

Deep In Cambodia U.S. Planes On Attack

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian military command disclosed today that American jet fighter-bombers, in an apparent major shift in U.S. policy, have attacked deep into Cambodia in direct support of Cambodian ground forces.

The announcement, which U.S. officials in Saigon would neither confirm nor deny, coincided with reports that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units were marshalling east of Phnom Penh, and that heavy fighting had broken out again at Kompong Speu, 30 miles southwest of the Cambodian capital.

The U.S. air strikes helped break the month-long siege of Kompong Thom, a provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, a Cambodian spokesman said. Neither the Pentagon nor the U.S. Command would comment, but this extension of the American air war appeared to be a sign of recognition by the United States that without some assist from strong U.S. firepower, the Cambodian forces might crumble under the Communist Command's growing pressure.

Maj. Am Rong, the Cambodian spokesman, said he could furnish no details on the exact location of attacks, the types of U.S. jets involved, when they first went into action or the results. But eyewitness reports on Tuesday from Kompong Thom and Skoun, another endangered Cambodian town, said U.S. propeller-driven OV10 aircraft had been marking targets for South Vietnamese jet fighter-bombers supporting Cambodian troops.

The U.S. Command in Saigon, apparently under strict orders from the Pentagon, has refused repeatedly to discuss U.S. air activity in Cambodia other than to repeat the Pentagon's admission Monday that American pilots were flying up to 100 miles inside Cambodia to attack North Vietnamese and Viet Cong supply lines.

Kompong Thom is 95 miles from the South Vietnamese border and well beyond the 21.7-mile limit set by President Nixon for U.S. ground forces in Cambodia. It is 75 to 150 miles southwest of where the Communists supposedly have established their supply routes.

Meanwhile, Cambodian troops began a sweep today about five miles east of Phnom Penh, where a North Vietnamese and Viet Cong force was reported marshaling, possibly for an attack with rockets and mortars on the capital.

It was the closest concentration of enemy forces reported around the capital to date and tended to confirm intelligence reports that an attack could come at any time.

The Cambodian spokesman also reported that enemy troops had surrounded the provincial capital of Kompong Speu, 30 miles west southwest of Phnom Penh, and that fighting for control of the town was heavy.

Commissioners Eyeing 1971-72 Cuts In Budget

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners are once again making an effort to weed out excesses and establish an acceptable budget — one acceptable to the public as well as themselves — for the 1970-71 fiscal year.

If the men were to approve the budget as requested by the various agencies and departments in the county, including such program as the public schools, Pitt Technical Institute, and the Department of Social Services, they would, in effect, be approving a budget totaling somewhat more than the current year's $5.06 million. Such a budget would also require a "giant step" in the tax rate.

The current tax rate of $1.52 per $100 valuation, in order to fund the budget proposed by the various county-supported programs, would have to be increased to $1.91 or $1.92 cents per $100.

Undoubtedly this will not happen. Last year, commissioners faced with a budget request which needed a $1.656 tax rate to fund, chopped off requests to end up with the current $1.52 rate. And although the commissioners began their budget study two weeks ago, it will probably be the middle of July before a finalized budget is approved.

Largest increases, as could have been expected, are in the areas of welfare spending (the Department of Social Services), health, education, and salaries.

Tentative approval has already been given by commissioners to the Social Services' request for $379,482.66 for the public assistance programs. This amount is more than $77,300 above the same budget last year, but commissioners have little or no choice in providing funds.

By law, the county policy makers must provide the money for such programs as Aid to Dependent Children, Old Age Assistance, Aid to the Disabled and Medicaid.

A $23,000 item for a new relocatable building for Mental Health, and an increase from $48,082 to $103,997.15 in turn-over from the Health Department to Mental Health are the largest single increases in the requests from those departments.

The largest single increase requested by PTI includes a jump from $3,135 to $21,305 in supplements to staff members.

And the public schools, both county and city units, are requesting large increase to meet what they say are pressing needs.

Specific Bid Set SALT Talks Optimistic

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid optimism over the SALT talks, President Nixon today called in his chief disarmament negotiator to hammer out a specific U.S. bid for an arms accord with the Soviet Union.

Both defensive antiballistic missiles and long-range offensive missiles seem likely to be included in the proposal which

U.S. disarmament chief Gerald C. Smith will put forth on his return to the SALT—Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—at Vienna.

Some predict a limited agreement in principle may be reached by the two superpowers before the summer recess. It would take months, however, before any agreement could be formulated into a treaty.

Smith and two top aides at the Vienna talks flew into Washington Monday at an important point in the negotiations that began in Helsinki last fall and resumed in the Austrian capital two months ago.

The U.S. and Soviet envoys have been secretly exchanging views and concepts on how to clamp a lid on the spiraling big power nuclear arms race. The Americans believe the two sides should now get down to more specific propositions.

The latest official optimism about the Vienna proceedings came Tuesday from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. "The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks have, we think, moved along very well," the secretary told a London news conference.

One reason for the administration's hopeful tone has been what U.S. diplomats consider to be the Russians' business-like attitude in the closed negotiations.

The Kremlin has kept its bargain of secrecy. Its negotiators have displayed sophisticated knowledge about modern strategic weapons. And, with a Communist congress due in Moscow this fall, some here believe the Russians will want to show something at home for their Vienna efforts.

Both the U.S. and Soviet strategists have shown a preference for a comprehensive agreement that includes both offensive and defensive weapons. The two are linked since each side's ABMs are designed to protect against the other's long-range missiles.

Thus one option Nixon may decide to push would be to limit Russian ABMs to the Moscow area, which the Soviets already have, in return for a comparable ABM defense in the United States, say around Washington, plus a ceiling on the rival intercontinental ballistic missiles.

These items would be relatively easy to inspect by existing means such as seeing-eye satellites.

Another would be to include MIRVs—multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles—which the United States is starting to deploy and which the Soviets are developing. But this would probably require on-the-spot inspections unacceptable to the Soviets. Still another variant would be to include long-range bombers.

Proposal Is Being Studied Dubcek Is Dismissed As An Ambassador By The Czech Govm't

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is sounding out Israel and key Arab governments on a proposal designed to produce a Middle East cease-fire and revive U.N. efforts to negotiate a settlement.

The proposal has been discussed, according to available information, with Israel, Egypt, and Jordan. Other countries reportedly have been informed as well and Secretary of State William P. Rogers is due to discuss the proposal publicly this week.

The U.S. initiative, it is understood, basically calls for Israeli withdrawal from most of the territory captured in the 1967 war in return for Arab commitments to accept Israel's existence and respect its borders. It comes as the Nixon administration is reported ready to sell new warplanes to Israel to offset increased military support to Egypt.

PRAGUE (AP) — Alexander Dubcek, spearhead of the reform wave crushed by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in August 1968, was fired again today.

Prague Radio announced that President Ludvik Svoboda had removed the former Communist party chief from his post as ambassador to Turkey. The announcement said he would be assigned to other duties but gave no further information.

Dubcek returned from Turkey in May, ostensibly because his mother was ill. But there were rumors he would lose his embassy and might even be brought to trial.

His Communist party membership has been suspended, and the party's Central Committee is expected to expel him from the party during a two-day meeting that starts Thursday.

Dubcek was replaced as party chief in April 1969 by Gustav Husak, the Kremlin's choice. He went to Turkey in December.

There was speculation that he now would return to his native Slovakia and take a minor job.

The Central Committee is also expected to take action against others prominent in Dubcek's reform regime, including former Premier Oldrich Cernik. Cernik resigned Tuesday from his post as chairman of the federal committee on technology and investments; informed sources said his party membership had also been suspended and that he might be expelled from the party.

Cernik became premier in April 1968 and was demoted in January to a committee chairman, equivalent to the rank of Cabinet minister.

The Danish Foreign Office said Tuesday night that Czechoslovakia's ambassador to Denmark, Anton Vasek, had refused a recall to Prague and had requested asylum "for political and other reasons." Danish spokesmen refused to elaborate, but well placed sources in Copenhagen linked Vasek's recall order to the purge in Prague.

Elections Look

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
New York Primary
Arthur J. Goldberg, 61, former Supreme Court justice, Tuesday defeated upstate plastics millionaire Howard Samuels, 50, for the Democratic nomination to face Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller this fall.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger was the victor in a four-man senatorial primary to oppose GOP Sen. Charles E. Goodell. State Sen. Basil Paterson of Harlem became the first Negro nominated for lieutenant governor in the state.

Veteran Reps. Adam Clayton Powell and Leonard Rayburn, both of Manhattan, lost bids for renomination.

S.C. Congressional
Rep. John L. McMillan won Democratic renomination, defeating Dr. Claud Stephens, a Negro by a wide margin in a runoff election.

Antiwar Vote
A resolution on the Boulder, Colo., municipal election ballot which urged prompt withdrawal of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia was defeated by 289 votes-4,690 to 4,401.

The Kremlin has kept its bargain of secrecy. Its negotiators have displayed sophisticated knowledge about modern strategic weapons. And, with a Communist congress due in Moscow this fall, some here believe the Russians will want to show something at home for their Vienna efforts.

NEW NAACP OFFICERS . . . D. D. Garrett, Calvin Henderson, Mrs. Pauline Moore and Heber Green, with state field secretary Charles McLean.

Pitt NAACP Elects New Officers

D.D. Garrett was elected president of the United Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People of a reorganizational meeting held last night.

Charles McLean, NAACP state field secretary presided at the session and installed the newly elected officers.

In addition to Garrett, other officers named at the meeting included: vice-presidents Calvin Henderson of Winterville, A. T. Mills of Greenville, J. J. Brown of Ayden, and the Rev. J. R. Person of Farmville; secretary Mrs. Pauline Moore; assistant secretary Rev. O. J. Rooks; treasurer Heber Green; membership chairman Rev. John Taylor; and legal redress chairman W. B. Moore.

Garrett, who said the NAACP chapter meets monthly, noted that the regular elections will be held in December.

The group last night, according to Garrett, "was made aware of the decline in black educators in both the city and county school units . . . black and white housing patterns, and voter registration," and said the three areas will be projects of the Pitt NAACP unit.

"The present administration intends to make the community aware of our presences," he emphasized, "by the working together of both races to the best of our ability."

The United Pitt County Branch of the NAACP was chartered in 1958 and currently has about 400 members. S. C. Mills of Winterville was the first president of the organization.

Tobacco Leasing Now Extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Flue-cured tobacco farmers will now be allowed to lease and transfer acreage allotments to other growers in the same county for up to five years under a bill signed by President Nixon Tuesday. They had been allowed to lease allotments only on an annual basis.

The bill continues the ban against leasing burley acreage.

Rep. Powell Loses In N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, for 24 years Harlem's flamboyant voice in the House of Representatives, was narrowly defeated for renomination in a major upset in Tuesday's Democratic primary.

Powell, 61, lost to state Assemblyman Charles Rangel, 40, in a five-man race. The final unofficial tally gave Rangel, also a Negro, 7,804 votes to Powell's 7,599. Rangel also has the Republican nomination.

Powell was not available for comment after it became clear he had lost. Supporters at Rangel's headquarters were jubilant. Newsmen asked Rangel if he thought Powell would ask for a recount.

"I think Adam withdrew from this race a long time ago," he said, adding that Powell "was not servicing the people and the overwhelming number wanted a change."

There was a long time when that was not true. For years Powell's constituents thought he could do no wrong.

As recently as two years ago he could truthfully boast, "I could be re-elected with Mickey Mouse as my campaign manager." He won handily then even while he was excluded from the House for alleged misuse of funds.

Powell fought the exclusion with the Supreme Court and won. Meantime a new Congress convened and Powell was permitted to resume his seat, but was stripped of the seniority that had made him the chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Pitt Roadwork Is In Bidding

One small section of road in Pitt and another in Greene County were included in bids for paving work taken by the North Carolina State Highway Commission in Raleigh Tuesday.

The Pitt road was .28 miles of 1575 (near Parkers Chapel Church from N.C. 30 northward to a dead end.

In Greene County, road 1136 (.8 miles) from road 1135 to the Wayne County line, was included.

Barrus Construction Company of Kinston was low bidder on the projects which were included in a total of 10.38 miles of surfacing and resurfacing in Pitt, Greene and Lenoir Counties.

New Wrinkle In N.C. Mortgage Loans Is Variable Interest Rate

RALEIGH (AP) — A few savings and loan companies in North Carolina are trying a new wrinkle on their home mortgage loans. It's called the variable interest rate, and it just may be standard on mortgage loans in the future.

When a borrower gets a loan with a variable interest rate, his rates rises and falls with the money market.

In time of high interest rates—like now—the variable rate is attractive to a borrower. Instead of being saddled with a loan at a higher rate for a long period of time, he gets a rate that will go down if interest rates generally go down.

And, say the supporters of the variable interest rate, it serves as a brake and keeps rates from going as high as they would go without it.

"It's just as fair as it can be," said Henry Gregory, president of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Rocky Mount, who thinks his firm was the first in North Carolina to use the new loan provision. It has been in use in England and Canada for years.

Gregory noted that at First Federal the interest rate on home mortgage loans since Jan. 1, 1968, has been tied to the cost of the firm's savings accounts.

When the variable rate was first started, the company was paying an average of 4 1/2 per cent for savings, and the mortgage loan rate was set at 7 per cent.

Now the company is paying an average of 5 1/2 per cent on savings, and the mortgage loan rate has risen to 8 per cent on new loans.

Meanwhile, the mortgage loan rate for those who got their money at 7 per cent at the start will advance to 7 3/4 per cent Sept. 1. If the interest rate on savings goes to 6 per cent, their mortgage rate would go to 8 1/4 per cent—if the law allowed that.

