New Census Reflecting New Picture

By JOHN M. PEARCE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new statistical mural of a changing nation is emerging as the Census Bureau forges ahead in its count of an estimated 205 million people.

So far, the Bureau said Wednesday, 181,369,297 have been officially counted, but that figure is updated every day as more local offices close and report their totals to Washington.

Forty-two states are complete, at least in preliminary form, and five report fewer people than they did 10 years ago when the last Census was taken.

The major change, however, is in the cities. Almost every report documents the flight of the population from the central cities to the suburbs.

Of the 44 areas reported so far, 18 central cities actually lost population, and most of the other 26 gained less than their surrounding suburbs.

Most major cities and the largest of the states, except Texas, have not yet been completed. In New York City, for example, the bureau had difficulty finding enough enumerators to contact people who had not returned their forms by mail.

Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson went from door to door accompanied by reporters and photographers to dramatize the importance of the Census.

Of the completed states, population declines were shown in Mississippi, North Dakota, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wyoming.

St. Louis is the largest city for which preliminary figures are available, and it showed a decline to 608,078 from 750,026. Other large cities showing declines in the central city but increases in the suburbs are Milwaukee, Wis.; Birmingham, Ala.; and Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.

The Census figures are important to both cities and states because they determine the number of congressmen each state gets as well as the outlines of congressional districts.

In addition, they influence the pattern of federal aid in a myriad of programs.

Under the law, the Commerce Department must report the final figures to President Nixon by Dec. 1, although the Census Bureau hopes to have an official tally by November this year.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here are preliminary figures from the 1970 census for the 42 states complete so far. The totals are subject to change as final checks are made.

Prices Jump

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wholesale prices have posted the biggest jump this month since January, due mostly to a sharp hike in the costs of food, the government reports.

The Labor Department said Wednesday the preliminary entry for July represented a boost of one-half of one per cent in the Wholesale Price Index.

That is 3.8 per cent above the figure of a year ago, and the biggest gain for any month this year since the four-fifths of one per cent rise in January.

At the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., George P. Shultz of the Office of Management and Budget noted that food prices ordinarily take a seasonal rise in July and reasserted his belief that anti-inflation programs have begun to work.

Pitt School Board Given 10 Days To Prepare New Plans

TRENTON — U.S. District Judge John Larkins at a hearing here yesterday gave the Pitt County Board of Education 10 days to submit a desegregation plan for the fall of 1970.

Pitt County's plan will be based on the completion dates of the four consolidated high schools now under construction. The judge ordered the school faculty to be assigned to each school in such a manner so as to eliminate the racial identity of each school in Pitt County.

This is interpreted to mean that each school staff will reflect approximately "the ratio of black and white personnel which exists in the county as a whole," Arthur S. Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, explained. "For the fall of 1970, the county ratio shows approximately 60 percent white personnel and 40 percent black personnel for each school."

Secondly, Alford said, with the occupancy of the North Pitt High School, the plan which was submitted to the court involves the complete reorganization of the northern part of the county.

The reorganization of the schools in that area (including Pactolus - Bethel - Belvoir - Stokes Communities) is as follows:

Pactolus, grades one through five; Stokes Elementary, grades one through five; Stokes - Pactolus, grades six through eight (this includes students from both Stokes and Pactolus); Bethel Elementary, grades one through four; Bethel Grammar, five through eight; Belvoir Elementary, grades one through three; Belvoir Grammar, grades four through eight; and North Pitt, grades nine through 12.

"As far as the rest of the county is concerned," Alford noted, "the judge said the plan to be submitted by the Pitt County School Board must include affidavits from contractors certifying that the D. H. Conley, Ayden-Grifton and Farmville high schools will be ready by the end of first semester, which is Jan. 25, 1971."

Judge Larkins stated if the board is successful in obtaining the affidavits, this will have a bearing on whether complete desegregation will be ordered this fall or if it will be ordered beginning with the second semester.

"The board will set the schedule for school opening, but with reorganization that will apparently be required by the court, the board will want to delay the opening of school as long as possible," Alford said.

He added, "North Pitt can use every day possible for additional work to be completed. Also there will be mobile units that will have to be moved to North Pitt. Many of these are tied up in other areas and we are not sure which ones can be released until the full plan has been ordered by the court."

"It is going to take some time to plan for reassignment of personnel in order to provide each school with the necessary certified personnel and also enough racial balance to cause the school to lose its racial identity," he stated.

"This will mean working with some 550 teachers and other professional personnel," Alford said. "It doesn't necessarily mean that each of the 550 persons will have to be relocated. There is reason to believe that throughout the county better than 50 to 60 percent of personnel will be in a new situation this fall."

Alford said the board of education may have to delay the opening of school until after labor day.

Pitt County Board of Education Chairman T. G. Worthington and W. E. House, newly-elected board member, were allowed to attend the hearing in the judge's chambers yesterday. This was the first time board members had been allowed to attend in the judge's chambers, Alford explained.

The Pitt County Board of Education will begin making plans for the desegregation of the schools at its regular board meeting Tuesday.

Grant Of Over $5.5 Million Authorized HUD Gives Final OK To CBD Program

Billy B. Laughinghouse, chairman of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission, announced that the Department of Housing and Urban Development gave final approval to the Central Business Project on July 28.

In approving the project, a federal grant of over $5.5 million was authorized which means, according to Laughinghouse, that the Commission and downtown merchants and owners can proceed with the revitalization and renewal of Greenville's central business district.

The project, unlike other urban renewal efforts, is a conservation project with emphasis on preserving and improving the existing buildings in the area.

Laughinghouse added that new streets will be constructed and some existing ones will be widened. Pedestrian ways and malls, more off street parking facilities, improved utilities and room for expansion for new and existing businesses are incorporated in the overall plan.

Owners of property in the area will be encouraged to remodel their buildings, he noted. Benefits, such as low interest rate loans, architectural advice and technical assistance will be available.

The chairman said that it will probably take two or three weeks for all the necessary contracts to be executed before work can actually begin.

The development of new and improved streets will be the first of the various phases of the project, it was indicated.

Laughinghouse encourages all merchants and business district owners to visit the Redevelopment Commission office at 307 Evans Street for more information or call John Messick, the director of operations, at 752-5115.

Israeli Expect Guerrilla Hunt Mercury Discharge By 21 N.C. Firms

By MICHAEL GROSS Associated Press Writer TEL AVIV (AP)—Sources in Tel Aviv said today the Palestinian guerrillas are planning heavy strikes against Israel from Jordan and Lebanon in an effort to prompt Israeli counterattacks and undermine prospects for peace.

The sources said there has been an escalation in guerrilla activity along the Jordanian and Lebanese frontiers since Egypt accepted the U.S. cease-fire proposal a week ago. The guerrillas have rejected the plan, condemned Egypt for accepting it, and have vowed to continue fighting.

The Israelis said guerrillas from Lebanon set off explosives Wednesday night under a children's dormitory in an Israeli settlement in northern Galilee near the Lebanese border. A dozen children were sleeping in the building but there were no casualties, the sources said. It was the first reported guerrilla penetration of a settlement on the Lebanese border in six months.

Military spokesmen also reported that an Arab infiltrator was killed Wednesday night in a clash with Israeli troops near the Damiya bridge over the Jordan River. No Israeli casualties were reported.

Israeli and Egyptian artillery exchanged "extremely intense" fire today along the entire 103-mile length of the Suez Canal, Israel reported. Two Israeli soldiers were reported wounded. A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians opened fire first.

In the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip, guerrillas blasted an electric power pylon Wednesday night, blacking out street lights in a refugee camp.

RALEIGH (AP)—State pollution control officials say they are testing the effluent from 21 firms which might be discharging mercury into North Carolina's streams.

The list of firms was attached to a letter sent by Gov. Bob Scott to the Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel outlining steps the state will take to identify and control mercury pollution in its waters. Potentially polluted rivers also were listed.

The firms: University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; Piedmont Natural Gas Co. of Charlotte; Dixie Neon Supply House of Charlotte; Carolina Power & Light Co.; Duke Power Co.; Riegall Paper Corp. of Riegallwood; Allied Chemical Corp. of Riegallwood; Albermarle Paper Co. of Roanoke Rapids; Weyerhaeuser Co. Pulp Division at New Bern and Weyerhaeuser Co. of Plymouth; the Mead Corp. of Sylva; Peachtree products of Murphy; James Lee & Sons of Robbinsville; U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc. of Canton.

Dayco Corp. of Waynesville; American Enka Corp. of Enka; Sayles-Biltmore Bleacheries of Asheville; Taylor Instrument Co. of Asheville; E. I. duPont de Nemours Co. of Brevard; Cranston Print Works Co. of Fletcher; and Olin Corp. of Pisgah Forest.

The potentially polluted rivers and streams were listed as the Cape Fear, Lumber, French Broad, Neuse, Hico, Catawba, Broad, Roanoke, Scott Creek, Pigeon, Davidson, Little River, Hominy Creek and Richardson Creek.

The names of the 21 companies were compiled by the Federal Water Quality Administration from lists of mercury buyers. Letters have been sent to these firms asking them to describe the processes in which they use the mercury and tell whether the metal is discharged in the firm's waste waters.

The governor's letter said that all plants found to be polluting will be asked to submit plans to eliminate mercury discharges as soon as possible.

Gov. Scott's letter was sent in response to a message from Secretary Hickel urging the state to proceed with investigations of possible polluters and take abatement action where necessary.

Meeting Aug. 11 To Complete Pitt UF Plans

Directors of Pitt County United Fund Inc. will meet on Tuesday, August 11, to act on final approval of a 1970-71 budget and put finishing touches on plans for the annual United Fund campaign.

The meeting will be open to the public. It is scheduled at 7 p.m. in the board room of Wachovia Bank Building in downtown Greenville.

A budget committee received and approved a tentative budget from a subcommittee at a meeting Tuesday night. This is to be presented to the full board of directors on August 11.

Strong Tremors On Iran Border

TEHRAN (AP)—At least 40 villagers were killed and more than 70 injured today when a series of strong earthquakes shook an area of about 20,000 square miles near the Soviet border, first reports from the region said.

There was heavy damage to bridges and telephone lines, and the final toll will not be known for some time. But the Red Lion and Sun, Iran's equivalent of the Red Cross, said the region is thinly populated and a report that several thousand were killed was "inaccurate and unreliable."

An official of the Red Lion and Sun said many of the villagers live in round, dome-shaped huts with straw roofs, a type of construction that would reduce the casualties.

The Tehran Geophysics Institute said the quake registered 6 on a scale of 10, a force which one source said had proved devastating in past quakes. But the source said the quakes hit at a time—5:03 a.m.—when most villagers were probably already at work in their fields, and this may have reduced the number of casualties.

Stagnant Air Mass Continues Remain Over East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS New York City maintained a first-level air pollution alert today but rain in the city and elsewhere along the Eastern Seaboard had thinned the threat of a smothering blanket of smog.

The showers Wednesday brought temporary relief to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. But the stagnant air mass responsible for the pollution was not expected to move until the weekend.

No immediate health hazard was seen in New York or elsewhere although a smog "advisory" remained in effect in the nation's capital and an air pollution warning was out for the state of Georgia.

Mayor John V. Lindsay declared Wednesday that air pollution in New York had reached crisis levels and invoked the first stage of a four-step pollution control program.

Under the measure, city garbage burning was reduced by 20 per cent and city hospitals and housing projects were told to prepare to shut down incinerators if necessary. The same warning went to private landlords.

Ultimately the program could lead to banning private autos from congested parts of the city but for the moment the mayor simply urged motorists to limit nonessential driving.

Lindsay's action was unusual in that it was not preceded by the Weather Bureau's issuing a warning of high air pollution potential.

John Meyer, forecaster in charge of the bureau's Rockefeller Center office, said the conditions did not meet established criteria for such a warning because there has been some ventilation each afternoon during the six days the situation has existed.

Philadelphia city officials reported the pollution index was at 6 Wednesday, down from 7 on Tuesday. A rating of 10 is serious, and the city was considered nowhere near an alert status.

In Washington persons with respiratory weaknesses were advised to limit their activities. Smog readings were expected to peak again this morning.

The Baltimore Health Department said pollution levels there had continued to drop from highs recorded Monday.

The air pollution warning issued Tuesday by the Georgia Health Department for Atlanta and the northern portion of the state was extended Wednesday to include the entire state.

The department has no power to enforce crackdowns against polluters, however, and can only request that persons drive as little as possible and industries stop all unnecessary burning.

State air pollution officials in Virginia said there was no change in the favorable situation there and they expected no major problem because the state has fewer industrial complexes and vehicles.

Pilot Club Hears Musical Group In Paris, Land Of Ponchos, String Ties

The "Difference" a group of three young ladies, Sheila Marlowe, Ann Wilkerson, and Becky Starkey, entertained the members of the Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc. at their annual covered-dish supper meeting at the home of Mrs. Janice Buck on Hooker Road.

This singing group has been together one year and has sung folk songs for most of the civic clubs in Greenville. Janie Gold Starling, first vice president, presided at the meeting.

Reports of the Pilot International Convention in Miami were given by Mildred Mallard, president, and Sue Smith, District VI finance chairman. There were over 1,400 at the convention which included Mrs. Smith's Co-Pilot, Bob Smith.

One of the Community Service projects according to Mrs. Janice Buck, chairman, has been the Boys' Club of Greenville. Mrs. Buck also reported a box of used eye glasses is ready to be sent to the New Eyes For The Needy and a box of clothes is ready for Dobbs School in Kingston.

By WARREN TRABANT PARIS (WNS) — A fashion designer here sat through the film "Once Upon a Time in the West" three times. With the aid of a flashlight she sketched the long leather "Duster" coats worn by the actors.

Two days later Brigitte Bardot, Jane Fonda and Monica Viti were sporting them and the rush was on.

