next fall into a vote for pornography, for revolution, and for a lot of other things that are anathema to President Nixon's "selint majority."

Liberal Democrats in the House are well aware of this political danger. Moreover, the fact that Ford, the House Republican leader, is taking so personal an interest in the attack on Douglas convinces them that, despite White House denials of Presidential involvement, the Republicans will exploit the Douglas affair as a central election campaign exhibit. They will use it to undermine liberal Democrats in an effort to capture the Senate in November.

A footnote: Liberal Democrats estimate they will need the votes of at least 40 to 45 Republicans in the House to defeat the impeachment resolution — if it gets to the floor.

Whether it does or not will depend on the House Rules Committee and particularly on the attitude of two moderate Republicans on that powerful group — Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, a member of the House leadership, and Rep. H. Allen Smith of California. Anderson, who is under quiet criticism from some House Republicans for straying too far from conservative positions, has not yet joined the Republican chorus of praise for Ford's move against Douglas.

'Justice' in Erfurt
The East German Communist regime has arrested and jailed many of the East German citizens who cheered for West German Chancellor Willy Brandt during Brandt's brief visit to Erfurt, East Germany, for diplomatic talks with Willi Stoph.

U.S. intelligence experts also have indications that Communist security procedures have been drastically shaken up as a result of that extreme embarrassment to the East German regime.

But the sadness is deeper than that. Although Brandt and Stoph have scheduled another meeting — this one in West Germany — Brandt will almost certainly not make a second trip across the border

Strength For Today

Happiness Of Faith

"Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain. And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible" (1 Corinthians 9:24-25).

Good advice coming down to us across twenty centuries. Corinth was a pretty bad place when St. Paul ministered there. The Church founded was made up of non-Jewish Christian converts many of whom during the whole of their lives had gone in for indulgence up to their eyebrows. The high moral standards of the Christian community to which they now belonged involved hard going for many of them. There were some who even said that conduct had no place in religion. Belief in Christ, they said, is sufficient.

But it was not, of course, never has been and never will be. We are not saved by works — no matter how good those works may be — but by faith. However, faith must bring forth good works, and if it does not, then it is not sound faith.

The Christians who gathered together once a week in each other's homes, bringing their food in what we would call today a covered dish supper, astonished the non-Christians by the happiness of their lives.

Christian faith is designed to make us happy, and if it does not, then there is either something the matter with our faith or with us.

A Renaissance For The East

(Today's guest column for the Association of Afternoon Dailies was written by Jerry Raynor, a reporter for The Daily Reflector, Greenville.)

A renaissance in arts and crafts is taking place in eastern North Carolina. Centered in the larger towns, the growing interest in art has spread in recent years to smaller towns and communities.

Many factors contribute to the present interest in a field which admittedly carries no tangible returns on investments — at least ones the average person can immediately pinpoint.

Foremost as a factor has been the establishment of departments of art in colleges and universities in several towns — Atlantic Christian College in Wilson; East Carolina University, Greenville; University of North Carolina at Wilmington; Lenoir Community College, Kinston; State University at Elizabeth City; and Chowan College, Murfreesboro. Scattered as these institutions are over much of eastern North Carolina, they tend to form nuclei of influence which in proportion to their own activity motivate the citizens of their particular areas.

Wherever an art department has been established at an institution of higher education, it has not been long before added emphasis on art activity within a community has been manifest.

Another factor has been the development of art centers in eastern North Carolina towns. Cultural-minded citizens in Rocky Mount, Greenville and Kinston can point with pride to art centers, community ventures which in each town continue to expand and diversify their roles within the community.

These centers feature one-man shows, group shows and traveling exhibitions. Long gone are the days when only home-town artists displayed conventional landscape, portrait or flower paintings. Today these centers include works that may create controversy—but at the same time fulfilling a need for viewers to have an opportunity to see representative works from all schools and movements in modern art.

In Washington and Wilson studio groups have been organized to coordinate studies and exhibitions. Tarboro recently added regular showings of art at its Memorial Library. Wilmington has the services of a commercial gallery as well as those of the university art department. Greenville features changing shows at the university art department and in the Baptist Student Center. Elizabeth City's Albemarle Museum focuses its major interest on traditional arts of past years and is dedicated to fostering crafts in the area.

Farmville, a small town in Pitt County, has achieved notable success with its own art program, and has one of the most modern small museum facilities of any town its size in North Carolina. Belhaven points with pride to its private gallery which sponsors exhibits of artists and craftsmen from both the local area and outside as well.

Several communities have plans and projects underway to provide a central point for art in their community. Williamston, for example, is incorporating a gallery in one of the buildings of the Roanoke Park Project. The history of art in eastern North Carolina shows that such small beginnings invariably result in the establishment of full time functioning centers for arts and crafts.

Annual sidewalk art shows have something of the color and character of a festival. Dating back to more than ten years in some towns, they are becoming traditions in Kinston, Greenville, Rocky Mount, Washington, Belhaven and other towns in the east. For the first time, Greenville last year added an autumn sidewalk art show.

Home-based artists, high school and college art students, faculty and professional artists take part in these annual shows which are ideal for drawing large crowds. Many who come to view leave with the first stirring of interest in some form of art or crafts.

Business firms are beginning to give active support to artists. A number of banks have taken the lead in purchasing and forming their own collection or art. Restaurants and motels are beginning to show works of local artists.

The North Carolina Council on Arts and the North Carolina Museum of Art, both in Raleigh, have been instrumental in encouraging and supporting community art movements.

All these factors together are helping to establish a pattern of increased public awareness and participation in art. With this foundation of awareness and progress, the 1970's should prove to be a decade which will see arts and crafts play a more prominent role, perhaps to the extent where art, in all its varied forms, will become a truly influential cultural factor in the everyday lives of hundreds of thousands of eastern North Carolinians.

Mr. Douglas' Conduct

It has been 165 years since the Congress last undertook to impeach and to remove a member of the U.S. Supreme Court, and the precedent offers small hope for getting rid of Mr. Justice Douglas today. Yet the effort launched in the House last week merits solid support.

Contrary to popular impression, members of the high court are not confirmed "for life." They hold their offices "during good behavior." And contrary to another impression, it is not necessary to prove treason, bribery, high crimes or misdemeanors in order to impeach a judge. It is necessary only to establish to the satisfaction of the House that a judge's behavior has not been good.

In my own view, the evidence against Douglas on this charge is overwhelming. He ought to be impeached, and he ought to be removed.

This has nothing whatever to do with the unrelated fights over Clement Haynsworth and Harrold Carswell, though already it is being said that the hundred sponsors of the Douglas resolution are merely being vindictive. Neither does the effort have anything to do with the positions that Douglas has taken, whether wise or unwise, as a member of the Court.

What matters here, as Minority Leader Gerald Ford told the House Wednesday evening, is the pattern of Douglas's public behavior outside the Court. It has not been good.