North Carolina's usury law sets an 8 per cent ceiling on home mortgage loans of $50,000 or less.

However, Gregory, along with most other folks in the home mortgage field, are hoping that the next General Assembly will raise the interest ceiling or remove it altogether.

"This ceiling on interest rates is so ridiculous that we just assume the General Assembly is not going to continue penalizing one segment of our economy," said Gregory. He noted that in the consumer finance field interest rates as high as 18 per cent are permitted under present law.

Gregory said that as more and more of his business is covered by the variable rate, it will not be necessary for his loan rates to rise as high as they must now for his company to operate at a profit. He pointed out that a considerable portion of his company's mortgage loans were made at a 5 per cent interest rate and that it is actually paying more than that now on savings.

Gregory admits that if interest rates ever drop that low again, the variable rate offers no advantage to the borrower.

But, he said, "it's still a fair deal."

Miss Diane Roach Weds On Saturday Afternoon

Miss Diane Roach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roach, became the bride of Lloyd Rodney Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simmons Hill of Ayden on Saturday.

The Rev. Norman Ard, former pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4:00 p.m. at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Elma Beppard, organist, and Miss Nancy Garris, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

The church was decorated with a yellow color scheme. The altar was centered with a fifteen branch candelabra. Each side was enhanced with a ten branch candelabra with arrangements of yellow gladioli, mixed with daisies, flanked by emerald palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of white silk organza over satin, with alencon lace down the front, with a scooped neckline and long fitted sleeves. The attached train was of silk organza.

A satin tiara re-embroidered with seed pearls held her veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white orchids with streamers and ribbons.

Miss Cynthia Ann Moore of Ayden was maid of honor. She wore a yellow floor length gown of dotted Swiss. The gown featured a scooped with a yellow satin bow in the front. She wore a yellow organza garden hat. Her bouquet was a cascade of yellow mums, roses, and baby's breath.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ann Miller of West Chester, Pa., Miss Debbie Hill and Miss Patricia Hill, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Debra Sugg of Ayden. The bridesmaids wore green and pink dotted Swiss gowns fashioned with scooped necklines and bell sleeves applied with pink ribbons. Their garden hats were of pink organza. They carried cascades of pink mums, roses, and baby's breath.

Miss Lisa Bowden of Grifton, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her gown and hat was identical to the honor attendant. She carried a white wicker basket trimmed with yellow ribbons and filled with rose petals.

Robbie Eure of Raleigh, cousin of the bridegroom, carried the rings on a white lace pillow.

Simmons Hill served as his son's best man. Ushers were Johnnie Hill, brother of the bridegroom, Bobby Wilson, Randall Worthington both of Ayden and Johnnie Stokes of Greenville.

The bride's mother wore a teal blue crepe dress accented with a lace bodice and lace sleeves with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an emerald blue dress of cretella silk. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

Mrs. Austin Smith directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden High School. Upon completion of one year at Pitt Technical Institute, she is now employed as the bookkeeper for the Town of Ayden. The bridegroom is a graduate of Ayden High School and is presently employed by Semroc Astronautics Corp.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a navy blue dress with matching accessories. She wore the corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Ayden.

Following the rehearsal on Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Simmons Hill entertained the wedding party and guests at their home. Mrs. Grace Cannon received guests and Mrs. Dottie Hill said good-byes. The house was decorated with the bridal colors.

On Thursday night, the bride, her attendants, organist, and the mothers were entertained at a bridal dinner by Mrs. James Nelson. The house was decorated with white, pink, and green summer flowers. After dinner, the attendants opened their gifts presented by the bride.

Barbie's 'Mom' Has No Plans To Give Doll Lib Button

By LYNN SHERR

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Barbie, the mod teen-age fashion doll who tops the toy industry's best-dressed list with her minis, maxis and thigh-high boots, has no immediate plans to pin a Women's Liberation button on her fake furs.

That, at least, is what Barbie's "mother" says.

She is Mrs. Ruth Handler, president of Mattel, Inc. (the Los Angeles-based toy company that produces Barbie), whose own 28-year-old daughter inspired the doll 11 years ago.

"Each year we bring Barbie more up to date," explained Mrs. Handler, a stocky contrast to the slim toy perched cross-legged on her desk. "This year she can talk, tilt her head, move her ankles, twist at the waist, bend at the arms."

But she cannot, apparently, readjust her thinking to join the current surge of new feminism. "A doll and a toy reflect the world around a child," Mrs. Handler said slowly, leaning back in a green swivel chair in her Manhattan office, next door to the office of her husband-partner, Elliot Handler.

"We can't reflect every facet of life—only some, the better facets."

She looked down at the shapey Barbie doll, inches of white fur-trimmed coat, matching hat and boots, and a mane of red hair that flowed freely past her shoulders.

"Barbie is an 18-year-old dressed up to have a ball," announced the gray-haired and in her early 50s Mrs. Handler. "I think she is every little girl's dream of what she wants to be."

According to Barbie's recent past, the dream possibilities for today's little girls include being a well-dressed young miss, a stewardess, a tennis player, a skier, a health faddist (complete with exercise machines) and a glamorous hostess.

"I think it's very much an individual thing whether a woman should have a career. Nature—or at least society—has designed a woman to be a wife and a mother—and that is not necessarily compatible with a carefree, of course, she is willing to give up being a wife and mother."

But she, it was pointed out, had successfully managed to raise two children (who have already contributed grandchildren) and to remain an active businesswoman.

"A woman has to be twice as good as a man to keep her job," Mrs. Handler admitted, eyeing a tiny racing car that zoomed around an orange track on a far table of her office. "That's not necessarily fair—it's a fact of life. And when a career woman comes home at night, she has to cook, clean, play with the children and smile a great deal. She must act happy and wait on her husband and give of herself as a wife and mother. Ignoring the fact that she has been an executive all day. Do that for 30 years and you can see why it takes a lot of doing."

"I think that women can take care of themselves," she added, further discounting the possibility that Barbie should perhaps be cast into less domestic roles. "I did."

As for Barbie—and the responsibility of the toy company to lead in social change (Mattel has made Negro dolls for more than 10 years)—Mrs. Handler said: "When there are enough women doctors around, then Barbie will have a doctor outfit. When American girls go up in space, then we'll have a girl space doll."

In one corner of her spacious office, an infant doll wheeled across the floor in a smiling pink plastic arc. A modern relic of Mrs. Handler's childhood? "No, I was a tomboy," she said softly. "I never played with dolls."

Couple Exchanges Vows In Double Ring Rites Sunday

GRIFTON — The marriage of Miss Brenda Dare Carraway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown Carraway, of Rt. 1, Grifton, and Douglas Cecil Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cecil Wright of Grifton, took place on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Bobby Bazen of Dunn and the Rev. Kemery Ard of Ayden officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Altar decorations were a white arch candelabra in the center and placed at each side, a half circle interspersed with palms and bridal greenery, two standard baskets held gladioli and pom poms, at the side of the altar were two tree candelabra. Family pews were marked with satin bows. The couple knelt for the wedding pray on a satin-covered prie-dieu.

Mrs. J.T. Beppard Jr. of Ayden, organist, and Miss Vonnie Williamston of Ayden, soloist, rendered a program of nuptial music, using "The Song of Ruth" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Mrs. Ethel Ball directed the wedding.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of ivory white peau de soie and chantilly lace. The fitted bodice had a rounded neckline, short sleeves and edged at the neckline with lace. A full length front panel of chantilly lace ruffles extended the length of the skirt which ended in back in a rounded chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion fell from a rosette of satin which was outlined with seed pearls and crystals. She carried a cascade style bouquet with a large white mum surrounded with feathered carnations, cultured ivy and satin ribbons.

Mrs. Dorothy Bridges of Fayetteville was matron of honor. Her gown of ceil blue decar was made sleeveless with rounded neckline and the empire waist was accented in front with a velvet ribbon bow with a full length A-line skirt. Her headpiece was of illusion attached to a bow of matching fabric. She carried a round bouquet of carnations in pink and white.

Miss Ann Moore of Grifton was maid of honor and her gown was similar to that of the honor attendant. She carried a bouquet of carnations and satin ribbons. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Brenda Williams of Hookerton, Miss Deborah Carraway of Snow Hill, Miss Susan McLawhorn of Hookerton, and Miss Linda

Morgan of Fountain, all cousins of the bride. They carried a large single mum sprayed pink. The bridegroom had as his best man, Mike Slade of Bath. Ushers were Billy Williams of Hookerton, Eugene Shingleton of Kinston, Donald Wright, cousin of the bridegroom of Newark, Del., Bruce Hill of Bethel, Del., and Edwin Carraway, brother of the bride, of Grifton.

The bride is a graduate of the Grifton High School and Pitt Technical Institute in the secretarial field. She is presently employed with the Young Deserve Our Confidence

There are those voters in Greenville who will go to the polls Saturday to cast ballots against the proposed increase in the school district supplement for current expenses.

Among these voters, some will vote against the tax just because they are convinced no cause is worthy a tax increase, no matter how small the increase or how meritorious the cause.

Others will vote against increasing the local tax supplement because they don't like the way school affairs are being handled by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, or because the federal courts have ruled against the freedom of choice principle assignment of children to various schools.

Still others who vote against the proposed increase in the levy will do so because they did not like something that happened to little Johnny or Sue during the last school term; or because they didn't like a particular teacher, or disagreed with some decision of the school administration.

Any one of these, in the mind of the voter, may be a valid reason for voting against the levy.

There is no getting around the fact, however, that every vote against the proposed levy is a vote against providing the youngsters of the Greenville School District the kind of educational opportunities they will need if they are to compete with youngsters in public schools in comparable communities throughout the state.

The present maximum tax supplement levy for current expenses has not been increased for more than 30 years. The proposal to increase the maximum from the present 25 cents per hundred tax valuation to a maximum of 50 cents per hundred valuation does not mean that this special school district tax will be doubled. Local school officials have said frankly they do not intend to ask for any higher levy from the County Commissioners than necessary to meet the proposed budget; and that will be below the new maximum levy for which authorization is being asked.

The funds proposed in the school district budget for the year beginning July 1 are projected to maintain school programs at their current level and to make minimum improvements in areas of vital need in the Greenville district schools. Without the additional funds, it will not be possible for the local district to hire the number of additional teachers above the state allotment that it has hired for many years. It will not be possible for the local administrative unit to continue the same level of enrichment in the Greenville school program that has characterized the program for several decades.

Saturday's referendum on the Greenville school district levy for current expenses has nothing to do with programs of HEW, with freedom of choice or the federal courts, or whether this teacher or that school official was popular with students or the public last year.

What it does have to do with is whether Johnny and Sue will have next fall and in the years to come the kind of educational opportunities in the Greenville District Schools that will equip them to compete successfully with their fellow citizens in future years.

A "yes" vote will help provide for the kind of educational opportunities they need. A "no" vote will deny to the youngsters in the Greenville District schools the opportunities they need, and even opportunities equal to the quality they have had in the past.

No community has any more important asset than the future of its children; and that is what the voters of Greenville School District will be dealing with Saturday.

We urge citizens to express their confidence in the younger generation of this community by voting Saturday in favor of the proposed school district levy.

No Cameras Upon Arrival

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — The schedule called for a televised press conference on the sidewalk in front of fortress-like Public School 99 on Stebbins Avenue in the Bronx. But when Theodore Sorensen arrived, there was no sign of a TV camera.

In fact, there was nothing at all on Stebbins Avenue that day to suggest Sorensen is running for the Senate nomination in Tuesday's New York Democratic primary except the unlikely presence of Mario Biaggi, New York City's most decorated ex-cop who is now a Congressman from the Bronx.

Sorensen's unfulfilled date with the television cameras was intended to publicize his anti-crime program. Early that morning, he had telephoned Biaggi, a hard-line law-and-order Democrat (whose reelection campaign has Conservative party backing) and asked him to share the press conference.

But the all-important TV men never did show, so Sorensen took off down Stebbins Avenue on a walking tour and the Congressman went home.

The dismal incident last week reveals much about the problems of Ted Sorensen, John F. Kennedy's longtime aide who is campaigning on the slogan: "President Kennedy trusted me, so can you." Wrapping himself in the mantle of JFK seems to be of no more value to Sorensen than it has been to other Kennedy White House aides.

Shortly after the Democratic party's endorsing convention last April, Sorensen was riding high. He won the endorsement and talked bravely about raising a $2 million kitty for the primary and another $2 million kitty for the general election.

From that moment on, however, he has made one questionable decision after another, and neither money

Strength For Today

A READING SCHEDULE

We are coming to see that the process of continual learning is a possibility. Furthermore, when we stop learning we stop living. Newspapers are a necessary accompaniment of liberty, and television is a wonderful invention, but the people whose leisure hours are spent reading a bit of the news and listening to a lot of the chatter of TV are not continuing the learning process in a satisfactory fashion.

One hour a day given to helpful reading could turn one's life from restlessness to peace. In fact it might even make one an authority on some important branch of knowledge. The age in which we live is the most interesting and privileged that any generation has experienced. There has never been a time when a person could learn as much as right now even with unrest and riot going on all about us.

One of the best ways to get through this age of turmoil is to go back and read what has happened to our forbears in the last one hundred or one thousand years. The statement made by a distinguished poet that the world is too much with us has a significance we should ponder.

When we stop learning we stop living. You may have retired from business, but you have not retired from living. Every one of us dreams of what he is going to do when he has a little more time. Well, you have it. In a leisurely hour each evening, a day taken off now and again, a new field of knowledge investigated.