A stroll along the Boulevard St. Germaine in Paris this spring is more like a visit to the old MGM lot during the simultaneous production of three Westerns than a visit to the fashion center of the world. More Mexican, cowboy and Indian boots tramp the streets than were ever seen in Tombstone, Arizona. Fringed leather coats, vests and shirts are as common as miniskirts on Madison Avenue. Flaired jeans and ponchos in every color and material create the effect of a hundred electric circuits. String ties are standard. C'est le Far West. Just when the Texas influence slipped in to shove aside the hippie look is hard to pinpoint. A French boot merchant, Maurice Chorenslub (cq) saw the possibilities six years ago, went to America and came back with a Trading Post of things Western. Including such items as guns, saddles, bridles, spurs and Indian beads for the natives. He rented a store near the Arc de Triomphe and piled it all haphazardly to get the "real Western flavor." He called it Western House. His business has improved every year, he now boasts 15,000 customers, many from show business. About 80 per cent of his wares are still from America, the rest are designed in France exclusively for him. He also does a brisk trade in western saddles, an unusual item in Europe.

early in the century by the man who brought the first western saddle to Europe. He was Joe Hamman, an actor, film director and producer, amateur cowboy, adventurer, artist and presently the president of "le Club Lasso."

In 1904, at the age of 21, Joe Hamman went to America. "I put on a cowboy hat when I reached the Far West and I've had it on ever since," he explains. On that trip he met Buffalo Bill whom he had seen in a Wild West show in Paris when he was six years old. As an apprentice cowboy he hunted horse thieves, lived with Indians and rode the range. So many of his friends were interested in his strange saddle they formed a club and to the horror of the French Riding Association imported the saddles.

In 1907, when one-reel western films were being made in the New Jersey woods and along the Hudson Palisades, Hamman and his friends bought a motion picture camera. They wrote, directed, produced and acted in a dozen oaters; the first one was called "Le Desperado," another "Un Cowboy a Paris." By 1909 they were well enough established to do a series called "The Adventures of Buffalo Bill" for the Bioscope Company in London.

Still Rides Joe Hamman still rides. He can be found on the range just outside of Paris any fine weekend—wearing his tennison hat. In Paris movie houses are running and rerunning American, Italian and French "westerns" at the rate of two dozen a week. The French Western craze has reached a point where it has become an exportable item. Another Frenchman who says he "saw too many Universal Studio Westerns" was fascinated not with the cowboys, but with the drinking emporiums of the (Continued on page 7)

Should Engagement Gifts Be Returned?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just broke off my engagement with a guy I went with for 4 years. [No tears. It was mutual.] We've been officially engaged [with a diamond] for nearly 2 years. What I need to know is this: What do I have to give back? He has given me quite a number of gifts since I've known him. First off, he gave me a hope chest and a complete set of cookware which is still in the original box. He also gave me some stuff that belonged to his mother, like a set of dishes and a crocheted tablecloth, that her mother had given to her. There are also some things I am using, like a portable TV, and a window-type air conditioner, and a sewing machine. I've heard that possession is nine tenths of the law, and I am wondering if maybe I should just keep everything except the diamond ring, which I already gave back?

ELSIE IN ROCKFORD

DEAR ELSIE: Possession may be nine tenths of the law, but it's the other one tenth that could get you into trouble. All gifts that were in his family [the dishes and tablecloth] should be returned. And so should gifts your fiancé intended to be used by the two of you after your marriage. [The set of cookware.] Keep the hope chest, however. A girl's gotta have hope!

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old and am like walking around in a fog. I just found out that my "mother" is really my aunt, and my "aunt" is my real mother.

My mother wasn't married at the time, so she gave me to her married sister to raise. Later, my real mother got married and had children. That means my brothers and sisters are really my cousins, and the kids I always thought were my cousins are really my half-sisters and brothers. I feel terrible to think almost everybody in the family has known this all along and I had to find it out from a stranger.

There is nothing I can do about it because I feel toward the aunt who raised me just like any kid would feel toward his own mother. And I don't honestly feel anything extra special for my real mother who I thought was just another aunt.

I guess what I want to say is this: Please tell people if they have a secret like this in their family, it's best to tell the kids before they hear it from strangers.

HURT AND IN A FOG

DEAR HURT: Thank you for some excellent advice.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know how an estate can be settled up without a lawyer getting a big cut. We have known people who have their affairs in order, and have had wills stating what to leave to whom, and still the lawyer gets part of the estate. It just doesn't seem right to me. Please answer right away.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: I don't know what you mean by a "big cut." A lawyer is entitled to a legal fee for the work he does, but every lawyer does not come in for a "part of the estate" merely because he acts as the legal counsel for it.

DEAR ABBY: This is for CARL, your correspondent who thinks that when women can do a man's job, they deserve to be "upgraded."

I have a suggestion: How about "downgrading" the men to the status of women? For example, let them start by picking up their dirty socks and underwear. And let them make such executive decisions as which brand of detergent to use. Let them do six loads of laundry a week, fold and iron it, and have dinner on the table at six o'clock when the wife comes home from an air-conditioned office.

Instead of "growing ulcers" and suffering heart attacks, we might let them sink into the rut of boredom of housework that makes so many women alcoholics, nagging wives, possessive mothers and unhappy middle-aged nobodies.

Also, let's put our scientific know how to work and go all the way with sex change and transplants. If HE will go through childbirth, I'll gladly play "tag with Charley." Who knows? Maybe things will improve.

LEE

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Tax Inspector Finally Caught

PARIS (WNS) — Mme. Mme. Pouppou insists that she did not do it for the $16,000 that has disappeared. "I did it because the gentlemen promised that they would get me the French Legion of Honor," she testified.

Jay-C-Ettes To Sell Programs At Boys' Home All-Star Game

Jay-C-Ettes will be selling programs for the Boys' Home All-Star Game Saturday night at Ficklen Stadium. The special ensembles of white knit with "Jaycee blue" scarves will be worn by the Jay-C-Ettes.

The ensembles were designed by Mrs. Allen Adams, Mrs. Dave Gorden, Mrs. John Adams and Mrs. Wallace West.

The Jay-C-Ettes will also be in charge of chaperoning the cheerleaders for the game who will be arriving Saturday morning. The cheerleaders are representatives from high schools throughout the state.

Mrs. Charles Hargett will be organizing the chaperones for the girls.

Two beauty queens will be present for the annual game, Miss North Carolina, Cornelia Colette Lerner and Miss Greenville, Helen Parker.

Miss Lerner, 18, of Asheville, who prefers to be called Connie, won the crown in the annual Miss North Carolina Pageant in Raleigh on July 11. She will represent the Tar Heel State in the Miss America Pageant, Atlantic City, N. J., in September.

She takes a very serious view of her new title as a means of spreading her ideas across the country. Her idea of Miss North Carolina is "a girl who represents the youth of America. A girl who represents the ideals of generosity, sincerity and an honest love for her family and community. People should respect these ideals more."

A pianist, she played Chopin's "Revolutionary Etude" for her talent presentation during the pageant.

The two beauty queens will participate in halftime ceremonies and Miss North Carolina will make presentations of trophies to players.

A pre-game dinner for local and visiting dignitaries will be held at the Moose Lodge beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Millionaire Dressmaker Is Preoccupied

By NADEANE WALKER Associated Press Writer

LONDON, (AP) — Hardy Amies, dressmaker turned tailor turned "millionaire," needs the world with words but uses machines to sew clothes.

He makes more money that way.

"It is impossible to become rich from dealing in anything made almost entirely by hand," the 60-year-old designer to Queen Elizabeth II said. "It is the manufacturers of machine-made clothes who prosper today."

And making money is an Amies hobby.

He began designing women's one-of-a-kind gowns 36 years ago. After a good, hard look at the economics of trade, he turned to ready-to-wear or boutique collections for women and then, in the '50s he charged into the men's wear field.

"My firm," he said in an interview, "has made an awful lot of money. More than 50 per cent of the business belongs to me and I fought like a wildcat to get that."

"I want to retire gracefully and elegantly. An old, unsuccessful dressmaker is a very unattractive thought. But, I have not cashed in enough yet."

Upon arrival Miss Davis was presented a corsage of white shasta daisies and a gift of silver.

Her mother, Mrs. T. M. Davis, who received guests with the honoree was also presented a corsage.

But it isn't really the money, he stoutly avers. "I am preoccupied with making a success rather than making money."

"After working 30 years at the damn thing I am anxious, though not desperately so, to make a success. But, success can only be measured by money."

The fact that designer Amies measures up well to his own yardstick of success may well rest with his own salesmanship of his mastery of the art of making a suit.

If the man who dresses a queen has had a major influence on the way men dress in this century, it's a tossup whether greater glory is due his talent for striking the cash-bell ringing medium between the classic and the way-out or to his ability to meld artistic design with a steely-eyed head for business.

Of his first collections for Lachasse in 1934, Amies said: "My designs were not very exciting. I had precious little original to say."

But, two years later, "I realized that if you lower the waist (of a suit jacket) you have a longer line from under the armhole to the waist. This gives you more room to move when in action, and makes the jacket lie almost peacefully on its own when you are still."

Another year later American

Painting Returned, Prayer Answered

TOULOUSE, France (WNS) — Three months ago thieves broke into the Chateau de La Terrasse of the Baroness Monique Fain and stole one valuable painting: "Balthazar's Banquet" by Francken (called Franz the Old) of the Flemish School. Police were unable to solve the crime so the baroness prayed to St. Anthony of Padua.

The other day the curate of the Cathedral St. Etienne here found a package at the base of St. Anthony's statue addressed to the Baroness Fain. Inside was the stolen painting.

For a nutritious drink, mix chilled buttermilk with chilled cocktail vegetable juice and season with Worcestershire sauce.

buyers discovered that his collection for the coronation of King George VI was cheaper than Paris originals. "And from that season," said Amies gleefully, "I have never stopped selling clothes to America."

That year he made his first trip to the United States and sold more than $19,200 from his next collection.

"I understand the poetry of trade just as I understand the grain of a material," Amies said.

While the United States is probably his most important area, Amies, after all, carries the royal warrant as dressmaker to Britain's queen—a prestige label granted in 1955, five years after he began sewing gowns for the then princess Elizabeth.

Critics of the Queen's taste get short shrift from the lashing tongue of designer Amies. "They have no idea what she expects from her clothes. I think the Queen has no desire to be on a best-dressed list. That's a full-time job and she has another one."

When he isn't making money Amies lives in a "smallish" London house with four bedrooms, three bathrooms, 36 suits, 24 pairs of shoes, a cook and a butler. He dismisses this as "quite grand, I suppose."

Amies approaches himself logically. "I think it is fair to say that I am very egotistical," he said. "However, I am clever enough to stop becoming a megalomaniac."

"My schoolmaster told me that I was insincere. I don't know. I know that I react quickly but not deeply."

"I don't think I am unpopular. I do know that I am tactless. On occasions I haven't the time to be less than tactless."

"I have not wanted to get married for 30 years, except when my cook left," the busy bachelor said.

"Anyway, I would be impossible to live with. An absolute brute."

Homemaker's Haven By Mrs. Phyllis Wooten Pitt Home Agent

During this time of damp, humid days the homemaker may find that mildew is a problem. The molds that cause mildew grow on anything from which they can get enough food. In homes, they develop most often on cotton, linen, rayon, silk, wool, leather, wood, and paper. Though always present in the air, molds that cause mildew need moisture and certain temperatures in order to grow. They commonly develop in muggy summer weather, especially in houses that are closed.

As molds grow, they cause considerable damage. They often leave a musty odor, they discolor fabrics and sometimes eat into them so severely that the fabrics rot and fall to pieces. They decay wood and discolor leather and paper.

To prevent mildew, keep things clean. Keep closets, dresser drawers, basements, any place where mildew is likely to grow, as clean as possible. Soil on articles can supply sufficient food for mildew to start growing.

To prevent mildew, one must also get rid of dampness by removing the cause. Cooking, laundering, and bathing without adequate ventilation may add two or more gallons of water to the air in a house in one day. Ventilate the house when the outside air is drier than the inside. As the air comes in, it takes moisture from the damp interior walls and furnishings. Since cool air holds less moisture than warm air, take advantage of cool nights to freshen the air in the entire house.

Another way to get rid of the dampness is by heating the air for a short period of time. Then open doors and windows to let out the warmed air. An electric fan could be used to force the warmed air out quickly.

For further information about mildew prevention or information concerning the removal of mildew, contact the Agricultural Extension Service, 758-1196 in Greenville.

Gourmet Corner: Salute Adaptable Apple

By TOM HOGE Associated Press Writer

There's one way you can measure the affluence and expanding leisure time of Americans today. More and more of them are taking up two past-times that were once reserved for those in the top layer of the economic structure—houseboating and gourmet cookery.

Actually, you don't have to be rich, by American standards, to pursue either hobby, unless you insist on Beluga caviar, vintage champagne and ocean-going yachts.

A chap we know, a former New Englander whose forebears built sailing ships, recently decided to enjoy fine food and life on the bounding main, now that his children have grown up and he has been able to delegate the running of his business to others.

Our friend, who modestly insists on being referred to only as Stanley, invested in a 46-foot Chris Craft houseboat and now lives on it with his wife from May through October cruising the inland waterways from Maryland to Florida.

With a good-sized galley and plenty of cabin space, Stanley and his spouse think nothing of entertaining eight or ten people of an evening, and like to charm their guests with some pretty fancy meals.

They quickly found out, however, that it's a lot more damp on water than on shore and it is a good idea to keep your food in cans or bottles.

This posed a problem for Stanley and his wife who both have a passion for apples and discovered that they lose their crispness at sea. They solved it by turning to applesauce and learned to their delight that it is a most versatile dish.

Whether you live on a houseboat or in a city apartment, applesauce is not only delicious by itself, but can be used to lend a tangy flavor to all sorts of dishes from ham casserole or lamb curry to brown Betty and French Toast.

Apples have played a role in American history from early colonial times. The colonists included apple seeds in their supplies when they journeyed to the New World, and Peregrine White, first settler's child to be born in New England, planted apple trees there. Later, John Chapman roamed the Ohio Wilderness and became famous as Johnny Appleseed as he went from field to field planting the seed of the noble fruit.

The beauty of the apple is its adaptability. If you can't get the fresh fruit in its crisp glory, there are canned apples, frozen apples and dried apple slices treated with sulphur dioxide and dehydrated. And don't forget apple jelly and the apple butter that many of us associate with our childhood.

