Nixon Said. .

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Nixon's news conference at a glance:

The President said the U.S. proposal for a cease-fire in the Middle East would be coupled with a military standstill. "I believe that Israel can agree to the cease-fire and agree to negotiations without fear."

Inflation is being cooled and will continue to ease. The economy will move forward in the long term and the slack in employment will be taken care of.

"If there is a war between the Soviet Union and the United States there will be no winners." That is why it is important that the United States not be dragged into a military conflict in key areas like the Middle East.

The heavy blanket of smog on the East Coast shows there isn't much time left for the nation to solve its air pollution problems. Congress should take prompt action on legislation he submitted six months ago to combat air pollution.

Time is no longer on the side of the Viet Cong. "I believe the prospects for a negotiated peace should be better now than they were before the Cambodian operation."

Jenkins Announces Shires Named ECU News Bureau Chief

William A. Shires has been appointed director of the East Carolina University Department of Public Relations - News Bureau effectively immediately, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECU president, announced today.

Shires has been assistant director of the ECU News Bureau since April 1. He is a former veteran correspondent and news manager for United Press International and was correspondent and columnist for the N.C. Association of Afternoon Dailies based in Raleigh for eight years.

"We are pleased to appoint Mr. Shires to the position of director," Dr. Jenkins said. Governor Scott Satisfied Every Precaution Taken On Nerve Gas

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says he will not ask for a court injunction to stop shipment of surplus nerve gas by rail through North Carolina because he is satisfied it will not endanger the "lives and welfare of our citizens."

The governor issued his statement Thursday after conferring at length with Brig. Gen. William Stone of the Army Department in Washington.

Scott explained that he was "never really concerned about the shipment through the state. I was concerned about what might happen after it was disposed at sea."

Scott said he learned from Stone that the disposal of the liquid nerve gas, sealed in concrete vaults, will not be off the coast of North Carolina as earlier indicated but will be in an area 300 nautical miles from Southport, N.C.

Scott said the Atlantic at this point is three miles deep and, "The nature of the material to be disposed of, if it ever leaked, has an extremely short life span and because of its density, which is heavier than water, would not rise to the surface."

Scott said he is satisfied "that rigid safety precautions will be used in the transportation of this gas through North Carolina."

Some 418 of the concrete-sealed containers are scheduled to leave the Blue Grass, Ky., and Anniston, Ala., depots Aug. 10, depending on weather conditions, Scott said.

About four days will be required for the shipment to reach the Sunny Point ammunition terminal near Southport. Scott said this terminal is being used because "they have the security, training and experience essential in handling this type of cargo."

He said a train carrying security personnel and medical detachments will be riding with the gas.

"These trains will have the right of way," he added, "there will be no stopping, no delay." Their speed will not exceed 35 miles per hour.

Scott said the Army is working out details of the route, but the shipment would not pass through heavily populated areas of the state.

The governor said that when the gas shipment reaches Sunny Point, it will be placed in an old Liberty ship, for movement to its disposal point almost due east of Daytona Beach, Fla., where the vessel will be sunk.

Relax Pollution Alert

By BOB MONROE

Associated Press Writer
Rain showers had washed down smog levels over the Eastern Seaboard today after a week-long air pollution threat that brought a presidential call for prompt legislative action.

Pollution alerts or warnings were rescinded in Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. New York City continued its alert but relaxed some restrictions on the use of incinerators. At a news conference Thursday night in Los Angeles, President Nixon took note of the pollution threat caused by a stationary air mass over the East for the past week.

"In some ways it is fortunate the East Coast saw the problem in this severe manner," he said. "It shows there is not much time left to solve it."

Nixon said the federal government would take strict action to see that none of its installations added to the problem and he urged industry to use nonpolluting fuels as much as possible.

New York's electrical power problem also eased Thursday as lower temperatures reduced the air conditioning drain on available electricity and consumers cut back on other usage.

No Music At Concert

MIDDLEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Thousands of young folk, undeterred by a lack of music and the arrest of their hosts, are keeping up a festival atmosphere at the site of a weekend rock concert banned by court order.

State police estimated 15,000 were on the slopes of the Powder Ridge ski area by Thursday evening and more kept pouring in through the night.

Traffic was backed up for miles along Route 66, the main route to the site of the festival, and some rock fans abandoned cars and trucks five miles away to hike in.

A leaflet distributed to the crowd urged festival-goers to leave quietly because the land owners had been good to them.

But another leaflet said: "A few rich people have said that we cannot have our festival. But we are here now. Are we going to accept this and leave?"

Tremor's Toll Rising

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Rescue workers in northeast Iran today found five more villages devastated by earthquakes Thursday, and the toll of known dead rose to 175.

As the rescuers combed the rubble and extended their search across the vast area struck by the quake, government spokesmen said the toll probably would go higher.

Officials of the Red Lion and Sun, the Iranian Red Cross, said so far 451 seriously injured persons had been found in 31 villages devastated by the quake.

Many of the injured were trapped for hours in the ruins of their home. They were flown to field hospitals.

While troops and social workers searched around the clock for survivors and bodies, helicopters dropped food, medical supplies and tents in remote areas.

Israel OKs 3-Month Mid-East Ceasefire

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel accepted today the United States peace proposal for the Middle East and agreed to a three-month cease-fire with the Egyptians.

A government announcement said Israel had decided "to subscribe to the latest peace initiative of the government of the United States and to appoint, at the appropriate time, a representative for peace negotiations without prior conditions" under auspices of U.N. Middle East envoy Gunnar Jarring of Sweden.

Egypt and Jordan have already accepted the plan, but Palestinian guerrilla organizations have split on the proposal with the principal commando outfits vowing to continue the fight.

The Israeli Cabinet reached agreement at its fourth meeting on the U.S. proposal, which encountered strong opposition from rightist elements who had threatened to quit Prime Minister Golda Meir's coalition government if it accepted the American proposal.

The Israeli announcement said the decision on the cease-fire was reached after "taking into account the clarifications provided by the government of the United States."

This was taken to mean Washington's reported reassurances to Israel that it would continue to maintain the Middle East balance of power and prevent any of the warring parties, from reaping military advantage from any cease-fire.

The Israelis fear the Egyptians will use a limited cease-fire to beef up their military defenses along the Suez Canal prior to renewing the fighting.

In Cairo, a spokesman for President Gamal Abdel Nasser warned Egypt's Arab critics to avoid "division in the Arab lines" over the American plan and Nasser's acceptance.

In new air action, Israeli planes staged a reprisal raid today on Jordanian army positions following rocket attacks by Jordan-based Arab guerrillas on Israeli settlements.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the Jordanian army has been aiding the guerrillas in their assaults against civilian targets.

All planes returned safely from the 25-minute raid, an Israeli spokesman said. He located the area hit as just across the border from two frontier settlements just south of the Sea of Galilee.

Frank Borman 'Front-Runner' For Space Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman, commander of the first manned spacecraft to circle the moon, is a front-runner in capital speculation about who will be named boss of the nation's space agency.

Borman left active duty with the Air Force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration July 1 to become a vice president of Eastern Airlines.

His name is cropping up frequently in official circles as among those who might be named by President Nixon to succeed Thomas O. Paine, who resigned Tuesday to return to private business.

Others mentioned include George Low, NASA deputy administrator; Dr. Werner von Braun, the No. 4 man at the agency; Dr. Homer E. Newell, associate administrator; Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, former Apollo program manager and now commander of the Air Force Space and Missiles System Organization; Dr. Hilliard Paige, one time president of General Electric Co.'s space division and Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr.

Borman, 42, was at President Nixon's side during the Apollo 11 moon landing flight and accompanied the President to watch the splashdown of the spacecraft in the Pacific. After retiring as an active astronaut, Borman was field director for the orbiting space station program—the next phase in America's space program.

