Death And Damage Figures Mount

Celia's Damage Nearing $300 Million

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Estimates of damage neared $300 million today in Texas' Coastal Bend vacation area in the wake of Hurricane Celia. The storm claimed 32 lives, 13 in Texas.

Figures kept mounting on death and destruction from the effects of Celia's blows in the Corpus Christi area and north-westward into Mexico, where the storm finally beat itself out Tuesday.

Five persons perished as the storm battered across Cuba and 14 drowned in Florida waters turned turbulent by the storm's passage through the Gulf of Mexico.

With damage to more than three-fourths of the buildings and houses in Corpus Christi and dozens of neighboring towns, officials tentatively put the property damage total around $233 million. Crop losses were estimated at nearly $60 million.

Winds ranged up to 160 miles per hour, the Weather Bureau said, as Celia surged ashore Monday across Corpus Christi Bay. Before crossing the international border to hit Mexico's mountains, it still packed winds as high as 89 m.p.h. The big storm dealt lessening blows as far as 250 miles inland.

However, Celia brought rains amounting to less than nine inches along the watershed of the Rio Grande, where downpours up to 30 inches set off massive floods on the heels of Hurricane Beulah in 1967. There were warnings of some flooding in low areas on the Rio Grande and the Nueces River, which flows into the Gulf here.

President Nixon declared the Corpus Christi area a major disaster area making federal money available to speed relief, soon after Gov. Preston Smith and others advised him of the crippling damage.

The designation paves the way for federal grants for the repair and reconstruction of public facilities and low-interest loans for the private sector.

Doctors and nurses came from Houston and other cities to help care for the injured—running into hundreds, although many escaped with minor hurts.

Hospitals suffered severe damage at neighboring Aransas Pass and at Robstown, west of here. Lighter blows were felt by the four hospitals in Corpus Christi and others in this vicinity. Army hospital units were set up at Aransas Pass and Ingleside.

Local officials reported widespread damage from Corpus Christi to Rockport, 30 miles up the coast, and in Port Aransas, Aransas Pass, Ingleside, TAFT, Sinton, Mathis and Robstown.

The Red Cross reported about 65,000 families suffered losses. It said an estimated 8,950 homes were destroyed and 13,850 others dealt major damage. An urgent appeal for $6 million in relief funds was issued by Red Cross Chairman E. Roland Harriman.

Acceptance Of 90-Day Cease-Fire Approved By Israeli Parliament

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By a vote of better than two to one, the Israeli parliament Tuesday night endorsed the government's acceptance of the American plan for a 90-day cease-fire and indirect peace negotiations with the Arabs.

Meanwhile, five Arab nations decided to go ahead with a meeting in Tripoli despite an Iraqi boycott, mortar fire from Lebanon wounded five Israeli teen-agers in a border settlement, and Israeli troops killed three Arab guerrillas on the Lebanese and Jordanian borders.

Before the 66-28 vote in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, Premier Gold Meir said Israeli troops would remain in Arab territory captured during the 1967 war until a binding peace agreement is reached.

Even then, she said, Israel

"will not return to the 1967 borders" but will pull back to "secure, recognized and agreed boundaries to be determined in the peace agreement."

Withdrawal of Israeli troops from the captured territory is a stipulation of the U.N. Security Council resolution of Nov. 22, 1967, which is to serve as the basis of the new peace talks. But the Israelis have said repeatedly they will never surrender Old Jerusalem, the Arab sector of the city, and are also expected to insist on holding the Golan Heights, seized from Syria; the Gaza Strip, taken from Egypt, and possibly the Sinai coast past the Strait of Tiran, which overlooks the southern water route to Israel.

Israel also captured the Jordanian territory on the west bank of the Jordan River and the rest of the Sinai desert from Egypt.

Mrs. Meir said her government "continues to feel grave doubts" about Arab readiness to recognize Israel's right to exist. But she said the government feels it must not forego the new prospect for peace, "slight though it may be."

Deputy Premier Yigal Allon told the Knesset he believes the United States has checked the direct "Soviet involvement in Egypt" by making its opposition to this clear both in public statements and "through ways that were not published."

He said that while this did not get the Russians out of Egypt, "I assume it has determined very serious limits with regard to the future." He added that the Soviets probably would not have done as much as they have if the United States had taken its stand earlier.

Nutritionist Says America 'Brainwashed'

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A professor of nutrition accused the cereal industry today of brainwashing the American public with a Communist-like propaganda campaign aimed directly at children.

"In a country where there is a considerable amount of malnutrition among the poor and where rates of infant mortality are disgracefully high this advertising may be indirectly contributing to ill health and mortality," declared Dr. Michael C. Latham, a physician and international professor of nutrition at Cornell University.

Latham commented in testimony prepared for a third session of the Senate consumer subcommittee's inquiry into the nutritional value of dry breakfast cereals.

The subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, began its inquiry last week with testimony by citizen-lobbyist Robert Choate that most of the heavily advertised breakfast cereals are no more nutritional than hard liquor.

The industry, in a massive counterattack Tuesday, accused Choate of basing his findings on inadequate, confusing and incomplete information.

Five industry spokesmen told the subcommittee that Choate did not consider the impact of adding milk to cereal, which they said produced a high-quality protein. They also said cereals should not be eaten alone but with other things like juice and toast.

And they said overloading cereals with vitamins and nutrients could cause a dangerous imbalance in some human systems.

"My main thesis," Latham said, "is that the consumer has been led to believe that ordinary dry breakfast cereals have nutritive value superior to common foods such as bread, hominy grits, rice, spaghetti, baked beans, potatoes, pizza etc. This is not true...."

Latham said the cereal makers probably would deny ever claiming their products are nutritionally superior to these foods.

"Perhaps they have not claimed this in so many words, but they have implied it in their advertising," he said.

School Board Will Seek Amend Plans

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A decision was made by Greenville Board of Education members last night to recess their special meeting until a check is made with board attorney W. W. Speight.

Speight will be asked to give a legal opinion on the possibility of including an amendment to the school plan already approved by the federal district court as an

A meeting to hear the attorney's report will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning in the board room of the school administrative offices on W. Fifth Street.

If Speight determines that an amendment will only constitute an administrative change and will not alter the basic plan, the board will reconvene for the purpose of taking a vote on the amendment proposed last night by a delegation from the Hillsdale-Carolina Heights area of Greenville.

In the event Speight gives an opinion that an amendment cannot be made without creating a major change in the basic plan, the board will still have to reconvene to complete action on the second item discussed on last night's official agenda, that of voting on the board attorney's Letter of Compliance to HEW in order to remove Greenville from the deferred status.

Both the Letter of Compliance and the proposal of the Hillsdale-Carolina Heights delegation were on the official agenda; therefore these are the only matters that can officially be taken up when the board reconvenes to complete the special meeting after the declared recess.

Ray Corbett, spokesman for the approximately 30 member delegation from Hillsdale-Carolina Heights, presented the area's proposed change. Corbett also presented Dr. Aycock a petition signed by residents of the area supporting the proposed change, or as it came to be labeled, the proposed amendment.

In essence, the main points of the proposal centers on a request to keep 134 children in Hillsdale-Carolina Heights in attendance at South Greenville, where they were in school last year.

To effect this - their proposal calls for changing the approved Plan Form 80 so that 91 children from Brook Valley would attend Sadie Sautler instead of South Greenville; and an additional 36 children from the Washington Highway area would also attend Sadie Sautler, instead of going to

Reappointed

RALEIGH (AP) — George W. King of Ayden will serve another four-year term on the North Carolina Milk Commission.

Gov. Bob Scott announced his reappointment Tuesday. King has served on the commission since November, 1966.

Wahl-Coates School.

The stated objectives of this proposal were "Our children are apparently the only all white to be bussed out to make room for a different group of all white to be bussed in with integration or ratio not being a factor;

"If (our children) are returned to South Greenville, this will eliminate double bussing of children;

"It will leave South Greenville the only school in Greenville not upset by changes required to meet new ratios for 1970-71;

"Brook Valley and Washington Highway area apparently must be bussed to maintain proper ratios. The distance to Saide Sautler is only eight tenths of one mile further from South Greenville;

"South Greenville was the only totally integrated school in the system last year and operated with a minimum of problems. There is no need for new adjustments if the same students are returned again."

Corbett further showed by prepared charts that such a change would more nearly balance out the court ordered ratio of two to one (two white students to one black student), changing Wahl-Coates from the current 70.1 percent white students to 67.8 percent; Sadie Sautler from its presently approved 63.1 percent white to 62.5 percent; and South Greenville from 61.1 percent to 64.0 percent.

When queried on the accuracy of these figures by board members, Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox noted "the figures they have presented are correct," after he had made tabulations of the original and the proposed figures.

Also present were several persons from other areas of town, including ones from Brook Valley and Stratford. Some of these expressed opposition to the proposed change, and indicated that favorable action on the part of the board on the Hillsdale-Carolina Heights amendment would result in their community seeking to present to the board their own requests for changes in the present plan to be considered by the members of the board.

Unemployment Compensation Bill Completed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's signature would give unemployment insurance coverage to 4.7 million more workers and, in times when jobless levels are especially high, lengthen the payment periods for all.

On a 50-19 vote, the Senate completed congressional action on the measure Tuesday, a compromise which the House passed 388-3 on July 23.

The bill had been stalled for three months after Senate-House conferees deleted a provision in the original Senate version which would have made a start on extending coverage to farm workers.

Those voting against the bill Tuesday weren't opposed, but still were trying to send it back to conference to have the farm provision restored.

As it is, the bill extends coverage to small firms with one to three employees (the minimum now is four), additional agricultural processing workers, employees of nonprofit organizations, state hospitals, colleges and universities and to some Americans working abroad.

It also contains a feature which would extend the maximum payment period another 13 weeks when the national unemployment rate reaches 4.5 percent for three months running.

That provision also could be invoked for individual states, if their levels represent a climb of 20 per cent over the preceding year and the over-all rate is at least 4 per cent.

The lengthened payments will be possible legally as of 1972, or earlier if state action so provides. The states would share the cost equally with the federal government.

The federal unemployment tax would be boosted immediately one-tenth of one per cent, and the payroll base on which it is levied would go from $3,000 annually per employe to $4,200 as of 1972.

Swearing-In

Robert D. Rouse, Jr., Farmville attorney, will take the oath of office as Resident Judge, Superior Court, Third Judicial District, at 10:30 a.m. Friday in the Superior Courtroom at the Courthouse in Greenville.

The oath will be administered by Judge Naomi Morris of the North Carolina Court of Appeals. Judge Raymond Mallard, Chief Judge of the North Carolina Court of Appeals, will participate.

Governor Scott has appointed Rouse to complete the unexpired term of the late Judge William J. Bundy. The public is invited.

Coal And Natural Gas Shortages In N.C. Said Near A Critical Stage

RALEIGH (AP) — A spokesman for the North Carolina Utilities Commission says the shortage of the state is "approaching the critical stage."

Roger Koger of the commission staff said Tuesday that the commission is taking steps to try to alleviate the shortages before winter.

He said the state's two major power companies — Duke Power and Carolina Power & Light — have reported their coal supply down, in some cases as much as 60 per cent.

The companies usually stockpile enough coal to last 60 to 70 days, he said. But now they have reserve supplies to last only 30 to 40 days.

Koger said the commission and the power companies believe the coal shortage is due in large part to new federal mining regulations governing coal exports.

The new regulations allow more coal to be shipped to Japan and Italy. The two countries are paying higher prices for coal than American firms and are therefore getting a large share of the supply.

Both Duke Power and CP&L were recently granted emergency rate hikes, and both firms have substantial rate increase requests pending before the commission.

The increasing cost of coal has been one of the major factors the companies have presented to justify the rate hikes.

The Public Service Co. also recently asked the Utilities Commission for a hike in the gas rates. The firm listed as a major reason the rising cost of na tural gas from its suppliers.

Koger said the commission has begun closely monitoring the gas shortage both from the company and customer standpoint and should have information in a few weeks.

He said the gas shortage is so severe in some areas that some gas companies are restricting the addition of new customers.

He blamed the shortage on the fact that few new wells have been opened in the past few years.

He said the commission has begun closely monitoring the coal supplies of power companies to see that the reserves do not slip lower. The commission has also alerted the federal office of emergency planning in Washington to the situation.

Pitt School Bd. Again Rejects Project Bids

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday rejected bids from two firms for rough-grading the athletic field on the new Ayden - Grifton High School site.

The bids, coming from W.A. Gaskins in Grifton and Morris Construction Company, were each for $1,500. Board members declined the bids and will ask the two firms to re-submit bids for the project, which includes approximately five acres of land.

This was the second time the board has rejected bids for the project from these two firms. Earlier bids totaled $2,000 from Morris and $1,850 from Gaskins.

The board authorized Tom Craft, associate superintendent, to obtain new bids for the project.

Board members yesterday approved the Elementary and Secondary Education Act Title I budget for the period ending August 31, 1971, which totals $1,384,920.

Expenses included in the budget are: administration, $66,760; inservice education, $5,000; audiovisual materials, $10,000; school library books and other library expenses, $12,000;

Dollar Day Coming

Dollar Day is coming to Greenville again. This year's date for the semi-annual savings day has been set for Thursday.

Gene Skinner, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, said this is the final clearance sale of summer goods.

"We are looking forward to this Dollar Day being very strong, if not stronger than it has ever been," Skinner said. "Most all Greenville merchants are preparing for one of their biggest days."

Harold Creech, manager of the association, said the Greenville stores have worked toward providing good values and bargains in this trade event.

The sale is sponsored by the association. Free parking will be provided for the Dollar Day event.

Sen. McClellan Refuses Risk Street Gang Probe

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan has refused the request of two black ministers to take his subcommittee to Chicago to investigate the Black P. Stone Nation, a street gang also known as the Blackstones.

"Why do I want to come there and risk my life?" McClellan asked Tuesday. "I don't want to get shot at. I don't go out into a jungle just for the sake of appeasing someone like you."

The Rev. John Barber asked the Arkansas

Democrat to take the subcommittee's bombing and terrorism investigation to the Blackstones' turf—a sprawling, poverty-shrouded neighborhood which, the minister said, the gang has in a stranglehold.

Barber, a top aide in the Rev. Jesse Jackson's Operation Breadbasket, and the Rev. Curtis E. Burrell, pastor of the Woodlawn Mennonite church and chairman of the Kenwood-Oakland Community Organization (KOCO), appeared before the subcommittee at the invitation of Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

They said they have been shot at, Burrell's church and home have been bombed and set afire and Burrell has had to close the KOCO office since he fired two gang leaders from the organization's payroll a month ago.

Police and city officials are powerless against the gang, the ministers said, because residents of the area are so numbed by fear they will not sign complaints or testify against any of its members.

"We want a full-scale investigation by this committee—we don't trust anything local—of where they get all their guns and dope, who finances them, their connection with the Mafia," Barber said.

Said McClellan: "I tell you I'm not coming. It isn't safe. You said so yourself."

"Are you saying the Black P. Stone Nation is more powerful than the United States government?" Barber asked.

"I don't know. From what you say it appears they are," McClellan replied.

Sister Lucy Faciane: Nation's Only Mayor-Nun

By NAOMI ROCK
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Call her Sister, call her Your Honor or call her Dean. The title's not important. Only her work is.

She's Sister Lucy Faciane, a Benedictine nun who is mayor of St. Leo, Fla., and dean of students at St. Leo College, a four-year coed Catholic school.

"I've been told that this is the age of persuasive leadership and that if anyone can persuade it's I," joked Sister Lucy, her round cherubic face all smiles.

"I was really amazed that my co-councilmen elected a woman mayor," the nation's first mayor-nun said of the four men who help her govern St. Leo, a town of 320 persons, about 70 miles from Orlando. "I guess they thought I could accomplish things. Besides, almost everybody knows me. I'm the kind who gets around."

"You know," she continued, grinning, "we're setting up a town planning commission to prepare St. Leo for the tourist influx once Disneyland opens in Orlando next year. I don't suppose we can expect anything like this."

She swept her arm in a wide arc toward the window of a midtown Manhattan restaurant, watching traffic—people and cars—on this, her first trip to New York.

"It's a nice place to visit," she said with an impish smile. Sitting there, a small matronly figure in a light summer dress and appearing younger than her 36 years, Sister Lucy hardly looked like a nun.

"I was the first one in our religious community to abandon the habit," she said. "I did it two-and-a-half years ago. I don't think you need religious garb to convey a religious message."

