

Slowdown In Inflation Is Seen By Fall

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Economic indicators point to a sharp slowdown in inflation this fall, two top economists predict. They made their statements on a day the stock market suffered its worst slump in six years and other signs revealed a troubled economy.

In making this assessment in speeches to the United States Chamber of Commerce Monday, Walter W. Heller, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under former President Johnson, and Beryl W. Sprinkel of Chicago supported Nixon administration contentions that the over-all price rise will slow sharply in the autumn.

But, as they spoke, other indications of a sagging economy caused concern in the business community.

In New York, the stock market's Dow Jones Industrial average fell 12.14 points to 735.15, the lowest point since Nov. 22, 1963, the day President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

And, in Detroit, General Motors and Ford, the nation's largest automobile manufacturers, said that auto sales and profits were down in the opening quarter this year, although both still finished in the black.

Ford reported its consolidated sales in the opening three months down by 5 per cent, while GM's sales fell by 14 per cent during the same period.

At the White House, President Nixon conferred with his Council of Economic Advisers and five other economists called in for a special discussion of the nation's economic outlook.

Administration officials denied the talks were directly connected to the stock market slump. One informant said the discussion was scheduled some time ago and was "a general bull session—a kind of educational process for the President, to let him hear what others in the economic field are thinking."

Meantime a large bank in California announced it was reducing its prime interest rate from 8 per cent to 7½ per cent in a move it said was designed to boost the nation's economy.

Robert F. Parker, whose Community National Bank at Bakersfield, Calif., operates 17 branches in that state, said he hoped its action will trigger another round of nationwide prime interest rate reductions. Six weeks ago the bank was the nation's second to drop its rate from 8½ per cent to 8 per cent.

"New car sales are off more than 20 per cent in the first quarter and so it goes in all the industry by which the strength of our economy is measured," Parker told a news conference.

At the Chamber of Commerce meeting in Washington, Heller, now a University of Minnesota professor, told the businessmen "enough slack has developed in the economy" to assure the over-all price rise will slow to about a 4 per cent rate at the end of the year.

Sprinkel, senior vice president and economic director of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, forecast a 3 per cent rate of increase by year-end. The current rate is 5 per cent.

"I am not afflicted with the doom and gloom that seems to pervade Wall Street and the business community," Heller said.

He said the situation is ripe for Nixon to call publicly for restraint on prices and wages by industry and labor.

Sprinkel said he disagreed with Heller's call for White House pressure, saying there is nothing supporting it as a workable method to slow inflation.

Wheels Are Turning

FIRST DRUG SHIPMENT... The first shipment of drugs from the Burroughs-Wellcome complex here was made today headed for Atlanta, Ga. firm. The shipment included such drugs as Cardilate and Antropine and Empirin compound — one of the few non-prescription drugs produced by B-W. A full line of stock is now at the B-W facility here and all shipping is scheduled to be done from the local plant by the end of June when some 40 persons will be employed in the shipping department. At present, a staff of 12 is handling the shipping. Some 40 accounts per week are being transferred to Greenville for shipping as the Tuckahoe operation is being phased out. Currently shipments are being made to North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi from Greenville. Production at the local plant is scheduled to begin about mid-May. Preparing order for shipment along flow rack is supervisor Franklin Buck, Mrs. Brenda Spear and Mrs. Virginia Harrington.

Uniform Expense Levy Sought By School Board

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education last night approved a resolution requesting Pitt County Commissioners to establish a uniform current expense county-wide tax levy of a minimum of 25 cents per $100 valuation.

The Board of Education, in the appeal to the Commissioners, indicated that if a uniform current expense levy is established, the board would then allocate to the four attendance areas an amount for local needs no less than what the areas are now receiving.

Currently each school district has a different current expense levy and such a uniform levy would increase some and decrease some.

The action came last night as the school board met to discuss a proposed budget for the 1970-71 fiscal year. The budget last night totaled $1,368,024.67, approximately $168,504.47 more than the budget for the current fiscal year. However, board members instructed Superintendent of Schools Arthur Alford to trim the proposed figures.

The board has scheduled a meeting for Thursday night to again review the budget and possibly a list of expenditures to be presented to county commissioners for their approval.

The increase in the proposed budget includes an increase in salaries and related expenses, higher operating costs, and an increase in the instructional programs.

Total capital outlay, in the proposed budget, for new buildings and grounds, amounts to $440,000 as compared to 1969-70's $265,784.21, an increase of $174,215.79. This figure includes site improvement, paving, furniture, and bleachers, as well as a lunchroom at Ayden and one at Bethel.

Student Donors Top Blood Goal

East Carolina University students have once more shown it can be done. The students yesterday gave a total of 226 units—61 over their quota of 165 units.

"It was a tremendous response," said Douglas Morgan, chairman of the Pitt County Bloodmobile. "The place was jam packed with students waiting to give blood."

Dr. Charles Gilbert, pathologist testing blood of donors, said "I was especially impressed by a blind coed student who came and gave blood." He added "We are all very pleased with the results of this drive. The students kept us busy every minute of the six hour drive."

The ECU drive, under the planning and management of the AFFROC unit, was headed by Cadet 1st Lt. Tom Page.

Members of the Angel Flight and representatives of the Greenville Women's Service League assisted in handling the flood of donors reporting to the collection center established at Wright Auditorium. "All of these people did a wonderful job in keeping things moving and in handling the donors," Morgan remarked. "It's difficult to praise their efforts too highly."

The 61 extra units collected in yesterday's ECU drive "will help in cutting down the large shortage we have," Morgan commented. "We are now about 450 units short, which is an improvement over the more than 500 units we were previously short," he said.

The final Bloodmobile collection for the current drive year ending June 30 is to be made on June 17 at the Moose Lodge.

ARC Forced To Ask Extra Funds

By CAROL TYER

Donald Dancy, director of the Walter B. Jones Alcohol Rehabilitation Center here, confirmed today that the Center has had to ask for additional funds from the State Board of Mental Health.

The State Budget Division recently gave the Mental Health Board permission to transfer some $17,000 to the Jones ARC after the Center ran into financial straits. A request for some $37,000 had been submitted April 8.

"By tightening our belts, we'll make it till this fiscal year ends June 30," Dancy said. "These financial problems have in no way curtailed our treatment program. We may have expanded it somewhat if we had had unlimited funds, but we've done what we planned up to this point."

He explained how the problem came about: "The original budget called for $609,914 appropriated funds and 103,388 from patient receipts. Our patient receipts have not been anything near what was expected. What the State Board has done is to transfer some receipts from rehabilitation centers elsewhere in the state to this center."

"Also, we've found that since this is a regional center, our staff is having to do more traveling to participate in planning and the like and this has called for more money than we anticipated needing. These things will be taken into account in the drawing up of future budgets," Dancy said.

No Aid From Fulbright's Committee

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has made clear to the administration it opposes any U.S. arms aid to Cambodia despite that embattled nation's plea for enough military hardware to outfit a large army.

"The committee was virtually in agreement and very firmly against sending assistance," said Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., after Secretary of State William P. Rogers briefed the panel behind closed doors Monday.

Agreeing with Fulbright, senior Republican committee member Sen. George Aiken of Vermont said he is sure "the President will take into consideration how this committee feels."

Fulbright and Aiken met with newsmen following the 2½-hour session with Rogers. The secretary left hurriedly saying he didn't have time to comment.

Fulbright quoted Rogers as saying the Cambodians had made a "very large request for equipping a very large army," including rifles, trucks, half-tracks and airplanes—but not military personnel.

Fulbright said the administration apparently has made no decision on going beyond what it already has done.

Publicly, at least, this has been confined to approving South Vietnamese shipment of captured Soviet AK47 rifles and allowing armed forays into Cambodian territory by South Vietnamese soldiers.

When asked whether the administration had considered air support for Cambodian troops and whether this would constitute aid, Fulbright said the question had been asked but that he "really couldn't remember" what Rogers answered.

Neither could Aiken.

Fulbright said the administration apparently was not overly concerned about the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops roving Cambodia, but believed any substantial increase in their activity could threaten plans to continue winding down the Vietnam war.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., who left the session after about an hour, said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have been using Cambodia as a sanctuary since 1965, and he couldn't see "why such a big thing is being made of Cambodia."

"I just hope that it does not mean that somewhere back of the administration policy there is a hedge against 'Vietnamization,'" he added in reference to the President's stated aim of turning over the fighting to South Vietnam troops.

Indonesia Calls Asia Conference Over Cambodia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Foreign Minister Adam Malik announced today an Asian conference on Cambodia will be held in Jakarta May 11-12 and at least eight of 20 countries invited will attend.

Malik told newsmen Indonesia's four members in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations—Thailand, Singapore, Malaysia and the Philippines—and Japan, Australia and New Zealand have said they will attend the conference. The Cambodian government of Premier Lon Nol also will be represented.

Malik said among nations invited who have not responded are Communist China, North Korea, South Korea and Laos. Communist China and North Korea are expected to reject the invitations, as North Vietnam did Sunday.

Commenting on Moscow's charges that the conference called by Indonesia will only serve U.S. interests, Malik said sharply: "Let them say what they want. It just goes to show that the Communists are frightened when their conduct is to be examined."

Back To Africa?

DURHAM (AP) — Stokeley Carmichael told black students at North Carolina Central University Monday that "the basis for revolution is land," and blacks would never get land in the United States.

"We will go back to mother Africa for land," he said. "He said the movement toward PanAfricanism would emerge 'as a result of historical necessity.'"

Carmichael has lived in Africa for the last several months and only recently returned to the U.S.

"We're not asking you to come to Africa," Carmichael said. "We are only asking for your support of the struggle in Africa."

"You wouldn't mind coming to Africa. You just don't want to leave America," he said. "We understand that."

"You must study history so that you can prepare to accept our ideology. There are many people who quote Marx, but only few who have read him. You must read Marx and you must read Malcolm X," he told the students.

Carmichael described the black revolution as a struggle "between Africans and Europeans."

"There are no black capitalists," he said. "And there are no white revolutionaries."

He lashed out at what he called "white liberal hippie-yippie-whoopie-do-nothings."