Dear Mr. Altshuler, As admissions director of Nantucket University, I am happy to inform you that you have been accepted in this fall's freshman class. Unfortunately there is some question as to whether we will open in the autumn, since the teachers and students are still on strike. I noted in your application that your father is in the pants business. I was wondering if I might prevail on you to ask him if he would be interested in hiring someone whose experience has been in the educational field, but is willing to learn everything about pants. I am enclosing my resume which I would appreciate your showing to your father at the earliest opportunity. Sincerely yours, Roger Whipthorn

Dear Vice President Agnew,

I am the president of a small liberal arts college in New England, and my contract comes up for renewal in a couple of months. It is my understanding that a majority of the board are looking for a replacement for me, and I am, of course, concerned, as I feel I've done a good job.

I know how busy you are, but is there any possibility of attacking me in one of your future fund-raising speeches? An attack by you would assure me of life

Other Editors Say New Direction

(Christian Science Monitor)

By voting the Conservative Party into power in defiance of the overwhelming majority of opinion polls, the British electorate has expressed a desire for a greater sense of national direction. In the election campaign the Tories appeared as the party of change, and Labour as the party of the status quo.

The changes may not be great but they will be there. There will be a determined effort to hold wages and prices in control. Edward Heath, who will head the new government, fought his campaign mainly on the issue of inflation and the "wages explosion." He has pledged to introduce legislation to discipline the trade unions whose wage demands, he believes, have gotten out of hand. Harold Wilson tried but failed to bring the unions into line.

Both Conservatives and Labour are in favor of Britain's joining the European Common Market, but Mr. Heath is likely to push for it more strongly than Mr. Wilson would have done.

The Tories also plan to maintain a British military presence — albeit reduced — in the Persian Gulf and in Singapore. Labour had intended to withdraw all forces from east of Suez (apart from Hong Kong) by 1971. Mr. Heath's policy in this respect will be gratifying to the United States. Anglo-American relations were good under Mr. Wilson. They are likely to be still more cordial under Mr. Heath.

The Tory government may take a less rigid attitude than Labour toward the white minority governments in South Africa and Rhodesia. On the question of race and immigration at home Mr. Heath will be under strong pressure from his right wing headed by Enoch Powell, who doubled his own majority in Wolverhampton. The new government may therefore be expected to tighten present immigration procedures.

One of the chief factors that helped the Conservatives to win was a housewives' revolt against rising prices. Defeat was a bitter blow for Mr. Wilson who was completely confident of success for the third time running. He and his party seem to have been victims of their own complacency and euphoria. The small Liberal Party also lost heavily, and again its hopes of revival have been dashed.

The new Prime Minister is a skillful administrator, a man of great integrity and dignity. He was not thought to have the popular appeal to pull off the election. Once more the pundits have been wrong. A fresh wind is about to blow through Britain after six years of Labour rule.

tenure not only with the board, but the faculty as well. I am enclosing several talks I have made, underlining areas where you and I are in disagreement.

I know you have a long list of people you want to take issue with, but if you could squeeze me in in one of your attacks on the pseudo-intellectual establishment I will be as eternally grateful as Yale's President Kingman Brewster is for all that you have done for him.

Sincerely yours, Arthur Wallach

Dear Miss Collenberg, I was sorry to receive your angry letter of June 4. I wish to point out that there was nothing personal in failing you in my Scandinavian philosophy course 5A. The fact that you called me a Swedish fascist because I said that your mid-term paper on the Chicago Seven trial was not relevant to the period we were studying did not influence my decision to give you a failing grade.

Bargain Hunting Trip

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP)—We met on the D-train platform of the Columbus Circle subway station. I was late. I'm always late. I've been late for Jim Garrison and the Queen of England, so it doesn't upset me.

"We were taking the next train whether you were here or not," said Sue, who I suspect was a 6-month baby.

Thus began the quest to find fashion success on a Sunday morning on the Lower East Side.

Narrow, dirty Orchard Street already was jammed when we arrived. We started searching out the promised bargain spots. Everyone else was doing the same.

We fought our way into the first shop and started shoving back the dresses on the packed racks. Mary was ecstatic.

"This is $90 on Fifth Avenue," she said and pointed to a $60 tag on one of those things with the see-through midriff.

Three-piece pants suits hung on racks above us with enticing $7 price tags. Mary tried on the skirt and jacket and stood before a mirror.

"That's an Eisenhower jacket," I said. "My mother used to have one."

Mary, who still has a "Ted in '72" button, couldn't resist the bargain, even for politics.

At the next stop, a man was selling dresses outside for $2.

"They'll cost $5 inside," he yelled as we went through the door.

The outer room was pandemonium, the second room was twice as bad, and to get there we had to squeeze through a hall about three feet wide crowded with racks of clothes and people going both directions.

People were ripping dresses off hangers and yelling for saleswomen. Ten or more people were lined up outside each of the tiny dressing rooms, and impatient men waited around the edges. One desperate woman undressed and began yanking on dresses in the midst of it all.

The crowd took away our enthusiasm, and we fought our way to the sidewalk, almost as crowded by now.

We stopped at the entrance to a handbag store. "Too many people inside. You'll have to wait," said a man at the door. "Fire laws, you know."

We waited, and waited, and waited some more. He finally signaled us inside. We took a number — No. 164, and an uncountable number ahead of us. Another wait.

I edged up to a counter and started to look at the five or six purses lined up on top.

"Those are my wife's bags," snapped a male voice at my elbow.

Next to us, a woman with a Norell scarf over her shoulder was waving two crisp, one hundred dollar bills to get a salesman's attention.

Sue finally bought a handbag. "Eight dollars cheaper than uptown," she bragged.

And me? I bought nothing — and promised myself an airline ticket to the wide open spaces.

Variable Annuities Are Hit

By ELMER ROESSNER
There was a big fight over variable annuities a few years ago.

It was becoming obvious that ordinary annuities and much life insurance were a lousy buy with constant inflation.

A middle-aged person might take his life savings and buy an annuity that graduated this month, it may not see him through his freshman year.

The Doubtful Remedy
Insurance companies were aware that inflation was devaluing the things they sold; they were also aware that a lot of people were not buying policies because their future value would be shrunk by inflation. (Inflation has cost beneficiaries billions of dollars over the years.)

So the insurance companies came up with an idea: variable annuities. These annuities, similar to insurance policies, would be backed by common stocks instead of the staid investments of the insurance companies.

The theory was that if inflation continued, common stock earnings and the value of the stocks would rise. Annuitants would not be left holding empty bags.

Perfect Hedge
Common stocks, the experts said, would rise in both value and yield as the dollar became inflated. And, if they declined in a recession, the annuitants would not lose because their smaller annuities would buy more goods. Everybody knew that common stocks was the perfect hedge against inflation!

But stockers, banks and government agencies set up a howl that became a roar. The big, bad insurance companies, they said, were cutting in on their preserves. Eventually, however, the government agencies weakened and, under a burden of red tape, the insurance companies were allowed to sell variable annuities.

But events of the last few months have exploded the whole idea of variable annuities based on common stock. Inflation has increased sharply, busting along at 6 per cent a year. But common stocks, instead of increasing in value or spinning off richer dividends, have been generally sinking. Thus, as of the moment at least, the value and yield of variable annuities have been sinking, but straight and endowment insurance, while suffering the slings of inflation, has held up better than common stocks.

Slight Gain In Construction Portends Unemployment Rise

The prediction of George A. Christie, chief economist for McGraw-Hill, that the value of construction this will be $68.5 billion, or 2 per cent more than the record set last year, is slightly ominous.

Considering the fact that construction labor costs have gone up around 8 per cent and that costs of construction materials have gone up as much as 10 per cent, the forecast means that there will actually be less work out in place this year than last. Then means a decline in employment and a decline from 1969.

Length Of Hair Seorates Couple

LONDON (WNS) — Timothy and Theresa Pope, both 18, were married on Christmas Eve but have yet to spend a night together because of the groom's long hair. "Every time landlords see my hair, they refuse to rent us an apartment," said Tim, who has finally agreed to get a haircut despite his bride's protest. Said Theresa, "My husband is a fireman which should prove that he is a real man and a solid citizen." Until now Tim has been bunking his mother's apartment, and Theresa has been staying with her married sister.

Seating Etiquette Shows Her Respect

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: There is one thing that has irked me for 13 years. My son's wife makes a point of seating HER father at the head of the table whenever she has a dinner party.

I have sworn to myself that the next time she does this I would get up and leave, but I never do. I am afraid one of these times I will burst.

This son of mine is no slouch. He's a big, handsome guy. Former football player, a good husband, and has a good job. He is also a gentleman. Perhaps it would be best if I just refused future invitations to dinner. Am I a fool?

IRKED NO END

DEAR IRKED: I wouldn't call you a "fool"—but I do think you are needlessly exercised over a trivial incident. Rather than indicating a lack of respect for her husband [if that's what you read into your daughter-in-law's seating arrangement] perhaps she is attempting to show "special respect" to her father. The two are not necessarily "competing." In any case, it's her dinner table, and if her husband feels put down, let HIM speak up.

DEAR ABBY: When a woman takes a married man away from his wife and family, do you think that woman can ever be happy with that man? SAN CARLOS

DEAR SAN: Sometimes. She's like the woman who buys a secondhand washing machine. She doesn't care where it came from—as long as it works.

DEAR ABBY: I think you are wrong! I taught my children to answer the telephone with, "WHO IS THIS?" And if the party on the other end doesn't identify himself, I tell my children to hang up.

This telephone is installed for MY convenience, and I see no reason why people should object to identifying themselves. They wouldn't think of calling a business office and asking to talk to the boss without identifying themselves first!

STATEN ISLAND

DEAR STATEN: Listen carefully, please:

I, too, believe all telephone callers should identify themselves. We disagree only on what the child is taught to say when he answers the telephone. In my opinion, "WHO IS THIS?" is rude.

A simple "HELLO" is proper, after which the caller is given a chance to identify himself, and ask, "May I speak to your mother?" If the caller does not identify himself, the child should then ask, "Who is calling, PLEASE?" This should offend no one.

But a child who answers the phone with, "WHO IS THIS?" offends many.

DEAR ABBY: I applaud your stand on "drop in" callers. Keep it up. I don't even go to my door anymore. When they phone later to say they "heard" someone inside, I say, sweetly, "O, if you had called beforehand I would have gone to my door."

I resent their taking away our option to see them or not as WE choose. But maybe that's their idea. MONTEREY

DEAR ABBY: My brother was in World War II. Fortunately, he returned home safely, but I have always felt a little guilty because I hardly ever wrote to him while he was away.

Now his son is in Viet Nam, and I am still pretty bad at letter writing, but I have found the perfect solution. I send him the local Sunday newspaper. It costs only $2.50 every two months. He loves it. And says it's like a letter from "home," and I am so happy that I am the one who is able to give it to him.

"UNC," Utica, N. Y.

DEAR UNC: Beautiful! [I'll bet this is one letter the editor doesn't cut out!]

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Shower Given Miss Baker

Miss Frances Baker, bride-elect of July 12, was honored Friday night with a floating shower, by Mrs. Ruel Stancill, Mrs. Henry Johnston, Mrs. Beverly Joyner and Mrs. Elmer Meeks at the Arlington St. Baptist fellowship hall.

Miss Baker was presented a white mum corsage, and the mother of the bride, Mrs. Kenneth Baker, and the bridegroom-elect's mother, Mrs. M.F. Schiller, were presented corsages of carnations.

Mrs. Stancill greeted the guest and presented them to the honoree, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Schiller.

The bride's table was covered with a pink linen cloth and held an arrangement of white gladioli flanked by candles in silver and crystal candelabra.

Mrs. Lyman Eason, aunt of the bride-elect and Mrs. Marie Padgett assisted in serving.

Miss Baker was remembered with gifts of china by the hostess.

Marriages Announced

Mrs. Vera C. Foux of Rt. 3, Washington, announces the marriage of her daughter, Lou Foux Crisp, to Wilbur Franklin Singleton, son of the late Blanche Cannon and Wilbur Singleton, on June 20, 1970. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. Ira Robert Foux. The couple will reside in Grimesland.

Miss LaFoille Entertained

Miss Harriet LaFoille, bride-elect of Capt. Scott Smiley, was honored Saturday at a morning coffee. The party was given by Mrs. John S. Smiley and her mother, Mrs. O.R. Pearce, at the Pearce home.

The dining room and other rooms were decorated with arrangements matching Miss LaFoille's corsage of violets and gardenias.

The guests were entertained by Mrs. Thomas Byrd's presentation of the "Hawaiian Love Song."

North Carolina Got Railroads 135 Years Ago

By H. G. JONES
Dept. of Archives and History
Written for the AP

RALEIGH (AP) — This year marks the 135th anniversary of the coming of railroads to North Carolina. The early development of this new means of transportation was spurred by the state of technology at the time and by the lack of alternatives for travel and shipping.

Other coastal states could depend more adequately on their rivers and harbors in the mid-19th Century, but of the six major rivers in this state, only one emptied directly into the ocean. Existing overland routes were ox and wagon trails and a few plank roads.

In 1815 recognition that the development of trade centers in Virginia and South Carolina was overshadowing North Carolina's efforts prompted a movement to open our rivers as routes of commerce. This plan was never adequately funded by the legislature and did not satisfy the increasing need for a more efficient and speedy system for transporting people and goods.

By 1828 it had become obvious that river development could not meet the transportation needs of the state. Much interest in the potential offered by railroads, the new technological possibility, was stirred by Dr. Joseph Caldwell, then president of the University of North Carolina. He wrote a series of articles outlining the desirability of transportation by rail as opposed to river and canal.

