

Hospital Board Is Assured Of Help On Bond Election

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Three Greenville Chamber of Commerce Merchants Association officials told the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees last night that the Chamber will do all it can to support the hospital bond issue before the referendum in early November.

Manager, Harold Creech, president, Gene Skinner, and member, Bill McDonald, offered their assistance as individuals and the help of the Chamber. No concrete plans for promotion have been made yet, but the trustees assured the three that the chamber's aid would be needed and appreciated.

Creech and several others expressed the view that people need only to be shown the need that exists for larger and better hospital facilities. McDonald agreed, saying that he was not in favor of the issuing of bonds for the hospital until he heard about the urgency of the situation from Dr. Donald Tucker and Assistant Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson at the "medical awareness" meeting held recently. He is wholeheartedly in favor of it now, he said.

The Board gave official approval to licensed practical nursing education program conducted by Pitt Technical Institute, which will use the hospital facilities.

Hospital Administrator C. D. Ward said that the Duke Endowment Fund is now working out a new formula to use in contributing to the hospital. It has contributed in the past at one dollar per charity day, but the wide use of Medicare and Medicaid has made this formula impractical.

It will continue to use this system in cases that depend entirely on charity, but will substitute payment based on a percentage of the loss sustained by the hospital on Medicare and Medicaid cases. The loss is usually around 18 percent if the patient does not pay what the federal government does not.

Chief of the medical staff, Dr. Howard Gradis said the operating suite is "right chilly," now that the new air-conditioning system is working.

Hurricane Downgraded

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Becky lost much of its punch today as it neared Florida's Panhandle and was downgraded to a tropical storm.

Hurricane warnings were pulled down along 100 miles of Gulf Coast from Fort Walton Beach to Port St. Joe. "It's quite weak right now," said hurricane forecaster Ray Craft of the Miami Weather Bureau, "and a fair portion of its circulation is over land. There's little or no chance of its intensifying."

The storm's winds had reached hurricane force of 75 miles per hour Tuesday.

Craft said most of the storm was expected to reach the Panama City area by noon and would blanket the coast with heavy rains and winds gusting up to 40 m.p.h.

At 6 a.m. EDT it was 50 miles south of here. Tides of 2 to 4 feet were forecast and gale warnings were in effect.

Cultures show that the air is much more sterile now, also, he said.

Dr. Jack H. Welch was granted the privilege of practicing within the hospital. The anesthesiologist, who is originally from Williamston, began practicing with Dr. G. A. Weimer July 6.

Temporary hospital privileges were granted to Dr. Larry Mumford, who will be filling in for Dr. Earl Trevathan and Paul Ereckmann, and to Dr. Robert Price, a neurosurgeon who will practice here briefly this summer.

Nine additional lights for the hospital grounds were approved at a cost of $4,100. The mercury lights, which should provide additional security in the parking areas, will have aluminum poles like most of the other lights on the grounds.

A new policy on sterilization by the hospital staff was approved. The policy does away with a committee which had to approve any sterilization done in the hospital prior to a 1967 state law which provided the first legal basis for sterilization. Dr. Gradis explained that the procedure provided by the law now allows any person over 21 who wishes to be sterilized to have the operation. The only requirements are that both the husband and wife sign the request, (when the candidate is married) that two doctors verify the need, and that the person not have the operation done until 30 days after the request is signed.

A letter of thanks from Milton E. Jackson of Route 2, Robertsonville, for the care he received in the Pitt Memorial critical care unit was read by Board chairman Woodrow Wooten.

Georgia-Florida Leaf Sales Delayed In Many Markets By Weather

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Initial auction sales on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco belt were delayed in many markets today because gray weather caused by the remnants of Hurricane Becky made it difficult for government inspectors to grade the tobacco.

Spokesmen in some markets said the delay will not materially affect sales, but that the graders want every farmer to have full advantage of proper grading.

Tobacco is sold under various grades, and some grades bring higher prices than other.

"If you can't see it, you can't grade it," said one inspector.

Most tobacco warehouses are poorly lighted, but they have large skylights. The coloring of the tobacco to a great extent determines its grade.

At Moultrie, inspector Walter Thomas said, "In fairness to the people who put in so much sweat and effort to raise the crop, we feel we should grade it with every advantage."

Approximately 152 million pounds of tobacco awaited the chant of the auctioneer on 28 markets in the belt—23 in Georgia and five in Florida.

Markets in Pelham, Fitzgerald, Hhira, Quitman, Sylvester and Thomasville opened shop without buyers from the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Wilson, N. C.

Plane Hijacker Gives Self Up

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese police arrested an unidentified American who tried today to hijack an Air Vietnam airliner to Hong Kong by threatening the crew with two knives.

The American, believed to be a serviceman, apparently surrendered after a two-hour stand-off aboard the aircraft. He had boarded it at Pleiku in the central highlands with 63 other passengers and ridden to Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport.

The other passengers were allowed to leave the plane, a four-engine DC4, after it landed. The hijacker then tried to persuade the pilot, said to be an American, and the copilot, a South Korean, to fly him out of the country.

Issue Alert For Missing Girl

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Police have issued a 28-state alert for a 15-year-old Charlottesville girl who left home over the weekend for a rock music festival in Love Valley, N.C.

The girl was identified Tuesday as Karen Lou Gleason, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gleason of Charlottesville.

Rob't Rouse To Finish Bundy Term

Gov. Robert W. Scott announced today the appointment of Robert Dixon Rouse Jr. of Farmville as judge of Superior Court of the Third Judicial District to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge William J. Bundy of Greenville.

Rouse won the Democratic nomination for judge of Superior Court in the May primary for an eight-year term beginning January 1, 1971. He does not have a Republican opponent. Judge Bundy did not seek reelection.

Rouse is a Farmville attorney. He received his degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a former solicitor of the Fifth Solicitorial District and a former town commissioner.

An active member of the First Christian Church of Farmville, he is also a member of the Rotary Club, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Masonic Order, the Shrine Club, and the Moose Club.

ROBERT D. ROUSE JR.

He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

He and his wife, Letha, have one son, Robert D., III, 23.

The term to which he has been appointed expires at the end of this year.

Greenville May Reach 30,000 Census Figure

There is a possibility that the Greenville census for 1970 could go over the 30,000 level. It all depends on how many of the 276 "Were You Counted" forms sent in will actually represent people who were not accounted for in one way or another in the head count taken this spring.

Harold Creech, Manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchant's Association, who handled the supplementary special forms for citizens who believe they were missed in the initial census count, said, "We bundled up and sent off 276 forms filled in by citizens."

Expressing appreciation for the cooperation given by citizens, Creech remarked, "We are grateful to people for taking the time and interest to help in this project."

As stipulated, acceptance of the "Were You Counted" forms was ended on July 15, the deadline set by the census headquarters in Charlotte. The 276 short forms were mailed to Charlotte. From there they will go to Jefferson City, Indiana to be compared with the official census books on file for Greenville.

"If a minimum of 84 people of the 276 actually represent people who were not counted," Creech said, "then we will reach the 30,000 mark."

Uncertainty about whether or not they were counted has arisen from the method in which the original census was conducted. In a number of instances, census takers asked neighbors about the occupants of a neighboring house in the event occupants were not home at the time the census takers worked in a particular neighborhood.

Verification of Greenville's population may not be forthcoming for some time as Greenville is but one of many areas in North Carolina and across the nation which has conducted some form of supplemental census survey in an effort to verify population counts.

"We were surprised at the number of permanent residents who filled out the forms," Creech commented. "A large number of long-time prominent residents were among those who came in and claimed they had been missed in the original census."

Fighter Bombers Attack Red Guns In N. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers attacked anti-aircraft guns 65 miles inside North Vietnam Tuesday after the North Vietnamese fired on an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet, the U.S. Command announced today.

It was the first American attack on North Vietnam reported in nearly a month.

A spokesman said neither the Air Force RF4 reconnaissance phantom nor its two escorting Phantoms which made the attack were hit. Damage to the North Vietnamese gun positions was not known, the spokesman added.

Farmville's Own Census Finds 216 Extra Names

FARMVILLE — An informal do-it-yourself census conducted by the Town of Farmville has turned up a population figure about five percent over the official preliminary count conducted by the Bureau of the Census.

Some 216 persons who said they have never been counted filled out short census forms during a ten-day campaign that ended last Sunday. The forms were sent to Charlotte early this week. From there they will go to a computer center in Indiana, where, if there is no duplication, they will be added to the official Farmville census now set at 4,352.

Town Clerk Carl Beaman said a letter received July 13 gives the town another two weeks from that date to round up others left out of the official census. He said about 20 persons have reported that they were not counted since the last short forms were mailed. He said he is sure some other unaccounted-for persons will turn up. Several he knows were not counted are now on vacation and hopefully will return before this final extension period is over, he said. Birthdays and signatures must be on the short forms, so they cannot be filled out on a person or family without the presence of that person or an adult family member.

"We are elated over the increased population we have turned up," Beaman said. "We appreciate the cooperation of the householders who sent cards back in promptly and for the fine work of the volunteers who got the short census forms to those who indicated on the inquiry cards that they had not been counted in the regular census. Fine community spirit was shown and I'm sure the entire community will benefit by the increased population figure if we are credited with all the names we sent in."

A Simple Thank You Is Enough

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: For many years, a woman who calls herself my "best friend" has given me gifts which I feel certain were given to her.

For instance, she gave me a necklace made of seashells. I'm sure her friend in Hawaii sent them to her as no one around here wears them. Last Christmas she gave me a large box of dusting powder, but she had overlooked a tag on the bottom which read, "TO LYDIA FROM NORA." (My name is Marjorie.)

My husband had a similar experience. For his last birthday, his brother was here for dinner, and he brought along a box of chocolates. He must have known they were old because he kept remarking that they were probably "white" because it was a new kind of "Dutch chocolate." When we opened the box, the candy was white and hard and all dried out. We threw it away because it wasn't fit to eat.

Abby, are we really expected to send a gushy thank you note for a gift we know the giver tried to save money on?

SICK OF IT

DEAR SICK: A simple "thank you" for remembering the occasion is all that's necessary. A "gushy" or insincere account of how "delighted" you were with the "lovely" gift would be hypocritical.

DEAR ABBY: As a man, I must object to your agreeing with the clerk in the bookstore who thought it was "belittling" for a wife to insist that her husband buy a book on "sex techniques."

When I got married, I thought I knew everything there was to know about being a lover. But not until my wife insisted that I read a book on "sex techniques" did we ever have complete mutual fulfillment. It is no more "belittling" for a wife to insist that her husband read such a book than it would be if she insisted he read a book on "golf tips" to improve his game. Don't knock education!