But applesauce is perhaps the most versatile byproduct, and here are two recipes in which it plays an important role.

APPLE SAUCE DATE

MALLOW

- 2 cups canned apple sauce
  - 4 cups miniature marshmallows
  - teaspoons grated orange rind
  - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
  - 1 cup pitted dates diced
  - 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- Combine all ingredients in a small saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until marshmallows are partially melted. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Spoon into sherbert glasses or large serving bowl. Chill and serve with a garnish of sweetened whipped cream, if desired. Serves 6 persons

SWEET-SOUR STEAK SAUTE 6 shell steaks (1/2 to 3/4 inch thick)

- 2 cups canned apple sauce
- 1-3rd cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon onion salt
- 1/4 cup lemon
- 1 onion sliced
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/4 cup cooking oil
- 1/2 cup gingerbread cookie crumbs

Place steaks in flat pan or baking dish. Combine remainder of ingredients, except oil and cookie crumbs. Pour over steaks. Cover with aluminum foil. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Remove steaks from pan. Scrape away excess marinade and reserve. Heat cooking oil in skillet. Sauté steaks 5 minutes each on each side (or to desired degree of doneness). Add gingersnap crumbs to marinade and pour into skillet. Simmer 5 to 8 minutes. Serves 6.

Serve with a good, robust Burgundy.

Psychologist Offers Advice On Being A Successful Father

By JUDY SAMMON Cleveland Plain Dealer Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — "It is a wise father that knows his own son." —Shakespeare.

The saddest thing about modern family life is that many fathers, instead of children, are seen, but not heard.

And seen too infrequently, if they are successful businessmen, asserts Dr. Walter S. Nosal, director of the counseling center at John Carroll University, who has handled enough cases over the past 25 years to convince him that often the most successful men are the least successful fathers.

"I talk to many successful men who claim to be fathers; I call them breadwinners," said the crew-cut, blue-eye psychologist, folding into a chair in his small, but busy campus office.

His new booklet, "For Successful Men Only—Some Plain Talk on Raising Your Son," is geared to restoring father power in a paling patriarchy.

The father of six children himself, Dr. Nosal subscribes to the theory that in raising a child, love is not enough; a son, especially, needs the attention and presence of a father to teach him how to live.

"Too many successful men are too busy to spend time alone with their sons," he says, an advocate of father-son activities together. "They're too wrapped up in their business or social commitments to establish deep bonds with their sons."

"Who, after all, is there to applaud a 40-year-old man who helps his son build a tree hut? Fathers fail to see that the child can receive more of an education in those few hours spent together than any school can teach him."

In lieu of presence, fathers often offer presents and advice, Dr. Nosal asserts. In the vernacular of youth, that's copping out.

When a father is not there to provide constant and consistent direction, or a blueprint of conduct and development for his son to follow, the neglect will manifest itself in some unacceptable way, Dr. Nosal believes.

The son may demonstrate this through rebellious acts, undisciplined behavior, or disrespect for his father.

The trend towards "unisex," for instance, with young men donning the accoutrements and look of females, is, in his opinion, partly the result of the neglect of strong paternal guidance.

"How can a son identify with an absent or almost-always absent father?" he asks.

Learning how to live has become subordinated to learning how to make a living, Dr. Nosal implied and this inversion of principles has alienated many young people. Since most of today's successful businessmen are products of the 20s and 30s, who experienced economic deprivation, their economic determination has deeply affected their sons, in a negative way.

"What child is going to see the value of—let's say—declining verbs, when he knows that his XKE is parked outside ready to go, or that a trip to Europe this summer is his merely for the asking? A boy needs a father who'll say 'no,' who will serve as his brakes in situations that require discipline. A child who has never had these 'brakes' will find it difficult to apply them when he needs them later on."

Never buy eye glasses at the dime-store counter. These are not finely-ground lenses, let alone prescription, and may not be correct for your eye problem.

Once you get your prescription lenses, don't loan them to anyone. People sometimes think that their eye problems are like those of other members of their family... consequently, they sometimes use other's glasses.

This could mean extra eye difficulty and expense to you. Even if your vision is like that of another person, the curvature of your eyes varies, and the position of each lens in

Faircloth Views Make Sense

Byran Haislip of the Associated Afternoon Dailies reported in a recent column that Lauch Faircloth, Highway Commission chairman, wants every penny pouring into the state's Highway Fund annually spent to the best advantage of the highway system.

Haislip said that Faircloth is guarding against a proposal to double the amount of the state's gasoline tax revenues earmarked for turn-over to municipalities for streets and a campaign to repeal one cent of the two cent gas tax increase approved in 1968.

Faircloth was particularly strong in his opposition to turning over one cent of the tax to the cities. "North Carolina has done well by its highway responsibilities in urban areas," he said. "The cities are now getting the equivalent of 3 1/2 to 4 cents of the gasoline tax, which is what we spend on construction and maintenance of numbered highways inside municipal limits."

Faircloth is strongly opposed to any outright repeal of one cent of the tax, too. If this were to happen, he said, "it would seriously impede our program to the extent there would be approximately $30 million less per year. That would have to come off new construction, since maintenance would continue at the same level."

What Faircloth says makes much sense to us, particularly in view of the road building programs outlined for our area. In Greenville for instance, there are plans for dual laning U.S. 264 from Frog Level all the way to the Washington Highway, then across the river to the Pactolus Highway. A two lane connector is planned from there to the Bethel Highway at the Burroughs - Wellcome plant. Plans have been announced for four-laning Tenth Street from the Norfolk Southern railroad to Greenville Boulevard and work should also get underway soon on dual laning Charles Street from Greenville Boulevard to Tenth.

We have also been told there is to be constructed a four-lane route to Washington. Just recently it was announced that U.S. 264 would be reconstructed on a new right-of-way from Greenville to Zebulon with the right-of-way sufficient to make the route eventually a dual lane limited access super highway.

With these projects in mind we can agree that it would be best to leave the highway tax as it is. However, people in our area have in the past waited for years to see planned projects get underway. The best way the Highway Commission can show voters in our area that it means what it says is to get these projects under construction as rapidly as possible. Once construction is begun they can't be taken away.

Stranded On A Disputed Isle

By BRYAN HAISLIP
I was marooned on Baldhead Island. For two hours — it seemed a lot longer — I was one of nine persons stranded on the most talked about piece of real estate in North Carolina. Battleship gray clouds threatened rain. The white houses of Southport gleamed across the water, tranquil and secure on the mainland. We paced the sandy edge of the mouth of the Cape Fear River and strained to see a boat putting out — for — our rescue. Nothing in sight.

and a dead sea turtle on the oceanside beach. I was told the island is the habitat for a rich resource of animal life, including mink, otter, raccoon, squirrel, and domesticated pigs which have reverted to the wild state.

Among other things which distinguish its ecology, Baldhead is the northernmost point of the range of the Florida wood rat. Much better known is the fact that palms are part of its natural growth, one of the features which set it aside on the state's coastal landscape.

Back at our landing point, William F. Henderson sketched in the sand to illustrate his projected development of the island. It will be neither a rich man's retreat nor a commercialized public playground, he said. It will include convention facilities and other development to boost the economy of the area, he said. "Everything that is worth preserving will be kept," he said. "It will be to our own selfish interests to do so since it will enhance the property."

Henderson's attitude was buoyant in the face of Governor Bob Scott's announced intention to pursue the goal of acquisition of the island by the state to thwart development. "If we cannot have access by land, which we would prefer, we will proceed on the basis of access by water," he maintained. Nine of us accepted his invitation for a quick tour to the ocean side, piling into cars whose appearance suggested they were overdue at the junkyard. The path ran past vines heavy with wild grapes and overhanging myrtle shrubs which gave off a pungent, spicy smell as we brushed by. We returned to a scene of desolation. We had been left. "Our party will miss us and send back for us," we assured the drivers and waved farewell.

We waited. We speculated on the start of the hospitality hour at the convention, and the evening banquet at which one of our number, Howard White of Burlington, was to give the invocation. "I've dreamed of being on a desert island," complained his wife. "Now here I am, the only woman with eight men, and all you can think of is food and drink."

A fishing boat came into view. We waved and called. It pulled in close enough for us to yell our message of distress. A short while later, Reese Swan, the island's caretaker, arrived with companions in a boat which took us back to the Coast Guard station.

Our adventure didn't strike the Coast Guard as out of the ordinary. "Happens all the time," they said. "We pick up somebody almost every weekend."

Sen. Goodell On The Defensive

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
BINGHAMPTON, N.Y. — Winding up his speech at the Rotary Club's Tuesday luncheon here this week, Republican Sen. Charles Goodell voiced a brief, emotional self-defense for having strayed so far to the left, beyond the normal confines of the Republican party.

"I couldn't have lived with myself the last two years," Goodell said, "if I had done it any differently."

In response, slightly more than half the audience of several hundred businessmen spontaneously rose to their feet and gave Goodell a rousing cheer. But the others stayed in their chairs, silent evidence of the towering political problems confronting Goodell in his uphill battle to get elected to the Senate this fall.

In short Goodell, the moderate conservative during his ten years as Congressman from upstate New York, is regarded as a party apostate after his two appointive years as a flaming anti-war liberal occupying the Senate seat of the late Robert F. Kennedy. His steady, dramatic move to the left has now climaxed in this campaign year just as his party leader, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, with much of the regular Republican organization, is moving rather sharply the other way.

Hence, Goodell's savagely difficult problem: how to regain his regular Republican base without antagonizing his new constituency on the left (including the Liberal party which also gave him its nomination).

His Republican base is shifting away at an alarming rate. Here in Broome County, for example, Goodell should win by an easy two-to-one, yet Republican strategists told us that as of today he would carry only a bare plurality. But compared to the vast downstate bedroom suburbs, Broome County looks like a little piece of heaven.

In Long Island's Suffolk County, for example, Goodell is persona non grata to the Republican organization led by county chairman Edwin M. (Buz) Schwenk. He is not invited to party functions and if he showed up he might get tossed out. Schwenk is quietly backing James L. Buckley, the Conservative party's candidate — a registered Republican (and brother of the conservative theoretician William F. Buckley) who got 1.1 million votes in his 1968 Senate campaign.

In Nassau County, the biggest vote-producer outside New York City, county chairman Joseph M. Margiotta is officially neutral as between Goodell and Buckley. Margiotta tried to line up his county executive committee behind Goodell, the party's nominee, but was bluntly warned to abandon the idea or risk being voted out as county chairman.

The story in some other counties is similar. Franklin County, in the sparsely populated upstate lake country, voted formally to endorse Buckley. In Dutchess County, a motion at the last Republican executive committee meeting to endorse Buckley was thrown out on a parliamentary point of order. The motion was then rephrased into up or down support for Goodell, and Goodell lost, 57 to 20.

This might all be quite acceptable to hard-hitting articulate Charlie Goodell if the other side of the political

WAR NOT INEVITABLE
One of the great scientists is said to have remarked recently, "I don't know what the weapons of the third World War will be but I know what the weapons of the fourth World War will be—clubs."

By this he means that one more world war will wash us up. Civilization will disappear, and society will become savage again. We may wear breech cloths or we may wear business suits, but we shall be savages. If the forces of destruction were really to be unleashed there would scarcely be enough left in the world to set up any organized life other than tribalism.

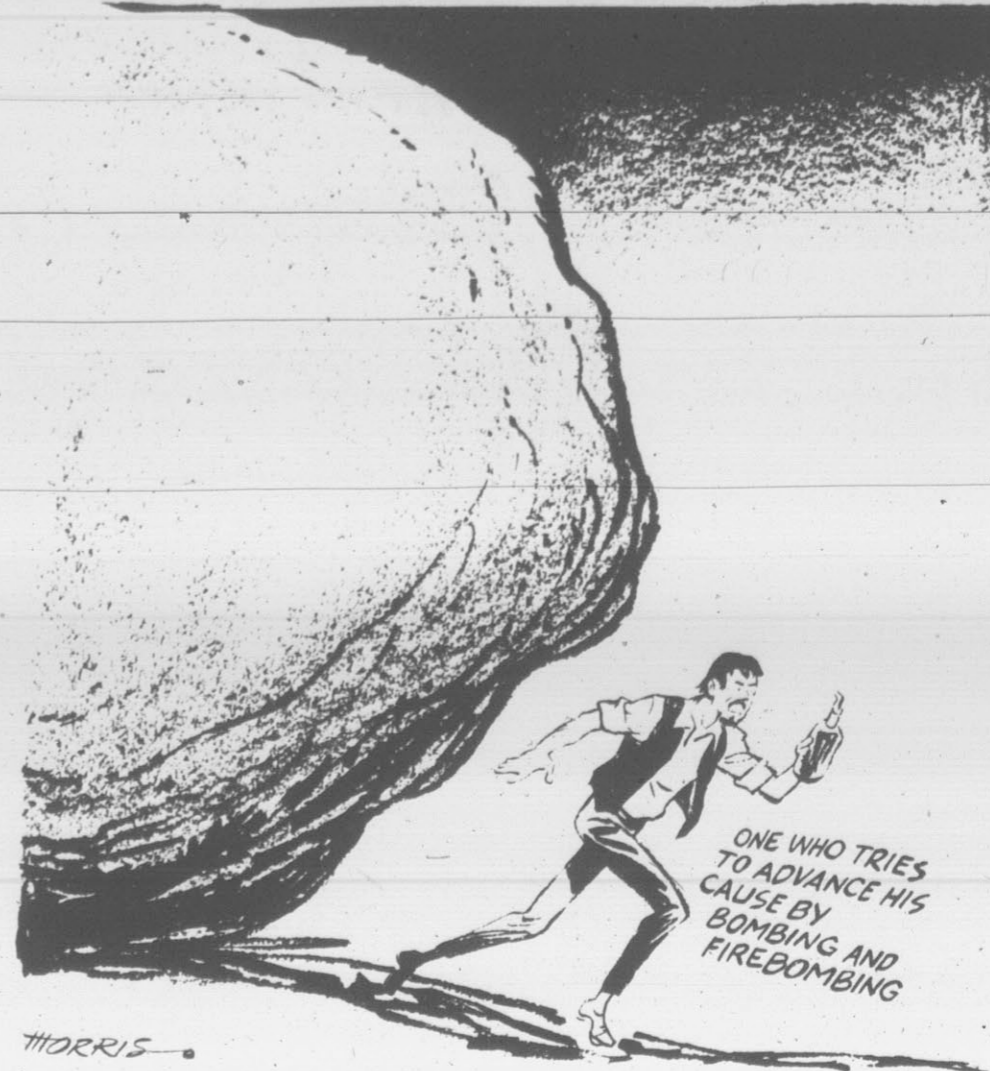

We have to keep our thoughts and our emotions pretty well balanced as we confront the future. Extinction is a possibility, and we should never cease to regard this possibility with unqualified alarm. Nevertheless, war is by no means inevitable. If we allow it to come it will be because we are stupid, selfish and willful. If the world's intelligence can produce modern science and industry there is no reason why this same intelligence cannot prevent war.

