ABOARD A USAF C130 OVER PERU (AP) — A grandstand view of death and destruction swept beneath a big U.S. C130 cargo plane as it dropped supplies to survivors of earthquake-torn North Central Peru Sunday.

"Unbelievable," said the pilot, Capt. Bill Hudspeth, a Vietnam veteran, as he guided the big Hercules up the 80-mile Huaylas Canyon. "Worse than anything I have seen in my life."

Hudspeth shook his head in disbelief as the transport passed over what was left of Huaraz, once a city of 50,000 at the southern entrance to the canyon, 180 miles north of Lima. Half the buildings had crumbled. Not a single roof remained intact.

The government says the earthquake a week ago may have killed 30,000 or more people; a United Nations observer says the count more likely will exceed 50,000. An estimated 100,000 more are homeless, injured or both.

Hudspeth reached for the throttle and headed his giant craft 21 miles up the gorge to Anta, the target of the airdrop. Anta, a village of about 2,000 was devastated, but by some freak of terrain enough of the town's tiny airstrip was spared from avalanches that hurtled down the 18,000-foot Andes to leave it still useable by small aircraft.

A quarter ton of sleeping bags, blankets and food rations was packed in plastic-wrapped survival kits and stapled into 12 large crates. The back bay of the plane lifted open as Anta came into view and the crates were shoved out, two at a time, as the Hercules made six passes over the runway.

A few miles further up the canyon was Yungay, which used to be home for some 33,000 people. All that could be seen of it were the tops of four palm trees where the town square had been and a statue of Christ, with arms outstretched, which marked the hilltop cemetery.

A slide of rocks and mud two to three miles wide had hurtled clear across both banks of the Santa River at the bottom of the canyon, buried Yungay and smashed against a mountain ledge on the other side. Only about 2,500 residents of Yungay are believed to have survived.

The C130s fly twice a day, dropping supplies over the canyon then picking up survivors at the evacuation center in Chimbote. They are brought there by helicopters and vintage C47s that can just manage to land and take off at Anta.

More than half of Chimbote, a thriving industrial port of 80,000 people is gone. Its fishmeal processing plant is partly ruined. Engineers estimated it will take many months to get Peru's only steel plant there to operate again.

But the undamaged airfield has been turned into headquarters for planes and rescue teams from fourteen nations.

The air drops into Anta are part of a multimillion dollar U.S. relief effort. In addition to more than $1 million spent on the drops during the first week after the quake, the United States has pledged $10 million to help rebuild the shattered areas.

A big American Chinook helicopter was going into service between Chimbote and the Huaylas Canyon today, and a second Chinook was to arrive in Lima later in the day. Another 14 helicopters are due Thursday aboard the carrier Guam, now in the Panama Canal zone picking up 150 huge tents and as many crates of cereal and other food as can be loaded.

Two 100-bed field hospitals with medical teams also were expected later today. Many of those who survived the quake with injuries are dying as their wounds become gangrenous.

Crews of the big C130s that carry supplies from Lima to Anta, then ferry injured survivors from Chimbote to hospitals in Lima, report many of the injured have little chance of living after a week of exposure without food and medical attention.

Greenville Population Gains

The 1970 population of Greenville stands just short of the 30,000 mark, with 29,916 people. County wide, the recent U.S. census shows a population of 71,991.

These figures are preliminary ones, according to Jerry Scott, District Manager of the Census Bureau which conducted the population count in a district serving 17 counties in northeastern North Carolina.

Official tabulations are to be announced at a later date, according to the letter accompanying the population count.

The latest figures represent an increase for Greenville of 7,056 over the 1960 census of 22,860. For Pitt County, the gain is 2,049 above the 1960 figure of 69,942 inhabitants. This gives Greenville a much larger rate of increase than was experienced in the county over the past decade. Figures for towns in the county other than Greenville were not reported in the brief announcement.

Percentage wise, the Greenville city area made a 26.9 per cent increase over the decade, while the county registered a total population gain of only 2.86 per cent. This is a trend expected to be reflected in a large degree throughout North Carolina, as urbanization continues to be the order of the day with rural districts each year losing more and more people to the growing urban centers.

Cambodia Forces Retake Airfield; Not Yet Secure

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian government forces retook the Siem Reap airfield in northwest Cambodia and drove Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces from the center of Kompong Thom, in central Cambodia, a government spokesman said today.

The spokesman said sporadic and confused fighting continued near the famed temple ruins at Angkor, Cambodia's chief tourist attraction six miles north of Siem Reap. Communist forces took the airfield Sunday morning, but government troops and Cambodian Air Force MIG jets drove them out in the afternoon, the spokesman said.

He reported that the airfield still was not sufficiently secure for planes to land there. Instead reinforcements were being flown to Battambang, 60 miles to the southwest, and then trucked to the battle in vehicles supplied by Communist China before the overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Although there was some fighting near the tourist hotel over the weekend, the center of the town and its main market were unscathed, he said. The last tourists were evacuated last week.

No enemy troops were known to have entered the Angkor ruins, which extend over 40 square miles, the spokesman said. But he added that if they did, "there is a plan to deal with them." He did not elaborate.

Siem Reap is on the only highway from the Thai border 80 miles to the east to northern Cambodia. There was speculation that the Communist forces were trying to get into position to block the troops the government of Thailand said last week it would send to Siem Reap to aid the Cambodian government.

In Bangkok, informed sources said today that the Thai government was considering withdrawing part of its 12,000-man Black Panther Division from South Vietnam to reinforce the embattled Cambodians at Siem Reap.

The government considers the Communist thrust into northwest Cambodia "a grave threat to Thailand," the sources said.

Registered

The number of people registering last Saturday for the June 27 referendum on additional tax levy for the Greenville School District doubled the number reporting to the registration books the previous Saturday.

A total of 777 voters put their names on the special registry last Saturday compared to 368 voters who registered on Saturday, June 6. This gives a total of 1,145 registrants through the 6:00 p.m. closing time, Saturday.

Battle Along Golan Heights

Israeli and Syrian forces battled in the Golan Heights area today, and Arab artillery destroyed the Israeli settlement of Nahal Geshur, a military spokesman said in Damascus.

The spokesman said tanks and planes were involved in the fighting, apparently the heaviest in a series of clashes that flared June 1 after a 10-day lull. There was no immediate report of casualties.

URGES APPROVAL

DURHAM (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott today urged adoption of all seven constitutional amendments which will be presented to North Carolina voters in November.

ONLY RUBBLE REMAINS — South Vietnamese troops march through rubble of destroyed homes in Cambodia town of Tonle Bet, about 45 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, following fighting between Cambodian troops and enemy forces. Announced Would Kill RICHMOND (AP) — A shotgun-wielding assailant, calmly announcing he planned to kill everyone, fired random blasts among the buildings of an East Richmond public housing development Sunday wounding at least seven children.

The children, none of whom was hurt seriously, were residents of the Fairfield Court area, where the incident took place shortly after 8:30 p.m. last night.

Police arriving on the scene a short time later seized a man identified as George Washington Johnson, 55, of Richmond. He was held in lieu of $10,000 bond on seven counts of felonious assault.

Officers said Johnson still had four shells of number four shot when he was captured while reloading the 12-gauge weapon.

Resident of Fairfield Court told police Johnson simply got out of a car about 8:30 p.m., announced he was going to kill everyone and started shooting. The injured children, aged 16 months to 17 years, were treated at Medical College of Virginia Hospital and released.

Nixons Return From Gathering

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Nixon are back at the White House after a weekend gathering of the Nixon and Eisenhower families at Camp David.

A steak dinner and a huge cake marked a trio of graduations. David Eisenhower and his wife Julie stayed away from their respective graduations at Amherst and Smith colleges to avoid any demonstrations. David's sister Susan was graduated Friday from Westtown High School, a private school in the Philadelphia suburbs.

Full Week

Today marks the beginning of a full week, through Saturday, of registration books being open all day for the forthcoming referendum on Greenville School District supplemental tax levy.

Registration books are located at two places — Third Street School and Elm Street Recreation gymnasium and will be open from 9:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. each day.