AN EDUCATED LOVER

DEAR LOVER: I am not "knocking" education—be it to improve one's score on the green or in the sack. The bookstore clerk said she had heard wives quarreling loudly with their husbands, insisting that they "needed" such a book, and that in her opinion was belittling. I agreed. This type of "how to" book is far more effective when purchased quietly and privately presented.

DEAR ABBY: If a man wears a toupee, which is technically a head covering, should it be removed upon entering a Christian church where a man's head is supposed to be uncovered? How about in an Orthodox Jewish synagogue?

M. B.

DEAR M. B.: A toupee is not a "head covering" in the same sense that a hat would be. [It's a "head covering" as hair would be.] A man would not remove his toupee when entering a Christian church any more than he would remove his hair. In an Orthodox Jewish synagogue a man's head is supposed to be covered. But if the man is bald and has covered his baldness with a toupee, he still must cover his head with a hat.

DEAR ABBY: Re "IRKED," the nurse who is constantly stopped while off duty and asked for "medical advice"

Gourmet Corner: World's Costliest Grain Not Really So Expensive

By TOM HOGE

Associated Press Writer
Offered by gourmet shops for up to $10 a pound, it is without doubt the world's most expensive grain, but lovers of wild rice claim that it is worth every cent of the cost—if prepared and cooked properly.

Actually, wild rice is less of an extravagance than it would seem.

One cup of the grain equals nearly 3½ cups of the cooked product, and many housewives eke it out by combining cooked wild rice with cooked white or brown rice.

French explorers stumbled onto the rare grain back in 1650 in the northern lake country that is now Minnesota. They became ecstatic over the new taste sensation and called it folle avoine, or "wild oats."

The Indians in the lake region also had a high regard for the tall, aquatic grass which supplied about 25 per cent of their food. For nearly two centuries they waged tribal wars for control of the shallow waters where wild rice flourishes, while ducks, geese, deer and other wildlife consumed much of the precious harvest without interference. Eventually, the white settlers drove the Indians from these lands and resettled them on reservations. However, many Indian survivors of the old tribes still join in the annual harvesting and some of the choicest spots have been reserved for their exclusive use.

About three million pounds of wild rice are harvested each year in Canada and the United States, and Minnesota produces a whopping 60 per cent of the total.

Harvesting the grain, except in commercial paddies, has changed little since the days when the Chippewa Indians and their arch enemies, the Sioux, battled for control of the prized lakes.

Minnesota's rice areas total nearly 30,000 acres, mostly on publicly controlled lakes. They are protected by state laws that try to ensure that enough of the grain remains to reseed the lakes and that wildlife can continue to share in the harvest.

It is a picturesque sight watching the harvesters "work" the watery fields in their canoes. Most of the canoes and skiffs carry two persons—a poler who maneuvers the craft as he stands in the bow or stern, and a ricker. The ricker sits in the front, middle or rear of the boat, well away from his partner. As the boats glide through the billowing green fields, the rickers bend the tall grasses and flail the heads with cedar sticks until the grain falls into the boat.

At Minnesota's Rice Lake, now part of the National Wildlife Refuge, only Indians are allowed to harvest the grain on these former tribal lands. The wild rice on this lake is rated top quality and is in great demand.

On the opening day of the 1969 harvest, one buyer, who made the top wholesale bid of $1.18 a pound, drove off with $12,000 worth of rice in the rear of his truck.

But this is only the beginning. The grain must be parched, winnowed and polished before it is ready for the epicure market.

By the time it reaches the shelves of your local delicacy shop, wild rice assumes a number of forms including whole grain, precooked, muffin mix and creamed soup.

This Lady Conductor Says 'No' To Minis And Micros

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Lady musicians are in style with their old maxi skirts, but there never was the temptation to wear minis or micros "that will be the day" quips pretty brunette music conductor, Eve Queler.

Many concert musicians could stand a bit of primping, the charming conductor acknowledges. You don't have to look "all that medieval" because you must wear floor-length skirts.

She has managed to prove that point. One well-known music reviewer was prompted to depart from his normal appreciations to observe that the exceedingly smooth and enjoyable performance (Don Giovanni) "was much to the credit of the conductor, a pretty woman with a beautiful figure." Eve 5-foot-5 inches tall.

"Concerts are formal. It just wouldn't look right to wear short skirts, but you don't have to look dowdy. The lady musicians are more interested in the music than in their appearance which accounts for the fact that many of them wear their hair in severe fashion. They could really do something about their appearance from the neck up," she explains.

Miss Queler wears her own hair tied at the nape of the neck, and the fit of her dress is perfect. She dresses in front of a rear view mirror. It's the most important aspect of a conductor's grooming, she explains, and one reason, she wouldn't wear a mini, if it were permitted.

"Rear-view grooming includes the simple awareness of wearing clothes in an easy manner. They can't be too tight. Stretch-type clothes and sleeveless dresses that won't tear are pretty important. A jumper style dress is neat and practical because you can raise your arms without causing ripples at the sleeve. Full-cut long sleeves help the look. And you can't wear a dress with a zipper—the metal might show when you raise your arms." These pointers might be observed by any woman, she adds.

She wears floor length dresses, but occasionally the style is culottes and invariably the reviewer comments that she is wearing a pants suit, she says.

She is musical director of the Opera Orchestra of New York which provides opportunity for young singers to sing operatic roles with orchestras. In three years, she has brought her youthful group of singers and instrumentalists from their debut at a junior high school to Town Hall and Tully Hall at Lincoln Center where Rigoletto and The Magic Flute recently were given by her group.

If Miss Queler had not established the performing group, they might never had been heard with an orchestra—and she may never have had the opportunity to conduct an opera.

In addition to that group, she has been associate conductor of several opera companies and has conducted a highly successful concert performance of La Boheme with the Metropolitan Opera Studios. At present, she is assistant conductor of the New York City Opera Company which is an opportunity that should certainly lead somewhere, she explains.

"I am not a woman's liberationist or anything like that. I have no desire to take a man's job, but I have a great ambition to be a conductor, and assisting one is the most marvelous preparation—for one thing, you can see how the conductor handles the music.

She studied conducting with Joseph Rosenstock of the Metropolitan Opera with the help of a Martha Baird Rockefeller Foundation scholarship.

An assistant conductor is kind of a performance monitor, she explains. She plays piano for rehearsals; coaches and prompts singers, and gives curtain and lighting cues during performances. She must be ready to signal for lightning and thunder, and "if you forget to give the clap, when someone says 'what was that crash' it might bring down the house, and maybe even the curtain," she says facetiously.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday Morning

Memorial Baptist Church was the setting Saturday morning for the wedding of Miss Jane Greenwood Hunsucker and Ronald Perry Hankins of Newport News, Va.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Royce Hulton Hunsucker of Greenville and the late Mr. Hunsucker. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hankins of Palmdale, Calif.

The Rev. Percy Upchurch of Williamston, former pastor of the bride, officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, John B. Greenway of Wadley, Ga. She wore an imported white street length dress and lace mantilla. She carried a cascade of white daisies centered with a white orchid.

Attending as maid of honor was Miss Nancy Rountree of Newport News, Va. Serving as best man was Randall Witherite of Newport News, Va.

Ushers were Richard Nelson Hunsucker of Greenville and Wayland Abbott Hunsucker of Winterville, cousins of the bride. Wedding music was rendered by Joe Goodwin, church organist.

After a reception in the church parlor, the couple left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. The couple will reside in Newport News, Va.

The bride is employed as a teacher in the Newport News High School. The bridegroom is associated with the atomic division of the Newport News Shipyard.

The Hankins-Hunsucker wedding party was honored at an after-rehearsal dinner Friday night at the Candlewick Inn given by the bride's mother.

Miss Clark Entertained

Miss Ross Clark, August bride-elect, was honored at an informal party Saturday morning by Mrs. Paul Jewett and Mrs. Steve Redd at the home of Mrs. Jewett.

Honored guests were Mrs. Dallas Clinton Clark, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Per Krogh Andresen, mother of the bridegroom-elect.

An arrangement of shasta daisies was used in the dining room and roses throughout the house.

Miss Clark was presented with a corsage and gifts of china by the hostesses.

School Discipline Is Required

Obviously the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools has decided there is much more to quality education than the calibre of lecture the teacher delivers, or the kind of homework kids turn in.

The association's warning to Chapel Hill School should give communities throughout North Carolina cause to contemplate conditions in their own high schools.

The accrediting association has warned Chapel Hill High School that it may lose its accreditation unless something is done by November to improve discipline, class attendance and custodial care in the school.

Like Greenville, Rocky Mount and many other cities and towns in North Carolina, Chapel Hill experienced periods of trouble in its high school during the past academic year. Apparently unlike some of the other schools, the situation at the Chapel Hill School, particularly with regard to discipline of students, class attendance of students and the physical condition of the school, had deteriorated to the extent that it now jeopardizes the schools' accreditation.

It would be natural for every other town in the state to assert, such a thing may happen at Chapel Hill, but it can't happen in their community. Such a community attitude would be both unrealistic and dangerous.

It is the responsibility of every citizen of a community, young person or adult, to do everything within his power to see that the public schools are operated without interference, without discipline problems and without disruptive or disturbing incidents. The quality of education youngsters need cannot exist in an undisciplined, disruptive atmosphere.

No matter how well qualified the teacher, how well written the textbooks or how nice the school building, the atmosphere in which these and the students meet largely determines how much learning the youngsters do.

N.C. Should Get Its Share Of Any Increase

It is not too surprising that industrial development showed a decline in North Carolina for the first months of the year, when one considers the overall economic climate of the nation during the period.

The Department of Conservation and Development reported that the decline amounted to $124.6 million, compared to the same period last year.

"This slowdown has not been unique to North Carolina," Roy Sowers, Jr., C and D director said. It is likely that the worst of these conditions is over now, however, and there will be some improvement in industrial expansion. We feel that North Carolina will get its share of the increase.

See Shortage Of Fuel Oil

By HARRY STEINBERG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Rising concern over air pollution coupled with the oil industry's underestimation of demand will create a shortage of low-sulphur residual fuel oil this winter, industry sources say.

Residual fuel oil—the heavy oil left over after aviation fuel, gasoline and higher grade products have been refined from crude oil—is used by electric utilities to power generators which produce electricity. It is also used to power industrial plants and to heat schools, hospitals and office and apartment buildings.

What might this shortage mean?

First, higher electric rates. Many utilities have fuel adjustment clauses which allow for rate increases when fuel prices rise. Some companies which don't have such contract provisions, such as Philadelphia Electric Co., are asking state legislatures for them.

