Exemptions From Draft 'Amplified'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today exempted from military service all young men who have strong moral or ethical objections to military duty - so long as their beliefs are deeply held and are not based on expediency.

Interpreting the draft law section that provides for conscientious objectors, Justice Hugo L. Black wrote: "That section exempts from military service all those whose consciences, spurred by deeply held moral, ethical or religious beliefs, would give them no rest or peace if they allowed themselves to become a part of an instrument of war."

The decision reverses the conviction and three-year prison term of Allioti Ashton Welsh II, a Los Angeles computer engineer who refused Army induction.

Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., and Thurgood Marshall joined Black's opinion. Justice John M. Harlan supported the result, forming a five-man majority.

Black said Welsh qualified for the exemption even though he did not base his plea to be spared from military duty on a direct belief in a supreme being.

In fact, the justice noted, Welsh struck the word "religious" from the C.O. application and characterized his beliefs as having been formed "by reading in the fields of history and sociology."

Uphold Vote By Residents Of Federal Enclave

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled 8 to 0 today that Maryland may not deny the vote in state and local elections to persons living on federal installations.

The decision, given by Justice Thurgood Marshall, applies evidently to federal enclaves and installations in all states.

Maryland had appealed to the court from a precedent-setting opinion handed down by three federal judges in Baltimore federal court in January 1969 on a suit brought by 12 of the 500 residents of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) in Bethesda.

The three judges ruled Maryland treats people at NIH as state residents to such an extent it is a violation of the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution for the state to deny them the vote.

Affirming, the Supreme Court said through Justice Marshall that NIH residents have a stake equal to that of other Maryland residents in their day-to-day affairs and in nearly every ballot issue. He noted that the federal workers are subject to state income, gasoline, sales and use taxes, to state unemployment and workmen's compensation laws, to state courts, to state criminal laws and send their children to Maryland public schools.

Finish Report On Apollo 13 Studies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special review board studying the near tragic Apollo 13 lunar mission has finished its final report on the cause of the in-space explosion that endangered the lives of three astronauts and ruined man's third attempt to walk on the moon.

Review board Chairman Edgar M. Cortright prepared the findings, expected to be critical of management shortcomings, for delivery today to Dr. Thomas O. Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The main thrust of today's report was an evaluation of how the explosion happened, where to place any blame and how to avoid the problem in future flights.

An earlier report by Cortright pinned the oxygen tank explosion on the failure of two thermal switches he said were subjected to an electrical overload during a test at Cape Kennedy two weeks before the April 11 launch.

The 26-inch-diameter oxygen tank ruptured April 13, about 205,000 miles from earth, as astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. neared the moon. The blast drained their command ship of oxygen and power and forced the astronauts to use the separate systems of their lunar module to save their lives.

The lunar ship, which was to have transported Lovell and Haise to the moon, served as the astronauts' "lifeboat" for four harrowing days as they swept around the back of the moon and streaked back to a safe landing in the Pacific Ocean.

In his earlier report to newsmen, Cortright listed this probable sequence of events leading to the explosion:

—During a countdown test March 27, the launch crew had difficulty draining liquid oxygen from the tank, possibly because of a loose section in a filter system. In a procedure never before attempted, technicians turned on a heater in the tank to convert the liquid to a gas to vent it overboard.

—To start the heater, the technicians applied 65 volts to the circuit. Later analysis showed the switches were designed to handle only 30 volts. The overload welded shut two thermal switches intended to cut off the heater when it reached 80 degrees.

—With the switches inoperative, the heat in the circuit rose unchecked to perhaps 1,000 degrees.

Space Record

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastyanov set a space record for flight duration today by staying in earth orbit for more than 13 days, 18 hours and 35 minutes.

That was the record, set in 1963, by U.S. astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell in the Gemini 7 flight. Nikolayev and Sevastyanov, riding the Soviet Soyuz 9 space-ship, surpassed the record at 9:35 a.m. EDT and continued in orbit. There was no indication how much longer they would stay in space.

The Soyuz 9 flight is chiefly aimed at testing the effects of extended space flight on human beings. The two cosmonauts carry out an extensive program of physical exercise and medical checks.

All official reports on the Soyuz 9 trip so far have emphasized that the cosmonauts are well and retain their capacity for work. Research on extended space flight, never attempted before by the Soviet Union, is essential for its long-range plans to put large space stations in orbit. These are to be used as space laboratories and as launching platforms for deeper space probes and would involve lengthy manning by cosmonaut crews.

The longest previous Soviet manned space flight lasted 54 minutes short of five days.

Spiro Avers Media Not Always Telling 2 Sides Of A Story

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said today telling both sides of a story is "something that has gone out of vogue in some of the major news organizations of America."

"The price for not presenting both sides of a story is loss of credibility as a public institution," Agnew said. "It is a heavy price to pay for a fleeting exercise in power or influence."

The vice president commented in remarks prepared for a meeting of the International Federation of Newspaper Publishers.

Unlike earlier attacks on the press, Agnew omitted mention in his prepared text of any specific newspaper or broadcast station or network.

He did, however, make passing reference to those attacks. "My differences with some of the news media have come not over their right to criticize government or public officials, but my right to criticize them when I think they have been excessive or irresponsible in their criticism," he said.

Agnew said he finds it extremely frustrating "that only one side of the Vietnam war is being told by some of our most influential newspapers and television networks and that, overall, their coverage comes off slanted against American involvement in that war without any attempt to balance."

"We see paraded daily all of the reasons we should not be involved and none that we should. "We read of the alleged American atrocities of civilians in a hamlet called My Lai," he went on, "but virtually nothing of the even more atrocious slaughter of Vietnamese civilians in the major city of Hue by the terrorist invaders."

Agnew said newspapers and television are giving Americans horrified accounts of how the United States has equipped South Vietnamese soldiers to fight in Cambodia.

But, he said, "there is virtually no mention of whom they are fighting—namely the Russian-equipped North Vietnamese who have invaded that country by the thousands as they did South Vietnam and Laos."

The vice president said when he raises these points in discussions with media groups the answer is, "We are only concerned with America's involvement. We do not circulate in Hanoi (or we are not seen or heard in Hanoi)."

"Gentlemen, that is my point," said Agnew. "Hanoi has no free press to tell the world of its atrocities if you don't do it. And Americans or Europeans, Asians or Australians cannot make a valid decision if you do not attempt to give them both sides of the story."

The mission of the press, said Agnew, is to inform the public, not to persuade it.

"That public, given sufficient information, can make a sound decision."

Enemy Hangs On To Provincial Capital Reds Drive Back 3 Cambodian Attacks

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Enemy troops beat back three attacks today by Cambodian and South Vietnamese forces trying to regain control of Kompong Speu and Cambodia's most vital overland supply route.

Associated Press correspondent John T. Wheeler, reporting from outside Kompong Speu, said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops held on to the provincial capital despite overwhelming odds.

Earlier in the day both South Vietnamese and Cambodian spokesmen claimed the city, about 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, had been recaptured.

But later reports from the scene said a Cambodian army patrol had tried to make the first penetration of the city and was stopped by a curtain of fire from Communist command troops.

Officials in Saigon said the town had been retaken Sunday night.

"South Vietnamese troops are in the town," a spokesman said. "It is possible to say that the enemy has pulled out."

Cambodian officials reported early today that the city—seized by an estimated 1,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong on Saturday—had fallen to counterattacking forces. But they could not say when this was supposed to have happened.

The South Vietnamese armored task force of 4,000 men was making the deepest penetration yet reported by an allied military force into Cambodia in efforts to save Kompong Speu.

Newsmen returning here from the fighting area today said Cambodian forces remained positioned on Kompong Speu's eastern edge while South Vietnamese troops hammered at it from the southeast.

Artillery rounds continued to smash into the center of the town, which despite the claims of the spokesmen apparently was still under control of the entrenched enemy forces.

Kompong Speu has become the focal point of one of the fiercest battles yet in Cambodia because it lies astride Route 4, the main supply highway that links Phnom Penh with the country's only deepwater port, Kompong Som, formerly Sihanoukville, on the Gulf of Siam.

The highway carries virtually all of the capital city's petroleum and many other supplies. Informants in Saigon said Cambodian Premier Lon Nol, faced with an imminent crisis unless the road is kept open, asked Saigon for the task force to reinforce his own outgunned and outmanned troops at Kompong Speu.

Maj. Ith Suong of the Cambodian army told newsmen his forces would occupy the town by tonight, but by late afternoon they had been unable to advance closer than a half mile from the city center.

Maj. Suong had told newsmen earlier the patrol was going in to reinforce a police station, but it turned out the patrol was making the first attempt to enter the town.

Sweeping Postal Reforms Are Expected Despite House Foes

By JIM ADAMS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the most sweeping plans to overhaul the American mail service since Benjamin Franklin set it up in 1753 still appears headed for victory in the House but not without some hardnosed floor opposition.

The assumption that the postal reform bill, including an 8 per cent pay raise for mail workers, will pass the House when it comes up for a midweek vote has been so widespread that neither party bothered to take a headcount on the issue.

But during committee hearings last week the bill ran into heavy fire over compulsory union membership, retroactive pay and Congress' impending loss of 181 years of control of the Post Office—including patronage.

Those issues—particularly compulsory union membership—remain alive and opponents are prepared to fight over them during debate.

Not all the potential roadblocks will be in Congress. The National Letter Carriers union, which played a major part in the nation's only mail strike earlier this year, has raised the threat of a walkout this weekend if the House kills the bill.

And Postmaster Gen. Winton M. Blount says he may recommend a veto if the bill carries with the costly retroactive pay feature intact.

The timing of the pay boost is a major difference between the House version and a bill approved by the Senate Post Office Committee. As sent to the House floor the 8 per cent pay increase will be retroactive to April 16; the Senate measure calls for it to take effect upon passage.

The cost of the pay raise just for the fiscal year starting July 1 has been estimated at $538 million, and that on top of a previous 6 per cent boost for all government workers including mail employees.

The big fight over compulsory union membership—always a volatile issue in Congress—stems from opponents' claims that it will break down government control over its workers and lead to constant strikes.

But backers note the bill prohibits strikes and say it only gives postal unions the same right as those in private industry to negotiate contracts requiring employees join unions within 30 days.

The 19 states that prohibit compulsory union membership are exempted by the bill.

The reform bill, a compromise of President Nixon's original postal corporation plan, would give the mail system its first basic face lifting since 1789 when Congress took control of postal rates, wages and policy.

The bill would take control of the mails away from Congress and turn it over to an independent U.S. Postal Service with corporate powers, and with orders to put the service on a self-paying basis by 1978.

Under the House bill, the service is to set postal rates necessary to meet operation costs, subject to congressional veto, and would be authorized to borrow up to $10 billion for modernization and construction.

The service would be run by a postmaster general and an 11-man board. Nine members would be appointed by the President and they would name the postmaster general and his deputy, both of whom would be board members.

Humphrey Is In Race

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey is off and running for the U.S. Senate, saying he has "no intention" of seeking the presidency in 1972.

In a bit of political showmanship that stretched his announcement out for the entire weekend, Humphrey appeared to admit that another shot at the presidency in 1972 is not in the cards.

He assailed the Nixon administration on economic matters, declaring that the nation is stalked by a "cruel and continuing inflation."

On the subject of the Indochina war, he was critical of the move into Cambodia but ready to do anything he can "to help President Nixon get this war over."

Board Meeting

The regular June meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education will be held tonight at the board room of the Greenville City School Office, 431 West Fifth Street, beginning at 8:00 p.m.

Some of the principal items on the agenda for tonight's meeting include — proposed insurance settlement of the C. M. Eppes fire; status report on the supplemental tax referendum; award of contract on paving Rose High School parking lots; and awarding of contract for 1969-70 audit of local budget. Personnel matters will include principalship for Wahl-Coates School. End of year reports are also slated for review.

Dubcek Said Expelled

NEW YORK (AP) — Alexander Dubcek has been expelled from the Czechoslovak Communist party and dismissed as his country's ambassador to Turkey, Newsweek magazine reports in its current issue.

The magazine said Czechoslovakia's Communist party President, reacting against Dubcek's ill-fated liberalization efforts of 1968 when he was the country's leader, decided upon the ouster at a stormy session last week.

Dubcek was defended at the meeting by Gustav Husak, the man the Soviet Union chose to replace him, the magazine said. But Husak was heavily outvoted by hardliners and his position may now be in danger, Newsweek said.

Dubcek may face a political show trial, Newsweek said, and his fate would depend on "whether or not the men in the Kremlin decided to support Husak against the neo-Stalinist zealots who surround him."

Now 3,002 Are Registered For School Tax Referendum

A total of 3,002 persons entered their names on the special registration for the June 27 Greenville School District tax levy referendum.

Bruce Koonce, chairman of the Pitt County Board of elections, stated that an unofficial tally of the two registration stations show 2,466 persons registered at Elm Street Gymnasium, with 536 registering at Third Street Elementary School.

Registration books closed Saturday in a special registration made solely for the June 27 referendum, in which citizens will have a chance to vote for or against a proposed increase on the current tax supplemental levy of 25 cents to a maximum levy of 50 cents per $100 property valuation permitted under North Carolina law.

Saturday, June 20 has been scheduled for challenge day. Hours for challenge will be from 9:30 a.m. until 6:00 p.m.

Voting on June 27 will be from the hours of 6:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m.

Housing Fair Planned For April, 1971

The Housing Fair Board of managers of the Coastal Plain Development Association Thursday planned a Housing Fair to be held at Cannon's Warehouse April 23-25, 1971.

Ed Yancey, Pitt County Agricultural Extension agent, stated the main objectives of having such a fair are to serve as an educational tool to make people aware of sub-standard housing in our area, to motivate people involved to want better housing, and to show people how to achieve better housing.

Mrs. Sue May, Pitt County home economics extension agent, discussed the displays of housing and house furnishings.

She explained that educational exhibits of all areas of housing would be included in this fair as well as all income levels.

Mobles homes, pre-fabricated homes and modular homes will be included as well as exhibits in home planning, service contracting, interior materials, built-in equipment and appliances, exterior materials, and house furnishings.

Anyone interested in sponsoring an educational exhibit for this fair should contact J. H. Moyer, P.O. Box 1427, Greenville, or any county extension agent in the Coastal Plain Development Association.

The Coastal Plain Development Association sponsoring the event is a non-profit organization devoted to the development of six principal counties of the North Carolina Coastal Plains: Beaufort, Martin, Nash, Pitt, Wilson and Edgecombe. Its six operating divisions are agriculture, community development, home economics, industrial development, travel and recreation and youth and education. Those attending the planning session were: Moyer, Yancey, Mrs. May, Dr. Joe Pou, Mrs. J.T. Manning Jr., Vance Perkins, Mrs. Ralph Snowden, all of Pitt; Mrs. Carolyn Alligood, Mrs. John Winfield, Donald Roberts, and Harold Lane, all of Beaufort; Mrs. Julia Jones of Edgecombe; Mrs. Maurice Pierre of Martin; Ed Ihrie of Wilson; and Jim Dickens and Willie Harris of Nash.

Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Alice Virginia Windom and James Rodney Whitley on Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Windom of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Whitley of Stokes.

The Rev. Harley Brown, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Gail Crisp, pianist, and Miss Rae Harris, soloist. Miss Harris sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the benediction.

The church was decorated with brass accessories. A fifteen branch candelabra holding cathedral candles centered the background of the church, with spiral candelabra on each side flanked by palms and emerald greenery with gladioli and mum flower arrangements. Preceding to the altar were two fourteen branch candelabra holding white cathedral candles and two seven branch candelabra flanked by emerald greenery and baskets of white gladioli and mums on either side. At the altar was prie-dieu where the bride and bridegroom said their vows and knelt for the closing prayer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of silk organza and chantilly lace. The bodice featured a scalloped sabrina neckline and long lace sleeves which ended over the hands. The front of her gown featured lace panels overlaid with a bell shaped skirt covered with iridescents. Her watteau train of silk organza and lace edges was attached to the back of her gown with a satin bow. It also featured appliques of lace over the train.

Her three-tiered veil of silk illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of white fuji mums with streamers and ribbons.

Mrs. Bonnie Windom of Norfolk, Va., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a lavender floor length gown of dotted Swiss. The gown featured a scooped neckline, short puff sleeves and an empire waistline enhanced with a white satin bow with streamers in the back. Her headpiece was a lavender bow with matching tulle.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Judy Briley of Durham, Miss Hilda Whitley of Belvoir, Miss Beverly Jean Pittman of Raleigh and Miss Gwyn Glisson of Stokes. Their dresses and headpieces were identical to the honor attendant. They carried cascade bouquets of white and lavender pom poms showered with streamers.

Miss Arduith Lupton of New Bern and Miss Jammie Wilkins of Belhaven, cousins of the bride, were flower girls. Their gowns were of white dotted Swiss and styled like the attendants. They wore white bows in their hair, and they carried white wicker baskets trimmed with lavender ribbons and filled with rose petals.

There is no need to put lingerie in the dryer. Instead, take it directly from the washer and fold lengthwise, laying items across the top of the dryer or some other flat surface. They'll dry quickly and look smooth, crisp, and new.

