Tanks Blocked By Loyal Units

Part Of Jordanian Army Balks At Pact

By United Press International

Part of Jordan's army rebelled Saturday against a peace agreement with Arab guerrillas and sent tanks rolling toward Amman, but loyal army officers blocked the advance, Arab news reports from the Jordanian capital said.

Jordan's King Hussein issued a message Saturday night calling on the armed forces for obedience, and warning of punishment for anyone starting new clashes. Official Amman radio announced security officials and guerrilla groups had set up a joint body to ensure the cease-fire was maintained.

The Cairo-based Voice of Palestine radio said Saturday's military move was carried out by supporters of two high ranking officers who resigned Thursday night at the demand of guerrillas at the height of the crisis that pitted the army against Palestinian guerrillas.

They were hussein's uncle, Maj. Gen. Sherif Nasser bin Jamil, who was commander-in-chief, and Sherif Zaid Ben Shaker, commander of an army division.

The Egyptian Middle East News Agency (MENA) said the armored battalion that advanced toward Amman was commanded by Zaid Bin Shaker. It said Jordanian Army Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Mashour Haditha, rushed to the Al-Naour area near Amman, and managed to cool down the situation.

The Palestine radio broadcast did not indicate the physical objective of the tank movement, but said the officers "tried to revolt against the cease-fire and enter the city of Amman."

The report of the incident came after repeated broadcasts from Radio Amman appealing for normalcy after a week of fighting that reportedly killed or wounded more than 500 persons and forced the evacuation of hundreds of foreigners, including many Americans, from Amman.

In Athens, the U.S. Embassy set up an emergency center at a hotel Saturday to house 134 Americans evacuated by air from Jordan Friday. It was supplying the Americans with money and necessary credentials.

The evacuees were quartered at three hotels in Kifissia, 10 miles north of Athens. Some of them told tales of robbery and rape while they were held hostage in Amman. But others said they were ready to return to Jordan.

In other Middle East action, Egypt reported that Israeli warplanes attacked Egyptian positions along the Suez Canal for the seventh straight day, wounding six Egyptian soldiers.

A Cairo military spokesman said 34 American-made Phantom and Skyhawk jets attacked Egyptian positions along most of the 70-mile canal Friday night and Saturday morning.

Ludicrous?

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — High-level Cambodian government officials Saturday denied as "ludicrous" published reports that Cambodia has decided to cede control of almost half the country to Communist forces.

The wire service reports (not UPI) —were widely printed Friday.

One official Cambodian government source, close to Premier London, said the wire service story was "obviously Communist propaganda."

"As you can see by our communiques, there is fighting in all our provinces," the sources said in explaining that Cambodian forces were contesting North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in all areas of the country.

"This story is ludicrous," another high-level sources said. "We haven't given up any part of Cambodia to anyone and never will—particularly the Communists."

U.S. sources were particularly upset at what one described as "unfounded rumors at best."

Marked Restoration Of Original Town Common

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Starr Writer

Greenville Redevelopment Commissioners, City officials and HUD representatives from Atlanta joined a gathering of local citizens Friday on the Tar River here to celebrate the restoration of the old Town Common.

Commission chairman Billy Laughinghouse pointed out the area along First Street, encompassing the land improvement effort known as the Shore Drive Redevelopment Project, was set aside in 1771 as a town common grazing land to provide pasture for livestock and also a gathering area for local citizens.

"This area where we now stand was, from the beginning," Laughinghouse noted, "set aside as the Town Common, to be and remain public space belonging equally to all town residents."

"We don't need public pasture in 1970," he added, "but we do need to hang on to all the public open space we can get. So it was decided to clear and improve the original Town Common and restore it to its originally intended use; a park in the middle of town available to all Greenville residents."

Preservation and restoration of the riverside area was made possible, it was pointed out, through a joint effort of the Commisssion, City Councilmen, local citizens and former city officials who applied for Federal assistance to implement the idea of restoration.

Mayor Frank Wooten commented, "We are pleased to have this addition to Greenville and I know we will be proud of the area in the years to come."

Percy Cox, mayor pro tempore at the time of project initiation and currently serving in that capacity, added, "I am real proud to have been a part of this project. It is the biggest asset that Greenville could have right now."

Others on hand for the commemoration included three representatives of the Atlanta office of Housing and Urban Development, John Edmunds, regional director of urban renewal; James Patterson, area coordinator of urban renewal; and Bill Joe, field representative.

Also Harry Hagerty, city manager; A E Dubber, executive director of the Commission; and city councilmen Dr. Frank Fuller, Johnny Edwards and Cox took part in the ceremonies.

Dubber invited all interested citizens to come by the Redevelopment Commission office on Evans Street to view renderings and maps and to get other information pertaining to the projects or ask questions regarding functions of the various Commission projects.

Tense Moments

FT. MONMOUTH, N.J. (AP) — Two Ft. Bragg paratroopers came a little too close for comfort during a demonstration jump from a helicopter at Ft. Monmouth Friday, but one helped the other to earth safely after a few tense moments high above the earth.

One of the men parachuted from a helicopter about 1,500 feet up and then the other followed. Both chutes opened fully but the second jumper passed under the first one and in so doing partially cut off the air in the first man's chute, according to an Army spokesman.

The first man then began to descend more rapidly than he should. The second man saw the predicament and caught a line of the first man's chute so that it deployed correctly. He held the line until both descended safely.

The two men were participating in a demonstration by the 50th Signal Batallion of the 18th Airborne Corps from Ft. Bragg for West Point cadets visiting the Army Signal Center and School at Ft. Monmouth.

The Army identified the two men involved as Lt. Robert Blevins and Sgt. John Watkinds, but was unable to supply their home addresses, or to report which of the men had been first out of the helicopter.

Scranton Named To Head Campus Unrest Studies

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon Saturday named a nine-member commission headed by former Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania to recommend ways to control campus violence and prevent future tragedies like the killings at Kent State and Jackson State.

As the President spent a relaxing weekend at his Florida retreat, the traveling White House denied persistent reports that Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel will be replaced soon as a member of the cabinet.

Named to the Commission on Campus Unrest along with Scranton were four whites and four blacks, including two police officials, three college faculty members, one student, one attorney and one newspaper editor.

"There is nothing that any of us can do to restore the lives that have been lost or to undo the other effects of past campus violence," Nixon said in a formal statement. "But the commission can help us to avoid future incidents of the sort which occurred this past spring."

The administration announced plans to appoint the commission following the killing last month of four students at Kent State university in Ohio and two students at predominantly black Jackson State College in Mississippi.

The Kent students were killed by shots fired by Ohio National Guardsmen and the Jackson youths died in a hail of bullets fired by state troopers into a girl's dormitory. In both incidents there were charges—and denials—that shooting by snipers touched off the gunfire.

White House Press Secreatary Ronald L. Ziegler said Hickel "has not submitted his resignation and he has no intention of resigning." Asked if the President has requested Hickel's resignation, Ziegler replied: "We have not. I know of no intention for us to ask for his resignation."

Brazil Bows To Demands Of Kidnapers

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI—The Brazilian government accepted the demands of the kidnapers of West German Ambassador Ehrenfried von Hollenben and said Saturday it would exchange 40 political prisoners for the envoy's life.

Although the kidnapers have not yet named the 40 prisoners they want freed, the Justice and Foreign Ministries issued a joint statement saying the prisoners would be swapped for Von Hollenben who was seized by terrorists Thursday in a daring and bloody raid.

The government's acceptance of the kidnapers' demands appeared to pave the way for the next step in the deadly game of wits—the collection of the prisoners and their release. Presumably, the kidnapers will ask that the prisoners be flown to Mexico as has been done in similar diplomatic kidnapings in Brazil within the past year.

In September 1969, the government sent 15 prisoners to Mexico in exchange for U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick and in March 1970, they released five prisoners for the return of the Japanese consul in Sao Paulo. Nobou Okuchi.

Crusader Nader Says Enzymes Public Menace

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Consumer crusader Ralph Nader has called on the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to ban the sale of household detergents containing enzymes as a "clear danger to the public."

Nader told the FTC in a petition filed Friday that medical studies in the United States and Britain have shown such detergents can cause "chronic, acute and potentially irreversible lung disease" similar to asthma, and severe skin allergies that cause painful and prolonged itching.

Nader was joined in his petition to the FTC by the American Federation of Homemakers, a consumer organization with 5,000 members in 46 states, and the District of Columbia Consumer Association.

The petition said a warning of the danger of enzyme detergents would not be sufficient because it would be impossible to avoid the dangers through careful use.

But if the FTC declines to prohibit the sale of such detergents, "it should at least require clear warnings which will be understood by as much of the public as possible," and should send warning letters to doctors, the petition said.

More than 50 per cent of heavy laundry detergents sold in the United States contain enzymes, which the manufacturers say help to remove protein stains that do not respond to other detergents.

Nader and his associates said there is no reliable evidence that enzymes are effective in doing this under normal conditions of use. They quoted reports of two consumer testing services casting doubt on the effectiveness of enzymes.

The petition also quoted a doctor as saying enzymes cause respiratory disease, with symptoms including asthmatic reactions, breathlessness, wheezing and general malaise.

Symptoms often do not appear until after long exposure to enzymes, and by the time they show up it may be too late to reverse the disease, the petition said.

Terrorized During Fighting Between Guerrillas, Troops

BEIRUT (UPI) — American and British citizens arriving here Saturday from Jordan spoke of rape, looting and terror during the past week's fighting between Palestinian guerrillas and government troops.

"A close friend of mine was raped by armed men," said Mrs. barbara Lewis, of Redwood Falls, Minn. she did not identify the woman.

"Her husband was shot earlier in the week," mrs. Lewis said. "then her home was completely looted. The guerrillas came into her home. One of them was roughing up people. He pulled a pin out of a grenade and hit them with it.

"Later several women present were raped," she said. "One of them was my best friend. she said her attacker was obviously sadistic."

"The situation was awful," said Mrs. Lynne Sharp, Brooklyn, N.Y., whose husband works at the American embassy in Amman.

"We could hear firing from all parts of the city. My husband is a military man and we could tell heavy guns were being used.

"My husband was captured earlier in the week and released after an all night interrogation. When he discovered he was being held by Al Fatah (the largest gurrilla group) and not the Habash group he was very very glad," she said.

Yadkin Fish Kill Is Over

RALEIGH (AP) — A state official said Saturday the Yadkin river fish kill is over and preliminary tests indicate that the death of hundreds — possibly thousands—of fish Thursday and Friday was caused by "a slug of organic waste that depleted the oxygen in the river."

Earle C. Hubbard, assistant director of the state department of water and air resources, said that men from his department at the river between Winston-Salem and Salisbury reported that "no fish had been observed in distress since yesterday (Friday) at noon."

"Hubbard said that tests made on some of the water samples taken from the river had indicated that no pesticides or toxic metals were involved.

"We would assume, therefore, since our tests have revealed nothing toxic that it was a slug of organic waste that depleted the oxygen in the river and the fish were killed by the lack of oxygen," Hubbard said.

Spiro Will Skip Hollerin' Event

SPIVEY'S CORNER, N.C. (AP)—Vice President Spiro Agnew has respectfully declined an invitation to participate in the second annual National Hollerin' Contest.

Agnew's office says the vice president is committed to a Republican fund-raising dinner in Cleveland on June 20, the day the contest is scheduled for this crossroads community near Dunn.

Some 10,000 persons are expected to attend the contest, which features yowls once given by rural Carolinians to let the neighbors, some as far as two miles away, know that all was well at the end of the day.

Fishing Accord Will 'Expand'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Poland agreed Saturday to expand and broaden their accord designed to regulate and preserve fishing off the mid-Atlantic coast of the United States.

The State Department, in announcing the signing here of the fisheries pact, said the new version will run to Sept. 30, 1971. The original agreement was concluded last June.

Scup, flounder, and hake will get expanded protection under the revised agreement, the department said. It said protection would also apply to black sea bass, menhaden and river herring.

Under the new accord, Poland pledges not to fish for any of these species along the Middle Atlantic coast throughout the coming year. She is to refrain also from winter fishing in the offshore area where bottom species concentrate early in the year.

In return, Polish fishermen will continue to be allowed to use three areas along the mid-Atlantic coast within the 9-mile offshore U.S. fishing zone for unloading and transferring their fish catch.

Each country will continue to provide for port entry of a certain number of fishing vessels of the other.

Classroom Building Fire Was Confined

BETHEL — A fire that is suspected to have been set was discovered in a classroom building at Bethel Union High School here Friday afternoon.

The 3:15 fire, confined to one of four classrooms in the woodframe structure, caused heavy fire damage to that room. Other parts of the building suffered heavy smoke and water damage.

Bethel fire units responded to the call, were met with thick smoke upon arrival, but quickly extinguished the blaze.

Pitt County Fire Marshal Mike Worthington said the fire appeared to have started in or near a waste basket in the room, and there was reason to believe the fire had been intentionally set.

County School Superintendent Arthur S. Alsford said that the building would probably not be in use next year.

Alford estimated damage to the building at approximately $1,500.

Built in 1940, the Bethel school housed both elementary and high school grades.

Investigation of the fire is continuing.

SNOW IN JUNE? . . . It's not snow, but foam used in fighting special fires. The Eastern Carolina Firemen's Association held one of eight yearly meetings here yesterday afternoon. The demonstrations included fire fighting methods using foam, as pictured above by the Wyane County firemen; quick evacuation from a building, quick dump tanker methods, and and exhibition by the "Squirt" fire truck, the newest innovation in fire fighting. Involving 32 counties, there were approximately 125 firemen present. Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Will Flight-Test Chute For Future Mars Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A parachute designed to deposit instruments on Mars will be flight-tested more than 40 miles above the Atlantic off the Virginia coast next week.

A deployable fabric-and-metal aeroshell in the form of a flattened cone, the parachute will be launched in a closed-umbrella position from Wallops Island, Va., next Wednesday, weather permitting.

Rockets will hurl the 3,052-pound package to an altitude of 45 miles.

The payload—including accelerometers, strain gauges, attitude gyros and cameras—will coast to a height of 57 miles, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

As the folded parachute and attached test equipment starts to descend, the onboard gyroscopes will provide orientation to assure that the vehicle maintains the desired atmosphere-reentry attitude on its downward path.

At an altitude of 44 miles, where the earth's atmospheric density resembles that of Mars, the 15-foot-diameter conical aeroshell will popped open to simulate Mars entry conditions.

At a height of 27 miles when the aeroshell is dropping at the rate of almost 3,000 feet a second—about 2.7 times the speed of sound—the 55-foot-diameter parachute will be deplozed on command from the ground.

Soon afterward the parachute, with cameras and test instrumentation attached, will separate from the heavy aeroshell.

The 'chute will lower the equipment to the ocean surface about 70 miles southeast of Wallops for recovery by a helicopter.

The aeroshell itself will plunge to the ocean floor, and is to be recovered later by divers.

Soyuz 9 Expected To Try For Record

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet space twins, now in their 12th day aloft, are expected to continue their journey at least another week and establish a three-week world record for endurance, authoritative sources said Saturday.

Col. Andrian Nikolayev, commander of the Soyuz 9, and his flight engineer Vitaly Sevastianov were originally scheduled to remain in space a fortnight but their cosmic sojourn has been so successful so far that their time table has been revised upward, the sources said.

Nikolayev and Sevastianov have already beat the Soviet record of 112 hours set by Valery Brykovsky in 1963 and barring unexpected developments, by Monday 4:35 p.m. (9:35 a.m. EDT) they will have surpassed the present world record, set by the United States.

American astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell established the current record of 13 days, 18 hours and 35 minutes in their Gemini 7 in 1965.

Urge Defeat Sen. Jordan

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina young Republicans Saturday called for the defeat of Democratic Sen. B. Everett Jordan in 1972 for his announced support of the Cooler - Church amendment which is designed to insure the end of U.S. involvement in Cambodia by July 1.

The executive committee of the North Carolina Federation of Young Republicans also deplored Jordan's vote Thursday against an amendment that would have weakened the Cooper - Church proposal and called on Gov. Bob Scott and Democratic Chairman Eugene Simmons to repudiate Jordan's action.

The young Republicans said the Cooper - Church amendment would "restrict the President's foreign policy options thereby de-accelerating the Vietnamization process and prolonging the American involvement and deaths."

Area Highway Hearing July 15

The North Carolina State Highway Commission will hold a public hearing Wednesday, July 15, to discuss three highway projects in the Greenville area.

The hearing, scheduled for 11 a.m. in the Superior Court Room of the Pitt County Court House, will consist of an explanation of the projects, discussion of the right of way, and relocation advisory assistance.

The projects to be discussed include:

—Improvements of Charles Street from the U.S. 264 bypass to 12th Street; relocation of Charles Street from 12th Street to Cotanche Street at 11th Street; improvement of Charles Street from 11th Street to 10th Street.

The improvement of Charles Street will consist of widening to a 64-foot fact to face of curb section from the U.S. 264 bypass to 12th Street and a 52-foot face to face curb section from 12th Street to 10th Street.

According to the State Highway Commission, the right of way from the bypass to the Norfolk-Southern Railroad is adequate. Additional right of way will be required from the railroad to 10th Street.

—Widening of 10th Street to a 52-foot face to face curb of curb section from Lawrence Street to Cotanche Street. Additional right of way will be necessary for the project.

—Proposed corridor for the location of the Eastern bypass of Greenville from the intersection of U.S. 264 bypass and 10th Street northerly and easterly to U.S. 13 and N.C. 11 in the vicinity of Burroughs-Wellcome and Company, Inc.

A mosaic setting forth the above projects is available for public review and copying during normal business hours of the Division Office, State Highway Commission. A mosaic is also posted in the Pitt County Court House.

The hearing will be open for any questions, statements or comments pertaining to the proposed project. Additional material may be submitted for 10 days from the date of the hearing to the office of R. W. McGowan, assistant chief engineer, preconstruction, N. C. State Highway Commission, P. O. Box 25201, Raleigh N. C., 27611.

More Urbanization Seen By UN Expert

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A U.N. planning expert predicted today that more than half the world's population will be living in cities by the end of this century, and he said it may be a good thing.

But the consultant, Richard May Jr., said the only way to cope with continuing urban population growth is with carefully planned new cities that would accommodate about one million people each. Some 2,100 such population centers will be needed by the end of the century, he said.

May, the consultant for the U.N. Center for Housing, Building and Planning, offered his predictions and prescriptions in a paper written for a symposium starting at the United Nations headquarters today. The symposium, concerning "The Impact of Urbanization on Man's Environment," is sponsored jointly by the world organization and the United Auto Workers Union.

May said that right now, "no developed country has a higher number of specifically planned cities than the Soviet Union." In the United States, he said, "continued urban sprawl is regarded as inevitable, and only a fraction of new urban residents will be accommodated in new towns."

What would it be like to live in one of the "new cities" foreseen by the U.N. planner?

There would be no "degrading effects on its occupants and on the natural resources of the territory it occupies, "May said. He added that the location of work and leisure facilities would be carefully laid out to "offer the maximum of human convenience, comfort, pleasure and peace of mind, with minimum congestion, health hazards and other disturbing influences."

Advances in communication systems and electronics, he said, "may make it possible for much of the work to be carried out within the immediate residential environment of the people or even in their homes."

May said one necessary evil in the daily life of today's city, habitual use of the private automobile, would be virtually eliminated.

Des Moines Is Again Hit By Big Dynamiting

DESMOINES, Iowa (UPI)— An explosion at the greater Des Moines Chamber of Commerce building scattered debris through a three-block area in downtown Des Moines Saturday. Several injuries were reported.

"This blast was caused by dynamite, it fits in with the previous bombing pattern," said police Chief Wendell Nichols.

It was the fourth bombing in Iowa in recent weeks. On May 13 an estimated $200,000 damage was caused to the Des Moines police station. Ten persons were injured and an estimated $20,000 damage done to the Ames police station-City Hall, on May 22.

'Stunned' By Nixon Critics

WASHINGTON (UPI) 8sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said Saturday he is "stunned" and "shocked" that President Nixon's Vietnam critics do not believe the President will carry out his "intentions and commitments" to end the war in Southeast Asia.

Baker, in a report to his constituents, said he is puzzled over "criticism that President Nixon is widening and escalating the war in Vietnam."

"Surely, they must know that this is the first President who has had to face this conflict in Southeast Asia who has steadily decreased the number of troops there," he said.

Baker asked, "Does anyone . . challenge that the number of troops has been reduced only by this administration and under this President? Then why the expressions 'widening the war' and 'escalating the war'"?

Baker maintained the President has kept his promise on troop withdrawals from Vietnam and "based on his track record to date" deserves "to be believed."

Oil Clots In Mid-Ocean

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— Clots of oil are polluting the midstream current of the Atlantic ocean from horizon, explorer Thor Heyerdahl said in a message Saturday from the high seas aboard his papyrus boat RA-2.

"At least, a continuous stretch of 1,400 miles of the open Atlantic is polluted by floating lumps of solidified asphalt-like oil," the Norwegian explorer said in a statement reaching edvard Hambro, Norwegian ambassador to the U.N.

Heyerdahl, a Norwegian whose Kon-Tiki raft voyage across the Pacific was a landmark in sea conquest, is trying to cross the Atlantic in a reed boat, like those used by ancient Egyptians, to prove that the pharaohs could have sent expeditions to the new World centuries before Columbus.

The RA-2 left the Moroccan Port of Safi on May 17.

Police Charge 2 Involved In Bogus Bill Ring

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) Police have arrested two men in connection with what a Secret Service agent said is a counterfeit operation extending up and down the eastern seaboard.

Frank Louis Neri, 30, of Newark, N.J., and Gilbert R. McLaurin, 28, of Fayetteville were charged with selling counterfeit money. They are held in Cumberland County jail, Neri under $40,000 bond and McLaurin under $20,000.

Police say they confiscated 250 bogus $20 bills during the arrests Friday night.

Secret Service agent John Grimes Jr. said the bills were not printed locally and that similar notes had been in circulation for some time along the eastern seaboard. He described the counterfeit bills as of "extremely poor quality" and said all had the same serial number.

Much Hinges On June 27 Vote

On June 27 Greenville School District residents who registered during a special registration period will go to the polls to vote on a maximum 25 cents per $100 valuation increase in taxes for support of the schools.

The supplemental school tax in the district has been 25 cents for 30 years and if the voters favor it, this will be increased to 50 cents.

If the tax is approved present services will be continued, plus the following:

—$15,500 additional for instructional supplies.

improvements in transportation services.

—meet matching salary increases for locally paid teachers.

— meet requirements for increased minimum wages, Social Security, retirement insurance costs and other benefits.

Of course, if the issue fails to carry, these additional services will not be available and some present expenditures will have to be cut.

This is more tax, which no one likes these days. On the other hand our schools are in a crucial stage, having almost entirely changed from a segregated system to an integrated one. There can be little doubt that the special teachers and professional people proposed are badly needed to give students the kind of training and counseling they need.

Certainly it would be unthinkable to fail to meet matching salary increases for local teachers or to fail to meet requirements for teacher benefits. And we cannot even entertain the thought of cutting back on present services.

After careful study we have conculded that the additional funds are urgently needed to carry out the kind of education program we need at this time. The prospects of voting an additional tax is not enjoyable, but on the other hand it is money that will be spent at home for our own needs.

We could do no less than urge voters who care about the education of our children to go to the polls on June 27 and vote in favor of the additional school tax.

Says World Is Watching U.S.

By VIVIAN MONTS
The Charlotte News,
Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — "This is my home, and I'm here practically all the time," said Maurice A. Weinstein, Charlotte attorney.

But in the past year and a half, his law practice has taken him to a dozen foreign nations. As attorney for a number of U.S. corporations with business overseas, he has visited South Africa, Kenya, Ghana, Venezuela, Ireland, England, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Israel, Australia, Nationalist China, and Japan. His next trip will be to Chile in a few weeks.

In addition to his overseas law practice, Weinstein is chairman of the International Council of B'nai B'rith, the world's largest Jewish organization, and his work in that capacity frequently takes him globe trotting.

Two days after his return from a business trip to Hong Kong, Weinstein discussed his impression of the United States as viewed through the eyes of men and women he has encountered around the world.

The impact of the U.S. on other countries "is far greater than we ever realize," he said. News coverage of events which take place in this country "is very intense everywhere. You can pick up an American newspaper anywhere in the world, and many of the foreign countries will have English language newspapers," he said.

The people of Europe and Asia can hardly miss getting some sort of picture of the United States today, according to Weinstein, and often the picture they get is not a pretty one.

"For a long time, most of the people of the world looked up to the United States as being the ideal place on earth from the standpoint of its economy, its democracy, and its greatness," Weinstein said, "but I fear, from the observations of people in various countries, that the former lofty image of the United States has fallen.

"It appears that the United States' being one of the two great world powers and a place from which foreign correspondents secure so much news to publish in foreign newspapers has given most people (of other nations) a distorted view of the United States," Weistein said.

On preparing to leave Paris a few years ago, at a time when there were sporadic riots in the United States, Weinstein said a Parisian "asked me if it were safe for me to come home." Pictures which appeared in Paris newspapers "had made it look as if all of the United States were on fire," he said.

But he countered that example with a reverse of it. "About two months ago, I came back to Charlotte from Israel, and people here were surprised I had made it back," he said. "I found it very safe and peaceful to walk on the streets in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, and the people there felt safe," he added.

Weinstein also indicated that specific events in the United States have a great deal of influence on specific events in other nations. He related a story told him by a woman in Sydney, Australia:

"She said there had been no trouble in their universities until there were pictures on television there of students taking over the administration building of a university here (in the United States). Then a few days later, she said, the same thing happened in Sydney — students tried to take over the administration building at a university there."

But that, Weinstein theorized, was simply "the power of suggestion operating over thousands of miles."

Asked about the overseas view of President Nixon as he has observed it, Weinstein said impressions are varied. He said many Asians and Europeans favor the President's recent decision to send U.S. troops into Cambodia, and many oppose it.

"On my last trip, I looked down on Cambodia from the air," Weinstein remarked. "It looked very peaceful, and I thought, 'How can that small a portion of the earth cause such a severe impact?' But it does."

