Greenville's Central Business District Part II application for loan and grant has been approved. The announcement came from Sen. B. Everett Jordan's and Rep. Walter B. Jones' offices. It was also announced that previously committed funds had been increased by $181,803 to $5,513,273. Redevelopment Director A E Dubber said the approval "means we're in business and we can proceed to get on with the work." He said that in three weeks to begin buying property. The priority project in the CBD is expected to be acquiring right-of-way and construction of the loop street connecting Reide to Greene.

Vote Extend Option, No Deposit Hike

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Redevelopment Commissioners last night voted to extend W. E. Dansey's option to buy a parcel of land located on the west corner of First and Greene Streets until Oct. 1 without payment of an additional five per cent deposit. Extension of the option is subject to the concurrence of the Housing and Urban Development office in Atlanta which had indicated earlier that any extension of time would have to coincide with the payment of an additional five per cent deposit toward the cost of the parcel. Dansey's original option to buy the property and construct a motel complex had expired on May 30, at which time commissioners had given him until July to secure financing. Appearing before the commission, Dansey informed them that he has "not been able to secure financing to my satisfaction." At this time, he noted, the financing is some $1,300,000 short of his needs. Dansey pointed out that he had pursued the idea of a government grant from the Economic Development Administration but had not been able to secure the grant he had hoped for. He added that currently another agency has the "package" under consideration for financing. "If the commission is willing to extend the contract without the five per cent deposit, I am willing to continue to pursue the idea," Dansey continued. He pointed out that he feels the river site is the best location for the facility. "I have been willing to pay the price of putting in the parking decks (at a cost of $100,000) even in view that I could build elsewhere without the deck," Dansey said. "If I had to pay more to get the land, I would have to let it go."

Commissioner M. E. Cavendish asked Dansey if he felt the financial market would improve in the next six months enough to merit the extension. Dansey commented, "I think the financial market will improve. I think that in six months I could tell you whether or not I could do it." Executive director A E Dubber pointed out to commissioners that an extension on the option would exclude any other bidders that may have an interest in the land. Dubber noted that the main question involved the actual purchase of the land. "We have had a couple of developers who have bought land and later asked for extensions on the development," he said. "HUD concurred in those cases because the land had been paid for." Cavendish added, "I personally would like to see this. I think the motel is the best plan we've seen." Dansey assured commissioners that if financing could be obtained, he would purchase the land immediately. He noted that it would take about 60 days to get into construction after definite commitments are made by financiers. In other business before the commission, attorney Kenneth Hite reported that developments in Newtown had been hindered by the time consumed in the recent law suit against the city. He added that condemnation proceedings in Newtown should begin to move along now and some cases should be in court by the middle of August. Newtown project manager, T. I. Wagner, reported that 12 parcels of the original 44 to be acquired in the project had been acquired to date and of the 24 structures in the area, 10 had been removed and four more were being moved. Wagner predicted that by the first of October, 60 per cent of the parcels in the project should be acquired. CBD project manager, John Messick, said that the Parking Authority had met on July 9 and had reelected Gene Skinner chairman and Ken Watkins vice chairman. In addition, Bob Browning was elected to fill the secretary position, he said. Messick also reported that the commission had received a copy of a letter sent to East Carolina University from the State Property Control officer agreeing to the sale of three parcels of land along Reade Street by the commission to ECU and another tract off Cotanche to the commission by the University. He added that the City Council has formally approved the sale of the land to ECU and the price negotiations have been settled. Messick reported that Bob Anderson of City Planning and Architectural Associates of Chapel Hill had visited the commission on June 11 and again on several later occasions. Also, Homer Anderson, land acquisition specialist from Atlanta and urban renewal representative William Joe had been in Greenville. Dubber informed commissioners that, as a result of a recently adopted proclaimer policy by HUD, the commission

Israel Moving To Reluctant Assent

JERUSALEM (AP) — Indications are mounting that Israel's government will agree reluctantly and with conditions to the 90-day cease-fire proposed by the United States to get Middle East peace talks under way again. But local press reports said Defense Minister Moshe Dayan is considering resigning if the cabinet accepts the American proposal. A Defense Ministry spokesman termed the reports "rumors," but he admitted, "Dayan is not enthusiastic about the U.S. proposal." The reports said Dayan had expressed misgivings because the U.S. plan speaks of Israeli withdrawal from the Arab lands captured in the 1967 war. Dayan believes that Israel's security depends on its retaining the Gaza Strip, the Golan Heights taken from Syria, and a coastal strip along the Sinai desert to the Strait of Tiran, the key to Israel's southern water route to East Africa and Asia. Mrs. Meir may reply to Washington Wednesday night in a speech to the Knesset, the Israeli parliament. Deputy Premier Yigal Allon went on record Monday night in favor of acceptance, Israel's first ranking minister to do so publicly. "Even if there are differences of opinion between the U.S. and Israel," Allon told a group of high school newspaper editors, "when the government of the United States takes such an initiative, it appears to me that we should accept it, even if we are not completely satisfied with all the details."

B52s Bomb Both Sides Of The Laotian Border

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52s streaked along both sides of the Laotian border with South Vietnam again today, dropping more than 1,800 tons of bombs in some of the heaviest raids of the Vietnam war. With about 60 of the giant Stratofortresses flying, two-thirds of the strikes hit along a 200-mile stretch of the Ho Chi Minh trail down through the Laotian panhandle to the Cambodian border. Other flights of the big bombers hit enemy positions on the

Built Their Own Economy Bridge

MAUD, Ky. (AP) — When the state said it couldn't afford to build a $17,000 detour while a bridge was being replaced, the people of Maud got together and built their own $563.02 version. The people of Maud, who number fewer than 100, figured that without the substitute bridge over the Big Beech River it was 26 miles to Bloomfield, the nearest commercial center, and 32 miles to Bardstown. With the detour the distances were cut to 8 and 12 miles respectively. So two Maud businessmen, grocer Albert Taylor and trucker R. W. Yates, took up a collection among their neighbors in Washington County and some in nearby Nelson County. "Just about everybody who

Border Belt Seen Heading For New First Day Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Prices were reported strong today, apparently headed for a record average of at least $71, as sales began on 11 flue-cured tobacco markets in South Carolina and eight on North Carolina's Border Belt. "I've never seen more smiling faces than this morning," said Bob Thompson, supervisor of sales at Lumberton, as he toured warehouses. "We're off to a great start." "I haven't seen a soul yet that's dissatisfied," said Hoke Smith Jr., one of the operators of the Liberty-Twin State Warehouse at Fairmont. Thompson said prices at Lumberton warehouses were ranging from $71 to $80 per hundred pounds. Smith said prices at his warehouse in Fairmont were ranging around $74 and $75 and going as high as $83. An opening-day average of a record $71 had been predicted earlier by John H. Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Cyrus said he looked for a price range running between $70 and $73 on the various markets. Last year the South Carolina markets averaged $70.17 and the North Carolina markets $70.79 on opening day. "The Border Belt has an unusually good crop, considering the amount of dry weather we had in June," Cyrus said. "The weather this month has been excellent. We have a good medium, thin-bodied crop with plenty of flavor and aroma." Cyrus predicted the North Carolina markets will sell slightly more than 4.5 million pounds, based on the current market schedule. He estimated that at least 50 per cent of the tobacco crop in the Border Belt area has been barned. Cyrus also noted that the average price supported this year is up from $63.80 last year to $66.60. The 11 South Carolina markets are Darlington, Conway, Dillon, Hemingway, Kingstree, Lake City, Lamar, Loris, Mulins, Pamlico and Timonsville. The eight North Carolina Border Belt markets are at Fairmont, Fayetteville, Lumberton, Tabor City, Whiteville, Fair Bluff, Clarkton and Chadbourne. Marion Fowler, executive secretary of the South Carolina tobacco Warehouse Association, said Palmette State Growers were "guardedly optimistic" about the chances for their first $100 million crop. Fowler said in Lake City that while yield is expected to be down somewhat in South Carolina because of drought conditions in parts of the state, growers helped higher prices will make possible a record money crop. "The yield may be up in some areas," he added. Last year's record yield was 1,995 pounds per acre, while U.S. government estimates place the 1970 average yield at about 1,800 pounds per acre. The 1969 South Carolina crop brought a record $99.5 million. The price averaged out to $72.80 per hundred pounds for $36.6 million pounds. Fowler noted that sporadic rainfall in different areas of South Carolina led to different maturing times. "In some places, harvesting is complete," he said, "while in others it is just beginning."

School Hearing Set In Trenton

At 11 a.m. federal Judge John Larkins will meet with Pitt County Superintendent of Schools Arthur S. Alford and members of the school board to discuss methods to further complete desegregation in the Pitt County Schools. The 11 South Carolina markets are Darlington, Conway, Dillon, Hemingway, Kingstree, Lake City, Lamar, Loris, Mulins, Pamlico and Timonsville. The eight North Carolina Border Belt markets are at Fairmont, Fayetteville, Lumberton, Tabor City, Whiteville, Fair Bluff, Clarkton and Chadbourne. Chicago Police Battle Rioters At Rock Concert

By WILLIAM RUMBLER
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — More than 2,000 young people battled police with rocks, bottles and baseball bats in anger at the interruption of a free rock music concert sponsored by the city to "bridge the generation gap." Mobs overturned automobiles, set them ablaze and later streamed out of Grant Park into the downtown district, smashing windows and looting. Three youths were shot and 63 other persons were injured, including 24 policemen. One policeman was stabbed and another beaten seriously. There were 148 arrests. Outnumbered police and the rampaging youths battled back and forth over an athletic field for more than three hours in 90-degree late afternoon heat. Tear gas failed to disperse the crowd. One group of youths tried to calm others, but to no avail. One squad car was overturned and two other cars burned. One of those on fire exploded, filling the air with black smoke. Rioters also set trash fires. Cars passing along Lake Shore and Balboa drives were pelted with rocks. After a police helicopter swooped low to broadcast the state riot act by loudspeaker, the police line made a final charge and mobs of youths retreated into the downtown area, pulling down street lights in Grant Park as they went. Dozens of large display windows were shattered as the youths rampaged down State Street. Several displays were looted. The violence ended after about six hours. Both blacks and white youths, including girls in their early teens, took part in the fray at the scene of bloody clashes between police and demonstrators the week of the 1968 Democratic National Convention. Witnesses said the trouble began when a group of youths took over the stage of the Grant Park Bandshell while an audience of 50,000 waited for the appearance of the rock band, Sly and the Family Stone. The band had refused to appear until the crowd quieted down. When authorities tried to eject the intruders, others in the audience pelted the stage with stones and bottles. Groups of youths hurled missiles at each other and a policeman was struck. Authorities then ordered the concert canceled and the youths swarmed onto the athletic field.