Viewed in this light, the bill of particulars against Douglas is far stronger than the charges brought in 1805 against Justice Samuel Chase. Not that Chase's behavior off the bench was good. The truculent Marylander, as rough and rude a man as the Court has ever known, was notorious for his partisan electioneering. Yet the most serious counts against Chase dealt with his tyrannical conduct as a trial judge handling cases under the Sedition Act. It was disgraceful conduct, but it was beyond the ambit of "behavior."

By contrast, the case against Douglas depends solely upon his extensive moonlighting as a paid consultant, adviser, and freelance writer. His involvement with the tainted Parvin Foundation is too complex to go into here, but his involvement with such magazines as Playboy, Avant Garde, and the Evergreen Review can be judged on a few palpable facts of publication.

The Evergreen Review, to cite a current matter, is a little satellite in the publishing empire of Barney Rosset, head of Grove Press. Its April issue is crowded with advertisements for sex books and pornographic drawings. The principal illustrative feature this month is a series of hard-core photographs depicting a nude woman engaged in sexual intercourse.

And following along, just after the photographs, is a long excerpt from the book, "Points of Rebellion," by Mr. Justice Douglas. This is the work in which Douglas says, among other things, that "where grievances pile high and most of the lected spokesmen represent the Establishment, violence may be the only effective response."

Skip what Douglas says. The question of his "good behavior" properly goes to the circumstances of publication. What was Rosset buying when he bought these

Tight Market In Jobs

By JACK SHOLL
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Graduating college seniors, accustomed to being wooed by business and industry, will find it harder getting jobs this summer than in past years.

A tight job market resulting from a general economic slowdown and cutbacks in government defense expenditures will have the class of 1970 scrambling after jobs rather than being chased by companies. But there will be enough positions to go around.

Students can take some consolation, however, from the fact that salaries will be record high for those winning the top positions. On the other hand, some students in certain fields may have to consider changing careers.

An Associated Press survey shows these trends shaping up on campuses across the country:

—The number of companies cancelling recruiting visits is running as high as 25 per cent at some colleges and universities.

—Students with bachelor degrees in the technical fields will be the hardest hit. There is little demand in the aerospace, electronics, electrical machinery and automotive industries.

—The higher the degree a student has, the less chance he has of getting a job he wants. It's a bad year for holders of master's degrees and doctorates with many advanced-degree alumni returning to their alma maters to seek help in finding jobs.

—Companies are more picky this year: they want higher grades and fewer long-haired, sloppy dressers.

Placement experts say severe budgetary belt-tightening by the federal government has had the greatest impact on the job market for college graduates. With a cut of $4 billion in defense spending and $350 million knocked out of the space program, corporations aren't getting the contracts they used to. Government is hiring fewer people. And universities aren't getting research grants.

The only exception is the chemical engineer, who is in great demand. Starting salaries for him are hitting $12,400 a year. A healthy demand also is reported for specialists in the petroleum and public utilities industries.

With a vast supply of young manpower and lessening demand, employers are being choosier than ever. Standards are high for the projected 746,000 students who are expected to graduate with bachelor's degrees.

"The 'you-may-kiss-my-hand' attitude is gone now," says Maurice Mayberry, placement director at the University of Florida in Gainesville. "Students who have figured on easy jobs during the past three or four years are coming to a rude awakening. Now, not only is their mode of dress changing but their practices are too. They are learning to write letters and do other traditional things of job-hunting."

Overall, salaries on the bachelor's level are up between 5 and 7 per cent over last year, according to the College Placement Council, a nonprofit group which keeps tabs on college recruiting. The council says the average offer to technical students has risen from $819 to $861 a month; the average offer to nontechnical students from $711

On Verge Of A Spending Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

The United States is on the verge of another spending boom, perhaps one of the biggest since the end of World War II.

It will halt the rise in unemployment, reverse the trend in retail sales, increase inflation, shoot prices up further and possibly lead to a Republican victory in November.

The government is acting to increase the spending money of most Americans. The raise for postal workers, is carrying along a raise for other government employees and for the armed forces. That's more spending power for upward of five million families.

Social Security benefits have been increased. More spending power for millions more.

There's a surge of higher wages in the civilian sector. Teamsters have just won a fat increase. Other unions are demanding more, not the old Johnson 3 1/2 per cent annual boost but increases ranging from 25 to 75 per cent.

Green Flow Increases
Meanwhile, all over the nation, city and state employees are demanding pay increases commensurate with federal government increases.

The surtax is due to expire June 30. This would give every salaried worker and every wage earner more spending power in reduced withholding taxes if it happens. But the surtax will probably be continued.

Federal pay rises have already wiped out President Nixon's $3 billion surplus—it there really was to have been a surplus under his budget—and unless the surtax is continued there will be another large, inflationary deficit.

On top of all this, there are the implied promises of the Nixon administration to lower interest rates slightly, which would further boost business expansion, create more employment and, in passing, more inflation.

All this may arrest the downward trend in the stock market. However, whether it will start an upward trend is problematical. Some stocks will move up, but those that have been overpriced may not.

In any event, things will be exciting from now to Election Day. Stick around.

Other Look-Aheads

The Department of Agriculture is expected to step up its so-far mild campaign against bait-and-switch freezer locker companies. It has already cracked down on four companies that have advertised sides of beef at low prices, then advised customers that the advertised grades were too tough and switched them to better grades at higher prices.

A new process for yarn dyeing of glass fibers is said to give a "new virtuosity" to fabrics of the fibers, widening the market for draperies of this material.

Sterilized whipped cream from Denmark in six-ounce cans may soon appear in supermarkets in the United States. It is already being introduced in Canada at 35 cents a can. It needs no refrigeration until after the can is opened.

Annual Sidewalk Art Show First 2 Days In May

Greenville's 16th Annual Sidewalk Art Show goes up early this year—the first two days in May. The 1970 show coincides with the 10th anniversary of the formal opening of Greenville Art Center.

Robert Pittman, chairman of the show this year, has released complete information for the benefit of persons planning to submit entries for the annual event. These include:

—All amateur, student and professional artists are eligible to enter works.

—Only original works not previously exhibited in Greenville Sidewalk Art shows will be accepted. Oil paintings must be dry, framed or stripped and ready to hand with screw eyes and wire. Each work must be marked with a sale price or noted NFS (not for sale).

—Entries must be at the Art Center no later than 10:00 a. m. Saturday. An entry fee of 50 cents per item will be charged with a limit of four works for each artist. Minimum entry fee is $1.00. All work not sold must be picked up by 6:30 p. m. Saturday.

—A large range of media is permitted—oils and acrylics, watercolors, graphics, sculpture, crafts, photography and mixed media will be judged. Judging will be in four different classifications—professional, amateur, college student and high school student. Ribbons will be awarded for first, second and third place in each category. Amount of prize money available is not known at this time, but last year approximately $600 was distributed from money made available by merchants' sponsorship.

