

National Goals May Call For New Cities, Tax On Polluters, College Curbs

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—A special White House panel has told President Nixon the answers to the nation's problems may involve a de-emphasis on college education, taxes on polluters and development of new cities to lure residents from crowded metropolitan areas.

Although noting predictions that the U.S. population may be stabilizing, the report said 70 per cent of the country's people probably will be concentrated on one-tenth of the land by the end of the century.

And half the population, containing the most advanced and most prosperous elements of the society, will live in three giant metropolitan belts—Boston-Washington, Chicago-Pittsburgh and San Francisco-San Diego, the Panel on National Goals said in a 228-page staff report.

Few firm conclusions were offered in the report, entitled "Toward Balanced Growth: Quantity with Quality." The panel said its suggestions were intended to stir public debate and generate concern in Congress.

The trend toward settlement of most of the population in metropolitan areas can be reversed if federal, public and private institutions adopt a coordinated strategy, the study group said. Alternatives might include fostering the growth of existing small cities, building new cities and generating growth in rural areas.

Regarding schooling, the presidential study group said, "Many people feel that too-great emphasis is already being placed on post-secondary education, particularly on the four-year degree and that possibly there are many students now in college who do not really want to be there."

Perhaps college should be de-emphasized, the panel said. But in any case, the nation should examine approaches to higher education.

One answer to pollution, the panel declared, is the imposition of taxes on polluters. "In the competitive market place, raising the price of pollution would tend to lower environmental degradation, as producers would have an incentive to use manufacturing methods that put fewer burdens on the environment.

"And higher prices for the products that dirty the air and water would induce households to alter their buying habits," the report stated.

Looking toward the end of the decade, the panel forecast the possibility of a one-shot birth-control device which could regulate fertility for a year; three-dimensional television; an increase in human organ transplants; control of the weather, and the use of chemicals to stimulate learning and memory.

N.C. Industry Development Shows Decline

DURHAM (AP)—North Carolina's rate of industrial development declined some $124.6 million during the first six months of the Department of Conservation and Development said today.

"This slowdown has not been unique to North Carolina," Roy Sowers Jr. said in a prepared talk to the Tobacco and Kiwanis Club at Durham. "It has reflected a nationwide trend."

"But we are hopeful," he added, "that during the second six months of this year we will experience an upturn in our economy, which will be reflected in our industrial development efforts."

"Already, there are encouraging signs," Sowers said. "The money situation has loosened somewhat. Many of our industrial prospects are talking more optimistically..."

He told the Kiwanis Club that during the first six months of this year industry committed a total of $248 million for new and expanded facilities in North Carolina. For the same period last year the figure was $372.6 million.

The industry commitments for this year, Sowers said, will bring $57.4 million to North Carolina's payroll and will create 11,600 new jobs.

"Many people here and elsewhere have tended to lump all industry together, and brand it the 'bad guy,' always to be dis-

'Ballute' Tests Encouraging

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force says it is encouraged by tests of its ballute—a combination parachute and hot-air balloon that would enable a pilot who bails out over enemy territory to stay aloft for a half hour while awaiting air rescue.

A propane-fueled burner heats air forced into the ballute, which is attached to the top of the pilot's parachute. A half-hour in the air at up to 10,000 feet is enough time, the Air Force says, for a rescue plane to locate the pilot and either grab him on a line and reel him into the plane or tow him to friendly territory where he could descend by parachute.

The ballute system, called the Pilot Airborne Recovery Device, has been tested only with dummies so far.

All Are Saved As Liner Burns

By FENTON WHEELER

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP)—All 721 passengers and crew of the Norwegian cruise ship Fulvia were rescued Sunday after a fire at sea 100 miles north of the Canary Islands. The burned out vessel sank in 2,000 fathoms this morning.

The owners of the vessel said she had drifted to within 35 miles of here and went down at a latitude of 28.57 north and a longitude of 16.30 west.

The 448 passengers and most of the 273 crewmen arrived in Santa Cruz Sunday night aboard the French luxury liner Ancerville, which answered the Fulvia's SOS.

Most of the passengers were Italians, while the crew was Norwegian.

The Fulvia's captain, C.B. Fasting, and four of his officers remained at the scene aboard the Spanish tug Tamaran in a futile attempt to save the 16,923-ton Norwegian America Line vessel.

Late Sunday night the Fulvia was reported ablaze from stem to stern and listing heavily to port.

At least three passengers were injured.

The Fulvia, in a distress signal early Sunday, reported a fire in its engine room after an explosion. Half an hour later the order to abandon ship was given. The sea was calm, and passengers said there was no panic as they were loaded into the lifeboats.

The Ancerville was bound for Casablanca, Morocco, when it was diverted to the rescue. It arrived about seven hours after the Fulvia's SOS and found the lifeboats about half a mile from the Fulvia.

Capt. Fasting and 26 of his crew remained aboard their ship to try to control the blaze, but they abandoned ship when the fire intensified, and the Ancerville picked them up.

When the Tamaran arrived, Fasting and his four officers transferred to the tug while the Ancerville sailed to Santa Cruz. The Fulvia left Genoa Tuesday on a 10-day cruise to the Canaries, stopped at Cannes, on the French Riviera and Funchal, in the Portuguese Madeiras, and was due in Santa Cruz Sunday.

She was to stop at Casablanca before returning to Genoa next Friday.

Built in Amsterdam in 1949 as the Oslofjord, she was modernized in 1967 and her name was changed last year.

Reunion For Apollo 11 Crewmen

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Apollo 11 astronauts get together with their space ship today on the first anniversary of man's history-making moon walk.

Neil Armstrong, the man who took the first step on the lunar surface, Edwin Aldrin, who followed him, and Michael Collins, pilot of the command ship, were to see the heat-scattered spacecraft Columbia for the first time since shortly after it brought them back to earth.

The module has been on exhibition in the Missouri capital since last Friday.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes was to welcome the astronauts to the exhibit along with Dr. Thomas Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and other officials of the agency.

The astronauts were to be here a little more than an hour before leaving for New York, where they will give Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations a sample of moon rock and the U.N. flag they carried to the moon and brought back with them when they splashed down in the Pacific July 24, 1969.

The Apollo 11 capsule, a half-pound moon rock—the largest to go on public display—and the spacesuits worn by the pioneering crew, are being exhibited in all of the state capitals. The tour began April 17 in Sacramento, Calif., and the exhibit arrived in Jefferson City from Topeka, Kan.

Hundreds of wide-eyed school age children flocked to the exhibit when it was opened Friday in official ceremonies by Gov. Hearnes. Since then several thousand persons have visited Apollo 11.

McDonald Avoids Giving Up Sample Of Hair

By BILL McKEITHAN
Associated Press Writer
FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Military policemen engaged in a shoving match with Army Capt. Jeffrey R. MacDonald and civilian lawyers defending him against murder charges today, then took the captain into "protective custody."

One of the lawyers, Dennis Eisman of Philadelphia, Pa., who was thrown to the ground by an MP after his car was forced off a street by a police Jeep, was taken to an Army hospital for observation.

The whereabouts of MacDonald was kept secret by the Army.

The incident occurred after Army police were thwarted in an attempt to forcibly take a sample of MacDonald's hair, presumably to use as evidence against him in the Army's attempt to prove he killed his wife and their two small daughters at their Ft. Bragg apartment Feb. 17.

Eisman and his law partner, Bernard Segal, had filed a motion in U.S. District Court at Clinton to prevent the Army from obtaining a sample of MacDonald's hair, contending it would amount to forcing him to testify against himself.

Judge Algernon Butler ruled at Clinton Saturday the case was not in his jurisdiction. Eisman said this ruling is being appealed to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va.

Eisman said he learned of Butler's ruling Sunday night and that shortly afterward the prosecution telephoned him and informed him it would take a hair sample, forcibly if necessary, at 8 a.m. today.

This morning, four agents of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division (CID) and four uniformed military policemen entered the bachelor officers quarters where MacDonald lives under guard, but Eisman and Segal had already taken him to the hearing room.

MacDonald remained there for about two hours, but the Army's prosecuting attorneys did not show up. Four CID agents waited outside in a car. Eisman came out of the hearing room and said resumption of the closed hearing had been postponed until 1:30 p.m. at the request of the prosecution.

Shortly afterward, a car carrying MacDonald, Eisman, Segal and MacDonald's Army escort officer, drove away from the hearing room, followed by a car carrying newsmen and a public information officer.

Military police forced both cars to stop at a point where the lead car was in an intersection, then several MPs converged on the car carrying MacDonald, who was told he was being taken into protective custody. The defendant refused to leave the car. Eisman got out and two MPs threw him to the ground about five feet away. MacDonald emerged and the MPs subdued him. Segal ran to his law partner, who lay on the ground.

Eisman was then taken to Womack Army Hospital on the post and police left with MacDonald.

The hearing into the murder charges was expected to remain closed, despite a demand Sunday by MacDonald's father-in-law—father of one of the murder victims—that it be opened.

Scott Cites Errors

Inaccuracies In Census

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Bob Scott said today it is obvious the preliminary census figures for North Carolina are inaccurate.

Scott said that in one North Carolina town, which he did not identify, the census enumerators missed a housing development that included about 40 families.

In another town, the governor said, the Census Bureau came up with a figure of less than 1,300. A check of the tax books and the families using the town's water showed a count of almost 1,700, or 400 above the census figure.

Scott made his remarks in a prepared talk at the 20th annual convention of the Southeastern Association of Tax Administrators.

The governor suggested that to improve accuracy the Census Bureau should consider these alternatives:

- Return to the old system of having takers visit each house; hold.
- Conduct the census once every five years instead of once every 10 years.

—Establish a method of crosschecking, such as by giving each person, at birth, a Social Security number.

Under the latter proposal, Scott said, "anytime a person changes his residence, he would be required to register his new address with the Census Bureau."

"In that way, there could be a continuous and fairly accurate counting of our population," he said.

The governor said there were more complaints than usual this year about the census "and with good reason, I think."

He noted that a large portion of the questionnaires were mailed to households to be completed and mailed back. Some of these, he said, were thrown in the trash can.

Scott told the group, "I hope that the final census figures will show that the out-migration from North Carolina in the past two decades is about at an end. I also hope that my state will not lose a seat in Congress, as it did after the 1960 census."

"Most of all," he added, "I hope that the final count will be just as accurate as is humanly possible."

No Deficit Problems

City's 1969-70 Budget Well Within Goal Plan

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Greenville's 1969-70 budget worked out well, without a major deficit problem occurring and with a cash on hand balance of nearly $100,000.

According to a budget review sheet prepared by City Manager Harry Hagerty, the city finished the fiscal year on June 30 with $99,683.05 cash on hand. Of this amount, $21,246.06 are funds earmarked for specific items, thus the actual amount carried forward unspent from the old budget is $78,436.99.

Items in the $21,246.06 earmarked portion of cash on hand include $3,500.46 for an old bond prior to 1961; $7,903.88 for a 1961 bond; $8,896.81 for a library bond; $668.26 for workman's compensation; and $276.65 for city debt service.

