

President Exudes Confidence; Wall Street Is Gloomy

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid growing concern over the stock market's long and sharp decline, President Nixon again has expressed optimism the nation's economy will pick up steam this summer after a painful leveling off process.

"Frankly, if I had any money I'd be buying stocks right now," Nixon told a visiting business group Tuesday in an informal 35-minute chat on the troubled economy.

The President, said a spokesman for the group, said he will make a major report to the nation dealing with the economy and other matters in about two weeks.

As Nixon exuded confidence in the economy, Dr. Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in Dallas the economic slowdown that began last year should mean price increases will begin to level off later this year.

In contrast to the administration's optimism, the gloom on Wall Street continued. The stock market dove again Tuesday and reached the lowest point in six years for the second day in a row.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 10.82 points to 724.33, the lowest since the day President Kennedy was assassinated in November 1963. The industrial average had fallen Monday by 12.14 points.

The market slump has been blamed in part on the business community's growing concern about the Nixon administration's ability to bring inflation under control—and also over generally poor earnings by major companies.

Another sign of the slowdown appeared Tuesday when the nation's big three steel companies announced their profits had dipped by more than 30 per cent despite increased revenues during the first quarter of the year.

U.S. Steel said profits dropped just over 30 per cent, Bethlehem 34 per cent, and Republic Steel 34 per cent.

The nation's largest automakers have reported similar profit declines.

On Wall Street, analysts said traders were becoming more concerned with the state of the economy. "We have discovered that inflation is bad for stocks," said Sidney Homer, an economist for a New York investment banking firm.

In Washington, Nixon's message to the executive committee of the American Society of Association Executives was: "keep your faith in the American economy."

John L. Spafford, Houston, Tex., president of the society, saying Nixon told them they were free to pass on his words, quoted the President as saying:

"I'm going to urge the people not to let such factors as employment being down, business being off and the stock market being down cause you to become deeply concerned to the point where you lose faith in the economy."

"It is a leveling off process. I'll tell you what is going to happen: You will begin to see, in the third quarter of the year, the economy leveling off. It will begin to turn, then in the fourth quarter you will begin to see more encouraging signs of the upturn."

As for the economy's troubles, Nixon was reported to have said, "The administration won't let it get out of hand."

A White House spokesman said no time has been fixed for Nixon's address.

In Dallas, McCracken told a meeting of the Financial Analysts Federation the administration's moves to control inflation will begin to reap benefits later in the year.

The same prediction was made by Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz in a speech to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington. The secretary also spoke out against labor-management agreements which, he said, feed inflation at the expense of the rest of the nation.

But the government's index of leading indicators designed to predict what the economy may do in the future declined slightly in March.

The Commerce Department said the index fell one-tenth of one per cent, after an increase of eight-tenths of one per cent in February. The slight decrease brought the index to 150.3 per cent of the 1963 average.

The latest report continues the indicators' up-and-down behavior, which began last September after reaching an all-time high point of 153.4 per cent.

Census Trouble In Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — This town's 24-hour-a-day whirl of activity is causing the census people trouble.

The census will not be finished on schedule April 30, the district census manager said Tuesday, "principally because of the abnormal number of times census takers must call back at households to find someone at home."

He started out with two cats as companions, but one jumped ship in Samoa and the other was run over by a truck in Fiji. In South Africa he acquired two more cats, which two months ago had two kittens.

After their marriage, Patti followed by ship and air and met him at Barbados in the Caribbean and more recently in the Galapagos Islands. Why didn't she accompany him on his voyage?

"He started out singlehanded, and he wanted to finish singlehanded," said the smiling wife. She confided: "Robin will be a father in July."

Why did Robin undertake his solo journey? Because, he has explained, he wanted to see the world but not as a typical tourist.

American Support Claimed Cambodia Operation By South Vietnam Troops

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government announced thousands of its troops with U.S. combat support launched a new operation inside Cambodia today.

A communique of the Defense Ministry did not make clear what it meant by combat support of American forces.

It said that in the operation South Vietnam's joint general staff "has requested and has got the support of American forces in combat support, logistics assistance and medical evacuation, etc."

The U.S. Command here and the White House and State Department in Washington declined to comment.

The South Vietnamese communique said the forces would pull out of Cambodia as soon as their mission was completed.

The Defense Ministry said the operation was launched "with a view to neutralize the North Vietnamese Communists' scheme of using the Cambodian territory as operation bases to infiltrate, shell and attack the territory of the Republic of Vietnam."

The operation is centered in an area inside Cambodia shown on military maps as the "Par-rot's Beak," west and northwest of Saigon.

The communique gave no details of the opening stage of the offensive, though newsmen along the border region had recently observed a massive buildup of South Vietnamese troops and armored personnel carriers operating out of Tay Ninh City, 50 miles northwest of Saigon. The Cambodian operation is centered southwest of Tay Ninh City.

It was the first official acknowledgment of armed forays into Cambodia by the South Vietnamese forces, although they have conducted at least half dozen others since the March 18 overthrow of the Cambodian chief of state, Norodom Sihanouk.

The communique said, "This operation is also a necessary measure in the framework of the policy of the Republic of Vietnam to gradually take more of the responsibility to defend its land and to replace American troops by Vietnamese troops."

The U.S. Command had no immediate comment on the South Vietnamese announcement.

The communique did not elaborate further on American involvement. It did not say exactly what the U.S. troops were doing. The U.S. Command has said that no American forces are authorized to cross into Cambodia for the purpose of taking part in military operations. In previous South Vietnamese operations into Cambodia, American forces have given support by flying supplies as far as the border where they then have been transferred to South Vietnamese transports.

American infantrymen also have acted as blocking forces just on the South Vietnamese side of the border in order to trap any enemy forces that might move back across the frontier while attempting to elude South Vietnamese units in Cambodia.

U.S. Forces Assisting Operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced today the United States will send advisers, tactical air strikes and other support for South Vietnamese operations in Cambodia. It called the move "a necessary and effective measure" to save U.S. and other allied lives.

The Pentagon thus confirmed an announcement by the South Vietnamese Defense Ministry in Saigon that U.S. combat and other support for a major operation in the "parrot beak" area of Cambodia jutting into South Vietnam about 35 miles from Saigon.

Asst. Secretary of Defense Daniel Z. Henkin read a statement to newsmen saying:

"The United States Military Assistance Command, Vietnam (MACV) in response to the request of the government of Vietnam is prepared to provide support" for the South Vietnamese operations.

"This support will take the form of advisers, tactical air, air coordinators, medical evacuation, and some logistics assistance."

"Before the Republic of Vietnam armed forces launched its current operations on the Cambodian border, the United States government was fully consulted. The determination was made that the action is a necessary and effective measure to save American and other free world lives and strengthen the Vietnamization program."

Thus, the Pentagon—speaking for the Nixon administration—casts the new development in terms of supporting the over-all objective of shifting the Vietnam war burden to the South Vietnamese and gradually withdrawing U.S. troops.

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., long a critic of U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia, took a different view.

Veteran Actor Ed Begley Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ed Begley, the veteran character actor who won an Academy Award for his portrayal of a Southern political boss in "Sweet Bird of Youth," died Tuesday night. He was 69.

Spokesmen said Begley dropped dead at a party. Details weren't immediately available.

His movies included "Twelve Angry Men," "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," "It Happens Every Spring" and "Sorry, Wrong Number."

He appeared on the stage in "Inherit the Wind," "Look Homeward, Angel," "Advise and Consent," "All My Sons," "What Price Glory" and "John Loves Mary."

A fifth-grade dropout and self-made professional, he was little known to the general public until he won his Oscar in 1963.

Recently Begley had appeared on a variety of television shows. Born in Hartford, Conn., March 25, 1901, Begley began running away from home at an early age to work in carnivals and fairs.

He worked on network radio shows beginning in the early 1930s, then won roles on Broadway. By the middle 40s he had acted on more than 12,000 radio programs, playing everything from doctors to gangsters.

He astonished the critics in the 50s when on Broadway he played the two leading roles in "Inherit the Wind" on successive nights.

Youth Nears End Of Lengthy Round-The-World Solo Sail

By GENE HANDSAKER

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) —

With only four cats for company on a tossing sea, a tousled blond youth tacked his way up the coast today, almost within sight of his goal: To become the youngest person ever to travel alone around the world in a sailboat.

His parents and the attractive, now pregnant California girl he met and married during his trip expect to greet Robin Lee Graham here Thursday afternoon. He told the Coast Guard by radio Tuesday he was 150 miles away.

Robin was 16 when he set out from Long Beach four years and nine months ago in his 24-foot sloop "Dove."

Last March 5 he spent his 21st birthday painting the bottom of his newer, larger boat, "Return of the Dove," in the Galapagos Islands. His last, 3,600-mile leg started there.

He started out with two cats as companions, but one jumped ship in Samoa and the other was run over by a truck in Fiji. In South Africa he acquired two more cats, which two months ago had two kittens.

"I'll be relieved when he arrives," said Robin's father, Lyle Graham, a real estate man. The Grahams live in nearby Newport Beach.

Finch To Open Reform Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch was called today to lead off the case for President Nixon's sweeping welfare reform plan before a skeptical Senate Finance Committee.

The committee, headed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., told Finch to reserve three days for extensive questioning on the House-passed legislation. Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz will be quizzed on the job training aspects next week.

Despite unhappiness among some Finance members over the plan, administration forces nevertheless remained confident the committee will stamp its approval on the bill sometime this summer.

The bill, passed 243 to 155 by the House April 16, would set up a new family assistance plan in place of the 35-year-old aid to families with dependent children program.

Under the plan, a cash income of at least $1,600 a year would be guaranteed for a family of four, and higher amounts for those with some personal income. The working poor would be included in the program for the first time.

All beneficiaries except mothers with preschool age children would be required to sign up for job training and to take suitable jobs.

Cigarette Tax Raised To Dime

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Despite warnings that it could lead to cigarette bootlegging, Virginia Beach Monday raised its per pack tax from 5 cents to a dime.

Before the City Council voted the increase, Page H. Sutherland, field director for the Tobacco Tax Council, told the city's lawmakers the action might cause "organized crime" to ship untaxed cigarettes into Virginia Beach for sale on the blackmarket.

The tax increase is expected to bring in $600,000 a year for the city.

LBJ Never 'Convinced'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System has deleted part of a taped interview with former President Lyndon B. Johnson. Published reports say the deleted part contained Johnson's comments on the findings of the Warren Commission.

Johnson expressed doubts about the "motivations and connections of Lee Harvey Oswald" and said he has never been "absolutely" satisfied with the report's identification of Oswald as the sole assassin of President John F. Kennedy, according to the published reports.

Richard S. Salant, president of CBS News, said Tuesday that a deletion in the interview scheduled for airing Saturday evening was made at the former president's request and on the grounds of "national security." But Salant declined to make the contents of the deletion public.

Record Road Work Ahead

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Highway Commission, in an apparent defense of the state's new gasoline tax hike, said today a record 1,309 miles of secondary road paving is being made possible by the money.

The commission said the total was the most to be paved during any year since the days of the administration of Gov. Kerr Scott 20 years ago.

A news release from the commission's public information office quoted Jack Murdock, secondary roads officer, as estimating: "At least 900 miles of the new paving would have been impossible without the extra revenues" from the two cents a gallon tax boost.

The new tax, voted by the 1969 General Assembly, has been criticized. Pressure to repeal the levy is expected in the 1971 legislature, which convenes in January.

Burglars Netted Over 100 Guns

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Burglars broke into a gunshop in the nearby community of Matthews Tuesday and made off with more than 100 pistols and rifles.

The GUNS, taken from Kimel Industries, were valued at more than $5,000. About 125 guns were taken in two other break-ins at the firm since December.

Cambodia Decision Is Entangled In Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's impending decision on Cambodia's military aid request comes against the reemergence of Vietnam as an important national political issue.

Although many political leaders in Washington have said Nixon's Vietnamization policy has neutralized the political impact of the war, a recent swing through five Western states indicates the war lurks as a potential hazard for the President and the Republican party.

Vietnam always has been a key issue in such states as New York and California, but now it appears to be resurfacing in smaller, more conservative states.

"People feel that something is being done to de-escalate," said Max Rich, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce in Salt Lake City. But he added any reversal in the withdrawal process, or anything indicating an extension of U.S. commitments in Southeast Asia, could carry political dynamite for the GOP.

Granting aid to Cambodia carries just such a risk for the GOP, many politicians believe. Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said one panel member cautioned Secretary of State William P.

Rogers Monday of the potential political effect of U.S. aid to Cambodia.

"If you do this, we can't elect a dog catcher," Fulbright quoted the unidentified GOP senator as telling the secretary.

Yet, many Republican leaders say Vietnam as a political issue is more help than danger to the Republicans.

"It's still a Democratic war," said Utah Republican Chairman Fred Wright. "They got us into it."

But the same morning, the Nixon-backing Salt Lake Tribune expressed disappointment with his latest war policy speech April 20, said it echoed the words of former President Lyndon B. Johnson and added:

"After his... address, Johnson's war may have become Nixon's war."

Inherent in all of this is the politicians' belief that the war has become increasingly unpopular as its impact has touched the lives of more and more people.

Thus, many political leaders believe the longer U.S. involvement lasts, the more of a liability it becomes for the man making the big decisions—President Nixon and the Republican party.

A basket of pompons and a basket of pink gladioli were placed on each side of the kneeling bench. The family pews were designated by white bows and wedding bells.

Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, organist, and Mrs. Earline Stocks presented the wedding music. The two songs were "When God Gave Me You" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Miss Briley was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of bridal lace and peau de soie designed with a lace bodice, long lace sleeves and a square neckline. The chapel length train was attached at the front waistline and was enhanced with inserted lace. The skirt front featured rows of lace.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a satin rose with petals. She carried a satin and lace covered prayerbook with streamers of satin featuring a Georgianna orchid and white carnations.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: After my eighth baby was born, I asked my doctor to "lie my tubes" so I wouldn't have any more children. It's nothing new. Lots of women have it done.

Well, that was two years ago, and yesterday my husband came home and announced that he had gone down to the doctor's office and had his tubes tied! It sure sounds to me like there's another woman in his life.

Maybe I'm just dumb, but I can't understand why HE had to have that done when there was no danger of getting ME pregnant.