Second, industries which can't get sufficient supplies of low-sulphur oil may be forced to choose between shutting down or using a high sulphur fuel and risking fines, an oil industry source points out.

Third, municipalities faced with a choice between factory shut-downs and clean air may be forced to suspend low-sulphur limitations of clean air laws.

Industry observers say the speed with which many municipalities enacted strict air pollution regulations caught the petroleum industry unprepared.

The regulations limit the amount of sulphur in fuel. Their purpose is to cut down on sulphur-dioxide, which is given off during the burning process.

One result is that many utilities and industries which were burning coal had to find another energy source. Coal is naturally high in sulphur and is difficult to desulphurize.

A $900,000 federally funded project is under way to remove sulphur from coal as it is burned, but this is expected to take at least five years.

Another result is that many utilities and industries using residual fuel oil had to change to oil with less sulphur.

New York City laws, for example, insist on less than one per cent sulphur content in fuel oil. Chicago allows two per cent.

Both are lower than the 2.5 to 3 per cent sulphur found in much residual fuel oil.

Industry sources report that utilities and power plants are rushing to buy low-sulphur residual oil. They add that the demand is greater than the supply.

Coal was responsible for 51 per cent of the electric power generated in the United States in 1969. Natural gas accounted for 23 per cent, residual oil for 10 per cent, nuclear power for 1 1/2 per cent and hydro-electric power the rest.

But according to Chase Manhattan Bank figures, residual oil demand is up 15.6 per cent this year. This compares with, according to other figures, a 2 per cent jump in demand between 1967 and 1968 and an 8 per cent increase between 1968 and 1969.

Nixon 'Body Language'

WASHINGTON — There is a book called "Body Language" which deals with the new science of kinesics, which is nonverbal communication. Julius Fast, the author, maintains that body gestures can tell more about a person than what he says. An unconscious movement, kinesics tells us, is all-revealing.

Fast is not the only person who is an expert on "Body Language." My friend, Dr.

Heinrich Applebaum, has been working on a project for some time to find out if President Nixon's gestures tell more about him than what he says.

Dr. Applebaum has been watching every TV program that President Nixon has appeared on and has come to some interesting conclusions. "The President," Dr. Applebaum told me, "uses his body as well as anybody we've had in the White House.

I have been able to interpret many of the gestures he makes."

"Could you give me an example?"

"Well, as you know, when he appears before large crowds he always raises his arms out and upward. Most people have felt he does this to acknowledge the cheers. But subconsciously he is at the floodgates trying to hold back the waves of inflation."

"That's very interesting." "I have noted also that President Nixon is a fist-clencher. When he's trying to make a point he clenches his fist and moves his arm up and down."

"What could that mean?" "It means that he subconsciously would like to sock somebody."

"I don't believe it." "It's true. If you recall in his TV appearance with John Chancellor, Eric Sevareid and Howard K. Smith a few weeks back, the President was constantly clenching his fist. He started doing this after Howard K. Smith asked him what legal right did we have for being in Indochina, since the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution has been repealed."

"He didn't want to sock Howard K. Smith, did he?" "No, stupid. He wanted to sock someone on his staff who hadn't prepared him for the question."

"What else?" I asked. "The President is constantly using a karate chop when he's answering a question at a press conference. He keeps cutting the air with the flat of his hand."

"How do you explain it?" "In 1962 the President said the press wouldn't have (Continued On Page 5)

Other Editors Say Experts All

(Boston Herald Traveler)
The nation's colleges and universities, which boast countless "experts" on the legality, logistics and life of Vietnam and the rest of Southeast Asia, have in truth fostered precious little study of the region.

Consider these dismal facts unearthed in a recent survey: Fewer than 30 students in the entire country are studying Vietnamese; there is not a single scholar with a tenured professorship at an American university who specializes in Vietnamese studies; nor is there an American scholar who devotes a major portion of his time to the study of current affairs in North Vietnam.

Cornell University's program in Vietnamese language, history and politics, reputed to be the best in the nation, has awarded only three doctoral degrees in 10 years. Yale University, the only school in the nation that offers a course in Cambodian, last semester enrolled the grand total of two students in the language.

The nation's great centers of learning, some of which have shut down because of events in Vietnam and Cambodia, have, in effect, shut their minds to the region. That the focus of the nation's academic agitation should be the subject of such scant academic inquiry is an outrageous paradox.

What is even more disturbing is the major reason cited for the dearth of Vietnamese studies. Professor John K. Fairbanks, director of Harvard University's East Asian Research Center, opines: "Academics are fed up with the whole subject of Vietnam. They would like to abolish Vietnam if they could. So students are not interested in going and studying about it."

A paradox confounded by illogic and academic escapism is redoubtable. But it is incumbent on the academic community to undo the contradiction and perhaps do a little reordering of its own esoteric priorities.

Nixon Plans Travel

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I am a political man," President Nixon told his latest news conference—and he intends to prove it over the next 100 days.

That's about the time left before the November elections.

Of recent date, Nixon has been paying considerable attention to the voting hinterland—the Middle America where, according to the Nixon battle plan for the 1970 elections, the "silent majority" resides.

Just Tuesday, Nixon announced that in addition to visiting Fargo, N.D., for a conference with five governors, he will be going on to Salt Lake City for a meeting with the leaders of the Mormon church and, for good measure, will be conferring with anticrime specialists in Denver as he makes his way to and from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif.

It all began last month when Nixon went to St. Louis to talk to the U.S. Jaycees.

His audience gave him perhaps the biggest reception he had since becoming President, but more important, street crowds in that normally Democratic city were large and enthusiastic.

Nixon followed the St. Louis triumph with an announcement that the best way to help Republican candidates this year was to make "as good a record as possible in Washington."

The chief executive said then he had no plans for any partisan speeches during the campaign—that attention to foreign policy crises was paramount.

However, Nixon earlier this month went to Louisville, Ky., to meet with governors of 12 Appalachian states—and be greeted by enthusiasts along his route from the airport. He followed the Kentucky visit with a jaunt across the Ohio River to Cincinnati for the all star baseball game.

Next will be Fargo, N.D., to confer with governors of that state, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska.

Then Nixon flies to Utah for the meeting with Mormon leaders, and to sit through a portion of Salt Lake City's "Pioneer Day Stampede" before flying on to his seaside villa in Southern California.

Nixon plans to stay in California until Aug. 3, when he will start back to Washington via Denver. He meets there with directors of planning agencies that decide how to parcel out federal aid to police forces and courts.

Obviously, Nixon plans to make more such "nonpolitical" stops on his varied journey between now and November. He may even visit New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago.

Opinions In Brief

"Added to more serious reasons for admiring our great country is the knowledge that shoeless women and disheveled men sighted in the shopping centers are not victims of poverty. They are just indulging a taste for sloppy dress." — Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier.

Creditors Demanding 'Pay Up'

By ELMER ROESSNER
High interest rates and the scarcity of money is changing many American ways of doing business. The Penn Central bankruptcy is speeding these changes along.

In general, creditors are demanding quicker payments, debtors are slowing up remittances.

Among the changes:
• Retail stores are asking, sometimes insisting, that charge-account customers settle within 30 days or shift to revolving credit. Some stores phone charge customers on the eleventh day after receipt of bills, requesting payment. Those rich customers who used to settle bills every three months are being pointedly asked to remit monthly.

Customers Hang On To Cash
• At the same time, customers are slowing down payments short of penalty dates. Bills due at the end of the month are paid by check mailed on the last day with the confidence that sellers won't apply penalties for a single day.

The same things are happening in businesses. Suppliers are asking for quick payments. More small orders are being sent C.O.D. At the same time, buyers are taking advantage of discounts for quick payments. Two per cent off for payment in 30 days more often brings payment on the 29th day.
• Checks are being cashed faster. Businesses now deposit checks every day, sometimes twice a day. This builds up average balances. Further, if the payer runs short of funds, the quickly cashed checks are first to be collected.
• Employers are cashing checks quicker. This is probably due less to reports that some Penn Central employees had difficulty in cashing paychecks.

Credit Cards Checked
• Credit card issuers are insisting on prompt payments, even when they apply heavy interest penalties to late payments. Chronically slow payers are being asked to surrender cards.

Retailers are using more care in checking credit cards presented to make sure the card hasn't been cancelled.
• Bad debt collectors are busier than ever, though not necessarily prospering. Creditors who used to turn accounts over to collection agencies after six months are shortening the time. Some now act after 90 days, some after 60, even though such action abandons hope for at least half the bill. However, with added business collection agencies are finding it harder to get money out of slow-pays.
• Factors are tightening up their already tight operations. Some are increasing their rates.

• Replevins, garnishees and other court actions are increasing fast.
• Bankruptcies are rising, both business and personal.

Poor Postal Service Cuts Into Profits

In explaining a loss of $714,000 in the nine months ended April 30 compared with a profit of $600,000 in the same period a year ago, National Bellas-Hess blamed poorer mail service and the mail strike, which came when spring catalogs were to be distributed.

Some winners in the February drawing of the New York State lottery have not yet been paid. Their prizes disappeared during the postal strike.

The United States Chamber of Commerce points out that while the cost of mailing a letter has increased 300 per cent since 1932, the costs of long distance telephoning, the other most common means of communication, has dropped in the same period.

Strength For Today

Our Only Consolation
When the affairs of state were pressing down upon Abraham Lincoln to an almost unbearable degree his son Willie suddenly died. It was the second child the Lincolns had lost, and the President's grief was so intense that he practically withdrew himself from the exercise of his office for several weeks. Some people, knowing his tendency to extreme melancholy, believed that he would never again be able to take up his duties.

But he did. The day his boy was buried he said to a friend, "I will try to go to God with my sorrow." It almost overwhelmed him, but in the end he emerged a stronger man than he had been before. He took the right pathway. He went down the right road in seeking strength and consolation. The only place we can go when we are overwhelmed with sorrow is to God. The issues of life are in his hands. It is still hope of life. He can restore it if it be his will; and if death has come, He can heal the broken heart and rearrange the circumstances of life until it is possible for one to live again with courage and purpose.

"I will try to go to God with my sorrow," said The Great Emancipator. He had turned his face in the right direction. Many a tired and sorrowful soul in these days of pain and tears has turned his face or hers in that direction and has found a peace higher than anything the world has to offer.

