ECU Flag Is Lowered At Students' Request

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"I have already lowered the flag to half-mast," Dr. Leo Jenkins, told a group of waiting students assembled on the mall of East Carolina University yesterday afternoon. Hundreds of students sitting on the grass came to their feet in a prolonged ovation, joined by others who had been standing around the seated group.

"I know you agree with me," Dr. Jenkins, president of the university continued, "that people who are thoughtful are concerned about the tragedy at Kent."

"I ask you also to join with me in the lowering of the flag commemorating all those who have died in Vietnam as well as the students at Kent," Dr. Jenkins told the ECU students.

Dr. Jenkins had explained earlier that only the President of the United States had authority to order the flag lowered to half-mast. When he was unable to contact the governor, Dr. Jenkins said of his decision to lower the flag, "I'm being paid to make decisions."

His announcement came shortly after three o'clock following delays created by technical problems with microphones and by time out requested by Dr. Jenkins to place a call to Governor Bob Scott requesting permission to lower the flag.

Lowering the flag to express a time of mourning for the four students who died at Kent State University was the expressed aim of students who turned out in the brilliant May sun to conduct a peaceful demonstration.

Scheduled to make a statement to the demonstrating students at 1:45 p.m., Dr. Jenkins appeared on the mall. About 100 students gathered, but a larger crowd of about 500 waited for Dr. Jenkins at the entrance to the Administration Building.

Some estimates placed the number of students gathered in the vicinity of the flag-pole at noon at approximately 1,000. Students moved from this area to the administration building during the lunch hour.

Spokesmen for the group of students gathered at the administration building made reference to the fact Dr. Jenkins had stated the mall was the traditional site for such gatherings, and that Dr. Jenkins had declined to make his statement at the administration building.

As two o'clock passed, a few students left for the mall. By 2:30, the majority of the group followed and settled there.

When Dr. Jenkins first attempted to read his prepared statement, there were several shouts of "we cannot hear you." Dr. Jenkins asked the students to wait until a suitable system could be obtained. In the 20 minutes or so spent waiting for the system to arrive, students talked quietly, a girl in blue jeans strummed a guitar and sang, and a few joined her in singing peace songs.

"You are the generation rising to take over the control of this land, to become, whether you relish the title or not, 'the establishment' " Dr. Jenkins said. "I have confidence that as a group, you will be better equipped to do the job than my generation.

"If you solve the problems which my generation has not solved, we will not be jealous. You are our sons and daughters and we will be proud of you."

Directing his remarks to the role of a university, Dr. Jenkins told the young people, "We who live on the campus are not equipped to enforce the peace. Our function is to educate. The order that exists on this campus is accomplished by the willingness of each of us to respond to reasonable rules and procedures. . . when reason fails and disorder results, the regular agencies of law enforcement are our only recourse."

Referring briefly to his remarks made last year to students regarding violence, Dr. Jenkins said, "The few individuals on this campus who have intimidated that buildings might be damaged, that classes will be interrupted, that our flag will be burned, that balloons full of paint will be tossed at people — should hear this and hear it clearly — force will be met with force, and lawlessness shall be prosecuted to the full extent of the law." These remarks were greeted with a resounding round of applause.

Mike Ellis, an ECU student and unofficial spokesman for the rallying students, was one of several students and others who expressed themselves in the few minutes Dr. Jenkins asked to be excused in an effort to reach the governor.

"We don't want to tear the flag down, we don't want to touch it," Ellis declared. "We are proud of it, and only want to put the flag at half-mast as a memorandum."

"If you believe in our flag, you'll believe in what I'm saying," Ellis continued. "We're not here to talk about tearing things down. We who are sincere are here because we detest violence, hate and ignorance, so we are not to burn, to destroy or to create a riot."

Ellis returned after other speakers to add "You don't have to be 1-A to serve your country. If necessary, we'll serve in the armed forces, it's only that we want to work for peace."

Charles Griffin, poet and staff member of "The Fountainhead" campus newspaper, spoke briefly. "Four young people have been killed," Griffin said. "We have to look at it this way, it takes two sides to make a fight. Those who are agitating are as responsible as the authorities if something happens."

"I know there are a few here who would like to see a riot, but we know the answer to this — it ain't worth it."

Dr. Jenkins told the students he had sent telegrams to Senators Jordan and Ervin and Congressman Jones, "expressing my anxiety over our increasing involvement in Southeast Asia."

Hudson, Jr., also expressed agreement with the plan constituting the changes to R-9 residential areas.

City Manager Harry Hagerty advised that two streets planned for entry onto South Evans only 500 feet apart might not meet requirements of the State Highway Commission, and stated it might be necessary for the developers to construct a service road parallel to South Evans with one entry from that road onto South Evans.

County Planning Board May Be In The Future

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

As the result of a meeting held yesterday by County Commissioners, Pitt County may in the not-too-distant future, have a county planning board to help plan for orderly growth and development.

Dr. William Crosswhite and Don Collins, community development specialists, from North Carolina State University's Extension Service talked to commissioners yesterday about county planning, a subject they have been discussing with increasing frequency.

Collins and Dr. Crosswhite told commissioners they have the authority to establish a planned board for the county (similar to the City of Greenville's planning and zoning board and other similar boards in Winterville, Ayden and Farmville), and to ultimately regulate the development of the county.

Goals and needs should be established first, taking into account human resources, economic factors, community facilities and natural resources, Dr. Crosswhite explained.

Then, he said, resources, such as human, natural (water, soil, forest, mineral and natural scenery), man-made, and governmental programs should be investigated and taken into account before implementation of programs.

Implementation, he explained, would include plans (for the total development of the area including land use, environmental, public facilities and human services, establishing priorities, committing public resources, participation by citizens, coordination and regulations (such as zoning, subdivision regulations, building codes, and health regulations), as well as timing.

Both Dr. Crosswhite and Collins emphasized that the purpose behind county planning is the protection of its residents by providing for the logical and orderly growth of the areas within the county.

County Commissioners, under legislation passed by the 1969 General Assembly, now have the power to pass ordinances, establish planning boards, zone areas and in general conduct business on a county level just as city administrations regulate municipalities.

And just as with city administrations, a county planned board, if established in Pitt, would be a study and planning body with no legislative authority. It would simply make recommendations to commissioners who would have the ultimate authority to approve, reject or change those recommendations.

Up Mekong River Navy Boats Plan Assault

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy boats are planning an assault up the Mekong River to help open a 60-mile stretch of the waterway to the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, official sources said today. They reported the operation will begin Friday.

If the operation materializes, the Navy boats will be in for some sharp fighting. North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces are dotted along most of the waterway and control the ferry crossing at Neak Luong, 37 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

President Nixon has said he would not send American forces beyond 21.7 miles into Cambodia without seeking congressional approval.

The operation would take half of the 500 Americans involved all the way to Phnom Penh. The sources said there will be 40 U.S. boats and 60 South Vietnamese craft.

The South Vietnamese part of the operation was first disclosed by the Foreign Ministry in an unprecedented public announcement of a future operation.

The U.S. Command had no immediate comment.

There also were reports that U.S. 7th Fleet aircraft carriers were maneuvering in the Gulf of Tonkin off North Vietnam but the intention was not clear.

In announcing the operation, the Foreign Ministry said air cover would be provided for the flotilla, but it did not make clear whether these would be U.S. or South Vietnamese aircraft, or both.

In a related development, it was learned that the government is considering an amphibious assault at the big vort of Kompong Som—formerly Sihanoukville—and the Cambodian base of Ream, reported to be threatened by North Vietnamese troops only 20 miles away. Ream is 15 miles southeast of Kompong Som.

Presumably the South Vietnamese are seeking American support for this amphibious assault should they decide to carry it off.

Sources said the American part of the task force in the Phnom Penh operation on the Mekong River will include 38 gunboats armed with 50-caliber machine guns and two 350-foot long landing ships to be used as command posts.

The landing ships also will help carry back any of the 200,000 Vietnamese living in Phnom Penh who want to return to their homeland.

The 60 South Vietnamese navy gunboats will have mixed American and Vietnamese crews in-formants said. They added that some of the American boats will go all the way up the river, the others only half way.

The Foreign Ministry said the flotilla also will be protected by South Vietnamese troops, presumably riding in attack boats along with their U.S. infantry advisers.

White House Area Mass March Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Promising a disciplined, non-violent demonstration, antiwar protesters vow they will bring a mass march as close to the White House as possible Saturday despite government efforts to keep them blocks away at the Washington Monument.

Protest leaders have pledged to bring more than 30,000 demonstrators to the capital protesting Vietnam, Cambodia, and the killing of four students at Kent State University.

The monument is several blocks away from the White House, and the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam—rejected that site Wednesday as a rallying point.

Official Washington reacted nervously. The Justice Department made plans to cordon off a four-block long, two-block wide area surrounding the White House.

"Things are heavy," a flyer put out by the New Mobilization Committee said. "Things are very, very heavy."

As never before, the flyer added, the peace movement needs to keep its house in order during a time of rising national emotions.

Wallace 'Dull Sword?'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's Republican national committeeman says George C. Wallace's second-place showing in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination makes him "a dull sword" as a presidential threat in 1972.

And the chairman of the state Democratic Executive Committee said the former governor "will destroy himself nationally" if he injects a racial issue into the June 2 runoff for the nomination against Gov. Albert Brewer.

Brewer carried most of the predominantly black counties and the big-city districts where Negroes have a majority.

Wallace had charged before the primary that black "militants" were conspiring to beat him.

The former governor, who accused President Nixon's administration and both GOP and Democratic leaders of working against him, said he would make a pitch also against "Washington interference."

Committee Orders A Launch Postponement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee told the space agency today to postpone until next year the scheduled Oct. 1 launch of the Apollo 14 moon flight.

The delay will give more time to study the problems encountered last month on the Apollo 13 flight, the committee said in a report on a $17 billion money bill.

An explosion aboard the Apollo 13 spacecraft forced the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to call off the moon landing and imperiled the lives of the crew before their lunar lander helped bring them home safely.

The bill, to be considered next week by the House, includes $3.2 billion for NASA for the fiscal year starting July 1. The $136 million cut in NASA funds includes $106 million lopped from

More Than 80 Schools Are Officially Closed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 80 colleges and universities were officially closed today in the growing campus protests against the war and the killing of four students at Kent State University in Ohio.

Most of the activities were peaceful but there were incidents of violence that brought National Guardsmen to schools in Kentucky and Illinois and new clashes at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Students at the University of Missouri and Syracuse University burned effigies of President Nixon during rallies.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan closed the entire state college and university system totaling 28 campuses until Monday, asking that the 300,000 students reflect "on the grave sequence of current events."

He also asked the state's 92 two-year junior colleges with 750,000 students and the state's private colleges with about 100,000 to close, and many of them did.

"I want to make it very clear that closing the campuses...is not in any way giving in to those who preach and practice violence," he said in a statewide television talk. "This four-day period is support for those who believe in nonviolence."

Pennsylvania State University, with 18 campuses, was ordered closed. Ohio State University was closed by its president shortly after Gov. James A. Rhodes said all Ohio schools experiencing unrest should be shut.

The National Student Information Center at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., said 258 schools had reported they were participating in the anti-war strike.

Gov. Louis B. Nunn of Kentucky ordered state police and National Guard troops "with mounted bayonets and live ammunition" onto the University of Kentucky campus to enforce a curfew. But the guardsmen were told not to load their rifles.

Council's consideration a request from M. C. Massey, Jr. to annex his property into the city limits. The property is located south of Club Pines, and if annexed, would make the West Haven subdivision contingent to the city. Earlier, residents of West Haven had asked for annexation, but found this could not be done as Massey's property needed to be annexed first to create a contingency to the city limits.

In another action, the commission approved for the City

Commission Recommends A Hearing On Zoning

The Planning and Zoning Commission asked the City Council to hold a public hearing on rezoning the property owned by W. B. Leverton Enterprises known as the Mayo Property, located between the new Winn-Dixie store and South Evans Street.

The motion carries a recommendation that Highway Commercial zoning now shown for areas adjacent to South Evans Street be changed on the plans to Shopping Center zoning.

This action came at last night's Planning and Zoning Commission meeting to discuss plans for developing the open land, and constituted a public hearing under the auspices of the commission.

Phillip Carroll, spokesman for the Leverton Enterprises, who had two weeks ago presented the basic plan and requested last night's public hearing, explained that he had met with members of the Brentwood Community Club, and had made a few changes since April. The basic change was that of making the previously listed R-6 zones R-9 residential zones.

Mills Pruden, spokesman for the Brentwood Community Club stated the club members were in full agreement with the plan, and that citizens felt they were being treated fairly. Another Brentwood resident, James G.