MAYOR NUN — Sister Lucy Faciane, the nation's only mayor-nun, governs the tiny town of St. Leo, Fla., and is dean of students at St. Leo College, a four-year, coed Catholic school.

Because the duty of both clergymen and public officials is public service, Sister Lucy said, she'd like to see more and more religious leaders assume political roles. She added that nuns and priests, in particular, should become involved in politics, since the ecumenical movement has changed Catholic theology from withdrawal from the world to giving witness to the world.

"Why did we choose an active rather than a cloistered religious life?" Sister Lucy asked. "It was to serve people; to give witness, which means to teach Christian principles by example. A good way to give witness is to lead."

Does she perceive any possible conflict between simultaneous religious-political duties? The answer is an emphatic "NO."

"It's a question of individual conscience, something I don't think is unique to clergymen," she said. "Any effective political leader will make sure that his views are widely understood before an issue is decided. But in the final analysis he must do not what he wants but what a majority of his constituents wish."

Sister Lucy's constituency consists of the 300-odd permanent residents of the citrus-fruit producing town, and the college's 1,300 students. Ninety-nine per cent of both populations are Roman Catholic.

It's really to the advantage of both sides to have an official of the college as an official of the town, said Sister Lucy, since the school is the largest institution in St. Leo and has the most people.

"When there are problems it helps that someone understands both sides," she said. The role of administrator comes easily to Sister Lucy, who got into politics at age 10, and went into teaching after she became a nun and graduated from college.

"My father was a barber, and I would sit in his shop and listen to talk of politics," Sister Lucy said of her early years in Slidell, La. "I learned quickly that politicians were very powerful and could do a lot of good or evil. My father always stressed the good that could be done."

"When I was about 10," she continued, "I worked in campaigns to help some of my dad's friends. I gave out pins and things. It was then that I began to be interested in history and politics."

Years later, after going through a Benedictine convent in St. Leo while at the same time getting a bachelors degree in history at Barry College in Miami, Sister Lucy taught in parochial elementary schools, became an elementary school principal, and then studied for a masters degree in history.

Halfway through these studies, however, she followed the suggestion of her Mother Superior that she change to school administration. She got her degree and last year became Director of Women at St. Leo College and then, in May, dean of students.

Meanwhile, in late 1965 she was elected to the St. Leo Town Council for a two-year term. Re-elected in 1967, she was chosen as mayor last January.

Higher Fence May Calendar Solve Neighbor Talk Events

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I dread summer because my next door neighbor is a pest. We rarely see her in the winter, but the moment one of us goes outside to hang up the clothes, work in the yard, or if my husband wants to wash the car — she's right there with a constant stream of chatter. If we go outside to just sit, she comes over and joins us. Other neighbors get pestered, too, but we get more of her because she's right next door.

This woman has a husband and two school-aged children. She doesn't work outside the home, and judging from the time she spends outside, talking to anyone who happens by, she doesn't do anything inside the home either. We put up a fence 2 years ago, but she leans over it and talks a blue streak.

We have lived here for 25 years, our children are grown and the house is paid for. We've always gotten along well with our neighbors. Short of moving, what can we do?

PESTERED IN SUMMER

DEAR PESTERED: How about a higher fence?

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a very serious and humiliating problem. I am a woman, 24, and I snore so loudly that sometimes I wake myself up.

I'm going with a man who has asked to marry me, and I am worried about sleeping with him and experiencing the embarrassment of keeping him awake with my snoring.

I know that I must snore very, very loudly because whenever I have slept away from home [camp, college, and overnight as a house guest] I have been kidded about my snoring.

This is becoming a monumental hang-up, Abby. Is there anything a doctor can do to help me? Any other suggestions will be appreciated.

ZZZZzzzz

DEAR ZZZzzzz: First, see a doctor. If your snoring is due to a nasal obstruction, the doctor may be able to eliminate it [or tone it down] by performing minor surgery. ["Minor surgery" is an operation performed on someone else.] If that doesn't help, tell your fiancée you snore before you marry him. There are enough "surprises" after marriage without this nocturnal nuisance.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please rush me the name of a boarding school near Philadelphia that accepts boys who are not yet 4 years old? I think my son needs to live away from home in order to grow up.

I am a divorcee who works, and my mother [a widow] lives with me and looks after Johnny. Lately Johnny has been going back to his baby ways. He wets the bed, sucks his thumb, and refuses to eat unless someone feeds him. My mother is exhausted every evening when I come home. She can't handle him. Now Johnny won't go to sleep unless I take him in my bed and I have a terrible time getting away in the morning to go to work. This all started about 6 months ago. Please help me.

END OF ROPE

DEAR END: From your letter, I think the last thing your child needs is to be sent to a boarding school. He is trying to tell you that he needs your love and attention. Ask your pediatrician to recommend a specialist in child behavior. Take Johnny there for a complete physical and mental examination.

CONFIDENTIAL TO L. L.: Don't worry about what to tell people. Your friends won't ask. And your enemies won't believe you anyway.

Border Dispute Not Yet Ended

Although we have not heard much about the Soviet Union - Red China border dispute lately, it is likely the matter has not been resolved.

The Soviet Union has now embarked on what the Associated Press calls a high risk policy of "island reclamation" in Far Eastern rivers bordering Red China.

The announced purpose is agriculture; however, the experts believe it could bring about a confrontation between the two Communist giants.

There are hundreds of islands in the Amur and Ussuri rivers which make up 2,000 miles of border between the two countries. Agricultural workers on the islands would be protected by the Soviet army and it is easy to recall recent bloody clashes between Soviet and Red Chinese troops on similar islands.

It could be that the Soviet Union is ready to test Red China in this disputed territory by putting the land to work to see what its neighbor will do. The Soviets may feel that they can gain clear dominance in the Communist world by putting on a show of force along the border.

Whatever the reasons, as long as the Soviets feel there is a threat from Red China then the Soviet Union will be more inclined to seek settlements to problems between it and the Western world. The Russians cannot afford to have enemies in both the east and the west.

It is going to be interesting to watch the developments along the disputed Red China - Soviet Union border, keeping in mind always that a full scale war between the countries will mean danger for the rest of the world.

'Lost Colony' Sequel Could Be Interesting

A sequel to the "Lost Colony", as planned at Pembroke, might prove interesting.

The play would dramatize the legend that the settlers survived and moved to Robeson county where they intermarried with the Lumbee Indians. Paul Green and his associate Randolph Umberger have been commissioned to write the drama.

The "Lost Colony" production at Manteo has proven to be an excellent way to present this early North Carolina history. A sequel at Pembroke could also be successful and we would like to see it become a reality.

Roadblocks In Nixon's Path

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Facing a budget deficit of proportions unimaginable a few months ago, President Nixon has run into two roadblocks in his long-planned campaign to put the blame for the red-ink spending on Congress.

Roadblock No. 1: Even though the education money bill just passed by Congress exceeds Mr. Nixon's spending guidelines about as much as last year's, which Mr. Nixon vetoed, Congressional Republicans are so militantly opposed to a second veto that the President will let it become law.

Roadblock No. 2: A bipartisan coalition of liberals in Congress is conducting a plot to outmaneuver President Nixon after he vetoes another appropriations bill — this one containing money for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The plot is to rewrite the bill so that it falls within Mr. Nixon's overall spending limit by cutting space spending, thus keeping HUD money earmarked for cities at levels far above the President's.

These roadblocks imperil Mr. Nixon's strategy to use veto politics in the 1970 elections. Accordingly, the grand White House design to hang the high spending tag around the Democratic Congress is clearly in trouble.

Moreover, the Nixon administration may be suffering some substantive ill effects from its veto politics. There is private White House concern that the President and his advisers are believing their own rhetoric — that is, deluding members into thinking that Congress really is responsible for a highly inflationary budget deficit (now looming at $15 billion or higher).

That would mean ignoring the true causes of the shocking deficit — the inexorable upward creep of Federal spending, the economic decline, and the end of the surtax. It would also permit a convenient postponement of possible tax increases.

According to close associates, Mr. Nixon entered the Presidency curiously eager to cast his first veto against the Democratic Congress. That came on last year's education bill and was a political success — sustained by the House and sold to the public over television by the President himself. White House politicians conjured up visions of many vetoes, pinning Congressional Democrats as free spenders.

Thus several Presidential advisers have wanted the President to veto this year's education appropriations bill. Option papers sent to the Oval Office from the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) strongly pointed toward a veto.

But Republicans in Congress are pressing Mr. Nixon hard not to veto the measure. Rep. Albert Quie of Minnesota, a well-respected Nixon loyalist, sent the President a confidential letter strongly urging that the bill become law. If it is vetoed, Quie continued, he could not vote to sustain it as he did last time.

The party leadership in Congress informed the President that there are enough Quies to assure that a Nixon veto would be overridden, as was the recent veto of Hill-Burton hospital funds. The Hill leaders strongly recommended against a second straight reverse.

Mr. Nixon can partially offset his ducking the issue on education by his probable veto of the money bill for HUD. Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, the House Republican leader, privately informed the President has 156 votes (11 more than

Strength For Today

Eyes For Spiritual Realities

Many years ago there was a play entitled "The Return of Peter Grimm." Old Peter, who had died, was pictured as returning in spirit once in a while into the distraught household in which he had formerly resided. Those who were quarreling were never conscious of his spiritual presence. The maid, whom during his lifetime Peter had reminded every day to wind the clock, would go and perform this duty when Peter's spirit entered the room. Only the child of the household, a beautiful and pure spirit, actually saw the old man.

Everyone who witnessed the performance was aware of its lesson without having it explained: Only those people were conscious of the spiritual presence of Peter Grimm whose lives were prepared to discern spiritual things. The querulous passed him by and never saw him. The sensual and the hateful were utterly unaware of his presence. Only the humble and the pure in heart really sensed the reality of things.

Lifted up into the sphere of religion this means that we become aware of the presence of God only if our hearts, minds and souls are attuned to the beauty of spiritual things. Hatred, jealousy, evil passions of all kinds make us blind to the presence of God in the world. "Blessed are the pure in heart," said Jesus, "for they shall see God."

It's Household Fatigue

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Art Buchwald took off for Tahiti before anyone could catch him. He left behind what he claims are some of his more memorable columns.)

WASHINGTON — Many husbands don't realize it but they are suffering from "household fatigue," a state similar to the battle fatigue of World War II, only more difficult to recognize. I probably would have never realized that my wife was a victim of it if I hadn't decided to take her with me to Cincinnati, where I had to make a speech. She seemed quite normal preparing for the trip and even appeared to be excited about getting away from the house for a few days. But then when we arrived at the airport, I noticed her behavior had started to change.

As I paid for our airline tickets, she said to the man behind the counter, "Just a minute. Where are our green stamps?"

"Madam, we don't give green stamps to our customers for using our airline."

"Is that so? Well, we'll just use another airline that does."

"Mother," I said, "none of the airlines gives green stamps and besides, this is the only airline that goes to Cincinnati."

I calmed her down and thought nothing more of it until we got on the plane. The first thing she did was start to dust the seats.

"Mother, you don't have to do that," I said.

"I'm not going to have the neighbors think I keep a dirty plane."

"But they have people to do this sort of thing. Now sit by the window and fasten your safety belt."

I got her to sit down quietly and gave her a magazine to read. Soon as the plane was in the air she was up. "I've got to prepare lunch," she said.

"They have stewardesses to prepare lunch. You don't have to do anything."

"Well, I have to get the meat out of the freezer."

"No, no. That's all done by the airline personnel. You're on vacation. Relax."

She sat back for a few moments, but then one of the stewardesses spilled a cup of coffee in the aisle. My wife jumped up and said, "Don't worry about a thing." She took a container of Mr. Clean from her make-up kit and on her hands and knees, worked on getting out the spot.

"There," she said after 15 minutes, "Mr. Clean does everything."

Everybody looked away in embarrassment.

An hour later, luncheon was served. There were two children sitting across the

A Duty To The Society

By JACK SHOLL
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the bigger questions corporations are asking themselves these days is what responsibility does big business have to society.

The question has taken on a sense of urgency as students, consumers, employees, shareholders and government agencies have increased their demands on business to play a greater role in curing society's ills and improving the quality of the environment.

It is not surprising, then, to find Henry Ford II, chairman of the Ford Motor Co. and one of the nation's leading industrialists, pondering the question in a new book, "The Human Environment and Business." A collection of three speeches he delivered last year at Vanderbilt, Harvard and Yale universities, it was published Tuesday.

For Ford, the times are revolutionary. And the question is not simply whether business has done enough to improve the quality of society. Rather, it is whether business will be able to survive the challenges the next several decades will impose on it without losing its traditional freedom to make a profit.

"As employees, people are wondering if they have given up too much of their time, their freedom and their dignity for the sake of the paycheck," he writes.

"As consumers, people are realizing that affluence can be a burden. Their cars and appliances break down, their plumbing leaks, their lawns get weedy, and getting things fixed is troublesome, expensive or even impossible.

"As citizens, people can see that their material possessions have been purchased at a high cost in environmental pollution — dirty air, dirty water, ugly landscape.

"Modern industrial society is based on the assumption that it is both possible and desirable to go on forever providing more and more goods for more and more people. Today, that assumption is being seriously challenged.

In Ford's opinion, corporations would better serve society if their management would stop thinking of social service and profit as separate and competing aims. In other words, new public values should be viewed as opportunities to make a profit by serving new demands.

And when the market place can't automatically translate public needs to market demand, he says, government intervention should be looked upon as a necessary function.

In Ford's view, the battle business has to fight over the succeeding decades will be won by innovation, not complacent administration.

"The successful companies will be managed by men who regard themselves as entrepreneurs, and not merely as good administrators," he writes.

"These are the companies that will earn the highest profits for their stockholders by discharging their highest responsibilities to the society."

Hangups In Customer Service

By ELMER ROESSNER

While consumer-oriented industries, by and large, have opted out of the customer service game, industrial suppliers are still fighting the battle.

But it is becoming harder all the time.

The amount of service provided depends a great proved usage, credit, inventory guidance, and so forth.

Broadly speaking, customer service can be grouped into six major categories: presale and sales service, distribution, technical, product maintenance and repair, service support for distributors and dealers, and management aids. Within each sector there are numerous sub-sectors.

Deliver The Goods

Under the broad heading of distribution service, for example, are numerous responsibilities. Orders must be processed accurately and expeditiously. Shipments should be made promptly. Complex inventories are maintained and warehouses strategically located.

These, in turn, involve familiarity with shipping services available, rates and routes. There must also be the capability of handling insurance and damage claims, coordination with the factory, handling emergency orders, and on and on.

Some of the current hangups in industrial customer service were indicated in a recent Industrial Conference Board magazine article.

The general level of customer service within an industry usually is determined by trade practices, tradition and competitive action. Past this there is the question of demanding customers who want more service than their order is worth and whether exceptions to rules on the amount of service provided should be made for customers who raise the biggest fuss.

Bits And Pieces

Warehousing adequate supplies of parts near to customers is becoming increasingly difficult. Cash squeezed customers are keeping their own inventories down and relying on suppliers. The length of time parts should be stocked is a fine point and can vary from a year or two to decades.

Skilled, trained customer service personnel are hard to come by and more difficult to keep. They must know the product technically, be familiar with their own and the customer's company, be part salesman and part engineer, make rapid decisions, and be motivated. Anyone with those qualities isn't likely to be happy as a customer service man for long.

Then there is the salesman who oversells customer service. The buyer is led to believe he will get practically any service he needs or wants. But if the supplier provided it, he would soon go broke.

Despite the never ending problems, industrial suppliers are still plugging away at customer service — mainly because the customer demands it. Perhaps that is where the consumer has gone wrong.

 necessary) to sustain the veto, which he has recommended.

But vetoing one bill while signing another, even though both well exceed his limits, mutes the force of White House rhetoric, (explaining the relatively mild Presidential remarks at last week's press conference). Moreover, he has no ready defense against the liberals' plot to repass the vetoed bill with housing funds still far above Presidential specifications—but with the space program scaled down to keep the overall amount within the Nixon budget.

 aisle from us, but they didn't seem to be eating their vegetables.

My wife looked over and shouted at them, "If I've told you kids once, I've told you a hundred times. You don't eat your vegetables, you don't get dessert."

"Mother, mother," I said gently, "those are not our children."

"I don't care," she said, "I'm sick and tired of preparing meals on this plane that nobody wants to eat."

"But maybe their parents don't want them to eat vegetables."

"You're always defending them," she said angrily. "No wonder they have such bad table manners. Sit up," she shouted at the little boy, "or you can go to bed right now."