—Persons may also enter works with the stipulation that such works are not to be considered for judging.

—Additional information and entry blanks are now available at the Greenville Art Center from Mrs. Edith Walker, telephone 758-1946.

This year's sidewalk show is sponsored, as in the past, by the East Carolina Art Society and the Greenville Womens Club with the cooperation of the Greenville Merchants Association and the support of local citizens.

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠ South gave the appearance of being a Houdini in playing his four spade contract today, for altho he appears to be off four tricks—the ace, king of diamonds and the king-queen of spades—he managed to emerge unscathed on the deal after West failed to uncover the killing opening of a trump.

West led the deuce of hearts, the five was played from dummy and East put up the king which was ruffed in the closed hand by the four of spades. A small diamond was led to the nine and East was in with the king. He cashed the ace of diamonds and exited with a third round of the suit putting South back in.

A club was led to the jack and the ace of hearts was cashed on which declarer shed the nine of clubs. A heart was ruffed in the closed hand, the ace of clubs was cashed and a third round led to the king—as all hands followed suit.

The last heart was led from dummy and South ruffed with the eight of spades—fortunately for declarer, everyone followed suit once more. South's elaborate maneuvers had produced the following three card end position:

South led the jack of diamonds, West followed with the seven and dummy ruffed with the seven of spades. East overruffed with the queen, however he was now endplayed. He returned the six of spades and South put up the jack which won the trick and then North's ace took the last. Declarer had held his losses to one spade trick in addition to the two diamonds surrendered earlier.

and risk more reprisals against citizens of East Germany.

Furthermore, the brave demonstration for Brandt by the burghers of Erfurt is powerful new evidence, if any were needed, that the gravitational pull of the West for the East, which resulted in the infamous Berlin wall built by the Communists in 1961, is as strong as ever. This is true despite the boom in the East German economy. Thus the Brandt visit proved once again to the Communist regime how dangerous any closer relationship with West Germany would be for East Germany.

McCormack's Veot

An effort to persuade aging House Speaker John McCormack of Massachusetts to step down next January flopped despite its appeal to McCormack's home-state chauvinism.

The plan was that, with McCormack's active help, another Massachusetts Congressman—Rep. Edward Boland, a moderate—could be elected majority leader next January if McCormack stepped aside and backed Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, now the majority leader, for speaker. That would assure a Massachusetts voice in high House councils for years to come.

Boland himself was not a chief actor in this little drama. The prime mover was a veteran Congressman from the Midwest with close ties to both McCormack and Boland. He took the plan to two senior Massachusetts Democrats—Reps. Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, Jr., and Philip J. Philbin—and they gingerly approached McCormack on the basis of state chauvinism.

Predictably, McCormack's answer was a flat no.

A footnote: McCormack will have at least one opponent if, as seems certain, he carries out his pledge to run for speaker again: Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona. Udall ran against McCormack in 1969 and got 58 votes. He'll run again unless a Democrat with a better chance decides to enter the lists.

rights to reprint an excerpt from the Douglas book? A learned essay on rebellion?

No, indeed, Rosset was buying just what Ralph Ginzburg bought last year for Avant Garde and Hugh Hefner repeatedly has bought for Playboy: He was buying the name and reputation of an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. That is what Douglas sold; and by the eternal, it is not for sale.

The question thus goes to propriety, to a sense of fitness, to an appreciation of honor and an understanding of dishonor. The question goes to "good behavior." And as Congressman Louis Wyman of New Hampshire says, the House has an obligation at least to weigh the question.

Chase was acquitted 165 years ago. It is almost inconceivable that in a Senate today dominated by liberals, a two-thirds vote could be mustered against Douglas. But the solemn act of impeachment, if voted by the House, would come as a stinging reminder to Justices hereafter that the people expect better behavior from future members than they have had from William Douglas.

CHEERLEADERS WIN

DENVER (AP)—Six cheerleaders at Ranum High School went to court and got a judgment of $120 against a knitting company. The girls charged the sweaters they'd ordered for their rah-rah activities were the wrong shade of green and the company wouldn't refund their money.

A sparse budget is no longer an excuse for a sparse home. This is the age of individualism. Suddenly it's okay to have things that make up in flair and style for what they lack in heirloom quality. Not only okay, but great. So, if you don't have immediate money for the furniture you've always dreamed of, maybe it's time to re-think your dreams. Do it yourself. Heck, invent it yourself.

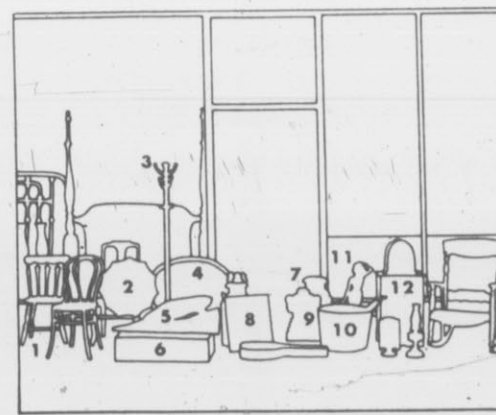

Forget the proper names for things and think in terms of forms. Because as long as you think of a scroungy old trunk as a scroungy old trunk, it'll never occur to you to cover it with a wild fabric, shellac the top side and use it as a coffee table. As long as you think in terms of, say, a massive folding screen, you'll haunt the expensive section of the folding screen store and never think about making one from three old doors you've hauled away from the wrecking company, held together with six old hinges. Just to get your re-thinking started, look at the typical junk-store merchandise here. Try to imagine what you'd do with it. Then compare your ideas with the ones below. You'll be surprised at how easily you can substitute imagination for money when it comes to furnishing a home. And that's the whole point. Saving money. You can do it, with a little help. And we keep throwing out suggestions because we figure if a bank won't help you save money, who will?

IT'S JUST A BUNCH OF JUNK. WANNA' MAKE SOMETHING OF IT?

1. Any old two-dollar chair, lacquered a happy, shiny color looks great paired up with a dark wooden desk or telephone table.
2. Polish up an old victrola trumpet and revive it as a planter. Or paint it a wild color and hide a transistor radio inside, as a bit of fun for a family room.
3. Saw about two feet off the bottom, paint it bright, and put it in a child's room. It may encourage him not to hang coats and caps and football helmets on the floor.
4. Put four low legs on the back of an interesting old mirror, for a highly original coffee table.
5. Forget about it. No matter what you do to it, a stuffed beaver is still a stuffed beaver.
6. Covered with gay fabric, it's a great toy chest. Make a matching fabric pillow to toss on top, and it's extra seating for young guests.
7. An old milk can properly decorated can function as anything from an umbrella stand to a planter to a bar stool.
8. Old picture frames make even the most inexpensive print look important. They also make beautiful housing for stamp, coin, or antique button collections you'd like to show off. 9. Suppose you took out everything behind the glass, and used an ornate old clock case as a container for a beautiful artificial flower arrangement. 10. Fill it with a mass of ferns. Or use it as an ample magazine holder. 11. Spray her a dull, matte white and hide her in the shrubbery out back. People will think you've gone in for marble lawn statuary. 12. Never overlook the virtues of a skinny little chest. Use it under a mirror in a tiny entrance hall. Use it as a catch-all for toiletries and curlers in a bathroom. Or even as a bedside table. Don't forget to paper the inside in a happy color.

