Three People Die, 11 Injured In County Traffic Accidents

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Three persons died and another 11 persons were injured, one of them critically, in two traffic collisions on Pitt County highways over the Fourth of July weekend.

The first of the fatal crashes occurred at 11:45 p.m. Saturday on rural paved road 1725 five miles East of Ayden, between Helen's Cross Roads and Coxville. That wreck took the lives of two persons and injured another six individuals.

Killed in the wreck, according to Highway Patrolman F. L. Owens, were Pete Dudley Jr., 44, of 1200 Railroad St., Greenville — the driver of one of the two cars involved — and a passenger in his car, Eunice Clark Williams, 49, of 310 Dudley St., Greenville.

In critical condition at Pitt Memorial Hospital is Eddie James Brock, 46, of Route 1, Grifton, the driver of the second car involved in the fatal crash, who was alone in his car.

The other five persons injured were passengers in the Dudley car, Ptl. Owens reported.

According to the trooper, the Brock car apparently crossed the center line of the road and collided head-on with the Dudley vehicle.

The Dudley car came to rest in a roadside ditch, while the Brock vehicle overturned in the center of the highway.

According to Ptl. Owens, a car driven by Thomas Lee Graham, 23, of Red Banks, N. J. rounded a curve and struck both the Dudley and Brock vehicles, and injured a passenger in his car. No charges have been placed in the mishap pending further investigation.

Both the Dudley and Brock vehicles were listed as total losses and total value of the two old model vehicles was set at $700. Damage to the Graham car was placed at $500.

William L. Ramsey, 75, died of injuries he received in a 6:15 collision Sunday, five miles West of Greenville on U.S. 264.

According to Patrolman W. L. Thames, Ramsey, who suffered multiple injuries including head injuries, was a passenger in a car driven by Charles Wallace Jackson, 69 of 1209 Fort Bragg Rd., Fayetteville.

The Jackson car, Trooper Thames reported, collided almost head-on with a car driven by Joel Herbert Franklin, 27 of 3000 Golden Rd.

According to Ptl. Thames, the Franklin car was traveling eastward on U.S. 264 and had passed one car and was attempting to get back into his proper traffic lane when his vehicle skidded into the path of the west-bound Jackson car.

Both cars were listed as total losses and damage to the cars was estimated to total $7,000.

In addition to the two drivers and Ramsey, two other passengers in the Jackson vehicle were injured.

Franklin was charged by investigators with careless and reckless driving and manslaughter.

North Viets Expected Launch Strong Offensive

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key U.S. officials expect the North Vietnamese to launch a strong battlefield offensive before September to demonstrate their strength.

The move, authorities said, would be North Vietnam's method of saying its strength was not diminished by the two-month allied campaign that destroyed an estimated 60 per cent of the enemy's supplies stored in Cambodia.

There was no firm intelligence estimate of what form a new initiative might take. But military experts suggested the possibility of widespread rocket and mortar attacks against South Vietnamese cities and military bases accompanied, perhaps, by ground assaults designed to disrupt pacification.

If an enemy offensive should develop in July or August, it would come about the time the latest round of U.S. troop withdrawals was gaining momentum.

Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander in chief Pacific, is opening a five-day conference today at his Honolulu headquarters to plan the specifics of the withdrawal of 50,000 more U.S. troops from Vietnam by mid-October.

Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, is reported to have recommended a package which would pull out some 19,000 Marines, 17,000 Army troops, 10,000 airmen and about 3,000 Navy men.

There were indications at least one regiment of the 1st Marine Division and possibly the entire division may be brought out. This, in effect, would virtually end the Marine combat role in Vietnam and leave the remaining ground fighting to the U.S. Army.

Some sources have said they anticipate U.S. military leaders, who all along have favored a slower withdrawal pace, might once again urge a delay in removing further American forces.

However, top Pentagon civilian officials indicate they are unlikely to go along with any slowdown partly because of deepening budget pressures to cut war costs.

Despite top-level U.S. military reluctance to trim American ground combat power, civilian officials say military leaders recognize the budget realities and are unlikely to press very hard for a slower withdrawal. Abrams considers the period between now and autumn as a critical time in the turnover of ground combat responsibilities to the South Vietnamese.

After the mid-October date for announced withdrawal of another 50,000 American troops, the U.S. is likely to reassess the performance of the South Vietnamese to determine whether U.S. forces should be trimmed at the planned rate. Plans call for a reduction in U.S. strength in Vietnam by a total of 150,000 men by next May.

As of last week, American troops in South Vietnam totaled 417,000 men, only about 10,000 below what it was in late April when President Nixon announced his intention to bring back the additional 150,000 by next spring.

$500,000 Loss

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C. (AP)—Morehead City Fire Chief Edward Guthrie estimates the fire that ravaged three center city businesses Saturday night did about $500,000 in damage.

Guthrie said the three-hour blaze destroyed a drug store, a newsstand and a clothing store. But he added six other businesses in the same block escaped damage despite strong winds that threatened to spread the flames.

"I made a thorough investigation today and we didn't even have smoke damage," Guthrie said Sunday.

The blaze broke out in the Morehead City Drug Store, where owner Bobby Matthews said a fuse box short circuited and sent arcs of electricity into the air.

Matthews said buyers were in his store at the time, but that all escaped before the flames took over. Guthrie said his men also escaped injury, with only lacerations and two cases of men overcome by smoke reported.

Some Tobacco Buyers Favor Fewer Marts

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP)—An apparent move by some tobacco buying companies to force a reduction in the number of auction markets and the upcoming quota vote for flue-cured growers are expected to bring discussion at the annual convention of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association, which began today.

About 150 tobacco warehouse operators from the five states which grow flue-cured tobacco were expected for sessions through Thursday.

Lead-off speaker at the first business session Tuesday will be Horace R. Korngay of Washington, former North Carolina congressman who now is president of the Tobacco Institute, Inc.

Other speakers Tuesday will include John D. Palmer of Washington and Wilson, president of Tobacco Associates; Frank B. Snodgrass of Washington, vice president and managing director, Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Export Association; William O'Flaherty of Richmond, Va., executive director of the Tobacco Tax Council; and W. H. W. Anderson of Raleigh, managing director of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee.

In their closing session Wednesday, the warehousemen are expected to urge growers to vote for a continuation of flue-cured production controls July 16.

A move by one tobacco buying firm to withhold buyers from 16 small flue-cured markets has led some warehousemen to fear an effort will be made to force consolidation of markets. The Bright Belt group is expected to voice strong opposition to such a move.

Developers' Option On Bald Head Will Be Expiring Today

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C. (AP)—The option held by private developers to buy Bald Head Island runs out today but the island's present owner expects them to renew it.

Frank Sherrill, who reportedly is asking $5.5 million for the lush semitropical island at the mouth of the Cape Fear River near Southport, said Sunday he still hopes the Carolina Cape Fear Corp. will exercise its option to buy the disputed island.

"I believe they're going to keep their rights up, but I can't tell you anything," he said. "I wish I could tell you more."

Gov. Bob Scott has been fighting a running battle with Carolina Cape Fear over the island's future.

The governor and his administration have maintained the area's unique ecology is worth preserving and have fought for public ownership of the island, with plans to create a park and nature laboratory while leaving the 12,000 acres in a natural state.

But William R. Henderson, chairman of the development company, maintains his plans to build tourist facilities will leave the island unharmed. His company has gone ahead with its project for a $288 million resort.

Henderson refused last week to discuss the terms of his option. But he predicted his company would have an announcement "of some magnitude" within the month on the future of the island.

Scott has formed a nonprofit foundation to raise money for public purchase of the land. A national conservation group, meanwhile, has offered to put up the money to tide the state over until Scott's group can gather the funds.

Number Undetermined No Survivors In Jetliner's Wreckage

TORONTO (AP) — More than 20 Americans were among 108 persons killed Sunday in the crash of a Canadian jetliner landing in Toronto.

The Air Canada Super-DC8 crashed in a field about four miles north of Toronto International Airport after attempting to land for a stopover on a flight from Montreal to Los Angeles. All aboard were killed.

Of 89 identified victims, 23 were from addresses in the United States. There were 75 paying passengers, most of them from Quebec and California; two infants; 22 vacationing Air Canada employees and a crew of nine.

An airline spokesman said the plane had a capacity of 198 passengers and that on Saturday or Monday "it would have been full."

It was the first major crash at Toronto's international airport and the second worst in Canadian aviation history. The worst was on Nov. 29, 1963, when another Air Canada DC8 crashed 20 miles north of Montreal, killing all 118 persons aboard.

Queen Elizabeth II, arriving later Sunday at Frobisher Bay to start a tour of the Canadian North and Manitoba, expressed to Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau her "most sincere sympathy" for the families of the victims.

The airliner crashed at 8:10 a.m. after touching down at Toronto and then lifting off again to make another landing attempt. Ground control officials and police said the pilot radioed that one of his engines was on fire, and the control tower ordered him to gain altitude and jettison fuel.

W. M. House of the federal Department of Transport, who is directing the investigation into the crash, confirmed that there had been a fire but said it had not yet been determined whether it occurred before, during, or after the landing attempt.

The plane approached the runway in near-perfect flying weather. It rolled a short dis—some witnesses said it bounced off the runway—and then lifted off again.

While it was over the runway, the outside right engine dropped in flames to the ground. The plane was trailing flames and smoke and dropping pieces of debris as it left the airport area. Just before the crash, the inside right engine and a 15-foot length of wing fell 100 yards apart into farm fields.

The big jet crashed into a field 100 yards from a farmhouse, leaving a scorched hole 35 feet wide and up to 7 feet deep. Sytze Burgsma, who lives in the farmhouse with his wife and 10 children, said the impact shook the house and broke windows. He said he shouted at his family to stay inside, then ran to the field "as that yellow insulation stuff fell like snow."

Burgsma said that when he reached the crash site, "everything was silent except for a hissing sound coming out of the hole."

Chilly Note For Kosygin

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romania opened a downgraded visit by Kremlin leaders today with sharp statements against interference of countries in each other's affairs.

Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer, No. 2 man of President Nicolae Ceausescu's regime, voiced a reminder of Bucharest's independent policies only minutes after Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived with a delegation to sign a new treaty of friendship with Romania.

"Every people has the right to solve its own problems by itself without interference from outside," Maurer said in his airport speech welcoming Kosygin. The Russians came to sign the new 20-year treaty negotiated in Moscow last May by Ceausescu. Renewal of the existing 1948 pact had been postponed since 1968.

Commission Begins Biennial Tour To Write N.C. Budget

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Advisory Budget Commission visited state ports facilities today as they began a four-week tour of state institutions and agencies to learn their capital improvement needs.

The biennial visit to the institutions and agencies is part of the process that will wind up when the commission presents its spending recommendations to the 1971 General Assembly.

After inspecting the port facilities, the group went to Ft. Fisher and the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. A plane is being used between the more distant spots.

From Wilmington they went on to Morehead City to visit port facilities, the commercial and sports fisheries division, Fort Macon, and Beaufort. They went to Elizabeth City State University and at 8 p.m. were scheduled to reach Roanoke Island.

The Tuesday tour starts at Ocracoke Island at 8:15 a.m. and the program for the day calls for visits to Somerset Place at Lake Phelps, historic Bath, the alcoholic rehabilitation center and East Carolina University at Greenville and the Caswell Center at Kinston.

The Wednesday schedule gets under way at Wayne Community College at Goldsboro at 9 a.m. and visits to Cherry Hospital and the O'Berry Center at Goldsboro follow. That afternoon the group will be at the Eastern N.C. School for the Deaf at Wilson and the Richard T. Fountain School at Rocky Mount.

The budgeteers will be in Raleigh Thursday for visits to Dorothea Dix Hospital and the Governor Morehead School and in the afternoon will hear a presentation by President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

MOREHEAD CITY FIRE . . . Firefighters play water on the burning shells of what were four business firms on Morehead City's main street Saturday night. The fire, which began about 6:45 p.m., was fanned by 35-40 miles-per-hour winds. Firefighters from the Fort Macon Coast Guard station, Atlantic Beach, Beaufort and Cherry Point aided Morehead firemen in battling the fire. The fire started from an electrical short circuit in the Morehead City Drugstore and spread to a news stand, Morehead City News; to a photography shop owned by Reginald Lewis, and to Leary's, a men's clothing store. Firemen were still pumping water into the smoldering buildings Sunday morning.

