Third Offensive Begun In Cambodia By U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops launched a third offensive into Cambodia today from the central highlands but came under such heavy fire and met such bad weather that helicopters could land but a fraction of the 6,000 men committed to the operation.

On the Fishhook front, 200 miles to the south, U.S. troops met their first serious resistance as a column of tanks blasted its way into the town of Snoul in rubber plantation country eight miles inside Cambodia.

From Pleiku, Associated Press photograph Charles Ryan, covering the new offensive 50 miles to the west, said that two companies of U.S. troops were hit by heavy small-arms fire from both sides of a clearing.

Sources said that due to the heavy ground fire and a morning haze, which set the operation back several hours, only one battalion of about 500 U.S. troops was landed.

Plans had called for at least two battalions to be airlifted in by the helicopters. The troops that did land began building a semipermanent artillery and patrol base from which to fan out.

A field officer said the better part of a U.S. Infantry brigade and a South Vietnamese regiment—estimated at 3,000 or more American troops and an equal number of South Vietnamese—were committed to the new offensive. He said it would be the largest air mobile operation in the central highlands of Pleiku in two years.

This was the second major U.S. offensive ordered by President Nixon to destroy Communist command sanctuaries and base camps.

Nixon ordered an earlier offensive to the south in the Fishhook region of Cambodia. It was launched last Friday.

The other offensive was opened last Wednesday by South Vietnamese troops accompanied by U.S. advisers, but with American air and logistics support. This offensive in the Parrot's Beak is the southernmost of the three.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett reported from Snoul that brick and concrete houses crumbled to dust under American tank guns and warplanes dropping napalm and 500-pound bombs.

American officers told Arnett that there were an estimated 2,000 North Vietnamese troops dug in the town of Snoul and the rubber plantations around it. The Snoul plantation is one of the biggest in Indochina.

Arnett said that as the armored column sped along Highway 7 into the heavily populated area, it came under a hail of recoilless rifle, rocket and automatic weapons fire. Some of the North Vietnamese troops were firing from at least a dozen bunkers in the main school yard.

One American officer from the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment said orders were given to "blow the town away."

All of the civilians apparently had left the town but there were many seen by Arnett in houses just outside the plantation.

In the third Cambodian area of operations, the Parrot's Beak south of the Fishhook, South Vietnamese troops reported they had captured 800 weapons, seized tons of ammunition and supplies, and killed more than 1,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in four days of fighting. At least 30 government troops were killed and 150 wounded.

The U.S. Command's announcement of the new operation from the central highlands gave few details.

The drive was preceded by heavy American air and artillery attacks to soften up North Vietnamese positions and reduce the possibility of American casualties. Nearly 50 U.S. B52s dropped about 1,500 tons of bombs along a 40-mile stretch of the border.

The San River flowing through the operational area has long been a supply route for North Vietnamese troops operating in Cambodia's Ratanakiri and Mondulkiri provinces. Cambodian military intelligence maps show about 6,000 enemy troops, largely North Vietnamese with a few Viet Cong units and battalions of Montagnard tribesmen, for 50 miles south from the point where the borders of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos meet.

Many of these soldiers are protecting the Sihanouk trail, the portion of the Ho Chi Minh trail that runs through Cambodia.

It was the northernmost penetration into Cambodia by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops so far, and usually knowledgeable observers said they knew of no enemy buildup having been observed in the Se San area. But U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said last weekend that all North Vietnamese and Viet Cong sanctuaries along the South Vietnamese-Cambodian border would be attacked.

The observers also pointed out that the expedition into Cambodia took troops away from the defense of the central highlands, thereby increasing the risk of enemy attack there. They said U.S. and South Vietnamese troops are spread thinner in the highlands than in any of the three other military corps areas of South Vietnam.

The new operation is taking place about 160 miles north-northeast of the Fishhook area, where the first American drive into Cambodia was launched last Friday. A third largely South Vietnamese task force is sweeping in the Parrot's Beak of Cambodia, about 50 miles southeast of the Fishhook.

No new major fighting was reported in either area.

School Is Evacuated After Four Deaths

DEAD IN OHIO DEMONSTRATION . . . Shot to death yesterday at Kent State University were students, (left to right) Jeffrey G. Miller, Allison Krause, Sandy Lee Scheuer, and William K. Schroeder. (AP Wirephoto)

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Kent State University, evacuated after four students were shot to death by National Guardsmen breaking up an antiwar demonstration, was virtually deserted and under heavy police and military guard today.

The Justice Department and officials of the National Guard launched separate investigations of the gunfire outburst Monday which took the lives of two girls and two young men.

National Guard officials said the civilian soldiers fired in defense of their lives when the student crowd closed in throwing rocks and chunks of concrete.

The dead were:

Miss Allison Krause, 19, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Miss Sandy Lee Scheuer, 20, Youngstown, Ohio, Jeffrey G. Miller, 20, Plainview, N.Y., and William K. Schroeder, 19, Lorain, Ohio.

Four other students were critically wounded by rifle fire.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, Ohio's largest newspaper, called editorially for "an immediate investigation and prompt steps to prevent a recurrence of the most tragic campus violence ever in the United States.

"Many questions will have to be answered: Why were these people shot? Who shot first? How could these deaths have been avoided?

President Nixon deplored the campus deaths. In a White House statement, he said:

"This should remind us all once again that when dissent turns to violence it invites tragedy. It is my hope that this tragic and unfortunate incident will strengthen the determination of all the nation's campuses, administrators, faculty and students alike to stand firmly for the right which exists in this country of peaceful dissent and just as strongly against the resort to violence as a means of such expression."

The campus and the City of Kent were sealed off following the shootings.

School officials ordered the faculty, staff and 19,000 students to leave. Classes were suspended indefinitely by University President Robert I. White.

Later, Portage County Prosecutor Ronald Kane, armed with a court injunction, officially closed the university until further notice.

Patrols of guardsmen and state patrolmen roamed the campus and blocked all entrances Monday night.

Businesses in the City of Kent and the approaches to the city were cordoned by police and guardsmen.

Nixon said that he would order a Justice Department investigation if the state so requested and Gov. James A. Rhodes then asked for the FBI to carry out an inquiry.

The governor had ordered the Ohio National Guard to the campus Saturday night following a demonstration by some 1,000 students during which the Army ROTC building was destroyed by fire.

Jerry Stoklas, 20, a campus newspaper photographer, said he witnessed the shootings from a rooftop.

He said about 400 students were harassing the guardsmen and "they turned and opened fire. I saw five people go down."

Other witnesses said the demonstrators were pelting the guardsmen with rocks and chunks of concrete.

Stoklas said the troops had backed away, but the demonstrators followed. He said the guardsmen had "turned around several times, apparently trying to scare them."

Sgt. Michael Delaney of the guard public relations staff said 20 to 30 rounds of M1 rifle ammunition were fired.

"At the approximate time of the firing on the campus," he added, "the Ohio Highway Patrol—via a helicopter—spotted a sniper on a nearby building."

Some students contended the "sniper" actually was one of several student photographers atop Taylor Hall.

Guard spokesmen said 900 to 1,000 persons had been involved in the demonstration at the university's Commons and that guardsmen had exhausted their tear gas supply in dispersing the crowd.

The state's National Guard commander, Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso, said the troops began firing from semiautomatic rifles after a rooftop sniper had shot at them.

Gene Williams, a member of the student newspaper staff, said he saw the troops turn "in unison, as if responding to a command," and fire into the crowd.

Brig. Gen. Robert H. Canterbury, who was in direct command of the guard contingent on the campus, said no order was given to shoot.

Martin School Board Approves 1970-71 Plan

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County's Board of Education yesterday approved the school organization plan to effect total desegration in all Martin County Schools for the 1970-71 school year.

School Superintendent Eugene Rogers said that "school zones have not been redrawn, but some may have to be later." Rogers listed the following arrangement for townships in the county; with grades to be assigned to schools within the township.

—Jamesville — Jamesville Township School, grades 1-3; Jamesville School, grades 4-12.

—Bear Grass — Rodgers School, grades 1-6 and Bear Grass School, 7-12.

—Farm Life — Farm Life School, grades 1 through 8.

—Williamston — Church Street School, 1-3; Hayes School 4-8; and Williamston High School, 9-12.

—Robersonville — Robersonville Elementary, 1-3; East End School, 4-8; and Robersonville High School, 9-12.

—Everetts — North Everetts School, grades 1 through 8.

—Oak City — West Martin School, 1-8; and Oak City High, 9-12.

—Hamilton — Hamilton Elementary, 1-3; and Edna Andrews, 4-8.

Rogers said "no definite assignment of teachers has been made, but the board stipulated that teacher's assignments generally be consistent with student assignment, that is, teachers will follow students." He further noted "The board asked that attempts be made to honor requests by teachers for transfers where excessive travel and out of field assignments exists."

In other action taken by the board of education, Atwood Skinner, architect for the board, presented a preliminary plan for the proposed high school site in the Williamston area. No action was taken on the preliminary plan.

The board approved a budget of $46,500 for fiscal year 1971 for the driver education program, and also approved the election of 14 teacher personnel to fill vacancies which have occurred during the year.

A group of teachers met with the board to discuss suggestions for improving conditions in the schools, for both students and teachers. Among these were suggestions for making assignment of teachers and students for next school year before the end of this school year; working up a calendar of events to include dates for professional meetings; and consideration of renumeration to teachers for activities during non-school hours.

News Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation for a 5 per cent Social Security benefit increase—and a hike in payroll taxes—is on its way to the House.

The Ways and Means Committee decided on these and many other changes Monday and told its staff to draw up a bill.

Under its terms, the average single retired person next year would get $121.80 a month instead of $116; the average couple $205.80 instead of $196.

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee said Monday night at a Young Democrat forum that black voters "have lost faith in the political system."

"We need to give them a reason to register," Lee said. He was one of four Negroes who spoke at a forum sponsored by the University of North Carolina chapter of Young Democrat Clubs.

"Society needs black men in politics," Lee said. "We need to rehumanize government so that people are the prime targets."

WASHINGTON (AP) — House supporters remain confident President Nixon's welfare reform bill will become law without undue delay despite an initial rebuff by the Senate Finance Committee.

The committee abruptly halted hearings last Friday and told the administration to rewrite the measure.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee approved today President Nixon's nomination of Judge Harry A. Blackmun of Rochester, Minn., to be a Supreme Court justice.

The 61-year-old judge, a member of the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals since 1959, was nominated by Nixon after two Southern judges he picked to fill a year-old vacancy on the Supreme Court were rejected by the Senate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said today the Supreme Court, by conscious and deliberate inaction, has dodged its duty to pass on the question of the legality or illegality of segregated schools beyond the South.

The high court, he said, has also afforded the legislative and executive departments an excuse for taking the position that they will not act in an area until the Supreme Court has acted in that area.

In a speech prepared for the Senate, Stennis urged the court to promptly take up a case in which such a decision could be made.

Israel Offers A Cease-Fire

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan offered Egypt an "unconditional and unlimited" cease-fire Monday night but said Israel would not be driven from the banks of the Suez Canal by the Egyptians or the Russians.