See? All you need are ideas. And for 65¢ you can get Better Homes & Gardens' "Hundreds of Ideas for under $100" at any Planters office. It costs $1.50, usually. But every little bargain helps.

Reid Points To MD Shortage

"The United States is 50,000 doctors short of meeting our medical needs today. Only 8,000 doctors graduated from medical schools in 1969. We should have had 18,000 graduates last year if we hope to meet medical manpower needs by 1975," Pitt County Representative David Reid stated in a speech to the Greenville Optimist Club last night.

He cited reasons why he believes East Carolina University is the only logical place for North Carolina to establish a second state supported medical school.

"The cost of establishing a first-rate medical school in Greenville will be a great deal less than many people think," Reid said, "because a medical school at East Carolina University will not attempt to duplicate the complex and costly medical centers such as those now present in Chapel Hill or Durham."

Referring to the proposed East Carolina University Regional Health Authority, Reid said, "This authority will establish a network of regional referral and teaching centers utilizing the 4,000 hospital beds which now exist within a 40 mile radius of Greenville. The authority will receive and disburse State and Federal funds among the several large community and state hospitals in the East to finance the additional construction and staffing required for use of these facilities in teaching medical and allied health students. This concept is more logical and far less expensive than establishing a large new hospital facility in the East."

Reid stated that a four year medical school will be a natural outgrowth of this concept of utilizing and upgrading existing hospital facilities in the East. "Realization of a four year medical school will, of course, depend upon the proven success of the two year program as well as the availability of state and federal funds at that time," Reid concluded.

Reid was introduced by C. P. Shaw and Optimist President Max Stephenson presided.

explained that the material was a compilation of other material, put in compact form. "We are seeking your permission to distribute this booklet and also your financial support," Miss Pollard told the board members.

The Girl Scout troop hopes to have 8,000 copies printed for general distribution to all parents. Miss Pollard noted this would cost about $60. Board members, after being assured by Dr. Cleetwood that he had read the material, and that proper clearance had been arranged for its use, approved its distribution and underwriting the publication costs.

Mrs. Margaret T. Perkins, chairman of the Eppes PTA Committee, told the board members of a proposal to begin immediate work to prepare students and parents for a successful transition in the coming school year, at the one junior high school.

"The PTA Advisory Committee at Eppes was concerned because we felt misinformed about the reasons for closing Eppes Junior High," Mrs. Perkins commented, "but after meeting with Dr. Cleetwood and Mrs. Kittrell (Mrs. Robert Kittrell), I want to say the committee highly endorses closing the school because of poor facilities."

"At this point we feel it necessary to prepare the PTA Advisory Committee to coordinate with the Aycock PTA in getting information out for the coming fall," Mrs. Perkins remarked. "We all know that things go wrong when we are misinformed or not fully informed and we want things to be right when school starts this year."

Board member Louis W. Gaylord Jr. endorsed the idea and made a motion to ask Eppes and Aycock PTA to work together as a committee to inform the public on matters relating to the school.

Mrs. Perkins told the board members, "we are already coordinating the matter, and are meeting Tuesday night to work on plans. We are ready and willing to work, and are going to start now. We will appreciate any suggestions you wish to make.

"If it is the spirit of ladies like you that is going to make this work," Gaylord told Mrs. Perkins, "We are all deeply grateful to you."

Managing Your Money

PNB PLANTERS NATIONAL BANK

Your Stake In Social Security

Here is a question that few people can answer with any degree of accuracy. How much have you accumulated in your Social Security account?

"Social Security!" you exclaim. "Why should I be concerned with that? It will be 10, 20 or 30 years before I have to be concerned with it. There's plenty of time to worry about it then."

That might be true. But, suppose there is an error in your record (fortunately, there haven't been too many), it could go unnoticed for years. Then, at some time in the future when Social Security payments become an important factor in a person's financial plans, this casual treatment of an important asset could be critical.

It is an important asset. It represents a deduction of 4.8% from a person's weekly salary or wages up to a ceiling of $7,800.00 with a matching contribution by the employer. Over a period of years, this could amount to several thousand dollars.

The fact that our contribution to Social Security is made automatically through payroll deductions is one of the reasons why we treat the matter so lightly. Some people call it "painless" extractions. It's a case of — we never had the money, so we don't miss it. There is no reason for such neglect. Social Security officials invite requests from individuals for an accounting of the amount of money accumulated by individual contributors. A person should do this periodically. It is a sound practice for Social Security registrants to adopt. After all — it's your money!

As Social Security benefits are increased (that's the reason for the boost in deductions), the accuracy of an individual's record becomes more important. Many pension programs are designed to act as a supplement to the employee's Social Security benefits. In other words the amount of pension payment is geared to what an employee would normally receive from Social Security at retirement age. Consequently, it is better to know in advance that your records are in order.

This is particularly true for employees who might work for several employers in the course of a year — a routine occurrence in construction work or the building trades.

Have no qualms about phoning or writing to your local Social Security office. It has as much interest in the accuracy of your records as you have.

Ott Leary Says:

We have only 10 new 1970 Dodges left. I will sell any of these cars at invoice price and will lay the invoice on the table for your inspection. You pay nothing more: no new car preparation charge, no finance charges, and no salesman commission. Just the invoice price plus N.C. sales tax. This represents over a hundred dollar loss to the dealer. No one can stay in business and sell cars at these ridiculous prices. We can only do so because we are going out of business and must dispose of these cars. You will never find a better deal.

Smith In 8-0 No-Hit Win

SCOTLAND NECK — The Oak City Wildcats continued to roll along, this time getting an 8-0 victory on a no-hit pitching performance by Marty Smith.

Smith, in going the distance, struck out 14 and walked just four in getting the no-hit shutout.

Oak City pushed over all they needed in the first inning when it scored one run. Cliff Mobley singled and stole second. J.C. Whitfield drove him across with a single.

In the second, Oak City came up with two more runs to move into a 3-0 lead. Anthony Cannon walked and Mike Smith singled him to third. Smith stole second, and both runners scored when Danny Reason's outfield fly was errored.

In the third, the Wildcats added another as Marty Smith batted out a solo home run.

They went on to pick up three more in the fifth and one in the seventh to complete the rout.