The first railroad in North Carolina was built by the state in 1833. Lacking grandeur, it was called the Experimental Railroad and was used to move stone from a quarry east of Raleigh to the construction site of the new state capitol. The vehicle ran on wooden rails capped with iron and was horse drawn. The first steam locomotive reportedly ran over North Carolina soil that same year when the Petersburg and Roanoke Railroad was completed to the Roanoke River near Weldon, N. C.

nor campaign volunteers have showed up in the numbers expected. Thus, Sorensen has been totally unable to compete with Rep. Richard Ottinger's personal fortune in buying television time, leaving him dependent on the whims of television news editors.

Sorensen's most costly mistake was to question the legality of Rep. Richard D. (Max) McCarthy's petitions to get his name on the June 23 primary ballot, a shot that boomeranged on Sorensen when the courts ruled McCarthy's petitions were in order.

Before McCarthy's late entry into the Senatorial primary, Sorensen had campaigned hard in upstate Erie County (Buffalo) and won the endorsement of Erie's powerful county leader, Joe Crangle, and the county Democratic committees. But his legal move against McCarthy — after Erie County had switched its endorsement from Sorensen to McCarthy — angered McCarthy's friends and cost Sorensen vital party support.

Party leaders in Albany haven't formally endorsed McCarthy, but there, too, Sorensen's earlier strength was damaged by his attack on McCarthy.

Thus, though McCarthy has little chance in the four-man race, he is badly undercutting Sorensen's upstate. And from the beginning, upstate has been vital to Sorensen, considering his weakness in New York City.

In the city, Sorensen is being whittled down by both Paul O'Dwyer (the badly beaten Senate nominee in 1968) and Ottinger. O'Dwyer has a lock on the left — the new Democratic coalition vote, the West Side reformers, and other assorted new leftists. Suburbanite Ottinger, who has the luck of being both Jewish and very rich, is gaining strength in the city. With both the left and the Jewish vote trending away from Sorensen, he is left with ethnic conservatives (which explains why he wanted Mario Biaggi at his side in the Bronx).

Sorensen, the sure winner two months ago, now is in a tight race with Ottinger which could go either way. With less than 25 percent of all registered Democratic voters expected to vote, a mere 6 or 7 percent of the state's entire Democratic vote — could be enough to win in the four-way Senate primary. Sorensen, therefore, can't be written off.

But his plodding, unexciting campaign, hampered by inability to get money or volunteers from those who gave so much of both to John Kennedy, dims any chances against Republican Sen. Charles Goodell in November even if he is nominated. Indeed, Sorensen's campaign is cut from the faded cloth of two other JFK aides in defeat — Pierre Salinger for Senator in California in 1964 and Kenneth P. O'Donnell for governor in Massachusetts in 1966. The ex-JFK syndrome is now working against Sorensen, and all his invocations of the Kennedy mystique may be insufficient to break that syndrome.

Substantial development of the railroads was still a few years away. One of the first major lines chartered in the state was the Raleigh and Gaston in 1835. Construction was begun Nov. 1, 1836, and its first locomotive entered Raleigh Saturday, March 21, 1840. A young native of the capital wrote to his father of the event, "When she got here they fired the cannon (and) all the bells rung. I heard her holler when she got about four or five miles of me." The Raleigh and Gaston Railroad later became part of the old Seaboard Air Line.

The North Carolina Railroad Co., a state line made possible by a compromise between the Whigs and the Democrats in 1848, was completed on January 20, 1856. It ran from Goldsboro to Charlotte and is today part of the Southern Railway system.

Some of the most colorful history of railroad development in the state comes from the mountains. The Western North Carolina Railroad was organized in 1855, but, delayed by the Civil War, it was not until 1869 that it was completed to Old Fort, where passengers disembarked for Asheville. The tracks finally reached Asheville in 1880 and eleven years later extended to Murphy, our westernmost town. During this same period the Elizabeth City and Norfolk, the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley, and the Carolina, Clinchfield, and Ohio railroads also stretched to, around, over, and through the North Carolina mountains. It was with picks and shovels, blasting powder, ingenuity, and much determination that this conquest was accomplished.

The story is told of one incident in which a locomotive had to reach Asheville by a certain date in order to satisfy a contract. With no hope of completing the tracks on time, a plan was devised by which short stretches of track were laid on the stage road ahead of the engine. It was pulled along by oxen, and the track was taken up and moved ahead as the engine passed.

Environmental Clean-Up Will Not Be Quick

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Chihuahua, Mexico (AP) — In the wave of public enthusiasm for cleaning up man's environment, authorities are cautioning against too high expectations for quick fixes.

Fighting pollution calls for continued commitment, money, and cooperation, they emphasize.

To clean up one American river system, for example, all cities along its banks must act against pollution from sewage and industrial wastes.

All that may present problems enough. Trying to control water or air pollution with an international boundary involved escalates the difficulties.

Residents of Ciudad Juarez, a burgeoning northern Mexico metropolis of 435,000 sprawling beside the Rio Grande, call the problem "contaminacion de atmosfera." In El Paso, a stone's throw across the muddy, often dry river, the 350,000 inhabitants of Texas' fifth largest city know it as "air pollution." Different languages, different cultures—same pollution.

Like many other urban centers divided by an international boundary, El Paso and Juarez, from a geographic standpoint, should be one city. They lie in a valley between two mountain ranges.

But international treaties dictate that the Rio Grande, meandering through the valley on its 1,000-mile journey to the sea, separate the two cities.

So when atmospheric inversions move into the valley and trap pollution near the ground, as they do often during the winter, both cities are blanketed with smog, regardless of its source.

Like it or not, El Paso and Juarez are in the air pollution game together. What one does will be useless if the other does nothing.

But El Paso and Juarez first must bridge a communications gap created by the language and culture differences.

On a face-to-face basis, each city is suspicious of the other when pollution is discussed.

On a formal government-to-government basis, communication, when there is any, is bound up in red tape. The municipal government of one city can't negotiate with that of the other. Such negotiations must be between the respective federal governments.

Pedro Beltran sits in a small, conservatively furnished office overlooking 16 de Septiembre Ave. on the edge of downtown Juarez. A courtly man of middle age, he directs urban planning in Juarez.

Beltran admits there must be more understanding on both sides.

No one has ever made a detailed scientific study of Juarez pollution sources. There's never been an interest. Or the money. Until now.

Now Juarez officials have installed their first pollution monitor and soon will erect another.

"We are concerned about pollution," Beltran says. "And we must work with the other side because it is of concern to both cities. We have many things in mind to solve the pollution problem, but they take time and money."

Money probably always will be a problem for Juarez, Mexico's fourth largest city. Founded by Spanish settlers in the 17th century and named for a Mexican revolutionary hero, Juarez is teeming with all the problems of urban Latin America. Poverty abounds, its victims living in mud huts on unpaved streets devoid of sewers and indoor plumbing.

Despite dramatic recent progress, doctors still fight tuberculosis, diarrhea and other diseases no longer a problem in the United States. Air pollution, as a health problem, is not high on the list of priorities.

El Pasoans know this, and it bothers them.

Like many other southwestern cities where once clean air is now dirty, El Paso has awakened to the threat of air pollution.

Founded only 100 years ago, El Paso is a city of towering skyscrapers that look out on miles of freeways and housing developments. Two smelters, two refineries, a cement plant, a large Army base and dozens of small industries have made the city prosperous.

Citizens are clamoring for action against air pollution, and politicians are heeding the call.

At the end of a long hall on the second floor of the El Paso city-county building, Mayor Peter de Wetter ponders air pollution problems from his brightly decorated, windowless office. Elected just a year ago, he gets much of the credit for starting the antipollution ball rolling.

El Paso is making rapid progress, he points out, and the air pollution battle soon might be won on the north banks of the Rio Grande.

But what about Juarez?

"I'm not overly optimistic in the long run that we can get the air really cleaned up just because of Juarez," de Wetter admits.

Like many, he worries about the seeming lack of action by the Mexicans.

"We're all in this together," de Wetter says. "We're going to have to look at many problems together, including air pollution."

When all the valley pollution sources are pinpointed, who will coordinate efforts on both sides of the border to stop air pollution?

For Valencia thinks he has can government, the planning commission awaits official recognition in Washington and Mexico City.

"The binational commission is the culmination of what we have sought for years," Valencia believes.

"The most effective means of coordinating efforts to eliminate air pollution for the benefit of both communities is to do it through an officially sanctioned channel of communications."

"The biggest communication problem is that we are dealing with two distinct peoples independent of one another, with dignity and prestige, who have the right to protect their heritage. So we must work on a completely equal basis."

"There must be none of this superior American business when it comes to helping Juarez solve its pollution problems."

The commission members will be appointed by the El Paso and Juarez mayors. The commission, in turn, will appoint technical committees to deal with specific urban problems, such as air and water pollution.

"When it comes to pollution, it will be El Paso pollution experts and Juarez pollution experts talking on a man-to-man, equal basis to find solutions," Valencia says.

Carlos Philipovsky, a sanitary engineer with the Pan American Sanitary Bureau, points out that a final goal on a broader scale must be an air pollution treaty.

"Regulations and standards have to be uniform on both sides of the border. If the U.S. enforces regulations and Mexico doesn't, you could easily have industries moving across the border to continue their pollution."

Philipovsky warns, too, that care must be taken so financial problems don't wreck plans to control border pollution.

"Mexico is cautious about entering into some type of pollution commission under a treaty because she just doesn't have the funds. And Mexico is too proud to accept U.S. charity if they can't finance their share themselves."

Low Prices Of Scotch May Be An Opportunity

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Investment notes:

Should American investors who have taken a beating in stocks now seek solace in drink? The suggestion is implied in a letter from Andrew Macdonald Ltd. of London, dealers in whisky.

from $2,550 to $5,592, or 119; Lafayette, Calif., $5,090 to $11,134, or 119; Dayton, Ohio, $3,589 to $7,722, or 115 per cent.

In Washington D.C., sites rose 113 per cent to $9,268 from $4,353, in Baton Rouge, La., to $6,340 from $3,210, or 98 per cent, and in Little Rock, Ark., to $5,416 from $2,769, or 69 per cent.

years or so that followed.

—The ratio of per share price to current earnings dropped to 11.63, meaning investors were willing to pay no more than 11 or 12 times earnings for their stocks. Shares that earned $3 dropped, on average, to less than $36. In December 1961 the ratio was 25.3, meaning that same stock sold for 75.90.

—The ratio of price to current dividends hit a low of 19.60 on May 26. Compare that with a price ratio of 34.78 on Feb. 9, 1966.

—The ratio of price to shareholders' equity plunged to 1.15, meaning shareholders were willing to pay only $1.15 for each dollar of invested corporate capital. In 1966 they willingly paid $2.20 for the comparable product.

Overproduction, Macdonald says, has caused Scotch prices to fall very low, "not anything like you have seen on the American stock market," but still so low "it has become embarrassing to quote them."

But therein may be an investment opportunity.

Without so much as a by-your-leave to IBM or Xerox, Macdonald advises: "On a comparison between whisky and any stock on the American market, whisky emerges as the greatest runner of all times, with the highest growth potential."

Now it happens that Macdonald, with an instinct old as heredity, cached away a considerable amount of mature spirits.

"We can make a certain quantity of these stocks available to those clients who are interested in cashing in once the goods are 8 years old, as well as to those interested in purchasing Scotch whisky for capital growth ..."

The idea, Macdonald says, is simply to hold on for a while. "There has always been a shortage of mature whisky of the older age groups, that is, 8 years and older," he explains.

To illustrate, the company includes a chart showing that prices rise sharply as the whisky is aged longer. Most whisky is used up when it is only 4 years old. That means a shortage of 10-year-old spirits. And so the upward pressure on prices.

The recent stock market decline is generally considered to be the worst since the Great Depression of the 1930s, with the Dow Jones Industrial Average off 36 per cent and the N.Y. Stock Exchange average off 38 per cent.

Since fearless investors now consider the big drop over, they are able to face other evidence that confirms this as the worst since the big crash and the 10

THE HARD SALE METHOD — The Pittsburgh car dealers responsible for the sign on the trolley probably had no idea it would have such an impact. The photo was shot by Paul Stantis of the Pittsburgh Post Gazette. (AP Wirephoto).

Almost everywhere in the United States the prices of improved home sites have risen sharply during the past decade. Anyone who has had to purchase a lot can verify that statement—at least for his own area.

The increase may have slowed a bit in the past couple of years because of a depressed housing market, but the percentages, as compiled by the National Association of Home Builders, are still impressive.

In 1960, a typical improved home site—streets, sewers, utilities included—sold for $2,579 in Charlotte, N.C. In 1969, a comparable site sold for $7,050, an increase of 173 per cent.

Sites in Denver, already high back in 1960, rose from $4,106 to $5,748, a gain of 40 per cent, one of the lowest found in the survey. Will the 1976 winter Olympics in Denver push up those prices? It could have some effect.

Among 100 per cent gainers were Boston from $3,694 to $9,106, or 147 per cent; St. Paul

Merger Ends Negro Congress

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — After 44 years of existence, the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers—NCCPT—has gone out of business.

The Negro group was formally merged with the 11 million-member National Congress of Parents and Teachers NCCPT at its 45th and last convention Monday. The NCCPT formerly excluded blacks.

The Negro group, founded in Atlanta in 1926, at one time had chapters in 19 states and the District of Columbia. It operated in all states where schools were segregated.

In its last year, it had chapters only in Alabama, Georgia, Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana, South Carolina and Arkansas.