All persons 21 years old and older and living within the boundaries of the Greenville School District (which includes certain areas outside the city limits) eligible to register to vote in the June 27 referendum.

To vote in this election, a person must register in this special registration. A person can register at either of the two places, but must vote at the place in which registered.

Begin Budget Talks Tonight

City officials begin the first of three full-scale meetings tonight to work out budget appropriations for the coming fiscal year which begins July 1. In the first of three series of hearings, the mayor, city councilmen and department heads will be attending the workshop sessions to review proposals and to shape up a budget for final adoption no later than July 28.

In tonight's meeting, items for the budget covering the expenses of the mayor and city council, those of the city clerk and tax collector, budget items for building and grounds, for the engineering department building and housing code enforcement will be considered.

Two other first hearing meetings, one on Wednesday and another on Thursday are scheduled. The Wednesday night meeting will take up items for the police, fire and rescue departments and those for public works.

On Thursday night, proposed items for the recreation department, for special appropriations, anticipated revenues, and projects to be undertaken will be discussed.

A budget review to include second hearings on items from the individual departments and agencies will be held on June 17, to be followed on June 29 and July 7 by a review of the overall budget proposal. A final budget ordinance must be approved no later than July 28.

Police said no one was injured in the hijacking and the hijackers were apparently seeking political asylum. The hijackers were taken into police custody and are being questioned.

Bigger Voice For Youth At Precinct Meetings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The emphasis was on a bigger voice for youth and for minority groups as North Carolina Democrats held their precinct meetings Saturday at more than 2,000 polling places across the state.

There were no reports of dissension as the precinct gatherings put into effect new party rules which required the precincts to elect at least one person under 30 as a precinct officer and to elect a member of a minority group vice chairman when the group made up at least 20 per cent of the precinct's vote.

In one Raleigh precinct an 18-year-old girl who has just finished high school was named a precinct chairman.

Admits CIA Is Using Foreign Aid As Cover

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Central Intelligence Agency uses the U.S. foreign aid program as a cover for its operations in Laos, admits U.S. foreign aid chief John A. Hannah.

"Certainly, our preference is to get rid of this kind of operation," Hannah said Sunday, adding that Laos is the only place where the program is used in such a way.

Hannah, administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development, said he was sure President Nixon would recommend soon that Congress sever intelligence work from overseas economic assistance.

Hannah was questioned on the Metromedia radio program "Profile."

Enemies Of 'Establishment' Hold Unruly Demonstrations

By BILL KOSMAN

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Young demonstrators set small fires at an off-beleagued bank and larger trash fires in surrounding streets early today in the Isla Vista campus community of the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Officers riding in trucks and on foot swept back and forth through the square-mile community and threw scores of tear gas canisters to disperse small groups of youths. The protesters pelted the officers with rocks at a number of party meetings as the result of a new rule which says that persons between the ages of 18 and 21 may participate fully in party affairs by signing a letter of intent to register as a Democrat.

In some Wake County precincts, the Democrats elected Negroes as vice chairmen in some precincts where they do not make up 20 per cent of the vote.

In Greensboro, liberal groups took control in some precincts and increased their strength in others. In High Point, however, and in rural Guilford, leadership apparently remained where it has in the past.

Soyuz 9 Begins Its Seventh Day

By JOHN BAUSMAN
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastyanov completed their 100th orbit of the earth today in the seventh day of their flight aboard the spaceship Soyuz 9.

A short official report said the cosmonauts retired as usual this morning "after completing their regular working day in outer space."

Soyuz 9 has broken the Soviet record for flight duration but has another week to go before it reaches the U.S. record. How long the flight is to last has not been disclosed.

An article in Pravda today emphasized the value of manned space flights over automated satellites.

"No electronic computer or automatic device can replace man fully in carrying out a number of assignments in space," said the Soviet Communist party newspaper. "This is because space crews are entrusted with the more subtle, creative tasks to solve for which it is necessary to take into account numerous factors often conflicting in nature."

Soviet scientists have questioned the value of America's manned moon shots, suggesting that automatic devices could accomplish the same purpose without the great human risks. But they have not produced an unmanned spacecraft that could land and take off from the moon, let alone bring back materials for study on earth. And while they questioned the manned moon shots they did not drop their own program of sending up men for experiments and tests while orbiting the earth.

protesting the establishment." About 250 sheriffs deputies and state highway patrol officers dispersed the crowd of about 800 young people and quickly put out small fires on the roof and in the lobby of the one-story prefabricated bank. Damage was minimal.

The original branch building was burned down by protesters last winter.

Deputies reported 29 arrests Sunday night and early today. As with 32 arrests Saturday, most were for failure to disperse and violation of a dusk-to-dawn curfew in force since Saturday night.

Mother Of Retarded Child Gets Replies

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is for "PAMELA'S MOTHER" who couldn't sleep nights because she was afraid that her normal children would find out they had a retarded sister living in an institution.

Nineteen years ago I had a child born with many complications, including severe brain damage. At that time I had five other children who were all young, but old enough to know that their baby brother was not normal. From the start, they called him the "angel of the family," and continued to do so until the day he died. They never felt they had anything to hide or be ashamed of. The love and respect they gave this child was beautiful.

Since his death, I never miss an opportunity to talk to other mothers who have this cross to bear. Oftentimes one who has lived through the experience can do more to help and comfort other mothers who have yet to learn the "acceptance" and understanding a retarded child needs.

I am willing to correspond with any mother who needs my help.

MRS. ROSE MCCLINTOCK

EASTLAKE, OHIO 44094

DEAR ABBY: Tell Pamela's mother she did the right thing. My parents kept my retarded sister at home. It was a painful, depressing, never-ending chore. We never had a vacation without our "Pamela." The expense of her therapy and medical care kept us broke. Teeth straightening and prom dresses for the other girls were out, of course. Also, there was no college for me or my sisters.

My father died 20 years too soon, and my mother became more and more neurotic every day. Our "Pamela" is now 29 and Mom still refuses to put her in a home. There she hangs like a millstone around all our necks. Frankly, I have no love for my retarded sister. She is just a responsibility.

Normal people have minds and hearts, too, and they have a right to happiness and freedom from unreasonable responsibilities.

It sometimes takes more guts to put a child in an institution than to wallow in self-righteousness and deprive an entire family of normalcy. Thank you. ONE WHO KNOWS

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old who wants to answer "Pamela's Mother."

My brother is also mentally retarded, but he is not as bad off as Pamela because he has a family who really cares for him.

If Pamela's mother thinks she is protecting her kids by not telling them about their retarded sister who is hidden away and forgotten in an institution somewhere, well, she needs more help than Pamela. If they ever find out about Pamela they will despise their mother. I know if I had a sister who needed my love I would want to be told about her. It would help me to understand and help other retarded children.

Please print this. It may open the eyes of these people who are blinded by selfishness. And please sign my name and town because I am very proud of my retarded brother.

The Lengthening Voter Lists

With a total of 26,647 registered voters, Pitt ranks as one of the larger counties of the state. Alex Brock, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections reported the figures last week. He said that Pitt has 23,247 registered as Democrats, 2,912 as Republicans, 27 as American Party members and 471 as independents.

In the state there are now 1,899,090 registered voters.

Brock also pointed out that there are now 2,228 precincts in the state.

To us, however, an interesting statistic was the fact that there are now 1,660 voting machines in use in the state in 24 counties. This means that approximately a fourth of the state's counties are using voting machines. Pitt, with one of the larger registrations is not one of those which is, using voting machines.

That means that on election night poll holders have to spend hours laboriously counting paper ballots to make the results known at a later hour. In this day of quick communication the voters want to know who won in an election and certainly voting machines are the quickest way to do this.

It is time that Pitt County installed voting machines, at least in its larger precincts. The machines have been used for years throughout the nation and they have proven reliable.

It seems likely that Pitt will be one of the few eastern counties to show a growth in the 1970 census and we expect this growth to continue. Sooner or later it will be essential that the county turn to voting machines.

Since the machines have been in use in other North Carolina Counties, why can't Pitt try them, too?

ECU Position Given Further Endorsement

William F. Henderson, executive secretary of the N.C. Medical Care Commission, has urged that hospitals be regionalized to make better use of physical facilities, manpower and funds.