'Pirates Of Penzance' Plays Through Saturday

"The Pirates of Penzance", one of the most popular of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas that have been world favorites since the early eighties, opened as the second production in the current East Carolina Summer Theatre season Monday evening in McGinnis Auditorium. Performances continue through Saturday evening, at 8:15 p.m. The production stars Bryand Dunlap as the young man who as a little boy was supposed to be apprenticed to a pilot but instead was apprenticed by his hard-of-hearing nursemaid for training as a pirate. The frivolous story unfolds on the day when, turning 21, his apprenticeship is supposed to be finished — until it is discovered that he was born on a 29th of February in a leap year and he still has a long time to go until he reaches his 21st birthday to mark his liberation. Rosalind Breslow co-stars as the sweet maiden with whom he has fallen in love, and Graham Pollock is in the role of her father, who proclaims himself in the famous patter song as "the very model of a modern Major-General." Bill Stone appears as the King of the Pirates, Ken Eliot as his lieutenant, Bob Beard as the police officer who sings "A Policeman's Lot is Not a Happy One." Kathleen Cole appears as the nursemaid who had started the hero in the wrong vocation. They are supported by a large chorus who appear as pirates, policemen, and daughters of the Major-General. Edgar R. Loessin directed the musical, Barry Shank is conductor and Jim Chestnut designed the sets. Tickets are available in the box office of McGinnis Auditorium daily from 10:30 AM until 9:00 PM. Telephone reservations may be made by calling 758-6390.

Chicago Nearing Murder Record

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago police department homicide unit reports the city is heading for an all-time record of more than 90 murders this year. "We're now 92 murders ahead of this time last year," said Cmdr. John T. Cartan Jr., in predicting the highest yearly murder toll in the city's history in 1970. There were 716 murders in Chicago in 1969. Cartan, 58, blamed "changing times" and a national trend to more violence for the sharp increase.

Naturally, as President, Mr. Nixon can't chop a reporter in the neck, so the gesture is symbolic of what he would like to do if he weren't in a position of responsibility.

"I notice the President wrings his hands a lot when he's speaking."

"Hand wringing is not uncommon for a President of the United States. I don't think you could put too much importance in President Nixon wringing his hands. But you could be concerned when he keeps his arms straight at his sides."

"What does that mean?" "It means that no matter what he says, he doesn't plan to do anything about the problem."

"What does it mean when the Presidents with his legs crossed?"

"It means he has a plan for getting us out of Vietnam, but he isn't going to tell us what it is."

residual oil of 4 per cent, which is unrealistically low," one petroleum industry source said.

The supply of residual fuel oil, according to Oil Daily, has been declining. In mid-June supplies totaled about 47.5 million barrels, a decline of 23.4 per cent from the supply in June 1969.

The shortage has led many concerns to buy oil from abroad. At the same time the shortage has resulted in a clamor for relaxed import restrictions.

But there is some question whether relaxed quotas can alleviate the shortage.

Industry sources say less low-sulphur oil will be available from European refineries, formerly a prime source for such oil, because the Europeans also are faced with sulphur restrictions passed to limit air pollution.

In addition, the government of Libya, an area which produces oil naturally low in sulphur, has recently been ordering foreign producers to cut back oil production.

Residual oil is available from Caribbean and Venezuelan wells, but that oil is high in sulphur. Desulphurizing that oil, which some refineries are planning to do, is expensive.

One industry source said the petroleum industry will have to change production methods. This may involve sacrificing some profits, the source said.

Beggar Says Gimmicks, Timing Assure 'Success'

By TONY PITCH
Associated Press Writer
EDITORS: Beggars can be choosers. It's just a matter of timing, positioning, appearance and gimmicks. At least that's the way Harry tells it. He has raised five children by plying the ancient trade and claims to be the most successful beggar in the country.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harry, claims to be the most successful beggar in the nation. "I can't tell you how much I earn—otherwise everyone would take it up," he said. He sat on a stool on the sidewalk, his guide dog beside him, and told the dynamite explosion that blinded him in infancy. "I have a right to exploit my disability. Other people exploit their abilities," said the 54-year-old. "I don't think there's a panhandler in the country that does as well as I do." He said he's realized his goal of raising five children on his earnings—and claims he's carrying on because it's tax free. Harry lit up a cigar. Some of his "steady customers" he confessed, give him $1 a day and one "gentleman" drops $20 in the tin cup whenever he passes. Six people with collection tins were on the same block as Harry. I asked him to convince me why I should favor him with a quarter instead of three American Indians collecting for an Indian school in Arizona, or the buckled-up cripple with a gaping mouth, or the hippie strumming a guitar, or Catholic charities, whose banners of appeal hung from street lamp poles. "Everyone's got their pet concern," he replied. "Some have a deadly fear of going blind. That hippie appeals to young girls. Some feel guilty about displacing Indians, so they give to them. It all depends on the guilt complex or fear of getting disabled." The coins kept dropping in the cup. Harry took them out, felt their size, then pocketed them. He says people can be encouraged to stop and dip in their pockets. It's a matter of timing, positioning, appearance and gimmicks. He's up early to catch the crowds going to work. He doesn't like 5 p.m. because people are rushing home. His experience is that people aren't turned on by beggars with soiled, dirty clothes. Harry's trousers were frayed but pressed. Gimmicks? He knows a lot about his "opposition" by listening to passers-by. "That was a clever move of the Indian girl to have her baby next to her," he said. Harry's been begging 10 years. "I had to do it. I used to feel sick, embarrassed. Then I got hardened to it. I'm not knowing because I don't demand anything. It's the only business I've been successful in. Ironic, isn't it?" A young man dropped a coin in the tin and petted the German Shepherd dog. Harry said his dog helps attract well-wishers. He claims to make as much in a day as six beggars total takings. "Sometimes one of them comes to me and says he's had a hard day. 'Hey, Harry, how about a dollar?'" he says, and I give it to him. "But the Indian girl gave me $1.30. I feel guilty about that. You know, I think I should be giving her money."

Workshop Attend Conference In Goldsboro On Public Relations

Farmers Home Administration Supervisors will attend a Farm Management Workshop on July 28 and 29 at Goldsboro.

James T. Johnson, State Farmers Home Administration Director, said arrangements had been made with Farm Management Specialists at North Carolina State University to conduct the workshop for the Farmers Home Administration personnel.

Johnson indicated that the two-day training session should help Farmers Home Administration Supervisors gain a greater insight into the rapidly changing needs of farm families in the important area of management. He said Farmers Home Administration made more than 6,000 loans to North Carolina farmers last year.

Some of the topics to be covered at the workshop include production practices, enterprise budgets and combinations, family farm agreements, leasing, and contract production.

NCSU Extension Farm Management Economists who

Thirty-three secretaries, receptionists and cashiers from Electric Membership Corporations throughout North Carolina were on the campus of East Carolina University last week for a conference on public relations in the front office.

Arranged by the ECU Division of Continuing Education, the two-day non-credit conference was sponsored by the Tarheel Electric Membership Association (TEMA) in cooperation with the Departments of Office Administration and Business Education in the ECU School of Business.

According to Patricia Markas, Coordinator of Educational Development for TEMA, many members of the group had requested a program concerned with projecting a good corporate image in the front office or on the telephone. The conference agenda included lectures, lunches, a banquet and attendance of the East Carolina University Summer Theatre production of "Hello, Dolly!" In charge of scheduling were Brayom Anderson, Assistant Dean of the ECU Division of Continuing Education and Dr. Audrey Dempsey of the ECU School of Business.

Conference speakers included: James Hackney, III, of J.A. Hackney and Sons, Washington;

Dr. Clinton Prewett, chairman of the ECU Department of Psychology; Louis A. Corning, personal relations supervisor of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., New Bern; James L. Rees of the ECU Department of Drama and Speech; Joanne Leith, chairman of the Department of Business Education, Pitt Technical Institute; Eleanor A. Quick of the ECU School of Home Economics; Miss Markas and Dr. Dempsey.

Names of TEMA personnel attending the conference, and their business addresses, include:

PITT COUNTY, Farmville—Sandra L. Bowen and Linda W. Taylor (Pitt-Greene Electric Membership Corp.).

Opening lead: Jack of ♠ South's jump shift rebid of two spades is forcing to game and promises 20 points. Inasmuch as North's holding is worth 14 points in support of clubs, a slam try is in order, and he showed his interest by jumping to four clubs. When South cue bid the ace of hearts, North could do no more than return to clubs. South held sufficient controls, however, to bid the slam himself.

West opened the jack of hearts. This was covered by dummy's queen and East's king and the trick was won by South with the ace. In order to dispose of his heart loser, declarer proceeded to cash the three high diamonds, discarding a heart from his hand.

A trump was led from dummy and when East followed with the five, South finessed the queen. West won the trick with the king and returned a fourth round of diamonds. East put the nine of clubs to good use by ruffing in and South was obliged to overruff with the ace—thereby establishing West's jack of clubs for the setting trick.

When South had the good fortune to eliminate his heart loser on dummy's diamond suit he should have taken out a little insurance by executing a safety play in trumps. He can afford to give up one trick, so that nothing can be lost by cashing the ace of clubs first.

When the jack appears from West's hand, it becomes routine to continue with a small trump and the opposition is thereby limited to one club. If only small clubs appear when the ace is played, then declarer cashes the ace of spades, ruffs his small spade in dummy and leads another trump. If East has the king where it was originally finessable, he can score only the one trump trick. If West has both the king and jack of trumps, then the contract can never be made.

Tobacco Barn Fires Become Frequent

Tobacco barn fires are beginning to be frequent occurrences in Pitt County as the tobacco harvest season gets into full swing again.

Mike Worthington, Pitt County Fire Marshall, reports that 12 barns suffered damage ranging from very slight to complete loss for the period Saturday through Tuesday afternoon.

The list of reported barn fires and estimated damages show:
SATURDAY — 9:28 a.m. Dick Garris farm south of Ayden, $500 damage tobacco. 5:13 p.m. the Leslie Elks farm, one mile west of Grimesland, tobacco lost, $800.

SUNDAY — 12:00 noon, Bobby Peterson farm north of Grifton, no appreciable damage. 7:50 p.m. Earl Lewis farm, four miles north of Belvoir, tobacco damaged, $500.

MONDAY — 6:13 a.m.

unidentified farm on the Clark's Neck Road (in Beaufort County), answered by the Grimesland Fire Department; total loss at $2,000. 4:02 p.m. Earl Lang Farm northwest of Farmville, total loss, $2,000. 4:05 p.m. Jesse Young farm north of Bell Arthur, $2,000. 4:42 p.m. Ray Stencil farm, Belvoir Highway, total loss, $2,000. 5:13 p.m. Alton McLawhorn, Stantonsburg Road, no appreciable damage. 11:28 p.m. Glasier Jordan, west of Farmville, tobacco and barn partially damaged, estimated loss unknown.