Do you think he's off his rocker, or just plain don't like kids. Please don't use my name. Four of my kids can read. "OVER BEARING"

DEAR OVER: No matter what your husband's faults may be, "gambling" isn't one of them.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "FLAT AS A PANCAKE": Don't be disappointed in your measurements. I am stationed on Okinawa now, and the average chest size for a fully-developed woman here is 27 inches. So, cheer up! Age will help. Respectfully, A "GI" IN THE PACIFIC

DEAR "GI": Thanks for the comforting words for "FLAT" and all her flat sisters. It's good to know that our men in the Pacific are so compassionate, informed—and observing.

DEAR ABBY: I am only 14 years old and I have a problem. All my friends call me "conceited." I'm not really, but they think I am because I can't pass a mirror without looking at myself.

So what can I do about myself, Abby? Do you think I'm conceited or not?

DEAR NOT: Looking at one's self in the mirror does not necessarily indicate that you ADMIRE yourself. Perhaps you lack self-confidence and are seeking constant reassurance. Try to pass a mirror without looking into it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for "CAN'T SLEEP" whose conscience is bothering her over her neglect of an elderly mother, recently deceased.

Go to the nearest Old Folks home and take on a "mother" or even a "mother and father." Do for them what you wish you'd have done for your own. Think how much pleasure a ride on a sunny day, a small gift or even a bouquet of flowers would mean to the elderly "forgotten-by-family" people who are in these homes. If you can't take them out, you can go and talk with them, and listen to them reminisce. You will gain a lot. I know. I've tried it and it works. It's fun! [Sign me] CAN SLEEP

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

France Just As Perplexed As United States On Skirt Lengths

By Yvette de la Fontaine
PARIS (WNS) — "What are we going to wear on the other side?" That is the first question every American woman who comes to France asks me.
More than any other woman in the world, it seems to me, the American woman wants to be told. The French woman, on the other hand, can't be told. But in this season, she can't decide. She's cautious, so she's hesitating.
In any case, the women are not only ones wondering. French dress manufacturers are tearing their hair, they are so befuddled. The long clothes which manufacturers so hopefully delivered to dress shops throughout France are 95 percent unsold. One manufacturer roared that a stock of the noled merchandise would reach higher than the Eiffel Tower.
An enormous amount of the so-called unsalable long clothes has been returned to the manufacturers. The only really good sellers in long lengths are skirts and, of course, raincoats. The long raincoat is and has been the young girl's MUST in France.

Knee length 5 percent
Long lengths 9 percent
Don't care 2 percent
Questioned separately, men and women had opinions that proved the sexes incompatible. Women like - short, more strongly, the older they are. Only 27 per cent of the ladies came out in favor of the maxi lengths (in France, that includes midi and variations).
Only 49 per cent of Frenchmen favor mini or short skirts. The men who make up the remaining 51 per cent prefer feminine physical delights hidden in public, to be revealed to him and him alone in the privacy of the boudoir.

American Males
That is interesting in view of the fact that every American male I've met in Paris recently has opened the conversation with the question of skirt lengths. This holds true for men who know me and don't know that my business is reporting fashion.

These unhappy men protest usually against the way these "Frenchies," meaning the big couturiers, are mis-ruling the women of the world.

The truth of the matter is that, although they are showing more mini lengths than any other length, the couturiers have not taken a position. They are giving us plenty of choice: the question is, do we want it?
Cardin shows everything from Micro-mini through minis and midis to maxis. Jules Francois Crahay at Lanvin is similarly free wheeling. St. Laurent has taken a stronger position for long, but the fact of his firm being American backed may be a factor. Dior, Chanel, Ricci and Patou would like to bring back a length similar to the one introduced by designer Christian Dior and named by Lord and Taylor, the "New Look." For those who don't remember, it cuts the calf as it starts to slim in toward the ankle. But these designers, too, show many lengths.

Long And Short Of It
My own prediction is that long clothes won't take for spring or summer, but that the majority of women who need a new fall coat will want to try out a long one, and will purchase one. It is up to us to take it from there.

First of all, let us remind ourselves that we are free agents. We do not have to be "in fashion." I am inclined to agree with Mary Quant, the British designer who is considered responsible for the advent of both the mini and the maxi.
Mary insists we are, for the first time in this century, and perhaps for the first time ever, in an era of fashion freedom. There is not now, and it is possible there may never again be, one length, one look, one style that is in fashion.

As Marc Bohan of the house of Dior told me the other day, "A woman is not obliged to choose between long and short, but to choose which she wishes to put on today, and which on Thursday."

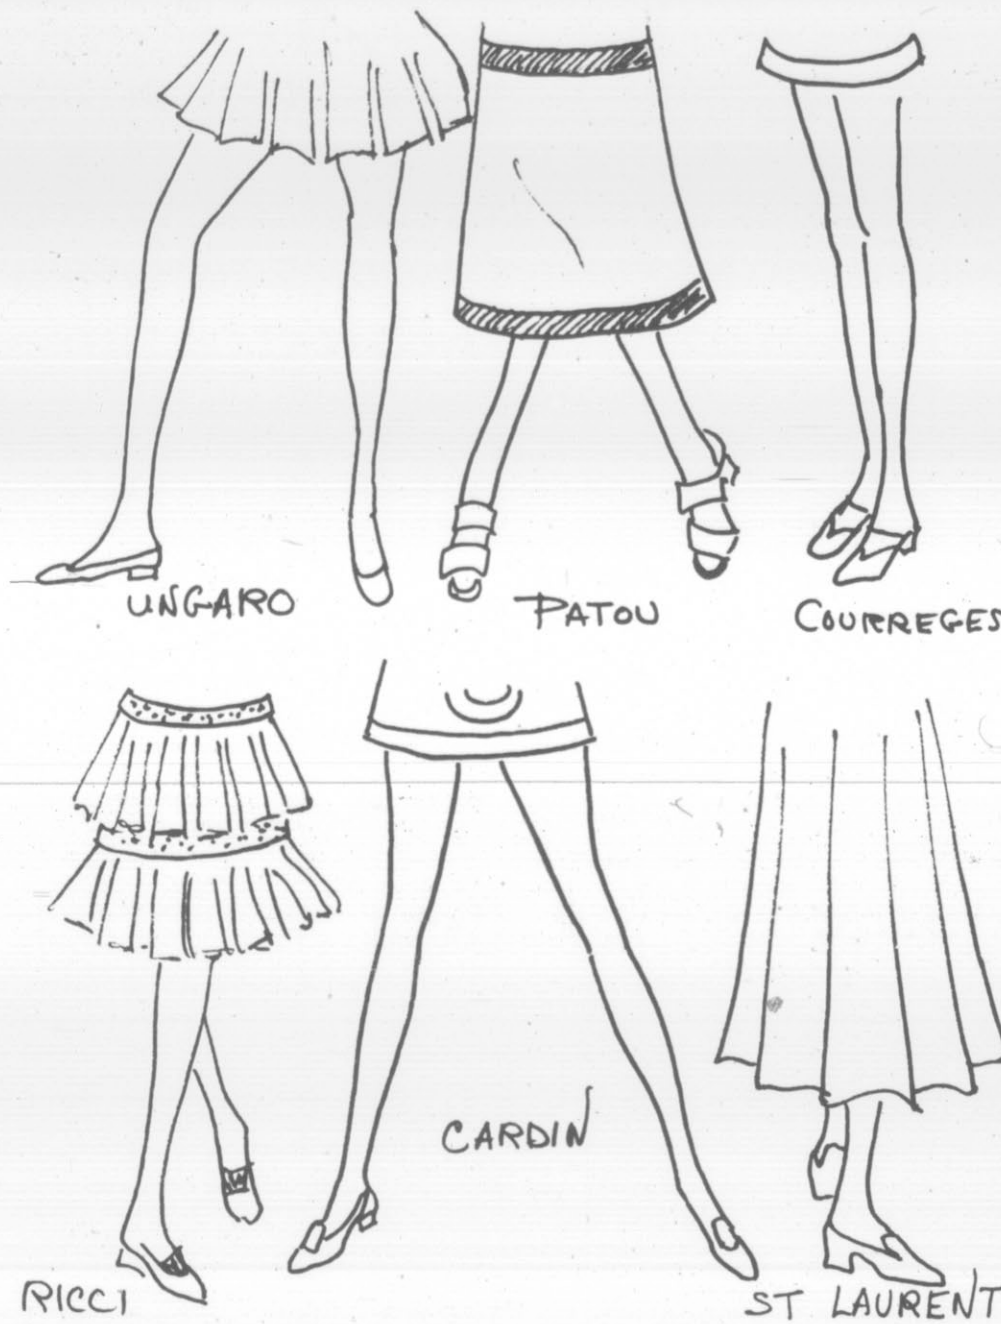

We may be forced to grow up and decide for ourselves. Freedom is here for the taking.

Poll
A poll of 2,000 people of different ages and sexes, recently conducted by the French Institute of Public Opinion, reveals that 79 per cent of those polled prefer short skirts. A second poll by the same organization put to 1,000 people of both sexes, but limited to people over 19, proposed a more precise question. Exactly what, in your opinion, is the best length for skirts? The results:
Short (any distance above the knee) 45 percent
To the knee (not covering it) 29 percent
Long (anything below the knee) 21 percent
No opinion 5 percent
When the aged question was put to those aged between 15 and 9, the findings were different:
Mini skirts 84 percent

Fair IS Fair Even In The Air

CANNES, France (WNS) — Angeline Giacomini celebrated her 85th birthday by flying to London to visit her brother, whom she has not seen since 1913. "He got seasick 57 years ago when he crossed the English Channel in tough seas, and he has refused to make the same trip ever since," she reported. "We are both frightened of flying, so he tossed a coin to see which one of us should make the air trip. He wrote me that I lost. I didn't protest because he sent me the air fare."

Gourmet Corner: Caterer For United Nations Must Be Master Of Diplomacy

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — "Every three months we circle the globe by menu," said the tall man with the festive necktie as he watched the diplomats enter the United Nations Delegates Dining Room.
Frank W. Reickert, general manager of catering at U.N. headquarters here explained that "although the cookery of France and America is used as a base, the daily special always is a dish from a different part of the world."

Reickert not only is in charge of a standing invitation to submit recipes, said Reickert, "Not long ago, one delegate's wife even insisted on coming to the kitchen and personally cooking her favorite dish."
The U.N. cooks are versatile, but even they make mistakes on occasion.
"Once we had a request to serve adobo, a Philippine national dish," Reickert recalled. "When I inquired, the chef said certainly, he knew how to fix it."

Adobo, a concoction of chicken and pork seasoned with garlic, duly appeared on the menu, and a luncheon party of Filipino or port at Israeli receptions and no hard liquor at some of those Eastern affairs."

Sometimes a guest's sensibilities about food have nothing to do with his religion. When V. K. Krishna Menon of India was a delegate, he would call for a saucer of raw vegetables and munch them with strange glee while the rest of the guests carved up thick steaks.

Reickert and his staff acquire the recipes for foreign dishes from a number of sources, including the diplomats themselves.

"The wives of delegates have a standing invitation to submit recipes," said Reickert. "Not long ago, one delegate's wife even insisted on coming to the kitchen and personally cooking her favorite dish."

The U.N. cooks are versatile, but even they make mistakes on occasion.

"Once we had a request to serve adobo, a Philippine national dish," Reickert recalled. "When I inquired, the chef said certainly, he knew how to fix it."

Adobo, a concoction of chicken and pork seasoned with garlic, duly appeared on the menu, and a luncheon party of Filipino nos ordered it.

"It was simply marvelous," one diner told Reickert, wiping his chin contentedly. "Of course, it wasn't adobo, but it couldn't have been more delicious."

For those who would like to try the Philippine version of adobo, here's a fairly simple recipe:

ADOBO
2 pounds boneless pork
stripped of fat and cut into cubes
1 cup white wine, fairly dry
2 garlic cloves minced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 teaspoon peppercorns
1 bay leaf
1 pitcher water (amount needed varies)
1 frying chicken (3½ pounds) cut into 2-inch pieces—chop thru bone
Lard for frying or vegetable fat, if desired
1 cup coconut milk
Salt

Combine pork, wine, garlic, onion, peppercorn and bay leaf. Add one cup water; cover and cook slowly for one hour. Add chicken and cook another 45 minutes adding more water as needed. When pork and chicken are tender, remove pieces from liquid and fry in fat till brown. Return to liquid. Add coconut milk and salt to taste. Simmer five minutes. Serve with cold dry white wine. (Serves eight)

NOTE: The refreshing liquid that comes from the coconut is coconut water, not milk. To make the milk, you must place two cups of shredded or grated coconut into one cup of hot water or freshly-scaled cow's milk. Let stand for 15 minutes, then squeeze through cheesecloth. If liquid is too rich for your taste, add more hot water or milk, and let stand another 15 minutes or half hour.

Do You Work For A Female Boss?

By AP NEWSFEATURES

Letty Cottin Pogrebin, author of "How to Make It in a Man's World," by virtue of her position as director of publicity, advertising and subsidiary rights for a major publishing company, is a lady boss. In addition, she's worked for three women executives in her climb up the executive ladder. Here are her tips on how to get along with a woman superior:

1. Never get personal. Never reveal your own awareness of her romantic or sexual situation.
2. Don't be a whipping post or confidante and don't look to her to be your mother.
3. Avoid gossip. Don't gossip with her or about her. It can only lead to trouble.
4. If she's the tough, career type—the gal who made it to the executive suite in a day and age when few women reached those heights—she doesn't want any insubordination. She fears you'll do to her what she has done to others. With this kind of boss, play it cool and distant.

5. If she's the kind of woman boss you want to be someday, don't remind her she's a woman. Relate to her as one individual to another.

6. If the woman boss is also a mother and-or wife, serve her in both roles. Don't think it's demeaning if she asks you to phone in her grocery lists. Anything you do that frees her time is a service.

Lady Residents Wanted Equality

LONDON (WNS) — One hundred lady residents of the Borough of Islington protested when the public restroom for women was closed during the cold spell. They claimed discrimination because the nearby men's room remained open. The Borough Council held a special meeting to discuss the problem and agreed with the ladies. So they closed the men's room, too.

Somehow, Home Failed Them

"The name of the game is home," Dr. Bill Bethune told an audience at a meeting on drug use Sunday.

Dr. Bethune, who is director of Cherry Hospital's alcoholic treatment center is speaking at Aycock Junior High on the drug problem.

"Drug use is just one of many avenues of getting away from unpleasant situations," he said. He described use of drugs as based on a need to turn off — not on.

"Teachers sometimes ask me how to recognize a child on drugs," he said. "I tell them, but I also tell them it's too late then. They must be able to recognize prospective drug users and offer them emotional help."