Borman joined the airline only a month ago and is scheduled to attend an advanced management program at Harvard University in September. His office said he was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

There has been no word from the Western White House on the President's choice, and Paine, at a news conference, would not speculate on his successor.

Official circles believe the President will need to choose a new administrator quickly because the agency's 1972 budget proposals must be in by the end of August. Decisions will need to be made on future goals in preparing the budget.

Paine himself was acting administrator for five months while the search went on for a top man. He was finally chosen after at least six men turned down the job.

Schools Granted A Delay

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — A judge of the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals granted a delay today in enforcement of a precedent-setting order requiring 10 North Carolina school districts to submit complete desegregation plans by Tuesday.

The judge, J. Braxton Craven, ruled the order be stayed while Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan presents arguments against it to the appeals court.

Morgan had appealed to Craven Thursday to grant the delay. "We are very pleased with the decision," Morgan said. "This will now permit it to be heard in the normal procedure and determined on its merits."

The desegregation order had been issued Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Algernon Butler, directing state education officials to see that the local districts submit acceptable plans.

Upheld

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court ruled today that the legislative act creating the North Carolina Housing Corp. is constitutional.

The court decision reversed a ruling last December by Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey, who held the act was unconstitutional.

The corporation was set up to issue tax-exempt revenue bonds for the building of homes for low-income families.

Bloodmobile 'Year' Opened With 112 Units Collected Here

A total of 112 units of blood was collected yesterday at the Moose Lodge as the 1970-71 Bloodmobile Year got underway.

"It was a real fine start for the year," Douglas Morgan, Chairman of the Pitt County Bloodmobile remarked about yesterday's response.

Morgan revealed that the 112 units collected were only 13 short of a quota of 125 units.

However, as there were 18 rejects, we would have gone over the quota had all who come been able to give blood," Morgan noted.

The percentage of women giving blood yesterday was much larger than usual. "I think this is directly attributable to the letters sent by Dr. Lee West and Dr. Charles Gilbert with the cooperation of the staff at Pitt Memorial Hospital," Morgan said.

He referred to letters sent persons who have received blood transfusions at the hospital, asking them to consider making a donation or getting a friend to donate on their behalf.

Morgan said the campaign was also helped materially by the Women of the Moose who conducted a telephone campaign; the Greenville Service League, in charge of refreshments; and other volunteer workers.

The next collection date for the Bloodmobile is August 13, again in Greenville at the Moose Lodge. Morgan noted that "anyone who gave blood during the June collection or at an earlier date is again eligible to make a donation." Regulations require that donors must wait a minimum eight weeks between donations.

"All of us sincerely hope that yesterday's fine response is indicative of the trend for the year," Morgan stated.

Boy Charged In Shooting

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department has charged a 12 year old youth with assault with a deadly weapon following investigation of a Wednesday afternoon shooting on Rt. 1, Robersonville.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the incident, which occurred at 2 p.m. in the home of Sylvester E. Williams on the J.L. Corey farm near the Martin County line, left a nine year old girl in Pitt Memorial Hospital with shotgun injuries.

Investigation revealed that Williams' son shot the daughter of Charles Pace of Virginia Beach, Va. in the left shoulder with a blast from a 410 gauge shotgun.

The sheriff added that the girl then ran approximately 100 yards from the house, fell in a nearby road, and was found by her father who came by soon after.

Sheriff Tyson said that the youth has been scheduled to appear before Juvenile Court on Friday, Aug. 7.

In Portugal: Woman Bullfighter Level With Him About Your Age

By MANUEL B. MURIAS
Associated Press Writer
LISBON (AP) — When Ana Maria was 14 years old, she went one hot, windless summer Sunday to attend the ancient spectacle of the running of the bulls through the narrow streets at Azambuja, her remote hometown north of Lisbon.

She was then an apprentice in the local cannery where the tomatoes grown in the surrounding plains are reduced to paste, tinned and shipped to remote corners of the world which she only knew about from labels stuck on the cardboard boxes.

Her great loves in life, however, were the huge black bulls which she used to see as she rode her old bicycle along mud-caked, furrowed tracks on her way to and from work everyday. "I loved the way they chewed the grass looking so peaceful and harmless," Ana Maria Lourenco, a slim attractive brunette wistfully recalled.

So when her father, a worker in the same factory, invited her on that particular Sunday to accompany him to the town and enjoy the running of the bulls before a corrida, she was delighted.

The pink tinted balconies overlooking the dusty cobblestoned streets were decorated with an array of colorful embroidered bed coverlets and along the sidewalks, the townsfolk, dressed in their Sunday best, were waiting impatiently behind an improvised, rickety, wooden palisade for the arrival of the bulls.

When they came running past, one by one, local youngsters, many of whom were aspiring to be matadors, jumped over the palisade to defy the ferocious black beasts. Many of the boys were caught by the sharp horns of the charging animals. Others panicked at the last moment and quickly scampered up the nearest tree clinging tightly to each other.

"They looked like a bunch of grapes," Ana Maria said with a faint smile. "But, when the last snorting bull was running up mainstreet, I suddenly found myself in front of it, waving a piece of red cloth I had grabbed from someone else's hands."

Her ability in tackling the 1,200-pound bull was impressive and a local trainer of matadors, amazed at her skill, immediately invited her to join his school.

Now, four years later, Ana Maria at 18, has become the first professional woman bullfighter in Portugal.

"When she pleaded with me to be allowed to join the bullfighting school I hesitated. What father likes to see a daughter BULLFIGHTER BY INSTINCT is Ana Maria Lourenco who taunted her first bull at age 14 by grabbing a red cloth out of someone else's hand. Now at 18 she's Portugal's first professional woman bullfighter.

risking her life every Sunday. But, I am proud of her courage and so finally I allowed her to go," her father said fondly. "If the word of a woman had any value, she wouldn't have gone. But the girl was determined and her father can never say no to her," her mother complained.

Ana Maria practices hard for two hours a day. "I quickly found out the unseen, unglamorous side of the bullfighting profession. My training includes gymnastics, running a few miles a day and fighting a mock bull's head mounted on top of a bicycle wheel pushed by a young boy," she explained.

Today she is one of the most popular figures of the Portuguese bull raising province of Ribatejo. She frequently appears in the lonely spotlight at public corridas and wealthy landowners now invite the former worker to their private rings.

"I wish I could afford to buy a horse and learn how to fight bulls as a rider," she signed longingly. "My favorite bullfighter was Conchita Citron, the Peruvian woman rider who came to Portugal years ago and has now retired."

Ana Maria strongly objects to the much-challenged Portuguese law which prevents the killing of the bull in the ring.

"I think the death of the bull is the true consummation of a corrida. I think it is a stupid law and that it should be abolished."

Ana Maria gets $155 for each corrida, more than a full month's wages in the canneries.

"I am glad to say though that she has remained the same simple girl who likes to help me around the house," the mother said.

Level With Him About Your Age

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I need a little confidential advice, and fast: I'll be honest with you, Abby. I am 38 years old, but I look much younger and I'm passing for 28. I am engaged to a man who is 29. I am a divorcee, which my fiancé knows, but I didn't tell him that I have been divorced twice, instead of just once. Also, he thinks I am a natural redhead and I am not.

My question: How much should I tell him about myself? If a man likes you for yourself, are the other details important?

"TWO TIME LOSER"

DEAR LOSER: They could be very important to a man who has asked you to be his wife. Level with him. If he finds out later that you lied to him, you're apt to be a "three-time loser."

DEAR ABBY: Please say something about pregnant women who work in offices right up to the time their labor pains start coming 2 minutes apart.

I realize it doesn't take any brains to breed, and some of those nitwits can't count very well. Also they were in their 4th month when the office gang gave them a bridal shower, so they can't very well quit 3 months later for "maternity leave." But it sure makes it tough on the other girls. We have to bend down and pick up things they are constantly dropping, and they can't reach the high files and can't bend down to get into the lower ones. They're always leaving early for a doctor's appointment. And if they're late in the morning, we have to excuse them because of morning sickness.