Don't Meddle In Your Son's Life

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Our son, a very handsome and charming young man left a lovely wife and three small children for another woman. He took this woman away from her husband, a very fine (and wealthy) man who is now considered one of the most eligible bachelors in Texas.

Even tho we love our son, we feel some guilt about having raised him to be a very spoiled and selfish person. He is also no good, as now he has been seeing other girls every chance he gets.

We wonder if we shouldn't tell his second wife that our son will probably leave her for another woman, and perhaps it's not too late for her to try to get her "ex" back. They had a wonderful marriage before our son came on the scene and broke it up. Please advise.

TEXAS MOM

DEAR MOM: When a woman leaves a "fine" husband for a man who has left "a lovely wife and three small children," she knows what kind of husband she's getting. Don't meddle, Mom.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to love a man and hate him at the same time? I think so. You see, Abby, my husband is really two different people.

He never goes out without me. He is very affectionate, and I couldn't ask for a better father for my children. He always compliments me on my looks and my cooking, and he never forgets to say "I love you" at the right times.

So what's my problem? He hits me. He expects me to do whatever he says without asking any questions, and if I ask, he hits me. Then he says the next time I will obey him without asking any questions. After he's thru beating on me, he kisses me and says, "Now, let's forget it."

Abby, I can't forget it. I love him. Please help me. Thanks for listening. I feel better already.

HEART (AND NOSE) BROKEN

DEAR BROKEN: His instant mood changes and irrational behavior could be a symptom of an emotional disturbance. If you love him, you will insist that he get professional help. Otherwise, prepare to have your bridgework rearranged periodically.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the parents of an only child, and we are a very happy family. For years we have been annoyed by people who ask us why we have only one child. Then they proceed to tell us how "unfair it is to raise a child alone, blah, blah, blah..." We hardly even know some of these people. Are they too stupid to realize that there is usually a good reason why a couple has only one child? Ours happens to be a personal one which we don't care to share with the world.

It is cruel for anyone to say to an only child who is too young to understand, "Tell Mommy and Daddy to get you a baby brother or sister."

I know that your column is widely read, so please tell these so-called, well-meaning people to keep their advice to themselves and to keep their big mouths shut!

There's An Easy Way To Apply False Eyelashes

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

What are the ladies going to do down on the farm at York, Pa., when the Barnhart clan—700 strong—meets for its annual reunion?

They'll learn how to apply false eyelashes—that's what.

And their "Dutch uncle," makeup man Ron Buchart, president of the family clan, will be their teacher.

"I'll put eyelashes on everyone except the over-100 year-olds," he says.

Buchart is one of the best-known quick-as-a-wink eyelash applicators.

In fact, Buchart, whose ancestors settled York in 1610 and who owns a 186-acre farm there today, often is referred to as the Flying Dutchman—a tribute to his makeup ability.

At a recent beauty-fashion show, he amazed the ladies who watched him apply hundreds of eyelashes in less than 1-16th of a second per eye. But this isn't something he only does on occasion. As national director of makeup styles for Charles of the Ritz, he is on the road six months a year, visiting one or another of their 1,500 makeup bars or salons. At each stop, Buchart instructs demonstrators and eager customers, some of whom drive more than 100 miles to get his advice.

In addition to giving instructions in eye makeup, Buchart will tell lady members of the Pennsylvania Dutch clan when they gather for the shindig not to use washcloths on their faces because the washcloths may remove the protective "acid mantle" of their skins. And he'll remind those with aging lines—over the lips, at the chin and hands—that slathering makeup over the lines won't hide them.

There's an art to applying makeup to older skin that might be in three different colors. Skin areas must be treated before the main foundation is applied. (Circles under the eyes may be lightened or darkened.)

Many women do not wear eyelashes because they haven't the patience to apply them. Buchart says. He tries to show how simple it is.

When you apply eyelashes he advises, "stand straight up close to a mirror so your arms are not akimbo. Then pick up one of the eyelashes and curl it around your finger to help contour it. Squeeze a speck of adhesive on a bit of paper and dip the tube point into it, applying it to the lashes." You don't touch the lash with your finger, he points out. When you place the eyelashes on the lid, you should leave a little distance at the corner of the lid, about the width of your small finger which should be held up and measured at the eyelid. Apply the minimum of pressure to the eyelashes with the little finger, and presto your lashes should be all set.

Buchart cautions women who wear contact lenses to be aware that powdered eye shadow can find its way behind the lenses. He prefers the liquid kind.

When he is giving makeup advice, he doesn't spare anyone's feelings.

"They get the talk-to-them-like-a-Dutch-uncle routine he says. 'After all, if they're putting a good deal of money into cosmetics—some people spend $100 or more on facial products after a beauty session—they should realize that the criticism may save them money."

He is often asked how to vary eyeshadow. He likes pink or a rose tone shadow near the nose. An aqua shadow may be blended across the eyelid in the evening.

Eyeliner that is extended at the corners of the eye should be applied before putting on the eyelashes. Pastel tones, grays, blues and green liner make the eye look bigger than when black liner is worn, he explains.

If one insists on putting eyeliner on the bottom lid—it, too, makes the eye look smaller—a dot should be placed between each eyelash covering only one-half either inside-out or outside-in the eye. If you want it to be further away, take it from the inside-out.

Dine Out With Kids Without Indigestion

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press Writer
Parents, when dining out with your children have you found yourself yelling "No, three sugars are enough; Don't eat with your fingers; Don't stare in that man's face."

After repeated incidents of this type, you already may have decided to give up on restaurant dining with your children rather than face a side order of indigestion.

However, wise parents know that taking children to a restaurant needn't be tantamount to a nightmare.

Most parents tend to forget that dining out is a whole new world to a child. That's why some children tense up—and end up by spilling the milk or knocking over flowers. Other children over-react and explore under, over and around every table.

Dining out in a restaurant with children takes preparation. Before you start the actual expedition, brief them. Talk about restaurants, show the children pictures of people dining out. Answer any questions the children may have—such as: "You mean strangers eat with you? We get served, like by a maid? We're not alone in the bathroom?"

Play restaurant at home. Make up menus offering a choice between two or three items. Sit with the children to help them choose. Dad might give his order to Mother, who cooks up the items in the kitchen. Just emphasize one fact—no changing of mind.

Next, practice makes perfect. Stop in an informal restaurant—a sit-in hamburger stand, a coffee shop, a pizza palace.

Now for the actual staging. Since patience is not a virtue of children, for your first real trial don't select a restaurant that specializes in leisurely two and a half hour dinners. Instead, select a restaurant that specializes in facilities for children (booster chairs, high chairs, children's menus and bibs, even bottle-warming service). Consider a buffet. Here feed the children first. Then one adult can remain at the table while the other loads his plate.

Avoid the temptation to indulge in the exotic. You might love Chinese food and so might your children, but their questions about the waiter may lead to embarrassing moments.

When you want to freeze a frosted cake, make the frosting a butter cream or fudge type. These frostings freeze well.

Shouldn't Give In Too Soon

Compromise between private and public ownership and co-existence between development and natural environment may prove the only pathway to a settlement of the Baldhead Island dispute.

We hope, however, that Gov. Scott will not be too quick to give in to private development of the unique island or to travel the road of compromise. We would also express the hope that if the state is finally able to acquire the island, there will be no hasty move to establish a research station or other man-made "improvement" on the island.

Baldhead is valuable to North Carolina for what it is: a unique island that furnishes a nursery ground for valuable marine life. It is valuable because it has been allowed to remain undisturbed and stands as one of the last islands of its kind.

Tax Repeal Is Live Issue

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C. — Repeal of taxes enacted by the 1969 legislature remains very much a live issue, to be debated and decided when the 71 General Assembly is in session in Raleigh next spring.

Primary elections across the State last Saturday gave no further clue than that on citizen sentiment regarding the cigarette, soft drink, and gasoline levies. No clear-out, across-the-board demand either for repeal or modification of the taxes, or for their retention, emerged in the primary results.

Instances of incumbents defeated in races where taxes were an issue — such as State Sen. Edgar J. Gurganus of Williamston who lost to former State Sen. Ashley Futrell of Washington — were balanced by victories under similar circumstances — such as State Sen. William Staton of Sanford who won over former legislator Shelton Wicker of Sanford.

Next important questions, as the primary results are analyzed in the days ahead, are:

Will Republican candidates take up tax repeal as a party issue in the fall general election, and to what extent will it figure in their campaigning?

How will Governor Scott and his lieutenants assess the primary results in planning administration strategy for the coming legislative session?

Of course, strategists for tobacco, soft drink and gasoline forces in seeking repeal of the taxes will not be idle during the summer months. Undoubtedly, they correctly regarded the primaries as a preliminary skirmish and now they will give attention to the general election and legislative battlegrounds. Indeed, the primary results are likely to put more muscle into their future efforts.

The day when the Democratic primary settled the make-up of the General Assembly is past. More and more races are settled in the general election, which means that the party line on issues such as tax repeal becomes increasingly important.

Republicans drew a line on taxes in the '69 session, incurring the wrath of Governor Scott and setting the stage for an issue to take to the voters. How aggressive the GOP will be in pushing tax repeal in the fall campaign remains to be seen, and will be influenced by the analysis party leaders make of the primary results as an indicator of voter sentiment. The Governor's own stance when the 71 session convenes will depend upon turns in the economic situation as well as upon political factors. Clearly, he will resist alterations in the tax structure which would imperil funds for the continuation of his programs. At the same time, he might well go along with tax adjustments which would not stop the flow of revenue.

Governor Scott did not include the soft drink tax in his proposals to the 1969 legislature. He has indicated he would not oppose its repeal — provided the removal of the tax would be reflected in retail prices, and conditioned upon the impact of its repeal upon the state's revenue situation.

Study of the primary results may have significant bearing upon the administration's thinking as it prepares budget proposals to submit to the '71 session.

Conclusion jumping in the aftermath of primary elections is risky business. Selection of party nominees for General Assembly seats is a local process, decided on the basis of local interests, issues and personalities.

For example, in the Second Senate District, Futrell and Gurganus are both capable men who have demonstrated their ability in legislative service. A disputed rotation agreement between their counties for the Senate seat was involved in the race, in addition to the tax issue.

The case was similar in the 13th District, where Staton defeated Wicker. On the basis of the results, it would be difficult to reach the objective conclusion that Democratic voters in the Second District are fired up for tax repeal, while those in the 13th are content with taxes as they are.

The sound conclusion, and that a tentative one in light of the primary results, is that voters are concerned about taxes — as they always have been — but that sentiment for repeal of the '68 tax package is not so strong that it can override all other considerations.

Research concerning the island and what it does for marine and other wildlife can be carried out without disturbing the island itself. Obviously a research station would not change the island as much as the development of a plush resort area, but it would change Baldhead nonetheless.

Compromise Is Needed In Middle East Area

No doubt the call for an "unconditional and unlimited" ceasefire by Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan will see little results.

This will be particularly true if Israel stands by its determination to remain on the banks of the Suez Canal.

"The government is ready to reestablish an unconditional and unlimited cease-fire even if this will enable Egypt to reorganize and put up SA3 missile sites," Dayan said recently.

However, he reaffirmed Israel's determination to retain the territory captured along the Suez. He said his country would fight to hold the lines "even against Russian aid."

It is not likely that there will ever be peace in the Middle East until there is some willingness to compromise. Israel captured the Suez lands in repelling an Egyptian attack. However, Israel has little use for the desert lands.

We have long stood for Israel's right to exist in the Middle East. However we feel that someday these lands are going to have to be returned to Egypt if peace is ever to come in the area.

Computer Has Begun To Drag

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The electronic computer, to which many companies hitched their wagon during the explosive expansion of the 1960s, is beginning in some instances to drag like a weighty millstone as the economy contracts.

One of the best illustrations of the developing situation involved the collapse recently of the McDonnell & Co. brokerage firm, but there are many other examples. A typical situation is this:

During the late 1960s a company's business is increasing rapidly, so fast, in fact, that it cannot hire enough experienced clerical help to deal with its paperwork. A computer, it reasons, could do the work of 50 clerks.

Projecting a continuation of increased sales and earnings for the next five years, the company decides that it might as well plow a considerable amount of money into expensive equipment. No sense getting caught short again.

Aiding in the decision is the new electronic data processing manager who argues that while the new machinery might not pay off immediately, it certainly will become profitable by the 1970s. And so the company buys a big new computer.

Then the economic expansions stops. In fact, the company's sales begin to sag and, looking over the books, the management group decides it must cut back. But where? It could have cut 25 clerical workers. But it's stuck with the big computer.

More and more companies are facing such situations today, according to consultants at Brandon Applied Systems, Inc., which advises computer owners on management and technical matters.