"The problem is to improve and modernize what we have," he said.

This embraces some of the East Carolina University thinking on providing clinical facilities for its medical school. The plan is to use several hospitals in the area and help them develop their facilities so that they serve their regions, as well as training centers for ECU med students.

It is just another way that ECU's commitment to medical education can benefit the entire east.

All Primed To Launch Attack

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — With the George Wallace primary out of the way, Nixon administration lawyers now in charge of Deep South school desegregation are finally primed — perhaps too late — for a fast all-out drive, with a statewide court suit almost certain to be filed against Mississippi.

"We don't want any time-bombs in 1971 and 1972," one Southern Republican strategist told us. "We'll take the court suits now and hope it quiets down and the 1972 election."

It is such political reasoning that caused the Nixon administration to wait until last Tuesday's Alabama primary for governor before moving in the courts. And the cost of such reasoning may be an autumn of turmoil in the public schools of the Deep South.

Actually, the Nixon lawyers (who took over desegregation from experts in Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) last summer) foresee 95 percent of school districts at some level of desegregation this fall. They admit, however, that President Nixon's extremely narrow construction of Supreme Court integration edicts will leave some schools in the larger cities legally free of any integration at all.

These lawyers, headed by Assistant Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard and Robert Mardian, staff chief of Vice President Spiro Agnew's Cabinet-level committee on school desegregation (a conservative on leave as HEW general counsel), have been hoping against hope that voluntary compliance would obviate the threatened statewide suits. They have been spending more time in the South, badgering

Now, Dinner For One

WASHINGTON — You don't see as many fathers and sons dining out as you used to. The problem seems to be that not many restaurants are set to handle some of the clothes their clients' sons are wearing.

The other night my friend McGrory suggested to his son, Marshall, that they go to a first-class restaurant to celebrate his graduation from high school.

"Great," said Marshall, "let's go."

"I think you'd better put on a shirt," McGrory suggested. "I have a sweat shirt on. What's wrong with it?"

"I thought you might put on a shirt and a tie," McGrory said.

"What are we going to, a wedding?" Marshall demanded.

"Most good restaurants prefer you to wear a tie," McGrory said.

McGrory said, "What for?" Marshall demanded.

"So you can get soup on it!" McGrory shouted. "Now put on a shirt and tie and don't give me any lip."

McGrory's wife came rushing in. "What's all the shouting about?"

McGrory said, "I'm taking him to Paul Young's restaurant for graduation and he won't even put on a tie!"

"I don't want to go if I have to wear a tie!" Marshall yelled.

"Put on a tie," Mrs. McGrory said. "And a coat, too. Your father wants to be proud of you."

"What does putting on a shirt and tie have to do with him being proud of me?"

Other Editors Say Senate Inconsistency

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

There is an inconsistency in the posture of the U. S. Senate in regard to the sale of American jets to Israel, against the backdrop of the Senate's hostility to U. S. activity in Southeast Asia, that begs comment.

It is difficult to unravel the differences between American intervention in the Middle East — whether with troops or simply with material aid, as in the case of the sale of jets — and American intervention in Southeast Asia. For in both instances the act is committed in response to Communist aggression.

In Southeast Asia, the response is to Hanoi's avowed intentions of subjugating South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos and perhaps later Thailand. In the Middle East, the sale of jets to Israel is in response to Soviet movement into that part of the world for the purpose of subjugating Israel.

Thus, when the Senate goes off half-cocked to prevent President Nixon from effectively opposing Communism in Southeast Asia, one can ascribe it to a wave of neo-isolationism. But in the case of Israel, where the consistency in such a policy? Here we have the spectacle of 73 senators signing a petition to President Nixon, asking that the sale of jets be expedited so as to enable Israel to meet the growing threat of Soviet aerial power in the Middle East.

To be sure, the Senate's sudden concern for Israel is the proper one. But it is a concern that should also be demonstrated for Southeast Asia. As for Israel, it is a pity the White House has hesitated so long before considering favorably the sale of more combat planes. As for the 73 senators, they believe such action would be "a credible response" to the Soviet escalation of the Middle East conflict.

True, but why the sudden concern on the part of the Senate for a response to Soviet aggression? Where Southeast Asia is concerned, that same response by President Nixon has been described by various peacenik senators as war-mongering, and Nixon was guilty of it, in their eyes.

To repeat, the inconsistency on the part of the Senate is glaring. But perhaps what we have here is simply another example of politics at work. Some of the peaceniks have sensed that it's good for votes to posture against the war in Southeast Asia, while on the other hand they suddenly sense that its good vote - getting to champion the cause of Israel against the same Communist crowd. You figure it out.

McGrory shouted, "It isn't that I want to be proud of you. It's just that I don't want to be ashamed of you!"

Marshall came down in a few minutes with a wrinkled shirt and a torn tie on. His face was red.

McGrory was just about to leave the house when he looked down.

"You have no shoes on," McGrory said.

"You didn't say anything about shoes," Marshall said.

"Why do I have to put on shoes?"

"It's a health regulation!" McGrory screamed.

"Nobody's going to see my feet," Marshall protested. "They'll be under the table."

"Someone will see your feet as you're escorted to the table. People get very upset when they see a customer without shoes walking in a good restaurant."

"But it's summer. No one wears shoes in the summer."

Jobs In Urban Plans

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The federal government expects urban renewal projects now under construction or in the planning stage will provide more than one million new or rehabilitated housing units, more than five times the production of urban renewal's first 20 years.

Lawrence M. Cox, assistant secretary of Housing and Urban Development for renewal and housing management, also believes this will blunt criticism that urban renewal destroys more houses than it builds.

Cox conceded that 460,000 dwelling units have been demolished so far by projects covered by the 1949 urban renewal law while only 257,000 new or rehabilitated units have been built.

"When projects now in planning and execution are completed, the picture will look much better," he said. "At the time of completion of these projects, approximately 725,000 units will be demolished and some 1,298,000 new and rehabilitated dwelling units will have been provided in their place."

Cox explained that there is always a time lag between clearance of a slum and construction of new buildings on the property.

He argued, however, that urban renewal was never intended to be solely a housing program. He said projects undertaken so far have increased the assessed tax valuation of the land and improvements by 240 per cent.

Hits 'Assumption'

"A number of critics have assumed that the primary, if not exclusive purpose of the renewal program was to provide housing, particularly housing for low and moderate income families," Cox said.

"They noted that, to date, the program removed more low and moderate income housing than it replaced, and they concluded that the renewal program failed to achieve the purpose for which it was enacted."

"The assumption that congress intended the renewal program to be primarily a housing program is incorrect. What happened is that conditions — and our perceptions of urban needs — changed dramatically since the inception of the urban renewal program in 1949."

Cox said the government now gives a higher priority to finding replacement homes for persons displaced by renewal projects and to providing housing as part of the renewal.

"There is no question that some major mistakes were made in the early days of the urban renewal program," Cox said. "We are still paying a heavy price for those mistakes today."

"At the outset of the program, the elimination of slum housing was considered a 'good' in and of itself. We did not then fully comprehend the impact this effort could have on the lives of the people affected, who because they were poor, disadvantaged, and often of minority groups were least able to cope with the social, economic, physical and psychological problems involved in displacement."

Cox insisted that the social problems are being solved.

Strength For Today

THINK IT OVER

We all need to guard against self-deceit. Some people go through life excusing themselves for every unwise thing they either do or think. Their stinginess is thrift. Their denunciation of others is the stand they take for decency and right. Their covetousness arises from the conviction that the guy who has plenty either stole it or turned moral somersaults in his endeavor to get it. Such people hold that lust is not to be condemned if it operates only in the field of desire and does not break over into licentious acts. "And wouldn't I like to give that boss of mine the thrashing he deserves! I could handle his job a lot better than he handles it. He goes strutting about on his wife's wealth or the money he inherited from his father. He has no right to the good things he enjoys."