Public Housing And Patrons Undergoing 'Own' Depression

By GUY A. GOODINE
TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Public housing, initially designed for the working class of the Depression era, is suffering from a depression of its own and a majority of the nation's 2 million public housing patrons are suffering right along with it.

"Of our country's 2,600 public housing authorities, 13 of them are on the brink of bankruptcy," says James Clouse, 44-year-old director of the Tulsa Housing Authority.

Clouse, a native of Fort Smith, Ark., has been in the public housing business 23 years, from California to the East Coast.

He attributes the plight of public housing projects to their inability to charge enough rent to offset expenses—maintenance, personnel and social work.

"One of our biggest problems," he says, "would have to be a social one. People don't know how to keep house. They have to be taught to take care of their apartments."

"Vandalism is another problem.

"The majority of our tenants are unmarried mothers with three or four children," Clouse explains. "Unsupervised kids cause a lot of vandalism. Not much theft, but broken windows, doors, things like that."

The Tulsa projects are not faced with many problems of the older public housing authorities, Clouse says. The project is only two years old. It still has enough money to keep up its buildings and grounds. It has not had the rent strikes "or refrigerators out the windows" some projects have had to contend with.

In St. Louis, for instance, rent strikes, violence and vandalism have left that city's public housing with an image that makes other authorities shudder, Clouse says.

Clouse thinks there is a definite need for public housing despite the ills that befall the administrators.

Shows Example

As an example of its worth, Clouse cites statistics from a survey taken during 1964-65. The survey says in that period, 55 per cent of those who moved into public housing later moved out to rent an above-standard apartment or buy a home.

He says the exposure to public housing—above poverty level—for some is their first taste of anything approaching a livable environment. The experience, he says, prompts those families who can to better themselves.

Clouse sees many problems ahead for his authority as well as the others.

The Nixon administration agrees and Housing Secretary George Romney has proposed public housing tenants be allowed to form groups to buy the houses they live in.

"Another solution," Clouse offers, "would be for private developers to share some of the responsibility. There are over 21,700 people in Tulsa alone who qualify for public housing. We'll never be able to reach that many with our project."

Tulsa has 1,110 units ready for occupancy. It is building more but those are coming under fire from residents contending the Authority has exceeded its authority to build or buy projects without public hearings.

"If developers would build some $16,000 homes, there is a ready market. Many of our tenants could afford them and they could be built. There are plenty of vacancies in apartment (complexes) in Tulsa renting for $200 a month. There are none available for the city's poor. Developers could afford to build some and they should accept some of the responsibility," the director contends.

Clouse says he has solved the vandalism problem and he feels he is on the way to coping with the social problems.

"We've instituted a security patrol," he explained, "but a different kind of one.

"Our city police get out of their cars and walk a beat among the projects. They get to know the kids and the kids get to know them."

"Children—especially unsupervised, fatherless ones, have to have someone they can look up to. We've discovered the 'Big Brother' approach works well."

Eastern Music Festival Begins At Greensboro

GREENSBORO—Four nights of musical fare in the Eastern Music Festival will be available to the public beginning tonight and continuing through Thursday night.

Included on Tuesday, is the Eastern Symphony Orchestra under the direction of East Carolina University's Robert Hause, which will feature three works—Mozart's "Symphony No. 29," and "Piano Concerto No. 15 in B Flat" with Samuel Dilworth—Leslie at the piano; and Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 6."

All concerts begin at 8:00 p.m. and are being held in Dana Auditorium on the Guilford College campus. Single admissions are $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students through college age.

Army's Advertising Chief Would 'Cry A Lot' If It Goes Volunteer

By JULIE McCABE
Newport News Times-Herald
Written For The AP

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—While a lot of young fellows might be jubilant if the Army was put on a voluntary basis, there's one gal who says she'd "go home, have a drink and cry a lot" if it ever happens.

She's Mrs. Marjorie (Margo) Reidinger of Hampton. And she's chief of the advertising division for the U.S. Army Recruiting Command.

In that post she works in conjunction with a national advertising agency and supervises the preparation of magazine advertisements, brochures and radio and television commercials. Actually, she runs an advertising campaign for the Army.

As a project supervisor, she travels with photographers and film crews and makes all the arrangements for picture taking. "My time is split about 50-50 between the office and traveling," Mrs. Reidinger said.

Her job has taken her to such places as the Virgin Islands, as well as military installations throughout the country. Once, after filming some troops in the field at Ft. Knox, Ky., a member of the tank crew asked her to ride back to the post with them instead of in the jeep.

Having never ridden in a tank, Mrs. Reidinger's curiosity got the best of her.

"The driver was having a real ball; mowing down trees he wasn't supposed to, and running off the road into ditches. And I ended up in the hospital with three cracked ribs," confessed the adventuresome ad lady.

And adventuresome she is. While taking movies of skydivers, her long held desire to jump from an airplane got the best of her and, just as he was ready to take off into the wild blue yonder, the jumpmaster grabbed her by the feet and said "no go." "I'd still like to try it someday," she said.

Mrs. Reidinger started working for the Air Force 20 years ago when her Air Force husband died. She then worked for the Army as an editorial clerk in advertising.

Mrs. Reidinger is a high school graduate but has moved up through the ranks to a position of GS 12. How did she do it? "I was at work many a night until 10 p.m. I showed an interest in the work being done. I would wander around other areas of the office during my break and lunch time. None of the workers knew it, but I really picked their brains. I learned a lot about radio, TV, printing and the financial aspects of advertising."

"We have to work awfully hard, but you meet interesting people and have a lot of fun," Mrs. Reidinger said. One of these interesting people was an Army captain just back from Viet Nam. He was in charge of some troops at Ft. Bragg, N.C. that were to be used for pictures for magazine advertisements.

Once out in the field, Mrs. Reidinger decided she wanted the men in a rubber raft out in the middle of a pond. When the picture was snapped, the young captain was knee-deep in muddy water. "He was furious, she said. "Why didn't you tell me we were going to be in the water?"

"I have on a brand new pair of boots just for you and your photographer," he yelled.

She felt badly about it but was glad to have her picture and be out of the mud herself. He asked her if she wished to go back to his office to clean up. Once there, the captain's temper cooled off a bit-enough anyway, to ask Mrs. Reidinger to the Officers' Club for a drink.

GAMBLING CRACKDOWN

HONG KONG (UPI)—The Royal Hong Kong Police made 9,180 raids to curb illegal gambling during the first three months of 1970 and prosecuted 12,182 persons for gambling offenses.

The number of raids was 461 more than the last quarter of 1969 and prosecutions increased by 2,625. The only kinds of gambling legalized in Hong Kong are horseracing and mahjong.

Two Mishaps On Saturday

An estimated $1,200 damage resulted from an 11:49 p.m. mishap here Saturday at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Maxwell Street that involved a car driven by Danny Lee Hardy, 17 of Route 1, Grimesland and a truck operated by William Floyd Roach, 26-year-old of Route 3, Greenville.

Police, who charged Roach with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, set damage to the Hardy car at $1,000 and estimated damage to the truck at $200.

John Gorman Allen, 67 of 1001 West Fourth St. was charged with failing to keep a proper lookout while backing after his car reportedly struck a pedestrian on Davis Street, 80 feet North of the War Street intersection about 9:25 p.m. Saturday.

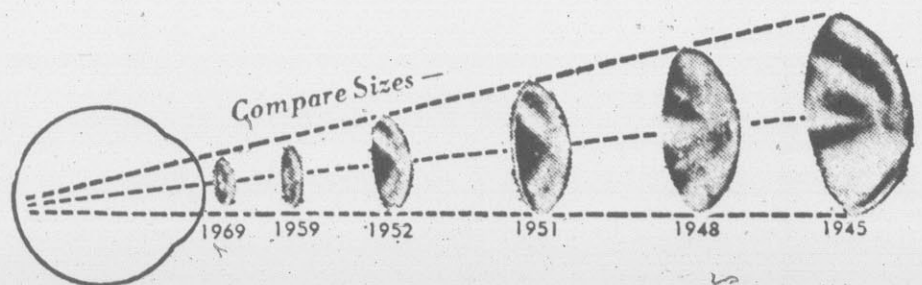

Officers identified the pedestrian as Mollie Rawlins, 67 of 305 Davis St. She was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries she received in the mishap.

Two Arrested In Farmville

FARMVILLE—Two arrests were made in Farmville during the July 4 weekend. The first occurred when policeman J. C. Bryant served a warrant at 1:40 a.m. on Mrs. Marjorie Streeter, charging her with aggravated assault against James Dupree. Mrs. Streeter has been released under bond. Dupree is reported to be recovering well from four knife wounds.

At 2:50 a.m. Sunday, policeman Bruce Morrison arrested Willie Ray Moye on Cotton Street. Moye is charged with being drunk and disorderly and with resisting arrest and assault on a police officer. He has been released under bond.

Couple Exchanges Vows When She Dies, Should Pet Follow? In Saturday Ceremony

RALEIGH — Miss Barbara Louise Johnson and Robert Ingram Barnes Jr. were united in marriage on Sunday at 4:00 p.m. at the Highland United Methodist Church here.

Officiating at the ceremony were the Rev. Albert F. Fisher of Goldsboro and the Rev. Thomas E. Loftis of Fayetteville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Edna Busby, organist, and Mrs. Thomas E. Loftis, soloist, who sang "O Lord Most Holy," "God Is My Shepherd" and "O Master Let Us Walk With Thee" as the wedding prayer. Ray Starling played the trumpet for the processional and recessional.

The church was decorated with an arrangement of mixed white flowers on the Communion table. The pews were marked with bows of white satin ribbon. At the altar were three single candelabra. The outside two were lighted by the ushers before the service. After the exchanging of the marriage vows, the bride and bridegroom lighted the center candle together and extinguished the other two symbolizing their union in marriage.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Edward Johnson of Raleigh, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of imported organza and peau d'ange lace. The slightly raised bodice had a stand up collar, bishop sleeves with peau d'ange lace embellishing the bodice and front of the gown. The full chapel train was edged with lace.

Her headpiece was Camelot styled which was attached to an imported silk English illusion cathedral train. She carried a colonial bouquet of Stephanotis and bride's roses tied with white nylon net and white satin ribbons.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ingram Barnes Sr. of Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Wilma W. Clarke of Ebony, Va., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of Nile green dotted Swiss fashioned with a slightly raised bodice, Victorian neckline, bishop sleeves and gathered skirt. The gown was trimmed with white Venise lace. She wore a matching old-fashioned hat with daisy appliques and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses, mixed white flowers, gold pom poms and belles of Ireland, tied with green satin ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Herbert B. Harris Jr. of Pinetops, Mrs. Henry B. Mays III of Tucker, Ga., Mrs. James E. Strickland of Houston, Tex., and Miss Rebecca Wilson of Durham.

They wore gowns and headpieces identical to the matron of honor. They carried baskets of mixed summer flowers tied with green satin ribbon.

Best man was William H. Paschal of Chapel Hill. Ushers were William T. Barnes Jr. and Russell M. Biggs, both of Washington, D. C., Lee S. Downie of Raleigh, Thomas Angell of Montreal, Canada, John R. Streb and John Allen Tucker, both of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Johnson chose a pastel yellow princess style dress with short sleeves and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige A-line dress with white accessories. Both wore white orchids.

Mrs. Richard J. Williams of Smithfield directed the wedding. Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

The Rev. and Mrs. Willis R. Stevens greeted the guests. The refreshment table was centered with a candelabra and an arrangement of mixed white flowers. A similar arrangement was used on the registering table.