"We think it reasonable to expect further collapses of the McDonnell kind," said a spokesman, "as well as reduced earnings for corporations with a heavy investment in data processing. Insurance companies, banks and brokers may be dragged down the most."

For this and other reasons, many companies are taking perhaps their first critical look at their computer systems. No longer are they content to sit back and believe that wonders are being worked.

"The beginning of the computer revolution is over and this beginning has been a failure in terms of what might have been achieved," says a spokesman for the consulting firm of Touche Ross.

He adds: "Many business managers stood back in awe of both the machinery and the personnel of the systems operation, and a lot of the technical people didn't deliver workable business systems."

Approximately 1,500 students attended a special convocation at North Carolina State University this morning.

Dr. John T. Caldwell, N. C. State chancellor, was one of about 25 speakers at the gathering. Only a few of those who spoke were in favor of the Vietnam war.

In referring to the four deaths at Kent State, Chancellor Caldwell told the group, "The error of Vietnam has poisoned the nation and now has wounded it in one more grievous way."

He also said, "The war has wounded our universities. Uniquely valuable to humanity as places of learning and freedom of thought, universities are now threatened by efforts to convert them into political instruments, which will destroy them."

Leaflets were distributed calling for a march after the convocation on the ROTC headquarters on the N. C. State campus.

Opinions In Brief

One thing seems pretty sure. The N. C. Legislature will hardly be called upon to furnish money for additional dormitory space for a long time to come — Washington, N.C. Daily News.

As one can understand readily enough, that old saying about "death and taxes" being inevitable, it is also true that in the case of taxes, they seem to grow and grow. — Rocky Mount Evening Telegram.

Strength For Today

CONSIDERATION
"Judge not that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." (Matthew 7:1-2).

This is one of the Lord's commandments found in the so-called Sermon on the Mount. It is not an easy commandment to obey. Some people are just so impossible in their behavior and attitudes that it is hard not to pass judgment upon them.

But we should remember that this is a commandment not to judge people. We are to judge situations all we have a mind to, and we would be insipid nobodies if we did not stand up when occasion required and call some things good and other things bad, some things wise and other things foolish. The thing we are to avoid is passing judgment on people. We know too little about their background and what they have passed through, and what they have to endure, to be free in our judgment of them. They may be living the vilest kind of lives. Certainly we are to pass

Judgment of people is a sin we can avoid if we want to — or foolish acts. If we were but in the position they are in all the time, if we had their heritage, we might not only be as bad as they are — we might be a great deal worse.

Judgment of people is a sin we can avoid if we want to — and we had better want to. By Earl L. Douglass

Revolution In Finance

William Campbell, a 35-year-old Republican from Los Angeles, formerly was assistant administrator of the second largest elementary school district in California. He now is a member of the State Assembly. In a nice twist on the man-bites-dog approach to the news, he is happily sponsoring a bill that has his former colleagues aghast.

What Campbell proposes, in brief, is a revolution in the State's entire system of public school finance. He is proposing a system of tuition grants that improves upon the plans fostered in Southern States during the years of resistance to school integration. His partner in this remarkable adventure, to make the heresy worse, is a black member of the Assembly from Watts, Leon Ralph.

The story takes a little time to tell, but it is worth the telling. Campbell's basic concept is sound. After years devoted to public education (Campbell's wife Margene was for ten years an elementary teacher), the young Assemblyman concluded that nothing short of an earthquake could improve the public schools of California. Costs of the system have been soaring, with no effective means of determining whether the costs are valid. The productivity of teachers is getting no better, and may be getting worse. Under the present system, no prospect for improvement is in sight.

Ralph takes the same view. The most conspicuous failure of the system, in his eyes, is its failure effectively to educate the underprivileged black children of the cities. If public schools cannot teach the Negro pupils, he reasons, maybe private schools can.

The Campbell-Ralph plan is simplicity itself. They would first impose a statewide property tax to create a massive school fund. Then they would tap the fund to provide annual vouchers of perhaps $600 or $700 for every child of school age in the State. During a pre-registration period in the spring, parents would decide whether to present the vouchers to a public or to an accredited private school for redemption. Racial and religious discrimination would be flatly prohibited. (Continued On Page 5)

Transport Restrictions Hit

By ELMER ROESSNER
B.F. Biagini, president of the Southern Pacific Company, has sounded a call to end the hamburger of American transport.

One of the things wrong with this screwed-up country is the chopping up of its transportation. Each form of Authority and the Civil Aviation Board control air transport; the Interstate Commerce Commission rules rail, bus and truck transport; the Department of Transportation is boss of auto transport; the Maritime Commission is in charge of ships; and the 50 states have commissions, boards and agencies to regulate every form of transport except roller skates, which would be under control of the Federal Pedimobility Bureau, if there were such a bureau.

Biagini's main point is that railroads cannot utilize cargo planes, barges and trucks fully to move freight efficiently and economically. Rails were allowed to operate some buses, ferries and pipelines.

Let 'Em Walk
The Southern Pacific executive told the American Railway Engineering Association that railroads should be permitted to discard services that have outlived their usefulness, such as passenger trains. He did not, however, suggest that the Southern Pacific give back to the government the millions of acres of public lands gained by promises to construct railroads and, by implication, carry passengers.

Biagini cited the Motor Carrier Act of 1935 which restricts railroad-owned trucking, and the Civil Aviation Act of 1938 which keeps railroads out of airline ownership. Airlines can't own railroads, either.

He pointed out that lettuce from the same field, bound for the same market, might be loaded out of one side of a packing shed into rail refrigerator cars under regulated rates, and from the other side into proprietary trucks free of regulation. If any of the truck trailers are later loaded on piggy-back flat cars, they become regulated.

To the average bill-payer, it would seem that all transport companies should be allowed to use all conveyances.

Southern Pacific could then take a consignment from Connecticut to New York by its Sopac truck, fly it to Chicago by S.P. Air Freight, send it by train to Los Angeles, freight it to Honolulu on the good ship Espee, and deliver it to the consignee there by a

People Feel Blue

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk comments of a Pavement Plato: The American people feel blue.

They have the taste of ashes in their mouths.

The whole nation is in the dumps.

There is a sickness in our souls.

Who can remember a time when everybody felt so bad about so many things and so few people had any idea of a remedy that would make us feel better?

We are cut up and divided more ways than an apple pie in a cheap boarding house. We are like a dazed pedestrian caught on a superhighway, wondering from which direction he may be hit next.

Here we are the richest and supposedly the most powerful land on earth, but we are as uneasy as the dwellers in a wooden castle whose pillars are riddled by termites.

Power? What power? Internationally, many nations are looking down their noses at us as military bums because of our adventures in Indochina. Like Bre'er Rabbit's epochal struggle with the Tar Baby in the Uncle Remus fable, the harder we fight the more we get stuck. Our brush war in Vietnam has become a long bonfire we seem unable to put out.

Domestically, our plight offers small cheer. One month we are scared to death of inflation, the next month we are scared to death that the steps we take to combat it will lead us into a major depression.

Money won't buy what it used to—and neither will credit. As a matter of fact, credit is getting almost as hard for the average man to find as money.

The rich are worried about the predatory poor, and the poor keep pressing the government for more welfare and a fairer shake. As for the middle class, it is convinced it is being squeezed out of existence.

A widening generation gap has left youth contemptuous of age and age fearful of youth. If things keep up this way much longer babies will probably soon be born with picket signs in their hands.

We are immersed in a bath of violence. There is so much crime it has become a national crime that we put up with it.

Our college sons and daughters, the hope of tomorrow, are the despair of today. They don't know what they stand for—only what they are against.

Our police threaten to strike, and our schoolteachers do. Parents try to dull their woes with martinis; the younger generation turns to a newer opiate—marijuana.

The problem of how to live is accompanied by the problem of where to live. Rents are going up—like everything else—and young couples complain they can't mortgage their future by paying the interest charges on a housing mortgage.

About all we can point to with pride are a few souvenir rocks brought back from a couple of round trips to the moon—and if you look up at the stars at night the man in the moon seems to be laughing at us for our labors.

Black Dramatists Give Theater New Vitality

EDITOR'S NOTE—This week the 1970 Pulitzer Prize for drama was awarded to Charles Gordone, the first Negro to win the honor in the playwriting category. But Gordone is only one of a new group of black authors making their mark in the theater. William Glover, AP drama writer, analyzes the development in the following article.

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Their plays are loud, clear, fiercely intense. And together, emergent black dramatists are giving American theater a significant jolt of new vitality.

Award of the 1970 Pulitzer Prize to Charles Gordone for "No Place To Be Somebody," a seething image of ghetto turmoil, simply accords official recognition to a cultural force that has been gaining strength for several years.

"There is no truth that speaks so clearly to me as the truth of my own experience," said John O'Neal, a leader of the Free Southern Theater, and the remark characterizes the what and why which spur Gordone and others in the black authorship brigade.

Most of the dramas, developing off-Broadway and to a smaller degree in regional playhouses, burn with the passionate desperation of personal experience.

In style, they range widely from the invective anger of LeRoi Jones and Ed Bullins—both of whom would rather speak only to black audiences—to the satiric mockery of Douglas Turner Ward and Vinette Carroll.

A few have recently made it to Broadway, where reputedly, the first play by a Negro, Garland Anderson, was staged in 1925. Among them: the late Lorraine Hansberry with "A Raisin in the Sun." James Baldwin with "Blues for Mr. Charley" and Ossie Davis, whose "Purlie Victorious" is currently reincarnated as the musical "Purlie."

Although many of the plays during one phase of the new candor fulminated over historic suppression of their people, the writers today direct criticism against the black community also against "Uncle Tomism," over-militancy and other matters.

If there are almost as many dramatic viewpoints as there are hopeful writers, nearly everything being done bristles with verbal power and articulate imagery. In the reach for expression, conventional dramatic forms are often ignored, but experiment is rarely obscure.

Increasing dramatic activity within the black community has gone hand-in-hand with the writer eruption. While the Negro Ensemble Theater is off-Broadway's outstanding example of sustained interracial endeavor, Harlem is busy with the New Heritage Repertory Theater, the National Black Theater Workshop and other groups.

With help from the 20th Century Fund, a private foundation, the Black Academy of Arts and Letters was established last year to promote recognition and cooperation.

Black self-expression and the theatrical viability of racial themes also have influenced white playwrights. Recent plays by white authors dealing with the black experience have been "The Great White Hope," "Big Time Buck White," "The Universal Nigger," and "The Trial of A. Lincoln."

The theater has moved far indeed from Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds of 1928," and Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures."

Campbell is convinced that costs are needlessly high in the public schools today. Over a period of time, he believes, the competition of private institutions would drive the public expenses down.

Cost is not his prime concern. He also is convinced that better education would result. This is a part of the genius of the free enterprise system, he notes, that quality always improves when the consumer has a wide choice of products. If the theory works in home appliances, why not in education? Many black children have serious difficulties in learning to read. Why not provide the incentive, through tuition vouchers, for establishment of private elementary schools staffed by top-flight specialists in reading instruction?

Campbell is an affable fellow, built on the lines of a friendly woodchuck, who combines tenacity with good humor; last week he was trying to lose weight by thinking about jogging. He has no illusions that his radical plan is likely to win enactment any time soon—but he is pleased to see the interest that is building up among conservatives and liberals, and blacks and whites alike. At a public hearing on Tuesday, favorable witnesses appeared from across the philosophical spectrum.

The public school lobby, needless to say, is appalled at the whole idea. But here in California, as elsewhere, teachers are losing their old magic charm. Half of Los Angeles' 25,000 teachers are still on strike as this is

Two Students In Festivities

RALEIGH — Two local students participated in May Day festivities at Meredith College Saturday.

The local girls are: Debra Sugg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart W. Sugg of Ayden, and Blanche Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Regan Jones of Greenville.

Miss Sugg performed in the traditional fashion show while Miss Jones participated in the dance concert.

Nixon Attacks On Young Dissenters Denounced

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration attacks on young dissenters have been denounced as "inflammatory rhetoric" by the President's own youth advisor and gently criticized by a Cabinet member.

Within hours Tuesday, a letter to the President from Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel suggesting the administration has shown a lack of concern for young people was made public and Nixon appointee Anthony J. Mottet resigned as director of the Office of Students and Youth.

Hickel, who said he had composed the letter for Nixon's eyes only, wrote that administration policies appear "to lack concern for the attitude of a great mass of Americans—our young people."

He politely suggested that

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew be muzzled on the subject of student dissent.

"A continued attack on the young—not in their attitudes so much as their motives—can serve little purpose other than further to cement those attitudes to a solidity impossible to penetrate with reason," Hickel wrote.