Fortunately the parents of the children were preoccupied, and my wife decided to go back and help the stewardesses wash the dishes. By the time we reached Cincinnati, she had cleaned all the windows, washed the ash trays, laundered the napkins and changed the curtains in the bar.

By the time we arrived in Cincinnati the plane was neat as a pin.

Happily, after a few days her household fatigue has started to leave her. She hasn't yelled at anybody else's kids in 24 hours and just this morning she let the chambermaid make up our bed. In another day or two she may even stop clearing the dishes in the hotel dining room. At least she promised me she'd try.

Hens' offerings of heavy type adequate for a fair demand. Trade limited on lighter weights with too few sales to report prices. Heavy type at

A Minority Will Comply

WASHINGTON (AP)— Less than half of the 48 states that do not allow 18 year olds to vote have indicated they will comply with the lower voting age in the new federal Voting Rights Act. Atty. General John N. Mitchell said today.

Responses from the 50 states to a letter sent out by Mitchell last month brought out that 20 states will allow 18 year olds to vote in all elections after Jan. 1, 1971. Two states—Georgia and Kentucky—now permit 18 year olds to vote.

In addition, between three and six states with the literacy or good-character poll tests may defy the new law's ban on such voting requirements, Mitchell said. That provision of the law went into effect June 22, the date President Nixon signed the bill.

Mitchell wrote governors of the 50 states July 16, seeking written assurances by last Monday they would comply with all provisions of the act. Mitchell said appropriate legal action would be taken against those who submitted a negative response or failed to respond.

Says Segments 'Disenchanted'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)— Dr. W. T. Armstrong of Rocky Mount, N.C., president of the National Medical Association, said Tuesday that "the black segment of American society is not the only group that has become disenchanted..." with the Nixon-administration.

Citing "insensitivity with American democracy," Armstrong said there is a "credibility canyon" between certain groups and the administration.

He named the young, the aged and the poor.

Armstrong, speaking at the NMA's 75th anniversary convention, called on the association to take stands on such controversial issues as birth control, liberalized abortion and drug abuse programs.

Four Appointed To Arts Council

RALEIGH (AP)— Four new members of the North Carolina Arts Council were announced Tuesday by Gov. Bob Scott.

They are Mrs. Alice P. Proctor of Raleigh, Mrs. John D. Eller Jr. of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Camille Lovette Harris of Wilkesboro and Mrs. Norris L. Hodgkins Jr. of Durham.

Reappointed were Mrs. Charles M. Reeves Jr. of Sanford, James Burdett Lawrence Rush of Winston-Salem, Dr. Joseph Curtis Sloane of Chapel Hill and Francis Speight of Greenville.

The materials purchased, Keeter explained, will be work books and work text that are not available through the State Adopted Textbook Program.

Title I funds will be used to finance a workshop involving 42 teachers who will be teaching educationally and culturally deprived children, J.L. Keeter, assistant superintendent told the board.

"The objectives of the workshop," Keeter explained, "are to familiarize the teachers with the characteristics and behavior patterns of the educationally and culturally deprived child, and to give the teachers instruction in teaching techniques and classroom settings to encourage individual growth."

Keeter said the most effective methods of working with a teacher assistant in the classroom will also be demonstrated.

The workshop participants will be paid a stipend of $15 per day.

The workshop will cost Title I a total of $3,150 and will run for five days.

Also planned is a two-week training program for all para-professionals who will be assisting teachers working in the lowest sections of educationally deprived students in schools where there are eligible students.

The 60 hour program is being planned in cooperation with Pitt Technical Institute. PTT will provide housing and instructional staff.

The program is designed to provide information and instruction to these teachers in order to establish some background resources and experiences working with the deprived child, Keeter said.

This program will cost Title I a total of $2,175. Each participant will be paid a stipend of $7.50 each day in attendance.

A four-day in-service workshop program for 20 teachers and one aide who have been selected to teach reading to the educationally and culturally deprived children in grades four through 10 will be held at the end of this month.

A reading laboratory will be located in each of the following schools: Stokes-Pactolus, Bethel Grammar, Belvoir-Falkland, Falkland Grammar, H.B. Sugg, Griffon, South Ayden, G.R. Whitfield, Chicod, Robinson Union and North Pitt High School.

Participants, receiving $15 each day, will receive instruction in planning, organizing, direction, and using the reading lab to the advantage of the students.

This teacher in-service program will cost Title I a total of $1,230.

Title I will provide one teacher at North Pitt for each of the following subjects: reading, mathematics, science, social studies and English.

Title I will also sponsor a two-day workshop for 80 teachers who will be involved with new curriculum materials. The program will cost Title I $2,900.

Add To List Of Jobless Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)— Four more cities of 50,000 or more population have been cited by the government as having unemployment of 6 per cent or more, compared to a nationwide rate of 4.7 per cent.

Joining the Labor Department's "substantial unemployment" list Tuesday were New Britain, Conn.; South Bend, Ind.; Portland, Ore. including Clark County, Wash.; and the Springfield-Chicopee-Holyoke area of Massachusetts.

The list now totals 24 cities. Moreover, the Labor Department said 27 smaller labor market areas, three in North Carolina and two in South Carolina, were added to a compilation of those with "substantial" or "persistent" unemployment, bringing that total to 575.

The 27 newly classified smaller areas of "substantial" or "persistent" joblessness include Elizabethtown, Roxboro and Whiteville, N. C., and Barnwell and Georgetown, S. C.

The "substantial" entry is based on a recent jobless rate of 6 per cent or more and the expectation that it will remain that high for at least two more months. The "persistent" label applies to areas at 6 per cent or more for at least the past year.

The department said that a total of 4.7 million workers were out of jobs in July, a rise of 1.8 million since President Nixon took office.

Slim Lead For Lenore Romney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lenore Romney held a narrow lead today in her bid for the Republican nomination to the Senate from Michigan, one of four states holding primary elections Tuesday.

Computer troubles in Detroit, where one-fifth of Michigan's voters live, delayed the tabulation of votes—and the outcome—in Mrs. Romney's race against state Sen. Robert Huber. She is the 61-year-old wife of George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development in President Nixon's cabinet and a former governor of Michigan.

With 73 per cent of Michigan's 6,044 precincts reporting, the unofficial count was 239,804 for Mrs. Romney and 221,970 for Huber.

In the other three states with primaries Tuesday, the official count showed these results in major races:

Missouri: Sen. Stuart Symington was a landslide victor in his bid for the Democratic nomination to his fourth term in the Senate. His November GOP opponent will be Atty. Gen. John Danforth. All 10 incumbent congressmen—nine Democrats and one Republican—won renomination.

Kansas: Atty. Gen. Kent Frizzell was a runaway winner over four opponents for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and the right to meet incumbent Democrat Robert Docking in November. Docking had no primary opposition. The state's five GOP House members were all renominated.

Idaho: Gov. Don Samuelson won the Republican nomination for a second term, beating Dick Smith of Rexburg. Cecil D. Andrus was nominated by Democrats to oppose Samuelson in November. The state's two congressmen, both Republicans, were unopposed in the primary.

Mrs. Romney was picked as Michigan Republicans' "consensus" candidate at the party's March convention.

The GOP winner will face two-term Democratic incumbent Philip A. Hart in November. Hart had no primary opposition.

Republican Gov. William Milliken was an easy winner over magazine publisher James Turner in Milliken's bid for a full, elected term as state chief executive. As lieutenant governor, he succeeded Romney in the statehouse when Romney was named to the Cabinet.

'Safeguard' Foes Opine System Soon Obsolete

By LAWRENCE L. KNUXTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate foes of the Safeguard anti-missile program say newly-released House testimony proves that it will be obsolete before the system is fully operable.

Pentagon officials are quoted as telling a House subcommittee in late April that they've already started work on a more accurate replacement for Safeguard.

Those comments bolstered Senate critics as they struck up debate keyed to the theme that the Safeguard system would be inadequate to defend the U.S. land-based missile force from new Soviet attack missiles.

On the other hand, say the opponents, the Pentagon told the House panel that the missiles of Project Hardsite, on which $6 million already has been spent, would be able to do the job—even if the Soviets improve their missiles further, such as equipping them with multiple warheads.

The renewed questions on the workability of Safeguard, whose radar and computer components are called extremely vulnerable to nuclear attack, came as Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., prepared to push their amendment limiting ABM expansion to two sites authorized last year.

The amendment would strip $350 million from a total $1.5 billion ABM program, and bar the beginning of work at two additional Safeguard sites proposed by the Nixon administration.

The Senate Armed Services Committee earlier stripped the pending $19.2 billion military procurement bill of a Safeguard authorization aimed at starting an area ABM defense against a limited missile attack by Communist China.

In the testimony April 27 before the House Defense appropriations subcommittee, Pentagon officials said Project Hardsite would use smaller and cheaper computers and radars than Safeguard but would involve a total cost equal to or greater than the $6 to $10 billion now earmarked for the less complex system.

Some senators have asked why they should be asked to approve a system that will, granting the expected improvements in Russian rocketry, be obsolete before it is finished.

But during the House hearings, R. L. Johnson, assistant secretary of the Army for research, said if that view were followed "you would never build anything, because by the time you were ready to build it, you would say, 'I can do better.'"

MAKES FIRST CONNECTION — Eugene Evans, serviceman for the Greenville Utilities Commission makes one of the first connections to the city's natural gas main being installed in different sections of Greenville. The purpose of converting from the usual bottled gas (in background) is to improve the property value, improve the appearance, and to give a more stable supply of gas. The service was started this week in the Meadowbrook area and will cover the major portions of Greenville. The cost of the change over will be approximately $140 per home. There are 1,100 homes to be converted in the future. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Attempted Safe Robbery Probed

Greenville police today are continuing their investigation of an attempted safe robbery at Hillcrest Lanes, 2718 Memorial Dr., reported yesterday.

According to Chief T. E. Gladson, the would-be thieves entered the Hillcrest Lanes building through a rear door, knocked the dial off of the safe and attempted to open the safe by punching and drilling.

Their efforts were in vain, however, and nothing was reported missing from the building, the police official explained.

The incident was reported at 9:25 a.m. yesterday.

Chile Expected To See Orderly Election Sept. 4

By MARTIN P. HOUSEMAN
SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Chile, a virtual island of constitutional democracy in a sea of military dictatorships at the southern end of South America, elects a new president Sept. 4.

Although there have been blurrings of trouble from both the extreme left and the far right, the general expectation is the country will once again see an orderly succession as it has in every election since 1932. This is a long period of political stability in an area where the only other functioning democracy is tiny, troubled Uruguay.

There are three popular presidential candidates for the six-year term and, reading from left to right in the political spectrum, they are:

—Dr. Salvador Allende, 62, a Socialist, the Marxist standard-bearer for the fourth time. His "popular unity" coalition consists of his own Socialists, the Communists, part of the traditional Radical party, renegade Christian Democrats who call themselves "MAPU" (United Popular Action Movement) and pro-Marxist Independents.

—Radomiro Tomic, 56, former ambassador to Washington and candidate of President Eduardo Frei's populist, reformist Christian Democrat party. Frei cannot succeed himself. Tomic promises to radicalize Frei's socioeconomic program called "revolution in liberty."

—Jorge Alessandri, 74, president from 1958 to 1964, an independent who is supported by the resurgent right, notably the National Party, a fusion of the former Conservative and Liberal parties which were all but obliterated by Frei's Christian Democrats in 1965. Alessandri champions free enterprise against the classic marxism of Allende and the creeping statism of christian democracy.

Rightist Alessandri's supporters, bolstered by early public opinion polls, are confident he will win the most popular votes, but they fear a Marxist-Christian Democrat deal in Congress to award the presidency to the runner-up.

If no candidate wins an absolute majority, Congress, constituted as an electoral college, must choose the president from among the top two candidates within 50 days of the election. With three strong candidates, an absolute majority for any one of them is unlikely (3.5 million Chileans are eligible to vote).

Deal Could Spark Violence
Congress always has decided for the popular vote winner. Christian Democrat Tomic has said his party will preserve this tradition, providing the popular vote winner has "a substantial margin" over the runnerup. Party leaders close to Tomic say he is thinking in terms of a 50,000-vote difference.

In the combined congress of 150 deputies and 50 senators, the right has 42 seats, Christian Democrats 75, and leftists 85.

Congressional overturning of an Alessandri victory could spark violence by farm estate owners, who fear agrarian reform radicalization under Tomic or Allende.

Army Commander Gen. Rene Schneider, considered unconditionally loyal to President Frei, has said the army will act to prevent anyone from impeding with the constitution. One fear is that if the army is called upon to put down violence from any quarter, it may be tempted to abandon the apolitical line that has characterized it for nearly 40 years. In the latter event, retired Gen. Roberto Viaux could become the man of the moment.

Warning To Army
Viaux is immensely popular with career soldiers—much more so than Schneider—for having led the successful October, 1969, army pay revolt. On May 30, he told an assembly of retired officers gathered to honor him:

"I have the profound conviction that sooner than is expected the law of force is going to surge again; and we must orient ourselves so that the force, in this case, be justly and rationally exercised so that it may count upon general acquiescence."

The ambitious general is considered to be in the political center with potential attraction for both rightists and nationalist leftists.

Working actively to create in Chile "the objective conditions for armed revolution," called for by updated Marxist dogma is the leftist Revolutionary Movement (MIR).

Active Revolutionaries
So far the Fidel Castro-inspired MIR has concentrated primarily on bank robberies to finance the promised armed revolution. Its leaders, mostly former students at Concepcion University, are fugitives under the criminal code and the state internal security act for the robberies and for espousing the armed overthrow of the government.

A dozen rank-and-file "Miristas" have been captured, tried and sentenced. Allende's Socialist party has some influence with the young terrorists and is known to have asked them to put the quiet us on violence until after the election. Whether they will heed their elders in revolution remains to be seen.

The Socialist party itself endorsed the violent route to power at the last party congress in 1968, but only "when the objective conditions are given." Most leaders of this doctrinaire Marxist party, founded in 1933, do not believe, as do the young Miristas, that the objective conditions can be "created."

The Marxist Program
Marxist Allende is a robust, medical doctor who was the public health minister back in the "popular front" days of the late 1930s.

Allende's program of government calls for creation of "the popular state," and the nationalization of copper, nitrate, banking and insurance, foreign commerce, distribution monopolies, "large enterprises and strategic industrial monopolies."

Tomic, outgoing President Frei's man, is a Roman Catholic and father of nine, a spellbinder in debate. He hammers away at the "mystique of labor" and invokes the latent, patriotic discipline of the Chilean working man. Tomic's program resembles Allende's in proposed state control of the economy and the existence of state, private and mixed enterprises, and in the promise to accelerate the agrarian reform initiated by Frei.

The third candidate, Alessandri, a bachelor at 74, enjoys apparently excellent health, and possesses a stentorian voice with which he rasps out against "the demagogues of Christian democracy and marxism who would lead Chile to ruin." He promises an austere government which would bring tax relief through reduced public spending. He pledges to respect the housing, educational and agrarian reforms initiated by Frei, and calls for constitutional reform to strengthen the president's hand against the factionalized congress.

Space Suit Subject Of Rotary Speaker

A lecture - demonstration entitled "The Moon Walk Space Suit ($10,000 And No Labels!)" will be presented at the August 10 meeting of the Greenville Rotary Club.

According to Rotary president Dr. Joe Pou, Louis P. Shannon of has lectured at 129 colleges and universities and has addressed more than 2,500 groups including civic clubs, conventions, conferences, and meetings of technical and professional societies.

A graduate of Southern Illinois University and the University of Florida, Shannon joined Du Pont in 1942 as an industrial relations advisor, then became engaged in personnel training and industrial engineering at a number of plants, including assignments at Oak Ridge and Hanford.

Shannon was transferred to the public relations department in 1949 where he became division manager in 1954 and administrative assistant in 1966.

Belfast Has More Unrest

BELFAST (AP) — Police arrested 23 persons during Belfast's sixth consecutive night of rioting, which continued into the early hours today. Seven soldiers were injured, one seriously.

Young Roman Catholics pelted British troops with rocks and bottles and set fire to vehicles, a factory and two government buildings. The troops fired tear gas at the youths and at a mob trying to loot a brewery in Glen Road.

The Catholics have been demanding withdrawal of the soldiers since army fire killed a Catholic youth last Thursday.

Tuesday night gasoline bombs set fire to an office of the state Electricity Board in South Belfast and a government housing trust office in Falls Road, a Catholic stronghold.

In Londonderry, crowds from the Catholic Bogside area commandeered two buses and used them as a barricade, standing behind them and hurling rocks and gasoline bombs at soldiers. Later the crowd added two cars to the barricade and set it afire.