In addition to these amounts, a capital reserve and special funds total $113,854.17.

In the capital reserve account which is to cover commitments made for a new fire truck, for right of ways, for certain parts of the Shore Drive development and for money to purchase the Hardee property for recreation — the city has on deposit $48,404.00. "Money in this category is deposited and is drawing interest for the city," Hagerty noted. "This is a big advantage to the taxpayer," he added.

The remainder of the $113,854.17, comprising special funds items, amounts to $65,450.17. This breaks down into four major groupings — Paving fund of $5,000, for Greenville Bond numbers 336-370; Workman's compensation at $20,100., including Greenville Bonds 421-425 amounting to a total of $5,000., and two interest deposit accounts of $9,500 and $5,600; a cemetery purchase fund, consisting of Greenville Bonds 426-440 for $15,000 and a deposit account of $756.73. A final group under the special funds is an item of $24,593.44 which represents money resulting from the sale of lots in the Shore Drive project belonging to the city and the sale of a house on Cemetery Road. "Originally, this amount was earmarked as part of funds to purchase the Shore Drive land, but now it will be used to develop the area," Hagerty commented. "These funds too are deposited funds making money for the city."

The city manager's budget review also shows that actual collections of anticipated revenues during the 1969-70 fiscal year ran $123,126.39 or 105.8 percent over budget estimates made at the beginning of the 1969-70 fiscal year.

Expenditures too, ran over original anticipated estimates for a total amount of $42,792.05. The five areas in which expenditures went above estimates were: the mayor's office, $1,342.86 for services of a clerk added; $21,825.45 for the Police Department, which was accounted for by extra expenditures for school disturbances and for the purchase of four cars which had not been budgeted; $6,202.93 for the Fire Department, due mainly as the result of six major fires during the fiscal year; $20,188.16 for the Public Works Department, as the result of extensive city work in the Cherry view area for paving and for pipe and culverts used in Lincoln Park and in the Fomes Run projects. The final of the five over anticipation items was $759.41 to help pay for an assistant director for the Recreation Department.

A final note in the budget review sheet shows that during the fiscal year a total of $64,475.16 was expended for street improvement projects, while only $29,257.70 was collected from persons signing up for this work.

"All in all," Hagerty reports, "the city's income exceeded expenditures by $80,334.34. We were also able to establish a capital reserve account of $48,404.00."

Hagerty indicated he considers the past fiscal year as a good one, with much accomplished, particularly in the area of drainage and street improvements.

"We do have to get busy collecting outstanding commitments on paving contracts," he remarked.

No Trace Of Soviet Plane

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP)—Despite waning hopes, planes of three nations kept up a search today for one of Russia's biggest cargo planes, missing in the North Atlantic with a load of relief supplies for victims of the Peruvian earthquake.

Heavy, low-lying fog and hundreds of floating icebergs hampered the search Sunday for the four-engine Antonov 22 that disappeared Saturday between Iceland and Halifax. Rescue officials believed at least 23 persons were aboard.

Five American, Canadian and Danish planes were searching. Officials said neither oil slicks nor suspicious debris had been sighted.

The huge plane—189 feet long and capable of carrying a payload of 88 tons—disappeared from radar screens 21 minutes after taking off from Keflavik, Iceland. It had been scheduled to refuel again at Halifax.

The Russian airlift by about a dozen planes was ordered after Peruvian newspapers complained that the Soviet Union was providing no aid to survivors of the May 31 quake, which killed an estimated 70,000 persons and left 800,000 homeless.

It apparently was intended to offset effects of the visit by Mrs. Richard M. Nixon to the earthquake area after her husband had allocated $10 million to quake relief and sent more than 30 planes and helicopters to provide transport for remote stricken areas. The Russian program did not start until last week, more than six weeks after the quake.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—As heavy rains whipped Minneapolis Saturday, the Theater of Involvement was presenting Noel Coward's play "Hay Fever."

With water swirling about his ankles, actor Keith Walters walked onstage and delivered the play's next line: "I say, it's raining."

magazine says.

In its current issue, Time reports that the United States has increased surveillance flights by U2 aircraft and satellites to one a day, the highest number since the missile crisis of 1962.

The weekly news magazine says that since April, Soviet TU95 bombers have made six flights to Havana, probably on reconnaissance missions and to deliver military supplies.

"The flights may also be an effort to test the U.S. response; since there was no reaction following the first two flights in April, four more followed," the magazine says.

"Three or four Soviet aircraft are now appearing on U.S. mainland radar screens every 24 hours, the largest number ever," Time says, adding there have been reports of Soviet Komar-class missile boats off Key Biscayne, Fla. The boats were "outside the 12-mile international limit, but well within their missiles' 15-mile range of the Florida White House," Time says.

In recent congressional testimony, government sources rated chances for a renewed Soviet adventure in Cuba as "low."

Miss Margaret Ann Lee Is Bride His Fascination Can Be Dangerous

FACTOLUS — Miss Margaret Ann Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Lee Jr. of Rt. 3, Washington, became the bride of Oliver Key Joyner Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Key Joyner Sr. of Woodland, on Sunday at 4:00 p.m.

The Rev. William H. Edwards officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Tony McDowell of Woodland, organist, and the Rev. Nathan Burgess of Burlington, soloist, ribbons. who sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church altar was flanked with emerald palms and baskets of white gladioli and mums. A fifteen branch brass arch candelabra held white burning tapers entwined with bridal greenery and garlands of greenery graced the chancel above the prie-dieu decorated with satin bows where the couple knelt for prayer. Family pews were marked with white satin

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory summer satin fashioned with an empire bodice highlighted with appliques of alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls, a cuffed neckline and elbow length sleeves. The A-line skirt featured appliques of lace and pearl motifs and ended in a circular length train.

She wore a full length mantilla of illusion bordered in alencon lace featuring appliques of lace on the chapel train. She carried a full cascade bouquet of white bridal roses and white orchids.

Mrs. Edward Earl Lee of Rt. 3, Washington, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floral linen print formal length gown designed with an empire bodice and jewel neckline with a roll collar. She wore a Dior bow of purple ribbon with streamers and carried a nosegay of purple asters with matching streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Helen Ray Baker of Charlotte, Mrs. Robert Irvin Young of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Luther Culpepper of Woodland. They were dressed identical to the honor attendant.

The bride's mother wore a soft yellow crepe dress with a matching alencon lace coat. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of a white orchid.

The bridegroom's mother chose a deep pink shantung dress and coat with ornate trimming on the collar and matching accessories. She wore a white orchid.

Mrs. Sam Bowers Sr., grandmother of the bride, selected a pale blue crepe dress with matching accessories and a lilac orchid.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Noel Lee III of Rt. 3, Washington, brother of the bride, Powell Joyner Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va., cousin of the bridegroom, and Ronald Hugh Vasser of Richmond, Va.

For a wedding tip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a bright yellow dress fashioned with an empire bodice highlighted with ornate gold trimming. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside at Virginia Beach, Va.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and was a member of Delta Zeta sorority. She is currently employed with the Virginia Beach city schools.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Florida Central Academy and attended Richmond Professional Institute, Richmond, Va. He is employed as hotel manager at the Dundee Inn, Virginia Beach, Va.

The wedding was directed by John Price of Greenville.

Reception
The bride's parents entertained at a reception at the Washington Moose Lodge following the ceremony.

Guests were greeted by Edward Lee and J.R. Lee and introduced to the receiving line. Mrs. Ralph Langley, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The reception room was decorated with massive arrangements of gladioli, mums, carnations and magnolia.

The bride's table was covered with an eyelet embroidered organdy cloth over pale green linen. The center was decorated with white burning tapers in a branch candelabra with white carnations and gladioli with fern.

Mrs. Jimmie Whichard and Mrs. John Langley poured punch and Mrs. W.B. Satterthwaite and Mrs. William Edwards served cake.

A bridal portrait was displayed at the reception. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. S. O. Bowers Jr., aunt of the bride, and Ralph Langley, uncle of the bride.

Rehearsal Dinner Party
Miss Margaret Ann Lee and Oliver Key Joyner Jr. were entertained with a rehearsal dinner party Saturday night at the Candlewick Inn, Greenville.

Hosting the event were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Key Joyner Sr., parents of the bridegroom.

Guests included members of the wedding party and members of the immediate families.

Guests were invited into the dining area which was arranged with gladioli, carnations and mums. Places were marked by place cards with wedding bells.

The bride-elect wore an ice blue crepe dress highlighted with a scooped neckline and a jeweled waist. She also wore a white carnation corsage.

Bridesmaids Luncheon

A bridesmaids' luncheon honoring Miss Margaret Ann Lee, was given Saturday at the bride's home by Mrs. Sam Bowers Sr., grandmother of the bride, and assisted by Mrs. Jimmie Whichard, Mrs. Sammy Bowers and Mrs. Harold Tyson.

The bride was dressed in a white and pink lace dress with matching pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The guest tables were laid with a white linen cloth with pink carnation arrangements in silver vases for the centerpiece. Places were marked by place cards with miniature wedding bells.

DEAR ABBY: I am a boy and also a junior in high school. I became friends with a girl who is a senior. She is married and her husband is in the service. We are not serious or anything like that, we are just good friends. The day school let out for vacation, this girl went to be with her husband, but before she left, she gave me a picture of herself, and a very nice I. D. bracelet, which she asked me to wear. I was honored.

When I got home my parents were all upset. My mother wanted me to send the picture back, and the bracelet, too. I am not worried about what my parents or anybody else thinks.

She is a very nice girl, Abby, and I would like to marry someone like her someday, but not her, and not now.

I would greatly value your advice on this touchy and personal subject.

SINCERELY

DEAR SINCERELY: I think you are fascinated by the "friendship" of this senior-type older woman. You may consider her "just a friend," but I suspect you are more than "just a friend" in her view. She's married, and as such she's out of bounds. Your parents are right.

DEAR ABBY: At the age of 21, and should have been old enough to know better, I was trapped into marrying a girl I didn't love. She had a baby 5 months after we were married and I am about 99 per cent sure this baby is not mine, but there is no way I can prove it.

She was not a very good wife and we didn't get along at all, so we were separated for 13 months, then she had another baby. There is no way this child could be mine, but since I am her legal husband I must support it. She was a bum when I married her and she hasn't changed any. I know I'll never live with her, but it's to her advantage to stay legally married to me, so she fights divorce. What should I do?

WESTPORT

DEAR WESTPORT: You need some expert legal advice. It will cost you something, but it'll be well worth it.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps the idea of having a "Mamma Doll" that delivers does not appeal to some mothers of small children, but neither should the concept of lying appeal to them. I was never told that the stork delivered me, and no child of mine will ever be told such nonsense either.

I am now a sophomore in college and I saw kittens born, calves born and cattle mating—all before I was 7 years old, and I didn't go out and "try sex" at the first opportunity.

The child who has been brought up in a home where everything concerning sex is considered taboo and hush-hush is more apt to go out and experiment than the child who has grown up in a home where there is an open and healthy attitude about sex, and has all his questions answered honestly. The child who knows the facts of life will never be in trouble. He will know all about sex, and the consequences.