Mottet, whose rumored resignation became official today with a strongly worded statement on the administration's attitudes toward youth, was less diplomatic.

Nixon, Mottet said in a statement, "has shown that he does not understand young people, nor does he wish to communicate with them."

He decried the President's characterization of rioting students as "bums" and his statement that the death of four Kent State University students by National Guard bullets should "remind us once again that when dissent turns to violence it invites tragedy."

"A tone has been set by this administration that has tended to increase polarization," Mottet said in an interview Wednesday night. "The inflammatory rhetoric in the air by administration officials did not help the situation there (Kent State)."

Hickel pleaded with Nixon to solicit the views of individual cabinet members on the current campus crisis and suggested consultations with college officials.

Although Nixon earlier had declined to meet with 37 college and university presidents on the campus response to U.S. military action in Cambodia, the White House confirmed that the heads of nine campuses conferred in Washington Wednesday night with the President.

Nixon spent nearly an hour Wednesday afternoon with six

Kent State students, during which, they said to reporters, they told the President there is a lack of communication between the administration and students.

The President reportedly promised them a full investigation of the shooting deaths at Kent State.

Hickel's assertion the administration cannot afford to alienate the nation's youth was predictably well received among antiwar activists, but they expressed skepticism Nixon would heed his advice.

"The President," said David Hawk, a former coordinator of the Vietnam Moratorium Committee who is now active in the National Student Association's strike, "doesn't listen to anyone."

Hickel, Hawk said, "is absolutely right that the President's actions in Vietnam and Cambodia and his statements and those of the vice president are alienating students. They're alienating parents, too."

Bob Bresnahan, a strike coordinator for the Student Mobilization Committee, said Hickel apparently has recognized the political consequences of the Cambodian incursion and the Kent State killings.

"He has allied himself with the forces within the Republican party who are scared out of their pants by this thing," Bresnahan said.

Hickel, the father of six children, compared today's events with the American Revolution and the Depression, and added:

"Today our young people, or at least a vast segment of them, believe they have no opportunity to communicate with government, regardless of administration, other than through violent confrontation. But I am convinced we—and they—have the capacity, if we will have the willingness, to learn from history."

During the revolution, he continued, the protests of Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson "fell on deaf ears, and finally led to war."

In the Depression "our youth lost their ability to communicate with the Republican party. What is happening today is not unrelated to what happened in the '30s. Now being unable to communicate with either party, they are apparently heading down the road to anarchy."

"And regardless of how I, or any American, might feel individually, we have an obligation as leaders to communicate with our youth and listen to their ideas and problems."

Technology Is Able To Keep The World Fed

By GEORGE A. KRIMSKY
Associated Press Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A massive injection of technology can keep the world fed over the next 30 years despite booming population, an eminent scientist says.

"The natural resources available to present technology are sufficient to allow a vast improvement in the standard of living of all the people who will inhabit the earth 20 to 30 years from now," said Dr. Roger Revelle, director of the Harvard Center for Population Studies.

Speaking at the opening of a three-day conference on technological change and population growth Wednesday at California Institute of Technology, Revelle asserted that birth control—although necessary—cannot be a substitute for economic development.

Some at the conference disagreed with Revelle.

"We cannot use the same technological bludgeon on the underdeveloped countries that we have used on our own, seriously deteriorating our environment," said John P. Holdren of Stanford University.

"There is no such thing as a free lunch," Holdren said. "It is paid for by someone."

Revelle said a "green revolution" is under way in some underdeveloped countries to feed the hungry with high-yield varieties of wheat, rice and cereals.

"If it is to continue," he said, "large expenditures for development of irrigation water, transportation, storage, food processing, and fertilizers must be made."

Speaking to newsmen before the conference, Revelle said the United States should:

—Provide more aid to the underdeveloped countries.

—Encourage birth control.

—Try to tell the other rich countries how serious the problem really is so they will not turn their backs on the rest of the world."

Auto Theft Is Reported

Juvenile summons have been signed for two 15 year old youths who are suspected in the theft Tuesday night of an automobile owned by a Greenville man.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the automobile, owned by Bobby Grizzard, was stolen sometime last night and later found abandoned at the P. W. Walston Store on Rt. 5, Greenville near Parkers Chapel.

Names of the two youths, who live on Rt. 6, Greenville and Pictolus, were withheld due to their ages.

Final Speakers At Church Meet

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Rev. Frank W. Pisani of Raleigh, president of St. Mary's College, and Mrs. Mary Wunder of Thompson Orphanage in Charlotte were among speakers today at the final session of the two-day meeting of the Episcopal churchwomen of the diocese of North Carolina.

Dr. Joseph Jones Jr. of Raleigh, vice president of academic affairs at St. Augustine's College, asked support of the women Tuesday in obtaining, among other things, a swimming pool, a new dormitory for women and an increased endowment.

Decides Against Runoff

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (AP) — Garnie Banks of Pasquotank County, one of three Negro candidates for sheriff in North Carolina eligible to ask for runoffs, has decided not to.

Banks said Wednesday he did not think the expense would be justified. He ran second in Saturday's primary in a field of five, getting 1,364 votes to 2,144 for front-runner Davis M. Sawyer.

The other two Negroes plan to enter runoffs against white candidates for sheriff, a post no Negro has held since Reconstruction days.

Franklin Randolph of Bolivia has said he will seek a runoff against Clinton Bellamy of Southport in Brunswick County. James T. Burns of Wadesboro has said he will run against Edward T. Jarman, sheriff of Anson County.

Three Wrecks Are Reported

Four persons were reported injured in a series of three traffic collisions investigated here by police yesterday that resulted in an estimated $1,725 property damage.

Elsie Highsmith McCray, 29 of Route 4, Greenville, was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 12:50 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Third and Pitt Streets.

Officers said the McCray vehicle collided with a car driven by Betty Parker Little, 26 of 11-B Vance St., injuring three passengers in the Little car.

Damages were estimated at $700 to the Little car and $150 to the McCray auto.

Rebecca Lynn Mobley, 17 of Route 2, Greenville was reported injured when a car she was driving collided with a vehicle driven by Ezra Daniel Griffin, 72 of 1801 Rosewood Dr., about 8:20 a.m. at the intersection of U.S. 264 and Forrest Hill Drive.

Damage was set by officers at $300 to the Mobley car and $50 to the Griffin vehicle.

Griffin was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Leona Parker, of Route 1, Grimesland was charged with failing to yield the right of way in a 7:53 a.m. collision at the intersection of Eastern and Johnston streets.

Officers said the Parker car collided with a vehicle driven by Sharon Louise Haines, 21 of Baltimore, Md. causing an estimated $75 damage to the Haines car and about $150 damage to the Parker vehicle.

No injuries were reported in that mishap.

Band Concert Tomorrow Night

The 75 member band of J.H. Rose High School will be heard tomorrow night in its Spring Concert, one of the major full band concerts traditionally given by the band each year.

The concert, beginning at 8:00 p.m. will be presented in the high school gymnasium. Tickets, at $1 for adults and fifty cents for students, are valid for this concert and for the Solo and Ensemble Concert to be held next Tuesday night at the same place.

Four conductors are currently associated with the bands in school bands in the Greenville City Schools — James Rodgers at Rose High; and Larry Viel, ECU student teacher, working with the band students in the schools.

Selections scheduled to be heard tomorrow night in the Spring Concert are: "On The Mall," a march by Goldman; Prelude to Act I of Verdi's opera, "La Traviata," "Ambrosian Hymn Variants," by White; Chance's "Variations On A Korean Folk Song," "Suite Concertante," Nelhybel; another march, "British Eighth" by Elliott; "Latin Reeds," Schanke; "Trumpets of Splendor" by Cacavas; "Azucarado" by Strickland; and Giovanni's "Alla Barocco".

The 75 members of Rose High's Band are composed of 17 different instruments in numbers varying from one of a kind to 23 similar ones. These are: one each of tenor saxophone, baritone saxophone, contra bass clarinet, E flat clarinet, and string bass; two each of alto saxophone, bassoons, and oboe; three French horns; four each bass clarinets, baritones, and basses; five trumpets; six percussion instruments; and 23 B flat clarinets.

Tickets can be purchased in advance or at the door prior to performance time.

ALPHA DELTA PI . . . members prepared more than 500 kits to be used by volunteers for cerebral palsy drive.

Alpha Delta Pi Helps Cerebral Palsy Drive

Sandy Holland, president of East Carolina University's chapter of the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, a national honor sorority, stated "this is the last of our projects for this school year," referring to the work accomplished Monday night by sorority members in preparing more than 500 kits to be used by volunteer workers for the cerebral palsy drive.

Miss Holland, a native of Raleigh, and 50 members and pledges of the sorority, prepared the kits to mail to volunteers in Greenville and Pitt County. Most of the recipients are young people's groups in churches, schools, and other organizations who, along with adults, have agreed to canvass door-to-door for contributions for the current cerebral palsy drive. This work is part of the continuing drive for funds, which was highlighted this past weekend by a concerted telethon on three North Carolina TV stations.

Members of the sorority, who expressed enjoyment in working together on this project, also noted it was a little more exciting than some of the routine work they have dealt with in previous projects.

Mrs. Thomas Henderson, an adult worker with the sorority, noted, "Greenville is very fortunate in having Mrs. Elizabeth Hill, a nurse trained to work with cerebral palsy patients, available to go into homes of patients suffering from this disease." She said Mrs. Hill is one of ten such trained nurses in the state of North Carolina, and serves Greenville and the adjoining area.

Runoff Election Called

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The only Negro member of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County Board of Education, the Rev. Coleman Kerry, has called for a runoff election in an effort to keep his seat from going to a member of the anti-busing Concerned Parents Association.

In last Saturday's election to fill three places on the board, Kerry finished fourth. He exercised his right Wednesday to call for a runoff against Mrs. Jane B. Scott, who finished third but did not have a majority.

Two other members of the three-member slate of the Concerned Parents Association were elected outright. The association was formed to fight a federal court school desegregation order which includes massive busing.

Island Resort Gets Support

RALEIGH (AP)—Brunswick County Commissioners planned to hold a news conference in Raleigh today to emphasize their support of plans to develop Bald Head Island into a plush resort.

The board already has gone on record as favoring the private development which is opposed by Gov. Bob Scott and his administration.

The commissioners say the development would add to Brunswick County's meager tax base and would bring thousands of tourists and many permanent residents to the now uninhabited island near Southport.

Scott has sided with conservationists who want to keep the semi-tropical island in its natural state.

Prisoner Doesn't Make Trip

RALEIGH (AP)—Hasty efforts to allow a prisoner afflicted with terminal cancer a final visit home have failed.

The prisoner, Thurman Maynard of Rochester, N. Y., was serving a six-month term in North Carolina Central Prison driving drunk. He wanted to see his wife one last time.

Mrs. Maynard got the help of the Rochester Chronicle and planned to fly down to Raleigh and take her husband back to Rochester.

The Rochester newspaper secured the aid of the Hotline column of the Raleigh Times in obtaining a temporary parole.

North Carolina Paroles Commissioner Robert Weinstein waived formalities in order to issue the parole.

He arranged to have a man waiting at the Raleigh-Durham Airport to drive Mrs. Maynard to the prison hospital as soon as her plan was to land at 10 p.m. Tuesday.

But Maynard died at 5 p.m. that day, and she canceled her flight. "I just wish we could have started earlier," Weinstein said.

Thurmond Proposes New Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Constitutional status for freedom of choice in school attendance and repeal of federal court rulings in school cases is proposed by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

He introduced bills Wednesday to remove from all federal courts the power to rule on cases involving decisions on public schools, and to amend the Constitution to guarantee freedom of choice.

"The decisions of the Supreme Court which nullified the freedom of choice concept in public schools education are unreasonable, idiotic, and, in my judgment, without legal foundation," he said.

He predicted support from many Republicans and Southern Democrats in both House and Senate, but said "the liberal element in both houses will do everything possible to defeat both of these proposals."

Geologists say the earth's had crust is relatively as thin as the skin on a large apple, only about 30 miles thick through the continents and dwindling to three miles beneath mid-ocean. The crust floats on the hot, semi-plastic bedrock interior.

Maneuvers Completed

MOSCOW (AP)—Massive Soviet naval maneuvers in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans have been completed, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

The maneuvers, code named Okean—Ocean—showed "skill in combat action and the management of united fleets," Tass said.

It Is A Shock When They Leave Their Old World

By DEE WEDEMYER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When they leave their old world for a new, it is a shock, like Rip Van Winkle awakening.