Two Fires Hit Lumber Firm

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Hendersonville Lumber Company was heavily damaged Tuesday by two separate fires.

Firemen extinguished the first minor blaze shortly after midnight. However, they were called back to the scene around 3:30 a.m. and found a major blaze.

YOUNGSTERS LOOK through an abstract sculpture made of polished concrete in Hong Kong's Shek Lei resettlement estate. The playground was the childhood dream of an American sculptor. (UPI Telephoto)

Sculptor's Dream Came True At A Playground

By HILDA HSU
HONG KONG (UPI) — An American sculptor has transformed his childhood dream into reality and created Southeast Asia's first sculpture playground to the delight of Hong Kong children. Paul Selinger, from San Francisco, began teaching art at the University of Hong Kong in 1961. He decided one day that life was too dull for children in this crowded British crown colony.

He visualized a fairyland from a childhood dream that could be translated into something concrete — literally — for the children with no place to play.

He went to the Urban Services Department and told officials, "I am a sculptor and more interested in playground building than anything."

Plans Block Deadly Gas

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Mayor Ronnie Thompson says that if the Army does not re-route a scheduled rail shipment of nerve gas around Macon, he will have the train's engineer removed and arrested. Thompson said that if the proposed route is not changed by the Army, he will erect a barricade across the tracks at Macon and will have police waiting for the train.

He said he will take the action because he feels the proposed shipment of the deadly gas through Macon constitutes an emergency situation under city ordinances.

The Army has announced that it plans to move the shipment through Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina next week for eventual disposal in the Atlantic, 280 miles east of Cape Kennedy.

The Army says there is no danger because the rockets, which will leave Anniston, Ala., and Lexington, Ky., Aug. 10, are encased in concrete and steel vaults. The Defense Department says it cannot bury the rockets because of the danger of leaks. Salt water, said the Defense Department, neutralizes the gas.

Twenty-eight freight cars loaded with 305 vaults of gas will be moved through Georgia, said the Army. Gov. Lester Maddox has approved the plan.

Forty million people pitch tents or park trailers at the 500,000 campsites in the United States each year.

It was the right idea at the right time. The Hong Kong government reorganized that something must be done for the young people who make up 40 per cent of the population of the colony. Selinger designed for them an exciting playground filled with brightly-colored abstract sculptures, built in the Shek Lei resettlement estate at a cost of 150,000 Hong Kong dollars ($25,000).

The sculptures are made of concrete and terrazzo marble chips and polished to produce a smooth surface. There are 10 of the sculptures, about 15 feet long, with the tallest 100 feet high. They have proved a huge success with the Shek Lei children.

"The intriguing shapes of the sculptures present a challenge to the imagination of the children," a government official said. The playground includes such structures as "the labyrinth," the "batwing slide" and a giant watch band the children can climb over. In Hong Kong, where housing is a big problem and poor families cannot afford television sets for their children, the youngsters now have an alternative. Instead of remaining in cramped, tiny rooms, they can play in fairyland — the sculpture playground.

Strong Curbs For S. Korea Newsmen

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea professes freedom of the press and its constitution says "licensing or censorship in regard to speech and press shall not be recognized."

Local readers of foreign publications, however, often find some of the stories covered by black ink or scissored out by distribution agencies.

Korean newspapers seldom show such scars because their editors scrutinize every story before it goes to press. They do so under an "anti-Communist law" enacted after a military coup led by President Chung Hee Park, then an army major general, in 1961.

The law provides up to seven years imprisonment for the author of an article, or for those who circulate an article that sympathizes with or encourages the cause of communism.

Many South Korean journalists have been arrested under this law.

Some opposition lawmakers have accused Park's government of abusing the law to suppress criticism against government policies.

South Korea is still technically at war with North Korea, although an armistice put an end to the shooting war in 1953.

The Information Ministry announced in June that it was persuading the owners of three major national news agencies to merge in order to establish a single, more businesslike service capable of competing with North Korea's official news agency in overseas propaganda.

The opposition New Democratic party called this a scheme for news management, while one influential daily, Dong-a Ilbo, came out with an editorial opposing the merger.

Manson Attorney Draws Jail For Role In Incident

By LINDA DEUTSCH
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A defense attorney is spending three nights in the same jail as Charles M. Manson, the shaggy-haired clan leader who briefly halted the Sharon Tate murder trial by flashing at the jury a newspaper headline reading: "Manson Guilty, Nixon Declares."

 The trial judge ruled attorney Daye Shinn committed "a willful and deliberate contempt" of court by leaving the paper with in Manson's reach at the counsel table. Shinn said he'd done it by mistake.

 Manson's move came Tuesday after Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older denied without comment a defense motion for a mistrial based on Nixon's statement—later withdrawn—that Manson was guilty directly or indirectly of eight murders.
 Defense attorneys said later they would consider a further mistrial motion based on their contention that the jury has been "tainted" by exposure to Nixon's statements, made to newsmen in Denver Monday.
 "This is a massive kind of prejudice," said Paul Fitzgerald, attorney for Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, one of four defendants charged with killing Miss Tate and six others a year ago. He added: "What we want to analyze is what would happen if such a motion were granted. Would it be humanly possible to find a jury that hadn't been tainted by publicity?"

 Older said that since Nixon's remarks were made he had ordered special precautions to protect jurors from exposure to the news reports. He had windows made opaque on buses that ferry jurors to court and ordered their access to telephones, radio and television suspended.
 "I'm satisfied there has been no exposure," he said.
 Shinn, attorney for Susan Atkins, 21, was the third defender to be jailed in the past week. Ronald Hughes, representing Leslie Van Houten, 20, was locked up for a night for making an obscene comment during a bench conference. Irving Kanarek, Manson's lawyer, spent a night in custody for numerous interruptions of the testimony of the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian. Shinn will be permitted to continue in court.
 When Manson held up the paper—an early edition of Tuesday's Los Angeles Times—all attorneys were huddled at the bench in conference with the judge. Deputy Dist. Atty. Aaron Stovitz spotted Manson and shouted: "Your honor!"
 A bailiff quickly grabbed the paper from Manson.
 Minutes later, Older called each juror separately to the witness stand to say under oath whether they'd seen the headline. All but two said they had seen at least part of it; 11 had read it all.
 Only one juror said it might influence him "subconsciously," but added he hoped it would not.
 What did they think of the headline?
 "I think if the President declared that, it was pretty stupid."
 "It should sell newspapers."
 "I didn't vote for Nixon in the first place."
 "No one does my thinking for me."

Warn Airliner Market's Loss

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aerospace Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the United States develops a complete family of airplanes—including the supersonic transport—European manufacturers will corner the market for airliners, a federal official declared.
 "The airlines abroad will buy closer to home," William M. Magruder, chief of SST development for the Department of Transportation, said at a news conference Tuesday.

The United States, already builds 85 per cent of the world's airplanes, he said, but it is in the SST field that the United States is unequalled—a field in which between $22 billion and $50 billion is at stake.
 "Other countries already have our engine technology and can build just as good subsonic swept-wing jets as we can," Magruder said. But, he said, this country must produce the complete line—long-range SSTs, big subsonic planes, medium-range and short-range aircraft, medium-size airliners and small ones—if the United States is to retain its share of the foreign market.

Magruder said a newly released report on environmental problems relating to the SST, prepared by leading scientists during a month-long conference at Williams College, confirmed earlier findings by experts of the Transportation Department's SST office.
 Magruder said that, contrary to news accounts, the study group made no recommendation that the SST program be slowed or abandoned.

 It said, as Magruder's own environmental advisers had said a few months earlier, that uncertainties as to environmental effects must be resolved before large-scale production of the SST gets under way.
 Magruder said his SST environmental advisory council studied the scientists' findings and other data over the weekend and came up with these conclusions:
 —Projected SST operations are unlikely to cause significant climatic changes, but there are uncertainties as to photo-chemistry, circulation response and natural variability of stratospheric properties.
 —A significant decrease in ozone is unlikely. A change in ozone at SST flight levels will not result in ultraviolet radiation hazard at the earth's surface.
 —There will be a smaller amount of contrail production from SSTs than there is from subsonic jets.
 —Significant changes in temperature at the earth's surface are unlikely.
 —The sulfur content of existing aircraft fuels probably would have no effect on surface temperatures.
 —Manufacturers have the technical capability to reduce sulfur concentrations in aviation fuel by significant amounts, although the need to do so has not been apparent.

area where the four defendants are seated or where the jury might see them.
 Shinn protested that his error was "inadvertent" and he wasn't even sure Manson grabbed the headline page from that stack.
 The judge said of Shinn: "His failure to obey it disrupted this trial and jeopardized this trial." He added, "So that the record is perfectly clear, my feeling is that this was a willful and deliberate contempt with full knowledge."
 Hughes rose to further defend his colleague, but the judge, scooping up his papers, declared, "This court is in recess," and made a hasty exit.

Had Set Of Sextuplets
ROME (AP) — A plumber's wife who had taken a fertility drug gave birth to sextuplets Tuesday night. Four died early today and a doctor said the outlook for the other two was "not rosy."

The three boys and three girls were born to Mrs. Loredana Luzzitelli Petrone, 35, who had been childless for 11 years of marriage. They were three months premature, and the doctors said two boys and two girls died during the night.
 More than 20 sets of sextuplets have been reported born in other countries since 1900, and the rate has increased since the taking of fertility drugs became widespread. The Petrone babies and the babies born on May 21 to Mrs. Martin Danoff of New York are believed to be the only sextuplets all born alive. All six of the Danoff babies died within seven hours.
 The largest of the Petrone babies weighed 1.9 pounds and the smallest 1.4 pounds.

Commission Is Still On Tour

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Old Salem, Inc., the N. C. School of the Arts and Pilot Mountain State Park were on the Advisory Budget Commission's itinerary today as the body continued its biennial round of state supported agencies.
 The commission visited A & T State University, and the University of North Carolina in Greensboro and Winston - Salem State University Tuesday.
 A&T asked for $11,219,000 for the next two years and UNC-G asked for $13,288,000. UNC-G also asked for legislative approval for four self-liquidating projects estimated to cost $2.4 million. Winston - Salem State said it needs $4.7 million for capital improvements. In another Winston - Salem stop, the N. C. Advancement school requested $362,000.

'Massive Offensive' Waged Along Laotian Border

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The United States and South Vietnam are waging a massive air and ground offensive along 200 miles of the Laotian border trying to block North Vietnamese troops and war supplies destined for South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The South Vietnamese command announced that several thousand troops from its 1st and 2nd infantry divisions and a marine brigade were conducting "several operations" along the border from the demilitarized zone to points southwest of Da Nang.

Other sources reported that U.S. B52 bombing strikes in the Laotian panhandle had been intensified during the past few days.

A spokesman said the ground operations had produced no significant results yet, probably because the monsoon rains in Laos have slowed North Vietnamese activity.

Sources said the South Vietnamese command had no immediate plans to send large ground forces into Laos because the United States fears that might disturb preliminary overtures now under way between the Laotian government and the Pathet Lao.

American sources said some 40 B52s dropped 1,200 tons of bombs during the night on North Vietnamese supply depots along the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos and down to the Cambodian border.

One source said there has been no significant activity in Vietnam since July 1 and there are "no good targets in South Vietnam for the B52s. So they go into Laos to hit supply areas."

Some American troops are involved in the ground offensive though the bulk of the force is South Vietnamese. Troops of the U.S. 196th Light Infantry Brigade were attacked early today at the Kham Duc artillery base 13 miles from the border.

Moving behind a 60-round mortar barrage, about 35 North Vietnamese sappers blasted their way to the base perimeter, triggering a two-hour fight in which 15 North Vietnamese and two Americans were reported killed and 14 Americans wounded. Light material damage also was reported.

It was the first serious attack on Kham Duc since the base was reopened three weeks ago to support the border operations. The base had been abandoned more than two years ago under heavy North Vietnamese pressure.

U.S. ground forces also reported killing 33 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers in three small clashes Tuesday at points 8 to 69 miles southeast of Da Nang. No American casualties were reported. These clashes occurred considerably to the east of the border offensive.

—The U.S. destroyer Rogers and the Panamanian-registered tug Sally B collided off the coast of South Vietnam 15 miles northeast of Vung Tau. A spokesman said there were no casualties but the destroyer got a six-foot gash in its bow and the tug was holed in its bow.

—A South Vietnamese brigadier general, Nguyen Van Thien, 42, commander of the special military zone around Da Nang, was missing on a flight from Da Nang to Saigon. The South Vietnamese command said his A37 twin-jet fighter-bomber was believed to have crashed Tuesday during bad weather about 60 miles south of Da Nang.

—About 200 Vietnamese prisoners rioted while being shipped from the Con Son prison island to Saigon. A spokesman said the disturbance was quelled without anybody being hurt.

In Cambodia, the government sent more reinforcements toward the crossroads town of Skoun, 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, where fighting has been reported for four days. A military spokesman said Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces remained entrenched in the town.

Fighting appeared to have eased at the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh. Cambodian defenders reported only harassing mortar attacks.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese launched two fresh attacks on district towns within miles of Phnom Penh. They hit a district office in Prey Totung, north of the capital, and also struck Prey Sandek, south of Phnom Penh near Takeo.

Martin School Bd. Accepts Calendar

WILLIAMSTON — The Martin County Board of Education, meeting Monday night, signed contracts for 23 additional personnel for the coming school year.

Eugene Rogers, superintendent of Martin County Schools, said "the new personnel represents changes new to the system as well as ones who were formerly with the schools here and are now returning."

The official school calendar was adopted, with an opening first full day of school set for August 31. August 28 is orientation day for pupils, and August 27 is the first work day for teachers. The last full school day for students is June 3. Christmas holidays are set to begin at recess of school on December 18 with schools to reopen on January 4.

A local committee, an advisory one to assist the school board in school matters has been named for the Everetts community. Committee members are Clifton Matthews, Mrs. Betty Jean Clark, and John Andrews (who is also serving on the Robersonville committee).

Rogers reported another discussion was held on consideration of a site for a consolidated school in the Williamston area. Although no consensus of an exact location was reached, Rogers noted "the general feeling is to locate the school within two to four miles from Williamston, but no decision has been reached on a special preference of location."

The sale of two old school buses was confirmed as a final item of business.

Three Escaped Madison Jail

MARSHALL, N. C. (AP) — Lawmen were searching for three prisoners Tuesday night who escaped from the Madison County jail.

Sheriff J. Dederick Brown identified the three as Kenneth Roland of Mars Hill, charged with forgery; Champ Junior Rice, also of Mars Hill, assault with intent to kill; and Henry Sharpe of Hot Springs, assault with intent to kill.

Brown was serving his first day Monday as sheriff.

Dirty Uniform Is Disaster For Neatly Dressed Phils

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
Those fancy new uniforms the Philadelphia Phillies are wearing this season are enough to knock your eyes out. But nobody figured they could kayo a rally too.

All-Stars Leave For Alabama

The Babe Ruth All-Stars left this morning for Huntsville, Ala., site of the Southern Regional Tournament. The trip is being taken on a chartered bus which will take them through Atlanta where they will stay over night and then go on into Huntsville Thursday.

Friday is the beginning of the tournament but Greenville does not start playing until Saturday. The All-Stars will be playing the South Carolina champion at 3 p.m.

If Greenville wins they will be playing again on Sunday, but if they should lose their game will be scheduled for Monday.

The tournament consists of nine can mess up the handsome outfit and no self-respecting base-runner—least of all a specialist like a pinch runner—would want to look sloppy on the field. Neatness counts but Tuesday night it cost the Phillies.

Pinch-runner Grant Jackson decided to neat up in the middie of a seventh inning rally—a fatal mistake. Jackson stepped off third base to dust off his uniform and was tagged out, cutting short the comeback and helping St. Louis hang on for its 3-2 victory over the natty attired Phillies.

In other National League action Tuesday, Pittsburgh dropped Montreal 4-2, New York blanked Chicago 4-0, Atlanta trimmed Houston 6-1, Cincinnati walloped San Diego 12-1 and San Francisco whipped Los Angeles 11-4.

The Cardinals, who won their sixth straight, led 3-0 before the Phillies started rallying against starter Jerry Reuss. Byron Browne homered in the fifth and Larry Hise's RBI-single made it 3-2 an inning later.

The Phillies knocked out Reuss with one-out singles in the seventh by Rick Joseph and Tony Taylor. Jackson ran for Joseph and raced to third on Taylor's hit. But before the Phillies got a chance to continue the rally, he stepped off the bag and was tagged out, choking off the rally. Carl Taylor homered for the Cardinals and scored the deciding run in the fifth when he walked and came around on Richie Allen's triple.