Red Chinese Live Better But Face More Executions

By FORREST EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
HONG KONG (AP)—Residents of Communist China are living better these days, but travelers to Hong Kong tell more and more tales of political trials and mass executions.

Clothing and food still are very plain in the mainland Chinese cities, but people are reported dressing and eating better than they have for several years. And stores in Peking, Tientsin, Shanghai and Canton are putting consumer goods in their display windows, replacing the political posters that had dominated until recently.

At the same time, however, Peking continues to drum up fears of war, and mass trials and executions are common throughout the nation of some 700 million.

Because of a widespread war psychosis, the cities of Peking, Tientsin and Canton sit atop mazes of tunnels and bomb shelters, observers say. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese are reported digging underground shelters and fortifications in every major city.

Many Western analysts who have studied the reports of shelter construction believe Peking's leaders do not really expect war but have launched a war preparations campaign to unite factions and people separated during the China's bloody Cultural revolution.

Most of the reports indicate that the shelters are shallow and weak and would not provide any protection from the effects of even small conventional bombs.

The reports are those of travelers, mainly European and Asian traders and Western government experts, who visit the mainland and leave through Hong Kong, a British crown colony at the tip of the Kowloon Peninsula in Southeast China.

The travelers say that in the town and countryside, villagers and peasants are eating and dressing better. Rice stocks are adequate in most areas. Meat is more available than at any time since 1966, when the great Cultural Revolution began, but it remains expensive and its consumption still is only a few ounces per person per month.

They believe coal, iron and steel production are up and that factories are producing more trucks and more industrial and agricultural machinery. How much more cannot be precisely determined.

A considerable number of the persons reported tried and executed recently in China have been city, village and commune officials accused of graft and corruption during the Cultural Revolution. Others have been charged with looting, robbery and murder during the revolution, the sources say.

Physician Must Have Attorney

BEAUFORT, S. C. (AP)—Dr. Donald Gatch, whose testimony before a U. S. Senate committee in 1969 was instrumental in bringing emergency food programs to the nation's poor, has been told by a state court to have a lawyer by August or the court will appoint one to defend him on a drug charge.

Dr. Gatch is accused of failing to keep proper records of drugs received and dispensed. He was granted a continuance Tuesday by State Circuit Judge William Rhodes.

The Bluffton physician was charged last November by the South Carolina drug inspector. He has denied the charges, saying they are an effort to have him run out of the state.

Scholarships Are Awarded

CULLOWHEE — John H. Clayton III, Jack Douglas Pressley and David Lee Woodard, all of Cullowhee, are the first recipients of the James A. Ridgon Scholarships at Western Carolina University, it has been announced by university officials.

Ridgon, a native of Pickens, S. C., now is a resident of Montebello, Calif. He established the scholarships recently through gifts to the university in memory of the W. D. Wike family of Cullowhee.

The Wike family befriended him while he was a student, about 50 years ago, at what was then Cullowhee Normal and Industrial School.

One of Wilkes' daughters, Mrs. Beulah Staples, resides at 1201 E. Rock Spring Rd., Greenville.

The Wikes were pioneer residents of the Cullowhee area. Wike served as librarian while still a student. After additional study during 1894-95 at Howard Payne College in Texas, he was elected teacher-in-charge of the Normal Department at Cullowhee. He served in that position until 1901 when he became principal at Webster of the first graded public school to be established in Jackson County.

The fund will provide $300 scholarships annually to four male applicants. Selection will be based upon scholastic attainment and capability; financial need, character and qualities of leadership. Preference will be given to Jackson County students.

Durham Board Obtains A Delay

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Durham City Board of Education has won a week's delay until next Monday to file a plan for further desegregation of schools.

Judge Edwin M. Stanley granted the request in U. S. District Court Monday after attorneys for the Negro plaintiffs agreed to it.

Legislation On Drugs Is Urged

COLUMBIA (AP)—The president of the University of South Carolina says he has suggested to President Nixon that there is a great need for better drug control legislation at the federal level.

Dr. Thomas F. Jones, who along with eight other presidents of colleges and universities around the nation met with Nixon and some of his advisors earlier, said in a prepared statement Tuesday he told the President that drugs are too readily available to almost anyone.

He said he also suggested that law enforcement is the key to dealing with college disturbances.

"Until we can effectively control the radicals, we can't control the overall situation," he said he told Nixon.

Collisions Are Reported

One person was reported injured in a series of three traffic collisions here yesterday that resulted in an estimated $950 property damage.

Police said a passenger on a motor cycle operated by Stephen Donald Bailey, 20 of 1110 Myrtle Ave. was injured when the vehicle collided with utility pole guy wire about 7:45 p.m. on Myrtle Avenue, 50 feet west of the Pamlico Avenue intersection.

No charges were made by investigators.

Billie Heath Crandell, 26 of 206 South Meade St. was charged with failing to yield the right of way following investigation of an 8:15 p.m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets.

The Crandell car, officers reported, collided with a vehicle driven by Daniel Lee Blount, 44-year-old Negro of 211 Nash St., causing an estimated $400 damage to the Blount car and $200 damage to the Crandell auto.

No charges were reported in the third crash, which occurred on Fourth Street 200 feet East of the Maple Street intersection about 12:15 p.m. and involved cars driven by Elizabeth Hardin Bundy, 22 of Azalea Gardens and Agnes Elizabeth Fullilove of 1600 East Fourth St.

Police estimated the damage to the Bundy vehicle at $175 and placed damage to the Fullilove car at $25.

KENNEDY MEMORIAL SITE IN DALLAS — Visitors are shown before the John F. Kennedy Memorial near downtown Dallas, just a few short blocks from the assassination site. Lt. Gov. Fountain's Papers Given To ECU

The personal papers of former Lieutenant Governor Richard T. (Dick) Fountain of Rocky Mount have been donated to the East Carolina Manuscript Collection at East Carolina University.

The collection, which was given by Fountain's widow, consists of more than five cubic feet of material including correspondence, reports, speeches, clippings, campaign papers and other items pertaining to North Carolina politics during the era between 1918 when Fountain first entered politics and 1945 when he died.

Fountain was born in Edgecombe County in 1885 and received his law degree from UNC-Chapel Hill in 1907. He opened a law office in Rocky Mount in partnership with his cousin G. M. T. Fountain and later with his brother Benjamin. In 1918 Fountain married Susan Rankin of Gaston County.

He served five terms in the state House of Representatives, being selected as Speaker in 1927. In 1928 he was elected Lieutenant Governor, and in 1932 he was narrowly defeated for the Democratic nomination for governor by J. C. B. Ehringhaus. In 1936 and again in 1942 Fountain opposed incumbent U.S. Senator Josiah Bailey and was defeated by narrow margins.

East Carolina manuscript

curator Donald R. Lennon identified the Richard Tillman Fountain Papers as one of the most significant twentieth century collections to be placed in the Greenville repository. Lennon stated that while the campaign papers for Fountain's 1928 and 1936 election bids are extensive, the 1932 files appear to be complete, offering an in-depth view of North Carolina politics for the period.

Also in the collection, according to Lennon, are letters and campaign material relating to various election campaigns including the Clyde R. Hoey-Ralph McDonald contest of 1936 and the McDonald - R. Gregg Cherry contest of 1944.

Fountain was the anti-administration candidate in 1932 and was opposed by the famous political organization of Governor O. Max Gardner. He was a supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt and his New Deal program of the 1930's.

Fountain acted and assisted in the adoption of the law which led to the establishment of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Also, for only the first few days of the meeting, Rogers leaves for Asia Sunday and won't return to Washington until the conference ends.

OAS Will Consider Kidnaping Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP)—Proposals to halt the current wave of Latin American political kidnapings are expected to spark sharp differences when the Organization of American States foreign ministers open their 13-day meeting this week.

The sessions open Thursday against a backdrop of kidnaping attempts against nine diplomats in Latin America over the last 10 months.

To counter diplomatic kidnapings, Argentina has proposed member nations impose "self-restraint" in granting asylum for political prisoners.

According to the Argentine theory, potential kidnapers would be less likely to abduct diplomats if there are no assurances it will result in the release of political prisoners.

Chile and Mexico have indicated opposition to the Argentine plan.

The permanent council of the 23-nation OAS formally condemned the use of violence as a political tool a month ago but left the question of what to do about it to the foreign ministers.

Nine diplomats, including three Americans, have been the targets of kidnaping attempts in Latin America since last September. Most have been released in exchange for the freedom of political prisoners.

Count Karl Von Spreti, West Germany's ambassador to Guatemala, was slain after the government refused to meet his captors' demands for the release of 22 prisoners and for ransom of $700,000.

The latest kidnaping victim, Ehrenfried von Holleben, West Germany's ambassador to Brazil, was freed last week after the government released 40 political prisoners.

The ministers also will consid-

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady to slightly stronger Tuesday. Supplies generally adequate, demand fair to good. The prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:

Grade A large whites: 44 to 44½; medium, whites 35 to 36; small, whites: 25 to 26½.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets were mostly steady today with instances of 25 higher. Tops of 23.50-25.50 at Tarboro; 24.50-25.00 at Rocky Mount and Aberdeen; 23.50-24.50 at Bethel; 25.50 at Mount Olive; 25.00 at Greensboro; 24.50 at Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was mostly firm. Supplies adequate, weights desirable, demand good. Fryers and broilers, live at farm, 13 cents a pound. Hens, supplies ample, demand slow to fair. Heavy hens at farm eight. Light type too few to report.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market recovered much of its sharp early losses in moderately active trading today.

By noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 0.41 at 697.70. Early in the session the Dow average had been off more than 8 points.

Analysts attributed the sharp early slide to investor concern about the possibility of further corporate liquidity problems in the wake of Penn Central's bankruptcy petition. They said some selling interest that was on the decline was beginning to move back into the market.

Reconsideration Asked Because Of Troubles

RALEIGH (AP) — Duke Power Co. says it is in "trouble financially" and wants the North Carolina Utilities Commission to reconsider its March 24 order denying a fuel adjustment clause.

The company requested Tuesday that the commission reconsider the request that Duke's power rates be tied directly to the cost of coal and other fuels.

The commission denied the original request on the ground that it would result in automatic rate increases without public hearings or presentation of supporting evidence.

The commission in May granted a 4 per cent emergency rate increase requested by Duke Power. And it is considering another request by Duke for an 18 per cent increase scheduled to go into effect in the fall.

But Carl Horn, Duke attorney, told the commission Tuesday that the utility requested the rehearing on the fuel adjustment clause "because we are in trouble financially."

He said that in denying the request, "The commission has seriously underestimated its own authority and jurisdiction over utilities."

"The commission has continuing jurisdiction, and the power to modify, any fuel adjustment clause it might approve," Horn said. "If the fuel adjustment clause was not working properly, the commission could modify it."

He said the firm "simply is asking the commission whether its March 24 order means that it will not approve any fuel adjustment clause, or if it will accept one that meets its objections."

"If it will accept a clause, we are asking that you lay down some guidelines so that we can prepare a request in line with what you will accept," Horn said. The state attorney general's office, which opposed the Duke request in March, argued Tuesday against commission reconsideration of the request.

Maurice Horne, special assistant to the attorney general, said, "It is our contention that it would be an improper exercise of the commission's ratemaking authority to approve an across the board fuel adjustment clause."

"Therefore, as we said in our original argument in this case, we believe it would be unconstitutional."

Duke attorney Horn told the commission that his company did not plan to take its case for a fuel adjustment clause to the State Court of Appeals if the commission refused to reconsider its March ruling.

The commission is expected to decide on the Duke request in the next two weeks. It would reject the request for reconsideration or modify its March order.

Insecticide Level Is Said Lower Three EC Grants OK'd By Board

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Health says the levels of DDT and dieldrin in the air of Johnston County were actually about 1,000 times less than it reported 10 days ago.

The earlier reports stated that abnormally high levels of 2.7 parts per million for DDT and 1.7 parts per million for dieldrin had been found in air samples collected by the board in the Meadow Township.

Dr. James I. Freeman, chief of the board's veterinary health section, said Tuesday the quantities reported are about 1,000 times too large. He said the figures should have been 2.7 parts per billion for DDT and 0.7 parts per billion for dieldrin.

Dr. Gerald Weekman, extension entomologist at North Carolina State University, who expressed disbelief at the earlier figures, said the new figures "are not abnormally high. They are extremely small amounts—about what we would expect."

Three East Carolina University professors have had research grants approved by the North Carolina Board of Science and Technology.

Dr. Warren McAllister, assistant professor of chemistry, was granted some $5,000 to investigate the chemistry of two pollutants from automobile exhausts.

Dr. James Hix, also an assistant professor of chemistry, will use his $7,000 grant to study certain biologically active compounds.

Dr. Richard L. Mauger, assistant professor of geology, received $7,000 for a study of lithium ores and other minerals found near Kings Mountain.

The three were among 21 who received grants amounting to $417,853. Gov. Bob Scott, chairman of the Science and Technology Board, said 90 proposals were received and that the requests for funding amounted to nearly nine times the funds available for grants. "Many excellent proposals for research which would benefit the state could not be supported this year," he said.

AMA Planning Battle On Warning Proposal

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has promised a broad legal and legislative battle against a plan by the Food and Drug Administration to include a health warning in packages of contraceptive pills.

But FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards defended the use of a lay language warning about oral contraceptives as a "communications insurance policy" in the best interests of the patient.

The AMA's House of Delegates, meeting Tuesday at the organization's 119th annual convention, approved a resolution attacking the FDA plan as "a dangerous departure from present practice." Dr. Edwards announced on June 10 that the health warning should be included with packages of the pill within 90 days. The warning would point out possible dangerous side effects, such as an increased risk of blood clotting.