Federal Men To Assist, Not To Coerce

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If federal officials are using police tactics to enforce school desegregation in the South "they are acting out of character and beyond their authority," Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said today. Mitchell said keeping the peace as some southern schools desegregate for the first time will be left to state and local authorities. But he acknowledged there would be a larger than normal federal presence this fall. "We feel that the people in the South will abide by their agreements and court orders to desegregate," Mitchell said in an interview. What federal personnel will be on hand will be there to assist, rather than to coerce, school districts in dismantling dual education systems for blacks and whites. Size and make-up of the federal force has not yet been determined, he said. He said he was unaware of allegations made Sunday by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., that local officials in the South "are just being kicked in the face by the federal government over and over ... some of their agents already are virtually using police methods." "The federal government doesn't have a police force," Mitchell said. "If anybody is using police methods, they're acting out of character and beyond their authority." Mitchell dismissed the possibility that resistance to court-ordered desegregation will require the use of National Guard or federal marshals as in the late 1950s and early 1960s. "We don't contemplate that anything of that nature will be required," Mitchell said. "We have always in the past made available to the desegregating schools the experts of Health, Education and Welfare and they require the legal assistance of some of the Justice Department lawyers. "This year we have a more extensive number of districts that are desegregating for the first time and the executive branch is currently studying their requirements in order to assist them." How to go about this, Mitchell said, "will evolve over the weeks." Asked about criticism of administration desegregation actions by President Nixon's strongest southern supporter, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-Sc., Mitchell denied that any of Nixon's 1968 campaign promises had been broken. "There was some talk about freedom of choice," Mitchell acknowledged. "But the Supreme Court's ruling decided that." "In the President's statement this March on school policy, he said schools will be desegregated in accordance with the requirements of the courts. In the Mississippi cases last September we said the target date would be September of 1970."

'Eyewitness' On Stand In Tate Murder Trial

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pretty, petite Linda Kasabian recalls first hearing of Charles M. Manson and his hippie-type "family" from a girl who told her of "a beautiful man that we'd all been waiting for."

When she approached the shaggy-haired Manson and asked to join his clan, she says, "He felt my legs, and he seemed to think they were okay."

Thus, the state's green-eyed star witness began her testimony Monday in the Sharon Tate murder trial. She was interrupted repeatedly by defense objections.

"This witness is not competent, she's insane," Manson's attorney, Irving A. Kanarek, said before she was sworn.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi called the defense remarks "unbelievable conduct" and added: "I ask the court to find them in contempt."

Asked why she wanted to tell her story, she said softly, "I strongly believe in the truth. And I believe the truth should be spoken."

She said she was aware she would be granted immunity from prosecution if she testified for the state.

The mother of two babies, Mrs. Kasabian was charged along with the defendants with murder-conspiracy in the slaying of the beautiful actress and six others. But her trial was severed from that of Manson, 35, and three of his women followers, Susan Atkins, 21, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22.

The prosecution says Mrs. Kasabian was an eyewitness to at least three of the Tate murders last August while standing outside Miss Tate's mansion as a lookout. She also is said to have gone to the home of Leno LaBianca, a wealthy market owner who was killed with his wife the following night.

"We lived together as a family," Mrs. Kasabian said, "as a mother, a father and children but we were all one. And Charlie was the head."

"How many were in the family?" she was asked.

"I'd say about 20, coming in and out."

"Were these mostly girls?"

"Yes," she replied.

Throughout her testimony, Mrs. Kasabian stared straight ahead or down, seemingly oblivious to Manson and the three women defendants who sat nearby.

The three women came to court with crosses scratched on their foreheads, copying Manson who slashed a cross on his forehead Friday with a razor blade. The girls did it with hairpins, a defense attorney said.

House Relaxing Vote Secrecy

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has agreed to lift the veil of secrecy surrounding some of its most important votes, ending a tradition that has endured since 1789.

By voice vote, with only a few scattered no's, the House wrote into a legislative reorganization bill Monday a provision for recorded votes on amendments.

Votes on amendments now are taken under a teller system—borrowed from the British Parliament when Congress first convened in 1789. This system results in a vote total—but no indication of how individual members voted.

There is a procedure by which one-fifth of the members can force a later roll call on adopted amendments, but not on amendments which were defeated.

The action, coming in the third week of debate on the bill, is the farthest-reaching of several antisecrecy moves. Earlier, the House opened committee meetings to television and radio coverage, required that votes taken in closed committee meetings be made public and banned the use of proxies in committee votes.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., a sponsor of the voting change, noted that votes on such key issues as Cambodia and Vietnam policies, the supersonic transport, the multi-warhead MIRV and the antiballistic missile defense system had gone unrecorded.

"We bind the people of America," he said. "We say whether they will go to war. We levy taxes—and yet we are not willing to tell the people at home how we vote."

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., the Democratic whip, said he is concerned that "young people say this House has ceased to be relevant."

"We are saying: 'Let a man stand up and be counted ...,'" he continued. "If you didn't want to be counted, why did you come here in the first place?"

The amendment allows as few as 20 members to demand that names of congressmen and how they vote be recorded by clerks—or possibly by electronic devices.

After the vote on the amendment, members pushed for a commitment to extend electronic voting to regular roll calls in the House.

By voice vote the House agreed to permit—but not to require—electronic voting.

Rep. Joe D. Waggoner Jr., D-La., chairman of a special subcommittee which has been studying the subject for months, assured the House recommendations will be made before the end of the session.

Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W.Va., remarked that 37 of the 50 states now have some form of electric or mechanical legislative voting, and said Congress should do no less.

MacDonald Hearing Is Recessed For A Week

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A closed-door Army hearing into murder charges against Capt. Jeffrey MacDonald was recessed for a week Monday without receiving evidence on hair samples which the prosecution had said was vital.

The prosecution had been expected to present a report on a laboratory comparison of MacDonald's hair and strands found in the hand of his wife, whom he is accused of killing along with their two daughters.

A spokesman for the Army said he could give no explanation for the cancellation of the session until next Monday, when the defense will begin presentation of its case.

The hearing which began three weeks ago, will determine whether the 27-year-old Green Beret physician from Patchogue, N. Y., should be cleared or should face a general court-martial.

Hair samples were taken from MacDonald last week and sent to Ft. Gordon, Ga., the headquarters of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division.

The Army got the samples by taking MacDonald into custody after a scuffle with his civilian attorneys, who contended that forcing him to give up the hair amounted to requiring him to provide evidence against himself.

Whether the prosecution might present evidence on the hair comparison later was not clear and the Army would not say.

MacDonald's wife, Colette, 26, and their two children—Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 2—were found slain in their Ft. Bragg home early on the morning of last Feb. 17 by military police who answered MacDonald's telephoned plea for help.

Mrs. MacDonald and Kimberly had been stabbed repeatedly and bludgeoned, and Kristen had been stabbed.

MacDonald, who also had been stabbed, told investigators the attacks were the work of mysterious intruders.

Getting Medicaid For Dead Patients

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government investigators have found that some nursing homes in California were getting Medicaid money for patients who were dead.

The General Accounting Office said Monday it found in one out of every 12 cases that payments were continued to the nursing homes after the death or discharge of patients.

The excess payments continued as long as three weeks, the report said.

The GAO, Congress' watchdog on government spending, examined 10 nursing homes in the Los Angeles, Fresno, Santa Clara and Oakland areas. The nursing homes were not identified.

In 12 of 76 cases checked, the investigators found homes receiving payments under both Medicaid and Medicare for the same patients.

Medicaid, called Medi-Cal in California, is the federal-state program of health care for the poor. About one-third of all Medicaid spending goes for long-term care in nursing homes. Medicare, the health program for the aged, also pays for brief stays in nursing homes during recovery after hospitalization.

The payments after death or discharge were found in 22 of 260 cases checked.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said it and California officials had tightened their procedures to stop the improper payments.

ROK Planes Sink Launch

By K. P. HONG
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL (AP) — South Korean planes sank a 50-ton North Korean launch early today in the third North-South Korean sea battle in two months, the Defense Ministry announced.

The ministry said the high-speed boat had apparently been sent south to pick up or drop off North Korean agents. It went down off South Korea's east coast near Sokcho, 100 miles east of Seoul and seven miles south of the armistice line between North and South Korea.

Patrol boats were searching the area, but no bodies or survivors had been found so far, the ministry said. Such launches normally carry 10 crewmen.

The two recent sea clashes took place off Korea's west coast. On June 5, North Korean patrol boats captured a South Korean navy escort with 20 men aboard and later said it had been sunk. South Korea said the North Korean boats had towed it to North Korea.

On June 29, South Korean jets and naval vessels crippled a North Korean spy boat, and its six crewmen swam to a South Korean island. A gun battle ensued in which the six North Koreans and three South Koreans were killed.

GMC Notes Profit Gain

By A.F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. registered both a sales and profits gain over 1969 in this year's second quarter—the only one of the Big Three automakers to do so.

GM said in a statement Monday, "It appears that the low point in automobile sales has been passed Conditions appear favorable for further gain."

Second-quarter profits, however, were insufficient to offset a poor first-quarter and GM's first-half earnings were below those for last year's first six months.

GM's second-quarter sales hit $6.6 billion, against $6.2 billion in the second quarter of 1969 while profits were $473 million against $448 million. The per share earnings were $1.64 and $1.56, respectively.