The juxtapositions of peace and war around the world have impressed Weinstein. He recalled hearing a Leonard Bernstein concert in Israel some time ago. "While the borders were under seige, it was an unusual feeling to listen to that music," he said. "They were preparing for war as though it would never end, while preparing for peace as if it would come tomorrow."

NATO Cost-Sharing Would Be Great Help

It would be refreshing, indeed, if reports are correct that 14 NATO nations may offer cash to stave off U.S. troop withdrawals from Europe.

The Associated Press reported last week that West German sources say that government is pressing other European governments on this matter.

If the report is correct, NATO members are being asked to make a joint payment to the United States to help defray the cost of keeping 300,000 troops in Europe.

West Germany has helped defray most of the foreign exchange loss by buying equipment and bonds in the U.S.

Such a plan could be a great help to the United States with its current financial problems since some of these problems stem from foreign exchange loss due to keeping troops overseas.

It will be interesting to see how far this plan gets with our European Allies.

Too Eager To Race Wallace

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Southern political problem opened up for President Nixon by George C. Wallace's comeback was aggravated this week when James Martin, a much-scarred Alabama political veteran, arrived in Washington dead set upon running for Governor against Wallace—to the utter horror of the White House.

But not even White House opposition cooled the ardor of the ambitious Martin, a former Congressman who is now Alabama's Republican National Committeeman. He has become an habitual candidate and a few weeks ago actually tried to make a secret deal for Wallace's support of him in a Congressional race before deciding to challenge Wallace himself for Governor.

What has diluted the effect of the White House opposition is divided counsel in the Republican high command. Presidential aides were incredulous and annoyed when Rep. Rogers Morton Maryland, Republican National Chairman, openly called for a Republican opponent against Wallace.

There is good reason for President Nixon's disagreeing. Mr. Nixon worries that the predictable Wallace landslide would simply boost him throughout the South and launch his 1972 third - party Presidential race. As the White House sees it, Wallace would trumpet his triumph over Martin in the Governor's election as a personal conquest of Mr. Nixon and the national Republican establishment.

Such arguments do not move Martin, here this week drumming up support against Wallace. Furthermore he has gotten a green light not only from Morton but from such key Southern Republicans as Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee — Morton and Baker feel the Republican party has an obligation to raise its standard in the Deep South.

Joining the White House against that view are professionals at the Republican National Committee (who disagree with Chairman Morton) and, most vigorously, Alabama's three Republican Congressmen: Jack Edwards, William Dickinson, and John Buchanan.

A race against Wallace by Martin or any other Republican, the Congressmen have told Martin, would crush some 75 Republican candidates running for the state legislature and defeat scores of Republican candidates for probate judge, school boards, and sheriff.

Closer to the bone, they believe, it could also defeat Dickinson and Edwards if Wallace underwrote a campaign and galvanized his grass roots organization against all Republicans.

Strength For Today

TRIUMPH AT LAST

With all the evil there is in the world we can be pretty sure that there is a persistence of good which runs like a scarlet threat through the whole of life.

It might be better if we used not the the figure of a scarlet thread but the figure of a persistent purpose, for Somebody or Something appears to manifest itself in every aspect of life. Those who are not ashamed to admit that they have a religious faith and try — often in a lame fashion and always imperfectly — to put it into operation believe that there is a force for good in the world which is apparent even now and which will eventually triumph over every lesser force. There is good in the worst of people. There is some good in the wildest schemes for human betterment advanced by politicians, philosophers and those who hold the reins of what appear to be wild horses galloping to destruction.

There is good in all of life. Have you ever seen a thoroughly evil person? Have you ever seen a person so wise and good that his policies need never be questioned? Sometimes it seems that the world and its inhabitants are on skids headed indeed for the precipice. But a little sober thought rebukes such an attitude. The human race appears to advance morally twelve inches and then fall back eleven. But there is a gain here which we must acknowledge.

Sound religious faith leads us to believe that human folly to the contrary notwithstanding, good will triumph at least over evil and ignorance.

"Yes, We Were Sort of Wondering if You Had . . . uh . . . Bottomed Out Yet?"

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Sunday Morning Notes

A release sent out by the Naval Electronic Systems Command reports that Tom Bolton, a Pitt Tech graduate, ran into a little problem recently.

Bolton, who works as an electronics technician for the Naval Electronics Test and Evaluation Facility in Maryland, was attending class at Denver's Lowry Air Force Base.

The classroom didn't have any windows and the air-conditioning failed, which caused Bolton to pass out.

An ambulance was called and Bolton was loaded aboard by attendants.

On the way to the hospital the ambulance stalled.

Sizing up the situation, the revived Bolton got off his stretcher, located the trouble in the choke mechanism, fixed it, and climbed back in for the rest of his trip.

After a checkup at the hospital, he was released.

ALVIN TAYLOR

It goes without saying that Bolton's hobby is auto mechanics.

Miss Anne Louise Robertson of Wilmington is 77 years old and the reason I know is because she wrote a letter to ECU recently.

She pointed out that a neighbor, who gives programs for her church circle meetings and for Sunday School classes, had visited Greenville. While here she saw an article entitled "What Will A Nickle Buy?" either in The Daily Reflector or in the college paper. She saved the copy but, with two children and a dog, it got away.

"I am noted for having lots of nerve, so I'm using it to bother you, in asking if you might be able to locate a copy for her," she wrote.

"If a bit annoyed at the request, just say an old lady of 77 wants to help her neighbor in her good works."

The letter found its way to The Daily Reflector and it did run in our paper.

Other Editors Say Who Retires Next?

(Henderson Dispatch)

For the first time in a long while, the Supreme Court has a full membership. Harry A. Blackmun of Rochester, Minn., took the oath as associate justice Tuesday following recent confirmation by the Senate after that body had previously rejected two Southern jurists nominated by President Nixon. Chief Justice Warren Burger presided at formal ceremonies in the Supreme Court building.

Although the panel of nine justices is now fully occupied, there is speculation as to who will be the next justice to retire at full pay for life and creating one or more new vacancies. Several are eligible for retirement but are clinging to their positions. Talk of impeachment of Justice William O. Douglas was heard repeatedly only a few months ago. But the talk has died away, and as of the moment there is no likelihood of such procedure in the foreseeable future.

Chief Justice Burger and Associate Justice Blackmun, the latest additions to the court, were named by President Nixon, and are generally presumed to be mildly conservative, or at least moderates. Any others named later by the President are expected to be of that political philosophy, though there is no certainty as to that. The liberals have held a majority the past three or four decades, or since the days of Roosevelt, who smarted under rulings that struck down one after another of his New Deal adventures in government. One or two Roosevelt appointees on the bench are still there and consistently vote the way FDR intended them to do when they were nominated, and then confirmed by a docile Senate of that era.

It is time for a shift in judicial philosophy. The liberals, of course, would not be satisfied with any judge not to their liking. But they have had their day quite long enough to justify a change in the manner of interpreting the Constitution. It very much deserves to receive support from the hands of friends.

One or more justices could retire in a surprise move. And there will be time enough to speculate on the President's choices if he is called upon to act.

Silver Causes Picketing Case

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's a lot of activity in silver these days. For instance:

● Tenants in three New York apartment houses have started suit to enjoin picketing of nearby offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

ELMER ROESSNER

● The Federal Reserve Board is considering a change in rules forbidding banks to count deposits of silver coins as part of their legal reserves.

● Silver prices weakened to $1.65 a troy ounce last week, but futures were up to $1.88 for June, 1971.

The suit to enjoin picketing the FBI resulted from a month-long demonstration by Italian-Americans who allege the agency is prejudiced against them. Every night, in rain or starlight, 100 or more have been picketing an office, sometimes chanting, "Hi-dee, hi-dee-ho, the FBI has got to go." Neighbors are asking the State Supreme Court to prohibit the picketing so they can get some sleep.

A Silver Case

The picketing started after the arrest of Joseph Colombo, Jr., 23, the son of Joseph Colombo, reputed head of a Mafia family. Young Colombo and two companions were arrested by the FBI on charges conspiring to melt $500,000 in silver coins and with extortion of a coin dealer.

The curious part of the case, giving some color to the picketers' complaint, is that it is now no longer illegal to melt down silver coins, contrary to a statement published here.

Contrary too to popular belief, it was always legal until May 18, 1967, to melt silver coins. For most of the years that silver coinage was in use, there was less than $1 worth in a silver dollar, so the government made a profit when a coin was melted. However, when the silver in a dollar exceeded $1 in value, Congress authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to prohibit melting. The penalty was up to five years in prison.

The Secretary did not act until 1967, when melting was made illegal. But when it became apparent that the nation would never return to the silver dollar, the interdiction was repealed on May 13, 1969.

Colombo, Jr., and associates are thereby being accused of something that is no longer illegal. However, they are also charged with extortion, which is.

Bank Ruling

Meanwhile, in recent months some banks have been accepting silver coins, now at a premium of 65 per cent or more, for deposit. Dealers and hoarders are happy with this arrangement, since they get free storage, security and 2 or 3 per cent interest. And banks, counting the coins in their reserves, are allowed to lend more money at high rates. Upward of $2 million a month in silver coins has been pouring into banks.

But the Fed is now considering an amendment to bar the counting of silver coins as part of banks' reserves. It will receive pro and con statements until July 13 and act soon after.

Meanwhile, the silver market has been active, and the Treasury is still selling 1,500,000 ounces a week.

And young Colombo is free on $5,000 bail. His protesting father had earlier been indicated on federal income tax charges and lying to a New York state agency to get a real estate license.

GE Cuts Fixed Price On 4 Refrigerators

Something has gone down in prices besides day-old bread. General Electric has cut its "fair trade" price on four refrigerator models from $5 to $15 in New York state. "Fair trade" prices are minimums set by manufacturers, legal in about half the states.

June 14 Is Day Of Flag

By United Press International

Today is Flag Day—the anniversary of the day the Stars and Stripes became the official flag of the United States.

On June 14, 1777—nearly a year after the Declaration of Independence—the Continental Congress resolved that "the flag of the United States shall be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, with a union of thirteen stars of white on a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The 13 stars were for the 13 original states. Of the 50 stars the flag now contains, the last was added officially on July 4, 1960, by executive order of President Dwight D. Eisenhower dated Aug. 21, 1959, The Day Hawaii became the 50th state of the union.

The First Flag

In popular lore, the first American flag was sewn by Elizabeth 'Betsy' Ross at her upholstery shop on Arch Street in Philadelphia. According to the story, George Washington, Robert Morris and George Ross, acting as a committee of Congress, went to the shop carrying a rough drawing of the proposed flag and asked if she could make one. When the finished banner was taken before Congress, it was officially adopted.

Almost 150 years passed before any formal action was taken relating to civilian display and handling of the flag. Then in 1923 the National Americanism Committee of the American Legion held a conference in Washington, D.C., at whic a group of patriotic organizations formulated a "flag code" that, while it lacked federal authority, was generally accepted.

Not until World War II was a federal flag code accepted. On June 22, 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a joint congressional resolution codifying rules for flag display. This is known as Public Law 623.

Rules For Display

Under the code, the flag should be flown on virtually all holidays, weather permitting (half staff until noon on Memorial Day), and on Flag Day.

Most rules for how the flag should be flown or displayed are obvious courtesy. But there are also a long list of rules governing improper display or use of the flag. Among them:

—The flag may not be draped over any vehicle.

—No other flag may be flown above the Stars or Stripes; If flags are flown on the same level, the American flag is to be to the right.

—The flag is never to be flown with the union (stars) down except as a signal of distress.

—The flag may never be used as drapery of any sort, or used as a design on cushions, handkerchiefs, etc., or "as any portion of a costume or athletic uniform."

And if you are flying your flag today, the code states it should "be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously."

Observations From Editorial Columns

SAM'S BACK

Wiser but not appreciably sadder, Sam Huff abandoned an unpromising political career recently and went back to work for the Washington Redskins as a linebacker coach.

He thought his campaign for Congress was well operated, but he didn't have a chance. "Farmington — my own town of 700 people — did something unbelievable. Two days before the election they threw a pig roast for my opponent," Sam said ruefully. "I had a cousin hauling voters to the polls thinking they were voting for me, but they voted for my opponent. I belong to three unions there, but the labor vote wat turned against me."

Professional football is rough, Huff concedes, but compared with politics it's child's play — a discovery that has been made by many neophyte politicians. — Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch

ARREST QUOTAS?

With all the skill it has shown in infiltrating business, corrupting police, buying off politicians and ttherwise turning the American system to its own use, it is surprising that the Mafia has not heretofore grasped the new importance of activism in that system.

But now, it appears, the mob is hip at last: The Manhattan office of the FBI was picketed the other day by a group led by Joseph Columbo, said to be the Mafia boss in Brooklyn, and their grievances were made quite clear. "FBI Hoover, Why Frame Italians?" read one picket sign. Another asked, "Why Are Only Italian - Americans Involved in Organized Crime?"

Mr. Hoover, so far as we know, has not offered to meet with the pickets or discuss differences; hoodlums have a history, after all, of presenting non-negotiable demands. But it is plain enough, we think, what those pickets had in mind. Fairness would seem to dictate a quota system in criminal prosecutions; the Mafia feels that other ethnic groups are not getting their share. It just goes to show how some people can be discriminated against these days without even know it. — Roanoke (Va.) Times

FORGET IT

The way to avoid heart strain is to like vegetables soaked in whale oil, avoid women, never exercise, be scrawny, lay off radio and TV and never meet a deadline, according to Dr. Christian Barnard.

As a recipe for a long life it lacks an essential ingredient however, Something to make it worth living. — Charlotte (N.C.) Observer

LIFE STYLES

When one linebacker quits the violent world of professional football to adopt a "hippie" life style, it is a curiosity. When it happens a second time, it is something of a trend.

The first to quit was Chip Oliver of the Oakland Raiders, who defected to live in a commune in Mill Valley, California. The second is Dave Meggysey, a veteran with the St. Louis Cardinals, who quit football with a blast at its "ideology of violence."

Certainly Messrs. Meggysey and Oliver are the best judges of whether they want to continue to play football, and football fans must respect their views. And even a construction worker will be respectful of a "hippie" who was a linebacker for seven years. — Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot

THE DEADLIER OF THE SPECIES

The Dutch, in the minds of tourists, are associated with windmills and tulips; in the minds of intellectuals, with liberal modern church movements. Seldom, however, are they associated with humor.

It's therefore something of a surprise to learn that the women's liberation movement in the Netherlands is waging its revolutionary campaign with the strategy that "to succeed you must be amusing" and criticism of their U.S. counterparts as "too serious, too angry."

Typical of the Dutch feminists' approach was their first major demonstration in Armsterdam, which struck back at male "wolves" who stand on street corners and whistle at girls in mini-skirts. The girls took to the major intersections and bridges to whistle and hoot at startled young males. "Why can't women make this kind of advance?" said Corry Ehlen, a 23-year old spokes woman for the "Dolle Minas" group. "Why must it always be the other way?"

Dutchmen may balk at the feminists' more serious goals — equal jobs, equal pay, legalized abortions, liberalized divorce and an end to women's traditionally dependent role. So far, though, there's no report of counter-revolutionary action by men against being whistled at — and some indication the price may be softening male resistance to other demands. — Tampa (Fla.) Tribune

COINCIDENCE

According to the International Revenue Service, people are smoking fewer cigarets these days (2.4 billion fewer in 1969 than in 1968) and drinking more liquor, more wine and more beer than ever before.

This should not be interpreted to mean that giving up cigarets will drive a man to drink. — Knoxville (Tenn.) News-Sentinel

Today In History

Today is Sunday, June 14, the 165th day of 1970. There are 200 days left in the year. This is Flag Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1775, the U.S. Army was founded. The Continental Congress authorized the recruiting of 10 companies of riflemen to serve for one year.

On the date:

In 1777, the Continental Congress made the Stars and Stripes the national flag.

In 1846, a group of settlers at Sonoma, Calif., proclaimed the free Republic of California.

In 1940, in World War II, the Germans occupied Paris.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered the freezing of German and Italian assets in the United States.

In 1944, American forces began the Pacific war invasion of Saipan Isalnd.

Ten years ago: French President Charles de Gaulle called on Algerian nationalists to negotiate an end to their revolt.

Five years ago: Police in Jackson, Miss., arrested 472 Negro and white civil rights demonstrators.

One year ago: The Soviet Union proposed negotiations with Communist China on the Chinese-Soviet border dispute.

A Conservative View

Wallace Vote Not The Roar Of Hungry Lions

By J.J. KILPATRICK

The tale was told of Chantecler, who leaped to his perch each morning in the darkness just before the dawn. He crowned lustily. And thereupon the sun came up. "Behold," cried Chantecler, "what a cock am I! When 'ere I crow the sun itself obeys my call."

Well, when it comes to such barnyard calculations of cause and effect, no man can put two and two together and arrive more adroitly at four than George C. Wallace. The "C." is for Chantecler. He has been crowing since the night of June 2.

Thus the redoubtable Alabaman took note last Sunday of Secretary Robert Finch's resignation as Welfare Secretary. "Maybe my election might have had something to do with it," said Wallace. Maybe it did. And maybe Chantecler crowed up the sun.

The trouble with Wallace's run-off victory in the Alabama primary — one trouble with it — is that conservative Republicans will have to fend off these merry jests for the next two years. And the devil of it is that Governor Puck has Mr. Nixon caught in a stick. If the President shifts Secretary Finch, or nominates a certain judge in South Carolina, or even builds a bridge across a bayou, it is to mollify Wallace. But if the President promotes equal employment, or brings a desegregation suit in Mississippi, it is the same thing in reverse: It is to prove that George Wallace cannot boss him around.

The President cannot avoid these picador jabs. The motives of politicians always are suspect, and Mr. Nixon holds no immunity from the analysts' assaults. All that can be suggested is that the President proceed on course, as placidly as the summer sun, and let Chantecler grow as he pleases. The Southern strategy has great political merit, from his party's point of view; and this merit has not been significantly affected by the Wallace comeback.

A couple of points need to be made. Yes, it is true that Wallace won his victory, deny it as he may, by blatantly racial appeals. He was not just speaking Jamaican when he hung on his opponent the political onus of the "bloc vote." But this victory was a victory of Wallace himself, in person, running on his own track. It ought not to be read as a portent of reviving racism everywhere. No other candidate, making the same appeals, could have defeated Governor Brewer.

Race prejudice is not worsening in the South. On the contrary, evidence abounds that desegregation in public and private institutions, where it is permitted to develop naturally, without artifice and coercion, is being accepted equably by the blacks and philosophically by the whites Certainly there are incidents; there are incidents everywhere. But whites and blacks have lived longer and closer together in the South than anywhere else, bound together in their own love-hate relationship, and they have learned to put up with each other pretty well. The movement is forward, not backward.

Wallace claimed 9.9 million votes, or 13.5 per cent of the total, in 1968. He carried the 46 electoral votes of five States. But analyst Kevin Phillips is quite likely correct in seeing this as a high-water mark. The bulk of these Wallace voters were conservative Democrats en route to Republican ranks. Wallace was for them a way-station, not the end of the line. Many of them will not be attracted —they will rather be repelled —by racist politics hereafter.

Nixon is President of all the people, including, among others, people who are white, conservative, Southern people. They are not lepers. They have been back in the Union a hundred years. And they cannot be short-changed as part of the price of "proving" Nixon's independence of George Wallace.

But Nixon is not only President, but politician also. He is the candidate of a minority party hunting hard for votes, and his party sorely needs the South. As Phillips says, that is where the ducks are. Where reasonable favors can be granted, or permissible gestures made, Nixon will want to gratify the South — not because of George Wallace, but despite him.

The Wallace "threat" is there. Of course it is there. It cannot be wished away. But the threat has no more real meaning, so long as Mr. Nixon goes his steadfast way, than cockle-doodle-doo by the hen house. This is the cry of truculent roosters; it is not the roar of hungry lions.

CURRENT PROBLEM!

Pressure And Conflict Pursue Robert Griffin In Senate And In Home

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure and conflict pursue Robert P. Griffin relentlessly.

Even at home his 19-year-old son vigorously opposes the Vietnam war while a 17-year-old collects pictures of Barry Goldwater.

The assistant Republican leader of the U.S. Senate can dismiss this quirk with a philosophical wave of the hand. But it is symbolic of other pressures, mounting daily, that keep him awake nights between 16 to 20-hour working days.

Prolonged Senate debate on the invasion of Cambodia has thrust Griffin back onto the national stage where, despite dramatic success in championing unpopular causes, he has never quite caught on.

But Griffin's increasing defense of the administration is causing worry among some friends and supporters. They feel he has taken a turn to the right that could harm him politically in Washington and in his labor-dominated home state of Michigan where faint rumblings can be heard.

Others—not quite so friendly —feel the Republican whip is too ambitious.

They accuse him—anonymously—of trying to shoulder aside GOP Leader Hugh Scott, a 69-year-old Pennsylvanian trying to preserve the necessary liberal credentials for re-election this year.

Griffin denies both charges.

"I don't look at things in terms of right or left," says the 46-year-old small town lawyer in the slow, cautious tones that are the hallmark of his public image. "In close situations, I believe in giving my president the benefit of the doubt."

With a resigned sigh, Griffin also denies the widespread but only whispered accusations that he is after Scott's job.

"Really," he says, "the best thing that could happen to me would be for Hugh to shore up his position so there just isn't any doubt he'll be re-elected. Life would be much simpler."

Nevertheless, the murmurings behind his back—which Griffin acknowledges are the price of leadership—go on. They add to the pressures that friend and enemy agree make his present situation the roughest in the Senate.

Those pressures began almost the instant Griffin was elected whip. A compromise choice, the election was accomplished with the help of a dozen or so liberal-moderates who, with some justification', consider themselves the Senate's real Republican power brokers.

Only a few months earlier Abe Fortas had resigned from the Supreme Court following conflict of interest charges. The move appeared to vindicate Griffin's lonely battle of a year earlier to block Fortas' nomination as chief justice.

The liberal-moderates were elated when Griffin, shortly after becoming whip, broke with the White House on the high court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.

His decision was a crucial factor in Haynsworth's defeat.

A 10-year congressman from a conservative Michigan district before going to the Senate in 1966, Griffin further endeared himself to the liberal-moderates by siding with them in fights over minority hiring and voting rights proposals.

Then came the Supreme Court nomination of G. Harrold Carswell.

Scott was away campaigning much of the time in a state where the Carswell nomination was not popular anyway. Griffin felt it his duty to fill the leadership void. But he confided to friends that he was not happy with the nomination. And he managed to convey an air of reluctance.

It was the U.S. attack into Cambodia that brought his troubles bubbling near the surface.

"Since you were willing to help your neighbor, there won't be any charge," she was told.

Councilman Johnnie Edwards is active in church work. At a recent City Council meeting he brought on a complete silence when he referred to City Manager Harry Hagerty as "preacher Hagerty."

Councilman Edwards corrected himself though. "I was thinking of all those Methodists meeting behind us in Jarvis tonight," he said with a grin.

Evans, Novak

In a two - hour political parley Tuesday (June 9 with James Allison, deputy chairman of the National Committee, Martin was warned the National Committee would not lift a finger for him unless he had the backing of the three Congressmen, as well as state Republican Chairman Dick Bennett.

Just before seeing Allison, one of the three Congressmen told Martin he would support him only if a reliable statewide poll showed Martin with a chance to win. Such a poll cannot be produced.

For one thing, Martin ran as an avowed segregationist for Governor against Lurleen Wallace in 1966, and the black vote — about one - fourth of the state total—would not think of backing him even against Wallace. Moreover, the black - controlled National Democratic Party of Alabama (NDPA) will almost certainly enter its own nominee against Wallace, completely denying Martin any part of the Nego vote.

Nor can Martin even count on all the anti - Wallace whites. Small - town political operatives who backed Gov. Albert Brewer against Wallace in the Democratic primary are now running back to Wallace, trying to make deals that will give them a piece of the action during the four Wallace years upcoming.

The question arises, then, why Martin is determined to run and the answer is found in Martin's political ambition. An oil distributor from Gadsden, Ala., Martin was elected to Congress in the Goldwater sweep of 1964 and has been trying to get back into elective politics ever since Lurleen Wallace clobbered him 2-to-1 in 1966.

After the first Democratic primary last May, for example, Martin tried to broker a deal for the Wallace-Brewer runoff between Charles Woods, third - place finisher in that primary, and Brewer. No deal could be made. He then went to Wallace with this proposition: if Wallace would stay neutral in a Congressional race between Martin and Democratic Rep. Tom Bevill, Martin would try to bring Woods into the Wallace camp for the primary run - off. Again, no deal was made.

If Martin now persists in running for Governor, the stage will be set July 17 at the state party's nominating convention for an unprecedented rebuff by the party's high command. Rather than give Wallace the chance to humilitate President Nixon and the Republican party, the state convention may humiliate Martin by simply denying him the legal right to run.

Research Grants Result In Tangible Returns For ECU

At East Carolina University, as with most universities today, we are constantly aware of the need for ongoing programs of research, development and training. In order for our good teachers to become better ones, we recognize the need for constantly seeking new knowledge, new techniques and new methods of instruction.

In that respect, during the past year, almost one of every six professors at East Carolina University wrote a detailed proposal to private and governmental foundations, seeking funds to support various programs of research, demonstration and training. It is important to keep in mind that these professors prepared their proposals while teaching and serving on committees and carring out the normal duties assigned them.

During the past year, 94 proposals were submitted from 27 departments of instruction. There are now 58 active grants on the campus, approaching two million dollars. And there are approximately 30 proposals still pending. We expect a good many of these pending applications to be approved and funded during the next few months.

While most of the support for research, demonstration and training comes from the federal and state agencies, private foundations are showing their faith in East Carolina University, its faculty and its programs. The most dramatic example of private investment in our university was the announcement recently that American Credit Corporation was contributing $100,000 toward the construction of aplanetarium on our campus. The cost of such a facility would be in the neighborhood of $300,000, and prospects are good that other individuals and foundations will provide the additional money needed.

But what does all of this mean to the community and the University?

In simple terms, it means a better education for your sons and daughters who come to East Carolina University. It means that our teachers become better informed and more qualified as each year pases. It means a continuing effort toward improvement of an already great university.