Republicans And Democrats Will Cast Ballots Saturday

Both Democrats and Republicans will have an opportunity to cast ballots in Saturday's primary election in Pitt County.

Democrats will receive four ballots, while Republicans will receive only two. I Bruce Koonce, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections explained today.

Koonce said both Republicans and Democrats will receive two non-partisan ballots, including one to select members of the Pitt County Board of Education, and the second to vote for or against a proposal to make Pitt Technical Institute a community college.

Only properly registered Democrats will receive two other ballots — one to select nominees for county offices and one to nominate candidates for Congressional and state offices.

The state ballot, Koonce said, allows Democrats to select a nominee for the First Congressional District seat held by Walter Jones of Farmville, who is being opposed by L.C. Nixon of New Bern in the primary; and select between R.A. (Fred) Hendrick and Harry C. Martin for judge of the court of appeals.

The county ballot allows Democrats to nominate either Charles H. "Charlie" Whedbee or Robert D. Rouse Jr. for Superior Court Judge; Jerome "Jerry" Paul or Julian R. Allsbrook for state senate seat number one; Vernon E. White or Marvin Blount Jr., for senate seat number two; H. Horton Rountree or Charlie H. Tyer for House of Representatives seat one; Sam D. Bundy or David E. Reid, Jr., for House seat two; John M. Gray or E. W. Harvey Jr. for coroner, and J. Vance Perkins or R. L. "Bob" Ramey for county commissioner.

Polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and remain open until 6:30 p.m. Koonce explained, at the county's 26 precincts.

ECU Foundation Presented Gift: Stock Worth $10,000

The East Carolina University Foundation today received a gift of $10,000 worth of stock in the Little Mint chain of quick-service drive-in food establishments.

Donors of the stock were principal owners, R.R. Forrest and Wilbur Hardee, both of Greenville. The gift was accepted by East Carolina University president, Dr. Leo Jenkins, on behalf of the Foundation and by Foundation director, Reynolds May, in ceremonies in the president's office.

"It is really gratifying to see two of our fine citizens respond to the needs of our university through our Foundation," Dr. Jenkins said. "With a spirit such as this, the Foundation and the future of the University are assured."

Forrest told Dr. Jenkins, "It is a real pleasure to make this gift to the East Carolina University Foundation. I have always been a friend of the University and believe it is Greenville's biggest asset. It has made a tremendous impact upon the business life of our community and no doubt will continue to do so. I hope all our citizens will support the Foundation."

Hardee said, "East Carolina is vital to the business life of our community. I welcome this chance to support it through its Foundation."

"Dr. Jenkins, I would like to say for all the stockholders of our Little Mint chain and myself, you have been a great asset to East Carolina University and the community it serves, and ECU has been an asset to the Little Mint chain. On behalf of Forrest, his family, myself, and my family, we are happy to give this stock to the ECU Foundation."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Miss Angie Brooks of Liberia, president of the 24th General Assembly, sent word to friends here Monday that she had married Isaac Randolph, an educator, in Monrovia.

Miss Brooks, 42, was married during her teens and divorced. She has two grown sons.

SAT Is Criticized By Shaw U. Prexy

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and other such tests used as admission standards by colleges and universities were assailed Monday night by Dr. King Cheek.

Cheek, president of predominantly Negro Shaw University at Raleigh, appeared on a panel discussion along with William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, and Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University. The event was sponsored by the University of North Carolina Young Democratic Club.

Cheek said a "sensitive response" by government is needed to meet the problem rising costs bring to students and colleges. Tuition subsidies would be one way of helping students meet these costs, he said.

He said student unrest was due partly to an "absence of communications" and to attitude that refuse to recognize the "students are mature individuals."

Friday commended student concern over problems of polition and environment. He said North Carolina colleges and universities should undertake reasonable expansion programs and should "find ways to keep the cost as low as possible."

Jenkins told the audience that institutions of higher education are confronted with a struggle between those who believe colleges should teach students how to make a living and those who feel students should get a liberal arts education. Both groups are "of equal importance," Jenkins said.

Discuss New Curriculum

Hundreds of social studies teachers from schools all over North Carolina attended regional conferences held at various towns to discuss forthcoming revisions in the field of social studies curriculums.

Washington was the town selected for the meeting in this area. Teachers from Greenville, Pitt County and East Carolina University attending the Washington meet were: Jean P. Creech, J.H. Rose High School; Mrs. Willie F. Jones, C.M. Eppes Junior High School; Charles S. Plater, J.H. Rose High School; Bob Sigmon, Greenville City Schools; Stella H. Smith, E. B. Aycock Junior High School; Robert I. Barnes, Jr., H. B. Sugg School; Anne D. Williams, Stokes - Pactolus High School; Carolyn H. Edwards, Stokes - Pactolus High School; and Dr. Ralph E. Birchard, East Carolina University.

The regional meetings are part of a three year in-service program designed by the State Department of Public Instruction and the African-American Institute.

One important aspect of the revision, according to State School Superintendent Craig Phillips, is the scheduled inclusion of African studies at the seventh grade level during the 1971-1972 school year.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:15 p.m. collision on Greene Street, 45 feet North of the Fourth Street intersection involving cars driven by William Franklin Welfare Jr., 51, of Snow Hill and Olin Hillard Manning Jr., 26, of Rocky Mount.

Police, who charged Manning with having improper equipment, set damage to the Manning vehicle at $250 and estimated damage to the Welfare vehicle at $125.

Olivia Gorham Moore, 1819A Norcott Cir. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:15 a.m. collision on Hudson Street, 200 feet north of the Fifth Street intersection.

Officers reported the Moore vehicle collided with a car driven by Asa Stanley Waters, 52, of 2817 Jackson Dr.

Damage was set at $75 to the Waters car and $125 to the Moore vehicle.

No injuries were reported in the collisions.

One important aspect of the revision, according to State School Superintendent Craig Phillips, is the scheduled inclusion of African studies at the seventh grade level during the 1971-1972 school year.

Direct Grants To Needy N.C. Students Asked

RALEIGH (AP) — A program of direct grants to help needy college students, as well as state aid to the schools they attend, has been urged by President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

Both public and private institutions of higher education in North Carolina face crisis-stage financial problems, Friday told the Student Financial Aid subcommittee of the Legislative Research Commission.

He told the group Monday a massive program will be needed even to get at the problem of the hard-core disadvantaged in North Carolina.

The UNC president said President Nixon's student financial aid program envisions a combination of direct grants and loans for needy students.

Announce Winners In Typing Contest

High school students from 16 counties in eastern North Carolina assembled at East Carolina University on Thursday, April 23, to participate in the District Typewriting Contest sponsored by the Department of Office Administration and Business Education of the School of Business.

The students represented approximately 7,150 students enrolled in beginning and advanced typewriting classes. Contests were held in the high schools prior to the April 23 event to determine participants for the district competition.

Following the contests, an Awards Dinner was held in the South Cafeteria at which time awards were presented.

Assisting with the presentation of awards were Dr. James H. Bearden, Dean, School of Business; Dr. Audrey Dempsey, Chairman, Department of Office Administration and Business Education; Jim Watts, president of Pi Omega Pi and the Society for Advancement of Management; Larry Horton, president of Delta Sigma Pi; and George Roberts, president of Phi Beta Lambda.

Pi Omega Pi, Delta Sigma Pi and Phi Beta Lambda are national honorary business fraternities represented on the ECU campus.

Members of the faculty serving on the Typewriting Contest Committee are Miss Velma Lowe, Miss Frances Daniels, Mrs. Ruth Jones, Mrs. Ouida Debter, Dr. Harold McGrath and Mrs. Thadys Dewar, Chairman.

Names of winners and the high schools they represent include: PITT COUNTY — Laura Lee Turnage, third place, Individual Winner in Beginning Division, Farmville High School; Laura Lee Turnage and Brenda Callicott, third place winners, Team Winners in Beginning Division.

FARMVILLE HIGH SCHOOL — "I strongly favor the 18-year-old vote," President Nixon says in calling for a constitutional amendment to lower the voting age.

ROBERT MORGAN
ATTORNEY GENERAL

Dr. William E. Fulford, Jr., President
Pitt Technical Institute
Greenville, North Carolina

Dear Dr. Fulford:

Since our conversation here in the office the other day, I have had an occasion to talk with some members of the East Carolina administration and some members of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina concerning the Pitt Technical Institute's efforts to add a college transfer program to their present curriculum. Some question had been raised as to whether such a program would conflict with the programs being offered at East Carolina.

It is our feeling that a college transfer program at the Technical Institute will enhance and complement the efforts of the university by providing opportunities for many young men and women to obtain the first two years of college, who for one reason or another would not be eligible to attend the university.

We know that because of the tremendous demands for admission to our freshman and sophomore classes, East Carolina University, as well as our other state-supported colleges and universities, are limited in the number that they can accept.

There is also the well-known fact that some of our boys and girls simply do not react favorably in a large campus atmosphere. There are many occasions when the small community college environment can bridge this gap.

I do not believe we can deny any boy or girl the chance of trying for a college degree, and there is always room for more opportunities to make such a degree possible; therefore, I concur that a community college in Pitt County would provide one more road for these youngsters to take.

Sincerely yours,
Robert Morgan
Chairman Board of Trustees

Merit Certificates Awarded Club

Certificates of merit for excellent work for the year 1969 were awarded to the Woman's Club of Greenville at the N.C. Federation of Women's Clubs Convention.

The convention was held in Winston-Salem April 21-25.

The certificates included: Fine Arts Department, Fine Arts Department award, second runner-up for Dorothy Heath Bowl for best overall Fine Arts Department in the state; Division of Art, second runner-up for the Mrs. Harvey Boney Award for excellence in art; Division of Art, second runner-up for the special award, Chessie Forrest candelabrum for largest contribution per member to the Ten Penny Art Fund; Division of Literature, Drama and Creative Writing, second runner-up for the Zoe Kincaid Brackman award given for outstanding work in this area.