Mrs. W. Harold Daniel and Mrs. Jack Moye Jr., both of Greenville, poured punch. The bride and bridegroom cut the traditional first slice of wedding cake. Mrs. Ralph L. Beaver served cake to the wedding guests.

Mrs. Donald Osbourne presided at the bride's book and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wilson said the good-byes.

For a wedding trip to Charlottesville, Va., the bride changed into a navy plaid A-line dress and jacket with navy accessories. She wore a corsage of white bridal roses lifted from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Pfeiffer College, Misenheimer, and Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn. She is director of Christian Education at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Greenville.

The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is presently doing graduate work there. She is employed with Pitt County schools. The couple will reside in Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Edward Johnson, parents of the bride-elect, entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast at the Holiday Inn on Sunday.

A rehearsal dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Barnes, parents of the bridegroom, at the Holiday Inn following the rehearsal for the wedding party and their guests.

A bridesmaids luncheon was given by Mrs. Edward C. Barker, grandmother of the bride, on Saturday at the College Inn, Raleigh.

The bride presented her attendants with a gift of silver letter openers.

Special guests were the bride's mother and her grandmother, Mrs. Charlotte Johnson.

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is over 80, recently read a book she borrowed from me. In it I found a letter she had written to you but never mailed. My mother is a faithful reader and regards you as a personal friend. I hope you will answer in your column. Her letter:

"Dear Abby: If the traditional three-score-years may be accepted as a natural law, I have already snatched a whole decade. I have but one piece of unfinished business: Suitable disposal of my beloved pet, a cantankerous cat who has been a comfort to me during hours that could have been tedious without his attentive antics. He has warmed the years I have known him.

"If I may, I would like to do this: Should my feline friend live longer than I do, why couldn't he be put gently to sleep, wrapped in his favorite scrap of velvet, and tucked into my casket with me, cremated as I will be, and let the two of us remain cozily together thru eternity?"

FAITHFUL READER"

DEAR FAITHFUL: Let's put it this way. If cats could talk, supposing your cat requested that should he die first, YOU be gently put to sleep and cremated with HIM, that the two of you shall remain cozily together thru eternity. Perhaps you'd agree. But should you desire to linger a little longer among the mortals, you could have your say. Your feline friend cannot. Let nature decide.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are planning our daughter's wedding next month. For the reception we have ordered ham. Among the guests will be a couple who are Jewish. I have been told that most people of the Jewish faith do not eat pork products. My problem: Should I approach these people several weeks before the wedding and ask them if they would prefer some other kind of meat? Or should I ask the caterer to prepare something else for them? Or is there perhaps some other way?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I think your Jewish friends would be embarrassed were you to make an issue of it. Ask the caterer to have a little fish handy. [P. S. The substitutions may run you an extra fin.]

DEAR ABBY: I think the wife who was mad because her husband's office girls gave him a birthday cake was foolishly upset. And her children would not have been hurt if she had taken the right attitude.

She should have said, "How nice! Now Daddy can have TWO birthday cakes. Isn't it lovely that Daddy's office girls think that much of Daddy to have a birthday cake for him at the office?"

My husband is a doctor and his nurses always have a cake for him at the hospital on his birthday, and I think it's great. I still have a cake for him at home.

On our son's first birthday, he had THREE cakes. I baked one for him and so did both of his grandmothers. Nobody was hurt or angry. He had that much more fun blowing out his one little candle three times.

LOVE FROM CLEVELAND

DEAR ABBY: "ALSO HORRIFIED," who was shocked at your approval of a "mamma doll" who gave birth to a "baby doll" said, "A baby being born is beautiful and sacred." I agree.

However, at the end of the letter, the writer stated, "The toy manufacturers owe it to our young folks to keep their toys 'CLEAN'—implying that childbearing is 'dirty.'"

It is this type of hypocrisy, generated by this type of person, which is largely responsible for the confusion and crisis in the field of morality and sex which we see today.

Tea Honors Bride-Elect

Miss Peggy Smith, who will become the bride of David Mobley July 12, was honored Thursday at a tea given by Miss Annie Turner at her home.

The house was decorated throughout with roses and mixed flowers of the season.

Mrs. Mayo J. Rogers poured punch from a table covered with a white handmade cloth.

Miss Marcia Ashworth registered the guests.

Special guests included Mrs. Roy G. Smith and Mrs. J. H. Mobley, mothers of the bridal couple-elect, Mrs. Minnie D.

Mariner, her aunt.

Miss Smith received a carnation corsage and a gift of china in her chosen pattern from the hostess.

Everett-Sasser Vows Said In Double Ring Ceremony

GRIFTON — The First Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Frances Kaye Sasser and William Charles Everett on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. The Rev. William S. Brown officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Nancy Allen, pianist, and Mrs. Evelyn Bass, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James B. Sasser of Grifton and Mrs. W. T. Everett of Ayden and the late Mr. Everett.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of peau d' soie and chantilly lace fashioned with a Juliette collar, full lace sleeves with deep cuffs and button closing. Tiny covered buttons enhanced the front of the natural waistline bodice. The slim skirt was gathered at the waist with narrow folds and lace appliques accented the front. The detachable chapel length train was outlined with lace scallops.

Her four-tiered full length veil fell from an off-face bandeau made of white organza loops interspersed with pink trimmed with seed pearls and lace. Her bouquet was a nosegay of bride's roses with pink satin loops and ribbons.

Miss Gail Sasser of Grifton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pink and green pastel flowered striped dotted Swiss gown fashioned like the bride's gown. The waistline was accented with a moss pink satin ribbon sash which fell from the back in a bow to the bottom of the skirt. Her headpiece was a tiered pink illusion shoulder length veil attached to three white silk daisies with pink velvet centers. She carried a nosegay of sprayed pom poms with satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Jo Lynn Futch of Wilmington, Mary Ellen Jackson of Goldsboro, sister of the bridegroom, Judy Davenport of Ayden, Grey Carter of Grifton, Beverly Howell of Goldsboro and Janet Phillips of Selma, both cousins of the bride. Their gowns were identical to the honor attendants.

Robert Cannon of Ayden was best man. Ushers were Wilbert Jackson of Goldsboro, Carroll McLawhorn of Greenville, Tim Merritt and Donald Braxton, both of Ayden.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall given by the parents of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to Gatlingburg, Tenn., the couple will reside at Rt. 1, Ayden.

The bride is a graduate of Grifton High School and attended Campbell College and Pitt Technical Institute. She is employed by Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Ayden High School, attended N. C. State University and is a graduate of East Carolina University. He is employed by the Stanley Co., New Bern, where he works as an industrial technologist.

Man's Work Taken Away

HINCKLEY, England (WNS) — President George Cook and the 200 male members of his District Trimmers Union have complained that women's legs are not looking as shapely as they should because the job of shaping tights and stockings is being farmed out to lady workers at home. "Skilled men are required to do this job properly," declared Cook.

"What we want is a fair deal for the men who make tights and those who look at them later." He added that his union used to have 450 men as members until the ladies took their jobs away.

Cinderella's Tale

Ever hear the story of Cinderella and the pigskin slipper? In case you haven't, Cinderella was a castle maid. One day, she decided to go to a ball.

She rented a pumpkin colored coach and several horses. But she only rented it for 24 hours. It had to be back by midnight. So when midnight came, she hurriedly left the ball.

In her haste, Cinderella dropped one of her shoes. One of our salesmen at our store named Prince Charming was at the ball. He immediately recognized the shoe as one of our famous HUSH PUPPIES. The Breathing Brushed Pigskin and 12-ounce weight gave it away. Its little heel and wide T-strap identified it as the Serena!

The shoe salesman remembered who had purchased the shoe. He returned it and made Cinderella very happy. Nobody likes to lose a HUSH PUPPIES shoe!

Civic Action Is Self-Help

By BILL LINDAU
The Asheville Courier-Tribune

Civic Action, the U.S. armed forces program to help native civilians in underdeveloped areas, has had its successes but it has had its failures and frustrations, too.

Essentially, Civic Action is self-help. The Americans supply the technical knowledge and instruction; the native people do the work and acquire the knowledge of the Americans.

For example, in Vietnam the problems are posed by the language barrier, unfamiliarity of most Americans with the workings of the Vietnam government, and the short periods American combat units (other than Special Forces) are in specific countryside areas.

These points were made by Lt. Col. Ed Vaughn, a 20-year Army veteran who served four years (1964-68) in Vietnam. Col. Vaughn, 42, is currently director for Air Movements, Institute of Strategic and Stability Operations, at Fort Bragg. The picture he gave of Civic Action efforts contained some gray colors.

Discussing individual programs, he pointed out differences between Special Forces and regular combat units such as the infantry and airborne divisions.

Basically, there's a continuity in Special Forces work which improves chances for success of projects. The Special Forces men generally stay in one area for a comparatively long period. They have a working knowledge of the Vietnamese language. They pull one tour of duty in Vietnam, then return, sometimes for several more tours. They live among the people.

The regular U.S. combat unit moves into an area for a comparatively short period. The combat units are under orders to do Civic Action work. But, of necessity, the projects must be "quick" ones which can be completed while the unit is operating in an area.

The troops of a combat unit live in an Army Camp, separated from the native community. Consequently they do not have the close relationship of Special Forces units with local people.

Lack of familiarity with the workings of the Vietnam government leads to a situation like the following.

An American team from a combat unit finds the local people need a school house. They get together with them, provide the technical knowledge, and the local civilians do the work as in the basic procedure in Civic Action.

However, there's the matter of getting the teachers, the books and furniture for the school house.

The soldiers who have done the job with great dedication and enthusiasm are disappointed because the building stay empty after it's finished. But two years after the school is built it may be going full blast.

The point is that the government needs advance notice that the school is to be built. Then the job of recruiting and training the teachers, contracting for the furniture and books and other instructional materials must be done. All three elements—providing trained teachers, supplying the instructional material and equipment, and building the school, — must be coordinated at the same time.

When Col. Vaughn left Vietnam at the end of 1968, he said, the program was developing more to self-help and away from "give-away."

The U.S. Agency for International Development, under the State Department, has been helping the Vietnamese government in highway and railroad construction and other programs on the broad scale, as well as digging wells, building schools and providing books, and building fish ponds in local communities. AID was working in Vietnam for some time before regular U.S. Troops were committed in 1965.

As the military build-up increased, the military got more and more involved in Civic Action and funds for AID were correspondingly decreased.

Col. Vaughn said AID employed Filipino experts in Civic Action, assigning one to each province. These people, he said, all had college degrees and many had advanced degrees plus a wealth of experience in the Philippines' version of U.S. Civic Action.

AID also employed officers of the Philippines Army for the same purpose, and most of them had advanced degrees plus experience in Civic Action work.

Opinions In Brief

If we'll listen we'll be all right. If we plug our ears and rally mindlessly behind some symbol that we twist into a signal of our intolerance, we'll prove our willingness to pervert America in the supposed attempt to save it. — Louisville Courier Journal.

The complaint that students are not being heard leads one to the conclusion that what some of them want is for others to do as they say. — Orlando, Fla. Sentinel.

Chamber - Merchants Association office.

We cannot over emphasize how important it is that all citizens of Greenville who feel they were missed in the Census canvass make certain that they are counted. The figures affect funds received through the state Powell Bill program for street improvements; they affect apportionment of the State Legislature and the Congressional district, as well as many other programs.

Those who may have been missed should pick up a form, fill it out and return it. The population figures which the 1970 census show will be used for the next ten years.

New Building Will Be A Notable Addition

Contracts have been awarded for the new elementary school to replace Wahl - Coates and its construction should prove of benefit to both the city and the university.

Over all cost of the new facility, not including the land purchased by the city, will be $1,250,000. It is being financed with a state appropriation of $1,150,000 and $100,000 as the city's contribution.

The new building will cost considerably more than most elementary schools, but as a laboratory school it will provide outstanding facilities.

Its construction will also free the present Wahl-Coates building on the ECU campus for use in the university's program.

The new school should be a welcome addition to our local facilities.