But above all, these grants mean that the federal government, the state government and private foundations have confidence in our ability to carry out the programs and projects that we propose. And we believe that we are living up to this confidence by giving our very best to the students who are counting on us to prepare them for th field of their choice.

Money is usually thought of as a tangible. But in this case, money for research, demonstration and training is an intangible which produces a tangible return in the form of quality education.—by Leo W. Jenkins

Forecasts Of Rising Economy Appear Based More On Hopes

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Forecasts, in and out of Washington, that the economy will touch bottom and be firmly on a new long-term rise before another six months have passed seem unduly optimistic—dream stuff, in fact.

True, the Nixon Administration's campaign to bring rising prices under control shows signs of losing some of its earlier determination. The insistence on a balanced budget is in retreat. Restraints on the money supply have been relaxed, deliberately.

But even if the Administration simply abandoned its efforts to hold a brake on such major inflation - makers as spending and credit, six months still is a very short time for the economy to reverse a major and now well established trend.

This, the outlook for the last half of 1970, viewed realisticly, points to continued decline as the adjustment process spreads to business areas which thus far have been able to stay on the boom track.

Two government reports within the week point to some of the downward pressures which will be developing as this year wears on. One deals with business spending, investment in plant and equipment. The other sheds some new light on employment - unemployment prospects.

One of the major strengths in the "private" side of the economy during the boom years has been the tremendous spending by business to build new plants and modernize older ones, with the hope that demands of the future could be met with more efficient equipment. This spending has been regarded as one of the major contributors to inflation, along with the big spending by governments.

Business is now trimming in this significant area, which means that some strength counted on to balance things on the up-side in the second half of the year will fail to develop. It should be noted that downward revisions are in plans to spend, not in the actual spending rate. Odds are that this year's plant and equipment outlay will reach the highest dollar total ever.

The significance is that the capital spending boom may top out this year, and then ease back. In 1969, this spending hit a whopping $75.5 - billion, up 11.5 percent from the previous year. Estimates earlier this year forecast a 10 percent rise for 1970. The new figures have cut the earlier climb to 7.5 percent, for a total of $81.5 - billion.

That's still big. The importance is that the rate of rise is slackening and can well foreshadow a decline next year. The impact will be greatest in the "heavy" industries — steel and tool - making. But plans are being trimmed by short profits and high interest.

The May employment - unemployment statistic also have a bearing on the future. It was the fact that unemployment jumped from 4.8 percent to 5 percent that made the headlines. But analysis of the figures gives strong indication that these is still worse to come.

For as long as about two years, there have been indications that employers have been "hoarding" manpower—holding on to workers and picking up extra ones not justified by immediate demands. This was the explanation for the steady drop in productivity, as reflected in unit output per man-hour. The practice was considered "insurance" at a time when it was popular to think that any business adjustment would be short and would be followed by an immediate and sharp rise in demand.

The May figures indicate that the "hoarding" practice is being discontinued — too costly at present demand levels and with all costs rising steeply and likely to continue to do so some time to come. The May figures showed the sharpest rise in unemployment resulted from "job separations," not from new workers coming into the labor force.

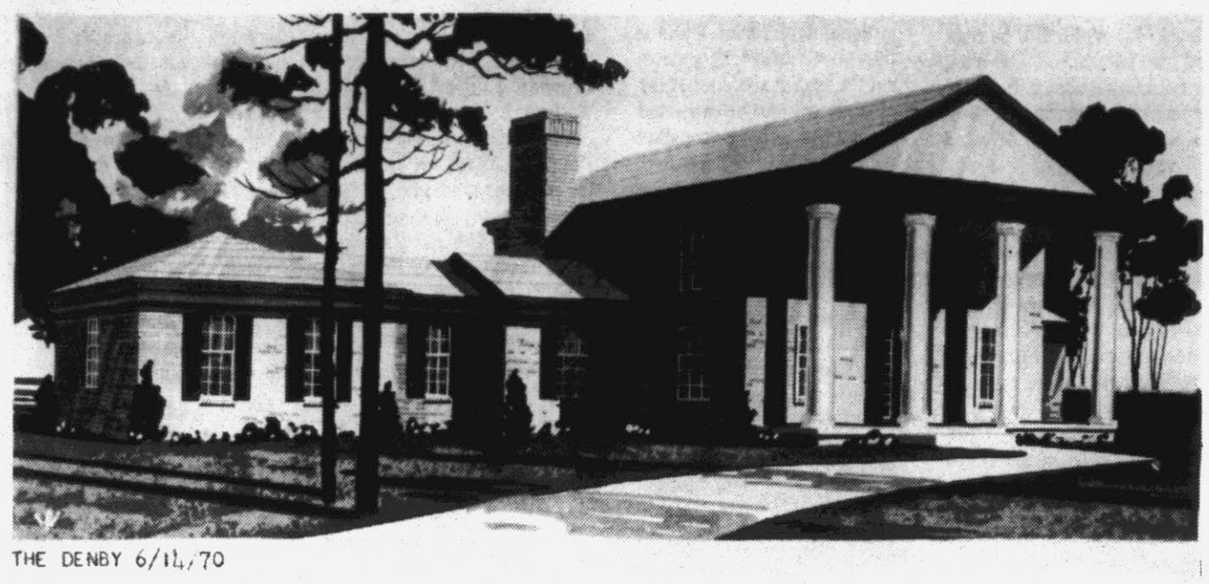
It is this type of unemployment that is likely to show further jumps in the next several months. Factory orders for goods have suffered another drop, which foreshadows still more production cutbacks.

So far, the tightening job picture is having no influence on wage demands by the big unions. They are still out to get all they can — offsets to living cost rises, plus. So far, too, management has been unwilling to weather strikes in order to break the wage spiral.

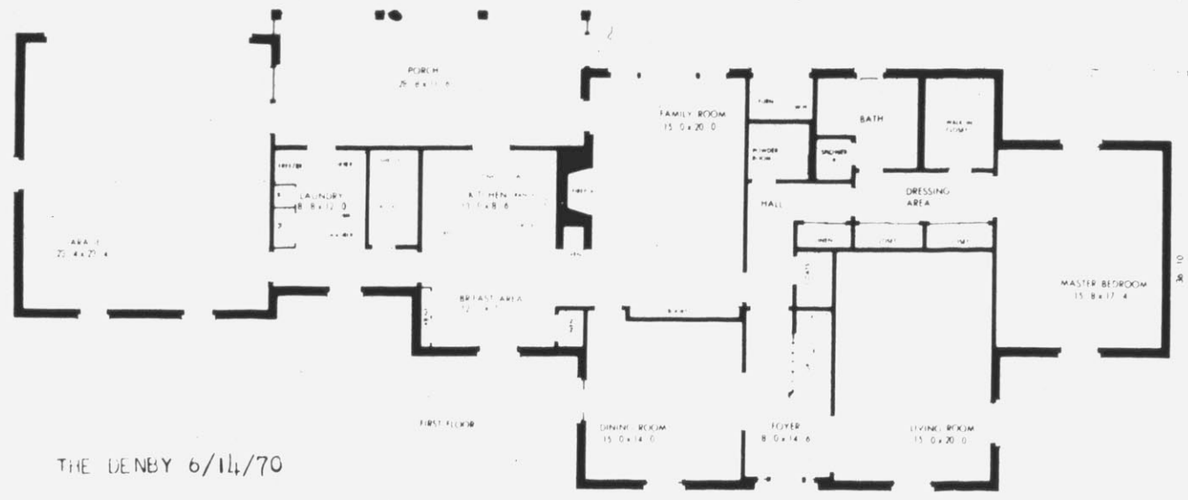
So far this year, wage settlements have been averaging over the 8 percent mark — calling for such increases each year for the next three years. Such a pattern builds in an annual price increase factor of at least 5 percent, or well up in the range considered much too inflationary to be maintained over the long pull.

Thus, there is little in the picture to support the claims that "it will all be over" before the end of the year. But the picture is not all dark, either. The easing that is taking place has been moderate, in most areas, and it is an adjustment from a record high. There is still a lot of strength.

Charm In The Southern Colonial



THE DENBY 6/14/70



THE DENBY 6/14/70

SOUTHERN CHARM — The Denby, a five - bedroom Southern colonial, is an exceptionally large home with three and a half baths, a foyer, living room, dining room, family room, kitchen with breakfast area, pantry, laundry room, double garage, screened - in porch and basement under the two - story center section.

By GERRY BISHOP

If Southern hospitality strikes a warm note in your heart, you'd like the Denby.

It's a majestic colonial with an impressive facade reminiscent of Southern tradition. Four stately pillars set the mood for the Denby, designed by the Associated Architects.

There are two wings, one for the kitchen - garage section, the other for the master bedroom.

The two - story center section is comprised of the main living area on the first floor and four additional bedrooms and two baths on the upper level.

This is a very large house. There are five bedrooms, three and a half baths, a foyer, a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen with breakfast area, pantry, laundry room, double garage and screened - in porch. The basement would be built under the center section.

The foyer, which bisects the center section, holds the key to the traffic pattern. It provides access to all first - floor areas as well as to the upstairs bedrooms.

Privacy Insured

The living room, measuring 15 feet by 20 feet, is off the main traffic flow, insuring privacy.

Across the hall is the dining room, 15 feet by 14 feet, an exceptionally large chamber which would fit well into a heavy social schedule.

It adjoins the family room and is convenient to the kitchen. The former is spacious, matching the living room's dimensions, and has a log-burning fireplace. This would be the center of family activities. Enhancing this prospect is the connection to the screened - in porch. Its sweeping measurements, approximately 28 feet by 12 feet, would provide an ideal haven for those warm summer days.

The kitchen was designed for efficiency. Cabinets and appliances are arranged in a U shape and occupy half of the room while a breakfast area comprises the other half.

Spacious Laundry

Nearby is a pantry and adjoining it is the laundry room with space for a washer, dryer, broom closet and another closet.

The laundry has access to the porch and garage.

Enjoying the seclusion of the other wing is the master bedroom, approximately 16 feet by 17 feet. It has a private bath with double vanity, shower and tub. There's also a dressing area, walk - in closet and twin closets.

The powder room is just off the foyer, strategically located near the family room.

Each of the four upstairs bedrooms is large, being approximately 15 feet square. Two bedrooms are connected by one bath. The other bath accomodates the other two bedrooms. All bedrooms have walk - in closets.

There are 3,740 square feet of living area and the outside dimensions are approximately 110 feet by 41 feet.

Suggestion: Try Home Addition With A Pool Built In For Smallfry

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Why not put an addition on your house—with a swimming pool in it? It's a good time to make plans for another year, if you can't do it now.

A good solution to the dilemma of swimming pools and child safety may be such a pool room. It is more effective than an outdoor pool that is enclosed but might attract curious smallfry.

Neighborhood toddlers are a worry to most pool owners. Some people become so vigilant about an outdoor swimming pool that they cannot enjoy it. Others want a pool but worry about the same problem.

One family wants to have a swimming pool, and they can well afford it, but the father doesn't trust locks, fences, covers. He doesn't think there is a fence made that will discourage a determined child.

But a swimming pool in a room of the house wouldn't attract the little people because the only entrance to it would be from within the house. The extra expense is negligible when you think of the safety features.

One pool room that is entered from a dining room has sliding safety glass walls that formerly led to a terrace but now open into the pool room. It also has a circular staircase that goes from the poolside to an upstairs bedroom entrance. This was simply a matter of removing an upstairs window and putting in a door, say the owners.

You could go on and on with the gimmicks that some people can afford, and they make it all sound so simple. But anyone can take short cuts within their budgets using the same basic ideas. You do not have to do everything on such a grand scale.

A do-it-yourselfer could keep costs down because the room should be a rough finished room. This room, a story and a half, is paneled completely in rough sawn cedar, except for floor-to-ceiling glass on one stretch of the outside wall that is directly opposite the sliding glass doors of the dining area. This permits the pool to be bathed in sunshine, and there is a nice outdoor feeling all the time. A completely enclosed pool without glass wouldn't be quite the same.

The 18-by-12-foot pool is heated and it is only six feet at the deep end. The lady of the house insisted on that maximum depth because she feels "that a non-swimmer falling into the pool might quickly manipulate himself to a safe spot."

The pool room is air-conditioned. The family spends so much time in the room all the year that they are sorry that they didn't have a fireplace put in it. They justify the expense because it is just about their sole form of recreation, and they find it is a very inexpensive way to entertain people. People are so grateful for an invitation to swim that they invariably bring their own goodies, and it is no strain on the chef's budget to entertain. The lady of the house finds that most people are embarrased to come empty-handed. She doesn't discourage their largesse—it's a lot of work cleaning up after a pool party.

The dining room was converted from a formal to an informal room with patio-style tables—round glass covered metal with matching white metal chairs covered in red and white cushions, and some pretty green ferns to provide decorative effects.

The family suggests that a pool expert be consulted before you begin such a project. You need to dig the pool before you build the house frame. You can do a smaller pool and a smaller room, and you don't have to finish the job at once. Many do-it-yourselfers may prefer to stretch out the project if money is scarce. Others may want to make plans for the future.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—Will you please tell me if my neighbor is putting me on? I told him about a couple of projects I have in mind—laying some bricks and installing wall-to-wall carpeting. In telling me what I need, he mentioned a left-handed trowel for the brickwork and a knee-kicker for the carpeting. I didn't want him to know how ignorant I am about such things, so I didn't say anything. Are there such things as a left-handed trowel (they all look alike to me) and a knee-kicker?

A.--He was giving it to you straight. Presumably, you are left-handed. A regular trowel for right-handed persons has one edge straight and one slightly curved, although some have two straight edges. The straight edge is the one you see on the left side as you look along the trowel when you hold it by the handle. This is for the operation of picking up the mortar. The curved edge is for cutting bricks, a step you should not attempt. If you have to cut any bricks, use a hammer and cold chisel. With a left-handed trowel, the edges are reversed.

A knee-kicker is just that. When placed on the floor in a horizontal position, its padded end is jolted with your knee to stretch the carpet into position. Unless you plan to do a lot of carpet installing, better rent rather than buy one. And have the dealer show you exactly how to use it. Hope you aren't in over your head in attempting to put down wall-to-wall carpeting. It can be an arduous task.

Q.--We have three pieces of dining room furniture with a limed oak finish. We recently obtained a fourth piece that fits in with the rest but doesn't have that kind of finish. I'd like to try my hand at giving it a limed oak finish, but don't know how to go about it, although Ihave done other kinds of wood finishing in the past. Can you help me?

A.--The first thing to be done is to take off the old finish with a commercial remover, being sure to follow the directions on washing off the residue after the job is done. Next, apply a bleach to the wood. At this point, compare the color of the wood with that of the furniture to be matched.

You can stain the wood or leave it natural. If you stain it, apply a sealer after the stain has dried, using one formulated for use under lacquer. Whether you stain or not, next apply a mixture of one part of water-white lacquer to five parts of lacquer thinner. When that is dry, fill the pores of the wood with a white filler.

Wait at least a day, then finish with water-white lacquer, this time using one part of lacquer to one part of lacquer thinner.

Local long-haired teen-agers fear they too will be dealt with following a Singapore government ban on the entry here of long-haired, bearded and gaudily-attired foreign youths.

It has often been said the easiset wasy to turn a mild, meek man into a snarling, reckless fool is to place him behind the wheel of an automobile.

A somewhat similar transformation takes place in many men when they get within the shadow of their home workshops. Careful, methodical types throw caution and intelligence to the wind, violating all the rules of safety they have read and heard about dozens of times.

Surveys show that a large percentage of workshop accidents occur because of fatigue, just as they do on the highway. Rule number one, therefore, is to stay out of the workshop when you are tired, most especially when your intention is to use power tools.

Here are some of the other Don'ts that can keep you off the accident list:

Don't wear a tie or other loose clothing that can get caught in machinery.

Don't carry on a conversation and work with tools at the same time. If someone interrupts you, stop what you are doing and complete your talk before resuming.

Don't forget to use goggles when there's any danger of flying splinters, especially when grinding.

Don't neglect to use the safeguards with which power tools are equipped. Example: the blade guard on a table saw.

Don't forget to place in covered metal containers any rags which have been used for grease, oil, solvents or other flammable materials.

Don't wear gloves when using power tools, but do wear them when handling acids or rough, abrasive products.

Don't place tools in a draw in helter-skelter fashion, since finger cuts are often suffered when looking for something in such a drawer.

Don't reach toward the cutting edges of a machine until the power has been turned off and the blades have stopped turning. This may seem like a somewhat unnecessary precaution, but the accident records prove otherwise.

Don't take your eyes off the cutting edge when hammering a cold chisel.

Don't, after spilling liquid on the workshop floor, tell yourself that you'll clean it up later, since you're likely to become absorbed in what you're doing and eventually find yourself flat on your back.

Don't fail to follow the manufacturer's directions about using his product "in a well-ventilated area," even if you've used the same material 20 times previously without trouble.

Win Damages For Poor Workmanship

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In increasing numbers, courts throughout the nation are awarding new home buyers damages from builders as a result of faulty workmanship.

A survey by Commerce Clearing House, a research organization, showed buyers were winning suits for cracked basements, smoky fireplaces and injuries caused by unreasonably hot water.

Many courts have ruled that the builder gives an "implied warranty" that the home will be defect-free, especially if it is purchased before construction is completed.

The Arkansas State Supreme Court upheld a damage award to a buyer because of faulty installation of heating and air-conditioning ductwork by the builder.

The court said: "Twenty years ago one could hardly find any American decision recognizing the existence of an implied warranty in a routine sale of a new dwelling. Both the rapidity and the unanimity with which the courts have recently moved away from the harsh doctrine of caveat emptor (let the buyer beware) in the sale of new houses are amazing, for the law has not traditionally progressed with such speed."

Generally, the courts have applied the warranty doctrine only to defects arising from construction of new homes. There is no similar warranty available to the second buyer of a home.

Colorado Decisions

A Colorado court awarded damages to the home buyer when, because of the nature of the soil, the basement slab floor cracked. Another Colorado decision went against a builder when clay soil beneath the foundation resulted in damages to the foundation, walls and floor.

In New Jersey, a family collected damages when a 16-month-old boy was burned because a faulty hot water system poured water from the tap at a dangerously high temperature.

A California builder was found to be liable for loss of land due to a landslide.

In Washington State, a fireplace builder was required to pay damages to an apartment house owner because of smoke damage caused by an inaequate flue liner.

A Kentucky homeowner was permitted to cover from the builder as a result of a leaky basement.

Company Builds 24-Zone Clock

NEW YORK (UPI) —The world's first 24-zone clock, programmed like a computer, features a miniature keyboard to control time-of-day readouts by an electronic display that reports time to the second for any of the 24 time zones around the world.

The clock in effect serves as a worldwide time reference system, says its developer, the Bulova Watch Co. The shift from one time-zone readout to another time-zone readout takes place instantly (indicating a.m. or p.m.), the moment the appropriate time-zone key is depressed. The clock has no moving parts, except for 24 keys on a miniature key-board and a three button setting system.

The first automatic transmission was introduced by Oldsmobile in 1937.

HAROLD A JONES

ECU Marching Pirates Will Have New Director

The Marching Pirates of East Carolina University will have a new director this fall.

Harold A. Jones, assistant professor of music, will assume directorship of the 160 member musical unit at the beginning of the 1970-71 school year.

The band director's job is primarily organizational. Jones will plan the formations, organize the musical sound and select the compositions which will comprise the half-time shows at football games.

The 1970 Marching Pirates will have two new features in the fall. A color guard unit will accompany the band and two feature twirlers will replace the majorettes.

Jones, who joined the ECU faculty in 1962, has had extensive band experience. He teaches percussion at ECU and has done studio and orchestral work in Detroit and Boston. He has been percussion instructor at the Brevard, Music Center, a clinician, soloist, and adjudicator (judge of bands) throughout the Eastern U.S.

After receiving the bachelor of music degree from the University of Michigan, Jones received the MA from ECU. He has done additional work at Boston University.

Assisting Jones in his duties as director will be John D. Savage of Richmond, Va., who will be coming to ECU as a graduate student.

"I am very pleased to have Mr. Savage as an assistant for next year," said Jones.

"He is an expert in the area of marching bands. His bands in Richmond and Emporia have been constant winners in band competitions for the past ten years.

"He has also served as adjudicator of bands throughout the Southeastern U.S."

At the end of the football season, the ECU Marching Pirates dissolve and form four groups: the Wind Ensemble, the Symphonic Band and the Varsity Band, which are heard in concert throughout the year, and the Pep Band which plays at basketball games.

Imports Wasps To Kill Weevils

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Pesticides will not be necessary within a few years in order to control the economic menace of the alfalfa weevil, according to entomologist George G. Gyrisco of Cornell University.

Gyrisco reports that introducing several species of wasps conquered the weevil in the Orange County area of New York's Hudson Valley. The wasps deposit eggs into the larvae of the alfalfa weevil and when the egg hatches, the paraiste feeds off the weevil host.

GUN SAFETY DRIVE

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Beginning in 1971, hunters in Quebec will be required to hold firearms proficiency certificates before gaining a license, says the Department of Games and Fisheries. Tourism Minister Gabriel Loubier says the move is part of a general gun safety campaign.

Train Cheaters To Catch Card Sharps

M. CRAWFORD POOLE

LONDON (UPI) —Set a thief to catch a thief, the old saying goes. Britain is applying the same theory to sharpers of the roulette and card tables.

In a suite of unglamorous rooms above an electrical showroom in London's tough East End district, the government has been giving 26 men intensive training in how to cheat at gambling —and paying the bill for it.

The men, mostly ex-police officers, have been on a three-months crash course, organized by the British Gaming Board which administers the country's gambling laws. The course ends July 1, the day stiff new gambling regulations go into effect. Then the cheating-wise students will disperse around the country as official inspectors to keep players and operators alike on the level in gambling casinos.

At the "Black Casino," as the East End school in cheating has been dubbed, the inspectors have been learning the psychology of gambling and gamblers, the history of gambling, how to gamble, the inside lore of various gambling games, and the machinery of slot machines and other gambling devices. The school looks like any gambling house, complete with roulette and card tables and lined with slot machines.

Basic French has been part of the course. Roulette, Baccarat and other games of French origin often are "called" in the French language at British casinos.

Professional magicians as well as professional gamblers have been on the teaching staff. Magicians have taught the men the tricks of shuffling cards without, in fact, shuffling them at all, and such niceties as palming cards or dice and various other dodges of the professional cheater.

Basics of the various gambling forms have been taught by croupiers, experts from bingo companies, card manufacturers, and the makers of gambling machines, including slots.

The inspectors will serve primarily as observers —their existence along presumably acting as an effective deterrent to would-be cheats. They will not, under their instructions, be permitted to gamble themselves —if they could afford to, which is unlikely. Their maximum pay will be $10,880 a year.

Their job will be to spot cheating and report it to local police or, as the case may be, to casino operators who are being cheated. The idea is that as cheating experts themselves, they are going to be hard to fool.

Don't Dress Sons Like Daughters

By Abigail Van Buren

[c 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: My sister has two children, a boy nine and a girl 12. The girl likes to dress her little brother up to look like a girl. She puts make-up on his face, and puts curlers and ribbons in his hair. Then she gives him girl's clothes and heels to wear. He makes a very pretty-looking girl, but what worries me is the way he enjoys it. In fact he begs his sister to dress him up and call him "Susie."

I have hinted to my sister to discourage this kind of play, but she sees no harm in it, and is relieved that sister and brother play so "nicely" together. Am I wrong to be concerned? My sister is divorced, so there is no father influence in the home. CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: You could be "concerned" with good reason. Quit "hinting" and TELL your sister that environment plays an important role in gender identification. In other words, boys will be boys—unless they'd rather be girls, and hers is off to a girlish start.

Per my promise of last Sunday, my TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR WIVES:

1. Defile not thy body neither with excessive foods, tobacco nor alcohol, that thy days may be long in the house which thy husband provideth for thee.
2. Put thy husband before thy mother, thy father, thy daughter and thy son, for he is thy lifelong companion.
3. Thou shalt not nag.
4. Permit no one to tell thee that thou art having a hard time of it; neither thy mother, thy sister nor thy neighbor, for the Judge will not hold her guiltless who letteth another disparage her husband.
5. Thou shalt not withhold affection from my husband for every man loveth to be loved.
6. Forget not the virtue of cleanliness and modest attire.
7. Forgive with grace, for who among us does not need forgiveness?
8. Remember that the frank approval of thy husband is worth more to thee than the admiring glances of a hundred strangers.
9. Keep thy home in good order, for out of it cometh the joys of thy old age.
10. Honor the Lord thy God all the days of thy life, and thy children will rise up and call thee blessed.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "LITTLE ME" not to bother with an umbrella or a golf club to keep her brother-in-law in line. All she needs is a nice long HAT PIN! And keep it in plain view. A man is more afraid of a hat pin than a club.

L. M. H. [ATHENS, GA.]

CONFIDENTIAL TO F. F. IN PASADENA: The "little things" add up. Did you know that the total shoplifted in the U. S. A. in ONE DAY "adds up" to more than the total robbed out of our BANKS in ONE YEAR?

She Fainted At Sight Of 'Footloose'

MONTREUX, Switzerland (WNS) — One-legged Roger Delaine, 82, still rides a bicycle for daily health but ran into trouble when he stopped and asked a lady for help. As he told it, "My artificial foot, including shoe and sock, had come loose from my wooden leg while I was pedaling, so I had to stop and couldn't dismount. I asked the lady to pick up my foot, and she fainted, poor thing."

Good Listener For Traveling Hubby

GLASGOW, Scotland (WNS) — Andrew Newhall, 42, is a traveling salesman with a wife who loves to talk to him at home but never writes letters to him while he is on the road. His solution: he has had a tape recorder attached to a bust of himself in the living room. "My darling talks her heart out to the statue every night and mails me the tapes," he reported. "It's very satisfying for both of us."

INTERIORS TODAY

(Drapery Do's and Don'ts)

Draperies have two character presentations. One is their appearance, undrawn.

The other is their appearance, drawn.

When undrawn, they should not look too bunched. When drawn they should still present a fluted appearance. Your dealer will advise you as to how to solve this problem.

Submit accurate measurements when you have curtains custom-made.

Badly proportioned cornices and valances may ruin the entire room balance. Cornices are usually 4 to 10 inches high, according to window height.