Education Department: certificate and star for $1 or more per member for Sallie Southall Cotton Scholarship Fund for 1969; International Affairs Department: certificate from CARE, awarded by B.H. Brown, southeastern field director, CARE, Atlanta, Ga., for local club's contribution in 1969.

Public Affairs Department: Citation for outstanding achievement for Get-Out-The-Vote Campaign.

Mrs. George Ross, first vice president, in presenting the awards said, "Do not be discouraged if you do not receive a silver award. Some clubs have spread themselves in many areas, while others concentrated on one particular area. The clubs who have contributed much in various fields are to be as highly commended as those that receive silver awards." Representing the Greenville Woman's Club were Mrs. J. L. Savage, president of District 15, Mrs. George Clapp, president of the local club, Mrs. Anne Phillips, chairman of International Affairs Department, and Mrs. William A. Pollard, chairman of the Fine Arts Department 1969.

Mrs. Daughtrey Gives Program

"Annual Flowers" was the program topic for the meeting of the Home Pride Garden Club held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Ledyard Ross. Mrs. Jack Weeden was co-hostess.

Mrs. Lyman Daughtrey, in giving the program, said when deciduous tree leaves fall, then is the best time to plant seeds. She concluded the program with a game involving the identification of annual plants.

Mrs. Bobby Boseman presented plans for the club's annual May luncheon. Six tables will be set and decorated according to the theme of selected countries. Serving on her committee are Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Joe Clark and Mrs. Patrick Duncan.

The club voted to "clean up, paint up and fix up" the grounds of the house where Operation Sunshine will be held this summer, as participants in the city's clean up campaign.

Mrs. Frank Thompson will serve as president for the new year. Nine members toured the Edenton Garden and Home Show and reported on the event.

New members are Mrs. Arthur Alford, Mrs. Austin Britt, Mrs. Larry Vacek and Mrs. Fred Wagner. Mrs. Edwin O'Donnell was a guest.

Mrs. Britt will conduct an informal workshop this summer on rooting and propagation.

If your eyes are rather deep set, use a foundation of a lighter shade to help bring them out. Having completed your make up take a pad of cotton that has been wrung out in cold, cold water and gently press it over the face. This will add a lovely luminous glow to your complexion. Also at home without make up, two or three times a day, take time out to press an ice cold wash cloth all over your face. It's a good start to a healthy glowing complexion...

A Satellite Sounds Warning

There is nothing to be optimistic about in view of Communist China's launching of a 380-pound satellite over the weekend.

While the satellite launching seems peaceful enough, it means that Red China now has the capability of building missiles which can carry nuclear warheads anywhere on earth.

Communist China must be rate the most belligerent nuclear power on earth at this time and its possession of the rockets needed for delivering nuclear bombs must be viewed seriously by the rest of the world.

More than once the opinion has come from Chinese officials that Red China could survive a nuclear war, with people to spare. There is some reason to feel that their officials don't really believe this. It is obvious that presuming many Chinese did survive a nuclear war the destruction and deaths would be horrible, even for such a highly populated country.

Nevertheless Red China is feuding with its neighbor the Soviet Union; it is anything but a friend of the United States and other western nations. All of these nations must be viewing the satellite launching as a most ominous event.

As the Chinese satellite circles the earth sending forth the revolutionary anthem "The East is Red" it is certain that the event is being carefully considered by both the United States and the Kremlin.

It appears obvious that it is time for the United States to try to develop a better dialogue with the giant Red Chinese nation. Our country has a hot line with the Soviet Union to handle unforeseen emergencies. Soon unforeseen emergencies could set off nuclear war with Red China. Somehow we have to prepare to head off such emergencies.

Remember: An Hour's Sleep Has Been Lost

If you are still waking up yawning these mornings, remember that an hour's sleep was lost Sunday morning because the clocks were turned up an hour to accommodate Daylight Savings Time.

We can take some comfort in the knowledge that the change will mean longer afternoons, however. As the days lengthen even those early risers who are now finding it still dark when they arise in the mornings will begin to appreciate the extra hour's daylight in the evenings.

For right now though, there is still an hour's sleep which was lost Sunday morning. Many of us will need a few days to adjust to the new time—but then it only happens once a year.

Arguing While Threat Grows

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A bitter struggle between the Interior Department and the Budget Bureau has now delayed for almost six weeks Interior's emergency request for more inspectors to stop oil and gas pollution in the Federally-owned Gulf Coast continental shelf.

Secretary Walter Hickel's formal request for a supplemental appropriation went to the all-powerful Budget Bureau on March 19. Although the amount involved is only a piddling $400,000 to add 25 or so Federal inspectors to the outrageously inadequate force of 46, the Budget Bureau has been sitting on the request with no indication of quick approval.

The dispute between Interior and the Budget Bureau is not over the need for more inspection, following the massive Chevron Oil Co. (Standard of California-owned) oil spill off Louisiana's Gulf of Mexico coast on Feb. 10. Both agencies agree that tighter policing of repeated oil company violations of Federal regulations requires more inspectors.

But Budget Bureau specialists claim that the Interior Department plays footsie with the big oil companies are penalized for breaking the law instead of slapped on the wrist, say these specialists, more inspectors would cure nothing.

Thus, the Budget Bureau is demanding that Interior draft stiff enforcement procedures before it approves the supplemental request.

Interior's answer to that is Hickel's own order shutting down Chevron's operations for weeks as a result of the Feb. 10 blowout (an unprecedented punishment) and Hickel's decision to prosecute Chevron for scores of alleged violations. A grand jury in New Orleans is now investigating the case.

Interior officials claim that, although top-level policy on punishing violations under the Johnson administration was "don't raise any hell with the oil companies," Hickel has already proved to be far tougher. Hickel is asking not only more inspectors, but light aircraft for quick spot checks of the vast array of rigs in the oil-rich continental shelf.

The Budget-Bureau wants more than that. It wants specific enforcement procedures spelled out. If they aren't forthcoming, Hickel's appeal for more inspectors and pledge of tougher enforcement may be lost in a bureaucratic wrangle, with pollution and the oil companies the winners.

Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, powerful chairman of the taxwriting Ways and Means Committee, is harvesting a potentially valuable crop of political IOUs from liberal Democrats just in case Speaker John McCormack should change his mind and yield the speakership next January.

Mills has travelled across the country at least twice in the past few months to speak at fund-raisers for such members of the liberal Democratic Study Group (DSG) as Rep. James Corman and Rep. B. B. Sisk of California, Rep. Jacob H. Gilbert of New York, and Florida's Rep. Claude Pepper.

Mills' stock with some liberals went up when he pushed President Nixon's welfare-reform bill through the House without significant change. Mills intimates say that he regards his sponsorship of that bill, together with Medicare which he shepherded through the House in 1965, as strong underpinning for some liberal backing in case he decides to go for Speaker, despite his opposition to civil rights bills.

If the aging McCormack insists on running for reelection, Mills will not contest him. But if McCormack yields to growing complaints about his faltering leadership, Mills' political forays for liberal Democrats, most of whom are members of his own committee, will pay important dividends.

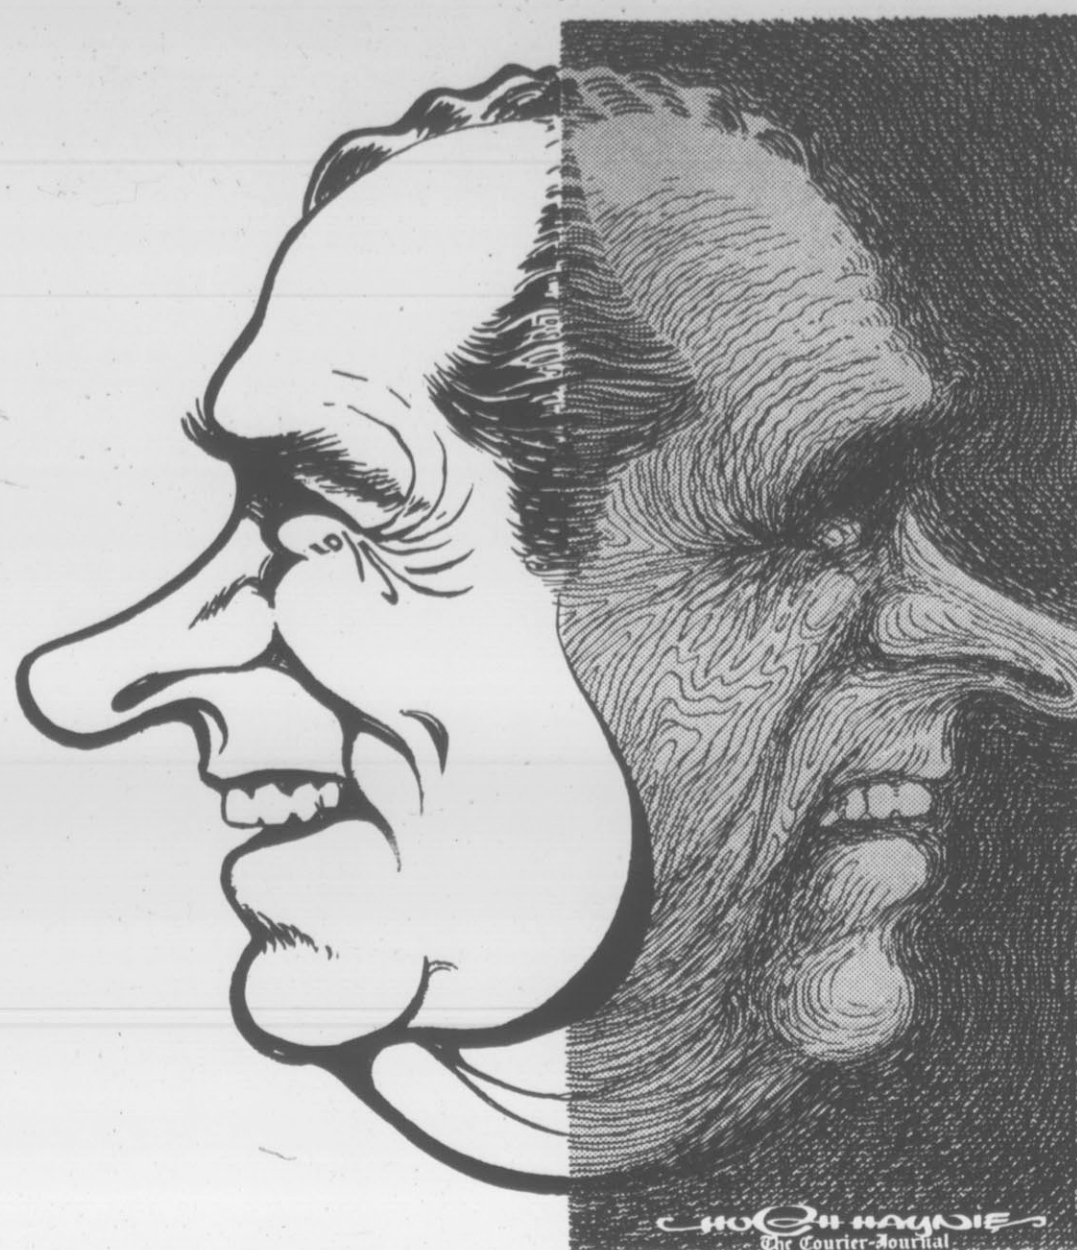

A footnote: One Northern liberal, who says an appearance by Mills in his district would be good for at least $40,000 in campaign contributions, has not invited him for one reason: "I don't want to get indebted."