Bob Veale pitched a six-hitter for his seventh victory of the season as the Pirates maintained their one-game lead over New York in the NL East Division.

The Mets kept pace by blanking Chicago on Nolan Ryan's three-hitter.

Foodmart, N. Products Advance To Finals

The second round of the Ladies Softball Tournament got underway last night as Foodmart scored an impressive upset win over regular season champ Little Mint, 30-16. National Products turned back Bob's Atlantic 15-7 in the nightcap.

In the opener, Foodmart pushed across nine runs in the first inning and breezed in the rest of the way to advance to the third round on Thursday night.

Little Mint came back with six runs in the first but was unable to catch up. After Foodmart added four runs in the second, L.

Little Mint rallied for seven runs in the final two frames but the damage had already been done by the Foodmart bats. Dorcas Carter got a homerun for L. Mint.

In the second game, National Products scored six runs in the first two innings to take the lead but Bob's Atlantic came back with five in the fourth to close the gap. Joyce Sawyer hit a homer for N. Products in the first.

The game was iced for N. Products in the fifth inning as they pushed across eight runs while Bob's Atlantic was only able to add two. Carolyn McNew and Carolyn Hardy both hit homers for National Products in the inning. Another home run by Carolyn Hardy, finished out the scoring in the sixth inning.

Foodmart and National Products will meet Thursday night for the tournament championship.

Brown Defeats McLain For First M. League Win

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Jackie Brown still can't be certain if he is a starter or a reliever, but after nine years in the minors, after injuries and illness, after beating Denny McLain for his first major league victory ... who cares?

Brown, who opened on the mound for Washington when scheduled starter George Brunnet suffered a muscle spasm in his shoulder while warming up in the bullpen was sitting on top of the world Tuesday night after his unscheduled start-relief.

Listed officially as a relief pitcher in the game, he still pitched the first 5 1-3 innings, yielding only two hits and one run before Darold Knowles took over and gave only one more hit as the Senators beat the Detroit Tigers 4-1.

"I'm very thrilled that this is my first major league victory ... I've been playing for nine years in the minors and I'm just glad to be here," said the 27-year-old right-hander.

Brown and Knowles took part in a night of fine pitching in the American League as Baltimore and Dave McNally beat Boston 5-2, Minnesota and rookie Bert Blyleven halted Milwaukee 52, Steve Hargan pitched Cleveland past the New York Yankees 6-1, Tommy John and the Chicago White Sox nipped Kansas City 2-1 and Oakland held off California 4-3.

In the National League, the New York Mets blanked the Chicago Cubs 4-0 in the afternoon, and at night, Pittsburgh downed Montreal 4-2, Cincinnati pummeled San Diego 12-1, San Francisco blasted Los Angeles 11-4, St. Louis tripped Philadelphia 3-2 and Atlanta dropped Houston 6-1.

"He (Manager Ted Williams) told me before the game that I was the long relief man," said Brown, who had pitched only 12 innings in relief previously since being called up from Washington's Denver farm club on July 1. His showing, which lowered his earned run average to 3.63, might cause Williams to reconsider.

McLain, who gave up a three-run homer to Aurelio Rodriguez in the first inning and four runs and nine ... in eight innings, thought so.

"That first boy out there pitched a heck of a game," he said. "He's going to win a heck of a lot more. Teddy (Williams) better start him regularly."

McNally, 15-7, the third Orioles' pitcher to win 15, hurled his third straight complete game and eighth of the season as Baltimore won its fourth in a row. Paul Blair backed him with two homers for three runs, giving him five homers against Boston this season. He has hit 10 in all.

Blyleven, 6-3, 19 years old, struck out 12 and helped himself out, capping a three-run fourth inning with a single for his first major league run batted in. Rich Reese drove in two other runs with a double and a single. Hargan, 6-2, won his fifth straight game since being recalled from Wichita July 17, where he was sent with a sore arm. He now has a two-hitter, a three-hitter a five-hitter and a seven-hitter.

Vada Pinson's two-run homer, his 12th, gave Hargan the runs he needed after he worked out of a first inning jam by getting Danny Cater to hit into a doubleplay with the bases loaded and one out.

John struck out eight in raising his record to 10-12. The only run off him was unearned in the fourth inning, set up by Syd O'Brien's error. But O'Brien atoned with his fourth homer in the fifth inning, breaking a 1-1 deadlock.

John Odom, 5-5, coming off the disabled list for his first appearance since June 20, pitched five scoreless innings, allowing only two hits. The A's built a 4-0 lead for him, but the Angels knocked out Mudcat Grant with three runs in the eighth, and Jim Roland had to come on in the ninth with a doubleplay after California put two men on and one out.

Jack, Ray Rule As Favorites

By BOB GREEN

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Streaking Jack Nicklaus and record-holding Ray Floyd ruled as the favorites today on the eve of the $150,000 American Golf Classic.

And the return to this country of U.S. Open Champion Tony Jacklin added spice to the select field of 101 that begins competition Thursday on the awe one 7,180-hard, par 70 Firestone Country Club course.

Jacklin, the handsome 26-year-old who became the first Englishman in 50 years to win the U.S. Open Championship, has been out of the United States since he turned the trick in Chaska, Minn., more than six weeks ago.

He's due for a late arrival, as were British Open champ Nicklaus and defending title-holder Floyd.

Floyd's winning total of 268 in 1969, a course record on one of the most demanding layouts in the country, was ranked by his fellow pros as one of the major accomplishments of the year.

The swinging bachelor had been in a lengthy slump since winning the PGA national title a year ago, but has played well in recent weeks, including a tie for fourth in last week's Westchester Classic.

Lance Calls It Quits

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A lot of rookies were packing their bags today as National Football League veterans were winning back their jobs—but one eight year star was also going the route of the youngsters.

Wide receiver Lance Alworth of the San Diego Chargers retired Tuesday night. The 6-foot, 180-pounder from Arkansas had been an unofficial holdout, seeking renegotiation of his long-term contract with San Diego.

A pair of star quarterbacks—Minnesota's Joe Kapp and Joe Namath of the New York Jets—remained away from their training camps.

Kapp, who played out his option last year while leading the Vikings to the NFL championship, is seeking a million-dollar, four-year contract and a $250,000 bonus.

NEW YORK (AP) — It will be exciting for George Foreman to fight champion Joe Frazier in the ring. It was exciting for the young heavyweight just meeting Don Dunphy, the television announcer.

After passing his toughest test as a pro by stopping tough George Chuvalo in three rounds Tuesday night, Foreman said: "The thing that impressed me the most was talking to Mr. Dunphy on television. I'd seen him talk to fighters in the ring ever since I was a kid and I wanted to talk to him."

Chuvalo didn't think the 10-rounder before 12,526, paying $107,185, at Madison Square Garden should have been stopped. But he didn't protest too strenuously. The 34-year-old Canadian veteran of 77 fights, who has never been down, didn't hit the floor, but he almost did.

(The Laugh Is On Us)

For several years we have been laughing at new dress materials. We were sure that paper would never be used in men's wear.

There are three garments for men now being made of paper. So far manufacturers have steered away from shirts, shorts and so forth. These will probably be next on the program.

A kimono-style robe, slippers and shave wraparound comprise this trio.

They are lightweight and easily packed flat. These garments are ideal for traveling. After use they may be discarded.

The robe is of a cellulose blend and will fit anyone. It may be shortened with ordinary scissors.

The shave-sarong is an around-the-waist garment. Like the robe, the backless scuff-type slippers fit everyone.

However, if they are washed their fire resistant qualities are gone.

George Murphy Name-Dropper In A New Book

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Campaign biographies have been a staple product in America politics for more than a century, but few have ever boasted as much name-dropping as "Say ... Didn't You Used To Be George Murphy?"

The book, published by Bartholomew House at $6.95 and written by Sen. Murphy with Victor Lasky, offers 9½ pages of index names, including everyone from Lucille Ball ("one of the most wonderful people in show business") to Louis B. Mayer ("I am still proud to have been associated with this great human being").

The title for Murphy's biography comes from the comment of late-show viewers who see him on the political circuit and can't imagine that he is that same twinkle-toed star of vintage movies.

The book has been published at a time when Murphy is campaigning to retain his position as the senior senator from California. His opponent is something of a celebrity himself, Democratic Rep. John V. Tunney, son of former heavyweight boxing champ Gene Tunney.

"Say ... Didn't You Used To Be George Murphy?" is about what you would expect from the affable, friend-making actor-senator. He seems to have total recall for every Broadway show and Hollywood movie he ever appeared in. And most of the people he met along the way remain warm in his memory.

Most, but not all. He remembers, for example, how singer Ray Middleton tried to upstage him and Bob Hope on the New York stage in "Robert." Middleton had the habit of drawing attention to himself by blowing his nose or lighting his pipe when the pair came to their punchlines. A warning did no good.

"The next matinee, with the audience filled with ladies, we taught Ray a lesson. As Bob passed him on stage, he reached out and pulled out Ray's tie. Then I went by and unbuttoned his vest. Whereupon Bob pulled out his shirt. And we went on from there until he yelled quits."

One of the few actors who comes under real criticism is Lionel Stander, whom Murphy accuses of disrupting Screen Actors Guild meetings—"I couldn't understand his behavior at all, until someone told me that Stander was one of the leaders of the 'extreme left.'"

Show biz occupies about 90 per cent of the Murphy biography, politics the rest. He is not as complimentary about his political opponents as he is with his fellow actors.

About his being called a hooper: "I had danced with some of the greatest stars of our time and I said so, and I was not the least embarrassed that I had been one of the best in my trade. I was taught when I was very young that if you did your job well, you were okay, no matter what your job."

Murphy writes most feelingly about his onetime dance partner Julie Henkel, whom he married Dec. 28, 1926. She is now crippled with arthritis, and Murphy writes: "I have always believed, whether medical evidence supports me or not, that the shock of hearing that I had cancer threw her metabolism out of gear and brought on the arthritis." He underwent an operation for cancer of the throat.

Counts Caws In Pheasant Census

EPHRATA, Wash. (AP) — Don Galbreath counts pheasants, but only if they open their mouths. It's not an accurate census, he says, but it does show population trends.

Galbreath, regional game biologist for the Washington State Fish and Game Department, estimates the number of pheasants by counting their caws.

Actually, by counting their caw-caws, since their crowing normally is paired, and by counting the roosters and multiplying by five. Only the roosters

Susie Joins Scott Plea

RALEIGH (AP) — Associate Justice Susie Sharp of the North Carolina Supreme Court says "we cannot fight crime by breeding it."

She joined Gov. Bob Scott Tuesday in urging quick action to remedy "insufferable, degrading and inhumane conditions" which exist in the state's "outmoded prisons."

The occasion for the comments was the swearing in of V. Lee Bounds for a second four-year term as state correction commissioner and graduation exercises for the first class of East Carolina University's Institute for Correctional Administration.

Sharp told Bounds, "I hope and pray that the conscience of an aroused people and of their representatives in the legislature will cause the next General Assembly to give you the prisons and personnel which decency, humanity and our own enlightened self-interest require."

Scott said that "there appears to be a sound basis for optimism regarding the future response of the General Assembly for requests for the resources required to raise our correctional system to the level of the best."

'Modesty Panel' For Secretary

CHICAGO (AP) — A modesty panel is a rectangular shield placed in front of a secretary's desk to insure her privacy in this era of ascending hemlines of miniskirts.

Jerry Silver, president of an art metal firm said the sales of modesty panels has increased 37 per cent and is keeping pace with the rise in skirts.

TOMATO-NAPPER — "Blondie", cocker spaniel pet of Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Whitmire of Greenville, S.C., was beyond suspicion when red-ripe fruit first began disappearing from the backyard tomato plants. What dog would like tomatoes? How would it know which ones were ripe? "Blondie" and her mother "Blackie" have since been caught in the act, plucking the ready-to-pick tomatoes from the vine. (AP Wirephoto)

Bangkok's Floating Market Is Overwhelmed By Tourist Throngs

BANGKOK (AP) — Mrs. Yam Sukchit, a vegetable vendor in Bangkok's famous floating market, doesn't like tourists.

"They don't buy anything from her, and the high speed motor boats that bring them by the hundreds every morning disrupt traffic and sales and often sink the gentle sampans of the market."

"Sometimes I have to wait hours on end before I can go home after selling my things," says Mrs. Yam, a good natured woman in her early 40s. "I have to wait until the farangs (foreigners) leave the market area. And it normally means after 11 a.m. It's a nuisance."

Mrs. Yam's unhappiness with the tourists underlines the current troubles that threaten the very existence of Bangkok's Les Halles on water—a bustling jam of boats carrying everything from bananas, coconuts and papaya to pomelos, garlic and bright colored flowers that has long been one of this tourist-conscious town's main attractions.

However, modernization that seems to have come in with the tourists, who bring in an estimated $110 million a year, also has brought other problems.

Taking 'Action' On Dormouse

LONDON (AP) — If you hear complaints from a voice that is "squaky with a snuffling 'woofle-woofle,'" it will be a glis glis, better known as the fat or squirrel-tailed dormouse.

The Country Landowners' Association, disturbed by damage to trees credited to the glis glis, has mounted a campaign against them. As the association delicately put it, the snuffling creature will be "subject to approaches of official bodies."

The poetic description of the dormouse's voice comes from the Handbook of British Mammals, which doesn't give the remedy when the dormouse stops snuffling and starts chewing bark.

ENEMY ACTION IN OREGON
SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon is the only state ever fired upon by a foreign enemy during a war. This occurred early in World War II when a Japanese submarine lobbed a few shells at a beach in northwest Oregon.

To provide roads to meet a growing influx of trucks and cars which are choking the city's streets, the government has begun filling in some of the canals which have given Bangkok the reputation as the "Venice of the East."

The result has been a vicious circle that city fathers fear could dry up a main source of tourist revenue.

Seri Machareon, the district officer where the market is located lamented recently that a shore market established in the area is now preferred by both vendors and their customers for reasons of convenience.

On a typical morning recently, camera-laden tourists appeared to outnumber the sampan vendors.

A traffic jam at one point where the tourists stop in large numbers to visit a Thai silk market clogged the canal so badly that boats were backed up in both directions.

A straw-hatted lady vendor, held up by the confusion, sat quietly in her small fruit filled boat. A look of disgust mixed with resignation clouded her worn face.

Col. Sochai Hiranyakji, deputy director of the Tourist Organization of Thailand (TOT), admits the tourists have heard about the falloff in market activity and are beginning to stay away. Travel agencies report that the number of foreign visitors to the market has dropped off as the vendors have begun leaving the canals for the streets.

"I don't know," says Mrs. Yam. "It is true that many vendors have stopped selling their products in the klong (canal) any more. They can use trucks. But I think the nuisance caused by the tourists is one of the reasons why the floating market vendors have turned to other means of transportation."

Hoping to head off the danger to the floating market the TOT recently held a meeting to see what could be done. Nothing was accomplished, but the leaders admitted that ways must be found to keep the market attractive to high spending tourists as well as to the vendors.

Mrs. Somchit Songtrakulsakdi, 50, a banana saleslady, says, "Frankly, the farangs pose a big problem for us. But if they help make our country more progressive, I think we may have to put up with them."

Tentative Conclusion: Obscenity Does Not Corrupt

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's Commission on Pornography has reached the tentative conclusion that obscenity does not cause sex crimes or corrupt youngsters' morals. Discounting two overriding fears of effects of the current wave of sexual freedom in films, books and magazines, the first draft prepared by the commission staff says: "There is no evidence to suggest that exposure (of youngsters) to pornography has a detrimental impact upon moral character, sexual orientation or attitudes." And: "Research indicates that erotic materials do not contribute to the development of character defects, nor operate as a significant factor in antisocial behavior or in crime. In sum, there is no evidence that exposure to pornography operates as a cause of misconduct in either youths or adults."

The commission's report is not to be released until late this month, but most of the first draft has been leaked to a House subcommittee that is trying to whip up hearings to challenge the findings next week.

Other major findings in more than 300 pages of the report obtained by The Associated Press—all subject to revision or deletion from the final report: —Women as well as men are "highly aroused" by stag films and erotic pictures. Tests often showed that women who did not think they were aroused actually were. —Political conservatives are not as easily aroused by pornography as liberals. —Despite the arousal and in some cases increased sexual activity in the 24 hours after seeing highly erotic material, basic attitudes and sexual patterns do not change. —In general, 90 per cent of couples aged 20 to 25 were aroused by erotic films in three studies, while between 30 and 60 per cent of persons 40 to 50 years of age were aroused by the same films. —There are no recorded instances of sexual aggression, homosexuality, lesbianism, exhibitionism, or sexual abuse of children attributable to reading or viewing erotic stimuli among the several hundred participants in the twelve experiments reviewed.