Home Front In U.S. Crumbles

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — To prevent the psychologically disastrous fall of Cambodia to the Communists, the unformed military here and in Saigon are starting to pressure President Nixon for a new course that could result in a politically disastrous stretchout of troop withdrawals.

Nobody is proposing that U.S. troops be sent back to Cambodia. Rather, the generals are relying on Southeast Asians — ethnic Cambodian irregulars from Vietnam and Thai troops but mainly the Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN) — to bolster Cambodia's hopeless army.

But these same generals concede that greater use of ARVN units in Cambodia might require U.S. outfits to remain in South Vietnam longer than expected to take up the slack there. Thus, Gen. Creighton Abrams, the commander in Vietnam who never approved of the 150,000-troop cut by next April, is expected to resubmit his arguments—that this pace must be reduced.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, who sold Mr. Nixon on Vietnamization in the first place over the military's serious reservations, will counter in the strongest terms that the withdrawal pace simply cannot be reduced even if Cambodia falls.

Consequently, once again the President must choose between his Secretary of Defense (who cautioned against sending U.S. troops into Cambodia) and the generals (who insisted that ARVN could not do the job alone). To follow the generals this time, however, is scarcely conceivable. Any slowdown in troop withdrawals would destroy the President's credibility with the public, effectively undermine Laird's Vietnamization plan, and trigger resignations of some high-level Pentagon civilians.

The dilemma for Mr. Nixon is that the cost of letting Cambodia fall to the Communists will be substantial in terms of psychological warfare.

From a strictly military standpoint, the Communization of Cambodia won't rebuild the ravished Cambodian sanctuaries overnight or have much impact on the war in Vietnam, which has been going badly for Hanoi.

However, a Communist takeover in Cambodia — perhaps coupled with military gains in southern Laos — could be the "victory" that Hanoi's negotiators in Paris are looking for as a pretext to demand an immediate, unilateral U.S. pullout. The Communists are surely planning just such a ploy to coincide with the 1970 U.S. election campaign.

The official line at the Pentagon and the State Department is that a huge ARVN influx is not needed to save Cambodia. They claim the Cambodian army, bolstered by Asian allies and U.S. airpower, can do the job.

But hardheaded realists know this is rubbish. Nothing has basically changed since the first of April, when it became clear there would be no agreement between the new Lon Nol regime and Hanoi. Ever since, Communist strategy has been to occupy most of the country, encircle Phnom Penh, and force Lon Nol's collapse.

The ill-equipped, ill-trained Cambodian army is no more able to prevent this today than before the allied attack on the Communist sanctuaries. A crash program to train and equip the Cambodian army, requiring U.S. arms and advisers, was rejected by the Administration in April for lack of funds and political support.

Moreover, President Nixon's options may be even more limited by public opinion today than in April. This declining base of support for the war rules out another U.S. assault in Cambodia. If Mr. Nixon allows his generals to dispatch substantial ARVN units to Cambodia, he risks a slowdown of U.S. troop withdrawals, further alienating

Strength For Today

DIVINE PURPOSE EVERYWHERE

A college professor recently wrote an article in which he claimed that he was forced to the conclusion that, in the light of the findings of modern science, there is no God, no spiritual realities, no purpose in the universe.

We live in a confused age. Have you ever stopped to ask yourself why we are confused? We are confused because we live in a universe which is in the square, in which divine purpose is quite evidently manifested; and because we have made such a mess of things and have broken the laws both of the natural world and of revealed religion we are in confusion.

We deserve to be in confusion. Nothing speaks more eloquently of the existence and inflexible purpose of Almighty God than the fact that we in our waywardness are now bruised and broken because we have collided with realities which are more immovable than the granite hills and more eternal than the stars themselves.

No purpose in the universe? No God guiding all things? How can reasonable beings hold such views? We are blind indeed if we cannot see what the whole universe is trying to show us.

Let us get aboard something and clutch it to our hearts and minds. Truth is all about us. And beauty and purpose, get aboard — and stay aboard.

Success Spoils Grants

WASHINGTON — Despite everything you hear about the government, there still is plenty of money around for projects. The only trouble is, you can't get the money if you have a plan that works. You must have one that no one is quite sure about.

A vice president of a university system in the Northeast told me about this the other day when he applied for money for a program to run summer schools for students who needed extra help to get into college. He told me the meeting went something like this:

"Now Mr. Haas, from our records it appears that you're applying for a grant of $500,000 to run a summer school project for students, hoping to keep up in college this fall."

"That's correct. We did it last year, and it was tremendously successful. We only had a drop-out rate of 6 per cent."

"Oh, dear me. Then this is not a pilot project."

"No, it's not. We know it works."

"What a shame."

"What do you mean what a shame?"

"Well, if this were a pilot project the government would be happy to finance it. We'd be very interested in knowing what could come of it. But we can't very well give money to something that's been proven, can we?"

"Why the hell not?"

"Mr. Haas, we're very willing to fund any educational program, providing it's iffy. But we can't throw money away on things that work. Congress would have a fit."

"I still don't understand why."

"I'm trying to explain it to you. The government has no trouble getting money from Congress for study programs. It doesn't matter how much it costs to study a program; we can get the funds. But once we ask for money for a program that has been proven successful, Congress will be committed to it, and nobody wants that, do they?"

"Suppose that I request the money for a study project. Could I get it then?"

"But you already told me that it had worked last summer. There's no sense having a study of it, if it works."

"I'm not trying to be difficult, but this is a very important project. We are taking in people this year who are going to find it tough sledding to keep up in the fall unless they have some remedial work."

"It's not our fault that your program worked last summer, Mr. Haas. Had it failed, we would have given you a blank check to try it a different way. But we're not

Away Back When

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — No stage on earth is as mighty as the human mind.

No other platform can manage so many changing sets, scenes and circumstances as the mind does in the twinkling of an eye by a mere shift of thought. No theatrical warehouse stores as many moving relics of the past as the human memory.

Your own supply of mental souvenirs is pretty extensive if you can look back and remember when—

It was girls, not boys, who said after washing their hair, "I can't do a thing with it."

Tombstones were more interesting to read, because they usually had more engraved on them than simply names and dates.

An ice-cream cone cost a nickel—and was worth every penny of it.

One of the ordeals of a Catholic childhood was the inevitability with which the baked macaroni and cheese arrived on the dinner table every Friday night. Wouldn't mother ever forget just once and serve chicken-fried steak?

If you asked the average American what Cambodia was, instead of identifying it as a country he would probably guess it must be something that women wore.

A fellow thought his new television set must be broken if he turned it on and it didn't show Milton Berle.

America was still so rural that most kids lived in places where they could stop off and catch a frog on the way home from school.

You were thought to be something of a sissy if you'd rather play tennis than baseball. Golf was sneered at as "pasture pool."

Every mother was firmly convinced that her children would become stunted or "be weakly" if they weren't regularly dosed with codliver oil.

Childhood also was haunted by the adult-inflicted belief that if you accidentally swallowed a grape or watermelon seed you were practically doomed to get appendicitis.

When you saw a window containing a framed flag with a gold star in it, you knew that some hearts in that home would never be fully happy again.

It was a pleasant ritual to sit on the curb at dusk so you could greet the lonely man on the bicycle who lit the street gas lamps with a match affixed to a long pole. Growing up almost seemed worthwhile—if you could grow up and be a lamp-lighter.

When a man got a $5 raise, his standard of living went up.

You could read a "Keep Off the Grass" sign without wondering idly whether it was an admonition against marijuana.

Yes, those were the days—remember?

(Henderson Dispatch)

We would be among the last to sanction an increase in automobile liability insurance rates, but the reason for the demand on the part of underwriters is clear. That is the growing number of damage claims and the high cost of making repairs. The clamor will not subside until there is a reversal in both directions.

Everyone knows the number of accidents in which there are injuries, and in many cases where there are no injuries but property damage, is steadily rising. Records kept by the Motor Vehicles Bureau show a continuing number of injuries. In most of these some one pays, and the source of such payments usually is the insurance company.

Few people are familiar with the financial operations of underwriters. Whether there be justification for higher rates is something the insurance commissioner undertakes to determine. But skyrocketing claims are at least the basis for the requests for rate hikes.

There are more automobiles on the streets and highways than ever before and the number is constantly being added to. The drunk driving problem is a factor in this increase, along with overall carelessness and failure to observe rules of the road.

As much as every one dislikes to see the cost of his protection rising, there is no difficulty in observing the cause. What the remedy may be is evident, namely, the reduction in accidents. How to make it apply and to reflect in mounting rates is the unanswered question. Unfortunately, the peak in claims probably has not been reached yet.

Charter Flight Curbs 'Futile'

By ELMER ROESSNER

At this very moment, there are more than 100 people, mostly young, stranded at Kennedy Airport in New York because the chartered flight on which they hold tickets aren't taking them. There always is at this time of the year.

They are grounded for two reasons:

1. They were sold tickets for nonexistent seats by flight organizers or travel agents.

2. Airlines have cancelled some chartered flight in fear of fines for violating the rules of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Over-booking charter flights from both East Coast and West Coast airports appears to be common.

Flight organizers, who charge about half the regular airline rates are fearful of no-shows and encourage over-booking. But when almost everybody shows up, some are left behind.

Sometimes they are taken on a later flight, sometimes they are slipped on other charter flights. Some students have slept on the floor at the Kennedy airport's North Terminal building for a week waiting for transportation.

The Impossible Rule

The CAB rules on charter flights are almost impossible of enforcement, if not downright silly. They provide that charter flights can be organized only by organizations that were not established only for the flights, and that tickets can be sold only to persons who have been members of the organization for at least six months.

That means that Dennis Murray, who is a member of a chapter of the Knights of Columbus which is arranging a charter flight to Rome, can get one of the cut-price tickets, but that John Mason, who is not a member of any organization that is sponsoring a chartered flight, has to pay full fare if he flies to the continent and back.

There have been sound reasons for this rule, but in practice it leads to absurdity. Organizations sponsoring flights back-date memberships; some travelers become six months members the day they buy their tickets. Some travel agencies invent organizations; others use the names of organizations long dead.

Half Non-Members

Some authorities estimate that half of the more than half million travelers on charter flights to Europe this season are illegal buyers of charter-flight tickets.

Last week the enforcement bureau of the CAB filed complaints with the board against Pan American, TWA, Saturn Airways, American Flyers Airlines, KLM, seven agencies, two chartering organizations and six individuals charging violations of charter regulations.

In January the bureau filed similar complaints against World Over-seas National, Capitol International, Atlantis, and Caledonia Airways, 8 travel agencies, 15 charter-group organizations and 17 individuals, all operating from the West Coast.

So far, the CAB hasn't acted on either group of complaints, although it can seek injunctions and sue for up to $1,000 penalties for each violation.

Big Companies Eyeing Those Bankruptcy Laws

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — You may be sure that a lot of companies are eyeing the bankruptcy laws these days as they scrounge for capital with which to pay their bills.

The Penn Central Transportation Co. decision to seek protection from its creditors in the law was not an isolated example. Less well known companies are taking similar action every week.

To name a few: Four Season Nursing Centers, a glamor company just a few months ago; Dolly Madison Industries, a conglomerate doing more than $100 million a year; Milo Electronics, listed on the American Stock Exchange.

Each has had its individual problem and so it may not be fair to group them. But there is one pervasive theme through most filings these days, and it concerns liquidity.

A company is liquid when it can meet its bills—when it has assets that can readily be converted to cash to pay obligations. It has little to do with size; a candy store can be more liquid than an airline.

Many powerful companies are now undergoing liquidity strains, if not crises, and some observers believe the temptation to use Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act may become quite enticing in the next few weeks.

This is the chapter that permits a company to continue operating while it works out its finances, fully protected by the courts from lawsuits by creditors. It gives the company a breather. And officers retain control.

Actually, not an unusual number of companies have so far

Lumbees Elect 'Action' Chief

PEMBROKE, N. C. (AP) — Lumbee Indians have elected Ward Clark of Maxton president of their political action group, the Independent Americans for Progress.

The election came Saturday as several thousand Lumbees gathered at Pembroke for their first annual homecoming festival.