The AMA resolution asserted the proposal "intrudes on the patient-physician relationship" and would "interfere with the physician's decision to prescribe drugs by exerting undue influence."

Edwards, speaking to the Midwest Pharmaceutical Advertising Club, told the drug industry it would be "enlightened self interest" to supply more useful information about drugs in its medical communications to doctors.

"I think," the FDA chief said, "we tend to lose track of the fact that you are not selling new cars or TV sets, but rather you are selling products to professionals whose only reasons for being is the health and well-being of the people." As for he required warning on contraceptive pills, he said:

Pepsi-Cola Rolls By Exchange In 16-8 Win

Pepsi-Cola kept its chances alive in the Tar Heel Little League with a 16-8 romp over the Exchange yesterday. Pepsi is the only team in the loop with a chance to catch the Graniteers.

The Graniteers, 12-1, have clinched at least a tie for the title, and can win it all by beating Pepsi when the two meet Thursday. Pepsi is now 10-3, followed by the Moose, 8-4, the Exchange, 4-9, the Elks, 3-10, and Integon, 1-11.

Pepsi got things going in the first inning, pushing over five runs. Ricky Avery singled and David Davis reached on a fielder's choice. Roy Oldham singled and hit by Danny Bowman brought in Avery and Davis. Oldham stole home, and Dand Kendrick doubled in Bowman. Tim Eubanks reached on an error, scoring Kendrick to make it 5-0.

In the second, Pepsi added six more runs. Avery singled and Davis smacked a double. Oldham singled in Avery and Bowman walked to load the bases. Kendrick singled to score Davis and Oldham, and a double by Eubanks brought in Bowman and Kendrick. Eubanks took third on a wild pitch and stole home.

The Exchange got into the act in the bottom of the second with three runs. Mike Brewington singled and Mike Jeffreys was hit by a pitch. A pair of wild pitches brought Brewington over. Joel Hargett walked, and so did John Cleewood. Darrell Roebuck was hit by a pitch, forcing in Jeffreys and Thil Hurley walked, scoring Hargett.

Pepsi picked up another run in the third. Davis singled and moved to third on a walk to Oldham and when Mark Conway was hit by a pitch. A wild pitch brought him home.

Pepsi wound up its scoring in the fourth with four more. Mike Shank walked and Lee Shearin got a hit. Avery singled and a double by Davis brought in Shank and Shearin. Oldham reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Avery. Davis scored on a wild pitch.

The Exchange added another run in the fifth. Brewington singled and advanced on fielder's choices to Doug Paschal and Jeffreys, scoring on the last one.

Then, in the sixth, the Exchange got four more for its eight run total. Roebuck reached on a fielder's choice and Hurley and Mike Belton both walked, loading the bases. Brewington capped that with a grand-slam homer, but it wasn't enough to erase the big Exchange deficit.

Avery and Davis led the Pepsi hitting with three each, while Shearin, Oldham and Kendrick each had two. Brewington had three to pace the Exchange.

Piney Grove, Trinity Win

Southern Sets Slate

Trinity and Piney Grove picked up victories in the Church Softball League last night. Trinity rolled over First Christian, 26-1, while Piney Grove downed Oakmont, 12-3.

In the National Division of the league, Grace leads with a 12-2 record, followed by Black Jack, 8-6, and Immanuel, 8-7. Mt. Pleasant is 5-8, Oakmont, 6-9, and Piney Grove, 5-10.

In the American Division, St. James is the leader with a 12-2 record, followed by Presbyterian, 9-6, Trinity, 8-6, Meadowbrook, 7-7, Gum Swamp, 5-9, and Christian, 1-14.

In the opener, Piney Grove pushed into the lead early scoring five runs in the bottom of the first inning. Oakmont came up with a run in the fourth, but Piney Grove countered that with three in the bottom of the frame, extending its lead to 8-1.

Piney Grove went on to add one in the fifth on a homer by W. Nichols, and they picked up three more in the sixth. Oakmont added two more in the sixth.

J. Crawford, D. Allen and Nichols each had three hits for Piney Grove. Cheek, Carraway and Reese had two each for Oakmont.

Trinity pushed over three runs in the top of the first inning and was never in trouble after that. They went on to add three more in the second, then picked up five in the third as Ray Hodges homered. They added one in the fourth, seven in the fifth as Hodges homered again, and finished up with six in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Christian got its only run in the third.

Donnie Bowen, Smith Worthington and Joe Sutton each had four hits, while James Cobb, Al Davis, Kenneth Manning, Jerry Boyd, Leroy Sasser and Hodges had three and Doug Norville had two for Trinity. No one had more than one for Christian.

Greenville American Legion Post 39 struggled past Ahoskie last night, 2-1, and moved into first place in the Area standings.

While Greenville was beating Ahoskie, Wilson took Kinston, and the result left Greenville with a half-game lead. Greenville has an 8-2 record, while Kinston is now 7-2.

Greenville has two games left in the standings, against Tarboro on Sunday and against Kinston here Tuesday. Kinston will play Ahoskie Friday night, Roanoke Rapids on Monday and then comes here for what could be the showdown game.

Last night's contest was a hurling duel between Russ Smith of Greenville and Ray Coggins of Ahoskie. Smith tossed a four-hitter, while Coggins gave up only two more. All of the scoring came in the final three innings.

Ahoskie had three chances to score aside from its lone score in the seventh. In the second inning, Ken Haislip reached on an error and Mike Davidson was hit by a pitch before the third out ended the threat.

In the fourth, Ronald Perry walked, stole second and moved on to third on an error before the last batter struck out. Then, in the ninth, with their backs to the wall, Ahoskie put two on with none out. Don Lee singled to right and Greg Godard reached on an error when he attempted to sacrifice. But Smith picked off Lee and then struck out the next man. Godard stole second and moved to third on another error before the final strikeout ended the game.

The lone score came in a strange inning. With one out, Ronald Perry walked and stole second. He took third on a passed ball, but was unable to advance when Haislip grounded back to first. Jimmy Bond had to come off the bag to field the ball, and was not backed up, and Haislip reached safely. Mike Davidson grounded out, moving Haislip to second, but holding Perry again at third. Todd Young then singled off Tommy Durham's glove at third, with Perry scoring. Young overran first, however, and Ronnie Leggett threw him out.

Greenville had chances in the second, fourth and sixth before connecting in the eighth. Allan Wilson singled and stole second in the second. Then, in the fourth, Tony Whitehurst hit a booming drive into deep left, but the ball went past the screening in the softball field and Whitehurst, already at third, was sent back to second for a ground ruled double. Leggett singled, moving him to third, but Whitehurst was cut down in a rundown when the attempted squeeze bunt was missed. Leggett came on to third on the play, but died there.

In the sixth, Bond was hit by a pitch and wild pitched to second with none out, but got no opportunity to advance after that.

Greenville then struck for the lead and the win in the eighth. With one out, Jimmy Bond hit another smash into left field with the same results as Whitehurst. He arrived safely at third, only to be sent back to second as the ball reached the softball screen.

Then, with two outs, Leggett connected to send one up the alley in left, and it met no obstruction as both Bond and Leggett raced home to give Greenville a 2-1 lead that stood up for the final results.

Cage Slate Set For SC

ARLINGTON, VA: The Southern Conference has drafted a two-year basketball schedule of Conference games for 1971-72 and 1972-73.

The schedules feature the inauguration of the Annual Charlotte SoCon Classic between Davidson and Furman and the Citadel and East Carolina, to be played the 3rd week in December at the Charlotte Coliseum.

Each school has scheduled at least the minimum of ten conference games, required for eligibility to compete in the Annual Tournament. Three schools, East Carolina, Richmond and VMI, play a complete home and home scheduled with all Conference schools. Davidson, the Conference Champion and William and Mary play ten games, engaging each team at least once. The Citadel and Furman play eleven games each.

The winner of the Conference Tournament, held at the conclusion of the regular season games, gains an automatic berth in the regional NCAA playoffs.

"I'd rather work in my office at home, than at the studio. I don't need to dress up at home." — Cecil B. DeMille, noted movie magnate.

Suburban and small town businessmen are not so restricted as their city counterparts. Sometimes they wear jackets and slacks instead of suits.

However, in some small towns, wearing suits is considered more dignified. It is thought that suits usually impress clients more favorably.

When coats, or jackets, and slacks are worn they should always blend. They must never be wild.

Often, suburban and small town businessmen do not meet outsiders. Their conferences are more frequently with friends or acquaintances. They are more relaxed. Many even wear sports clothes at work.

SHAVING SUGGESTION — Shave off fine whiskers first. Leave rough beard until later. Give your shaving cream time to soften tough hairs.

Brunet Helps Nats Snap Losing String

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
George Brunet, Washington's well-traveled starting southpaw, has turned stopper for Ted Williams' slumping Senators and apparently found a home at the age of 36.

Brunet, who came to the Senators from Seattle-Milwaukee in a winter deal, has played in 15 minor league cities and with eight major league clubs, helped Washington snap a five-game losing streak Tuesday night, beating Detroit 6-2. The left-hander evened his record at 5-5, scattering six hits in seven innings before leaving for a pinch runner. He also gave Washington its only other victory in nine games, whipping the Minnesota Twins 3-1 last Monday.

In other American League contests, Milwaukee edged the Twins 4-3, Boston ripped Baltimore 6-1, Kansas City nudged Oakland 7-5 and Chicago drilled California 7-3. Brunet, a 6-foot-1, 205-pounder who lives in Anaheim, made his pro debut in 1963 at Shelby, N.C., and has since been to such spots as Seminole, Okla., Crowley, La., Vancouver, B.C., and Hawaii.

He finally made it to stay in the majors in 1964 with the then Los Angeles Angels and was voted their all-time left-hander by Angel fans.

Tuesday night, Brunet's supporting cast of Tim Cullen, Paul Casanova and Wayne Comer, provided the punch.

Cullen stroked a solo homer, Casanova, a two-run shot and Comer drilled a two-run double in the Senator's seventh inning that finished Tigers' starter Mickey Lolich. Mike Epstein also unloaded a solo roundtripper for the Senators.

Lolich, Detroit's ace left-hander, hasn't won since May 28 and has only two victories in two months as his record fell to 6-8.

His run-scoring single drove in both runs off Brunet in the fourth.

Pinch hitter Gus Gil cracked a two-out, two-run double in the ninth inning, giving the Brewers their narrow triumph over Minnesota.

Gil slammed his game-winning hit off reliever Ron Perranoski, who had just entered the game.

Phil Roof connected for a bases-empty homer for the Brewers while George Mitterwald had a two-run shot for the Twins.

Ray Culp fired a three-hitter and the Red Sox smashed 12 hits, including home runs by Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli to snap the Orioles' winning streak at five games.

Conigliaro's two-run homer—his 14th of the season—keyed a three-run Boston fifth off loser Jim Palmer, 10-4, making it easy for Culp, 6-7, who struck out eight.

Lou Piniella's bases-loaded fly ball fell for a triple and keyed a four-run Kansas City first inning and Cookie Rojas socked his first homer of the season as the Royals took a 5-1 edge over the A's after two innings.

Joe Keough's two-run single in the fifth proved the difference while Reggie Jackson, who misjudged Piniella's drive, drilled his 10th circuit of the season for the A's.

Bill Melton slugged a three-run homer and Syd O'Brien added a bases-clearing double, giving rookie right-hander Jerry Janeski his seventh triumph of the season in Chicago's triumph over the Angels.

Bucs, Indians Share Honors

ARLINGTON, VA: The 1st Annual Southern Conference Commissioner's Cup, to be awarded each year to the school accumulating the greatest total points in all sports, resulted in a tie between East Carolina University of Greenville, N.C. and the College of William & Mary, Williamsburg, Va. — each totaling 56 points.

The Pirates of East Carolina placed first in Baseball, Swimming, and were runner-up in Basketball, Golf and Wrestling. Each Carolina participated in eleven of the twelve sports, not fielding a team in Rifle.

The William & Mary Indians captured four championships in Cross Country, Indoor and Outdoor Track, and Wrestling. The Tribe finished second in Swimming. William & Mary had teams in all twelve Conference sports.

East Carolina also placed 3rd in both Indoor and Outdoor Track; 4th in Cross Country and Soccer, 5th in Football and Tennis.

William & Mary's order of finish, other than 1st and 2nd place positions, were: Baseball, 3rd - Football and Golf, 4th - Basketball, Rifle and Soccer, 5th - and seventh in Tennis.

The Cup will be awarded at a time and place to be designated at a later date.

Singer Shines As He Sets Down Atlanta

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
After he beat hepatitis, the Atlanta Braves were hardly a problem for Bill Singer.

Singer, making only his third start after spending 52 days on the disabled list recuperating from hepatitis, pitched hitless ball for 7 2/3 innings Tuesday night as Los Angeles trimmed Atlanta 7-0.

Clete Boyer busted up Singer's no-hit bid with a two-out single in the eighth and the weary Dodger right-hander was immediately lifted. Pete Mikkelsen, from whom Singer contracted the liver disease in spring training, finished up, allowing the Braves' other hit in the ninth.

Until Boyer's single, Singer had allowed only one base runner, walking Hank Aaron in the fourth.

Elsewhere in the National League Monday, New York edged Chicago 12-10 in 10 innings, Montreal nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Pittsburgh rapped St. Louis 7-2, Cincinnati trimmed San Francisco 5-3 and Houston edged San Diego 2-1. The Dodgers broke their game open with a six-run fifth inning with the first run scoring on a bases-loaded walk to Singer. Bill Grabarkewitz and Manny Mota each drove in two runs in the rally.