They are the ex-nuns. An estimated 8,000 left the religious life alone last year to rejoin the secular young of their generation. One of them is Barbara Kane. Before she had been simply Sister Matthew Maureen. Her first jolt was the routine of applying for a job. "I thought what am I getting myself into," said Barbara, 27, who found interviews were just the beginning of a series of rude awakenings she would have before settling into a Manhattan advertising job and a Queens apartment. "I also wrote my friends and told them they should have practiced a few four letter words on me." Dating proved no problem.

Barbara, a plain but friendly blonde, who was in orders eight years, quickly learned dance steps. But it took her about 11 hours to learn to apply eyeliner. Then there were "dating" bars. She found that scene too desperate and awkward when asked the standard, "Who do you know?" and "Where have you been?"

Barbara didn't want to lie about her past, but she didn't want to advertise it either. "They start asking what you did last summer and when you went to Europe last," she said. "You get worn out trying to tell the truth and not tell the truth." Another ex-nun, Ginny Schults, 31, a former Dominican sister, was given $300 by her order and $100 by a relative. Totally bewildered about how to write a resume or get a job, she went to Bearings for Reestablishment, Inc., an organization that aids about 1,500 former nuns and priests each year with job counseling and social rehabilitation. "It's a strange sensation to go out on a job interview selling yourself," said Ginny, a nun 13 years. Although she was a qualified teacher, her first job was as a $110-a-week secretary to pay her apartment deposit. She has since found a $10,500-a-year job as supervisor of teachers at a large Manhattan association for the handicapped but her Bronx studio apartment is still only partially furnished. Ironically Ginny said, one of her main problems has been adjusting to poverty.

"My standard of living was a lot higher when I was in the convent but everything is relative. For example, I could never have had a bright yellow chair in the convent." Now she does in her apartment. She also spent $100 at a discount store for her wardrobe. And now, like many other women, she has found her tastes have changed. "Getting clothes wasn't as difficult as trying to decide what I liked," she said. Barbara still attends Mass regularly. Ginny has stopped going. Barbara says she would consider birth control if she married. Ginny would not hesitate to practice it and furthermore states emphatically she would not rear her children in the same strict Catholic manner in which she was reared.

"I consider myself a good Catholic but I would not put my children through the same brainwashing process I went through," said Ginny. Barbara harbors no animosity toward the order or the years she spent there. She thinks it is a fine vocation for some people, just not her. "I don't think I was unhappy as a sister," she said. "I'm just freer as a person and I represent myself now."

Ginny cites internal politics and philosophical differences as her reasons for leaving. On the Italian island of Sardinia, sheep and goats outnumber people 2-to-1, reflecting the deeply embedded agricultural economy. The perky Sardinian burro, hardly bigger than a goat, still provides inter-village transportation.

ROCKATHON COLLECTION — Some $1,619.91 was collected by joint efforts of members of Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity and the East Carolina University Swimming Team in their recent Easter Seal Drive Rockathon at Five Points in Greenville, is presented to State

Leadership Conference Planned

Dr. Leo Jenkins, President of East Carolina University, today announced plans for the first annual Conference on Youth Leadership to be held at the Holiday Inn in New Bern May 8-9.

The conference, which is sponsored jointly by WNBE-TV in New Bern and East Carolina University, will include more than two hundred high school juniors and seniors from an eleven county area.

WNBE-TV has provided the expenses for the students and speakers and East Carolina University arranged the program.

The eleven counties involved are Craven, Lenoir, Jones, Onslow, Carteret, Pamlico, Greene, Pitt, Beaufort and Wayne.

Regions Are Created For State Planning

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Bob Scott today created 17 planning regions for North Carolina's 100 counties in a move aimed at speeding government service.

"I have said many times the state and local government must be strengthened, especially in its relation to the federal government," Scott said in announcing the move.

With establishment of the regions, all new state and federal aid programs will be drawn in compliance with them, eliminating situations in which a county is linked with one group under one program and another group under another.

Scott pointed out that much duplication and overlapping exists in the composition of regions for many existing programs.

He said state agencies alone have divided the state's counties 70 different ways for varying purposes.

He cited the need for coordination in such services as schools, health and medical facilities, libraries, highways and police protection.

The regions were set up tentatively last January and re-

Damage Is Moderate

An 8:58 a.m. fire today caused moderate fire damage to the offices of Drs. A. B. Aycock and W. S. Dawson at 210 West Fourth St.

Fire officers, who said the blaze was under control within 10 minutes after fire units arrived, said the blaze started in a room which housed the building's heating plant.

Dr. Aycock, who said he could give no estimate of the damage to the structure just before noon, said "hopefully" the office would re-open on a limited basis Saturday.

Firemen said moderate fire damage and heavy smoke damage resulted when flames spread over a portion of the building between the ceiling and roof.

Nurse Rosalie Phillips, on duty in the office when the fire broke out, said she attempted to use the telephone to call firemen, but noted the telephone would not work. She then ran the one block to the central fire station at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets to report the fire, then rode back to the fire on one of the three pumpers sent to combat the blaze.

Firemen reported the blaze in the furnace room had burned the telephone wires located there, thus making the telephone inoperative.

Cause of the fire had not been determined at noon today.

Court Rejects Morgan's Plea

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Court of Appeals has rejected Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan's plea that it not allow a rate increase for the Lee Telephone Co. which the Utilities Commission had approved.

In filing the appeal last year, Morgan told the court that the decision "went against the great weight of evidence."

In upholding the rate boost, Judge W. E. (Dub) Graham said it is a prerogative of the commission to decide what constitutes fair and reasonable rates. He said the commission's decision was supported by the evidence.

drawn in consultation with local officials. Originally, 15 regions had been proposed. The number was increased to 17 to meet points raised during the consultation period.

Only four of the regions remained as originally drawn. Scott created the regions through the issuance of an executive order in keeping with a call by the 1969 General Assembly.

Here is the composition of the regions:
Region A—Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Macon, Swain, Jackson, Haywood.

Region B—Madison, Buncombe, Henderson, Transylvania.

Region C—Polk, Rutherford, McDowell, Cleveland.

Region D—Yancey, Mitchell, Avery, Watauga, Ashe, Wilkes, Alleghany.

Region E—Caldwell, Alexander, Burke, Catawba.

Region F—Iredell, Rowan, Cabarrus, Stanley, Union, Mecklenburg, Gaston, Lincoln.

Region G—Surry, Yadkin, Davie, Davidson, Forsyth, Stokes, Rockingham, Guilford, Randolph, Alamance, Caswell.

Council Has Convention On East Carolina Campus

The North Carolina Federation of the Council for Exceptional Children held its annual convention at East Carolina University Friday and Saturday.

The key speaker for the Friday evening session was Dr. Jeanne McCarthy, director of Diagnostic Services of the Schaumburg Township Elementary Schools of Schaumburg, Ill.

Dr. McCarthy's presentation, entitled "The Mystique is a Mistake," outlined the responsibility of educators toward children with learning disabilities.

The highlight of Saturday's program was a presentation by George A. Kahdy, state director of Special Education Section of the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. His topic was "Special Education in the Seventies—The Big Picture". He pointed out the need for more programs in all areas of special education.

New officers elected at the Saturday morning business session include: Ted Drain of Raleigh, president; Dr. Marlys Mitchell of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, president-elect; Dr. David Giles, Special Education Department, School of Education at East Carolina University, treasurer; Mrs. Pat Parker, Plymouth, secretary; and Mrs. Fran Henderson of Kinston, membership chairman.

Three section meetings were held Saturday. The Speech and Hearing session, presided over by Addison Neal Smith, discussed public school and clinic practices. Panel members were Arthur Brown, speech and hearing therapist for the Hertford County Schools and Dr. Garrett Hume, director of the ECU Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Section II, entitled "New Dimensions for the Seventies," was headed by Lowell Harris, consultant in Mental Retardation, Division of Special Education, State Department of Public Instruction. Mrs. Wilhelmina Rollins, a teacher with the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools, discussed "New Approaches in EMR Programs" which emphasized new methods and materials based on prescriptive.

Mrs. Dorothy Wilson, coordinator of federal programs for the Rockingham County Schools, gave a slide and lecture presentation on "Extending the Curriculum Outside School."

W.N. Creekmore Jr., director of Operation R.E.A.P., presided over the third section which presented a video-tape demonstration of the Remedial Education Activity Program. Panel members for this section were Mrs. Karen Cobb, social worker with R.E.A.P., and Mrs. Mary Ellen Strohaker, head teacher of R.E.A.P.

Mrs. Esther Seay of Western Carolina University was the recipient of the Felix S. Barker Award, an award given annually by the N.C. Federation of CEC to North Carolina's most outstanding educator.

Protest Passed On To State By Eastern 4-A

RALEIGH — The Eastern 4-A Rules Committee did not rule yesterday on a protest on the Rose High School - Wilson baseball game, played earlier this year.

Instead, the committee passed the protest along to the North Carolina High School Athletic Association for a ruling. Charlie Adams, executive assistant of the NCHSAA, was present at the meeting, but did not make an immediate ruling pending a check with the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations, the coordinating group for high school baseball rules.

The protest involves the re-entering of Wilson's Clark Davis into the lineup during the fifth inning of the game between Rose and Wilson. Davis, batting in the number one position, was removed from the game while the team was in the field, and a substitute entered the game for him in right field. Later in the inning, while the team was still in the field, David was re-entered into the lineup, this time as pitcher, but his substitute was allowed to remain in the game.

Rose protested that while the rules allow a starting player to return to the game, they also state that he must assume his original batting position. And returning Davis to the game, and not removing his substitute meant that Wilson had two people batting in the number one position, and none batting in the number nine slot, that vacated by the retired pitcher.

Coach Dave Bumgarner of Rose said he hoped that a ruling would be handed down by the NCHSAA shortly.

The East Carolina University Pirates seek to learn if their even-numbered good luck charm is in force this weekend as they chase their third Southern Conference Baseball title.

The Pirates have been to the NCAA Regional Baseball Tournament in Gastonia three times since becoming a member of the NCAA. In 1964, they went as an independent, finishing third after knocking out West Virginia. In 1966, they won their first Southern Conference title, but were the first team eliminated from the regionals.

Again in 1968, they captured the Southern title, and this time finished third again, but not before playing some of the best ball in the tournament, and upsetting favored Florida State.

So, in 1970, they hope that since it is an even-numbered year, they will again be heading for Gastonia and a shot at the regional title.

But first, they must conquer George Washington, the Southern's northern divisional winner. The Colonials gained the right to meet the Pirates, the southern division winner, by downing William & Mary Tuesday.

The schedule for the best of three series calls for the opening game Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at Ft. Eustis, Va., site of the past three playoffs for the title. The second game will be held Saturday afternoon, and the third, if necessary, will be Saturday night.

Almost certain to draw the starting assignment for the Bucs in the opener is ace Ron Hastings, who leads the Southern Conference in pitching. Hastings has woven a nifty 0.45 ERA for the season, winning seven games and losing one. He has allowed only three earned runs in 60 innings this year.

In the second game, the pitching assignment will go to either Sonny Robinson, who has a 3-2 mark and a 1.16 ERA, or Hal Baird, 4-3, with a 1.59 ERA. Baird is the team's strikeout leader, whiffing 59 in 51 innings this year.

The Colonials have a fine pitcher themselves in Hank Bunnell, but it is not likely that he will be ready to go in Friday's opener. Bunnell tossed 12 innings against William & Mary in the first game of their doubleheader on Tuesday. He is likely to get the call for Saturday's afternoon game, however.

Bunnell has an 8-4 record for the season, and is the leading strikeout artist in the league. Prior to Tuesday's game, he had fanned 90 in 81 1-3 innings this year, and recorded 1.88 ERA.

Bunnell is a full-time player for the Colonials. When not on the mound, he takes his place in the outfield, where he is a productive play, too. He is one of the leading men in the conference in runs batted in, pushing over 18 in the first 30 games of the Colonials. He ranks in a tie for second in triples with three this year, while teammate Cliff Brown is the league leader with four.

The leading hitter for the Colonials, however, is third baseman Sam Perlozzo. He is hitting at a .315 clip for the year, sixth in the conference.

East Carolina, despite not having anyone in the leading hitters category has a better team batting average than the Colonials. The Bucs hit .251 as a team, while George Washington batted at only a .234 mark.

The leading Buc hitter during regular season was Mike Aldridge, who hit at a .346 clip. He appeared in only 14 games, however, with 26 official at bats. The leading regular was Larry Walters, who broke into the lineup only at midseason. He finished up with a .341 mark, getting 15 hits in 44 trips in 18 games.

Of those who went all season, Skip Taylor is the leader with a .300 average, while Dennis Vick hit at .295.

Ken Graver, who injured his foot early in the season, is believed to be ready to return to action and will be along on the trip. Graver has been a solid hitter, and was batting at .308 before being hurt.