Strength For Today

Prison Bars Unavailing
In this day of religious freedom it appears unthinkable that men should ever have been cast into prison for their religious convictions. Yet the centuries have been stained with this dishonor.

John Bunyan was cast into Bedford jail, and if one goes to Bedford, England, today he sees the lock which secured the door against this glorious man of God. For twelve years he lay in jail. He might have been forgiven if he had sunk into bitterness. He might even have lost his faith. Certainly the best one could have hoped was that he would come forth, his health unimpaired, with some good faith and cheer left to sustain him.

By JAMES KILPATRICK

It Is Not In Our Stars

HICKORY, N.C. — On the after-dinner road again, headed south first, then to the West Coast. It is getting on toward midnight, here in this dreary motel room, and the column will not come. It has to come; tomorrow's deadline sits on a heavy stomach, but the typewriter is cold and the trash basket full of bad leads.

The room is green. The walls are sea green, webbed in seaweed paper. The carpet is the green of snap beans. The curtains are green, the bedspread, the blanket is turquoise. It is like writing in an aquarium.

Tonight's audience was receptive but the speech went poorly. One for four, and a scratch single at that. Sometimes you're up, says the song, sometimes you're down. This was a down. This was a down night, and I have come back to this dugout in the blue dumps known to hitters who fan with runners on base. The typewriter looks at me like an unfed dog.

So I have been sitting for a while in the green-tweed chair, watching Kansas burn on the TV screen. The color control is out of kilter; I am too tired to correct it, so the smoke comes out purple and the flames a putty yellow.

This is the dawn, so they say, of the Age of Aquarius; I herald it from a motel, darkly, in the livid light of a university set afire.

In the name of God, what has happened to our country? If this were Columbia or Cornell or Berkeley, the flickering image might not sear the heart. Scar tissue grows. But this is Lawrence, Kansas, heartland America; here, too, the arsonist's torch. And tonight it is not only Kansas. At Penn State, the president and his wife have fled their home to escape the stones of "dissenters." Demonstrators seize a campus building in upstate New York. The virus of nihilism, nothingness, spreads its destructive infection.

I am not cheered, not tonight, by the thought that the anarchists constitute a small minority of the whole body of American students. Whatever it is that has infected this minority, it is no worse than the wasting disease that has paralyzed the numb forces of decency. What was Burke's epitaph for mankind? All that is necessary to the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing.

How have we fallen so weak, so sick, so spineless, nerveless, gutless? Is this the consequence of some lunatic obsession with equality—that all ideas are equally good, all modes of conduct equally permissible? Have we so corrupted our values as to accept the suicidal notion that in a society based upon order, disorder deserves equal time?

So it's the Age of Aquarius, is it? The fault, dear Brutus, lies not in our stars but in ourselves. We middle Americans have signally failed to look after first thing first, to cultivate in our public institutions those rules of law, civility, and grace that might have kept the whole thing in balance. Somehow we forgot—and this is Burke again—that liberty exists only with order and virtue, and cannot.

Not An Age Of Letters

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments by a pavement Plato:

However this chaotic age is remembered in the future, it won't be recalled as a period of great letter writing.

It has neither the leisured grace nor mellow philosophy—or even the passionate desire to communicate one's thoughts—that stimulates the creation of great letters.

Folks today aren't so much interested in telling each other what they think as they are what they heard on a television talk show the night before.

Ah, for the shades of the great letter writers of yesterday—Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, Dean Swift, Lord Chesterfield, John Keats, Lord Byron, Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson, to name but a few.

Unable to pick up a telephone and exchange their opinions and ideas offhand, they sat down, took a sharpened goose quill in hand, dipped it in an inkwell and by laor of mind and gift of wit turned out long letters that are part of the endless glory of the English tongue.

Their letters took time to write and a much longer time to reach their recipient—days, weeks, even months—but they said something not only to him but to all mankind.

It is getting harder every year for anyone to achieve lasting fame as a letter writer even though he sets out deliberately to do so. There are other factors to blame besides the more practical efficiency of the telephone, the telegraph and the office dictating machines—plus the time-wasting allure of television.

Who will take the trouble to write a clever letter to a giant corporation when he knows it will be read only by a tired white collar office underling and answered by a bored computer? Even George Bernard Shaw couldn't win a literary duel with a pompous computer.

Here's another problem: Suppose poet John Doakes, disturbed by the predicaments and paroxysms of civilization, indites a masterful letter to his friend, poet James Doe.

"Rosebud," says Doe, turning to his wife. "This letter from Doakes is too good to be lost. It is our duty to save it for posterity."

"Oh, no, we don't," replies Rosebud. "There isn't room in this apartment for anymore junk. We don't even have space to save our income tax returns."

And into the wastebasket goes Doakes' masterpiece.

Yes, the tradition of great letter writing appears headed for the same oblivion of the goose quill and lamplight that spawned it.

A Little Of Everything Bad

By ELMER ROESSNER

Remember the old schoolboy puzzle: "When an irresistible force meets an immovable body, what happens?"

There were a lot of an-

swers: An explosion. He marries the girl. And so on. We may get a provable answer soon. What happens when the irresistible force of inflation meets the immovable body of recession?

That's the way the economy is headed. Recession is continuing, by all government figures, by all private calculations. The rise in the gross national product is slowing down. Corporate profits are shrinking. Unemployment—technically—is rising.

A Little Of Everything

Inflation is continuing, too. Prices and wages are rising and government largess is pouring into the laps of taxpayers, Social Security beneficiaries, federal employees and organized workers.

This is a remarkable situation. The United States is the only country in the world that can afford inflation and a recession at the same time. Reminds one of the quip during the Depression: The U.S. is the only country in which the old folks can drive over the hill to the poorhouse in an auto.

Grimly: The current outlook is for both more inflation, more recession.

Both, of course, cannot go on for long. A good guess is that inflation will go on. It has resisted all manner of fiscal controls so far. The recession will go on for a while. But the inflationary drives will eventually run over it, and inflation will become dominant.

More Business Futures

Here are more glimpses over the business horizon: Capital spending will get further corporate reviews, with more postponements. Two principal reasons for delaying capital expenditures are the high cost of financing and the decline in corporate income.

Also slowing: inventory accumulations. A Commerce Department survey indicates manufacturers will add about $2.9 billion to inventories in the first half of this year, compared with $3.5 billion in the first half of 1969.

Also slowing: the rate of mergers and acquisitions. With drops in profits, many candidates for take-overs look less attractive and high interest rates keep the costs of acquisitions high.

Higher appliance prices are probable. Both copper and aluminum have gone up, and this is likely to bring another round of price increases.

Things To Watch

The government's suit for $16.7 million against the First Chicago Corp., parent company of the First National Bank of Chicago, has implications for many other banks. The Internal Revenue Service challenges tax deductions for interest expenses on indebtedness which it says was incurred to purchase or carry tax-exempt securities. First Chicago maintains the claim, for 1965 and 1966, is unsupported by law. If the IRS wins, it could hit First Chicago for other years and affect many other banks.

New tests of microwave ovens are being conducted by both government agencies and manufacturers to determine if they emit dangerous waves. Unfavorable findings could hit sales hard. Meanwhile, some hospitals, beauty shops and other users are suspending use.

Five More U.S. Aircraft Lost In Vietnam Combat

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the loss of five more aircraft in which 15 Americans died and six were wounded, and an accidental bombing by U.S. planes that killed 10 Vietnamese militiamen and wounded 20 others.

Eight of the Americans were killed in an Army UH1 helicopter shot down Monday in the Central Highlands 21 miles southeast of Pleiku City. The only survivor was wounded.

Another six Americans were killed and two injured early today when a twin-engine AC119 gunship crashed and burned in a rice field just after taking off from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Air Base. Spokesmen said the cause of the crash was under investigation, but it appeared that the plane developed mechanical trouble.

An OH6 observation helicopter crashed Monday while trying to evade enemy ground fire within a mile of the Cambodian border 67 miles northwest of Saigon. Two Americans were wounded, a spokesman said.

U.S. headquarters also made a delayed announcement of the loss of a medical evacuation helicopter last Thursday to enemy ground fire two miles northwest of the besieged Dak Seang Special Forces camp in the Central Highlands. No casualties were reported. But it was the 15th American aircraft lost at Dak Seang since the North Vietnamese laid siege to the camp on April 1.

The fifth American loss was an Air Force fighter-bomber that was hit last Saturday on a mission over Laos. The crew tried to get back to its base in Thailand but crashed southeast of Khon Kaen, in Thailand. The pilot was killed and the copilot injured.

The accidental bombing occurred Monday afternoon along the coastal lowlands 77 miles southeast of Da Nang.

"Two U.S. Marine A4 aircraft accidentally delivered bombs on civilian irregular defense group forces while on a bombing mission in response to a request from ground troops," a U.S. spokesman said. "The accident is under investigation."