First-half per share earnings of $2.85 this year were down from $3.38 in the same year-ago span.

Ford Motor Co. reported last week a second-quarter net of $166 million, off from $180 million last year.

Chrysler Corp. reported earlier a $8.1 million profit for the same period, far below 1969's profit of $44.4 million.

Tobacco Tour Will Be Held Tomorrow

The annual Research on Wheels Tour, a program which takes the research on tobacco disease where the problems are — on the farms, will visit Pitt County Wednesday.

There are two Research on Wheels projects in Pitt, according to Sam Weeks, Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service agent.

A tobacco disease interaction test is being conducted in cooperation with Worthington Farms, Inc., of Ballards Cross Roads Community. The second project is a brown spot study test being made on the R. M. Dilda farm in the Fountain Community.

The tour stops will be made Wednesday beginning at 7:55 a.m. on the Speight Seed Farm. The group will observe tobacco variety development. The next stop will be the Worthington Farm where the interaction test will be observed as well as the important role mechanization plans in the harvesting of tobacco.

Interested persons are invited to join the tour, Weeks said. Approximately 150 people are expected to participate in the program.

Check Alibi Of Parole Violator

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Police say they expect to finish this week checking out the alibi of a parole violator being questioned in the stabbing death of coed Sue Ellen Evans five years ago.

Police Capt. C. E. Durham said Monday detectives questioned the man in Central Prison at Raleigh about his whereabouts the day Miss Evans was slain in broad daylight on the University of North Carolina campus in July, 1965.

The man was brought to North Carolina from Connecticut to face parole violation charges. Authorities said he was working just a few blocks from the site of the slaying five years ago and disappeared about the time the girl's body was found.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who gets loaded and invites everyone at the party to come to his house for Bloody Marys the next morning? When I hear him do this, I very feebly add, "Oh, yes, do come, we'd love to have you"—when I would love to have conked him over the head.

Most people have sense enough not to come, but some do. What's the solution? WOODSIDE

DEAR WOODSIDE: You can't stop your husband from issuing invitations [drunk or sober] but you can refrain from assuring unwelcome guests that you'd "love" to have them.

Should you hear your husband making such an invitation, quietly let it be known that hubby is "loaded" and there IS no party. And if guests show up when you don't expect them, let him entertain them.

DEAR ABBY: I am nearly 18, and I don't like to brag but I guess you could call me a "popular" girl. I have a good reputation and don't want to spoil it, but here is my problem: After a fellow has taken me to a movie or a dance, and somewhere afterwards to eat, I hate to turn him down when he suggests a little light necking. I never go too far, but I feel sort of cheap afterwards. I guess it's because in a way I am really trying to "repay" him for what he's spent on me. I'm not serious with any of these guys, Abby, they're just dates. But after a guy has spent his hard-earned money on me, how can I turn him down? ALLENTOWN

DEAR ALLENTOWN: It's easy. All a "guy" is entitled to when he asks you for a date, is the pleasure of your company. And unless you want to lose your hard-earned reputation, don't feel obligated to give him his "hard-earned" money's worth. The only kiss that's worth anything is the one that says, "I really dig you." And that's FREE.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from that woman who submitted that her high school days were far from her happiest, certainly rang a bell with me.

I experienced the anguish of hoping someone would ask me to the prom, and knowing nobody would. [I was right.] I knew the daily disappointment of going into the cafeteria and having to eat alone. Like your correspondent, I was lucky enough to go away to college. There I learned that I really did have a personality and I could make friends. Most important, I learned how painfully difficult it was to smile at a stranger and say "hi" first. But I did it, and it opened up a whole new wonderful world for me.

Today I am an officer in the WACS, and I am happy to say that the best way to overcome an inferiority complex is to get involved with other people and to take the initiative. I'm only sorry I didn't do it sooner. "MADE IT"

DEAR ABBY: If you ever need an assistant to help you write your column, I could do it. You gave a lot of reasons AGAINST premarital sex, but here is one you didn't mention: "No man will run after a bus he has already caught." Sincerely yours, HUMORIST

DEAR HUMORIST: Don't bank on it. Lots of men don't mind catching the same bus over again.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

No Coddling For Princess

By MARGARET SAVILLE LONDON (UPI) — Andrew, 10, and Edward, 6, wear hand-me-down clothes once worn by their big brother. They get spanked by Daddy when they're naughty. Mother reads to them, plays the piano and sings for them sometimes. Their television viewing is pretty strictly rationed. They are fed good but plain food and they're required to "eat everything put before them."

In other words, here are two boys getting a pretty average upbringing. What takes them out of the norm is they are Prince Andrew and Prince Edward, the two youngest sons of Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip. The big brother whose former childhood clothes they are wearing is 21-year-old Prince Charles, heir to the throne.

Simplicity and strictness of discipline have been the keynotes of their upbringing since both were born in Buckingham Palace—Andrew Albert Christian Edward on Feb. 19, 1960; Edward Anthony Richard Louis on March 10, 1964.

Andrew, a lively and handsome boy with great personal charm and keen mechanical instincts; has been at Heatherdown Prep School near Ascot for a year. Boys in the royal family start outside-palace schooling when they are nine. Never at a loss for words, Andrew is good-humored and laughs a lot. He is intelligent and quick-witted.

Edward is more shy and quiet. He has light blond hair and looks very much like the queen's father, the late King George VI, when he also was 6 years old. Edward enjoys painting and listening to music.

Like Prince Charles and sister Princess Anne, 19, before them, Andrew and Edward are given as little publicity as possible until they reach their teens.

"They'll have more than enough of that when they've grown up," Philip said when asked why the boys seldom appear in public.

Until their mid-teens, both boys will continue to live in the nursery at Buckingham Palace. It is virtually a self-contained suite on the third floor—directly above their parents' private suite. The two suites are connected by a small interior staircase.

Each boy has his own bedroom. A listening device is on the wall above the bed for security reasons. It is linked to the police post inside the palace.

There is a large day room used by the queen and her sister Princess Margaret when they were small. The rooms have old-fashioned, white-painted furniture and plenty of well-worn mahogany pieces as well. There are coal and wood-burning open fireplaces protected by heavy brass guards, although central heating supplies most of the winter warmth.

Family photographs are on the mantelpieces. There are children-sized chairs and tables and hassocks for television watching.

The princes are allowed to watch only suitable junior programs and not before late afternoon. They frequently watch films of royal tours and appearances that are in the palace archives. This educates them as to what their parents are doing—and what they themselves will one day be called upon to do.

Economy is a firm rule in the nursery. A nurse known as Nanny and a young nursemaid look after the boys and the suite. A footman is available if extra help is needed. The footman brings meals in the service elevator from the basement kitchens to a small kitchenette in the suite. The children's laundry is washed in the bathroom.

Between 4:30 p.m. and 6 p.m., the boys go to the queen's sitting room to have tea with her. They may drink fruit juice or milk rather than tea and there will be plenty of sandwiches, cakes and pastry snacks.

Then they go off to play or watch television. Both learned to ride horses when they were 5. They also started French lessons then.

Their playmates until they are of school age are almost all from the "court circle"—royal relatives, children of court officials, children of friends of Philip and the queen.

Edward, as did Andrew before him, is now having four hours of lessons each day in the palace schoolroom on the fourth floor. Among his classmates is Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, daughter of Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon.

One of Andrew's palace school chums was Margaret's son, Lord Lanley—David to his pals.

Living in Buckingham Palace has its advantages for a small boy. There are 45 acres of wooded gardens.

New Hope In The Middle East

There is hope in the Middle East that negotiations will get underway in an attempt to end the long war which has gone on there between Arab nations and Israel.

President Nasser of Egypt has agreed to accept the United States' plan for a cease fire, and he did it, without doubt, with Moscow's approval. Jordan has accepted the plan.

As this is written it appears likely that Israel will agree to the cease fire terms assuming that there is a guarantee that the cease-fire will not be exploited. Thus things look better and the possibility exists that the Middle East problem can be solved in the only way possible short of all-out war.

It is certain that Israel will have to give up some or all of the territory it captured from Arab countries. This does not have to be an insurmountable obstacle, however.

What the big powers — the United States, Soviet Union, France and Britain — must do is see that whatever is decided at the conference table guarantees Israel's sovereignty within its traditional boundaries.

If any peace settlement is to have any meaning, then all the points of contention must be resolved clearly so that in the future they cannot lead to other misunderstandings.

Israel has a right to exist and the big powers may soon have the opportunity to show that they are genuinely interested in peace and reducing armaments by seeing that a just settlement is negotiated in the Middle East.

If this is not done, then there is the possibility that the alternative may be world conflict and in these times that would mean disaster.

Reasonable Request From South Koreans

South Korea's request for modernization of its armed forces before American troop strength is reduced seems reasonable.

The U.S. agreed to the plan, according to Korean Defense Minister Jung Nae-hiuk.

Certainly U.S. troop strength should be reduced to the minimum in South Korea, but this should not be done at the expense of leaving the country weakened. We have stood at South Korea's side too long for that.

Given adequate equipment we believe the South Korean army can defend the country. This will leave us free to reduce our own troop strength in South Korea.

Welfare And Russell Long

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A major explanation for new Nixon administration hope that the welfare reform bill will emerge from the Senate Finance Committee is an unpublicized three-hour luncheon of Louisiana shrimp last Tuesday and its highly select guest list.

The guest of honor: Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana. Finance Committee chairman and sharp critic of the House-passed bill, Long has shown no concern whether it ever gets out of his committee.

The host: Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, House Democratic whip who earned the gratitude of the White House earlier this year in helping to guide President Nixon's sole piece of landmark social welfare legislation through the House. The shrimp luncheon in Boggs' whip office at the Capitol was his formula to soften the opposition of his friend and political ally, Russell Long.

Long was surrounded by supporters of welfare reform, including Rep. Philip Burton of California, a liberal Democrat who has become the bill's most knowledgeable supporter in Congress. Representing the Administration were Dr. Daniel P. Moynihan, Presidential counselor and spiritual father of the reform; John G. Veneman, Under Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW); and Creed Black, Assistant Secretary of HEW for legislation.