Pregnant women do not belong in an office. They belong at home!

MARYLOO IN D. C.

DEAR MARYLOO: That's where they'd like to be. Home! There is only one reason in the world a pregnant woman goes to an office, and that's because she has to work. So how about a little compassion, sister?

Her two-tiered fingertip veil of pure silk French illusion was

Yadkin River Sees Summer's 4th Fish Kill

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The fourth fish kill this summer has been reported on the Yadkin River south of Winston-Salem.

In earlier kills an estimated 150,000-plus fish were reported dead and state officials have not restocked the river until the certainty of further kills is past.

Previous kills were blamed on the Winston-Salem sewage treatment plant by the state Department of Water and Air Resources. The department's investigators noted that when the area around the city receives heavy rain, the treatment plant's capacity is overloaded and waste flows directly into the river.

More than an inch of rain fell in the Winston-Salem area Wednesday night. The latest fish kill was reported Thursday by observers who said dead fish floated by one point at the rate of 25 a minute.

Award Grant For Marine Studies

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—The National Science Foundation has awarded the University of North Carolina a $398,000 sea grant aimed at turning marine research data into practical information for use by marine industries.

The one-year program will aid some 50 scientists at four universities in compiling information on such areas as fish farming, seafood processing, pollution, law, ecology, engineering and other areas of marine resources use and management.

The universities are UNC at Chapel Hill and UNC at Wilmington, North Carolina State University and East Carolina University. Dr. John Lyman, head of the Office of Marine Sciences of the Consolidated UNC, will direct the program.

Find Census Was Basically Right

WILKESBORO, N. C. (AP)—The Wilkes Chamber of Commerce says it has found that the 1970 census tally for Wilkesboro and North Wilkesboro was basically accurate.

It reached the conclusion after hiring 10 enumerators, a Hickory sociologist, Mrs. Carol West, and took its own nose-count.

The chamber said Thursday the Census Bureau count of 1,917 for Wilesboro, up 349 in ten years and 3,215 in Wilkesboro, down 982, jibed with its figures.

North Wilkesboro Mayor George Wiebel noted that since there are more homes in his city than in 1960, people must be having smaller families.

Some other cities have questioned their census figures.

At Heart, A Bunch Of Softies

The Daily Reflector's news staff is a hard working group, scurrying about the community reporting on all the problems which beset us these days, but underneath it all they are really just a bunch of softies.

Thus when it was determined that the governor planned to dine on North Carolina's so-called prettiest possum, a letter developed in the news room.

"We, the undersigned, have today read the news release of plans for you to dine on the prettiest possum in North Carolina.

"Although we are not adverse to the idea of persons dining on animal meat, it does somehow seem a little amiss to plan a meal with a beauty winner as the centerpiece.

"We do hope you will be able to find another destiny for the prettiest possum, one that will satisfy both the possum and those who presented him to you." It was signed by Jerry Raynor, Carol Tyer, Stuart Savage, Don Schlienzy, Tommy Forrest, Rosalie Trotman and Donna Joyce Dixon.

The letter was sent on its way. Then last Wednesday there was a call from the governor's office. They wanted to know if the letter was authentic. Yes, it was, News Editor Don Schlienzy replied, and it came from the heart.

The governor's spokesman extended an invitation for a member of The Daily Reflector staff to be at the governor's office today at 3 o'clock when, in the presence of Clyde Patton, executive director of Wildlife Resources, and Tom Ellis, superintendent of the State Park Division of C&D, the governor was to read a formal commutation of sentence for Slowpoke — as the prettiest possum has been named — and renounce the idea of the possum being a "featured guest" at a dinner in the governor's honor. Slowpoke was to be turned loose at Raven Rock Park this afternoon.

Well, we promptly assigned staffer Forrest to journey to Raleigh and cover the commutation. All this week our Journalists have been wearing satisfied smiles. Hard bitten newspapermen and women? They're all just a bunch of softies.

New Housing Plan Tested

By BRYAN HAILSLIP
RALEIGH — Home ownership, the middle class symbol for making it, may be the lever to raise the aspirations of the poor.

Public housing in the past provided a place to live for low income groups without holding out the prospect of owning a home. Now a new program, termed Turnkey III or HOPLIF (Home Ownership Plan for Low Income Families), opens that possibility.

North Carolina is a frontier for testing the concept. The second housing development in the nation under the plan is Apollo Heights, a project of the Raleigh Housing Authority.

BRYAN HAILSLIP

Its neat brick - and - siding houses (three, four and five bedrooms) are spaced over nearly 70 acres with all the appearance of a typical suburban neighborhood. The first families moved in one year ago. Today only eight or ten of its 216 units are yet to be filled.

So far, so good is the assessment of William E. Ragan, Jr., authority executive director. "Just because it's new there has been an awful lot of work," he said. "Policies had to be set and methods worked out as we went along."

Pioneering has attracted attention from all over the country. Ragan has answered inquiries and hosted visitors from many other states, and even from Canada. A network television crew did on - the - spot filming for a national report.

Other cities in North Carolina and elsewhere already are moving into the program. Among the Tar Heel cities with Turnkey III projects underway are Wilmington, Charlotte, Winston - Salem, Durham and Greensboro.

Taking on the role of a potential home buyer is an educational process for the families moving into Apollo Heights and similar developments. Their social and economic background has tended to isolate them from the community and instill a distrust for its institutions.

For example, a family which has suffered at the hands of loan sharks may be reluctant to take the simple step of opening a bank account — because they are wary of all financial institutions.

To break down these barriers, Ragan and the Raleigh Housing Authority engaged Kneela Francis as program director. A native of Antigua, West Indies, he has a master's degree from North Carolina State University and experience with programs for migrant workers.

"You say you want an educated community," Francis said to Ragan at the start. "You realize, don't you, that means a dissatisfied community?"

Dissatisfaction with things as they are and determination to break out of the cycle of poverty is the goal towards which he works. "We have to work very closely with the majority of our families," Francis said. "A sound, on-going program of education, geared to all residents and drawing on all available resources, is absolutely essential."

The ultimate benefit will be a sense of pride among those who have become taxpayers and productive, participating members of the community.

Charles P. Landt, a member of the Raleigh Housing Authority, heard about the Turnkey III program at a meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in Washington in 1968. Mrs. Dorothy Duke of the National Council of Negro Women, which had a Ford Foundation grant to encourage the development of home ownership programs for low income families, asked for local level efforts to get the program going.

Landt returned to Raleigh and talked about the program. Mrs. Duke was invited to discuss it with community leaders. She came for an overnight stay and spent three days.

"We were off and running almost from that time," Ragan said.

More than 600 applications were received for the Apollo Heights units, which were built at an average cost of $17,800. Those to move in were selected by a committee representing 17 local organizations involved in some way in community improvement activity.

Although the development is integrated, approximately 200 of the families are black.

As in traditional public housing, the families pay 20 per cent of their income as rent. However, there is no provision which says the family must move out when income reaches a fixed level. Contributions from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) subsidizes the debt service on the homes.

The family earn an equity in their homes through the performance of routine maintenance. This, along with additional voluntary contributions which a family may make, can lead to home ownership.

Just A Hint Of What Possibly Lies Ahead

The power shortages which are now plaguing New York City offer just a hint of what is ahead if we do not resolve the problem of when and how to build our power plants.

A few years back it seemed that atomic energy was the answer to adequate cheap power. But atomic power plants must be built somewhere and few populated areas want them nearby.

As such matters are debated, electric needs continue to soar and the result is electrical curtailment when shortages result.

It is happening in New York now; it could happen in our own area very soon.