The U.S. Command said there were 32 enemy rocket and mortar attacks from 8 a.m. Monday to 8 a.m. Tuesday, with one American killed and 17 wounded.

U.S. B52s dropped 450 tons of bombs today within a mile of the Cambodian border and south of the suspected headquarters of the Viet Cong high command, American spokesmen said.

The Stratofortresses flew three missions against suspected enemy bunkers, base camps, gun positions and storage and staging areas 67 miles northwest of Saigon. The area is just west of a key infiltration corridor from Cambodia which the military calls the Fishhook because it protrudes into South Vietnam.

Former Admiral

Named To Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has named retired Adm. George W. Anderson Jr. to succeed retired Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor as chairman of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

The White House announcement Monday said Anderson, of McLean, Va., would take over Friday. Taylor has resigned effective Thursday.

Anderson, New York-born, was chief of naval operations from 1961 to 1963 and was U.S. ambassador to Portugal for the following three years.

clashed with North Vietnamese forces Monday at five points along the Cambodian border ranging from 63 miles northwest of Saigon to 91 miles northeast of the capital.

The U.S. Command said at least 45 of the enemy and three Americans were killed and 12 Americans were wounded. Spokesmen said most of the action was in War Zone C, the Viet Cong stronghold in northern Tay Ninh Province.

No Proof Of Kidnap Plot

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard says it had found no proof of a plot to kidnap Princess Margaret's son, but the police are still investigating.

"The inquiry continues," a spokesman said, "but police have not been able to obtain corroboration of any of the allegations made."

The 8-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth's sister, Viscount Linley was to return to Ashdown House Preparatory School today after an Easter vacation. The school is in a heavily wooded area 35 miles south of London, and London detectives checked its security precautions in advance of the royal child's return.

Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, heard rumors last week of a plot to kidnap their son and hold him until the government freed Reginald and Ronald Kray, twins who are serving 30-year sentences for murder.

The Snowdons called in Scotland Yard and tried to keep the scare quiet, but the Daily Sketch and the Evening Mail got telephone calls about it.

There was no indication of alarm about any of the queen's children.

exist at all without them. I am late on this copy, but everywhere the hour grows late. It is not enough — it never was enough — to urge merely that destructive students be expelled and arsonists be brought to trial. Order has to come first, the restoration of order by whatever force may be required. Ronald Reagan was instinctively right: God prevent a bloodbath, he said, but if reason cannot prevail against chaos, let us fill the tub; and not flinch.

My head rings with Burke tonight. In his great speech on conciliation with the colonies, Burke said the use of force alone is but temporary, and he was right. "It may subdue for a moment, but it does not remove the necessity of subduing again; and a nation is not governed, which is perpetually to be conquered."

Force alone won't quench these vivid fires. Without a rededication to the old values — justice, fairness, manners, kindness, respect for others, a sense of enduring responsibility for what has been and what will come, we are done for. I see few signs of such renewal. I see deadline, and a jet plane leaving; and in a motel at midnight I don't know when peace comes back again.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were mostly steady with instances of 25 higher. Tops of 23.50-24.00 at Rocky Mount; 2.25-24.00 at Tarboro; 23.25-23.75 at Siler City and Denton; 23.25-23.50 at Wilson; 22.25-23.25 at Bethel; 23.75 at Greensboro; 23.50 at Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was mostly steady. Supplies fully adequate for a fair ready to cook demand. Weights desirable. Live at farm 13 cents a pound. Hens, supplies about adequate for a fair buying interest. Heavy hens 14 cents per pound. Light type two five to report.

NEW YORK (AP) — The market did an about face early today and began moving upward in active trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 stocks was up 79 at 735.15 at 11:15 a.m., after being off some 3 points earlier.

Advances have pulled almost even with declines, which had been ahead by about 2 to 1 earlier. The turnaround was being led by glamor stocks, which also had led the recent decline, analysts said. Analysts said the rally primarily was technical.

Among the glamors, Memorex was up 2½ to 94½; Telex, up 5¼ to 93¼; Burroughs, up 2½ to 129½; University Computing, up 1½ to 33½; and Teledyne, up ¼ to 18½. IBM is off 2½ to 299, after being down 4½ earlier.

Morgan Endorses Community College Status For PTI

"I concur that a community college in Pitt County would provide one more road... for many young men and women to obtain the first two years of college, who for one reason or another would not be eligible to attend the university," stated North Carolina Attorney General Robert Morgan.

Morgan's comments were contained in a letter to William E. Fulford Jr., president of Pitt Technical Institute. Morgan is chairman of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina University.

Morgan, in his letter dated April 9, told Fulford, "since our conversation here... I have had an occasion to talk with some members of the East Carolina administration and some members of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina" concerning PTI's efforts to add a college transfer program to their curriculum by becoming a community college. "Some question had been raised as to whether such a program would conflict with the programs being offered at East Carolina."

Continuing, Morgan noted, "It is our feeling that a college transfer program at the Technical Institute will enhance and complement the efforts of the university by providing opportunities for many young men and women to obtain the first two years of college, who for one reason or another would not be eligible to attend the university."

The ECU board chairman pointed to crowded conditions at state-supported colleges and universities, and the fact that some students "simply do not react favorably in a large campus atmosphere" as areas in which a community college could help "bridge this gap."

"I do not believe we can deny any boy or girl the chance of trying for a college degree, and there is always room for more opportunities to make such a degree possible," Morgan stated.

Won Honors In Road-e-o

Joyce Carol Hardy from Stokes-Pactolus High School and Alvin Jenkins from Bethel Union took first-place honors in their division Sunday in the 1970 Jaycee Teenage Driving Road-e-o.

By winning the driving championships, both Miss Hardy and Jenkins are eligible to participate in the state competition scheduled for June 6 and 7 in Salisbury.

In the girls' division, Cherry Fleming from Stokes-Pactolus finished in the first runner-up spot and Paulette Pittman from Farmville High School won second runner-up honors.

Carl Massey of Farmville High School placed behind Jenkins in the boys' competition and finished in the first runner-up position. Anthony Teel of J.H. Rose was second runner-up.

The road-e-o is sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees and co-sponsored by the Local Mercury dealer, Smith-Waldrop Motors.

Boy Reportedly

'Fine' After Heart Surgery

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Little Kenneth Woolard, whom doctors said surgery to repair a hole in his heart was a "now or never" matter in efforts to save his life, is so far doing better than expected following surgery last Friday at Duke Hospital.

Ashley Futrell, publisher of the Washington Daily News, this morning said "Kenneth was taken out of intensive care Sunday night and the last we heard was that he was getting along fine."

When it was first reported in the Washington Daily News that two year old Kenneth was in dire need of emergency surgery which would be costly, citizens of Beaufort County immediately responded by raising a sizeable fund to take care of the expenses.

Pitt County scout troops captured three of the 11 special citations awarded to the entire East Carolina Council this weekend at their 1970 camporee held at the Bonner Campsite near Washington.

According to Council headquarters in Wilson, Troops 362, sponsored by the Moose Lodge, 191, sponsored by Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church, (both from Greenville), and 34 from Ayden won the citations from Pitt County.

All Pitt scouts were set up in the Gold Area at the camporee and two other troops in the area took citations. Rocky Mount Troop 516 and Camp Lejeune Troop 590 won the honors.

Troop 362 received their award for a display on anti-litter involving a "litter-bug" set-up, 191 received their citation for overall scouting spirit, and 34 won for their equipment and layout display.

Citations are awarded by the camporee chief to various troops that exhibited outstanding merit and display during the camporee.

Gold Area Chief for the event, Frank Saunders from Greenville, said that Pitt scouts won a total of 60 blue ribbons, 17 reds, 12 whites, and 29 greens.

All total, he said, there were 45 troops comprising 118 patrols from the county set up in the Gold Area. Overall, there were 1002 scouts and scout leaders in the area.

Pitt Scouting executive Bob Mosely pointed out that preparation for the camporee is a year-round job with activities conducted throughout the year being considered in the overall awards.

While at the camporee, scouts were judged on camping techniques, cooking and campsite maintenance, in addition to various competitive events such as first aid, knotting and signaling.

In addition to Saunders, Sam Sewall and Rudy Alexander, both from Greenville, served as area judge and registra, respectively.

Also assisting in the scouting activities were representatives from the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity at East Carolina University and members of the AFROTC at ECU.

Crowd estimates were set at close to 4,600. The camporee was being held at the Bonner Campsite for the second time this year will be held there as a permanent site each year.

Tonight at 7:30, WITN in Washington will feature a scouting documentary and portions of the show will involve troops from Greenville, Saunders said.

Girls participating in the clean-up event were: Virginia Baker, Susan Boudreaux, Debra Boyd, Cindy Buck, Lisa Butts, Pam Evans, Susan Hudson, Sondra Padgett and Susan Tacker. The group was accompanied by their leaders Mrs. Mavis Butts and Mrs. Doris Hudson.

Sheriff's Dept., SBI Investigating Assault

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department and State Bureau of Investigation personnel are continuing their investigation this morning into the assault of a 23 year old Greenville mother.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the victim, whose name is being withheld due to medical reasons other than her own, lives on Windsor Road in the Brook Valley section of Greenville.

The assault reportedly took place between 1 and 2 o'clock Monday morning after two unidentified men gained entrance to the home by forcing a lock on the back door. A sliding glass door on the back of the house had also been tampered with but not forced, he said.

Sheriff Tyson said the assault victim lives in the home with her husband and young child and mother and father. Her husband was out of town for employment training at the time of the incident and her parents were also away from Greenville at the time.

Lab samples have been sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D.C., the Sheriff said, and results of these chemical analysis should be available soon.

Both Sheriff's Department personnel and Dan Gilbert from the SBI are investigating the incident.

The Shrinking Market Basket

If inflation isn't curbed and prices continue to go up-up and away, supermarkets will be able to reduce the size of their shopping baskets. People won't be able to fill them.