Jeffrey Windom, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. He carried the rings on a white lace pillow.

Forrest Whitley served as his son's best man. Ushers were J.E. Windom of Norfolk, Va., brother of the bride, Charles Jenkins of Robersonville, Johnnie Leggett of Washington, and Woolard Harris of Greenville. Junior usher was Noel Whitley, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a mint green crepe dress with accessories to match. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink dress with accessories to match. Both mothers wore carnation corsages.

Mrs. Margaret Landen directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Stokes - Pactolus High School and Beaufort County School of Nursing. The bridegroom is a graduate of Stokes - Pactolus High School and is a senior at East Carolina University, where he plans to complete his education.

Reception

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents. The table was covered with a white linen cloth edged with white lace. A five branch silver candelabra holding white burning tapers with an arrangement of white mums and lavender snapdragons centered the table. On one end of the table was a silver punch bowl and on the other end was a four tier wedding cake.

After the bride and bridegroom cut the first slice, Mrs. Gorman Dickerson of Greenville served the cake and Mrs. John Leggett of Washington poured punch.

Presiding at the bride's register were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hoard of Tarboro, aunt and uncle of the bride. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Melson Pittman of Raleigh, cousins of the bride.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a pink sheath dress with a rolled collar and accessories to match. She wore the corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the rehearsal on Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Melson Pittman of Raleigh entertained the wedding party and guests at the home of the bride. Yellow and green color scheme was used throughout the house.

Bridal Couple Entertained

Miss Ellen Thomas and Wayne Avery, whose marriage will be solemnized June 28, were honored Thursday night at a card party given by Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Avery at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thomas, parents of the bride - elect, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Avery, parents of the bridegroom - elect, were special guests.

Miss Thomas was presented a corsage of white pom poms. The couple was remembered with a gift of cooking ware.

High score was awarded Mrs. Wayne Vincent.

Cain-Wright Vows Spoken In Ceremony

FLORENCE, S.C. — Miss Darlene Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edwin Wright became the bride of Daniel James Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Cain of Greenville, N.C.

The formal wedding, using the double ring ceremony, was performed by Dr. Edward L. Byrd, Saturday at 8:00 p.m. at the First Baptist Church.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Robert F. Sutter, organist, and Boyd Hicks, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a formal floor length gown of candlelight silk cloud peau de soie with a Juliet neckline and pearl and crystal peau d'ange appliqued bodice, skirt and funnel sleeves.

The appliqued and bordered chapel length veil of silk illusion bordered with chantilly lace was held by a lace frame. Her bouquet was a cascade of stephanotis and white roses.

Miss Jo Ann Wright of Columbus, Ga., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Robert Alvin Thompson of Columbus, Ga., sister of the bride, served as matron of honor.

Other attendants were Mrs. James Montros Graham III, sister of the bridegroom, of Greensboro, N.C., Miss Beth Young of Florence, Miss Sheron Leggett of Washington, D.C., and Miss Lynn Boland of Plant

City, Fla.

The bridesmaids wore midnight blue silk organza empire gowns fashioned with scooped necklines and sheer bell sleeves appliqued with Swedish embroidered white flowers and accented with white grosgrain ribbon forming the waistline, hemline and cuffs. They carried nosegay bouquets of burgundy baby carnations and baby's breath. James Montrose Gram IV, nephew of the bridegroom, served as ring bearer. Mr. William Edward Cain, father of the groom, served as best man. Ushergroomsman were William Edward Cain Jr., brother of the bridegroom, of Winston-Salem, N.C., James Montrose Graham III, of Greensboro N.C., William Terrace Murray of New York, N.Y., Phillip L. Patterson of Willington, Del. Marshall Calvin Rogers of Raleigh, N.C., James Michael McIntyre of Greensboro, N.C. and Fred Willis of Atlanta, Ga.

The mother of the bride was dressed in a pink chiffon empire gown featuring a jeweled Juliet neckline. She wore a white orchid.

The bridegroom's mother chose a blue peau de soie floor length gown. She wore a white orchid.

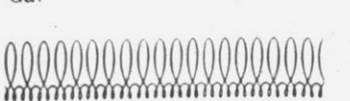

The reception was held in the main ballroom of the Florence Country Club, immediately following the ceremony. Mrs. Bernice Privett, organist, provided background music.

The bride is a graduate of Meredith College, majoring in economics and education. She also attended Vardell Hall and is an honor graduate of McClenaghan High School.

The bridegroom is a graduate of N.C. State University, where he majored in textiles. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. He is employed by the Celanese Corp. New York.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Cambridge Beaches, Bermuda, and will make their home in Columbus, Ga., where the bridegroom will be inducted as a lieutenant in the United States Army at Fort Benning, Ga.

Sew what's new.

by Ruth Anne Faulk

ARE YOU PREPARED FOR THE "CALL OF THE BEACH"?

As the days grow longer and warmer, the "call of the beach" beckons to us all. But are you prepared for it?

It's that time, ladies, to pull out last year's swim suit. Is it really what you want and need in the way of swim wear — or is it slightly dated or faded? And if you are like me, I can't quite afford the expense of a new one right now.

Well, have you ever thought of creating your own? It really isn't that difficult and you certainly can save from $5 to $15 in the process.

Let me give you a few suggestions on how to go about it.

First of all, select a pattern that suits your figure type. Be honest, girls, select the style that you can wear with ease.

Next, consider the different fabric types available for use in a swim suit. Knits are ideal for swim wear but don't forget to consider Permanent Press fabrics such as Kettlecloth, Klopman's Trigger Prints, or Wesco's new wonder sport-swear fabric, Gay Glide.

The lining of a bathing suit is most important. The lining must be compatible to the end use as well as to the fabric. For knits and most other fabrics, I would suggest a nylon tricot such as "One-Twenty-Three" found at your local Piedmont Fabric store. Don't forget to use a ball needle and nylon thread or Dual Duty Plus.

Be sure to consider the "support" you will need in the top of your swim suit. If you select a bikini or two piece suit, consider using the separate cup bra form by Belfex. If your swim suit requires a regular pin-in bathing suit bra form, then Piedmont Fabrics offers two from which to make your selection. All three varieties are available in three standard sizes.

Check the notions listing on the back of the pattern so as not to forget snaps, elastic (possibly needed in several widths) and washable buttons.

Have fun at the beach — in your new creation!

If the Shoe Fits...

BY LARRY AVERETTE

FOOT CARE SUGGESTIONS

Healthy feet are a real blessing and care should be exercised to keep them that way. In fact, feet should be exercised to keep them that way. Our tendency to jump into the car to drive a few blocks to the store is a mistake. Walking vigorously and frequently is essential to foot health - and essential to bodily fitness as well. Muscles must be exercised or they become flabby and weak.

It is also good practice to exercise the feet daily, without shoes on. Turning the feet in all directions, wiggling the toes, standing and rising on the toes - all this tends to improve muscle tone.

Rub the feet vigorously after washing to stimulate blood circulation. Cut Toenails straight across. Change stockings daily. Alternate pairs of shoes each day so they can properly ventilate. Your feet are two of your best friends - take good care of them.

Miss Donna Rosso Weds Saturday

KINSTON — Miss Donna Barbara Rosso became the bride of Ellis Parker Stokes in a double ring ceremony in Holy Trinity Catholic Church Saturday at two o'clock in the afternoon. Father Robert Shea celebrated the nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Rosso of Kinston. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Rufus Tyree Stokes of Stokes and the late Mr. Stokes.

The church was decorated with white gladioli, snapdragons and mums. Brass candelabra complemented the church.

A program of wedding music was presented by Buford Goodman, organist, and Hope Shackelford, soloist, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Ave Maria."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a formal length gown of peau de soie covered with silk organza, fashioned with a bateau neckline, empire waist and puff sleeves. The gown featured appliques of peau d'ange lace. The back was accented with a detachable chapel length wateau train which was appliqued with peau d'ange lace in the center of the train and along the edges.

Her four-tiered shoulder length veil of silk illusion fell from a cluster of peau de soie leaves encrusted with seed pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of bridal roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. James Alton Whitehurst of Asheville, twin sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Ella Grace Stokes of Stokes, Miss Patricia Matthews of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Douglas T. Noble and Mrs. W. C. Upchurch, both of Kinston.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of white dotted swiss which featured a pink floral design. The gowns were empire in design with square necklines accented with puff sleeves. The empire waistline was trimmed in hot pink moire which tied in the back to form bows with long streamers. They wore headpieces made from hot pink moire formed into bows. The bridesmaids carried oblong bouquets of baby pink carnations and daisies intermingled with hot pink ribbon. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages. The aunt of the bridegroom wore a corsage of white carnations.

Robert L. Stokes, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. The ushers were Russell Rosso of Kinston, Peter Rosso of Greensboro, all brothers of the bride, John Henry McDustrell of Wilson and Billy C. Perkins of Stokes, cousins of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Rosso selected a pastel peach knit dress. The dress was complemented with matching accessories.

Mrs. Stokes, mother of the bridegroom, chose a mint green dress and coat ensemble with matching accessories.

Mrs. Henry D. Gurganus, aunt of the bridegroom, chose a blue shantung dress with white accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Grainger High School and East Carolina University with a B. S. degree in primary education.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Stokes Pactolus High School and attended East Carolina University. He is presently serving in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Mrs. Rufus Tyree Stokes entertained at a rehearsal party Friday night at the Holiday Inn. Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at the Holiday Inn for the wedding party and guests.

Miss Katherine Bowling Hickok of Murfreesboro, greeted the guests upon their arrival, and Mrs. John Hempstead Carey of Kinston presided at the guest register.

Mrs. Laurence H. Kew of Buffalo, N. Y., aunt of the bride, served cake, and Mrs. Michael Sciascia of Buffalo, N. Y., an aunt of the bride, poured punch.

Wife Shares Husband With Others

DEAR ABBY: My biggest problem was JEALOUSY, but I solved it myself. Bill and I have been married for 14 years and have five children, and when I look around and see what some women have to put up with, I consider myself lucky. Bill works steady, supports me and the kids, doesn't drink, but he does like a little change once in a while which used to drive me up a wall. But no more! I just tell myself there is nothing I can do about it and I should concentrate on his good points.

All I ask is that he tell me "who." Right now I am sharing him with two ladies who work with him. (A mother and daughter team.)

He doesn't neglect me altogether, and as long as I get as much of Bill as I want, what's my beef? Please pass this on to your women readers. It's good insurance against divorce.

SHARING IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR SHARING: To each her own. But I think any wife who goes in for this kind of "group insurance" should use the rocks in HER head to fill in the holes in her husband's.

DEAR ABBY: I have just spent 9 days in a hospital. My private room cost me $88 a day. This included room charges, drugs, and tests. The doctor's bill was separate.

Abby, I didn't see a nurse for hours at a time and there were times when I desperately needed one.

The nurses I did see were wonderful, but they were few and far between, and all worked to death.

When I was well enough to walk up and down the halls, I visited with other patients and they all had the same complaint. This hospital is supposed to be one of the finest. WHY should there be a shortage of nurses, Abby? G.E.

DEAR G. E.: Because many young women who are considering a career are still under the impression that nurses work a 12-hour shift, are underpaid, and only dummies go into nursing.

NOT TRUE! Today a typical nurse starts at a base pay of $611 per month; 5 years ago it would have been $381—that's a 60 per cent increase in only 5 years! (And I am not talking about "specialists"—I mean a green graduate, fresh out of nursing school.)

Also, most nurses get free health care, hospitalization, liability coverage and life insurance and the opportunity for quick advancement. Almost every hospital gives its freshman nurses a three-weeks' paid vacation. And who else but a nurse can get a job on one day's notice?

Anyone interested in nursing should write to a hospital nursing school or colleges that offer a nursing program. It's still one of the most exciting and rewarding professions around. Besides, I have yet to see a girl who doesn't look like an angel in white!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUSPICIOUS" IN COLUMBUS: When a 21-year-old daughter arranges to have her mail sent to a friend's house because she doesn't trust her own mother, it's more of a reflection on the mother than it is on the daughter.

Advice From Italian Cook: You Only Need Sense Of Taste

By TOM HOGE

Associated Press Writer Joe Sicari carries a pair of track shoes in his briefcase to keep in shape so he can eat those Sicilian dishes he loves to cook.

"I run a couple of miles every morning, and I mean run, not jog," says Sicari, a New York newspaperman turned publicist. "It keeps the waistline down and makes me feel less guilty when I pursue my favorite hobby, cooking."

Sicari became interested in cookery at an early age. He used to sit in the kitchen and stare in fascination as his Sicilian-born mother recreated the culinary masterpieces of her homeland.

"About all I did was peel the potatoes," Joe recalled, "but I learned a lot about cooking just watching her. For one thing I found out that the proper use of spices makes a big difference in how a dish turns out. Imaginative seasoning can turn a snack into a symphony."

Italian cuisine has a proud and ancient heritage and even has plaudits from the gourmets of France who usually give ground to no one in the art of gastronomy. In fact, the Bible of the French kitchen, Larousse Gastronomique, concedes that "Italian cooking can be considered, for all the countries of Latin Europe, as a veritable mother cuisine."

Italian cookery really began on the isle of Sicily where more than 2,000 years ago, the natives learned the glories of Greek cooking from their Hellenic conquerors.

The islanders elaborated on their findings, adding a touch of Arab spice, some seasonings from Africa and a good many innovations from Rome.

Sicari likes to experiment with established recipes, "adding a dash of this and a dollop of that but never following the original exactly."

The results have been so successful that a couple of restaurants in town now use his recipes and feature them on the menu.

His specialties are pastas, salads and chicken dishes, but he steers clear of the legendary cannoli, those pastries with creamed cheese, candied fruits and chocolate. Even his daily two-mile run can't cope with that many calories.

"You don't have to spend a lot of money on food or buy expensive kitchen utensils to be a gourmet cook," says Sicari. "All you need is a sense of taste and a little imagination."

"And you don't have to drown everything in rich sauces. Cooks who do that are often trying to cover up their mistakes."

The following versions of cauliflower and chicken cacciatore are creations Sicari imparted to a Brooklyn restaurant owner 15 years ago, which to this day still are house specialties.

DITALINI WITH CAULIFLOWER

1 lb. ditalini (macaroni)
2 heads cauliflower
8 tablespoons olive oil
½ lb. salted butter
salt and pepper to taste
2 ounces freshly grated parmesan cheese

Place ditalini in boiling water and cook until done—about a half hour. While ditalini is cooking, prepare cauliflower, removing green leaves and breaking into flowerettes. Place in cold salted water and bring to boil. When almost done (should be slightly resistant) drain cauliflower. Put cauliflower in a large frying pan in which olive oil and butter have been melted. Chop and turn cauliflower with spatula till evenly browned. Drain ditalini, setting aside some of cooking water and return to pot. Add cauliflower, oil and butter to pot, stirring about three minutes over low flame. If it seems too dry add some of the pot water. Add salt and pepper to taste and serve with grated parmesan cheese on top. Serves four.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE

4 tablespoons olive oil
2 ounces butter, salted
3 pound frying chicken, cut into small pieces
1 pound carrots, grated
4 medium green peppers, diced
1 shallot

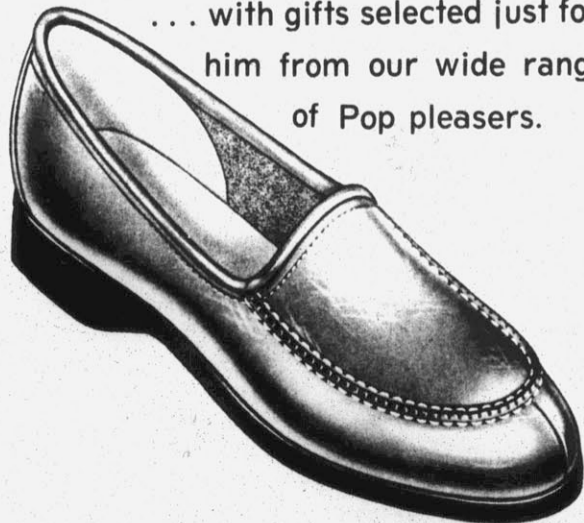

Heat olive oil and butter in heavy iron frying pan and brown chicken about 30 minutes. Remove chicken from pan, leaving any pieces sticking to sides. Add carrots, peppers and shallot to pan and saute over medium fire till everything is limp. Return chicken to pan, basting with melted butter and oil for another half hour. When carrots and peppers are brown and meat is tender remove and serve with the cauliflower and ditalini. Serves four.

Serve with a cold Sancerre or Rhine wine.

Represents Tremendous Effort

It was a quiet ceremony which commemorated the Shore Drive project on Friday afternoon, but it represented a tremendous effort on the part of Greenville citizens through the decade which brought the project about.

City officials and others gathered on the esplanade which borders the Tar River and went through the ceremonies that recognized this as a restoration of the town commons.

The urban renewal project which brought about the park area had its beginnings in the late 1950s. Almost forgotten now are the shacks which clung to the hillside and the narrow streets and paths, most of them unpaved, that wound through the crumbling dwellings.