Mobley led the Oak City hitting with two.

The win boosted the Wildcat record to 9-1 for the season.

Barber Takes Golf Playoff

By EDMUND J. TUNSTALL
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Miller Barber doesn't find himself in the winner's circle often but he knows how to make his arrow-straight golf game pay off.

His playoff victory in the rich New Orleans Open Monday put him among the year's leading money winners.

The pudgy, balding, 39-year-old Shreveport, La., native knocked in a 12-foot birdie putt on the 560-yard second hole of his playoff with lefty Bob Charles of New Zealand and Californian Howie Johnson.

The $25,000 first-place check spiraled Barber's winnings to more than $69,000 for the year. He was ninth on the money list for 1970 before the New Orleans event.

Barber, Charles and Johnson were tied with 10-under-par 278s at the end of the regulation 72 holes Sunday.

They teed it up Monday morning under a burning sun at the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Johnson and Charles were both off the fairway on the first hole of the sudden death playoff but recovered to make par four. Barber knocked his drive down the middle, was on the green in two and just slipped past the hole on his try for a birdie.

Charles had to recover after slicing his tee shot badly while Barber and Johnson were on the 560-yard, par five second hole with their third and were going for birdies. Johnson missed his 18-foot birdie attempt by inches but Barber slapped his putt into the back of the cup and he was $25,000 richer.

The victory also qualified him for this week's Tournament of Champions where every player is assured of $2,500 for just showing up.

Big Ones Landed

Two proud local fishermen, Willie Dickens, left and James Brewington, right, display a couple of big ones caught over the weekend. Dickens landed the hefty 30 pound red snapper, and Brewington pulled in the 75 pound grouper shown above. The two fisherman, along with Marvin (Baltimore) Jones, Leroy James, Julius D'antignac, Joe Daniels and William Shivers were off the Continental Shelf, about 75 miles out. Altogether they caught about 700 pounds of fish.

Perseverance Is Key To Royals' Success

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Perseverance is becoming the Kansas City Royals' greatest virtue ... and a saving grace for the California Angels, too.

The Royals overcame a 2-0 Oakland lead on Bob Oliver's two-run ninth inning homer Monday night and went on to defeat the A's 4-2 in the 11th—with Oliver socking another homer—for their second overtime victory in as many games. California, which blew a 1-0 ninth-inning lead Sunday and finally bowed to the better-late-than-never Royals 4-1 in 13, squandered bases-loaded threats in the eighth and ninth innings, then nipped Milwaukee 5-4 on Roger Repoz' bases-loaded single in the 10th.

In the only other American League activity, the New York Yankees pounded Washington 11-2 and Baltimore edged Boston 3-2 in a game halted by rain after six innings.

Oakland's John "Blue Moon" Odum blanked the Royals on two singles and struck out 12 through the eighth inning, but couldn't hold a two-run lead built on homers by Dick Green and catcher Dave Duncan.

After picking up his 13th strikeout to start the ninth, Odum yielded a single by Ed Kirkpatrick, got the second out on a leaping catch by shortstop Roberto Pena and then was tagged for Oliver's tying homer.

Kansas City reliever Moe Drabowsky worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the ninth and the Royals finally broke the deadlock in the 11th.

The Angels, trailing 3-0 after six innings and hitless against Gene Brabender after a leadoff single by Sandy Alomar in the first, knocked out the Milwaukee starter with a four-run flurry in the seventh.

Repoz knocked in the tying run with a pinch single and pinch hitter Rick Reichardt's sacrifice fly gave the home club a 4-3 lead.

After the Brewers' Danny

Walton, who had delivered two earlier runs with a double and his fifth homer, singled home the tying run in the eighth, California sizzled and fizzled before winning it on Repoz' third straight single.

Danny Cater and Ron Woods slammed three-run homers to pace the Yanks' attack at Washington. Cater also doubled and singled, and Thurman Munson, 1-for-30 going into the game, stroked three hits, driving in a pair of runs.

Williamston Ties For Lead

NORTHAMPTON — Williamston High School pulled into a tie for first place in the Albemarle Conference yesterday with a 6-1 victory over Northampton. The win leaves Williamston with a 6-1 record, tying them with Ahsokie for first place.

Northampton scored first, pushing over a run in the first inning. Hasty reached on an error and Bradley singled. Pope got a hit, driving in Hasty for a 1-0 lead.

But Williamston moved ahead in the third with four big runs. Don O'Neal singled and was balked to second. Joel Thigpen singled and Ray Andrews got a hit, scoring both runners. Andrews stole second and came home when Ken Haslip doubled. Sammy Roberson then singled to drive in Haslip.

Williamston added one each in the fourth and sixth innings for their six run total.

Thigpen led the Williamston hitting with three, while Haslip had two. Greg Godard held Northampton to three hits in the game.

Stargell Snaps Slump With Towering Homer

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's no place like home to break out of a slump—and no where better than the friendly right field roof in Forbes Field.

Friendly? Well, friendly for Willie Stargell, anyway. Stargell, hung with a monstrous .037 batting average, launched a typical, out-of-sight homer over the faraway double-tiered roof and carried Pittsburgh to a 3-1 victory over Houston Monday night.

"It helps mentally to get a home run," said Stargell who had collected only a single in 27 at-bats prior to Monday night's game. "But I would have been happy to have it go just over the screen ... unless somebody is going to give me $1,000 every time I hit one over the roof."

Cincinnati slugged three home runs to dump the skidding Atlanta Braves 6-2 in the National League's only other game Monday.

Stargell, who also drove in the Pirates' other run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning, was brimming with confidence after busting his early-season willies.

"It has to be uphill from here," said Walloping Willie, who boosted his batting average 32 points to .069. "I looked in the paper Sunday and I saw I had hit bottom."

The outer orbit in right field is fast becoming known as "Stargell's Stoop." It has only been reached 17 times in Forbes Field's 61-year history, and Stargell has made it six times.

After Stargell got Pittsburgh an early 1-0 lead, the Astros tied the game in the sixth on Denis Menke's run-scoring single which hit Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis on the right hand. Ellis had to leave the game at the end of the inning.

Then Richie Hebner drew a walk from Jim Bouton in the sixth and Stargell hit one downtown.

Tony Perez slammed his seventh homer and Johnny Bench and rookie Hal McRae added round-trippers as the homer-happy Reds won their sixth game in seven. The loss was the fourth straight for Atlanta.

"I beat everybody in the league last year except these guys," said the Reds' winning pitcher, Jim Merritt. "This one is some kind of sweet victory."

Manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati: "That's four solid games for Merritt. He really knows how to pitch. Every game's been just like that."

Merritt, who won his third game in four decisions, scattered six hits. His only trouble was in the ninth, when Rico Carty hit a two-run homer.

Do you put a higher price on an Olds than we do?