That might seem facetious but there was nothing funny about the news released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics recently. Most papers carried it in banner headlines. It announced the nation's Consumer Price Index rose a record 6.2% in 1969: the largest annual increase in 18 years.

The Consumer Price Index—the yardstick for measuring the cost of goods and services now stands at 125.6. Translated into dollars and cents, it means that goods and services that could have been bought for $10 in 1957-59 now cost $125.6.

This is a forceful—even painful illustration of what inflation means to the consumer. A person can talk about inflation endlessly but until it can be related to the family pocketbook, it doesn't seem to register. That's what makes inflation such a serious threat. It occurs over a period of time. We accept it and adjust to it until we reach a point where there is no more room to adjust.

The only alternative at that point is to adopt stringent sometimes harsh measures to curb it. The government is attempting to flatten out the inflationary spiral at the present time. The income-tax surcharge was a step in that direction but it isn't a cure-all.

Consumers themselves are the best regulators of inflationary pressures. The most effective curb is to curtail unnecessary spending. In the final analysis, we are our own best defense against the rising cost of living.

But in order to be effective, we must be consistent. Although the temptation to spend is great (income has risen to some extent) austerity or just plain common sense must prevail. Shop conservatively. Buy only what is needed. Increase the amount allocated to savings.

Savings themselves will pay added dividends because the dollars saved now will buy more goods and services when prices stabilize and then start to turn down.

For example—a man has a product to sell for $1. Two people are anxious to buy the product. They bid the price up in order to obtain it. That's inflation. Same man—same product—same two people. This time they are not anxious to buy. In order to sell, the man reduces the price. It's simply an application of the law of supply and demand.

Don't engage in a contest to boost prices.

Pirates Meet Paladins In Key Series

McGee Regional Grid Official

Mike McGee, head football coach at East Carolina University, has been appointed Region 3 representative of the American Football Coaches Association by Frank Broyles, the organization's president.

McGee, who succeeded Clarence Stasavich as the Pirates' head coach last December, will represent the states of Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, plus the District of Columbia.

The AFCA will hold its annual convention in Houston, Tex., next January. McGee will represent Region 3 colleges and universities at that meeting.

The 31-year-old McGee was an

All-American offensive guard for Duke in 1959 and won the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding lineman that same season. After a three year NFL career with the St. Louis Cardinals, he entered the coaching ranks, serving as an assistant at Duke, Wisconsin and Minnesota before taking the ECU job.

The honor is the second for McGee in the last 10 days. Just a little over a week ago Otto Graham tapped McGee to serve as assistant coach for the College All-Stars, who meet the Super Bowl champion Kansas City Chiefs July 31 in Chicago. Broyles, the FCA president, is head coach at the University of Arkansas.

Bucs Seeking Southern Titles

East Carolina University will send three teams to respective Southern Conference Championships this week.

Coach John Welborn's golfers will be defending their championship at the Country Club of North Carolina in Pinehurst; Coach Bill Carson's track men will be out to better last year's second place finish at Port Eutis, Va.; and Bill Dickens will take his tennis team to Davidson with his No. 1 player Graham Felton carrying the No. 2 seed.

Welborn's golf team won the championship last season with relative ease and the chances for a repeat this season seem very good.

Furman and The Citadel offer the toughest competition but ECU has one of its best golf teams in recent years to counter this. The Pirates' twin combination of Vernon and Joe Tyson along with freshman Rocky Rockett will make a definite bid for individual honors won last season by Furman's David Strawn who is back this year.

In the track championships, ECU, Furman and The Citadel probably will fight it out for second place behind powerhouse William & Mary.

The Pirates will carry their best team ever to Fort Eustis and Carson expects one of the best meets ever. Half-mile Jim Kidd, jumper Walter Davenport and sprinter Mark Hamilton, who owns the school record in the 100 (9.7) are ECU's leaders.

The tennis team will be led by Felton, who finished the regular season with a 4-1 conference mark, losing only to Furman's David Ellison, the o. 1 seed.

Dickens is relying on his No. 3 doubles team of Kirk Jones and Bruce Linton to show well after compiling a 4-1 conference record. With a couple of good draws, Dickens expects to have three or four players in the finals.

Scores On Catcher's Error

Chicago Gets 11th In Row As Pirates Fall

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Joe Decker is a slow starter, but luckily for the Chicago Cubs Hank Aguirre and Phil Regan are fast finishers.

That triumvirate teamed up Monday night to pitch the Cubs to their 11th consecutive victory, a 1-0 squeaker over Pittsburgh. The last time the Cubs won 11 in a row was 1945, which just happens to be the last time they won the National League pennant.

Somehow (translation: New York Mets) the Cubs didn't win in 1969. And one of the reasons was their overworked pitching staff. But if Monday's game is any indication manager Leo Durocher has finally found his long-sought fourth starter.

His name is Joe Decker. Well, actually, his name is George Henry Decker, but as far back as he can remember—he'll be 23 on June 16—everyone's called him Joe, or Joey, and he doesn't know why.

And the Cubs don't much care, by George. Not after the way the 6-foot, 175-pound right-hander throttled the Pirates on six hits for 81-3 innings.

ertson, but Clemente was nailed in a rundown when Al Oliver tapped back to the mound. Regan then came on and got Jerry May to bounce into a game-ending force play.

Philadelphia edged Los Angeles 4-3 in the only other NL action. Montreal's scheduled game at San Diego was rained out.

In the American League, it was Cleveland 5, Minnesota 1; Boston 4, Oakland 3 and Washington 6, Milwaukee 5 in 10 innings.

Decker, who beat the Mets on the final day last season for his only other major league decision, is in his sixth year as a pro. But his development was slowed in 1966-67-68 when he attended Arizona State University and didn't play baseball until June.

"By the time I was ready to pitch," he recalled, "the season was half over. What complicated things even more was the fact that I'm a slow starter."

Decker got in shape for baseball this season by serving a five-month hitch with the Arizona National Guard. He didn't get to the Cubs' camp until mid-March.

The Cubs' run was unearned

East Carolina University's Pirates travel for Furman University tomorrow to face the Paladins in a showdown for the Southern Conference's southern division baseball crown. A sweep of the two-game series by the Bucs would insure the title for them.

The Citadel was virtually eliminated from the title yesterday when its game with William & Mary was rained out. According to conference rules, rained out games with teams of the other division are not made up. That would give The Citadel only an 8-6-1 record if it went unbeaten the rest of the year, while the Bucs are already 9-3.

Furman, after downing Richmond yesterday, now stands 7-4 for the year, with doubleheaders left with the Bucs and with The Citadel.

A sweep by the Bucs would boost their record to 11-3 and seal the title for the Pirates. Furman would then fall off to 7-6-1 with only two games left.

However, a Furman sweep would put the Paladins into the lead in the race, and pin everything on the outcome of the Saturday doubleheaders. While Furman meets The Citadel, East Carolina takes on Davidson.

The Pirates are expected to go with Sonny Robinson and Hal Baird on the mound in the two games. Robinson will be fresh from his victory over Davidson last week, when he took a 2-1 victory in one of his better performances of the season.

Baird, 4-2 for the year, will be trying to snap back from his worst performance, as he was knocked off the mound in a 5-4 loss to William & Mary on Saturday.

Robinson currently posts a 1.45 earned run average, while Baird is just a shade better with a 1.40 mark. Chief Pirate hurler Ron Hastings who saw action Sunday in beating George Washington shows a tidy 0.51 ERA.

The Bucs are led at the plate by first baseman Skip Taylor, who boasts a .324 mark for the season. He is the only regular above .300, but Larry Walters is just below the mark with a .294 average. He is followed by Dennis Vick at .288 and Stan Sneed at .237.

"We expect to have a real tough battle on our hands," Coach Earl Smith said. "They want to repeat badly. Our team is going to have to want it to get by them."

If tradition holds, the Pirates will come out on top. Since becoming eligible for the NCAA playoffs in Gastonia, held at the end of every season, the Bucs have gone in even-numbered years.

Deacon Golfers Making Bid For Third Straight North-South Title

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest University golfers have won the last two North and South Amateur tournaments, and the Deacons are off to a flying start in their bid for No. 3.

Four members of Coach Jess Haddock's current team were jammed into the upper bracket as second-round play began today. In addition, the defending champion, Joe Inman of Greensboro, N.C., was one of four former Wake Forest players among the 32 men in top half of the draw.

Two years ago Jack Lewis, now a pro, started the Deacon surge by winning this 70-year-old tournament.

It was one of the present crop, 19-year-old sophomore Loge Jackson of Toxboro, N.C., who fashioned the big upset of Monday's first round. He polished off Dick Siderowf, Walker Cup veteran of Westport, Conn., 5 and 3.

Jackson shot three-under-par golf over the 7,051-yard, par-72

No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club. Veterans of the tournament said the course played longer than it had in years as the result of an overnight rain.

They had stronger language for some of the pin placements. Lanny Wadkins of Richmond, Va., runner-up to Inman last year and now a Wake Forest sophomore, saw Jackson's score on the big board and commented: "He's playing number five for Wake Forest, but he won't be number five for long if he keeps this up."

Wadkins and Jackson were joined by Deacon teammates Mike Kallam of Winston-Salem, N.C., and Steve Walker of Burlington, N.C., in the victor column.

In addition to Inman, other former Wake Forest players in the top half were Bobby Edgerton of Raleigh, N.C., and Leonard Thompson of Lumberton, N.C., paired together today, and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., who met Dick Guardiola of Cleveland, Ohio. Patton, three-time winner here, is playing the first North and South in five years. He was nonplaying captain of last year's U.S. Walker Cup team.

Simmons, who had 1,697, "I had strikeouts on my mind," said McDowell. "That's bad. When I try to strike them out, I get in trouble."

But McDowell's strikeout pitch and, surprisingly, his bat, helped keep the trouble at a minimum. Sudden Sam's toughest jam came in the eighth when the first two Twins reached base. But he fanned Brant Alyea, Rich Reese and George Mitterwald in order to escape. McDowell also had two hits and scored twice for the Indians.

McDowell said his preoccupation with strikeouts hurt his effort. "You lose the purpose of what you're trying to do—throw certain pitches to certain batters to get them out the easiest way possible."