The 18-member presidential commission of experts approved by Congress two years ago to conduct a $2 million investigation of the effects of pornography reportedly has not approved any of the report and much of it is to be rewritten.

But the major two findings, that pornography does not cause sex crimes or corrupt minors, reportedly were still in the draft report as of Tuesday.

While the House postal operations subcommittee is trying to line up expert witnesses to challenge the findings, Chairman Robert N. C. Nix, D-Pa., said his concern is with some of the experiments conducted. Nix termed "horrifying" an experiment conducted by the commission by the University of North Carolina, in which instruments were used to measure the physical responses of 23 college men to prolonged exposure to erotic material.

"I didn't dream such experiments were being conducted," Nix said. "I question the morals of people who do that kind of thing. I can't see any justification for it."

The report says imprisoned sex offenders studied have histories of sexual repression as youngsters in strict families, and suggests that, and not stimulation by pornography, is what leads them to sex crimes.

The finding that pornography does not corrupt youngsters' morals, the report says, is not based on actual study of youngsters under 18 because of the sensitivity against such studies. But it says studies of college students, which it said should also be valid for younger people, show that exposure to pornography does not make them more sexually aggressive, or in the case of men more callous toward women, or otherwise change their characters.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent President Nixon an $18 billion appropriations bill for urban renewal, water and sewage treatment and veterans care. That's $541 million more than he asked, but talk of a veto has dwindled.

The Senate cleared the measure Tuesday 70-8. Somewhat notably, not a single Republican rose to echo Nixon's charges of excessive spending by Congress. It includes $1.35 billion for urban renewal, compared with Nixon's request for $1 billion, and $500 million for water and sewage treatment in towns of 5,500 to 30,000 population, compared with Nixon's $150 million.

Claim Army Has Other Routes

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — Radio station WINA reported Tuesday that a Virginia congressional source says the Army has two alternate routes for shipping deadly nerve gas from Lexington, Ky., to Sunny Point Arsenal in North Carolina.

Two train-loads of nerve gas are scheduled to be shipped from Anniston, Ala., and Lexington, Ky., this month for disposal at sea.

Thompson said the congressional source and the Army spokesman indicated the two alternate routes are via the Norfolk and Western Railway, passing through Christiansburg, Roanoke and Martinsville, and via the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, passing through Clifton Forge and Lynchburg.

Even at night, the U.S. flag flies over the Capitol when Congress is in session.

Congress Advised Quit Newscasting Business

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Television network chiefs urged Congress today to quit thinking about getting into the newscasting business and leave the job to the professionals.

In testimony for the Senate Communications Committee, CBS president Frank Stanton and NBC president Julian Goodman opposed a bill by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to require broadcasters to give prime time to the Senate, House and judiciary.

They said broadcast newsmen present a fair, balanced news report, and described Fulbright's proposal as "dangerously simplistic," unnecessary and possibly an infringement upon a free press.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, however, backed Fulbright by saying television distorts complicated national issues and that Congress should have a chance from time to time to address itself directly to the public as the president now does by custom.

"The people have a right to be informed of the prevailing congressional attitude on the significant national issues," Muskie said.

Goodman replied: "We believe that the goal of public understanding is best met by letting broadcasters, rather than legislators or regulators, judge what kind and combination of programs will most fairly and fully cover a particular issue."

"Broadcast organizations have no political aims. Their newsmen—by training, background and approach—are concerned with reporting events and examining issues as professional journalists, not with winning votes or elections."

Stanton said broadcast news is not perfect. "But it is most certainly more satisfactory than it would be under any system in which news judgments are made by government officials or dictated by legislative or regulatory formulas."

Fulbright's proposal, he said, "is, I think, one of those propositions that seem highly plausible until you really look at it."

He said it raised questions of who would speak for each house, which views would be presented, which parties would be represented, and who could demand time later to rebut the views.

In addition, he said, the proposal might be unconstitutional. "Compelling the broadcast media to make time available to specific spokesmen of the government—a requirement that would clearly be unconstitutional with respect to any other medium—would ... violate the intent and spirit of the First Amendment ...," he said.

He said also the proposal presumes that lawmakers have a higher claim on media time than ordinary citizens.

"This idea, I believe, would be highly repugnant to the American people," he said.

BELGIAN AUTO THEFTS
BRUSSELS (UPI) — An average of 12 cars daily were stolen in Belgium in 1969, the Ministry of Justice reports. Of a total of 4,450 cars stolen during the year, 797 were not recovered. Joy riding was given as the most common cause of the thefts.

Peace Lobby Circulates

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delegation of North Carolinians began their lobby for peace in Vietnam Tuesday by buttonholing their congressional representatives and asking them how they stood on the war.

"About the most encouraging thing we heard" from Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., was that he recognizes "the changing attitude toward the peace movement," one man said.

The peace delegates numbered about 60 and represented most parts of the state. They included students, housewives and businessmen from a wide age span and included at least three Negro women.

They were led by Robert Wise, 22, a June graduate of Duke University.

One of the lobbyists said Rep. David Henderson, D-N.C., said he is for peace but supports President Nixon's policy on Vietnamization.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., who surprised many North Carolinians by voting for the Cooper-Church amendment to limit American military involvement in Cambodia, spoke to the group for a few minutes and offered encouragement.

However, Jordan refused to say how he will vote on the Hatfield-McGovern Amendment, which would force total U. S. military withdrawal from Vietnam by December 1971.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., was out of town Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe says federal air traffic controllers can look forward to pay boosts and other changes designed to brighten career prospects.

Volpe reviewed Tuesday the actions taken in the wake of a report last January by a committee appointed to study problems of the job, hit by recent work slowdowns and sickouts.

He said 200 controllers are being promoted this month, and more than 1,100 others will receive pay hikes before the end of the year. The increases will range from $2,000 to $3,000.

Starting salaries now range from $14,192 to $16,760.

He also noted steps to create more control positions, improve instruction, and provide better and more equipment.

Volpe specifically announced the award of contracts totaling $25 million to the IBM Corp., Gaithersburg, Md., for computers and allied equipment in several control stations, including Washington, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Indianapolis and Fort Worth, Tex.

Adv. for Noon EDT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Leonard Farbstein, D-N.Y., said today that national canners have attempted to deceive the public with claims that their goods will store indefinitely. He asked the Federal Trade Commission to investigate.

"The average person believes that foods cannot deteriorate in a vacuum," Farbstein said. But he cited Defense Department studies which set specific storage lives for canned items.

Farbstein said many items are sold long after they should be removed from the shelves.

TO BE CANONIZED — Father Herman of Alaska's Spruce Island, near Kodiak, a Russian Orthodox monk who died in Russian America (now Alaska) Dec. 13, 1837, is shown in a recent painting which is to be used in his canonization in Kodiak. Ceremonies begin Thursday evening. He will be made a saint in the American Orthodox Church, an offshoot of Russian Orthodox, in what the churchmen believe will be the first canonization in the western hemisphere. (AP Wirephoto)

Border Prices Remain Steady

RALEIGH (AP) — Prices on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina flue-cured tobacco markets remained steady for most grades Tuesday.

The Federal-State Market News Service said changes from Monday's record high average of $73.55 per hundred pounds were chiefly of $1 per hundred, with a few more gains than losses. Nearly two-thirds of the averages were unchanged.

Two More Deny Use Of Mercury

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two more firms replied Tuesday to state inquiries about use of mercury, and said it wasn't discharged into rivers as waste.

Twenty-one firms were asked last week how they used mercury. Lee's Carpets plant at Robbinville and the Dayco Corp. plant at Waynesville both said mercury is not used in manufacturing.

Winston-Salem Approves Bonds

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Winston-Salem residents approved proposals for issuing $16 million in bonds for city improvements Tuesday.

The proposals were for water system improvements, street improvements, traffic control system, landfills, fire stations, fire and landfill equipment, fire-police communications system, land for parking garages, downtown renewal and land for public parks.

Winchesters Are A Booming Business In Japanese Home

By BOB POOS
Associated Press Writer
TOCHIGI, Japan (AP) — The people who made "the gun that won the West" are now making 20,000 guns a year in the Far East.

The gun that won the West, as it has come to be called, was the Winchester rifle. None of them are presently being made in the exotic East, but Winchester, now Winchester-Western, a component of the sprawling Olin Mathieson empire, does a brisk business here in the manufacture of high grade, relatively low cost shotguns.

Winchester's home is still New Haven, but the only place in the world it makes its beautiful "over and under" shotguns is in this 75,000-population community 60 miles north of Tokyo. "Over and under" means that one barrel is on top and the other under it.

The rifles are beautifully engraved, highly accurate and super safe. In the U.S. they cost from about $285 to $310, compared to Winchester's U.S.

Waging War On Lake Polluters

CHICAGO (AP) — When H.W. Poston, Chicago environmental control commissioner, took a boat out into Lake Michigan, boarded a Great Lakes freighter and personally issued a ticket to the ship for spewing smoke from its stacks, he was declaring war on all lake pollution.

Smaller craft also are being policed to control the disposal of waste materials into the lake.

He said the diversion valve on a craft must be sealed at all times when a boat is in Chicago's waterways and harbors.

Poston said no mooring permits will be issued to any boats in 1971 if they are equipped with retention tanks and diversion valves. Diversion valves must be removed and the through the hull opening sealed with a metal plate or other approved device.

Humane have inhabited what is now California for at least 50,000 years.

made side-by-side double barrels that sell for $1,000 to $3,500 or sometimes more.

Winchester-Western, one of the three largest shotgun manufacturers in Japan, makes two kinds of game and target guns: Winchester, which go entirely for export or to American military or government installations in Japan, and Nikkos, aimed only at the Japanese market.

Both are carefully crafted by highly skilled Japanese. But generally the best of the lot become Winchester.

Mike Roby, a retired U.S. navy flier, from Petersburg, Va., heads the company's quality control section. Roby, who personally inspects each rifle before it leaves the factory, estimates that it takes three months to make one gun.

Each rifle begins as a rough tubular piece of steel with a knob on one end and an angular block of high grade French walnut imported from Belgium.

First, a hole is drilled through the barrel blank in the approximate diameter of the shotgun gauge. This procedure, though simple, must be accurate. About two percent of the blanks are discarded at this stage.

Next, the barrel is banded and tapped and bent, all by eye, until it is perfectly straight, on the wooden stock and one the forearm comes from three hand applied and hand rubbed coats of finish. The barrels are a dark blueblack from seven immersions in a chemical process that scientifically "rusts" them.

The guns are test fired with special cartridges that expel 19,000 pounds of pressure per square inch, double that of the most powerful shotgun shell sold. Before they leave the factory Roby inspects them occasionally rejecting one for any of a variety of reasons. Most can be saved by a little work.

About 450 persons work at Winchester-Western. The reason that these finely crafted weapons are relatively inexpensive is the low cost of Japanese skilled labor. Wages range from about 40 cents an hour to one dollar.

No Testing On Blue Mondays

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Researchers at the Human Sciences Laboratory here have decided not to do comparative tests on Mondays. The tests are designed to evaluate the effects of certain conditions on humans.

Commenting on the "Blue Monday" effect, Dr. N.B. Nolte, deputy director of the lab, says, "The subjects we use in the comparative tests are never quite up to it on that day. We cannot understand why, although it may be that they are still suffering from the physiological effects of the weekend.

"After all, don't we all feel bad on Monday mornings?" asks Nolte. The lab has not scheduled comparative tests on Mondays for 14 years.

Farmville Board Approves Purchasing Patrol Cars

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — The Farmville Commissioners last night authorized Chief Graham Creel to purchase three used patrol cars for use by the Police Department.

Two would have radios and one would be fully equipped. These 365 H. P. automobiles will have power brakes, fully reconditioned motors and transmissions, and new tires. The cars will cost $1500 apiece plus extras like radios and blue dome lights, Creel said. All three of the patrol cars now in use will be sold.

Signs will be erected on the sidewalk in front of all warehouses in town before the opening of the tobacco market to discourage parking on the pedestrian ways as has been done in the past. Chief Creel was instructed to enforce parking regulations this year during the busy season.

The Chief was also instructed to give warning citations to persons parking several hours on the downtown streets. The Board agreed to ask the Chamber of Commerce to encourage merchants and their employees not to park on the street in order to promote business by leaving the spaces for customers.

The Mayor and Board requested Creel and Street Department head, E.P. Freuler to see that all traffic signs in town are in good repair and that those which need to be replaced are replaced.

Mrs. Pauline H. Barfield, who is now building and making plans to manage a nursing home on the outskirts of Farmville, asked for special consideration on her electric rates. She said she has already purchased two gas dryers costing about $3,000 and that she cannot return them and doubts that commercial dryers of this size are even made to be run completely by electricity. These are the only pieces of equipment that would keep her from qualifying for an all-electric rate. The Board agreed to allow her to keep the special rate, providing she uses no other appliances or heating or air conditioning apparatus that is not electric.

The Board heard a report by Town Clerk Carl Beaman about the July 9 meeting of the County Commissioners' Solid Waste Committee. No action was taken. Farmville is one of three towns having a sanitary landfill in the county at present.

James Taylor appeared asking what steps could be taken to get a sidewalk down the right side of Main Street in South Farmville. He was told that over 50 percent of the property owners having frontage on that side of the street would have to petition and that owners would be assessed for the cost of installation. He said he would circulate the petition.

No opposition was encountered in a public hearing on whether the Pine Grove Apartments public housing project site should be brought into the city limits. The site was annexed.

The Board heard a request by Roland Lang, manager of the Shamrock Restaurant just outside Farmville to have his garbage collected by the town. Freuler said his department would do so three times a week for a $36-a-month rate.

A $20 advertisement was bought from the Boosters' Club for use on football game programs.

A house on East Cotton Street (just under the water tank) was condemned. The owner, Mrs. Beatrice Jenkins of New York City, was given 30 days to remove the personal effects of the last occupant before the town has the structure demolished and the cost assessed on the value of her property.

Eight dollars was set as a maximum residential sewage

High Blood Pressure Signs Seen Early

By DELOS SMITH
 UPI Science Editor
 NEW YORK (UPI)—The encouraging word about high blood pressure is that the most dangerous kind can now be spotted in its very beginnings, when there is a much better chance of getting it under lasting control with drugs.

Medical science calls this kind essential hypertension, "essential" because its cause is unknown. It is hereditary, affecting about one person in every 10, and its onset is sneaky. Other hypertension has known causes and cures. Renovascular hypertension can be relieved by surgery, for instance, and if you lessen continuous emotional turmoil in constantly overwrought persons, you're doing something for psychogenic hypertension.

But if there is a hidden underlay of essential hypertension, blood pressure remains subject to wild gyrations on the upward side. Unless spotted and curbed with drugs, essential hypertension marches its relentless course to a heart attack, a stroke or wrecked kidneys.

Identification Difficult
 Identifying this and distinguishing it from other kinds has been a major medical problem. It has been largely done by elimination—alleviate the possible causes and if hypertension remains, it must be of the essential kind. By then it is often so firmly established it is hard to curb.

Now it can be identified with three relatively simple tests worked out in 10 years of tedious research in hypertensive patients by a team of medical scientists at New York's Mount Sinai Hospital and medical school Drs. Milton Mendlowitz, Robert L. Wolf, Stanley E. Gitlow and Nosrat E. Naftchi. One is the "digital vascular reactivity test." It is a measuring of both blood flow and blood pressure in a fingertip put under the successive influences of indirect heating, a nerve-blocking drug and injected norepinephrine (NE). Horming Reaction Test

 NE, a hormone produced and secreted by nerve-ends, is a prime mover, in ways not yet fully understood, of the natural and automatic regulation of blood pressure when physiology is behaving as it should. It is the basis of the other tests.

One measures the rate at which nerve-ends secrete the NE they make. The other measures the rate at which secreted NE is taken up in the biochemistry which dilates or contracts blood vessels. Radioactive NE is injected into the person being tested. The measuring is done in urinalysis. When combined, the results of the three tests tell, conclusively whether essential hypertension is or isn't the basic cause of persistently high blood pressure which a physician has detected in his routine examinations. There is thus a guide for drug treatment.

Treatment Lengthens Life
 There is no cure for essential hypertension which in the hereditarily susceptible usually makes its first appearance in young adulthood and if untreated runs a variable course to premature death in two to 20 years. It can be controlled with drugs to the fine point of assuring most victims a normal life span, particularly if it is spotted in its beginnings.