See Surprise Upset In 'N.Y.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NEW YORK — Blessed with the silent support of President Nixon's top political advisers in Washington, James L. Buckley, the registered Republican running for the Senate on the Conservative party line, could pull off the upset of the year.

That is the surprising appraisal of this state's keenest political experts. It is based on two political facts: mounting Republican defections from the campaign of Sen. Charles Goodell, the Republican candidate who, as we pointed out last week, has moved perilously far to the left at the cost of some moderate and much conservative party support; and the political personality of 47 - year - old Buckley.

Buckley's talented campaign manager, F. Clifton White (architect of Sen. Barry M. Goldwater's Presidential nomination in 1964) is aiming at maximum exposure for the quiet - spoken Buckley between now and Election Day. His objective: to display a highly credible, articulate Senate candidate who is only moderately hawkish on Vietnam, who photographs well from any angle, and who supports President Nixon on most issues.

The apostasy of Charley Goodell, most noticeable in his total break with Mr. Nixon over Vietnam, has convinced large numbers of regular Republican voters that they cannot and will not vote for him in November. With Buckley still a largely unknown quantity to these defecting Republicans, they are moving tentatively and vengefully toward the liberal Democratic nominee, Rep. Richard Ottinger.

White's task, then, is obvious: to sell Buckley as a moderate conservative who doesn't brandish nuclear weapons and who, despite his Conservative party backing, deserves to inherit the support of defecting, anti - Goodell Republicans.

As of today, no politician here close to the Senate race doubts that Ottinger, backed by his family's plywood fortune, is the man to beat in November. Buckley's task, then, is to capture all the anti - Goodell defectors in the Republican party plus conservative Democrats (particularly the huge, ethnic Italian vote).

In quiet conversations with some of President Nixon's political strategists, Buckley backers — including brother William F. Buckley, the conservative theoretician and columnist — have been hammering this theme. At a recent state Republican party conference in Austin, Tex., for example, Bill Buckley drove home the point with Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland, the Republican National Chairman, that as a registered Republican in the Senate Buckley would prove far less embarrassing than Goodell to Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Nixon's political strategists, including Morton, White House aides Murray

Gifts For One And All

WASHINGTON — The nation's savings banks have gone into the free gift business in a big way. In order to attract depositors, the banks are giving away everything from color TV sets to lawn mowers, and the competition to give away gifts is getting fierce.

I went into a bank the other day to break a 20-dollar bill, and as I arrived at the window, the cashier handed me a pressure cooker.

"No," I said, "I don't want a pressure cooker, I just want to ..."

She leaned down and came up with a box, "How about a steam iron with 21 steam vents?"

"Thank you very much, but I would like to ..."

"All right. We'll give you a clock radio that lights up in the dark."

"Miss, I don't want to be ungrateful, but all I need is change for a 20-dollar bill."

The cashier pressed a button and suddenly two bank guards were standing on each side of me. "Come this way

Other Editors Say Revenue & Needs

(The Raleigh Times)
Should the 1971 General Assembly cut taxes? Or, should the Assembly provide money to have enough nurses, doctors and toothbrushes and lockers and space for the mental patients who are the charges of the state?

The needs of the mental patients are only one of the many vital needs which the 1971 legislature will be asked to meet. There are the needs of more teachers for our school children, more facilities on our campuses, more room for badly needed medical students, more pay for teachers and state employees to meet rising costs of living. The genuine needs make a long list.

The needs of the mental patients were dramatized recently by student nurses at Dix Hill Hospital here. They simply pointed out what was needed, noting that hospital employees did good jobs but that there just weren't enough of them. The state has made real strides in recent years in caring for mental patients, but there is so very much to be done. Only a person who has had to hope that available care in a state hospital will make it possible for a loved one to be helped can understand the real need for continuing to improve this care.

The very real needs of these state needs must be kept in the forefront of the legislative campaigns now beginning all over North Carolina. The special interest groups which want taxes repealed are hard at work, and will work even harder as general election day draws nearer. There are reports, for example, that the people who seek to repeal the soft-drink tax already have firm commitments ranging from 21 to 26 in the Senate. Remember that 26 is a majority in that body.

It should be admitted that the soft-drink tax is hard to collect, that it isn't an ideal tax. But, it does bring in millions to the state treasury, and if it is to be repealed, it should be replaced by something which will bring in at least an equal amount of revenue.

The voters should question any candidate who advocates repeal of any taxes, asking him what others he would substitute, or what vital services he would discontinue.

please and don't make a fuss."

"They escorted me to the desk of a vice president and stood on each side of me, their hands on their revolvers."

"Doesn't want the pressure cooker, the steam iron or the clock radio," one of the guards said.

"A real troublemaker," the other guard added.

The vice president said, "I'm sure we can work something out."

"Good," I said, handing him the 20-dollar bill.

"Put your money away," he said angrily. Then he took out a catalogue. "Would you settle for a three - piece bedroom set?"

I shook my head.

"All right, We'll put in a new kitchen for you, but you'll have to keep the $20 in for a full year."

"I don't want to deposit the $20. I just want change for it."

The vice president looked at me quizzically.

"Keep an eye on him," he said to the guards. Then he disappeared into an inner

Reform To Await New Crisis

By ELMER ROESSNER
Despite a block of breakdowns in the international monetary system, there will be no reforms in the near future.

Britain, Argentina, the Philippines and a handful of other nations have had to devalue their money. Chile the other Western nations towards reform.

Many reform proposals have been made, most of them related to making exchange rates more flexible. One suggestion would widen the swing of a currency's "parity," or official exchange rate, to more than the present 1 per cent.

Another plan would establish a "crawling peg" which permits parity to change in limited small amounts over a period of time.

Floating Money
A third technique is the "float" which frees a currency to find its own level. The float may permit the exchange rate to drift just for a period of time, or indefinitely. The Canadian dollar and Philippine peso are already floating.

It was hoped that one of these or some other currency liberalization would be approved by the International Monetary Fund this autumn. But it won't.

The Italian lira and several other currencies are shaky. The U. S. dollar isn't the picture of health. Gold has stabilized but could take off again if the situation deteriorates.

Nonetheless, no action will be taken to improve the system even though the United States keeps nudging

Strength For Today

ALWAYS A MESSAGE IF WE HEED

In the third chapter of Exodus we encounter the interesting story of how Moses was tending his sheep one day when he saw a burning bush which appeared in spite of the burning not to be consumed. He turned aside to see the great sight, and when the Lord saw that he turned aside He called to him out of the midst of the bush.

This was the beginning of Moses' great service to his nation and to the world. When he turned aside to see, God spoke to him. It is always true that when men turn aside to learn aside to learn the will of God, God calls them to higher things. If Moses had disregarded the call and had chosen the easy life of sheep-tending to the more strenuous life of a nation's leadership he would have died unknown and unsung even in his own day. The men who lead the world are the men who turn aside to ascertain the will of God. To them God speaks out of a burning bush and commissions them to great ends.

What an astounding message came to Moses out of the burning bush. He was to leave his sheep, to return to Egypt and to assume the leadership of a nation. The messages which come to us out of the burning bush are not always easy to heed but they call us to the deep satisfactions shared only by those who mold their lives after a noble purpose.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heavily fortified breakfast cereals proliferating on supermarket shelves would have to be removed under a revived government proposal.

Renewed action on the eight-year-old proposal follows nutrition crusader Robert B. Choate's Senate testimony last week describing most breakfast cereals as "calories and little else."

The Food and Drug Administration proposals for cereal enrichment would work on both ends of the spectrum—upgrading the content of the least nutritious while dealing a fatal blow to the nine cereals Choate described as nutritionally meritorious.

The proposal is in harmony with long-standing FDA policy of "restoration" rather than fortification, said agency attorney Robert N. Anderson, whose soon-to-be published findings of fact will set the stage for a hearing examiner's decision and presentation to the agency commissioner by fall for a final decision.