After that, LA concentrated on protecting Singer's no-hit bid. In the seventh and eighth innings, the Dodgers stationed their second baseman and shortstop on the edge of the outfield grass to try and preserve it. That's where they were when Boyer's solid hit shot past the pitching mound.

As soon as that happened, Singer was lifted to a standing ovation.

Singer was sidelined from April 22 until June 14 and Tuesday's game was only his third start since returning to the active roster. Just wait until he regains his strength.

The Mets rallied for the tying runs with two out in the ninth on a single by Ken Boswell and then beat the Cubs in the 10th on Duffy Dyer's two-run homer. Chicago, which dropped its fourth straight, overcame a seven-run New York fourth with five runs in the fifth. Billy Williams cracked four hits and drove in four runs for the Cubs, who had their National League East lead trimmed to 1 1/2 games over New York.

Claude Raymond bailed Dan McGinn out of a ninth inning jam to preserve Montreal's victory over Philadelphia.

McGinn was working on a six-hit shutout when Rick Joseph and Jim Hutto opened the ninth with singles. Oscar Gamble sacrificed and Raymond came on. He surrendered one run on an infield hit by Ron Stone but then got Danny Doyle and Larry Bowa to end it.

The Expos scored the deciding run in the fifth when McGinn singled and came around on Marv Staehle's double.

Bob Robertson drove in three runs with a triple and two doubles leading Pittsburgh past St. Louis. Bob Moose went all the way, scattering nine hits.

Robertson's two-run triple keyed a five-run Pirate burst in the first inning.

Cincinnati used home runs by Tony Perez, Hal McRae and Lee May to whip San Francisco. Willie McCovey had a two-run shot for the Giants.

The victory kept the Reds a fat nine games ahead of LA in the National League West.

Pats Hunting For Stadium

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots are selling plenty of tickets while they look for a place to play football in this fall, but the latest word is that their preferred locations of Harvard Stadium and Fenway Park are both pretty much out of the question.

The Associated Press learned Tuesday that Harvard entertains little thought of lifting its ban on pro football, and that the Boston Red Sox feel they just can't allow it and still get Fenway Park in shape for the next baseball season.

The Patriots' new 55,000-seat stadium in Foxboro is expected to be ready for the 1971 National Football League season.

Harvard originally refused to lease its stadium to the Pats, but the wording of the announcement seemed to leave the door open for a one-year lease if plans were finalized for a new permanent stadium.

The Harvard source, however, indicated he saw nothing leading him to believe that this meant the university was ready to change its original position.

Jascha Heifetz Calls About Israel Trip

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) - "I have been to Israel," announced Jascha Heifetz. "Would you like to hear about it?"

Every year or so, the violin virtuoso calls with a subject he is willing to talk about: once it was an electric automobile he had bought and was promoting as a smog-fighter. He rarely talks for print—in fact, his public appearances have dwindled in recent years. So I always hasten to the hilltop home where he lives alone with his beloved fiddle.

"The trip to Israel was my idea—mine and Mr. Piatagorsky," said Heifetz, referring to his longtime friend and duet partner, cellist Gregor Piatagorsky.

"Call it an urge. A whim, perhaps. At any rate, I called my agent, William Judd, and told him, 'Look, Piatagorsky and I would like to do this. We have the time. Call them and say we are ready to come.'

The arrangements were hastily made with the Israeli government and the Philharmonic Orchestra. Two concerts were scheduled in Tel Aviv and two in Jerusalem.

"Our fees for two of the performances were turned over to the orchestra's pension fund," said Heifetz. "The rest of the money, about $25,000, we handed to Golda Meir (Israeli Prime Minister) and told her to do with it as she sees fit."

Heifetz and Piatagorsky arrived in Israel May 12 and stayed five weeks. Even with the limited rehearsal time, the violinist said, the Israel Philharmonic performed magnificently.

"The concertos were done without a conductor, but they played as if they had three conductors, all synchronized." All four concerts were sellouts.

The trip marked Heifetz's fifth visit to Israel. He first went there in 1926, when it was Palestine. He recalls playing to workers on an outdoor stage; future president Chaim Weizman sat on the platform with him. Heifetz returned in 1932 and then in 1950 and 1952, after Israel had become a nation.

His impressions of Israel today?

"Many more buildings. Fine hotels. New roads. Much more movement, and in Tel Aviv—worse air."

"There is evidence of war: soldiers and girls in uniform on every street corner. But nobody mentions the war. I was there when the school bus was bombed, and no one spoke of it to me."

Tonight, Bunker Hill tastes a quarter better.

Judge Dismisses Gun Complaint In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed a complaint charging black militant Robert F. Williams with carrying a firearm across state lines while under indictment.

Judge Fred Kaess of District Court dismissed the charges Tuesday after being told by U. S. Atty. James Brickley that "There is no evidence of any criminal intent in transporting the rifle."

Williams, former president of the Detroit-based, black separatist Republic of New Africa, fled the country in 1961 and lived in Cuba and China to avoid charges of kidnapping a white couple during racial violence in Monroe, N. C. He later returned to the United States voluntarily.

Williams was charged in federal court March 31 with carrying an M-1 rifle with him in a car when he drove from Michigan to New York via Canada March 19 on his way to Washington to testify before the U. S. Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Williams was stopped after crossing from Canada into the United States near Buffalo, N.Y. Brickley said Tuesday that the firearm was owned by Williams' brother and the car in which it was being transported was registered to his wife, who was with him at the time.

Williams was never indicted on the firearms charge. After appearing on the complaint last March, he was released on a $1,000 personal bond.

Court Asked For Evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capt. Jeffrey R. MacDonald has asked the Court of Military Appeals to order the Army to produce evidence obtained from suspected eavesdropping to help attorneys prepare his defense.

The Green Beret doctor has been accused of murdering his wife and two children Feb. 2. He is being detained at Ft. Bragg, N. C., pending completion of a preliminary hearing to determine whether he must face trial by court martial.

His civilian attorney, Bernard Segal of Philadelphia, petitioned the court June 19 to compel the Army to produce "tapes or written records which may contain results of electronic eavesdropping," and to assure confidential communication between MacDonald and his counsel.

The petition alleges further that Ft. Bragg authorities had "intimidated and harassed" defense witnesses and refused to divulge results of laboratory tests made after the triple slaying.

Action by the court is required, the petition said, to provide MacDonald with "the effective assistance of counsel" before the second session of the pretrial hearing scheduled for July 6.

MacDonald initially told investigators the slayings were committed by a hippie-type band of three men and a woman. The Army informed the captain on April 6 that he was a suspect in the case.

He has been relieved of his duties, restricted to quarters and accompanied by guards on trips to the mess hall and other facilities on the base.

Bank Clerk Is Ticket Winner

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — A 29-year-old Japanese bank clerk today became the 30 millionth visitor to EXPO '70, Asia's first world fair, and was presented two airline tickets for a 10-day trip to Europe.

The lucky man was Shigemitsu Nakabayashi of Maebashi, about 80 miles north of Tokyo. He also won 200,000 yen—$555—in cash.

The 30 million attendance figure was reached six days earlier than at the Montreal fair in 1967. Officials predicted Expo '70 would have more than a record-breaking 55 million visitors when it closes its 183-day run Sept. 13.

WELCOME, YANKS
TOKYO (UPI)—The U.S. military spend $638,051,000 in Japan in 1969, according to Japanese government figures. It was 8.8 per cent higher than the amount spent by the United States for local purchases in 1968.

Presbyterians Look At Plan

BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP)—The Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina discussed today a plan for realigning the presbyteries and reducing them to six from the present nine.

The discussion came at the closing day of the 157 annual meeting.

The Rev. Joseph M. Garrison of Greensboro was installed as moderator Tuesday, and the Rev. E. Leslie Stoffel of Charlotte was named moderator-elect, to take office next year.

The synod also approved a new fund drive for colleges it helps support.

LENIENT JUDGES
FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—The state reports that nearly 50 per cent of all persons arrested by state police for drunken driving last year were able to get the charges filed away, dismissed or amended to lesser offenses by courts.

Link Is Seen In Abduction Of Two People

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mrs. Rose Y. Collins, who was abducted last Thursday just a few hours before 17-year-old Carla Jean Underwood was abducted and killed, thinks the two cases may be linked.

Mrs. Collins was kidnapped from the parking lot of a Charlotte shopping center about 10:30 a.m. Miss Underwood disappeared from the parking lot of another shopping center around noon.

The two men who drove her in her car to a clearing in the woods near the University of North Carolina at Charlotte may be the same two who were seen running from Miss Underwood's burning car Thursday, Mrs. Collins says.

An autopsy report Tuesday said Miss Underwood died the same day she was abducted. Dr. Hobart R. Wood, county medical examiner, said she was shot five times in the abdomen, "possibly from just inches away."

The autopsy also showed the girl may have been beaten about the face before being shot.

Wood said there was no evidence of sexual assault.

The reward money for information on the girl's killers has now reached $2,000. Belk Brothers Co., where Miss Underwood worked, is offering $1,000, Charlotte radio station WSOC is offering $500 and members of the girl's church are offering $500.

Gastonia Girl Wants Return

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP) — Diane McKinney, 17, of Gastonia says that she's staying in a place called "Hijackers Hotel" in Cuba and wants to come home.

Miss McKinney is believed to have helped her boyfriend, Ira Meeks, 18, hijack a private plane to Cuba last April 23.

She said in a letter to her aunt, Mrs. Rosanna Wilson of Gastonia, "I am very sorry that I left home because now I am regretting it all. I wish I could come home so bad."

The brief letter was post-marked June 3 and arrived two days ago, Mrs. Wilson said. The girl lived with the aunt before the hijacking.

"The food is bad, the people are crazy and the whole place is just out of this world," the letter said.

Miss McKinney said she hoped to be home by January. She said Meeks is in "security."

Pilot Boyce Stradley said a young man and woman identified as Meeks and Miss McKinney paid for a plane ride over Gastonia and then the man pulled a pistol and demanded to be taken to Cuba.

Stradley said when they arrived in Havana, the two hijackers were taken into custody by a group of soldiers and that he was allowed to fly home the next day.

Penn Central Petition Symbol Of Futility

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Few problems have commanded the time, brains, courage, patience and sheer physical energy of so many Americans during the past decade as have the problems of the railroads. But it's just been so many words.

The proceedings of the Interstate Commerce Commission can be measured by the ton or by the billions of words. Commuters have been screaming their heads off. And labor and management have been berating each other regularly.

But how much good has been accomplished?

The bankruptcy petition of the Penn Central, which was to lead the way out of the tunnel, symbolizes the futility of talk. Merger. Penn Central promised, would mean better service for customers and more profits for stockholders.

Neither has come, of course. And now the labor-management battle is about to erupt again, commuters are being hauled on dilapidated cars and the industry is no nearer to solving its financial problems than it was a decade ago.

It isn't that the railroads haven't hoped to do better. The rhetoric of the industry has always had more than a pinch of imagination. There seems to have been an attitude that if there were problems today let's talk about tomorrow.

One industry magazine that never lost its enthusiasm for talking about the "fabulous future," suggested what the real problem might be when it concluded an article by quoting an old-line railroad man:

"Fabulous future? Yes, I guess it will be—if we start working on it now, and I mean right now."

The Association of American Railroads has contributed its share of talk. It developed a brochure that few rail customers would recognize as real. Its title: "Railroads Unlimited America's Modern Transportation Miracle."

Thomas Goodfellow, president of AAR, has been inclined to talk about how "railroads are moving at rising speed into the cybernetics age." His predecessor, Daniel Loomis set the pace. We are, he said, on "the threshold of another golden age of service to mankind ..."

Stock market analysts have talked it up as much as anyone. Less than 18 months ago Equity Research Associates began a 21-page summation of the Penn Central by commenting that it was "a giant learning to walk."

It recommended accumulation at the existing price of $60, commenting, "The company's performance probably will never be worse than right now, which makes right now an attractive time to buy ..."

And so the talk goes on. Commuters gripe but offer no real solutions. The federal government talks about the national security aspect of railroads but subsidizes other modes. And railroadmen dream of the future.

And what lies in the future? For one thing, the big cargo-carrying jets. They could, said Stuart Saunders, former Penn Central chairman, be "the last straw" for rail freight service.

The solution, he said, was for Congress to permit rail companies to own other forms of transportation. Under present law, railroads cannot own trucks, airlines or barge companies.

And what if this permission is not forthcoming from Congress? There is, Saunders said, "no alternative to nationalization of our railroads in the not too distant future."

Road Is Plowed By Operator

POINT ROBERTS, Wash. (AP) — An irate grader operator from Burnaby, B.C., plowed up a road Monday, bashed in the side of a police car, then barged across the U.S.-Canadian border in a fusillade of police bullets, authorities reported.

Police on both sides of the border later pieced together the details of the incident and gave this account:

The grader operator, Ernest R. Astells, 40, crossed the border into Point Roberts to collect $680 from contractor Philip Sopow for work done on 1,000 feet of blacktop road.

"I told him his work had been unsatisfactory and I had to bring in another contractor from Vancouver to do the work over again," said Sopow. The grader operator told Sopow he had a grader parked outside and would tear up the road if he wasn't paid.

Sopow later told authorities he thought it was a bluff, but telephoned Deputy Sheriff Chad Caswell, who arrived just as the grader started gouging holes in the road.

Caswell parked his car in front of the grader which plowed ahead, taking a chunk out of the car. More police arrived.

The grader then headed for Canada, pursued by police firing shots at the machine's big tires in a futile effort to halt it.