Dr. Bethune has been highly successful in communicating with young people on the drug problem and as a former drug user himself he knows firsthand about the problem. He was in fact invited back to speak here to an audience composed only of young people.

Rehabilitated Man's Mission

(Today's column was written by Nell Greene, Reporter for The Hickory Daily Record).

By NELL GREENE
LENOIR — The sound that awakened William (Bill) Dean for nearly 46 of his 63 years was the shrill whistle of a prison guard.

Since mid-February the awakening sound is produced by his alarm clock to summon him to his job in a Lenoir area furniture manufacturing plant.

It is a new life for him — and he is devoting his spare time in an effort to keep others from following the path which first took him to prison at the age of 17 and kept him there most of the time since.

He has carried his message to Caldwell Technical Institute near Lenoir where students listened for the better part of a day as he described prison life and how it can be improved. He is engaged to talk at Appalachian State University in Boone, and at Lenoir Rhyne College in Hickory.

It is indeed a new life for this man rehabilitated through religious interest, who now is dedicated to a commitment to help prisoners or ex-prisoners.

A native of Portland, Oregon, Dean is the product of a broken home. "When I was a teenager I fell in with the wrong crowd," he said. "Before long, we had robbed a safe, and I was sentenced to prison in the state of Washington."

Conditions in the Washington prison system were so deplorable that the only thought in his mind was to find a means of escape. Having done so, he "worked" his way across the country — by cracking safes!

"My main purpose is somehow to find a way to help those who are still behind bars, and, with God's help, to prevent persons from making that first mistake," Dean explained.

He is a "walking encyclopedia" when it comes to facts and figures pertaining to the prison system. He told a church gathering that "during my lifetime I have cost society $650,000, and I'm not proud of being a hardship on the taxpayers."

Dean and his first encounter with the church more than a year ago, and recently became a member of College Avenue Baptist Church in Lenoir. It was through this group of Baptist laymen that Dean began attending their Sunday evening services at the Hudson Correctional Unit.

"I never had a friend before I met those men, and through them I found a friend that will always be with me. Although my life hasn't amounted to much before this time, I believe that, with God, all things are possible," he said.

He has been working at one of the Broyhill furniture manufacturing plants on the work-release program for almost a year, and according to his supervisor, Lewis Isaacs, established a rapport and true friendship with his co-workers. He realized the extent of their regard last Christmas when he was the only man in his department to receive a gift from the group.

"It was the first time in my life I ever had a gift... and I cried," he recalled.

As Dean spoke to the group at his church, he affirmed his belief in the figures relating to the number of young people who come from broken or unsupervised homes. He recommends counselling for both the parents and children when there is trouble in the home, but most of all he urges his listeners to accept a prisoner, or ex-prisoner, "for what he is... a person."

"So many men behind bars truly believe that society has cast them aside, when what they really need is to know that someone cares, and will give them a second chance," he explained.

Dean was denied parole for five years prior to his appeal last winter. "But this time I had a lot of people on my side," he related, "these men from the church, the friends I have discovered in the unit, and most of all, God."

He believes with the system's new program of allowing prisoners work-release, and the programs and services being carried on by church and Oddfellow, that new things are on the horizon for the rehabilitation of prisoners.

"If we can only get the men there to realize that people do care and are ready and willing to help, there could be a drastic change in our entire society," he suggested. "When I go in to work, the people I work with take two steps forward to let me know they are glad I'm there, and I can tell you that's a wonderful feeling."

He was telling the local audience what most of us know but don't always admit — that with the drug problem on the rise among the young, somehow the home has failed them. This does not mean that individual parents are necessarily to blame if their own children turn to drugs. Rather it involves the sense of values which are being instilled in the young people of today. Perhaps it involves too busy lives for parents and youngsters alike, which leaves them too little time to get to know one another.

Reversing the drug process is not going to be easy because when a few young people are exposed to drugs they become familiar to others, and when one actually sees an acquaintance trying drugs the prospects of using them doesn't seem quite so terrifying.

Parents must start early training and leading their children away from the drug scene because, as Dr. Bethune pointed out, by the time it is recognized that a child is on drugs it is too late. Getting the youngster off drugs then is going to be very difficult.

Proving Themselves To Be A Major Asset

Once again the students and staff at East Carolina University have turned out in big numbers to support the Pitt County Bloodmobile.

Monday a total of 226 pints were donated when the unit visited the campus. This was 61 units over the quota of 165.

Chairman Douglas Morgan described it as a "tremendous response."

However the Bloodmobile is still short about 450 pints of its annual quota with only one more visit remaining to be at the Moose Lodge on June 17.

Time-after-time the students at ECU have helped the Bloodmobile along by more than meeting their quota. This is just another way that these young people show themselves to be an asset to Greenville and Pitt County.

Nixon Offers Chilling View

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Proof that President Nixon has now taken personal charge of his biggest single battle with the Democratic Congress this year — phase two of the antiballistic missile (ABM) program — came in a private White House briefing session last Thursday when he unleashed a frightening catalogue of warnings about Soviet weapons' progress to his legislative leaders.

The somber report also contained an implied threat that Senators who vote no on the ABM this summer will risk political retribution for furthering Soviet ambitions.

Mr. Nixon said: "Those who would ask us to declare a unilateral moratorium on MIRV (multiple nuclear warheads) and ABM would concede to the Soviets the position of supremacy in military power on the globe." Deployment of MIRV starts soon, but the future of the ABM rests with Congress.

Speaking slowly from rough notes, Mr. Nixon flatly warned that "if present trends continue, the United States a very few years hence will find itself clearly in second position — with the Soviet Union undisputedly the greatest military power on earth."

Hence, said Mr. Nixon, the U.S. cannot risk any unilateral concessions at the SALT arms — control talks with the Russians. More important, Congress must approve phase two of the ABM program as "the only major bargaining counter we have" in Vienna.

So overwhelming was Mr. Nixon's argument for phase two of the ABM program that Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland, the Republican National Chairman, asked whether his words could be used by the Congressional leaders in making the case among their colleagues.

Not only did Mr. Nixon assent, he ordered a "talking copy" of his words typed up from his notes. This talking copy will be distributed this week to the legislative leaders for use in speeches and floor debate.

It makes chilling reading. With deployment of 122 additional ICBMs last year, while the U.S. deployed none, the Soviets now "not only possess more long-range missiles than the United States, their nuclear delivery capability is 150 percent greater," Mr. Nixon said. They have also "initiated work" on another 125 ICBMs (presumably the giant SS-9). Moreover, he sketched a frightening picture of Soviet missile-firing submarines, claiming that at current rates of deployment "by 1974 or 1975 at the latest the Soviet force will be superior to that of the United States."

Mr. Nixon contended that 40 new ABMs were installed around Moscow last year (making a total of 64), while the U.S. plans "not a single ABM on the ground operating until 1974 or 1975."

The President's "talking paper" did not accuse Moscow of trying for a first-strike capability. But it warned of a more subtle danger — the effect on the rest of the world if Moscow should achieve a credible superiority over the U.S.

"The minute the word goes out... that the Soviet Union is the first power in the world, the eyes of Europe and Asia will no longer look to the United States but to Moscow," he said. "The American position in Europe and the Far East will crumble overnight."

As the Administration's ABM campaign begins, Mr. Nixon's chance for passing phase two in the House is assured but in the Senate is

Strength For Today

AN OUTWORN CREED

The Roman Emperor Julian, known as "the apostate," lived a brief life of thirty-one years and was said to have died muttering, "Galilean, thou hast conquered."

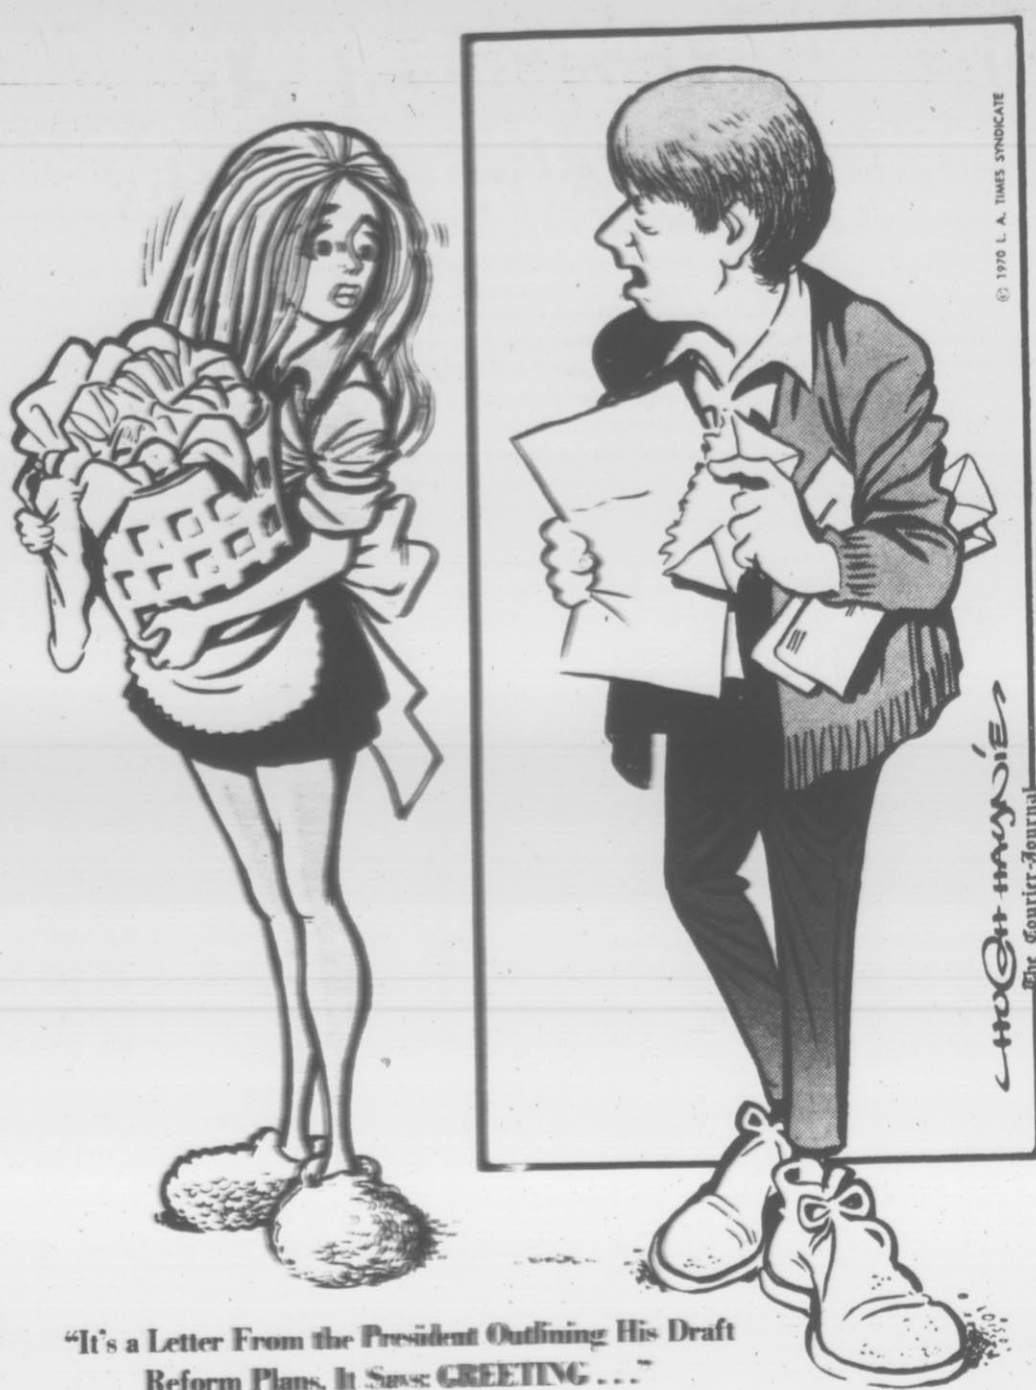

He lived in a day when religion and bad politics were so mixed together that it is little wonder he fell away from the Christian faith into which he had been born. By the time he was twenty he had decided against Christianity and for philosophy and paganism. He was in some ways a better man than many of the so-called Christians who persecuted and fought him.

But he made the mistake of trying to turn the hands of history's clock backwards.

He tried to get the world to accept again a type of inferior religion which by and large all sound-thinking persons had definitely discarded for good.

The Galilean won. He always wins. And for the simple reason that he advances the only system of ethics which is really suited to the dignity of human life. Furthermore, he makes supernatural claims and supports these with a life so magnificently superior to any other life ever lived that men can accept these supernatural claims without doing violence to their reason. Paganism does not work, and Julian was neither the first nor the last man to find this out.

The Southern Strategy

WASHINGTON — The Republican Party, through its Southern strategy committee, has pulled off one of the most interesting political coups in modern history. They managed to make a practically unknown federal judge the leading candidate to win the senatorial race in Florida this year.

I can now reveal how they did it. The Republicans were very worried about winning a senatorial seat in Florida in 1970. None of their candidates had any glamour or charisma and Florida had been written off to the Democrats.

But then someone in the White House (there is still some confusion as to who it was) remembered that there was a Supreme Court vacancy on the bench.

"Why don't we," he suggested, "use the vacancy as a means of building up someone to run for senator from Florida?"

"How?" one of the denser Republican Party officers asked.

"Let's put someone up for the Supreme Court from Florida who couldn't possibly be confirmed. Then after he is turned down, he'll announce he's running for the Senate. By this time he'll have become a household word."

An old-time political pro said, "Wait a minute. Suppose we find this guy, put him up for the court and the Senate confirms him? Then we'll have wasted a lot of time and money."

"Agreed," a Southern strategy expert said. "The trick is to find someone in Florida that the President could nominate for the court, at the same time once the Senate would turn down. After going over the records of every judge in Florida they finally concluded that federal Judge Harold Carswell of Tallahassee was their man."

A quick check of the nation's law schools revealed that the majority of the deans, were against him, which was encouraging as far as the Southern strategy committee was concerned. Judge Carswell would also be opposed by labor, liberal and black groups, a good sign — not only to keep him off the court, but also to be used later in the senatorial campaign.

At the next meeting of the Southern strategy committee everyone made his report. The White House man said, "The President wants to make it perfectly clear he's willing to go along with this strategy to get a Republican senator from Florida, but he doesn't want it to take too long because he does want a

Other Editors Say Morgan's Plan Best

(The Raleigh Times)

Ports Authority approval of a $15,000 fee for legal work done by former Senator Thomas J. White, who also is chairman of the State Advisory Budget Commission, emphasizes the advisability of plans of Attorney General Robert Morgan to have that office do all the State's legal work in the future.