"The government is ready to re-establish an unconditional and unlimited cease-fire even if this will enable Egypt to reorganize and put up SA3 missile sites," Dayan told a student rally in Haifa.

"We are willing to accept it because we sincerely want a cease-fire, because it would end the war and open the corridor to some kind of an arrangement." But Dayan vowed that Israel would maintain the cease-fire line at the canal and is "ready to fight physically to hold the ... lines even against Soviet aid."

"We shall work out a policy which will enable us to hold the lines and to refrain from any contact with the Soviets as far as possible," Dayan said.

The Israeli and U.S. governments reported last week that Soviet pilots now are flying with the Egyptian air force over the Nile Delta although not over the Suez Canal front. Asked why Israel had stopped its bombing attacks in the delta, Dayan said the aim of "sowing death and destruction among the Egyptian army" had been achieved.

"At this stage," he added, "with the entry of the Soviets, we prefer to wait and see what we can do now."

He also said he wished the United States would face up to the Soviets in the Middle East like "a real tiger with biting teeth."

Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told a meeting of the Israel-American Friendship League in Tel Aviv that the United States should warn the Soviet Union it will not tolerate intervention against a friendly nation in the Middle East.

The United States should also "redress the arms balance in favor of Israel," Humphrey said. He is in Israel to accept an honorary degree Wednesday from the Weizman Institute of Science.

Suspects Arson At University

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Fire Chief Everett Lloyd says arson is suspected in a small fire that caused slight damage Monday to the Air Force ROTC building at the University of North Carolina.

Lloyd said a plastic container with an inflammable liquor was found at the building. The fire was limited to an outside wall of the one-story wooden structure.

High Value Placed On Bald Head

RALEIGH (AP) — The director of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development says state ecologists and scientists figure "the natural systems" of Bald Head Island are worth $49.4 million a year.

The people in Brunswick County "may not be able to see this every day but the dollars are there for the people of North Carolina," Roy Sowers Jr. said Monday in a speech to the Young Democrats Club.

He told the group the overall value of Bald Head Island near Southport in its natural state should not be overshadowed by local pleas for private development.

"We have to look farther than our nose," Sowers said.

Asked if the state has the legal tools to limit access to the island in case it was developed by private interests, Sowers replied "Yes. I am sure that we have the legal machinery to block it (access) if development of the island is not in the public interest. The decision is based on facts. If our biologists show it (development) will damage the ecological systems, we will stop it."

German Families Will Visit N.C.

RALEIGH (AP) — Twenty German families planned to begin a two-day visit to North Carolina today as part of a Caravan America '70 program.

The families, comprising 51 persons, will enter the state via the Blue Ridge Parkway and spend tonight at the Julian Price Campground near Blowing Rock.

They will go on to the Cradle of Forestry at Brevard Wednesday, and spend the night at Lake Powhatan in the Pisgah National Forest.

Sutton, Other Officers Re-Elected By Housing Authority

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The current slate of officers serving the Greenville Housing Authority were re-elected for another year's term last night at the annual meeting held prior to the monthly sessions.

James E. Sutton was re-elected chairman along with Dr. John L. Wooten, vice chairman, and Col. A E Dubber, secretary-treasurer. Dubber also serves the Authority and Redevelopment Commission as executive director.

The three were re-elected by slate in the only business on the annual meeting agenda.

Following the yearly session, assistant director J. C. Lamm read the occupancy report submitted by the director of tenant affairs, Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter.

The April report showed that 64 of the 65 total units in the NC 22-1 section of Meadowbrook were rented with tenants paying an average rent of $41.03. The lone vacant unit in the section, she reported, had been rented by an elderly tenant.

In the NC 22-2 section of Kearney Park, all 160 units in the sub - division were in occupancy and residents paid an average of $41.75 monthly rent.

Both NC 22-3 and NC 22-4 (Moyewood) were filled, Mrs. Streeter reported, with residents occupying all 188 units in the 22-3 section and all 40 in the 22-4 sector. Residents in the two areas paid an average of $44.31 monthly rent.

In other business on a brief agenda, commissioners discussed possible unit designs that could be implemented in the Newtown Redevelopment Project.

Architect Cameron Dudley of Dudley and Shoe presented drawings of a possible design and pointed out that the quadruplex units (two units on ground floor and two above) could be constructed in lots of ten units per acre for the available 9.7 acres of land now being considered for the housing sites.

Atlanta requires at least eight units per acre for public housing, Dudley said. At present, tentative plans call for 93 units provided with 150 parking spaces provided.

None of the drawings or plans are final, it was pointed out, and all are subject to changes both locally and in the HUD office.

Commissioners also discussed the possible use of a unit for storage and maintenance purposes. Sutton suggested that the unit could be set up with plumbing facilities and planned for possible conversion later to a usable housing facility, if needed.

It was suggested that the storage unit be on the lower floor and another housing unit be constructed above it with the storage area conforming to the appearance of the other units.

Dudley was instructed to pursue the idea of a quadruplex design and storage and maintenance area for presentation at the next meeting.

The units are part of the 200 that were approved earlier by HUD for the local Authority. In addition, the 17 units being considered in Moyewood are part of the 200.

Scattered sites will probably make up the rest of the 200 units. Representatives of the Authority met with the Planning and Zoning Commission last month to discuss possible scattered site locations, Sutton reported.

Approximately 100 scattered units are being considered and are subject to approval by the City Council. Project designation for the scattered units will probably be NC 22-6.

Lamm reported that an explanation of the Brooke Amendment, passed by Congress as an amendment to the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 had been received here and was being studied for implementing into the local procedures.

He pointed out that basically the amendment calls for the rent of tenants in the housing areas not to exceed 25 per cent of their gross income as defined by the secretary (HUD).

Lamm said that initial checking of records showed that very few of the families in local housing units would be affected by the new amendment.

Assistant Librarian Is Named

Mrs. Linda M. Stancill, a veteran of eleven years service at Sheppard Memorial Library, has been named Assistant Librarian to replace Mrs. Margaret Clark.

"We are very sorry to lose Mrs. Clark," Miss Elizabeth Copeland, Librarian, stated, "she is leaving for personal reasons." Miss Copeland added "we are fortunate to have Mrs.

Mrs. Linda Stancill

Stancill fill this position."

Mrs. Stancill, a native of Greenville and graduate of East Carolina University, said "I will continue as head of the technical processing work at the library, in addition to being assistant librarian." She explained that technical processing primarily involves "cataloging and processing new books coming in."

Mrs. Stancill's husband is Claxton Stancill, Jr. with the Imperial Tobacco Company. They have one daughter, Wanda Lee, a junior high school student.

Operation Sunshine Program Is Planned

Operation Sunshine, a community program for girls between the ages of eight and 14 which is designed to implement their learning by emphasizing family, home and recreation skills, will be conducted from June 15 to July 25.

The program will be conducted in a house located at 313 W. Third St. The home has been donated for use during the summer by Memorial Baptist Church.

The Home Pride Garden Club last week cleaned the yard as part of the "Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up" campaign sponsored by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

The program is directed toward enriching the individual child's sense of personal value, through her relationships with others, building self-respect and self-confidence, developing skills in personal hygiene and social relationships and providing an atmosphere conductive to wholesome character.

The girls, meeting each day from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, will receive instruction in the areas of arts and crafts, music, cooking, first aid, nature, outdoor camping, recreation and fellowship.

The program is financed by donations from interested civic groups and garden clubs as well as contributions from individuals.

The program is designed to handle 100-125 girls. It is estimated each child will cost approximately $20.

Individuals or organizations who wish to contribute financially may call Mrs. H.H. Bryant. Persons wishing to volunteer their time or facilities (such as bowling alley, pools, or movie tickets) may call Mrs. Sidney R. Finkel, 752-4958.

Mrs. Ingrid Wright of Greenville will serve as director of the program. Members of the steering committee include: Mrs. D.C. Wade Jr. and Mrs. H.F. Steinbeck, co-chairmen; Mrs. Austin Britt, secretary; and Mrs. H.H. Bryant, treasurer; housing and transportation, Mrs. Charles Horne Jr.; publicity, Mrs. D. A. Sencindiver.

The Greenville City Schools activity bus will be used for trips within the city limits. The American Legion building has also been donated to be used for picnics and other activities.

The girls will be given a week at the Albemarle Presbytery camp on Bogue Sound.

Teachers give good reports of better school work, more class participation and improved relationships with others. Parents also report better cooperation from their girls in everyday living.

Campus Rallies To Protest War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least three universities in North Carolina are planning campus rallies Wednesday to protest President Nixon's decision to send American troops in Cambodia.

A resolution was passed last week by the University of North Carolina student legislature urging all students to boycott classes at Chapel Hill. It also called for a campus rally.

At Duke University, a 24-hour protest is planned, beginning with a campus rally in the morning. Following this, students will break up into groups of about 500 each.

A protest convocation is planned at North Carolina State University from 10 a.m. to noon.

Hutch Traver, president of the Associated Students of Duke University (ASDU), said Monday one group of students will picket the Durham draft board while another will distribute leaflets in the city. A third group will march to the Army Research Office of Durham on the Duke campus.

Traver said President Nixon's involvement of U. S. troops in Cambodia "is just another incident of the U.S. government trying to control peoples' lives."

He added the Duke protest "will be mainly concerned with getting the issues of the war and university complicity with the military across to people."

Duke President Terry Sanford said last week, "I have no objection to this kind of expression of position called for by the ASDU Executive Committee. In fact, I applaud student expression of opinion."

Pactolus Plans Testing Day

PACTOLUS — Wednesday will be the testing day for all preschool children who will attend Pactolus Elementary School in the fall.

The test will begin at 8:30 a.m. The children will be allowed to ride the school bus in the mornings. The test will be completed by 1:30 p.m. Children should be picked up by their parents at that time.

The preschool children should either bring their lunch money or their lunch.

The present first graders will not attend school Wednesday in order to give first grader teachers a better opportunity to work with the preschoolers.

State's Abortion Law Faces Court Challenge

RALEIGH (AP) — The constitutionality of North Carolina's abortion law will be challenged in federal district court, probably within the next two weeks, says Dr. Richard Burt of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Winston - Salem.

Burt said Monday the chairmen of the obstetrics departments at North Carolina's three medical schools and one private physician are planning to file the suit.

He said the suit will challenge the law on the ground that the decision to terminate a pregnancy should be left to the mother and her physician rather than to the state.

Burt, chairman of the Bowman Gray obstetrics department, said he and the other two chairmen decided to work together on the case "to give it more stature in the community. We hope it will stand a better chance of gaining support this way."

Charlotte attorney George S. Daley, who has been drawing up the presentation, refused to discuss the case. A report said the suit probably will be filed in Charlotte.

North Carolina's abortion law was enacted in 1967. It allows an abortion to be performed in a licensed hospital in the state with the approval of three doctors in case of rape or incest, when there is a grave threat to the mother, or when there is substantial risk or serious physical or mental defects in the child. The mother also must have been a resident of North Carolina for at least four months.

The number of abortions performed in North Carolina has risen only slightly since the 1967 law replaces its 1881 predecessor.