But intelligence and common sense will not be enough. The spiritual powers latent in the universe are more powerful for healing and progress than atomic power is for destruction. Mind, matter and spirit must pool forces to avoid catastrophe.

How Soon Is Possible?

Back in March, Chief Justice Warren Burger filed an unhappy memorandum in the Memphis school desegregation case. His colleagues had summarily reversed the Sixth Circuit, and then had ordered the District Judge to get on with his job of promptly decreeing a "unitary" system.

Burger wanted to hear argument in the case. So did Justice Potter Stewart. But Justice Thurgood Marshall was then in the hospital with pneumonia. Justice Harry A. Blackmun had not been confirmed. The Court was limping along with seven members, and it seemed no time to tackle the whole knotty problem of school segregation again.

But Burger didn't like it. "As soon as possible," he said, the Court ought to resolve the "basic, practical, problems" of desegregation decrees. course, as other men do, but they also work on petitions

It is time to ask the Chief Justice and his colleagues, bluntly but with no disrespect: How soon is possible?

The high court adjourned on June 29 for a vacation of more than three months. Granted, this is not pure holiday. Members of the Court do some loafing, of for appeal and spent hours in research and reading. Nevertheless, the effective work of the Court — the hearing and deciding of cases — has ground to a halt, not to be resumed until October.

Meanwhile, in the schools, chaos. Burger himself may believe that "the suggestion that the Court has not defined a unitary school system is not supportable." Bosh! He would be hard put to find two Federal judges in the country who agree on the term. The Court also has demanded that school systems must be "nonracial." But from Norfolk to Los Angeles, trial courts — often reluctantly — are applying racial criteria.

The Court has further demanded that all traces of discrimination be eliminated "root and branch." It is a fine phrase, but who knows what it means? As Virginia's District Judge Walter Hoffman recently made clear, all but five of the 50 States have some "roots" of racial discrimination in their law. In such States as Indiana, these roots manifestly have contributed to the location of existing school buildings. The black pupils of Gary are far more segregated than the black pupils of Norfolk or Richmond.

Yet such is the confusion in this field of the law that Gary's segregation is

Retirement Requires Planning

By ELMER ROESSNER
Few executives achieve success if they lack the stability to anticipate future conditions and accurately forecast trends. Yet many who reach the top professionally fall flat on their faces when they retire because they are unprepared.

Four major pitfalls await those going out the company's doors for the last time: finances, place of retirement, activities, and health.

Inflation, which is always with us, is the financial bugaboo of retirees. If there is a choice, retirement incomes that fluctuate with purchasing power are preferable. They protect against dilution where fixed incomes do not. Diversified income sources are also desirable as a hedge against economic changes and dislocations.

And a general scaling down of living standards, spending level and demands on life is not only in keeping with a slower paced existence, but easier on the wallet as well. Health is important both for the well-being of the individual and for its effects on the other three factors of finances, location and activities. Arranging in advance, when possible, for good medical care after retirement is a good precaution.

Once Of Prevention
It is even more important to guard health before retirement. Treatment is easier and more beneficial in the middle years than later when health may have suffered and the body doesn't respond as well.

Because retirement seldom works out as anticipated, several main and alternate activities should be developed. Trying them out before retirement day tests their charm and staying power.

In any event, some kind of activities should be pursued. Complete idleness after retirement can be both boring and life shortening.

A good tactic is to maintain business connections, especially if there might be an opportunity for part-time or consulting work. These keep up a person's interest in things and life while easing the financial strain.

Picking A Spot
The choice of where to retire frequently is restricted by the other three factors. Finances can eliminate some possibilities, interests and activities others, health needs still others.

But a wide range of potential places may remain. These should be checked carefully before retirement to see if they live up to their reputations and the retiree's imagination.

A visit, especially an extended one, is a must for evaluating a retirement spot. It can be very revealing if times for the locale's worst season. Attractive, inexpensive, out-of-the-way places are risky. They usually are dull after a while and lack the services and comforts older people require.

Nothing should be taken for granted in making retirement plans. All facts and notions should be carefully checked to avoid displacement and waste of time and money. And the checking should be done as early in the game as possible.

Mayor Passed His Big Trial By Tornado

By MIKE WESTER
LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — James H. Granberry had been mayor of Texas' eighth largest city only three weeks when, on May 11, a tornado ripped out the heart of Lubbock.

In a terrifying five minutes one of the worst tornadoes in Texas history killed 26 persons, injured an estimated 1,500 and caused damage placed at $200 million.

For the 37-year-old dentist-turned-mayor, life changed instantly.

Suddenly, 2,600 Lubbock families were plunged into various degrees of distress. Ninety of the injured were hospitalized. With 949 homes destroyed or heavily damaged, 1,800 persons required emergency shelter and 11,664 were provided by the American Red Cross with 34,994 hot meals in a week.

regarded as "de facto," and thus to be accepted, while Virginia's lesser segregation is residually "de jure," and hence to be condemned. Both Norfolk and Richmond face Draconian orders to destroy their neighborhood schools through the madness of compulsory busing. Gary is immune.

Such a dual standard of justice, as Virginia's Senator William B. Spong remarked the other day, is morally and constitutionally indefensible. Whatever the Constitution requires the same thing of all States.

Is gibberish too strong a word? Consider. The Court's definition of a unitary school system is one "within which no person is to be effectively excluded from any school because of race or color." All clear? Yet in Norfolk alone, 16,000 pupils would be effectively excluded from the schools they normally would attend because of their race or color.

The Court has insisted there be no black schools and no which schools, but "just schools." Great. What are "just schools"? Why, says the Court, they are schools in which race is not a factor. But race has become the sole factor in recent lower court decrees.

This intolerable mess was created by the Supreme Court. It can be resolved only by the Supreme Court. Justice Marshall has now recovered. Justice Blackmun is seated. If Burger will roust his idle brothers out of their hammocks, any one of a dozen pending cases could be swiftly scheduled for argument at a special sitting of the Court. It seems little enough to ask of nine men who collectively are paid $542,500 a year to function as the highest tribunal in the land.

Praise From Experts
What can a mayor of three weeks, accustomed to the quiet decorum of a dental office, do when confronted with so frightening an emergency?

"I have never seen rescue and relief operations brought into being more quickly or effectively," said Gen. George A. Lincoln, the president's personal representative to the disaster area, who flew in from Washington the next morning.

"Disaster operations are always difficult, but this has been the smoothest I have known," said George Hastings, who also arrived the following day to coordinate the entire federal relief and recovery effort. "I attribute it to an excellent city government, and to full understanding and cooperation by the city, county and state governments."

Hastings, of Denton, Tex., is regional director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness. Lincoln is director of the OEP, working directly under the president. Both arrived in Lubbock after the city's emergency operating center had swung into action. "You handled everything perfectly," said U.S. Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., who comes from Lubbock.

No Forewarning
Granberry, who defeated the incumbent mayor in an April 21 election, was at home with his family when the tornado dipped down from a crashing, lightning-filled thunderstorm which grew more violent as it approached the West Texas city.

coin — the liberal New York establishment — were ready to take up the slack left by Republican defectors. But here, too, there is bad news for Goodell.

In the first place, the anti-war liberal credentials of his Democratic opponent, Rep. Richard Ottinger, are fully as credible (though not so dramatic) as Goodell's own. But more important, Ottinger's pocketbook bulges with campaign dollars from the family's plywood fortune, and the lavish flow of Ottinger money which infuriated his Democratic opponents in the primary election is certain to be surpassed this fall.

By contrast, Goodell has a mere $250,000 pledged by the Republican state committee with little more in sight at least until September.

Thus, while Ottinger buys television time and cuts TV tapes for the October homestretch, cash on the line, Goodell must wait until his money starts coming in and that may be a long wait.

New Bern Man Built 1899 Car

By H. G. JONES
Dept. of Archives and History
Written for the AP
RALEIGH (AP) — What is believed to have been the first automobile constructed in North Carolina was built by Gilbert S. Waters of New Bern in 1899.

Waters and his father were engaged in the prosperous business of manufacturing buggies in New Bern. Gilbert visited Baltimore, where for the first time he saw "horseless carriages" driven by steam engines.

Excited by the idea of a self-propelled carriage, he returned to New Bern and within the year had completed his own machine, which, unlike the horseless carriages he had seen in Baltimore, was powered by a gasoline engine.

The original "Buggymobile," as Mr. Waters called his vehicle, was quite a success. On the day of its first demonstration the streets were cleared and a skeptic is reported to have said, "He may get it started—but he will never stop it!"

He did get it started and, in Waters' own words, "On my first test I raced down Main Street at twelve miles an hour." Though no specific account remains, he apparently had no trouble stopping it either.

Waters, encouraged by his initial success, was ready to convert his buggy factory into an automobile plant and "make buggymobiles by the thousands." His enthusiasm, however, was not shared by those who could have provided the financial backing. His father grew tired of his "senseless experiments" with horseless carriages and withdrew from the firm. A local banker laughed at the idea of a self-propelled buggy, and Waters was told that horses and buggies would always be used and buggies without horses would never be practical. They would be too expensive and dangerous his critics claimed. Another banker is reported to have said, "You are doing well enough in the buggy business. You had better let well enough alone."

Unable to secure backing for his radical venture, Waters reluctantly went back to making buggies. Meanwhile, Henry Ford opened his automobile plant in Detroit and the first "Model T" Fords came on the market.

Although he was unable to put his creation into production for the public, Gilbert Waters' personal interest and faith in self-propelled road vehicles did not diminish. His first "Buggymobile" was soon worn out, and he built a new one in 1903. According to some accounts it utilized the same engine that had been in the earlier model. It was this vehicle which Waters personally drove for over 35 years and which repeatedly gained national attention.

In 1939, when the car was 36 years old and Waters was 70, he was invited to carry the vehicle to New York and appear as a guest on the nationwide radio program, "We The People." Asked by host Gabriel Heatter if the car would still run, he replied, "It runs as good as it did 36 years ago. I can still hit 35 miles an hour in it, and I get 40 miles to the gallon. That's better mileage than most streamlined cars get. I think mine is better looking, too."

To strengthen the credibility of his remarks, Waters then cranked the "Buggymobile" for the radio audience and the sound of its engine was heard from coast to coast.

Reflecting on those days just after the turn of the century, Waters said in 1939, "When I used to ask people to ride with me I would often get funny answers. They refused to 'risk their lives' with me. They held tightly on the seats when they did go and looked scared to death. A fat woman that weighed about 200 pounds screamed bloody murder from the time she got in until she landed safely back at home."

The "Buggymobile" which Gilbert S. Waters built in New Bern in 1903 and was still driving 36 years later is now on display in the North Carolina Museum of History at 109 E. Jones St. in Raleigh.

Nineteen years ago, in a small cellar on the fashionable Avenue George V, Alian Bernadin built a versio of the frontier barroom. He called it The Crazy Horse Saloon. His opening show was an all-American girlie revue in English. Since then he has tripled his space and introduced what he believes is the replacement of Burlesque, a declining art in America. He believes there is something worth salvaging from the idea.

Early in the game he changed the system. Rather than hire girls with routines he wrote what he calls "little plays," and would then find the right "actress" to play the part. His success was immediate.

Since he opened he has written and directed more than 100 acts. He has had to interview literally thousands of girls to get the right ones.

Bernadin thinks he has an exportable item. He is preparing a second show that will soon open in a new Crazy Horse Saloon in New York.

Where it will all end no one knows, but when the first shipment of French cowboys goes west it would seem that someone should be getting a few cases of American wine ready for a tryout in Paris.

Huge Chicago Housing Project Cops' Nightmare

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—The Cabrini-Green public housing project, where two policemen were killed from ambush, was built by government officials who never dreamed that 3,500 apartments stacked in uneven piles would become a cop's nightmare.

Cabrini-Green, named after a saint and a labor leader, houses nearly 18,000 persons in 78 high-rise buildings spread over 80 acres on the Near North Side, barely a mile from Michigan Avenue's luxury shops and apartment towers. There are 3,573 apartments in the Cabrini-Green complex.

The project's first buildings were rowhouses started in 1943 when the neighborhood was populated by Italian-Americans. It was named after St. Frances Xavier Cabrini, the Italian-born nun who was the only American canonized by the Roman Catholic Church.

An extension of 15 high rises was completed in 1958 and another section of 15- and 16-story units were added in 1962 and named after the late labor leader, William Green.

"At the time," said an official of the Chicago Housing Authority, "Cabrini was the most desirable public housing in Chicago."

Today, hundreds of two-to-five bedroom apartments renting from $60 to $95 a month are vacant despite the shortage of low-cost housing. Street gangs have infested the area and vacant apartments as shifting command posts in their deadly wars with rivals.

Last year, there were 5 persons killed and 41 persons wounded in gang-related shootings at Cabrini-Green.

Thousands of children, many raised only by mothers who work, are recruited by gangs and threatened by adolescent enforcers.

Tenants once were organized against gang pressure but now police are frustrated by residents and victims who refuse to identify and testify against hoodlums who roam the hallways and stairwells of the project.