That's one of the least publicized 20th century medical marvels. Immediately after World War II doctors were more or less helpless when confronted by persistently high blood pressure of whatever kind.

There must be blood pressure if there is to be life. It is provided by the pumping action of the heart, forcing blood from the heart through the body's network of arteries and veins and back to the heart again. Any given drop of blood completes the circuit in about one minute.

Brief Hypertension Normal
 Under stress, whether from exertion or from fear or from worrisome or joyful anticipations, blood vessels contract. The heart has to pump harder to get blood through narrowed channels and the pressure rises, but the body is toned to cope with such stress. When it ends, the vessels enlarge and pressure returns to normal.

It's a marvelous mechanism but one that still has mysteries. In addition to the substances produced at nerve ends it utilizes hormones of the endocrine glands, especially of the adrenals.

Substances in the body fluids also are involved. Antihypertensive drugs influence one or more parts of the control mechanism in one way or another. Approximately 50 have been developed since World War II. Some enlarge blood vessels, some deplete the body of sodium, some throw brakes on the reactivity of the sympathetic nerves.

'Transplant' The Grizzlies

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—Helicopters and boats are being used here in the nation's most famous park to keep grizzly bears from mixing with the tourists.

While troublesome bears have long been trapped and trucked to the back country here, the helicopters and boats permit Rangers to haul the bears even further from civilization in the 2.2 million-acre park that sprawls through Wyoming, Montana and Idaho.

The transplanting is one method being used by the National Park Service to remedy the basic problem: some bears, who have come to rely on food in garbage dumps, endanger human visitors.

Park biologists said one of the primary natural sources of food for grizzly bears is elk. Elk is plentiful in the remote portions of the park.

Park Supt. Jack Anderson said the recent transplants, in which the animals were drugged with dart guns, were without incident, and the airlifting would continue.

The Park Service already has discussed with other agencies and several states the possibility of airlifting bears to wilderness areas outside Yellowstone. Anderson said the park has enough bears to permit this, and hopes some agreement for transplants can be completed soon.

Self-Rule Given To Zuni Indians

ZUNI, N.M. (AP)—The small Zuni Indian tribe of western New Mexico signed an agreement recently with the Interior Department which gives the tribe administration of their own reservation.

It was the first time such an agreement had been worked out between the federal agency and a tribe. The document was prepared under an 1834 law that never had been used before.

The agreement places the Zuni tribal government in district supervision of Bureau of Indian Affairs activities, programs and personnel on the reservation about 40 miles south of Gallup.

The agreement has a provision that can cause its cancellation by either party on 180 days written notice to the other if the experiment doesn't work out.

The Los Angeles city school system has 730,000 pupils in 622 schools.

Worry Clinic Swollen Ankles Very Common

Edith's problem troubles millions of people in summer. For the body is a miraculous creation with built-in thermostats. Use the analogy of the city water faucets to see why pressure drops when your skin grows flushed with hot weather. If your pulse is too fast, that may produce swollen ankles, too.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE N-588: Edith W., aged 40, is worried.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "several of us women belong to a church group.

"We meet once per month. "But at our last session, several complained about swollen ankles.

"And I have noticed the same thing in both of mine, for my feet and ankles puff up in summer.

morning but by the middle of the afternoon, I often can't wear my shoes.

"What is wrong with me?" During very hot weather, many people turn on their faucets and (unless the city water faucets to see why pressure drops when your skin grows flushed with hot weather. If your pulse is too fast, that may produce swollen ankles, too.

For kiddies like to run under the cold spray.

Now suppose you live on the top floor of a 10-story apartment building.

What happens to the water pressure?

Often, it may become so reduced that you can't get more than a trickle out of the faucets. Why?

Because the city water pumps, if working at their previous normal capacity, can't maintain adequate pressure.

Same applies to your heart as it tries to keep up the circulation of blood.

In summer, your skin is more pink, why?

Because your body tries to open the vessels wider in the skin so more blood will get cooled by the air around you.

For your body is a very ingenious creation, with built-in thermostats.

Thus, in winter, your skin blanches, for your body then tries to keep more blood in your trunk to avoid chilling. Thus, it shrinks your skin vessels.

But the reverse occurs in summer, so you get flushed when you are hot, in order to cool your blood faster and thus keep your bodily temperature at its normal 98.6 degrees.

Gravity also explains why the ankles swell later in the day.

For at night, you are in the horizontal position at least 8 or 9 hours.

But after you jump out of bed, you stand upright for many hours and gravity tends to compete with your heart.

So some of the watery content of your blood seeps through the blood vessel walls and thus accumulates at the lowest spot, which is your feet and ankles.

A mild amount of swelling in summer is thus very common in otherwise healthy people.

But when you show exaggerated swelling or if your legs grow larger in winter, it may mean that your heart is racing too fast to maintain a good, strong circulation.

So doctors then give you drugs, such as digitalis, to slow down your pulse rate to about 80 or less.

For that rate permits your

Phonics Course Systematized

CHICAGO (AP)—An educational program designed to teach phonics, identifying the sounds of initial consonants and consonant blends, has been geared to audio-visual lessons.

Dr. William A. LaPlante, director of curriculum and materials development of Borg-Warner Educational Systems, said the phonics program is organized according to learning difficulty. The tasks that are easiest are presented first.

He said the new series brings to 238 the number of individual lessons that have been made available in its system 80, which is basically an audio-visual approach to teaching.

System 80 covers areas of the alphabet, spelling, reading vocabulary and comprehension, elementary mathematics and, now phonics.

Shopping center in Providence, R.I. announced a year-long drive against the boll weevil in Southern Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana counties during the middle of this month.

They are all right in the heart to restore proper circulation, which picks up the excessive fluid in the tissues (especially your legs) and lets the kidneys excrete it.

Mildly swollen ankles in hot weather usually indicate low blood pressure.

So prop your feet upon a hassock whenever you are sitting down as at sewing or reading or watching TV.

For that posture rests your heart, by slowing its rate 1 or 2 beats per minute!

Minneapolis Blaze Takes Eleven Lives

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Eleven men, most of them elderly, died in a blaze that swept a three-story building in downtown Minneapolis early today. Four persons were hospitalized in critical condition.

Fire officials said nine others escaped, one by climbing down a rope strung out from a window on the top floor.

The blaze apparently started in a wooden outside stairway on the back, firemen said. The cause was not immediately known. The interior of the second and third floors were destroyed but the first floor was less severely damaged.

The building housed three businesses on the first floor and had 33 units of rooms and apartments on the second and third floors. Located in the 200 block of East Hennepin Avenue, it was not far from the Mississippi River, in a section of small businesses and rooming houses.

Police at the scene said there was no chance for escape to the rear. With the back stairway burned and a rear inside stairs engulfed in flames and smoke the only other chance was a two-foot-wide steel ladder attached to the brick building.

Jenkins Entertain ECU Theatre Cast

Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins entertained the entire cast of the East Carolina Summer Theatre's current production at an informal lawn supper Tuesday evening at the Jenkins' home on East Fifth Street.

Special guests included Dr. Robert Holt, Vice President and Dean of East Carolina University, and Mrs. Holt; James Slaughter, General Manager of the Summer Theatre and others.

Two Wrecks On Tuesday

More than $3,000 in property damage resulted from two collisions investigated here yesterday, police reported.

The lithe, young actors, dancers and singers enjoyed fried chicken, fresh green beans, potato salad, pickles, slaw, rolls and soft drinks in great quantities.

And the regular, 8:15 evening performance of "A Funny Thing" at McGinnis Auditorium went off as scheduled.

Sentenced In Tax Suit

ELIZABETH CITY — Greenville physician Dr. William A. Moody was found guilty in U. S. Eastern District Court here yesterday of failure to file income tax returns for the years 1963, 1965 and 1966.

Found Fame Only In Hula Hoop

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Twelve-year-old Melody Howe has performed piano solos with symphony orchestras, won the science fair with her project on metabolism, took first place in a creative writing contest with her poetry, and draws recognizable portraits. But Melody achieved fame and fortune with her hula hoop.

The reigning national hula hoop champion can twirl 20 of the plastic rings at once—around her ankles, knees, hips, waist, neck, arms and hands.

"I might be able to do more," she mused, "but I've only got 20." She can also spin them around her legs while lying on her back, toss them up in the air and catch them with her feet, and do 19 different hoop tricks in a two-minute time period.

Melody, who learned to read at age two and worked her way up to an encyclopedia by the time she was four, took up hula hooping less than two years ago when a neighbor child won the national contest.

"She gave a demonstration at school, and we were all pretty interested," Melody said. "My grandmother gave my little sisters hoops, and I practiced with them at first. Everyone else at the park could twirl one around one leg except me. I got pretty disgusted."

"I tried to think how to pick up the hoops economically, without bending over to pick them up," Melody said. She invented a method of piling the hoops on the ground and hooking them over her foot, one at a time, sending them whirling around her ankle and moving them up her leg, then stepping in with the other foot. "If you go faster, they move up, and if you move slower, they drop down," she explained. "If I start to drop one, I move faster, or let it drop to my knees. I can always pick it up by bending my knees a little bit."

The dark-haired, bespectacled minister's daughter practices hula hooping every day, sandwiching it in between her school work (she makes straight As) and her piano practice. She has taken piano lessons since she was three and has soloed with the Beach Cities Symphony and the Peninsula Symphony in Southern California.

She gives demonstrations at convalescent homes and parks, and has appeared on several local television shows.

MELODY HOWE, age 12, shows how she won fame and fortune with hula hoops. Melody has garnered honors in music, science and creative writing; but really scored twirling 20 hoops at one time. (UPI Telephoto)

Institute Sees London A Ghost City At Night

By PETER J. SHAW LONDON (UPI) —Picture central London in the year 2070 as a ghost city after dark.

Restaurants, bustling at lunch, shuttered. Theaters, musty with disuse, empty.

During the working day it pulses as usual. But come nightfall, millions migrate to suburbia and beyond.

Left are pockets of the very rich and the very poor. It's grim possibly, according to 3,300 London members of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

They say municipal officials plotting London's long range development for the 1970s have whipped up "a recipe for environmental disaster."

The architects are the most vocal critics of the Greater London Council (GLC) plan, the most controversial feature of which is three beltway road systems around London to encourage automobile usage.

If the GLC plan is followed through, the architects say, London by 1981 will be dirtier. It will have fewer people, more roads, more traffic and so many commuters that understaffed and inadequate public transport could not cope.

Because of the furor since the plan was unveiled last March, the British government recently ordered an inquiry into its merits.

The GLC plan suggests six major strategic shopping and arts centers in outer London.

The GLC said it expects 600,000 persons to leave the greater London area by 1981 but such centers would forestall an even larger outflow.

The plan declares that ability to move about efficiently is basic to the functioning and prosperity of London. "In lobbying for the three beltways, the plan says:

"The total environment in relation to transport has to be considered and safeguarded if Londoners are to travel about and to work and bring up their families under reasonably efficient and healthy circumstances."

In their critical report titled London 1981, the architects said:

"The Greater London development plan is mainly directed at the educated, relatively affluent, car-driving suburban family which comprises only one part of London's social fabric."

The architects said: "Our view is that the motor vehicle represents a major threat to the environment and that its use must be restricted."

"The population must be retained as far as possible within London, and within central London; this can only be achieved by an approved environment consisting of more mixed communities, fewer vehicles, more dwellings and a sophisticated public transport system conveniently linking traffic-free areas."

The report said there is a strong possibility that within 100 years central London will be as the City (financial district) is today, deserted outside office hours."

Economic Warning The architects gave an economic warning:

"Once the garbagemen, milkmen, postmen and hotel waiters, for instance, have to move from inner London to the suburbs and beyond, they are more likely to accept employment in the areas to which they move rather than bear the cost and difficulty of daily commuting."

The architects suggested redefining central London to include large swatches of the more impoverished East End, much of which was blitzed during World War II.

This, they said, would redress the balance of investment which favors the west in roads, public transport, shops and overall environment.

"There is nothing in the GLC development plan to prevent London, in the future, being left only to the very rich and the very poor," they said.

The problems confronting London development in the 1970s are akin to many being thrashed out in urban America. Because of rocketing house prices, 85 per cent of London's present 7.9 million population cannot afford mortgage repayments on properties costing about $12,000.

This is near the bottom of the market. Median price for a two bedroom apartment or house in a desirable part of London is around $20,000.

The problem is especially acute in inner areas where the new urban poor concentrate.

Even public housing financed by borough authorities through local taxes faces soaring land and building costs.

The situation today was described in a question put by Judy Hillman, planning correspondent of the Observer newspaper:

"What shall it profit a city if it has the finest buildings, a roaring tourist trade and a flourishing commerce while perhaps a third of its people can hardly afford to exist?"

Noise Regarded As A Pollutant

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —If Dr. Chauncey Leake had his way, there'd be a lot more "Quiet, Please" signs around.

Scientists are becoming increasingly aware that noise is a pollutant and health hazard, says Leake, who is with the University of California Medical Center.

"For the body, noise can be distressful and disturbing to the equilibrium, quite apart from any possible injury to the auditory apparatus," he says.

"Sound is vibrations of air, but if great enough those vibrations can produce injury to the ear —perhaps permanent injury."

Sound is measured on a scale of about 130 decibels, with 1 representing the faintest audible sound. On that scale:

—The average residence with a busy kitchen, television and vacuum cleaner can measure up to 40 to 50 decibels. The level rises as more appliances are added.

—A truck roaring by 20 feet away can produce up to 90 decibels of sound.

—Train whistles at 500 feet produce up to 90 decibels and a subway train at 50 feet produces 95 decibels.

—Construction noise with compressors and hammers breaks the 110-decibel level, and so do motorcycles, electric lawn mowers and tractors. —A jet plane at 500 feet registers up to 115 decibels and rock music at its peak about 120 decibels.

—One of the biggest noises of all is the pneumatic riveter — 125 decibels.

Upsets Balance

One of the first effects of noise is on the body's endocrine balance: noise upsets it. Thyroid, water and salt balance in the body become disturbed.

"We are becoming aware of the emotional effects of noise, as well," says Leake. Of the annoyance, irritability, the interference with mental processes that come from long or frequent exposure to noise.

"And among effects on the cardiovascular system are increases in blood pressure. Much of essential hypertension is caused by noise."

Disturbances in the reproductive system are shown by the work of Dr. Lester Sontag of Fells Research Institute.

In animals, noise has an effect on foetal development by disturbing the hormone balance in the mother.

"So the infant develops mental defects," says Leake. Animals which have been exposed to noise before birth, even though normal at birth, are usually more aggressive and fearful later."

Group Marriage Has Its Own Kind Of Problems

By ROBERT STRAND
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Warren and Becky and David and Louise and Joseph all live together in a white stucco house. All the men are married to all the women and all the women are married to all the men, so they say.

It's called group marriage, the latest things in new family forms.

"People ask about sex," says Becky, 33, who looks like an ordinary, attractive housewife. "The answer is yes. The whole family belongs to the Sexual Freedom League." They also get regular visits from their "group marriage counselor."

Becky's "family," together for 18 months, includes three children aged 10 to 14. They all reside in a wealthy neighborhood in a rented eight-bedroom home.

Truly Radical Arrangement
The dress of the adults, all over 30, is conventional, so they are not to be confused with Berkeley's hippie population. Neighbors pay them little attention because "we don't give wild parties."

In fact the household is different from the typical hippie commune—it's far more radical. In the hippie commune, basically an economic unit, sex may not be communal as a way of life.

Participants in group marriages usually report that arguments over washing the dishes are much more of a problem than jealousy.

"When you like someone very much you don't get jealous of them," Becky said.

"You can feel good about someone close enjoying himself with somebody else," added

Warren, a former theology student and social worker.

According to David, a former commercial artist and currently a children's entertainer, "We have less jealousy and all its attendant evils than any conventional family."

A Whole Greater Than Parts
According to group marriage theory, this is because each family member's needs—not just needs for sexual and spiritual love—are better fulfilled. The group is supposed to offer greater resources of talents, interests, experience and psychological strengths.

"People are really lovable," Becky said. "People are fun to be with. But no human being can fill every need of another human being. That's what's wrong with so many marriages. People work at the impossible." The three children were brought into the household by David and his wife, Louise, who have been legally married for 17 years.

"We existed in a typical suburban scene," David said. "We went to Unitarian church every Sunday and could never get closer to other people than ordinary friendship."