TUESDAY — 3:44 p.m. W. L. Pilgreen farm, U. S. 264 east of Greenville, struck by lightning, $1,500 damage. 5:05 p.m. unidentified farm in the Hanrahan Community, damage $1,600.

Worthington noted that the heavy incident of fires in a short period Monday is believed "to be due to the heavy electrical storm at that time."

He reports that of the 18 barn fires to date for the current harvest season, 11 have been saved to the extent that they could be used to cure tobacco. The remaining seven were total or near total losses.

Two house fires have also been reported in the county during this period. The first, reported at 2:30 a.m. Saturday morning, was at the home of James Corey on Highway 43 near Hollywood Church. The fire, starting from a hot water heater, spread upstairs to the attic of the one story portion of the house. Firemen from the Eastern Pines Department, aided by Winterville firemen, were able to contain the blaze as it began to spread to the second story part of the house. Damage to the home was estimated at about $1,000.

The second house fire, occurring at 4:30 p.m. Monday, was at the home of Mrs. Robert Pierce on Highway 11 north of Greenville. Starting when the house was struck by lightning, little damage was inflicted except for a water heater which was burned out. Bethel Fire Department responded to the fire.

Claim Bizarre Motive In Slaying Of Actress

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — The state says it knows why beautiful actress Sharon Tate and six others were slain last August, and "the motive is even more bizarre than the killings themselves."

That motive, Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi said Tuesday, won't be disclosed until opening arguments and testimony begin Friday in the trial of four persons charged with murder-conspiracy.

The prosecution will put 40 to 50 persons on the stand. But the spotlight will be on pretty, petite Linda Kasabian, 21, who reportedly has promised to tell details of the killings in exchange for her freedom.

Mrs. Kasabian, sandy-haired mother of two infants, is expected to be granted immunity from prosecution after she testifies.

Bugliosi said she would take the stand Monday and was expected to testify for "three, four or five days." He added, "It will be key testimony."

Mrs. Kasabian also is charged with murder-conspiracy but has been granted a separate trial. She was a member of the nomadic, hippie-style "family" led by a shaggy-haired, bearded ex-convict, Charles Manson, accused of planning the killings.

Manson, 35, is on trial with three shapely women followers, Susan Atkins, 21, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22.

Mrs. Kasabian, who has been under heavy guard in jail since it became known she would testify for the state, is expected to tell how she went with other members of the Manson group to the two homes where the killings occurred.

She is said to have waited outside Miss Tate's rented tomato red house while the pregnant actress and four visitors were stabbed and shot. The next night, Mrs. Kasabian also reportedly waited outside the home of market owner Leno LaBianca while he and his wife Rosemary were slain.

Paul Fitzgerald, head of a defense team of four lawyers, said they would call about 20 witnesses, many of them members of Manson's "family."

"In addition to rebutting the prosecution's claims of guilt, we may have to rebut them on the defendants' life style," Fitzgerald said. "We'll get into drugs and LSD."

Court was recessed for two days after six alternate jurors were sworn in Tuesday. The alternates, four men and two women, along with the regular jury panel of seven men and five women, will be locked up in the Ambassador Hotel each night for the trial's duration—estimated at three to six months.

Damaged 3 Other Cars

Greenville Police charged a local man with careless and reckless driving yesterday following an accident on S. Elm Street that caused an estimated total damage of $3,300 to four vehicles.

Investigators said the 3:14 p.m. mishap involved a car driven by John Alfred Turnage of 106 Lindenwood Drive and three other parked vehicles. According to police reports, Turnage was injured in the accident and taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Turnage, the reports said, was traveling south on Elm Street when his car crossed the center line, hit the curbing on the east side of the street and continued in a southerly direction, hitting the three parked cars and coming to rest in the Green Mill Run.

Officers estimated damage to the Turnage car at $2,000. A parked vehicle owned by John Roderick Harris of Main Street, Farmville was damaged an estimated $700 while another parked car owned by Fay Jessup Cochran of 1005 S. Elm Street, Apt. 10 received $550 damages. A third vehicle, owned by Randolph Gage Smith Jr. of 1005 S. Elm Street, Apt. 11, was damaged an estimated $50.

Probe Theft Of 3 Church Air Conditioners

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating the theft of three air conditioning units reported taken sometime Monday night from two churches in the county.

A single unit, valued at approximately $500, was reported stolen from the Hickory Grove Church on Highway 33. The incident was reported to the Sheriff's Department on Tuesday.

In addition, two units were taken from the Timothy Christian Church at Gardenersville on Rt. 2, Ayden and the theft reported to the department on Tuesday. Value of the two units were estimated at $400.

Investigation of the thefts is continuing.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether a Roman Catholic with religious opposition to the Vietnam war may escape the draft as a conscientious objector.

U. S. Dist. Court Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli ruled the draft law is unconstitutional because it forces some to choose between following their religion and going to jail or abandoning their beliefs to avoid imprisonment.

Zirpoli dismissed an indictment which had accused James Francis McFadden, 26, of San Francisco, a Catholic, of refusing induction. McFadden contends the war is unjust and that military duty would violate his conscience.

In appealing, the Justice Department asked the Supreme Court to consider the views of some Catholic theologians that some wars are just and others are not. The church has taken no stand on the war.

Draft beards traditionally have granted conscientious objector exemptions to members of churches, such as Quakers and Seventh-Day Adventists, whose religion recognizes pacifism.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force says two F-111 fighter bombers, the breed plagued by troubles, were damaged in recent flight tests.

Amnesty For Drug-Users

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Army is trying to get GIs in Vietnam who use marijuana or other drugs to turn themselves in and get help. The Army promises that those who do will not be punished.

The new "amnesty program" has been adopted by the 4th Infantry Division in the central highlands. Other U.S. units in Vietnam are expected to try the program, which is already in operation at several bases in the United States.

To date, 129 drug users in the 4th Division have turned themselves in. None has been punished, officers of the division say, and their names have not been recorded on military police reports of drug investigations.

Under the amnesty program, a soldier may ask for help from any chaplain or provost marshal.

Initially he gets counseling from the chaplain once a week, or more often if that appears necessary. If counseling alone doesn't work, the habitual marijuana user or drug addict is sent to the division psychiatrist.

Motorcycle Gang Linked To Sale Of Stolen Explosives

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of a motorcycle gang called "The Chosen Few" have been linked to the underground sale of thousands of sticks of stolen dynamite, senators probing terror bombings have been told.

The proposed law would require federal licensing of explosives manufacturers and dealers, positive identification of buyers, and safe, theft-proof storage of dynamite and other potential bomb components.

Criminal use of explosives would become federal offenses carrying maximum penalties of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

On at least one occasion, told by undercover agents they intended to blow up half the city of Chicago, gang members willingly provided 1,100 pounds of dynamite at about $50 for each two-pound stick, an Illinois investigator testified.

Charles Siragusa, chairman of the Illinois Crime Investigating Commission, said two of the three men arrested last October as they were delivering the dynamite, blasting caps and plastic explosives were members of the gang. He said the third man was a low-ranking member of a crime syndicate.

Testifying before the Senate's Investigations subcommittee, Siragusa said caches of dynamite under control of the gang have been seized by police in Hubbard, Ohio, and in Buffalo, N.Y., where he said 4,000 sticks of dynamite were taken from two men.

"The Chosen Few" motorcycle gang, which operates out of Youngstown, Ohio, was continuingly involved with the sale and possession of explosives," Siragusa said.

In separate action Tuesday, Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel announced details of an administration bill to control sales of high explosives and punish bombers.

No-Hit Bid Is Lost To Pinch Hitter

by TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
It was Clay Kirby's first brush with baseball immortality and he didn't want to leave but Preston Gomez had been there before. As usual the San Diego manager had the last word and Kirby was gone.

The mini-conflict occurred Tuesday night as the 23-year-old Kirby twirled eight no-hit innings against the 'New York Mets but left the game for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the eighth, trailing 1-0.

The Mets greeted reliever Jack Baldschun with three hits and a pair of runs in blanking the Padres 3-0 behind Jim McAndrew's three-hitter.

"He was coming out," said Gomez, "because I play to win. I knew he had a no-hitter going but we got to score some runs."

The pinch hitter, Clarence Gaston batted for Kirby with the crowd of 10,373 in San Diego roaring its disapproval loudly with cries of "No, No, No." One fan jumped onto the field and attempted to get at the Padres dugout and Gomez. Security police, however, thwarted the spectator's attempt.

The boos continued as Gaston struck out and became even louder when Baldschun took the mound to face the Mets in the ninth.

When Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson greeted Baldschun with a leadoff single to left, snapping the no-hit bid, the reaction from the fans was a mixture of cheers and boos.

The fuss didn't appear to bother Gomez though, who after the game said he had done the same thing while managing at Spokane of the Pacific Coast League a couple of years ago.

"Phil Ortega was pitching a no-hitter for eight and I batted for him in the bottom of the inning," Gomez said. "The pinch hitter doubled and we won 2-1."

Kirby, a right-hander with a

5-12 mark this season, surrendered the Mets' run in the opening inning, when he said "the mound was muddy and I was throwing a lot of high stuff."

Tommie Agee opened with a walk and one out later Ken Singleton walked. The Ken Singletons pulled a double steal and Agee scored on Art Shamsky's ground out.

Kirby said he was "a little mad and a little surprised but he's (Gomez) the manager."

As he calmly smoked a cigarette in the clubhouse and joked and smiled, the 6-foot-3, 175-pounder said, "Heck, last year I lost 20 games. So I wouldn't have minded losing a no-hitter. It was the first time I had ever come close to one."

Kirby allowed five walks and struck out four while Baldschun was ripped for another single by Cleon Jones and a two-run single by Joe Foy.

In other National League games, Houston stopped Pittsburgh 3-1; Montreal tripped Los Angeles 5-2; Chicago ripped Atlanta 8-2; Cincinnati nipped St. Louis 6-5 and Philadelphia rocked San Francisco 9-6.

In the American League, Baltimore edged Kansas City 2-1; Chicago beat Cleveland 5-3; Detroit stopped Minnesota 5-2; California bombed Boston 10-6; Oakland blanked Washington and New York whipped Milwaukee 4-2.

The Pirates saw their East lead shrink to one game over the Mets as the Astros topped them for the second successive night sparked by Jesus Alou's fifth inning solo homer.

Alou also scored in a two-run Houston first inning after drawing a walk. Norm Miller and Doug Rader drove in the Astros runs while Gene Alley had a run-scoring double for Pittsburgh.

Carl Morton slammed a homer and won his 12th game to become Montreal's winningest pitcher ever. The right-hander had the support of consecutive fifth inning blasts from Ron Fairly and Rusty Staub. Steve Garvey had a solo shot for the Dodgers.