Wait, Brother, wait. You're getting ahead of yourself. You are indulging in what everyone except yourself knows is self-deceit, and remember that quicksand, tidal waves and earthquakes are not as dangerous as self-deceit. Don't try to cover it up by saying that it really doesn't matter. It matters a very great deal. Most people who experience Trouble (spelled with a capital "T") bring it on themselves. Just lay off for a while talking about generation gaps, evil in high places, injustice. Try something better than ranting and beating your breast. An attitude quite different from this will pay big dividends.

Try it.

Effect Of Ever-Rising Wages

By ELMER ROESSNER

There is not going to be any end of inflation, perhaps in our lifetime, because wages keep going up.

Despite the rent skid in the stock market, the rise in unemployment, the continuation of tight money and high interest rates, as long as wages keep going up, prices are sure to rise.

Perhaps the smart cookies in the Federal Reserve System and in the White House who devised what has been called the war on inflation did not realize the power of organized labor.

In the depression of the early 1930s, employers ruthlessly cut wages. This cut buying power, thereby prolonging the recession. Furthermore, it created great political sympathy for workers that led to a whole series of laws compelling bargaining, giving labor more power at the bargaining table and all but prohibiting strikebreaking.

Cut Loose From Gold

Also, and this may have to do with the waves of inflation that most people realize, the country went off the gold standard internally. The anchor was dropped from the dollar and it has been loose ever since, mostly sinking.

Now wages are on another upward spiral.

The Nixon administration has definitely gone on record as opposed to any wage freeze, even in conjunction with a price freeze.

Building trades wages have been rising steadily. The President, unlike Johnson and Kennedy, has not scolded high wage demands; in fact Mr. Nixon invited the New York Building & Construction Trades Council to the White House to thank members for their support of his international policies.

On August 1, the United Steelworkers get a raise of about 26 cents an hour under the 1968 contract providing for three annual increases. More To Come

The Auto workers' demands are expected to be tough. With the death of Walter Reuther, his successor as president, Leonard Woodcock, is expected to prove himself a worthy leader by insisting on a substantial increase, even at the cost of a strike.

The International Typographical Union has just won the largest increase in history in New York. This is forming a pattern of demands in other publishing unions and in ITU unions across the country. Two New York papers have increased prices 50 per cent.

Before winter, the Atlantic and Gulf Seafarers Union will negotiate new contracts for its million members. Other unions soon to enter negotiations are the Meat Cutters, Papermakers, Shoe Workers, and Electrical Equipment Workers.

These negotiations may involve strikes, especially in those industries that are suffering declining sales.

A series of long strikes might do more to end inflation than any of the monetary controls. On the other hand, they might result in even higher wages which, of course, would inflate prices even more.

Higher Wages Boost Costs Of Government

The Tax Foundation calculates that federal payroll costs have risen about 70 per cent since 1964. This has inflated the cost of many government services and is about to inflate postage costs. It has also inflated taxes, or didn't you notice?

WHO Director Believes Pollution Global Problem

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT

GENEVA (UPI) — Dr. Marcello G. Candau, director general of the World Health Organization (WHO), believes that at the rate man is poisoning himself he has got to declare worldwide war against pollution.

"The problem of environmental health is assuming frightening forms," Candau told UPI in explaining proposals he has made for an international pollution warning system, which has been endorsed by the WHO as a whole.

"The deterioration of the environment is a worldwide problem. Enormous amounts of pollutants are discharged into the air, the water and on to the surface on which we live.

Tons of Pollutants

"A total of 300,000 tons of DDT is used every year. Rivers continually bring into the oceans large amounts of persistent insecticides and heavy metals, such as mercury and arsenic.

"The Baltic Sea has been affected as regards its biological condition. The River Rhine each month carries 8,000 kilograms (nearly 9 tons) of mercury, 90,000 kilograms (almost 100 tons) of arsenic and 900 kilograms (about a ton) of insecticides into the North Sea. The amount of sulphur discharged into the air is of the order of thousands of tons daily."

Candau, 59, has been head of WHO, a U.N. specialized agency, for 17 years. Twice recently he turned down a request from his government—he is a Brazilian—to return to Rio to be minister of health.

Antipollution At Home

"We have so much to do here at WHO," the trimly-mustached former doctor said, asking the reporter "please not to smoke." (Candau recently had smoking forbidden at all WHO meetings. He doesn't smoke himself and on the cocktail circuit asks for orange juice.)

Candau believes WHO has a special task in making the environment healthy.

"Is our obsessive concern with economic growth acceptable for the standards of health of our society?" he asked.

"You know, the bill for the damage caused by industrial activity to the health of mankind and his environment has so far not been paid."

Steepest Price In Profit

Candau said investment in the chemical industry in the Benelux countries comes to between six and seven billion dollars.

"It is unfortunate that often the price, terms of health, to be paid for prosperity is not paid for by those who gain from increased prosperity," he said.

Smaller countries especially have little hope unless there is some international action, according to Candau, who admits freely that this has so far been WHO's main weakness.

"There is need for international legislation in the field of environmental health, need for international standards."

"Global Warning System"

"Plans should be drafted for a global network of stations equipped to monitor changes in the human environment threatening the health of the people."

"I intend to develop a long-term program for environmental health, including a worldwide system of surveillance and monitoring, as well as establishing a code of environmental health."

Candau said this detection and warning system will have to be simple yet effective and, above all, must be on an international level.

Its development will require a full analysis of all factors—physical, chemical, biological and psychological—which serve as alarm signals.

Need International Agreement

"This means that the international community must come to some agreement on the levels or thresholds beyond which hazards exist, and define health parameters with respect to occupational diseases, communicable diseases, and population densities in relation to water resources."

The WHO assembly approved Candau's ideas by a unanimous show of hands on May 22, and gave him authority to launch a full study on how a control system should be established and how it would operate. He was asked to report back to next year's 24th assembly.

Candau envisages a world information center directly linked by computers to national and regional health services.

Chain Of Effects

The problem, he said, is not merely one of improving water supplies in urban areas or creating facilities for treatment of wastes.

"When we interfere with the environment, chain reactions occur as in physical or chemical experiments."

"It could be tempting to prohibit an insecticide which may be harmful. But this same insecticide, by eliminating mosquitoes, plays a key role in reducing malaria."

Chemical pollutants produce varying reactions according to where they are used. Temperature and altitude play a role in this.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N. C.—Monday, June 8, 1970—5

This means a lot of data will have to be collected before a warning system can be established.

"But it must be done," Candau said. "We have to overcome a problem which is ours and which we must resolve not to hand on to our children."

Nostalgic Base For Coming TV Series

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Later this month, those Americans in their 40s and beyond will be subject to an outburst of nostalgia as the result of a summer television series saluting the "Happy Days" of the 1930s and 1940s.

Happy Days? In a couple of decades that included the worst depression and biggest war of American history?

Anyway, that's the name of the CBS show that replaces Jim Nabors for the warm months and it will reprise the comedy of the 1930-40 period with such funny men as Louis Nye, Chuck McCann and Bob and Ray.

"Happy Days" will also feature the musical sounds of those years with such figures as Duke Ellington, Harry James, Tex Beneke, Buddy Rich, Lionel Hampton, Bob and Ray Eberle, Helen Forrest and Helen O'Connell.

I met with Miss O'Connell the other day and was reassured to find her just as pertly beautiful as when she was singing her off-beat duets with Bob Eberle in the Jimmy Dorsey band. I asked her about her early life as a band singer. Were they really such happy days?

"Oh, they were exciting—and great experience," she remarked. "When you sang with a band, you did everything—you played ballrooms and theaters, radio and movies; you learned to work from scripts; it was a wonderful lesson in dealing with the public."

"It was hard work, but I was young then and I didn't mind. The money? My first band job paid $20 a week. I spent $10 of it and sent the other half home to my mother in Toledo. "When I sang with Jimmy, I was getting $150 a week, and I paid for my gowns, hairdos, hotels, meals, everything but transportation. Sometimes we'd be paid for two jobs, such as when we did six shows a day at the Strand Theater in New York and played each night at a hotel."

"For records I got $25, including 'Green Eyes,' which sold 3½ million in the first version."

Despite the long hours and short pay, Helen enjoyed the Dorsey band and even turned down movie offers to stay with it. After four years she decided it was time to retire and raise a family.