Draperies must be full enough to be pleasing when hung. Drapery texture determines how well a fabric drapes.

Patterned fabrics require more yardage than plain.

'Something For Everybody' In Recreation Program

The summer program of the Recreation Department offers something for children of all ages.

The program begins Monday with supervised activities scheduled for eight weeks through August 7th.

Recreational opportunities include childrens playgrounds, Small Fry baseball, bowling, swimming, and horseback riding, adult tennis lessons, and Mens and Womens softball leagues.

The programs are open to people of all ages and sex, but are aimed primarily at the City's young people.

Boyd Lee, director of the Recreation Department said, "We realize that during the year the children are kept busy with school work and school activities. We think our summer program will be a welcome change and will provide each of them with a summer of fun and relaxation."

With that in mind, Lee and his staff . . . Charles Vincentassistant director; Linda Burrell, program supervisor; and Luke Hemby, South Greenville director, have planned the programs.

End Savings Stamp Sale

The sale of U.S. Savings Stamps will be discontinued at the close of business June 30, according to Donald F. Hargy, officer-in-charge of the Greenville Post Office.

Savings Stamps were once a popular means for school children to purchase U.S. Savings Bonds, Hargy said. "However, rising administrative costs and reduced participation in recent years have caused a discontinuation of this plan."

Hargy advised that school children should complete their unfilled stamp albums and exchange them for U.S. Savings Bonds which now pay five percent interest when held to maturity of five years and ten months

While savings stamps will no longer be on sale after June 30, fully or partially completed albums may be used to purchase savings bonds at banks or may be redeemed for cash at either the main post office or the Tenth Street station, Hargy explained.

Promotion Announced

L. Ray Hardee has been promoted window service technician at the Greenville Post Office, it was announced today by Donald F. Hargy, officer-in-charge of the local post office.

A Greenville native and graduate of Greenville High School, Hardee joined the post office in 1960 after serving three years in the Armed Services. He has been a window clerk since 1965.

He was awarded the Superior Accomplishment Award in May by the Post Office for his work in moving into the new postal facility and for his manner in working with the public. He also received a check with the award.

Nichols Grabs Western Golf Lead

Tigers Rally To Nip Angels

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers rallied for three runs in the eighth inning Saturday on four singles, a hit batter and a wild pitch and edged the California Angels 6-5.

Mickey Stanley and Al Kaline started the rally with singles off starter Tom Murphy and reliever Ken Tatum yielded run-scoring singles to Willie Horton and Jim Northrup, tying the score. Bill Freehan was hit by a pitch and pinch runner Ike Brown scored the winning run on Tatum's wild pitch.

The Tigers earlier came back from a 3-1 deficit to tie the score on solo homers by Kaline in the third and Dick McAullife in the fifth.

The Angels nicked Les Cain for their fourth unearned run in the seventh on two infield hits and two errors to take a 4-3 lead and Murphy stroked a run-scoring single in the eighth.

Indians Explode For 10-6 Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ray Fosse's homer ignited a seven-run Cleveland explosion in the second inning Saturday and the Indians held on to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers 10-6.

The Brewers grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Mike Hegan rapped a two-out double and Danny Walton followed with his 13th homer of the season.

But the Indians erupted in the second after Fosse led off with his ninth homer. Graig Nettles walked, Tony Horton doubled and they both scored on Ted Uhlaender's double.

Cleveland starter Phil Hennigan walked and Jack Heidemann singled to score Uhlaender. Eddie Leon's single filled the bases and Vada Pinson singled to score Hennigan and Heidemann. Leon scored on a wild pitch by Milwaukee reliever Ken Sanders.

Tommy Harper smashed a three-run, inside-the-park homer after two walks in the fourth, trimming the Indians' edge to 7-5. The Brewers cut it by another run in the seventh on Mike Hershberger's RBI single.

But Cleveland scored three more runs in the seventh on singles by Heidemann, Fosse and Roy Foster, two walks, a balk by reliever John Gelnar and a fielder's choice.

Reserve Clause Nearly Lost Brosnan A Wife

NEW YORK (AP) — There was the time during the minor league career of pitcher Jim Brosnan when he came home from a hard day at the ball park to find his wife threatening divorce.

At the time, he thought the problem was the steaks.

Now he knows the problem was the reserve clause.

Brosnan told the story of the steaks during the 16 days of testimony in the Curt Flood case that ended last Wednesday when Judge Irving Ben Cooper reserved decision in the first full court proceeding in which the merits of baseball's controversial reserve system have been argued.

One of 21 witnesses to appear during the trial, Brosnan took up little of the some 2,000 pages of testimony recorded, but his story of the steaks did establish a point for Flood—that the restrictions in the reserve system can disrupt a player's life.

Brosnan had come home that day after his wife had received notice that her pitcher husband had been assigned to another club, one in a series of moves he had made up and down the minor league ladder that season.

"My wife threatened to divorce me," Brosnan said under oath. "She had just bought two weeks of steak and put them in the freezer. She wanted to know what she should do with the steaks now."

The steaks didn't go to waste —but it wasn't the Brosnans who barbecued them. Mrs. Brosnan just left them in the freezer for the player who reported in her husband's place.

Brosnan's testimony, of course, was not considered a key to Flood's $3 million antitrust suit challenging the legality of the reserve system—which binds a player to the club that signs him until he is traded, sold or released.

But it did point up the fact that the reserve system can not only affect where a player plays and how much he earns, but his personal life as well, and, therefore, may infringe on basic rights guaranteed every human being.

"It is Flood's contention," says Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, which is supporting the suit, "that many restrictions in the reserve system are in violation of antitrust laws and are unduly restrictive under interpretation of the rule of reason."

Judge Cooper, a mustachioed jurist who probably will not hand down his decision for several months, seemed to note that philosophical aspect of the problem at the closing session when he pointed out a judge was "not a passionless thinking machine" and noted that the battle between lawyers during the trial had been fought as "a cause."

The key to Judge Cooper's decision lies, of course, in the testimony, against a backdrop of the 1953 Toolson case in which baseball's exemption from federal antitrust laws was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mark Hughes, in asking Judge Cooper to dismiss the suit, argued that Flood's case, in essence, was no different than the Toolson case, and pointed out that Flood had shown no significant change in conditions since the Toolson decision was handed down.

Jay Topkis, representing Flood, agreed that the Toolson case was an "obstacle," but said that a full record was needed to allow a higher court to deal with removing it. In his argument, Topkis pointed to the "totality" of baseball's restrictions under the reserve system.

Judge Cooper agreed that all facts should be developed in one trial so that issues would not be decided piecemeal, and made the point at trial's end of the historic nature of the proceedings by remarking

"We now close the one and only trial record in this case."

Sadecki Sets Down Braves For Mets, 4-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Sadecki baffled Atlanta on five hits and Tommie Agee drove in two runs with a homer and double as the New York Mets whipped the Braves 4-1 Saturday.

Sadecki, a 29-year-old lefthander acquired last winter from San Francisco, ran his record to 5-1 and retired 17 consecutive batters between Rico Carty's leadoff double in the second and a two-out single by Carty in the seventh.

Agee, who hit two homers and two singles Friday night, started the scoring against 19-yearold lefty Mike McQueen in the third with his 12th home run, a towering opposite-field drive over the right field fence.

The Mets got three more runs and kayoed McQueen, 0-1, in the fourth. Singles by Joe Foy, Duffy Dyer and Al Weis accounted for the first run and Agee doubled home another. Milt Pappas relieved and Weis scored on Bud Harrelson's infield hit.

Through seven innings, Carty was the only Brave to reach second. After his second-inning double, though, Sadecki retired Orlando Cepeda on a pop fly, struck out Tony Gonzalez and got Clete Boyer on a grounder to short.

The Braves finally scored in the eighth, Gonzalez led off with a single, took second on Bob Tillman's checked-swing infield roller and scored on a two-out pinch single by Bob Aspromonte.

Sadecki walked one and struck out four, getting Hank Aaron twice. The only other hit was Felix Millan's leadoff bunt single in the ninth, but Sadecki got Aaron to hit into a force play, fanned Carty and retired Cepeda on a pop to short.

Fires 67 To Take Stroke Lead On Field

CHICAGO (AP) — Big Bobby Nichols charged from four strokes off the pace, overtook struggling Hugh Royer and vaulted into the third-round lead in the $130,000 Western Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

The 6-foot-2 Nichols, a former PGA champion, had a third round 67, four under par on the 6,023-yard Beverly Country Club course, for a 54-hole total of 203, 10 under par.

Royer, the drawling Georgian who held the 36-hold lead, kept his composure until the final hole when he bowed to pressure and finished with a 73 for 204, one stroke back.

Royer, a longtime club pro at Callaway Gardens, Ga., who returned to the tour 3½ years ago, held a four-stroke advantage starting the hot, muggy day but, paired with Arnold Palmer before a massive gallery, could only manage par golf through the first 17 holes.

Then he bogeyed the par five final hole, finding a trap with his second shot, coming up short in three and finally missing from 4½ feet.

Dal Douglass, a lanky character who packs only 155 pounds on his 6-foot-2 frame, moved into third place with a 67 for 205, eight under par.

Locked at 207, six under par, were Bobby Brue, 67, Jim Jamieson, 69, Tom Weiskopf 70, and Palmer, who failed to get a charge going took a 71.

Rives McBee, with a 66, and Bert Yancey, 68, followed at 208. Jack Nicklaus moved into contention with a 67 for 209 and was tied at that figure with Julius Boros, Bob Charles, Gibby Gilbert and Tom Shaw.

Nichols, a handsome, husky 6-foot-2 who has won eight tour titles, scored his last individual championship in the 1966 Minnesota Classic.

He has won over $23,000 this year, but has only one finish in the top 10.

The high school football and basketball star whose athletic career was jeopardized by an automobile accident that one time left him paralyzed from the waist down, is a former recipient of the Ben Hogan Award for his comeback despite his injuries.

He started his move with a 552-foot master putt on the third hole, pitched to within 12 inches on the fifth, then three-putted the sixth for his only bogey.

He saved par from a trap on the ninth, then made his round with a string of three consecutive birds starting at No. 11. He pitched an eight iron within four feet of the flag there, ran in a 10 foot putt on the next and again using the eight iron had only a six-foot putt on the 13th.

Homers Lead Nat Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — The Washington Senators slammed five home runs, including successive blasts by Frank Howard and Mike Epstein in the fourth inning, on the way to a 12-7 come-from-behind victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

The Senators scored four unearned runs in the first inning against Jerry Janeski, two of them on Aurelio Rodriguez' sixth homer of the season.

But Joe Grnenda, the Senators' starter, was rocked for seven hits, including a homer by Walt Williams, as the White Sox rallied for two runs in the second and three more in the third for a 5-4 edge.

Jim French's double, a walk and Howard's 17th homer sent the Senators ahead to stay in the fourth and Epstein followed with his seventh homer, chasing loser Janeski.

Bases-empty homers by French, in the seventh inning, and Del Unser, in the eighth, completed Washington's long-ball barrage.

Lanier's Fly Nips Cardinals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hal Lanier drove in the deciding run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning and reliever Don McMahon pitched out of a tight jam in the eighth as the San Francisco Giants nipped St. Louis 6-5 Saturday.

The Giants scored three runs in the first inning and Lanier doubled to touch off a two-run second that sent them ahead 5-3.

Joe Torre's bases-empty homer in the top of the fifth closed the gap, but Lanier's bases-loaded liner to center in the bottom half gave the Giants a 6-4 edge.

After Torre's homer, McMahon, who replaced starter Rich Robertson in the fourth, retired the Cards in order until the eighth, when Torre led off with a single and Joe Hague followed with a run-scoring triple.

McMahon then retired Ted Simmons, Julian Javier and pinch-hitter Vic Davalillo, stranding Hague on third.

Singles by Bobby Bonds and Ron Hunt and a double by Willie McCovey keyed the Giants' first inning burst against Nelson Briles and reliever Sal Campisi.

Run-scoring singles by Javier, Dal Maxvill and Lou Brock tied it in the top of the second, but Lanier's double and another by Willie Mays helped send San Francisco ahead to stay in the bottom of the inning.

Thomas Ignites Bosox To Beat Twins By 6-4

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — George Thomas, Boston's playing coach, slammed out three hits in his first 1970 start and ignited a four-run rally Saturday as the Red Sox beat the Minnesota Twins 6-4.

The 32-year-old Thomas, activated last Wednesday when pitcher Jim Longborg was put on the disabled list, scored all three times he got on base and his second double of the game in the sixth opened a six-hit Boston barrage.

Carl Yastrzemski singled, Reggie Smith doubled and Billy Conigliaro drilled a two-run single. Catcher Gerry Moses and pitcher Ray Culp followed with single as the Red Sox batted around against loser Jim Kaat, 5-4, and reliever Bill Zepp.

Culp, 5-6, survived a shaky start as the Twins built a 3-1 edge in the first two innings and retired 14 straight men before Rod Carew tripled in the seventh. But he needed relief help in the ninth as the Twins scored one run to close the gap.

Thomas starting at third base for the Red Sox, slapped a double in the first inning, moved to third on a groundout and scored the game's first run on Kaat's wild pitch.

The Twins got the run back in their first turn at bat. Cesar Tovar led off by taking second on Culp's wild throw to first on an infield hit. After moving to third on a grounder, Tovar dashed home on Culp's wild pitch.

Kaat came in with the go-ahead Minnesota run in the second when catcher Gerry Moses dropped Conigliaro's perfect peg from right field on Carew's single. Tony Oliva drove in the second run of the inning with a single.

Whitworth Is LPGA Leader

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Favored Kathy Whitworth withstood pressure applied by limping Shirley Englehorn and charged to a two-stroke lead after 54 holes Saturday in the $30,000 Ladies PGA Championship.

Miss Whitworth, tied with Miss Englehorn at the start of the third round, managed only a par 73, but that gave her a total of 213 with 18 holes left Sunday at the Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Miss Englehorn, who had to visit an orthopedic specialist Friday night for treatment for an ailing ankle which has plagued her since an auto accident in 1965, took a three-stroke lead after 44 holes, but Miss Whitworth rallied with three straight birdies to square matters.

Kathy took a bogey 5 on the 48th hole and Shirley nursed the advantage until she suffered a double bogey 6 on the 53rd hole. She finished with a 75 for 215.

The top performances in the third round were three-under-par 70s turned in by Murle Lindstrom, JoAnne Gunderson Carner and Pam Barnett.

Miss Lindstrom moved into a third-place tie at 216 with Marilynn Smith, who had a 73.

Mrs. Carner and former LPGA champion Sandra Haynie, who had a third-round 72, were deadlocked another stroke back at 217.

Greenville Sets Down Rocky Mount, 5-1

ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville's Post 39 American Legion baseball team rolled to a 5-1 victory over Rocky Mount Friday night. The win boosted the Legion's record to 2-1 for the season.

Russ Smith hurled a five - hitter at Rocky Mount, and didn't give up a hit until the seventh inning, when three straight got him into trouble and resulted in the only Rocky Mount tun.

Smith finished the game with nine strikeouts and did not walk a batter.

Only one Rocky Mount player managed to reach base prior to the seventh, when Howard McCollough reached on an error in the third, and took second on a wild pitch.

Greenville, meanwhile, was putting men on base in every inning. They left 15 men on the paths as they failed to come up with hits when they could have turned it into a rout.

Twice the Greenville team left the bases loaded, in the second and seventh innings, as starting pitcher Larry Daughtridge lacked control and walked 12 batters in the seven innings he worked.

Still, he managed to get them out when it counted.

After three walks loaded the bases in the second, the last batter popped up, but Greenville came back in the third to finally push over a run.

Tommy Durham led off the third with a single, and with two outs, Jimmy Bond's ball to the outfield was errored, and Durham came in to score before the relay cut Bond down trying for third.

Two walks led off the fourth, but the next three went down in order to end that threat. Two more walks led to the same situation in the fifth.

In the seventh, Greenville pushed over two more, and that proved to be all they needed. Durham again started things off, arriving on a walk. Tony Whitehurst sacrificed him up, and with two outs, Bond drew a walk. A walked moved Durham up, and Jimmy Paige stroked a double, driving in both runners. Paige went on to third on a wild pitch, and two more walks loaded the bases before the final out.

Rocky Mount scored its only run in the bottom of the seventh. Pete Thompson led off with a single and Mike Ruffin followed with another hit. Ricky Leonard got a double, bringing Thompson home with the only run.

Paige them came on with a shoestring catch off the next batter, and made a fine throw home in time to chase Ruffin back to third. The next two went down in order to end the threat, and Rocky Mount failed to press again.

Greenville got two more in the ninth. Joe West walked and moved to third on Joe Moore's single. A walk brought West in and moved Moore to second, and he scored on Smith's single.

Moore was the only Greenville hitter with two hits. Leonard had two of the five hits for Rocky Mount.

Greenville was to play Roanoke Rapids in the home opener Saturday night, and travels to Roanoke Rapids for another game this afternoon at 2 p.m.

The Optimists avoided elimination from the North State Little League race, and pulled out of sole possession of the cellar with an 8-3 victory over the Lions yesterday.

The Kiwanis lead the league with an 8-2 record, followed by R.C. Cola, 6-4, the Jaycees and Coke, both 5-5, and the Lions and Optimists, both 3-7.

The Optimists pushed over one run in the top of the first. Ashley Bass doubled and scored when B.G. Clark reached on an error.

But the Lions came up with two in their half of the inning. Mike Adams walked and Dale Steele brought him home with a double. Steele went to third on an error, and scored when Carlton Wall singled.

The Optimists came back in the third to take the lead for good pushing over four for a 5-2 lead. Bass started things off with a walk and Clark single. Both advanced on a passed ball, and Gary Porter's ground - out scored Bass. Mike Grimsley reached on an error, scoring Clark, and Lee Spain cracked a homer for the final two runs.

In the fourth, the Optimists added another run. Ricky Robinson singled and moved to second on a passed ball. Bass walked and Clark reached on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Porter singled, driving in Robinson.

The final Optimist runs came in the sixth. Bass reached on an error and Clark brought him home with a double. Porter singled to score Clark.

The Lions managed one more, in the bottom of the sixth. Guy Bradbury reached on a fielder's choice, and Wall doubled. Wright Hooks got a single, scoring Bradbury.

Clark and Porter led the Optimist hitting with two, while Wall had three and Hooks had two for the Lions.

Exchange Downs Elk Nine By 8-6

The Exchange stayed in the battle for the Tar Heel League title yesterday with a 6-4 victory over the Elks.

The Granteers lead the league with a 9-1 record, while the Moose and Pepsi - Cola are tied for second with 7-3 marks. The Exchange, at 4-6, is the only other team with a chance to catch them. The Elks, 2-8, and Integon, 1-9, are out of the race.

The Elks took the initial lead, pushing over a run in the top of the first. Bobby Mosley singled and stole second. Rucky Skinner singled to move him to third, from where he scored on a passed ball.

In the bottom of the first, however, the Exchange came up with three runs. Thil Hurley reached on an error and moved up on a ground out. Mike Belton singled and Doug Paschal got a hit, scoring Hurley. Gene Bunn then doubled, driving in both Belton and Paschal.

In the second, the Elks came up with another run. Wayne Clemmons reached on an error, stole second, and came around on an error.

The Elks picked up another in the top of the third to tie it at 3-3. Pete Hargett singled and stole both second and third, scoring on another error.

But in the bottom of the third, the Exchange came up with three more to shut the door on the Exchange. Hurley walked up on Bunn's fielder's choice. Paschal stole third and scored when Ricky Armstrong singled.

The Elks came up with one more, on a homer by Hargett in the sixth.

Hargett had two hits to lead the Elks, while Belton had three and Paschal had two for the Exchange.

Billie King Paces Cup Win

By GEOFFREY MILLER

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Mrs. Billie Jean King piloted an injury-striken U.S. women's tennis team to a come-from-behind 4-3 triumph over Britain in the Wightman Cup Saturday.

The former contract professional from Long Beach, Calif., staged her rescue operation after Britain had taken a 3-2 lead and Nancy Richey had been forced out of action because of a knee injury.

Mrs. King first downed Mrs. Ann Jones, the reigning Wimbledon champion, 6-4, 6-2, then she teamed with substitute Peaches Bartkowicz of Hamtramck, Mich., in an exciting 7-5, 3-6, 6-2 victory over Virginia Wade and Winnie Shaw in the final doubles.

Miss Bartkowicz substituted for Miss Richey, who twisted her left knee and pulled a rib muscle while losing to Miss Wade earlier.

Miss Richey planned to return home to San Angelo, Tex., and forego Wimbledon. Her father, professional coach George Richey, said: "She's not fit, and there is no point in her staying She was already playing under the handicap of a strained somach muscle anyway."

There was a touch of bitter irony for the Americans as the British doubles pair took a 2-0 lead in the final set and threatened to win the cup — for taking photographs at the side of the court was Rosemary Casals, Mrs. King's regular doubles partner, who had been left out of the U.S. line-up.

But the Americans batted back. Mrs King, volleying at the net, threw most of the punches, but Miss Bartkowicz played her part in the victory by hitting steadily from the baseline.

A crowd of 5,000 watched the series see-saw back and forth during the second day on Wimbledon's No. 1 court.

Britain began the day leading 2-1 but Julie Heldman of New York City defeated Mrs. Joyce Williams 6-3, 6-2 and levelied the series.

Virginia Wade, hitting the ball with tremendous power, then outgunned the injured Miss Richey 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. King then took center stage—first in the singles and then in the doubles.

Miss Richey met with her accident when she was level 2-2 with Miss Wade in the first set.

Mrs. Doris Hart, U.S. nonplaying captain, helped her to limp from the court and bandaged her knee.

The little Texan limped back and continued the match. The limp did not last long but she moved slowly about the court and often made no attempt to go forward and meet Miss Wade's drop shots.

Pitt Golf Set For Weekend

The Pitt County Invitational Golf Tournament will be played next Saturday and Sunday at the Farmville Golf and Country Club.

Pro Ed Smoot said that there are still berths available to members of clubs in Pitt County. These include Farmville, Grifton, Ayden, Greenville and Brook Valley.

The deadline for entries is Thursday, according to Smoot. The tournament will be played over 36 holes during the weekend.

Sandy Wins Women's Again

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP) — Sandy Barnhill of Williamston is still champion of the North Carolina Women's Golf Association, thanks to her driving and iron play.

She downed Margaret Hannon of Tryon 7 and 6 in the championship finals.

Miss Barnhill, 23, said, "I'd been hitting poor iron shots all spring, but in the tournament I played the iron shots well," she said.

Miss Barnhill is an East Carolina University graduate who teaches physical education in Edenton schools.

Arnie Belts One

Wearing a determined look, Arnold Palmer plays an iron shot to the 11th green Friday in the second round of the Western Open in Chicago. Arnie reached the green and took a par five on the 598-yard hole. Palmer was tied for second place with a 136, four strokes behind the surprise leader, Hugh Royer, after the round. (AP Wirephoto)

Brewers Win First In Last 19 On Road

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The road company of the Milwaukee Brewers, with Russ Snyder in the leading role, finally put on a hit Friday night after 17 consecutive flops.

The veteran outfielder walloped a grand slam homer in the eighth inning after Cleveland pitcher Rich Hand issued three walks with two outs, powering the Brewers to a 4-1 victory, their first triumph away from home in 18 games.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox, another team that subscribes to the theory that home is where the heart and the wins are, dropped a 5-2 decision to the Twins in Minnesota; California beat Detroit 5-2, Oakland tripped Baltimore 4-2 in 11 innings, the New York Yankees blanked Kansas City 5-0 and the Chicago White Sox zeroed Washington 6-0 on Tommy John's two-hitter.

In the National League, Dock Ellis pitched a no-hitter as Pittsburgh defeated San Diego 2-0 in the opener of a two-nighter. The Padres won the nightcap 5-2. Cincinnati downed Philadelphia 3-1, the New York Mets trounced Atlanta 8-1, Montreal edged Houston 7-6, St. Louis defeated San Francisco 4-1 and Chicago whipped Los Angeles 2-1.

Milwaukee and Cleveland were locked in a scoreless struggle until Hand walked Gus Gil, pitcher Marty Pattin and Tommy Harper in the eighth and Snyder belted his third home run of the season. The Indians scored off Pattin in their half on a walk, wild pitch and Eddie Leon's singles.

The Brewers, a respectable 12-15 at home, had lost 24 of 29 road games, including all 10 in May, and hadn't won away from home since a 5-3 victory in Boston April 26.

The Red Sox, 20-8 in the friendly confines of Fenway Park, lost for the 19th time in 25 road contests as Ron Perranoski came on in the seventh to strike out Mike Andrews with two on and two out. The lefty reliever picked up his 14th save.

Winner Jim Perry singled home the first run of the game in the second inning. Brant Alyea and Leo Cardenas doubled runs across in the fifth and the Twins wrapped it up on in the eighth on run-scoring hits by George Mitterwald and Rod Carew. Tom Satriano homered for the Sox.

The Angels remained 2½ games behind Minnesota in the AL West as Jim Fregosi hit two homers and Billy Cowan one off Tiger starter John Hiller. Detroit's Bill Freehan connected off winner Andy Messersmith, 6-5, who scattered seven hits.

The East Division race, which once looked like a runaway for Baltimore, tightened up some more as the Orioles lost and the Yankees won to pull within four games of the Birds.

The A's and Orioles went to the 11th inning tied 2-2 on solo homers by Campy Campaneris and Rick Monday in the first for Oakland and Clay Dalrymple and Don Buford in the sixth for Baltimore.

But in the 11th, Dick Green was hit by a pitch from Eddie Watt, Mudcat Grant sacrificed and Campaneris hit a tie-breaking double and scored himself on Reggie Jackson's double.

Reliever Grant blanked the Orioles over the last four innings and pitched out of three scoring threats while lowering his earned run average to a sparkling 0.83 in 26 appearances.

Fritz Peterson hurled a five-hitter for the Yanks in becoming the first pitcher to blank the Royals this season. Two errors helped New York to two runs in the third off Dave Morehead, Danny Cater singled a run home in the fifth and Jerry Kenney tripled in the seventh, scoring on Bobby Murcer's single, and homered in the ninth.