W. J. Strickland, a festival organizer, said the Independent Americans for Progress plan to make the homecoming an annual affair.

taken action. Failures, in fact, are no higher than expected. Several times in the past two decades the failure rate has risen higher than at present.

In fact, some of the recent concern over rising bankruptcies is misplaced. Ninety per cent of them have nothing to do with corporations; they were filed by individuals, some of whom no longer feel stigmatized by such action.

The present concern about corporate bankruptcies really relates to the immediate future, to the expectation that corporate bankruptcies may spread as the liquidity strains persist.

But why should so many companies be illiquid? For a number of reasons. Bad management is near the top of the list. During the 1960s some companies were carried along by mere momentum. Errors were buried by prosperity. Somehow, everything turned out right in the 1960s.

A decade of such prosperity left some executives confident they could do no wrong. In their view, there was no reason for not looking upward and upward, no reason not to continue expanding as if tomorrow always would be better.

Then came the slowdown. The Nixon administration was forced to take blunt action against the growing inflation; it had to slow the expansion because it was becoming an illusion of inflation rather than real progress.

One way of bringing about a slowdown is to restrict the supply of money flowing into the economy via the Federal Reserve banks. It was done.

Still, a lot of corporate officers simply didn't believe there'd be a slowdown. This is no casual assumption; surveys show clearly that as recently as a few months ago hundreds of companies had expansion plans for which there simply was not enough cash. And yet they tried to go ahead.

At the same time, some of the marginal companies that lucked through the 1960s like surfboarders on a cresting wave began finding it much harder to make money in a tight economy. Fate caught up with inefficiency.

It isn't only the weak and the inefficient, however, who are now faced with liquidity problems. Some of the biggest companies, such as airlines, are wondering where they'll get the money to finance the equipment they need.

From an optimist's point of view, the worst may either be over or occur within a few weeks. The Fed is once again pumping money into the economy. But clearly it is going to be too late for many companies.

Says Athletes Want Show Biz

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is it true that pro football and baseball players seek positions on New York and Los Angeles teams so they can be close to the show-biz action?

"Absolutely," says Fred Williamson, who played a lot of halfback with the pros. "Most of the guys want to get here or to New York. Not only because of the movie and television actions—those two places are where most of the commercials are made. And there's a lot of good loot in commercials."

Williamson never made it during his playing years. He started out with the San Francisco 49ers, then moved to the Steelers in Pittsburgh, "where there's nothing going on." Then came the Oakland Raiders and finally the Kansas City Chiefs. That's when he decided to cut out.

"I felt like a mercenary," explained Williamson, who was born in Gary, Ind. "Sure, I was playing for money when I started out, but it was fun then. Football satisfied my physical

Showdown Set In Italy

By DAVID MAZZARELLA
ROME (AP) — Premier Mariano Rumor resigned today to force a showdown with Italy's powerful labor unions on the eve of a nationwide general strike.

The dramatic move also appeared aimed at ending a growing feud between Socialist parties in his government.

The surprise action came after a 15-minute meeting of Rumor's center-left coalition cabinet.

The 55-year-old bachelor premier went directly from the meeting to submit his resignation to President Giuseppe Saragat at the latter's summer home on the Tyrrhenian Sea.

Saragat asked Rumor and his center-left coalition cabinet to remain in office to handle current affairs while the head of state conducts consultations with political leaders of all parties.

It was Rumor's third government in 18 months and Italy's 31st since the fall of Fascism.

The resignation plunged the country into a deepening crisis marked by economic sluggishness and social tension.

U.S. opinion. If he lets Cambodia fall, the morale decline here at home may pump demands for peace at any price.

All this fits Hanoi's conviction that the war will be ultimately won in Washington, just as its earlier phase was won in Paris. Under the Communist doctrine of protracted war, their miserable combat record of late is nothing compared to the crumbling American home front.

In a May 31 article, North Vietnamese Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap wrote: "We are unafraid of a protracted war. It is U.S. imperialism, our enemy, that fears a protracted war. As proved by the realities, our strategy of fighting protractedly has prevailed over the enemy's strategy of fighting and winning quickly." In Washington these days, Giap's "realities" look very real indeed.

Cleaning Up After Blaze

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Firemen today are conducting mopping up operations at the scene of a giant blaze that burned throughout much of the weekend after starting in a 55,000 gallon gasoline storage tank near the waterfront here.

The fire was attributed to lightning that hit the tank Saturday during a thunderstorm.

No one was injured in the blaze, but buildings and other storage tanks on all sides were threatened at various times as flames and smoke billowed hundreds of feet into the air over the city Saturday night and Sunday.

Murray A. Roberts, regional operations manager for Humble Oil and Refining Co., owners of the tank, said it contained "just under 20,000 gallons" of fuel at the time of the blaze. The heat of the flames melted the tank wall from 48 feet down to 18.

The firemen tried throughout Saturday night to extinguish the blaze with foam, but the tremendous updraft of superheated air from the fire carried the light foam with it.

By 8 a.m. Sunday, they had stopped the foaming and were concentrating on keeping other tanks cool.

The tanker Esso San Francisco had been unloading at the storage plant pier when the storm began, but suspended operations when the lightning began to arc. It was quickly moved from the pier to an anchorage when the fire broke out.

The emergency brake on a car should be inspected every 3,000 miles.

motivation. "But then I found I didn't like what I was doing. After 10 years I decided there must be something more creative than beating my head against a pigskin. Acting seemed like the obvious next step."

Unlike players on New York and Los Angeles teams, Roman Gabriel, Merlin Olsen, Joe Namath, Roosevelt Grier, etc., Williamson entered show business with no connections. He picked an agent out of the telephone book.

Williamson found himself doing a one-liner on "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In": "Vietnam is a great place to visit but I wouldn't want to live there."

He followed with a couple of appearances on "The Dating Game," plus roles in "Julia" and "Ironside" on TV and in two movies, "M+A+S+H" and "Tell Me That You Love Me, Julie Moon." All this in one year.

Now Williamson has been signed by 20th Century-Fox for a nonexclusive seven-picture deal and a regular spot as Diahann Carroll's romantic interest in the television series "Julia." He'll play a widower with a young daughter.

The former athlete is aware of the criticism directed at "Julia" by some black spokesmen who claim the series merely presents a black girl in the context of a white world.

"But all of the negative criticism is offset by the good that 'Julia' has accomplished," said Williamson. "The most important thing is that the show has gone into the homes of Southern whites and has helped to destroy some of the myths about Negroes."

"Just the other day a superintendent of a public system in the Midwest tried a visual-reading program for his state which turned into a disaster. The machines didn't work, the teachers couldn't handle them and the students lost interest after the first five minutes.

"Did we cut him off? We did not. We gave him another $10 million to find out why he failed. And we're ready to pour in another $10 million if he doesn't come up with answers. The whole department is excited by the failure."

"Is there any possible way of getting the $500,000, knowing what you know about my program?"

PLANTERS NATIONAL BANK

SO CUT IT OUT

Confused about new savings rates? Take heart . . . so are the Philadelphia lawyers.

But just remember, it's all in the box, and Planters National Bank pays the highest rate permitted under Federal Reserve regulations.

No insured full-service bank pays a higher rate.

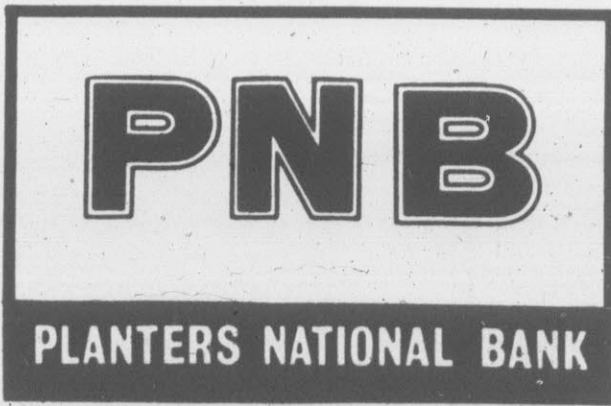

However, Planters does pay more than many banks . . . more, in fact, than most banks.

For instance, few financial institutions compound regular passbook savings monthly. PNB does. This pays EXTRA money to savers. Plus Daily Interest!

And on the popular Golden Passbook, interest is compounded DAILY. This isn't quarterly or even monthly compounding. It's daily compounding to yield a liberal 5.127 Percent annually. So, again, PNB Golden Passbook savers enjoy extra earning power not available at most institutions.

Now you see why PNB says "We want to help you save money."

Still confused? Okay, then come in and let's talk about your particular needs and objectives. Together, we'd like to tailor a plan that's best for you!

Israeli Hammer Missile Sites

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — The Israeli air force kept up its bombardment of Egypt's missile sites along the Suez Canal Sunday and admitted its third plane loss to the Egyptians in six days.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the plane was hit either by a missile or by other aircraft fire during a raid on Egyptian targets in the southern and central sectors of the canal. The two crewmen parachuted into Egyptian territory, the spokesman said, indicating that the plane was an American-made Phantom.

Cairo claimed two Israeli Phantoms brought down in the central sector of the canal and said their pilots, a captain and a lieutenant, were captured. However, the Phantom normally is manned by a two-man crew, and Israel denied the loss of a second plane Sunday. But the three losses it admitted in the past week set a record for the number of Israeli planes downed in one week since the 1967 Middle East war.

The Egyptians claim they have downed 11 Israeli planes in the past week and have captured three Israeli airmen. Israel reported last November that it had destroyed all Egyptian missile sites near the canal. But sources in Tel Aviv say Egypt has now succeeded in stationing a network of mobile SAM2 sites in the canal zone despite round-the-clock bombing by Israeli planes.

The military command in Tel Aviv distributed aerial photographs Sunday of what it said was a ring of six Egyptian missiles under Israeli air attack "somewhere in the Suez Canal area."

One missile was streaking from its launch pad and the other five were still in their launchers. Near the emplacements were puffs of smoke the Israelis identified as bomb bursts. A spokesman said the missile that had fired might have been set off by a bomb.

The Libyan government announced over the weekend that it had nationalized the four oil distributing companies in the country. Libya's oil production, in the hands of some 30 big foreign companies, was not affected.

An announcement in Tripoli said the Libyan National Oil Corp. had taken over the assets, installations, storage and distribution facilities of the El-Seil Co., the Shell-Libya Co., the Esso Standard Marketing Division and the Petrol Libya Co. The announcement said the government will set up a special commission to decide on compensation to the companies.

Cambodians See Some Successes

By JOHN T. WHEELER Associated Press Writer PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian army battled its way today to full control of the town of Saang, 20 miles south of Phnom Penh, after suffering some of the heaviest losses it has reported for one day of fighting.

Other Cambodian troops pushed back a threat to Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of the capital, with the aid of South Vietnamese warplanes.

Cambodian commanders said 32 of their men were killed and 47 wounded during 27 hours of fighting at Saang. They claimed more than 250 Viet-Cong and North Vietnamese were slain, but said powerful enemy forces still were in the area, apparently preparing for a counterattack.

Saang was heavily damaged during one of the Cambodian war's first major actions. It suffered more extensive destruction this time under the pounding of the enemy's mortars and recoilless rifles and Cambodian and South Vietnamese air strikes.

Newsmen arriving in the town found the body of one dead Communist soldier hanging in the central market, strung up by the heels and with both hands blown off. Another body strung up the same way was cut down before the journalists arrived.

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops battled their way into Saang early Sunday. There was sporadic heavy firing throughout the day as government troops fought to regain key positions, including the central market area where about 50 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were holed up.

Cambodian T28 fighter-bombers pounded the enemy during the day, and after dark South Vietnamese C47 "Spooky" gunships went into action with their 6,000-round-a-minute Gatling guns.

The spokesman also reported that North Vietnamese, Viet Cong and Pathet Lao troops were massing Sunday night for a major offensive against Kompong Thom. More South Vietnamese gunships were called in, and the spokesman said their firing together with government troops on the ground forced the Communist forces to pull back.