"If we get the same type pitching we've been getting out of Hastings," Coach Earl Smith said, "we'll be all right. If the rest of the pitchers hold up, we'll be in fine shape."

"Whichever team gets the best pitching should be the one to take it," he added.

"Bunnell is big and strong, and could be ready to go Friday. If Hastings can keep them from scoring, we can win. Even if it takes all night."

One bit of irony marks the tournament. It will be the final participation by George Washington in the Southern Conference. The school has elected to leave the Southern as of June 1. So the Colonials will be going for their final title.

They have not won the conference baseball title since 1960, when they brought a four-year string of championships to an end.

Pirates Sign Kinston Cager

One of the top high school basketball players ever to come out of the Kinston area has signed an athletic grand-in-aid with East Carolina University.

He is 6-7, 210-pound Nicky White, who led Kinston Woodington High to the NCHSAC state semifinals this past season with an 18.2 scoring average and a 16.0 rebounding average.

ECU Head Basketball Coach Tom Quinn announced the signing here Thursday. He was full of praise for White.

"In Nicky we feel that we have another fine cornerman who is on a par with our two fine forwards — Jim Gregory and Jim Fairley," said Quinn. "Nicky can become one of the top scorers and rebounders in the Southern Conference. And his speed will definitely make our fast break more potent."

White is the first player to sign a full basketball scholarship with the Pirates this season.

"Nicky is the best player I've ever coached," said Woodington Coach Grady Bethel. "His 18-point average isn't really indicative of his future scoring potential. He is some shooter."

Nicky is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hall of Kinston.

Vanceboro Nails Robersonville

VANCEBORO — Vanceboro High School gained a 7-2 victory over Robersonville High School yesterday.

Vanceboro pushed into the lead in the second inning, getting a run. Mac Spruill led off with a walk, and successive passes to Robert Ormond and Jay Midgett loaded the bases. Keith Baker also walked, forcing in Spruill for a 1-0 lead.

Robersonville came back in the fourth to score twice and take the lead. Danny Stalls walked and Bobby Rawls singled, moving Stalls to third. A passed ball let Stalls score, and Joe Pilgreen singled across Rawls.

But Vanceboro came back in the bottom of the inning to score five runs and move ahead for good. Spruill, Ormond and Midgett walked, loading the bases, and Baker was hit by a pitch, scoring Spruill. Ricky Lilly hit a sacrifice fly to score Ormond, and Roland Hooks reached on a single and an error, scoring Midgett and Baker. Buddy Whitfield singled to score Hooks with the fifth run, making it 6-2.

Vanceboro picked up its final run in the sixth.

Lakers Win, Series Goes To Seventh Game

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The New York Knicks and Los Angeles Lakers head back to Gotham for the seventh and deciding game for the National Basketball Association championship Friday night and the outcome may well depend on the Knicks' most valuable asset, Willis Reed.

The Lakers, with Reed on the sidelines, evened the title series at three games apiece before an appreciative crowd of 17,509 in the Forum Wednesday night running away to a 135-113 victory.

Reed, in civilian attire, watched from the sidelines. He fell and suffered a painful muscle injury to his right hip in the fifth game Monday night in New York.

"Reed is a 50-50 possibility to play Friday night," said Coach Red Holzman. The 6-foot-10 star from Grambling, the NBA's Most Valuable Player in the regular season, left immediately after the game for further treatment — and rest — in New York.

The Lakers agreed New York is something with Reed — and something else without him.

Jerry West of Los Angeles summed it up when he said, "New York is in a bad way if Reed can't play."

The sixth game bore out a trend. Neither team has been able to win two in a row.

West got the Lakers off to a 2-0 lead and the team was never behind. The Lakers led by 20 points after the first and second periods, 19 after the third and refused to bend in the final.

The outstanding performer was giant Wilt Chamberlain, who topped the scoring with 45 points. He was also a huge figure on defense, snaring 27 rebounds.

Chamberlain, who said he was "truly sorry when Reed was hurt," said he didn't particularly go for such high scoring, just "if the opportunity presented itself." It did.

"We'll be fighting for our life Friday night," said Dave Debusschere, the Knicks' top scorer with 25.

Walt Frazier of the Knicks said, "home court has to be about a 10-point advantage for us. The Garden will be pandemonium and the crowd may dictate the pace of the game Friday night."

Buc Stickers Lose Finale

ASHLAND, Va. — East Carolina University's lacrosse team bowed to powerful Randolph-Macon here yesterday in its final match of the season, 8-1.

The loss would up the season for the Bucs with a 4-4 record. Their other defeats were at the hands of Duke, North Carolina and a sudden death overtime to William & Mary.

The Bucs had wins over Virginia Tech, VMI, the Richmond Lacrosse Club and William & Mary.

Randolph-Macon took the lead in the first period with a goal, and added another in the second for a 2-0 halftime lead. In the third period, Randolph-Macon scored twice, then added four in the final period.

The lone Pirate goal came in the final frame by Eric Schandemeier, with an assist by Steve Barrow.

Gary McCulloch ended up as the most productive of the Pirates finishing with 20 goals and five assists. Schandemeier had 11 goals and 11 assists.

East Carolina	0 0 0 1-1
Randolph-Macon	1 1 2 4-8

North Lenoir Nips Farmville

FARMVILLE — Farmville struggled back from three runs behind to tie North Lenoir in the fifth inning, but could not score again, and North Lenoir finally pushed over a run in the 14th to take a 6-5 baseball win yesterday.

The win kept North Lenoir within striking distance of Greene Central in the Eastern Plains race.

North Lenoir scored twice in the first inning. Cliff Cashwell was hit by a pitch and Troy Eason singled. Dalton Williams got a hit, driving in both runners.

Farmville tied it up with a pair in the second. Kenny Bryant reached on an error and scored on Don Blair's triple. Blair came across on an error on the play.

In the third, however, North Lenoir scored to move back out 3-2. Eason reached on a fielder's choice. He stole second and a pair of errors on the play let him come home.

North Lenoir added two more in the fifth to move out 5-2. Lloyd Wiggins singled and Cashwell got a hit. Eason then tripled to score both.

In the bottom of the fifth, Farmville rallied to tie it up at 5-5. Frank Styers reached on an error and stole second. Another error allowed him to come the rest of the way. Cloyce Wilson walked and John Dickerson brought him home with a triple.

A wild pitch scored Dickerson with the tying run.

Neither team could do anything for the balance of the regulation game, and they battled until the 14th before North Lenoir finally got the winning run. Mike McKeel led off with a single and Bobby Phillips got a hit. Both advanced on a wild pitch, and Cashwell's

Church Wins Go To Immanuel, Presbyt.

First Presbyterian and Immanuel Baptist joined in the action in the Church Softball League last night, picking up victories. Presbyterian downed First Christian, 7-3, while Immanuel rolled to an 11-5 win over Piney Grove.

In the American division, Presbyterian and St. James are tied for first with 1-0 records, while Gum Swamp and Christian are 0-1. Meadowbrook and Trinity have yet to play. In the National division, Immanuel and Black Jack are 1-0, while Oakmont and Piney Grove are 0-1. Mt. Pleasant and Grace have not played.

Christian grabbed the initial lead in the game, pushing over a run in the top of the first inning. But Presbyterian stormed back in the bottom of the first to push over six runs and take the lead for good.

The runs came on doubles by

Lenoir Inks Chicod Star

KINSTON — Herbert Spear, basketball coach at Lenoir Community College in Kinston, announced that Garland Warren (6'8", 270 lbs.) has decided to attend Lenoir next year to play basketball.

Warren, who played for Coach Glenn White at Chicod High School averaged 15 points and 21 rebounds per game in his senior year. He was All-Pitt County both his junior and senior year.

Warren was errored, allowing McKeel to score.

Presbyterian picked up its other run in the third, while Christian added one in the fourth and another in the fifth.

In the second game, Piney Grove pushed over one in the first, but a two-run homer by Mike Buck put Immanuel on top. Piney Grove came back with one in the second to tie it up, but again it didn't last.

This time, Immanuel scored two more as Horace Robertson hit a two-run homer in the third for a 4-2 lead. Immanuel added three more in the fourth, and halted a Piney Grove rally after three runs crossed in the top of the fifth, making it 7-5.

Immanuel added one more in the fifth, and three in the sixth, one coming on a solo homer by Bill Dickens.

Ram Hurler In No-Hit Victory

NASHVILLE — Greene Central's Johnny Johnson tossed a no-hitter at Southern Nash yesterday, as the Rams scored a 4-0 victory.

The win kept Greene Central atop the Eastern Plains Conference standings, with the season drawing swiftly to a close.

Johnson struck out 15 and walked but two as he kept Southern Nash hitless and without a threat all day.

The Rams pushed over a run in the first to take the lead. Robert Ivey doubled and stole third. Donnie Harris grounded out, scoring Ivey.

In the second, Greene Central added another run. Bill Albritton singled and Larry Kearney got a hit. Albritton scored when Danny Whitley reached on a fielder's choice.

Greene Central picked up its final two runs in the sixth inning. Bob Scott reached on an error and scored when Tim Kearney doubled. Albritton got a single, driving in Kearney with the final run.

Ivey led the Ram hitting with three, while Albritton had two. Greene Central 110 002 0-4 8 0

Guardsmen Now Keeping Guns Empty

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — National Guardsmen called out to control protests at four major universities across the country after the Kent State shootings have been given orders to keep their guns unloaded.

Troops sent into the University of Kentucky to enforce a night-long curfew were issued live ammunition Wednesday on orders from Gov. Louie B. Nunn, but the guardsmen were told not to load their rifles.

Ammunition was kept from guardsmen at the University of Wisconsin, where students built barricades in the streets and set them ablaze before being routed by tear gas Wednesday night.

Only in Ohio were guardsmen still carrying loaded rifles, but new warnings were issued against opening fire in the wake of the earlier deaths.

Four students were killed and 10 wounded Monday when Ohio National Guardsmen shot into a crowd of antiwar demonstrators at Kent State. What touched off the gunfire remains unclear, enmeshed in controversy and confusion.

Illinois put 3,000 guardsmen on standby alert and sent part of the force onto the Southern Illinois University campus after a clash Wednesday night. But the militia's top general said the troops had standing orders not to load or fire without a specific command from a senior officer.

Guard guns were also kept unloaded at the University of Maryland, where the last troops were withdrawn Wednesday after five days of demonstrations.

The Pentagon's riot regulations say troops are allowed to load their weapons only upon an officer's orders or if their lives are in danger.

Brig. Gen. Robert Canterbury has said his Ohio guardsmen, under state control at the time of the shootings, carry live ammunition when assigned to riot duty and routinely load their weapons when sent into action.

At Kent State, where troops gradually are being pulled out, and at Ohio State University, closed after unrest Wednesday, soldiers were still carrying loaded rifles, according to the Guard headquarters.

But a spokesman said commanders had issued troops new precautions not to fire unless ordered or unless fired upon first.

Gov. Nunn warned that troops sent into the University of Kentucky after a campus fire would be armed "with mounted bayonets and live ammunition." He said they would use necessary force to protect property.

But state Adj. Gen. Larry C. Dawson said the Kentucky guardsmen were ordered not to load their weapons.

In Illinois, Adj. Gen. Harold R. Patton said guns would be kept unloaded unless troops were given a direct command by an officer. He added, "The guardsmen will not fire into crowds. These are standing orders."

The Guard patrolled the SIU campus at Carbondale, Ill., after nine students and 12 policemen were injured in a clash. The troops were kept in an armory off campus during the actual fighting.

At Madison, Wis., guardsmen and police were pelted with rocks as they moved in on burning barricades built in the streets. Clouds of tear gas scattered the students.

The Wisconsin Guard refused official comment. But a source said absolutely no bullets were issued to guardsmen used on the campus.

One guardsman sent into previous Wisconsin disturbances said ammunition never has been carried by the troops, but has been kept nearby if needed.

The bidding:
East South West North
1 ♠ 4 ♠ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♣

When East opened the bidding with one club, South chose to proceed directly to four spades. With a club lead, he could expect to take eight tricks and in the event that his partner could not provide two more, it was reasonable to assume that the opposition could score their way—so that whatever loss was incurred would be worth the price.

West led the four of clubs and East played the ace, dropping declarer's queen. It appeared that South also had the king of clubs and it was reasonable to assume from the four spade bid that declarer's trumps were solid. Prospects looked exceedingly dim, for as soon as the ace of hearts was disclosed, East could not expect to do more than take the ace of diamonds and then retire.

The only vague chance hinged on attempting to kill the dummy's side entry before the hearts became established. In order to launch a profitable attack on North's diamond holding, East must hope to find his partner with the jack of that suit. He accordingly returned a small diamond. His good fortune commenced when West produced the jack to force out dummy's queen.