Dock Ellis Has No-Hit Victory

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dock Ellis knew he had something going but the strong-armed Pittsburgh right-hander needed a slight adjustment and a diving teammate in hurling the first no-hitter of the 1970 season.

Ellis, a 25-year-old who claims, "You're supposed to mature at 21. I'm four years late," overcame his own wildness Friday night in stopping the San Diego Padres without a hit in the Pirates 2-0 victory in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader.

The 6-foot-3, 196-pounder, was backed by a pair of homers by Willie Stargell and an acrobatic catch by second baseman Bill Mazeroski in achieving his masterpiece.

The Padres took the nightcap 5-2 while in other National League action, Cincinnati topped Philadelphia 3-1, New York crushed Atlanta 8-1, St. Louis whipped San Francisco 4-1, Chicago edged Los Angeles 2-1 and Montreal nipped Houston 7-6.

Ellis, in his third major league season, now has a 5-4 season record and is 22-26 lifetime. He struck out six Padres Friday night but walked eight and hit a batter.

Last season Ellis was 11-17 and in a dispute with writers, refused to talk baseball. However, he changed his mind this season he says because, "I guess getting my rear kicked in by the hitters last year helped me. So I'm going to talk but mainly I'm going to pitch."

And that he did. The only close call was pinch hitter Ramon Webster's liner in the seventh inning that Mazeroski had to dive at to make a backhand stab.

The Padres came back to win the nightcap as Danny Coombs fired a five-hitter and Al Ferrara cracked a two-run fifth inning homer, snapping a 2-2 tie.

Tony Perez, the majors' home run and runs batted in leader, ripped his 23rd homer, driving in his 65th and 66th RBI to back the eight-hit, 11 strikeout pitching of the Reds' rookie right-hander Wayne Simpson, who won his ninth game against one loss.

Tommie Agee slammed a pair of solo homers and two singles and scored four runs in leading the Mets over Atlanta.

Bob Gibson won his seventh game, limiting the Giants to five hits and crashing a homer and double. The Cards' ace right-hander struck out eight and walked three.

Don Kessinger, a late arrival due to a military commitment, stroked a seventh-inning run-scoring double, snapping a 1-1 tie and scoring Billy Williams with the winner. Lefty Ken Holtzman, 7-3, scattered five hits and Jim Hickman, running his hitting streak to 15 games, powered his 15th homer of the season for the Cubs.

John Bateman drilled a three-run homer in Montreal's four-run first inning as the Expos held off the Astros.

In the American League, Milwaukee stopped Cleveland 4-1, Oakland defeated Baltimore 4-2 in 11 innings, New York blanked Kansas City 5-0, Minnesota toppled Boston 5-2, California downed Detroit 5-2 and Chicago zipped Washington 6-0.

Center Warren Koegel and linebacker Jack Ham, starters on Penn State's unbeaten football teams the last two seasons, will co-captain the 1970 squad. Koegel is from Glasco, N.Y., Ham from Johnstown, Pa.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

Sometime back, in the Rose High School "Green Lights" someone took issue with the emphasis placed on athletics at the school. They took too much time away from studies and resulted in a group of students who barely got by and just couldn't make it otherwise.

Last Tuesday night, during the graduation exercises, that premise was, we hope, forever laid to rest. There were two principal speakers on the program for the graduation, Joe Hunter and Tommy Durham.

Hunter has been an outstanding athlete throughout his high school career. As a football player, he was respected during his career at Eppes until an injury ended his play. He was unable to compete during this past year, when he became a student at Rose. However, there were a number of ocassions when the coaching staff would have loved to have had him on the field.

But during the winter, Hunter was an able reserve for basketball, and during the spring, he was outstanding in the shot and discus, winning a number of titles. He has since qualified for the sectional Junior Olympics, the last preliminary before the nationals.

And Durham is not without his athletic experience. He played third base for the Rampant tri - champs in baseball, and was selected as one of the top players in the conference. His teammates themselves voted him the Most Valuable Player on the team.

Athletics do take time from studies, and there are probably some students who would be better off if they spent the time engaged in their studies. But at the same time, there are other students who just hang around accomplishing nothing, just holding up a lamp post on some street corner. It would be better to be an athlete, and gain some accomplishment in life.

Broadway Joe Namath, the pride of the New York Jets, turned his hand at a little acting during the off season, and is currently appearing in the film "Norwood" appearing at the Plaza Cinema.

Joe plays a marine buddy to Glen Campbell. The pair are on their way home after being discharged as the movie opens, and part company in the first five minutes, with Joe going off sandwiched between two beauties in a convertible, owning Glen $70.

Glen spends most of the rest of the picture trying to get the $70 back, and going through various adventures with various girls (Carol Lynley, Tisha Sterling and Kim Darby) before he finally catches up with Joe late in the film.

While Joe proves that he's not as stilted as some of the sports figures who have gone into showbusiness, he's not going to cause John Wayne or Sir Lawrence Oliver to worry about losing their jobs.

Joe's a better quarterback than an actor, but for those folks who enjoy hearing Glen sing a tune or two, and like a little corn, it's a fair movie. But don't be surprised when Glen turns out to be a little more worldly that he does on his show.

Davis Hurls Pepsi No-Hitter

Pepsi - Cola downed Integon, 6-0, Friday as David Davis tossed a no - hitter for the victors.

The win moved Pepsi into a tie for second place in the Tar Heel League with a 7-3 record. Integon brings up the rear of the league with a 1-9 mark.

Pepsi pushed over one run in the top of the first. Lee Shearin walked and took second on a wild pitch. He scored on Davis' single.

In the second, Pepsi scored again. Dana Kendrick singled and moved up on Tim Eubanks' fielder's choice. A pair of wild pitches allowed him to score.

Another run crossed in the third. This time it was a home run by Roy Oldham.

Pepsi pushed over two in the fifth inning. Davis reached on an error and Mark Conway walked. Dan Bowman slammed a double, scoring Davis, and Conway came home on an error on the play.

The final Pepsi run came over in the sixth. Shearin singled and Ricky Avery moved him up with a hit. An error on the play let him come the rest of the way.

Davis got into trouble only once, in the first inning when the leadoff batter reached third, on two walks and a fielder's choice. Overall, Davis struck out 11 and walked four in his no - hitter.

No one on the Pepsi team managed to get more than one hit.

Vodka Tank Latest Big Yacht Equipment

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) —From the ditty bag:

—Launched recently at Cowes, England, was the Green Lady, a $480,000 trimaran built for Gordon Vaughn of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Equipment aboard the trihulled craft includes 50-gallon vodka tank. "I like martinis," explained the American millionaire, "and so do my friends."

—Turbines may be the marine power of the future, according to Chris-Craft Corp., which has been quietly testing two turbines installed in a standard 36-foot Corvette cruiser. Advantages are said to be an almost complete elimination of vibration and the ability to burn several kinds of cheaper fuel. Disadvantages are high cost and rapid fuel consumption.

—Tight money and the recent stock market performance have put a damper on overall boat and engine sales and some organizations have been bothered by labor troubles. But most industry leaders seem unconcerned, pointing out that market studies indicate an increase from 40 million to 58 million participants in pleasure boating by the mid-70s.

—More than 26,000 buoys have been installed and are maintained by the U.S. Coast Guard as year-round navigation aids in this nation's inland and coastal waterways. Some of these—in areas of constantly heavy seas or unusually strong tide movements—are held to their sinkers, or anchors, by chains up to 1⅝ inches in diameter with a working load limit of 106,400 pounds.

—When the five days of trials to determine a U.S. defender for the America's Cup get underway on Long Island South June 8, the three contenders—Heritage, Valiant and Intrepid —will hold two, possibly three, races each day. In previous competition for the defender's role, only a single race was held daily. Under the new plan, the usual 24.3-mile course will be abandoned in favor of 9ne about 15 miles.

—Adm. Chester Bender has taken over as new commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard, succeeding Adm. Willard J. Smith who is retiring from the service. Bender moved up to the new post from commander of the 12th Coast Guard District in San Francisco and commander of the Westen Area. He is a former superintendent of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn.

—Manufacturers of aluminum pleasure craft point out that the metal is no newcomer to the sea. In 1891, the Swiss built a 17-foot launch of aluminum for lake use. And a year later the French produced the 40-foot steam yacht Mignon, the first all-aluminum seagoing vessel. By 1893, a U.S. firm in Illinois was building and selling stock aluminum duck boats.

—The Eastman Kodak Co. has available for group showings two new films: "Boating Fever," devoted to today's recreational boating, and "A Salute to the Tall Ships." Both films may be borrowed, free of charge, by writing Audio-Visual Distribution, Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N.Y. 14650.

Frogs No Longer Furbearing

By ROD AMUNDSON

We don't know when it happened, but out in Idaho bullfrogs are no longer classified as furbearing animals on the law books. Says James C. Simpson, who heads up the Fish and Game Department's fishery division, "Idaho's huge, mottled bullfrogs are obviously not game birds or mammals, so we found a niche for them in the fishing regulations. The Catholic Church, faced with the same biological dilemma, long ago classed them as fish, and this set a precedent." Strangely, however, Idaho frogs have a bag limit (12) rather than a creel limit — probably, and logically, because more frogs go into pokes than creels.

If you have been harboring the hope of catching an Atlantic salmon on a flyrod, you'd better head up New England and Nova Scotia way, and soon. Commercial fishermen have found the area where these noble game fish spend their time at sea growing up for the spawning run. The feeding grounds are off the southwest coast of Greenland. In 1965, 36 tons (about 11,000 salmon) were taken in nets; 119 tons in 1966; 305 tons in 1967; 548 tons in 1968, and 1,000 tons in 1969.

The fish being taken are immature, weighing an average of seven pounds. At maturity they range around 20 pounds. The Wildlife Management Institute reports these figures, plus the fact that a committee has been formed in the hope of doing something to protect these fish. It is called the Committee on the Atlantic Salmon Emergency (CASE) and hopes to arouse public awareness and indignation concerning the matter.

Headed for the beach this summer? Take along a copy of the 1970 North Carolina Coastal Fishing and Vacation Guide. This book describes fishing and vacationing opportunities all along the coast, and contains interesting and informative articles on salt water fishing. A color reproduction of a photograph taken aboard Apollo 9 from an altitude of 120 miles shows the entire Carolina coast. This alone is worth the $1.25 price tag. Order from The Graphic Press, Inc., Box 26808, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611.

Tar Heel waterfowl hunters are keeping an ear toward reports from the Canadian "duck factory" concerning waterfowl nesting conditions. Thus far no official reports have come out, but they may be expected soon. By mid-June nesting should be well under way, and as always, the success of this year's nesting season will depend entirely on weather and water conditions. Ducks and geese must rear their young to the point where the latter are mature enough to fly south before the lakes and marshes freeze over.

In the Canadian latitudes, waterfowl can feed almost 24 hours a day. This speeds the growth of young birds, but the important factor is the availability of water and nesting cover.

At a recent meeting the Wildlife Resources Commission okayed the acquisition and development of two more boating access area, one in Carteret County on the Intracoastal Waterway near Swansboro and the other on the Roanoke River near N. C. 45 in Washington County. Neither of these counties has as access area, and the two additions are expected to serve thousands of boaters and fishermen. The Commission now has 100 access areas in operation with ten more in the process of acquisition and development.

Hunting Rules Are Approved

RALEIGH, N. C. — The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission has approved the 1970-71 hunting and trapping regulations.

The statewide rabbit season was shortened by two weeks as a result of widespread suggestions at the public hearing held in May. At the hearings, many hunters requested that the rabbit season be cut short because pregnant rabbits were occasionally being taken late in the season.

The new season for rabbits will be November 14 to February 13.

"This is a good example of how hunters can help the Wildlife Commission and also get regulations passed that they feel are warranted," said Frank Barick, Chief of the Division of Game. "The widespread reports from the hunters that rabbits with young were occasionally being killed aids our biologists in recommending season dates. As a result of the hunters' concern, we have changed the season dates."

Comments from hunters at the public hearings favoring a shorter rabbit season ran roughly 7-1 in support of a shorter season.

Regulations concerning bear also generated much heat at the public hearings, with hunters expressing both opinions for longer and shorter seasons.

The bear is in danger in much of the state, and the Commission voted for the split shorter seasons of October 12 to November 21 and December 25 to January 2 with some counties being closed entirely. In the east, Dare County was added to six other counties closed to bear hunting because of reduced populations. They are Chowan, Gates, Hertford, Pasquotank, Perquimans and Tyrrell.

In other action, the Commission approved the proposal to allow hunting when snow covers the ground for all species except the wild turkey. The program for spring gobbler hunts — in effect for the second year — was also upheld, and even expanded slightly as three counties, Vance, Franklin, and Warren, were deleted from the winter season in the Piedmont counties (December 19 to February 13) and added to the spring season (April 12 to May 1) in the eastern counties. There is no wild turkey season in the west.

The Commission declined a proposal to shorten the quail season by a week in order to have several small game seasons opening on the same Saturday before Thanksgiving. Therefore, the quail season will be from November 14 to February 27.

Likewise, the squirrel season will remain the same as last season, opening October 12 and closing January 2, with local exceptions.

The raccoon and grouse seasons will open October 12 and last until February 27 with local exceptions.

The delayed starting time (noon) on the first two days of the either sex deer seasons was dropped because the regulations entrapped hunters who did not intend to violate.

Giant Marlin Taken Off Coast

By FRANK SWANSON

The marlin grow big at W-2 Bouy, a 210 degree course, 40 mile run from the Beaufort Bar. This bouy was the scene of a big battle Friday, between a monster of a marlin and an angler named Frank Trusty, Jr., Decatur, Ga. The giant marling was captured aboard Capt. Eddy Haneman's Martha Ellens, with mate Jerry Pyles. Capt. Eddy, whose hailing port is Wrightsville Beach, N. C. brought his craft into Morehead City after catching the big fish, due to better weather conditions here at the present time.

Capt. Eddy, a salty and veteran skipper of many happy years at sea, proudly watched as Capt. Ottis Purifoy kept trying to balance the scales for this huge fish. The fish was weighed at the Ottis Fish Market, as the blue was just too much for the official waterfront weighing station to handle. And finally, the figures were called out! The fish weighed a tremendous 705 pounds, and measured out at 13 feet 3 inches, and even had a tail-spread of 5 feet 2 inches. This was the largest blue marlin that Morehead City had ever been able to show off to its tourists!

As a result of the big marlin catch, you can see the boat captains taking time out to hand-pick their marlin baits, getting ready for Morehead City's upcoming Blue Marlin Tournament, which begins on June 15. Time is drawing near for the big event, and the boat crews are anxious to get started.

Fishing has been just great these past few days for most any kind of fish you desire. Offshore, the head boats have been heavily loaded with red snappers, silver snappers, and black bass. The charter cruisers, which do a lot of trolling, have been loading up with the small summer king mackerel, with catches running in the high 90's. Dolphin have been taken offshore, along with amberjacks, and albacore. Fishing is just great in this area, with the good weather to go along with it.

Japan—Where Beauty Is Part Of Everyday Life

BACK YARD SCENE . . . at a farm house. Clothes on bamboo poles hang to dry. Large baskets are for carrying sweet potato sprouts.

1970 is Japan's big year. From the villages, countryside and cities of Japan, and from all corners of the earth, millions of people are converging on Osaka, site of Expo 70, the most spectacular world event ever staged in Japan or for that matter, in the entire Far East.

These millions attending the huge would fair will return home with memories of splendors afforded by the fair — examples of modern architecture; exhibitions in art, science, entertainment and technology, the finest the participating nations can offer.

For foreigners making the long trip to this island country, there are many unpublicized delights to see, provided they have time to get away from the modern cities into the Japanese countryside.

Here they will discover a world far different from urban Japan. It is an enchanted land of villages, farms, mountains, forests and streams, and a seacoast unequaled anywhere.

The Japanese, noted for their ability to assimilate diverse influences and cultures, have been successful in retaining the flavor of past centuries in their long evolution of native culture — Despite the fact Japan is rapidly becoming, and perhaps has already achieved, the position as the world's third greatest power, the Japanese have accepted all that goes with a modern civilization and yet miraculously remained in the mainstream of their customs and traditions.

Even in the large congested cities, isolated islands of seemingly artless beauty appear in the most unexpected places. The soul of Japan are the little things beloved by this hardy race of island dwellers.

Paradoxically, the Japanese can combine the most unobtrusive elements of nature — a few pebbles, a twisted tree, and old gray boards with dazzlingly bright gold, red, purple, orange or green—to create an entity that is both pleasing and provocative, without being contradictory.

Countless scholars and critics have attempted to pinpoint the heart of this special talent, but the essence is essentially a natural expression of a people schooled in art and poetry as an integral part of their daily lives. Whether school child, housewife, laborer, artist or emperor, each Japanese receives this inheritance as a national birthright.

Most Japanese are quick to point out that nature has been instrumental in shaping the destiny and instincts of the nearly 100 million inhabitants of the islands comprising the empire. With a total land area less than that of the state of Montana, the major islands—snow - laden Hokkaido in the north; the large central island of Honshu; the semi - tropical island of Kyushu in the south; and Shikoku, which lies like a fragment offshore southern Honshu; abound with a range of flora and fauna far greater than would be found in most land areas of this size. These islands, and the small ones sprinkled offshore, have in common great ridges of ragged mountains, long stretches of beautiful coastlines, and strips of prized lava rich soil which are nourished with loving care to provide the utmost in harvests of rice and vegetables.

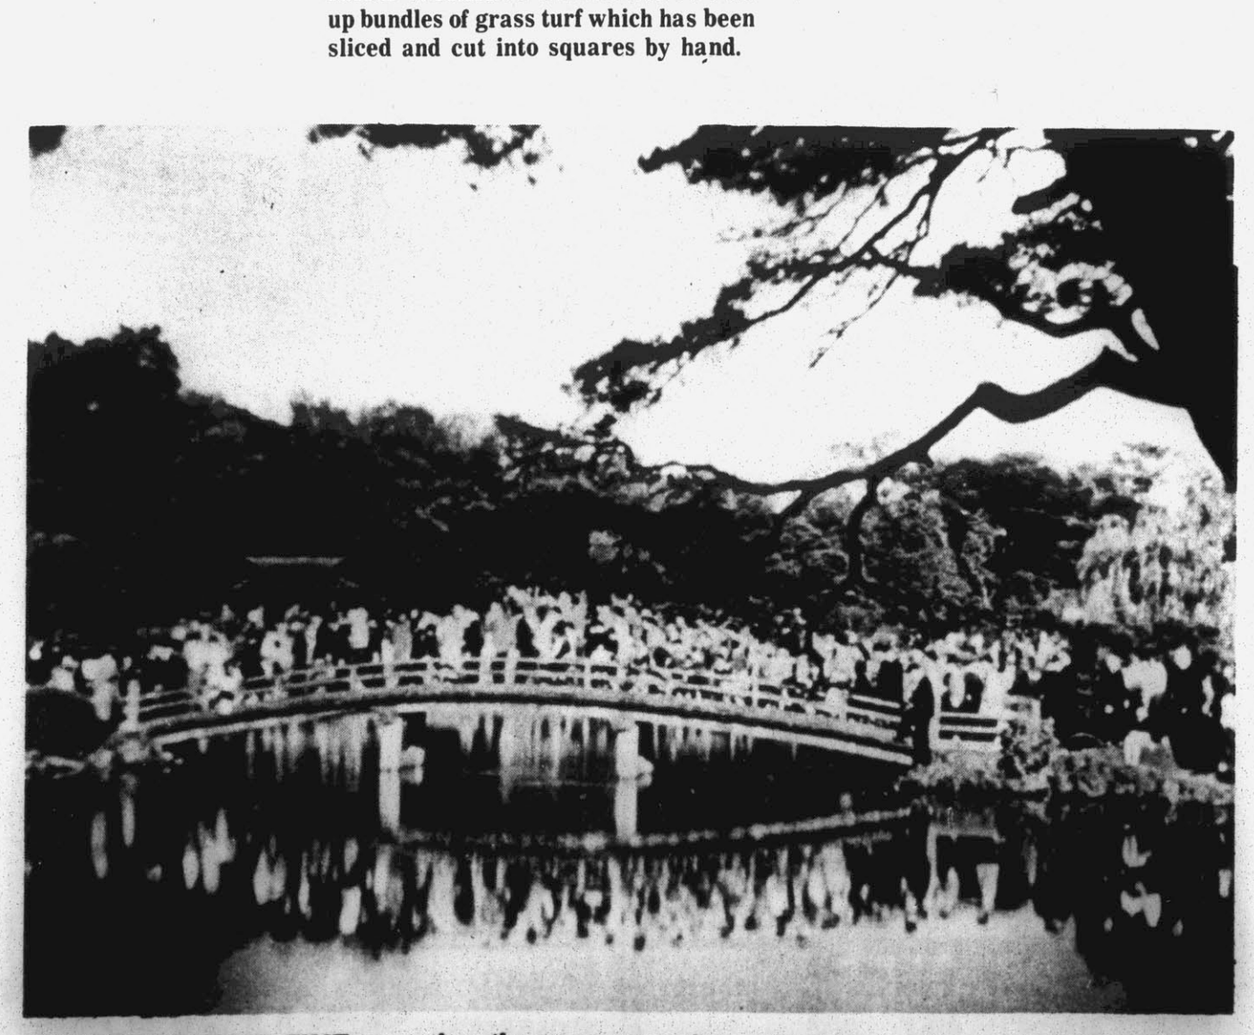
Long accustomed to the basic limitations imposed by nature, the Japanese have of necessity had to create privacy in a minimum of space. The destructiveness of frequent earthquakes has led the people, except in large cities, to be content with structures that are light and resilient This in turn has fostered a love of the simple, the small scale structures, suggestive of more space. These basic influences are reflected in all spheres of national living.

At any place in rural Japan, only a short distance from busy highways and railroads, the old Japan still predominates. Farmers, utilizing age old methods, patiently plant, cultivate and harvest with meticulous care and love. Fishermen, accustomed to frugality, make a ritual of taking extremely good care of equipment. The government, reflecting ingrained thriftiness practiced by its people, preserve, in a surprisingly large number of virgin parks and quasi - national parks, the natural beauties of forest and mountain.

But life for the Japanese is by no means an unbroken cycle of wise management, hard work and thrift. Religious and national festivals, changes of seasons, marriages and house - raisings are all ocassions for festival celebrations. These are the times the Japanese cast aside traditional restraints, and enjoy themselves in a spectacle of beauty embodying colorful costumes, traditional music and drama, and a happy child - like exuberance which for them is a source of joy. For the rest of the world, it is a marvel of beauty.

HARD WORKING FARMERS . . . tie up bundles of grass turf which has been sliced and cut into squares by hand.

MIST . . . the color of a pearl lies lightly in a velley between mountains near the famous shrine town of Nikko. Several families sat on the hillside watching the mist until it disappeared in the morning sun.



FLOWER VIEWING TIME . . . when the crysanthemums are in bloom, brings out large crowds, such as those crossing a traditional bridge in Tokyo's Shinjuku Park.

A TEMPLE SHRINE . . . is carried through the streets as joyful porters dressed in distinctive costumes dance and sing through the area served by the temple.

'Divorce Court' Is A Long-Time Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A business woman, recently making the standard complaints about television quality, particularly in the summer, added:

"I've lost all confidence in 'Divorce Court' since I found out that those husbands and wives aren't real people at all, just actors pretending."

"Divorce Court" is a syndicated show, never really a hit but popular enough to have been around for years. It does have an air of authenticity about its courtroom, particularly for viewers of "Perry Mason" and "Judd for the Defense." It also uses real-life lawyers who, whatever their courtroom style, give a grim, amateurish quality to their television roles.

A distinguished gent named Voltaire Perkins sits there in a black robe and stern mien. His principle responsibility seems to be to interrupt the proceedings at certain moments in order to permit the commercials. He does this by saying he must sign a paper or by summoning the lawyers to the bench. He also summarizes the case at the end of the half hour and decides who gets the divorce.

In a recent program — about the usual for the series, although the details may have been a little earthier than usual — the wife, on the verge of tears, described a happy marriage that had gone on the rocks.

"About a year ago, he started coming home late and became cool and indifferent," she said. This line is used often on "Divorce Court."

The husband was a photographer and his wife went down to his studio to find out what was going on. She found, she said, a naked woman there.

The husband did not do well in his defense. He was just moonlighting, taking nude pictures to make more money, he said. After more sobs, the commercials and summary, Voltaire Perkins gave her the divorce, custody of the child and $300 a month alimony.

At one point, it was announced that "Divorce Court" is simulated, and it was hoped that the simulation would help "stem the ever-mounting flood" of divorce cases, although it is a little difficult to see just how.

ECU's First Fulbright Scholar

McCracken Career Began At Age Of 9

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

East Carolina University's first Fulbright scholar is a young man who has been a promising concert pianist almost from the time he began study of music at the age of nine.

But still it was no easy road to valedictorian of the ECU class of 1970 and a summa cum laude degree from the School of Music topped by the prized Fulbright award for a full year's study in Italy.

Now 22 years old, Jac McCracken of Oak City, paraphrases Paderewski in telling about his musical training. Paderewski is supposed to have said "musical ability may require some talent but it's nine tenths hard work." McCracken kept no record of his long hours of practice but says "it's been a matter of working very hard." He adds, "I've been playing in competitions ever since I began."

The list of activities, awards and honors for McCracken is lengthy. A few of them include winning an East Carolina Merit Scholarship, 1966-70; performing the Khachaturian "Concerto" with the Charleston, S. C., Symphony for which he won wide acclaim, in 1968; seven performances of the Liszt "Concerto in E flat" with the N.C. Symphony in 1969; the Ravel "Left Hand Concerto" with the ECU Symphony in 1970; a full Fellowship as a performing participant in the International Bach Society Advanced Study Summer session in 1969; third place winner in the national finals of the National Federation of Music Clubs Student Musicians Auditions, 1969; and numerous other competitions and recitals.

The handsome, young McCracken became East Carolina's first male valedictorian and led the traditional academic procession in Commencement exercises on May 31.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McCracken of Oak City, a small Martin County town. His father teaches math and science at Oak City High School.

For the past seven years McCracken has been a pupil of Dr. Robert Carter, professor of Music at ECU. In 1966 he was valedictorian of his high school graduating class.