The grader lumbered past Canadian customs officers and into Tsawassen, B.C.

Contacted by a newsman, Astells verified the account given by authorities but declined to discuss the incident.

No charges were filed, since the offense is nonextraditable, authorities said. They estimated damage to the police cruiser at $600.

Costs Of Gum Are Increased

NEW YORK (AP) — Now there's even more reason not to talk while the flavor lasts—chewing gum costs have risen.

"Nickel gum has been a nickel for so long," lamented a Beech Nut, Inc. spokesman Monday as he told of a pack's suggested retail price rise to six cents.

He said increased raw material and labor costs have pushed the wholesale price of a pack of 20 packs from 60 to 80 cents.

The American Chicle Co., manufacturer of Chicklets, recently announced a similar price hike.

McMillan Is Winner In South Carolina Primary

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBIA (AP) — Seventy-two-year-old Rep. John L. McMillan, chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee, won Democratic renomination to a 17th consecutive two-year term Tuesday in a runoff primary election with racial overtones and charges of voting irregularities.

McMillan, the dean of the South Carolina congressional delegation, piled up an almost 3-to-1 majority over 38-year-old Negro physician Dr. Claud Stephens of the small farming community of Kingstree.

Unofficial but complete returns from all of the 195 precincts in the 6th Congressional District gave McMillan 45,918 votes to Stephens' 18,633. The primary agricultural district consists of nine counties in the northeastern part of the state. The turnout was about 12,000 more than in the first Democratic primary June 9, when McMillan failed by only 543 votes to gain a majority over three opponents, two whites, one black.

Dr. Stephens was the second high man in the first primary and called for a runoff.

A few days before the election, members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), and workers from the United Citizens party, an all-black political unit organized recently in this Deep South state, moved into the district to campaign for the Negro doctor.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, president of SCLC, toured the nine-county area that reaches from the tobacco-rich lands of the Pee Dee River basin to the resort beaches of the Atlantic Ocean.

Hosea Williams, a SCLC vice president from Atlanta, Ga., was on hand and called for a heavy Negro turnout to give Stephens the chance to become the first black congressman from South Carolina since Reconstruction more than 100 years ago.

And it was Williams who said ballots marked for McMillan were found on the eve of the election at the home of a Negro at Atlantic Beach in Horry County.

Although the turnout was heavier this time around, it appeared to be the whites who went to the polls in greater numbers, not the blacks.

White registered voters outnumber Negroes in the district 90,000 to 43,000.

McMillan, from Florence, lost only a handful of precincts. He carried all but one county, Williamsburg, Dr. Stephens' home county, and her the vote was a 4,035-4,035 tie.

Nothing official arose from the charges of voting irregularities.

Williams said the Justice Department had been asked to provide poll watchers in the district, or delay the vote counting until after a federal investigation.

The Justice Department said late Tuesday it had not received the requests.

A Federal Bureau of Investigation spokesman in Columbia said the agency had received the SCLC complaint, but declined comment.

And a Democratic election official in Horry County said he was sure the ballots in question were "nothing more than sample ballots."

McMillan faces two opponents in the November general election—Republican Ed Baskin, a Lee County farmer, and Heyward Morris of Andrews, representing the segregationist South Carolina Independent Party.

A white political observer in Florence County said a few hours before the polls closed:

Many whites wanted to vote for Dr. Stephens. They wanted him in Congress. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference

McCormack To Offer Testimony

NEW YORK (AP) — House Speaker John McCormack has agreed to testify July 2 at the federal trial of his suspended administrative aide, Martin Sweig, on charges of conspiring at influence peddling and with lying to a grand jury.

Sweig's co-defendant, lobbyist-lawyer Nathan Voloshen, has pleaded guilty to both charges.

The announcement that McCormack, 79-year-old Massachusetts Democrat, would take the stand was made at the end of Tuesday's session of the trial in U.S. District Court by U.S. Atty. Whitney North Seymour Jr.

destroyed all of that.

In Horry County, where the voting irregularities were charged a voter told The Associated Press, "This time it was a racial vote, the whites with McMillan, the blacks with Stephens. In the first primary it wasn't this way at all."

McMillan carried Horry County 7,587 to 1,350.

Williams, in an interview with The Associated Press, said, "We helped Dr. Stephens; we didn't hurt him. We planted a seed that may bring a crop in the elections ahead."

"We found politics of bigotry and hatred. We found a political dictatorship set up by Rep. McMillan. We uncovered a lot of wrong doings. We were surprised to find the same injustices here that we found in Mississippi and in the heart of Alabama."

Dr. Stephens, who throughout the campaign asked voters to decide "on ability, not color," did not turn away from the help offered by the SCLC. But neither

Mrs. Johnson Has Accident

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson faces two minor traffic charges as the result of a two-car smashup.

A policeman handed tickets alleging failure to yield right of way and failure to display a driver's license to an escorting Secret Service man after the collision Tuesday.

No one was injured. A policeman said the right rear door and fender of Mrs. Johnson's car were damaged and estimated repairs would cost $800 to $900. Damage to the other car was estimated at $150.

The accident occurred near the home of Mrs. Johnson's daughter Mrs. Patrick Nugent.

er did he welcome it with open arms.

McMillan did little active campaigning. He counted on his experience in Congress and his vice chairmanship of the Agriculture Committee, a major benefit in this farming area, to pull him through.

It did just that. Even Williams admitted "Some black leaders in this district are aligned with McMillan."

The SCLC leaders, labeled McMillan one of the "most 10 unwanted politicians" in the nation.

Abernathy said McMillan had consistently opposed civil rights legislation and "this clearly demonstrates the incumbent does not love the people. The time has come to elect a representative that will represent all the people, black and white."

The race, however, was never in doubt.

Selfishness Is Not True Love

Nora's questions highlight the excessive modern stress on sexuality and a girl's "measurements." Instead, true love is based on charm and unselfish concern for the other person's best interests. So use the "Sweetheart Tests" below to distinguish between animal magnetism versus true love!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.D.

CASE N-541: Nora W., aged 19, is a smart coed.

"Dr. Crane," she asked during a forum discussion at her college, "how did the girls 50 years ago ever attract dates?"

"For they didn't wear mini-skirts in those days nor try to show off their perfect Hollywood 'measurements'."

"Why, my grandmother said in her day they even tried to flatten their bust with tight bands!"

"Yet nowadays it seems all that interests a boy is what is below a girl's neck!"

"So is that why statistics show 50 percent of teen-age marriages end in divorce by the 5th wedding anniversary?"

Nora is wisely showing the trend nowadays toward crass sexuality in contrast to charming personality.

Modern girls could wear blank face masks and still rate the erotic attention of men just because of their pornographic display of their legs and bust.

As a result, teen-agers now rush into marriage, due in large part to the fact the girls have "baited" the boys into a hypnotic sexual trance.

But such a trance can disappear in one night!

And the 50 percent divorce rate among teen-agers shows the high incidence of animal magnetism in producing modern marriages.

True love differs from sexual infatuation in one very crucial manner.

For in true love, you are most concerned with the best interests of the other sweetheart.

But in physical attraction (animal magnetism) you are concerned with your own sensual satisfaction!

Thus, when a high school girl urges her classmate to run away and have a quickie marriage, she obviously is not experiencing true love.

For she is old enough to realize that such a teen-age marriage will probably prevent her young husband from ever going to college or acquiring the trade skills necessary to support a family.

So his best interests decree that he should NOT marry before the age of 21 or later!

Alas, in both types of romantic attraction, the couple experience butterflies in their tummy, palpitation of the heart, a tingling ecstatic feeling, trembling hands and breathless eagerness to be together all the time.

"Dr. Crane," you may then inquire, "how can a person really know if it is true love or merely sexual magnetism?"

Easy! Analyze the point of reference of your regard.

Is the focus primarily on your own enjoyment and self satisfaction or on the welfare and lasting happiness of your companion?

True love is thus unselfish. Animal magnetism is intensely selfish, demanding and illogical.

So send for my 200-point "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, and make sure you pick A-1 quality matrimonial merchandise at the outset.

For there's a wise old adage that you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear!

Use those "Rating Scales" to shatter unwise sexual infatuations!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

West opened the six of spades, the three was played from dummy and when East put up the nine, declarer won the trick with the ten. A diamond was led to the king on which East signaled vigorously with the eight. A

THE PHANTOM

JULIET JONES

THE PHANTOM

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Penn Central railroad loan guarantee, pure and simple, was just too hot a political potato.

Like a bridegroom with second thoughts after a hasty proposal, the Nixon administration left the property-rich but cash-poor railroad waiting at the church door. Without the $200 million the government promised, the road went bankrupt.

The questions remaining: Why did the administration make the promises? Why did it back out? What happened in between?

"I think one of the problems was that this is an administration with a lot of big business people and a lot of bankers," says a top congressional aide in the thick of the negotiations.

"They run to the thinking of being in the business community, rather than the government community. They felt there was nothing better they could do for the country than help out banks and get them out of trouble."

The administration backed away from the loan, the aide says, because it "could never have defended the decision publicly. Apparently cooler heads prevailed. There was the chance that the government would lose sizeable sums."

And a top official, who helped carry the ball for the White House, says "What really scared people was the potential for political mischief."

On one side was the administration with its friends, old ties and sympathies to big business—a vulnerable target on that score alone. On the other was a Congress, prodded by an unwavering Texas Democrat, unwilling to be criticized for possibly tossing away $200 million—or maybe more—in an election year.

According to the congressional aide, the decision was made in the high councils of government to help out the Penn Central "and then they went looking for a law to grant a loan under."

The vehicle decided on was the 1950 Defense Production Act, which provided a small or medium contractor could get a government guarantee to buy supplies necessary to carry out a specific contract. The act had never been used to bail out an ailing company.

The administration official explains the concern was that bankruptcy and receivership could disrupt the already inefficient operations of the Pennsy with serious repercussions on the financial market.

"The whole thing came up suddenly," he said. "The railroad began talking to Kennedy and Volpe in May."

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy was at the May 7-10 gathering of the Business Council at Hot Springs, Va. Another who was there was Stuart T. Saunders, a Kennedy friend and Penn Central board chairman until fired later in the month.

Banking and railroad officials also met with Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe that month.

Despite wide knowledge in the financial community about the railroad's troubles, the efforts of bankers with the government went publicly unreported until June 9. At that time the White House called in a number of congressional leaders into the office of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott.

"They (the administration) arrived with large flip charts," says the congressional aide. "It was like a corporate session. They described the plight of the railroad and the seriousness of it and told of plans for the loan guarantee."

The aide says Texas Democrat Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, expressed serious concern over whether the Defense Department had the authority to lead the money. "To the Banking and Currency Committee it seemed a weird interpretation of the act as well as all the other questions it raised."

The administration official says Patman raised few questions at the meeting.

The official adds that "we went into the whole thing with a high degree of confidence we would get legislation" from Congress for $750 million loan guarantee authority to help the Penn Central and other railroads. The Defense Department would have been let off its $200 million hook once that authority was obtained.

"The whole thing hinged on the fact that the Defense Production Act would only be used for a short period," the official says, "on the theory it was the only power that the administration had."

"We had a definite interest in keeping the railroad running." Confidence that Congress would buy the package, the official says, was prompted in part by the fact that Congress once before had set up such a fund—for the Interstate Commerce Commission between 1958 and 1963.

The Penn Central got a $24 million loan under the old ICC authority.

But Patman was still concerned. On June 11 he wrote Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, "the guarantee of hundreds of millions of dollars of capital to this corporation appears very risky under the figures presented by the administration...."

He told the board he wanted a report on its procedures in its "investigation of the credit-worthiness of the Pennsy. And, Patman announced, his committee would hold hearings into the matter the week of June 22."

But on June 17, a committee staffer says, "we learned they had completed it (the loan investigation) and a courier was on a plane from New York with the papers, flying here to be met by someone from the Fed."

"He was going to meet him at the airport and drive to the Pentagon. It was really cloak and daggerish. They were continuing with the process despite the planned investigation. With the flight from New York we felt they were speeding things up to get around the investigation."

That night, Patman and five other members of his committee wired Navy Secretary John Chafee, urging "that you delay any final action on this matter until after the House Banking and Currency Committee has had a chance to thoroughly investigate this proposal."

At 8 a.m. the following morning, Patman telephoned David M. Packard, deputy secretary of defense, trying to persuade Packard to reconsider the plan.

The next day, June 19th, also at 8 a.m., Packard called back to say he had considered the proposal and felt he had to go ahead. Patman said he would rue the day.

That morning, at a committee hearing, Patman asked Comptroller Elmer Staats to investigate the entire matter. Staats promised the General Accounting Office would begin that afternoon.

There were continuous high level meetings among administration officials that day.

"The growing feeling that afternoon was that the political aspects began to outweigh the positive asset," says an administration official. "What really scared people was the potential for political mischief. We knew they'd make hay out of connections and bankers' interests, the involvement of Nixon's old law firm."

At 4:40 p.m. Patman again got a call from Packard. The deal was off. An announcement would be made shortly.

"In the light of growing uncertainty regarding the enactment of legislation," the Pentagon announcement said, it was decided not to go ahead with the guarantee. The White House was aware of the decision, a Defense Department spokesman said.

Durham Board Changes Plan

DURHAM (AP) — The Board of Education voted unanimously Tuesday night to change its plans for desegregating city schools in September.

The board reached its decision behind closed doors and refused to reveal what the changes were.

The board announced on June 14 a desegregation plan which would have left two high schools with predominantly black student populations. It is under an order from U. S. District Court in Greensboro to submit a new plan by June 29.