"Restoration" refers to adding to processed foods only as much nutrient as is found in the natural state but which might be removed by milling or processing.

"When you begin to play with the food supply for a large population, there has to be a careful monitoring when you set out to change what nature has done," said Anderson in an interview.

Present regulations ban fluoride, vitamin K and folic acid but restrict no other nutrients.

The proposed regulation—opposed by the food industry—would permit addition of only niacin, which wards off pellagra; thiamine, which combats beriberi; riboflavin, which promotes healthy skin, and iron, which enriches the blood.

The FDA would require cereals to contain the following percentages of adult daily minimum requirements: thiamine, 10 per cent to 21 per cent; riboflavin, 2 per cent to 4 per cent; niacin, 5 per cent to 10 per cent; and iron, 5 per cent to 10 per cent.

The food industry, with the support of the American Medical Association, has proposed setting cereal fortification limits at between 25 and 100 per cent of adult requirements.

Kellogg's and Post, the two largest cereal manufacturers, list 11 cereals marketed now with iron content alone in excess of the FDA-proposed maximum.

Choate, a director of last year's White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health, testified that people aren't getting as much nutrition as they expect—or need—from cereals. FDA attorney Anderson disagrees.

"Why should cereal be a vitamin pill?" he said.

"Why should we get all our nutrients from one meal?"

"I don't think people think they just have to give their kid a bowl of cereal in the morning and they'll be all set for the rest of the day," Anderson said.

The cereal enrichment program is part of a proposal which also would set standards for fruit juices, frozen desserts, powdered and fluid milk, milk fortifiers, processed fruit for infants and diet supplements.

"We've got a group of concerned citizens here," said publisher Simons, referring to the close-knit Lawrence establishment. "Once they get behind something, usually they can get something done."

Skyscrapers For Chicks

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Eugene Meyer wants to get chicks—the feathered variety—out of the familiar henhouses and into downtown air-conditioned skyscrapers.

"Vertical birdlands" could be located almost anywhere and ideally in large metropolitan areas where the markets are, says Meyer, agricultural specialist for Honeywell, Inc.

He says deluxe henhouses will feature individual apartments carried on slow-moving vertical conveyors. The elevators will start with day-old chicks on the top floor and turn out eight-week-old broilers at the bottom. Temperatures, humidities and even "sunshine"—fluorescent lamps—will be controlled in the chicks' apartments and produce circumstances ideal for chicken raising.

For most efficient growth, temperature should be around 65 degrees, humidity about 50 per cent, Meyer says. This puts the most pounds on the chicks for the least feed, but the method has to be balanced off against costs of heating or cooling the chicken house.

For broiler operations handling tens of thousands of birds, Meyer advocates air-conditioned henhouses.

"Air-conditioning would not only save on feed, but raise a marketable broiler in seven weeks, instead of the eight or nine it takes now. This alone would cut operating costs at least 10 per cent."

Meyer believes the conventional pattern of raising chicks in warm brooders for the first four weeks is all wrong.

"You'll get bigger and better birds by raising chicks at 40 degrees for the first four weeks, then moving them to a 65-degree brooder house," he said.

The turnkey aspect of the program involves private enterprise in the provision of public housing. Rather than buy land, prepare plans and call for bids, the housing authority requests proposals from contractors. From those submitted, the authority selects the one best suited to its purpose and pays on a "turnkey" basis as units are completed.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA) — The North Carolina poultry market today was mostly one cent lower. Supplies fully adequate, weights desirable. Live at-farm, 10 to 10½, mostly 10½ cents per pound. Hens, offerings adequate for current needs. Heavies, at-farm 9 to 10 cents, mostly 10. Light type, none reported.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market, initially buoyed by a news report that Israel had accepted the U.S. Middle East cease-fire plan ran into some heavy resistance today.

By 11 a.m. the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead by only 4.4 points at 738.77. A half-hour earlier the blue-chip indicator had been ahead 4.86 points.

Analysts said a heavy supply of stock waiting for sale at the 740 level of the Dow industrial average blunted the rally. The resistance developed just as the industrial average reached 740 shortly after 10:30 a.m.

Winning issues on the New York Stock Exchange still held a commanding lead over losers but trading slackened from the brief brisk pace that followed the report of the Israeli acceptance.

Plymouth Band Will Play At Half-Time

The Plymouth High School Band, under the direction of John D. Lowery, will perform Saturday night during half time activities of the Boys' Home All-Star Game.

The 63-member unit, in making its second appearance at the football classic, has attended the Azalea Festival in Wilmington, twice attended the Myrtle Beach Sun-Fun Festival, and is making plans to participate in the 35th anniversary of the Landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Mass.

Supported by the Band Booster Club of Plymouth, the group won honorable mention and third place at Cary Band Day, and second place at the Motion With Music Contest at Rocky Mount.

In addition, the band has twice attended the Governor's Inauguration and during the 1969-70 school year, won honors at the East Carolina University Homecoming Parade and the 1970 Strawberry Festival in Chadburn. Membership in the band begins in the sixth grade with "beginning band" and follows through the seventh and eighth grades with "intermediate band." Membership in the high school unit comes when students reach the ninth grade.

The students annually sell roughly $1,500 worth of doughnuts to help support the band and last spring, members did most of the work involved in refinishing a bus that is used on the band's travels.

Guess Roads Jaycee 4-H Recognition To Be Game Guests Award For Best

The Guess Roads Jaycee Chapter, made up of nine inmates of the Guess Roads work release unit near Durham, will be the special guest of the Jaycees Saturday at the Eighth Annual Boys' Home All-Star Game.

The chapter, one of several institutional chapters of the North Carolina Jaycees in operation in the state, will arrive in Greenville around 6:30 Saturday afternoon and will attend the pre-game banquet scheduled by the local Jaycees. Jaycee game chairman Sam

Keel noted that the group bought their tickets to attend the all-star event last year but were unable to make arrangements to come.

In inviting them back to attend this year's classic, Keel commented, "We wanted to show them some kind of appreciation for their interest . . . to show them we care."

The Guess Roads camp, a minimum security unit, is made up mostly of inmates who are on work releases, Keel added. Most of the dues paid by the men as a chapter go to help unfortunate children.

The chapter meets on a regular basis with sessions scheduled twice a month. In addition, they are assisted by Dewey Davis, an advisor from the Durham Jaycees, who meets with them.

Keel noted that much of the credit for arranging the trip by the Guess Roads chapter belongs to George Randall, assistant director of the Department of Corrections of North Carolina who acted in a liaison capacity.

Boys Home All-Stars Hit Saturday

South Seeks To Snap Six-Game Winning Streak Of The North

The Eighth Annual Boys Home Bowl Game will get underway Saturday at 8 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

The affair is sponsored by the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce for the benefit of the Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw. It was originally conceived as an aid in paying off the debt on the Jaycee cottage at the Boys Home, which has since been accomplished. In the past few years, it has been used for upkeep of the cottage and the support of the boys living there.

The North goes into the game with a six-game winning streak. The South captured the opening affair, 26-0, but has failed to push over a victory since then.

The North reeled off two straight shutouts the next two years, 21-0 and 32-0, before the South managed a lone touchdown in the 24-7 licking they received the next season.

The last three years the contest has gotten closer, 19-14, 20-6, and 26-14.

Both coaches are optimistic of victory tomorrow night, and both predict high scoring. Cameron Little of Jacksonville, coach of the South squad said he felt the team that makes the fewest mistakes will be the one to come away with the win.

Injuries may play a small role in the outcome. The South has several players hurt, but all are expected to be ready, as are a couple of hurt North players.

Little, of course, wants to snap the string of South losses, and feels this is the year to do it. But North Coach Dick Kemp of Elizabeth City is just as determined that it won't happen. "I don't think we should be the team to let them win again," he said.