Dr. Edgar T. Beddingfield of Stantonsburg, president of the State Medical Society, said, "Liberalization is inevitable, but I'm not sure it is an idea whose time has come in North Carolina.

"You would have a hard time persuading the General Assembly to abolish the abortion law, and I think it's pretty representative of North Carolina."

The Bowman Gray Medical School is connected with Wake Forest University. The other medical schools in the state are connected with the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Duke University in Durham.

HANG IT ALL.
When you need a vanity, and the floor space, and the money to buy it, try this.
Start by making two boxes of 6 x 3/4-inch lumber, one just big enough to fit inside the other. Subdivide the smaller box into shelves, as illustrated in the drawing at left.
To hang the unit, make an L-shaped cleat that extends full width. Put the smaller box inside the big one and nail one edge of the cleat through the tops of both boxes. Screw the vertical edge of the cleat to the wall studs. To make the entire unit more secure, you might want to fasten another cleat underneath through the bottoms of both boxes.
Cut 3/4-inch plywood to make the doors, fold-down makeup counter, and curler hamper. Hang the doors with semi-concealed pin hinges; use butt hinges for the hamper and counter top. Curve the sides of the hamper as shown in the round drawing at the left.
Sand, seal, and paint the unit. Stain was used on the outer frame and burlap on the doors and wall; you might prefer to paint the entire vanity in one color.
Before hanging the large mirror, run the wiring for the lights back behind it and down to a wall plug. Put up the mirrors, screw down the light fixtures on the sides.

Converse College May Court Named Saturday

SPARTANBURG, S.C. — Miss Sue Fan Smith of Winston-Salem, N.C., was crowned May Queen at Converse College Saturday before a large audience of students, parents, faculty and townspeople.

Miss Eleanor Ann Joyner of Farmville, N.C., maid of honor, performed the crowning ceremony. The identities of the Queen and Maid of Honor were kept secret until the May Court including four representatives from each class, entered Twichell Auditorium during the May Day festivities which began at 3 p.m.

The modern pageant presented in honor of the Queen and her Court was entitled "The Good, the Bad and the May Court" and featured a variety talent show.

Some old traditions of past May Days could be recognized under the modern mask such as the may Pole Dance performed by eight tap dancers to the music of "Joker is Wild."

Miss Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Landon Smith Sr., wore a white linen full length A-line gown with short, puffed sleeves. A satin sash tied in a bow at the back accented the empire waistline. Ruffles were at the neck and hemline. The dresses of the Maid of Honor and Court attendants were in the same style and material. The Maid of Honor's dress was of pink and green floral design and the attendants dresses were solid pink or green.

The Queen carried a cascade of white flowers centered with a white orchid and the Maid of Honor carried a loose nosegay of white flowers centered with a white orchid and the Maid of Honor carried a loose nosegay of white flowers. Mixed, loose nosegays of spring flowers in vivid colors were carried by the Court who wore headbands of daisies.

David Carlton Daniels, son of Dr. and Mrs. Perry C. Daniels, and Michelle Maria Nichols, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William T. Nichols, senior class mascots, were crown bearer and flower girl.

Following the May Day extravaganza, the audience was invited to a special water show by the Tarpon-Shark Club presented in honor of the May Court.

May Day coincided with annual Parents' Day activities which included meetings of the Parents' Advisory Council, campus tours, a Parent-Faculty coffee hour and the President's Assembly when many students received academic awards and recognitions. A large number of parents attended the Spartanburg Music Foundation opera, "Carmen", Friday evening and parents, faculty and students were entertained at a buffet luncheon on back campus Saturday afternoon prior to the May Day pageant.

Uncomfortable At Reunions

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I became engaged to a man I'll call Frank. He had been divorced for 3 years when I met him. His "ex" married shortly thereafter.

My problem is the close family ties Frank maintains with his ex-wife's people. Especially his ex-wife's sister. This sister keeps calling Frank to tell him her troubles. She invites him to all the family "reunions" and he goes.

One evening Frank took me to this ex-sister-in-law's house and I felt uncomfortable all the while. She looks like Frank's ex-wife and all the talk was about "family" and mutual friends. I didn't know any of these people and sat there like a wart on a pickle.

I have told Frank that I didn't see where his keeping in touch with his "ex's" family was ethical. He said he saw nothing wrong with it. [They had no chi dren.] Am I wrong to feel this way? What should I do? FRANK'S FIANCEE

DEAR FIANCEE: I'd take a long hard look at a man who persisted in hanging on to "family" ties long after those ties were legally severed. Especially knowing it makes his fiancee uncomfortable.

DEAR ABBY: It's fashionable these days for women to wear wigs, and I wear one. [Not all the time, but sometimes.]

Apparently mine looks so natural that people will stop me on the street and ask, "Are you wearing a wig, or is that your own hair?"

This is annoying. No matter what I say, their response is always, "It sure LOOKS natural."

Well, if my wig LOOKS so "natural," why do they ask?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Because it must not look as "natural" as they say it looks. If I were you, I'd discount the remarks of strangers, and ask a few good friends.

DEAR ABBY: I am faced with an important decision. Should I marry the husband I divorced 4 years ago? I know his faults and he knows mine. I am not "lonesome," I don't need a meal ticket, and there are no children to consider.

He has brought out the best in me. [Also the worst.] If any of your readers have had the experience of marrying the same man [or woman] more than once, I wish they'd write in. Does it ever work out? ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: Readers! Does it?

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "LONG BEACH WIFE" to get off her husband's back regarding his wearing a wedding ring, and to count her blessings. [She says she knows he's faithful, and she trusts him but she "feels better" when he wears his wedding ring.]

I've been seeing a man for the last 8 years, and he wears a wedding ring. He has for 30 years. I am not proud of it, but this is the way it has to be. He took it off because it got too tight, but his wife had it made larger so now he's wearing it again. But ring or no ring, it made no difference in his conduct. Some women are such fools! ONE WHO KNOWS

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CONFUSED IN COLUMBUS": Even a whole pie right smack in the kisser is too good for him. Tell him the pastry cook is on strike until she negotiates a new contract.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

We Must Strengthen Pitt Tech

Voters have turned down a proposal which would have broadened Pitt Technical Institute's offerings by making it a community college. Now we must all work to make Pitt Tech as effective institution of service that it can possibly be within its present scope.

Judging by the debate that went on in the campaign which preceded the vote, both opponents and supporters of community college status were in agreement that the technical program at the institute should not be de-emphasized. Opponents felt that de-emphasis might come about if community college status were granted.

The Daily Reflector supported community college status because we felt that the technical programs would not be de-emphasized. We also felt that the Pitt Tech as a community college would have been the most logical place for a Pitt County young person, without a lot of money and perhaps uncertain of what he or she wished to do, to gain some exposure to higher education.

At any rate the community college, which was approved by state agencies for Pitt County, won't be coming here, barring further developments. It is likely that some other nearby county will get it.

The important thing now is that all of us, regardless of how we felt, support the programs now underway at Pitt Tech. Counselors at Pitt Tech should attempt to direct Pitt County young people to Lenoir Community College or other nearby community colleges when individual students seem motivated toward academic subjects on the community college level.

Perhaps, too, Pitt Tech and ECU may be able to cooperate through the university's evening college to provide courses for students who want them.

Finally all of us should work to see that Pitt Tech gets full financial support for strengthing technical and trade training so that as many people as possible can be attracted into these fields.

Pitt Technical Institute has been a great asset to Pitt County. We feel that all of us want to see its programs continued and improved.

A Leadership Crisis Seen

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH, N.C. — The Christian Church today, in a leadership crisis and faced with relentless competition, must have a diversity of witness within the framework of spiritual unity.

Dr. James F. Moudy, a tall Texan with the Gary Cooper image of unruffled strength, spoke of the Christian Church in a double sense.

He referred to the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the largest Protestant body originating on U.S. soil which he currently heads as moderator. In this capacity he came to Raleigh recently for the 125th General Assembly of the Christian Church in North Carolina.

He meant also the world-wide Christian Church, embracing all who profess Christianity regardless of denominational lines.

He used an analogy to illustrate the church's need for many different forms of witness. "We have four Gospels — Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. Each is a different witness, and we are the richer for having four rather than one. To attempt to melt the four into a single Gospel would mean inevitably that something would be lost from each."

Serving as moderator, a two-year office he will hold until the fall of 1971, has sharpened impressions of the state of the church today for Dr. Moudy. Denominational meetings take him from Fort Worth, where he is chancellor of Texas Christian University, across the nation.

"The principal crisis is one of the leadership," he said. Credit or blame for an institution's welfare must be laid to its leaders, and he sees the church lagging in competition for attention and commitment, beset by continual waves of criticism, and plagued with financial problems from declining stewardship which shows eroded loyalty to the church and its causes.

Church leadership has not kept up, numerically or intellectually. Where do leaders come from? Recruitment is one answer. "We have to sell," Dr. Moudy said. "Somebody pushed me, or perhaps I wouldn't be in the ministry."

TCU has a full-time man in the field recruiting for Christian vocations, with dramatic results. A long downward trend in undergraduate pre-ministerial enrollment has been reversed, and seminary enrollment has shown increases ahead of the national figures.

Church leadership needs means laymen as well as preachers. "God calls all," he said. "Men set aside those to ordain as preachers and teachers, but all are ministers of Christ."

Dr. Moudy is the first native Texan, and the first TCU alumnus, to head the 6,500-study body institution. His nickname in college days was "Rowdy," a play on his last name—"all rhyme and no reason," he explained but the glint in his eyes said it wasn't necessarily so.

His background has a Tar Heel flavor. He earned his doctrate in church history at Duke University, 1950-53, and was dean of instruction at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, 1953-57. He served the pulpits of several North Carolina churches while in this state.

North Carolina has approximately 130 Disciples churches with a total membership of some 25,000. Dr. Moudy spoke highly of the church in this state. "North Carolina churches are well ahead on most of the indices of achievement for Disciples," he said.

Church unity is a goal consistent with Disciples tradition. "The first great battle was for spiritual unity," Dr. Moudy said. "One hundred years ago the denominations were at each others' throats. Today it is clear that battle has been won."

The next aim is organic unity. The Disciples and eight other denominations are participating in the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) which has prepared a plan looking towards organic union. The plan is being submitted to the denominations for study and comment over the next two years.

Some congregations, in North Carolina and elsewhere, already are disturbed that COCU may mean a loss of identity in a merger of denominations.

"There is ample time to study the plan and suggest changes," Dr. Moudy said. Its eventual acceptance, he added, will be on a voluntary basis. "Coercion is not a part of COCU," he said.

Turmoil and the loss of respect for forms and institutions are matters for concern, but Dr. Moudy is no gloom-and-doom prophet.

"Good can come from it," he said. "It is the business of the church to make good come from the world as it finds it."

Negotiation Is Way To Settle The War

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin took a threatening attitude toward the United States as a result of the Cambodia action.

In a rare press conference yesterday Kosygin said the Soviet Union will re - examine its military aid commitments to North Vietnam.

"It goes without saying that the Soviet government will draw appropriate conclusions for its policy from such a line of action by the United States in Southeast Asia," Kosygin said.