PAM IN RHODE ISLAND

DEAR ABBY: All mothers know that toys which do only one thing are good for only one day. Take the electric train. How dull it is. But a set of blocks can be a house, a garage, a car, a fort or a plane. An empty box can be anything from a spaceship to a doll house.

A toy, to be educational, should stretch the imagination, therefore a doll that has a baby will soon become as dull as

Chinese Dish Features Use Of Iceberg Lettuce

Some of the most interesting cooked dishes in Chinese cuisine use iceberg lettuce.

Sometimes the whole lettuce leaves are used as crisp "wrappers" for cooked combinations of meat and vegetables in a small amount of savory sauce or for fried rice. The lettuce leaves are brought to the table and eaters pile the cooked ingredients into the leaves and wrap the lettuce around the filling.

Sometimes coarsely shredded lettuce is added to cooked ingredients; sometimes the ingredients are served on a bed of shredded lettuce. And sometimes both additions are used in one dish.

Today we're offering you just such a Chinese dish featuring iceberg lettuce. For the dish shrimp, pineapple, green pepper, mushrooms and shredded lettuce go into a slightly sweet-and-sour sauce; then the whole thing is served on a bed of the crisp lettuce. A pleasant combination.

- PINEAPPLE SHRIMP
- 1 head iceberg lettuce
  - 1/2 of a large green pepper, cut in small squares
  - 1 can (13 3/4 oz) pineapple chunks in heavy syrup
  - 1 can (2 oz) button mushrooms
  - 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 2 tablespoons salad (not olive) oil
  - 2 tablespoons catchup
  - 2 teaspoons cider vinegar
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 tablespoon Japanese-type soy sauce
  - 1/4 cup cold water

1/2 pound medium-size shrimp (cooked, shelled and deveined)

Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce. Cut off 1 cup small pieces of thick-veined lettuce near core area; set aside.

Cut remaining lettuce head in half lengthwise; with a long sharp knife, finely shred enough lettuce across heart to make 3 cups. Spread shredded lettuce over the bottom of a small serving platter.

Drain pineapple and mushrooms, mixing and saving liquids.

In a 1 1/2 quart saucepan stir together until smooth the cornstarch, salad oil, catchup, vinegar, salt, and soy sauce; gradually stir in saved pineapple-mushroom liquid and water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until clear, thickened and boiling. Add thick-veined lettuce, green pepper, pineapple chunks, mushrooms and shrimp. Heat through, stirring gently. Spoon over shredded lettuce on platter. Serve at once.

Should All Our Needy Suffer?

The big risk for all North Carolinians in the so-called "welfare revolt" lies in the potential federal withholding of $275 millions from programs that help our needy people.

One hundred counties are involved. The overwhelming majority have appropriated sufficient funds for welfare programs this fiscal year. But because of a handful of recalcitrants, the entire state conceivably could find itself in a bind.

Maybe that's an oversimplification. We should, perhaps, think more of the thousands of individuals who are too old, too young, too incapable of earning the basic needs which are euphemistically called "a living".

Social Services Board Chairman John Jordan says the only two steps open for the state lie in either taking court action or cutting off welfare funds to the counties involved in the "revolt".

The first alternative appears to be a more futile alternative than the latter. The state brought suit against one county last September, and it has not yet come to trial. There is simply no telling when the courts can, or will, hear a case; and in this instance, the element of time is all-important.

As to the second alternative . . . cutting off welfare funds to recalcitrant counties . . . a lot of needy people (most of whom are worthy of our deepest consideration) can suffer. Would their county governments, inasmuch as the needy represent a "minority" of voters, make up the difference? We wonder.

It's part of our tradition that the wheels of justice turn slowly, but exceedingly fine, and this appears to be one of many instances in which slowness is not of particular advantage to anyone.

What A Way For That Pretty Possum To Go

We object. The "prettiest possum" in North Carolina, so adjudged in the Spivey's Corner Hollerin' Contest, will be eaten. That kind of fate is distinctly unsuited to a pretty possum winner.

Do we eat our Miss North Carolinas? Of course not. She is honored. She is given prizes. She is groomed to compete for the Miss America contest.

But never eaten. Now our Governor, presumably a traditionalist in possum-eating, has been given the prettiest possum of them all for the main course of a future dinner. A "state dinner", we presume.

Maybe it's an honor to be the main course at the Governor's mansion. But we'd wager most honorees would pass it up if they had a choice.

Poor "Slow Poke" (that was his name). If he had only known the distinction that was to be bestowed on him, his name would more likely have been "Greased Lightning". Fate can play dirty tricks.

Nixon's Quiet War On Drugs

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's backstage but thus far unsuccessful diplomatic effort to reduce the flow of heroin into the U. S. is so deadly serious that he has written a personal, confidential letter to another head of state: President Georges Pompidou of France.

Mr. Nixon's letter to the French President appealed for a crackdown on heroin processing plants in Marseilles (illegal in France). Pompidou sent back a quick and sympathetic reply, but that scarcely helped the situation dramatically.

The sad fact is that the French police have not yet made deep penetration of the underground network of small heroin factories. These sub-rosa plants are still turning raw opium and morphine into finished heroin for smuggling into the U. S.

The President's quiet diplomatic offensive to reduce the flow of heroin into the U. S. has been no more successful with the Turkish government, despite persistent appeals for a drastic cutback in the number of provinces legally able to grow the poppy. The source of heroin is a sticky substance in the poppy pod, which hardens into raw opium — the base of all opium-family hard drugs.

In his call for help to the Turks, Mr. Nixon has pointedly recalled the major U. S. program of aid to Turkey in the days of the Greek-Turkish aid program, when Soviet pressure threatened to topple the Turkish government. The U. S. drug crisis, Mr. Nixon has said, is scarcely less dangerous to this country's future.

Despite this dramatic appeal the Turks flatly refused to ban all poppy-planting. The most they conceded to the U. S. in a June 30 government decree is a reduction from nine to seven in the number of provinces that can legally plant the poppy.

Even that reduction could be misleading. While reducing the overall acreage, the government put no restrictions on planting within the approved seven provinces.

A footnote: Both the French and German interior ministers started personal negotiations with Atty. Gen. John Mitchell in the past few days in an effort to coordinate better international controls over illicit drug traffic.

Elliot Richardson, the new Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), tipped off his personal style recently by paying a private visit to a key Capitol Hill staffer critical of President Nixon's welfare reform bill.

Richardson's predecessor at HEW, Robert Finch, had kept arm's-length from lobbying activities. But Richardson did not hesitate to visit Thomas Vail, chief counsel of the Senate Finance Committee where the welfare reform has been bottled up.

Some protocol-conscious bureaucrats at HEW felt that a Cabinet member would demean himself by lobbying a lowly Congressional staffer. What they overlook is the fact that Vail influences both Democratic and Republican members of the Finance Committee and has been the source of much Senatorial criticism of the program.

A footnote: Another difference between Richardson and Finch involves Federal patronage. Richardson has decided not to seek White

System Serves To Fill A Gap

By BRYAN HAINSLIP RALEIGH — Making education make sense is the mission of the North Carolina comprehensive community college system.

Too often it doesn't — for the high school student whose courses are designed to prepare him for the college he isn't going to attend; for the adult whose training isn't suited to the jobs open in modern industry and business; for the man or woman of middle years who wants to make up for the learning missed earlier.

Large numbers of Tar Heels fall within these groups. Seven years ago there was virtually no place for them in the state's system of education, which left a wide gap between high school and the four-year senior college or university.

This year there is an enrollment of nearly one-quarter million in 15 community colleges and 39 technical institutes located throughout the state. Built at a cost of around $60 million, these thriving institutions have an operating budget of more than $42 million annually.

The seventh birthday for the community college system — the act establishing it under the State Board of Education became law in July, 1963 — is a happy occasion for Dr. J. E. Ready (rhymes with speedy), its director from the beginning. "I am very well pleased," he said. "We had certain objectives in mind, and we have held consistently to them. The system has expanded tremendously in meeting the needs of the people."

The basic philosophy of the system is that education is for the total citizenry. The door is open for those beyond high school age, 18 or older (school dropouts 16-18 can enroll under certain conditions), who are interested and can benefit from instruction offered. Fundamental education skills, technical training for vocational opportunity, cultural enrichment, and the first two years of academic work for college are provided by the comprehensive community college. Technical institutes do not offer the college transfer program.

Flexibility is the pattern. "People don't like blind alleys," Dr. Ready explained. Counseling and aptitude tests help assure that each student finds his way to the program suited to his needs.

Costs are kept low. Tuition is $32 per quarter for occupational or technical training, $42 for college transfer students. The institutions are non-resident, and operate year-round on a schedule including evening classes so that a student may easily work while going to school.

Local initiative and participation gives strength to the system. Each technical institute or community college has a local board of trustees. Decisions on courses to be offered involve both the thinking of local people and the guidance of the community college department and the State Board of Education.

A primary aim of the system is to give dignity and status to occupational training, to erode the idea that the four-year senior college is the only respectable avenue beyond the high school.

"We need to recognize honorable labor wherever it is," Dr. Ready said, "realizing that the white collar is not the only route to success."

The upward trend in enrollment gives evidence that the concept is gaining ground. "When I see an automobile with a technical institute or community college sticker, or read a wedding story which says the bride or groom attended one of our institutions, I know we are making headway," Dr. Ready added. "It shows there is a growing sense of pride among our students."

In numbers of institutions, the saturation point has pretty well been reached for the state, he said. In enrollment, he looks for a continued increase though perhaps at a leveling off rate.

"That could be changed by events," he added. "An end to the war in Vietnam could bring us a flood of students. So would a serious economic recession. When people can't get jobs, they go to school."

A South Carolina native, Dr. Ready was city superintendent for Roanoke Rapids schools when he came to the State Board of Education in 1958 to direct a curriculum study for public schools. He was tapped for the community college post when the system was created in 1963.

Now, at 67, he looks forward to retirement within the next several months. The search is one for his successor.

Movies Come Of Age

HOLLYWOOD — It is obvious the motion picture companies in Hollywood are in trouble. The major studios are trying to outdo each other making films about revolution, dope and sex in a desperate effort to attract the two major groups who still go to the movies — young people and dirty old men.

Sampson P. Truberry, head of MTA (Miserable Twentieth Arts) studios, told me, "The motion picture industry has come of age. We are now making adult pictures which tell it like it is. The days of 'Sound of Music' and 'Gone With the Wind' are over."

Truberry continued, "When I took over this studio a year ago, we were losing $10 million a month. I made three movies — 'Motorcycle Virgin,' 'Key Club' and 'Molotov Cocktail' — and now we're in the black. The studio is booming now. Come on, I'll take you around."

We went to Stage 5. As we came on the set, there were a man and woman taking a bath. Truberry whispered to me, "This is one of our big Christmas pictures. It's Christmas Eve, and they've

Other Editors Say Discouraging Use

(Henderson Dispatch)

Those who prefer rail travel to any other kind have in recent years had little encouragement from the railroads. So much of this type of business has been driven away from the carriers by their own deliberate policy that patronage has dropped to the point of deficits in operation of trains. The railroads have demonstrated little interest in catering to the public.