Those who were here during the decade remember the tremendous debates that followed the initial proposal for the Shore Drive slum clearance project and how after countless public battles the project was finally gotten underway.

Now the redevelopment is virtually complete and modern new buildings are beginning to appear on the property designated for the development. The park area, north of First Street, has been designated for public usage and plans are being made by the city to develop it.

A decade ago Greenville was considered an unspectacular town by those who visited here. Now the eyes of all the state are on us as the growth city of the east. Visitors comment on the beauty of the community. Some outstanding industries are coming in after their officials were impressed with our city.

That the Shore Drive park is a part of Greenville is a tribute to a number of city officials who worked harder than should have been expected of them to bring it about. Most of all it is a tribute to local citizens who went to the polls time and again during the 1960s to affirm in no uncertain terms that the voters wanted their community cleaned up and improved.

Must We Now Face Up To Two Cambodias?

If reports that half of Cambodia are being "ceded" to the enemy are correct, then it strikes us that an old story is being repeated.

Reports were published last week that the Cambodia government was resigned to letting half the country go in hopes of protecting the other half. Military specialists see the strategy as sound.

However, to us it is too easy to recall that Korea was split into two halves and in the war that followed the fighting took place in the southern half.

Vietnam was split into two halves and the Communist took their fighting to the southern half.

Now we are coming to the same result in Cambodia, and it is disheartening to Americans who have been involved in two similar situations previously.

Look Toward FBI Reforms

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Politicians deeply worried about the future of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) in the dim beyond after J. Edgar Hoover view last week's abrupt departure of Cartha D. DeLoach as a close call that dramatized the need for basic FBI reform.

There were sighs of relief in Washington when DeLoach, No. 3 official in the bureau, bowed to intense pressure and suddenly announced his retirement at age 49, thus eliminating himself from consideration as Hoover's successor. Had DeLoach ever succeeded Hoover (as seemed quite probable a few years ago), the charges against him of right-wing bias and blatant opportunism would have rocked and possibly wrecked the FBI.

But to serious students of basic FBI reform, DeLoach came too close for comfort, underlying their conviction that the frightening powers of Hoover's office must be radically reduced for the post-Hoover era. Moreover, there is growing feeling the next director should be more sensitive to the national political climate than Hoover has ever been.

What makes this so important today is the grim prospect in the years just ahead. With dissent rising and leftist terrorism intensifying, the FBI's role will be ever more difficult. The delicate problem for the future FBI director will be to avoid blind repression and help restore the confidence of youth and the liberal community.

Whether anybody can surmount those problems is debatable, but critics of DeLoach know that he was not the man for this sensitive task. Espousing a rightist ideology inside the bureau, he has operated with great abandon in the Washington backrooms of business, journalism, and politics. DeLoach's connection with the Johnson White House was so intimate that plans were afoot for easing Hoover out and replacing him with DeLoach if President Johnson had been elected to another term.

But what worried DeLoach's critics most was his closeness to Hoover, a remote figure during his 46-year tenure who lacked both proteges and intimates. Thanks to hostility toward DeLoach by others, however, Hoover has drawn away from him recently. Although he did not press for DeLoach's resignation, Hoover is not unhappy over it.

With DeLoach gone and Hoover, at age 74, determined to stay in power until forced out by death or physical disability, politicians of both parties close to the FBI are now looking hopefully toward the following reforms:

Reform No. 1: They want Hoover's successor from outside the ranks of the FBI — preferably a moderate liberal who would avoid the strident tone that often dominates Hoover's rhetoric. Supreme Court Justice Byron White may come closest to filling this prescription.

Reform No. 2: specific time limit, perhaps one eight-year term, is regarded as essential for Hoover's successor. Although Hoover has become a fighting symbol to the American left, he has seldom abused his power. But in the tense times ahead, the man with all the government's investigative dossiers ought not, in the overwhelming view of politicians, to be beyond the authority of Presidents to remove him as, in effect, Hoover has been.

Reform No. 3: Experts on the FBI want it split into two

A New Lethal Weapon

WASHINGTON — There's much more to buying an American Flag these days than people think.

I discovered this the other day when I went into a store to purchase a Flag to fly on the 4th of July, which this year Bob Hope and the Nixon Administration have declared a Republican national holiday.

The salesman said he was hard put to keep Flags in stock. "I owe it all to television," he said. "Every time one of the major news programs films one of the freaks burning the American Flag, we sell out. What can I do for you?"

"I'd like to buy an American Flag."

Other Editors Say Forgetful Critics

FORCEFUL CRITICS (Rocky Mount Telegram)

Certain sections of the country may soon begin to pay the price for the environmental extremism that has inordinately delayed needed electric power plant construction. A number of electric companies in more populated areas face energy supply problems in the wake of disrupted construction schedules. Some firms see shortages if further delays are experienced in completing and putting new plants into service.

One of the reasons for the problem is that the requirements for energy are doubling almost every 10 years. Thus, facilities need to move into order to keep up with demands. But things have changed.

Until only recently, the more a progressive a company or industry was in expanding its services the more it was applauded as a community builder and taxpayer. But that was before the school of thought developed which seeks to curb industrial growth as a means of protecting the environment.

Critics of electric companies, faced with construction delays and power shortages, fail to mention the long delays of various regulatory agencies in granting approval of construction of needed new generating facilities, nor do these critics mention the one inescapable problem that overrides all others — population growth.

Energy, of course, is a key factor in higher living standards. How else is an electric company to extend its services to those who need it if it does not build new plants and encourage the use of electricity through advertising?

It is not necessary to look far to find why there can be no relaxation in the continuing plans of power companies to expand their facilities. The total population of one company's service area — Long Island — is greater than the individual population of 24 states and is more than one per cent of the total U.S. population.

And the irony of the situation is that if the investor-owned electric companies are hamstrung in their efforts to meet growing energy needs a lot of the same people who are now blocking power company expansion will call for a crash program of government intervention at taxpayers expense.

But turning to socialism rather than permitting normal development by private citizens would be a poor way to solve environmental problems.

They Go Where The Action Is

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Where does the college crowd go when summer comes?

Where the action is. That means resorts for those who can play, the job scene for those who must work, back to the classroom for those who want to make up or speed up studies.

A growing number choose a route of service. Through internship programs in community and regional development, local and state government, they come to grips with the problems so many people talk about.

"These are the young people who are ready to put their hands where their mouths are," said Robert Sigmon, director of the North Carolina Internship Office.

This summer there will be around 400 of them in at least 10 locations throughout the state working in programs which Sigmon's office helped stimulate although it does not directly administer them.

For each intern there is a direct cost of approximately $1,500, which means that the combined programs involve around $600,000. Funding comes from the federal government, local and state sources, including the colleges and universities which participate.

The return on the investment is not only the student manpower for agencies which need it, but also the intellectual growth which flows from the encounter. "It's not a one-way street," Sigmon said. "The student gains, but so do the agencies. They get the point of view of young people, questioning established ways of doing things, offering fresh ideas."

Learning in non-academic settings is an idea basic to the internship concept. Lectures on sociology take on new dimensions of meaning after exposure to the problems of affluence and poverty. Textbook political science is clarified by involvement in practical government action.

Service-learning is the tag given to it. Because it is learning, there is encouragement for course credit to be given for intern work. Faculty engage in seminars with students to relate intern experiences to classroom study. In many instances, interns are required to draw together their impressions in a report.

Sigmon's own experience convinced him that "real learning occurs once you get out of school."

A Charlotte native, he spent three years in West Pakistan in mission work after graduating from Duke University with a BA in religion. He attended Union Theological Seminary in New York, and was young adult minister at Riverside Church. Working with young people "desperately looking for something, trying to come to grips with themselves and the city" provided more theological learning than course work, he decided.

He returned South in 1964 with the American Friends Service Committee, organizing a sort of domestic Peace Corps to involve young people with public issues. He joined the Southern Regional Education Board, which last year initiated a pilot internship program with North Carolina. He came to his present position, a joint undertaking of the Administration Department and the State Board of Education, early this year.

At 34, Sigmon keeps the incandescent idealism of youth and the driving urge to "get on with it."

He described the internship programs as a bridge between the need for manpower on the part of agencies, and the demand for relevancy on the part of students. It gives young people an opportunity to get inside the system, to learn how institutions function and shape the lives of citizens.

"It's important that we work with the people and the institution we've got," he said.

Sigmon's function is that of a broker, bringing the agencies and the colleges together around the student.

Intern programs cover a wide range. An example is a "Minorities in Planning" program sponsored by the federal Housing and Urban Development department. Thirty-two students will work in state and local planning agencies. These include 18 Shaw University students with state agencies in Raleigh, eight from Winston-Salem State University and four from North Carolina A & T University in Greensboro, working in city departments.

Strength For Today

PATIENCE AND FAITH

One of the hardest things to endure is delay. The fortune we thought was within our grasp suddenly slips away and stands mocking us. The good movement we were sure would change our community and nation has failed to do so. Many diseases have been overcome. The world owes a debt of gratitude and admiration to the work being done by physicians and other scientists in the alleviation of suffering. But why do some of the great scourges still remain? Are they going on until they at last decimate the race?

We pray to God, and He listens to our petitions with understanding and love. But there is one thing He will not permit, namely, that we write out a timetable and try to thrust it into his hands. "Why do people still have to die of cancer? Why does crime increase with the passing years? Why do the followers of the Prince of Peace continue to lunge at one another's throats? Let us have certain cures and benefits, Lord, and let us have them while they can do some good.

The order of events can be left in hands higher than ours. Time is a reality so overwhelming that our little schedules and calendars are ridiculous to behold. But a good God continues to work toward good ends, and in his army is a vast multitude that works and waits patiently.

Delay irritates us, but so do a lot of other things. It is amazing how well things turn out if we have faith, patience and a willingness to do our part.

Retaliatory Action By U.S.

By ELMER ROESSNER

The United States is getting tough with foreign nations who impose restrictions on American airlines. At the moment, it is poised to give Belgium's Sabena Airline a kick in the pants and may swinging similar blows at Australia, Argentina and the Philippines.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has announced a new rule, with the approval of President Nixon, assuming power to order the discontinuance of flights here by foreign airlines and to forbid the inauguration of new ones.

Many other nations have similar rules and have exercised them to harass Belgium Kicks First

In April, the Belgian government revoked the landing rights in that country for U.S. charter flights originating from points east of a line between Rochester, N.Y., and Washington, D.C.

Belgium's Sabena line has long wanted landing rights in Chicago and other inland cities and this action was a power play to force such rights.

The action affected about 65 charter flights by six supplemental carriers, with a loss of $3 million in revenue. The Belgians refused to allow 20 charter flights to return to New York from Brussels, but allowed 20 other flights from Brussels to Los Angeles.

The six supplemental flyers, Capitol, American Flyers, ONA, Saturn, TIA and World promptly complained to the CAB and asked it to revoke permission for Sabena to sell group rates on flights from Belgium to the U.S.

The CAB had no such authority then, but now has assumed it.

Other Conflicts

It can retaliate against other nations that limit American flights.

Italy denounced its old bilateral agreement with the United States when Seaboard World Airlines tried to increase its cargo flights there. However, a new treaty has been agreed upon whereby the United States is granted full landing rights at Rome and Milan and beyond Rome to 18 countries. Flights to Rome may originate in any city in the U.S., providing before final take-off they touch down in one of these cities: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and San Juan.

In return, Al Italia may land at Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco, in addition to New York, Boston and Chicago, where it already has rights.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The average office worker, a recent survey found, achieves only 52 per cent of his productive capacity. It might be even higher if he didn't spend so much time loyally watching the office clock to see that no one steals it.

If you're on a diet and bothered by an empty feeling, don't overlook mushrooms. They have considerable nutritive value and contain only about 66 calories a pound.

You probably feel mentally and socially superior to a ladybug, but can you flap your arms from 75 to 90 times a second? The ladybug can do it with its wings.

Menace on Wheels: In the last decade automobile accidents in the United States have taken the lives of 475,000 men, women and children, injured 17 million, and cost the nation about $90 billion. What price—lack of safety?

Speaking of accidents, some 1,500 people are still killed each year in train-car collisions. An ironic fact: in one out of three of these grade crossings accidents, the car or truck hits the side of a speeding train, not vice versa.

Do you wake up in the morning with a headache? It might be because you gnash your teeth in your sleep. Many people are unaware that they have this habit, which can cause face and neck as well as head pains.

Quotable notables: "Nothing comes without faith and prayer."—Mary McLeod Bethune, Negro educator.

Although cynics doubt that many men's brows are wet with honest sweat anymore, your body is still equipped with some three million sweat glands to keep your body from overheating. The fluid they excrete is about 99 per cent water, 1 per cent salt, mixed with trace quantities of other body minerals. After maturity, the older you get the less you tend to sweat.

Immigrants coming to New York City used to believe its streets were paved with gold. That isn't true, but the Federal Reserve Bank here does keep $13 billion worth of gold stored in underground vaults. It belongs to 120 different countries which desire to store it in a safer place beyond their own borders.

Canny insects: Termites generally subsist only on dead wood, but one species in Panama doesn't wait for nature to take its course. These witty termites carry along their own fungi to kill the trees and make them more quickly edible.

Working wives: Two-income families are on the rise. Nearly 18 million wives now hold jobs outside the home. Unless she has preschool children, the more educated a wife is the more likely she is to seek employment to supplement her husband's salary or to escape household routine.

Worth remembering: "There are three basic ingredients for happiness: you must have something to do, something to love, and something to look forward to."

It was Nathaniel Hawthorne who observed, "Every individual has a place to fill in the world, and is important, in some respect, whether he chooses to be so or not."

Library Finds Popularity In Personalized Bedtime Stories

By MIKE WESTER
LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—An innovation in library service for children, that of personalized bedtime stories, has proved a major success during its pilot run in this West Texas city.

Middle East Crucial Area

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr., vice-chief of staff of the U.S. Army, said Saturday the situation in the Middle East is "more serious than southeast Asia" because of "growing Soviet influence."

Palmer, here for the commissioning of 64 graduates from the Akron University ROTC program, said the 1970s will see Soviet influence rise throughout the world.

"With nuclear parity and increased sea power, the Soviet Union can move with impunity anywhere it wants," Palmer said.

He said Americans in the 1970s "must learn to live with Soviet submarines in the Atlantic and Pacific coastal waters, armed with nuclear weapons and Polaris-like missiles."

"We've got to get used to having them do to us what we've been doing to them," he said.

separate bureaus — operations and intelligence. This would ease the problem of the FBI agent skilled at catching kidnapers (operations) but wholly untrained to make political distinctions between a revolutionary terrorist and a fuzzy peace dissenter (intelligence). That would mean two directors, further reducing the power of Hoover's successor.

The second two proposals might make it harder to lure Justice White or any other lifetime Federal judge to the FBI. But critics see them as essential for the future, even though Hoover has not deserved much of the abuse heaped on him by liberals. In truth, the FBI has been just as tough on the Ku Klux Klan and the Minutemen as it has been on terrorists from the left. It has shown vastly more self-restraint and regard for civil liberties in dealing with the Black Panthers — under intense provocation — than local police departments.

What serious students of the FBI now want is assurance that it will be equipped to cope with the post-Hoover era and, beyond that, maybe even win the confidence of the nation's dissenters.

"Very good, sir. Do you have any identification with you?"

"Identification?"
"Yes, sir. We always ask for identification. Do you have any proof you support President Nixon's policies in Cambodia?"

"Well, I don't have it on me. I didn't know you needed proof of that to buy an American Flag."

"Of course you do. The American Flag is a very lethal weapon and we don't sell it to any stranger who just comes in off the street."
"I'm sorry. I should have brought some identification with me."

"Why did you want it in the first place?"
"Well, if you don't tell anyone," I said, "I was going to hang it out my window on the 4th of July, to protect my home."

ately hit a snag. Miss Tell-A-Tale was too popular!

"The program was expanded from six to eight weeks, Miss Tell-A-Tale got a private telephone number, and plans to include the program in the future are underway," said Mrs. Ella Mae Platz, head of children's services for the Lubbock City-County Library.

The one-hour program is only the second known attempt by a library to tell stories to the children over the telephone. The other, at Sheridan, Wyo. (pop. 11,600), also was successful—but operated on a much smaller basis. It used the slogan, "If the three bears answer, don't hang up" slogan.

Miss Tell-A-Tale's calls in Lubbock first were channeled through the city switchboard to the library. But after the first three days it was decided the narrator should have her own phone.

"It was a madhouse at the city switchboard," said Mrs. Lou Prothro, communications supervisor for the city, which has a population of 180,000. "We have 20 incoming lines, and the first night they all lighted up and stayed that way for the hour the bedtime story was available. It was just like a Christmas tree."

Mrs. Prothro said it stayed that way through the first week, even after Miss Tell-A-Tale got her own phone. She said additional operators had to be used just to answer calls.

It just happened that the first night of the program a city official saw the switchboard confusion.

"What have we got—a disaster?" asked City Manager Bill Blackburn. He was told it was only children trying to reach Miss Tell-A-Tale. He was convinced there should be a special phone because the city also must take fire, police and power emergency calls.