"Jimmy, who was a very shy person, refused to accept my explanation," she recalled. "He kept telling me, 'I don't like your attitude' and couldn't understand why I was leaving—even though I gave him a year's notice."

Helen quit in 1943, and she and her husband, sportsman Clifford Smith Jr., had three daughters. A second marriage to the late novelist, Tom Chalmers, produced a fourth daughter. Helen returned to her career in 1950 and has pursued it most of the time since. "I'm busier now than I have ever been—I'm on the road 9 to 10 months a year," she said. "I enjoy it more now that I have only one daughter left at home; she can join me some of the time."

For today's audiences she sings the necessary "Green Eyes," "Tangerine" and "Amapola," but she likes the recent tunes, too.

"Whatever I sing, I let the audience hear the words," she said. "I've never liked those singers who don't enunciate."

desegregation suits against most Deep South districts not covered by statewide suits (that is, everywhere except Mississippi). Yet, only 12 weeks remain before the September openings and few individual suits have yet been filed. With lawyers in the Justice Department and HEW's education experts in limited supply, this assures a massive crunch just before school opens.

That isn't the only crunch now facing the Nixon administration's last-minute, pell-mell rush to meet the Supreme Court's "instant" desegregation decree of last year. Its plan for an immediate injection of $150 million of technical assistance to newly integrated school districts, which should have been ready for Congressional action when President Nixon first unveiled his $1.5 billion special school fund in March, has only just started its way through Congress.

The brainchild of Agnew's committee, this fund was the target of vicious Administration infighting before a version acceptable to Senate leaders was finally agreed to on May 25.

Word of the fund has already set off demands from hardpressed Southern school districts for help and special teacher-training, renovation of old schools, and other desegregation aids. But to accomplish its purpose—helping to ease desegregation three months ahead—the money must be passed out by mid-July at the latest—a nearly impossible goal.

Mrs. McGrory said, "Marshall, go upstairs and put on some sneakers. Your father asks so little of you."

Marshall stomped upstairs. "I didn't want to go to a restaurant in the first place."

He came down a few minutes later and got into the car and didn't say anything.

"Marshall," McGrory said, "would you take the red band off your head before we go into the restaurant?"

What kind of place are we going to where they won't let a guy wear a band on his head?"

"It's a very good place, Marshall. They have fine food. You're growing up now, and you should be interested in other things besides milk shakes and French fries."

"You mean they don't have milk shakes and French fries at this place? I thought you said it was a good restaurant."

"Marshall," McGrory said quietly, "you see that McDonald's hamburger stand? Well, here's two bucks. You go over there and have anything you want for your graduation."

"You coming?" Marshall said.

McGrory shook his head sadly. "No, you'd only be ashamed of me."

If the Shoe Fits...

BY LARRY AVERETTE

Fashion or comfort?

When a woman walks into a shoe store, she is looking for two things—fashion and comfort. Some women will gladly sacrifice comfort for the sake of fashion. More women, however, realize the primary need for foot comfort. It may have resulted from the embarrassment of kicking off those pinching shoes in a movie theatre and then having to retrieve them beneath the next seat. Women were glad to doff their shoes for awhile to let their blood circulate again, even though it meant sitting inelegantly in 'stocking feet.'

Many women are wisely refusing to endure foot pains merely to be dressed in the height of fashion or to convey the impression of having a small foot.

Unidentified Body In Cape Fear River

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) —A team of divers from Ft. Bragg searched the Cape Fear River near Fayetteville today for a weight that police say was attached to a body found floating in the river.

The unidentified man had been dead about a week when found Saturday, police said. His fingerprints have been sent to Washington for study by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Police said the man's hands were tied to his side and that a rope was dangling from his body when it was recovered. The rope had been attached to a weight and was cut by the propper of a boat during rescue operations, police said.

Cumberland County Coroner Alph Clark is awaiting a pathologist's report following an autopsy. He said cause of death had not been determined, but that the autopsy revealed no bullet holes or stab wounds. The pants pockets of the clothed body had been turned inside out and there was no identification.

Clark said the body had two tattoos, the initials "L.C.B." on the right forearm and the American eagle on the right upper arm. The coroner estimated the dead man was between 35 and 45 years old and weighed between 170 and 190 pounds before death.

Greenville Legion Team Takes 12-4 Defeat In Wilson Sunday

WILSON — Wilson's Post 13 American Legion team romped to a 12-4 victory over Post 39 of Greenville here Sunday. The loss was the first in two starts for the Greenville nine. They had downed Ahsokie, 8-5 on Saturday night in the season opener.

Wilson hopped on Greenville in the first inning and never let up after that. Greenville didn't score until the eighth inning when they were trailing 12-0.

Four runs in the first inning knocked starting hurler Russ Smith off the mound after only a third of an inning. Joey Boyette led off with a walk and Lindsay Etheridge followed that up with a single. Bud Davis reached on a bunt single, loading the bases.

The first run crossed on a sacrifice by Jimmy DeRatt, scoring Boyette. Pat Williams then put the cap on that with a two - run triple bringing Etheridge and Davis in. Tommy Davis followed that up with a single, scoring Williams for a 4-0 lead.

Jimmy Bond set down Wilson without further scoring the rest of the frame, and in the second inning. But he got into trouble in the third. DeRatt opened the inning with a walk and Williams got his second extra base hit, a double, scoring DeRatt. Williams moved up on Davis' ground out, and scored on Dennis Wilkerson's single.

In the fourth, Wilson got the bats going again. Etheridge led off with a double and Davis walked. DeRatt walked, loading the bases, and that brought on Byron Dickens to take over on the mound.

With one out, Tommy Davis walked, scoring Etheridge, and Wilkerson hit into an errored fielder's choice that let Bud Davis score. Greg Fulghum drew another walk, scoring De Ratt. Doug Cayton hit into another fielder's choice, scoring Tommy Davis with the fourth run of the inning, making it 10-0.

Wilson scored again in the fifth. Bud Davis singled and DeRatt walked. Tommy Davis got a single, scoring Bud.

Then, in the sixth, Wilson got its final run. Fulghum opened up with a triple and scored on Walter Williamson's single.

Meanwhile, Greenville had few scoring opportunities. Bond reached second in the second inning, but he was the only one to do so until the eighth, when two of the four Greenville runs scored.

Jimmy Paige led off the eighth with a single. Alan Pate's grounder was errored at second on the attempted force play, and Paige moved on to third. Dickens hit into a fielder's choice, getting Pate at second, but Paige came over on the play. Joey Moore singled, and Tommy Durham got a hit, driving in Dickens.

The ninth saw the other two Greenville runs. Bond reached on a fielder's choice and Paige singled. Both advanced on a ground out, and Dickens singled, to drive both runners across.

Greenville's next game will be Thursday at 5 p.m., as they open their home season. The team will play host to Farmville at the East Carolina University field.

Showdown Time For The Rams

Qualifying At New Bern

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Sandy Barnhill of Williamston, defending champion of the North Carolina Women's Golf Association will try to keep her title today when qualifying begins for the annual championship.

A field of 136 will start shooting today at the New Bern Golf and Country Club for the 16 places in the championship flight. Match play will start Tuesday and end Friday.

ROBERSONVILLE, N. C. (AP) — The showdown for North Carolina's 1-A baseball championship is on tap tonight between Robersonville and Farmer High School.

The teams clash at 8:15 p.m. at Robersonville for the final and decisive game in the best-of-three championship series.

Farmer High tied the series at 1-1 Saturday night with a two-run rally in the bottom of the sixth inning that pushed its score beyond Robersonville's one-run performance and gave it a 2-1 victory.

Cale Yarborough's Motor State Win Is Disputed

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — Cale Yarborough felt the caution flags were his salvation but, according to some drivers, he took unfair advantage of one of those flags to win the $72,000 Motor State 400 stock car race Sunday.

Subsequently he may not actually be the winner of his first major NASCAR race since he captured the Motor State 500 at the same Michigan International Speedway track last June. But it may take several days to settle protests filed soon after the race by several drivers concerning the order of finish in the first nine positions.

"Caution always means bad luck for someone, but I was glad it gave me a chance to catch up," Yarborough said before the protests were revealed.