When the private automobile, the buses and airplanes began to make heavy inroads on rail service, the carriers did little or nothing to try to hold what they had. Schedules have been inconvenient and service far less than acceptable — what was left of it, that is.

The State Utilities Commission has allowed Southern Railway to reduce its passenger service between Greensboro and Asheville. Comment by the commission was highly critical of the service provided. It said the railroad has discouraged passengers through bad accommodations, poor scheduling and with no effort to attract passengers by promoting service.

That has been true of most of the railroads. Little by little they have induced utilities agencies to allow them to drop remaining schedules, so that very little is now left. It is quite possible that the point of no return has been reached and passed, and that it would be more difficult now to recover those losses than it would have been to keep what they once had.

The carriers are concentrating on freight business, and even in that branch of their operations they are losing ground. One wonders if the time is near at hand when the railroads will be a thing of the past except for handling bulky shipments. The roads are in difficulty financially, for whatever reason, and apparently because of negligence on their part, at least to a degree. Whether by design or in spite of that, the problem is not easing but is accelerating.

just finished trimming the tree, so they've decided to take a bath together." "Are they married?" I whispered back.

Truberry shook his head. "They're brother and sister, Dummy." "I should have known."

Truberry said, "You see the director? He's the hottest thing in Hollywood. He used to make stag movies for fraternity houses; was arrested seven times; did six years in prison. How he gets half a million dollars a picture, and we've got him signed for five."

Someone yelled, "Quiet on the set!" and we walked over to Stage 9. When we opened the door, a din of rock music almost knocked us off our feet.

This time Truberry had to shout, "This one's titled 'Beyond the Valley of Woodstock.' Everyone's

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

In the last decade something happened to 11 million Americans that few of them bragged about—they became middle-aged. There are now 41.8 million in the 40 to 65-bracket. They make up only slightly more than a fifth of the nation's population but earn well above half its income.

Here's another good reason for looking up to American women: they're getting taller. The average woman under 30 today is 5 feet 4.8 inches tall and weighs 126.2 pounds. That is 1.4 inches taller and 1.9 pounds heavier than her feminine counterpart in 1939. During that generation, however, the bust size of the average woman remained unchanged—34 inches.

If you're having trouble getting enough sleep, it may be because you're not doing enough. People who are active during the day sleep longer and more deeply than those who are sluggish and sedentary during the day.

Any woman dislikes being called a shrew, and she'd hate it even more if she knew the real nature of this tiny and rapacious animal. It will attack and devour almost any creature up to twice its size, and it can eat its own weight in meat every three hours.

Quotable notables: "Nothing so purges the mind of indecency as too much indecency." — George Jean Nathan.

Historic irony: Napoleon ordered France's famed Arc de Triomphe built to celebrate his military conquests, but never rode under its 162-foot tall arch himself in victory. But his body was trundled through in 1840 when it was transferred from St. Helena to his final resting place in the Invalides.

Mighty: Your heart, which is only about the size of your fist, is powerful for its size. Every day it puts out enough energy to lift you a mile into the air.

Staggering statistic: Home is only as safe as you are careful. Last year home accidents disabled 4.3 million Americans.

How much can your mind hold? According to the National Geographic Society, the human brain can retain 10 million bits of information and pull them out at random. It seems to us that we've heard bores at cocktail parties who could double that output.

Wouldn't you like to prevent tooth decay by taking a simple vaccination shot? That may be possible in the future. Already vaccines have been developed which in laboratory tests cut down tooth decay 66 per cent in hamsters.

Worth remembering: "One sure way to know more about people is to know more people." — Elmer G. Leterman.

Strength For Today

SOME REFLECTIONS ON PRAYER

Sometimes as we pray we have the feeling that surely God will not answer the prayer of anyone as unworthy as we are. For our own comfort, however, we should catch the truth taught in Scripture that God is a Father, that He appreciates our weaknesses and imperfections, that He listens to us in all the gentle patience with which an earthly father bears with a thoughtless child. The answer to our prayers depends not upon us but upon God. If we are sincere, repentant, eager to do the right thing, we can be sure that in spite of our unworthiness God hears us. It is not what we are which makes miraculous answer to prayer possible, but what God is.

that God turns a deaf ear to them so long as their lives are filled with weaknesses and imperfections, such people often fail to get any joy whatsoever out of their praying. They never pray with any expectation and certainty. They are always thinking of themselves, of the evil of their hearts, of the aversion God must have for conduct such as theirs. God does hate evil, and unrepentant sin is like a barred gate between the petitioner and God. But when we repent, God puts our sins behind us.

His response to our prayer is conditioned not by what we have been but by what we are now, what we want to be, and what we believe He can do for us.

Housewares manufacturers are doing something about the decline in business, they demonstrated this week at the Chicago Housewares Show. They are using color and design as never before to make their products as nearly irresistible as possible. Some of their uses of color make the new wide ties look starkly clerical.

Libbey's new broad line of glassware ran to designs little short of psychedelic. Cookware, previously concentrating on copper, chrome and avocado colors was offered in a rainbow of enamels. Electrikbroom produced a line of models as gaily decorated as girls' summer dresses. Artisan trays and plates were displayed in a score of designs and colors. Designs included geometrics, flowers, shields, florals and butterflies.

Personal care items took on a new look. Electric shavers for men and women took on new colors, new shapes, new looks. Westclox featured new colors in a broad line of clocks.

More Buttons To Push There were two trends noticeable in small electric appliances in addition to brighter colors: an increase in rechargeable battery devices and in the number of pushbutton controls. The latter was echoed in electric steam irons as manufacturers boasted increased numbers of steam holes.

There were more gourmet cooking items than ever. Manufacturers indicated that the fondue craze has not yet reached its peak, and a few showed they had wised up to the fact that fondue pots are good for a hundred dishes besides cheese concoctions. Retailers reacted well to new colors and designs, but they reacted better to price concessions. Most were looking for things that looked like $19.95 items that they could sell for $14.95 and still carry a 40 per cent markup. Scovill announced that the wholesale price tags in the small electric appliance industry were actually 8.9 per cent lower than in 1957-59. However, many products at the Housewares Show had inched up in price, although many manufacturers were willing to make deals on large orders.

Inflation Break Delayed By Price Rises That break on the inflation front that the First National City Bank of New York foresaw in its July letter has not yet materialized. However, the Bank of America agreed that some lessening of inflation may be seen in the latter part of this year.

The bank quoted the World Money Outlook issued by Societe Financiere Europeenne, of which Bank of America is the American partner. The Outlook reports that inflation is rampant in all industrial countries and that prices, which rose at a rate of 2.5 to 3 per cent a year before 1967 are now rising at a rate of 5 per cent. While no spectacular results are expected, some lessening this year was expected.

In the last few days Goodrich raised prices on tire repair materials, retreading and batteries, effective Monday. General Electric announced a 6 to 8 per cent rise in prices of air conditioners next season. Dayco announced an 8 per cent price increase in latex foam rubber furniture cushioning. Connecticut General increased rates 5 per cent on one of its lines of life insurance.

The Bell System said its many companies would probably be seeking rate increases because of rising costs. Kodak's new schedule of prices goes into effect Monday, with more raises than cuts. Copper declined a cent a pound and other nonferrous metals may weaken.

Oral Communication Course Sees New Life

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

A course in oral communication planned by East Carolina University's Division of Continuing Education was about to be cancelled last Spring because of lack of advance enrollment when suddenly the telephone rang.

The caller was James A. Hecker, manager of Empire Brush Co.'s Greenville facility, one of the new, bustling industrial plants located in Eastern North Carolina in recent years.

Hecker, a New Yorker, wanted to enroll in the course himself along with 11 management and supervisory employees from the Empire Brush Co. plant—a total of 12. "We're in business," exclaimed Braymorn Anderson, assistant dean of Continuing Education, in charge of arranging such non-credit curriculum courses. "It was a happy moment," he recalls.

And now those who signed up and completed the course, attending classes at night for 10 weeks, are no less enthusiastic about the benefits derived.

"It was well worth it, in time, effort and every other way," says Hecker. "We can see results already but the real payoff will be in cumulative, long-range effect. Everyone will benefit."

The course, which is to be offered again this Fall, is somewhat unique and unusual in this area but management of business and industry recognize its value. Hecker puts it this way:

"It has been my experience over the years to note that a great deal of emphasis has been placed on exposing supervisory and other key personnel to every means possible that would train them in the area of efficient letter or report writing.

"There have been countless courses, seminars, books and pamphlets on this subject; but oddly enough, there hasn't been the same emphasis in the direction of oral communications. Yet industry personnel spend much more time using this form of communications than with the written.

Hecker continues, "In a busy plant, key personnel are on the move—a great deal of the time with verbal communication sometimes being done, literally, on the run. In both cases, clear oral communication is required if people are not going to misunderstand each other."

He added, "It made sense to me that anyone in a supervisory capacity could benefit." Now, he says, "I feel they're better at the business of communicating. I believe they feel so."

Enthusiasm was high. Hecker says, "It could have been dull; not of much value, and if so interest would have waned." He and others credited the course instructor, Jim Rees of the East Carolina Speech and Drama department, with making the course relevant, interesting and challenging.

Rees himself says he feels that teaching such courses in adult education "is a very stimulating

U.S. Population Of Monkeys Up

VENICE, Fla. (AP) — Although there's no official monkey census, an expert claims the treetop count is now 750,000 in the United States with 40,000 more swinging into the country each year.

Mike Corradino, director of Florida Monkey Sanctuary, says the spindly-legged monkeys make fine pets but that some humans do inhumane things after tiring of the animals.

Corradino's nonprofit sanctuary cares for homeless monkeys. "Our biggest problem is that we're running out of cages," he said in an interview.

Corradino said one monkey was found in a state park nearly starved to death after an owner apparently dumped him.

No one foresees further enrollment problems.

Every age has its own ailments. In the jet age many Americans seem to be afflicted with a new syndrome—"crisis flight." This is the term airlines officials use to describe passengers who, in order to escape their office or home environment, develop a compulsive habit of grabbing the first available plane flight to anywhere.

The most "stick-to-itive" animal on earth is the barnacle. The glue it secretes—science is still trying to solve its formula—apparently will cement anything to any other substance and has a holding power of more than 7,000 pounds per square inch.

"What's the story?" I shouted back.

"There's no story, dum-dum," he shouted. "Everyone does his own thing."

The smoke from the pot was getting to me, so I went outside to get some fresh air. Truberry followed. "They never knew how to make pictures like this in the old days," he said.

While we were standing there, we heard fire engines and saw a gigantic blaze pouring out of the administration building of the studio. We ran toward it and saw a wild young man screaming into a megaphone: "Keep those fire trucks out of the way. We're shooting a scene!"

Truberry ran up to him. "Jerry, what the hell are you doing?"

"We're shooting the final scene of 'Down With Everything.' It's a helluva blaze, huh boss?"