Ron Santo and Randy Hundley stroked homers for the Cubs.

Cougar Caravan Stopping Here

One of pro sports most energetic efforts to develop community relations will wend its way into Greenville on Friday and the young people of this community will be the beneficiaries.

The Carolina Cougars Caravan — pro basketball's traveling road show — will bring Cougar players and their specially constructed Cougar Van along for a basketball clinic at Elm Street Park.

The Cougars are expected to arrive at this stop of their 5,000 mile journey through North Carolina, South Carolina and southern Virginia from 1:30 until 3:30 p.m. Friday.

The specially constructed van will contain a portable basketball goal which can be set at regulation height for older players and lowered to accommodate the younger boys and girls.

"This is one of the greatest innovations for teaching basketball that I've ever seen," said Cougar coach Bones McKinney.

"It gives the younger player the same opportunity to move in on the basket that the baller players have, without having to stretch to reach up for the rim.

"Once you see an eight-year-old drive in and stuff that ball," continued Bones, "you'll see what I mean."

The famed Cougar Caravan has been written up in Sports Illustrated and numerous other national publications. It is estimated that it's two month journey this summer will exceed 5,000 miles with stops in over 100 cities in the tri-state area which comprises Cougar Country.

Church, Ladies Are Rained Out

The semifinals of the Church Softball League Tournament, and the final two games of the regular season for the Ladies Softball League were rained out last night.

The Church League will try again Thursday at 7:30 p.m. with Black Jack meeting Presbyterian. The winner is scheduled to meet Meadowbrook on Friday for the championship.

The women's loop will try again on Thursday to wind up the regular season and decide first place in the league.

McLain Gets First Win As Twins Bow

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer
Denny McLain scored a major breakthrough, and got a break.

The breakthrough was the Detroit right-hander's first victory — 5-2 over the Minnesota Twins Tuesday night — since being reinstated after his half season suspension for association with gamblers.

The break was he didn't suffer a broken left leg when he was felled by Cesar Tovar's line drive in the eighth inning.

"A major breakthrough," said McLain. "I think I'm getting better. I think I'm starting to turn the corner."

"He's not quite at midseason form, but he's getting there," said Tiger Manager Mayo Smith.

McLain almost lost any further chance of reaching midseason form when Tovar's liner struck him on the left leg and sent him writhing to the ground. He suffered a badly bruised shin bone and was to have precautionary X rays taken.

Smith didn't expect McLain to miss his next scheduled start, which would be his seventh. In his first five starts, all incomplete games, he was tagged with two losses.

In starting to turn the corner, McLain kept the Tigers within four-games of American League East-leading Baltimore, which edged Kansas City 2-1. Minnesota's loss cuts the Twins' West lead to 3½ games over California, a 10-6 victor over Boston.

The New York Yankees topped Milwaukee 4-2, Oakland blanked Washington 4-0 and the Chicago White Sox downed Cleveland 3-0 in other AL action.

In the National League, Cincinnati edged St. Louis 6-5, Philadelphia outsluged San Francisco 9-6, the New York Mets took San Diego 3-0, the Chicago Cubs trounced Atlanta 8-2, Houston nipped Pittsburgh 3-1 and Montreal topped Los Angeles 5-2.

McLain allowed six hits, one of them a two-run homer by George Mitterwald. Willie Horton's two-run homer in a four-run fifth inning, was the big offensive backing for McLain.

Baltimore gained its victory over Kansas City with a run in the ninth. Boog Powell drew a leadoff walk and was forced by Brooks Robinson. Ellie Hendricks then singled and Terry Crowley ripped a run-scoring double.

Ron Grich singled in Baltimore's first run in the third. Kansas City tied it in the seventh on Cookie Rojas' one-out single with the bases loaded, but the royals were unable to do further damage.

Even relief pitcher Ken Tatum got into California's offensive show, belting a three-run homer. Catcher Tom Egan also swatted a three-run homer and Ken McMullen whacked four hits and drove in two runs for the Angels.

Carl Yastrzemski belted a two-run homer, a solo blast and an RBI double for Boston. The homers gave Yastrzemski 25 for the season.

Skip Lockwood's wildness helped the Yankees take Milwaukee. New York scored twice in the fifth on a sacrifice fly and single following two walks and a sacrifice, then broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth, scoring one run on Lockwood's wild pitch and another on a sacrifice fly off Bob Humphreys.

Sal Bando tripled in a run and then scored in the fourth inning and Oakland went on to beat Washington as Paul Lindblad saved Diego Segui from a ninth-inning Senators' threat. Reggie Jackson homered for the A's.

Gail Hopkins drove in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly. Ed Herrmann homered and Luis Aparicio pounded out three hits in leading the White Sox over Cleveland, which got a two-run homer from Roy Foster and solo shot from Vada Pinson.

Cronin On Stand In Umps' Trial

By STEVEN A. COHEN

BOSTON (AP)—Joe Cronin, president of the American League, was to resume testimony today at a National Labor Relations Board hearing into the firing of two league umpires in 1968.

The umpires, Al Salerno and Bill Valentine, were fired by Cronin because of alleged "incompetence." But they have filed an unfair labor practice suit contending that they were dismissed because they were trying to organize a union for league umpires.

Testifying Tuesday before Board Examiner David Davidson, Cronin cited "arrogance" as one reason leading up to the dismissal.

Valentine "could not keep an even temper," Cronin said, and Salerno "had been in trouble since the beginning of his career."

Cronin said he had no idea that American League umpires were talking about a union until "two or three days after they (Salerno and Valentine) were dismissed."

"I read about it in the papers after they called a press conference to say they were fired because "of their efforts to organize a union" he said.

Cronin, after citing several instances where he questioned the professional conduct of the two, said former umpire supervisor Cal Hubbard went to Oakland, Calif., in 1968 to talk to Salerno and Valentine, specifically "to try to salvage them."

Cronin testified that Hubbard's assessment after the trip was "We might just as well replace these two now. I can't do anything with them."

Much of Cronin's testimony centered on specifics that he said led to dismissal of the two.

Cronin called the pair "technically pretty fair umpires," but said "an umpire must keep his composure."

"The first rule in the book is when the seventh inning is on, you forget the sixth. Each day is a new game, and no grudges should be carried over."

He said the pair was dismissed Sept. 16, prior to the World Series, because Salerno was scheduled to umpire in the Series.

"Salerno had been in so much trouble that year, we couldn't see putting him in the World Series," he said.

Cronin added that the league had purchased contracts for minor league umpires—to replace Salerno and Valentine and prepare for expansion—and the pair was dismissed before the end of the season to give the league a chance to see how the new umpires would work out.

Greenville won its first match, against Catawba, and was set to play Kings Mountain Tuesday in the second round, but rains produced the postponement. The game was scheduled to be played today at 2 p.m.

Kinston To Meet Legion

The Greenville American Legion baseball team opens play tonight at 8 p.m. in Kinston in the best-of-five series to determine the area playoff winner.

The series opener will be in Granger Stadium tonight. It will move back to Greenville on Thursday for a 5 p.m. game at East Carolina University field. Then, on Friday, the series returns to Kinston for an 8 p.m. game.

A fourth and fifth game, if needed, would be played on Saturday and Sunday, the first in Greenville and the second in Kinston.

Palmer-Nicklaus Rate As Four-Ball Favorites

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
—LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — The imposing duo of Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus ranked as the favorites in a sparkling field assembled for the $200,000 National Four-Ball Golf Championship.

The event, the only one of its kind on the pro tour, hasn't been played for two years, when George Archer and Bobby Nichols captured the title in Oklahoma City.

They're also likely to be among the favorites for the team tournament that carries the official title: National Four-Ball Championship Tournament Players' Division, Professional Golfers' Association of America.

The format calls for 60 teams of two players each, competing in medal play, with the team scoring only on the better ball. They'll play in foursomes for 72 holes, with the field cut to the low 40 teams and ties for 40th position after 36 holes.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be telecast nationally by NBC-TV.

The site is the demanding Laurel Valley Golf Club, Palmer's home course. It's a 7,045-yard, par-71 layout that has been toughened and lengthened since it served as host to the 1965 PGA National Championship.

It's a lushly beautiful course set in the rolling hills of Western Pennsylvania. It's heavily treed, studded with trees and features undulating, two-level greens. Water comes into play on seven holes.

"A team that can average 66 should be in pretty good position," said Palmer. "I won't say that score, 264 will win it, but it will be close, unless the course is playing a lot faster and the greens a lot slower than I expect them to be."

Nicklaus and Palmer, the two giants of the game, won this event in 1966 and are the heavy favorites this time. Between them they have about $2.2 million in official earnings and have a total 89 tour victories, including 15 major titles.

Nicklaus, the recently crowned British Open champ, withdrew from last week's Philadelphia Classic, complaining he was tired. He was not expected to arrive until Wednesday.

Palmer played a practice round with Howie Johnson and Chris Blocker Wednesday, did not keep score, then went into Pittsburgh to be honored at a testimonial dinner for his selection by the Associated Press as Athlete of the Decade.

The field is possibly the strongest of the year. About the only major names missing are U.S. Open champion Tony Jacklin, South African Gary Player and Frank Beard.

In addition to the Palmer-Nicklaus and Archer-Nichols combos, some other outstanding teams are Ken Still and Gene Littler, winner of the team-play CBS Golf Classic last year, Australian Bruce Devlin and Bob Charles of New Zealand, and Masters champion Billy Casper and Bert Greene.

Greene has been out of action with an injured shoulder for two weeks but Casper said he has been assured his partner will be available.

"I sure hope so," Casper said. "I can't handle Palmer and Nicklaus alone. One at a time, okay, but not both of them."

Dave Hill, paired with brother Mike—both are tournament winners this year—a late arrival. They are one of four brother combinations in the tournament.

The others are Dick and John Lotz, Tom and Mickey Shaw and South Africans Harold and Allan Henning. And there's one uncle-nephew team, Charles and Curtis Sifford.

Leading money winner Lee Trevino is paired with Jesse Whittenton, a part-time tourist and Trevino's business partner.

Some other outstanding teams include Sam Snead and Gardner Dickinson, Bruce Crampton-Orville Moody, Dave Stockton-Bob Lunn, Doug Sanders-Chi Chi Rodriguez, Dave Marr-Johnny Pott, Bunky Henry-Larry Hinson, Ray Floyd-Bob Rosburg and Miller Barber-Don January.

Kenya Town Has Two Champions

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — The little village of Kapkenyelo, nestled among the wooded slopes of the Nandi district of Kenya, can call itself the champion hurdling village of the world.