CHA records show that 99 percent of Cabrini's 17,650 inhabitants are Negro. There are 5,180 adults and 12,470 children. Of more than 3,000 families with children, the CHA said 1,978 are broken families and the great majority are missing a father rather than a mother.

Cabrini was the scene of sniping and rockthrowing for two days in April 1968 after the death of Martin Luther King, Jr. A smaller-scale riot occurred there a year later.

"The good families were chased out," Cmdr. John O'Shea of the Cabrini district said.

Sniping between buildings is a "nightly exercise" at Cabrini, police say, and it was so intense at one point that police were ordered to the rooftops.

In addition, police have tried putting patrolmen inside the buildings and, most recently, have experimented with a walk-and-talk program.

The walk-talk project, as conceived last December, placed officers in selected neighborhoods to spend most of their time getting to know youngsters, parents, shopkeepers and others.

But the program gradually evolved into something similar to the traditional foot patrol, and it was suspended indefinitely last Thursday in the wake of the slaying of two policemen on walk-talk duty.

Police say four youths broke into a sixth-floor apartment July 17 and used the bathroom as a sniper's perch to fire high-powered bullets in the backs of Sgt. James Severein, 38, and Patrolman Anthony Rizzato, 37, as they walked across a baseball field.

Four youths have been charged with the murders. The murders of Severein and Rizzato spotlighted the crisis at Cabrini-Green but the gang situation and violence there is no worse than in similar high-rise projects elsewhere in the city.

The 18th Police District, which includes Cabrini, ranked sixth in the city last year in gang-related shooting and murders.

Clarence Braasch who formerly commanded the 18th District which includes the Cabrini project declines to predict whether Cabrini will return to a terror-free community.

One of the reasons for the inability of the community to organize was the lack of leadership.

Braasch said, "Some of this was caused by the federal housing income ceiling. A guy capable of providing leadership was also capable of earning more money and he was forced to leave the project."

The CHA has revised its regulations and now raises rents in proportion to salaries which rise above the admission ceiling.

O'Shea was optimistic about the cooperation of the residents in the police slayings.

"They didn't want to get involved before," he said. "Now they find they have to be involved and they did a wonderful job. It shows great promise that they want to cooperate."

Opening lead: Three of ♣
After East opened the bidding with one club in third position, South chose to overcall with one heart in preference to making a take-out double. He was interested in only one suit, and unless partner could act on his own initiative, South felt that there was little chance of missing a game. When North raised to two hearts, South proceeded to four.

West opened the three of clubs, East put up the ace and realizing that it might not be safe to continue the suit, he switched to the ace and nine of spades. South played the king.

Prospects were not very bright, for the declarer was confronted with the loss of two more tricks—one each in spades and clubs. His only apparent chance was to effect an end play. East's failure to continue clubs suggested that he held the queen of that suit. If he had started with only two spades, then South might thrust the lead on him at a time when he had no safe means of exit.

First it was necessary to begin a stripping operation. Declarer led a diamond to the ace and ruffed a diamond in his hand. He cashed the ace of hearts and led a heart to dummy's jack. The last diamond was trumped by South and the king of hearts drew East's remaining trump. The stage was now set.

Declarer played the king and another club, putting East in with the queen. The latter had only minor suit cards left, and the return of either a diamond or club permitted South to discard his spade loser while he ruffed with North's queen of hearts. The defense was restricted to two club tricks and one spade.

East was in position to defeat the contract by playing the nine of clubs on West's opening lead to dislodge declarer's king. If South leads a spade from dummy subsequently, East must rise with the ace, cash the ace and queen of clubs and then wait for West to score later with the queen of spades.

We are not inclined to charge East with an error, for the play of the nine of clubs would have cost a trick if West, and South's club holdings were reversed. Furthermore, the end position could not be determined at trick one.

Squatters Seize Apartments For Lack Of Housing

By JOE NICHOLSON Jr.
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Rivera, who is 28 and drives a tow truck for $125 a week, recently moved his wife and five children into a six-room tenement apartment on Manhattan's upper West Side.

Mrs. Melba Bruno, a 39-year-old divorcee and welfare recipient, also occupied a five-room apartment nearby with her four children.

And, Jimmie Rosario, a factory worker who makes $110 a week, lived briefly with his wife and seven children in a four-story brownstone tenement in Manhattan's Chelsea section.

All of them—the Riveras, Brunos and Rosarios—had one thing in common. They were squatters who illegally seized apartments in vacant, though still habitable, buildings because they claimed they could not find decent, low price housing after their own dwellings had been torn down.

Most of the squatters claim their homes are demolished by landlords to make room for high-rise, luxury apartments the squatters can't afford. Since the squatter movement began in March, more than 175 poor families have broken into vacant buildings, using crowbars and sledgehammers.

Most of the squatters are Puerto Ricans and Dominicans. The majority of the occupied buildings are city-owned; among the several thousand structures taken over from tax-delinquent landlords or bought for urban renewal.

So far the city has not evicted the squatters from the municipally owned structures. In fact, said a spokesman for Albert A. Walsh, city housing and development administrator, the city has helped connect water and other utilities for 30 squatter families. He warned, however, that the city would have to evict the squatters when it is time to demolish their buildings.

Mayor John V. Lindsay's housing aides concede the shortage of low-income housing is a crisis here.

"There are 130,000 families on the waiting list for public housing," said Walsh's aide. "I can't dramatize the low-income housing crisis any better than that." In other urban areas, such as Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and Philadelphia, authorities report drifters and hippies occasionally move into abandoned buildings.

But only Boston has had a squatter movement similar to the one here. Three times last fall poor families "liberated" apartments in abandoned buildings. Police evicted them, using tear gas.

Rivera explained his plight. He said the large low-rent apartments he could find were "not decent—falling apart, with leaking water and rats and roaches."

"A friend told me there was a group breaking down doors and liberating city buildings, fixing the plumbing, doors, windows, painting," he continued.

"We had to be the leaders. The first night we slept on the floor with no electricity, no gas, no water, no tubs, no toilet bowls. All we had was a candle in front of each door.

"We liberated toilet bowls and sinks from other vacant buildings. Some people bought their own stoves second-hand for $10 or $15.

"It was very rough. This fellow Johnny and myself were up 44 hours without sleep putting in water and gas. Most squatters are women, and we had to help them."

The Rev. Henry J. Browne has supported squatters in their confrontations with courts and city agencies.

Browne, pastor of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic church, was asked if the squatters were justified in seizing city-owned and privately owned real estate.

"It's like a starving man eating a loaf of bread," he responded. "Is that stealing?"

"Where can the poor go when their tenements are torn down? Out of their minds mostly. Doubling up in the projects with relatives. It's desperate. This is where the squatting movement began.

"The situation is a comment on our affluence. We don't face housing as a human need. We face it as an industry."

To "ease" the housing crisis by 1974, a housing spokesman said, the city will have to increase its production of low-income apartments from its current rate of 15,000 a year to 40,000 a year.

Federal government subsidy for low-income housing is the only solution, he added, because inflation has drained profits from this type of construction.

"If these people start squatting all over the city, you'll have anarchy, complete chaos," he said.

Won't Comply Without Tests

RALEIGH (AP)—The state of North Carolina and 10 of its local units say they will not comply with a federal court desegregation order "until we have exhausted all judicial remedies."

But that could come in just a few days. Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan asked the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday to block a desegregation order which he said would make the state "a czar in education."

The court order, issued Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Algernon Butler, directed the Board of Education to see that the 10 school systems file acceptable desegregation orders by next Tuesday.

Morgan contended that the order violated "the principles of due process (by) deciding the issue without giving us time to file an answer."

He said the order "involves the very basis of North Carolina's school operation" by assuming that the state has power to control pupil assignments at the local level.

The action would "thrust upon the state the responsibility of becoming a czar in education," Morgan added.

The districts involved are the city units of Burlington, Goldsboro, Maxton, Rocky Mount, Tarboro and Raleigh, and the county units of Bladen, Edgecombe, Guilford and Union.

Morgan said he will know in the next few days whether the circuit court or the U.S. Supreme Court will accept the appeal. "Once we have exhausted all the remedies, and if the ruling is still against us, we will do as we have always urged all citizens to do—obey the law," he said.

Representatives of the U.S. Office of Education's Atlanta office flew into Raleigh Tuesday night and early Wednesday to begin sessions with the districts to help them form acceptable plans.

Designing Car That Will Fly

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — An engineering company plans to test soon its designs for adapting a standard car into an airplane.

Henry Smolinski, president of Advanced Vehicle Engineers, says he'll put a Pontiac in the air by the end of the year.

The idea of a car that could be rigged easily to fly has interested engineers, and commuters, for years. But, says Smolinski, previous designs were hard to assemble and the ground vehicles inadequate.

His design—a wing, tail and pusher engine assembly attached to the car roof and bottom—will be adapted for a dozen modern cars, he says.

CARE Wraps Up Israel Program

JERUSALEM (AP) — The CARE relief agency has ended 21 years of food parcel distribution in Israel with the presentation here of the agency's 800,000th food package.

CARE's director in Israel, Harold Sillcox, said the agency would continue other projects in Israel and the occupied territories, including feeding of about 20,000 mothers and preschool children in the Gaza Strip and providing food rations to about 130,000 Arabs in the territories occupied by Israel in the 1967 war.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a compromise $18 billion appropriations bill which Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania says is "in danger of being vetoed."

The measure provides financing for the Department of Housing and Urban Development and a score of independent agencies. Originally, the House approved $17.4 billion, while the Senate went to $18.6 billion. The

Greenville Teams Sweep To Finals In Little League Area Tournament

ROBERSONVILLE — It will be an all Greenville finish to the Area II Little League Tournament going on in Robersonville. Both the North State and Tar Heel Little League All-Stars came out victorious yesterday over opposing teams from Fort Bragg.

The Tar Heels beat Bragg's American team, 11-0, while the North Staters took an 11-1 win to gain the finals. Both Greenville pitchers turned in fine performances.

Jeff Barber struck out 12 and walked five in tossing a one-hitter at the Bragg National team for the North State team. Jim Wilkerson of the Tar Heels struck out eight and walked two while allowing just three hits in his victory.

The two will meet this afternoon at 5 p.m. for the title, with the winner meeting the survivor of the Area I contest in Beaufort for the District 4 title.

That game will be held in Robersonville, Saturday at 4 p.m. The winner moves on to the sectional in Greenville next week.

Still in the battle in Beaufort, going into yesterday's games were Swansboro, Beaufort, Havelock and Newport.

In yesterday's opening game, the Tar Heels took the lead with two runs in the second inning, and it was all they needed. Paul Farmer reached on an error and moved to second on a wild pitch. Keith James walked and Mike Brewington sacrificed them up. Lee Shearin reached on an error, scoring Farmer and moving Jones to third. The two worked the double steal with Jones scoring the second run.

It stayed that way until the fifth, when Greenville scored again. James Weeks walked and stole second. An error on the play let him move on to third, where another error scored him for a 3-0 lead.

The Tar Heels broke it open in the sixth with eight more runs. Farmer led off with an infield hit and was wild and was wild pitched around to third. Jones walked and Brewington singled, scoring Farmer. Greg Sasser walked, leading the bases, but Weeks hit into a fielder's choice, getting Jones at the plate. Mike Belton walked, forcing in Brewington, and Wilkerson's grounder was played to third, where it was errored, allowing Sasser and Weeks both to score. Macon Moye walked, reloading the bases and Farmer finished things off with a grand-slam homer, raising the score to 11-0.

The Americans had several threats, their best coming in the fifth, when David Deese singled with Jim McIver on second. He would have scored, but had left second too soon and had to return. Farmers and Brewington led the Tar Heel hitting with two each.

The North Staters moved out in front in the first inning, scoring three times. Kelly Heath led off with a single and Chris Garrett reached on a fielder's choice sacrifice, and both advanced on an error. Barber helped his own cause with a bunt single that scored Heath. Jimmy Averette reached on an error and Ed Mayo hit a sacrifice fly to score Garrett. Another sacrifice fly by Connor Merritt scored Barber for the 3-0 lead.

In the third, the National team picked up its lone run for the day. Clarence Morris reached on an error and took third on another. Joel Patten walked and Mark Dillion reached on an infield on another. Joel Patten walked and Mark Dillion reached on an infield hit, loading the bases. Larry Livingston then drew a walk, forcing in Morris with the lone run.

In the fourth, the North Staters came up with two more runs for a 5-1 lead. Ashley Bass walked and took second on a wild pitch. Harry Pair also walked and another pass to Garrett loaded the bases. Barber got in infield hit off the pitcher's glove, scoring Pair after Bass had come home on a passed ball.

Two more came over in the fifth. Wayne Miller singled and Bass, attempting to sacrifice, reached on an error, allowing Miller to score. Bass went to third on the play, and came home of Pair's sacrifice fly.

The North Staters wrapped it up in the sixth with four more runs. Gordon Sutton walked and Mayo reached on a single. Carlton Walls singled to score Sutton, and moved up on an error. Miller got a hit, driving in Mayo and Walls scored on a passed ball. A wild pitch let Miller come in with the final run of the game.

Heath led the North State hitting with four, while Barber and Miller each had two.

Injuries Appearing, But Coaches Are Pleased With All-Star Work

Both the North and South Coaches for the Boys Home All-Star Bowl Game are pleased with the work done so far by their players, but injuries are beginning to cause somewhat of a problem.

The annual benefit game for the Boys Home of Lake Waccamaw will be played Saturday at 8 p.m. at Ficklen Stadium.

One of the key injuries is to the lone Greenville player in the game, Mike Harrington. "He has been looking real good," South Coach Cameron Little of Jacksonville said. "We hope he's going to be ready to go by Saturday night. He has been catching the ball in a crowd and doing a fine job with his clocking."

Little went on to point out that several other players have been hurt to a lesser extent. They include backs John Mallard, Charles McLellan, Will Brame and Jim Sheffield and guard Don Miller. "I hope most of them will be ready," the coach said. "Harrington is the only real questionable one."