"I knew if there were enough caution flags out I could catch up," said the stocky driver from Timmonsville, S.C., who could collect $14,550 with a victory.

But it is precisely his "catching up" during the caution slow ups that prompted the squabble. At least five drivers, including apparent runner - up Pete Hamilton, fifth - place Bobby Isaac, and fourth - place Lee Roy Yarborough, were among the dissidents.

Several claimed Yarborough, 1968 leading money winner with $167,000, gained a lap by passing Hamilton during one of three caution flag periods.

However, a spokesman for the group of scorers said that final charts credit Yarborough with an official 200 laps, or 400 miles, over the two - mile course.

The squabble will be settled after scoring charts are sent to NASCAR's headquarters in Daytona Beach, Fla., for review, according to the sanctioning body's assistant chief scorer Don Matlock who was in charge of timing at the race.

The problem is a procedural one under which race stewards could take a lap away from Yarborough and give the victory to Hamilton. Other drivers could also move up in order of finish.

It was a brilliantly executed race before 47,600 fans at MIS, located about 75 miles west of Detroit in the Irish Hills vacation area.

Yarborough held off Hamilton's bid during the final 100 miles after seemingly being out of contention early. The two battled wheel - to - wheel in the final 20 laps, including a slight brush of tires at 188 laps and a near - bump at the crucial 198th lap in which Hamilton fell behind for good.

"At the beginning my car was so loose I couldn't drive it," claimed the 32 - year - old veteran, who also raises 92 acres of tobacco on his farm in South Carolina. "After the crew fixed the problem I didn't have any trouble."

Yarborough, whose career almost ended in a serious accident in the Texas 500 last December, only pitted seven times to 10 for Hamilton. The first yellow caution flag came at the 133rd lap and while most leaders took advantage of the slowdown by coming in the pits, Yarborough took advantage of it to make up lost ground.

He drove to the questioned victory in the same '69 Mercury he used in winning the Motor State event last year, averaging 138 miles - per - hour. Sunday's race was only his fourth start since recovering from shoulder and knee injuries in the Texas race and his only win this year was in a 125 - mile at Daytona.

Hamilton, of Dedham, Mass., was top qualifier in his 1970 Plymouth at 162.737 MPH. Behind him in the unofficial finish were David Pearson in a '69 Ford, LeeRoy Yarborough in a '69 Mercury, and Isaac in a '69 Dodge.

Still Not Good Enough

PRAISE BE, IT FELL — Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., lifts his arms and face skyward as a putt of some 60 feet falls in the cup on the 9th hole during Sunday's final round in the Kemper Open Golf Tourney. The putt gave him a birdie three. Dick Lotz, of California, caught up with Graham to take the title. (AP Wirephoto)

Cougar's General Manager Resigns

GREENSBORO (AP) — Don DeJardin, who instituted the idea of a regional team in professional sports, has resigned as general manager of the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association.

He reportedly resigned because he was unable to obtain ownership in the team.

Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount, president of the Southern Sports Corp., which owns the Cougars, confirmed DeJardin's resignation.

"We regret that Don DeJardin is going to be leaving us," Gardner said. "He has brought the Carolina Cougar idea to us. He wanted part ownership originally and it has not been possible."

UNBEATEN CAREER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Tim Cooper completed an unbeaten high school tennis career Saturday by winning this fourth straight Kentucky prep championship.

to the present time."

The Cougars, who were the Houston Mavericks before their franchise came to North Carolina for the 1969-70 season, play their home games in Greensboro, Charlotte and Raleigh.

Their crowds averaged about 6,000 during their initial year and they finished third in the ABA's Eastern Division with a 42-42 record.

Gardner said no successor to DeJardin has been named. "We have good people in all three of our offices already," and as we look into interviews for a new general manager, I will become real active in the operation."

DeJardin, a West Point graduate, worked as player personnel director for the Pittsburgh Pipers of the ABA during the 1967-68 season, the year the Pipers won the league championship.

Before the 1968-69 season ended, he traded two players who are no longer in the league for Bob Verga, former Duke All-American who was an All-ABA guard last season and led the league scoring during much of the year.

He also traded three players for George Peeples, who became a consistent scorer and rebounder at center. Of the players traded for Peeples to the Indiana Pacers, only one, Art Becker, is still playing.

Volkswagen with air conditioning.

The truth is the inside of the bug gets just as hot and clammy on a 90-degree day as the inside of any other car if you don't have something to cool it off.

Hence the VW air conditioner. It's a quiet, trim, 3-speed unit that won't cut down on your leg room or luggage space.

And it won't cost you a bundle. The minute you turn the knob to colder it starts saving on wrinkled collars and crumpled suits (not to mention antiperspirants).

But the thing that really saves you money is the package it comes in. The Volkswagen still delivers better mileage than any domestic air-conditioned car.

It still consumes oil by the pint, not by the quart.

And since the engine is cooled by air instead of a radiator, there's no need for antifreeze at 10 below or cool water at 110 above.

The result: It can't boil over on the hottest day of the year.

Which is more than you can say for the driver if he's not air-cooled.

The America's Cup For First Time: 2 Challengers

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer
NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It's the world's oldest and most famous sailing prize — the American's Cup, Holy Grail of yachtsmen.

For more than a century this ornate, bottomless silver mug has lured rich gentlemen and gifted sailors to bring their country's finest racing yachts to Yankee shores.

All have failed to win it. But this year may be different. For the first time two nations have entered challenges — France and Australia.

This is the third try in eight years for the Aussies, with Sydney newspaper owner Sir

Frank Backer heading a syndicate bringing the all - new Gretel II, whose designer, Alan Payne, says "I think we have a chance."

The French group, led Baron Marcel Bich, the ballpoint pen tycoon, is also bringing a new boat named France. The group indicates it is ready to spend and spend in the contest where only the very wealthy need apply. "We have prepared ourselves the best way we know how," says Bich's son, Bruno.

After long drills and tuneups, these two boats and their crews will begin in mid - August the crucial final trials to determine which will be the challenger.

There would have been two more challengers, but groups in Great Britain and Greece bailed out. They had jumped in with challenges in 1967 after Australia's Dame Pattie was trounced four straight races by the defender, Intrepid.

There are also three groups of Americans jockeying for the right to defend the historic mug - two new boats plus an Intrepid so greatly revised and edited as to be considered a new one.

The one watched closest is Valiant, designed by Olin Stephens, who has been in on the plans for every America's Cup defender but one since 1937. Syndicate head Robert W. McCullough of Riverside, Conn., has signed up at least nine veterans of the 1967 Cup campaign, as crew - and he will be her helmsman.

The other new one is Heritage, from Charlie Morgan of St. Petersburg, Fla. He designed her, completed model tests, built her in his own boatyard, made the sails himself - and now is also going to skipper her in the trials.

The Intrepid group, with the boat that left Australia's best far behind in 1967, made drastic alterations to the hull, plus a new deck layout and lighter gear. Bill Ficker of Newport Beach, Calif., former World Star Class champion, will be her skipper.

America's Cup competition is in match races, two 12-meters fighting it out over a 24.3 - mile triangular course with three tacking legs. It's a best - of seven race series.

The preliminary trials begin today on Long Island Sound, but these are just four days of shakedown runs and tryouts with a chance to spy on what the rival boats are using. It's also to give a ride to the syndicate members who are putting up the money.

After that, the 12s come to Newport where intensive training begins in advance of the observation trials July 7-18.

The U.S. boats begin elimination races off Newport Aug. 18 to choose a defender and the challengers launch similar racing three days later.

The finals open Sept. 15.

Extend Stay Underwater

HONOLULU (AP) — Six men testing an undersea living chamber have been returned to the surface more than two days beyond their scheduled 68 hours on the ocean floor off the Oahu island coast.

The underwater stay 516 feet below the surface was prolonged by the failure of a valve in one of the chamber's two ballast tanks.

Officials of the privately owned Makai Test Range said the men would have to spend the next week decompressing before they could leave the 200-ton habitat Aegir, which has a main chamber 50 feet long and 9 feet in diameter.

The Aegir was brought to the surface Sunday by pumping air from the surface tender Holokai into the undersea vessel's ballast tanks.