The three hours of shrimp and talk produced no instant conversion. But the mood grew warmer and, by the end, Long's attitude was decidedly more sympathetic.

The welfare reform supporters agreed with Long's arguments that the bill should provide still further work incentives for the able-bodied poor. However, they informed Long that the bill — which embodies Mr. Nixon's family assistance plan — could not revise every one of the Federal government's far-flung programs of aid to the poor.

A footnote: The shrimp luncheon was directly related to Boggs's accelerating campaign for House majority leader. Such initiatives are moderating his reputation of languor acquired in recent years.

National operatives of the Democratic party hope to dispatch one of the nation's most prestigious doves to Wyoming to ask a prospective peace candidate not to run against Sen. Gale McGee in November.

The mission reflects fear that the peace candidate — Ernest Wilkerson, a well-known Wyoming political figure who was the Democratic nominee for governor in 1966 — would draw enough votes from McGee to elect the Republican candidate, Rep. John Wold.

If all goes according to plan, the emissary to Wilkerson will be a well-known Negro leader active in both the peace and civil rights movements. The scenario calls for him to deliver a letter from another prominent dove — a former high Johnson administration official. Both the emissary and the letter are to argue with Wilkerson that liberal McGee should not be removed from the Senate merely because he supports the Vietnam war.

The odds are heavily against the mission's success. Wilkerson showed the intensity of his feelings about McGee in a May 20 letter to Mayor Paul J. Wataha of Rock Springs, Wyo., an old political comrade who had written Wilkerson pleading with him not to run as a third-

Strength For Today

SAVINGS

Savings come in handy, and let us never forget that fact. For some it seems almost impossible to get a few dollars laid away for emergencies. A famous millionaire used to carry dozens of newly-minted dimes in his pocket and give these to any youngsters he might meet, accompanying the donation with a few words about the necessity of thrift.

Many of the most unfortunate situations arise in life because people come to a big issue and simply do not have that little financial surplus that would enable them to get through a crisis. Ten dollars a week put into a savings account would in a couple of decades start a boy or girl off to college or make a substantial down payment on a home.

And where does the money go if it isn't saved? Nobody can answer that question. A little seeps into this project or that. The program of our living gets a bit out of hand we do not discover it until there are distress signals.

The Bible gives the good advice: "Let all things be done decently and in order" (1 Corinthians 14:40). Thrift does not produce stinginess unless we allow it to do so. An arrangement of finances that will produce a reasonable surplus is sensible and furthermore something that gives one a quiet sense of triumph. Assurance is a valuable factor in life, and thrift can make a real contribution to one's happiness. Earl L. Douglass

By JAMES KILPATRICK

So Goes The Hypocrisy

The Security Council went through one of its recurring exercises in huffing and puffing a few days ago, and finally adopted, 12-0, was to condemn violations of the embargo on shipment of arms to South Africa. But South Africa pays no more attention to the Security Council than a Great Dane pays to a yapping Pekingese.

Other Editors Say Legislative Start

(Henderson Dispatch) By action of the Council of State, $100,000 has been made available to set up an office in the basement of the Legislative Building to prepare bills for members in advance of convening of the 1971 session. While such a facility would offer one means of speeding the session, it is a reasonably good guess that it will not make a great deal of difference in duration of the lawmakers' stay in Raleigh.

The drafting staff may be ever so efficient and prompt in writing bills for members, but as for shortening the session more than only a few days it will probably drag out of the usual early June deadline or later. Legislators like to prolong their stay in Raleigh and seldom seem to be in any sort of hurry to get through and go home. The customary gift of gab and political maneuvering will not be eliminated despite the head start planned.

Since the Attorney General's department provides drafting service during the session, why could it not do as much in its present quarters in advance of the opening, without spending $100,000 to establish an office in the basement of the Legislative Building? It's another way of disposing of the contingency fund made available to the Governor for lawful uses in emergencies.

To us it looks like easy come, easy go, with money entrusted to the chief executive after the Legislature adjourns. Data is not at hand to indicate the gross amount of contingency money, or how it has been spent thus far, and for what purpose. Merely because the funds are available does not mean that the money has to be spent before the biennium is ended.

There have been jams in the Justice Department in preparing bills for legislators, especially toward the close of the session. But there is time enough in the early weeks after the opening to get bills written and ready for introduction.

One wonders if this $100,000 was appropriated because, for one thing, it was just there and could be had. There is no assurance of a shorter session as a result of earlier proposals being readied for committee and floor consideration. Mid-June sine die adjournment will likely be the rule again next spring.

France is the largest supplier of arms to South Africa, and finds it profitable to stay that way. Britain's new Conservative government last week voted to resume limited arms shipments.

The Council's impotence as to South Africa is matched by its impotence as to Rhodesia. The only difference is that the U.N.'s hypocrisy toward Rhodesia, a small country, is meaner and more contemptible than its hypocrisy toward South Africa, which is large.

Last month the U.N.'s special committee on enforcement of Rhodesian sanctions brought in its third report. This bulky paper, running to 337 pages, is, quite unintentionally, one of the funnier documents of the summer. The U.N., it will be recalled, has formally ostracized Rhodesia from the family of nations as a punishment for her multiple sins. These sins are, first, that Rhodesia had the indecency to secede from the British Commonwealth; second, that her franchise falls short of one-man, one-vote; and third, that Rhodesia constitutes a threat to the peace.

The first and second sins are none of the U.N.'s business. The third is a transparent falsehood. Yet Rhodesia remains, in theory, utterly isolated from the commerce of the civilized world, a pauper, a leper, an "illegal regime" that must be starved and whipped to its knees.

Somehow the sanctions have not worked out that way. As the committee unhappily acknowledged, the sanctions "have not been fully effective and have not led to the desired results." And why is this? It is because

Defend The Needs For Growth

By ELMER ROESSNER
Perhaps they are but straws in the wind or trial balloons, but government representatives recently took mild pokes at two popular "causes" — overpopulation and pollution.

ELMER ROESSNER

Hendrick S. Houthakker, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, in a speech noted that it is now "fashionable" to stress the deleterious effects of growth and there is much justification for concern about our environment. But, he went on, "we should be very wary of the widespread belief that deterioration of environment is the necessary consequence of economic growth and that, consequently, the only thing we can do for environment is to stop growth itself.

"Provided we plan our affairs rationally," Houthakker said, "there is no reason at all why growth of output should go at the expense of the environment."

In fact, he added, it would be more correct to say the opposite: economic growth is necessary to bring about an improvement in our physical and social surroundings.

Similar Theme
Herman P. Miller, Chief of the Population Division of the Bureau of the Census, took a like position in an article in the National Industrial Conference Board monthly publication.

Miller pointed out that Australia has traffic jams and pollution despite the fact only 12 million inhabit the country, which is almost as large as the U.S. And pollution, traffic jams and crime are no worse in France, England and Holland than in America, despite the fact they are from five to 30 times more densely populated.

He also said that in the United States, at least, "The expected rate of population growth during the next 15 years should not present any insurmountable problems."

Although many advocate a stable population, Miller pointed out that it, too, has problems possibly as serious as those we face today with moderate population growth. Remember, it was as recently as the '30s that economic stagnation and declining population were the burning issues in many Western countries.

New Advocates
The spokesmen's views are not new. They have been expressed frequently in the past. This column from time-to-time has criticized the hysterical notion that the world will get so crowded people will fall off the edge.

The departure is that the views are being presented in public forums by highly respected men in influential government positions and obviously attuned to Nixon administration themes.

Perhaps with the Vietnamese war opposition somewhat disorganized, the President feels he can start de-emphasizing these two other popular issues inherited from the Johnson days.

Or maybe he is merely putting the issues into proper perspective.

Or could it be that he regards population and pollution as passing fads to be hurried off stage to make room for new "vital issues" of the President's choosing and making?

How does a Middle East crisis grab you?

Ga.-Fla. Tobacco Prices Up Monday

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Georgia-Florida tobacco market saw prices improve Monday, the Federal-State Market News Service reported.

Several grade averages rose from $1 to $2 per 100 pounds over Friday's level. The top practical price was $81, but some selected lots sold for $82.

The service said that quality was considerably better than on Friday and that volume was heavy at most centers. The percentage of good lugs, primings and leaf increased, and the proportion of nondescripts dropped sharply.

Volume for opening week was almost eight million pounds more than last season's first week.

Deliveries to the Stabilization Corp. totaled 15.7 per cent of the week's gross sales. The opening week last year saw 9.8 per cent placed under government loan.

Auction bid averages per 100 pounds on a limited number of representative U.S. grades and changes from the previous day.

Leaf — good lemon B3L 80 up one. Fair orange B4F 80 up three.

Cutters — low lemon C5L 81 unchanged.

Lugs — good lemon X3L 81 unchanged. Fair lemon X4L 78 unchanged. Fair orange X4F 78 unchanged. Fair Orange X4F 78 unchanged. Low orange X5F 75 unchanged.

much of the world is paying less and less attention to them. Reports of evasions, far from declining in number, are soaring: There were 60 such reports last year. But 31 countries, including 27 members of the U.N., will not even answer the committee's mail.

"The committee notes," said the miserable authors of this report, "that many of the replies received from certain governments to its requests for information about their investigations of suspected evasions have been incomplete, and that lengthy periods have elapsed in some cases before replies have been received."