Last January he began study with Bryon Janis of New York. This study period will continue until time to leave for Italy.

In addition to his practice, McCracken expects to spend some of the summer "brushing up" on Italian before leaving for Rome in August. In Italy he will study at the Conservatory of St. Cecilia and be taught by several noted concert pianists including Guido Agosti.

He contemplates a number of possible piano competitions in Europe.

The Fulbright-Hays study awards under government sponsorship are a reciprocal agreement for study abroad with other governments. As a Fulbright recipient, he will represent the United States abroad, says Dr. John B. Ebbs, Professor of English and campus representative for the Fulbright-Hays Fellowship Foundation.

Richard Harris Lives Strenuous Movie Roles

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YROK (UPI) —Boisterous actor Richard Harris is a staunch believer in "emotionally and physically" preparing himself for an upcoming movie.

For a recent movie —much of it played in the buff —Harris lost 2 inches around the waist and with "utmost sacrifice" went on the wagon for four months.

"When I read the script and saw what a physical role it was, I decided to drop the booze, Harris said.

"Physically it was torturous. I didn't use a stunt man. I got dragged behind horses, hung up in ropes —my chest is scarred, a tooth is broken, my back is hurt. By God, I wouldn't do it again!" he roared.

Harris, a top box-office draw but an unlikely film idol with a gently mashed face and thinning frazzled red hair, said his nude portion of the film, "A Man Called Horse," was in good taste —but "I wanted to show more."

Harris, with amusement and a slight tinge of bitterness, noted that one of his injuries occurred during filming of an Indian ritual scene when a rope suspending him in mid-air broke and the actor plunged to the ground.

"There I was lying on the floor dying —the director rushed over and cradled me in his arms —then he glanced outside and bellowed, 'My God, forget about Richard. Look at that sunset, we've gotta film that.' He and everybody deserted me and went out to shoot the bloody sunset —with me there on the floor dying."

The 39-year-old Harris, his eyes gleaming and with the Irishman's typical love of a good story, chortled that he got his revenge.

"I started flying planes — uninsured and without a bloody license. Took the director up one day and —varoom! zoooo-oom! varoom! — scared the bloody daylights out of him. When we landed he said I'd probably have crashed just to get even with him."

Critics were not ecstatic over the movie but an undaunted Harris snapped, "I never read critics. I prefer to read my exploits in the press. That's the more serious part of my life," he guffawed, reminiscing about his more notorious drinking bouts.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) —George Plimpton, the society litterature who will try anything once in the interest of making a dollar via books, television, movies or you-name-it, has two one-hour specials scheduled for the ABC network next season. The dilettante footballer, boxer, golfer, etc., will do one show with a circus, as lion tamer, clown and trapeze artist, and the other has him playing the "heavy" in a John Wayne movie, "Rio Lobo."

NBC Sports has exclusive United States television rights to the 11th Winter olympic Games at Sapporo, Japan, Feb. 3-13, 1972.

It is to be hoped that everyone with a television set has had or will have a chance to see the syndicated British-made series, "The Forsyte Saga," dramatization of the celebrated John Galsworthy novels. Aside from the pleasure to be had from this beautifully produced and acted series, you may be inspired to read or re-read the books, any of which is worth a dozen of today's best-selling novels.

The Kearney kids of Berona, N.J., are making quite a good thing out of television. Eileen, 11, has been signed for a term contract for NBC's daytime serial, "The Doctors," to play Greta, daughter of the program's Matt and Maggie. This follows numerous video commercials and other programs. Her two brothers, Michael and Mark, recently had important roles on the NBC special of its American rainbow series, "Boston Spy Party," and Michael was in the later "Inside World of Outer Space" of the same series.

NBC's telecast of the Miss America Pageant finals, 50th anniversary of the contest, will be on Sept. 12, 10 p.m. to midnight.

Book News
From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LINDA M. STANCILL

The publication of Rachel Caron's SILENT SPRING in 1962 was greeted with a roar of protest and approval. After seven controversial years, it stands vindicated, a prescient warning of things to come.

In SINCE SILENT SPRING, Frank Graham describes the background of Rachel Carson, the development of her book, and her reaction to the great controversy. He tells how the pesticide question stands today and reports the mounting evidence that confirms the dangers Rachel Carson saw and the essential questions which still have to be studied. In his account of the pest control movement, Graham offers a practical guide for those embattled citizens who realize that the problems of using pesticides safely and practically have not yet been solved.

Survival in business is the concern of Robert Townsend in UP THE ORGANIZATION. He gives advice to the manager, to the alert starter, to everyone who is or might be trapped in the organizational sludge that stifles people and strangles profits. He relates from experience how to survive in business and how to humanize it. In this humorous account of how business should be run, he covers everything from computers and decision-making to bonuses, lawyers, peronnel departments and mistresses.

Borden Deal writes about the creation of a superhighway in his latest novel, INTERSTATE. He relates the gaping wound it opens, not only in the landscape itself, but in the life of a Florida town as it fights for its very existence, and in the hearts of two women. The older woman has a past concealed in the great swamp through which the road will pass; the younger one sees her future endangered by a past tied to the same swamp. The young engineer who is torn by doubts and conflicting loyalties finds his life changed forever by a dream and a vision which the building of the highway reveals.

Ted Calmer's latest novel, THE ANCHORMAN, is about one of TV's most important news masters and the men and women who control him. A veteran news broadcaster, Colman tells what the men broadcasting the news each day to millions of Americans are really like. Set against the real - life events of 1968 with implications bringing us up to the present hour, THE ANCHORMAN follows the rise of a handsome young newscaster who, through a dramatic combination of circumstances, becomes the star of a network news program with an audience of millions. He presided over the coverage of such history - making events as the assassinations of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King, and the political conventions in Miami Beach and Chicago, where he meets the supreme emotional and moral test of his character. The enormous pressures and endless intrigues of Television News dominate the background of this powerful novel.

THE DAY THE SUN FELL, a novel of World War II by Robert Duncan, combines a hair raising plot with a group of fascinating characters. Before the dropping of the atomic bomb, three American soldiers are parachuted into Japan to enlist the aid of the Catholic clergy in forestalling disaster by persuading the government to surrender. The characters include a near - psychotic sergeant, a reluctant volunteer who assumed it would spice up his war record and further his political ambitions, and a middle-aged warrant officer trained in Japanese intelligence, secretly searching for his missing wife. Equally challenging portraits of two Japanese intelligence officers who follow the American's steps are presented along with a view of Japan and its people in those final days of the war.

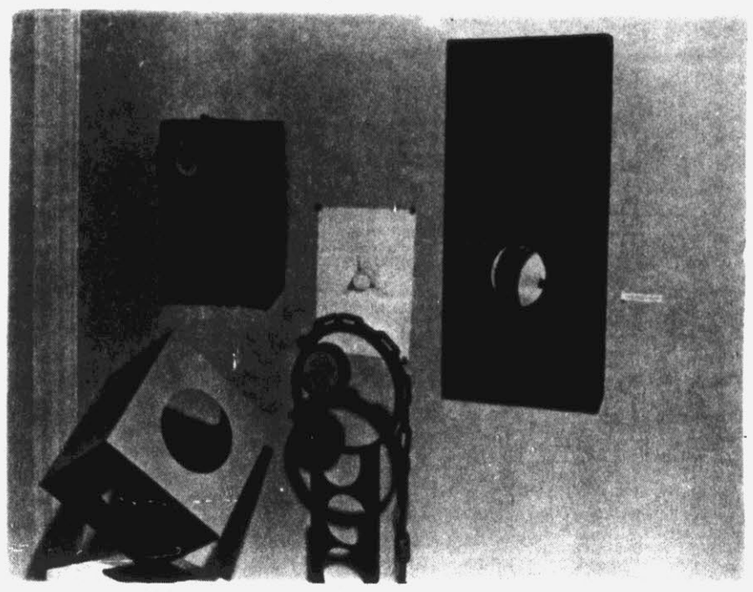
Ahoskie Show At Local Center



SELECTIONS . . . from the "Ahoskie" group show now on view at Greenville's Art Center. At top, Marie Wood's watercolor, "You Can't Go Home Again;" center, Mel Odom's poetic "Self Portrait At The Beginning Of The Year;" and "Pot of Flowers ', a watercolor by Esther Hutcherson; and at bottom, three sculptures by J. Yates Miller and a painting by Judson Newborn.

An interplay of contrasts without the inclusion of extremes has provided the current exhibition at the Greenville Art Center with a show that is more a confirmation of what can be harmonious in diversity rather than a confrontation of more spectacular, but less pleasing combinations.

Works selected for the exhibition by the "Ahoskie" group seem most appropriate as a unit.

Labeled the "Ahoskie" group, the artists are could as well be called the "Hertford County" group, since artists from Chowan College in Murfreesboro and former residents of the county are included.

Artists whose work are now on view in the last show of the year before the center closes in late June are:

—Judson Newborn, a rising senior at Ahoskie. Judson has received several awards throughout eastern North Carolina, and attended the Governor's School at Winston - Salem in the field of art.

—Mel Odom is now studying illustration at Virginia Commonwealth University. Odom is a native of Ahoskie.

—Joseph Craig Greene, a native of Hickory, director of the Division of Art at Chowan College, has exhibited in several group and one man shows, and was a purchase award winner at the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh.

—Mrs. Marie Wood, editor of Ahoskie's newspaper, "The Herald", is a native of the Chicago area. Mrs. Wood is latecomer as an artist. She is better known as an author and experienced writer. Watercolors are her specialty.

—Mrs. Ophelia Downing Jones is a teacher - artist in Hertford county schools who works mostly in portraiture.

—Peggy Brinkley, raised in Bertie County, is a graduate of East Carolina University. She is interested in crafts and painting.

—J. Yates Miller, Jr., an Atlantic Christian College graduate, a prize-winning painter, is represented with sculptures and paintings in this show.

—Mrs. Rebecca Taylor Askew, a long time painter, was commissioned by Lady Bird Johnson and her daughters to do paintings. She has won first place awards in oils, drawings, and watercolors.

—Jan Chamblee, just graduated from Ahoskie High School, is mainly self taught. He plans to continue painting, though music is his major concern.

—Madge Hunter, art supervisor for schools in Hertford County, has had 20 years experience in teaching and still finds time to pursue art.

—Mrs. Esther L. Hutcherson states painting has been a driving force in her life. A resident of Ahoskie for the last four years, she is noted for watercolors and teaches art to young and adult students.

Unfortunately, space does not permit mention of the works included in this exhibition. It is a fine exhibition which is revealing of the high standard of work being accomplished by a group of young, middle age and older artists in a rural area who have in common the love of creation. Don't miss it. — JERRY RAYNOR

CALLING ALL CAMERA FANS
By ROSS BRYANT
WEDDING PICTURES

One thing you can say about wedding pictures: you can't have too many of them. Most newlyweds arrange for a professional wedding portrait, and often for a professional photographer to picture the wedding. But that doesn't mean you have to leave your own camera on the shelf. "Amateur" shots will add to the cherished record of this day, and can often tell parts of the wedding story which the professional is unable to capture.

A friend or member of the family will be on the scene earlier, and later, than the professional can be. Moreover, he is a part of the scene himself, and as such he will see things and know things about the bride and groom and their happy day which no outsider can know. So have your camera handy, for before-and-after the wedding shots and the personal picture viewpoint which will add immeasurably to the wedding memories.

You don't have to be a professional to want and use the professional features designed into the new Kodak Instamatic line of fine cameras . . . the most automatic cameras you can buy. See the complete line in our display at

TAKE CHILDREN TO THE DENTIST EARLY

It is a natural reaction of young and old alike to be afraid of the unknown. Once exposed to a situation this fear will most often diminish or disappear altogether.

At about three years of age, it is a good idea to take your child on a "visit" with you to the dentist. Try to make it when you are just scheduled for a checkup or cleaning rather than some work. Your dentist will let the child sit in the chair for a few moments. Then, when you take the child for his first examination he will have much less fear. Discuss this with your dentist beforehand.

Friday Saw 2 Accidents

Robert Lee Burroughs, 33, Rt. 4, Washington, was charged with failing to see his movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8 p.m. traffic accident here Friday at the intersection of Charles and 14th Streets.

Police said the Burroughs car collided with one driven by Ben Frank Worthington, 48, P. O. Box 109, Winterville.

Damages placed on the Burroughs car amounted to $400 while that for the Worthington car totaled an estimated $150.

Damages estimated at $600 resulted in a second traffic mishap here Friday.

Investigators said cars driven by Warnie Lee Dixon, 22, Rt. 2, Grimesland and James David McMillan, 21, 1901 Smith St., Pulaski, Va. collided at the intersection of Fifth and Hudson Streets at 11:15 p.m. Friday.

Setting damages for both vehicles at $300, officers charged Dixon with failing to see his movement could be made in safety.

Exchange Pastor Of 1966 Visiting Here

"Greenville seems to us to have the same spirit — to be the same happy community," the Rev. Bill Pritchard of Blackpool, England said.

He and his wife, Winifred, are visiting friends made here when he led the congregation of St. Paul's Episcopal Church for a year, 1966. At that time he and the Rev. John Drake exchanged pastorates.

The Pritchards have been here on the current visit for three weeks and will leave Tuesday to return to their church, Holy Trinity in Blackpool, and to their two sons, who have remained in England.

The Rev. Pritchard said he has enjoyed renewing old friendships, preaching at St. Paul's, and seeing the physical and social improvements in Greenville. He said he and Mrs. Pritchard were especially impressed with the Shore Drive project, the public housing, and the Brook Valley subdivision just outside town.

Myths About Dreams Slowly Being Countered

NEW YORK (AP) — Our dreams do not flash by in an instant—they can take as long to occur as the event would while awake.

A tired man does not sleep like a log—the brain can be as active during sleep as when we are awake.

Dreams reflect our personalities. And creative people can, and do, make actual use of their dreams.

These are some of the things behavioral scientists have learned lately in their research on dreams, research that counters old myths.

A review of the research is made in a June special issue of the social science magazine Psychology Today, which says more has been learned in the last 15 years about sleep and dreams than ever before.

"Most researchers now agree that mental activity occurs continuously throughout sleep," the publication said. However, there are periods during sleep, four to six times a night for most people, when most dreaming takes place.

These periods, called "REM periods" for "rapid eye movements" occur at intervals of about 90 minutes, with the first one about an hour or so after going to sleep. It lasts from 5 to 10 minutes. Later periods last up to 25 minutes.

Dr. Robert L. Van de Castle, director of the Sleep and Dream Laboratory at the University of Virginia Medical School, said a study of 2,000 men and 2,000 women showed that dreams "serve as mirrors of the self, offering fascinating looks at the structure of the psyche."

"Women," he said, "frequently dream about being indoors and in familiar settings. People are more numerous in women's dreams. They are generally known to the dreamer, and their faces and clothing are carefully described.

"Women are more friendly toward men than toward other women in their dreams, but they report very few overt sex dreams. When a woman does acknowledge sexual involvement, it is almost always with a man she knows."

Men's dreams are more adventurous and feature more physical activities, the magazine reported. Half of all their aggressive encounters involve physical violence. The aggression is acted out most often on men the dreamer does not know.

"Men appear to be greatly preoccupied with other men," the journal said. "Male characters outnumber female characters more than 2 to 1 in men's dreams. Vocational interests are more apparent, as other men are often identified by their occupational roles, and success-and-failure themes are more common."

Dr. Stanley Krippner, director of the William C. Menninger Dream Laboratory of the Maimonides Medical Center in New York, said, "Recent studies indicate that dreaming and the creative processes are related."

Researchers, Krippner said, found a definite correlation between imagination in dreams and creativity test scores. One study of 105 college students, he said, showed that art students remembered their dreams more often than science and engineering students.

Krippner said Robert Louis Stevenson discovered he could dream complete stories and even go back to them on succeeding nights to change an unsatisfactory ending.

"Mozart, Schumann and Saint-Saens claimed they first heard some of their music in dreams," the journal said. "Writers Goethe, Blake, Cowper, Poe, Voltaire, Dante, Shelly, Heine, Tolstoy and Coleridge also used dream material in their poetry and prose."

Plastic Milk Jugs 'Shrunk'

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) —The Oregon Department of Agriculture ordered 20,000 plastic milk jugs destroyed because they had shrunk. The jugs, each supposed to hold a gallon of milk, could be filled with only 1½ ounces less than a gallon. Officials say the plastic shrank when run through hot water cleaning cycles at the dairy.

In architecture, atlantes are male figures used as supports for projections.

Heavy Outlays For Pedestrians

TOKYO (UPI) —The Tokyo metropolitan government plans to spend 2.9 billion yen ($8 million) this year building steel guard rails along streets to protect pedestrians.

Sidewalks are rare in Tokyo and pedestrians walk along the sides of streets. City officials report that Tokyo has 11,400 miles of streets but only 1,200 miles are protected by guard rails. About 360 pedestrians were killed in traffic accidents in Tokyo last year.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR RANDOLPH W. THROWER, director, Internal Revenue Service

Can an entertainer bypass paying income taxes on his recordings or other royalties by designating a charity as the recipient?—Arthur Harris, Venice, Calif.

● An individual donating royalties to a charity must include those royalties in his income for Federal income-tax purposes. He may, of course, claim a charitable-contribution deduction on his tax return to the extent allowable by law.

FOR DR. NORMAN E. SHUMWAY, heart specialist

A recent magazine article about Stanford Medical Center heart transplants mentioned that two recipients were waiting for donors. On what dates were they able to receive their transplants, and are they still living?—Arnold Martin, Riverside, Calif.

● At the present time there are eight (out of 20) surviving heart-transplant patients at Stanford University. They comprise 50 percent of all survivors in the U.S. Seven of the eight have been discharged from the hospital and lead normal lives. At the time of the first transplant this year, there were two other patients waiting for the operation. One was successfully transplanted later in January, and the other died of heart disease before an appropriate donor could be found.

FOR VIRGINIA KNAUER, Presidential Adviser on Consumer Affairs

Why isn't the amount of calories listed on all containers of food?—Mrs. Leo Lester, Chicago, Ill.

● The decision to declare the number of calories on the package label is up to the manufacturer. Publication of such information would be very helpful to those who are weight watchers.

FOR WILLIE MAYS, San Francisco Giants

When and why did you develop your famous style of catching a fly ball?—Larry Acquaviva, Herkimer, N. Y.

● I don't recall ever consciously working on this. It came naturally to me, and I have done it that way since my high-school days in Fairfield, Ala.

FOR JOHN METZLER, director, Arlington National Cemetery

How many of our deceased Presidents are buried in Arlington Cemetery? Who are they?—Mrs. Irene Prettyman, Passaic, N.J.

● There are two deceased Presidents buried in Arlington National Cemetery: Presidents William Howard Taft and John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Who sings the "Petticoat Junction" theme song?—Gary Brewer, Middletown, Ohio

● Curt Massey sings our theme song. He's also our musical director and a wonderful entertainer in his own right.

FOR BENNETT CERF, publisher

What percentage of those taking your Famous Writers Aptitude Test do you classify as not having talent worth developing?—Mrs. Blanche Passa, Grand Forks, N. D.

● The Famous Writers School Aptitude Test measures aptitude, not talent. Many people have an aptitude for writing and would benefit from the study of the craft of writing. Talent can't be taught and is almost impossible to measure. I believe the truly superior, talented people to be fewer than one percent of the population.

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER, director, F.B.I.

Do identical twins have different fingerprints?—Robert Baines, Cheyenne, Wyo.

● Although twins may be identical in every other way, their fingerprints are different.

What in the World!

Dr. Barnard on Cancer Heart-transplant research may eventually lend important knowledge toward a cure for cancer, FAMILY WEEKLY was told by no less an authority than Dr. Christiaan Barnard. The world-famous South African surgeon, who performed the first human heart transplant, said, "Today the problem of transplants is less the rejection of the heart itself but more the effects of the drug that prevents the rejection." The drug in its present form also acts against helpful antibodies which combat other dangerous maladies. "In future years, when the rejection principle has been thoroughly explored, it may be possible to train the body to recognize cancer as a foreign body and reject it, too," said Dr. Barnard, whose autobiographical book, "Christiaan Barnard: One Life," has just been published.

Return of the Horse and Carriage This coming weekend (June 19-21) in New Brunswick, N. J., there will be a bumper-to-bumper procession of horse-drawn vehicles over historic grounds where George Washington's army celebrated the 4th of July along the Raritan River in 1778. The occasion is the Johnson Park International Driving Show of antique "mass" transportation coaches and carts—in obstacle trials and a "long-distance" drive of 15 miles at a speed limit of 9.3 mph. Competitive driving is governed by strict international rules.

Restore Your Mothproofing If your cedar chest has lost its resinous effectiveness against moths, you can restore it by buffing the interior lightly with fine sandpaper. If you don't own a cedar chest, you can make your own—or cedar drawer or closet—by lining interiors with sheets of thin cedarwood from the lumberyard. Otherwise, you might try a mothproofing trick suggested by the Men's Fashion Association, which the French used when they had to flee luxurious homes in wartime Paris: cigar or pipe tobacco sprinkled in closets. If you spray against moth larvae, concentrate on baseboards.

Soxology The Institute for Motivational Research recently asked both men and women what they could judge about a man from just looking at his feet—with or without his socks on. Some opinions were: feet planted straight ahead indicates a strong, direct person. Pointed outward, a sloppy extrovert; inward, an introvert. The consensus opinion of a futuristic shoe, completely lined to wear without socks, was "Horrible, disgusting! An otherwise well-dressed businessman looks all wrong when bare, hairy leg shows." One smart dresser summed it up:

Socks should cover up legs

"Socks should be long enough to go over the calf, so no leg shows when a man crosses his legs or plants them on his desk."

What You Should Know About

These days, "shades" are a fashion accessory—but don't overlook their basic job of protecting

THERE was a time when sunglasses merely served their basic, practical purpose—to protect the eyes from sun glare. But today, "shades" have become for many an important fashion accessory. Nor are sunglasses confined solely to daytime summer wear. They are being worn night and day, summer and winter, in an infinite variety of shapes and colors.

Whole advertising campaigns are based on the glamorous aura of sunglasses. Such Hollywood stars as Jill St. John ("Isn't that Jill St. John behind those Foster Grants?") and Leslie Caron have been photographed in exotic locales wearing beautifully designed sunglasses. The recent boom in sunglasses has pushed annual sales to an unprecedented $400 million level say industry spokesmen.

With the flood of styles and tints now available, there is more than meets the eye in selecting the right pair for you. Some glasses, for example, have coloring so light that they afford little protection from the sun.

Powerful sunlight can make you irritable, tire your facial muscles —even impair your vision. According to the Better Vision Institute, inferior lenses may be full of tiny irregularities which may interfere with sharp, strain-free seeing. They may cause "image degradation," eyestrain, headaches, fatigue, and nausea. Moreover, cheap lenses do not give scientific, ultra-violet nor infrared protection for your eyes.

When it comes to buying sunglasses, there are a number of things to look for that will help you to make the proper selection. First, experts seem to be in unanimous agreement that neutral grey or sage green are the best tints. The least amount of distortion takes place with the grey lens. Green lenses run a close second.

These lenses give the best color perception since eye protection increases in proportion to the darkness of the lens, according to Bausch & Lomb researchers. Stay away from fancy colors such as red, blue, bright green or yellow. They can seriously distort the natural colors of objects and do not provide adequate glare protection.

The best and most expensive sunglasses are those made from optically ground and polished glass. Low-cost lenses produced from flat glass may have imperfections and not be distortion-free.

The majority of sunglasses made today have plastic lenses, and they can be made with excellent optical qualities. However, while plastic lenses can do a very good job of reducing glare and the effects of ultraviolet rays, they are not effective when it comes to more powerful infrared rays.

Sunglasses

your eyes from glare

By J. ROBERT CONNOR

Far left, sunglasses have light tint for indoors or out. Men's "Apollo 11" are especially glare-resistant. "Red Baron" style has topaz-tinted lens.

A leading maker of plastic lenses is Cool-Ray, Inc., producers of Polaroid sunglasses. The lenses are made like a many-layered sandwich with a polarizer, or glare barrier, between two sheets of plastic.

Reflected glare, the blinding light that bounces off reflective surfaces like water, snow, and roadways, is made up mostly of horizontally vibrating polarized light. Lenses should veil this sheen of polarized light and permit only the useful light through to your eyes. Whereas ordinary sunglasses darken all light, proper lenses selectively eliminate harsh glare light.

When you have decided on the type and color of the sunglasses you want, take the time to examine them carefully. Look through the lenses to check for distortion. The light intensity should be reduced and the color density of each lens should be the same.

Hold the lenses a few inches in front of each eye and rotate each lens individually, looking at a distant object to make sure that there are no air bubbles, wavey lines, or distortions in the lens.

Experts say that a lens that permits as much as 50 percent of the light through to the eyes is worthless as a sunglass. The lenses worn by skiers or beach enthusiasts on a bright day should transmit no more than 20 percent of the light to avoid the bright reflected glare.

An important point to remember is that your eyes use 25 percent of your nervous energy. You can imagine the effect on your entire system when your eyes have to compensate for an abnormal condition such as the distortion found in lenses of inferior quality. Eye muscles will try to adjust to seek a clear image with a faulty lens.

Prices for most sunglasses run about $1.50 in drug and chain stores and about $3 to $15 in department stores. Prices for good optically ground glasses range from about $10 to $28 and up. A variety of special glasses also is available. One style has coated gradient-density lenses, dark at the top to protect against overhead glare and almost clear at the bottom, permitting an aircraft pilot, for example, to see the instrument panel. There are also special glasses for hunters and boaters.