Officials of the Makai Test Range said the men aboard had plenty of food and oxygen and had been in no danger.

Eastern Michigan U. Breaks Domination Of NAIA Meet

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Prairie View A&M's two-year domination of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics outdoor track title was shattered by Eastern Michigan Saturday, and a New Zealand runner who didn't set any records was named the meet's outstanding performer.

Eastern Michigan University rolled up 74 points in the two-day 19th annual affair, with second place Texas Southern far back at 50 points and defending champion Prairie View in third with 44.

Eastern Michigan's victory came without the usual array of outstanding individuals, and a concentrated team effort of seconds and thirds produced the school's first national NAIA track title.

Eastern New Mexico's Rex Maddaford, a 22-year-old native of New Zealand, took the top individual honor with his winning performances in the 3-mile and 6-mile runs, but failed to set records as expected.

Maddaford had qualifying times better in both events than the existing records, but could not quite match his early season performances.

Three NAIA meet records were set, however, including two on the final day.

Eastern Washington State's Curt Hisaw, the 1969 pole vault champion, shattered his own record of 16-1 1/4 with a vault of 16-3 3/4.

The second record of the final day came in the 440-yard hurdles where Corey Bouyer of Ferris State put on a driving finish for a clocking of 50.9, bettering the mark held by Jesse Ball of 51.0.

The other record was set Friday, and in that, the long jump. Redlands Calif. College's Jerry Proctor broke the 10-year-old record of Ralph Boston.

Proctor, defending long jump champion, leaped 25-8 1/4, breaking Boston's mark by one inch.

Worry Clinic

Stultified By State Schemes

Enshrine the remarks of this British Dental Surgeon! For many Americans still don't appreciate the superiority of our "free enterprise" system over England's Socialism. And juvenile thinkers even engage in street marching to attack our Republic and laud Communism! Like most of our deserters and plane hijackers, they'd soon be begging to get back here, if they ever spent 3 months in Cuba or Russia!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE N-532: C. Hall Dexter is a prominent Dental Surgeon in London, England.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I certainly have enjoyed your articles.

"For in England, we have a socialized dental service. It has operated with minor modifications for the last 21 years.

"To the public, it seems a pretty good idea.

"But to many of us dentists, particularly the younger and more go-ahead (among which I kid myself that I belong), it has been a serious block to progress in conservative and restorative dentistry.

"So I decided to conduct a series of seminars to show dentists in Britain how they might benefit their patients by launching into private practice and thus leaving the National Health Service.

"These seminars have proved a great success!

"And our patients are delighted to find the many benefits that private dentists can offer which are not available under the State Scheme.

"This is something new and exciting for us here in Britain, after 21 stultifying years of National Health Work."

When government bureaucrats try to usurp the functions of private citizens, whether in medicine or farming, manufacturing or education, they invariably reduce efficiency.

For they soon become "dictators" and thus act haughtily, as well as tactless.

Good salesmanship, involving smiles, politeness and persuasive talk, are ignored by monopolists.

That's why monopoly has proved dangerous both to churches as well as business and industrial firms.

Many good church folks thus oppose the trend toward ecumenical union.

They even wish churches would split off into many small organizations, for then we'd have more wholesome rivalry.

You Senior citizens who now receive Social Security checks every month would actually get DOUBLE the amount if private insurance firms had been handling the deductions from the workers' pay checks.

Please note well: private insurance companies can pay TWICE the monthly Social Security checks without increasing by a single penny the deductions from the workers' pay checks or the matching sum furnished by the employer!

Medicare is also zooming its deductions and still going deeper into the red, which means higher taxes for the average citizens.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠83 ♥AQ63 ♦KQ ♣A1043
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Two no trump. The one no trump response to an opening bid of one club is a forward going bid showing a balanced hand of 9-11 points. If partner has close to the maximum values a game should be available. A raise is therefore indicated.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AJ10643 ♥7 ♦J ♣A10952
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Four clubs. Four no trump is a conceivable alternative, but not advisable because the main concern is not actually with ace but rather with partner's club holding and a cue bid is more likely to bring forth the desired information.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A ♥K63 ♦KJ107643 ♣62
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ 2 ♥ 2 ♥ 3 ♥

What do you bid now?

A—Three hearts. This is a strategic bid. If partner has the ace of diamonds plus protection in clubs, three no trump may prove to be the best contract. If partner's values are of a more distributional variety, our cue bid will indicate the great trick taking potential of our hand and encourage him to proceed in diamonds.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠6 ♥AKQ10743 ♣A8762
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥

What do you bid now?

A—Three clubs. Distributional freaks are always difficult to bid accurately. However, in this instance, a three club bid may get the very answer we are seeking. If partner can raise the clubs or if he leaps to four hearts over our bid, a contract of six hearts would be a reasonable speculation.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK108 ♥K83 ♦AJ10 ♣642
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid?

A—Four no trump. You have a balanced hand with 15 high card points bolstered by two tens. If partner has a maximum no trump there should be a slam. The raise over game is the accepted way to ask that question.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A6 ♥AQJ10963 ♦J42 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Four hearts. Partner might pass a bid of just three. Since he was able to make a second constructive bid there should be a valid play for game.

Q. 7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J864 ♥2 ♦Q5 ♣KQJ932
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT

What do you bid now?

A—Four clubs. Partner's refusal to act on the first round seems to indicate that he had some sort of trap for the spade suit. Now that the opponents have found their way to diamonds it appears that he has values in clubs and hearts and your hand will provide an enormous amount of playing strength.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠63 ♥J106432 ♣KQJ76
Your partner has opened the bidding with one heart.

What is your response?

A—With seven high card points, there is a definite obligation to keep the bidding open, yet no satisfactory call is available. A take-out at the level of two is not to be considered with a hand of this limited strength, so we come upon a one no trump response as the lesser of evils, with the expectation of running out to the minor suit should a rude opponent suggest something like a double.

'Big Bird' Is Watching

BOSTON (UPI)—Boys playing along railroad tracks around Boston have to be on their best behavior. "Big Bird" may be watching.

"Big Bird" is an airplane used to fly above the trains and report any vandals along the tracks.

The use of the airplane to report on potential and actual vandals is part of the penn Central railroad's program to reduce the number of broken windows on their trains traveling through the city's Roxbury, Readville, Hyde Park and Forest hills sections.

The planes are equipped with short wave radio transmitters to keep them in contact with police patrol cars when they spot a lawbreaker.

"Visibility is so good we can pick out a youngster along the tracks from as high as 1,000 feet," says Lt. Francis J. Kirley, an observer.

The widespread use of safety glass has minimized the number of passenger injuries, but the glass is very expensive—$100 a pane. The Penn Central has spent over $550,000 for car window repairs since the New Haven railroad poined it in January 1969.

The Amazon River has 1,100 major tributaries.

Two young Pitt County girls have graduated from Blue Ridge Job Corps Training Center in Marion, Virginia, and have reported to other centers for advanced training.

Miss Connie M. Ruffin of Bethel and Miss Patricia A. Wooten of Greenville were two of the graduates receiving the nursing assistant certificate in ceremonies held recently at the job corps center.

Both girls studied basic education to include reading, math and language arts. Specialized courses were in home and family living, and personal hygiene, in addition to intensive studies and skills needed for a nursing assistant. On the job experience was gained through work with the Johnston Memorial Hospital in Abington, Virginia.

Tobacco TIPS

By S. J. WEEKS

The abnormal weather conditions that we have experienced this spring may cause some premature flowering in the tobacco fields. If this occurs in your field, it can be partially remedied by topping the early flowering plants before the flowers are in full bloom. Once the plant is topped, the sucker in the second leaf axil should be allowed to grow. By doing this, the plant will produce some additional leaves.

In order to get the best possible yields and quality, all plants should be topped not later than when the first flower begins to turn pink. At this stage of growth, you can top to the desired height without injuring the top leaves.

Experiments have shown that the number of leaves produced per acre play an important role in producing good quality tobacco. Best quality is produced when from 120,000 to 140,000 leaves are grown on one acre. Research data also shows that better quality leaf can be produced on plants with medium leaf count than on plants with high leaf count.