The premier should also examine the attitude of North Vietnam at the conference table. If meaningful negotiations had taken place in Paris there would be no Cambodian situation at present. The southeast Asia problems will be settled by negotiations, and this means that both sides have to be sincere in their approach to the conference table.

U.S. Relying On Laos Prince

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

VIENTIANE, Laos — The reliance by the U.S. on Prince Souvanna Phouma, sly and skillful prime minister of Laos, to prevent total deterioration here was shown by a backstage political episode during the peak of the Communist offensive in March.

With invading North Vietnamese troops nearing this worried capital city, a startling (and quite accurate) report circulated through Vientiane: Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, the "rightist" leader, was returning from his long exile in Bangkok. That could mean only one thing. "Rightist" generals were plotting a coup to substitute Phoumi for "neutralist" Souvanna Phouma.

The coup was stopped before it started. The "rightist" plotters were flatly informed that the U.S. could not tolerate Souvanna's ouster. Since the U.S. picks up half this country's budget and is essential to armed resistance against the Communists, that was that. "Rightists" who had been babbling about Phoumi on one day were attributing the talk to somebody else the next day.

This American sponsorship for Souvanna respresents a complete turnabout since 1961 when a coup temporarily replaced Souvanna with a government supported by Phoumi and aided covertly by U.S. military and intelligence officers. In the subsequent turbulent decade, the lingering "rightist" and "neutralist" labels have lost all meaning. Souvanna has become the best, perhaps the only, hope to hold off North Vietnamese encroachment.

The indispensability of the 69 - year - old Prince reveals the fragility of the Lao political structure in a war that is vital to U.S. overall interest in Indochina. Any other Lao in power could upset the precarious balance of political forces to the benefit of the Communists.

Souvanna's value was demonstrated during the period when the "rightists" were plotting against him a few weeks ago. With North Vietnamese bearing down on Gen. Vang Pao's base at Long Tieng, the Communist Pathet Lao came up with a clever ploy. They demanded total expulsion of the U.S. military presence here and the bombing of the Ho Chi Minh Trail in southern Laos ended but offered deceptively easy terms to the Lao government as preconditions for negotiations.

A good many Lao politicians "rightists" and "Neutralists" alike, were eager to step into the trap. Some may have been panicked by highly undiplomatic maneuvers from Viktor Menin, Soviet ambassador to Laos. Menin warned prominent Laos that this might be the "last chance" to negotiate. The implication: if the Pathet Lao offer were not pounced upon, North Vietnamese troops would force a military solution.

Souvanna kept cool. He replied to the Communist proposal with a masterpiece of doubletalk. In fact, he realizes fully that withdrawal of U.S. help would insure his eventual replacement, soon rather than later, by a Communist dictatorship.

In an interview at his villa here which doubles as the prime minister's office, he told us there would be no

Strength For Today

NATURE OF PRAYER

The patriarch Jacob, as he fled the wrath of his brother Esau "lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep. And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it" (Genesis 28 1-15).

This is one of the Biblical figures setting forth the reality of prayer — a ladder from earth to heaven with the angels of God ascending and descending on it. In prayer we talk with God, and although He does not answer us in words, He does answer us with guidance, more light, a refreshing sense of his presence, quietness and peace.

Parents are wise when they teach children to pray and set for them the example of their own prayers. There are scores of different ways in which religious education can be carried on in the home. The method is not a matter of great importance. The important thing is that as children grow up they come to believe that there is a God who answers prayer, that they can trust God, that God loves us from the cradle to the grave and wants to make life adequte and significant for us all.

A One-Term Interview

WASHINGTON — "I would rather be a one-term President, than a two-term President at the cost of seeing America become a second-rate power." From President Nixon's speech to the nation on April 30, 1970.

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. I am Walter Cronkite, and today, May 12, 1973, I am sitting here in San Clemente, Calif., with former President Richard Nixon, who, as you know, decided not to run for a second term in 1972.

"Mr. President, you've been out of the White House for a few months now. How does it feel?"

"Well, Walter, I'd like to make one thing perfectly clear. I miss the White House as anyone who lived there does, but I have no regrets. As you know I've joined the law firm of Agnew, Nixon, Mitchell, Haynsworth and Carswell, and we're doing very well."

ART BUCHWALD

"Mr. President, could you pinpoint the moment you decided not to run for another term?"

"I can't tell you the exact time. It could have been when John Lindsay defeated me in the primaries in New Hampshire. I decided at that time I would work for peace and the only way I could do that was to eliminate myself as a presidential contender. Besides, Pat didn't want me to run for another term."

"Mr. President, your decision to involve us in Cambodia has been interpreted by many as the reason that you could not run for a second term. Do you concur with this?"

"Well, I'd like to make this perfectly clear. I decided to go into Cambodia as a way of ending the war. Now the Communists did not see it this way, and, therefore, they

Other Editors Say College Growth

(Kinston Free Press)

There is never a report on the steady growth and development of Lenoir Community College that does not bring gratification to all who appreciate the expanding worth of this educational investment to citizens of Lenoir and adjacent counties. One of those reports has just been completed for benefit of the college trustees and the County Board of Commissioners.

The outlook is for continued growth and development. Architect Leslie Boney has advised officials that when land becomes available they should buy it for future use of LCC. He foresees a time when high - rise buildings, athletic and other facilities will be an urgent need to keep pace with the growth of educational demands in Lenoir County.

It is true that every advance made since it was established as a comprehensive community college seven years ago has revealed a new surge in enrollment and attendance in its 22 vocational and two - year college classes. The next major forward step will be the start of construction of a new classroom building this summer, provided anticipated funds come through on schedule.

College leaders point out that of the $5,198,505 spent on the college in seven years the State has underwritten 76.8 per cent, and federal agencies another 6.9 per cent of the overall investment. Student aid funds in the amount of nearly 10 per cent account for the remainder of the investment.

There has never been any doubt about the fact that citizens of Lenoir County appreciate the college and its vocational and other programs. They are paying some five cents per $100 valuation in ad valorem taxes to support the local operational expenses. How much more it can invest without jeopardizing other needs and urgent priorities is the crucial question which must be evaluated in the next several months.

One thing is obvious: Few other investments now made by the County bring any greater returns than those it has made in this educational institution, which seems to be destined to be a barometer of growth for the entire area.

Mind's Best Menu

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Memories make up the mind's best menu.

Even in our most starved hours they give nutrition to the spirit.

There is no life so poor that it has nothing to look back to with pride or consolation or joy. And, of course, the richer our lives have been with varied appreciations and experiences, the more pleasurable it is to recall the past at those times when the present bores us and the future appals.

Your own menu of memories is pretty extensive if you can remember when—

A nickel was called a jitney.

The Irish, speaking of a sickly child, would sagely say, "That one will never scratch a gray head."

Anyone over 50 was regarded as elderly.

The dream of every bride was to live in a white cottage with roses at the door and surrounded by a neat white picket fence.

The Boston bull terrier was America's most popular pure-bred pet—and for every family that had a French poodle, two had collies.

Hearing aids became more acceptable when the First Lady, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, began wearing one publicly.

In November children started taking turns scratching each other's backs to relieve the itching brought on by donning their longjohn winter underwear.

A dude wasn't really a dude unless his spats had pearl buttons.

When you went to the opera you saw more ladies peering through lorgnettes than sunglasses.

Only the boss of a firm rested his regal bottom in a swivel chair—and even he rarely pampered himself by having a cushion on it.

Most employes got their week's pay in cash on Saturday at noon or one o'clock. Only the well-to-do had checking accounts at the bank.

During the first World War the badge of prosperity for a workingman was a striped silk shirt.

A juvenile delinquent was a kid who parked his wad of chewing gum in the long curls of the girl who sat at the desk in front of him in school.

You knew a boy's parents weren't very well off if he came to class wearing dirty tennis shoes.

Men had legs; women had limbs.

The big argument for giving women the vote was that they would raise the quality of politics.

Those were the days—remember?

Sealright is about to produce a new type of transparent plastic bottle from polypropylene. In the Las Vegas market, Pepsi-Cola is testing a plastic bottle of Barex 210 resin made by Vistron, a Standard Oil subsidiary. Other companies are working on transparent plastic bottles. Some will offer to build plants to make them right in bottlers' works.

Pepsi is characterizing its bottles as "disposable" instead of the older "nonreturnable." That has more appeal to those who want to keep the environment clean. Other plastic-bottle users may swipe the idea.

Glass And Metal Fight Back

Meanwhile, the glass bottle and the aluminum and steel can makers have no idea of surrendering the growing market. They are trying to lock in more bottlers by offering to establish bottle or can-making factories right where the product is packaged, as is the plastic industry.

They are also fighting off charges that they are responsible for cluttering up the landscape. Reynolds Metals in several areas is paying Boy Scouts half a cent each for used aluminum cans. Midland Glass collected 21,000 glass bottles and is encouraging bottlers to put on similar stunts.

Here are other watch-fors in business:

A big drive to put over automatic - reversing cassettes for home recording, providing endless playbacks, as recorded cassettes do. There will be a splurge at the Consumers Electronics Show in New York next month.

Auto union indecision as to which company to strike in event no contract is reached by September deadline. Plans had been to strike General Motors, since Ford was hit last time. Now some leaders want to hit Ford a second time, feeling Ford was softened up last time.

Unconglomerating

Some big conglomerates spinning off unprofitable acquisitions. The slowdown of corporate business has made some recent take-overs appear to be lemons and some may be sold at losses to prevent further drains. One reason some companies were up for merger last year is that owners saw handwriting on the wall. It said, "Sell or merge."

A credit-bureau control law to emerge from Congress this session. For a while it looked as if legislation would be lost in the shuffle, but consumer groups and some Congressmen are keeping the issue alive. Pending bills would permit consumers to see their credit ratings and to add pertinent matter or correct errors.

The introduction of a new watch with solid-state electronics works based on computer logic. Watch has no moving parts, no hands, but tells time when asked.

Old Promoter Reveals His Nut-Price Index

I was just about to write that India's cashew crop was running 5 per cent ahead of last year's when Wunderbar von Garfinkel dropped in.

"I could have told you that a month ago," he said. "I have a private nut price index."

"Huh?"

"I just buy a can of mixed nuts. If there are few walnuts, I know the crop is short and the price is going up. If there are more almonds than filberts, the filbert crop is off. And cashews have been running heavy for the last few months, sometimes being half of the contents."

Maritime Day Poster Displayed On Trucks

President Nixon has proclaimed May 22 as the 38th National Maritime Day as a reminder to Americans of the importance of the American Merchant Marine in maintaining our economic strength and national security.

This year the winning entry in the National Maritime Day Poster Contest will be displayed on all 6,600 Post Office trucks throughout the nation. This Contest is held annually for high school students by the U. S. shipping industry. This year's poster carries the message "American Shipping - Partner in Progress".

To emphasize the importance of the U.S. Merchant Marine to our economy, Greenville Mayor Frank Wooten attached the first Maritime Poster to a Greenville Post Office truck. This poster will appear on all Greenville mail trucks during the month of May.

moved into northern Thailand. Then I was obligated to invade Thailand to clear out their supply bases there. After we did that, the Communists still refused to talk peace, and they started supplying northern Thailand from Burma. We couldn't allow them to use Burma as a dagger against our boys, so we launched the Burma offensive in hopes ,that Hanoi would see reason.