"There was nothing in the script about you burning down the administration building."

"We're improvising. Man, what a finish!"

An assistant director ran up. "Jerry, do you want to throw some dummy bodies on the fire?"

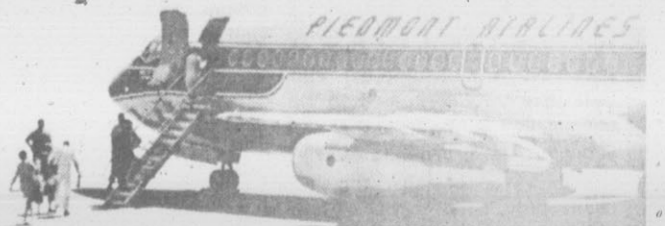

"Are you kidding? There is nothing fake about this movie. Throw in Truberry here."

Two grips picked up Truberry, and started carrying him toward the fire as he screamed.

"Let's get it right on the first take!" Jerry yelled into his megaphone. "We may not find anyone to do it again."

Lowered Voting Age On Some Ballots

U.S. And Koreans To Confer Tuesday

By BEVERLY PETERSON Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — The third annual U.S.-South Korean defense conference opens Tuesday with the chief Korean negotiator already on record as opposing any withdrawals of American troops, now officially numbering 62,000.

"This is not the time to talk about withdrawal," Defense Minister Jung Nae Hiuk said Sunday on his arrival to attend the two-day meeting. "Our defense posture should not be reduced, it should be strengthened."

Jung said the military equipment of North Korea is formidable compared with South Korea's. "It is of national concern that U.S. forces should stay with us for several more years," he declared.

Jung said Communist infiltration into South Korea has increased drastically since 1968. "North Korean Premier Kim Il-Sung is very likely to launch

Passersby See Immolation On Times Square

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who burned himself to death as scores of stunned Times Square passersby watched Saturday afternoon has been tentatively identified as Hin Chi Young, 21, a former student at New York University.

Choleun Young, of Queens, the youth's father, made the identification Sunday on the basis of a watch and keys found after the immolation, police said. Young said his son was a student until February.

The body was burned beyond recognition.

A witness said the youth had said, "I've had it, I've had it," before pulling two cans of flammable liquid from a bag, pouring them over his clothes and striking a match.

One man attempted unsuccessfully to smother the flames with a coat.

Prices Boosted By Irish Pubs

DUBLIN (AP) — The owners of Ireland's pubs put the prices up 7.5 per cent today, making them the most expensive in the British Isles.

Irish beer went up to 43 cents a pint and whisky to 88 cents a glass. These were minimum prices; in plusher hotels and bars they were more.

Barmen said the owners would pocket the increase. The owners said the wage boost barmen won last month forced the prices up.

Commerce Minister Paddy Lalor ordered an inquiry and said he might introduce price controls.

Lindbergh Was Target Threat

MANILA (AP) — Armed men threatened a group including American aviation pioneer Charles A. Lindbergh Saturday as it left a tribal settlement in the Southern Philippines, a spokesman for the presidential office in charge of minorities said today.

The spokesman said no shots were fired, but he would give no details of the incident in south Cotabato province.

Lindbergh was with a group led by Manuel Elizalde, the presidential secretary for national minorities. Also along was correspondent Alden Whitman of the New York Times.

another war in Korea," he said.

U.S. Deputy Secretary of Defense David M. Packard had told reporters on his arrival for the talks that the United States would move ahead with plans to withdraw some of the American troops from South Korea this year. Packard said South Korea's gross national product had doubled since 1958 and that the country could begin to assume a greater role in its own defense.

"South Korea is working for a strong defense on the one hand," said Jung, "and on the other hand it is struggling for economic benefits and for the welfare of the people."

"In order to obtain goals in the economic area, we do need a strong defense and we do need U.S. assistance at least up until 1976."

"The defense outlay is very big compared with the size of our economy. If there is substantial reduction of troops, there will be an increase in our defense burden."

Jung said he believed South Korean Prime Minister Chung Il-Kwon would carry out his threat that he and his entire cabinet would resign if the U.S. troops were withdrawn.

Vietnamese Graduating At U.S. Naval Base

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The first class of 60 Vietnamese naval officer candidates participating in a special program at the Newport Naval Base graduate Wednesday. The program is part of the effort to Vietnamize the war.

Navy Secretary John H. Chafee will be the principal speaker and will award the diplomas to the men who have completed the 20-week course.

Some 750 Vietnamese naval officer candidates are scheduled to undergo training at Newport by the time the program is completed in the fall of 1971.

From Newport the trainees will go to Treasure Island, Calif., for application of what they learned, before returning to South Vietnam.

She Joins Army

SALMON, Idaho (AP) — A young Salmon woman liked serving in the Navy so much that she has enlisted for a second hitch—in the Army.

Marlene A. Bowen, 22, served three years as Navy WAVE and has just completed her basic training with the Women's Army Corps at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

Miss Bowen said she wanted to try the Army because she enjoyed serving in the Navy so much.

Woman's illogic? Not really, said Miss Bowen. Two of her brothers are serving in the Army, and besides, she wanted a little change of scene, she said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposals to lower the voting age will be on the ballot in at least 13 states Nov. 3 and their backers are working hard to overcome a letdown in interest following passage of a federal law allowing 18-year-olds the vote.

The letdown came despite President Nixon's questioning whether the voting age could be changed by Congress. He said a

Dove Urges Jet Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should sell warplanes to Israel but should obtain a commitment that the jets will not be used for flights over Arab territory, says Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D.

In a speech he planned to deliver to the Senate today, McGovern said delivering the planes to Israel would make clear that Israelis could repel any attack and, thus, lessen the chance of war through miscalculation.

"The United States should express clearly its wish that the aircraft sold to Israel not be used for such incursions. Such a declaration would signal to the Arab leaders the American intention to seek directly some restraint on the part of Israel," McGovern said.

He did not suggest how such a proviso could be policed.

Meanwhile, Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., said Sunday a letter signed by McGovern and 78 other senators, urging the Nixon administration to sell planes to Israel, was "the same sort of indiscretion that got us involved in Southeast Asia."

Bellmon, who was interviewed on a WMAL television program, said such a policy letter should come from the Senate only after review and debate.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said any solution to the problem in the Middle East will have to be enforced by the U.S. and Russia—not by the United Nations.

Tower, who was interviewed on the Metromedia Radio News program, "Profile," said, "There seems to be more of a disposition on the part of the Soviets to engage in some kind of useful talks about the resolution of the problems in the Middle East."

And Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said he was not surprised at reports Israel has or can assemble quickly an atomic bomb.

constitutional amendment is required but signed the bill rather than kill the entire Voting Rights Act and urged Congress to begin the long constitutional route just in case.

The current situation is further muddled by Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's notification to the states to submit their plans for complying with the new law by Aug. 3.

Mitchell, who has agreed with Nixon's doubts about the constitutionality of the law, obviously is seeking a quick court test, although the 18-year-old vote provision doesn't go into effect until next Jan. 1.

The situation created a lull in drives to get voter support for proposed changes in state constitutions to lower the voting age.

Ian MacGowan, director of the Youth Franchise Coalition that has been campaigning in 30 states to lower the voting age to 18, said that passage of the federal law led to a slowdown of activity in the states.

But the coalition, which believes the federal law is constitutional, sent out storm signals that the Supreme Court might not agree and state laws might be needed. "So now in most states they are starting to pick up steam again," MacGowan said.

The likelihood of a quick court decision is not bright, but even if a ruling came soon it would have no effect on the November elections.

Only four states now allow young people under age 21 to vote: Georgia, which gives the ballot to 18-year-olds; Kentucky allows 17-year-olds to vote if they will become 18 by the following November; Alaska, 19-year-olds; and Hawaii, 20-year-olds.

Hawaii also is one of three states with proposals on the ballot this year to lower the age to 18. The others are Florida and Connecticut.

Housewives Feel Strike

By THOMAS A. REEDY LONDON (AP) — In only five days, Britain's dock strike has struck a housewife a low blow in the family budget, Agriculture Minister James Prior confirmed today in a personal tour of London's big markets.

He found abrupt price increases imposed by wholesalers, heard bitter complaints from retailers who said they had little choice but to pass them on without gain, only inspiring rancor from the customer.

Prior indicated this would be a major part of his report to Prime Minister Edward Heath's Cabinet, which is treading the delicate path of decision about using troops to unload perishable foods.

The decision may hinge largely upon a report from Employment Minister Robert Carr. He has been the man closest in touch with negotiations involving the 47,000 longshoremen and is trying to work out just how long the strike is likely to last.

The strike is to enforce a demand by the four unions involved for the basic weekly rate of the equivalent of $26.40 to be raised to $48. The basic rate is only used to calculate overtime, bonus payments and vacation pay. Average weekly earnings of longshoremen are about $86.40. If the strikers' claim is met it would mean average weekly earnings of $132.

Eight states will decide whether to open the polls to 19-year-olds: Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota, Minnesota, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Washington and Colorado. Maine and Nebraska voters have a 20-year-old proposition to consider.

Michigan's House and Senate have approved differing amendments to lower the voting age to 18 and if passed by Aug. 4 the issue will be on the November ballot. Voters turned it down by a margin of nearly 2 to 1 in 1968.

The California legislature is considering a 19-year-old vote. A proposed new constitution for Arkansas sets the voting age at 21 but gives the legislature power to set the minimum as low as 18.

Four states are giving the subject long-range consideration, with ultimate approval indicated. Legislatures in Pennsylvania and Delaware have voted for 19-year-old balloting and New York and Rhode Island 18-year-old, but the process requires action a second time at the next legislative sessions.

In most of the other 30 states the question has come up often but the legislatures have refused to vote for lowering the voting age. It has happened in half a dozen states so far this year.

According to reports, Robert Charles Russ, an 18-year-old youth, was accosted near his home on North Haughton Street and robbed of $20 by an unidentified assailant. Police reports show that the assailant allegedly held a knife to Russ's throat, took his money and fled.

Police are continuing investigation in efforts to determine the identity of the robber.

Sometimes we get the feeling we're being followed.

Everybody's getting into the act. Everybody's making a small car. And since we've made more of them than anyone else, we thought we'd pass along some things we've learned about the business over the years:

First off, there's no doubt about it, the only way to make an economy car is expensively.

So Rule No. 1, don't scrimp. Get yourself the best engineers in the business and then hire 9,000 or so top inspectors to keep them on their toes.

Next, try to develop an engine that's not a gas-guzzler. If you can get it to run on pints of oil instead of quarts, great. If you can get it to run on air instead of water, fantastic.

Work on things to make your car last longer. Like giving it 45 pounds of paint to protect its top and a steel bottom to protect its bottom.

Important: Make sure you can service any year car you make. There's nothing worse than having someone find out that a part they need to make their car go is no longer available.

Finally, spend less time worrying about what your car looks like and more time worrying about how it works.

Perfecting a good economy car is a time-consuming business. So far it has consumed 25 years of our time.