Neither coach has emphasized the record, however. Little said he told his players that they could lie down and let the North make it seven in a row, or they could go to work and win.

And both teams have been working hard. "They've surprised me with how much they have learned," Kemp said. "They've learned a couple of more plays than I thought we'd get in."

But it all boils down to how they play Saturday night. The games of the past have been exciting, and this one promises to be no less. There are strong runners and good passers and receivers on both teams, and both will be taken advantage of to try and produce a fine game.

The players are to be entertained at a banquet tonight at which East Carolina University assistant coach Sonny Randle will be the featured speaker.

Tar Heel All-Stars Nip North Staters, 6-5, For Area Title

ROBERSONVILLE — The Greenville Tar Heel League All-Stars nipped their fellow townsmen yesterday, 6-5, to take the Area II Tournament Championship.

The Tar Heels now move into Saturday's district finals against the Havelock-Beaufort winner. That game will be played at 4 p.m. in Robersonville. The winner of that contest advances to the sectional contest next week, to be held Wednesday through Friday in Greenville. The North Staters grabbed the initial lead in the second inning with a run. Connor Merritt led off with a single and Carlton Walls walked. Both runners moved up when Wayne Miller grounded to first. Merritt then stole home for a 1-0 lead.

But in the bottom of the inning, the Tar Heels came back to tie it up. Paul Farmer walked and was followed on by Mike Brewington, also on a walk. Lee Shearin reached on an error, loading the bases, and a walk to Greg Sasser brought in Farmer with the tying run.

The North State team went back out on top in the second, scoring two runs. Chris Garrett walked and moved to second on an error. A passed ball allowed him to go to third. Jeff Barber walked and stole second. A walk to Merritt loaded the bases, and Walls walked to push in Garrett with put the North State back on top. Miller then hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Barber to make it 3-1.

But the Tar Heels came right back, this time scoring three to take the lead, 4-3. Mike Belton and Jim Wilkerson both drew walks. Farmer singled, scoring Belton, and both runners moved up on the throw home.

Brewington then singled to center, scoring both Wilkerson and Farmer to put the Tar Heels on top.

The North State rallied again in the fifth, scoring twice and moving ahead for the third time in the game. Merritt led-off with a double and took third when Miller reached on an error. Ashley Bass reached on an error as Miller was cut down and Merritt was unable to advance. Harry Pair singled in Merritt and a passed ball let Bass come in with the go-ahead run, making it 5-4.

Again, however, the Tar Heels came back, this time scoring the winning runs. With one out, Farmer singled and Keith Jones followed with a hit. Brewington singled, and Farmer slid safely home as the ball was errored. Jones then scored when Shearin grounded out, scoring the winning run.

Barber led the North State hitting with three, while Merritt had two.

For the Tar Heels, Farmer and Brewington each had two. North State 012 020-5 7 3

Torborg Gets Best Evening

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Jeff Torborg, who used to be a no-hit catcher in more ways than one, has shed his mask and revealed himself as a fence-buster.

Torborg, who caught Sandy Koufax' fourth no-hitter five years ago and handled Bill Singer's no-hit gem two weeks ago, poled his first home run since 1967 as Singer and the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Montreal 7-3 Thursday night.

The 28-year-old receiver, a .211 lifetime hitter, crashed a three-run homer in the fourth inning and blooped a run-scoring single in the seventh for the biggest offensive binge of his seven-year career with the Dodgers.

"After I hit that bloop single," he said, "my teammates said that I had moved their defense back after the homer and then tricked them by dropping one in."

Torborg's four-RBI night helped Singer breeze to his fifth consecutive victory for an 8-3 season mark. The hard-throwing right-hander, who bounced back from a spring hepatitis attack and fired a no-hitter against Philadelphia on July 20, checked the Expos on six hits and struck out 10.

In other National League games, Cincinnati downed Pittsburgh 8-4; St. Louis topped Atlanta 4-2 and the Chicago Cubs trimmed Houston 6-3.

Torborg keyed a four-run Los Angeles burst in the fourth with a shot over the left field fence off Dan McGinn after singles by Ted Sizemore and Bill Russell. It was his seventh major league homer.

"I remember the last one," he said. "It was off Rich Nye in Chicago. Don Drysdale was pitching for us."

"Four runs batted in in a game is a high for me. I've had three before, but never four."

All-Stars, Chiefs Meeting Tonight

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The 37th All-Star Football Game, glumly overshadowed by pro football's bitter labor impasse, will send the world champion Kansas City Chiefs as a 12-point favorite against the cream of the 1969 collegiate senior crop at Soldier Field Friday night.

An announced strike by the National Football Players Association Thursday in rebuttal to a take-it-or-leave-it move by club owners in a pension scrap cast a pall on the Chicago Tribune's Charity classic which will be televised nationally beginning at 9:30 p.m., EDT.

The owners Wednesday opened their camps to any veterans willing to report after breaking off contract talks Tuesday.

The Chiefs, who won all the pro marbles last Jan. 11 by crushing the Minnesota Vikings, 23-7, in the Super Bowl, have had only five full practice days due to the labor dispute which nearly resulted in cancellation of the All-Star Game.

But the oddsmakers figures that even with a minimum of preparation, the Chiefs are capable of handling the ex-collegians—most of them headed for pro careers—a seventh straight beating in a series now standing 25-9-2 in favor of the pro champs.

Coach Otto Graham, whose All-Stars recorded the last two collegiate victories in the past 14 years — over the Green Bay Packers in 1963 and the Detroit Lions in 1958 — also has been harrassed by the NFL dispute.

Although practicing at Northwestern University since July 10, the All-Stars held a one-day mini-strike in sympathy with the NFL veterans on July 16, and failed to get in a customary game-time scrimmage planned with either the St. Louis Cardinals or Chicago Bears.

"The lack of that pro scrimmage slowed us down tremendously," said Graham, former star quarterback for the old Cleveland Browns and current athletic director at the Coast Guard Academy.

"That type of test against the pros is invaluable in convincing our kids that the pros are only human and can be knocked down with a good blow or tackle."

"I only hope now that we don't run scared against the Chiefs until the game reaches the point it is hopelessly lost."

Graham will start Dennis Shaw of San Diego State at quarterback, hoping the nation's collegiate total offense leader of 1969, or Purdue's Mike Phipps can fire the All-Stars as Greg Cook of Cincinnati did last year against the New York Jets.

Cook sparked the collegians to a 17-point third quarter and the Joe Namath-led Jets were fortunate to eke out a 26-24 victory after leading 13-0 against the bewildered All-Stars at halftime.

Graham tossed a coin to decide who would start between Shaw and Phipps, selected third in last January's pro draft behind No. 1 Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech and Notre Dame's behemoth tackle, Mike McCoy.

Quarterback Bradshaw had to quit the All-Star squad because of a leg injury, but McCoy will be one of the big All-Star defensive hopes against the Chiefs.

Shaw, drafted by the Buffalo Bills; Phipps, headed for the Cleveland Browns, and Green Bay Packer-bound McCoy are among Graham's flock of top draft choices, including 21 selected in the first round by the 26 pro clubs.

"Both Shaw and Phipps are very good quarterbacks — as passers and field generals — but if one gets a hot hand, he'll stay in the game since the idea is to win it," said Graham.

The All-Star offense hinges around Shaw or Phipps hitting such good receivers as Ken Burroughs of Texas Southern; Ron Shanklin of North Texas State, and Jerry Hendren of Idaho, and the running of some sturdy backs, headed by Art Malone of Arizona State and Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens of Oklahoma.

Graham admits he spent more time than usual in defensive preparations, with almost daily sessions against simulations of the Chiefs' tricky multiple attack as engineered by quarterback Len Dawson.

"We've got to stop them consistently, or else goodbye ball game," said Graham.