"Instead, the North Vietnamese started supplying northern Thailand from Burma. We couldn't allow them to use Burma as a dagger against our boys, so we launched the Burma offensive in hopes that Hanoi would see reason.

"Instead, the North Vietnamese started supplying Burma from Red China, so in order to protect our boys we worked out a joint attack with the South Vietnamese on Red China.

"This strategy was approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and I was only following out the policies of three Presidents: Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson."

"Why do you believe the Communist forces would never agree to peace?"

"Well, as you know, I was committed to withdrawing troops from Vietnam. The more troops I withdrew, the more military actions I approved. This proved a strain on our armed forces. When we invaded China, I had only 100 American soldiers left. When the aggressors didn't respond to our invasion at the Paris peace table, I had to ask the American people to send in a million more soldiers."

"And that was when you had the youth strike and every draftee in the United States refused to go."

"That's correct. That was in the fall of 1971. We had to jail 2,390,876 men for draft evasion."

"As you know, we didn't have enough jails to put everyone in, so I had to authorize an enormously expensive prison building program. This money, which should have gone for military expenditures, caused inflation to spiral.

"So I made my decision to devalue the dollar, which caused the riots, which forced me to call out the troops, who, unfortunately, had no choice but to fire on the American protesters in the streets."

"Mr. President, what part do you think the students played in your decision not to run?"

negotiations with the Pathet Lao because he would never agree to their precondition of an end to U.S. bombing. Furthermore, he similarly rejected additional seats for the Pathet Lao in the country's non - functioning coalition government.

Souvanna is without illusions about the Pathet Lao. He views Prince Souphanouvong, his half - brother and longtime chief of the Pathet Lao, as utterly without power to make decisions because the Pathet Lao's decisions are made for them by Hanoi. Appreciating the Indochinese crisis as a matter of North Vietnam's aggression in Laos, Cambodia, and South Vietnam, Souvanna added: "the real intention of Hanoi is to replace the French in Indochina."

As long as the U.S. supports him, the pipe - smoking old Prince can be expected to talk softly and concede nothing important to the Communists. This forces Hanoi to keep four combat divisions of North Vietnamese tied down in Laos and gives the U.S. a legal right to bomb the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

What is worrisome is the fact that there is no heir apparent. Some "rightist" generals who are so eager to succeed Souvanna are privately critical of him for not opening negotiations with the Pathet Lao. They would do so quickly, and perhaps disastrously, if they had power.

Moreover, Souvanna could be forced into risky talks from a position of weakness if, as we earlier reported was possible, Long Tieng falls to the Communists before the rainy season begins. In case of that military catastrophe, Souvanna would be hard put to prevent the mad rush toward appeasement.

This is Oldsmobile's year at Indy.
OFFICIAL PACE CAR
Isn't it your year for an Olds?
The knowing folks at Indy just named Olds 4-4-2 official pace car for this year's 500.
For good reason. Olds is not only an excellent performer it's a winner in looks and ride as well.
The fact is, every 1970 Olds is a pacesetter. And it goes far deeper than performance.
You find it in great engineering, in exceptional comfort in ride and handling that are outstanding. And in the solid quality and dependability you've come to expect from Oldsmobile.
In fact, it's this quality that leads many people to believe that Olds is priced out of their reach. A mistaken notion that might keep you in an ordinary car instead of an Olds.
The truth of the matter is that many Olds models are priced right down with the low-price names.
Now that you have the facts, isn't this your year to go Oldsmobile? You can probably do so for no more than what you've been paying. See your nearest Olds dealer!

Mrs. Kennedy Sells Perfume For Retarded

NEW YORK (AP) — Rose Kennedy, mother of the late president, greeted shoppers at a Fifth Avenue department store Monday, promoting the sale of perfumes made by the mentally retarded.

Mrs. Kennedy, dressed in a white-and-violet silk mididress by Givenchy, made her main sales pitch from behind a glass-topped counter, then chatted with shoppers for 15 minutes before leaving by limousine.

The perfumes were marketed by Flame of Hope Inc., a nonprofit organization founded by Mrs. Kennedy's daughter, Eunice Kennedy Shriver, to provide jobs and training for the mentally retarded.

Carmichael Says Negroes Face Long Struggle

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Stokeley Carmichael, the American Black Power proponent, says Negroes of the Caribbean and the world face a long struggle for liberation.

"It will be longer than the Vietnam war and more bloody then those in China," he declared at a news conference Monday.

Carmichael is on a 10-day lecture tour. His wife, singer Miriam Makeba, came here with him Sunday, but left after giving a concert attended by Prime Minister Forbes Burnham and his wife.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., former special assistant to President John F. Kennedy, says "I believe anyone could defeat President Nixon in 1972."

Speaking to a student audience at Georgia State University Monday, Schlesinger declared Nixon had failed to deliver on his campaign promise to bring Americans together—"his policies have only driven us apart."

Three Charged Following Fire

Pitt County deputies have arrested three men on charges of unlawful burning of a house following investigation last night of a fire on Rt. 6, Greenville.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, Charlie Earl Boyd Jr., 21, of Rt. 6, James Alton Williams, 21, Rt. 6, and Thurmond Davenport, 24, of Rt. 4, Greenville were arrested early this morning.

The three men are charged with setting fire to a tenant house owned by J. A. Bunting of Greenville. Location of the dwelling is approximately a half mile west of the Staton House Fire Station.

All three of the men had lived in the house, Tyson said. Damage to the structure, valed at $4,000, was set at approximately $3,000.

Investigation turned up kerosene - saturated rags and paper, tar paper and boxes in the house and other evidence of the fire being set, he said. The fire was reported around 9:40 p.m. last night and was put out by the Staton House fire department.

Bond for each man has been set at $10,000 and a hearing on the case has been scheduled for May 12.

Investigation is also continuing into several other recent fires that have been reported.

New Post Is Created By Board

WILLIAMSTON — Mrs. Christine Farrior was appointed the first Administrative Assistant for Williamston when approval for this post was given by the Williamston Town Board at its meeting yesterday.

In this capacity, Mrs. Farrior will coordinate for the town board activities with the Redevelopment Commission, the Housing Authority, the County Board of Commissioners and other county and governmental agencies. Concurrent with this appointment, Mrs. Farrior submitted a letter of resignation as a member of the Williamston Planning Board. No replacement for this vacancy has been made.

The town board approved the idea of underwriting three quarters of one percent interest on funds for construction of public housing under the Low Rental Public Housing plan. This action was based on a request contained in a letter from the Williamston Housing Authority, and is a measure to rely on until arrangements can be made to sell bonds for the project.

Funds in the amount of $9,500 were approved for operating the Martin Memorial Library. Town Clerk J. B. Godwin explained this amount actually goes into a pool fund for libraries in Beaufort, Hyde, and Martin Counties, which is used for operating public libraries of the three counties.

Installation of a traffic light at the intersection of Jamesville and Washington highways was approved, as was a plan to install curb and gutter and place a fountain in a triangle between Washington and North Houghton Streets.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. says assassinations such as the one which took his son's life "will recur until the country comes to grips with hate and racial prejudice."

Dr. King, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church in Atlanta, made this comment Monday when he received the Los Angeles Council of Churches' first Living Faith Award.

Re-Zoning Request Is Rejected

WINTERVILLE — A public hearing to discuss the possibility of changing the Margaret Register property on N.C. 11 from residential to commercial was held last night by the Winterville Town Board.

The proposal was rejected by members of the town board after much opposition of the people in the surrounding area was expressed.

The board members accepted the election returns as presented by Registrar Rommie Mallison.

The board also accepted a petition from Ralph Crawford representing the property owners on Marshall Avenue, Lee Street and Forbes Avenue. The owners asked for curb and cutter and paving in those areas.

Mayor Walter Dail said the board would accept the petition and put it in line with other petitions for paving and street work.

Miss Dixon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Dixon, Rt. 3, Greenville.

Funds Requested For Law Library

Pitt County Commissioners conducted little business at their afternoon session yesterday as they met for their regular monthly session.

A committee of local attorneys appeared and requested that commissioners consider appropriating a minimum of $5,500 to keep up volumes in the Pitt County-City of Greenville Law Library for the coming fiscal year.

Previously, maintenance of the library was funded through a $1 charge added to court costs in cases tried under the old recorders court system which was replaced more than a year ago with the new system of District Courts and magistrates. Since that time, the lawyers said, no funds have been directed for library use.

Commissioners agreed to review the request when they prepare the new budget.

Dr. C. Sylvester Green, director of the Pitt County Development Commission, told commissioners that since January 1, the commission has worked with 38 new clients — firms who have indicated an interest in locating in Greenville. Ninteen of those prospects, according to Dr. Green, are "extremely active."

The Development Commission official did say, however, that many firms "are scared to come to Greenville," at the present time because they are uncertain what effect the opening of Burroughs-Wellcome and the planned Becton-Dickinson plants will have on the labor market. The firms, Dr. Green explained, are afraid BW and B-D will "styme the local labor market for a while."

Commissioners set a meeting for 5 p.m. Wednesday to discuss county planning and are scheduled to meet May 13 at 7:30 with mayors and town board members of Pitt Municipalities to discuss garbage disposal.

Your Representatives Need Help

Suppose a newcomer to your neighborhood stopped and asked you what congressional district you lived in or the name of the assemblyman representing the area, could you answer the question?

If you are the average citizen, chances are you would be embarrassed. You wouldn't know. Yet these elected officials – our representatives – are deliberating on measures that will affect our mode of living, our pocketbooks and in some instances, even our lives.

This condition is one of the political paradoxes of our times. Under our constitution, we are given the privilege of selecting a suitable candidate for office – one who will serve our best interests. We have the right to vote for and elect the candidate whom we feel is best qualified to carry out our wishes.

Little more than half of us go through these motions in a lackadaisical fashion. Except for presidential elections, less than 50% of eligible voters turn out. Once we have performed this chore, the winning candidate–or is he the luckless candidate–is left to his own devices. We do not assume the duties that rights and privileges impose upon us. We do not keep in touch with our elected representative. We do not express our opinions or attitudes about issues on which he has to pass judgment.

We seem to endow him with psychic powers (he should know what we want). Special interests, through their lobbyists and vocal minorities capitalize on this lack of public interest. It enables them to have legislation passed–not because it is good but because the legislators have heard no dissent.

Does this affect personal money management? Of course it does. There are very few, if any legislative measures that don't have a price tag and the tax-paying citizen is the principal source for the money needed to fund these projects.

At a time when budgets are estimated in billions, it is essential that we exercise our constitutional rights, privileges and duties. It can save us money.

Cincy, Atlanta Continue Wins

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Bouton is shooting for an "A" rating as a starting pitcher to go with his "X" rating as a beginning author.

Bouton, the outspoken Houston Knuckleballer whose inside baseball book, "Ball Four," should on the shelves next month, made top marks on the mound Monday night, taming the Chicago Cubs 7-2 with a six hitter.

In going the distance for the first time in four starts this speing, Bouton equaled his complete game total for last season, when he made 3 appearances — all but two of them in relief — for Seattle and Houston.