Joe Foy On Mound: Mets Have 'Seen Everything'

Billy Casper Believes Positive Thinking Was Difference Yesterday

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billy Casper believes in the theory of positive thinking. It helped him win the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic by three strokes Sunday with a tournament record 72-hole total of 274.

The 39-year-old Casper started the final round leading by two strokes over the 6,615-yard Whitmarsh Valley Country Club course. After nine holes of the final round he trailed Dick Crawford by one.

"I made up my mind I had to make some birdies if I was going to win," Casper related after collecting the $30,000 first prize.

Casper made his birdies, four to be exact, for a four under par 32 on the back nine and a 68 for the day over the par 72 course. It was good enough to turn back challenges by Crawford, and later Terry Wilcox.

Casper put together rounds of 68-67-71-68 for a 14 under par 274, two strokes better than the eight year-old tournament's previous best.

Crawford helped Casper's cause when the 31-year-old Arkansas took a triple bogey on the par four 10th hole. He wound up in a triple tie at 279 with Bunky Henry and Frank Beard. The trio was two strokes behind Wilcox, the pro from the Siwanoy Country Club, Bronxville, N.Y. Wilcox fired a closing 35-34-69 for a 72-hole total of 277.

Casper led Crawford and Wilcox by two at the start of the last 18 holes. He lost the lead after he bogeyed four and Crawford made birdies at one and five. Casper, however, rolled in a 14-foot birdie putt on the sixth to draw even. Crawford then carded a birdie two at nine to lead by a stroke with nine holes to play. Wilcox trailed the leader by two.

Wilcox, who won $17,000, almost doubled his previous earnings this year on the golf tour. Playing head-to-head against the veteran Casper, he matched a bird on 10, bogeyed 11, matched Casper birdies at 13 and 14, but fell three back when Casper dropped a four iron shot 30 feet from the pin at the 17th and two putted for another bird.

"It was my best round from tee to green, a good round in putting," said Casper of his 46th tournament victory since turning pro in 1955. "I played good, solid, strong golf today, probably my best since Augusta," observed the reigning Masters champion.

The victory boosted Casper's 1970 earnings to $103,448, third behind Lee Trevino and Dick Lotz on the money winning list. Casper also moved into second place ahead of Jack Nicklaus on the all-time money list, $1,085,372 to $1,069,659. With previous victories this year in the Masters and Los Angeles Open, Casper became the first three tournament victor of 1970.

Pentathlon Team Is Set

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Army 1st Lt. Charles Richards of Tacoma, Wash., winner of the national pentathlon meet here, will lead a four-man U. S. team to the world championship in Warendorf, Germany, Aug. 1-5.

Accompanying him will be Dr. Robert Beck of San Antonio, Spec. 4 George Weiner of Queen's, N.Y., and Air Force Capt. Loren Drum of Omaha, Neb. They placed second, third and fourth, respectively, in the eight-day U. S. Modern Pentathlon Championship.

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New York Mets thought they already had seen Joe Foy at his worst, and they knew they hadn't seen him at his best. Well, now they've seen everything.

Foy gave them quite an eyeful Sunday, jerking them up and down like a yo yo until he finally landed them on top.

First, the bad Joe Foy. Already he had been a tremendous disappointment to the Mets, who acquired him from Kansas City during the winter as the man to solve their long standing problem at third base. He was hitting around .200 most of the first half of the season. And Sunday, he also showed how bad he could be in the field.

For the first time in his major league career, Foy made three errors in a game.

But now the good Joe Foy ... the Joe Foy who outthit his fielding. For the first time in his career, Joe Foy slammed five hits in one game, including two homers, and one of those homers began the 10th inning and gave the Mets a 7-6 victory over San Francisco and a split of their doubleheader after the Giants won the opener 5-3.

Foy's five runs batted in during the game kept the second place Mets only two games behind Pittsburgh in the National League East after the Pirates downed the Cincinnati Reds 7-3.

In other games, the Chicago Cubs hammered Houston 7-1, St. Louis stopped Atlanta 3-1, Philadelphia surprised Los Angeles by sweeping a twinbill 9-4 and 4-2 and San Diego beat Montreal 6-5 and then lost 6-5.

In the American League, California swept the New York Yankees 5-2 and 3-1, Detroit won two from Kansas City 2-0 and 6-4, Cleveland upended Minnesota 3-1, Boston outthit Oakland 9-4, Washington slipped by Milwaukee 4-3 and Baltimore clobbered the Chicago White Sox 8-2 and then lost 7-3.

Foy's problems began in the first inning when his throwing error led to three unearned runs in a four-run inning. He made errors in the sixth and seventh inning, too, but the Mets escaped unscathed.

His first hit, a double, was wasted in the second inning after Ron Swoboda's homer. But after Swoboda singled in the fourth, Foy hit his fourth homer over the left field screen. He tied the score in the fifth with a run-scoring single.

Then in the seventh, he singled in the leading run and another scored on the play when Willie Mays let the ball get by him.

But three walks and John Stephenson's two out single tied the score for San Francisco in the ninth, setting the stage for Foy's best, a shot just fair over the right field screen.

The Giants won the first game with three runs in the seventh on Tommie Agee's error and hits by Dick Dietz and Jim Hart.

The Pirates used Bob Tolan's throwing error to beat Cincinnati. Matty Alou raced home from first base on Rich Hebner's single and the wild throw in the sixth inning to break a 3-3 tie. Three more runs in the eighth clinched it.

The Cubs scored six runs in the third inning, the last two on Randy Hundley's first hit since coming off the disabled list, and Milt Pappas stopped the Astros on five hits to run his record with the Cubs to 3-1.

Dal Maxvill, a .192 hitter, singled in the tie-breaking run with two out in the eighth inning for St. Louis and, after winner Mike Torrez delivered his fourth hit of the day, Lou Brock doubled in another run. Torrez, winning his first game in three weeks, scattered eight hits.

The Phillies, running their winning streak to five games, stunned the Dodgers in the opener with eight runs in the last two innings—the first three in the eighth on Deron Johnson's homer and four in the ninth on pinch-hitter Jim Hutto's first major league grand-slam homer.

Then in the second game, after Johnson's 18th homer had given the Phillies an early 1-0 lead, they broke a 2-2 deadlock again in the ninth on Mike Ryan's two-run shot, his first of the season.

San Diego scored four runs in the seventh inning, two on an error and a wild pitch, to hold off Montreal in their first game, but the Expos came back with two runs in the ninth of the nightcap on pitcher Dave Roberts' error and Jim Fairrey's single to gain a split.

Then in the second game, after Johnson's 18th homer had given the Phillies an early 1-0 lead, they broke a 2-2 deadlock

American Eagle Finishes First

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—American Eagle, sailing out of Annapolis, Md., cruised across the finish line first early today, in relatively calm waters that contrasted with the sometimes gale-force winds that marked most of the Chicago to Mackinac Island yacht race.

The Eagle, a 69-foot Class A yacht skippered by Ted Turner, came in at 2:08 a.m. (EST) almost an hour and ten minutes earlier than the second finisher Dora, sailed by Lynn Williams of the Chicago Yacht Club.

Officials will have to compute corrected times to determine the winner of the race.

Officials reported that of the 165 yachts that entered the race, 34 were forced to drop out because of crew injuries or damaged equipment during winds up to 40-knot gale force.

Coleman had signed a free agent rookie contract with the Cowboys, but was cut Saturday. He was trying out for wide receiver.

Coleman recently competed for the Southern California Striders track team. He is believed to have retained his amateur status for further track participation despite the unsuccessful football venture.

Grid Team May Sign Housewife

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Orlando's professional football team is negotiating to sign a woman player. Pat Palinkas, who measures 35-25-34, would hold the ball for her placekicker husband.

"Yes," said Orlando Panthers Head Coach Paul Massey, "we're quite serious about signing both of them. We're in the process of negotiating."

Steve Palinkas, just out of the Army where he played military football for three years, found himself without a holder when he started practicing three months ago for a Panther tryout. So Palinkas pressed his wife Pat into service.

"The first 50 or so times I closed my eyes and flinched a little, but it's not hard at all," says the 130-pound housewife who once was a finalist in a beauty pageant at Northern Illinois University.

A month ago Palinkas drove to Orlando from his Tampa home to try out for the Atlantic Coast League Panthers. He lacked consistency.

"I saw he had the power, so I told him to practice and come back," Massey said.

Last week Palinkas returned with his special square-toed kicking shoe — and his wife.

"She's my holder," Palinkas explained.

"Great, let's see what she can do," Massey responded, doubting it just a bit.

Pat, 27, simulated snaps from center, put the football on the tee in timely fashion and Steve boomed 40-yard field goals.

"She has an uncanny ability for holding the ball straight," Steve said. He is 27, 220 pounds and 6-foot-2.

Massey liked the kicking demonstration and he liked the idea of a crowd puller like a husband and wife kicking combo, too.

Attendance has been a problem for the Panthers in their four years at Orlando.

The Orlando coach isn't sure what Atlantic Coast League officials will say about a female player.

"If we decide to go along these lines," Massey said, "we'll sign a contract, send it in and then sit back and see what happens."

Pat sees no problems.

"I'm very agile and know I can handle it," said the physical fitness enthusiast who jogs daily.

"I think she can do it," Steve encouraged.

What about those 250 and 260-pound rushing linemen trying to block the kick?

"Well," Pat hesitated, "that might just cause me to curl up like a snail. What else would a woman do?"

But Mrs. Palinkas has added one stipulation in contract negotiations: "I want my own private locker room."

HUBBY'S HELPER — Steve Palinkas, a candidate for a kicking job with the Orlando Panthers, says he boots 'em best when his wife is holding for him. Panther coach Paul Massey says he is dicking with the couple. (AP Wirephoto)

Javelin Team Advances With Sunday Win In Trans-American Series

By BOB GREENE

Associated Press Sports Writer ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Mark Donohue started with too little oil, but had enough speed to push his red, white and blue Javelin to victory Sunday in the seventh segment of the Trans-American championship series.

Donohue's victory over the four mile Road America course shoved the American Motors' Javelin team into second place in the unofficial team standings with 34 points.

Mustang leads the 13-race series with 50 points while Camero dropped to third with 29 and Plymouth Barracuda and Dodge Challenger were tied for fourth with 11 points each.

"We wanted to run high on oil," Donohue said after the race, which saw him average 91.839 miles per hour over the hilly course. "But if you smoke early in the race, they usually black flag you. So we purposely started low. Only we started a little too low by mistake."

The Media, Pa., driver whipped his Javelin, a Wisconsin-bred vehicle into the pits early, and took on both gas and oil. His next pit stop, in the 30th lap of the 50-lap race, caused him to relinquish his lead to Swede Savage of Santa Ana, Calif., driving a Plymouth Barracuda.

Donohue regained the No. 1 spot on the 32nd lap when he passed Savage on the 90 degree fifth turn. His slim lead of less than one second ballooned four laps later, however, when Savage, Sam Posey of Sharon, Conn., and Milt Minter of Santa Susana, Calif., running two, three and four at the time, all pitted for fuel.