"We tried to hold the stories to three minutes, and take another minute to get the child's name, age, and invite them to the library," said Mrs. Platz. "With three story tellers, we averaged about 45 calls per night. At that rate, we estimate we handled about 1,400 bedtime stories during the eight-week period."

In addition to members of the children's department of the library, volunteers were called upon. High school, college and young married women who enjoyed children and their books also read.

The average age of the caller was 4 to 7, although there were many older children. Mike Machen, 8, a Lubbock second-grader, said he tried to reach Miss Tell-A-Tale every night.

"It's fun to hear a bedtime story over the phone," he said. "It's better than being tucked into bed by Mother. You can get that any night."

Reaction of children was varied:

"—This isn't a recording, is it? My Daddy said it would be."

"—Wow, I'm going to tell you a story. Once upon a time..."

"I know Miss Tell-A-Tale doesn't come on until 8 (p.m.). But I'm just 6 and I can't tell time yet."

"—I'm too young to dial the phone. I had to get the operator to call for me. You won't tell, will you?"

"—No, I've never been to the library. But Mother says we're going to stop in some day."

And, after hearing his bedtime story, a young boy appeared at the library the next day.

"I want to meet Miss Tell-A-Tale," he said.

The librarian searched and found one of the story tellers. It happened to be the same girl, who remembered the boy. "I just want to thank you—and check out that book," he said.

Mrs. Platz said the program certainly helped create interest in the children's department and children's books. Those who already used the library came back more often, and new children started using it.

Mrs. Platz said stories were chosen that could be understood without pictures. The children were invited to the library where they could find the story they just heard and many others.

"They are so honest—if they didn't like a story they would tell us. This helped us choose stories they liked," said Mrs. Platz.

If a man answered the phone, the children didn't hang up. They just asked for the "free story." There was a Mister Tell - A - Tale, too.

Cold War Turned Hot Twenty Years Ago In Korea

By JAMES KIM
SEOUL (UPI) — Twenty years ago, on June 25, 1950, the uneasy peace of the post-war world was shattered when North Korean troops invaded South Korea.

It was the cold war turned hot, and the first major confrontation in Asia between the United States and militant Communism, whose lessons would be felt later in the Vietnam War.

Ten divisions of the North Korean army, backed by 500 Russian-built tanks and 2,000 artillery pieces, easily overran South Korean outposts along the border in a massive onslaught.

Communists Began Sweep
 The 100,000-strong South Korean army, originally designed by the United States as a constabulary force and equipped with only small arms, was no match for the invaders. Most of the South Korean defenses along the 38th parallel border were smashed by the pre-dawn attack. Communist forces captured the South Korean capital of Seoul in four days and continued their drive south.

When Korea had been liberated from Japanese rule at the end of World War II, the country was divided into two parts, the Russians occupying the North and the United States the south.

The attack on South Korea was a prime example of the massive amount of arms and training the Russians were providing their wards and it was obvious at the start that the South Koreans wouldn't be able to stop it without aid from the outside.

U.N. Reacted
 Immediately after the invasion the U.N. Security Council met and asked North Korea to pull back its troops. The North Koreans ignored the demand.

On June 27, the Security Council met again and adopted a resolution calling on U.N. member nations to help South Korea. The United States was named as the executive agent to carry out the U.N. effort.

Three days later U.S. President Harry S. Truman ordered Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in Tokyo, to use American ground forces to help repel the invaders in South Korea. MacArthur subsequently became commander of all U.N. forces in Korea.

Almost A Dunkirk
 U.S. troops were rushed from Japan but the numerically superior invaders pushed on ahead and by July 31, American and South Korean defenders were cornered into a 60-mile-wide defense perimeter around the southern port of Pusan.

The defending force held on to this position despite repeated communist attempts to push them into the sea and end the war. In the meantime, U.S. troops were arriving in force.

The war entered a second phase on Sept. 15 when U.S. and South Korean troops landed 150 miles behind enemy lines at Inchon, 25 miles west of Seoul, in a bold attempt to turn the tide of the conflict.

The Tide Turned...
 Men of the U.S. 1st Marine Division, 7th Infantry division and the Korean marines recaptured Seoul on Sept. 28, 13 days after the Inchon landing. Meanwhile, American and South Korean troops broke the Pusan perimeter.

The Korean advance, already suffering from overextended supply lines and lack of air cover, crumbled rapidly on all fronts. Allied forces crossed the prewar border and captured the north Korean capital of Pyongyang by Oct. 21.

The 400,000 man U.N. force, including 177,000 Americans, 200,000 South Korean troops and units from other U.N. member nations, swept through North Korea and reached the Korea-Manchuria border by late November.

And Turned Again
 But the tide of the war turned again on Nov. 25 when 600,000 communist Chinese came swarming across the Yalu River between Manchuria and North Korea.

The U.N. forces were thrown back in an all-out retreat and the Communists captured Seoul again on Jan. 4, 1951. The invaders were stopped south of Seoul and pushed back north of the city.

The war became stalemated along the 38th parallel, the old border. On June 23, 1951, Russia's U.N. delegate Jacob Malik proposed peace negotiations to end the conflict.

 After two years of off-and-on truce talks accompanied by continuing jockeying for positions on battle fronts, an armistice was signed on July 27, 1953. Shooting ceased at 10 p.m. the next day.

Casualty Toll
 Although 16 U.N. member nations contributed to the war efforts, it was the United States and South Korea that bore the brunt of the hostilities.

The U.S. war expenditure reached $20 billion. American casualties were 34,000 men killed and more than 100,000 wounded.

 South Korea lost 220,000 men, and its combined military-civilian casualties were about 500,000 killed and 430,000 injured.

Communist tolls were estimated at nearly 300,000 North Koreans and 200,000 Chinese killed in action. In addition, 220,000 North Korean and 700,000 Chinese in uniform were wounded, according to a U.S. Defense Department estimate.

War Has Not Ended
 Although the armistice agreement brought battlefield hostilities to a halt, the Korean War has never formally ended.

Technically speaking, all that replaced the hostilities is armed truce, by now the longest in history.

The U.N. Command and North Korea maintain daily contacts at the truce village of Panmunjom through their joint duty officers to discuss matters related to the armistice agreement.

The Korean Military Armistice Commission, set up by the agreement to oversee the implementation of the terms of truce, has held a total of 302 full meetings since July, 1953. Many Armistice Violations In addition to the full commission sessions, there have been 376 meetings of the commission secretaries, who deal with minor violations of the armistice agreement charged by either side.

The incidents discussed at these meetings are another reminder that there has been no peace treaty that ended the Korean War. They reflect the military situation on the Korean peninsula.

North Korea stepped up border infiltration along the 151-mile truce front late in 1965. The following year North Korean Premier Kim Il-sung called for stronger subversive actions against the south. Most serious of these incidents were attempted assassination of South Korean army commander and the capture two days of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo with 83 men aboard.

A Tense Time
 The United States rushed squadrons of jet fighter-bombers to bases in South Korea while naval task forces cruised the Sea of Japan in a massive show of force against full-scale war, and the Pueblo crew was released toward the end of the year although the ship itself remained captive in North Korea.

The incidents of 1968 led

South Korean leaders to take drastic measures to strengthen the nation's defenses. Park ordered the formation of a strong military force with South Korea's two million reservists as members.

The United States provided special military aid to help South Korea's 600,000-man army better prepare for any contingency.

North Korea has more than 50,000 combat troops fighting

Communists in South Vietnam, second only to the U.S. forces there. South Korea is also planning to give nonmilitary aid to Gen. Lon Nol's Cambodian government to help it in its drive against the Communists.

The United States in turn stations 50,000 men in Korea to back South Korean security. Their presence, South Koreans believe, is of vital importance to maintain peace on the Korean peninsula.

THE BATTLE FOR SEOUL—His clothes afire, a North Korean soldier crawls from a hole in a Seoul street. Occasion was the liberation of the South Korean capital city in September 1950, three months after North Korean troops rumbled across the 38th parallel, then the border between South and North Korea. (AP Wirephoto)

Marshall Ends Hospital Stay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall returned home Saturday from Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he had spent a month under treatment following an attack of pneumonia.

The 61-year-old justice will convalesce for a time at his home in suburban Virginia, and there was no immediate indication from the court office as to when he would return to the bench.

Auto Makers Grappling With Charges Of Defects

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Carmine Monaco was taking his family for a Memorial Day drive in his two-week-old 1965 Oldsmobile when he noticed the car in front of him had stopped.

Monaco slammed on his brakes. His car veered across the median strip of the Meadowbrook Parkway and plowed into another car containing three young men returning from a beach outing.

Monaco later testified the brakes on one wheel grabbed, forcing the car to veer off. A mechanic testified grease had leaked onto the brake lining. A jury found General Motors and one of its dealers guilty of careless manufacture and maintenance of the car and ordered them to pay $175,000 to the two youths injured in the crash.

The judgment, which is on appeal, is not the only time automobile manufacturers have been accused of shoddy manufacturing practices.

"The present situation is that quality control of automobiles is unsatisfactory, the warranty coverage putatively provided by the manufacturers is inadequate, and the industry response to the problem insufficient to protect the public," said the Federal Trade Commission in February.

New York attorney Joseph Kerner says the fact that he was able to convince a jury that auto manufacturing practices have serious shortcomings underscores what he calls a "fast gun society" mentality.

"It showed for the first time—that I know of—that between 9 and 10 million cars in America are put out with an emphasis on speed, with little regard for people's safety, and that they do not road test at all," said Kerner.

General Motors and the major American manufacturers road test only a small fraction of the more than 8 million or so passenger cars they sell every year. But they now have devices to test the grabbing power of brakes as cars come off the assembly line.

GM alone says it spent $412 million in salaries for its 20,000 full time quality control inspection people in 1968.

Nevertheless, safety-related trouble with at least one of the 14,000 parts in a modern automobile has forced the recall of 14 million vehicles in 545 campaigns in the more than two years since the government's Highway Safety Bureau began monitoring the process.

In 1969, American passenger car production totaled 8.8 million. During the same year, manufacturers initiated safety-related recalls involving nearly 7 million cars, some of them models as old as 1965.

American Motors recalled 27,242 AMX and Javelins after discovering the possibility that chafing of the clutch system against the brake line could cause the brakes to fail.

Chrysler recalled 4,981 Chryslers, Plymouths and Dodges after finding there was a possibility the cars' wheels might fall off because a part may have been improperly heat-treated.

Ford recalled 354,000 Cougars which the firm decided had hoods which might fly open during driving.

General Motors accounted for the vast bulk of the 1969 recalls. GM found 2.6 million Chevrolets—built over five years—which might permit exhaust fumes to enter the body. It found 3 million cars and trucks had been equipped with carburetors which could cause the throttle to jam in an open position.

The Federal Trade Commission, after studying automobile warranties for years, recommended that the government regulate warranties and require manufacturers to produce defect-free cars.

The industry opposed the proposal.

Twenty-nine federal safety standards already apply to automobiles. And industry officials contend their efforts to keep "bugs" out of cars are already extensive.

The complexities of assembling an automobile are astronomical. Chevrolet technicians sat down one day and computed the number of possible combinations in which a car's parts could be assembled. The figure came out with 125 zeros.

The planning process for new cars begins five years in advance. Suppliers are sought for some of the equipment the auto makers can't or don't want to provide themselves, but the manufacturer must still ride herd over the quality of its suppliers.

Components like brakes, transmissions, engines, steering columns and dash boards are sub-assembled separately from the chassis, sometimes at great distances from final assembly lines.

Once the car chassis starts down the final assembly line, workers swarming over the line put the entire car together in about two hours. Each worker has a little over a minute to perform his specialized task.

The possibilities of error are obvious. At GM's Cadillac assembly line, officials estimate 1 of 10 employees is an inspector. Road testing, representative of the most intensive in the industry, amounts to 100 cars a week—about 1 per cent of total production.

And the complexities of assembly are not the industry's only problem. Frank R. L. Daley Jr., head of service research and development at GM's Warren, Mich., technical center, estimates 60 per cent of the shortcomings in cars reaching dealers stem from transportation damage.

One year, for example, GM found large numbers of damaged wheel bearings. It turned out that the bearings, carefully designed by engineers to roll smoothly, had been damaged by the jostling of the trains the cars traveled on to the dealer.

Once the cars reach the dealer, mechanics are supposed to measure the vehicle's performance against a pre-delivery check sheet.

John C. Bates, director of the technical center marketing staff, says an annual survey shows 75 per cent of the dealers perform pre-delivery inspection properly.

Regarding the adequacy of dealers' service facilities, GM surveys show two-thirds measure up. About 80 per cent of the dealers come within 75 per cent or more of compliance, says Bates.

What troubles Bates and other officials is that many of the failures are in critical urban areas, where dealers have large volumes and the cost of expansion is high.

At its technical center, General Motors is experimenting with space-age repair and quality control systems like a computer diagnostic system.

Meanwhile, the Federal Trade Commission notes that while the number of cars on the road in the United States was increasing by 31.6 per cent during the last decade, the number of dealerships for American manufacturers dropped by 15.6 per cent.

Bookmobiles To Be Active

The two Pitt County Bookmobiles will participate in the summer activities of Sheppard Memorial Library.

Bookmobile No. 1 will continue the regular summer route for Pitt County.

Bookmobile No. 2 will have the following schedule:

—Monday, 9:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m., Winterville Town Hall;

—Tuesday, 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 p.m., Meadowbrook Recreation Center;

—Thursday, 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., Housing Authority, Moyewood;

—Thursday, 11 a.m. until 1 p.m., south Greenville Recreation Center.

A summer story program for the children at each of these places will be planned.

Patrons are reminded that the East and Carver Branch Libraries will now be open Monday through Friday from 10:30 a.m. until 7 p.m. while the Sheppard Library hours remain Monday through Friday from 10:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Cost of educating students in the nation's public schools has more than doubled in the past decade.

Set Church School Plans

The First Christian Church will have its daily Vacation Church School beginning Monday morning, June 22, and continuing through Friday, June 26.

The hours of the school will be 8:45-11:30 a.m. All children between the ages of two and 12 are invited to attend.

"Our Bible Helps Us" is the overall theme for the week and the different ages will study variations of this theme with emphasis on nature and the differences among the people of the world.

The children will present a special program for their parents and the adults of the community on Friday morning.

Mrs. Walter L. Allen Jr. is director of the Vacation Church School. Superintendents of the departments include: Mrs. Glenn Roger and Mrs. Al Averette, kindergarten; Mrs. Bill Brewer and Mrs. Dick Ullom, primary; Mrs. Walter Noell, junior.

Mrs. Syd Dunn will direct the music during the week and Mrs. J. M. Whitehurst is responsible for serving refreshments each day. The Rev. M. Dana Hunt is minister.

The offering collected during the week will be sent to the Southern Christian Home to help support one of the children who live there.

Continue Inquiry Into Collision That Injured 2

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a traffic accident on Memorial Drive Sunday afternoon that left two persons injured and heavy damage to both vehicles involved.

Investigators said the 4:26 mishap involved cars driven by Donald Wayne Buck of 1702 Sulgrave Road and Warren Trent of 519 Davis Street. According to police reports, both Buck and Trent were injured and were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Damage to the Buck vehicle was estimated at $800 and $1000 damage to the Trent car. Both cars were removed from the accident scene by wreckers. Officers charged Trent with driving under the influence.

New Director Is Announced

DR. WALLACE R. WOYLES

Dr. Edwin Monroe, director of Health Affairs, has announced the appointment of Dr. Wallace R. Wooles of Richmond, Va., as director of Medical Science and Professor of Pharmacology at East Carolina University.

Dr. Wooles' immediate role will be to assist in planning and developing of a two-year medical school at ECU which was authorized by the 1969 General Assembly.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU president, said recently that ECU was securing the services of a number of outstanding medical scientists and that it is expected that the first students will be admitted to the two-year medical school in the Fall of 1971.

As associate professor of pharmacology of the Medical College of Virginia (MCV) in Richmond, Dr. Wooles also served as coordinator of medical education for this major medical teaching facility.

His responsibilities at MCV involved revamping and expansion of the curriculum covering both the basic sciences and clinical medicine.

Dr. Wooles, 39, has been associated with MCV and the Health Sciences Division of Virginia Commonwealth University since 1963. He became associate professor of pharmacology in 1967.

Born in Lawrence, Mass., he received bachelor's and masters degrees in biology from Boston College and his doctorate, Ph.D. in physiology from the University of Tennessee Medical School, Memphis, in 1963.

At MCV, his academic responsibilities included coordinator of medical education, teaching in the schools of medicine, dentistry and pharmacy, a graduate course on uses of radioactive drugs in experimental pharmacology, an undergraduate course in drugs and their action, advisor to Ph.D. candidates and membership on the admissions committee of the School of Medicine.

He is the author and co-author of numerous scientific articles and medical and pharmacological research reports.

Dr. Cheek Says Black Demands No Longer Citizenship Matter

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. James E. Cheek, president of Howard University, says the demands of black Americans are "no longer simply a question of the rights of citizenship, but rather the question of the rights of humanity."

"No longer is the question of race bound up simply with the question of domestic tranquility; it has become fundamentally a question of national survival," Cheek said Sunday in a commencement address at Shaw University in Raleigh.