When plants are spaced 22 inches in the row and the rows are 42 inches wide, plants topped 18 leaves per plant, 122,184 leaves can be grown on an acre. Hills spaced 20 inches apart in 42 inch rows can produce 134,400 leaves per acre where topped to 18 inches per plant.

Extension folder No. 237, "Suggested Tobacco Production Practices" provides a chart that can be used as a guide in topping your tobacco for a given number of leaves per acre with different row and hill spacing. This folder is available in the Agricultural Extension Office in Greenville.

'Soft' Concrete For Cushioning

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Vermiculite concrete cushions, so soft that they can be dented with a thumb, are being designed for highway retaining walls and bridge abutments.

Research engineers, D. L. Ivey, Eugene Buth, and T. J. Hirsch of Texas A. and M. University's Transportation Institute developed the cushions to collapse under vehicle impact.

The program was funded by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads with the aim of reducing traffic deaths caused by cars striking existing rigid obstacles. Crash tests at speeds over 60 m.p.h. have verified the functioning of the cushion's ability to prevent serious consequences when a vehicle crashes into a concrete barrier.

Since the first oil well was drilled in the United States in 1859, there have been 2,136,154 wells drilled in search of oil and gas.

Farm Scene

By S. J. WEEKS

Tobacco farmers can help beat the "price-cost squeeze" of tobacco production by doing a better job of sucker control. Most farmers are using chemicals to control sucker growth of tobacco plants. A majority of the farmers in Pitt County are using some form of Maleic-hydrazide. This chemical, when used, provides fairly good sucker control. Many farmers do not yet realize that better sucker control can be obtained by using a contact sucker control agent in addition to using Maleic-hydrazide (a systemic).

In 1969, the results of 10 "on the farm" tests conducted in North Carolina by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, showed that by applying both contact and systemic sucker control agents, the per acre yield increased 149 pounds per acre with an increase in value of $120.

When the total cost of material, added cost of application, and the cost of handling the extra tobacco produced by the combination treatment the increase in production cost was only $3.32 per acre. Tests have shown that it takes only about half the labor for "cleaning up" and topping at button or early flower stage (when contacts should be applied) compared to doing these jobs at the full bloom stage when the time is right for applying systemics.

Systemics used in the 1969 tests were MH 30 and Royal MH 30, and the contacts were Penar and Offshoot-T.

Tobacco produced on plots treated with the two types of chemicals sold as good or better than from plots treated only with a systemic. Early use of Maleic-hydrazide in order to get a high degree of sucker control often results in the production of undesirable thick and lower quality leaves of tobacco. The contact chemicals when used early kills suckers by "touch" and does not restrict development of young leaves as Maleic-hydrazide does.

Why not put this practice into operation on your farm in 1970? If you grow 10 acres of tobacco, it could increase your net income as much as $1000.

Advise Bigger Sum For Safeguard Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today recommended $365.8 million in construction money for the next year of the embattled Safeguard antiballistic missile program.

It is $30 million more than has been appropriated for the past three fiscal years and is for use during the year starting July 1. It is separate from weapons procurement money, which amounts to hundreds of millions more dollars.

The Safeguard money was included in a $1.99 billion military construction bill sent to the House floor for consideration later this week. This is $435.7 million more than was provided for the current year but $137.7 million less than was requested.

Critics of the Safeguard program contend it is uneeded, too costly and is goading the Soviets into a renewed arms race.

The Senate narrowly approved Safeguard funds on a tie vote last year, and this year critics are girding for another tussle over the military budget, focusing on the Safeguard program.

The committee said the money would provide for construction projects at the Malmstrom base near Great Falls, Mont., and at the Grand Forks, N.D., site, construction and access roads at the Whiteman base in Missouri and for advance preparation at five other sites in the second phase of the program.

Included in the bill was $25 million for construction programs in Vietnam, largely for support of the Vietnamese army and for lines of communication, in addition to $109 million unobligated carryover funds.

Also included was $75.4 million for control of air and water pollution at defense sites.

For family housing for military personnel, the committee

During Break-In Loot Juke Box

Approximately $25-30 was stolen here Friday night in the breaking and entering of a privately owned business.

Chief T. E. Gladson said intruders entered the business of James Taft, located at 1309 Mill St., forcibly opened a juke box and took about $25-30.

The intruders entered the building through a front window, Chief Gladson said.

Investigation of the break - in is underway.

Light Damage In Saturday Fire

A minor fire in a storage building at the Burroughs - Wellcome plant caused little damage here Saturday.

Pitt County Fire Marshall Michael Worthington said the 3:15 p.m. fire was out when county firefighters arrived.

Apparently electrical wiring overheated and caught the small building afire but caused only slight damage, Worthington said.

Rules Committee Confrontation

DIXIE REPORT
By ED ROGERS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—“I did a mean thing,” the genial, courtly chairman of the House Rules committee confessed. But he did not sound altogether remorseful.

What Rep. William M. Colmer, D - Miss., had done was read to Rep. Emanuel Celler, D - N.Y., his oath of office.

The scene was a confrontation in the Rules Committee between a key leader of the southern conservatives and the dean of House liberals.

Colmer's gesture signaled new strategy the Southerners will use in the House in hopes of defeating the Senate version of the 1970 voting rights bill. They will zero in on the alleged unconstitutionality of its provision to lower the voting age to 18.

The main part of the bill is a five - year extension of federal overseeing of voting rights for blacks in six southern states and part of a seventh.

The Southerners opposed that, but if it stood alone they don't think they could beat it. The Senate, by adding the rider that would give the vote to 18 year olds, gave the Southerners a better chance to defeat the bill.

President Nixon contends the Senate rider is unconstitutional, saying the voting age can be changed only a constitutional amendment, not by statute.

Colmer told the Rules Committee there's no doubt in his mind about this and freely predicted that if the Senate bill passes, THE Supreme Court will throw out its provision for an 18-year old vote.

But Celler insisted that the “unconstitutional” rider stay in the bill despite, as Colmer put it, his oath of office to uphold the Constitution.

Despite Colmer's gesture, the liberal majority of the Rules Committee voted 9 to 6 to send the Senate measure to the House floor unchanged.

The liberals needed their committee victory.

If the Senate version should undergo any house change it would have to go to a House Senate Conference Committee. Then the Senate would have to vote on the compromise.

That, Celler warned, would open the threat of a southern filibuster that could mean having no bill at all. The 1965 voting rights act expires Aug. 6.

But the liberals' victory has given the southern conservatives a new issue to raise in the one hour of debate that will be allowed on the house floor when the bill is called up.

The old issue was that the 1965 bill is a “punitive” measure aimed at the South. It focused on seven states.

“It's coercive, it's something that harkens back to the days of the Reconstruction with carpet baggers descending on the southern states to conduct elections and in fact run the governments of southern states,” Colmer said.

The new issue will be the contention of Colmer and other southern conservatives that if House members vote for an allegedly unconstitutional vote for the 18-year olds, they would be violating their oaths of office.

Only the courts, however, can

Costa Rica has laws restricting horses, mules and oxen to no more than 48 hours of work per week.

declare a measure unconstitutional and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, supporting the vote for 18 year olds, said there would be plenty of time for the courts to act on the issue.

The House leadership and Celler concede they are in a dilemma. They feared removing the 18 year old vote issue would set the stage for a fatal filibuster in the Senate. With it left in, they fear they could lose crucial votes.

Under the parliamentary situation created by their victory, speaker John W. McCormack, Celler and democratic leader Carl Albert, D - Okla., will have a one - shot chance to win after the hour of debate.

That will be on a motion for the chair to call the “previous question” on the bill. If that vote carries the next vote will be only a token. The bill in its Senate form will be as good as passed.

But if that vote fails, Colmer or, perhaps, Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, Mich., will then move to send the bill into the conference committee—the move the liberals fear will mean its death.

Ford and the southern conservatives won by a five - vote margin in the first House action on the bill last December. Instead of passing a bill that would extend the present act another five years the House passed an administration bill that would apply everywhere and let the south off its special hook.

Thus no one is sure that will happen in the House with the 18 year old voting issue thrown in.