While Donohue was riding to glory, the Mustang team of George Follmer and Parnelli

Jones—which won the first four races in the series this year—was having its problems.

Follmer had won the pole position with the best qualifying time, while Jones was the second fastest qualifier.

But Follmer, of Arcadia, Calif., was involved in a two-car collision on the first turn in the race, and failed to complete even one lap.

"Ed Leslie tried to pass on the inside and his wheels went off the road, causing him to spin in front of me," Follmer said. "I hit him and straightened him up, but then I went off on the left side."

Leslie, driving a Chaparral Camero, ran only 25 laps before he was forced out of the race when his car caught on fire. Savage and Posey collided midway through the race when Posey spun and Savage rammed him. However, both cars continued even though Savage's front end appeared heavily damaged.

In the under two liter race, a 25-lap event, Horst Kwech of Libertyville, Ill., won in his Alfa-Romeo GTA.

On Saturday, in the Continental Championship Series, John Cannon, Montreal, Que., captured the formula A race in a McLaren-Chevrolet, while Jacques Couture, also of Montreal, won the formula B & C event in a Lotus 69-B.

Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., driving a 1970 Dodge, won the 10th annual Volunteer 500 NASCAR Grand National race at Bristol International Speedway in Tennessee. LeeRoy Yarbrough of Columbia, S.C., finished second. Allison averaged 83.915 m.p.h.

A.J. Foyt captured the 200-mile USAC race for late model stock cars at Dover (Del.) Downs, averaging 120.111 m.p.h. in his 1969 Ford Torino. Don White, who had fought Foyt for the lead for more than 25 laps, wound up second.

The Worry Clinic Some Say No And Mean Yes

Terry could easily have lost his wife to another man! For Terry didn't realize that a wife's "No" may often be a subconscious disguise for her "Yes."

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.D. CASE N-568: Terry G., aged 28, is the husband of Nanette, the nagging wife.

"But when I suggest physical affection, she may object and give me an emphatic 'No.' 'So how do you reconcile her aversion to physical affection with your earlier statement that she nags me to make me assert myself?'"

You readers are doubtless familiar with the old adage that a woman's "No" may really mean "Yes." But for various reasons, she may feel it belittling to her pride or an evidence of immodesty if she tells the truth.

So a smart husband must realize that what his wife wants is not always what she tells him she desires. You parents of kiddies will thus recall that a child may also quarrel violently with its mother and even exclaim, "I hate you."

Alas, many cultured, gallant modern males take a woman's word at face value! So they may become veritable doormats! And the more they give in to their wife's tantrums, the worse the latter will nag and scold and criticize.

Instead, take such a wife in your arms and overwhelm her with love, even if you must dominate the scene by sheer greater masculine muscle. But be sure you satisfy her completely, or she will be even more irate and shrewish nagger.

Dominate her in the erotic realm and you will soon find that she changes from a tiger cat to a purring housecat. Alas, most husbands don't know how to satisfy a wife in the erotic realm, for there is a vast difference between mere marital indulgence and feminine satisfaction!

There is a basic law of psychology that applies to animals as well as mankind and it states: "Creatures never run away from happiness and pleasurable satisfaction."

Pledges Expose Migrant Needs

By BROOKS JACKSON Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—A senator probing alleged sub-human conditions among migrant farm workers promised today an expose of who is responsible—"institutions or persons; government or agribusness; federal, state or local."

"Nothing will change until this rotten system is exposed and held accountable," Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said in a statement for today's opening of a two-day inquiry by his subcommittee on migrants. The first scheduled witness was Dr. Raymond Wheeler of Charlotte, N.C., one of a team of foundation-sponsored doctors who visited Texas and Florida migrant camps earlier this year, and reported that workers were deliberately kept in "sub-human status."

Mondale noted the hearings follow last Thursday's television documentary "Migrant—An NBC White Paper," which he said "documented evidence of the squalor, degradation and racism which our nation bestows upon the migrants." He also noted a similar documentary, the late Edward R. Murrow's "Harvest of Shame," had aired much the same migrant conditions 10 years earlier.

"Perhaps our greatest shame is how little we have done in this decade," Mondale said. "We must see to it that there will be no such documentary in 1980." "We know the problems," he said. "We must now turn to the question of why we have accomplished so little. What are the powers, the pressures, the politics and the special interests that have perpetuated this degradation? Who has opposed the investigations of these condition, and who has endeavored to suppress the truth?" Mondale said he had invited officials of NBC and the Coca-Cola company to testify about reports Coca-Cola pressured the network to tone down its documentary on migrants. Coca-Cola, which owns the Minute Maid and Snow Crop brands of orange juice, is a major Florida citrus producer.

Mondale said he also had invited representatives of growers associations to testify about reported pressure. "We know the problems," he said. # Tobacco TIPS

By S.J. WEEKS

Tobacco hornworms do not cause as much damage to the tobacco crop as was caused eight to ten years ago. During the early fifties it was not uncommon to have at least two serious hornworm infestations during a single growing season. This was prior to the use of chemical sucker control to help eliminate the need for hand suckering of the tobacco plant.

The suckers that were allowed to grow on the stalk after the harvest was completed provided feed for the hornworms which enabled them to mature. The mature worm then went into the ground to pupate and emerge as a fly the following spring.

Since less suckers have been allowed to grow, less hornworm flies have developed to lay eggs the following year.

Some hornworms are being observed in the tobacco fields now, but this does not mean that all farmers should apply insecticides for hornworm control. Studies have been made showing that applications of insecticides do not pay unless there is at least 10 per cent of the plants that have a hornworm feeding on them that is at least one inch long. In order to check your level of infestation, examine 50 plants selected at random. If there are five hornworms present on the fifty plants examined, you should apply a recommended insecticide.

If insecticide treatment is necessary, be sure to get good coverage on both sides of the tobacco leaves. All leaves should be covered with the insecticide. Some of the recommended insecticides for hornworm control are: Sevin, Guthion, Thurocide and Lannate.

DDT is not recommended for tobacco insect control.

Nat'l Farm Safety Week Is Underway

National Farm Safety Week will be observed July 19-25. This special week is observed each year to call attention to the need for the use of safety measures on the farm and in the home.

These suggestions are offered by the National Safety Council and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, sponsors of this safety promotion effort:

Keep all guards and shields in place when operating machinery and power tools of any kind.

Equip tractors with protective frames or crush-resistant cabs.

Use safety belts and insist that others do, too.

Be prepared for emergencies like fire, flood, blizzard, wind-storm, sudden illness or injury, or nuclear attack. For information, contact extension, civil defense, Red Cross. Plan and practice ways of evacuation if a home fire strikes.

Install fire extinguishers in buildings, on motor vehicles, tractors, and self-propelled equipment. Dry chemical is generally best, but a dealer should be consulted.

When applying pesticides, wear gloves and recommended protective clothing and have a chemical respirator.

Keep pesticides in a suitable storage area, inaccessible to children and animals.

Cover tank openings and fence dangerous areas like manure lagoons and farm ponds. Have floatations aids available at ponds.

Check electrical wiring and use proper size fuses.

Wear safety shoes (with steel toe box) especially for repair and construction jobs.

machinery operations, and materials handling.

When appropriate, protect eyes with glasses or goggles with break resistant, non-splintering lenses.

When appropriate, protect head with an industrial-type "hard" hat or "bump" cap.

On rough jobs, spare your hands with heavy-duty gloves.

Wear rubber gloves when handling farm chemicals, petroleum products, and other solvents. Use good hand lotions to prevent chapping.

Farm Ponds Hazardous
Elmer Bland of the Pitt County Soil Conservation Service stressed the danger of farm ponds, especially "dug" ones. "These ponds are constructed 12 feet or more in depth and they usually have extremely steep side slopes. If you stand at the edge of the water and take three steps out into the water, you may drop six feet. Of course, a non-swimmer would be in immediate trouble."

"Also, many ponds do not have uniform side slopes. The slopes may have caved in leaving straight sides."

He went on, "The Soil Conservation Service can help landowners and operators make ponds safe. Planning is important during the construction phase. The pond should be located in an area where manage of surface water is not a problem and it should be decided how the pond will be used, so the engineer or soil conservation technician can provide needed safety measures for swimming if this is to be its use. Lifesaving devices like life buoys and rope and a long pole should be readily available at the pond site."

"The pond owner should find out what local and state laws are required and about liability in case of an accident," Bland said.

Electronic Computer Enters Auction Market

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — All things age. The electronic computer, which seems to have arrived on the scene only yesterday, and whose greatest promise may still lie in the future, is being introduced to the auction market.

Like old cars, rugs, furniture, automobiles, horses and what not, 95 items of computer hardware, including an "antique" panel from one of the first commercial models will be auctioned here July 30.

The news may come as something of a shock to those involved in the information revolution, because everything about computers once seemed to be the latest, the newest, the most innovative and futuristic.

But, it seems, there really is little special about computers. Nothing at all, according to a fellow who helped arrange the auction, a man who in the past has been responsible for auctioning used cars.

"People seem to think of the computer as a big god," he said, "but all it is is another machine. Maybe a bit cleaner and neater, but that's all." That's how Joseph Kirby of Time Brokers Inc., auction sponsor, describes it.

A spokesman for Parke-Bernet Galleries, the world renowned auction house which will produce the auction, described her feelings this way:

"The people here are very excited. This is a challenge. We've sold art, cars and horses. Why not computers?"

Well, why not if you have no further use for one?

Included among the items is one old computer that was practically given to the auctioneer. Or at least it cost only $1 from a stock broker who clearly wasn't impressed by its prowess nor emotionally involved in its past.

According to Kirby, the broker had tried to sell the equipment, which is in operational order, but couldn't. Moreover, he was faced with a storage problem. "He got fed up," Kirby said. "He said, 'good riddance to it, it's a piece of junk'."

It was another sad old warhorse that sparked the idea for the auction, a computer that was reliable but costly to maintain and which Kirby and his associates wished merely to dispose of.

"We were all in the backroom joking about it," said Kirby. "We thought maybe we could give it to a college and have it burned in effigy." Or, perhaps Kirby meant, as an offry of the machine, against which some college students have rebelled.

"Then somebody mentioned Parke-Bernet. The idea catapulted from there."

The old computer now seems destined to have an interesting and maybe stormy life. It is described by the auctioneer as one "suitable for handling the requirements of a small republic until the rulers could afford a new model."

"Old" is a relative term in the computer industry. One so-called minicomputer on consignment is only 1½ years old. The old warhorse that was considered for burning is 10 years old.

Obsolescence rather than age is perhaps a more accurate measure. While chronologically young, computers can become outmoded by rapid advances in technology. "Generations" are spawned every few years; a fourth is awaited.

Consider, as an illustration, that "antique" control panel, which is described in the catalogue as a collectors item.

It comes from the Univac I. Sixteen of these systems were built during "the dawn of the information revolution," and so the panel is valued "largely as a memento of the early days of data processing," descriptive literature relates.

"It is suitable for framing or mounting on a wall," the auctioneer states. It has no functional value at present and will be offered strictly for memento value.