Our own surveys indicate that quite a few people think an Olds costs a lot more than it really does. Result? Many people buy an ordinary car and end up with a lot less car and value for their money.

It's so unnecessary, too, because Oldsmobile has many models that are priced right down with so-called low-priced cars. See your Olds dealer. He'll prove that you're closer to Olds than you think.

Knicks Win; Gain NBA Finals Dallas Takes 2-1 Lead Over Los Angeles Five

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Costello said it and the New York Knicks know it only too well. "You can't build a championship team in two years," Coach Costello said logically after his two-year-old Milwaukee Bucks were bombed out of the National Basketball Association playoffs Monday night by the Knicks.

If any of the Knicks had heard him say it in the quiet of the Milwaukee dressing room after the 132-96 rout, they certainly would have agreed.

For all of their 23 years, the Knicks have been trying to win an NBA title, and now by eliminating the Bucks 4-1 in their best-of-seven Eastern Division final series, they have their first crack at it in 17 years, making the final for the first time since 1953.

The only club standing in their way now is the Los Angeles Lakers, another frustrated team which has been seeking the pot of gold in vain for all of its nine years on the West Coast.

Even more exasperating for the Lakers, they have reached this final series six times and come out second best to Boston each time.

The Knicks and Lakers, certain now to end the grasp that Boston and Philadelphia have held on this title for 13 years, open the best-of-seven set Friday night in New York's Madison Square Garden with the second game here next Monday night.

The third and fourth games will be played in Los Angeles Wednesday night, April 29, and Friday night, May 1.

The Knicks know the Lakers aren't going to be as easy as the young Bucks, a collection of rookies, hand-me-downs and Lew Alcindor, who had jumped from last place in their first year in 1969 to second this season behind the Knicks.

New York wasted little time following Los Angeles into the final playoff after the Lakers completed a 4-0 rout of Atlanta Sunday. With Dick Barnett hitting 16 of his 27 points in the first quarter, the Knicks bounded away to a 35-19 lead and expanded that to 69-45 by halftime. Milwaukee never climbed closer than 20 again.

Alcindor finished with 27 points for 171 in the five games, but opposing center Willis Reed had 32 and Bill Bradley chipped in with 25—as the balanced Knicks outshot the Bucks from the field, 50.4 per cent to 39.8, and forced 27 turnovers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the new owner in town for the first time, it was about as inauspicious a show as one can imagine.

To begin with, the Los Angeles Stars dropped a 116-104 decision to Dallas, giving the Chaparrals a 2-1 edge in their best-of-seven series in the Western Division playoffs of the American Basketball Association.

Add to that the fact that new owner Bill Daniels witnessed the game as one of possibly the smallest crowd ever to watch a pro basketball playoff game—971 souls.

Coach Bill Sharman and his Stars hope to even their series with the Chaps Wednesday night at the nearby Anaheim Convention Center. The Stars were without the services of Willie Wise for most of the game and the 6-foot-6 former Drake star was sorely missed.

Ron Boone and Cincy Powell powered the Chaps into a nine-point lead midway through the third period after a 53-48 halftime edge. When the Stars' fast break stalled, Dallas zoomed ahead 90-71 and the game was all but over.

Boone scored 22 points, Powell 19 and guard Glen Combs also scored 19 in leading the winners. The Stars were led by rookie guard Mack Calvin with 28.

"We sure missed Willie,"

Sharman said about Wise, who has two painfully sprained ankles. He saw only three minutes of action in the crucial second half. Dallas Coach Max Williams noted that the absence of Wise was a key factor.

In the other Western Division playoff game, the Spencer Haywood-led Denver Rockets take their 2-1 advantage into Washington Wednesday night to play the Caps with Rick Barry.

In the east, the New York Nets hold a 2-1 edge in games over Kentucky with the Colonels hosting Wednesday night's fourth game. Meanwhile, the Carolina Cougars hope to cut into Indiana's 2-0 lead at Charlotte, N.C.

Super Bowl To Get A Replay

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Stram and Bud Grant, on opposite sides of the field in the Super Bowl, lined up today as members in good standing of the Coaches Union—verbally declining to see any special significance in a Kansas City-Minnesota opening game.

The National Football League schedule-makers, however, took note of the intense interest in an instant replay of their Super Bowl clash when they booked the two teams to meet at Minnesota when the season opens the weekend of Sept. 18-21.

Stram, whose Chiefs upset Grant's Vikings 23-7 at New Orleans last Jan. 11, stood behind words as tricky as a play from his huge repertoire and took note of the schedule by saying:

"The 1970 season will be very challenging. The fact we are opening against the Minnesota Vikings further emphasizes the strong challenge that lies ahead."

Grant employed much the same technique, saying:

"What happened in New Orleans is history. The Kansas City game is just one of 14 we have to play. If you look at our schedule you will see pointing for one game would not be very wise."

While the coaches looked at it that way, General Manager Jim Finks of the Vikings had this appreciation of it:

"I'm sure most fans will look at it as a revenge game. But we will not make a vendetta out of it. We know one game won't make our season."

"But we welcome the opportunity to redeem ourselves."

The opportunity for redemption will come on the third day of a four-day opening week's schedule, the first drawn under the new two-conference NFL set-up and with an eye toward the Monday night television testing ground.

The schedule begins Friday night, Sept. 18 with St. Louis at Los Angeles, then spotlights Chicago at the New York Giants Saturday and a 10-game Sunday program that offers the Kansas City at Minnesota rematch.

In other Sunday openers, Atlanta will be at New Orleans, Baltimore at San Diego, Dallas at Philadelphia, Denver at Buffalo, Detroit at Green Bay, Houston at Pittsburgh, Miami at Boston, Oakland at Cincinnati and Washington at San Francisco.

The opening schedule winds up Monday night with the New York Jets at Cleveland in the first game of a 13-game Monday night series being telecast by the American Broadcasting Co.

With that series, pro football hopes to broaden its popularity base.

Besides the Super Bowl rematch between Kansas City and Minnesota, the new schedule offers the Baltimore Colts two opportunities for revenge for their Super Bowl loss to the New York Jets at the end of the 1968 season.

The Jets also will meet their crosstown rivals from the National Conference, the New York Giants, while the new conference alignment offers several other interesting battles between clubs who will be meeting in regular season play for the first time.

Included among those are match-ups between Los Angeles and San Diego, Cincinnati and Cleveland, Kansas City and St. Louis, San Francisco and Oakland and Dallas and Houston.

Under the new conference structure, the 16 holdover NFL teams and the 10 former AFL teams, now all linked in one league, begin competing this year in two equally-balanced conferences.

Cleveland, Baltimore and Pittsburgh have joined with the 10 AFL teams to form the American Conference while the 13 remaining NFL teams now comprise the National Conference. Each team will play 14 games on a schedule that stretches for 182 games before post-season action begins.