The Senators tried to give O'Donoghue an out in the easiest way—a simple sacrifice by Stroud. Washington had rallied for the tying runs in the 10th inning on a bases-loaded single by Ed Brinkman and now Manager Ted Williams wanted to move the winning run over to third.

But O'Donoghue didn't take the give-away out. Conceding the successful sacrifice, the Brewers' reliever tried to get Stroud at first but heaved the ball into right field instead, allowing Jim French to score the winning run.

Washington starter Joe Coleman had nursed a 3-2 lead into the ninth and was working on a four-hitter until rookie Danny Walton tied the game with a leadoff homer in the ninth.

Then Milwaukee took the lead

an inning later when Ted Savage delivered a run-producing RBI double and came around himself on a stolen base and a wild pitch.

But the Senators bounced right back, loading the bases on two walks and a single before Brinkman's hit and O'Donoghue's error gave them the victory.

Reggie Smith capped a perfect day with an eighth inning homer giving the Red Sox their victory over Oakland.

Earlier Smith had tripled and scored on a wild pitch, walked and singled. His eighth inning shot against Catfish Hunter gave Vicente Romo a victory in his first start of the season.

Haywood Gets MVP Honors

NEW YORK (AP)—Spencer Haywood, Denver's sensational rookie who led the American Basketball Association in scoring and rebounding this season, was named the league's most valuable player today.

The 20-year-old Haywood was the overwhelming choice, receiving 17 first place votes from the 20 sports writers voting. The ABA commissioned the U. S. Basketball Writers Association to make the selection.

and 19.4 rebounds per game in leading the Rockets to first place in the Western Division this season. He set a league single-game scoring record with 59 points against Los Angeles in the final game of the regular season.

Haywood starred on the championship U. S. Olympic basketball team in 1968 before winning All-American honors at the University of Detroit, in his home town.

He then signed with Denver in a controversial move last summer. He had two years of college eligibility remaining.

The 6-foot-9 Haywood started the season at center but was switched to forward after Joe Belmont replaced John McLendon as coach early in the season.

Haywood set ABA season records with his 2,519 points and 1,637 rebounds. In his sweep of honors, he also was named the most valuable player in the ABA All-Star game in January.

Roger Brown of Indiana received two first place votes and Mel Daniels of Indiana, last year's MVP, received one. However, Rick Barry of Washington was second in the overall voting.

Dave Overpeck of the Indianapolis Star, chairman of the panel of voters, announced the results.

Haywood received 97 points of a possible 100, and Barry had 48 points. Daniels, Brown and Bob Verga of Carolina were next in the voting.

Haywood averaged 29.9 points

Glue May Be Ball's Excuse

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If the baseball is going farther faster this season, as some pitchers claim, San Francisco Giants pitching coach Larry Jansen thinks he knows the reason.

The Giants were issued 750 dozen balls at the start of the season, all with Giles' signature stamped on them.

Jansen inspected the balls with Feeney's signature when Giants visited Houston, Cincinnati and Atlanta.

"I've torn open discarded balls and found some Giles balls with the glue and some without," Jansen said. "The Feeney balls I've opened all have it."

At Houston, Jansen pointed out, the Giants hit five homers in their first two games there. All last season, the Giants hit only three homers in the Astro dome.

In an Atlanta-Cincinnati game 10 homers were hit.

"These things run in cycles," says Feeney's public relations assistant, Dave Grote. "I might point out that there have been some good pitching performances, such as Wayne Simpson's one-hitter and Tom Seaver's 19 strikeouts."

"Every year, somebody says the ball has been changed to make it livelier. It's not so."

Jansen, who has been doing some carving with his pocket knife, claims the newest balls have a rubberized glue just under the leather cover and that balls manufactured earlier do not have the glue.

Charles Feeney, in his first season as National League president, replacing Warren Giles, already has denied a dozen times that the ball is any different than it was 30 years ago.

"Last year, we started to get balls with a rubberized glue between the leather cover and the inside wrapping," Jansen said Monday as the Giants were off, awaiting Tuesday night's game here against the New York Mets.

"If anything is making the ball go farther faster this season, the glue must be it," Jansen says.

McDowell Moves Past 1,700 Strikeout Mark Against Twins

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Sam McDowell was thinking about strikeouts, which explained some of his problems. But just what was John O'Donoghue thinking about?

Cleveland's McDowell fanned eight Twins moving past the 1,700 mark for his career and worked his way through numerous jams to beat Minnesota 5-1 Monday.

O'Donoghue, summoned from the Milwaukee bullpen after Washington had tied the score in the 10th inning, heaved Ed Stroud's attempted sacrifice into right field, allowing the winning run to score as the Senators rallied to beat the Brewers 6-5.

In the only other American League game played Monday, Boston topped Oakland 4-3.

In the National League, streaking Chicago won its 11th straight, edging Pittsburgh 1-0, Philadelphia shaded Los Angeles 4-3 and Montreal's game at San Diego was postponed by rain.

McDowell took over 32nd place on the alltime strikeout list, increasing his career total to 1,703 and moving past Curt

Simmons, who had 1,697. "I had strikeouts on my mind," said McDowell. "That's bad. When I try to strike them out, I get in trouble."

But McDowell's strikeout pitch and, surprisingly, his bat, helped keep the trouble at a minimum. Sudden Sam's toughest jam came in the eighth when the first two Twins reached base. But he fanned Brant Alyea, Rich Reese and George Mitterwald in order to escape. McDowell also had two hits and scored twice for the Indians.

McDowell said his preoccupation with strikeouts hurt his effort. "You lose the purpose of what you're trying to do—throw certain pitches to certain batters to get them out the easiest way possible."

The Senators tried to give O'Donoghue an out in the easiest way—a simple sacrifice by Stroud. Washington had rallied for the tying runs in the 10th inning on a bases-loaded single by Ed Brinkman and now Manager Ted Williams wanted to move the winning run over to third.

But O'Donoghue didn't take the give-away out. Conceding the successful sacrifice, the Brewers' reliever tried to get Stroud at first but heaved the ball into right field instead, allowing Jim French to score the winning run.

Washington starter Joe Coleman had nursed a 3-2 lead into the ninth and was working on a four-hitter until rookie Danny Walton tied the game with a leadoff homer in the ninth.

Then Milwaukee took the lead

an inning later when Ted Savage delivered a run-producing RBI double and came around himself on a stolen base and a wild pitch.

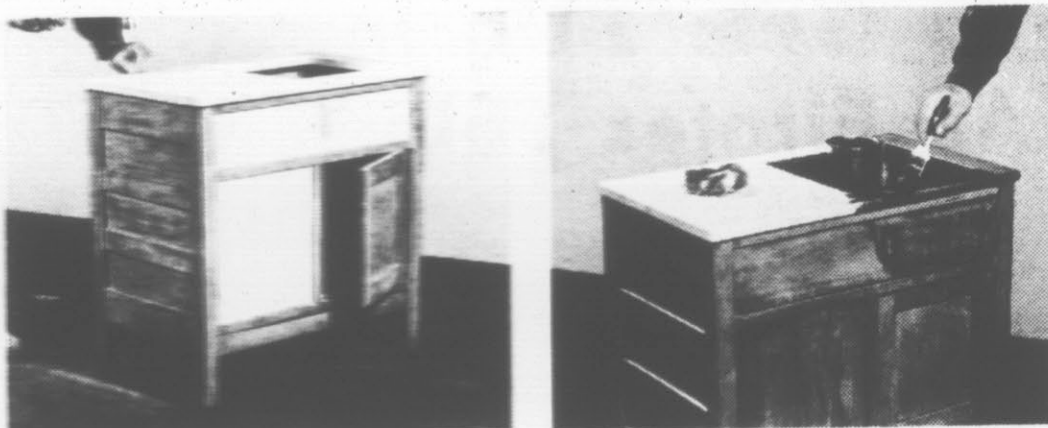

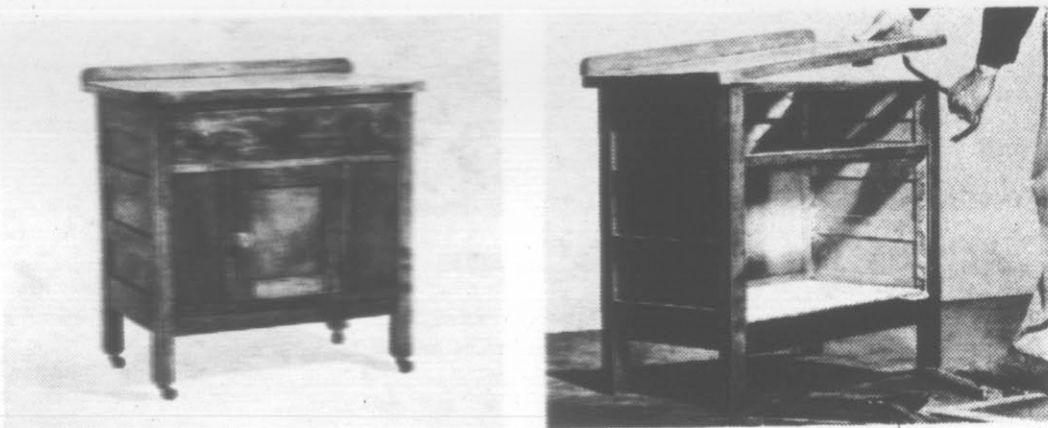

But the Senators bounced right back, loading the bases on two walks and a single before Brinkman's hit and O'Donoghue's error gave them the victory.

Reggie Smith capped a perfect day with an eighth inning homer giving the Red Sox their victory over Oakland.

Earlier Smith had tripled and scored on a wild pitch, walked and singled. His eighth inning shot against Catfish Hunter gave Vicente Romo a victory in his first start of the season.

This small chest had some good design elements but it needed a little demolition to get rid of the undesirable features. So the small door was removed, along with the flanking panels. The entire drawer was then discarded, and the top was ripped off. Then the varnish was removed with paint remover, taking care to get all the old finish off, so that the stain, applied later, would go on evenly.