In the only other games on the schedule, Atlanta ran its winning streak to seven with a 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh and Cincinnati made it six straight wins by pounding St. Louis 7-3.

Bouton shrugged off a pregame earned run average of 7.41, limited the Cubs to one untainted run and scored twice himself while squaring his pitching record at 2-2.

The 31-year-old veteran, who won 21 and 18 games for the New York Yankees in 1963-64 before losing his fastball touch, has fought his way back by mastering the dancing knuckler.

But one new pitch wasn't enough, so he tossed his hat in the literary ring, dictating into a tape recorder last winter and passing on the results to an editor for publication.

"I was going to write a book if I ever got famous," Bouton said. "But I decided I couldn't wait any longer.

"I use the language of the players. My book has an "X" rating."

Bouton let his knuckleball do the talking against the Cubs, sending them reeling to their fourth straight loss. He also scored the first of two Houston runs in the third inning after being plunked by a Bill Hands pitch, then punched a single in the eighth to start a four-run wrapup burst.

Jim Wynn and Denis Menke drove in two runs each for the Astros.

Rico Carty extended his hitting streak to 23 games with run-scoring single; Orlando Cepeda snapped an 0-for-14 slump with his sixth homer and winning pitcher Jim Nash also homered as the Braves downed the skidding Pirates.

"It still seems just like another base hit," said Carty, who leads the National League with a .432 average and has not been collared since opening day. "It doesn't excite me one bit. I'd like to hit in a thousand as long as my club is winning."

At Cincinnati, homers by Lee May and Pete Rose helped right-hander Gary Nolan gain his fifth pitching victory without a loss. Nolan gave up six hits and got ninth inning relief help from Wayne Granger as the Reds ran their season record to 20-6.

Team Effort Brings Victory For Knicks

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Reed was sitting in the locker room with a bruised right hip, Dave DeBusschere was sitting on the bench with five fouls and the New York Knicks were dead, right?

Wrong—the Knicks were alive and, oh, so well in Madison Square Garden Monday night with a super-charged team effort that beat Los Angeles 107-100 in the fifth game of the National Basketball Association championship playoffs.

"It was just meant to be tonight," chortled Walt Frazier, who scored 21 points and directed an inspired comeback that shot the Knicks into a 3-2 lead in this best-of-7 series.

You had to be there to believe it—and even then it wasn't easy.

Reed, playing on a pair of pain-ravaged knees to begin with, bruised the right hip at 3:46 of the first quarter. The Knicks' ace center was finished for the night.

DeBusschere, the Knicks' other big rebounder at forward, was one of a succession of players who took on the Lakers' Wilt Chamberlain at center. He sat out most of the last period with five fouls while the Knicks were making a comeback from a 53-40 halftime deficit.

But the Knicks had a basket of heroes—and one of them was Dave Stallworth, a reserve forward who played like an all-star center against Chamberlain.

Chamberlain got the message, too. Stallworth drove big Wilt to distraction with his fluid moves and picture-perfect shooting. He scored 10 points in the last 10 minutes as the Knicks climbed back from an 82-75 third quarter deficit.

"I tried to keep moving around Wilt." said the 6-foot-7 Stallworth, who is four to five inches shorter than the Lakers' center. "I wanted to make him commit himself."

Cazzie Russell, another ace in the hole with six quick points, under the four-minute mark that gave New York a 101-94 lead, said, "it looked bad when Willis was taken out."

"But we just had to regroup ourselves and do the job." said Russell. "This game has to be the biggest thrill of my life."

Reed, the reason the Knicks have come this far, was with the team in spirit as he sat on the trainer's table in the locker room and listened to a play-by-play piped in by a speaker system.

"I couldn't hear the crowd through the door." he said, "but every time we did something right they must have gone wild."

The final figures told the story—the Lakers made 30 turnovers, 18 in the second half and Jerry West, the NBA's top scorer, scored 20 points, only four in the last half.

The Lakers also took only 66 shots in game, 26 in the last half.

"Twenty-six shots in a half?" West repeated in a subdued monotone "... why schoolyard players shoot better than that."

Wakley To Get His Big Chance

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The neatly typed press release announced new lineup changes which St. Louis Coach Scotty Bowman had decided on for tonight's second game of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals against the Boston Bruins.

Nothing spectacular. Strictly routine. One of the changes, the release said, would be the use of veteran Glenn Hall in goal for the Blues. No big scoop there.

Jacques Plante had been the Blues' starter in Sunday's opener won by the Bruins 6-1. Five of Boston's goals had come after Plante was kayoed by a slapshot and replaced by rookie Ernie Wakely, who was playing in only his third playoff game ever. With Hall, a veteran of a record 110 cup games available, logic seemed to point to him for game No. 2.

Logic pointed, but Bowman didn't. Scotty pulled the puck on his publicity department by announcing that Wakely would be back in the nets for tonight's second game in the best-of-seven series. Hall will have a comfortable seat on the end of the bench and Plante an even more comfortable bed in Jewish Hospital where he is recuperating satisfactorily from the concussion suffered when Fred Stanfield's slapshot cracked into his mask.

"You can't judge a goalie coming off the bench the way Wakely did," said Bowman. "Ernie played pretty well for us during the regular season. In fact, he didn't lose a game at home all season."

Gamecocks To Decide Today

COLUMBIA (AP) — The University of South Carolina is to announce today whether it will leave the Atlantic Coast Conference as part of a bid for bigtime athletic recognition.

The university's board of trustees was to meet behind closed doors this morning and the decision was to be announced at a late afternoon news conference.

The possibility that South Carolina would get out of the conference arose last week when a majority of other schools in the conference declined to put ACC athletes on a par with the scholastic entrance requirements of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The conference majority declined to reverse a requirement that athletes score 800 of a possible 1,600 on college board examinations.

South Carolina favored a change proposed by the University of Maryland to drop the 800 college board score and adopt, instead, the 1.6 point projection of a 4.0 grade ratio for athletes. This is the NCAA requirement.

At last week's spring meeting in Southern Pines, N.C., conference officials postponed consideration of the question until the next meeting in December. The presidents of the eight schools were asked to conduct an interim study of athletic eligibility requirements.

South Carolina's differences with the ACC also include the method of selecting a conference basketball champion.

The conference champion and its representative in the NCAA tournament is selected in a postseason conference tournament. Although South Carolina had the best record in the season just past, and won every regular season game against ACC opponents, it lost to North Carolina State in the finals of the ACC tournament. South Carolina proposed at the spring meeting that the team with the best regular season record represent the league in the NCAA tournament, and the winner of the ACC tournament be eligible for the National Invitation Tournament NIT)

Richey Captures Win In Atlanta Net Event

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An agile and aggressive Cliff Richey, pushing a relentless attack and making few errors on defense, has won the Atlanta Invitational Tennis Tournament here with a 6-2, 6-2, finals victory over Frank Froehling.

Richey, top-seeded in the tournament, broke Broehling's serve in the first game and stayed in control throughout, serving hard and staying on top of his opponent's shots for the victory.

Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., won $3,000 for his first place finish, while Froehling, of Fort Lauder, Fla., won $1,000.

The showdown between the two came off Monday after being postponed Sunday because of rain. Froehling, once ranked No. 2 by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, had said he was seeking a comeback and financing for two years on the professional tour.

"I just got too keyed up, tried too hard," Froehling said after the match. "I really thought I could beat him."

'Honor' May Be Dead On Golf Course

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Palmer teed up the ball and took his familiar stance on the 15th hole—the first extra hole—in the sudden-death playoff with Jack Nicklaus for the $20,000 first prize in the Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

"Palmer is hitting first because he had a four on the last hole and Nicklaus had a five—it's Arnie's honor," the television announcer announced blandly.

Palmer waggled his club a few times, and then another voice came over the air waves:

"Palmer is hitting first," the announcer at the scene reported, "because they tossed a coin for the honor. Nicklaus won and elected to hit second."

It sounded like—the start of a football game. "Electing to kick off....and receiving, with the wind to its back..."

This was one of the little interludes that passed almost unnoticed—though it planted a small seed of curiosity—in the tense Nicklaus-Palmer head-to-head battle Sunday at Dallas, won by Nicklaus on the first extra hole.

"I never heard of anything like this in my life," said Fred Corcoran, executive director of the International Golf Association and once whip—hand of the PGA Tour.

"If a player winning the honor can elect to hit second, what is to prevent him from choosing whether he wants to hit first or second in a regular match or tournament?"

The knotty issue was tossed into the lap of Joseph C. Dey Jr., the new pro golf commissioner, who is paid a comfortable salary to resolve such things.

"The coin toss was necessary because, with the completion of the regular 72 holes, the playoff became a match-play event," Dey explained. "The toss is customary in playoffs.

"I grant that it was unusual for Nicklaus to choose to drive second but he had his choice. Normally, I think a man would elect to drive off first."

Might this lead to a change in the long—standing tradition that awards the honor of hitting off first to the player with the lowest score on the previous hole?

"I don't think so," Dey replied. "The so—called 'honor' in golf is deeply rooted. It's supposed to be an honor to strike the ball first. Mrs. Margaret Curtis, who won many of our women's championships and who founded the Curtis Cup, always contended that the player winning a hole should have a choice on the next hole.

"It never took. Hitting first is an act of aggression. It's intended to put the heat on the opponent. I think those preferring to hit second would be a definite minority.

"I am also convinced that had Palmer won the toss at Dallas, being a very aggressive person, he would have chosen to drive first."

Palmer drove first. Nicklaus came up next and outdrove him. Palmer, pressing, hit a drive from the fairway, half—hit the shot and was short. Nicklaus was flag high to the left—He got down in two for a birdie four. Palmer took a five.

Week—end golfers in a thousand locker rooms must have debated the psychology of the situation.

The late Tony Lema and Nicklaus came to the final hoel of the Buick Open in 1965 all tied and with Nicklaus holding the honor. Jack punched his tee shot out of bounds. Lema put his driver back in the bag and took out a brassie, deciding to play safe.

"It was a break to hit second," Tony said afterward.

Golfers sometimes "go to school"—as the expression goes—on their opponents, profiting from watching an opponent's shot. The late Horton Smith often stood behind his adversaries and took note of what club they used.

Yet Walter Hagen, in his celebrated challenge match against Bob Jones in 1928, drove with a brassie in order to hit first with his second shot, the idea being to "psych" Jones with a great approach. Hagen won the match 12 and 11.

"Most players are anxious to put the pressure on their opponents," Dey said. "They like to attack. Few find it advantageous to lie back."

Derby Victory Cuts Field For Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dust Commander's five-length victory in the Kentucky Derby hasn't yet had the effect of scaring off the opposition for the May 16 Preakness at Pimlico.

A field of 12 to 15 seems possible for the $150,000-added Preakness, second stop in the Triple Crown series, with as many as nine Derby horses likely to challenge Dust Commander again.

Only once since 1928 has there been as many as 12 entries in the Preakness, with the field ranging from six to 10 during the last seven years for the 1 3-16-mile classic.

Owner R. E. Lehmann was expected to decide today whether to have Dust Commander continue his quest of the Triple Crown—not accomplished since Citation in 1948.