"For we face now not simply a question of changing the law, but in reality the question of fundamentally altering the American society," he added.

The former Shaw president said "if social justice is to be achieved there will be required a complete redistribution of the opportunities, the rewards, the benefits and the powers of our society. And that, our society has not shown a willingness to do."

Cheek, who was one of four Negroes named Saturday by President Nixon to a special commission to study causes and cures of campus unrest, criticized the attitude of the Nixon administration.

"In the last 18 months we have witnessed a developing resistance on the part of our political leadership to this emerging struggle; we have watched with growing alarm a steady retreat from the principles on which this nation was founded, and a steady march in the direction of repression and oppression," Cheek said.

"America the beautiful has been moving toward America the hysterical," he said.

"Clearly the nation has entered the decade of the seventies—if not already in the throes of an internal revolt—clearly on the threshold of a revolution whose outcome no one can predict."

"The so called 'silent majority'—afraid of change and insecure in their status—will be because of their fear and insecurity, help to establish a society characterized by fascist principles and a government which governs by repression and tyranny."

"In the first year of the decade in which our nation will try to celebrate the 200th anniversary of its 'revolution' for human liberty and justice, we have begun to hear the prelude to a 'racial symphony' which may make the decade of the seventies the most violent and bloodiest period in American history since the War Between the States more than a century ago.

"Call it what you will and by any name you choose—revolution, internal unrest, defiance of law and order, hoodlum activity—whatever; the fact remains: today we are a disunited nation, a divided people, a fragmented society, and a government which has failed to commit its attention, its will or its resources to saving the union," Cheek said.

Water Skier Is Injured

Donald Taylor, 17, was injured in a water accident at Bath Sunday afternoon.

Young Taylor was skiing with friends when he hit a pier piling. The blow knocked him unconscious but his ski belt kept him afloat face down in the water. His twin brother, Ronald, dove in and pulled him to the shore.

Donald regained consciousness on the shore and was taken to Beaufort County Hospital. After treatment there he was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was admitted with a concussion, abrasions and a fractured jaw.

The rising Rose High senior was in good condition today. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Taylor, Jr. of Lakewood Pines.

Jones Speaks In Flag Day Rites

Greenville Lodge 1645 of the BPO Elks held its annual Flag Day ceremonies yesterday afternoon with an address by Congressman Walter Jones highlighting the activities.

Leading Knight, Ed Turcotte, who acted as exalted ruler in the absence of Howard Porter, said the Flag Day observance is a formal function of the lodge and is mandatory for all Elks orders throughout the United States.

Purpose of the ceremonies, which are open to the public, is to honor our flag and to celebrate our country's birth, Turcotte noted.

Congressman Jones spoke to Elks and guest on the preservation and protection of the American Flag and guest on the pamphlets pertaining to the flag. In addition, a special movie on the history of the flag was shown and was followed by a luncheon at the hall.

Other officers who participated in the ceremonies were Eli Bloom, Lach Harrell, Gene Brown, Clay Burnette, and Ed Clark.

Turcotte pointed out that the Elks was the first fraternal organization to require a formal observance of Flag Day and the practice has led to other organizations observing the June 14 day as an official Flag Day remembrance.

Citizens Help Said Needed

RALEIGH (AP) — A spokesman for county governments says citizens can help their county commissioners during the budget preparation period by "expression of opinion in an atmosphere and attitude of cooperation."

John T. Morrissy, executive director of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, offered the advice in a statement released Sunday "to bring some perspective to this difficult time for counties."

Morrissy noted that counties are now in the process of preparing budgets for July 1, 1970 through June 30, 1971, and are under pressure from such things as mounting welfare budgets.

He noted that "county commissioners have no discretion in budgeting for welfare, but must do so in accordance with state laws."

Church Family Picnic June 21

The First Christian Church will have a church family picnic on Sunday, June 21, beginning at 5 p.m. at the church on Greenville Blvd.

Members and guests are asked to bring meat for their families. The remainder of the meal and a beverage will be provided.

Organized recreation and games led by Dick Ullom will begin on the church grounds at 5 p.m. Following the picnic supper, M. Dana Hunt, minister, will lead the group singing.

Morrissy said that counties still have "the traditional responsibilities of providing funds for delivery of state services in education, health and social services."

"But the crush of growing urbanization in many counties is crowding them into solid waste disposal, ambulance service, more widespread fire protection, water and sewer systems and recreation," he said. Morrissy also noted that counties operate jails, hospitals, airports and libraries.

And yet, he said, "counties have the least efficient means of producing revenue to meet such demands..." namely the property tax.

He said there is no simple solution to county problems. "However, traditional prudence and caution, coupled with willingness to innovate, will help," he added.

"For instance," he said, "consideration is being given to consolidation of functions and to the new regionalism."

Revival Series Through Week

Revival services will be conducted June 15-21 at the Shermedine Missionary Baptist Church.

Services will begin at 7:45 p.m. each evening with the concluding service at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 21.

Guest evangelist for the services is the Rev. John Long, former pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church of Greenville. The public is invited to attend.

Pitt Countian Wounded In Shooting Case

AYDEN — A Rt. 1, Ayden man is in critical condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital following a shooting incident Saturday night at an Ayden service station.

Ayden Chief of Police James Ross said that Lyman Wood was shot in the back with a small caliber rifle.

Chief Ross said that Sgt. Gene Whitley, who investigated the incident, arrested Sidney Newell, Rt. 1, Ayden, and charged him with assault with a deadly weapon.

Newell, the chief said, is currently being held under $2000 bond with trial scheduled for July 2 in District Court.

On Dean's List At Meredith

RALEIGH — Miss Sylvia Jean Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Morris of Rt. 6, Greenville, is among students at Meredith College, who were on the Dean's List for the spring semester.

Her grade average just be equal to a high B for a Meredith student to qualify for the Dean's List. Specifically, she must have successfully completed 12 or more hours of work with a number of quality points equal to three times the number of hours plus three.

Two-Run Pinch Homer Wins For Dodgers In Ninth

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Infectious hepatitis kept Los Angeles' Bill Singer on the shelf for two long months, but Bill Sudakis' 3½-week quarantine on the Dodgers' bench was result of a common ailment ... disinfection of the batting average.

Singer took a couple of shaky first steps back from the sickbed Sunday ... and Sudakis discovered a sure cure with one swing of his bat.

Sudakis slammed a two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning, giving the Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs after Singer, making his first mound appearance since April 16, was rocked for two homers and kyoed in the third. The victory, which snapped a three-game Chicago winning string, sent the Dodgers into second place in the National League West, one-half game ahead of Atlanta but still 10½ off Cincinnati's torrid pace.

The Reds trounced Philadelphia 10-1; the Braves bowed to the New York Mets 7-5; San Diego nipped Pittsburgh 2-1; Montreal shaded Houston 2-1 and San Francisco topped St. Louis 7-4 in other NL games.

In the American League, Baltimore defeated Oakland 4-2 in 10 innings; the New York Yankees edged Kansas City 3-2; Minnesota slugged Boston 10-2;

Detroit whipped California 8-4; Cleveland rocked Milwaukee 9-2 and Washington swept a double-header from the Chicago White Sox 8-4 and 5-3.

The Dodgers trailed 4-3 when Billy Grabarkewitz opened the ninth with a single off Chicago reliever Phil Regan. Two outs later, Sudakis batted for pitcher Jim Brewer and crashed his fourth homer of the season. It was only the fifth trip to the plate this month for Sudakis, who has not started a game since May 23.

Sudakis' first homer since May 20 boosted his batting average 11 points to .213. Singer, a 20-game winner for the Dodgers last season, gave up a two-run homer by Jim Hickman in the second inning and two more runs, one of them Ernie Banks' homer, in the third before he was lifted.

The Reds rattled four Philadelphia pitchers for 18 hits, Hal McRae leading the way with three, as right-hander Jim McGlothlin breezed to his ninth victory in 12 decisions. McGlothlin scattered six hits and drove in the only two runs he needed with a fourth-inning single. Tom Seaver, tagged for four runs in the first three innings, blanked the Braves the rest of the way as New York climbed within four games of the East division-leading Cubs. Wayne Garrett tied the game 5-5 with a two-run homer in the fifth and Bud Harrelson poked the go-ahead single in the sixth. Clay Kirby fired a four-hitter for his first victory since May 10 as the Padres nudged Pittsburgh on Dave Campbell's run-scoring single in the ninth. Al Oliver's seventh-inning homer ruined Kirby's shutout bid.

John Boccabella's two-run homer carried the Expos past Houston as Steve Renko and reliever Claude Raymond, who came on in the ninth, combined for a four-hitter.

Dick Dietz delivered three runs with a double and homer for the Giants and Juan Marichal weathered homers by Richie Allen and Jose Cardenal in going the distance. Marichal, 3-5, checked the Cardinals on eight hits.

Roanoke Rapids got its first run of the series in the bottom of the fifth. Rod Allen singled and moved up on Kenny Dickerson's infield hit. Wayne Ellington then singled, driving in Allen.

In the eighth, Roanoke Rapids scored again. Tom Pope tripled, and scored on an error as Lawrence Floyd reached.

The final Greenville run came back to second and third on the ground - ruled double, with only two runs allowed to score.

Greenville took up Sunday right where they had left off. They pushed over three runs in the top of the second. Harbin singled to right and was safe at second on an error on Jay Brown's fielder's choice. Russ Smith walked, loading the bases, and another walk, to Vincent, brought in Harbin. Whitehurst was hit by a pitch, scoring Brown, and a walk to Durham brought in Smith.

Four more crossed in the third inning, making it 7-0. Moore led off with a single to right, and Leggett's high fly to center fell in for a double. Both runners advanced on a passed ball, scoring Moore. Harbin walked, and he and Leggett worked the double steal scoring the second run of the inning. Smith reached on an error, scoring Harbin. A passed ball advanced Smith, and Whitehurst walked. Whitehurst then broke for second on the steal, but the play was made to third in the attempt to pick Smith off, but the throw was wide, and Smith scored easily on the play.

In the fifth, Greenville picked up two more runs. Vincent singled to left and Whitehurst followed with what appeared to be a homer. But again, fate played a hand. The ball bounced into a wading pool, forcing the ground - ruled double. Paige grounded out, scoring Vincent, and Whitehurst came over on an error when a pickoff attempt failed. Roanoke Rapids got its first run of the series in the bottom of the fifth. Rod Allen singled and moved up on Kenny Dickerson's infield hit. Wayne Ellington then singled, driving in Allen.

American Legion Team Sweeps Pair

Greenville's American Legion baseball team swept a pair of games from Roanoke Rapids over the weekend. The Legionaires took Saturday night's contest at Guy Smith Stadium, 8-0, then came back for a 10-2 win Sunday in Roanoke Rapids.

The sweep upped the Legion's record to 4-1 for the season. Their next game will be Tuesday at Gum Smith Stadium at 8 p.m. against Rocky Mount.

In Saturday night's game, hurler Byron Dickens kept Roanoke Rapids off balance most of the way, despite some shaken moments caused by eight walks. He limited Roanoke Rapids to just four hits, however, in going the distance. He struck out 10.

Meanwhile, his teammates were pushing plenty of runs across.

The first two came in the second inning. Joey Moore singled to right and Ronnie Leggett sent one over second base into center. The ball took a bad hop in center, and soared over the fielder's head, with both Moore and Leggett zipping all the way around when the ball was chased down. That gave Greenville a 2-0 lead, and all they were to need.

But the scoring didn't stop there. In the third, Eddie Vincent singled and moved on to third on an error on an attempted pickoff. He was cut down in a rundown, however, after an attempted squeeze bunt was missed. But Tommy Durham reached on an error, and then scored when Jimmy Paige singled.

The fourth inning saw another Greenville run score. This time, Leggett again did the honors with his second homer of the night.

In the fifth, Tony Whitehurst reached on an error, and Durham was awarded first base on interference when the catcher's mitt hit his bat. Joe West came on to run for Whitehurst, and scored when Paige sent another hit to center, with Durham pulling into third. Durham then scored on Moore's sacrifice fly.

The final two runs came in the sixth inning. Dickens, West and Durham all drew walks, loading the bases. Paige sent a long fly to deep left, and it looked as if all four runners would score, but the ball stuck in the fence, and Paige and Durham were sent back to second and third on the ground - ruled double, with only two runs allowed to score.

Whitehurst then broke for second on the steal, but the play was made to third in the attempt to pick Smith off, but the throw was wide, and Smith scored easily on the play.

In the fifth, Greenville picked up two more runs. Vincent singled to left and Whitehurst followed with what appeared to be a homer. But again, fate played a hand. The ball bounced into a wading pool, forcing the ground - ruled double. Paige grounded out, scoring Vincent, and Whitehurst came over on an error when a pickoff attempt failed. Roanoke Rapids got its first run of the series in the bottom of the fifth. Rod Allen singled and moved up on Kenny Dickerson's infield hit. Wayne Ellington then singled, driving in Allen.

In the eighth, Roanoke Rapids scored again. Tom Pope tripled, and scored on an error as Lawrence Floyd reached.

The final Greenville run came back to second and third on the ground - ruled double, with only two runs allowed to score.

Greenville took up Sunday right where they had left off. They pushed over three runs in the top of the second. Harbin singled to right and was safe at second on an error on Jay Brown's fielder's choice. Russ Smith walked, loading the bases, and another walk, to Vincent, brought in Harbin. Whitehurst was hit by a pitch, scoring Brown, and a walk to Durham brought in Smith.

Four more crossed in the third inning, making it 7-0. Moore led off with a single to right, and Leggett's high fly to center fell in for a double. Both runners advanced on a passed ball, scoring Moore. Harbin walked, and he and Leggett worked the double steal scoring the second run of the inning. Smith reached on an error, scoring Harbin. A passed ball advanced Smith, and Whitehurst walked. Whitehurst then broke for second on the steal, but the play was made to third in the attempt to pick Smith off, but the throw was wide, and Smith scored easily on the play.

DOUBLED ... still holding onto the ball, Washington Senators second baseman Bernie Allen (7) tumbles over Chicago White Sox runner Carlos May after tagging him out in first inning of first game Sunday in Chicago. May tried to take second while teammate Walt Williams was caught in rundown between third and home. Throw came from Senators third sacker Aurelio Rodriguez. Senators took first game, 8-4. (AP Wirephoto).

Dan Gurney Victor In Canadian-American Series

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
Thanks to some brilliant driving by American star Dan Gurney, team McLaren still dominates the Canadian-American Challenge Cup racing series.

Gurney, at 37 one of the most versatile pilots in motor sports, drove one of the British-made bombs to victory in the 1970 series opener at Mosport Park, Ont., Sunday and did it as convincingly as the late builder-driver Bruce McLaren ever did. McLaren was killed in a crash in England two weeks ago while testing one of his new cars. Gurney, the only American ever to drive a car of his own design to victory in World Grand Prix racing, joined the team as McLaren's replacement Friday.

The lanky Californian toured the 2.459-mile Mosport Park circuit for 80 laps, or 197 miles, in 1 hour, 47 minutes and 05.6 seconds for an average speed of 110.214 miles per hour, a race record. He finished about 15 seconds ahead of Britain's Jackie Oliver, driving a radical new Chevrolet-powered car made principally from titanium.

Gurney collected $14,450 in prize and accessory money for his first Can-Am victory since 1966. Oliver, 28, a Grand Prix driver, received $10,350. Denny Hulme, the 34-year-old New Zealander who was McLaren's driving mate during the last three years, when the two swept the Can-Am series almost without challenge, finished third despite a badly overheating car. But Hulme, himself, obviously was not at his best. His hands were burned severely on May 12 while driving one of McLaren's new rear-engined Offys at Indianapolis.

Using special gloves to help grip the wheel, Hulme led Sunday's race for 45 laps before he began to fade. He was 1 1/2 laps behind Gurney at the end, but had built up a good lead over Porsche-driving Tony Dean of England, who came in fourth. Oliver, Gurney and Hulme treated the 50,000 Oosport Park spectators and a nationwide television audience (ABC) to a heated duel for more than half of the race. After Hulme dropped back to give the lead to Gurney on the 46th circuit of the 10-turn course, Oliver began making his move and swept by Gurney to take the lead just before the halfway point. It wasn't until 20 laps later that Gurney could get by the Britisher, but when he did the contest was over. McLaren won six of last year's 11 Can-Am events, with Hulme taking the other five and finishing an incredible second in the ones that went to McLaren. The two had packed home more than $600,000 in four years of the series.

Gurney showed he is ready to take up where McLaren left off—and there are six new McLaren cars already built and ready to take him and Hulme through the series. Porsche's ran 1-2-3 in capturing the Le Mans 24-hour sports car race in France with Ferrar ri's running in fourth and fifth positions. Winning Porsche drivers Dick Attwood of England and Hans Hermann of Germany covered 2,879 miles, averaging 119.99 m.p.h. Bobby Unser edged brother Al, the Indianapolis 500 winner, by a mere three-quarters of a second in winning the 150-mile USAC championship race at Langhorne, Pa. Bobby, driving an Eagle-turbocharged Offenhauser, averaged 106.302 m.p.h. Richard Perry rode his Plymouth SuperBird to victory in the Fallstaff 400, averaging 99.242 m.p.h. for the 400.86-mile race. The Randleman, N.C., resident collected $18,765 for his triumph at Riverside, Calif.