The fact the Chiefs now will disband after Friday night's game because of the veteran players strike may work for or against the All-Stars. The Chiefs could be distracted to pour it on, or redirected to the point of playing routinely.

Player Strike Turns Out To Be No Joke

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
A scoreless tie existed today in the pro football contract dispute after the veteran players put the owners on the offensive with a coffin-corn kick.

National Football League veterans, almost to a man, refused to report to training camp Thursday after the owners hung out the welcome sign.

It thus appeared to be the owners' move next.

"The situation is more critical than people think," said Wellington Mara, president of the New York Giants.

He said his team's scheduled exhibition with Green Bay Aug. 8 would probably be cancelled if the situation isn't settled by this weekend.

"If we lost the exhibition game," said Mara, "we lost $1 million. That money will have to come out of the players' salaries in some way."

When no veterans showed up at the Cincinnati Bengals' camp Thursday, General Manager Paul Brown closed shop. Apparently dismayed over the bitter, sometimes-volatile contract war, Brown said it could mean the end of the 1970 season.

There were only 15 yearlings left in the Bengals' site in Wilmington, Ohio.

Another owner, who asked to remain anonymous, was more optimistic.

"I really don't think we've given them enough time," he said. "Twenty-four hours just wasn't enough time for most players to pack their bags and get to camp."

"I think you'll see their ranks beginning to break up Saturday because if they don't get to camp over the weekend they stand to miss a paycheck for the first exhibition games."

Apparently hoping to undermine the unity of the striking NFL Players Association, owners unclashed their training camp gates Wednesday with the exhibition season only a week away.

There was little reaction. Less than a dozen vets showed up as the star-studded bulk of the NFLPA chose to stay together and stick it out despite the ominous warnings of "no season" from management.

Phil Sobocinski, a virtual unknown free agent who played center for the Atlanta Falcons in 1968, showed up.

"I don't think I'm breaking the strike," said the 6-foot-2, 238-pound Sobocinski. "I'm just a candidate trying to play professional football. I am fighting for my football life. I don't think my presence here will have any effect on the strike."

Another veteran, Mike Curtis of Baltimore, defied the Players Association, too.

Curtis, Baltimore's No. 1 draft choice in 1965 and an all-league selection two years ago, got a round of applause from the rookies when he appeared at the Colts' training table.

Curtis said he opposed the players association stand and indicated one reason he reported was because he liked the Colt management and felt he owed them an appearance in camp.

The NFLPA pledged Thursday to stick it out as long as needed to satisfy their demands for a new contract.

John Mackey of the Colts, head of the players' group, announced in Chicago that the veterans were officially on strike.

He declared the owners' action of opening camps was a deliberate attempt to split the teams.

But he left the door partially open with this statement: "We are willing to bend if we can get the owners back at the negotiating table—if they are also willing to bend."

The dispute mainly involves pension demands of $26 million over four years by the players and the owners' offer of $18 million. Five days of negotiations with federal mediators broke down in Philadelphia Tuesday.

In reporting to the Falcons' camp, Sobocinski was the exception. He appeared after the team's veterans had met for more than an hour and voted not to report.

Gary Bugenhagen was the only veteran to appear at the Patriot camp as all other players voted to go along with the NFLPA.

Quarterback Dan Darragh of Buffalo, who had said earlier he would report, had a change of mind at the last moment and decided to stay away "in an effort to preserve unity in our group." Thus, no veterans reported to the Bills' camp.

Offensive tackle Tom Sarkis

sian, formerly of the Philadelphia Eagles and linebacker Bob Print, an ex-San Diego Charger, showed up at the Cleveland Browns' facility.

Houston Oilers veterans voted 36-1 to boycott the team's training camp at Kerrville, Tex. Olen Underwood, the Oilers' player-representative, said it was a secret ballot and added he didn't know who was the lone dissenter.

Free agent Eugene Thomas, a running back who played with Kansas City in 1966 and 1967, was the only veteran reporting to the San Francisco camp.

Punter Bobby Walden, a seven-year veteran, and defensive back Curtis Gentry, who played three years with the Chicago Bears before being obtained as a free agent, were the only experienced men at Pittsburgh's Latrobe, Pa., camp.

Tim McCann, a second-string defensive back, was the only New York Giant in camp. Don Alley and Rick Eber, a pair of wide receivers, reported to the San Diego camp.

Signs of unrest were evident among pro football's luminaries.

Leroy Kelly, Cleveland's fine running back, didn't show up Thursday—but said he remained undecided whether he'd report later.

Of course, the veterans of the Kansas City Chiefs continued to train for tonight's game with the College All Stars in Chicago under a green light from the NFLPA. But they've vowed to break camp after the charity game if the affair is not settled.

The owners have not scheduled a meeting, but will probably be in Chicago for the game and could be brought together for swift action if need be.

West Captures All-Star Game

GREENSBORO (AP) — Pittsburgh halfback James Tucker ran five yards to score late in the second period as the West won 7-0 Thursday night in the annual East West North Carolina high school all star football game.

Sammy Johnson of High Point kicked the extra point. A 40-yard pass play from Johnson to Greensboro's Maurice Spencer set up the touchdown.

Instead of the expected high-scoring battle, defensive and offensive mistakes dominated the action.

The only scoring march started on the East 45 and took only two plays.

The East's heralded halfbacks Carlester Crumpler of Wilson and Jimmy Jerome of Wallace-Rose Hill, were bottled up thoroughly throughout the evening, as was most of the West's offensive punch.

One West drive ended with a fumble, and pass interceptions and a fumble stopped the East three times.

The West had a margin of 112 yards to 62 through the air, but the East ran for 87 yards, compared to the West's 57. Two East passes were picked off, and each team lost the ball on a fumble. Greenville's Joe West went six for 13 in passing attempts, accounting for 86 yards, half of the team's total offense. He had one pass intercepted in the end zone, following a fake field goal attempt. He led the East to its best threat in the game.

Beard Getting Freeze, But Not Hurting Golf

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — If Frank Beard is getting a freeze from his fellow pros because of his controversial, revealing book on the golf tour, he's not letting it affect his sleep—or his game.

"No, I'm not sorry I wrote it," the bespectacled, 31-year-old author said today. "I think much of the book was misconstrued and some taken out of context."

"I don't consider it a kiss-and-tell type of book that invades the privacy of anybody. It's an honest report on the tour. I said we're not one big happy family—that we have our own habits and separate interests it's all true."

Beard, defending champion in the $250,000 Westchester Classic here this weekend, is off to a good start with an opening round 68, just a stroke off the pace set by Australian Bruce Crampton, Larry Hinson, Tommy Jacobs, Hugh Royer and Brian Barnes, all tied at 67.

His literary efforts and the reaction haven't noticeably upset the mild, business-like craftsman from Louisville.

"I've won $82,468 this year and I'm 12th in the money list," Beard said. "I can't complain too much about that."

Beard was the tour's leading money winner in 1969 with more than $175,000.

Beard's book, entitled "Pro Frank Beard on the Golf Tour," written in collaboration with Dick Schaap, has stirred up some ripples in the tour ranks just as Jim Bouton's book on after-hours high jinx rocked baseball.

Some critics felt Beard told too much and cast unnecessary aspersions on some of golf's heroes, particularly Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player. Beard denies it.

"I haven't had any direct reaction," Beard said today. "I read some caustic remarks about the book by Jack Nicklaus. And Arnold Palmer hasn't said anything to me, but we were never especially close, anyhow."

"I tried to break the ice with Nicklaus at the Kemper Tournament but didn't get too much response, so I decided not to worry about it."

"Jack and I have never been bosom pals. Our wives are good friends. I've been over to their house for dinner. But Jack wouldn't call me to go fishing or come over for a hand of bridge."

"Palmer and Nicklaus live in different worlds. They fly jet planes. They are rich and very busy. I don't blame them. Some people said I wrote the book out of spite because Jack and Arnie didn't treat me as any equal."