Hunting Accidents Decline

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Hunting accidents in New York state in 1969 declined for the fourth straight year, reports the Conservation Department.

There were eight fatal and 95 non-fatal accidents during 1969. This compared with nine fatal and 121 non-fatal mishaps in 1968.

Statistics compiled by the Bureau of Law Enforcement show that of the total number of accidents, 47 were self-inflicted, 49 hunters were shot by companions and seven were caused by unknown hunters.

Shotguns were involved in 56 accidents, rifles 38, other firearms seven unknown two.

Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds led National League hitters the last two seasons with .335 and .348, respectively.

Sooner or later, every family faces a financial crisis. It could be an unexpected bill. An extended illness. Or any of a thousand emergencies you don't like to think about, but should. That's why family money management counselors say you should keep three times your family's gross monthly income in your bank savings account.

Nancy's problem is the opposite of that which many teenage girls experience. For Nancy has placed her emotions under such rigid self-discipline that they refuse to come out when she unlocks the jail door. Read about her romantic dilemma and then send for the helpful booklet that solved her problem.

"And I find him very appealing except that I don't feel any physical magnetism between us.

And if you employ several loops of wire, the current is stronger.

Similarly, if you prolong a kiss between two reasonably attractive members of the opposite sex, a "current" will arise.

And the more often you repeat the performance, the stronger will be that current!

For love can arise several times in your lifetime. Like fear or grief or rage, love is an emotion that is not limited to but once in your 70 years here on Earth.

So I urged Nancy to release her repressed emotions by purposely indulging in reasonable emotional calisthenics.

The Generation Gap Widened

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The generation gap grew a little wider between Bob Montoney of Columbus and his 13-year-old son, Mark.

Montoney, who has been a golfer for 20 years and never made a hole-in-one, watched as Mark used a five iron to ace the third hole he played, a 120-yarder, at a local golf course.

"But when he kisses you goodnight, offer him your lips," I added. "And prolong the kiss for a few extra seconds!"

For human beings were created to respond to definite laws, just as is true in the realm of physics and chemistry.

It will be too weak to feel but in high school physics labs, you can actually measure this current

Odd Features On Planet Mercury

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The planet Mercury has mysterious rough spots near its equator which may be "mountains, boulder fields or craters," scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory say.

The features were detected during spectrographic radar probes between May 24 and June 13 of last year when the tiny planet, closest to the sun, was about 55 million miles from earth.

Dr. Richard Goldstein of JPL's Goldstone Tracking Station said Sunday.

"The rough features of Mercury seem to be like the ones we have observed earlier on Venus," Goldstein said, "except they are larger, relative to the size of the disc and have much less contrast to the surrounding areas."

Three Pitt Students Are Practice-Teaching

WILSON — Three Pitt County students are participating in the student teaching program of Atlantic Christian College during the spring semester.

The local students are Carolyn Gray Hathaway, Loraine Steinbeck and Ellen Lee Thomas.

A 1966 graduate of J. H. Rose High School, Miss Steinbeck is teaching physical education in the Greenville elementary schools. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lee Thomas of Brook Valley Country Club. She is teaching the second grade at Benvenue School, Rocky Mount.

In the student teaching program, students devote approximately nine weeks to full-time student teaching in the field for which they have been preparing.

Placed Second In Bricklaying

Gregory Clark, a senior at Rose High School, won second place in the District Six-C Annual Bricklaying Contest held Friday in New Bern.

Eight schools participated in the event.

Clark scored 865 points on the written and performance test out of a possible 1100 points.

Clark will be eligible to compete in the state contest in Raleigh on May 16.

The playing area of a football field measures 300 feet by 160 feet.

Earth Day here Wednesday is intended to be "an attempt to come to grips with the problems of our deteriorating environment at the level of the individual private citizen."

The quote is from Garrett De Bell in his "Environmental Handbook," prepared for the first national environmental teach-in.

Greenville and East Carolina University's teach-in is part of the national effort, of course, and the leaders here have availed themselves of all the material and suggestions they could get from the national teach-in headquarters on Peace Street in Washington, D. C.

"We have made every effort to focus on local problems," Eldon Nelson, a biology graduate student from Morehead City, who is coordinating the Earth Day activities here, said. "We know our problems here are not so extreme as those to be talked about on New York campuses, but that's probably better reason to make people aware of them.

Less obvious problems and potential problems have to be pointed out.

"We do have most of the same problems on a smaller scale — open burning; littering; overuse of automobiles; overpackaging; abandoned cars; indiscriminate use of pesticides, detergents, fertilizers, and tranquilizers; draining of wetlands; destroying of woodlands; and the like. Most of these things are done by well-meaning persons for one of three reasons — monetary gain, convenience, or because they just didn't think. We want to make people think in terms of long-range effects on themselves, their contemporaries, and their descendants.

"We are firmly convinced that ours is a fight for the survival of all and that the battle must be well into its course in this decade if it is to be won at all.

"We are not trying to promote anxiety for the sake of providing ourselves a cause. Most who have taken an active part so far are working faculty members and serious graduate students. Our purpose is to spur awareness and action in every field and on every level from the individual householder to the corporation director.

Nelson is chairman of the Concerned Biologists for Environmental Action. "Biologist here means, anyone who is concerned about life and loves living things," he said.

The CBEA, which has set up a temporary office in the ECU Biology Building, solicits the assistance, suggestions, and — or financial support of any person, organization, or business that wishes to take part. Letters have been sent to industries, businesses, and churches, among others, for their support. Few answers have been received so far. Only three industries offered any kind of financial assistance.

The active members have given freely of their time to talk to classes and organizations, mostly on campus so far. They tell anyone who expresses interest that if he wishes to be of help his services can be used. Many students have dropped in to type for an hour or to man the environmental literature table in the University Union. Posters and banners and the like promoting Earth Day have appeared across campus without the prior knowledge of the active CBEAs.

Vice-chairman Lloyd Byrd, a biology graduate student from Dunn, said that tentative plans call for the ECU persons interested in environmental problems to become a part of Ecos, a non-profit organization on environmental awareness begun at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, which now has chapters on numerous North Carolina campuses. He stressed that interest is the only prerequisite for being a member, that membership will not be limited to ECU persons.

Withdrawal Timing Will Give Latitude To U.S. Commanders

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — President Nixon's plans for withdrawal of 150,000 more U.S. troops from Vietnam over the next 12 months appear in Saigon to give American field commanders considerable latitude and to meet their fears of a precipitous pullout.

Unlike the three other cut-backs Nixon ordered since last June, the President did not commit himself to a short-range timetable. In what one source called a "different kind of package," Nixon said the "timing and pace of these new withdrawals will be determined by our best judgment of the current military and diplomatic situation."