It was installed in 1956, a year some teen-agers can barely recall.

TORONTO (UPI) — Ontario Highways Minister Irwin Haskett told the provincial legislature he has asked the federal government to limit the horsepower of cars.

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK

Each year tobacco disease takes a big toll from the tobacco income in Pitt County and North Carolina. The North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station and the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service are constantly obtaining new information concerning tobacco disease control through research.

Very few fields on the state owned experiment farms have sufficient tobacco disease problems that occur on tobacco farms throughout the state. Therefore, it became necessary to take the tobacco disease research program to problem fields on tobacco producing farms. A program known as Research On Wheels doing just that.

Research On Wheels might be described as a vast cooperative effort in which member of the Extension Service are research staff of the Department of Plant Pathology at N. C. State University are joined by certain members of other departments including Entomology, Crop Science, Agricultural Engineering and certain industrial companies, county extension agents, and producers, to form a united team to study, evaluate, and demonstrate a large number of disease control treatments. This program offers a means whereby field research can be conducted effectively throughout the production area of North Carolina in carefully selected locations where one or more major diseases occur.

There are two Research On Wheels tests being conducted in Pitt County this year. A disease interaction test is being conducted in cooperation with Worthington Farms, Inc. of the Ballards Cross Roads Community. Also, a brown spot quality and market acceptance test is being conducted in cooperation with R. M. Dilda of the Fountain Community.

The Annual Research On Wheels Tour will make a stop at the disease interaction test on the Worthington farm Wednesday July 29 at 8:30 a.m. All farmers in Pitt County and other interested persons are invited to attend this tour stop and observe this test. Those attending will have an opportunity to observe the effects of rotation, resistant varieties and chemical control of Granville wilt.

There is a definite interaction between rotation, resistant varieties, nematode control and chemical soil treatments in controlling such diseases as Granville wilt and black shank. Make plans now to visit this test on Wednesday, July 29.

Jimmy Stewart A Prize TV Catch

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The prize catch for a television series is James Stewart, and the man who did the catching is onetime gag writer Hal Kanter.

Recently NBC announced that Stewart would star in a half-hour comedy series for the 1971-72 season. The news came as a surprise to the television trade, because no one believed that a film star like Stewart would consent to a series.

"After all, Jimmy's still making a couple of movies a year, at good money plus a percentage of the take," said one observer. He's had all the fame, and he's loaded. At his age 62 why would he want to take on the grind of a TV series?"

Hal Kanter wondered, too. He is a showwise fellow who has turned out gags for Danny Kaye

Jimmy Stewart A Prize TV Catch

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The prize catch for a television series is James Stewart, and the man who did the catching is onetime gag writer Hal Kanter.

Recently NBC announced that Stewart would star in a half-hour comedy series for the 1971-72 season. The news came as a surprise to the television trade, because no one believed that a film star like Stewart would consent to a series.

"After all, Jimmy's still making a couple of movies a year, at good money plus a percentage of the take," said one observer. He's had all the fame, and he's loaded. At his age 62 why would he want to take on the grind of a TV series?"

Hal Kanter wondered, too. He is a showwise fellow who has turned out gags for Danny Kaye

Urges Hobbling Of Horsepower

TORONTO (UPI) — Ontario Highways Minister Irwin Haskett told the provincial legislature he has asked the federal government to limit the horsepower of cars.

Haskett said the limits are needed to prevent manufacture of so-called "Muscle cars" which have motors producing more than 400 horsepower and are capable of doing more than 125 miles an hour.

Australia consumes about 80 per cent of its total beef production.

Paying 'Share' Of Nat'l Debt

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A civil engineer, who takes the $371 billion national debt seriously, has contributed $400 to Uncle Sam during the last 19 months as part of his share.

John Rawlins, 36 said, "I'm only one two hundred-millionths of the problem, but we've got to start somewhere. I'm not an expert on economics, but I'm trying to tell the people that somebody thinks this problem is worth doing something about."

The federal government estimates that each citizen's share of the debt is $1,808.

Rawlins has sent four $100 checks, all tax-deductible, to the U.S. Treasury Department since 1968.

In 1969, donations of this nature totalled $167,397.

Sing Sing Has A Name-Change

OSSINGING, N.Y. (AP) — In the old days, when the village was named Sing Sing, its residents were upset about any connection with Sing Sing Prison and its reputation for housing hardened criminals.

So the residents of the Westchester County village changed its name from Sing Sing to Ossining.

Now the state has renamed Sing Sing Prison the Ossining Correctional Facility.

The change came in conjunction with a new state law reorganizing New York's penal system to put more emphasis on rehabilitation of criminals.

All of the state's 10 prisons and reformatories are now to be dubbed "correctional facilities."

State Correction Commissioner Paul D. McGinnis said the Sing Sing name was changed to achieve conformity with other penal institutions that bear the names of nearby communities.

Job Outlook Study Offered High School Students

By SUSAN McCABE
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you're a high school student and people have stopped laughing when you say you'd like to be a cowboy, it's time to start giving some serious thought to your future.

The Labor Department has put out for young people an 855-page study of job outlooks during the 1970s. It covers more than 700 occupations, explaining their training requirements, pay scales and probable opportunities for employment.

Six Schools Get 'Break'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Six private Southern schools have been given tax exempt status after signing nondiscrimination pledges, the Internal Revenue Service announced Saturday.

The six schools were identified as Pamlico Community School in Washington, N.C.; The Gaffney Day School in Gaffney, S.C.; Nathanael Green Academy in Siloam, Ga.; The Heritage School, Newnan, Ga.; DeSoto School in Helena, Ark.; and Southeast Education, Inc., at Dothan, Ala.

The exemptions were the first granted since the IRS announced on July 10 it would refuse tax exemptions to schools that discriminated on racial grounds. The new policy applies to every state except Mississippi, where the IRS is under order to issue exemptions only on terms acceptable to a threejudge federal panel in Washington.

The six schools and any others later given tax exemptions will be free of taxes on their income. In addition, contributions to them will be deductible.

The IRS said the six schools had provided "complete information that they had a racially nondiscriminatory policy announced within their respective communities."

The estimated 10,000 other private schools with current tax exemptions will receive letters within a few weeks asking detailed questions about their policy.

Legal 'Pusher' At Fun Slide

PALISADE, N.J. (UPI) — Margaret Camp is a "pusher," but it's all perfectly legal.

The attractive young woman is the only female ride operator at Palisades Amusement Park. When fun seekers climb to the top of the park's 24-lane Fun Slide, Margaret gives them a burlap sack to sit on and then a slight push to start them coasting down the 45-foot sloping fiberglass slide at high speed.

The forecasts take account of major trends influencing the job market, such as population growth, increasing urbanization and a rising standards of living, and analyzes the effect these trends are likely to have on career opportunities in the coming decade.

Chain Of Opportunity
For example, population growth requires more extensive governmental services, urbanization increases that demand for service-producing industries, and a rising living standard stimulates trade and manufacturing. The most rapid growth in job opportunities may therefore be expected in these major areas.

The Labor Department also noted that the fields of greatest employment growth will be those requiring the most education and training.

The department said a young job applicant with eight years of elementary education on the average can expect to earn about $250,000 during his lifetime. An applicant with 9 to 11 years of schooling can look forward to lifetime earnings of about $300,000.

Training Pays
The figure goes up to $25,000 for a high school graduate and jumps to $375,000 for an applicant with one to three years of college. It increases to $500,000 for a college graduate and to more than $600,000 for young people with more than five years of college.

So it pays in preparing for almost any occupation to get as much education and training as you can.

Here are some of the promising career fields that a high school student of today might want to consider:
Accountants—Employment opportunities are expected to be excellent throughout the '70s. Starting salaries for college graduates with accounting majors estimated at about $8,300 a year. The pay scale may go as high as $28,000 a year for experienced CPAs employed by large firms.

Engineering — Employment outlook should be very good in the '70s, with the starting salary for engineering graduates with bachelor's degrees averaging $9,200 and over 10 per cent of experienced engineers earning $24,000 or more.

Dietitians—Opportunities for qualified dietitians are expected to be excellent through the '70s, with salaries beginning at $7,500 and rising as high as $15,000 with experience.

Oceanographers — Excellent opportunities can be expected in the '70s, with starting salaries for bachelor's degree holders as high as $9,078 a year, and for those with Ph. D. degrees, $12,580.

Performing Arts—Including actors, dancers, musicians and singers. This field is overcrowded and highly competitive and is expected to remain so in the next decade. Movie actors received a minimum $112 a day, dancers $140 weekly, musicians from $60 to $300 a week and singers about $200 a week.

Newspaper reporters — Employment opportunities are good for beginners with writing talent, salaries starting at $95 a with local drivers earning an average $3.78 an hour and over-the-road drivers receiving an average of $11,000 yearly and up, depending on experience.

Television and radio service technicians—A moderate increase in employment opportunities expected in the '70s. Vocational school-qualified technicians earn from $80 to $240 a week, depending upon experience.

Civil aviation—Including pilots, stewardesses, flight engineers, air traffic controllers and traffic agents and clerks. This field is expected to have one of the fastest employment growth rates. Captains and copilots are among the highest paid wage earners in the nation, earning from $25,000 to $37,000 a year. Stewardesses earn between $433 and $689 a month, depending on tenure and the airline which employs them. Trained air traffic controllers can earn between $770 and $1,500 a month. Agents and clerks make from $430 to $624 a month.

Other Burgeoning Fields
Other occupations which are expected to have excellent employment opportunities in the '70s are school counselors ($6,000 to $15,000), physicians, therapists and medical laboratory workers (unlimited), anthropologists ($12,000 to $20,000), librarians and library technicians ($7,500 to $23,000), cooks and chefs ($2.53 to $4.36 an hour, up to $25,000 annually).

Rapidly expanding employment opportunities also will exist for foresters, licensed practical nurses, economists, historians and political scientists, architects, programmers, recreation and social workers, cashiers, receptionists, electricians, plumbers, roofers, appliance servicemen, welders and bank tellers.

Occupations in which the prospective demand is small or expected to decline are the printing trades, bus drivers, furniture upholsterers, jewelers, firemen, mining occupations, merchant mariners, railroad workers, blacksmiths and models.

Evans, Novak

House staff clearance for appointments to minor commissions and advisory boards, ending a nuisance that caused endless headaches for Finch.

Urban crusader John Gardner, boomed tirelessly by the Eastern establishment as a darkhorse Democratic Presidential candidate, has bluntly rejected an offer to wet his toe in the political water.

A Democratic candidate for governor in a major industrial state recently asked Gardner, a nominal Republican, to speak at a fund-raiser in his behalf. The reply, relayed through the Democratic National Committee, was a flat turn-down. It was explained that Gardner had an iron commitment to remain in charge of the Urban Coalition and, therefore, had to remain nonpartisan.

A footnote: Gardner passed up a direct chance to enter politics at the top — as a Republican — in 1968. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller sounded him out for the Senate vacancy left by the murder of Robert F. Kennedy. Gardner disavowed any interest but recommended then Rep. Charles Goodell, who got the job.