With a little care, you can select a good pair of sunglasses designed to reduce the sun's glare and protect your eyes. If you need prescription glasses, get them, or drop in at your optician or optometrist and ask him to help you select a good pair. For today's on-the-go people who seek fun in the sun, sunglasses are not a luxury, they're a necessity. ◆

LOVE AFTER DEATH:

The Strange Experience of Bishop

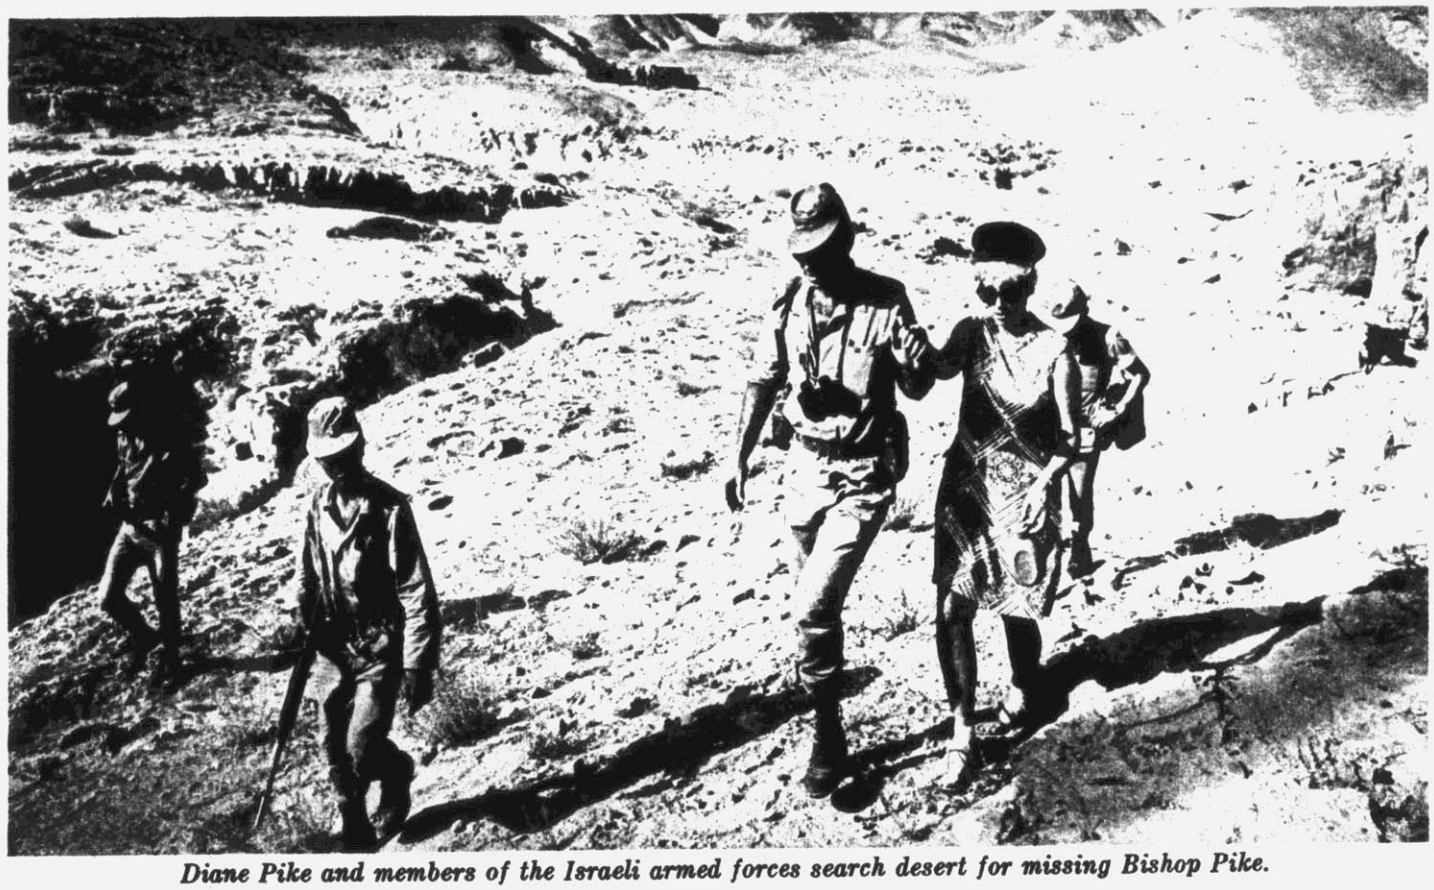
This fantastic story may be inspirational to some, unbelievable to others; but no one can doubt

By TERRY SCHAERTEL

Life for Diane Kennedy changed dramatically and irrevocably when she enrolled in a summer course at Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, Calif., in June, 1966. It wasn't the course content that altered Diane's life, but rather the teacher—Bishop James Pike.

Diane was 27, Bishop Pike 53. They were strongly attracted to each other and an affection, a love, grew that transcended both the age difference and, finally, even death.

Diane, a teacher of education and theology and director of youth work at First Methodist Church in Palo Alto, Calif., and James Pike, former Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of California, were married in December, 1968. Their life together was short but filled with meaningful work, love, religious dedication, discovery —and tragedy. Out of the tragedy came, for Diane, a feeling that death need not be final, can indeed be a beginning to a new spiritual communication.



Diane Pike and members of the Israeli armed forces search desert for missing Bishop Pike.

The story which began in an air-conditioned classroom at Berkeley and reached a climax in the searing desert heat of Israel sounds almost too fanciful to be true. But Diane Pike tells of her experience with the utmost conviction:

"Jim and I went to Israel last year to drink in the origins of Christianity, to get a feeling for the wilderness where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found and where the New Testament reports Jesus spent 40 days fasting."

The Pikes started out for a short drive from Jerusalem and Bethlehem that day in late August, preliminary to their planned expedition with guide and supplies. The rented car broke down in an inaccessible, untravelled spot. After an exhausting two-hour hike, unprotected from the 120-degree temperature, they knew they were lost. They lay down on the rocks and waited for what they felt would be certain death.

However, toward evening, Diane felt a sudden surge of determination; she must not give up, she must try to get help. Relying on God for strength and safety, she started out on an incredible trek alone, with no food or water, walking, climbing, falling, crawling, through the jagged cliffs and canyons of the barren Israeli desert.

Ten hours later, bruised, bleeding, weak, and dehydrated, with a broken ankle she'd had to ignore, she stumbled into a small construction camp. She had no idea in which direction she had come. A search party was organized, its efforts ending six days later when Bishop Pike's body was finally found on a wilderness cliff.

In 56 years this remarkable man had lived fully. He had been admitted to the bar of the U.S. Supreme Court at 25, served as a senior trial attorney for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and as an officer in Naval Intelligence during World War II. He had been both a devout Roman Catholic and an agnostic before he joined the Episcopal Church and began a career in its ministry.

He had been married, become a father, and been divorced. Midst controversy, aroused in large part by his questioning of the total validity of the terminology of some of the basic doctrines of Christianity, he had assumed an inactive role in the California Episcopal Diocese he once headed and become a staff member of the prestigious Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. He had taught and written books on law, theology, and ethics.

Bishop James Pike was buried in the Protestant cemetery in Jaffa, Israel, beside the Mediterranean Sea. His young widow returned to their home in Santa Barbara, Calif. They had been married eight months.

Back in California, members of the board of directors of the Foundation for Religious Transition (since renamed the Bishop Pike Foundation) urged Diane to share her unique experience with the world, with both admirers and critics of the controversial bishop, while memories remained vivid. The result is her book, "Search—The Personal Story of a Wilderness Journey," published by Doubleday.

Diane has also been busy adjusting to yet another way of life. In her widowhood she is very much alone. Yet she speaks as if her husband were still with her. She continues her story:

"I feel there are three levels of adjustment to grief one has to make, —spiritual, emotional, and physical.

"Spiritual has to do with the question of death. Everyone's death, his, mine. What does it mean? What does life mean? Of course, neither Jim nor I feared death. We both believe in God and a life hereafter. Jim looked forward to life after death with joy. Part of the future for me will be learning to know and relate to Jim in a new way through the 'barrier' of death, an experience which has already begun.

"I don't hear words, and I have not 'seen' him, except in dreams. The best way I can describe the communication is this: I tune in on Jim's 'vibrational channel.' When I knew him in the flesh, I became very sensitive to a sense of his presence; now that Jim is no longer able to be physically present, if I open myself to a sense of his presence, I feel that same vivid sense of communication. It is easier to tune into that than a facial image; I know Jim no longer looks like he did.

"In the first weeks after Jim's death, most of the messages which came through dreams had to do with my adjustment to the absence of his physical body, and the nature of the relationship we could have now.

"There was one specific message of quite a different nature, however.

that came to me after I had decided to write the book. I woke up one morning, having had a dream, and received the titles of the last three chapters and a sketchy outline of their contents. So that when I wrote them up, I had the strong feeling I was writing what Jim would have said, as well as what I wanted to say myself.

"I have also asked him about persons who have died and about his relationship with them and have had what I felt was a direct response to these questions.

"I am not going to bother him with things that are not essentially his concern any more, such as running the foundation. However, if I needed a level of insight or understanding in a larger sense, I would feel free to ask about that.

"As a matter of fact, I have a request in to Jim now for a name for our book on "the historical Jesus." We had worked through the book in synopsis form; now I'm writing it up according to what we had planned to do."

Meditation is the preparation essential for spiritual communication, according to Diane Pike. This practice undoubtedly enabled her to experience her vivid, detailed vision in Israel the night before her husband's body was located. She was awakened from sleep by it, and it did not fade when she went to the adjoining room to share it, as it was occurring, with her brother, Scott, who had flown over to be with her and help in the search. The vision lasted 45 minutes.

In it she saw her husband's death as peaceful, willing, and full of joy, a wonderful religious experience. She also saw his reception into the afterlife of "the communion of saints." The searchers found him—as she knew they would—in the position revealed to her.

"I remember thinking after I identified Jim's body, I could understand why non-believers are so tormented. How could anyone without faith adjust to death if you thought your loved one really ended in that horrible physical state. Yet I never even had a nightmare over it. I felt I'd loved this body when Jim was in it; he's not using it now, so it's good and proper that it go back to the earth so it can be used for new life. Ashes to ashes, dust to dust.

"After Jim's death, I found myself not only wafting prayers to God, but also sending little thoughts to Jim, such as—'I'm okay, don't worry about me . . . wish I could be experiencing what must be a marvelous experience for you . . . I love you.' And I felt that I was heard. It occurred to me perhaps someday I could communicate with others, too.

"The second level of grief, emotional, has to do primarily with how one feels about oneself. It has nothing to do with life after death, but with our philosophy about relationships. And guilt. Many people in grief torture themselves with what they should have done or said—like clearing up misunderstandings or voicing loving thoughts of 'I like you . . . you look good today, and now it's too late."

Diane would slip in and out of the present tense when speaking as if somehow Bishop Pike were still alive.

"Jim and I are very expressive persons. We always told each other our feelings. There were no words left unsaid, no hostilities unaired. I can't tell you what a comfort that is. I cannot think of one thing I could have said or done had I known Jim was about to die. He had always believed a relationship should be this way, though he never experienced it.

Diane gives last loving touch to the coffin at husband's burial in Israel.

"In our relationship, he discovered the freedom to be the way he'd wanted to be, and I found real fulfillment in what had been my lifestyle—but I'd never found anyone who could so fully respond to it. It was a chemistry where two personalities interacting made a new one. Because we lived so deeply and with a large variety of experiences, I believe there was more fullness in our brief relationship than in many which last years. I have no regrets.

"I was fortunate that I didn't suffer on any of those levels, but I suffered greatly on the third, the physical. It is the most painful. It has to do with your body adjusting to not being close to another body with whom there has been an active interchange of physical energy. It is especially so in a husband-and-wife relationship, though I think it would also be so for a mother, on the death of a child, having carried it in her body. The pain affects the emotions because our body and emotions are so directly related. The extrasensory communication is a comfort, but it is not a substitute for the person, for Jim being there. You are single again, and that's a difficult adjustment."

Like most widows, Diane Pike has many friends who intended to be comforting to her. Most were, but there is a lesson in some of the well-meaning but mistaken ways they only made her grief worse.

"Crying is almost the only way I've found to relieve the physical pain. A loving, comforting embrace helps, or just a friendly presence sitting there nearby. It didn't help at all to say words to me—certainly not 'cheer up' or 'don't cry' or 'time will help.'

"However, unrelated words did help, supporting ones, like 'Diane, we count you as one of our dearest friends . . . we care very much about you.' The affirmation of an ongoing relationship is very comforting. My mother, for instance, during my worst moments, embraced me warmly and said 'I am so sorry you are going through this.' That was very healing, because it was an acknowledgement of the fact of my suffering, letting me be me, and not telling me to be different."

The important thing for friends of the bereaved to avoid seems to be telling them how they should feel.

"I think the question which upsets me most is 'What are you going to do? Sell the house?' I am a strong person emotionally and even I don't know. I doubt that I'll be able to think of plans for a year at least."

Bishop Pike's widow's main energies now are devoted to continuing his work. She is president of the Foundation, which has the aim "to be of help to many persons, both clergy and laymen, who are conscious of the fact that they are in a period of very difficult transition with regard to institutional religion and/or their personal faith and beliefs." She is also continuing their original plans to bring small groups of interested persons to Israel, to walk where Jesus walked. In August, there will be a two-week study tour "to discover the roots of our Christian tradition." (For further information, write the Bishop Pike Foundation, Box 5146, Dept. FW, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93103.)

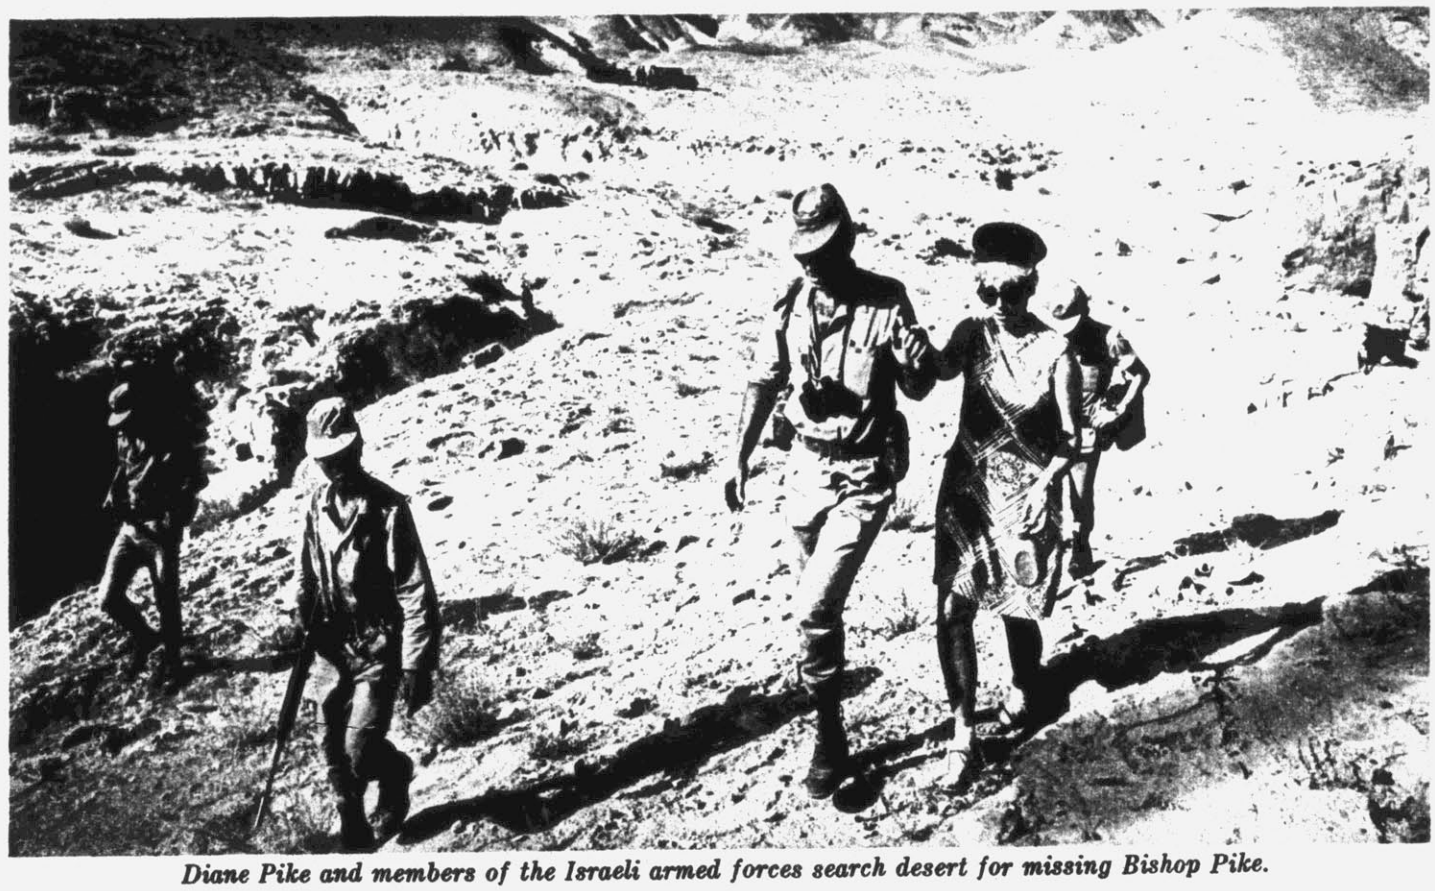
"I know God is there before me," she concludes. "The future will unfold its meaning and promise." ◆

LOVE AFTER DEATH:

The Strange Experience of Bishop

This fantastic story may be inspirational to some, unbelievable to others; but no one can doubt

By TERRY SCHAERTEL



Diane Pike and members of the Israeli armed forces search desert for missing Bishop Pike.

Life for Diane Kennedy changed dramatically and irrevocably when she enrolled in a summer course at Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, Calif., in June, 1966. It wasn't the course content that altered Diane's life, but rather the teacher—Bishop James Pike.

Diane was 27, Bishop Pike 53. They were strongly attracted to each other and an affection, a love, grew that transcended both the age difference and, finally, even death.

Diane, a teacher of education and theology and director of youth work at First Methodist Church in Palo Alto, Calif., and James Pike, former Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of California, were married in December, 1968. Their life together was short but filled with meaningful work, love, religious dedication, discovery —and tragedy. Out of the tragedy came, for Diane, a feeling that death need not be final, can indeed be a beginning to a new spiritual communication.

The story which began in an air-conditioned classroom at Berkeley and reached a climax in the searing desert heat of Israel sounds almost too fanciful to be true. But Diane Pike tells of her experience with the utmost conviction:

"Jim and I went to Israel last year to drink in the origins of Christianity, to get a feeling for the wilderness where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found and where the New Testament reports Jesus spent 40 days fasting."

The Pikes started out for a short drive from Jerusalem and Bethlehem that day in late August, preliminary to their planned expedition with guide and supplies. The rented car broke down in an inaccessible, untravelled spot. After an exhausting two-hour hike, unprotected from the 120-degree temperature, they knew they were lost. They lay down on the rocks and waited for what they felt would be certain death.

However, toward evening, Diane felt a sudden surge of determination; she must not give up, she must try to get help. Relying on God for strength and safety, she started out on an incredible trek alone, with no food or water, walking, climbing, falling, crawling, through the jagged cliffs and canyons of the barren Israeli desert.

Ten hours later, bruised, bleeding, weak, and dehydrated, with a broken ankle she'd had to ignore, she stumbled into a small construction camp. She had no idea in which direction she had come. A search party was organized, its efforts ending six days later when Bishop Pike's body was finally found on a wilderness cliff.

In 56 years this remarkable man had lived fully. He had been admitted to the bar of the U.S. Supreme Court at 25, served as a senior trial attorney for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and as an officer in Naval Intelligence during World War II. He had been both a devout Roman Catholic and an agnostic before he joined the Episcopal Church and began a career in its ministry.

He had been married, become a father, and been divorced. Midst controversy, aroused in large part by his questioning of the total validity of the terminology of some of the basic doctrines of Christianity, he had assumed an inactive role in the California Episcopal Diocese he once headed and become a staff member of the prestigious Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. He had taught and written books on law, theology, and ethics.

June is Dairy Month

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ For more than thirty years June has been the month designated by the industry to point up dairy foods. Convenience, flavor, good nutrition and versatility are characteristic of any one—whether your choice is ice cream, milk, buttermilk, sour cream or whipping cream, cottage and cream cheese, or other cheeses. For that sumptuous bridal banquet or for a back-yard bash, surely dairy products belong to summer.

Molded Spinach Cottage Cheese on Platter

- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach
- ¾ cup water
- 2 env. unflavored gelatin
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1½ cups cottage cheese
- ½ cup dairy sour cream
- ½ cup sliced celery
- ⅓ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons minced green onion

1. Cook and drain spinach, reserving liquid. Add enough water to liquid to make ½ cup. Set spinach and liquid aside.

2. Soften gelatin in the ¾ cup water in a saucepan; add bouillon cubes. Set over low heat, stirring occasionally, until gelatin and bouillon cubes are dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in spinach liquid and lemon juice. Set aside.

3. Beat cottage cheese until fairly smooth with mixer or in electric blender. Blend with sour cream and then gelatin mixture. Stir in spinach, celery, green pepper, and onion. Turn into a 5-cup mold. Chill until firm.

4. Unmold onto a chilled large platter and surround mold with halved hard-cooked egg whites filled with a mixture of sieved hard-cooked egg yolks, dairy sour cream, prepared horseradish, and seasoned salt. If desired, alternate slices of summer sausage and filled egg halves around the mold. 6 to 8 servings

Cheddar Macaroni Salad

- 1 pkg. (7 or 8 oz.) elbow macaroni
- 1 to 2 cups cubed Cheddar cheese
- ¼ cup sweet pickle relish
- ¾ cup chopped green pepper
- 3 tablespoons chopped green onion
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 3 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard

1. Cook macaroni according to pkg. directions; drain.

2. In a large bowl, put macaroni, cheese, pickle relish, green pepper, green onion, and a blend of remaining ingredients; mix well. Cover and chill. Serve salad garnished with cherry tomato halves and watercress. 6 to 8 servings

Butter Balls

Scald, then chill butter paddles in a bowl of ice and water. Measure butter by tablespoonfuls (for uniformity) and drop into the icy water. For each ball, place a portion of butter on the grooved side of one paddle. Using the second paddle, grooved side down, work paddles lightly in a rolling motion until a ball is formed. Drop into icy water. Later pile into a serving dish and refrigerate until ready to use. Garnish with parsley sprigs.

Strawberry Sour Cream Pie

- Vanilla Wafer Crumb Crust (see recipe)
- 1 cup water
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 pkg. (3 oz.) strawberry-flavored gelatin
- ½ cup white grape juice
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1½ cups sliced fresh strawberries
- Whipped cream
- Whole fresh strawberries with hulls

1. Combine water and sugar in a saucepan. Heat to boiling, stirring until sugar is dissolved.

2. Remove from heat, pour over gelatin in a bowl, and stir until completely dissolved. Cool slightly. Mix in white grape juice and lemon peel. Chill until partially set, then whip until light in color.

3. Whip sour cream until doubled in volume (about 5 min. at high speed of electric beater). Fold into whipped gelatin and gently mix in the sliced strawberries. Turn into cooled crust and chill until set.

4. When ready to serve, garnish pie with the whipped cream and strawberries (see photo).

One 9-in. pie

Vanilla Wafer Crumb Crust

- 1⅓ cups vanilla wafer crumbs* (about 34 wafers)
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ cup butter, melted

1. Mix the crumbs and sugar thoroughly in a bowl; blend in butter. Turn mixture into a 9-in. pie plate and press crumbs firmly into an even layer over bottom and up sides of plate, building up slightly around rim.

2. Bake at 350°F. 5 min. Cool thoroughly before filling.

One 9-in. crumb crust

*To prepare crumbs, place cookies on a long length of waxed paper or aluminum foil. Loosely fold paper or foil around cookies, tucking under open ends. With a rolling pin, gently crush to make fine crumbs. Or put cookies into a plastic bag and gently crush.

Ham and Cheese Roll-Ups

- Swiss cheese, cut in finger-shaped pieces
- Sliced cooked ham (about ¼ in. thick)
- Crushed pineapple, drained, or sauerkraut, drained

1. Place a piece of cheese on each ham slice. Spoon 1 to 2 tablespoons crushed pineapple or sauerkraut over cheese. Roll up and fasten with wooden picks. Brush with butter.

2. Broil or grill, 2 to 3 min. on each side. Or roll in aluminum foil, seal ends, and bake at 350°F. 10 to 15 min.; if heated on grill 5 to 6 min., turning once.

Calypso Pie

- Chocolate Fudge Sauce (see recipe)
- Chocolate-Sandwich-Style Cookie Crumb Crust (see recipe)
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- 2 pts. coffee ice cream, slightly softened
- 1 cup nuts, chopped

1. Prepare Chocolate Fudge Sauce and Chocolate-Sandwich-Style Cookie Crumb Crust. Chill thoroughly.

2. When ready to complete pie, beat cream until peaks are formed. With a final few strokes, beat in confectioners' sugar. Spoon slightly softened ice cream into chilled crust; spread evenly. Spread chilled sauce over ice cream. Cover the top with whipped cream (swirl, if desired) and sprinkle with the nuts.

3. Freeze until firm, about 4 hrs. Wrap frozen pie in aluminum foil if storing overnight.

4. Before serving, allow pie to stand at room temperature to soften slightly. One 10-in. pie

Chocolate Fudge Sauce

Melt 3 oz. (3 sq.) unsweetened chocolate and ¼ cup butter in the top of a double boiler over boiling water. Remove from heat; stir in ⅔ cup sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt until blended. Add ⅔ cup (6-oz. can) evaporated milk gradually, blending well. Cook 4 min. over boiling water, stirring constantly. Remove from water and stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla extract and a few drops almond extract. Chill thoroughly.

About 1½ cups sauce

Chocolate-Sandwich-Style Cookie Crumb Crust

Crush 18 cream-filled chocolate sandwich-style cookies (about 2 cups crumbs). Using a fork or pastry blender, blend in ¼ cup softened butter. Turn into a 10-in. pie pan. Using back of spoon, press layer on bottom and sides of pie pan. Set in freezer.

Meringues with Ice Cream and Raspberry Sauce

- 4 egg whites (room temperature)
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup sugar
- Vanilla ice cream
- Raspberry Sauce or Chocolate Fudge Sauce (see recipe)

1. Using a hand rotary or electric beater, beat egg whites with salt, cream of tartar, and extract until frothy. Add the sugar, about 2 tablespoons at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat until very stiff peaks are formed. If desired, beat in a few drops red food coloring to tint a pale pink.