Welfare Liens Said Local Issue

RALEIGH (AP) — Commissioner Clifton Craig of the North Carolina Department of Social Services says he does not know how much land the department holds liens on from welfare recipients.

The question was posed by a report issued Saturday by the Southern Regional Council. The council, a private civil rights group, said North and South Carolina and other Southern states were collectively "the largest slumlords in the South."

The report said the state welfare agencies of the Carolinas, Florida and Virginia acquired title to land through enforcing liens on the "property-owning poor."

The North Carolina law covering the lines was enacted in 1951 and 1963, Craig said. It covers recipients of Old-Age Assistance and Aid to the Permanently and Totally disabled, he added.

The law is administered locally," he said, "and we know it is administered unequally."

The report from Atlanta said the laws were passed to assure the states they will be repayed when their client died.

"One of the most misunderstood things of it is people say it is going to take my property away from me," said Craig. "The lien doesn't go into effect until the man or his spouse or his dependent children die."

Proceeds from the sales of the land go to county state and federal governments, with the money divided according to the amount contributed by each agency to the welfare program in the county concerned.

The three levels of government collected just over $1 million from 1968 to 1970 after expenses of selling the land and burying the owners were deducted, Craig said. This compares to a total welfare budget in North Carolina of $300 million.

Count At Least 524 Fatalities During Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — As the three-day Fourth of July holiday period ended, 524 persons were known killed in traffic accidents across the nation.

John Lawlor, executive vice president of the National Safety Council, said the probable reason for the figure being below the council's estimate of 560 to 660 deaths was that cars are becoming safer and more states are adopting stringent traffic codes.

This year's Independence Day holiday traffic death toll was about 100 less than last year's figure of 611, the highest for any three-day observance of the holiday.

The official holiday period was the 78 hours between 8 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday (local times).

Legion Sweeps Roanoke Rapids

Just Out Of Reach

Washington Senators right fielder Tom Grieve (4) makes valiant try to rob New York Yankees' Gene Michael of a homer in seventh inning of game at Yankee Stadium Sunday.

Greenville's American Legion Post 39 swept its series with Roanoke Rapids in the first round of the State Legion Playoffs Saturday night, 5-3.

The win gave Greenville a two games to none sweep of the best of three series with their first round opponent.

The locals, after threatening in the first inning, pushed over four in the second to get all they needed.

Then, in the second, Greenville went to work and got the win. Allan Wilson led off with a pop fly single to center. Tommy Durham attempted to sacrifice, but the ball was played to second instead, but Wilson beat out the throw.

Greenville effectively held off Roanoke Rapids until the sixth inning when they scored two runs. They got their first threat in the fourth, when Tom Pope reached on a fielder's choice and moved to second on Tommy Frazier's two-out single.

Then, in the sixth, they scored twice. Jimmy Twisdale led off walking on four straight pitches. Kenny Dickerson reached on four more balls, and Wayne Ellington's grounder was thrown wide at second, allowing Twisdale to score.

The Greenville nine, after threatened again in the bottom of the fifth, picked up its other run in the seventh. In the fifth, Jimmy Paige singled and moved to third on a single by Durham, only to die there.

But in the seventh, with one out, Leggett reached on an error and moved around to third on Paige's single to center. The two worked the double steal with Leggett bringing in the fifth run.

Roanoke Rapids managed its final run in the eighth inning. Ellington led off with a double to right and moved up on Pope's ground out. He scored when Tommy Frazier singled to center.

Junior Johnson Becomes The NASCAR Short-term Loan Man

By HUBERT MIZELL

Associated Press Sports Writer DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Junior Johnson has reared chickens, driven race cars and — insiders say — even hauled a little white lightning on the back roads of North Carolina.

Now, with gray hairs and a broadening midsection, Junior has obviously become the short-term loan specialist of the NASCAR stock car circuit.

"That's what friends are for," drawled Johnson. "If I was caught short, I'd expect them to do it for me."

On Saturday, however, it was like lending a neighbor your pistol and having him shoot you.

Junior heard that Donnie Allison's tomato-red Ford was running poorly and offered to loan an engine to old buddy Banjo Matthews, owner of the Allison car.

Matthews gladly accepted and promised to repay the debt when they returned to their native North Carolina.

Johnson's own car — driven by Lee Roy Yarbrough — had qualified third best for the $95,000 Firecracker 400 at Daytona International Speedway. Allison started in 15th place.

Soon after the 90-degree grind got rolling, however, Johnson's Mercury entry suffered from a sick engine and had to quit.

The power plant he loaned Banjo was doing just fine when Lee Roy limped into the garage. So fine, in fact, that he won the race and collected a fat $20,975 check.

Johnson and Yarbrough earned a mere $880.

That's only half the story. When Allison's feet became blistered from a burning floorboard in the World 600 at Charlotte six weeks ago, it was Johnson who came through with another loan.

He loaned them Lee Roy. Yarbrough — his own car again out with mechanical miseries — jumped into Donnie's front-running Ford and withstood the burned-away floor insulation to win the big money for the Allison-Matthews combine.

"I expect old Donnie would do the same for me," beamed Yarbrough. "for the most part, racing people are friendly people."

Allison's car had performed worst of the hotshot entries all week in high-speed workouts for the Firecracker. The big guns were buzzing around the 2.5-mile trioval at 188 to 192 miles an hour and the quickest the Hueytown, Ala., pilot could muster was 186.

He was so disgusted by Saturday morning that he slammed pole winner Cale Yarborough on the back and said, "I've been running so lousy, I'll probably win the race."

He's a prophet, too. While Yarborough — gunning a Mercury that qualified at a record 191.640 miles an hour bombled-out and finished his car after 23 laps, Allison hung on until all the speed kings had died and won at an average of 162.235 m.p.h.

That was five miles an hour off the 400 record of 167.247 set by Cale two years before.

The luckiest Fourth of July the wiry Alabamian ever experienced was climaxed when David Pearson's misfortune again stuffed a wad of greenbacks into Allison's pocket.

It was "Pitfalls Pearson" who paved the way for Allison's victory at Charlotte. His Ford threw its clutch with a two-mile lead within sniffing distance of the finish line to allow Donnie to cash in — with Lee Roy's assist at the wheel.

Pearson was on top 17 miles from the windup of the 12th Firecracker on Saturday and led by a whopping 10 seconds. Donnie had just passed a fading Buddy Baker in his Dodge to take second.

Then, as it did at Charlotte, doom struck Pearson. His front right tire blew and threw his Ford into the wall. Pearson crawled back to the pits while do-no-wrong Donnie chugged to the checkered flag.

With the engine borrowed from Lee Roy's car, of course.

Allison's triumph by 14.8 seconds over Baker — forced to slow down on blistered tires after the hot pursuit of Pearson — gave him $18,725 more than Pearson, who gathered up $2,250 for eighth place.

Baker won $11,195, but wasn't too happy about it "because my car was running 10 miles an hour faster than Donnie's all day." The 6-foot-5 North Carolinian was so mad he brought his high-winged Dodge along pit row after the finish and gave it a 180 degree spin before checking fans.

Donnie's brother, Bobby Allison, finished third in a Dodge to win $7,005. Charlie Glotzbach earned $4,000 for fourth in another Dodge and Dick Brooks got $2,500 for a fifth in a Plymouth.

Baker's car owner — former driving whiz Cotton Owens — had a right to sentiments similar to those of his driver. Owens prepared the Baker entry that was edged at the wire by Yarborough in the 1969 Firecracker and also handled the Dodge wheeled by Glotzbach that was nipped by Lee Roy in the 1969 Daytona 500.

Zarley Rallies To Win Open

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer LONDON, Ont. (AP) — Kermit Zarley stepped to the microphone after a long presentation ceremony to accept the $25,000 first-place check in the Canadian Open Golf championship and the public address system suddenly began an ear-splitting, high-pitched squeak.

"It looks," said Zarley after the noise had been conquered, "like everything I touch today turns on."

He turned on a five-under-par 67 Sunday to come from four strokes off the pace and win by three with a nine-under 279, making this national championship his second tour victory.

"Now I can kind of plan my schedule a little," the 28-year-old former collegiate champion from Houston University said. "I lost my non-exempt status this year and have had to qualify on Mondays. You get to fight ing it that way. "You play and play and play. It's best to play a few weeks and rest. Now I can do it."

The victory, snapping a year-long slump for Zarley, insures him of an exempt status for at least a year.

He hadn't been a factor through the first three rounds, but bolted past the altering leaders with four birdies in a stretch of five holes, beginning on the eighth, and won comfortably.

Gibby Gilbert had a 71 for 282 and second place and made the biggest run at Zarley, his charge failing when he three-putted the 17th for a bogey.

Cubs Not Going Down Without A Good Fight

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Never let it be said that the Chicago Cubs are going down without a fight. Perish the thought. Down they are going, but they've still got plenty of fight left.

The Cubs are stuck in a spin that has seen them drop 15 of the last 17 games and tumble from first place to fourth in the National League's East Division. All the frustrations of the slump seemed to explode in the ninth inning of Sunday's 5-2 loss to Pittsburgh.

Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis was at bat and after ducking a close one, he started saying—to no one in particular but loud enough for plate umpire Nick Colosi to hear—that he'd get even.

"Ellis kept saying he was going to get somebody," said Colosi "so I decided to stop it right there and then." Colosi summoned Chicago Manager Leo Durocher and Danny Murtagh, skipper of the Pirates, to a home plate conference to head off the war. But the truce came too late. Moments after the conference broke up, Durocher exchanged angry words with Ellis and the brawl was on.

"It was just like a hockey fight," said Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner, who had tagged a two-run homer in the first inning. "I loved every minute of it."

When peace was restored, the Pirates finished beating the Cubs on the scoreboard and dropped Chicago five games behind first place New York. The Cubs led the division by 4½ games when their slide started June 21.

The brawl also resulted in sending Murtagh, who has a heart condition, to a hospital for a checkup. Murtagh, who was not involved in the fracas, was examined at the hospital and later released.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday the Mets edged Philadelphia 5-4, St. Louis rapped Montreal 5-3, Cincinnati trimmed Houston 3-1, San Diego edged Atlanta 6-5 and Los Angeles shut out San Francisco 4-0.

In the American League, Washington swept a doubleheader from New York 7-3 and 7-3. Boston ripped Cleveland 8-4, Milwaukee nipped Kansas City, 2-1, Minnesota bombed Chicago 12-3, California dropped Oakland 5-1 and Baltimore shut out Detroit 2-0.

The Pirates, who've taken over second place in the NL East with 10 victories in the last 13 games, were still angry at Durocher and the Cubs after the game. Coach Don Leppert, who had charged Durocher, was steaming.

"He was trying to stir up his ball club by hurting one of our players," said Leppert. "If I'd gotten to him I guarantee you he'd have to resign."

The umpires had to break up the fight short-handed. Senior man Tom Gorman suffered a broken right ankle and possible broken ribs in a first inning basepath collision with Pittsburgh first baseman Al Oliver. Gorman, 37, was removed from the field on a stretcher and taken to Wesley Memorial Hospital.

The Mets got a home run and RBI from Ron Swoboda for the first time since May 31, and it helped beat the Phillies. Tommie Agee's single, extending his hitting streak to 16 games was the only hit in a two-run seventh that gave the Mets their winning margin after Swoboda's homer had broken a 2-2 tie in the sixth.

Danny Frisella saved the victory for Jerry Koosman, who was knocked out after Deron Johnson hit a towering homer in the eighth.

St. Louis rallied for four runs in the eighth—two on a triple by Rich Allen—and two more in the ninth on a homer by Carl Taylor to wipe out a 3-0 Montreal lead and beat the Expos. Bob Gibson, 12-3, went all the way for his 10th consecutive victory.

Rookie Wayne Simpson, 13-1, also won his 10th straight for Cincinnati on a four-hitter over Houston. Simpson, who has not lost since April 24, pitched six hitless innings before the Astros solved him. The Reds bunched four hits for all of their runs in the sixth, with Bobby Tolan's single starting the rally and runs scoring on Johnny Bench's double and singles by Lee May and Tommy Helms.