The original door was refuted over to one side, and new panels were put in the old drawer opening and remaining front opening. The new panels were inset from the divider strips slightly to match the door and side panels. The new top was made with an opening for a copper "sink."

Raw umber and raw sienna, linseed oil, and turpentine made the stain that matched the new wood to the old. After an overall stain, raw umber right from the tube was rubbed into corners and cracks to make an antique finish. Two coats of stain varnish finished the job.

Its amazing how a woman can make something out of nothing.

At least a smart one can.

So your rooms are as bare as the proverbial cupboard. And so is your furniture budget. Well, count your pennies. Can you afford several yards of ribbon, to make a classy room divider? Can you afford eight or ten clay tiles, to make a snazzy wine rack? Or eleven dollars for lattice molding, if it turned into a fantastic bookcase? Or ten dollars for the materials to make an original work-of-art-type area rug?

Can you afford maybe an hour or so every two weeks to plunder through junk stores, and your grandmother's attic for treasures in disguise?

If you can, we have a book for you. It's Better Homes & Gardens' decorating book—"Hundreds of Ideas for Under $100." It'll start you thinking about great effects, for little or no money. Who knows? You could wind up with a home that's done to your very own distinctive taste. And maybe a Planters savings account, with the money you've saved on furnishings.

You can pick up the idea book at any Planters office. It usually costs $1.50. But we've arranged to get it for you for 65¢. After all, if a bank won't help you save money, who will?

Medical Aid In Wearing A Bra

Verna wants to know the facts about "topless" apparel for waitresses and girl swimmers. So read this case with special care. For the female bra, like the girdle or corset, has both a medical as well as cosmetic advantage. Without a bra, a girl soon resembles a Holstein cow!

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph. D., M.D.

CASE M-567: Verna T., aged 18, is a coed.

"Dr. Crane," she asked, "is it medically wise to wear a bra?"

"Recently a number of girls decided to omit their bras."

"They said they didn't like to compress their breasts in that manner."

"And they gave the impression that a bra is medically bad and might be a cause of breast cancer."

Some restaurants have even advertised that their waitresses go without any bra and thus are "topless" in apparel.

But this innovation is obviously not because of any possible medical disadvantage of the bra.

It is merely an attempt to add salacious appeal and thus attract more male patrons who want a semi-burlesque show with their meals.

Last summer, our daughter Judy was down in Indiana visiting her Grandma Crane, who is an arch foe of all lewdness.

"Grandma," Judy began, "what's the world coming to? For Andy and I went down to the beach in Chicago last Sunday and half of all the swimmers were wearing topless bathing suits! Imagine!"

Grandma Crane almost had apoplexy at this shocking statement.

As she spluttered in indignation, Judy's eyes twinkled and she added:

"Of course, the half who wore topless bathing suits were men!"

But the wearing of a brassiere or "bra" probably started with Eve in the Garden of Eden.

And wisely so, both from the medical as well as the cosmetic angles.

For the female breast is composed mainly of fat, with a few strands of milk secretory cells, plus some fiber bands that hold the breast to the chest wall.

If a girl thus fails to support her breasts with a bra, and if she engages in jumping exercises, as in tennis, or is jolted while horse back riding, then her breasts will flop up and down.

As a result, the fiber bands will stretch till her breasts become flabby and thus drop lower and lower, thereby making her look older.

For the virginial breasts usually are much higher on the front chest wall than are the breasts of a wife with children, since motherhood usually enlarges the breasts and makes them sag.

Thus, an older woman or a mother, can gain a more youthful profile if she employs a bra.

There is a medical joke anent flabby breasts which recounts the request of a woman who asked her doctor where to point a revolver when she wanted to commit suicide.

He told her to place the muzzle of the gun under her left breast.

But later he was called to the hospital to treat this same

East's eight of diamonds played a key role in defending against South's grand slam contract in no trump. Retention of that card by the defender averted a 2,300 point swing on the deal.

When North's three heart response to his partner's opening two no trump bid was raised to game, the former proceeded to check for controls via Blackwood. After his inquiry uncovered all the aces and kings, North reasoned that he could count 11 tricks—five hearts and two in each of the other suits. Since the Blackwood responses had revealed only 17 of South's points, he could be relied on for at least 5 more points—enough to assure a reasonable play for 13 tricks and North proceeded without further ado to seven no trump.

West opened the queen of diamonds which was won in the closed hand with the king. Twelve top tricks could be counted. Declarer tried first to score his 13th in hearts where he needed only a three-two division in the suit. The ace of hearts was cashed followed by the queen on which West discarded a diamond.

South next turned his attention to clubs by playing the ace and queen—however he met disappointment once more when East showed out on the second round, parting with a spade. There was one more string to declarer's bow—a squeeze play. West was known to have the missing clubs, and from his opening lead, it appeared that he had the main burden of protecting the diamond suit.

In order to place some preliminary pressure on East, South cashed the king of clubs. Had East discarded one of his two remaining diamonds, he would have created a true squeeze position against his partner. South merely leads over to the king of hearts and then runs the spade suit. West can part with one club and one more diamond. When the fourth spade is led, however, West must give up his protection in either diamonds or clubs since North still has the ace-seven of diamonds left while South retains the eight of clubs.

When the king of clubs was led, East was alert to the possibility that his seemingly worthless diamond holding might provide some assistance to partner in the end position, and he discarded a spade. This broke up the squeeze, for after the king of hearts was played and the spades were run, West was able to give up his diamond protection. North's seven of diamonds lost the last trick to the eight which East had been careful to preserve to the bitter end.

Became A Clown

For Son's Sake

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) —

Richard T. McAllister of Rochester says he decided to become a circus clown recently because he wanted his 12-year-old son Michael "to learn to accept laughter."

"Michael is a midget. He used to hide because he thought people were laughing at him," McAllister said.

"Since he's joined me in my act, he's become a big ham."

McAllister, 39, got a four-month leave of absence from his job as a carpenter and joined a show now touring New Jersey.

Nutritional Study To Begin On May 4

The national study of the nutritional status of preschool children begins the week of May 4, when a survey team of health-care specialists comes to Pitt County.

The program entitled, "Evaluation of Nutritional Status of Preschool Children in the United States" is financed by a Children's Bureau research grant to the Children's Hospital Research Foundation, Columbus, Ohio.

Agencies cooperating with the study are the Pitt County Board of Health, the North Carolina State Board of Health, the North Carolina State Medical Society and the Pitt County Medical Society.

The children studied will be randomly chosen by computer from the total population without regard to race, creed, national origin, or socio-economic level. Participation in the program will be voluntary.

The survey will furnish an accurate picture of preschool children from one to six years of age and point the way to a better understanding of their health needs and more effective nutrition education programs.

Dr. R.E. Fox, Pitt County Health Director, urges parents to cooperate in this undertaking.

In addition to furnishing data for use in county and national programming that will be a direct benefit to each child selected for study, Dr. Fox stated.

One phase of the survey calls for a comprehensive physical examination of each child by a pediatrician. The examination will be provided at no cost to the family. All information on the child will be kept confidential.

Music Festival Opens Tomorrow

IN FULL REHEARSAL... Herbert Carter leads the Symphonic Band as mezzo - soprano Donna Stephenson sings a solo part from Norman Dello

Joi's "Songs of Abelard". The concert will be at Wright Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday night.

East Carolina University's five day, five concert Spring Music Festival opens tomorrow night when Herbert L. Carter directs the University Symphonic Band in a concert of modern music.

Appearing at Wright Auditorium Wednesday night at 8:15, Carter and ECU's Symphonic Band, with mezzo soprano Donna Stephenson, will present four compositions dating between 1949 and 1969.

Dr. Paul Cooper, guest composer for the 1970 Spring Music Festival, will be represented on the Symphonic Band program with "Sinfonia III: Liturgies." Since 1968 Cooper has been chairman of the Department of Composition and Theory, History and Literature and Composer-in Residence at the College-Conservatory of Music of the University of Cincinnati. "Sinfonia III" is Dr. Cooper's third work for a symphony band.

Mezzo soprano Donna Stephenson of ECU, who has been heard in several recent university concerts, will sing the vocal solos in "Songs of Abelard" by composer Norman Dello Joi.

From the year 1966, Vincent Persichetti's "Masquerade for Band" will be used as the program's opening number.

The final offering of the Symphonic Band is Robert Russell Bennett's "Suite of Ole American Dances." Dating back 21 years, it's the oldest composition on the program.

Admission to this and other concerts of ECU's Spring festival is free of charge. The public is invited to attend.

Paid For By Committee For Bundy

Should Bolster Vocation Field

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of four articles prepared by Pitt Technical Institute concerning the May 2 vote to expand Pitt Tech to community college.)

Question: How will community college status affect the existing technical and vocational programs?

Answer: If Pitt technical Institute becomes a community college its technical and vocational programs will be greatly strengthened. By law a community college is required to offer technical and vocational courses; and, by vote the Pitt

Tech Board of Trustees has committed itself to expand vocational and technical programs to meet the growing industrial and economic needs of Pitt County.

A community college will cause an increased enrollment in technical and vocational programs. Studies from Wayne and Lenoir Community Colleges show an enrollment increase of 230 per cent in technical and vocational programs since their conversion to community colleges.

During the first year, the new college - transfer program will bring to the institution $125,000 in additional State funds. This money will be used for instruction and supplies which will benefit technical and vocational students as well as college - transfer students.

Also, students taking technical and vocational courses at a community college can transfer these courses to other institutions with credit. Being a technical institute limits the transferability of technical and vocational courses.

Question: Will the community college be in competition with East Carolina University?

Answer: A community college will complement rather than compete with East Carolina. E.C.U. has a selected student body; whereas, a community college has an "Open" admissions policy. Students may enter a community college without a set SAT score and without having taken certain required courses (foreign language, algebra, etc.) in high school.

A community college makes available the first two years of college to the student who for financial, social, or other reasons cannot or does not wish to attend a university. There are many students in Pitt County who fit this category. The only chance for many of them to ever go to college is having a community college in Pitt County.

Other questions concerning the expansion of Pitt Technical Institute to a community college will be answered in the article to follow.