Since the colt wasn't nominated for the Preakness, it would cost $10,000 to make him a supplemental entry — or $3,500 more than Lehmann paid for Dust Commander as a yearling.

Corn Off The Cob, seventh in the Derby, is the only one of top 10 finshers in the 17-horse Derby definitely out of the Preakness. Another possibility is Holy Land, who lost his rider at Louisville.

Sunny Tim, a two-time stakes winner this year who didn't go to the Derby, also has arrived at Pimlico and is considered a definite Preakness starter. Other possibilities include Cut the Comedy, Hagley, Buskashi and Plenty Old.

My Dad George, runner-up in the Derby, is on the grounds, along with other Derby also-rans: Silent Screen and Robin's Bug.

Sunny Tim, owned by Calumet Farm which is boycotting the Derby in a dispute over the purse distribution following the controversial 1968 race, ran fifth in the Wood Memorial.

High Echelon and Personality, third and eighth in the Derby, will arrive next week, with trainer John Jacobs still considering a start for Personality this Saturday in the Withers Mile at Belmont.

Naskra, fourth in the Derby is due at Pimlico Saturday or Sunday while Native Royalty, ninth at Churchill Downs, was expected today.

Trainer Woods Garth plans to run both Hagley and Buzkashi in the Withers. John Gaver will enter Cut The Comedy in the same race and said, "if he runs well, he'll be down for the Preakness."

A field of 12 would provide a record gross value of $199,800 for the Preakness, already the richest of the Triple Crown races. The winner would get $147,300.

Three-Pointer Gives Stars Win

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — "I was just skimming around all the way, just looking for that spot — and the shot," said Los Angeles Starsguard turned-forward Bob Warren.

The shot was a 27-footer, a three-point basket that put Los Angeles ahead to stay late in their American Basketball Association playoff game Monday night against powerful Denver.

The surprising Stars then took advantage of a fourth-quarter slump to rip the Rockets 119-113 before 4,468 boisterous fans at the Anaheim Convention Center —the Stars' biggest home crowd of the 1969-70 season.

That gave Los Angeles a two-game-to-one advantage in their best-of-seven battle for the Western Division championship. The winner of the series, which resumes tonight in nearby Long Beach, will face the Eastern champ.

Indiana, the regular seaon's runaway leader in the East, holds a 2-1 edge in its playoff against Kentucky with Game No. 4 tonight in Louisville.

Denver won the West with ease while Los Angeles just did manage to squeeze into the fourth and final playoff berth by a single game.

The Stars dropped nine of 12 regular-season games to Dallas before upending the Chaps in six semifinal playoff games. Coincidentally, the Stars lost nine of 12 to the Rockets as well.

But Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman, who has been juggling an injury-riddled lineup and coming up with balanced attacks the past few weeks, commented after Monday night's game: "We're just getting stronger and stronger every game."

Mack Calvin's 31 points plus 28 by Warren—playing in place of injured rookie ace Willie Wise — and 24 by Craig Raymond highlighted the Stars' offense. But Sharman was more interested in their defense.

"Merv Jackson has been hurt four times this season and he's just coming around," Sharman said of his 6-foot-3, second-year guard. "But how about that second half he had?"

Jackson held high-scoring Larry Jones to just eight points in the final 24 minutes after the Denver guard hit for 22 in the opening half.

"Raymond's blocks and board work were outstanding, too," Sharman added. The Stars' pivot man couldn't keep Rocket center Spencer Haywood from collecting 37 points but he did slap down half a dozen Denver shots during Los Angeles' winning drive.

Court Issues Merger Delay

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be no merger of the National and American basketball associations, at least until a suit by player representatives of all NBA teams has been brought to trial.

The indefinite delay was assured Monday when Judge Charles H. Tenney of U.S. District Court signed a preliminary injunction order, superseding a temporary restraint granted last month by U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd F. McMahon.

McMahon had ruled that a merger of the NBA and ABA raised "serious questions" of legality under the Sherman Anti-trust Act because it could eliminate competition for player talent.

At a hearing last Friday on the request granted Monday, Ira M. Millstein, the NBA players' lawyer, asked Judge Tenney to not "let them get into a non-competitive mentality."

NBA attorney Jacob Imberman countered, however, that the league would refrain from noncompetitive agreements until the issue was resolved.

Best 18-hole score on the 1969 PGA tour was turned in by Steve Reid when he shot a 61 in the third round of the Memphis Open.

Gene Littler was 21 under par with a 263 in the 1969 Phoenix Open. It was the lowest tournament score of the year.

Ready For Time Trials

DARLINGTON, S. C. (AP) — Drivers got their finely tuned stock cars ready in practice runs today for an assault on Cale Yarborough's qualifying record of 152.295 m.p.h. for the Darlington International Raceway. They are preparing for Saturday's Rebel 400.

The 36 fastest cars in time trials Wednesday through Friday will qualify for the $85,000 race. Forty - six drivers have filed entries, including Yarborough, who will be in a Ford, and Richard Petty and Pete Hamilton, who will be in Petty Engineering Plymouths.

The Petty team has won three of four superspeedway races this season. Hamilton came home first at Daytona and Talladega, and Petty won the Carolina 500 at Rockingham, N.C.

Hamilton wrecked in both his previous Darlington starts, but Petty, who has been running at Darlington for 11 years, won the Rebel 400 in 1966 and 1967, and the Southern 500 in 1967. He has won $104,170 at the track. His average speed of 130.327 m.p.h. for the 1967 Southern 500 is a track record.

Quarterback Inked By Bucs

Carl Lee Summerell, considered the outstanding college quarterback prospect in the Tidewater, Va., area, has signed a full, four - year football grant - in - aid with East Carolinn University.

ECU Head Coach Mike McGee announced the signing Friday. Assistant Coach Sonny Randle, a native Virginian himself, personally handled the recruiting of Summerell.

"Carl is one of the finest high school passers I've ever seen," said Randle, formerly an All - Pro receiver with the St. Louis Cardinals. "When you look for a drop - back quarterback — which is what all the colleges are looking for those days — you hope to find one like Summerell. He has excellent size and potential."

The 6-4, 185-pound Summerell was voted Most Valuable Player for Floyd Kellum High School last fall after he threw for 12 touchdowns and ran for six more for the Virginia Beach school. In passing he was 67-for-146 for 921 yards and accumulated 1,049 yards in total offense.

Summerell was All - Metro honorable mention, first string All - Eastern District and was co-captain of the Kellum football, basketball and baseball squads. A starter in the defensive backfield his sophomore and junior seasons, Summerell was switched to quarterback only last year by Kellum Coach Bill Ralph. The move, of course, was a success.

A winner of seven varsity letters at Kellum, Summerell is considered to be the No. 1 candidate for the ECU freshman quarterback job this fall.

"We are very, very pleased to have Carl join our team here at East Carolina," said McGee.

Opening lead: Queen of ♣

Failure by West to find the killing trump opening, provided South with an opportunity to salvage his ambitious slam contract in hearts.

North's raise to four hearts announces an unbalanced hand containing five trumps but less than 10 high card points. It was not reasonable for South to expect his partner to be able to take care of enough of his losers in the side suits and he should have been content to settle for game.

West opened the queen of clubs which was ruffed in dummy. South observed that he had a certain loser in trumps and neither the diamond or spade holding provided assurance of avoiding loss of another trick. It appeared that declarer's only hope hinged on compelling the opposition to open up one of the side suits for him.

A heart was led to the ace at trick two as both opponents followed suit. South now made the key play of the deal by playing the ace of clubs and ruffing his good trick in dummy—in preference to taking a discard. A second round of trumps saddled West with the lead.

If West returned either a spade or a diamond, it would not only result in the surrender of the defenses' trick in that suit, but it would enable South to establish a "13er" for the discard of his remaining loser. The return of a small spade, for example, would compel East to put up the jack in order to force out declarer's ace. South can now return the ten thru West and take a successful finesse against the latter's queen. When the suit divides evenly, North's long card in spades provides a discard for declarer in diamonds.

If West shifts to a club when he is in, South throws either a diamond or a spade from his hand while he ruffs in dummy. He then cashes the top honors in the suit from which he has discarded, ruffs the third round and sluffs his remaining loser on the long card of the suit he has just established.

Observe that if South fails to ruff the ace of clubs, choosing instead to shed either a spade or diamond from dummy, West can defeat the contract by merely exiting in the suit from which North had discarded. Declarer has no long card to establish and must eventually lose a trick in the other side suit.

Had West led the king of hearts originally, it would have deprived South of the reentry to his hand required to ruff out the second club. In order to trump both clubs, he must open up one of the side suits himself—thereby providing West with a safe means of exit when he is thrown in subsequently.

Worry Clinic

Your Children Know Blackmail

Bill has been "blackmailing" his devoted but foolish parents for at least 15 years! Their last pay-off is a new car for him. Yet he doesn't fulfill even 2 of the 5 minimum requirements demanded of teenagers before they should have access to any automobile! So use the tests below to measure emotional maturity!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE L-514: Bill G., aged 16, is a problem.

"Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "Bill doesn't want to go to school.

"He has run away from home for the 3rd time this year.

"But we have given him everything we could afford, for we aren't rich.

"His daddy even bought him his own car a month ago, but Bill thinks we have no right to tell him when to come home at night, for he says he is old enough to do as he pleases.

"He refuses to go to church with us and acts like the typical spoiled brat much of the time.

"Yet we love him and want to help him, so what can we do?"

Good parents must be hard-boiled on many occasions.

And never let a temper tantrum brat use psychological blackmail on you, for children soon realize that because of your love for them, you parents will often give in to their demands.

Woodrow Wilson thus offered us a maxim that applies to modern parents as well as to our "free enterprise" system, whem he said:

"All any American should desire is a free field and no favors!"

Our Declaration of Independence likewise states that we Americans are endowed by our Creator with certain inalienable rights, namely, "life, liberty and the PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS."

Please observe that none of us is entitled to "happiness" unless we "pursue" it hard enough to "catch up" with it, via our hard work and "elbow grease," plus thrift, diligence to duty and long hours of study.

It was folly, therefore, for Bill's parents to give him his own car!

He didn't earn it nor remotely deserve it. In fact, he wasn't working enough even to buy a tank of gasoline for it!

So why will you parents be such nitwits as to subsidize your children in such a vicious fashion?

And I use that word "vicious" advisedly, for this is exactly what has produced the hippie generation, namely, your excessive permissiveness and showering of your children with unearned cash allowances, plus other favors they have never merited.

Bill's problem began back before kindergarten when his daddy and mother should have encouraged him to earn pennies and nickels via simple tasks around the house.

For the children who work for their own money, become very frugal in spending it.

Remember, it is the free cash handouts that are squandered in Prodigal Son fashion!

"Easy come; easy go," is a maxim that has been true ever since Adam and Eve, yet thousands of college graduate parents violate that basic axiom of child psychology every day right here in the U.S.A.

Here's how to determine if your teen-ager merits a car:

(1) Does he earn his own spending money?

(2) Does he make good marks in school?

(3) Does he play the parent-child game according to the rules?