On the North side of the field, coach Dick Kemp of Elizabeth City finds things going well. "We have a couple of injuries. Guard Johnny Wood (Mt. Airy) was hurt and couldn't continue, so we replaced him with Ken Simmons of Burlington. Another boy hurt is guard Mike Bunch, and we are unsure whether he'll be able to play."

Generally, both coaches feel that the players reported in good condition, and have even improved during the week so far. They are also performing well in learning the play assignments.

"We've even added a couple of more plays than I thought we would get in," Kemp said. "Generally speaking they have a lot of football sense. They're easy to teach."

Kemp said that right now defense is the big problem. "You have to do a lot of guessing about what the other team will do. Our defenses are limited on both sides. We'll use the same pattern all the time, with no stunting or redogging."

The offense, meanwhile, will be mixing it up. "We'll be passing more than I'm used to. The ends and flankers are looking good. We are supposed to have good speed, but that's relative. And we don't have any size advantage in the line."

Little is also pleased with the way his defense is going. "We'll be using the same type defensive lineup," he said. "But right now, it's looking good."

On offense, Little feels he has smaller backs, but there is good speed and while a couple are pretty small, they are quite shifty. "I've also been pleased with the ends, but I'll have to make some changes if Harrington isn't ready."

Little also admitted that while he wasn't a passing coach, he'll be doing more than he's used to in this game. "Our quarterback, John Pennington (South Mecklenberg) is impressive. He's doing a good job and has good size (6-2, 190)."

"A guard, Joe Hunter (Brevard) is a real hustler, and another Jeff Stocks (New Bern) does a real good job. He'll be our defensive single caller."

Little said that all of the players have worked hard this week and it is a credit to them.

Both coaches look for a high scoring game. "I don't know who'll be doing all the scoring, but I look for a lot of it."

"That is," Kemp said, "if there are not a whole bunch of mistakes that cut the scoring down."

"The big problem is that with a set defense," Little said, "You can't make a change in your defense to stop something, you can only change personnel."

And Kemp added, "If you are out-personneled, there is nothing you can do."

But as to which team will win, both coaches are in full agreement. "It'll be the team that wants it the most," they said.

For the past six years, the North has been that team, after the South won the opening game.

Kemp is out to continue that string, while Little is just as determined that it won't happen again.

The outcome will be known Saturday night.

All-Stars Keep Working Hard

By JERRY LISKA

Associated Press Sports Writer CHICAGO (AP) — It's hard to upstage the All-Star Football Game but the raging National Football League labor dispute is doing just that to Friday night's meeting between the pro champion Kansas City Chiefs and the top collegiate seniors of '69.

Only last week, it took a special dispensation from the embattled NFL owners and veteran players to permit the Chiefs to get ready for the Soldier Field Charity classic sponsored by the Chicago Tribune.

And yesterday, pro football's bitter contract dispute was brought to Chicago with the NFL owners announcing here they were lifting their ban against veterans at training camp and the NFL Players' Association meeting here last night to map future strategy.

Meanwhile, coach Otto Graham's All-Stars and the Chiefs, arriving today from their Liberty, Mo., training base, tapered off training for the game which will be televised nationally via ABC beginning at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

Graham has a 53-player squad, including 21 first-round picks in last January's pro football draft, hopeful of ending a six-year victory famine in the series in which the pro champions hold a 25-8-2 edge.

The Chiefs, who stunned the Minnesota Vikings 23-7 in the Super Bowl game, are listed as 10-point favorites despite the fact they practiced formally only since last Saturday. Graham has been working the All-Stars at Northwestern University since July 10.

However, the collegians have had only one hard scrimmage and, until last weekend, drilled with the uncertainty that the game ever would be played due to the NFL labor strife.

Graham's attack hinges on only two quarterbacks, Dennis Shaw of San Diego State and Mike Phipps of Purdue. The No. 1 pro draft pick, quarterback Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech, was sent back to his Pittsburgh Steeler camp because of a leg injury.

Graham flipped a coin to choose his starting quarterback and it came up for Shaw.

Although the All-Stars have won only two games in the last 14 years, Graham nearly pulled an upset last year against the Joe Namath-led New York Jets. Quarterback Greg Cook of Cincinnati sparked the All-Stars to a 17-point third quarter and the Jets escaped with a 26-24 victory after leading 13-0 at halftime.

Aaron Raps Two In Leading Atlanta Win

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer Hank Aaron is taking the high road; Carl Morton and Wayne Granger the low ... and it's a good bet all three will get where they're going.

Aaron hammered a pair of chin-high fast balls over the Atlanta Stadium fences Wednesday night, knocking in five runs and leading the Braves to a 9-7 comeback victory over St. Louis.

Morton, Montreal's precocious pitching ace, kept the ball down—and inside little Jarry Park—while hurling the Expos past San Diego 4-3 for his 14th victory of the season.

Granger, Cincinnati's gifted relief specialist, registered his 24th save of the year by tossing double play balls in the eighth and ninth innings as the Reds nipped Pittsburgh 4-3.

Bobby Bonds drove in three runs with two homers as San Francisco trimmed the New York Mets 4-2 and the Chicago Cubs slugged Houston 9-2 in National League day games. Los Angeles' night game at Philadelphia was rained out.

Aaron's second homer of the game and his 28th of the year produced the last three of five Atlanta runs in the seventh inning, bringing the Braves back from a 6-4 deficit. He also drilled a two-run homer in the third and needs 18 to reach the 600 career mark surpassed by only two sluggers—Babe Ruth and Willie Mays.

Hoyt Wilhelm came out of the Braves' bullpen in the ninth to fan Richie Allen for the final out, stranding the tying runs on the bases. Allen and pinch-hitter Joe Hague homered for the Cardinals.

Morton, a one-time outfielder, became the second rookie to win 14—Cincinnati's Wayne Simpson is the other—by checking the Padres on four hits. Rusty Staub, hitless in 12 previous at-bats, provided the margin with a fifth-inning homer.

Granger, who picked up 27 saves last year while setting a major league record of 90 mound appearances, preserved Gary Nolan's 14th victory, in 18 decisions after Pete Rose sent the Reds ahead in the sixth with a two-run single.

The slender sidearm replaced Clay Carroll with one out and two on in the eighth and fed Manny Sanguillen a double play pitch. Then he got Dave Cash to bounce into a game-ending double play after ninth-inning singles by Gene Alley and Bill Mazeroski.

Player Group For Show Of Strength In Chicago

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Like responding to the bugle call for a last-ditch battle, veteran National Football League players grouped in Chicago throughout Wednesday night in a show of strength against club owners in their bitter pension dispute that now threatens the game's structure.

A spokesman for the NFL Players' Association said that nearly 100 players had arrived by midnight.

The motel for the gathering, conveniently adjacent to O'Hare International Airport, reported that more players were expected and rooms were being set aside.

It was a chain reaction to owners who announced they would unlock their training camps and invited "any players willing to report" by 6 p.m. local time today.

It was a move obviously aimed at finding out if any veterans would defy the NFLPA and report, thus making a wedge that could lead to fulfillment of the preseason schedule of games starting with the Cleveland Browns at the Los Angeles Rams a week from Friday.

However, as time begins to run out solidification against the owners apparently continued. By midnight, players' spokesmen from the Browns, Chicago Bears, New Orleans Saints and Kansas City Chiefs were among those definitely declaring they would not pass through the unlocked training camp doors.

The world champion Chiefs were unique in the situation. They were granted a week to prepare in camp for the All-Star game in Soldier Field Friday night.

The game is a charity event sponsored by the Chicago Tribune which has netted some $11 million since its inception in 1934.

Unless the dispute is settled the game will blow camp after the game.

All player representatives except Jim Tyrer of the Chiefs were at the overnight meetings while the other players sat in. Tyrer, from the Liberty, Mo., training camp said that "the players are prepared to sacrifice the entire exhibition season if necessary."

Ten teams are involved in games next week and all 26 the following week.

The nub of the squabble is the demand by players for the owners to boost their four-year $18 million pension contribution offer. The NFLPA is asking for $26 million.

Sharpening the players look at their pension demands was the death from cancer in June of the Chicago Bears' Brian Piccolo. His family, although receiving insurance benefits, got nothing from the pension fund.

A Piccolo benefit scrimmage between the Bears and the St. Louis Cardinals scheduled for Saturday in Rensselaer, Ind., has been postponed until further

Melton, Chance Break Their Hitting Slumps

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer Bill Melton and Dean Chance, the strikeout kings, have finally broken out of their slumps—Melton with a bang and Chance, as could be expected, with a bunt.

Melton, the hard-hitting Chicago outfielder who struck out 10 times in as many official at bats until he fled out Tuesday night, made contact Wednesday night with two hits that keyed the White Sox 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Chance, perhaps the worst hitter in baseball, also had two important hits that started the Cleveland Indians to a 9-8 squeaker over the Minnesota Twins.

Melton didn't conceal his joy over the end of his brief skid, but Chance shrugged off the finish of his seven-year slump.

"Why are you so surprised?" he asked. "It's not a big thing at all. Once before I got two hits in one game and I got those off the best pitcher in baseball—Sam McDowell."

That was when Chance pitched for the Los Angeles Angels; now McDowell is his teammate and he, too, remembered the embarrassing day.

"They were both bunts in 1963," he laughed, "and one of them was a hit only because no one was covering first base."

With both division leaders losing, only Detroit was able to take advantage with a 10-3 victory over Kansas City to pull within six games of the Orioles in the East. California was beaten by the New York Yankees 8-3 and remained seven back of the Twins in the West.

In other games, Boston stopped Oakland 4-1 and Washington nudged Milwaukee 4-2.

Melton, who tied a record last Friday by fanning seven times in a doubleheader, and then added three more whiffs in his next game Tuesday night before hitting the ball, was a new man Wednesday night.

After popping out in the first inning and flying out in the fourth, he smashed a double to open the seventh, and scored the tying run on Duane Josephson's single.

Then in the ninth, he singled with one out, moved to third on Josephson's single, off loser Jim Hardin, 2-2, and scored the winning run on Bob Spence's sacrifice fly off reliever Pete Richter.

Chance who had only one hit in 26 at bats this season—better than usual for him—stunned the Twins with a run-scoring single in the second inning after Harmon Killebrew's 32nd homer in the first for Minnesota. Loser Dave Boswell walked in another run.

Then in the third, Chance beat out a bunt with the bases loaded for a run, and Vada Pinson followed with the seventh grand slam homer of his career.

The Indians built a 9-1 lead when Graig Nettles hit his 16th homer in the fourth and Buddy Bradford doubled in the fifth for what turned out to be the deci-

Chance, 6-5, only recently rescued from the bullpen, gave up Tony Oliva's 16th homer in the sixth and then left after walking the leadoff man in the eighth, and it took four pitchers in the ninth to finally stop the Twins with three runs in and the tying run on third base with two out.

Detroit took advantage of Kansas City boo boos for six unearned runs in the fifth inning—two of them on Don Wert's homer—and Mickey Stanley added two solo shots.

With two out and two on in the fifth, outfielder Lou Piniella appeared to lose a fly ball in the lights and two runs scored on the two-base error. Then center fielder Amos Otis seemed to misjudge Bill Freehan's liner and it went for a two-run triple. Then Wert celebrated his 32nd birthday.

Claims Manson Hunted Next Victims

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson was dissatisfied by the "messy" killings of actress Sharon Tate and four others and "to show us how to do it" led members of his hippie-type clan on a random search for more victims the next night, Linda Kasabian says.

In her third day on the stand in the trial of Manson and three women followers, Mrs. Kasabian related Wednesday that the communal "family" chieftain followed an erratic course through the Los Angeles area last Aug. 10, stopping at six different places—including a church—before he found the victims.

The state says the journey ended in the slayings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca, wealthy market owners.

Mrs. Kasabian said she drove part of the time, with Manson directing.

First, she said, they went from their commune at the Spahn-movie ranch to Pasadena. She said she stopped the car in front of a house and Manson got out, peered in the windows and returned to the car.

"Charlie told us that when he walked up to the house and looked in the window he saw pictures of children on the wall and he couldn't go in, he couldn't do it," she said.

At another stop she said Manson declared "the houses are too close together."

A third stop was at a church where Mrs. Kasabian said Manson announced that "he was going in to find the minister or priest or whoever was in there."

"He came back to the car and said the doors were locked," she continued.

She said the group at Manson's directions drove through Hollywood hills, then headed for the ocean where they approached a hilltop house only to be stopped by a chain fence at the gate.

Suddenly, she said, Manson began directing her back through Los Angeles and "he seemed to know where he was going." She said they wound up at the home of an acquaintance of Mrs. Kasabian and she asked Manson: "Charlie, you're not going to that house, are you?"

"He said no, I'm going next door," Mrs. Kasabian testified.

The home next door, the state says, belonged to the LaBiancas.

Manson, she said, left the car and returned minutes later. "I heard him say there were a man and a woman up at the house and that he had told them not to be afraid, that he wasn't going to hurt them."

The state contends that Manson tied up the victims, then left his followers behind to kill them.

Mrs. Kasabian said those in the car with her and Manson were Patricia "Katie" Krenwinkel, 22, Susan "Sadie" Atkins, 24, Charles "Tex" Watson, 24, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and a "family" member known as Clem Tufts. The state says Tufts remained asleep in the car and he has not been charged in the case. Manson and his three women codefendants are on trial for murder-conspiracy. Watson is fighting extradition from Texas.

Two defense attorneys in the trial spent the night in jail after being cited for contempt of court by the judge, who refused to hear arguments against the citations.

Irving Kanarek, 51, attorney for Manson, and Ronald Hughes, 35, representing Miss Van Houten, were led out of court Wednesday by bailiffs.

Kanarek, who objected vainly to virtually every prosecution question to Mrs. Kasabian, was cited for interrupting a witness. Hughes, handling his first trial, was cited for using an obscenity during a conference at the bench.

Fuquay-Varina Market Ruling Seen Next Week

TRENTON, N.C. (AP)—Federal District Judge John D. Larkins Jr. is expected to rule sometime next week on whether the U.S. Department of Agriculture must provide tobacco inspectors on the Fuquay-Varina market for an opening with the Eastern Belt Aug. 18.