Senator White is an able attorney, and any client will get full value for any legal work done by him. It should be noted that in the Ports Authority case, Senator White got results in obtaining waterfront property the Authority hadn't been able to get before it employed him.

However, there would be numerous advantages of having the Attorney General do legal work for all State agencies. For one thing, the State probably would save money. For another thing, the Attorney General's office is the department created to give legal advice to state agencies. Having it do such work would free other attorneys of the possible embarrassment of having a dual relationship with the agencies.

In the case of Senator White handling the Ports Authority's legal work, there was this dual relationship. The Senator was the Authority's attorney in securing this land. At the same time, he was chairman of the Advisory Budget Commission, which carefully screens all requests from State agencies for appropriations, and recommends to the legislature how much each agency shall have in appropriations. In most cases, the Commission's recommendation is adopted by the legislature.

The state cannot ever get completely away from this dual relationship situation, since so many of its top-flight attorneys are members of the legislature and of various state boards. However, the Attorney General's Department under Robert Morgan has showed itself to be an extremely efficient arm of State government. That efficiency must be used to the fullest by all state agencies in the handling of legal matters.

Real Competition By Bookies

By ELMER ROESSNER

Cities across the country are watching New York's attempt to shrink its coming budget deficit with legalized off-track betting.

If it works, your town may establish betting parlors. But it probably won't work. Off-track betting has been talked up in New York for years, but the state legislature has always voted it down. This year, however, after a deal between Mayor John Lindsay and Governor Nelson Rockefeller, the legislature, in its closing hours, passed legislation to help the city pay its bills by cutting in on gambling profit.

The Lindsay administration confidently predicts that it will yield $50 million in fiscal 1970-71. That would require a $500 million handle.

There are many reasons why it may not yield much, if anything.

First, the capital investment required may wipe out all profit for the first year. It will require buying or renting horse-parlor sites, furnishing them, connecting them by phone lines to various tracks, installing computers and other equipment. The plan provides that all bets will be laid off at tracks.

Second, it will require a large staff of bet takers, managers, security men, men at the track and others. This will be costly, but it will provide a passel of jobs for the Lindsay administration to pass out. As many as a hundred parlors are planned, although only one may be in operation by fall.

Third, present plans call for the prohibition of loitering at the gambling shops, and no live radio or television reports on results. This will prevent the fast wagering of winnings, which swells betting at tracks.

Cash Basis Only Fourth, while bookmakers grant credit, the city will not, although a better may deposit a sum with the betting parlors and use it to pay for future bets. Phone bets will be accepted only under that condition. Bookies, of course, do most of their business by phone.

Fifth, policing costs will increase. To make the system work, it will be necessary to crack down harder on illegal bookies, and to break up deals whereby bookies pay for immunity against arrests. It will also increase the danger of thefts, possibly leading to higher insurance rates. Betting parlors, if they do take in lots of cash, will be targets of hold-ups.

Sixth, the Mafia won't like city competition.

Seventh—and this is the biggest bundle of them all—winnings at city gambling parlors will be a matter of record and the winners will be liable to federal, state, and New York City income taxes. Those taxes, plus the tracks' take and the state's share, plus the breakage, will slash gains.

As Marty the bookie pointed out, "Bookies take phone bets, give credit and they never report a winning to tax men, either the feds, the state or the city. That's why a lot of guys do business with us now instead of going to the track, where the sunshine and fresh air might ruin their health."

The New York State lottery, which pays back only 30 per cent of the handle, with that 30 per cent subject to taxes, is no rousing success.

The handle is much less than half that anticipated. But it does make jobs.

Agnew Urges Replacing President Of Yale Univ.

By DENNIS FRIEL
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Blaming campus violence on faculties that fail to guide students, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has singled out Yale University and called for the replacement of its president.

Speaking at a $250-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner Tuesday night, Agnew declared: "The true responsibility for these aberrations and the nurturing of arrogance and contempt for constitutional authority rests not with the young people on campuses, but with those who so miserably fail to guide them."

"I can well understand the attitude of the majority of the student body at Yale University when most of the Yale faculty voted to endorse a strike in support of members of an organization dedicated to criminal violence, anarchy and the destruction of the United States of America."

This was a reference to the Black Panthers, eight of whose members face trial on murder and kidnapping charges in New Haven.

"And," Agnew added, "when the president of that respected university describes the election of a president of the United States by the people of the United States as a 'hucksterized process' under which they could not expect much better 'which-ever package was bought or sold,' it is clearly time for the alumni of that fine old college to demand that it be headed by a more mature and responsible person."

"President Kingman Brewster of Yale has also stated that he does not feel that black revolutionaries can get a fair trial within our judicial system."

"I do not feel that the students of Yale University can get a fair impression of their country under the tutelage of Kingman Brewster."

There was no immediate comment from Brewster.

The vice president said American universities have become a spawning ground and sanctuary for revolution and rebellion. He proposed a nine-point program for handling what he called "the criminal left."

Agnew's proposals included:

- Establish a clear set of rules for campus conduct with immediate expulsion for serious violations.
- End open door enrollment policies for unqualified students.
- Eliminate amnesty for lawlessness or violence.
- Bar campus organizations which publicly declare intention to violate the rules of an academic community and then do so.

Agnew said campus radicals are the offspring of "affluent, permissive upper middle class parents who learned their Dr. Spock and threw discipline out the window—when they should have done the opposite."

Fulford Cites Help From PTI Friends

FARMVILLE — Pitt Technical Institute President W. E. Fulford, Jr. addressed the Farmville Lion's Club Tuesday about the May 2 vote to expand Pitt Tech to a community college and the manner in which advertising has been paid for during the current campaign.

Fulford said, "No state or county money has been used to carry on our campaign. We have been very fortunate by having friends, staff, and local businesses and industries contribute enough money to allow us to publicize the May 2 vote."

"This money," he continued, "has been used to buy newspaper ads, radio time, paper and ink for printing brochures, and stationery and envelopes for mailing letters. We have also used these contributions to pay postage on the numerous pieces of mail we have sent, and miscellaneous supplies."

"Monday," Fulford said, "is only a part of what has been contributed. Personnel at Pitt Tech have donated many hours of their personal time toward this effort. Many have sacrificed vacation time and others have labored enthusiastically at night and on weekends when their school work was completed."

"We were also fortunate to have had equipment such as typewriters and an offset press donated from local firms. We owe a debt of gratitude to all those who have contributed money, time, and equipment toward our effort. Without them we would have been unable to inform the public about the issue on which they will vote on May 2."

Fulford stated he was very optimistic about the upcoming vote. He said, "Our people seem to realize the value a community college and technical institute will have for Pitt County."

justice on the Supreme Court, and he can't afford to nominate too many straw men."

The committee assured the White House man that Carswell would be defeated in no time and then the President could get on with filling the seat.

But what the Southern strategy committee hadn't counted on was how close the Carswell vote would be. Many senators, who were not informed as to what the Republicans really wanted Carswell for, indicated they would vote for him for the court.

This seared the pants of the Republican strategists, as they didn't want to lose Carswell for the Senate election. They also had assured the President, Carswell could never make it for the court, which was the only reason President Nixon had nominated him.

In desperation they called up Bryce Harlow, the White House lobbyist, and said, "Bryce, you've got to help Carswell lose."

Realizing the implications of what was at stake, Harlow immediately started calling up senators saying Margaret Chase Smith was going to vote for Carswell. He had someone leak to her what he was doing, and predictably she voted against Carswell and saved the day for the Southern strategy.

It was one of the smoothest operations Washington ever saw. Now the big question: Can the Republicans defeat Judge Blackmun so he'll get to run against Hubert Humphrey in the Senate race in Minnesota?

only 50-50. On two key votes last year, phase one—ABM deployment at two Minuteman sites in the Northwest—escaped defeat on a tie vote and by a margin of one vote (with 14 and then 13 Republicans opposing the President).

Phase two adds a third site (Whiteman Air Force Base in Missouri) and preparation of five additional sites.

In a switch from last year, the President has put the Pentagon, instead of his own White House staff, in charge of the lobbying campaign on Capitol Hill.

Moreover, a tentative decision has already been taken for Mr. Nixon to go to the country if the ABM balance in the Senate remains precarious, as it almost surely will. Even so, Mr. Nixon's gamble is fraught with danger.

If he fails, by his own estimate the U.S. position at Vienna will be drastically weakened, but no more than his own position at home. Having built the stakes high, he is using every ounce of his political power to win.

Saturday Is Designated Greenville's Poppy Day

Mayor Frank M. Wooten Jr. has designated Saturday as Poppy Day 1970 in Greenville, it was announced today.

The proclamation was signed by Mayor Wooten as members of the American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 39 looked on in ceremonies.

Mrs. J. D. Mellon, Poppy Day chairman for Unit 39, American Legion Auxiliary, is directing the activities for Friday and Saturday. The unit president is Mrs. R. L. Gwynn.

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 39, members of Post 39 of the American Legion and volunteers will join in the Poppy Day. They will be stationed throughout the city at numerous places during the two days offering baskets of memorial poppies.

"We know that everyone in Greenville will accept our invitation to join us in remembrance on this Memorial Day," said Mrs. Gwynn.

"The memorial poppies which we will be wearing on this Memorial Day were made by disabled veterans working in hospitals as a part of their rehabilitation," Mrs. Gwynn continued.

"They are fashioned of crepe paper and wire and the work on the poppy is considered valuable as occupational therapy, in addition to giving the men the encouraging experience of earning money once again. All materials are supplied without cost to the veteran who is paid for his work," she added.

"We are a part of the 150,000 volunteers throughout the U.S. who on this day will be distributing 25 million poppies. Our greatest satisfaction is from the knowledge that all contributions received are used solely for the rehabilitation and child welfare programs conducted by the American Legion Auxiliary for veterans and their families," Mrs. Gwynn concluded.

Welding Society Will Gather At Goldsboro

Leon Fuller of Bristol Steel and Irons, Inc. in Bristol, Va. will be the guest speaker at the American Welding Society meeting tonight at 6:30 in Goldsboro. According to J.A. Turner, publicity chairman for the Northeastern Carolina section of the society, Fuller's address will follow a plant tour of the Hevi-Duty Electric Company south of Goldsboro beginning at 5 p.m.

Hevi-Duty, Turner said, is a division of Solar Basics and manufactures transformers. Their building is 150,000 square feet and makes up part of the 120 acre landscape layout of the company.

Fuller, a native of Abingdon, Va., will speak on the comparison of three low-hydrogen welding processes as observed in a typical structural fabricating shop.

In addition, deposition rates, inches per minute findings, operator factors, quality control procedures, non-destructive testing findings, and joint preparation will be discussed and compared.

Turner pointed out that all members of the society are invited to attend tonight's session and plant tour. Many are from Pitt County and surrounding areas, he said.

Classroom teachers' salaries are higher in Alaska than any other state.

Will Assist UCP Drive

"Happiness is Helping" is the theme of a Kappa Alpha fraternity roadblock which will be conducted in Greenville Friday and Saturday for the United Cerebral Palsy Campaign.

The roadblock is part of a statewide fund-raising campaign which will be highlighted by a telethon originating at Reynolds Auditorium in Raleigh next Saturday night. The telethon is being carried locally by WNCT-TV in Greenville. Stations in Wilmington and Raleigh are also participating in the all-night program.

Members of Kappa Alpha will be located at major intersections throughout Greenville during the roadblock. They may be identified by large yellow ID badges bearing the words "Happiness is Helping."

Proceeds from the roadblock will be donated to the UCP campaign on WNCT-TV Saturday night during the telethon.

Recapture Four After Jailbreak In New Bern

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP) — A deputy put a bullet through the shoulder of one of four jail escapees Tuesday night after the men jumped from their car at a roadblock and tried to flee into nearby woods.

The four had fled from the Craven County jail only an hour and a half earlier. They tricked the 69-year-old jailer into opening a cell door, jumped him, and choked him, grabbed his keys and ran out of the jail. Police were not sure where the men got the auto.

The wounded man was identified as Lawrence Stepney, 28. He was treated at a hospital and taken back to jail.

Sheriff's Deputy E. E. Rowe said the prisoners jumped out of their car at a roadblock on U.S. 70, about 1 1/2 miles east of New Bern and only 31-3 miles from the jail.

As the four fled toward some woods, Rowe yelled for them to stop. As they kept running he brought one of them down with a shot. All four then surrendered.

The other three escapees were identified as Charles Hampton, 22; Leonard Trask, 21; and Ronald Galloway.

Jailer Fred A. McRoy, talking in a whisper shortly after the jailbreak, told how one of the prisoners tricked him into unlocking the door to the cell of three of the prisoners. A doctor said the choking left McRoy barely able to talk because of temporarily swollen vocal chords.

One of the prisoners called McRoy to his cell and said his two cellmates were threatening to kill him because they were unhappy with the way a card game had been going. The prisoner said he wanted to be taken to another cell.

McRoy said that when he opened the door, one of the men jumped out and began choking him. The other two grabbed the keys of the then semiconscious jailer.

The three men then went to another cell and freed the fourth

Church Council Is Hurting Financially

GREENSBORO (AP) — Some members of the North Carolina Council of Churches feel that the council has bitten the hand that feeds it by refusing to take a back seat in times of social strife.

At the final session of the council's 33rd annual meeting Tuesday, members learned that the group would fall short of its minimum budget by $5,977 and that it was still suffering financial losses.

Later in the day, during the several reports to the council, members repeatedly said the losses came because of unpopular stands on social issues.

Still, the council passed resolutions that are almost certain to draw fire of many church-going people.

One resolution urged churchmen to back efforts of government employees in lower income brackets to organize themselves into unions and bargain for man. Hampton and Stepney are awaiting trial for the robbery last February of the Western Union office at New Bern in which an employee was wounded.

Trask and Galloway were recently convicted of stealing four boxes of hand grenades at Camp Lejeune. They both had just started serving five-year sentences and were awaiting transfer to a federal prison. They have appealed their convictions.

Plans More Uniform Draft Rules

By STAN BENJAMIN and FRED S. HOFFMAN

Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — New Draft Director Curtis B. Tarr is about to review—and perhaps rewrite—the 30-year accumulation of orders left behind by his predecessor, Gen. Lewis B. Hershey.

In an exclusive interview, Tarr said he wants to give local boards guidelines to make their decisions more uniform—a reform long demanded by draft critics.

Tarr's remarks—as veiled by academic caution as Hershey's were by folksy jokes—revealed a belief that after three decades of directives from Hershey, many local draft boards still are not sure how to do their job.