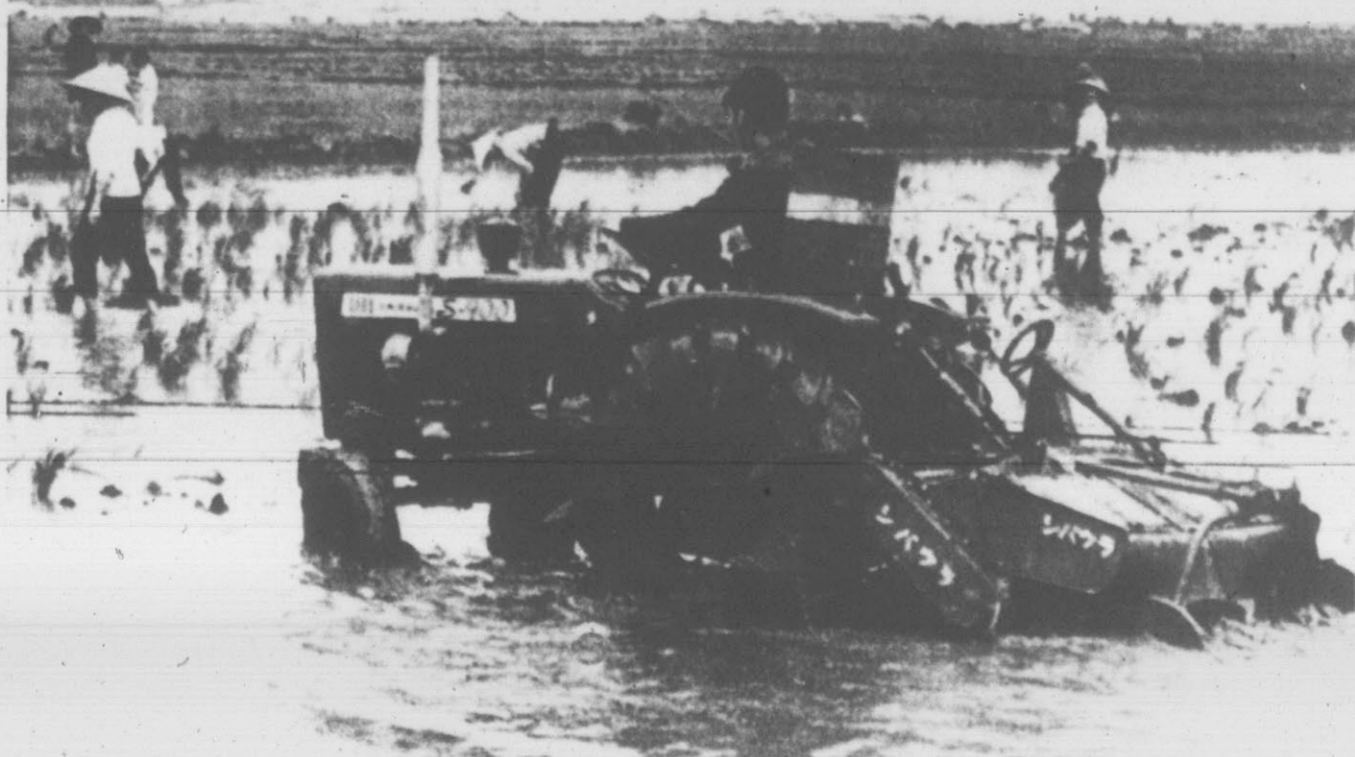

It is all very sad. Plainly, the illegal regime is thriving. By Britain's own estimate, Rhodesia's export trade — in the very teeth of the sanctions — jumped from $237 million in 1968 to $336 million in 1969. Immigration to Rhodesia is increasing. Last year saw a record 254,000 tourists strolling the peaceful streets of Salisbury.

The Rhodesian government will not have the kindness to die. It has announced plans for more airfields, public parks and game preserves to attract even more visitors. And in the private sector, signed the committee, "the illegal regime is reported to have completed five new hotels in 1969, with more than 20 major hotel projects in various stages of implementation."

The picture of ineffectiveness painted by the committee in June has since been confirmed in Salisbury. On July 16, Rhodesia's minister of finance made his annual report. Last year saw a profitable trade balance, a nice surplus in the treasury, a 19 percent gain in mining operations. As one consequence, Rhodesia is reducing its income taxes in order to attract still more executives, professionals, and technicians.

When does the dumbshow stop? An honest United Nations, applying moral suasion to the world as it is, could perform a useful purpose. But nothing of value is gained so long as the U.N. proclaims empty embargoes and imbelle sanctions upon a world as the world is not.

MECHANIZED WATER BUFFALO — The growing prosperity of farmers living in South Vietnam's pacified areas is evident as this Mekong Delta farmer uses his modern Japanese-made tractor to till rice fields for planting. Usually several villagers pool their money to buy a tractor, taking advantage of low import duties, and share it. The mechanized water buffalo, although not replacing the water buffalo as the nation's main supply of cultivating power, is becoming a more common sight. (AP Wirephoto)

Warn Power Needs Higher In Winter

CHARLOTTE (AP) — It has been winter, not summer, that has put a strain on Duke Power Co. this year, and company officials are predicting that next winter it will be the same.

It had been feared that this summer would find many cities, including Charlotte, facing the possibility of an electricity shortage.

But a Duke Power spokesman said Monday that it was January instead of June or July that pushed the power firm closest to its peak load.

"On Jan. 8 it got down to four degrees, and that day we put out 6,031,505 kilowatts," said Dick Pierce of Duke Power's public relations department. Duke's peak load then was 6,293,000 kilowatts — less than it is now.

He said power use went up to 6 million kilowatts one time in June and several times this month. Peak load now is 6,421,000 kilowatts.

The company relies upon a 5 per cent reserve that could turn out to be nothing unless neighboring power companies could contribute some of their surplus.

If usage did pass capacity and there were no reserves, there could be a blackout. With some reserve power, there could be a blackout in some areas and brownout in others. A brownout is the reduction of power, forcing appliances to operate on only a portion of the electricity they normally use.

In the case of a brownout, air conditioners or heaters would not operate as efficiently and lights would be dim.

"I cannot . . . forgive or merely excuse Gale's tragic misreading of history which has been partly the cause of the now approaching 50,000 American deaths in the swamps and jungles of Southeast Asia," Wilkerson replied to Wataha. "To be quite candid — and I have told Gale this — I don't want to see elected to office or continued in office anybody of either party who has the kind of thinking . . . which has sent us into Southeast Asia."

Although his star is somewhat diminished in Washington, Presidential counsellor Robert Finch recently gave a graphic backstage demonstration that reports of his political death back home in California have been highly exaggerated.

With Sen. George Murphy's campaign starved for funds, Finch invited the top money men of Southern California to a luncheon in Los Angeles July 15. The turnout was impressive, including some liberal Republicans less than enthusiastic about Murphy. Finch spun a little speech praising Murphy, then decorously left the room as oil mogul Thomas Pike made the hard sell for a $500-a-plate Murphy campaign dinner. The result: 30 tables were sold — $150,000 to get the ball rolling for Murphy against Democratic Rep. John V. Tunney's under-financed campaign.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department official has reiterated the government's desire to resume talks with Red China. But he sidestepped questions over whether President Nixon wishes formal diplomatic relations.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said he could neither confirm nor deny reports that Nixon had commented privately to an interviewer that the United States should recognize mainland China.

But he said, "What we are interested in is to improve our relations with Communist China. You will recall our efforts to resume talks in Warsaw. We stand ready to resume those talks at any time."

Washington and Peking representatives met last January and again in February, but the Chinese cancelled a May meeting after the U.S. strike into Cambodia. On June 20, the Chinese said circumstances still were not suitable to resume the discussions.

Former Justice I.T. Valentine Died Monday

NASHVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Itimous T. Valentine, 82, former associate justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, died Monday after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Nashville Baptist Church in Spring Hope.

Valentine, a Nash County native, was appointed to the Supreme Court in the fall of 1951 by the late Gov. W. Kerr Scott. He was defeated in the 1952 Democratic primary by R. Hunt Parker, who later became chief justice.

Valentine, who studied law at Wake Forest University, was prosecuting attorney of Nash County Recorder's Court for 12 years. He was a former member of the Nashville Board of Aldermen.

Postal Rail Cars Ended

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS An era died in the Southeast Monday as trains carrying Postal Railway Service cars made their final runs to Jacksonville, Fla., and Washington.

It marked the last time the mails will be sorted on trains in region; and signaled the end of a tradition more than 100 years old.

A postal official said the only mail that will now be moved by rail in the Southeast will be containers, parcel post and bulk mail.

Some 30 Postal Railway Service cars are still in operation in other parts of the country, but air and truck transportation is fast replacing this method of delivering the mail.

Ken Lineberger and Gordon Brandt of the Charlotte, N. C., Post Office staff rode the mail cars for 30 years. They and a few others were on hand Monday to watch the final north-bound train come through Charlotte.

In Florence, S.C., mail car workers flipped bags out at the large metal catching device as the train roared by at 65 miles an hour.

There was little notice as the end of the era came. Most of the workers just did their jobs and then got off the train as usual to take other jobs in the Post Office Department.

No Progress In Monday's Talks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League exhibition season is only 11 days away and there is no sign that either the club owners or the Players Association is ready to give in the stalemated pension dispute.

The owners' negotiating committee and the association representatives met under the watchful eye of federal mediators four hours Monday. If there was any progress it wasn't evident on the grim faces of the participants.

They'll start their fifth day of talks in the offices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service today at 2 p.m. The morning will be spent with subcommittees trying to unravel the technical problems involved.

While the negotiators work behind closed doors, the exhibition season is approaching doom. The Cleveland Browns are scheduled to meet the Los Angeles Rams in Los Angeles Aug. 7. Nine games are slated for Aug. 8.