Steve Huntz' ninth inning single drove in San Diego's winning run as the Padres knocked off Atlanta. Pinch-hitter Al Ferrara doubled with two out and then an infield hit by Dave Campbell and Huntz' hit brought the winning run home.

Clarence Gaston poled a three-run homer for San Diego and Rico Carty tagged a two-run shot for the Braves.

Bill Singer hurled a two-hitter and Bill Grabarkewitz and Jim Lefebvre rapped home runs as Los Angeles knocked out San Francisco.

Singer, who was out for two months with hepatitis, pitched his first complete game since April 12, retired the last 17 Giants in order.

Track Lassies Looking To 1972

By JACK STEVENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Uncle Sam's lassies embark for Europe and their next track and field competition with meets in Germany, Russia and Romania, yet most of the record-breaking youngsters already look ahead to 1972 and the Olympic Games at Munich.

Most surprising in the National AAU Women's Championships were two gals from the high school ranks—Mavis Laing, 16, from Scottsdale, Ariz., who still has her senior year ahead and Francie Larrieu, 17, from San Jose, Calif., just graduated.

There were many others since eight meet records were bettered and one tied out of 15 in the two days of competition at UCLA's track stadium. Chi Cheng of Formosa, of course, doesn't qualify for the U.S. team since she represents her homeland. She broke meet records in both sprints. Still, that leaves six record-smashers for the U.S. national team which competes in Germany July 15-16 and Russia July 23-24.

Miss Laing, after winning the 220 in the girls' 14-17 division, came back two days later to shatter the American record in the 400, competing against the women. She ran a 52.9, bettering

Jarvis Scott, of the Los Angeles Mercuries and Gwen Norman of Sports International from Washington, D. C., finished second and third behind the talented teen-ager who smashed the American record of 53.3 by Charlotte Cooke in 1966.

Miss Larrieu, the girls' winner at 880 yards, turned back the veteran Doris Brown in the women's 1500 meters in 4:20.8, just six tenths off Mrs. Brown's meet record.

Two other American records fell, both in relay events. The mile team from the Atoms Track Club of Brooklyn, N.Y., ran a 3:41.3 and the 400 team from Tennessee State clocked 45.2.

Oldest meet record to fall was the 1962 discus mark of 172.2 by Olga Connolly. Surpassing it by an inch was Carol Frost of the Nebraska Track Club.

Miss Cheng set meet marks with times of 10.2 and 22.6 in the 100 and 220, the latter a world record eclipsing her own 22.7. She ran 22.4 in the finals only to have that mark nullified by a wind of 5.3 miles an hour, about six-tenths above the allowable limit.

Other meet records bettered were the 880-yard medley relay by the Mayor Daley Youth Foundation team from Chicago, 1:43.1; and 13.4 by that team's Mamie Rallins in the 100-meter hurdles.

Miss Rallins' teammate from Chicago, Willye White, equalled her own long jump meet record at 21-1.

The 13.4 by Miss Rallins equalled her own American record.

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP)—"I was just so glad it went in because I didn't want to come back tomorrow," said an exuberant, but exhausted Donna Caponi after her second straight U.S. Women's Open victory.

"I'm just so tired... so tired of thinking because I got myself into so much trouble out there," she added Sunday after her one-stroke victory over Sandra Haynie of Runaway Bay, Tex., and former champion Sandra Spuzich of Indianapolis.

And get herself into trouble she did.

Miss Caponi, who entered the final round of the $30,000 classic with a four-stroke lead on a three-under-par 210 over the 6,210-yard Muskogee Country Club course, finished play with a three-over-par 287.

Before culminating play with a double bogey 6, the attractive 25-year-old brunette carded five bogeys—on Nos. 1, 6, 8, 11 and 15. "I played so badly," she said afterwards. "I only had one birdie all day."

That was with a 15-foot putt on the par 5 No. 13.

McLain Falls In His Second Try For Tigers

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Denny McLain is making up lost ground in a hurry, but he's got a long way to go to catch Jim Palmer.

McLain, making his second start for the Detroit Tigers after sitting out a half-season suspension, pitched seven gutty innings against Baltimore Sunday.

But Palmer, the Orioles' ace right-hander, blanked the Tigers on three hits over the full nine as the American League's East Division leaders scraped to a 2-0 victory.

In winning the rubber game of a weekend set, Baltimore stretched its margin to 5½ games over the sagging New York Yankees, who dropped a pair of 7-3 decisions to Washington in the day's only doubleheader.

Elsewhere in the AL, Minnesota drubbed the Chicago White Sox 12-3; California downed Oakland 5-1; Boston whipped Cleveland 8-4 and Milwaukee edged Kansas City 2-1.

In National League play, the New York Mets topped Philadelphia 5-4; Pittsburgh beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2; St. Louis trimmed Montreal 6-3; Cincinnati subdued Houston 3-1; San Diego nipped Atlanta 6-5 and Los Angeles shackled San Francisco 4-0.

McLain, who was rocked for three home runs and kayoed in the sixth inning of his 1970 debut against New York last Wednesday, came back to blank the Orioles through four innings despite control difficulty.

The husky 26-year-old right-hander, suspended by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn last April for alleged gambling activities three years ago, gave up one run in the fifth and another in the sixth. But he escaped further damage each time, leaving five base runners stranded.

Reliever Daryl Patterson was driven from the Detroit bullpen to the dugout after the Tigers went out in the seventh, but McLain strode to the mound and retired the Orioles in order, then was removed for a pinch hitter.

He threw 147 pitches in all, yielding seven hits and six walks, in his seven-inning struggle against Palmer and the high-flying Orioles.

Boog Powell drove in both runs, with a bad-hop single in the fifth and a sacrifice fly in the sixth, before McLain fanned Frank Robinson for his sixth and last strikeout.

Palmer, sweeping to his 12th victory against five losses, retired the Tigers in order until the fifth, when Russ Nagelson and Bill Freehan poked one-out singles. A walk to Don Wert filled the bases, but Palmer struck out Ken Sotkiewicz and McLain to end the threat.

Frank Howard drove in four runs with a pair of singles in the first game and Del Unser's two-run homer in the first inning of the nightcap sent the Senators on their way to a sweep over the Yankees, who have dropped eight of their last 10 starts.

Darold Knowles came out of the Washington bullpen in each game to preserve victories for Dick Bosman and Jim Sheltenback and pick up his 17th and 18th saves of the year.

Harmon Killebrew singled in one of five Minnesota runs in the third inning and slammed his 24th homer to launch a four-run fifth as the Twins sailed to their eighth victory in 10 games.

The Angels remained four games behind the front-running Twins in the West Division race as Jim Spencer knocked in two runs and Andy Messersmith posted his first victory since June 12 with late relief help from Ken Tatum.

John Kennedy hit an inside-the-park homer to trigger a three-run Boston rally in the fifth that erased a 4-2 deficit and sent the Red Sox to their sixth straight victory.

Milwaukee's Skip Lockwood fired a four-hitter for his first major league victory as the Brewers snapped a five-game losing string on two run-producing sacrifice flies by Gus Gil.

Hiding Behind A Social Mask

Lois is engaged to a boy who seems to be playing a psychological game of hide-and-seek! For people often assume social masks, much like the false faces that kiddies wear on Halloween. Sometimes their hidden, subconscious "ogre" thus scares them, as well as their companions. So learn to look behind the obvious!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.D.
 CASE N-552: Lois R., aged 20, is engaged.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "Jim is a wonderful boy and quite generous."

"But he is too bossy!" "He tries to order me around as if I were his slave."

"And he irritates me in public by saying the proper way to handle a wife is to 'take her young, treat her rough and tell her nothing.'"

"Well, the first time he glibly said that, I thought he was just trying to make conversation and produce a laugh."

"But he keeps repeating it in social gatherings till I wonder if he doesn't really believe that is the way to handle a wife."

"Why would Jim keep reciting that silly remark?"

"His bark is worse than his bite," is an old adage that described a man who adopts a bold, frightening exterior to hide the fact that he is really a softy at heart.

Many a father may thus gripe about his son's request to have a dog.

The father may even act rough and tough toward the dog.

But then he may reveal his inner softness by seeing that the canine is fed properly and has a warm bed.

Modern life is a rugged and competitive affair so many timid, softhearted boys soon learn to put up a tough external appearance.

And some of the very shy youngsters even try to hide their inner sensitivity by using profanity or drinking whiskey.

Others regard tenderness and sympathy as effeminate, so they act harsh with their mothers, yet in a crisis they are right there with money or medical attention.

Smart women soon learn to "read between the lines," which is another way of saying, "His bark is worse than his bite."

For human beings play some very fascinating games of psychological hide-and-seek, both with themselves as well as with their associates.

One reason why I launched this clinical column in practical psychology and psychiatry, was to show you laymen how to delve below the obvious.

For the surface elements may be merely an assumed mask, like the false faces kiddies wear at Halloween.

Many patients are thus victims of complexes and phobias whose origin they have consciously forgotten.

So they figuratively keep running around while pursued by an inner, subconscious "ogre."

You may recall my citing the case of the 39-year-old woman who kept squandering thousands of dollars on beauty parlor treatments. She required a new facial and hairdo every day.

But she was playing the game of hide-and-seek with a misunderstanding!

For she had officiated alone, at the age of 7, when her mother bore a baby, and then prepared her mother's breakfast later.

The neighboring farm wives mentioned that, "She certainly has an old head on her shoulders, doesn't she?"

But this little girl then visualized a prune-faced, wrinkled old visage!

Tucked away in her subconscious, this later drove her to daily visits to beauty parlors when she approached the menopausal decade of the 40s.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Senate Armed Services Committee predicts Congress will let the military draft die next June 30.

The four-year extension of the draft will expire at the end of the next fiscal year. And Sen. Peter H. Dominick, D-Colo., says he doesn't think Congress will be able—even if it wanted—to pass an extension bill by June 30.

Dominick, who was interviewed on the MetroMedia Radio News program "Profile" Sunday, said political realities indicate there will be no more draft after that date.

He said he expects the Nixon administration soon will start sending to Vietnam only those soldiers who want to go.

Some soldiers prefer service in the war zone to a hitch on a domestic base, he said. "I rather suspect that those people who do want to go will be permitted, and there will be quite a few of them who may be draftees," Dominick added.

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Farmer says he has no plans to resign as assistant secretary for administration in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Farmer, the highest ranking Negro in the Nixon administration, said there was no basis for a weekend report in the Amsterdam News that he would leave the post by the end of the month.

The committee's statement of beliefs says: "There are millions of black Americans who work every day, keep their kids in school, have never been to jail, pay their taxes, shop for bargains, have never participated in a riot—but are being shouted down by a handful of black militants."

The purpose, Clay J. Claiborne, national director of the committee, explained today, is to prove that the majority of the 22 million Negroes in the United States are not represented by a violent minority.

The committee will meet in Washington in August to lay plans for this year's elections.

Farm Scene

By S.J. WEEKS

In view of the recent dry weather we have experienced in Pitt County, many farmers have missed a good opportunity to make their 1970 tobacco crop more profitable. On some farms, it is not too late to take advantage of this opportunity.

Each day the flowers of tobacco plants are left untopped after the button stage, it reduces the yield 25 pounds per acre per day.

If the tobacco is topped early and the combination chemical sucker control treatment is used, an increase in yield and net value per acre will result. The results of ten "on the farm" sucker control tests conducted in North Carolina in 1969 (one in Pitt County), showed that an increase yield of 149 pounds and an increase value of $120 per acre was realized when both contact and systemic sucker control agents were applied instead of just the systemic (maleic hydrazide) was used alone.

There are two contact sucker control agents (Penar and Off-shoot T or sucker plucker). The contacts should be applied preferably at the button stage and not later than the early bloom stage. All suckers, over two inches long should be broken out.

Generally the systemic sucker control agent should be applied one week to 10 days after the contact application. The top leaves of the plant should be at least 10 inches long when the systemic is applied.