Kapkenyelo has only about 1,000 people. But Tuesday two of its sons won medals in the 400-meter hurdles event of the British Commonwealth Games.

Bill Koskei, who grew up in Kapkenyelo but now competes from Uganda, won the silver medal and Charles Yego, who is in the Kenyan police force, won the bronze.

John Sherwood of England, who won the race, said: "It is quite frightening to think how good these Africans are going to be when they have had more international experience." Koskei and Yego both have the same tribal name of Koppkembai and knew each other when they were kids. Then drifted apart.

The African countries, who came here with bright prospects in the track events, still haven't won a gold medal. But they had a great chance today as Kap Keino of Kenya set out as one of the favorites for the 1,500-meter final.

Don Quarrie of Jamaica had a chance to win his second gold medal of the games in the 200-meters.

He already has the 100-meters gold safely packed in his bag. Meanwhile, Karen Moras, 16-year-old Australian swimmer, added the 200-meters reestyle to her collection of gold medals. She had already won the 400 and 800.

No Progress In NFL Player-Owner Dispute

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The College All-Star game, the pre-season schedule and possibly the entire season remained up in the air today as pro football owners continued their marathon meeting after failing to come up with any answers Tuesday in their dispute with the players.

The 26 club owners "touched on every aspect of the negotiations and no firm decision was made," said Lamar Hunt, owner of the Super Bowl Champion Kansas City Chiefs in a joint press conference with George Halas of the Chicago Bears after Tuesday's 11½ hour meeting.

He did say some decisions were expected today when the owners resumed their talks in a midtown hotel at 10 a.m., EDT. Certain to be discussed were:

—The pension plan for the players, which is the crux of the dispute with the National Football League Players Association.

—Whether to send a representative to Washington tonight to join in a meeting between players' representatives and federal mediators.

—The College All-Star game between the Chiefs and the All-Stars in Chicago July 31, which has been jeopardized with the Chiefs being unable to prepare for the game.

—The pre-season schedule, which also has been threatened by the lockout by owners which has kept veteran players from organized practices which began for most teams this week.

—The regular season itself.

"There was some discussion along those lines," replied Halas to a question concerning the possible cancelling of the entire pro football season. "A few owners did bring it up."

However, he shrugged off such talk as having little serious intention, but admitted it might be brought up again.

In another hotel across town, John Mackey, of Baltimore and the president of the NFLPA, said he had never heard anyone talk on those lines.

Hunt said he held out hope that his Chiefs still could play in the All-Star game, noting that Kansas City Coach Hank Stram has said he could get the team ready if practice begins at least one week before the contest. That would be Friday.

If no settlement is reached, not only the All-Star game would be in trouble, but the pre-season contests as well.

They start one week later, Aug. 7.

However, a promoter in Jacksonville, Fla., said he has been assured that an opening week game between Miami and Pittsburgh would be played, with rookies, if necessary. Rookies have been permitted to work out.

"I feel in my own mind that the pre-season games will be played," said Hunt, who is the president of the American Conference of the NFL. Halas is the president of the National Conference.

Hunt said it would "not be appropriate to speculate on federal mediation" in the dispute, although Mackey reaffirmed later his decision to leave for Washington today despite the resumption of the meeting of owners in New York.

"I can understand that they might have to meet again when there are 26 owners," he said, but added "if we spent as much time talking to each other as they have talking to themselves we might reach an agreement."

Jockey Eddie Belmonte has had two mounts in the Belmont Stakes. He was third with Dike in 1969 and third again this year with Nasrka.

Camping Was Enjoyed A Century Ago In N.C.

1874 SUMMER CAMPING TRIP — Members of the "Rough & Ready Mountain Club" from Salem, N.C., took several camping trips into the North Carolina mountains much like folks do these days. (AP Wirephoto)

By H. G. JONES
Dept. of Archives and History
Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Camping trips are the rage today. From the latest model camper, equipped with every conceivable modern convenience, to the lowliest sleeping bag and tent, thousands of Americans take to the road and the campsites during the summer months.

Camping 100 years ago, though only for the hardy, was also full of adventure and excitement. Proof is found in the summer issue of the "North Carolina Historical Review," in edited diaries published under the title "Accounts of Moravian Mountain Excursions of a Hundred Years Ago."

The manuscript diaries are in the possession of a step-granddaughter of the former Cynthia Thomas, the young lady thought to be the scribe who meticulously recorded events as they happened on those long-ago camping trips. The editor of the journal is Dr. Horace W. Raper of Tennessee Technological University.

Four trips to western North Carolina and to the mountains of Virginia were made by members of the "Rough & Ready" Mountain Club of Salem from 1874 to 1880. Participants were from prominent Moravian families and-or students and faculty of the Salem Female Academy (now Salem College). All four trips were conducted by Augustus Gottlieb Fogle, a man who organized and supervised at least 35 excursions between 1832 and 1895.

Horses, ponies and carriages were used for transportation. Lodging was found along the way and campers were sometimes sheltered in houses. Other times, they pitched tents or slept on the ground. Food was bought and prepared by members of the club, and at some localities prepared meals were purchased.

An evening meal at the Eagle Hotel in Asheville was particularly welcome after the group had lived for a week "chiefly on bacon & bread." At Mt. Mitchell the supper consisted of biscuits, smoked tongue, butter, and lemonade.

The trip in 1874 to western North Carolina was recorded in more detail than the later ones. Climbing what is now known as Mt. Mitchell was described vividly. As the grade became steeper, the horses had to be left to graze and the travelers had to walk. At last, after climbing a steep, rocky path, the diarist wrote, "We were all so tired when we reached the top that we felt no inclination then even to look at poor Prof. Mitchell's grave, but each one sought a shady spot to lie down and rest." After an hour, the group was revived sufficiently to enjoy the view, "grand beyond description."

The grave of the scientist who lost his life while exploring on the mountain later named in his honor was commented on with a note of sadness: "Prof. Mitchell's grave is only distinguished by a few logs of wood placed around it. Oh, what a desolate, isolated spot to be buried in! I don't see how those who loved him could give their consent."

The night was spent on the mountain, and toward morning the wind became so strong that "there was a crash, & then a clap right on us!" When the initial fright was over, the campers discovered that they were buried under their tent, blown down by the wind. On another night, after a hard day, most of the men went to sleep immediately after supper, lying on the ground. When Mr. Fogle "was ready to lie down, he picked up from the ground what he supposed was his roll of bedding, but it happened to be Mr. Lineback fast asleep in his, he gave a yell, for he thought the bears had him, and so startled Mr. Fogle, that he dropped him as suddenly as if he really had a Bruin in his arms."

The four accounts—with their details concerning roads, logging places, food, campsites, scenery, weather, hardships, and fun—reveal anew, as Dr. Raper says, the "fraternity, good humor, cooperation, imperviousness to physical hardships, love and respect for man and his natural environment" of the Moravians.

Campers in 1970 may have more comforts than did the "Rough & Ready" Mountain Club of Salem in the 1870s, but in many ways camping remains the same.

Topless Parader Is Charged In Raleigh

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — A topless dancer will face trial Sept. 9 in Wake County District Court for attempting to parade down Raleigh's main street Tuesday with her breasts bared.

Raleigh police arrested Sharon Kay Ledbetter, 23, of Las Vegas, Nev., moments after she climbed atop the back seat of a convertible and bared her breasts to a crowd of several hundred persons.

Earlier in the day Miss Ledbetter rode through Chapel Hill and Durham seated topless on the back of the convertible without being arrested.

The crowd had gathered on Fayetteville Street two blocks from the state capitol in Raleigh after handbills announcing the planned topless stunt were circulated.

While the crowd gathered around the automobile, Miss Ledbetter tossed aside a red-feathered stole, leaving her clad only in abbreviated bikini pants.

Police moved in and placed her under arrest on charges of violating a recently enacted city ordinance. The new law prohibits the showing of female breasts on the street and in the view of minors.

The ordinance was passed after another night club dancer strolled barebreasted down Fayetteville Street unhindered by police several months ago.

When police told her she was under arrest, Miss Ledbetter slipped down onto the back seat of the car, wriggled into a pants dress and stepped onto the street.

Police took her to headquarters where she was released under $50 bond.

Cites Role Of Administrators

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott says that school administrators must, above all else, be "educational giants."

"It is your obligation more than anyone else's to open doors, to lift the sights of your associates, to release the imagination of your cohorts, to ignite enthusiasm among lay citizens, and to encourage participation in the decision-making process," Scott told the North Carolina School Superintendents Conference Tuesday.

"You, more than anyone else, should set the tone and the basic direction of the entire school system," Scott told the group.

'Masterpieces' He Sold Were His Art Forgeries

By WILLEM VUUR
THE HAGUE, Netherlands (UPI)—When Hans van Meegeren was arrested after the end of the Nazi occupation of Holland and charged with selling old masters to Germany his defense provoked widespread disbelief.

He said the paintings he sold—certified by experts as genuine masterpieces by the 17th century Dutch masters Johannes Vermeer and Pieter de Hoochs—were fakes that he had painted himself.

He added another sensation. He was, he said, the man who had painted "The Men of Emmaus," another verified masterpiece by Vermeer "discovered" in Holland a few years before the war, bought for 550,000 guilders (then $292,000) by the Dutch Rembrandt Society and the subject of international interest at a special exhibition.

The art world of 1945—this is the 25th anniversary year of the large reduction in federal funds for highway construction during the current quarter—than during the first quarter of the last fiscal year.

The State Highway Commission announced Tuesday that $15.653 million in federal funds for the first three months of the fiscal year which began July 1 will be $3.5 million or 18 per cent less than the $19.152 million during the corresponding quarter last year.

van Meegeren's arrest—was stunned by the revelations that emerged from his prison cell. He said he had begun his career of art forgery because he had failed to find recognition under his own name and wanted to show he was the equal of the old masters.

Still unconvinced, the art experts demanded proof. Officials in charge of the investigation allowed van Meegeren to return to his mansion on one of the Amsterdam canals to paint a "Vermeer" under the eyes of six witnesses sworn in by the court. Two months later van Meegeren put the finishing touch to "Jesus In the Temple" so much in the style of Vermeer that it convinced the watchers he could really have painted the six "Vermeers" and two "Pieter de Hoochs" he sold.

The investigation showed the eight paintings netted a total of 7,159,000 guilders ($3.8 million at the pre-war exchange rate). After paying off middlemen, van Meegeren still had 5,180,000 guilders (then $2.7 million).

Van Meegeren produced his fakes in his atelier at Roquebrune on the French Riviera.

Not all the money was profit. In order to get old linen, he used paintings of lesser known 17th century painters. A lot of money also went into the buying of special paints.