The town near Raleigh has traditionally been part of the Middle Belt, which opens this year on Sept. 1. Now it wants to be treated as part of the Eastern Belt.

Larkins completed a hearing late Wednesday and gave attorneys for both sides five days to file additional briefs. He said he hoped to dispose of the case next week. He also withheld a ruling on a government motion for dismissal of the suit.

The Fuquay-Varina Tobacco Board of Trade is seeking a preliminary injunction to require the USDA to provide the inspection service pending a full hearing.

request, since all markets would seek such service for an early opening.

They said the USDA must work through recognized tobacco associations in providing grader and price-support service.

F. S. Royster of Henderson, managing director of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association; Don S. Watkins Jr. of Oxford, president of the Middle Belt Warehouse Association; and Spencer S. Edmondson of Rocky Mount, president of the Eastern Carolina Warehouse Association, all supported the USDA position.

Royster said that he felt permitting the Fuquay-Varina market to open with the Eastern Belt would have a disruptive effect on the shole marketing system.

Farm and warehouse leaders in the area have long contended that their tobacco matures early enough to begin sales with the Eastern Belt markets.

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin is a defendant in the suit.

During the hearing Wednesday, the USDA representatives and officials from three major warehouse associations and other industry organizations opposed the move by the Fuquay-Varina board.

The USDA attorneys argued that the agency cannot provide inspection service to markets on an individual basis at their cost. Manson and his three women codefendants are on trial for murder-conspiracy. Watson is fighting extradition from Texas.

Two defense attorneys in the trial spent the night in jail after being cited for contempt of court by the judge, who refused to hear arguments against the citations.

Irving Kanarek, 51, attorney for Manson, and Ronald Hughes, 35, representing Miss Van Houten, were led out of court Wednesday by bailiffs.

Kanarek, who objected vainly to virtually every prosecution question to Mrs. Kasabian, was cited for interrupting a witness. Hughes, handling his first trial, was cited for using an obscenity during a conference at the bench.

Boys To Attend All-Star Game In Greenville

The boys will arrive in Greenville around 5:30 Saturday afternoon and will be treated to dinner before the annual all-star event. The trips to Greenville will be made on the newly acquired Boys' Home bus.

Arrangements for the trip were made through the joint efforts of Henry Cox of the Pitt County Department of Social Services and the Greenville Jaycees.

Proceeds from the game are sent to the Lake Waccamaw home. Game time has been set for 8 p.m. at Ficklen with tickets available from any Jaycee.

Cars Collided At Intersection

Damages estimated at approximately $475 resulted from an accident Wednesday afternoon on Third Street near the Evans Street intersection.

According to investigating officers, the 3:45 p.m. mishap involved cars driven by Carol Wilson Brewer of 401 Buckhorn Road, Goldsboro, and Joyce Grizzard Hardee of Rt. 6, Greenville.

Police estimated damages to the Brewer vehicle at $400 and $75 to the Hardee car. No injuries were reported.

Officers charged Joyce Hardee with failing to see her intended move could be made safely.

Assert Lawmen Shot At First

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A county grand jury says police were justified in opening fire during a campus confrontation in which two young Negroes were killed and nine wounded at Jackson State College May 15.

Reporting on an investigation into the outbreak, a Hinds County grand jury declared Wednesday that state highway patrolmen and city police discharged their firearms only after being shot at by snipers.

The grand jury report said persons who engage in "civil disorders and riots" must "expect to be injured or killed when law enforcement officers are required to re-establish order."

Negro leaders have denied there was a riot or that the police were subjected to sniping.

Alex Waites, state field director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, described the grand jury report as "the kind of whitewash we expected."

"It's a deliberate attempt to cover up the murder of two young men," Waites declared.

The grand jury said, "We find that under the riot conditions then existing, the officers had a right and were justified in discharging their firearms."

About 150 rifle and shotgun rounds were fired, most of them into a women's dormitory, in the fusillade which climaxed a night of rock and bottle throwing on and near the Jackson State campus.

Of the 18 grand jury members, two declined to sign the report. It was signed by its two Negro members.

The report said the demonstration could have been ended without shooting if Mayor Russell Davis had given city police permission to use tear gas, and described as false the mayor's statement that all the shooting was done by highway patrolmen.

Davis said he would make no comment pending reports from a federal grand jury and the Presidential Commission on Student Unrest, which are conducting separate investigations.

Role Given Boys Club

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New disorders and violence have occurred in Hartford, Conn., and New Bedford, Mass.

Bands of black and Puerto Rican youths roamed Hartford streets Wednesday for the second successive night, setting fires and throwing rocks and bottles at police.

Police arrested 32 persons and used tear gas to disperse crowds of up to 200 persons. Three firebombs were hurled at one police car, setting a tire on fire.

The disorders apparently were a continuation of Tuesday's outbreak that stemmed in part from the city's refusal to open some fire hydrants for children's play in the hot weather.

In New Bedford there were reports of shots fired, stone throwing and arson by roving gangs in a six-block area of the South End. Police arrested 22 persons.

Police said the disturbance later shifted from the South End to the West End, which was the scene of four nights of rioting earlier this month.

Police said they could not pinpoint the cause of the latest trouble.

The All-Star game will also mark the initial project of the Tarheel Torch Club, made up of boys between the ages of 11 and 13. The Club is designed to give members the opportunity for community service and leadership training.

Members of the Torch Club will be selling soft drinks during the game with proceeds to be sent to Boys' Home at Lake Waccamaw.

Laird Appears Willing Accept Proposed Reforms In Pentagon

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird appears willing to adopt a blue-ribbon panel's recommendation to cut the Joint Chiefs of Staff out of military operations.

But Pentagon officials said Wednesday Laird is unlikely to act until he has consulted all uniformed service heads, civilian secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and key members of Congress.

The defense chief also was described as unlikely to override any major congressional opposition to the plan.

The proposal was one of 113 recommendations made recently by the White House appointed panel that urged stronger civilian control over military affairs.

Laird is expected to adopt a substantial part of the panel's recommendations.

The proposal to create a powerful new civilian deputy secretary for operations and a special military staff under him could create a clash with the joint chiefs.

Some senior military men see the plan as a move to downgrade the chiefs, although the nation's top military leaders would retain their statutory functions as strategy advisors to the President and the secretary authorities, your organizations, and your general population has helped us to settle down here," he said. "Since my chief concern is personnel, I must mention especially the educational institutions here that have been so helpful in training our potential employees. Their help has been invaluable."

"Americans are known as friendly and hospitable people," he said. "Our experience here has made us believe that this is an understated fact."

of defense and their roles as heads of the services. The military operational responsibilities were given to the chiefs in 1958 under a directive by then Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy, and presumably could be taken away again by Laird's order.

However, Laird—who is closely attuned to congressional sensibilities—is unlikely to override any congressional objections that might develop.

Senior members of the Senate and House Armed Services committees so far have reserved judgment.

In the past, Congress has strongly objected to anything which smacked of a single chief of staff.

Some observers in the Pentagon suggest the high-ranking general or admiral who would head the new military operations staff would, in effect, be a single chief of staff and might be more powerful than the present joint chiefs.

There is no assurance the chairman of the joint chiefs would also serve as head of the new operations staff. Pentagon officials, apparently reflecting Laird's thinking, deny the military-head-of-the-new-staff would be some sort of a super chief on staff.

The operations staff chief, Pentagon officials say, would be Laird's order.

Two All-America City Finalists

NEW YORK (AP)—Two cities in North Carolina and one in South Carolina have been named finalists in the 22nd annual All-America Cities Awards competition.

They are Lumberton and Shelby, N.C., and Florence, S.C.

William W. Scranton, president of the National Municipal League and former Pennsylvania governor, announced the 22 finalists Wednesday night.

Eleven will be selected as winners. The awards are given each year by the league and Look Magazine for improvements in community living through citizen action.

"have a lot of control on him" from his civilian superior.

Pentagon officials also indicated Laird might not create three new powerful civilian deputy secretaries.

Laird said Wednesday that, the chiefs, in effect, "do not have any operational responsibility now."

There have been reports Laird is disenchanted with the performance of the joint chiefs system, which reportedly proved to be cumbersome and slow-reacting during some crises.

Time Saved By 'Citations'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Police Chief Alfred Nelder says his force has saved time and money this past year by issuing citations for minor misdemeanors instead of arresting those involved.

Elaborating Tuesday on a report to the Police Commission, Nelder said 90 per cent of those ticketed have shown up in court on schedule.

THE FALDER FAMILY... of Windsor, England visited here recently while Nick Falder (left) conducted a Burroughs-Wellcome management training conference.

A 'Working Vacation' Resulted In English Family's Look At U.S.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A working vacation for Nick Falder, personnel director of the Wellcome Foundation, Ltd., which has headquarters in England, has meant a first trip to America for his wife and son, Timothy.

The Falder family of Windsor, England arrived in this country two and a half weeks early for a management training conference Falder conducted at the Greenville Burroughs-Wellcome production plant Friday through Monday.

They visited New York, Washington, Boston, Plymouth, Mass., Newport, R. I., Hot Springs, W. Va., Williamsburg, Raleigh, and Nags Head before coming here.

In New York they were present for a world youth conference at the United Nations and caught a clear day's view of the city from atop the Empire State Building. In Washington, they had the good fortune to see Pres. Nixon.

"We were queuing up to tour the White House when we saw a helicopter land on the lawn," Mrs. Falder said. "We knew some dignitaries were either arriving or leaving, but were happily surprised when Mr. Nixon's official car pulled up and he got out and walked across to chat with a group of Girl Scouts just near us before boarding the helicopter. We were there at the right moment and were at just the right position in the line."

"We also saw Congress in session and visited the Kennedy Memorial," Timothy said.

"We especially wanted to pay our respects at Pres. Kennedy's grave," Mrs. Falder said. "We in England are great admirers of him."

Falder had to spend two days at the Burroughs-Wellcome Research Center near Raleigh. The Research Triangle research center and the Greenville production plant are the only two installations The Wellcome Foundation will have in the United States as soon as the New York plant is phased out.

Then the family spent two days at Nags Head before coming here.

"We think you have a lovely country," Mrs. Falder said. "Of course, we've found the weather a bit warm," she said.

"Except perhaps in New York City," her son added.

"We had also expected the traffic here to move much faster than it does," she said. "Actually, even though our roads are not so good as yours, Britishers drive faster than most Americans, I think."

Falder has been with the Wellcome Foundation for 29 years and is now in charge of the Group's 12,000 employees throughout the world. "I deal with everything that has to do with the employees themselves," he said, "—their working conditions, their training, and their general well-being."

His job has taken him to India,

Pakistan, South Africa, Brazil, Argentina, Australia, and New Zealand, as well as America. His wife often accompanies him. "I love to go with him when it's possible," she said. "Visiting people in their homelands helps you to understand as you cannot possibly in any other way."

At home in Windsor, a resort town about the size of Greenville in population though not so spread out in area, the Falders have a quiet life.

Mrs. Falder is a housewife. "I belong to the Townswomen's Guild and enjoy singing in various choirs. Both my husband and I spend much time in church work."

They are Methodists. Sunday they attended the morning worship service at St. James United Methodist Church here. "We enjoyed the service and hearing the Boys' Home Choir," she said. "Surprisingly enough, the service was much more formal than our service at home, although I know there are some Methodist churches in England that have services just as formal as the one here."

"We enjoyed the East Carolina summer theater performance of 'The Pirates of Penzance,'" she said. "We're great Gilbert and Sullivan fans and we thought the operetta was extremely well done here."

"We also enjoyed 'The Lost Colony' at Manteo earlier last week," her husband added.

Tim is in personnel work like his father, though not with the same company. He enjoys various games, he said, but spends most of his leisure time on politically-oriented activities. "I belong to the Young Conservatives," he said. "This in England would state what I believe, but for Americans who are not familiar with current British politics, we Conservatives are believers in free enterprise and the freedom of the individual. We believe the state should not do everything for you."

This is not the first time the elder Falder has been to Greenville. He was here last year for a few days. "My Burroughs-Wellcome colleagues and I are most impressed with and appreciative of the way your

Surfing

Along The Atlantic Seashore— North Carolina's Playground

... where the gifts of sand, sun, water and breeze invite summer relaxation and enjoyment of nature in its most element forms.

Strolling

Sun-bathing

Tired

... running,

walking,

playing

The salt of the sea and the warmth of summer's bright sun are an irresistible combination which invites young and old, male and female, to North Carolina's oceanside every summer.

They come by the thousands — from areas only a few minutes away; from the central hills of the state's industrialized areas; and from the tall green mountains of the west — all seeking one thing, to experience the balm of a few hours of relaxation where tiring routines are put aside. They come to enjoy the abundance of sand, sun, breeze and water.

The finest thing about vacationing on the seashore is that there is no need to plan or program. People come, with whatever accessories they feel are needed for their stay. From there on out, if they stay for more than a day, it is necessary only to spend the happy, lazy hours as the urge of the moment dictates.

For some, this means spending long hours in traditional summer past-times, fishing and swimming. For others, strolling is a joyful way to pass pleasant hours.

Surfing, even in calm water, draws more and more young people who are finding this sport a challenge to physical coordination against the forces of nature.

The sun not only warms, it browns. Sun-bathing, perhaps the laziest of all seaside activities, has its faithful adherents — who must be mindful of the need not to over-do it and spoil vacations with burns.

Children find more than enough to occupy their time — digging and running, chasing tiny crabs, picking up shells, or squealing in delight at incoming waves — these activities are punctuated only by intervals of eating unaccustomed amounts of hot dogs, soft drinks and potato chips.

It is not only the young who find the ocean a place of constant appeal. Oldsters too seem to be refreshed by exposure to the salty elements. Whether sitting in the sun for a nap, or walking barefoot on the wet sand, their countenances register contentment.

Few can afford the time and finances needed for long single visits. For this reason, thousands of people are short-time vacationers. With modern transportation and the ready availability of places to stay in dozens of seashore locations, people of North Carolina look upon their seashore as the ideal week-end destination.

Although this may lead to overcrowding in several of the more popular resort areas, there are still enough quiet stretches of coast line to afford all comers their place under the sun by the sea.