Be sure to use the correct nozzle type for each of the treatments. Check with the Agricultural Extension Office or your farm supply dealer about the nozzle size and arrangement for the two treatments.

In the 1969 tests, the price per hundredweight for tobacco treated with the two types of chemicals was as good or better than the price of tobacco treated only with a systemic. When maleic hydrazide is used early to obtain a high degree of sucker control the top leaves often become undesirably thick and lower in quality. When contact chemicals are used early, however, it kills suckers by "touch". It does not restrict development of young leaves as maleic hydrazide does.

If you have waited too late to use the combination treatment, be sure to postpone the application of maleic hydrazide until the plant has reached a stage of maturity that it will not be harmful to make the application of the systemic.

I would suggest, when possible, to use the combination treatment even if some plants are in full bloom, especially when the top leaves have not reached maturity due to dry weather.

Tobacco TIPS

By S.J. WEEKS

Each year the value of our tobacco crop is reduced by disease. Some years the loss is greater than others.

Tobacco diseases, like human ailments, are often hard to identify. When a person becomes ill and needs medical attention, the doctor's first task is to accurately diagnose the disease or condition. This is necessary before he can prescribe the proper treatment. This is also true in the case of a sick or diseased plant. The successful use of disease control measures is based first of all upon the correct identification of the disease. It is very important to know which disease or diseases are causing damage to your crop if you plan to use precautionary and preventative measures against these diseases in future years.

Some diseases can be definitely identified by the symptoms shown by the sick plant. For example, many growers who are familiar with black shank can easily recognize typical cases of this disease in the tobacco field. However, identification is not always easy. Under certain conditions symptoms may not be clear-cut or characteristic, and they may be confusing and misleading. Many different tobacco diseases have a similar symptom.

If you have a disease problem in your tobacco field, I will be glad to visit your farm and help determine which disease is causing the trouble. If the symptoms are not pronounced enough to make a positive identification in the field, a diseased specimen can be sent to the Plant Disease Clinic at North Carolina University. When a diseased specimen is received in the Clinic, examination of the diseased tissue will be made under a microscope and, if necessary, certain laboratory tests will be made to accurately identify the disease.

Once the disease is properly identified, we can make positive control suggestions that you can use on your farm to help keep the losses caused by the disease to a minimum. If you wait until the tobacco is harvested, positive identification is difficult.

Will Decide On McDonald

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — The Army convened a closed hearing today in the case of Green Beret Capt. Jeffrey R. MacDonald, charged with murdering his wife and two children.

The Army's investigating officer, Col. Warren Rock, will hear evidence in the case and will recommend whether MacDonald should be court-martialed.

A Ft. Bragg spokesman said the hearing could last up to two weeks, but at least several days.

MacDonald is accused of beating and stabbing his wife and two young daughters to death Feb. 17 at their apartment at Ft. Bragg. MacDonald said the crime was committed during the early morning hours by a band of hippie-type men and a woman.

Rock's recommendations will go to Maj. Gen. Edward Flanagan. If a court martial is recommended, a panel of at least five officers will be seated by Ft. Bragg commander Lt. Gen. John Tolson.

Many Shared Land Conservation Work

Throughout the country, about 900,000 farmers and ranchers participated last year in a program of soil, water, woodland, and wildlife conservation serving 50 million acres and providing major anti-pollution benefits to the public.

In North Carolina, 82,346 farmers carried out one or more conservation measures and in Pitt County 1,081 farms carried out one or more conservation measures," according to Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Emphasis on local involvement and broad public benefits were key points of the 1969 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) and continue in the 1970 program. Specific pollution-abatement responsibilities were added for 1970.

Last year under the program conservation measures on North Carolina farms represented a total investment of over 12 million dollars. ACP cost-sharing accounted for about half this amount, and producers matched or exceeded the public investment with their own resources.

"I want to point out the extent of local involvement in the 1969 program," Evans said. "ASC farmer committees in the Washington Association attending the conference were R.G. Coburn of Jamesville, president; Douglas W. Davenport of Creswell, vice president; Richard C. Keel of Washington, Assistant Manager.

The Washington Association handles the making and servicing of loans for the Land Bank in Washington, Tyrrell, Martin, Pitt, Hyde, Dare, and Beaufort counties out of the Association office in Washington.

Agricultural Outlook For Southeast 'Good'

"There is a growing future for agriculture in the Southeast in spite of the cost-price squeeze, high interest rates and mounting labor problems facing farmers, growers and ranchers," according to W. Hackney High, Manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Washington, who has just returned from the annual conference for directors and managers of Federal Land Bank Associations held at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Atlanta, Ga.

"As southeastern farms grow larger, there is an increasing demand for larger amounts of credit, as farmers are substituting capital for labor," High explained. "However, our Associations have the people and tools to meet the increasing needs of farmers for credit on a sound, productive and constructive basis."

The Washington Association is one of the 46 farmer-owned Land Bank Associations which make and service long-term loans for the Federal Land Bank of Columbia, S.C. The Bank now has over 42,000 loans outstanding in the amount of $671 million with farmers, growers and ranchers in Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas — the four states served by the Bank.

U.S. Really Trying For Cooperation On Space Lab

Durham Girl First 'Miss Black N.C.'

GREENSBORO (AP) — A 22-year-old North Carolina Central University coed who is working on her masters degree is the first Miss Black North Carolina. Sylvia Alexis Smith was crowned Sunday night at Greensboro in an outdoor contest which had been postponed from Saturday night because of a storm. Miss Smith won over 44 other girls for the right to compete in the Miss Black America Pageant in New York City Aug. 28.

Sign Warned Of 'Speed Trap'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Highway Patrol set up a new speed checking device in Jacksonville Sunday to help cut down on holiday speeding. Business was booming.

"We had five troopers writing tickets as fast as they could," Sgt. Earl Cushing said. "But then all of a sudden our business dropped to zero."

For 20 minutes, no one exceeded the limit of 45 miles per hour. Curious troopers hunting the reason said they found David Kirsch carrying a warning sign motorists: "Beware, speed trap ahead."

Troopers added the charge of obstructing justice to a traffic ticket they had given Kirsch earlier.

Although the Pawnee Indians were basically farmers, they went on a big buffalo hunt each June.

Sponsors Lose In Pop Festival

BYRON, Ga. (AP) — The 2nd annual Atlanta International Pop Festival came to a close early today and Alex Cooley, one of the four sponsors, said he and his partners lost thousands of dollars. They were forced to suspend admission prices of $14 in advance and $18 at the gate Friday night when thousands of youngsters stormed the two main gates chanting: "Free, free—Music belongs to the people."

They threatened to rip down the eight-foot plywood fence built around the 120-acre festival site. A special security force of motorcyclists brandishing heavy chains and wrenches was called off at the last minute. Police said they were completely helpless in attempting to enforce laws concerning traffic safety, public nudity, protection of private property and the use of narcotics.

This probably will spell doom for the pop festival as a phenomenon," Cooley said. "I don't see how anyone else could hold one unless he has a box canyon surrounded by barbed wire, electric fences and machinemen."

At its peak, state patrolmen estimated the festival crowd at more than 200,000. However, even before the final performance got under way Sunday, many began leaving and highways were clogged for miles around.

Police said the casualties included "at least two rapes, three or four stabbings, any number of accident victims—people falling off cars and the like—and thousands of drug cases." "I just hope they go home or some place now," one officer said.

Some of the youngsters offered a different assessment of the event. "It was...in the words of one...beautiful."

Boy Burned By Fireworks Trap

HARRIS, Mo. (AP) — A sort of booby trap made with sparkler fireworks backfired on 8-year-old Frankie Holt, leaving him in critical condition with burns over one-third of his body.

The boy, in refueling a tractor at his farm home Saturday, had his clothing sprayed with gasoline from a faulty nozzle. He went to the house to change clothes.

Frankie forgot that the screen door had been rigged with sparklers so they would ignite when the door was opened.

As he entered the house the sparklers ignited and his clothing caught fire. His sister, Annie, 14, put out the flames with pillows.

Illiterate, Or Stupid Thief

MURRAY, Utah (AP) — The thief who broke into his restaurant Sunday must be either illiterate or "just stupid," restaurant manager Verl Duncan concluded.

The burglar stole $60 in coins from a desk, overlooking a note on its top telling Duncan where $366 in paper money had been hidden for the night.

Duncan said the waitress who closed the restaurant hid the money in his office, leaving the note and $402 in checks on top of the desk. Neither the note nor the checks was touched.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The United States is trying to convince other nations to join with it in a cooperative effort to create a true international space laboratory later this decade.

Specifically, American officials want several nations to participate in developing a large space station, which will accommodate dozens of men and women, and a space shuttle, a reusable rocket plane that will service the orbiting station.

Several countries are considering the proposal. Acceptance by them would be a financial lift to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, whose future programs have been delayed because of dwindling budgets. Development cost of the shuttle alone over the next seven or eight years is estimated at more than $10 billion.

Dr. Thomas O. Paine, NASA administrator, has led discussions in Japan, Australia, Canada and Europe, all of which have space programs. He recently headed a U.S. delegation which briefed the 10-nation European Space Research Organization (ESRO) in Paris.

Feelers for cooperation have gone to Russia, but as in the past there has been little enthusiasm expressed by the Soviets.

Paine notes the United States has been involved in more than 250 space agreements with 80 nations. These include launching foreign satellites on U.S. rockets, placing experiments of other nations on American spacecraft, sharing moon rocks with scientists of other lands and use of foreign ground stations for tracking and receipt of data from communications, weather and other types of satellites.

"By pooling the resources of many of these countries, we can work on larger projects with greater promise of return to all nations," the administrator said in an interview. "It would create a new capability for man to explore and utilize space."

"The United States is going to build the space station and the space shuttle," he said. "But I would like to see this project carried out as an international laboratory in space. If it's truly going to be a cooperative project, other nations should pick up part of the cost as well as provide the kinds of talent which they have available."

He said many countries could share in the practical benefits of a space station, such as communications, weather observation, survey of earth's resources, and engineering, medical and scientific research.

"But this also is a way in which other parts of the world can move to the forefront of science and technological advance, rather than working on their own separate programs, which tend to be some years behind what the Americans and Russians have done," Paine said.

"This is an attractive opportunity for them, and I believe they're going to consider it very carefully."

Paine said the ESRO nations listened attentively during the Paris conference, in which the detailed U.S. proposal was presented by Arnold W. Frutkin, NASA assistant administrator for international affairs.

Frutkin told ESRO it could help plan the space vehicles, outfit and supply space station modules, develop subsystems, build experiments, provide astronaut-experimenters, man ground stations and evaluate results.

"If we make the realistic assumption that NASA would bear the main burden for the development of the shuttle," Frutkin said, "it then seems the relationship requires a U.S. prime contractor with European subcontractors. The subcontractors would be funded by their governments. If we are to protect the principle of management integrity, it seems obvious that the U.S. prime contractor must have some effective voice in the release of funds by European agencies to the European subcontractors."

The giants of the American aerospace industry are competing for the right to build the shuttle and space station and many already have contacted foreign firms which could become subcontractors.

The ESRO nations plan several more meetings in the coming months before making a decision on joining the Americans.

Concerning possible cooperation with Russia, Paine reported that despite many U.S. overtures in the last decade, the Soviets have agreed only on four areas—meteorology, magnetic field mapping, communications and space biology.

"Frankly, the progress under these limited agreements has been disappointing," the NASA administrator said. "Nevertheless, I have over the past several months written a new series of letters inviting new initiatives in space cooperation."

"The United States and the Soviet Union have political differences all over the world, and I think it's this over-all political situation that makes it difficult to agree in a specific area like space," Paine said. "But in the long run I'm optimistic."

"I don't believe we have to have both U.S. and Russian astronauts on the same flights," he said. "I do believe that we could dovetail our programs better."

Paine said with respect to the space station, "One proposal that we've considered making is designing the same kind of docking adapters for the hatches in both the American and Soviet stations, so that if there were an emergency, it would be possible for a spaceship from one vehicle to go to the rescue of the other."