He managed to get the "craquelure" (cracks) on his own paintings by wringing and bending them while they were heated.

When the trial started before the Amsterdam court, the charge was changed from export of old masters to swindling or falsely signing of works of arts.

Next to van Meegeren, the limelight fell on Dr. P.B. Coremans of Belgium. As prewar director of the central laboratories of the Belgian state museums, he had expressed doubts about the authenticity of "The Men of Emmaus."

Coremans, as chairman of the court appointed committee of experts, explained in detail how the committee concluded van Meegeren was right in claiming he faked them all.

At the trial, van Meegeren paid Coremans this compliment: "Your work is excellent. It is phenomenal. Due to your method of investigation, falsification of paintings in the future will become impossible. What you did, was even smarter than painting the Men of Emmaus."

He also said the signatures were the most difficult part of the fakes since they had to be right at the first effort.

He said he had worked for five years on this process. "It took hold of me in such a way I had to go on after the Men of Emmaus. And had to ask high prices since otherwise the painting would have been judged false immediately."

The court sentenced him to one year in prison. But soon after the trial, van Meegeren became ill and was taken to a mental hospital where he died two months later, aged 58.

Newton Guiding Panthers From Behind Bars

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — From behind the 14-foot fences and steel bars of a state prison, Huey P. Newton guides the militant Black Panther party toward what he envisions as a revolution within his lifetime. "I decide the final policy on everything in the party," said Newton, Panther co-founder and minister of defense. "I communicate with the party through visits by my family."

The smiling, soft-spoken Newton, 28, has spent the past 2½ years in prison for killing an Oakland policeman. He was sentenced to 2 to 15 years for the Oct. 28, 1967, shooting of officer John Frey.

On May 21 the California District Court of Appeal ordered a new trial on ground that the Superior Court omitted some required instructions to the jury and made other prejudicial errors.

"I'm not very optimistic," Newton said in an interview. "I have very little faith in the state machine. I don't expect justice. I'm just being realistic."
"But I am optimistic about winning the final battle because the people always win."

As the Panthers' chief theoretician, Newton said revolution has constantly occupied his mind at the California Men's Colony, a sprawling medium security prison at the foot of coastal hills near here.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover recently called the Black Panthers the nation's most dangerous organization and accused it of fomenting terrorism in cities and on campuses.

Newton commented: "The most dangerous groups to the people of the world are the Pentagon, including the CIA, the U.S. military, the local police, the avaricious businessman and the lying politicians."

"All are guilty of crimes against the people and the verdict is death."

A party poster picturing Newton on an African wicker throne bearing a shotgun and a spear has been sold nationally. But he said, "I'm against violence. I'm not a violent man. All revolutionaries are against violence. "There's a distinction between the violence of the aggressor and the self-defense of the attacked."

"We must defend ourselves against poor housing, police brutality and all things that strip a man of his dignity."

As for the poster, he said, laughing, "I don't think the party's image has changed since then, but I hope mine has. I don't like that particular poster, because it makes me look like a monarch. We have a democratic party."

Newton said his primary goals include the freedom of Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale, charged with murder of a Panther in New Haven, Conn., and the safe return to the United States of Eldridge Cleaver, Panther minister of information who has been a fugitive since he was declared a California parole violator.

For 45 minutes, Newton, a solid 5 foot 10 inches tall in his baggy prison blues, answered questions about the Panthers' goal of bringing about what he calls "a democratic society free of racism."

He explained that his projected revolution would create a society in which the people control the institutions, the government is a cooperative, and large privately owned corporations become public entities.

"Eventually these companies will be absolutely socialized and turned over as public enterprises," Newton said. "There will be no profit to any particular group and the people themselves will reap the benefit."

While he is proud of the Black Panther breakfast programs and clinics in some of the nation's big cities, Newton characterizes himself as a revolutionary, not a reformer, explaining: "A revolutionary wants complete change, because he's dissatisfied with a set of existing conditions. He feels they're only changed through complete revolution."

"For blacks and other minorities here a Socialist government is the only salvation because we've never gained anything from capitalism," he said.

"Nixon and his lackeys are attempting to lead blacks up a creek with the concept of black capitalism," Newton said.

"Now they're trying to dupe us into investing in a country that's already overexpanded with an inflated economy."

Eventually, internal discontent coupled with an increasing number of war fronts will weaken the United States enough for a successful revolution, he said.

"The police regime, the Pentagon, is too powerful for it to be defeated on a national level." "All indications are that it will be a violent conflict judging from the activities of this fascist government," he added.

The Cambodian venture was a lesson in "U.S. imperialism" to a broad cross-section of the public, Newton said.

"After the murders at Kent State and Jackson State, people got involved," he said. "Before becoming a revolutionary, one has to get deeply involved."

Newton expressed doubt that white working class Americans would support his revolution.

"Many of the so-called leftist-Marxist groups feel the proletariat still carries the revolutionary potential," he said. "We doubt this because labor has a place very close to capital."

"The white radicals have a place in the revolutionary struggle, but they have factional problems in their own circles. I wish they'd stop bickering and join the fight."

While the exact Black Panther party membership is a matter for speculation, Newton acknowledges it is relatively small.

"We are a vanguard group hoping to influence the minds of the people," Newton concluded.

SEA FARMING

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mariculture"—the farming of the sea—could become a major world industry by 1980, according to Marine Office-Appleton & Cox Corp. (MOAC). MOAC said that there will not be enough arable land available in the future to grow food for a population increasing at the rate of 60 million a year.

NEW YORK (AP) — R. J. Reynolds Industries has introduced what it calls a new low tar and nicotine cigarette called Vantage.

The company said sales of the cigarette would begin next week in three market areas: New York City; Portland, Ore., and Syracuse, N. Y.

There never was a horse that couldn't be rode... never was a cowboy couldn't be thrown. Such a cowboy is Joe Tietjen. At 38, his whole life has been the range and horses.

Cowhand Tietjen draws his pay from the Great Western Land and Cattle Co., which raises beef.

Tietjen, however is a cowhand in the legendary fashion in the saddle all the day, or out breaking broncos, or snoozing in a bedroll at night.

He has this thing about horses—about showing who's boss. He reckons it comes from that time of tragedy in his boyhood when his brother was killed by a horse.

"I guess I subconsciously wanted to kill all horses," he says of his skill at breaking bucking and wild horses.

There was a time, at age 16, "that was a horse all the guys figured I couldn't ride. Because of that, I bought him and figured I could 'spur him out.' He bucked at least 20 times and the more he bucked the scarer I got. In fact, he bucked so hard he got stiff. I finally sold him for a bucking horse."

Out of that, Tietjen learned his cardinal rule about dealing with horses. "You got to have experience and you've got to be boss," he says. "You have to get fear into him, if he's mean, before he gets fear into you. You get your bluff in first; hoodoo him. Step right in the stirrup and jump on before he gets bugged or he'll wheel and kick you."

The Worry Clinic Stopping Fear Changes Lives

Larry's teacher deserves a gold star for her superb application of psychiatry in the classroom! And she may have altered the entire future careers of timid Larry and his 17 classmates. She has thus helped implement Christ's desire that we obtain the more abundant life. Stopping fears does just that!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M. D. CASE N-572: Larry T., aged 8, is a brilliant child.

"But, Dr. Crane," his Sunday School teacher informed me, "Larry is a neurotic youngster."

"Finally, I gained his confidence the other day and he broke into tears as he confessed that he is a 'fraidy cat.'"

"He thinks all the other boys are brave and self-reliant while he is the only shy, timid youngster in the group."

"So I decided to hold one of your 'Fear Parties,' for isn't the church supposed to banish abnormal fears and build self-reliant youngsters?"

"Well, I opened the class the next Sunday by saying we'd have a 'Fear Party,' and I quoted you as saying that everybody, adult as well as children, has been afraid of something."

"So I told the class that when I was about 8 or 9 years of age, I was so terrified about having a 'shot' at the doctor's office that I got sick at my stomach and trembled until cold sweat stood out on my forehead."

"Then I casually asked the class what they dreaded."

"A little girl put up her hand and shyly confessed that she was terrified by lightning."

"Another little girl was scared of mice."

"Then a little boy admitted that he didn't like haunted houses, lest ghosts might appear."

"By this time, it became

"And I told them we'd then write the list on the blackboard, which we did the next Sunday morning."

"Actually, we had 27 items on the blackboard."

"And I noted an immediate popular to confess one's inner fears, so everybody began to chime in.

"And Larry then added his own dread of people, for he was an 'only' child and thus was awkward at playing many of the usual athletic games of his age group."

"Larry's admission of inadequacy in sports then opened the way for several more to confess that they were called 'butterfingers' for their poor fielding of a baseball."

"Well, Dr. Crane, by the time the class was over, every one of the 18 children had confessed some fear or terror."

"So I told them to ask their parents what the latter had dreaded in childhood. For most kiddies think their Daddy and Mother are so superior and omnipotent that they never felt cowardly about anything!"

"The children themselves suggested that we have a continuation of this 'Fear Party' the following Sunday."

"So I urged them to find out all the things their families had dreaded back in their own childhood."

relaxed mood, not only on the part of Larry, but of all the other kiddies, too!

"For they had secretly cherished the belief that they were abnormal in having some hidden fear, but now they realized that all their classmates were in the same boat.

"And some of them were delighted to find out that their own Daddy had also been a 'fraidy cat' about something when he was a child."

"So I wish all Sunday School teachers, as well as those in the Public Schools, would schedule a 'Fear Party.'"

"It helps teachers apply massive psychiatric therapy, doesn't it, Dr. Crane?"

Indeed it does, so send for my booklet "How to Control the Emotions," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

Monument To Tom Mix

TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP) — A busload of school children pulled up at a rest area on a desolate stretch of U.S. 80-89, about 50 miles north of here. The youngsters piled out, and a few read the inscription on a small monument.

"Tom Mix... who's he?" asked one of the boys.

Few motorists stop here to reminisce and to look at the rough stone monument topped with a metal silhouette of the cowboy's horse, Tony, head lowered and riderless.

Mix died in 1940 when his car went out of control in a desert wash which runs across the road next to the monument. When the monument was installed in 1947, 300 friends of the one-time King of Cowboys came to hear his old pal, Gene Autry, sing a sad "Empty Saddles."

The monument's plaque reads: January 6, 1880—October 12, 1940

In Memory of Tom Mix "Whose spirit left his body on this spot and whose characterization and portrayals in life served to better fix memories of the Old West in the minds of living men."

Few of the school children have heard of Tom Mix, but some of their parents, their grandparents and their great grandparents remember him well.