He said Keith McWilliams, a Des Moines, Iowa, lawyer, will become his chief legal officer within the next month, wading into the legacy of orders and memoranda to local boards and state directors.

Questioned on other aspects of draft policy, Tarr:

—Confirmed for the first time that President Nixon plans for an all-volunteer army of 2.5 million men, as estimated by a commission headed by Former Defense Secretary Thomas R. Gates.

—Said the administration does not want this army full of career soldiers, and anticipates volunteers will drop out after four to eight years and make room for young newcomers.

—Disclosed he is campaigning to make the membership of local draft boards younger and more "racially representative."

—Disclosed that a reduction in the number of local boards, which now number 4,087, is being considered.

In a message to Congress last Thursday, President Nixon sought pay raises and benefits to encourage an all-volunteer army. But he warned it could not be achieved quickly and said the draft should be made fairer in the meantime.

As a start, Nixon barred all future occupational, agricultural and parent deferments, and sought congressional authorization to phase out student exemptions.

Said Tarr, in the interview, "All of the other thinking that I know of concerning reform relates to administrative actions that we can take here and throughout the system."

He said McWilliams "understands that one of his first jobs is going to be to go through all of the information that is in the hands of people at the local board and is used as a guide for their activity—regulations, memoranda and all kinds of directives."

"We think we can improve the information in the hands of people at local boards and at state headquarters."

"We think that if we do this, it will lead to more uniform decisions throughout the nation."

At the same time, Tarr said he is trying to improve the local boards themselves.

"The President has made it reasonably clear to us that he would like to have the local boards more representative of the population from which young people are drawn and would like to see more youth in the system at all levels," he said.

"I am seeking to do this by visiting state headquarters, trying to impress state directors with the kind of philosophy we hope to have."

Local board members are appointed by the President upon recommendation by state governors, who Tarr said usually rely on recommendations from the state draft directors.

"The thing I was the most pleased about," he said, "was the attitude of the state directors in recognizing this to be a problem."

He said it is not a matter of "rooting out" present board members, but of making appointments to replace the 12 to 15 per cent who leave annually and to fill new seats when boards expand.

Tarr said the General Services Administration—housekeeper for the government—did some sample studies "and concluded that we could get along with fewer boards." Tarr said in answer to a question about reducing and consolidating the large number of draft boards.

This, too, has been a reform frequently proposed—most notably by a commission, which reported to President Johnson in 1967.

"They suggested a more extensive, more definitive study be undertaken and we have authorized them to go ahead in conjunction with the Budget Bureau," Tarr said.

Questioned on prospects for achieving an all-volunteer Army through President Nixon's $3.5 billion program of pay and benefits, Tarr said the administration does not really know how well the plan will work.

But he said military life "attracts a unique type of personality" who would prefer it over civilian life "given the freedom of choice and reasonably comparable economic opportunities."

The administration does not want an all-career Army, however, he said.

"I think this point needs to be emphasized," he said, "because in the kind of armed forces we want, we need some people for long periods of time but we need other people, and perhaps even more, who are on a rotating basis."

"The Army would be hurt, would be crippled, if all of their enlistments stayed for 20 years."

Tricia Joins In Deactivation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's daughter Tricia has taken part in ceremonies deactivating the presidential yacht Patricia, which along with the yacht Julie is being taken out of service to save an estimated $200,000 a year.

"It's a sad day," Tricia said as she was piped aboard the Patricia Tuesday at the Navy Yard.

The Patricia, 92 feet long, and the Julie, a 64-footer now at Key Biscayne, Fla., have served five presidents a total of more than 25 years.

By White House order, both will be sold to nongovernmental buyers.

SOME PEOPLE THINK ELECTRIC HEAT IS ONLY FOR THE RICH.

Except those who have it.

All kinds of people who work for a living have electric heat. People just like you.

They know the value of a dollar. And when they spend it on something as important as home heating, they want total value.

They choose electric heat because it's cleaner, safer, quieter, and more flexible than any other system. It's the only system that will be as up-to-date years from now as it is today.

So when you consider the cost of a heating system, consider the value. Ask yourself whether any other heating system offers more for the money than flameless electric heat.

Ask your developer, architect, or heating contractor about today's best heating value. Electric.

And if people wonder why you're working, tell them it's just a hobby.

Threat Worked For Alcindor

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Basketball star Lew Alcindor is getting the Malibu apartment he wanted after a threatened lawsuit and intervention by the West Side Fair Housing Council.

Alcindor, the National Basketball Association's rookie of the year, charged that he had been denied the $350-a-month dwelling because he is black.

But his attorney announced Tuesday an out-of-court settlement had been made with the landlords, Mr. and Mrs. William Forsythe.

Alcindor, 7-foot-2 ex-UCLA star now with the Milwaukee Bucks, said his agent initially rented the apartment for him. Then, he said, he was denied it when the owners learned of his race.

Set Program Of Modern Music Thursday Night

On Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall at East Carolina University's School of Music, the second of five Spring Music Festival programs will be presented.

The Pi Kappa Lambda Concert, featuring members of the faculty and several music students in a number of small ensembles, will present a varied program of modern music, including compositions by three contemporary composers and one work by Anton Dvorak, the 19th century Czech composer.

Two works by Dr. Paul Cooper, guest composer for the 1970 festival, and one by ECU composer in residence Gregory Kosteck, as well as one by Michael Cunningham, will make up the contemporary part of the program.

Cooper's are string compositions. The first, "Sonata for Flutes and Piano," will be performed by Anne Searl on flutes and Gregory Kosteck at the piano. The other selection, "Variations for Violin and Piano" is also a duet. Paul Topper, violin, and Karen McCann Hause, piano, will play this piece.

ECU's Kosteck "Summer Music for Saxophone, Oboe and Clarinet" has textures varying from homophonic to contrapuntal. It was written by Kosteck in June of 1969. A trio consisting of James Houlik, saxophone, Eugene Isabelle, oboe, and Joseph Distefano, clarinet, are to play the "Summer Music."

"Trigon, Opus 31" is the Cunningham composition on Thursday's program. This work, completed in November 1969, is dedicated to ECU's James Houlik and receives its premiere performance Thursday. Featuring James Houlik on tenor saxophone and Charles Stevens at the piano, "Trigon" is in three movements — "Constant Driving Rhythm," "Quiet and Calm," and "Quite Fast."

The final selection from the 19th century, is Dvorak's "Serenade in D minor, Opus 44." The "Serenade" was first presented in Prague in 1878 with the composer conducting. The four movements — "Moderato quasi marcia," "Tempo di minuetto - presto," "Andante con moto," and "allegro molto" contains a country dance and a polka. Instrumentalists performing the Dvorak work are: Oboe, Eugene Isabelle, Branda Dugger; clarinet, George Knight, Joseph Distefano; bassoon, Betty Ann Worrall, Beverly Ervine; horn, James Parnell, Linda Prescatore and Robert Blalock; violoncello, Paul Kosower; and double bass, Linda Latosek.

Admission is open to the public and no charge is made for the concert. Because of limited space in the Recital Hall, the public will be admitted on a first-come first served basis.

Girl Scouts To Attend Outing At Camp Hardee

Seven Girl Scout troops from Greenville will participate in an outing May 1-3 at Camp Hardee.

Each troop will plan and cook their own meals and will participate in intertroop activities during the weekend.

Dr. Ralph Steele of East Carolina University will be in charge of the program Saturday afternoon. Dr. Steele and his class will direct activities in handicrafts, dramatics, music, games and waterfront activities.

Mrs. James Davenport is camp director. She is assisted by Mrs. Charles Croom. About 143 girls, leaders and program aides will participate.

Can Solve Class Ring Problems

Graduates or students of East Carolina University who may wish to order or repair a class ring should contact Dan Summers, Secretary of Internal Affairs, ECU.

Summer's office is located in Wright Annex, on the third floor. He may also be contacted by telephone, 758-6262. Hours are 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Can't Find A Jumping Frog

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska may have lots of wolves, caribou and bears, but it can't find a frog to send to the International Jumping Frog Jubilee next month in Angels Camp, Calif.

Herbert Lehfeldt, aid to Gov. Keith Miller, wrote California officials that the governor would have to pass up the annual jubilee because frogs aren't indigenous to the state.

Frogman Mayor Ray W. Callahan offered an Angels Camp frog as a stand-in, but Lehfeldt declined, saying:

"The pride of Alaskans would wilt a bit if our state were to be represented in an event of such magnitude with a product not truly made in Alaska."

Job In VISTA Opened Eyes Of Millionaire

By DEE WEDEMEYER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Rockefeller, the modest 25-year-old millionaire who became a block worker in Harlem, has retired after more than three years there. Neither Larry nor the block will be the same again.

Larry, a handsome, blond Harvard graduate who is the son of conservationist Laurence S. Rockefeller and nephew of two governors, said he is now much less "naive" about how fast change can be accomplished.

"Now I have an understanding of how deep and complex the problems are and how slow change comes with what great effort and with how many setbacks," said Larry after retiring Monday.

Some residents said Larry has done an immeasurable amount of good and point proudly to a bright, red and white block flag flying above the block as a symbol of their accomplishments.

"It's a symbol of our moving up," said Herbert Battle, a bicycle mechanic who is president of the block corporation. "People you couldn't talk to before will pitch in and help now. Larry didn't do everything for no one. He assisted us, because if someone does something for you it's no good."

Larry said that when he joined VISTA—Volunteers in Service to America, a federally sponsored volunteer program which trains block workers—he envisioned making his block an "extremely different place" after three years but that he immediately experienced setbacks.

One of his youth council leaders became a junkie, city agencies were filled with red tape, and a chicken franchise which he and the block corporation had planned to get to raise funds and employ welfare mothers fell through when a key person backed out.

On the other hand, a park opened Sunday where there once was a rubbish-filled lot and there's now a library in a one-vacant store. There's a classroom building, a full-scale tutoring program, a community center and a preschool building with a full-time teacher.

Larry joined VISTA in the fall of 1966 and moved into a predominantly black and Puerto Rican block of Harlem. Except for six months in the Army reserves, a brief call-up to deliver mail during the postal strike and trips to the mountains with neighborhood kids, he rarely left the block.

The block is still blighted by two rubble filled lots, an occasional abandoned car and garbage strewn about.

However, clean-ups are held periodically, 15 trees have been planted and seven previously blank walls are painted with the bright geometric designs by artist William Williams.

Larry has lived in a $90-a-month tenement, shared all the block's problems—even having the tires on his maroon sports car slashed—and learned all the residents' names.

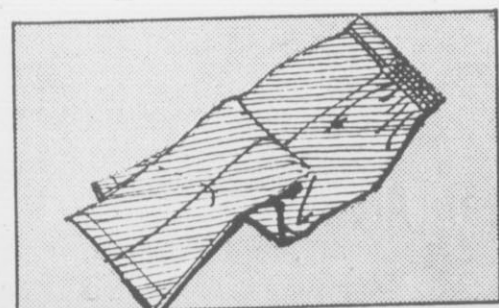

Miss Walters A Student Teacher

RALEIGH — Meredith College senior Nancy Ann Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Walters of 1800 Rosewood Dr., Greenville, has begun student teaching in the local school system.

Miss Walters, who is majoring in math, is one of 57 Meredith seniors who are doing their student teaching in Raleigh and Wake County schools during the spring semester. Meredith student teachers are supervised by their major departmental advisors, the school's Department of Education and Psychology, and critic teachers in the system where they work.

U.S. High Schools Found Like 'Boiling Cauldrons'

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
AP Education Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — America's high schools—from the ghettos to the suburbs—today are like boiling cauldrons.

No one can predict when the pot will boil over, but already violence, vandalism and noisy protest are common.

In February alone, a government survey showed, there were 43 incidents at high schools resulting in police being called 19 times to make 257 arrests—and many incidents go unreported.

These confrontations are like the steam issuing from a bubbling teapot—they are the most visible manifestation of the widespread student unrest detected in a nationwide Associated Press study.

The study indicated that only a tiny percentage of the nation's 18 million high school students are in open, sometimes violent, rebellion. But, at the same time, student complaints dominated scores of interviews.

Students from New York to California say their schools operate in a prison-like atmosphere—armed guards, fenced schoolyards and in one California school locked classroom doors.

Other complaints range from racism to censored newspapers, uninspired teachers to unrealistic regulations and refusal of school administrators and parents to listen to student demands for an education relevant to the world they must compete in.

Government officials are becoming increasingly concerned. "I'm upset with the trend in the country," said youthful Tobey Moffett, director of the U.S. Office of Education's section on students and youth.

As incidents increase there is a demand for stricter rules by parents, administrators and politicians.

"There is no evidence that tougher rules, stricter discipline or calling the police cools the situation. It only serves to increase the tension. You are not going to scare kids into submission. They have neither respect nor fear of the police."

What's behind the widespread unrest and the more limited outright rebellion and radicalization of America's teenagers?

It's a complicated jigsaw puzzle, but students say they are reacting to racism, poverty, war, low quality of education and denial of their rights by principals, administrators, parents and politicians.

"The current generation in the high schools has discovered that the situation they confront as students is inhuman and the status they hold is one of subjugation," said teacher Marc Liblar in the introduction of a book he co-edited, "The High School Revolutionaries."

"There is nothing radical about what the students are asking—the right to form their clubs such as anti-war or political, the right to dress as they wish, the right to a fair trial if accused," said Ira Glasser, New York Civil Liberties Union attorney who has been active in student cases.

Glasser, 32, added "my generation used to gripe but didn't fight. Today's youngster is not willing to take it."

"Because of TV," he continued, "many youngsters are aware of social problems before they can read. Anyone under 25 years of age has always lived under the shadow of nuclear war. That's significant. They know doom is just around the corner."

Glasser said in almost every instance where a school has trouble the students were rebuffed when they sought redress of grievances in an orderly fashion.

"When students become militant, they do so because of long frustration," he concluded.

Once turmoil starts, many school administrators blame outside agitators. But Moffett said "there is a lot of evidence that outside agitators can't be blamed as the chief perpetrators of trouble."

He adds, however, that "external influence such as drugs, racism and war does influence school conduct."

Students say drugs are easy to get, on or off school grounds. Ken Blumenthal, a senior and top scholar at Sullivan High in affluent North Chicago, said:

"It's abundant. Kids don't go much for liquor. Pot is easier to get and cheaper."

Mrs. Lillyann Mitchell, associate editor of a Teamster Union newspaper and mother of four who took an active part in calming St. Louis' predominantly black Beaumont High, sees other factors underlying the tumult.