Declarer was not very happy with the turn of events and he led the king of hearts in the hope that he could sneak thru a trick in that suit. East correctly guessed to play South for a singleton heart, and he put up the ace and exited with a club. Declarer was in and after drawing trump, he had no recourse but to lead a diamond from his hand. When West played low, the king was put up from dummy. East produced the ace and ten of diamonds to record a well earned profit on the deal.

Had East returned anything but a small diamond at trick two, South would have had time to drive out the ace of hearts while dummy still retains an eventual diamond entry to provide a sluff on the hearts.

A cable had been put across the road leading to the site, it was reported, and entrance to the area had been gained by cutting the cable.

The sheriff said that his department is continuing its investigation of the incident.

Welding Theft Investigated

Pitt County Sheriff's officials are investigating the theft of a welding outfit reported stolen Tuesday night from a new home site in the West Haven Subdivision.

Theft of the equipment, belonging to the Eastern Construction Company here, was reported by Blue Dunn around 8 a.m. yesterday. Value of the outfit was set at $1,000.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the equipment was left on the site of a new home being built just off Highway 11 in the subdivision when workmen stopped for the afternoon.

Governors See Little Impact

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Republican governors, gathering here for their spring conference, generally discount the 1970 campaign impact of the Senate rejection of President Nixon's two Deep South nominees to the Supreme Court.

An obvious exception to that forecast is Florida, where G. Harold Carswell, one of the rejected Nixon choices, is running for the Senate with the active support of Gov. Claude R. Kirk Jr.

Another of the party's southern governors, Linwood Holton of Virginia, said he did not expect the court dispute would be of particular significance in his state's campaign.

So did Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, seeking reelection in the nation's two biggest states. That view reflected the consensus in an Associated Press survey of GOP governors. They were asked about the court controversy at their home capitals, in advance of the meeting of Republican state executives.

A dwindling band of governors, most of them from smaller states, was assembling here today. Only 16, half the roster of GOP governors, were expected, and there could be more last-minute cancellations.

Many governors apparently bypassed the conference because of trouble on college campuses at home.

Gov. David F. Cargo, the host, ordered the University of New Mexico closed Wednesday.

The campus disturbances and the U.S. move into Cambodia were certain to be prime politi-

Drug Running Trips Are Taking Place

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A young Charlotte man and his friend climbed into a borrowed car about 5 p.m. one afternoon last October, beginning a drug-running trip typical of those continually funneling illegal drugs into the hands of North Carolina young people.

The 21-year-old man had been preparing for the trip for about a week by raising capital. In his words, "We found a lot of people who wanted to score," or plenty of investors.

Thus backed by $600 in advanced funds, the young man and his companion drove north all night. To pass time along the way, they smoked marijuana.

Their trip was for marijuana or hallucinogens such as LSD, reported by federal, state and local law officials to be the most commonly used illegal drugs among North Carolina young people. Though classed as narcotics under North Carolina law, they are not believed to be physically addictive as are hard drugs like heroin.

Federal narcotics officials report heroin use in North Carolina, while now considerably less common than the use of marijuana or hallucinogens, is growing. But the Charlotte man who asked not to be identified, said he and his friend had no intention of buying heroin and that he had never dealt in it.

His market was among young, casual drug users, not addicts, he said.

The pair pulled into the outskirts of Baltimore, Md., some 12 hours after their departure from Charlotte. They had no prearranged contacts and it was early morning.

"But it's easy enough to find out where the heads (acid heads, or drug users) hang out," recalled the youth. "There's like no problem getting it."

They drove around Baltimore for three or four hours, the youth remembered in an interview, seeking a seller. He said their search centered on long-haired young people in hippie-type attire.

Finally they struck up a conversation with some youths who appeared likely to help them, he said. The two visitors, who hadn't slept the night before, asked for a place to "crash," or sleep for free.

"They said it was cool to crash, so we went to their place," said the man.

Both slept into the afternoon, he said. When they awoke and their hosts offered to give them some tablets of LSD, they knew they had found what they were looking for.

They asked for more—to buy. But their Baltimore hosts, acting through what they described as a "friend of a friend," said they could round up only 150 tablets of LSD on short notice. The two Charlottes bought them at $2 a tablet, a high price compared to other deals, they thought.

They had spent only half their $600 capital, but the youth said he and his friend then returned to Charlotte, driving again through the night. Back home, they refunded $300 of the big advances and made good on the small commitments.

The youth said they made refunds on the large advances because those were the ones promising the thinnest profit margins. Drug prices, he said, tend to rise for buyers of small quantities.

The sales were made for small profit, with prices varying from a little above the $2 purchase price to around $3, he said. The two youths thus made only a little more than their trip had cost them.

But the profits of distributing marijuana and hallucinogens in North Carolina come at several levels. Law enforcement officials interviewed said the imported drugs pass through several hands before they are consumed—and the price swells at each exchange.

Ex-drug users and law officers said on-the-street prices in North Carolina's large cities range from $2 to $8—and sometimes higher—for a tablet of LSD. Marijuana prices vary similarly according to supply, they said, with profits of several hundred per cent uncommon at each level of sale.

"If half the people who bought dope knew what it (originally) costs," the youthful dealer said, "they'd—you know—they'd just sit down and cry."

He was experienced in the pricing process. Over a one and one-half year period, he estimated, he made more than 50 trips outside the state to bring illegal drugs to North Carolina. His visits included New York, Washington and Los Angeles.

"by plane as much as possible."

Police said dealers travel to other cities as well, including Philadelphia and, frequently because of its nearness and good highway connections, Atlanta. The size of their purchases depend on the amount of money they have or can raise.

But the Charlotte man interviewed said his dealing halted three months ago. That was when he was picked up in a rural North Carolina county and charged with possession of illegal drugs. Convicted of the charges, he now is appealing a 22-year sentence and is free on bond.

Local police, the State Bureau of Investigation and North Carolina agents of the Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drug said his loose, unorganized dealings were typical of the way marijuana and hallucinogenic drugs are imported into North Carolina cities from out of state.

"We tried to organize something a lot of times," the man said, "but it never worked out, because any time you try to organize the dollar signs pop up in everybody's eyes."

Some marijuana comes in through the mail from dealers or GIs in Vietnam, police said. An ex-drug user agreed, "that's probably the highest priced grass around, because it's the best quality," he said.

Haywood Starling, assistant SBI director in charge of field operations, said most dealers and users are under 30. The typical dealer—like the Charlotte youth—operates irregularly and has a tight circle of six or eight friends to whom he sells, he said.

"He won't go out of those half-dozen," said Starling.

But each of the half-dozen also has his circle of friends, he said. So the sales spread in a tree-branch pattern, reducing in size as they grow in number.

An agent of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs who asked not to be identified said marijuana and hallucinogenic drug traffic in North Carolina was the work of "a jillion and one little hip - pocket dealers."

Interviews showed many youths believe law enforcement officials are ignorant of the real magnitude of illegal drug traffic among the state's young people.

The officials, reluctant to estimate the quantity of marijuana and hallucinogens imported, conceded they catch only a part of the flow, "a very, very small percentage" in the words of the federal narcotics official.

"They don't have any better idea (of the amount of traffic) than we do," he added. "That's for sure."

"We're not contending we detect all the cases, all the violations that occur," said Starling of the SBI. "We can only tell what we detect."

The officials said most marijuana and hallucinogens bought for use in North Carolina come from out of state, with only small quantities produced or grown inside North Carolina.

"I'd say practically all of it comes into the state," said the federal agent. "Anyone growing a big quantity wouldn't sell it in this state."

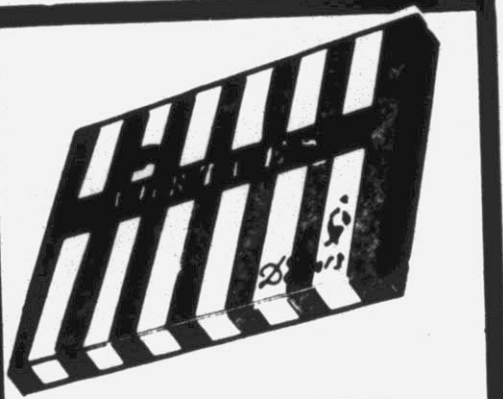

But SBI agents have discovered at least one small marijuana patch in North Carolina. And in cooperation with local police, they broke up a secret home laboratory in Winston-Salem where hallucinogenic drugs allegedly were being made several months ago.

"We have clandestine laboratories operating on small scales in other parts of the state," said Starling. He said his men had word of the operations through informants, but were building up evidence for indictments before striking to close them.

Rep. Mahon Is A Note Keeper

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House of Representatives appropriations committee since 1964, is a note keeper. And that's of interest to a lot of Texans, including Lyndon B. Johnson.

"I started keeping notes and unusual events in a 400-page notebook in 1917 after graduation from high school and before entering Simmons (now Hardin-Simmons) University," Mahon said. "I'm now in my fourth notebook."

Mahon ran for and won the 19th Congressional seat when it was first created in 1934. No other person has ever held that office. He earned a law degree in 1925 and has been in public office since 1927.

Mahon is in his 36th year as a member of Congress, and in his eighth year as chairman of the house committee to control federal spending.

"The notes in these books mean something to me, but the way they are written and kept and scattered about I don't see how they could mean anything to anyone else," Mahon said.

Yet, the notebooks and other personal papers of Mahon are being sought by LBJ for the Johnson Library and by Texas Tech University officials for the school's library.

As more persons become aware of the papers more libraries are expected to seek the collection.

Admirers Place Roses On Grave

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A handful of admirers placed red roses on the grave of silent screen lover Rudolph Valentino on the 75th anniversary of his birth.

The eight mourners at Hollywood Memorial Park Cemetery Wednesday were members of the Valentino Society, established recently nearly 44 years after the actor's death.

Scott Standing By Endorsement

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite a projected student march Friday on the State Capitol in protest, Gov. Bob Scott is standing by his endorsement of President Nixon's action in sending U. S.

troops into Cambodia. Last Friday, Scott sent Nixon a telegram endorsing the move into Cambodia. After the NCSU rally he was asked if he would change his position. He answered "No."

The protest march was organized at an antiwar rally held by approximately 1,500 students at North Carolina State University Wednesday.

Mrs. Beverly Schwarz of Raleigh, a student majoring in government, told the crowd:

"Governor Scott has concluded that he ought to represent all of the people of North Carolina in congratulating President Nixon on his action. Well, he doesn't represent us, and I suggest we march to his office Friday and demand he wire a telegram withdrawing his statement." The president-elect of the university's student body, Cathy Sterling, endorsed the proposed march and asked the students to assemble at 11 a.m. Friday.

Mrs. Schwarz also suggested that the governor be asked to send a telegram to the governor of Ohio "condemning him for allowing the National Guard to go on the campus of Kent State and permitting four people to be killed."

Following the McMillan order, Gov. Bob Scott gave notice that he would enforce a state law which said public funds cannot be spent for such purposes.

The three-judge panel, composed of McMillan, and Circuit Court judges, J. Braxton Craven of Asheville and John D. Butzner Jr. of Richmond, Va., said the state law is unconstitutional because it could prohibit a school board from fulfilling its constitutional duty to establish a unitary school system.

There are still 5,000 black-smiths in the United States, says the National Geographic.

(Eyesight in Children)

How much do you know about eyesight in children?

Perhaps you have a young child and are concerned about his eyes. If you are worrying, it may be unnecessary.

Here are a few basic things to remember.

First of all, if there are no obvious abnormalities, you needn't worry about your baby's eyes for the first six months. Babies cannot see clearly at birth. The color of their eyes usually isn't even established for half a year.

Babies take time to learn to use their eyes. They must learn to converge both eyes simultaneously, to focus and to see in three dimensions.

Usually it takes a child about six years to develop perfect binocular vision. An early eye examination is usually suggested to be sure of adequate development. One other reminder, when your child begins to read, give him large lettered books or books. It's easier on his young eyes.

The Tobacco Institute believes the American public is entitled to complete, authenticated information about cigarette smoking and health.

The American Cancer Society does not seem to agree.

Is the public entitled to complete, authenticated information about research on cigarette smoking and health? The Tobacco Institute thinks it is; the American Cancer Society apparently thinks it is not.

The Tobacco Institute has recently challenged the Cancer Society on a matter of importance to the public—and the public health. The Cancer Society has not accepted this challenge.

On February 5, the Cancer Society called a press conference in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City to discuss a research project titled, "The Effects of Cigarette Smoking Upon Dogs." Through the efforts of the Cancer Society, the public was led to believe that this experiment is a landmark achievement which, for the first time, demonstrates that lung cancer, resembling lung cancer in humans, can be produced in animals with cigarette smoke.