"It's true they don't treat me as equal, because we aren't equals. They have been much more successful than I. But I'm not harboring any spite."

Beard painted Palmer as a jet-piloting business tycoon who is too busy to relax and have beers with fellow pros. He also hinted that Palmer, at 40 and ailing, may have won his last major crown.

He said Nicklaus could be the greatest golfer of our time, winning one or two major crowns and $400,000 every year but lacks the driving ambition to achieve the goal. He kidded Player for his physical fitness fetish.

"There was nothing derogatory about any of it," Beard said. "Certainly, Palmer is busy. I would be, too, if I were in his shoes. I didn't say Nicklaus 'should' win seven tournaments a year. I said he 'could.' There's a difference."

The rich Westchester, with its $50,000 first prize, was without some of its big names going into today's second round.

Tied with Beard at 68 were the PGA champion Ray Floyd, Gene Littler, Jerry McGehee, Mike Ballo and Fred Marti.

Nicklaus, Palmer and Player all shot 72, Bill Casper a 73.

Worry Clinic Middle Child In Unique Spot

Nina was delighted to have a kitten and showed no jealousy or cruelty to it. For Nina felt somewhat "orphaned" by being the middle child. She thus relished the affection a puppy or kitten would offer. But a spoiled "only" child will often resent sharing the family spotlight, even with a kitten or puppy!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE N-586: Nina R., aged 6, is the middle child in a family of 3 little girls.

On her last birthday, she got her heart's desire — a kitten. "Dr. Crane," her daddy began, "you say that children often feel hostile to a puppy or kitten, viewing it as a rival for the family's attention."

"But Nina has never shown any sign of cruelty to her kitten. "She feeds it and plays with it and seems overjoyed to have it get up on the bed and sleep beside her."

"So why do some kiddies show cruelty to animals while others don't?"

The middle child occupies a unique spot in the sequence of kiddies.

For the oldest child has been an "only" child for a year or more.

Thus, the oldest youngster has monopolized adult attention and the family limelight till the 2nd baby arrives.

Then that oldest child must split the family's attention with the baby.

In fact, the baby then may even gain more than 50 per cent of the adult spotlight.

But when a 3rd baby arrives, this extra attention to the youngest now shifts to the newcomer.

So that middle child is figuratively between "the devil and the deep blue sea."

Now it neither gains the attention of the oldest child, who can still outshine the others by being more capable.

Nor can the middle tot get the adulation and solicitude that goes to the new baby.

So it is somewhat like a dope addict who has suddenly been cut off from his previous dosage of narcotics.

Thus, the middle child is restless and often becomes a trouble maker, in an attempt to regain some spotlight.

But it feels hungry for love and affection, since most parents unintentionally shower maybe 90 per cent of their visible praise, love and care upon the oldest and youngest, thus leaving possibly no more than 10 per cent for that middle youngster.

So the middle child often is doubly fond of a puppy or kitten, since the latter show their affection by barking happily or purring when the middle child cuddles it to her breast.

Contrast this eagerness to have a pet with the occasional angry reaction of the "only" child, who resents the puppy or kitten as a threat to continual domination of its two parents!

Yesterday, I mentioned 4-year-old Polly, who disliked having her daddy pay so much attention to the new puppy.

But Polly's home situation was very different from Nina's, since it makes all the difference in the world regarding your personality development, depending on whether you are the firstborn, vs. the 2nd in a large family.

The 2nd child thus tends to be more of an extrovert, a la the Prodigal Son. He (or she) is usually more talkative, more reckless, less inclined to finish chores with a flourish, etc.

Send for my "Introvert-Extrovert Test," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, and rate the members of your family.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Declare Castro Confronted By Growing Revolt

MIAMI (AP) — Alpha 66, a militant exile band which claims to have guerrillas fighting inside Cuba, says Fidel Castro's admission of discontent in his country was an understatement — "there is a rebellion and it is spreading."

Castro acknowledged Sunday in a speech on the anniversary of the start of his revolution that Cuba faced serious economic problems and discontent.

Alpha 66 spokesman Diego Medina commented: "The fact that there is rebellion is shown by the widespread sabotage going on in Cuba, by fighting in the mountains, by the fact that no one wants to work and those who do, work as little as possible."

Medina added, "Soon big events will occur inside Cuba."

A Ride To Jail For Hitchhiker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two police plainclothesmen, cruising an area in their scout car seeking a holdup suspect, were hailed by a man who asked for a ride.

He got one—directly to the police station where Officers Joseph Thomas and Samuel Bennett charged him with holding up the driver of a soft drink truck only minutes before.

Board To Hold Hearing On Opening Of School

The Pitt County Board of Education will hold a public hearing Monday at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the opening of the new North Pitt High School.

The hearing will be held in the district court room of the Pitt County Court House. Communities involved in the hearing will be Stokes, Pactolus, Bethel, and Belvoir.

Arthur Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, said the hearing is required by law before the discontinuance or consolidation of high schools.

Approval of the consolidation will have to come from the State Board of Education. However, Alford said, the actual decision by the local and state boards to approve or disapprove the plan is a discretionary one.

According to the law, a county board of education may not discontinue or consolidate any high school with an average daily attendance of 60 or more pupils until:

—a public hearing is held with respect to the proposed plan of discontinuance or consolidation and at which time all interested persons are given an opportunity to express their views;

—the county board of education and the state board of education conduct a thorough study of the discontinuance or consolidation plan before approving same;

—that any plan of discontinuance or consolidation be formally approved by the State Board of Education.

Similar hearings will be held prior to the opening of the three other new high schools open.

TV Cameras On Last Day

Greenville's TV Station WNCN-TV will cover the final day of renovation Saturday at Allen Chapel. The project, labeled Helping Hand, has been sponsored by The Crusaders, a group of young Negro students whose organization is devoted to creating better community relations and helping in need causes.

Johnny Wooten, advisor to the group, said that Tom Donaldson, news reporter from the TV station, would cover the final phase with TV cameras at 10:00 a.m.

Wooten also noted that "the white churches in Greenville, about eight of them, have made contributions for materials."

"Only one Negro church in the community," he noted, "has made donations."

Most of the work has been accomplished by The Crusaders and their friends. "One other group, under Ernest Adams, came out and helped with the work," Wooten commented. Adams is a rising senior at Rose High School, and is the first Negro youth to be elected president of the Student Government Association.

According to statistics from the North Carolina Department of Mental Health, employment opportunities in this field are plentiful. There are now more than 3,350 such positions in the state.

The program at Pitt Technical is open to all interested persons with a high school diploma or its equivalent. Applications are now being taken and all inquiries should be made to George S. McRorie, director of student personnel at PTI.

OCEAN'S EDGE

Yesterday I saw the ocean for the first time. Jim and I had been invited to a house party at a cottage on the shore. Having recently moved East from the Midwest, I had anticipated nothing more on the drive down than a weekend of fun and games, swimming and dancing.

But I wasn't prepared for the ocean. Its grandeur and beauty stirred me. Today I walked along the beach for long hours watching the waves or searching the shore for shells, listening to the wonderful roar of the sea as whitecaps splashed around me.

Tonight as I stood at ocean's edge, the stars seemed near. Breakers crashing rhythmically sprinkled phosphorescence on the sand. For an instant I was caught within infinity. Sky, beach and tides contained me—in that moment I saw God.

I may never again achieve the clarity of that second on the beach, but someday I may. For this experience has awakened in me a longing to know more about God and the Truths the beauty of His world reveal.

Pepsi

You've got a lot to live
Pepsi's got a lot to give

What we mean is this: living isn't always easy, but it never has to be dull. There's too much to see, to do, to enjoy. Put yourself behind a Pepsi-Cola and get started.
You've got a lot to live.