"Our children love us," she observed, "but they say 'you couldn't help yourself so you can't help us.' The white children are ashamed of what their parents have permitted. That's why they wear long hair, dress sloppily. They want to be identified with the underprivileged."

Beaumont is a typical school where trouble began to brew but school officials and parents didn't see it coming. Last Oct. 16 the students were refused permission to stage a special Vietnam Moratorium program. The pot began to simmer, and boiled over during a Negro History Week program earlier this year.

Four of six skits depicting contemporary Negro history had been presented when a school official stopped the program on the grounds profanity had been used.

Mrs. Mitchell said the "profanity consisted of such words as honkey and pig, none of so-called four-letter words."

In the wake, three popular teachers were fired by telegrams which said "the cause of your termination is insubordination to the school administration..." The dismissals have been withdrawn but the teachers are not yet back in school.

Students responded with boycotts. Police were called and although, according to Mrs. Mitchell, the students were peaceful they were pushed around and some arrested.

Beaumont got a new principal—but not until there were several shutdowns and some vandalism. Commented Mrs. Mitchell: "This may be a blessing in disguise. The kids may have shown us the way."

Halfway across the continent, Roosevelt High in east Los Angeles has run the gamut of disruption after student demands—more money for college counseling, elimination of IQ tests and more Mexican-American studies—have gone largely unheeded.

Student leaders Jorge Rodriguez and Freddie Plank, each 17 and both instrumental in setting up Euclid High school for 50 other expelled students, describe Roosevelt "as like a prison. It's fenced. Gates are locked. Guards patrol the grounds and halls."

A new principal has inaugurated what is called the "clean sweep." When the tardy bell rings, classroom doors are locked. Monitors go through the halls and herd youngsters they find into a cafeteria. Caught three times and a student must have his parents come to school.

"How can a locked door create an educational atmosphere?" asked Marlin Foxworth, a young teacher who is sympathetic to the students.

Plank and Rodriguez accused Los Angeles police of brutality during a recent demonstration which ended with both of them expelled. Foxworth, watching the demonstration from a window, gave this description:

"The police gave the kids five minutes to clear out. The kids didn't move and the police formed a semicircle and moved in. Three girls hugged each other and police broke them up. One girl actually was thrown bodily through the air. Another's arm was twisted until she whined with pain. They called them foul names and referred to them as dirty Mexicans."

Claims Beatles May Be Reunited

NEW YORK (AP) — Beattle George Harrison says the four members of the musical group may get together again.

Paul McCartney has announced his intention to break away and perform separately. Harrison, here on a business trip, commented Tuesday:

"Everyone this year is trying to do his individual album, but after that I am ready to go back to work together again."

In Washington, the State Department said Beattle John Lennon and his wife, Yoko, also were in the United States for business discussions. The department said they opened with talks in Los Angeles and would be in New York May 7-16.

Hunting Dog Finds Moonshine

POPLAR GROVE, Ky. (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents probably would like to get their hands on a talented bird dog from hereabouts.

Some men were hunting near this McClean County community recently when the dog struck a point. No birds could be found, but hidden in a hollow log was a gallon of moonshine.

RECALLING VEHICLES
TOKYO (AP) — Toyota Motor Co. said today it is recalling 19,359 cars and trucks because they have defective gasoline tank and gasoline filter hoses.

SURVEYING DAMAGE — Two youths view scene of the damage at a clothing store in the aftermath of Monday's violence and looting in River Rouge, Michigan. The violence came after black and white youths confronted each other and police moved in, with rock-throwing and looting occurring later in the evening. (AP Wirephoto)

ROPE TRICKS

Recipe for excitement:
Two cowboys who can handle ropes.
Two quarterhorses which can move like shots from a gun.
A fleet steer with a good set of horns.
A stopwatch.

Mix together and you have the basic ingredients for the fastest growing event in rodeo—team roping.

The idea is simple. The steer gets a head start. Two riders, loops ready, pursue. One of them is the "header" and he must throw first; his object is to catch the steer round the horns. The second rider is the "heeler." He must throw his loop to catch the steer by the back legs.

Time is registered when the two riders have the steer under control and stretched between them, not necessarily on the ground, with both horses and riders facing the steer.

The sport is more humane than the old variety in which the steer was roped, then tripped at a full run, frequently with fatal results. The steers in team roping even wear plastic headbands to protect the animal against rope burns.

Penalties are enforced if a heeler catches only one rear leg or the header fails to make a clean catch. If he gets a front leg in his loop, no time. Each team has three loops to beat the clock.

In this team roping at the Ken Lance Arena, Ada, Okla., 80 teams tackled 10 steers each over a two-day roping—entrants came from seven states. The sport is fast. The action is hectic and spectators love it. There are no limitations on age. Grandfathers can compete—and do.

You must know how to use a rope. A good horse is essential, and from then on it's timing and teamwork, plus those useful extras which never hurt anyone, skill, "savvy" and a little nerve.

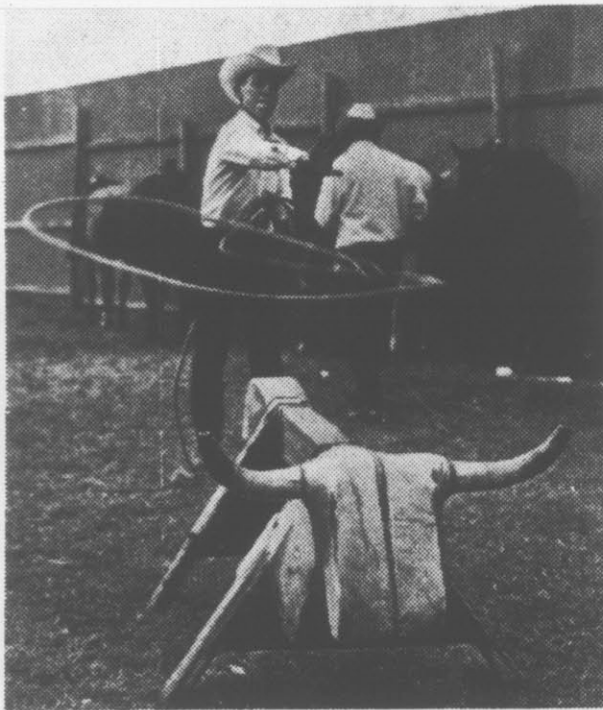

A rider moves in for a chance to catch the heels.

The steer is out and away, with both riders after it.

One team member has successfully looped the horns.

Going to be a winner.

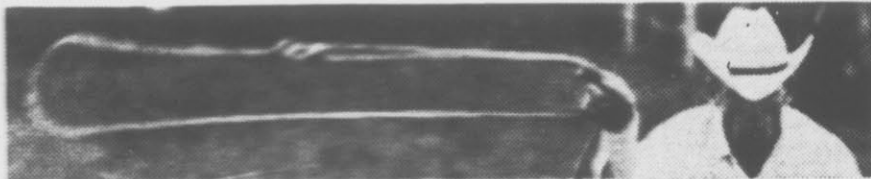

A well-judged throw for the heels does the trick.

The steer's head is roped; protective headband visible.

Puerto Rico Appears To Be Firmly On A Course Of Eventual Statehood

By GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — The Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, its highways jammed with Detroit's cars and its beaches crowded with New York's tourists, appears set on a course aimed at putting its star on Old Glory as the 51st U.S. state.

The event may be 10 or more years off, or may never occur at all, but there's a "statehood" governor in the 450-year-old La Fortaleza mansion and many people regard it as a foregone conclusion. Some of those who favor statehood also fear it.

"It's like the approach of death," says the wife of a San Juan architect. "You always know you will die some day, and we always knew we would eventually become a state. But the closer it gets, the more you dread it."

Many Puerto Ricans fear complete Americanization of the island under statehood. They think all or most of what they hold dear from the Spanish heritage will be lost, especially the language. Gov. Luis A. Ferre, a leading advocate of statehood, insists this does not have to happen.

One of those who opposes statehood, and favors independence, said in a recent speech that Puerto Rico's population growth is one of the last lines of resistance against the United States.

"Never should the density of our population be weakened, that wall which resists the destruction of our personality and our race," said Eladio Rodriguez Otero, president of the Ateneo Puertorriqueno, a cultural organization.

A current birth control program, he said, is primarily financed by federal funds and is "an anti-Puerto Rican plan." He asked, "What right is there to impede the increase of our population when there is no check on the entry, which is every day greater, of the thousands of people who arrive from the outside to our land to take up residence here?"

The trend in Puerto Rico today, however, is toward stronger ties with the mainland. President Nixon and Gov. Ferre have a joint committee to study whether to let Puerto Ricans vote for president. There are one million registered voters in a population of about three million.

In 1973, Puerto Rico will pass through its 75th year of domination by the United States. The island was one of the spoils of the Spanish-American War.

Few visiting Americans understand it. The island has operated under a commonwealth form of government since the 1940s, and only in recent years has there been major interest in statehood.

The debate over statehood, commonwealth, and independence, the three status alternatives, is the major topic in Puerto Rico today, and every decision and every act by the government, no matter how trivial in appearance, is judged in that context.

Given U.S. citizenship and drafted into the U.S. armed forces, the Puerto Rican nevertheless lacks voting representation in Congress. He thinks of himself as something different from his fellow citizens to the north. He calls English-speaking mainlanders Americans or Americanos, while he refers to himself, with pride, as a Puerto Rican or Puertorriqueno.

More than 200 islanders have been killed in the Vietnam war. Never independent since conquest by Spain's Ponce de Leon in the early 1500s, Puerto Rico is a product of the Spanish culture and a captive of the U.S. life-style.

The estimated 50,000 mainlanders living in Puerto Rico refer to themselves as "continentals." Most occupy well-paying jobs in industry, finance, the media and government, and most get along fine without knowing any Spanish. They send their children to private English-speaking schools, read an English newspaper, watch the English-language television or listen to one of the several English-language radio stations.

They attend English-language churches and can even hear Ferre deliver an English-language speech when he is addressing a group of them.

Several hundred thousand English-speaking tourists, mostly from the New York area, visit the island each year.

There is a large and growing bilingual Puerto Rican middle class. These people live in characterless suburbs which stretch through once fertile valleys south of San Juan. With 400,000 vehicles already crowding island roads, officials are considering a subway system.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market fell back sharply from an early morning rally, following news the U.S. is providing advisers for South Vietnamese operations in Cambodia. Trading was active.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 0.13 to 724.46, after having been up 7 points half an hour earlier.

Advances were ahead of declines by a small margin. Earlier, they had been ahead, by almost 2 to 1.

Trading picked up considerably after the Cambodian announcement, and the ticker was running two minutes late at noon.

The earlier rise was due primarily to news of a meeting today between security-industry officials and Paul W. McCracken, chief presidential economic adviser, analysts said. The news sparked a technical rally.

ChowanRiver Threat Cited

R. Frank Everett, Republican candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives from North Carolina's First District, stated in a prepared statement, "It has come to my attention that water of the Chowan River in northeast North Carolina is being seriously polluted by a large paper manufacturing concern in Virginia."

Everett claimed "The Chowan River cannot be sacrificed for the production in Virginia." Referring to a four year study proposal by the Corps of Engineers, Everett says "a solution to the problem, and not a study is needed."

Everett said he was sending telegrams to the governors of North Carolina and Virginia, to the company in Virginia, and to the Coastal Plains Regional Development Commission on the Chowan River situation.

Pope Paul To Issue New Church Rules On Mixed Marriage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope Paul VI will issue new papal regulations permitting Catholics to marry non-Catholics without the presence of a priest, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops has announced.

In a statement Tuesday, the conference said the Pope would list 17 norms on mixed marriages in a 2,400-word letter to be issued Thursday.

The Pope took the action "on his own initiative." According to the conference, the two major developments in the letter are:

—"Diocesan bishops may now permit mixed marriages involving Catholics to take place without the presence of a Catholic priest, provided there is some public form of marriage service. This dispensation from the required form of Catholic marriage may be granted only for serious reasons."

"In recent years such concessions had been made on an individual basis, but only by the Holy See. The new rule recognizes the local bishops' authority."

—"The 1966 instruction on mixed marriages, now in force, asked that the non-Catholic party to a mixed marriage "be invited to promise sincerely and openly that he will in no way impede" the obligation of the Catholic "to guard, preserve, profess his (her) own faith and to baptize and educate the offspring in that faith."

"The new regulation ... eliminates any demand for a promise on the part of the non-Catholic. Instead it first affirms the Catholic party's responsibility: '... the Catholic party shall declare that he is ready to remove dangers of falling away from the faith.'"

"He is also gravely bound to do all in his power to have all the children baptized and brought up in the Catholic Church.... At an opportune time the non-Catholic party must be informed of these promises.... he is cognizant of the promise and obligation on the part of the Catholic."

Mixed-faith marriages will continue to be discouraged by the Pope, the conference added, and he will state the marriages "do not, except in some cases, help in re-establishing unity among Christians."

The last major papal document on mixed marriages was issued in 1966 and lifted excommunication of Roman Catholics who married outside their church.

Want Their Bus In Living Room

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Volkswagen bus is parked in the living room of a 23rd floor dormitory suite on the Ohio State University campus.

School officials, contending the engineless vehicle is a fire hazard, have ordered it removed.

But the 14 male residents of the suite are appealing the order in negotiations with the dormitory manager.

The students bought the 1961 model bus from a junkyard for $16, disassembled it and moved it piece-by-piece up dormitory elevators during the wee hours one morning last week.

Eastern Teams Sweep Six From West Rivals

By TOM SALADINO

Associated Press Sports Writer
For one day at least—there could be no argument—the East had won the battle over the West in American League divisional skirmishes.

Tuesday was the day the East shone as they swept all six contests against Western opponents.

In the only day game, the Cleveland Indians started the route with a 3-1 triumph over Minnesota and were soon followed at night by Detroit, an 8-6 victor over Kansas City, Baltimore, 4-2 winners over Chicago, Washington, 9-6 over Milwaukee, New York, with a 7-5 triumph over California and Boston, which swept past Oakland, 2-1.

In National League action, Pittsburgh downed Chicago 6-1, Atlanta nipped St. Louis 3-2, Cincinnati routed Houston 4-2, New York defeated San Francisco 5-2, Philadelphia downed

Los Angeles 3-2 in 10 innings, and Montreal took a doubleheader from San Diego 4-2, and 7-3.

With the six victories Tuesday the AL East took an 18-6 edge over Western opponents this season. The Orioles lead the East pack with a 4-0 record while the Kansas City Royals, 0-4, have yet to beat an Eastern club.