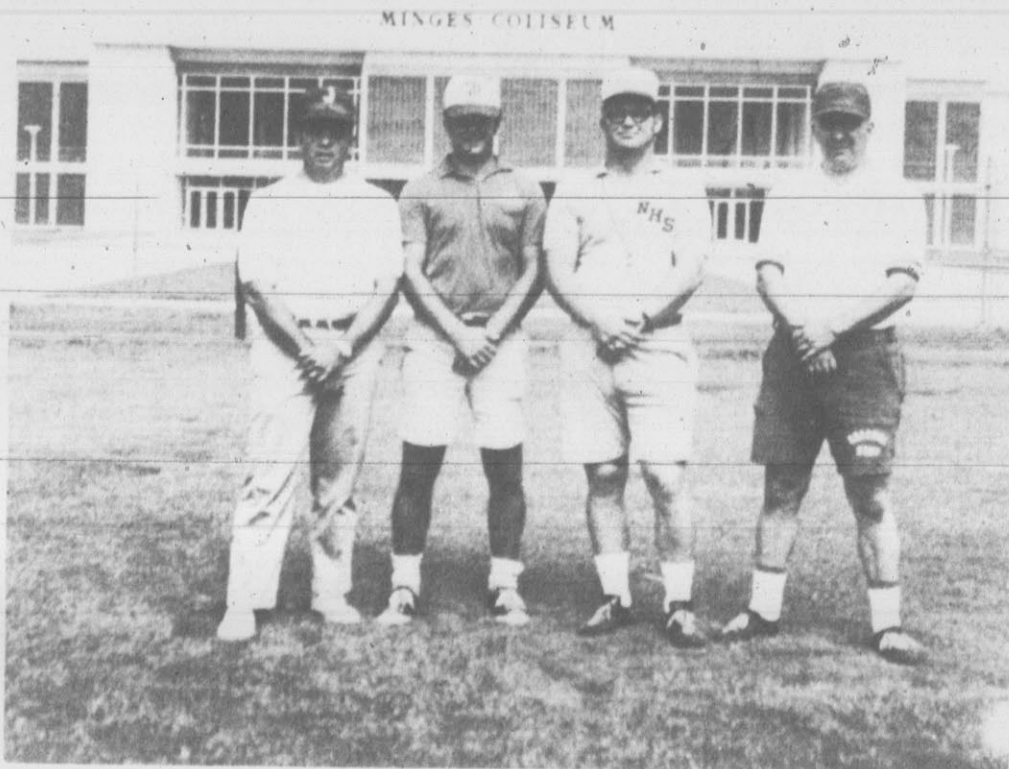

The owners have a few choices in the matter. They can cancel the games if the dispute over pensions and other fringe benefits isn't resolved. Or they can play the games with rookies and free agents. They have a third choice—open the doors of their training camps and see how many veterans will defy the association and report.

As matters now stand the association has directed its players to stay away from camp until an agreement is reached. The owners say the camps are closed to veterans until the contract is settled.

The best bet, if the negotiators don't step up their pace or come to some agreement—or final disagreement—is that the owners will challenge the association's strength by opening up their camps to veterans, and see how many defy the NFLPA.

The association and the owners are $8 million apart on a four year pension package. The owners have offered $18 million and the players are holding out for $26 million. Breaking it down to simple terms, the argument is over how much retirement pay Joe Namath, Johnny Unitas, Joe Kapp, John Mackey and the rest of the 1,300 players will get in the year 2,000.

Boys Home Coaches

Coaches Pleased Over Players As Drills Open

After six straight years of North victories, will the South finally come through with a victory Saturday night in the Boys Home All-Star Bowl Game?

Well, Cameron Little of Jacksonville, head coach of the South team, is hopeful that the South WILL rise again. "It's certainly time to win," he said. "I told them they could lay down and die, and make it seven in a row, or they could end it right now."

"And that is about all I'm going to say to them on that count, the rest is up to them." But for North Coach Dick Kemp of Elizabeth City, it's a different story. "I don't like the idea of being the first to lose in several years," he said. "So I see no reason for us to lose."

The two coaches approach the game from different ways.

"We'll use a slot - set," Kemp said. "We have two fine running backs and a good split end, and we want to get them out and to some passing."

Little meanwhile, is looking for a balanced attack. "We plan on a pro-set type of offense. We don't have the size of the North, but we're going to make up for it by being very aggressive. We want to be prepared to run anything. We want to be well-balanced in both passing and running."

Both coaches said that they were quite pleased with the condition the players reported in. Only one of two on each team looked like they had not followed pre-practice training tips the coaches sent out.

"These mountain boys just aren't used to the humidity around here," Kemp said. "I told them to bring window fans and be prepared to really get hot down here. They believed me." Both coaches are making their first appearance on the staff of the game, but both have been viewers of the game for some time.

"This is a real first class event," Kemp said. "It's getting better every year. The boys are enthusiastic about the purpose of the game—helping those at the Boys Home—and the Jaycees and Sam Keel (this year's game chairman) have done a real good job of telling the boys this."

Little echoed Kemp in his feelings, but added a little controversy into things.

"I don't think this game should run behind the East-West game (played annually in Greensboro). They have first pick every year, and this hurts this game."

Invitations for the East-West game go out two weeks prior to those for the Boys Home game, giving the older game a head start in getting the top players in the state.

"If we were on an equal footing," Kemp said, "some of the boys who went up there may have come here. If we had Carlester Crumpler (of Wilson) and Joe West (of Greenville), we could have filled this stadium easily."

Kemp joined in by saying that he agreed that both games should be given an equal chance to get the same players.

The coaches differed, however, on the time allowed for practice. Kemp feels that four days is not really enough time. "It's hard to teach blocking in this short a time, so you just about have to go to passing. We have a good quarterback and some good receivers, so we're lucky."

Little feels that the four days is enough. "Oh, you'd like to have more time. You can never have enough. But for a game of this type, it's enough."

And Saturday night will tell.

They Haven't Forgotten The Boudreau Shift

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)

The Lou Boudreau Shift is over 23 years old now but Boudreau hasn't forgotten. Neither has Ted Williams, the man it was designed to hobble.

"I had thought about it for weeks," said Boudreau, one of the four new members inducted Monday into baseball's Hall of Fame. "Ted killed us when we played at League Park with its short right field line."

"In the first game of a doubleheader with Boston July 14, 1947," said the former player-manager of the Cleveland Indians. "I got five extra base hits but Williams beat us with three home runs—he scored three and knocked in six. Right then and there, between games of the doubleheader, I decided to use the shift."

"In all the years since then," said Boudreau, "Ted mentioned it to me only once. That was when he came to Cleveland for a celebration a year or two ago."

"Ted was such a great hitter that there was no way of stopping him at bat. You just tried to cut down on the damage. But I know he did admit to somebody up in Boston that, from 1947 until he quit in 1960, that the shift took a total of 200 points off his average."

Boudreau, who won a pennant in 1948 by hitting two home runs and two singles in the tie playoff game at Boston, was the last of the successful player-managers.

"The reason you don't see player-managers any more," said Boudreau, "is that they give present day managers more responsibilities, the individuals play more than one or two positions now. In my day nobody played more than two positions. Now a fellow may play three or four."

"A manager has to be in a position where he can study his bench and make shifts when necessary. A lot of games are won that way by studying the lineups and making the switch at the right time."

Did Boudreau think the day of the player-manager was over for all time?

"No," he said. "Eventually somebody will come along who can handle the new faster game, and still play at the same time."

Boudreau, 53, was inducted into the Hall of Fame Monday with Ford Frick, Earl E. Combs and Jesse Haines. The four new inductees whose plaques were unveiled by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, boosted the total membership at 118.

Boudreau was voted in by the veteran baseball writers. Frick, 75, Haines, 76, and Combs, 70, were elected by the special veterans committee which considers only players out of action at least 20 years and retired executives and umpires.

Frick, actually the founder of the Hall of Fame in his days first as National League president and later as commissioner, said, "without the memories of the past there can be no dreams of greatness for the future."

Haines recalled the old days when he was purchased by the St. Louis Cardinals, for whom he pitched 18 years, at the price of $10,000 and asked "what do you

Combs, the Kentucky gentleman who used to be the leadoff man and center fielder for the New York Yankees from 1924 to 1935, paid a tribute to his old teammates, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig.

Friends and relatives of the new inductees watched the colorful ceremonies in bright sunshine on the porch of the Hall of Fame library. Among those in Boudreau's party were his son-in-law, Denny McLain, the controversial Detroit pitcher, and his wife, Sharyn.

In the annual Hall of Fame exhibition game at Doubleday Field, a few steps down Main Street from the museum, a crowd of 9,791 saw the Montreal Expos down the Chicago White Sox 10-6 in a free-hitting contest. Ron Brand and Bobby Wine hit homers for Montreal.

L. League Play Starts

Greenville's two Little League All-Star teams open play today in the Area II Tournament in Robersonville, seeking a shot at the district title and a berth in the state tournament.

Today at 10 a.m., Warren County and Greenville's Tar Heel League went into battle. That was to be followed at 1 p.m. by Fort Bragg's American team meeting Pope Air Force Base, a winner over Tarboro yesterday.

At 3 p.m., Southern Pines, which downed Roanoke Rapids yesterday, was to meet the North State team from Greenville. Rounding out the action at 5 p.m. was a game between Ft. Bragg's National team and host Robersonville.

The winners of the first two games meet Wednesday at 3 p.m., with the other two winners meeting at 5 p.m. The finals will be Thursday at 5 p.m.

The overall winner meets the Area I winner Saturday at 4 p.m. in Robersonville, and that survivor goes on to the Sectional in Greenville, starting August 6.

Seaver Stops Perry's Bid

Tom Seaver beat the New York heat by turning it on San Francisco, but Jim Merritt wilted in Cincinnati's new hot house when St. Louis finally turned on the steam.

Seaver, flayed for three early runs in muggy Shea Stadium, held the Giants to one hit over the final seven innings and beat them 5-3 Monday night for his 15th victory of the season.

Merritt, the only other 15-game winner in the majors, surrendered six runs and eight hits in the 31-3 innings he lasted at equally-muggy Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati as the Cardinals broke an eight-game losing streak by roasting the Reds 16-9.

Philadelphia bombed Los Angeles 10-3 in the only other National League game while, in American League play, Minnesota trimmed Baltimore 5-2 and the New York Yankees downed California 5-2 in 10 innings.

Seaver fell behind 3-0 before Joe Foy's two-run homer in the second inning and a solo blast by Cleo Jones in the fourth pulled the Mets even. Then, he scored the go-ahead run on Ken Spletz's fifth inning single off 14-game winner Gaylord Perry and throttled San Francisco the rest of the way.