Ramo Scott was the winner of the $50,750 Vulcan 500 stock car race at Talladega, Ala. Scott averaged 147.504 m.p.h. The 100-mile U.S. Auto Club race at Lancaster Speedway in Buffalo, N.Y., was postponed indefinitely with track officials blaming the postponement on the seven-car smashup Saturday at Syracuse.

In the Schaefer-U.S. Auto Club 100-mile race at Syracuse, the race was halted in the 68th lap after the seven-car crashup. Two drivers were hospitalized, including Roger McClusky, 40, of Tucson, Ariz., listed in good condition with a fractured nose and Dale Koehler, who apparently suffered a cardiac arrest and possible neck injuries. Koehler was in serious condition.

Ron Grable of Cupertino, Calif., won the Continental Championship for Formula A cars at Laguna Seca raceway by 41.4 seconds. Grable, in a Lola T190 averaged 99.7 m.p.h. for the 50-lap race and won $5,600. George Wintersteen of Villanova, Pa., in a Lotus 70 special was second. Teammate Dick Smothers, the television star, was third, 1 1/2-seconds further back.

Baltimore Orioles May Be Getting Message

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New York Yankees are waiting for Sept. 15 and the Detroit Tigers are waiting for July 1, but the Baltimore Orioles may be getting the message right now that there's a race in the American League East.

"If this were Sept. 15 and we were three games behind, I might have something to say," said Ralph Houk after his Yankees nipped Kansas City 3-2 Sunday for their fifth straight victory and 10th in 11 games and remained three games behind Baltimore.

"They've got a good-hitting ballclub," California's Lefty Phillips after the Tigers pounded his Angels 8-4, "and if they're close when Denny McLain comes back on July 1 they can win it." The Tigers have won eight of 11 and trail Baltimore by eight games.

The Orioles, meanwhile, who had lost eight of 13 after opening a 7 1/2-game lead, righted themselves with a 4-2 triumph over Oakland on Dave May's two-run, two-out homer in the 10th inning.

Elsewhere, Minnesota routed Boston 10-2, Washington swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 8-4 and 5-3 and Cleveland crushed Milwaukee 9-2.

In the National League, Los Angeles shaded the Chicago Cubs 5-4, the New York Mets overtook Atlanta 7-5, San Diego edged Pittsburgh 2-1, Cincinnati battered Philadelphia 10-1, San Francisco downed St. Louis 7-4 and Montreal got by Houston 2-1.

The Yankees fell behind Kansas City 2-0 in the first inning when Amos Otis doubled, Joe Keough singled and Ed Kirkpatrick doubled. But they battled back after Dick Drago retired the first 12 batters, scoring a run in the fifth on singles by Roy White and Danny Cater and a double play and knotting it in the eighth on singles by Gene Michael, pinch-hitter Pete Ward and Horace Clarke.

They scored the winning run in the ninth when White got a fly ball double which right fielder Pat Kelly lost in the sun and Thurman Munson drilled a pinch single.

Detroit's Willie Horton belted the first of two solo homers in the second inning off Clyde Wright and the Tigers wrapped it up with four runs in the third as Dick McAuliffe singled for one run and Bill Freehan singled home two more.

Norm Cash hit a two-run homer in the fifth and Horton unloaded again in the seventh while Jim Fregosi and Alex Johnson homered for the Angels, who fell 3 1/2 games behind Minnesota in the AL West.

The Tigers are hoping to stay reasonably close for the rest of the month until McLain, their ace pitcher, comes off his gambling suspension. "Denny can come back and step right into the rotation," said manager Mayo Smith. "I don't expect him to start right off, but he'll work in and when he gets in the groove he usually pitches complete ballgames."

Golf Champion Wins Second

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—David Thore of Reidsville came from behind Saturday to win his second straight Carolinas Golf Association Junior Championship.

Thore, 16-year-old son of Golf pro Max Thore, managed to defeat steady Jim Adams of Fayetteville 1-up after 20 holes.

But the real drama came on the 18th hole when Thore had to sink a 20-foot birdie putt to gain a tie. He then sank a three-footer as Adams missed from six feet on the second extra hole.

There was never ahead in the match until the end and twice had to come back from two holes down. Both shot two over par 74s during regulation play on the University of North Carolina's Finley Golf course.

Records Set By Speedster

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Chi Cheng, a slender speedster called "the ideal female athlete" by one competitor, established two world sprint marks in stealing the spotlight from six other world record holders at the Portland Rose Festival track meet.

Miss Chi, a 26-year-old college student from Formosa, was clocked in 10.0 Saturday in setting a new world record in the 100-yard dash. She returned 45 minutes later and repeated the performance in the 220, finishing far ahead in 22.7.

Doris Brown, called America's top middle distance runner, said Miss Chi was the "ideal female athlete." Mrs. Brown, a Seattle schoolteacher, picked up wins in both the mile and 800.

Miss Chi, a physical education student at California Ply in Pomona, had previously shared the old mark of 10.3 in the 100 with Marlene Matthews of Australia and Wyoming Tyus of the United States. She broke the 220 mark of 22.9 held by Margaret Burvill of Australia.

Asked about the future, Miss Chi, who also won the 100-meter hurdles, laughed and said, "I'll try harder."

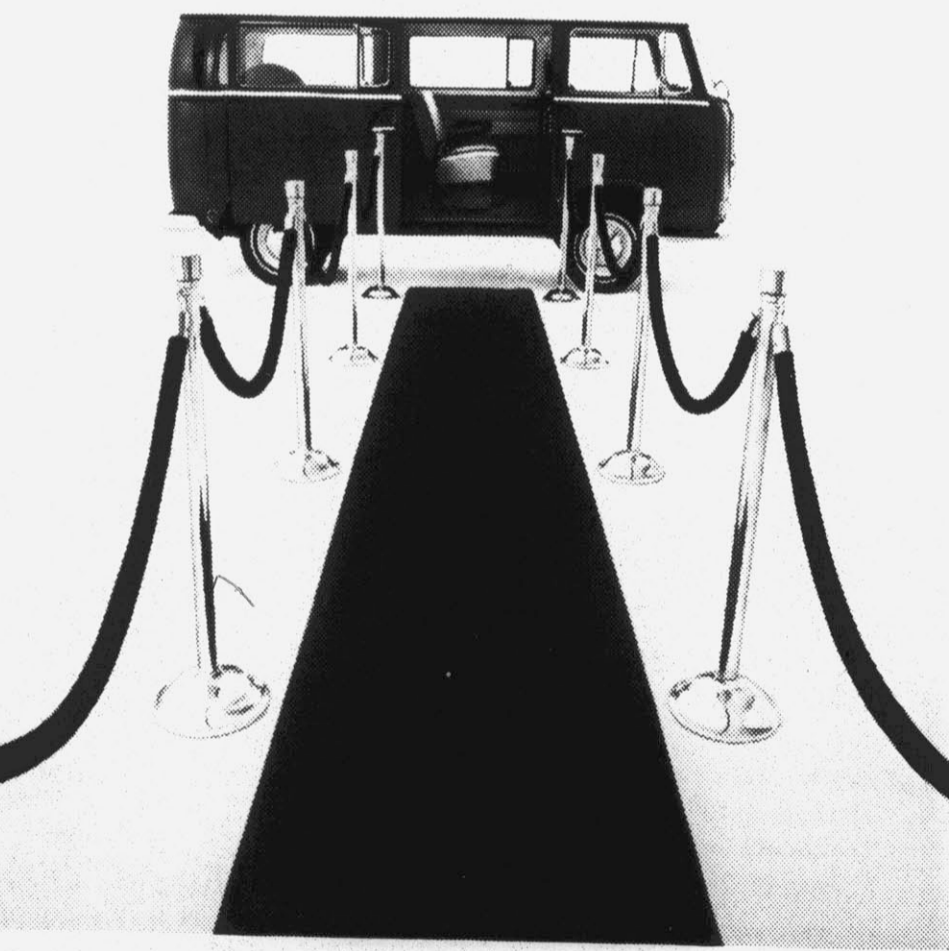

Another double winner was Chuck LaBenz of Arizona State, who put on a strong finish in both the 880 and mile. LaBenz, who reported for Army duty at Ft. Lewis, Wash., took the mile in 3:59.4, with Italy's Francesco Arese second at 3:59.36, and Tom Von Ruden next at 3:59.79.

Otherwise, the world record holders came through as expected but took a back seat to Miss Chi.

Randy Matson won the shot put at 66-11 3/4.

John Carlos, who shares the world record of 9.1 in the 100, captured that event in 9.4 and the 220 in 20.4. Willie Davenport was clocked in 13.5 in winning the 120-yard high hurdles. Jay Silvester's toss of 202-10 gave him first place in the discus.

Australians Kerry O'Brien and Ron Clarke finished 1-2 in the three-mile. Clarke, the world record holder in the event, finished nine seconds behind the younger Aussie, who was timed in 13:10.9.

You are cordially invited to inspect our lavishly decorated facilities.

You'd hardly recognize the place. Remember when the seats were about as soft as church pews? Now they're liberally endowed with extra padding. (Just in case you're not.) Remember the old swinging doors? They've been replaced by bigger, more practical sliding ones. Remember all those funny little windows? They've been replaced by gigantic ones. And hidden beneath all this improvement, is even more improvement—a better suspension system. Of course we haven't touched the things that made our place famous to begin with. You can still come in and get our jumbo 23 miles to the gallon.* And an engine that takes little oil and no water. HOMES FOR AMERICANS

RETIREMENT HOME This economical home is compact, but it has spacious rooms. The kitchen has an L-shaped counter and there is a storage room combined with a laundry corner. Sliding doors separate the living room and the porch. The modern look of this one bedroom house is achieved by means of the simple, angular lines of the windows and the porch framing. Plan HA645R, with 704 square feet of living space, requires a minimum lot of 55 ft. by 75 ft. It was designed by architect Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla., 33710.

Minority Business Encouraged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is encouraging its job training contractors and state employment service agencies to do business with banks run by Negroes or other minority groups.

A list of such banks released by the department Saturday includes one each in North Carolina and South Carolina.

The list was provided by the Department of Commerce which requested the action. It includes Mechanics & Farmers Bank of Durham, N.C., and Victory Savings Bank of South Carolina.

The announcement by the Labor Department said the policy is subject to state and local laws and regulations, such banks must be "readily accessible" to the contractor or state employment agency and such banks must be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Storm Sweeps Myrtle Beach

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Damages may climb as high as $100,000 in the aftermath of a wind storm that swept across the resort area of Myrtle Beach during the weekend.

The winds, gusting at 70 miles per hour, accompanied thunderstorms that struck the coastal section Saturday.

Officials said at least 20 planes at the Myrtle Beach Airport were damaged by the near-hurricane-force winds that lasted about five minutes. There were some 100 planes at the airport at the time, but many of them escaped damage because they were either tied down tightly on the runway or were in hangars.

Richard Temple, president of Inland Airlines, which operates the airport, said an early estimate of damage was $100,000.

The brisk winds continued along the coast Sunday, forcing the postponement of a sail-boat race in Charleston, after several boats were flipped over.

Hail and more than an inch of rain accompanied the winds in Myrtle Beach.

An employee of Inland Airlines suffered a broken left leg Saturday when a plane blew against him as he tried to secure its tie-down lines. The injured man was identified as Wayne Talley.

Airport officials said the winds lifted one aircraft over a small jet. Another plane blew over in its hangar when the gusts swept through an open door.

The storm cut short two beauty contests, the last two events of the annual Sun Fun Festival at Myrtle Beach.

Final Drive Is Wednesday

Wednesday is the day of the final drive for collection of blood for the Pitt County Bloodmobile during the 1969-70 collection year.

Douglas Morgan, chairman of the Pitt County Bloodmobile, says "we hope to be able at least to cut down on our current shortage to the greatest extent possible."

Morgan says that this last drive is the final opportunity for citizens to turn out and help bring the quota a little nearer realization.

At the time, Greenville and Pitt County are approximately 575 units behind its quota.

The June 17 collection drive will be conducted from 11:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

The Romans, while developing the science of bridge building, discovered a natural cement.

Community Notes

All fraternal organizations are invited by the members of Mt. Hermon Lodge No. 35, Free and Accepted Masons, to worship with them on St. John's Day, at 7 p.m. at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church.

All officers and members are requested to wear their uniforms or regalia.

'Airport' Liked By Public, Not Critics

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Pseudo suspense" ... "basic concept outdated" ... "bland, pre-digested entertainment" ... "old-fashioned" ... "tedium" ... "bore" ... "lousy" ... "immensely silly."

stay-away advisory when 13,000 cars tried to jam a suburban drive-in theater showing it. President Lew Wasserman of MCA told stockholders it probably will be the biggest grosser in subsidiary Universal Studio's 55-year history.

Are critics out of touch with the public pulse?

Says "Airport" producer Ross Hunter, who has felt their lash and found public approval before:

"I find that the critics do not mean one thing as far as whether the public will go to see a movie or not. I have the mass audience to please, not the critics."

Many reviewers, it's true, did like "Airport." One called it "better than you expect ... produced very handsomely ... no single let-down in its two hours and 17 minutes ... premier escapist therapy." Another said it's a "thriller of humor, human interest and suspense galore."

But a dozen years ago, Hunter recalls, "they knocked 'Pillow Talk,' and it was one of the biggest grossers ever made."

"They have a right to write whatever they want. In turn I hope they will agree I can produce whatever I want."

Universal's enthusiastic, confident "boy wonder" estimates his 37 films as producer and 8 as associate producer have grossed at least $100 million.

His "Thoroughly Modern Millie" received mixed reviews but at more than $40 million stands as the studio's current box-office champion.

As exciting as the public acceptance of "Airport," said Hunter, is the fact that it's against the trend of low-budget, youth-oriented films.

"It's definitely bringing back the lost audience that hasn't been going to movies for years."

"Every other studio is doing 'Easy Rider.' But now Columbia has announced it's changing its thinking and will not necessarily limit budgets. Other producers have told me they realize they must make pictures for every age group."

He said he's receiving letters from parents thanking him for

Evil Means Warning Is Issued

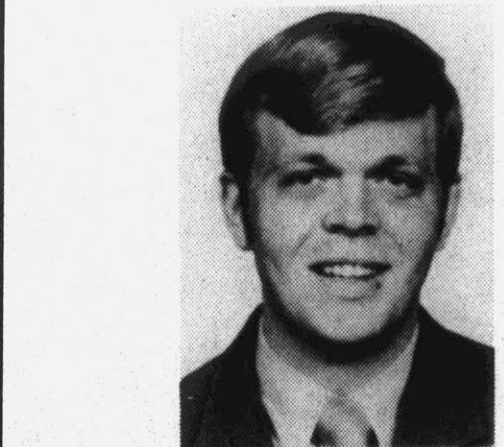

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP)—Bishop Earl G. Hunt Jr. of Charlotte has warned Methodists that churchmen eager for social reform must beware in their zeal of using evil means toward a good end.

Hunt, speaking at the closing session of the annual five-day meeting of the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church at Lake Junaluska Sunday, said some Christians are committed to generating "total change in the life of the world."

"For timid souls who cannot quite envision the church in this role," he said, "the relevant word is: 'The end justified the means.'"

Such thinking, he added, "is creeping more and more into the thought patterns of contemporary Christianity." But Hunt said he could not accept violent means no matter how good the end.

"This is one of the oldest fallacies of human reasons," he said. "If it were so, no pattern of ethics would have any valid meaning. It is the philosophy of the big lie, the modus operandi of the Marxist and his materialism. It is as far removed from the teaching of Jesus as is the East from the West."

CRABS

San Francisco Style

Traps baited with squid are stacked on the deck waiting to be planted.

The crabs are a delicacy—but it's no delicate job to catch them.

For a San Francisco crab boat skipper, work begins well before the crabbing season opens. Even during the salmon season which precedes crabbing, he spends his free evenings mending crab traps. They measure 36 inches in diameter, are made from construction bar iron and stainless steel mesh, and are attached to about 15 fathoms of line and a float.