(4) Has he won a driver's license and shown enough emotional maturity to drive like a man instead of a show-off interiority-complexer?

(5) Does he rate "Senior High School" on the following test?

Send for my "Emotional Test for Teen-Agers," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents and learn how to rear children properly!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Some Feel N. Vietnam Under Strain

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some U.S. military leaders are convinced North Vietnam is under severe strain and destruction of once-secure Cambodian bases will cut deeply into Hanoi's ability to wage a three-country war.

Other analysts, however, believe the North Vietnamese can continue fighting on fronts in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos if they followed a "low key strategy."

Such strategy would involve selective attacks on U.S. and South Vietnamese bases in South Vietnam, limited operations to consolidate positions in Laos, and possibly a withdrawal deeper in Cambodia to establish new bases.

According to U.S. estimates, the North Vietnamese still have ample sources of military manpower, about 207,000 troops in the three countries, although the quality is down from what it used to be. Some experts believe North Vietnam, could, if pressed, raise another million men.

As long as the Soviet Union and Communist China are willing to pump in enough equipment, food and supplies, American analysts feel North Vietnam could sustain military operations throughout Indochina.

Top U.S. leaders strongly doubt the North Vietnamese can gear up quickly for a heavy strike in response to the new U.S.-South Vietnamese offensive aimed at demolishing the enemy base structure in Cambodia.

The exception to this lies in the presence of some three divisions of North Vietnamese troops north of the demilitarized zone.

Hanoi is on notice that any attacks by these troops across the DMZ might bring a resumption of widespread American bombing of North Vietnam.

Timing plays a very important part in the American thinking about the Cambodian operation and its consequences.

U.S. leaders expect the North Vietnamese supply dumps and communications and command position to be destroyed before the rainy season arrives in a few weeks.

As the U.S. strategists see it, a combination of the rainy season and the denial of a long-used and critical supply source in Cambodia will throw off for many months the enemy's ability to maneuver on a major scale particularly in South Vietnam.

Infiltration into South Vietnam has been at a relatively low level, totaling only about 30,000 men in the first four months of this year, according to U.S. military intelligence assessments.

But American officers, considering the Laotian and Cambodian troops almost totally ineffective, believe the North Vietnamese could hold much of what they have gained without any significant input of troops.

It was noted that even as the Americans and South Vietnamese attacked into the Cambodian base areas, North Vietnamese troops were making deeper penetrations in the Laotian panhandle to the North.

These enemy moves in Laos were described by American analysts as intended to secure the Ho Chi Minh trail, rather than any plan to gobble up more of Laos.

In South Vietnam, it is felt, the North Vietnamese could respond to the allied offensive into Cambodia by increasing the shelling and rocketing of bases and cities and by increasing many small scale attacks against supposedly pacified areas.

In Cambodia, American analysts said, it is still within the power of the North Vietnamese to push on toward the capital city of Phnom Penh and possibly to open up a new supply route to the Gulf of Siam.

Such a route would replace an inlet for aid cut off within the past month when the new Cambodian government ended Communist bloc shipments to North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces via the port of Sihanoukville.

Even if reduced to one main supply route—the Ho Chi Minh Trail—U.S. experts believe the North Vietnamese can continue to push through enough supplies and war gear to maintain their forces in South Vietnam, the most important theater.

By all evidence, North Vietnam has made no big effort to rebuild its relatively primitive industry in the wake of the U.S. bombing halt in late 1968, although its road network has been rebuilt and expanded.

Obviously, the North Vietnamese are relying on outside aid to sustain them—and there is not much the United States can do except cut off the port of Haiphong and rail movements out of China into North Vietnam. Neither action is at all likely.

Intelligence authorities estimate total Russian, Chinese and East European aid to North Vietnam is running at the rate of about $1 billion a year, with Moscow accounting for an increasing portion.

Since the end of the bombing in November 1968, the character of this aid has shifted from predominantly military hardware to food and fertilizer.

If the United States should resume bombing of North Vietnam, the expectation is that Russia would ship more antiaircraft guns and surface to air missiles to North Vietnam to augment the roughly 6,000 similar weapons already in place.

Some steps have been taken to bolster North Vietnam's air force, but it still is very weak and totals only about 200 planes.

My Lai Massacre Story Pulitzer Prize Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Freelance reporter Seymour M. Hersh has won the 1970 Pulitzer Prize in international reporting for his story on the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

Other Pulitzer Prize winners announced Monday included black playwright Charles Gordone, recipient of the drama award for his off-Broadway play, "No Place To Be Somebody;" and Newsday, a Garden City, N.Y., daily which won the public service award.

Hersh said he was delighted to get the prize but "it's amazing to me that anyone could know about My Lai and still continue to wage war ... The last weekend has been very upsetting to me. Perhaps the American people should know more about My Lai and what their young kids are getting into when they go to war."

Working on an initial tip he received from a Pentagon source, Hersh, 33, researched the story with a $2,000 private grant and sold it to 36 newspapers through a small news service, the Dispatch News, after national magazines had turned it down.

Gordone, whose drama was the first off-Broadway play to win the award, said, "I never expected to get it. I'm very happy and pleased. I've hardly had time to realize it." He tried for three years before he was able to place the drama.

Newsday won its second public service prize in 16 years for a three-year campaign exposing secret land deals and zoning manipulations by public and political party office holders on Long Island. A separate prize for cartooning was won by Newsday staff member Thomas F. Darcy.

"It's a great thrill indeed" to win, commented former Secretary of State Dean Acheson when he was informed he had been awarded the history prize for his book, "Present at the Creation; My Years in the State Department." He served in the Truman administration.

"Gandhi's Truth," an inquiry into the origins of Gandhi's theory of militant nonviolence by psychoanalyst Erik H. Erikson was granted the Pulitzer Prize in general nonfiction.

The prize in biography was won by T. Harry Williams for his book, "Huey Long;" and the poetry award was given to Richard Howard's "Untitled Subjects."

Charles Wuorinen won the music prize for "Time's Encomium," a composition on an electronic synthesizer; and Jean Stafford took the fiction award for her "Collected Stories."

Individual journalism and art prizes carry a $1,000 cash award. A gold medal is given to the public service winner.

The late Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and publisher of the old New York World, provided for the awards in his will. They are granted each year by the trustees of Columbia University, upon recommendation of the Advisory Board on Pulitzer Prizes.

Thomas Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Sun-Times, received the prize for local reporting—general for his story of the beginning of the "four days of rage" which was sponsored by Students for a Democratic Society in Chicago last October.

The prize for local reporting—special went to Harold Eugene Martin, editor and publisher of the Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser and Alabama Journal, for his expose of a commercial scheme to use Alabama prisoners for drug experiments. His expose halted the scheme.

Philip L. Geyelin, editorial page editor of the Washington Post, received the award for editorial writing; and William J. Eaton, of the Chicago Daily News, won the national reporting prize for a series on the unsuccessful nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The recipient of the feature photography award was Dallas Kinney, of the Palm Beach, Fla., Post, for portfolio of pictures of Florida migrant workers.

Marquis W. Childs of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch won the commentary award for his Washington column; and Ada Louise Huxtable, architecture critic of the New York Times, was given the criticism award.

Today a single girl needs more than just a closet full of clothes to call her own.

Like a closet full of eligible bachelors for starters.

But that's the rub.

If you're one of those women who doesn't want to get married, at least not right away, you know what we mean.

You want to live a little first. You want to kick up your heels, see a little of the world before you settle down.

But, because you're you, you still want security.

That's where U.S. Savings Bonds come in. Bonds are a secure way to save. And you don't have to be making a fortune to save them. You can get started with just a few dollars a payday when you join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

And now Bonds pay 5% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year; thereafter 5.20% to maturity). That's the highest rate ever.

Who knows, the money you save might just come in handy when you fall in love and marry that guy who hasn't made his first million yet.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
With higher paying U.S. Savings Bonds.

N. C. Economic Indicators Move Down In March

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Most economic indicators edged downward in North Carolina during March.

Declines were registered in consumer spending, employment, building permits, mortgage loans and new car sales.

Despite these drops, Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. reported its North Carolina Business Index registered a small gain. A tide of consumer spending that began in February continued in March and sent the index to the 202.4 level, up 0.5 from February and 3.1 per cent from March a year ago.

Wachovia economists said that although the business index has shown two consecutive gains, "these are not indicative of a significant strengthening in the economy."

However, they said, "It appears that there will be no substantial worsening of the economy through the remainder of the second quarter."

Bank debits indicated that spending by individuals and by businesses began to soar in February and continued at high level in March. The March total of $6.13 billion was down 2.3 per cent from February, but 12.4 per cent higher than March of last year.

The employment picture in North Carolina darkened in March. Total nonfarm employment was 1,751,900, down 100,000 from February. However, the March figure was 1.1 per cent greater than March of 1969 on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The seasonably adjusted unemployment rate was 3.5 per cent in March. This compared with 3.4 per cent in February and 2.8 per cent a year ago.

Manufacturing employment moved downward 0.3 per cent to a total of 705,700 in March. This figure was 1.4 per cent below March of last year.

The average work week in manufacturing was down from 39.8 hours from February to 39.6 hours in March. It was 40.5 hours a year ago. The average manufacturing wage was $96.57 during March, a 4.4 per cent gain over March a year ago but down 0.5 per cent from February.

Noting that "the inflation problem is still with us," the Wachovia economists said the cost of living rose in March at an annual rate of 6 per cent. The consumer price index stood at 133.2 in March, or 6.1 per cent higher than a year ago.

"Manufacturing wage gains during the last year have been more than wiped out by price increases," they said.

Employment in paper, tobacco, construction and food and kindred products rose slightly in March, but nearly all other industrial categories registered more than seasonal declines.

Retail sales dropped 1.6 per cent during the month on a seasonally adjusted basis, but remained 8.7 per cent greater than last year.

Court Approves Tax Exemption

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's approval of tax exemptions for religiously used property comes as tests of various forms of government aid to church institutions are mounting.

As Justice William J. Brennan Jr. noted Monday in a concurring opinion, tax exemptions are a far different matter from subsidies. But the top-heavy, 7-1 vote in favor of exemptions may presage high court approval of the entwining of government and religion.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's decision for the court rejected any idea that the two spheres can be kept rigidly separate. He said the First Amendment requires a "benevolent neutrality" toward religion. In other words, government is to be neutral, but in a friendly sort of a way.

On the face of it, the doctrine appeared to alarm only one justice, William O. Douglas.

He said independence between government and religion is "the price of liberty." He said tax exemptions may seem a minor form of government involvement in religion and that he failed to see any real difference between a subsidy and a tax exemption.

Above all, Douglas warned that the court's approval could be a long step down the path toward government sponsorship of religion.

The tests will come in cases headed in the court's direction. And in one big one already there.

The latter is an appeal from Pennsylvania that directly attacks state financial aid to parochial and other private schools. The target is a 1969 Pennsylvania law. Receipts from a tax on race track admissions are used to support academic activities in parochial and secular private schools.

The Supreme Court decision was hailed, meanwhile, by Bishop Joseph L. Bernadin, general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference. He said it reflected "the historic American attitude which permits religious exercise without governmental interference."