There might be no substantial troop withdrawals for the next several months if field commanders fear a new enemy upsurge like that in early April which resulted in a jump in both U.S. and South Vietnamese casualties. Such a withdrawal pause would also give an additional breathing spell for Vietnamization to progress.

Some field commanders say further immediate troop cuts in some regions, particularly the five northernmost provinces south of the Demilitarized Zone, would put the pacification program in jeopardy. The U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, apparently acting on recommendations from Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, urged a two-month delay in further withdrawals.

Nixon said his decision to reduce U.S. troop strength by another 150,000 men was made after consultation with his commanders in the field. He did not say the field commanders approved. This left the impression in Saigon that Abrams may not agree with Nixon's decision, but that the President gave some ground by not committing Abrams to a short-range timetable.

Nixon also said his decision has the approval of the Saigon government. President Nguyen Van Thieu has indicated that he is in no hurry to see a fast drain-off of American troops. In his last major statement on the question, he told a news conference on Jan. 9 that American combat troops will be needed in South Vietnam beyond 1970.

Lt. Gen. Julian J. Ewell, who commanded U.S. forces in 10,000 square miles stretching from the coast through Saigon to Cambodia, said last week that after nine months of withdrawals "at a fairly rapid rate," the military commanders need "a digestion period where you can settle things down and rearrange things a bit and then take a new look at it."

Letter-Writing Campaign Urged

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolinians have been urged by Gov. Bob Scott to join a letter-writing campaign to help American servicemen held prisoners in North Vietnam.

Scott's statement came as he met Monday with a group of wives and parents of servicemen known or believed to be prisoners.

The letter writers are seeking "either release or humane treatment of American prisoners of war," Scott told newsmen.

He said they also are seeking to learn the names of the prisoners, because many families with loved ones missing in action don't know whether they are alive or dead.

"I believe the release of American prisoners would have a positive effect on peace negotiations," Scott added. "The release of a prisoner list would be a solid first step."

Those writing letters are asked to send them to P. O. Box 7777, Washington, N. C. They will be turned over to Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot, who failed in an effort to deliver a plane-load of gifts and mail to U. S. prisoners of war last Christmas.

Those who met with the governor were Mrs. James Hiteshew of Goldsboro, Mrs. C. J. Ramsay of Jacksonville and Mrs. Barbara Wells of Goldsboro, wives of American prisoners; and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Robinson of Robersonville and Mrs. F. R. Johnson of Rocky Mount, whose sons are believed to be prisoners.

Mrs. Hiteshew urged Tar Heels to join the letter-writing effort and "don't put it off, do it today."

Heavy Loss By Chrysler

CENTER LINE, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. today blamed lagging sales and inflationary pressures for its loss of nearly $20 million in the first quarter of 1970.

Board Chairman Lynn A. Townsend said the firm's world wide sale of cars, trucks and tractors ran 12 per cent below the opening three months of 1969, when the firm made a profit of $48 million.

Townsend and Chrysler President John Riccardo released the firm's quarterly report on the eve of today's annual meeting of stockholders.

General Motors and Ford sales also ran well behind 1969 totals for the first quarter. Only American Motors, smallest of the auto firms, showed a gain.

Townsend said consumer demand for automotive products was generally lower in both the United States and Canada and total North American retail sales of passenger cars, excluding imports, were down 13 per cent from a year ago.

Wouldn't Stop Exploring Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Harold C. Urey, a Nobel Prize-winning scientist, says mankind should go ahead with exploration of the solar system despite the near-tragedy of Apollo 13.

"Men might get marooned in space—or marooned on the moon itself," he said in an interview, "but we should push right on. Columbus lost a whole ship-load of men, but that didn't stop exploration."

Chicago's Mayor Marks 15 Years

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard J. Daley observed the completion of 15 years as mayor of Chicago in City Hall ceremonies Monday attended by some 200 business, union and legislative leaders.

Daley has been mayor of Chicago longer than any of his predecessors, having been first elected in April 1955.

Water-skiing is said to have originated in Winter Haven, Fla.

Resuming Their Merger Talks

RALEIGH (AP) — Officials of white and black teacher associations meet today to resume merger talks.

Elliott Palmer, executive secretary of the predominantly black North Carolina Teachers Association (NCTA) said Monday he would meet with A. C. Dawson, executive secretary of the predominantly white North Carolina Education Association (NCEA).

Palmer said they would seek to arrange more meetings of a joint liaison committee in an effort to iron out differences that have arisen between the two groups.

"We can still merge July 1 if we can come to some agreements," said Palmer.

The NCTA directors voted last Saturday to delay merger talks until differences are settled. They decided to withhold an announcement on how the NCTA members voted on merger.

Differences between the two groups became public after the NCEA expressed "regret" at the entrance of the National Education Association into court action over desegregation of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools. The NEA voiced support of a federal District Court court order calling for massive busing to achieve integration. The NCTA supports the court order, too.

Palmer said that in addition to this another issue has arisen.

"Some of our local units are being offered merger terms with the local NCEA units which are less than the minimum terms agreed to by the two state organizations," Palmer said.

Palmer said his organization wants clear-cut guarantees its 7,000 members will not be out-voted by the 40,000 NCEA members in regard to the merged organizations' attitude toward the NEA.

Color TV Set And Gun Stolen

A color television and a pistol were reported taken from a 2009 Sherwood Dr. home over the weekend.

Greenville Police Chief T. E. Gladson said Mrs. E. L. Baiter reported a table model television and a .22 caliber pistol were taken from her home. Value of the items was set at $550.

Entrance to the Baiter home was made through a window.

Home Is Robbed During Weekend

Police are continuing their investigation of the theft of two cameras, five paintings and a piece of luggage from a 1203A Glen Arthur Ave. home over the weekend.

Officers said entrance to the dwelling was made by removing a window screen and climbing through the window.

The missing items included one 35 millimeter camera, one Instamatic camera, five paintings and a train case.

To The Public:
Subject: Do We Approve the Tax Reform and Allow Pitt Tech to Operate as a Community College?

Dear Pitt County Voters:

I personally have nothing to gain and everything to lose becoming involved in this issue; and I wish to thank those of you that have given me your support.

As you know, there is a great need that Pitt Tech could fill if the industrial vocations were emphasized.

Courses such as plumbing and carpentry have never been taught in the up-to-date facilities on the home grounds of Pitt Tech, but always in some dilapidated or condemned building several miles off Campus.

Once these courses were regular full time day courses, now they are offered. What happened?

IS THIS EMPHASIS OR DE-EMPHASIS?

I really try to be honest and above board in all things with which I am associated. While attending the last Pitt Tech board meeting, the board was briefed on the approach and the PRESENTATION that would be used to obtain your vote of approval; this is when I boiled over!

So, again I call to your attention the picture image versus the courses that really are being emphasized.

Sincerely Yours,
A. B. Whitley, Jr.
Pitt Technical Board Member