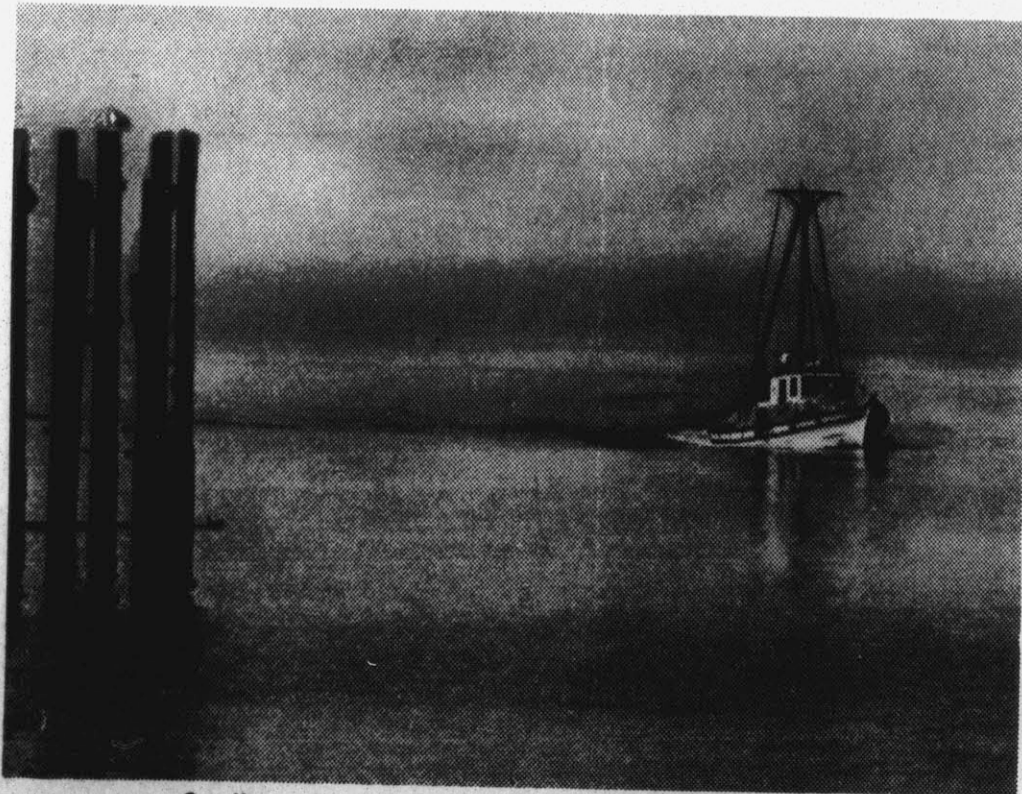

The day before crabbing begins, the traps are loaded on to the boats, and at early dawn the fishermen head out of the Golden Gate to plant the traps, maybe six or so miles out to sea. The traps are baited with squid; it takes several hours to plant them, and they are then left overnight.

On opening day, the boats go out again and harvesting begins. The traps are hoisted on to the deck, the crabs are quickly removed, sized and thrown into separate boxes. In a matter of minutes the traps are re-baited and heaved over the side again. The line is paid out and the float in place.

You don't work crabs from inside, but from the awash deck of a boat which has seen three or four decades of sturdy service. Hip boots, slicker and rubber apron are needed to keep dry even when the weather's perfect. And cotton gloves are indispensable to protect hands as they grapple with lines, rough steel—and crabs.

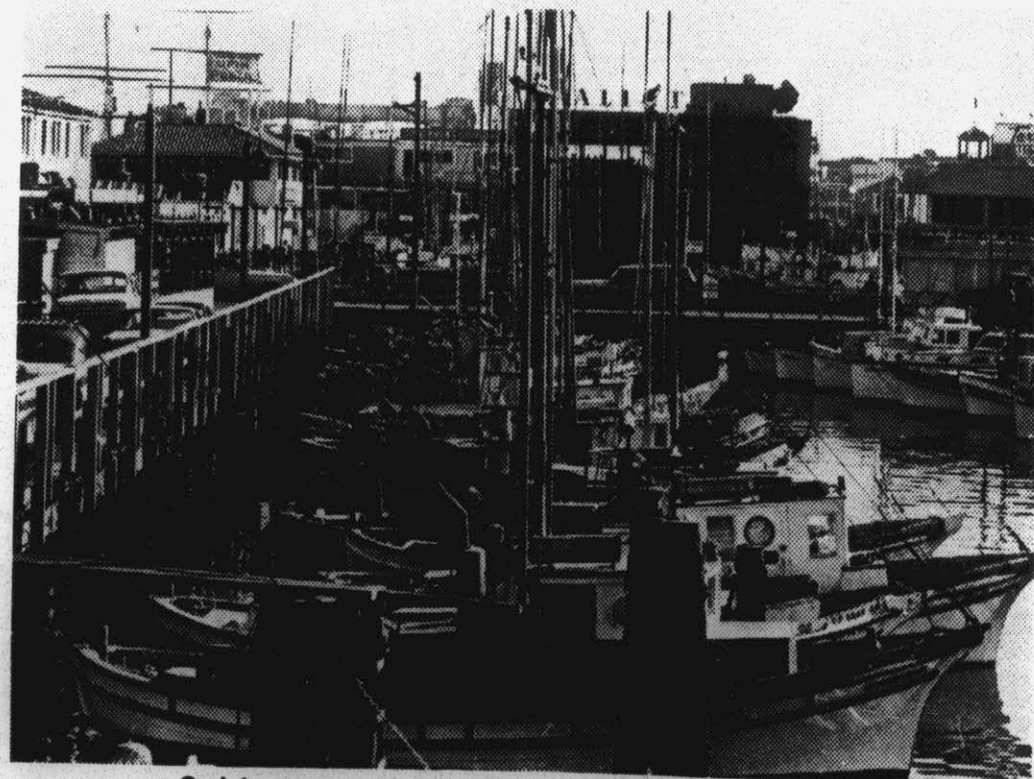

Steel trap is heaved out at the end of a 90-foot line.

Small, sturdy crab boat works from San Francisco harbor.

Crab harvest—to be handled with care.

Crab boats rest quietly in Fisherman's Wharf, San Francisco.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K6 ♣42 ♢KQ3 ♣9874

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

Pass Pass 1♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—This hand is a little too good for a simple raise in clubs. Some mild effort should be made to encourage partner to go on, and the best choice is one no trump which, over a club, indicates from 9 to 11 points.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠52 ♣84 ♢10973 ♣AQ64

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

Pass 1♣ Dble. Pass

2♣ Pass 3♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. Two small trumps are not considered adequate support on which to offer a raise, but North's bid shows at least a good six card suit and our six points should be enough to produce a reasonable play for game.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q83 ♣AK ♢108654 ♣QJ3

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

Pass Pass 1♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—East's preempt has jammed up the bidding and your best action is somewhat of a guess. Three no trump seems a reasonable choice on the ground that nine tricks should be easier to win than 11.

Q. 4—You are vulnerable, the opponents have a 30 part score, and as South you hold:

♠AKJ10965 ♣AK K1093

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

Pass 1♣ 2♣ Pass

2♣ 3♣ 3♣ 1♣

Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. While we are disinclined to override a double at this level, we feel that partner in this sequence might not visualize a severe card spade suit. If he has so much as the jack of diamonds for us, we can score a vulnerable game. On the other hand it might prove that the opposition can be punished no more than 100 points.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠532 ♣84 ♢10973 ♣AQ64

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

Pass 1♣ Dble. Pass

2♣ Pass 3♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. Two small trumps are not considered adequate support on which to offer a raise, but North's bid shows at least a good six card suit and our six points should be enough to produce a reasonable play for game.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQ1063 ♣74 ♢KQ852 ♣32

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1♣ Pass South West

2♣ Pass 2♣ Pass

2♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—We would advise you to quit while the quitting is good. This is obviously a misfit and the best place to play such hand is at as low a level as is convenient. One more bid by you may start a barrage of doubles from the enemy.

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠542 ♣AK3 ♢K10865 ♣AK

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

1NT Pass 3♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Generally in this situation a raise is offered to partner, but with all our values located in the other suits we would prefer to bid three no trump and await developments. If partner's hand is highly unbalanced he may take control of the situation himself.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠862 ♣KJ7542 ♢8 ♣Q83

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South

1♣ 2♣ Pass ?

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. A two heart bid is not recommended. Partner has described a hand whose virtues are to be found principally in the diamond suit. If he were interested in hearts, he would have doubled first and then shown his diamonds.

Chicken Recipe Winner

CHARLOTTE (AP) — You just take some butter, lime juice and—this is the key—two packages of dry Italian dressing mix.

Then spread all three on chicken breasts and cook them tenderly over a charcoal fire.

That's what Albert S. Warren of Charlotte did, and won $2,500 in this weekend's National Chicken Cooking Contest in Princess Anne, Md.

Amazing? Not for Warren. He's been winning cooking contests since 1961. That was the year he entered a recipe contest sponsored by Better Home and Gardens magazine.

"I won a grill in that, so I thought it was a pretty good business," he said.

Since then, he and his wife enter cook-off regularly, with both of them bringing home prizes. Warren said his wife had captured a greater number of prizes, but that his $2,500 second-place prize money Saturday made him the top money winner in the family.

He and his wife invented the Italian-style recipe that earned him the chicken cooking honors.

Library Reveals Summer Plans

The summer program for children at Sheppard Memorial Library has been announced by Mrs. William Reid, children's librarian.

"Twilight Tales" will be the featured program at the main library, with stories and songs for all ages beginning Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30.

The first "Tales" on Tuesday will include the telling of the Welsh folktale, "The Truthful Harp," with musical accompaniment. In later programs, children will be invited to share their favorite stories with the group.

The East Branch Library will begin a craft program for older elementary children on Wednesday and Friday mornings at 11 o'clock.

Pre-registration is required since the size of the group will be limited. Younger children will have their own program of stories each Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Highlight of the summer will be a proposed puppet show created and presented by the craft groups at the children's afternoon storytime.

Wednesdays at 2:30 p.m. will be the time for the weekly children's storytime at the Carver Branch Library. The program will be varied to include guest storytellers, as well as films and filmstrips. In addition, the Pitt County Bookmobile will hold children's programs at several community stops, including Winterville, Mondays from 11 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., story and film program in the town hall; Tuesdays, 10:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., Meadowbrook, audio-visual program in the recreation center; and Thursdays, 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon, story program in the South Greenville Recreation Center.

The Worry Clinic Elders 'Ideal' For Jury Duty

Betty's case shows why we need to apply some practical psychology to our legal system. For our method of picking jurors is far out of date. And our youth aren't given a single brief course on logic. Indeed, the average college graduate can't name even one fallacy in logic! Which is why the guilty are often acquitted!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE N-526: Betty B., aged 38, is a busy Wisconsin farm wife. And I really mean "busy," for she has two children in grade school.

She also maintains a flock of 200 hens, whose eggs she collects, sorts and takes to customers in town.

Meanwhile, she has a garden from which she picked, prepared and canned over 400 quarts of fruits and vegetables last season.

Her husband runs a dairy farm, milking 50 cows night and morning with an electrical milking machine.

But Betty also helps him thereat, so they arise at 4 A.M. and must get to bed by 9 P.M.

Yet Betty received a summons to serve on a jury!

Not knowing what to do, she consulted an attorney, who accompanied her to the county courthouse to try to get her excused.

But this was an unnecessary imposition on Betty's busy day, plus needless expense for advice and aid of the attorney.

Yet it is duplicated thousands of times every year all over the U.S.A.

A young grocer with 10 children, was likewise called for jury duty in Indiana.

Since he operated his own little store where he had to be on the job at 6 A.M. and would not get away till 7 P.M., he was worried.

So he finally called a lawyer, after hiring an old man to supervise the store for half a day while he travelled with his attorney to the county seat to get excused from jury service.

Such calls for jury duty not only are costly in time and money to our busy citizens who are paying the taxes to keep our government afloat, but they also add more red tape to the procuring of jurors.

Instead, we should pick jurors from those Senior Citizens who have been forced to retire at 65.

There are thousands of such competent men and women who would make superb jurors.

For they are educated people, often with college degrees and vast practical experience at operating their own farms or small business enterprises.

Serving on the jury would be a tonic for their keen minds, too.

And they $20 per day for juror's pay would often be a helpful boost to their limited monthly income from Social Security.

Indeed, every county could maintain a panel of such potential jurors who are retired folks.

They could all be called into a meeting for the discussion of the common fallacies in logic.

Though the Judge and the attorneys received such training, the 12 men and women who comprise our typical American jury may never have been taught the common fallacies in logic!

Which is why many juries

nowadays ignore evidence and logic as they "fall" for the mini-skirted defendant or the class appeals and deft "ad hominem" emotionalism of smart lawyers.

Alas, high schoolers nowadays never take even a rudimentary course in logic.

And the usual college graduate has never had even a one-semester class in the subject. He can't name a single fallacy!

"Dr. Crane," a top insurance executive recently informed me, "we no longer can be sure how any jury will perform!"

"For we may have all the logical evidence on our side, yet a smart lawyer may arouse their emotions by racial or class appeals till the jury ignores the evidence and acquits the guilty!"

The crabs are a delicacy—but it's no delicate job to catch them.

For a San Francisco crab boat skipper, work begins well before the crabbing season opens. Even during the salmon season which precedes crabbing, he spends his free evenings mending crab traps. They measure 36 inches in diameter, are made from construction bar iron and stainless steel mesh, and are attached to about 15 fathoms of line and a float.

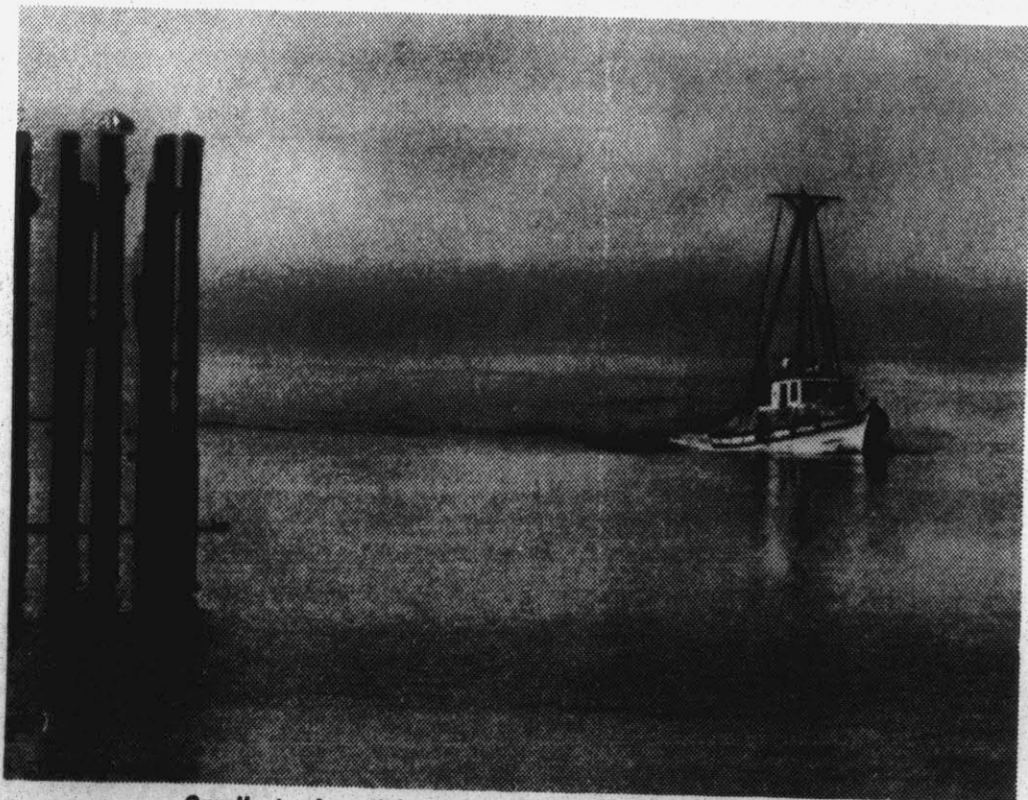

The day before crabbing begins, the traps are loaded on to the boats, and at early dawn the fishermen head out of the Golden Gate to plant the traps, maybe six or so miles out to sea. The traps are baited with squid; it takes several hours to plant them, and they are then left overnight.

On opening day, the boats go out again and harvesting begins. The traps are hoisted on to the deck, the crabs are quickly removed, sized and thrown into separate boxes. In a matter of minutes the traps are re-baited and heaved over the side again. The line is paid out and the float in place.

You don't work crabs from inside, but from the awash deck of a boat which has seen three or four decades of sturdy service. Hip boots, slicker and rubber apron are needed to keep dry even when the weather's perfect. And cotton gloves are indispensable to protect hands as they grapple with lines, rough steel—and crabs.