The Cancer Society claimed that this result refutes the contention of the tobacco industry that there is no laboratory proof of a connection between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. The Society also said that the findings should have an impact on cigarette smoking and should result in a reassessment of the advertising claims and policies of the tobacco industry.

The Tobacco Institute does not—and the public should not—accept these claims at face value. Here are the reasons:

1. The present accounts of this study are based solely upon information and interpretations provided to the press. The study has not been published in any scientific journal. The findings were not subjected, as such findings normally are, to rigorous independent scientific review.

2. The history of tobacco and health research contains many examples of experiments which were initially hailed as scientific breakthroughs, but on later evaluation proved to be of little significance. Unfortunately, the initial and premature announcement of these experiments makes news, but the later criticism of the work rarely comes to public attention.

3. The Tobacco Institute has requested the Cancer Society, in writing, to permit a thorough independent evaluation of the experiment and its results. We said we would propose as reviewers men of outstanding competence and integrity, with wide experience in areas relevant to the data, who, we believed, would be thoroughly acceptable to the Society. We also stated that if the Society should, for good reason, reject any scientist we propose, we would nominate a substitute. Finally, we offered to bear all costs needed for this independent analysis.

The Cancer Society has twice rejected this proposal—in letters dated March 12 and April 17.

We continue to hope that the American Cancer Society will permit the examination of this work in the manner we have proposed. If the study is as important as the Cancer Society has represented it to be, the Society should have no hesitation in submitting it for review.

The tobacco industry recognizes and accepts a responsibility to promote the progress of independent scientific research in the field of tobacco and health. In discharging that responsibility, we believe that the industry has spent, and continues to spend, more money for such research than any organization in the United States.

If the Cancer Society continues to deny access to this recent work, we believe this will serve as convincing evidence to the public, lay and scientific, that the data will not support the allegations made at the Society's Waldorf-Astoria conference.

March 20, 1970

Mr. William B. Lewis, Chairman of the Board
American Cancer Society
219 East 42nd Street
New York, New York 10017

Dear Mr. Lewis:

I have your letter of March 12, 1970. I am greatly disappointed that the American Cancer Society has refused to permit the impartial review of the Auerbach-Hammond data which I requested in my letter of February 27. Since the Society has called upon the cigarette industry to reassess its policies in light of the findings, it is only fair and proper for the Society to permit us to have those findings evaluated by independent experts—and immediately.

You will recall that I propose to nominate as reviewers several well-known scientists highly qualified in the fields of experimental work, tumor pathology and lung diseases. They will all be subject to your rejection for good cause.

Your reasons for denying my request, as I understand them from your letter, are that the formal papers will be published in the very near future and that a study of them will satisfy any scientific or other questions regarding the findings. I do not find these reasons for denying my request at all convincing.

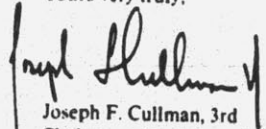

First, publication in a scientific journal will not occur until many months after the Waldorf-Astoria press conference of February 5.

Second, the American Cancer Society at that press conference made serious allegations against this industry and its products. The Society said in its press release that the Auerbach-Hammond findings "should have a significant impact on the smoking of cigarettes in this country, and will probably lead to a reassessment of advertising claims and policies of the cigarette industry." These findings have been widely publicized in newspapers and the medical press. How can the Cancer Society say that serious analysis of the work must be delayed until formal publication?

Finally, the published papers cannot satisfy questions about such matters as the proper interpretation of the pathologic material, the allegation that cigarette smoke produced various effects in the dogs, the validity and adequacy of the experimental design and procedure, and in general whether, as you assert, the experiment "meets the highest traditions and protocol of scientific investigation." These matters can only be resolved by examination of the pertinent data and material.

If the Cancer Society does not accede to my request, we plan to use every means at our disposal to see to it that the medical and lay public are made aware of our respective positions in this matter. Furthermore, we intend to continue to press our request for exposure of this experiment to impartial scientific scrutiny by qualified experts in the manner suggested. If the Cancer Society continues to deny access to the work, I believe this will serve as convincing evidence to the public, lay and scientific, that the Auerbach-Hammond data will not support the allegations made at the Society's Waldorf-Astoria conference.

Yours very truly,

Joseph F. Cullman, 3rd

FROM THE TOBACCO INSTITUTE

Mr. Joseph F. Cullman, III
Chairman of the Executive Committee
The Tobacco Institute, Inc.
Philip Morris, Inc.
100 Park Avenue
New York, New York 10017

Dear Mr. Cullman:

The Veterans Administration, the American Cancer Society and Doctors Auerbach and Hammond cannot accede to the requests stated in your letter of February 27 and March 20 for an evaluation of the Auerbach-Hammond study on "The Effects of Cigarette Smoking Upon Dogs" by a panel of independent scientists chosen by you.

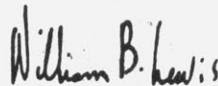

Your request is without precedent in the scientific community. The study under question was the result of three and a half years of diligent and brilliant work by two eminently qualified scientists whose findings have been validated by distinguished pathologists of worldwide reputation. In addition, other leading pathologists, highly regarded by the scientific community, have visited Dr. Auerbach's laboratory, seen his slides and praised the work.

We do not intend to ask that these two eminent men submit their findings to any selected committee chosen by the Tobacco Institute, or any other group. Their work will be judged in the traditional manner of American science, where findings are presented, discussed, accepted or rejected by scientists and physicians whose only motivation is the truth. Doctors Auerbach and Hammond worked freely and without restraint with funds furnished by the federal government and the American Cancer Society. They are beholden only to the scientific community at large and to the integrity it represents.

If the Tobacco Institute, or any scientific research group, has doubts about the findings of this study, the way it was conducted, or the credentials of the investigators, there is a time-honored and scientifically accepted way to proceed. Let your own or another group of scientists repeat the experiments in a laboratory to prove that smoking dogs will not suffer tissue damage, emphysema and lung cancer. The Auerbach-Hammond methodology is readily available to you. And I presume that in the Council for Tobacco Research you have or can set up the mechanism for conducting such a study.

If you carry out your plan to publicize "our respective positions" to the medical and lay public, you have our permission to use this letter as the position paper of the American Cancer Society.

Sincerely,

William B. Lewis

FROM THE AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

April 29, 1970

Mr. William B. Lewis
Chairman of the Board
The American Cancer Society
219 East 42nd Street
New York, New York

Dear Mr. Lewis:

Your letter of April 17 states that the American Cancer Society is unwilling to permit an impartial review of the Auerbach-Hammond data by "any selected committee chosen by the Tobacco Institute, or any other group."

You say our request "is without precedent in the scientific community." I submit that the Cancer Society's exploitation of this unpublished work for publicity purposes is truly without precedent in the scientific community. Through its use of publicity techniques rather than the usual scientific channels, it is the Cancer Society—not the tobacco industry—which, contrary to the traditions of American science, has projected this study into the arena of public discussion. Furthermore, in the scientific community, expert review panels are often convened to review important questions which depend upon the interpretation of research results.

You claim pathologists have visited Dr. Auerbach's laboratory, seen his slides and praised the work. Why, then, do you refuse to permit an impartial review by distinguished scientists, especially in view of your claim that this work is of great significance to the smoking public and the tobacco industry?

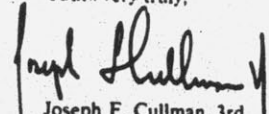

As you say, Doctors Auerbach and Hammond worked with funds furnished by the federal government and the American Cancer Society. Since these are funds derived from public sources, the public is entitled to a full and fair account of the results. The American Cancer Society cannot presume to be the sole custodian and interpreter of the work.

You stated that these scientists "are beholden only to the scientific community at large and to the integrity it represents." But the American Cancer Society, an organization supported by public donations, is certainly also "beholden" to its contributors and to the public at large to provide complete information about the research which it finances, especially in view of the fact that you have released news of the study to the public media. When the Society is questioned about its interpretations of such research, it should feel a responsibility to disclose the data which, it alleges, support its interpretations.

You suggest that the way to resolve any doubts about the study is to have another research organization repeat the work—which you say, was conducted over a period of three and a half years. This suggestion overlooks the fact that the American Cancer Society has called upon the tobacco industry to reassess its policies in light of the present findings. If this is the Society's position, it should not expect or want the cigarette industry to go through three and a half years of research to determine answers which the Cancer Society asserts are available today.

In view of the American Cancer Society's position, we are proceeding to bring this matter to the attention of the public.

Yours very truly,

Joseph F. Cullman, 3rd
Chairman of the Executive Committee

Utilities Extensions Approved

SNOW HILL — The Snow Hill Town Board Tuesday night approved the extension of water and sewer lines to the Lakeview Subdivision area.

The request was presented to the board by Thomas L. Jones, developer of the subdivision.

Mayor Melvin Oliver reviewed with the board the progress on the water and sewer extension project proposed for Snow Hill. He reported that the majority of the right of ways had been obtained and that a portion of the project would be relocated to prohibit unnecessary destruction to property owners yards.

The mayor also reported ef-

An Epileptic Is Not 'All Alone'

Mildred has probably 2,000,000 other Americans in the same boat with her. And on her troubled "sea" she can visualize 2,000,000 diabetics in similar "boats," plus maybe 10,000,000 chronic arthritics, etc. But Mildred can also help reduce her attacks by the psychological therapy outlined below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE L-516: Mildred R., aged 47, has a problem that bothers almost 2,000,000 other teen-agers and oldsters.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I have suffered from epilepsy ever since I was in high school. My doctors tell me my case is petit mal, for I merely black out for a few seconds but don't fall to the floor in convulsions.

"My latest doctor has put me on some new medicine, though I used phenobarbital for many years.

"Now I break out in red welts all over my body, so is this due to the medical side effects of the new drug?

"I also notice that undue excitement and tension seem to throw me into an attack. So how can I reduce the likelihood of a blackout?"

The usual epileptic case is called "idiopathic."

That means it seems to occur without any known organic irritation and thus is a spontaneous explosion of energy in the brain.

But epilepsy is also regarded as being an allergy phenomenon and thus is a cousin of hay fever, migraine, eczema, asthma, etc.

Our medical use of sedative or tranquilizer drugs is also predicated on the idea that if we can keep the brain's energy below that explosive level, then the patient will not blackout or have a grand mal convulsion.

You epileptics need not feel unduly miserable because you happen to have an ailment that many hang on throughout most of your life.

For it helps one's morale to realize that there are a lot of other people in the same boat.

At present, we thus have probably 2,000,000 diabetics who must also stab themselves each morning with a needle to take a shot of insulin or swallow a tablet to keep their blood sugar level in the normal range.

And millions of Americans suffer from arthritis, so they keep trying one drug after another to obtain relief.

Millions of other Americans must likewise take digitalis for their hearts, or other drugs for their asthma, hay fever or anemia.

In fact, console your ego by realizing that few people remain perfectly healthy all their lives.

But epileptics now have access to many new drugs that are helpful, so the vast majority can lead normal, happy lives.

Occasionally, a new drug will cause some unpleasant medical side effects, as apparently is true in Mildred's case.

In that event, we medics shift to a different medicine.

Actually, it seems almost every new drug, regardless of how harmless it may be to most people, will cause allergic effects in some patients, for a few folks can't even tolerate a single aspirin tablet!

In addition to drug aid to epileptics, we also urge psychological tranquilizers, such as the "Compliment Club," Bible reading and activity in your neighborhood church.

For such devices turn your attention outward and thus reduce your tendency to grow agitated about your "innards."

Joining the "Compliment Club" also makes you more popular and banishes undue shyness, as well as stage fright, thus helping hold your brain tension below that explosive level.

So send for the "Compliment

Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, and become a fullfledged member.

Italy, like Japan, lies along an "earthquake belt."

Men Kidnapped As Drug Informers

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Police quote two men as saying they were kidnaped by a carnival worker and a Ft. Bragg soldier who thought they were informers for narcotics agents.

Sheriff W. G. Clark said charges of kidnaping and conspiracy to murder had been placed against Curtis Proulx, of St. Paul, Minn., the carnival worker, and Guy Webb Jr., 20-year-old GI. The sheriff said Wednesday they were members of a hippie group known as "The Family" and that he does not intend to allow such groups to organize in Cumberland County.

They were placed under bond of $20,000 each.

Clark said they are accused of kidnaping Richard Fortner of Rt. 8, Fayetteville, and Wayne Eshelman, a Ft. Bragg soldier.

Another soldier, James England, was arrested early this week on the same charges.

The sheriff's department said the pair reported they were held captive for several hours last Thursday in woods, and one of their assailants was armed with a pistol.