2. Drop meringue by heaping spoonfuls into 8 mounds on a baking sheet lined with baking parchment (unglazed paper). Using back of spoon, start from center of each mound to form shells or nests.

3. Bake at 250°F. about 1 hr., or until meringues are dry but not brown.

4. Remove from oven and transfer meringues to a rack to cool.

5. To serve, place meringues on dessert plates; fill centers with ice cream and top with desired sauce. 8 servings

Raspberry Sauce

- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen raspberries, thawed and drained; reserve syrup
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice

1. Combine sugar and cornstarch in a saucepan and mix well. Add enough water to the raspberry syrup to make 1 cup liquid. Add to sugar mixture, blend well, and set over medium heat. Cook and stir until sauce comes to boiling and is smooth.

2. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice and drained berries. Chill.

Apricot Frappé

- 1 can (12 oz.) apricot nectar
- 1 pt. vanilla ice cream
- ¼ cup instant natural-flavored malted milk powder
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

1. Pour apricot nectar into a refrigerator tray. Freeze until mushy.

2. Spoon mushy apricot nectar and ice cream into an electric blender container. Add the malted milk powder and lemon juice. Cover and blend until smooth and creamy.

Grasshopper Chiffon Pie

- 1 baked 9-in. pie shell prepared from your favorite recipe or a pie crust mix
- ½ cup cold water
- 1 env. unflavored gelatin
- 10 tablespoons white crème de cacao
- 3 tablespoons crème de menthe
- 1 cup heavy cream, chilled
- 1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
- 2 egg whites
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sugar

1. Sprinkle gelatin evenly over the ½ cup cold water in a saucepan. Set over low heat stirring constantly until gelatin is completely dissolved. Remove from heat.

2. Pour the crème de cacao and crème de menthe into a chilled large mixing bowl. Stir the completely dissolved gelatin into the liqueurs. Chill in refrigerator until mixture is the consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white.

3. Meanwhile, whip the cream until soft peaks are formed. With final few strokes beat in confectioners' sugar until blended. Set in refrigerator while beating egg whites.

4. Using a clean beater, beat egg whites and salt until frothy. Add gradually the ¼ cup sugar, beating well after each addition and continuing to beat until rounded peaks are formed when beater is slowly lifted upright.

5. Spread whipped cream and beaten egg white over the slightly gelled mixture and fold together until thoroughly blended (if necessary, rebeat whipped cream or egg white just to proper consistency before turning onto gelatin). Turn filling into baked pie shell and chill until firm.

6. Garnish pie with sprigs of fresh mint lightly sifted with confectioners' sugar.

One 9-in. pie

Coconut Twists

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup lard, vegetable shortening, or all-purpose shortening
- ¾ cup buttermilk
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- ⅓ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- ⅔ cup flaked coconut

1. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together into a bowl. Cut in the fat with a pastry blender or two knives until rice-sized particles are formed. Make a well in center of dry ingredients. Pour in almost all of the buttermilk and stir quickly with a fork. Stir in enough of the remaining buttermilk until dough follows fork. Gently form into a ball and put onto a lightly floured surface. Knead lightly.

2. Divide dough into halves. Roll each half into 13x5x¼-in. rectangle.

3. Using one half of the melted butter or margarine for each portion of dough, brush generously. Using one half of the brown sugar and then the coconut, sprinkle over one lengthwise half of each dough rectangle. Cover with waxed paper and lightly press mixture into dough with rolling pin; remove waxed paper. Fold buttered half over coconut layer; press long edges together to seal.

4. Cut dough crosswise into ½-in. strips. Twist strips, press ends to seal, and arrange about 1 in. apart on baking sheets lined with double thicknesses of heavy-duty aluminum foil.

5. Bake at 450°F. about 8 min., or until golden brown. Serve warm.

By fourth year, child begins to count in sequence up to 10.

Memory: Clue to Your Child's Development

The years from one to five are vital ones as the ability to remember expands

By FLORA RHETA SCHREIBER
Author of "Your Child's Speech: A Practical Guide for Parents for the First Five Years"

WHEN Jacqueline Kennedy was five years old and became separated from her nurse in Central Park, she calmly went up to a policeman and gave him her phone number.

When her mother arrived, Jacqueline announced that not she but her nurse had been lost.

This anecdote, denoting self-reliance on the part of a five-year-old, could not have taken place in a four-year-old or a three-year-old. Obviously it cannot take place until the child is old enough to remember his own phone number. And it illustrates a fact that practically all parents overlook—that a child's behavior is conditioned by the stage of memory development he has reached.

It is useless, for instance, to say to a child of two, "But I told you not to do that," when the telling took place a month before. He just cannot remember back that far.

Nor is there any point in asking a two-year-old to get the "red" pitcher. The two-year-old has no memory for color.

It is helpful therefore to know of what acts of memory a child is capable as he moves from the first year, during which memories are simply responses to direct appeals to the senses and to strong emotional experiences, chiefly painful ones, to the virtually adult memory he acquires in his fifth year. This "timetable" of normal development determines the kinds of instructions the child at each age is able to absorb.

During his second year, you can give your child some small sense of responsibility and can expect him to carry out a few simple commands.

With the second year comes, too, a sense of time and also the ability to remember a person who is not present. A 19-month-old boy, for example, kept murmuring all through a Sunday morning, "Helen's sleeping." His mother soon realized that it was his way of recalling that the previous Sunday they had an overnight guest named Helen. How the boy purred when he realized his mother understood what he was saying. Moments like this, when rightly interpreted as milestones along memory's path, can be the means of deepening relations.

To the second half of the second year belongs the important capacity for storing up memories which become the bedrock of later learning. Passages from Sophocles read to a baby (who had no other contact with Greek) from the time he was 15 months until he was 18 months, for instance, made it possible for him at eight and a half years to memorize these passages after 317 repetitions while he required 433 repetitions to memorize passages that had not been read to him when he was a baby.

In your child's third year, you can take advantage of his growing sense of time—of present, past, and future—by teaching him to tell time.

Be precise about time. Loose phrases like "just a minute," which may mean many minutes, confuse the child. At this age, delighting in hearing about his own unremembered past, he often asks you to tell him about "when I was a baby." This is your clue to filling in memories for him and giving him a sense of their chronological order.

By now the child can describe in detail events that took place a month or two, and in some cases, even a year before. Now you can realistically say, "But I told you not to do that."

And now you can say get the "red" pitcher, for the child of this age has developed memory for color.

The fourth year witnesses the charged overflow of rapidly developing memory. The child can now be expected to tell you whether it is morning or afternoon and how old he is. He can count in sequence up to 10. His rattling off a sequence of numbers, from three to 10, however, is in most cases a mere matter of rote memory. He does not really know the meaning of numbers. If you show him several objects, he can count only three of them. He can, in all likelihood, remember four digits and the future tense has entered his vocabulary.

During this year the child's memories pour out in stories, in endless, unrelenting narratives. If you and he look at two pictures and you ask him to point to one of them, he will point to both. "This one is bigger. This smaller. This one is nice."

One thing leads to another, and the four-year-old talks and talks. He makes many, many free associations.

More and more, since the end of his third year, the child has shown facility in understanding what is not present. Even so, he cannot yet easily imagine himself in a situation beyond his experience. If you ask him what he would do if he were separated from you in a crowded store, he is likely to be unable to answer.

His capacity for generalizing, a process of drawing inductions from memories, is steadily growing, however. When asked what he must do when hungry, he replies not, "I eat," as he did before, but simply "eat." He thus shows that he knows not only that he eats but others do, too.

This fourth year is noteworthy, too, for the true onset of permanent memory. What permanent memories he has had before, as in the case of the 15-month-old who absorbed Greek passages, were chiefly unconscious.

These permanent memories, which first appear when an impression is made in the brain of sufficient depth to be retained through life and which are almost always precipitated by strong emotions, are the ones that will linger into old age.

The major gain of the fifth year is an ability to remember concepts. When you tell a four-year-old that one man is considered as good as the other, he is likely to ask which man is the "one" and which the "other." At five, however, he understands that in speaking of "one man" and the "other" you are using general ideas and do not mean individual persons. This new capacity for generalizing means that you can begin to talk ideas to the child and expect him to understand what you mean.

Now the child understands not only what is but also what could be. Ask him what he must do before he crosses the street, and he will tell you, "Wait for the light to change," or, "Wait till the policeman signals," or something similar. Ask him what he would do if he lost his mother in a crowded store and he will answer, "Look for her," or "Get somebody to help me find her."

He should, of course, not be taxed beyond his mental capacities. Since most five-year-olds can remember only four digits—a house address, for example, he should not be scolded should he not remember a telephone number.

From this "timetable" you can gauge how good or bad your child's memory is for his age. To improve his memory, within the limits of each year's capabilities, you can increase the stimuli. The new memory for color in the third year can, for example, be stimulated by referring to the colors of clothes and other objects. The ability to deal with concepts in the fifth year can be the spur to dealing with the child as a reasonable human being.

An understanding of the various levels of children's memory can help you to be fairer to your child and promote family harmony. ◆

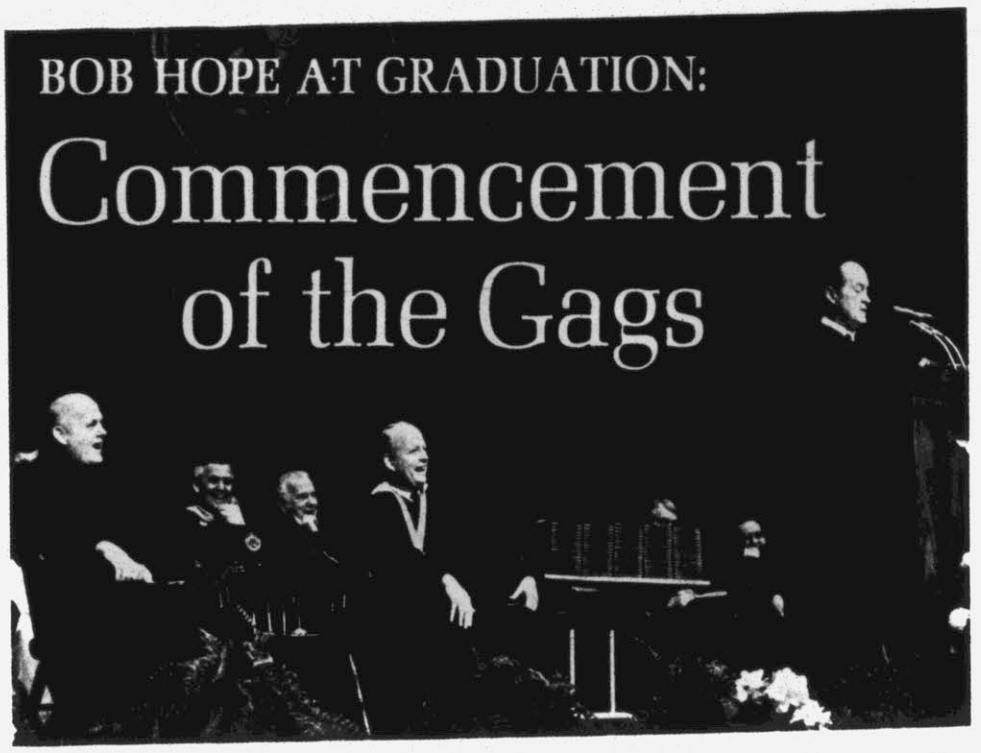
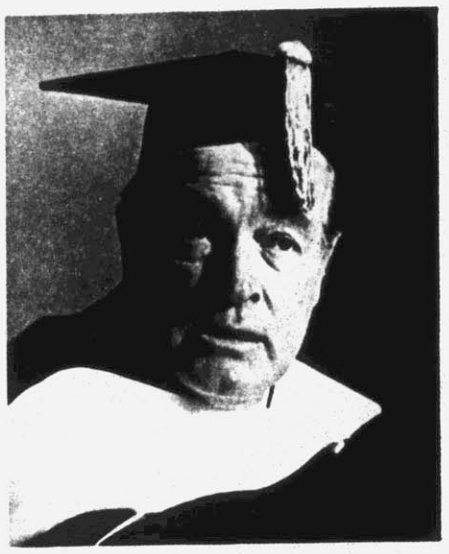
BOB HOPE AT GRADUATION:

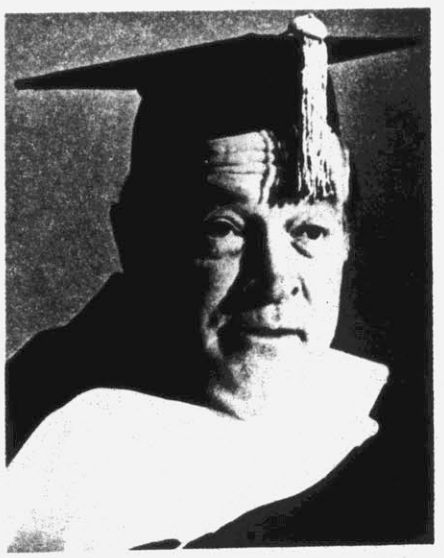
Commencement of the Gags



COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT exercises are solemn proceedings—unless comedian Bob Hope takes a turn at the rostrum. Then the gags begin to flow (see the samples on this page drawn from Hope's appearance last year at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio), and the academic robes to shake with laughter. An invited graduation speaker nearly every June, Hope imparts his share of wisdom, too, and is taken seriously enough to have been awarded 15 honorary degrees, including one last week from the University of Nevada. ◆



"Remember the good old days when a student would write home, 'Dear Dad, got an A in business management, send money for laundry.' Today they say, 'Flunked picketing, mail bail.'"



"I'm sorry I didn't go to college. I didn't know how much I missed until I saw the picture, 'The Graduate.'"

"Many colleges are no longer giving Bachelor of Arts degrees. After four years you become a certified guerrilla fighter."

"It was a little easier to get through school in my day. The questions were just as hard, but praying was still legal."

WORLD'S FIRST SPOT-REDUCING DIET!

Designed by America's best-known diet doctor—to smooth out ugly bulges that have never given way to any diet you have ever tried before!

Based on an entirely new medical principle, it works two ways to give you a better figure than you may even have had as a teenager! Like this . . .

1) First, it carves anywhere from 5 to 10 to 15 pounds off your body in the very first week! And up to 10 pounds a week from then on, as only the first step of this wonder-working new medical diet!

2) And then—after you have lost as much as 20 or 30 or even 40 pounds in the first 6 weeks alone—you then concentrate on those ugly bulges no other diet has ever been able to touch before! Still through nothing but diet alone, you then see up to . . .

6 inches MORE gone from your waist . . .

6 inches MORE gone from your hips . . .

6 inches MORE gone from your buttocks . . .

4 inches MORE gone from your thighs . . .

2 inches MORE gone from your calves . . .

Until you can hardly believe that the figure you are looking at in the mirror is your own! And all through the application of a new medical principle by America's most famous diet doctor!

Like this . . .

Most Diets Remove Skin-Fat Only! But This Diet Pulls Deep Fat And Excess Protein Right Out From The Muscle Areas Themselves! THAT'S WHY IT SMOOTHS OUT UGLY MUSCLE BULGES THAT YOU CAN'T EVEN EXERCISE AWAY!

Now you are beginning to understand the powerful logic of this new reducing plan! It is so important to your future health and appearance, however, that we must go into a few more details about it with you right now:

Fat stores itself in several places in your body. Much of it, of course, is deposited right underneath your skin. You can feel it if you squeeze the skin. This is skin-fat, and it is the fat you usually get rid of in ordinary diets.

Any good diet will burn this skin-fat away. This diet does too—but far more quickly than you have ever dreamed before! As much as 5 to 15 pounds in the very first week, as starters! (That's why the doctor says that this diet has its own "Built-In Will Power"—because you lose weight so incredibly fast, this way, that you wouldn't break this diet for the world!)

But then, after this massive quick-weight loss—after this skin-fat has been burned right out of your body—this new medical diet goes one step further that opens up a whole new world of beauty to you!

Now it goes after the DEEP-FAT in your body—the fat, and excess protein, that is inter-laced with the muscles of your waist, your hips, your buttocks, your thighs, and all the other ugly "problem-bulges of your body"!

These are the areas ordinary diets really can't touch—because their food-mixtures reinforce these muscle-fat bulges rather than carve them down! These are the areas that laugh at even back-breaking exercises—because they only make the muscles there GROW, and don't have the slightest effect on the fat!

A Diplomate in Internal Medicine, Dr. Stillman is presently a consultant in Internal Medicine at Coney Island Hospital, Brooklyn, New York. Formerly, he was an attending physician in Medicine at Coney Island Hospital and at Harbour Hospital, a Fellow of the American College of Angiology, and a Fellow of the American Geriatric Society. Dr. Stillman received a gold diploma from the New York Medical College in 1968.

But This New Diet Causes These Muscle-Fat Bulges TO FEED ON THEMSELVES! To Gently, But Rapidly, Pull Out Excess Fat And Protein Right Out Of Those Bulges! So Those Bulges Look Almost As Though You Had SMOOTHED THEM AWAY WITH AN ERASER!

Now for the final point—and perhaps the most convincing fact of all:

This new QUICK INCHES-OFF DIET is given to you by perhaps the most successful reducing specialist in the world! It is backed and proven by over forty-five years of medical experience of Dr. Irwin Maxwell Stillman, who gave you last year the revolutionary Doctor's Quick Weight-Loss Diet.

But now Dr. Stillman has gone far beyond mere quick-weight loss alone! He has taken his previous Quick Weight Loss principles, and literally MULTIPLIED their power to give you a more beautiful new figure! Where you not only skyrocket down to your ideal weight—even easier than before—but also where you carve away up to 6 to 10 inches from the very problem spots that have always resisted trimming before!

Thus, Dr. Stillman has done what might have previously been considered impossible. He has actually improved his previous techniques! He has combined what is probably the world's fastest and healthiest system of losing POUNDS, with a brand-new system of carving off PROBLEM-INCHES—till you get the slimmest, healthiest, youngest-looking figure you have ever known in your life!

Prove Every Ounce Of It— Entirely At Our Risk!

The rest is up to you, of course. Right now, look bluntly at your figure in the mirror. Ask yourself these questions—all of which are now within your reach:

How would you look one week from today about 10 pounds lighter?

How would you look two weeks from today about 20 pounds lighter?

How would you look three weeks from today about 30 or more pounds lighter? And with your face as radiant, and livelier and younger-looking than your figure!

And then, go on even further—

After you've lost that weight, how would you look with another 6 inches carved off your waist? Another 6 inches carved off your hips? Another 6 inches carved off your buttocks? Another 4 inches carved right off your thighs?

We suggest, of course, that you check out this diet, and its effect on you as you go along, with your own doctor.

No one has ever told you this kind of weight loss, and inch loss was ever possible before. IT IS NOW! Its source is the Coupon below. All you risk to try it is a 6-cent stamp. It works for YOU, or you don't lose a penny!

Why not send in the Coupon—today?

QUIZ

What's Your Gardening I.Q.?

By KEN and PAT KRAFT

Here are a few true-false questions to test your gardening "I.Q." All deal with the increasingly popular hobby of home vegetable gardening, which now is carried on by an estimated 40 million Americans.

Be careful—some of these questions are "planted." A score of eight right is good, and 10 right is excellent. If you get all 12 right, you are a champion gardener.

1. A vegetable garden made in the raw earth around a new home is more likely to do well.

2. Every seed packet tells how to grow its contents.

3. The smallest practical space for a kitchen garden is about 10 feet square.

4. The most critical period in a plant's life is when it is ripening its crop.

5. The best bets for a home garden are the vegetables that have given satisfaction for many years.

6. Flowers and vegetables do not grow well when planted near each other.

7. All the seeds in a packet should be planted within a month after opening the packet.

8. Only the "seed potatoes" can be planted for a crop.

9. You can raise excellent vegetables without spraying or dusting.

10. The best time to harvest corn is very early in the morning.

11. Among occupational groups, a high percentage of doctors tend gardens.

12. You can grow your own vegetables for approximately what they cost at the store.

ANSWERS

1. True. Such soil is not worn out from overplanting and is apt to be especially healthy, even if littered with debris. Spade in organic matter such as peat moss, add fertilizer, and plant with confidence.

2. True. The basic information is in digest form on the packet. Check it for time of planting, spacing, planting depth, and such.

3. False. As an attractive edging for a path, you can grow beets, cress, garlic, carrots, herbs. And practically any vegetable will grow in a tub, a box, or even a bucket.

4. False. The most critical period is when the seed is germinating. If it dries out for even a few minutes it may die. Keep soil moist, with a covering of sheet plastic, burlap, newspapers, or a board till first sprouts appear.

5. False. Better varieties are constantly being bred, including fine modern hybrids that quite often grow where no older variety thrives.

6. False. Such companion plantings are often thought to help each other. There is some evidence that marigolds, for example, repel nematodes.

7. False. Leftover seed can be stored by putting the packet in the refrigerator in a closed plastic bag.

8. False. Though certified seed potatoes are most dependable, you can plant in your garden the potato you bought to eat. This is a good use for potatoes already starting to sprout.

9. True. While success is more certain through the use of proper chemical controls, the most important plant health factors are sun, air, food, and water.

10. False. Corn makes sugar during sunny hours. If possible, harvest it late in the afternoon—and ideally just a few minutes before you cook it.

11. True. A poll by a large seed house found that a higher percentage of doctors garden for relaxation than do members of nearly any other group. Doctors also frequently "prescribe" gardening for their tense patients.

12. False. Even counting all the running expenses, last season a first-year gardener we know raised superb lettuce, for instance, for under two cents a head. This is not unusual. ◆

What Do Many Doctors Use When They, Themselves, Suffer From Hemorrhoids?

Exclusive Formula Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief From Pain, Itching In Many Cases... and Actually Helps Shrink Swollen Hemorrhoid Tissues—Caused By Inflammation

News about a most effective medication for hemorrhoids comes from a recent survey of doctors. Asked what they, themselves, use for relief of hemorrhoids, fifty-eight percent of the doctors reporting named one particular formula which they either use or recommend for their families.

This medication in case after case gives prompt, temporary relief for hours from pain of tissues and actually helps shrink swelling of inflamed hemorrhoid tissues. Tests upon hundreds of patients showed this to be true.

The medication used in these tests was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Preparation H also lubricates the affected area to protect the irritated surface and so helps make bowel movements less painful.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

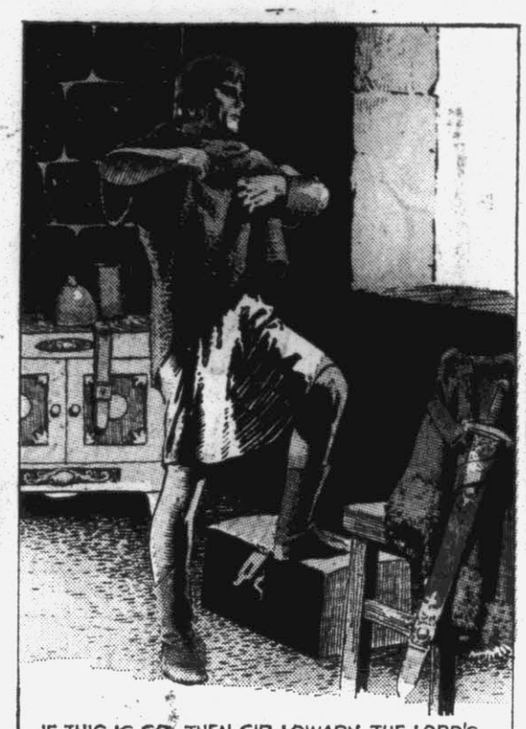
WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Our Story: DALE SPENDS A SLEEPLESS NIGHT. THE TASK KING ARTHUR HAS ASSIGNED HIM SEEMED SIMPLE: ON THE DEATH OF LORD MARVYN, HIS SON SHOULD INHERIT THE FIEF. BUT WHERE IS THAT SON? THE SERFS IN THE VILLAGE HAVE HINTED THAT HE IS DEAD!



IF THIS IS SO, THEN SIR LOWARY, THE LORD'S BROTHER, IS NEXT IN LINE. THEN WHY ALL THE MYSTERY? PRODUCE THE BOY AND THE CASE IS SETTLED!

ALETA'S FAVOR; STRANGE THAT SUCH A DAINTY TRIFLE COULD REPRESENT ALL THAT IS FINE AND GALLANT. BUT WHAT DID SHE MEAN WHEN SHE SAID, "COURAGE IS NOT ENOUGH"?

THE DAY BEGINS WITH CAUSTIC REMARKS FROM LADY MARVYN. TURNING TO DALE SHE SAYS, "YOU WERE SENT HERE BY THE KING TO DRIVE THIS INTERLOPER FROM MY HOME. DO IT!" "YES, WHY DON'T YOU?" REMARKS LOWARY WITH A SARDONIC GRIN. BY A GREAT EFFORT DALE CONTROLS HIS ANGER. "WE WILL EXAMINE THE RECORDS FIRST."

A MAN-AT-ARMS ENTERS BEARING LOWARY'S ARMS AND WHISPERS A MESSAGE. AS HE ARMS, DALE SAYS: "BY THE AUTHORITY VESTED IN ME BY THE KING I DEMAND YOU PRODUCE THE RECORDS." "NEITHER YOU NOR THE KING GIVES ORDERS HERE, SO BE PATIENT, LITTLE MAN, BE PATIENT." EXIT SIR LOWARY, LAUGHING.

"WHERE ARE THE RECORDS?" HE ASKS HER LADYSHIP.
"IN LOWARY'S STRONGBOX, AND HE HAS THE KEYS," SHE REPLIES.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN HIS LIFE DALE KNOWS HATE. HOW LONG CAN HE SUFFER INSULTS IN ORDER TO COMPLETE THE KING'S MISSION? THEN HE REMEMBERS ALETA'S WORDS: "COURAGE IS NOT ENOUGH."

THE FOURTH MEMBER AT THE TABLE RISES. DALE SUPPOSED HER TO BE LADY MARVYN'S MAID, FOR SHE SAT IN SILENCE WITH BOWED HEAD. "YOU DID WELL TO HOLD YOUR TEMPER," SHE SAYS, "BUT THERE IS WORSE TO COME."