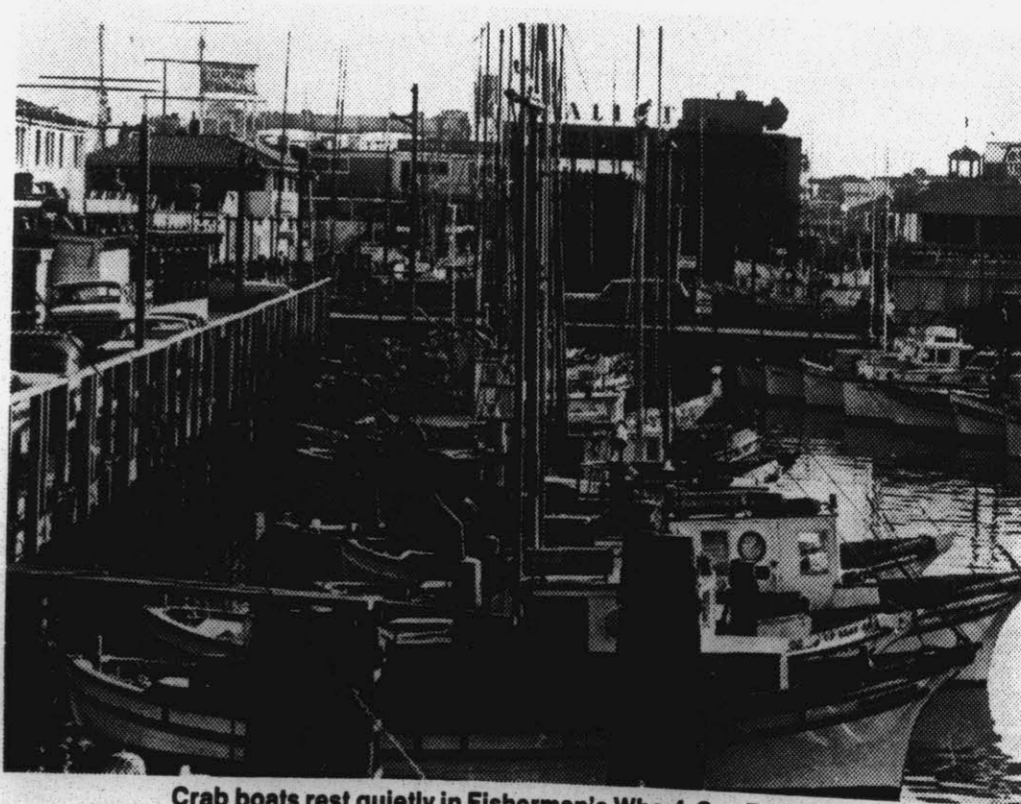

Steel trap is heaved out at the end of a 90-foot line.

Small, sturdy crab boat works from San Francisco harbor.

Crab harvest—to be handled with care.

Crab boats rest quietly in Fisherman's Wharf, San Francisco.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K6 ♣642 ♣KQ3 ♣J9874
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1♣ Pass

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q5 ♣72 ♣A93 ♣KJ10983
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass 1♣ 3♣ ?
What do you bid?
A. East's preempt has jammed up the bidding and your best action is somewhat of a guess. Three no trump seems a reasonable choice on the ground that nine tricks should be easier to win than 11.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q83 ♣AK ♣108654 ♣QJ3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A. Two no trump. Normally a count of 13 points is required for a jump to two no trump, but after a previous pass this action may be taken with 11 or 12. A jump to three diamonds is not recommended, because partner with a doubtful holding in the major suits may not be able to bid no trump.

Q. 4—You are vulnerable, the opponents have a 30 part score, and as South you hold:
♠AKJ10985 ♠AK ♠K1093
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1♣ 2♣ 3♣ Pass
Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A. Four spades. While we are disinclined to overrule a double at this level, we feel that partner in this sequence might not visualize a seven card spade suit. If he has so much as the jack of diamonds for us, we can score a vulnerable game. On the other hand it might prove that the opposition can be punished no more than 100 points.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠632 ♣84 ♣10973 ♣AQ64
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1♣ Dble. Pass
2♣ Pass 3♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. Two small trumps are not considered adequate support on which to offer a raise, but North's bid shows at least a good six card suit and our six points should be enough to produce a reasonable play for game.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ1063 ♣A ♣K852 ♣32
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♣ Pass 2♣ Pass
2♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Generally in this situation a raise is offered to partner, but with all our values located in the other suits we would prefer to bid three no trump and await developments. If partner's hand is highly unbalanced he may take control of the situation himself.

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠542 ♣AK3 ♣K10865 ♣AK
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1NT Pass 3♣ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. A two heart bid is not recommended. Partner has described a hand whose virtues are to be found principally in the diamond suit. If he were interested in hearts, he would have doubled first and then shown his diamonds.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠862 ♣KJ7542 ♣8 ♣KQ83
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♣ 2♣ Pass ?
What do you bid?
A.—Pass. A two heart bid is not recommended. Partner has described a hand whose virtues are to be found principally in the diamond suit. If he were interested in hearts, he would have doubled first and then shown his diamonds.

Chicken Recipe Winner

CHARLOTTE (AP) — You just take some butter, lime juice and this is the key—two packages of dry Italian dressing mix.

Then spread all three on chicken breasts and cook them tenderly over a charcoal fire.

That's what Albert S. Warren of Charlotte did, and won $2,500 in this weekend's National Chicken Cooking Contest in Princess Anne, Md.

Amazing? Not for Warren. He's been winning cooking contests since 1961. That was the year he entered a recipe contest sponsored by Better Home and Gardens magazine.

"I won a grill in that, so I thought it was a pretty good business," he said.

Since then, he and his wife enter cook - offs regularly, with both of them bringing home prizes. Warren said his wife had captured a greater number of prizes, but that his $2,500 second-place prize money Saturday made him the top money winner in the family.

He and his wife invented the Italian-style recipe that earned him the chicken cooking honors.

Jews and Arabs both are Semitic peoples.

Library Reveals Summer Plans

The summer program for children at Sheppard Memorial Library has been announced by Mrs. William Reid, children's librarian.

"Twilight Tales" will be the featured program at the main library, with stories and songs for all ages beginning Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30.

The first "Tales" on Tuesday will include the telling of the Welsh folktale, "The Truthful Harp," with musical accompaniment. In later programs, children will be invited to share their favorite stories with the group.

The East Branch Library will begin a craft program for older elementary children on Wednesday and Friday mornings at 11 o'clock.

Pre-registration is required since the size of the group will be limited. Younger children will have their own program of stories each Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Highlight of the summer will be a proposed puppet show created and presented by the craft groups at the children's afternoon storytime.

Wednesdays at 2:30 p.m. will be the time for the weekly children's storytime at the Carver Branch Library.

The program will be varied to include guest storytellers, as well as films and filmstrips.

In addition, the Pitt County Bookmobile will hold children's programs at several community stops, including Winterville, Mondays from 11 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., story and film program in the town hall; Tuesdays, 10:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., Meadowbrook, audio - visual program in the recreation center; and Thursdays, 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon, story program in the South Greenville Recreation Center.

The Worry Clinic Elders 'Ideal' For Jury Duty

Betty's case shows why we need to apply some practical psychology to our legal system. For our method of picking jurors is far out of date. And our youth aren't given a single brief course on logic. Indeed, the average college graduate can't name even one fallacy in logic! This is why the guilty are often acquitted!

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph. D., M.D.
CASE N-528: Betty B., aged 38, is a busy Wisconsin farm wife. And I really mean "busy," for she has two children in grade school.

She also maintains a flock of 200 hens, whose eggs she collects, sorts and takes to customers in town.

Meanwhile, she has a garden from which she picked, prepared and canned over 400 quarts of fruits and vegetables last season.

Her husband runs a dairy farm, milking 50 cows night and morning with an electrical milking machine.

But Betty also helps him thereat, so they arise at 4 A.M. and must get to bed by 9 P.M.

Yet Betty received a summons to serve on a jury!

Not knowing what to do, she consulted an attorney, who accompanied her to the county courthouse to try to get her excused.

But this was an unnecessary imposition on Betty's busy day, plus needless expense for advice and aid of the attorney.

Yet it is duplicated thousands of times every year all over the U.S.A.

A young grocer with 10 children, was likewise called for jury duty in Indiana.

Since he operated his own little store where he had to be on the job at 6 A.M. and would not get away till 7 P.M., he was worried.

So he finally called a lawyer, after hiring an old man to supervise the store for half a day nowadays ignore evidence and logic as they "fall" for the mini-skirted defendant or the class appeals and deft "ad hominem" emotionalism of smart lawyers.

Alas, high schoolers nowadays never take even a rudimentary course in logic.

And the usual college graduate has never had even one semester class in the subject. He can't name a single fallacy!

"Dr. Crane," a top insurance executive recently informed me, "we no longer can be sure how any jury will perform!"

"For we may have all the logical evidence on our side, yet a smart lawyer may arouse their emotions by racial or class appeals till the jury ignores the evidence and acquits the guilty!"

When you see a cow or sheep limping, act fast to determine the cause and treat the condition. Lameness can lead to weight loss as well as lower milk production.

Foot rot is one of the most dreaded causes of lameness. Several animals in a herd may come down with it at one time. Injuries and other causes of lameness generally affect only one animal. Both cattle and sheep suffer from foot rot, but the problem is caused by different type infections, and must be treated differently.

Foot rot of cattle is usually first observed when an animal limps and walks on its toes instead of placing its weight on the bottom of the foot. An affected animal shows severe pain when you apply pressure to the sole of the foot. Many times infection starts between the claws. You may see a crack in the skin that contains pus. Swelling of this area is common. If you don't treat the condition, lameness worsens and infection penetrates joints of the foot. By this time the animal will refuse to place any weight on the sore foot. It may lie down most of the time.

Foot rot can affect any foot but it is more often seen in the hind feet of heavy beef animals or cattle that are penned. The exact cause is not known, but a bacterium named Spherophorus necrophorus is the organism most often isolated infected tissue. It is a common "bug" that occurs in most soil that contains manure. The infection appears to enter through a bruise or other injury.

To control foot rot in cattle, clear holding pens of rocks, nails, glass, and other objects that could injure an animal's foot. Sprinkle powdered lime over wet areas around barns. Remove manure regularly. Iodized salt or other iodine-containing products can be added to the feed or can be fed free-choice.

Penicillin-streptomycin injections may cure a milk case. But you should call your veterinarian if the condition becomes a herd problem.

Foot rot in sheep and goats is caused by a combination of infections. Other secondary infections complicate the condition. It usually starts as the results of an injury. The hoof grows long and separates from the foot. Usually both claws are affected. It takes more effort to control foot rot in sheep than it does in cattle.

The avocado was introduced in Europe in 1519.

Drought Testing Brazilian Saying

By FRANCISCO SILVA Associated Press Writer RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — It's often said in Brazil that "only stubbornness keeps people alive in the Northeast." This year one of the worst droughts in a century is testing the saying.

A few peasants congregate around wooden crosses and wait for death but the great majority doggedly goes on trying to survive.

When the rains did not fall in March plantation owners start laying off the peasants. They remain on the land for a while, eating whatever food is stored. Then they pick up their meager belongings, gather their many children, and head for the cities, on foot, on journeys that may take weeks.

On the way, their numbers grow and they cooperatively dig up wild roots, pick cactus fruits, compete with the snakes and lizards for eggs in birds nests, and finally reach small villages, where some loot food stores when no work is found.

They assemble at railroad stations and bus stops in the hope of finding transportation to state capitals on the coast. They wait in vain, for no train or bus will carry them.

Some of the luckier ones find a truck driver who, defying police orders, brings them to the greener farmlands of the south, where they are sold to farmers as bonded workers.

Others go to emergency employment posts set up by the government throughout the region, where they are paid less than 50 cents for a long day's work. Still others reach the cities, where they are either sent back to the areas they left in the interior, or mingle with the street beggars.

The emergency employment posts were created by the Superintendent for the Development of the Northeast (Sudene), a federal agency begun 10 years ago to solve the drought problem. Workers build dams and roads.

Sudene's critics say that building roads and dams never solved the problem even at the beginning of the century when the unemployed masses were less numerous. The emergency work posts, distributed throughout an area larger than France and Germany, can absorb less than half the unemployed.

Sudene is also criticized for giving too much priority for industrial projects over agricultural ones, and doing little to alter the land-tenure system.

The agency has suggested that unemployed peasants be transported to the humid lands bordering the Amazon Basin, and that an emergency credit plan for plantation owners be set up by the government.

For the last four months most of the peasants have survived on a diet of manioc root flour mixed with a little water and salt. The government has promised 10,000 tons of food a month to the area.

Hickle Denies Quitting Rumors

the Secretary of HEW is required to review program costs and to announce any premium adjustments, to be effective in July of the following year.

It was pointed out that the $50 deductible per calendar year remains in the law and is not part of the premium adjustment. This means that although overall medical costs have risen, the person with Supplementary Medical Insurance is still responsible only for the first $50 of covered medical services, plus 20 per cent of reasonable charges beyond the deductible. Thus, where reasonable charges have risen, the Medicare program will still cover 90 per cent of such charges over the deductible.

Tatem reminded beneficiaries that the increase in premiums they will be paying will be matched with an equal premium contribution from Treasury General Fund revenues to match the beneficiary contributions.

'Big Stick' Rarely Used Today

By MAX JENNINGS

LIMA (UPI) —What can the United States government do if foreign governments seize the property of American companies and refuse to pay for it?

In practical Latin American terms, the answer is negotiate and then negotiate some more. The Latins describe it with their word "paciencia" — patience.

In theory, the United States has a big economic sock in the teeth ready for any nation which doesn't pay for confiscated properties.

'Big Stick'—Unswung
It is in the form of the Hickenlooper amendment, language attached to the Foreign Assistance Act which provides for U.S. aid cuts if countries don't take steps which could lead toward compensation within six months after the seizure of an American property.

In balance, it would appear the Hickenlooper amendment should work well since the amount of U.S. aid withheld in some instances could amount to more than the value of expropriated businesses, at least over a period of months or years.

But this discounts the nationalistic fervor sweeping Latin America, and governments are more concerned with national pride and the need to shake off dependence on the United States than they are with economic realities.

Most Are Opposed
A check by United Press International in some of the key

Latin American nations reveals strikingly similar attitudes on their part toward the Hickenlooper legislation. Without exception, the governments feel it should be abolished because they argue, it serves only to strain U.S. relations with Latin American nations, while failing to accomplish its purpose of forcing payment for confiscated American properties.

The U.S. State Department itself has indicated it would like to see the legislation repealed. What it has done has been to use the clause "unless appropriate steps are taken which could lead toward compensation" to postpone application of the law in Peru and Bolivia, where both countries have seized U.S. oil companies but have not paid for them.

The six-month deadline is long passed, particularly in the case of Peru, where a Standard Oil of New Jersey subsidiary was expropriated on Oct. 9, 1968. Peru says it considers the case closed.

Individual Reactions
The situation as it is sized up in the various countries is this:

—Peru has shown it would not back down in the face of possible U.S. aid cuts. Diplomats decided aid cuts would only entrench the two governments in their respective positions to the point where an eventual settlement never could be reached.

—Bolivia, the government is reported to be arranging a way through foreign subsidiaries to pay Gulf Oil Co., for its holdings seized last October, with a settlement in prospect if the United States does not push the military government too hard.

—In Mexico, diplomatic and government sources report that Mexico sympathizes with the plight of Latin American nations which nationalize U.S. properties but face aid cuts. Editorial comment has been unanimous in opposition to the Hickenlooper amendment. In fact, Mexico set the tone for such expropriation actions in Latin America with its 1938 expropriation of U.S. oil fields.

Working For Solution
—In Argentina, diplomatic sources point out that in February of 1969 the Argentine government offered to help arbitrate Peru's dispute with the United States as a sign of "traditional solidarity and friendship" with Peru. Argentine Economy Minister Adalberto Krieger Vasena said in Washington that if Peru and the United States did not find a solution to their problems, it would "prejudice investment in Latin America."

—In Venezuela, the government told United Press International it feels the Hickenlooper law should be eliminated and replaced by a better U.S. understanding of Latin American problems. Government officials and politicians in the country believe President Nixon was wise in refraining from applying the Hickenlooper amendment to Peru and Bolivia. Diplomatic sources said no one could see any "merit" in the legislation and that it could only result in a "deeper misunderstanding" between the Americas.

—In Colombia, diplomatic sources said the country was in line with most other Latin nations in feeling the Hickenlooper legislation was too drastic and could cause serious international conflicts. Colombian diplomatic sources also complained that the Hickenlooper amendment provided for automatic aid cuts with a fixed period of time without allowances for individual problems.

Nixons To Host Prince Charles, Princess Anne

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prince Charles of Britain will visit a wildlife center, inspect U.S. space exhibits and see a baseball game when he and his sister Princess Anne visit Washington next month as guests of the Nixon family.

The White House announced details of social activities planned for the three-day "private visit" after Buckingham Palace approved the program.

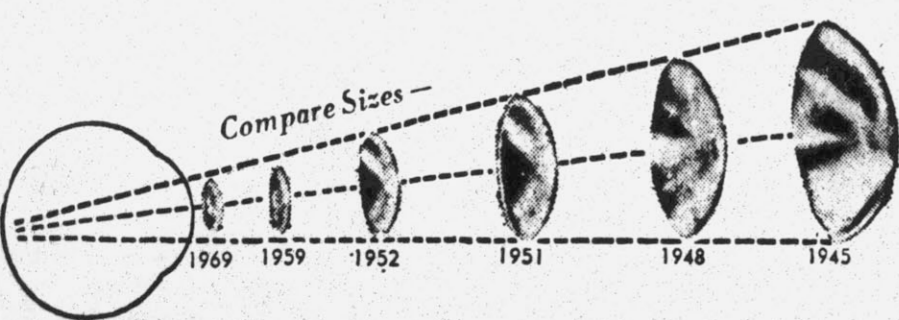

The 21-year-old prince of Wales and his tall, blonde 19-year-old sister will be the guests of Tricia Nixon, 24, and her sister and brother-in-law Julie and David Eisenhower, for their first visit to the United States.

They will fly to Washington July 16 from Winnipeg, Canada, following a royal tour of Canada with their parents, Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip.