"I pitched well with what I had," said the Met ace, who finished with a six-hitter and struck out six. "It was a tough night, muggy and hot, and I really had to struggle."

"I was just plain lousy," muttered Merritt after his fourth-inning knockout at the hot hands of the previously ice-cold Cards.

Richie Allen blasted his 28th and 29th homers, driving in three runs; Mike Shannon delivered four more with a bases-delivered double and a single, and Vic Davalillo lashed three doubles, good for two RBI, as the Cardinals erupted for 19 hits—their high for the season.

St. Louis shrugged off a five-run Cincinnati burst—capped by Johnny Bench's 34th homer—in the second inning on the way to only its third victory in 20 games. Reliever Chuck Taylor blanked the Reds from the third inning until the ninth, when Bernie Carbo hit a three-run homer, to earn the victory.

Tony Taylor, Deron Johnson and Larry Hise clubbed homers and Byron Browne knocked in three runs with a double and single, leading the resurgent Phillies past Los Angeles for their 10th victory in 12 starts.

The Twins earned a split of their four-game summit series with Baltimore and increased their AL West division lead over California to six lengths as rookie Bert Blyleven picked up his fifth victory with help from bullpen standby Ron Perranoski.

Jim Holt and George Mitterwald homered for the Twins and Perranoski, making his 42nd appearance of year, picked up his 25th save by tossing three scoreless innings. 3

McCoy Hurts His Teammates

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars will not be lacking in leadership when they take on the Kansas City Chiefs Friday night in the midsummer football classic in Soldier Field.

Massive Mike McCoy of Notre Dame will captain the defensive unit and running back Bob Anderson will lead the offense.

The two were selected by their teammates whose decision was applauded by Coach Otto Graham by saying "I can't think of two men more deserving of the honor."

McCoy, who will toil for Green Bay if and when the players and owners in the National Football League settle their contract differences, has already knocked two of his teammates from the big game.

McCoy fell on running back Larry Stegert of Texas A&M in a tackling drill and bumped defensive lineman Phil Olson of Utah State in a monkey roll drill. Both suffered knee injuries and will miss the All-Star show.

Notre Dame Coach Ara Paragheian called McCoy "the greatest defensive tackle I've coached and the hardest working big man I've ever coached." The 6-foot-5, 285-pounder from Erie, Pa., is surprisingly quick despite his ponderous proportions.

Anderson was a quarterback at Colorado in 1968 and played that position for the first two games of the 1969 season before switching to running back.

He totaled 22 touchdowns last season and became the first Big Eight back in history to pass the 5,000-yard mark in career total offense with 5,017 yards.

The All-Stars went through an afternoon workout Monday and will make their only public appearance prior to the game at the annual All-Star luncheon today.

A total of 305 thoroughbred yearlings have been nominated for the first running of the Centennial Futurity in September, 1971, at Centennial Track, Denver, Colo.

Black Jack Gains Finals

Black Jack kept alive last night by defeating First Presbyterian, 4-3. They advance into the championship game with Meadowbrook tonight at Guy Smith in the Church Softball Tournament.

Black Jack picked up runs in the second and third. They scored the winning runs in the sixth with Elks getting on by an error and then Mills came up and won the ball game with a home run.

First Presbyterian scored one in the second on a home run by Briley. They finished up their scoring in the third with Moore and Beddingfield coming across for them.

Worry Clinic All Youngsters Should Swim

Debra's problem is universal, so don't let another season pass until your child can dog-paddle at least 10 feet. INSTANT ACTORS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Warner Bros. signed up 1,250 natives of Padua, Italy, for crowd scenes in "The Priest's Wife," which stars Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni.

Let it take a few strokes with its hands and kick a few times with its feet, with eyes open or closed as it prefers at this early stage.

You parents can call out the strokes, as "One-Two, One-Two" and then let it stand up.

(6) The final step is to let it repeat No. 5 but try to take a breath or two while paddling and before it stands up.

Then it is dog-paddling, which is the basic start for later star swimming.

Board Will Ask Advice of OEO

RALEIGH (AP)—The Raleigh school board will seek the advice of the U. S. Office of Education on how to increase integration in the city schools.

The board voted Monday to ask the office for assistance.

Board attorney Howard Manning warned that busing north and southeast Raleigh children is the only way to eliminate the remaining segregated schools in the city.

Manning suggested the board may want to wait for a U. S. Supreme Court ruling on one-race schools and busing before taking such steps.

In old India, relays of drummers could send a message 300 miles in 17 minutes.

In his eagerness to avail himself of a free finesse at the opening gun, South, the declarer at four spades, laid the groundwork for his own downfall.

West opened his singleton heart, the jack was played from dummy, East covered with the queen and South won the trick with the ace. A small diamond was led to the ten and East was in with the jack. He returned the seven of spades which was taken by North's king.

South played a diamond to the ace and when East dropped the king, declarer was careful to ruff the next diamond with dummy's ace of spades. Trumps were drawn in two rounds with the queen and jack of spades and

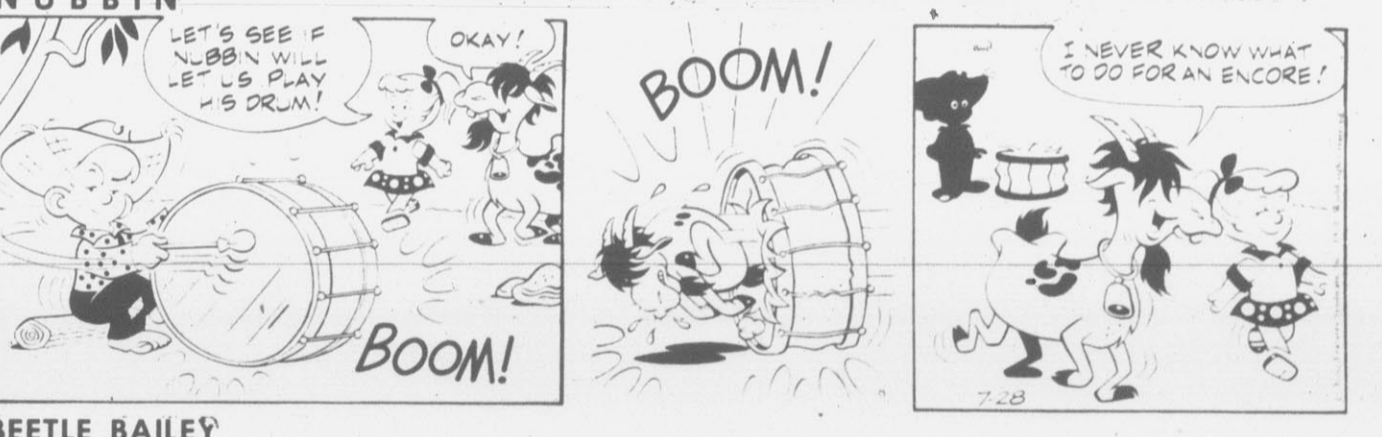

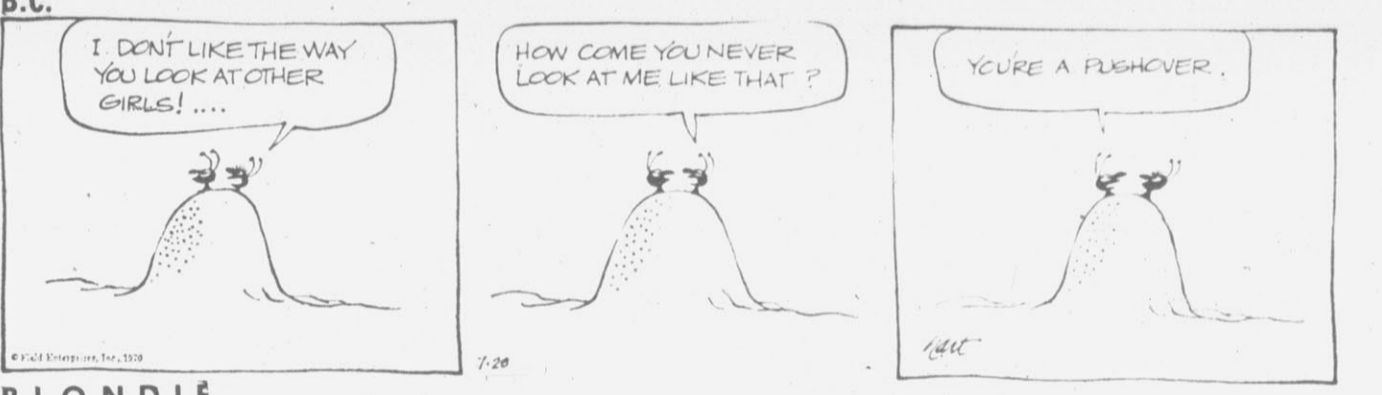

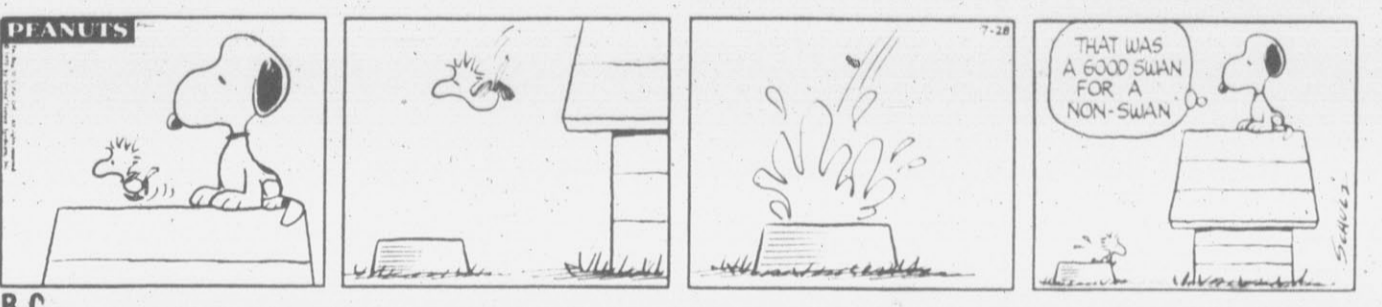

Wrote Himself Three Tar Heels Into Jail Cell Die In Vietnam

CALCUTTA (AP)—A professional thief with a flair for writing about his own exploits wrote himself into a corner—of a cell. Bishnu Mandal, police said, burgled the house of a Calcutta policeman and stole some jewelry. A few months later a short story in a magazine described the crime almost as it happened. Police arrested Mandal, the author of the story, who confessed to police to have carried out the crime.