Tony Horton, who said "I was just looking for the first ball that looked good to me," slammed a two-run ninth inning double, gave the Indians their victory over the Twins.

The slugging first baseman got his chance, when after one out, Harmon Killebrew dropped a foul pop hit by Ted Uhlaender. Uhlaender, with another life, slapped a single to center. One out later Vada Pinson singled, setting up Horton's game-winner.

Al Kaline's first homer of the season keyed a four-run third inning in the Tigers' easy triumph, pinning the Royals with their sixth straight defeat.

Kaline cracked his blast after doubles by pitcher Joe Niekro and Dick McAuliffe and a single by Mickey Stanley. Stanley doubled home another run, and McAuliffe, with another double, drove in a run as the Tigers led 8-0 before Niekro, 3-0, lost his shutout on homers by Kansas City's Lou Piniella and Paul Schaal in the sixth inning.

Boog Powell knocked in all four runs in the Orioles victory. Powell, who belted White Sox pitchers for eight homers and a .459 batting average last year, quickly got started this season, slamming a three-run homer in the opening inning and added a run-scoring single in the fifth.

Co-holder of last year's Cy Young Award, Mike Cuellar, benefitted from Powell's belting, gaining his third victory while scattering eight hits, including a homer by the Sox' Bill Melton.

Frank Howard, Ed Stroud and Aurelio Rodriguez poled home runs in the Senators long-ball battle with the Brewers. Ted Savage and Danny Walton connected for Milwaukee. It was Walton's seventh of the season, best in the league.

Fritz Peterson knocked in three runs with a single and his first major league homer and Ron Woods added a two-run shot for the Yanks over the Angels.

Peterson, 2-2, was sailing along on a four-hitter, got within one out of completing New York's first pitching assignment of the season before being rocked. Ken McMullen socked a two-run homer and with two men on base, Steve Hamilton relieved the left-hander. Another run scored before the victory was secured.

Tony Conigliaro and Mike Andrews rapped solo homers to back the pitching of left-hander Bill Lee in Boston's narrow triumph.

Lee had a one-hitter through seven innings before the 23-year-old ran into trouble and needed relief help.

The A's Frank Fernandez singled after two outs and singles by Bob Pena and Bert Campaneris made it 2-1 before Ray Javis came out of the bullpen to put out the fire.

Conigliaro slammed his second homer of the season in the fourth and Andrews followed with his third of the year in the fifth.

'Hovercraft' Mushrooming Into A Major Industry

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Seventeen years after it was invented by a British engineer experimenting with two old coffee cans, the hovercraft—or air cushion vehicle—has developed into a mushrooming multimillion-dollar industry.

Hovercraft, among the most revolutionary advances in transport since the discovery of the wheel, are showing that air can take the place of wheels, tracks and hulls.

Passenger and cargo transportation, warfare and fun pursuits, and even hospital treatment rooms have been invaded by these air pads that can whisk man, his machines and equipment quickly and efficiently over water, ice, snow, desert and swamp. In time, they can bring cities 400 miles apart to within commuting distance at average commuters' prices.

Hovercraft are being used in the wilds of Alaska, on passenger routes between England and France, in the heart of the African bush, and by U.S. troops in Vietnam.

The hovercraft principle is revolutionary: for the first time, a vehicle has been produced which goes without the wheel.

Christopher Cockerell, a British electronics engineer, invented the hovercraft when he suspended two old coffee cans in space with air blown down through them from a small industrial drier.

Two years later, in 1955, he built a successful working model craft and patented his invention. In 1961 the first hovercraft was built. The three-and-a-half ton SRN-1 could cross waves of two feet at 25 knots. By 1963 it weighed seven tons and sped to 60 knots over seas of five feet. Now the SRN4 passenger and car ferry can carry a 163 ton load over 10-foot waves at a maximum speed of 70 knots.

Today there are dozens of hovercraft, ranging in size from the SRN-4 to a single-seater sports runabout small enough to ride on the roof of a family auto.

The British hovercraft industry, though still the world's leader, is under increasingly tough foreign competition, mainly from the United States and from France, where a high-speed hovertrain is already running on test tracks.

British Hovercraft Corp. claims to be the world's largest hovercraft manufacturer, with yearly sales totaling $24 million, more than 50 per cent of its market is foreign. It has licensed Bell Aerospace Corp. of the United States and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd. of Japan to manufacture hovercraft, and operates in 30 countries.

The ferry business, however, is only one aspect of air cushion development.

Hovercraft manufacturers are developing and building vehicles for recreation, marine research, transportation of cargo and equipment, and warfare.

The army can use them for logistics and support and as high-speed interceptors over land or water. They can carry troops, guns and guided weapons under a radar screen over shallows, reefs and surf from an inshore base, getting underway in less than a minute.

The British army has formed two units to experiment with the crafts and plans to test them on NATO exercises in Europe.

Hovercraft also are being used in coastguard operations against smuggling and there are plans to utilize them for air-sea rescue.

At the other end of the scale are the run-runabouts of the seventies—one and two-seater hovercraft for beaches, ice and snow to turn tundra and leafy estuaries into playgrounds.

And perhaps the most exciting single application of air cushion transportation is the hovertrain—a 100-seater that will run on an air cushion less than one inch thick over concrete pylons at speeds of more than 200 miles an hour. Even 500 miles an hour is considered feasible.

France holds a thin lead in the development of hovertrains over Britain and the United States. A four-mile stretch of test track 30 miles from Paris has been in use since 1966. No fare-paying passengers have been carried, but trains have reached upward of 155 miles an hour. A British company plans to open a test track in England this year.

BHC and Britain's Central Electricity Generating Board have designed and built air cushion equipment to fit current heavy load transporters. A 155-ton transformer was pumped up onto a nylon skirt and safely carried across a flimsy old bridge. Equipment to carry loads of 700 tons by 1971 is on the drawing board, with obvious application in regions inflicted by ice, snow and swamp.

Hoverpallets have been built to float loads of one to five tons in stores, warehouses and ships' holds. The platform is like an upside-down electric stove, with air blasted through rings on the underside.

A hoverbed has been developed painlessly to "float" patients severely injured by burns.

Hovercraft have been used by explorers. They were the first powered vehicles ever to fully navigate the Amazon river in South America. The craft's longest journey so far has been through central Africa—5,000 miles in 83 days.

Presided Over Society's Meet

Dr. Lawrence F. Brewster, professor emeritus of history at East Carolina University, presided over sessions of the Historical Society of North Carolina at Duke University last Friday.

Dr. Joseph Steelman and his wife, Dr. Lala Steelman, both ECU History Department faculty members, also attended. Dr. Joseph Steelman served as program committee chairman.

New Altimeter For Apollo 16

BURLINGTON, Mass. (AP) — A new laser beam altimeter is being built for Apollo 16 to enable the spacecraft to make far more accurate maps of the moon's surface.

RCA Corporation's Aerospace Systems Division announced Tuesday it has a $1.7 million contract with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the device.

Immigrant Family Is Selected N.C. 'Farm Family Of Year'

WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP)—The family of a Dutch immigrant who arrived in the United States 21 years ago with $100 in his pocket and hope in his heart was named North Carolina's Farm Family of the Year today.

"I guess we've been lucky, but we've worked hard, too," said Gerritt Boerema, operator of a dairy farm in the Grassy Ridge section of sparsely settled Hyde County on Northeastern North Carolina's Atlantic Coast.

Selection of the Boerema family for the honor by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration was announced at a luncheon in Washington, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Boerema came to the United States in 1949 from Slochteien, Holland, shortly after they were married.

"I had $100 in my pocket when the Statue of Liberty came into sight," Boerema recalled in an interview. "I couldn't speak English well and I had no one to turn to for advice in a strange country."

After several years working on farms in Missouri and Minnesota, the Boeremas moved to Hyde County in 1957. They turned a marshland covered with reeds and scrub pines into what the FHA calls "one of the most modern and efficient dairy farms in the state."

Boerema started with seven cows and now has 110. He has turned marshland into cropland and produces virtually all of his herd's feed.

This spring, the Boeremas and their four children — two boys and two girls ranging from ages 8 to 18—moved into a new four - bedroom brick home.

James V. Smith of Washington, D. C., administrator of the Farmers Home Administration, praised the Boeremas in a prepared speech.

"This couple," Smith said, "had attributes and qualifications to compensate for the adversities—a farm background, agricultural education, ambition and willingness to work, and a vision of farm ownership in a Democratic society."

"The Boerema family demonstrates well what can be done."

The farm family of the year is selected from among nominees picked throughout the state with consideration given to farming methods, financial progress, family living, property improvement, community leadership and overcoming adversities.

The Grassy Ridge section where the Boeremas live is about 10 miles from Pantego, one of Hyde County's few towns.

HIGHWAY REPAIRS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state will spend more than $20 million this year to repair highway damage caused by severe winter weather. The annual expenditure usually is nearer $2.5 million and a winter is considered extreme when the repair figure reaches $5 million, said Bruce Hadley, director of public affairs in the Department of Highways.

No Radiation Group Asks Crackdown On Sex Discrimination

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A cask of radioactive fuel aboard the Apollo 13 lunar module apparently survived re-entry into the earth's atmosphere and sank in the South Pacific near the Fiji Islands without releasing any radiation.

The Atomic Energy Commission said Tuesday no increase in radiation was detected over a 300,000-square-mile test area.

The cask, made of graphite and beryllium, was strapped to the lunar lander, which burned up in the earth's atmosphere. The lander was jettisoned by astronauts James A. Lovell, Fred W. Haise and John L. Swigert shortly before their command ship entered the atmosphere.

The radioactive plutonium 238 in the cask was to have powered an electric generator on the moon.

By CARL C. CRAFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women demanding an even shake with men at all levels of higher education are asking the federal government to close its multibillion-dollar contract purse to colleges and universities practicing sex discrimination.

A leader of a national women's equal education rights group, Bernice Sandler of Silver Spring, Md., has filed charges under terms of presidential executive orders forbidding government contractors to discriminate by sex.

"The orders never had been used this way in the past," Mrs. Sandler said in an interview, "but we were watching what the blacks were doing and we came across a footnote that the orders had been extended to include sex."

"We're getting the colleges and universities to look at sex discrimination by endangering their pocketbook," she added.

"Throughout the university community," she said, "there is discrimination in hiring, promotion, getting tenure, and the like, and women make substantially less in salary than their male counterparts."

"The discrimination extends to all levels—faculty, staff and student body," she added. "It has been going on for years and women have been complaining bitterly among themselves."

Mrs. Sandler, 42, married and the mother of two teen-aged girls, is a lecturer at the University of Maryland and chairman of the Committee for Federal Contract Compliance in Education, part of the Women's Equity Action League.

On behalf of the league, she has been following up with specific complaints to the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare Departments against individual institutions she charges are discriminating against women in various educational practices.

Thus far, Mrs. Sandler said, "we're up to 43 individual college and university filings and we're hopeful the university community will start to take a hard look at itself."

The women are acting under the executive orders because ladies in academic life are not protected from sex discrimination under civil rights or fair labor standards laws, noted Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich.

The Big Stars Will Turn To Field Of TV

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's not too early to make a prediction about television in 1971-72: it will be the season of the stars.

Never before in television history will so many important film stars be appearing in their own series. These projects already have been announced:

Henry Fonda will star for ABC in a generation-gap series called "The Smith Family," produced by Don Feddersen, creator of "My Three Sons," "Family Affair" and "To Rome with Love."

Shirley MacLaine will have her own ABC series, to be produced in England by Sheldon Leonard, late of "I Spy" and "My World and Welcome to it."

Tony Curtis will costar with Roger Moore in an ABC adventure series, also to be made in England. Like the MacLaine series, this one is backed by British producer Lew Grade, who plans to release it simultaneously on English and American television.

Glenn Ford has signed for a comedy half-hour about a police detective who takes over a youth center. CBS has ordered the series from 20th Century-Fox.

Dick Van Dyke will return to CBS in a new series which will be filmed near his home in Phoenix, Ariz.

James Garner, who first achieved fame as "Maverick" on ABC, is going back to television in an adventure series for NBC.

Other top stars are being offered to the networks for future series. Why? The reason is clearly written in the tortured economics of the movie business.

Except for a handful of hot personalities—notably Paul Newman, Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman, Robert Redford and Elliott Gould—stars are simply not in demand for today's film market. Those who could earn $500,000 per picture last year aren't receiving scripts today. The emphasis is on low-budget, youth-appeal movies, and those can be made with unknowns.

So it's only natural for the likes of Fonda, Curtis, MacLaine and Garner to go for the immense money that a television series can provide.

It's a big step. To most of them it means at least a gap in a career as a movie attraction. Rarely has the star of a television series been able to maintain a successful film career. Dean Martin has managed, but he appears on television in a variety show, not a dramatic series.

Television is a gamble. True, film stars can earn $500,000 or more in the first year. But their series can also bomb out in one season, causing serious career damage. Examples can be found this season with "The Debbie Reynolds Show" and "The Survivors," with Lana Turner and George Hamilton.

Star names will attract viewers but can't hold them. The choice of vehicle is all-important. Doris Day discovered that. Her CBS series nearly failed in its first season. Then the emphasis was changed from farm and family to a more sophisticated approach. The result: "The Doris Day Show" is now a solid hit. The influx of star series will have important repercussions in TV programming for 1971-72. Obviously space must be found for the new shows, and many present series will be discarded.

EQUALITY DISPUTE

LUTON, England (UPI)—Two hundred men walked off their jobs at an automobile plant claiming women getting equal pay were not doing equal work. The men returned after the company agreed to discuss the complaint.

Senator To Try Concert Field

BOSTON (AP) — Not to be outdone by his wife Joan, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is moving into the concert field.

Kennedy will narrate Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait" when the Boston Pops Orchestra opens its season at Symphony Hall Saturday night with Arthur Fiedler conducting.

The concert will be broadcast locally.

The senators' wife narrated Prokofiev's symphonic fairy tale "Peter and the Wolf" with the orchestra last season.

Two Tar Heel Women Seeking Sheriff's Job

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
Two vivacious Tar Heel women have decided that a woman's place can very well be in the sheriff's office, and they're campaigning hard to get there.

Mrs. Nell Redwine Hewitt, 28, of Shallotte is running against seven men in the Democratic primary for sheriff of coastal Brunswick County.

And Mrs. Eunice Bruce, 40, of Hamlet is facing two men, including a 20-year-veteran in office, in the Democratic contest for sheriff of Richmond County. Both nominations will be decided Saturday.