Worry Clinic Limelight Is To Be Shared

Polly has already become a "dope" addict at the age of 4. Alas, many Hollywood and TV actresses are also such confirmed "addicts" of the same thing that they can't sit still for 3 minutes without making a play for the spotlight. But a new puppy helped teach Polly to share the limelight.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.C.

CASE N-585: Polly J., aged 4, is an only child.

"Dr. Crane," her mother began, "don't you think it would be a good idea if we got Polly a puppy?"

"For then she'd be forced to share some of the attention with another."

"At present, she monopolizes the family stage and also seems to be rather selfish."

Kiddies and kittens (as well as puppies) make excellent pals. Polly's mother is quite correct, too, in showing that an "only" child begins to develop a unique form of "dope" habit.

For such a youngster grows accustomed to being in the limelight.

Soon she may develop the movie heroine's hunger to dominate all social scenes.

Professional actresses often flounce their skirts and manufacture all sorts of excuses to walk around and gain the spotlight, for they resent playing "second fiddle," even at informal cocktail parties.

An "only" child soon acquires this same yearning for the social limelight.

That is one reason why it is valuable to have several children, close enough to each other in age so they must compete for adult attention.

Lacking a younger brother or sister (which Polly should have had by the time she was two),

Polly can be made far more unselfish by the addition of an animal pet.

"But beware," I warned her mother, "for when her daddy begins to play with the puppy, Polly will almost burst with envy."

"Then she may put on her full repertoire of cut antics to regain daddy's attention."

"And at times, she may grow so angry at the new 4-legged competition that she will kick the puppy or pull its tail."

"If so, gently remind her that puppies have feelings and then, inflict similar pain on Polly to help make the analogy more real."

"Thus, if she pinches the puppy, pinch Polly!"

Remember, no child will ever become a sympathetic adult and be kind to animals, unless this empathy is established early!

Alas, many youngsters remain sadists all their lives and purposely inflict cruelty on birds, cats, dogs and horses or other pets.

Well, Polly enjoyed her puppy until daddy began to ignore Polly as he played with the new pet.

Sure enough, Polly put on her "act" and tried to compete with the new threat to her dominance of the family stage.

And she did kick the dog and pull its tail on several occasions till her parents taught her to have more empathy, as by pinching Polly to inflict similar pain.

Hawaii Has Its Buffalo

NAALEHU, Hawaii (UPI) — Among things that travelers don't expect to see when they come to Hawaii, buffaloes are probably near the top of the list.

But visitors to South Point on the Big Island of Hawaii can see the animals grazing among the trees.

The herd has been in the islands for two years. The idea was suggested to Fred Rice, manager of the 140,000-acre Kahuku Ranch, by Otis Gryde.

a native of the Dakotas, who is a strict conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service on the island.

Much of the ranch land is rough, high elevation lava land unsuitable for cattle production. But there are natural water holes formed by springs of trapped water which are sufficient for wildlife.

Gryde recalled that buffalo thrive where there is frost, some snow and craggy rangelands. So in April, 1968, Rice brought in a dozen calves from South Dakota.

They have thrived so well in their new surroundings that Rice has also imported eight Mouflon mountain sheep from Europe, a flock of wild turkeys and Chinese ringneck pheasants. In addition, the Hawaii Fish and Game Commission has fenced an area to raise a flock of nene, a native Hawaiian goose which is nearly extinct.

A public hearing to discuss changes in the 1971 North Carolina coastal fishing regulations will be held August 7, 2:00 p.m., at the City Hall Building, corner of Pollock and Craven Streets, New Bern.

There will be only one public hearing this year.

Public hearings are held so fishermen can voice their opinions on proposed regulation changes. Besides the proposed changes, fishermen can suggest changes in other regulations.

Members of the Fisheries Committee, N. C. Board of Conservation and Development, will conduct the meeting.

Anyone interested in looking over the proposed changes before the public hearing can get a copy by writing the Division of Commercial and Sports Fisheries, P. O. Box 338, Morehead City.

Wed During Lunch Hour

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — It was a wedding, but the usual traditions had some variations. Fish, tacos and watermelon were eaten in place of cake. Iced tea was a substitute for lunch.

There wasn't a reception for the bride and groom, James Lindop and Bonnie Jennings. The newlyweds worked at a registration table at the University of Texas at El Paso before and after the wedding.

Lindop is assistant director of admissions at UTEP and his bride is a secretary to the dean of the university's graduate school.

They were married during their lunch hour, and afterward returned to the campus to help register students for the second summer session.

The couple was offered the afternoon off, but Mr. and Mrs. Lindop chose to begin their honeymoon after registration was finished.

Burglar Alarm Testing Ground

DETROIT (AP) — A 55-room mansion has been converted into a testing ground for burglar alarms by Gilbert Groehn Jr., a maker of anti-theft devices.

The house, in a high-crime area of the city's east side, was built by the late Lawrence Fisher of Fisher Body fame.

It now has:

- Seismic sensors buried in the estate grounds to detect footsteps.
- Infra-red sensors to detect prowlers by their body heat.
- An indoor radar system which will ring an alarm at the slightest movement.

Porpoise Plays Just Too Rough

GALWAY, Ireland (AP) — Galway Bay has become a fun place for a playful porpoise, though divers working in the bay are not finding it amusing.

The divers noticed that the animal, nicknamed Flipper, was watching everything they did closely as they laid the foundations of a new lighthouse.

Flipper then began to dive up and down with the men. He knocked over bags of cement from pontoons with his snout and mused up lines mooring the divers' boats.

A local animal welfare official said underwater explosions would be tried to scare Flipper away. The porpoise weighs about one ton and moves at a speed of 12 knots. The results of a collision with a diver could be "very serious," the official said.

little territory surrounding the Bernhard home as her own. Carla's favorite companion is a battered Mallard decoy. Without it, she refuses to sleep at night. (AP Wirephoto)

Youth Choir Has Do's, Dont's On Visiting Moscow

By LAURA LOVELESS
Shelby Star Writer
Written for The AP
SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Don't take an ashtray from a Moscow hotel as a souvenir.

Carry money in the form of Traveler's Checks.
If you want water to drink with your meal, you'll have to pay for it. If you don't specify what you want to drink, the man at the counter is likely to hand over a shot of vodka.

Be prepared for freezing nights but warm hotels.
Don't plan to call the folks back home. This is one time the local telephone company can't help too much.

These are a few of the dos and don'ts of the 137 members of the Good News Singers of America and their eight adult chaperones got this week as they prepared to leave today for a two-week concert swing through Europe and through the Soviet Union.

The youth choir, with members from 15 years through college age from six Piedmont counties, was formed under the auspices of Concerts Abroad at the invitation of the Russian Intourist Bureau.

Several methods were employed by the group in raising their goal of $25,000 for the trip. Spaghetti and turkey dinners were served at Shelby High School and a series of miscellaneous candy and cake sales and car washes were conducted throughout localities.

Contributions were received from the Dover Foundation, Inc., of Shelby and from numerous other regional industries. Proceeds from the sales of an album of sacred piano selections recorded by Roland Leath, minister of education and associate pastor of the First Baptist Church in Shelby, went to the Good News Singers fund.

In addition, the group sponsored a folk-rock concert featuring "The Minority," a 30-member singing group from the Atlantic Baptist College in West Palm Beach, Fla., at Cherryville High School's auditorium.

The Good News Singers of America also made a guest TV appearance on May 26 on WBTN in Charlotte.

Dick Hips, who works with the Sobena-Belgium World Air Lines in New York, made air arrangements for the group.

Hips, who once lived in the Soviet Union, spoke the singers recently and provided information on living conditions, routine governmental procedures, climate and customs in the European countries and answered questions asked by the singers and their parents.

He advised the singers not to pick up souvenirs from Soviet hotels and to refrain from taking snapshots of the Russian people, who are sensitive about such practices.

He explained how declarations of money and other possessions would be made upon entering and leaving Russia, where the exchange rate is so tremendously inflated.

Because of the profuse amount of red tape that exists, the choir members were told that their room assignments would not be disclosed until actual arrival in Russia.

Of special interest was Hips' discussion of "beroskis," miscellaneous trading shops which sell Russia's finest goods and where exchanges can only be made in American money.

Hips suggested strongly that all money be carried in the form of traveler's checks and perhaps a few dollar bills. He said banks will be available at all hotels and airports for exchange of currency. In all Russian hotels, the innkeepers are granted permission from the police to keep the visas and passports of guests.

The singers, hailing from Shelby, Forest City, Charlotte, Cherryville and Morganton, along with eight adults who will serve as counselors, will depart for a 14-day trip where performances have been scheduled in London, Moscow, Kiev, Leningrad and Paris.

The group will sing classical, religious and folk music. A special highlight will be the group's singing of the Russian National Anthem. Impromptu concerts will be given in airports, public squares and cathedrals.

The Good News Singers will make their first stop in London where concerts are to be given at Windsor Castle, Buckingham Palace and Big Ben. Four days will be spent in London; four in Moscow; two in Kiev; three in Leningrad; and two in Paris.

The Concerts Abroad Organization is responsible for making the trip possible. Earlier this year the Russian government extended an invitation to visit their country to Van Ramsey, minister of music at the First Baptist Church in Shelby, and conductor of the church's choir. He immediately contacted Jim Berry, minister of music at Myers Park Baptist Church in Charlotte. Together they set up auditions and began preparations.

The entire group has been meeting regularly each week for practice sessions. In addition, regional meetings have been held for the out-of-town members.

The eight adults who will accompany the Good News Singers of America as counselors are: Ramsey as director and tour leader; Berry, as assistant director, and his wife; Dr. and Mrs. J. Robinson Hicks of Charlotte, who will serve as physician and counselor; Claude Sitton and his wife of Morganton;

Dan Stroup as choir manager; and the Rev. Gene L. Watterson, pastor of Shelby's First Baptist Church, who will be in charge of all of the trip's physical arrangements.

Girls' Club Opens Today

Operation Sunshine will continue its summer program at the center on Third Street with the opening of its Girls' Club Thursday at 1 p.m.

The club will be open to all girls in the community between the ages of eight and 14. A membership fee of 25 cents will be charged to each girl who joins.

Monday through Friday from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. activities will be under the direction of Mrs. Arlene Hoot. Games, arts and crafts, music and many other events are scheduled.

The camp session of Operation Sunshine ended Friday. A party was held at the center and awards were presented to Tobey Willoughby for the best attendance; Linda Haddock, girl who exemplified Miss Sunshine; Jacquelin Wooten, most improved swimmer.

The girls who showed the most talent at camp were awarded shirts with sunshine emblems.

Allegations Are Denied

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co., object of a $2 million pollution suit in North Carolina, has denied allegations that it has abused an agreement on the amount of waste it would dump into the Winston-Salem sewage system.

Robert A. Uihlein Jr., president of Schlitz, said Wednesday the company has lived up to the agreement with sewage officials to limit use of a sewage plant on the Yadkin River. State pollution control officials have pointed to the sewage treatment plant as the cause of three recent fish kills in Yadkin.

David and Dianna Springer of Rt. 4, Mocksville, filed the suit Tuesday in U. S. Middle District Court at Greensboro. The own an 800-acre farm on the Yadkin. In addition to the money, they want an injunction barring Schlitz from discharging its waste into the Winston-Salem sewage system until the system's capacity is increased. Uihlein said Schlitz has undertaken a $1 million project which will enable the company to reduce its part of the sewage load by 70 per cent by next spring.

Won't Sell To Police Families

WOMBOURNE, England (AP) — Wombourne's village storekeeper, John Jordan, is refusing to sell to the village's five policemen and their families because he was fined $96 and lost his driver's license for two months.

Jordan, 40, was convicted of dangerous driving and failing to stop when asked by a policeman.

"I believe I was unjustly treated," he said. "We used to have our own village bobbies, but these folk are all outsiders. I'm hoping to persuade other traders to adopt my policy and maybe these men will ask for transfers."

The average summer temperature in San Francisco is 62 degrees.

Corn Support Rate Is $1.22 This Year

Price-support loan and purchase rate for 1970-crop corn for eligible producers in North Carolina will be $1.22 per bushel, it was announced by Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

This rate last year was $1.23 per bushel. "Variation of prices within a given location are due to changing patterns of production, utilization, and transportation," Evans said. "A review of these factors and of local operation of the price-support program is made each year before county loan rates are established."

County loan rates are based on a national average loan level of $1.08 per bushel for No. 2 quality corn for the 1970 crop. Premiums and discounts remain unchanged from those in effect for the past several years.

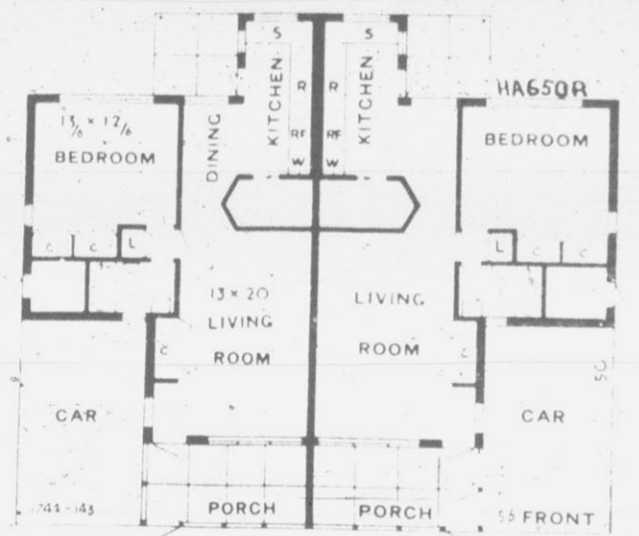

Since participants in the 1970 feed grain program also earned price support payments of 30 cents per bushel, the total support in North Carolina for 1970-crop corn is $1.53 per bushel.

Evans pointed out that some producers also earned diversion payments by taking more acreage out of corn and other feed grain production than the standard acreage diversion required of all program participants.

Price support and diversion payments are now being made to participants in the 1970 farm programs, and all payments are expected to be completed within a few weeks.