Higher Peach Prices Alleged Due To Weather

CANDOR, N. C. (AP) — A major North Carolina peach grower says the price of peaches has gone up this year because of a hard freeze last winter and a lingering drought during June and July.
 T. Clyde Auman of Candor, past president of the National Peach Council and of the North Carolina Peach Growers Society, said Monday that peaches are costing about a dollar more for each crate of 38 pounds. That cost is being passed along to the consumer.
 Auman said a hard freeze in January hurt the varieties that come in early and that the drought has hurt late varieties.
 However, Auman said quality "is about the best we've seen in years."

At 11 a.m. the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 21 at 729.87. Losing issues on the New York Stock Exchange overtook winners by a very narrow margin.

Analysts said further drifting by the stock market was likely until certain economic and international situations became clarified.

They said the questions in-

Soviet Dissidents Tell Of Torture And Death

NEW YORK (AP) — One describes torture, another death, while a third speaks of revolution. These were the taped voices of Soviet political dissidents heard Monday.

The tapes were brought to the United States by recently expelled CBS correspondent William Cole for radio broadcast this week Monday through Friday and telecast today at 10 p.m. EDT.

On one tape, Vladimir Bukovsky, 27, an intellectual who spent six years in camps, prisons and insane asylums, describes a torture in which a person is rolled head to foot in wet canvas.

"As the canvas began to dry out, it would get tighter and tighter and make the patient feel even worse. There were medical men present while it was taking place who made sure that the patient did not lose consciousness."

He said commitments to asylums are frequently made to isolate dissidents.

On another tape, smuggled from the concentration camp where he is held, writer Alexander Ginsburg charged that 16 political prisoners recently perished for lack of medical care.

He said there was only one doctor in his camp and that "everyone goes in danger of his life."

Andre Amalrik, in a message taped just before his arrest by the KGB—State Security Committee—spoke of revolution in the Soviet Union.

"What may lead to a revolution is the utter lack of good sense in the upper class, which is always trying to avoid any change," said the author of "Can the USSR Survive Until 1984?"

"Gradually, he said, "some people at all events begin to have the idea that all these local smaller problems have their origins in the imperfections of the political system under which we live."

Advise Tightening Of Controls On Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office says tighter controls still are needed for the channeling of U.S. Agency for International Development funds into the military and civil budgets of South Vietnam.

A House subcommittee found in 1966 that the handling of monies by the AID mission in Vietnam was inadequate.

The GAO's followup report Monday said improvements have been made, but "further strengthening is needed. Controls and procedures ... would generally not detect or prevent improper payments by government of Vietnam personnel, such as payments for unauthorized activities or for padded payrolls."

The report noted, however, that the AID mission has increased its participation in formulation of South Vietnam's civil budget and had earmarked funds for specific programs.

It criticized the mission for releasing large sums for civil activities before the cash was needed, and sometimes on the basis of unreliable South Vietnamese government reports.

It also said the mission had made few post audits, relying instead upon understaffed South Vietnamese audit groups.

The report noted that AID had made about $629.7 million available for support of South Vietnam budgets from 1966-68.

Date Back Vandals Break In City School

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The clunk of a construction worker's shovel on a bone has caused anthropologists to revise their ideas about early inhabitants of the San Francisco Bay Area.

Experts called to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District construction site uncovered well-preserved bones and scraps of flesh and clothing. Tests showed the remains to be about 5,000 years old.

"It is quite a surprising discovery," Robert Schenk of the Treganza Anthropological Museum told newsmen Monday.

"We never even thought habitation at such an early date would be possible."

A museum report said the bones were from a woman about 5-feet-5, "almost certainly ... a native American, an ancestor of the present-day California Indian."

The oldest remains previously discovered here were about 4,500 years old.

The Greenville Police Department is investigating a break-in and vandalism that occurred yesterday at the C. M. Eppe High School resulting in damage to portions of the building's interior and equipment.

According to police reports, investigation yesterday showed that a turntable in an office at the former high school was torn up and the intercommunications system heavily damaged.

In addition, investigating officers reported that ink had been smeared all over the walls and floor in the office and the room ransacked.

Officers, who received the report of the incident at 6:30 p.m., determined that entrance to the building had been gained through a back door and rear window located near the burned section of the school.

Police said that former principal, Allan E. Murrell, reported that school officials had removed most of the equipment from the office prior to the incident.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

Referendum On Wheat Delayed

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin has announced postponement of the national wheat referendum previously scheduled for July 27-31, according to Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The action was authorized by Congress.

The postponement permits the USDA to delay holding the referendum not later than October 15, 1970 or 30 days after Congress adjourns, whichever date is earlier.

Accordingly, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's ASCS, which administers the wheat, feed grain and similar programs, has instructed its state and county offices across the nation to withhold ballots and other referendum materials, Evans said.

Evans explained that basic farm legislation requires a referendum for wheat marketing quotas. However, the Agricultural Act of 1965 suspended this referendum requirement from 1965 through the 1970 crop year. Unless new farm legislation, now pending, is enacted by the Congress, basic legislation will again go into effect, and a referendum will then be required in 1970 for the 1971 crop year.

High Price For Eggs, Guns

KAMPALA (AP) — Anyone throwing an egg at the president of Uganda could be imprisoned for life under a bill introduced in the National Assembly Monday.

Anyone pointing a gun at the president — even if it is empty — would be sentenced to death.

The legislation is the result of a recent assassination attempt against President Milton Obote.

Polluted 'Dead Sea' Of New York City Spreading Each Year

By BROOKS JACKSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Garbage dumped into ocean waters off New York City threatens to create an "environmental Pearl Harbor," Rep. Richard L. Ottinger told Congress today.

New scientific data show that a 21-mile-square patch of polluted water—dubbed the "Dead Sea" because of damage to marine life—is spreading toward New York and New Jersey shores at the rate of a mile a year, Ottinger said in remarks for the House fisheries and wildlife subcommittee.

Ottinger, New York's Democratic candidate for the Senate, said the northern edge of the

Opened Fire On Trawlers

MADELEINE CENTRE, Que. (AP) — Fishermen on this stretch of the Gaspé Peninsula opened fire Monday night on 18 trawlers they claim are taking their cod in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and fouling the tourist beaches.

Around 30 rounds were fired in the dark at the boats anchored 500 to 1,000 feet off Grande Vallée, about 300 miles northwest of Quebec City. "At that range there was little damage that we could see," said one bystander.

Mayor Omer Boucher said the boats are from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, British Columbia and Alberta. He said the trawlers presumably have licenses to fish for herring, but they also are dragging for cod and the local catch is below normal.

The mayor said he has complained to the federal and provincial governments but has received no response. He wants outsiders prohibited from fishing within three miles of the coast.

Price Of Peace

TOKYO (AP) — Four years ago Morihiro Matsuda had a thriving business, a small apartment house, a wife and two young sons.

Today he's broke and alone because of a peace crusade.

Matsuda spent $66,000 for full-page ads in the New York Times, the London Times, the Chicago Daily News and the Chicago Sun-Times to publicize proposals which he said would end the Vietnam war and bring world peace.

To finance his crusade, Matsuda sold his apartment building and his business, a mail order firm which sold musclebuilding equipment.

His wife, angered at his expenditures, left him, taking their sons.

"She got tired of my plans," Matsuda told an interviewer. "She said I was crazy."

But the 49-year-old man hasn't given up.

"I may never be rich again," he told an interviewer, "but I'll continue to try and do something for the good of mankind."

Matsuda now drives a truck for a living. He usually leaves his rented room at dawn and returns at night. He earns about 100,000 yen—$278—a month and saves part of it, hopeful that some day he can finance another peace crusade.

Matsuda's peace plan for Vietnam called for division of South Vietnam into two parts, the northern sector ruled by the Viet Cong and the southern part by the Saigon government.

Get Involved In Education

Homeowners and taxpayers throughout the country have received a series of financial shock treatments in recent years as school budgets for their Districts came up for approval.

There seems to be no ceiling on the cost of education.

This can be attributed to three factors—two of which we control to some degree.

1. The increase in school population has automatically boosted costs. Last fall, over 58 million persons were enrolled in the schools or colleges in the United States. This was a 12% increase over the last four years and obviously required more schools, more teachers — more everything. Because education is so essential, nowadays, we are willing to foot the bill. We want our children to have even a better education than we could obtain.

2. Inflation has added considerably to the cost of educating a pupil. Here is an area where we can exercise some indirect control. We can show restraint in our buying habits. We can save rather than pay inflated prices for goods and services. Of course, these actions will not be reflected directly in lowered school costs, but helping to keep the lid on the economy will tend to stabilize prices.

3. The lack of interest on the part of parents and taxpayers has contributed greatly to the growing cost of education. Recently, there has been evidence of growing concern over the taxpayers bill for education. It has taken the form of "Taxpayers Revolt." Residents of a school district have refused to pass a proposed school budget. But this is like trying to perform a post-mortem on a living organism that we have permitted to grow. There's no quick cure for years of neglect. The time to have shown concern was at the outset—when costs started to mount. The way to have shown concern should have been to take an interest in the affairs of the local school board — YOUR school board.

They receive little if any guidance from the people who pay the bills — and whose children they are trying to educate. At times, they must feel they are operating in a vacuum. As a matter of self-analysis, can you name the members of the school board in your district? Can you name ONE?

It is not too late to correct these deficiencies. We can become involved in school affairs. We can attend school board meetings. We can discuss programs with our board members. We can — and we should. As taxpayers, we are supporting the system. It is our money that is being spent. We should see that it is being spent wisely!