Mrs. Bruce, who has three children aged 13, 10 and 18 months, said she's been campaigning all day every day, from early in the morning to late at night. She has covered the county twice, waiting at the doors of railroad shops and textile mills, shaking hands and talking with each shift of workers.

The long-established support of the local party is behind the incumbent, Raymond W. Goodman, she said, and she feels her best chance is in personal contact.

Mrs. Bruce has been involved in politics for 20 years. "I'm an elections registrar in my precinct, and I go to all the state Democratic conventions," she said. This is her first try at running for office.

Why is she running for sheriff? "I could give you a lot of reasons, but mainly it's love of law enforcement and politics."

She doesn't consider herself a women's liberation candidate, but she feels that a woman can bring a lot to the job of sheriff—"if she's a capable woman...and I'm a capable woman."

She said she would handle the job through efficient organization—regular patrol areas with the same men patrolling them at known hours.

"Besides, both the men running live in the city of Rockingham," she added. "I'm the only candidate who lives under the direct jurisdiction of the county sheriff."

The third candidate is Jim Perry, a retired cookie distributor. No Republicans are running.

"Men often joke and ask me if I could chase a man down," she said. "If they know something of my background, I've worked hard all my life. Mother and I ran a dairy farm south of Hamlet for 15 years after father died. If I can chase cows, I can chase men."

She says she can handle a gun "if necessary," but she feels there's more to law enforcement than making arrests.

"I would hope to bring a special feeling for life to the job," she added. "a smile and some understanding."

And what if she doesn't win this time? "I'm going to win. I'm not thinking past this race, not now."

Mrs. Hewitt also is confident of her chances of winning and sure of her ability to handle the job.

She's known to "everybody in the county" as "Big Nell," a former Shallotte High School athlete and an all-Waccamaw Athletic Association basketball player for the lady Pirates team.

Now the 5-foot-10, 169-pound Big Nell is a waitress at the Holiday Grill, the mother of two girls and the wife of a commercial fisherman.

"This more or less started out as a joke with the men around here," Mrs. Hewitt said. "But then I got real serious about it."

"I think it is time women had more to say about how their government is run and also to be concerned about the protection of people, their property and their rights," she said.

"With a good field of deputies and the cooperation of county officials, I could give the people the kind of protection they need. They could stand some more protection," she added. "The crime rate is increasing."

But Mrs. Hewitt's main interest lies in the young people of the county, and the problems of "drugs and all."

Since she works at the grill all day, Mrs. Hewitt has not been out campaigning much. She passes out cards to the people who come through the grill, and her daughters, aged 8 and 10, take her cards to school for children to take home to their parents.

"This is my first encounter in politics," she said. "It's fun."

The winner of the Democratic primary will face one of two Republicans, including incumbent Sheriff Harold Willetts, in the November general election.

Bad News Piles Up For Business

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—There is a widespread belief in Wall Street, as elsewhere, that things can get just so bad before they must begin improving again. But realistically, everyone knows such an attitude is a flight from reality.

Too often the fellow who has a streak of bad luck gets slugged again. And how often is a spell of bad weather followed not by fair skies but by more storms?

The news in the business world is bad. And although harried analysts and hopeful brokers keep saying the turn has to come any day now, they say so for effect rather than from conviction. The bad news piles up.

Chrysler lost $29.4 million in the first three months of the year. General Motors' net income fell 33 per cent to $348 million. And Ford earnings dropped 26 per cent to $124.4 million in the first quarter.

The impact of such tremendous declines becomes more evident when you realize that last year these three companies accounted for $40 billion in direct sales.

Moreover, they were the chief customers for billions of dollars worth of glass, tires, fabrics and plastics. And through the use of their products, billions of dollars in oils, gasolines and greases were sold.

There are losses in the air also. Just when the travelling public was convinced it could fly anywhere, The Boeing Company reported an earnings decline and announced a "severe deterioration in the commercial airplane market."

And weren't computers supposed to solve all problems? International Business Machines, the premier blue chip of the 1960s, announced almost at the same time that it expects a difficult year, very likely with lower earnings.

But doesn't IBM make computers? Of course it does, and so does Control Data, which lost $6.6 million on its computer operations in the first three months. Computer company earnings are falling, and so are their stock prices.

Not just computer stocks either. A multitude of glamor stocks, their stage makeup washed, and the dreams out of their beholders' eyes, are seen to be far less attractive than once believed.

High borrowing costs are said to be among the chief causes of the earnings declines. But high borrowing costs, we are told, are coming down. Don't believe it.

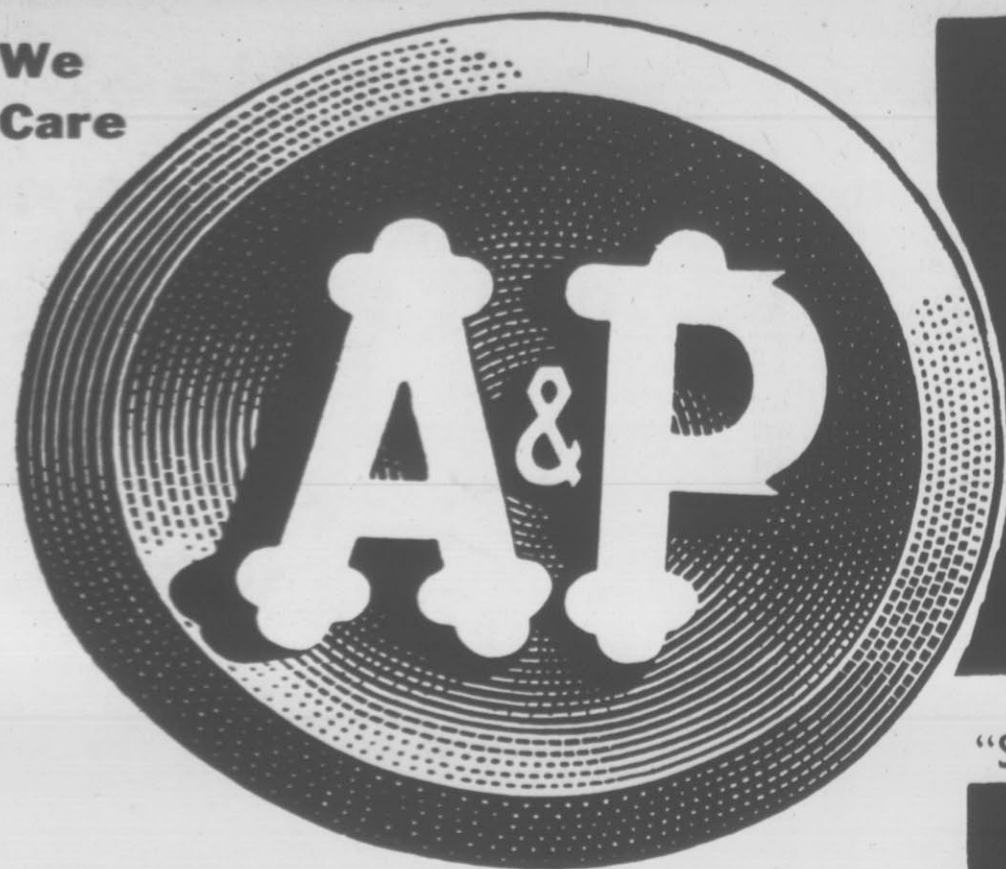

Short term interest rates have been rising for a month now. And long term rates seem to continue on a long term uptrend. Continental Airlines this week borrowed $90 million at 10.5 per cent interest.

High interest rates aren't the only things that stubbornly resist the so-called return to economic stability. Some economists are beginning to believe inflation is here to stay.

During the next five years, says Walter Heller, who won fame as chief economic adviser in the Kennedy Administration, the United States will be lucky to average as little as 3 per cent inflation.

The employment picture isn't any better than the rest of the news. Herbert Stein, of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said further increases in unemployment, now at least 4.4 per cent of the labor force, might be expected.

POLLUTION LAW
MOSCOW (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia said Monday legislation is planned to pin legal responsibility on people who waste water resources or pollute water with industrial waste.

Use Of Girdle Is Justifiable

Read about Clara's argument with her husband. For God's sake, we use our brains to improve on the anatomy we inherited at birth! That's why the human baby is the most helpless but later becomes the most adaptive of all creatures! So we were born with a variety of footgear - in our skulls!

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph. D., M.D.

CASE M-588: Clara S., aged 27, needs help. "Dr. Crane," she began, "my husband keeps arguing violently with me about my use of a girdle.

"For he says if I exercised properly, I'd never need to wear a girdle to keep my tummy in. "But I tell him my girdle makes me feel more comfortable and it also helps keep my figure trim.

"So are there any medical arguments in favor of girdles? Or do women wear them just to make themselves look more slender?"

True enough, girdles are a great cosmetic aid to women, for you thus appear more slender around the waist.

But there is a good medical reason to justify a wife's use of a girdle, especially if she bears children.

God Almighty designed the human body to be miraculously adaptive, so he placed a superior brain in our skulls by which we could thus improve on our bodies!

Thus, instead of being born with just one type of foot protection, as is the horse, we figuratively were born with a wide variety of footgear - but in our skull!

For man's inventive brain adds leather shoes, rubber boots, tennis shoes, spiked or cleated athletic shoes, skis, dancing pumps, high heeled women's slippers, etc., to our bare feet.

Indeed, man's brain has even helped the horse by concocting iron horse shoes to protect its hoofs from being split and bleeding.

Similarly, man's superior brain has added eyeglasses, hearing aids, false teeth, wooden legs and all sorts of other prosthetic devices to supplement our original anatomical equipment.

God gave us a fairly rigid backbone to help hold us erect. But in front he stopped the breastbone at the halfway point, for that permits us to bend and reach down to tie our shoes.

If our breastbone extended all the way down, as the back bone does, we'd be almost as stiff as a stove pipe.

So our anatomy was designed to let us stoop over and touch the ground.

But this leaves a weak area over the front of the abdomen, so when we are standing, or a wife is pregnant, our abdominal organs tend to bulge forward.

To help hold the abdomen fairly flat, we have these four sets of muscles, namely, the Opening lead: Nine of ♣ South was able to score 10 tricks at his four spade contract by singling in all his small trumps. Once his plan became clear, however, a little more alertness on the part of West would have impeded the cross-ruff and thereby diverted declarer from his goal.

West opened the nine of clubs. East put up the jack and South won the trick with the king. A heart was led to the ace and a small heart was ruffed in the closed hand.

transverse, the internal and external oblique, plus the rectus muscle that runs up and down in front.

These muscles act like laminated elastic layers of a corset.

But muscle fatigue, as from obesity and pregnancy, tends to let the internal organs bulge outward, thereby stretching these anatomical muscles.

So God apparently figured we'd invent a corset (girdle) as an aid to the anatomical corset we obtained at birth.

And this man-made, manufactured corset simply serves much as an additional muscular band around the front of our waistline.

If pregnant women fail to use a maternity corset, the prolonged stretching of the anatomical muscles of the abdomen then fatigues them unduly till they lose their muscle tone (elasticity).

Thus, they may never get clear back to normal.

So it is healthful to wear a girdle or corset to rest the real muscles across the waistline.

But exercise and diet are also wise to keep your natural muscles in tone.

So send for my booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

UNMARKED CARS GONE

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Unmarked state police cars, the foil of the driver in a hurry, have disappeared from Kentucky highways.

State Police Director C.B. Crutchfield said the last of the lot has been retired and will not be replaced.

Moose Add 29 To Rolls

A diamond was played next and when West ducked, the queen was put up to hold the trick.

Another heart was trumped by South and dummy was put in once more with the king of clubs to ruff out the last heart as both defenders followed suit. Declarer cashed his ace of spades for the eighth trick and then exited with a diamond.

West was in with the ten of diamonds on which East discarded a club. The ace of diamonds was led, North ruffed with the eight of spades and East overruffed with the jack. East cashed the queen of clubs, but the forced spade return at trick 12 from the queen-seven into dummy's king-ten gave South the last two tricks and his contract.

West could have extricated his partner from the fatal endplay by putting up the ace of diamonds and leading another club when South first led that suit at trick four. Declarer is deprived of a vital entry to dummy and cannot ruff out all the hearts. If South attempts to continue the stripping process, East can ruff the second round of diamonds, cash his club trick and then exit with a heart—waiting to score the setting trick in the trump suit.

Innocent Snack May Be Illegal

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's against the law to eat peanuts in church in Massachusetts. And in Houston, Tex., it's illegal to sell rye bread, goose liver or limburger cheese on Sunday.

It goes to show that an innocent snack may be illegal, according to American Grocers News. Some good manners are built into a law or two. In Hammond, Ind., for example, it's against the law to drop watermelon seeds on the street.

In 1918, a worldwide flu epidemic killed an estimated 20 million persons, including 446,000 Americans.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has approved and sent to President Nixon a bill to extend the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency for two years.

The authorization reduced by $1 million the amount approved by Congress for the last two years, setting a spending ceiling for the two years at $13,125,000 each year.

The agency was created in 1961 to advise the President on arms control programs.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Scientists have found that when cows belch they can set up a chain reaction which can produce off-flavored milk, according to an Agriculture Department report.

Tests were conducted in which cows were fed onions and leeks. The belched gases were found to be partially absorbed into the bloodstream from the lungs and within a few minutes caused off-flavors in the milk.

A mature cow, officials said, can belch as much as two liters more than half a gallon of gas per minute.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government scored present systems of auto-accident compensation Tuesday in reporting what it called startling and shocking underpayment of monetary losses to victims of major mishaps.

An 18-month study by the Transportation Department concluded that auto insurance repaid only one-fifth of the $5.5 billion compensable losses resulting from deaths and serious injuries from car crashes and accidents in 1967.

Victims or their survivors received an additional $1.4 billion from other sources including liability, collision and medical-hospital payment insurance. But the report based on sample studies of some 513,000 serious accidents showed that total reparations from all sources covered less than one-half of the potential compensation for economic losses.

The report, and the officials presenting it, avoided blaming any part of the governmental or private system involved in compensating accident losses, saying final recommendations for a comprehensive overhaul will be made to the President and Congress this summer.

"If the United States plunges straight ahead on building this kind of arsenal, the Soviets instead of leveling off are going to have to go to a second round of armaments," Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., calling for elimination of $1 billion for MIRV multiple nuclear warheads and $660 million for the Safeguard antimissile system.

President Nixon has deactivated two presidential yachts in an economy move and ordered the Navy to sell them. The market value of the Patricia and the Julie were estimated at $365,000.