Their children are regarded as the responsibility of all the adults, including Joseph, 59, a former ballet dancer. David believes the children benefit.

"Once, when Louise and I considered splitting from here, the children were unhappy because it meant they would leave, too. The reasons the children wanted to remain are probably the same as for us adults."

Framework Of Rules
Weekly work assignments for each are posted, as in a summer camp, on a bulletin board in the hall. Money is handled by a treasurer and the family, now operating on $700 a month, is looking for a house to buy.

For all the claimed benefits, the problems far exceed those of the conventional couple.

"When you live on a one-ton basis, you only get agitated once a week," Warren said. "If you live with five, you can get agitated every day."

As a result, the family holds encounter groups and dabbles in theories of behavioral change and gestalt therapy. The family is visited regularly by "a group marriage counselor."

Warren said, "some kind of formal communication is necessary. Without counseling, no intentional family group will survive."

Difficult To Organize
One such counselor concluded, "If group marriages are formed by individuals with great deficiencies—or strictly for sex—they will break up easily. But if the focus is on personal growth, the marriage may be on a firm base."

He said group marriages are difficult to organize and usually occur by "accidental involvement."

An Oakland, Calif., office worker, currently distributing 1,500 flyers inviting membership in a yet unformed group arrangement, so far has had little response.

The Berkeley family came together through some of the numerous local discussion groups interested in intentional communities. The more they talked about forms of communal living, the more group marriage became attractive.

"We are married in the sense we have made a commitment to each other, a commitment to make our thing work," Louise said. "That's all any marriage is."

Others May Not Work out
Of course the group marriage isn't blessed by law. Possibly various California statutes are violated, but nobody has filed a complaint, and nobody has been prosecuted. California has no law against simple adultery.

How many group marriages are operating in the United States is unknown. Estimates range from dozens to hundreds, depending on definitions, and the concept is receiving increasing discussion in the hippie and New Left press.

A San Francisco theater personality, 31, blames the breakup of her nine-month group marriage of four women, three men and two children on the discovery everybody unconsciously was "playing games" with each other.

"It was an insecure situation. We were charting new ground and we had no guides in solving the problems, such as raising the children," she said.

Yet the children, aged 3 or 4, were her own, and she now thinks the experience for them was "nothing but positive."

"Our marriage worked but didn't endure. I would like to try it again with less neurotic people. It's really beautiful to have all that love."

Job-Placement For Junior College Grads Easier

By LEONARD CURRY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — These days it's easier for a junior college graduate to get a job than it is for a person with a new Ph. D.

In California, for instance, the Florissant Valley Community College placed all but four of its 175 graduates. The Flint, Mich., Community Junior College put all 93 of its registered nursing graduates in jobs with salaries of $8,000 or more.

The nation's biggest junior college—Florida's Miami-Dade, with an enrollment of 30,000—got jobs for the 58 graduates of its electronic data processing program with salaries beginning at $8,400.

The demand for junior college graduates is coming at a time when many young persons with newly-acquired graduate degrees—or even a bachelor's—are jobless. Holders of advanced degrees in such fields as foreign languages and some of the sciences are finding no takers.

Specialized Training Valuable
But the need for workers in the technical and para professional fields is at a peak. And these are the categories—dental assistants, nurses, medical laboratory workers, law enforcement—on which junior colleges concentrate.

Brevard Junior College, Cocoa, Fla., and Davidson County Community College, Sandhills, N.C., landed jobs for all of their graduates in police administration. Mount Hood Community College, Portland, Ore., said, "We have a hard time keeping a student who has acquired a specialized skill in school for the two-year program—the job market wants them too badly."

Chicago, which has 36,000 students enrolled in seven junior colleges, said 80 per cent of its 1,650 June graduates planned to continue their education. But the job demand was high for diploma or A.A. (the junior college degree of associate of arts) winners in data processing, air conditioning and auto technology.

Jobs For 95 Per Cent
Kenneth G. Skaggs, coordinator of the American Association of Junior Colleges occupational education program, said in an interview that job opportunities this spring "were not as great as in the past, but they're (junior college graduates) still getting a half dozen offers each."

While one of every 10 youthful job seekers was unable to find work in June, the figure was only one in 20 for young men and women who finished junior college.

There are a few spots, however, where rising unemployment has touched the junior college job supply. In New York City, graduates of the Manhattan Community College "used to be choosy, but now they say, 'Look, I need a job, I don't care what it is.'"

In Seattle, Wash., where Boeing Aircraft is laying off engineers with 20 years experience, a state employment counselor said, "You can hardly expect the job market to be good for high school, junior college or even college graduates."

'Career And Income Oriented'
But over the long haul, the outlook is bright. The Labor Department says that technical and paraprofessional job openings should increase 36 per cent by 1980, compared with a growth of only 13 per cent for factory, mining and construction jobs.

There are 1,057 community colleges in the nation—and the number is increasing at the rate of more than one a week.

Nearly a third of the eight million college students in the nation attend these two-year colleges and, if the needed facilities are built, enrollment could exceed four million by 1980.

"Our kids are oriented to career and income," Skaggs said. "They are more oriented than liberal arts students who often have nebulous, vague objectives."

Skaggs said that for these same reasons there are relatively few demonstrations on junior college campuses against pollution or the Vietnam War.

Concentrated In Cities
More than 700 junior colleges and two-thirds of all junior college students are concentrated in the urban areas of seven states—Washington, Illinois, Florida, Texas, Michigan, California and New York.

Because few junior colleges have dormitories, most students commute—something accomplished more easily in the city than in far-flung rural areas where a student may live 50 miles from the school.

The features of a junior college are low tuition, or in the case of California, no tuition, an open admissions policy, and a variety of courses to appeal to the academic student who wants to continue at a four-year, degree-granting college or the career-minded youth who wants job training.

Because of these easy standards, the dropout rate among junior colleges is about twice that for four-year colleges.

Nearly 60 new junior colleges have been opening each year for the past six years and another 100 are expected to begin operations within 18 months.

More Facilities Needed
But now there is some danger that the rate of increase could taper off sharply after 1972 because of the tight money market and the high cost of borrowing money for construction.

As one official put it, "Most governments do not put a high priority on community colleges."

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, in a two-year study completed this spring, proposed that at a minimum, 230 to 280 community colleges should be established in the next nine years, a goal that is unlikely to be met.

The 19-member commission, head by Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California, said the only way to assure completion of the colleges would be through federal assistance, especially for those needed in low income urban and rural areas.

But, the Carnegie report said, if the nation commits itself to making the goal a reality, within this decade community colleges could become the "major segment of higher education."

Driver and pedestrian drinking kill an estimated 25,000 Americans annually, says the National Automobile Club.

Raquel Opines Sex Symbolism Is Superficial

AND A NEW FILM, TOO—When announcement was made in London this week of a new film starring Raquel Welch, she turned up in this outfit. She will co-star with Richard Johnson in "The Beloved", billed as modern film drama with Greek tragedy overtones. (AP Wirephoto)

By LINDA KRAMER
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The sex symbol concept is superficial," said Raquel Welch, curling her 37-22-35 1/2 frame on a couch in her New York hotel suite.

"It's for magazines and audiences. You have a decorative effect. I'm flattered that people thought I was any kind of beauty," she continued. "There are all different kinds of sexuality. In comparison with Mae West, I'm a soft sell."

Miss Welch was in town for the opening of her new film, "Myra Breckinridge," in which she plays the title role and co-stars with Mae West, the sex symbol of the 1930s.

Asked to comment on Miss West's remark that she would never have played the role of Myra, and that no star should play it because she would lose her fans, Miss Welch retorted: "That may have been true when she was making the mainstay of her movies 30 years ago, but I'm not pursuing stardom. At this moment I'm well known and I want to do things that will lead to a better acting career."

In the fact of poor reviews and viewer criticism such as, "You've destroyed everything decent," Miss Welch does not consider "Myra Breckinridge" a dirty or a bad film. In fact she considers Myra the only real acting role she's had.

"I become what I am when I'm doing something. My husband said that I became a bit swashbuckling when doing Myra," she commented with a slight smile. "I think the Myra in the movie is not a totally dislikeable character."

The movie, based on Gore Vidal's novel, is about a man transformed by an operation into a woman.

"It will offend some people and won't offend others," Miss Welch said, adding that "there's no real moral point to it. It's for entertainment purposes."

Although she defends the film, she admits that her children, Tahnee, 6, and Damon, 8, are too young to see it. "But for 15 and 16-year-olds, it's okay," she said firmly. "The sophistication of the American high school student today is greater than five years ago."

On contemporary subjects and causes, Miss Welch is articulate and independent. For women's liberation groups who consider her a symbol of sexism, she has few kind words.

"I'm not interested in them at all. It's a comedy to have the most radical and unattractive of these leaders get on the international circuit and make bad feelings for women in general."

"No woman today needs a whole organization to carve out for her what she wants to do," she continued, adjusting to an Indian sitting position on the couch. "The problem today is that everyone thinks you need an entire organization behind you to do anything for yourself."

Turning to her own career,

Miss Welch said that she pursued what she really wanted on her own.

"The structure in film making is not like 30 years ago when people used to protect you," she said. "Now you even have to fight your own studio to keep them from saying explosive things about you."

Her independence carries over into the fashion area. "It's passe even to attempt to tell people something like what they should wear," she declared.

Looking down at the green pop-shirt she had on, Miss Welch swept her hand across her chest where "pow" was written and said: "That's Americana. Clothing now is an expression of what you think. It's almost a status symbol to get knocked down by Women's Wear Daily."

Asked about her famous trip to South Vietnam with the Bob Hope show two Christmases ago, Miss Welch recalled: "I was like a sister to the guys. There were no wolf calls and some of the guys were crying," she said. "It was an overwhelming experience."

Her own feelings about the war are inconclusive.

"I'd like to see the war end, but I'm confused about what should be done. I've ceased to believe anything anyone says," she commented with a shrug.

As for student opposition to the war, Miss Welch feels it is usually good. However, she is adamantly opposed to violence and destruction.

"People look for Utopia tomorrow. Everyone has dreams, but to say, 'Look, I want it now,' to give an ultimatum, is to be unreasonable," she said.

On a personal level, she is not involved in any political or social movements. "I'm not one of the great humanitarians of today," she commented, languidly crossing her long legs. "I'm sick and tired of crusades."

As a mother, wife and career woman, Miss Welch manages to keep herself busy. She lives in Los Angeles with her husband, Patrick Curtis, and her two children. "I can't be the average mother, of course, but we have a very close family."

Allay Children's Hospital Fears

PARK RIDGE, Ill. (AP) — Telling children about hospital procedures often taxes the imagination of adults who are charged with allaying fears of tots about to be treated.

Sheila Johnson, pediatric-adolescent teacher and activity coordinator, uses puppets, play stethoscope, X-ray machine, blood pressure cuff and ID bracelets to tell children what it is like to be a patient.

"The program is an excellent idea," said Dr. Seymour Metrick, chairman of the department of pediatrics at Lutheran General Hospital. "I think it is helpful in lessening the tremendous anxiety of children as well as parents."

High Hopes In Fast-Growing Tropical Tree

By MARGARET HYMAN SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — A tree grows in Puerto Rico. It grows faster and more easily than just about any other tree in the tropics and represents the best hope yet of rejuvenating the timber industry of the nations, most of them underdeveloped, which lie in the world's tropic zone.

The tree, called a cadam, was brought to Puerto Rico 10 years ago from Southeast Asia to be planted experimentally. It has done so well that foresters from all over the tropic belt are now planting their own experimental plots.

Cadam research is just one of the projects under way at the 28,000-acre Caribbean National Forest, the only tropical forest in the U.S. chain. It lies southeast of San Juan in the Luquillo Mountains.

Much of the woodland was already protected by the Spanish crown when the United States took over Puerto Rico in 1898. President Theodore Roosevelt proclaimed it a forest reserve in 1903 and acreage has been added piece by piece since to bring the forest to its present size.

Cadam isn't the only species of tree that has been planted experimentally in the forest. Lawrence W. Hill, project leader for environmental tropical forestry of the U.S. Forest Service, explains that every traditional timber species in the tropics is disappearing: mahogany, teak, ebony, rosewood. These species must be brought back or suitable substitutes found if the timber industry is not to disappear entirely from one-third of the world.

Plots have been cleared in selected parts of the forest and planted with mahogany, teak, cadam, Honduras pine and about 15 other foreign species with which the institute is experimenting.

When the studies began, almost nothing was known about these trees: how much space they needed, what kinds of soil were best, what diseases they were susceptible to, which species could be grown together, how fast they grew or the properties of their wood.

Foresters and farmers spent generations trying to grow the Honduras pine in Puerto Rico and it always died after it had grown a little. Only recently was it finally discovered that this pine must have a particular fungus, called mycorrhiza, in the soil in order to help it retain its nutrients. Puerto Rico didn't have this fungus in its soil.

Behind The Scenes There's a cloak and dagger story which the foresters keep to themselves about how the fungus finally arrived in Puerto Rico, since all soil transported to or from the island has to be fumigated and fumigation would have killed the fungus. But the fungus suddenly appeared and the Honduras pine has been thriving on experimental plots.

When the first cadams were planted, no one knew what to expect. Not only did they grow very fast and spread their shade quickly to suffocate the weeds around them, but their wood proved much harder than usual for such a fast-growing species.

Cadam wood is useful for just about everything: rough construction, finished construction, furniture. It carves well, stains well, is relatively light weight, and is now being studied by the forest products laboratory in Madison, Wis., to determine whether its pulp might be suitable for paper.

Another project in the forest concerns herbicide. While Hill carefully explains that everyone would rather not use chemical weed killers, he says commercial timber production in the tropics simply is not feasible without them. So the institute is trying to find chemicals that will do the right job, the most efficiently, with the least lingering toxicity.

Harvard University, the University of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, also are using the forest to study projects ranging from the complete ecology of a tropical forest to the habits of snails and termites to what turns trees into dwarfs on the high, windswept mountain peaks.

The institute's 11 professional foresters, six of whom are scientists, not only conduct their own research but administer the entire forest, correlate independent research and conduct courses for visitors.

About 200 foreign visitors, most of them foresters or related scientists, visit the forest every year to see its work or take one of the two courses offered by the institute.

Lot Of Mileage In 850 Words

By ALFRED C. JONES Of The Salem Capital Journal CANBY, Ore. (AP) — Gleason Ledyard gets a lot of mileage out of an 850-word vocabulary.

Those are all the words he needed to do a simple translation of the New Testament for persons anywhere in the world who have trouble reading English.

"The New Life Testament," recently off the presses of the Christian Literatures Foundation in Canby, Ore. is the result of several years work in substituting universally known words for difficult words and passages of the King James version of Scriptures.

Gleason Ledyard and his wife, Kathryn, moved to Canby 3 1/2 years ago after trudging their way through the deep snows of the Canadian arctic during 14 years as missionaries to the Eskimos.

That experience and other travels in more than 40 countries taught Ledyard that, besides the Eskimos, there are millions of persons for whom English is a second language.

Even in the United States, the former missionary realized there are people lacking in education who could benefit from a simplified translation of the Bible.

Word by word, Ledyard evaluated how the New Testament might be understood—or misunderstood—by persons unfamiliar with Biblical times and ideas.

A "centurion" became a captain of the army. "Compassion" was turned into "loving pity."

A "bondswoman" became the phrase "woman who was owned by someone and who had to do whatever she was told."

A "hypocrite" was identified as "you who pretend to be someone you are not."

Few Prospects For Liberation In Their Ranks

CHICAGO (AP) — The Women's Liberation movement will find few prospects for recruits among the wives of successful business executives and professional men.

A survey conducted by a management consulting firm and the Center for Urban Affairs, Northwestern University, shows the majority of women said they were more concerned about their husband's job than in material rewards.

The wife of a successful executive or professional person is typically happy in her marriage and is less interested in his getting raises than she is about his possible overwork or overstress.

She does not feel that, as a woman, she has been handicapped in life. On the contrary, a substantial majority feel that, as women, they received something special out of life.

"Corruptible" became "that which dies," while "Ark of the Covenant" was described as "the special box that held the Old Way of Worship."

The King James version of this difficult passage in Romans 7:23-24 reads: "But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members. O wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from the body of this death?"

The New Life Testament gives the same passage like this: "But there is a different law at work deep inside of me that fights with my mind. This law of sin holds me in its power because sin is still in me. There is no happiness in me! Who can set me free from my sinful old self?"

Retired Justice Believes Computer To Help Courts

By RICHARD M. HARNETT
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tom C. Clark, retired justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, believes automation soon will break the jam in the federal court system.

A computer will be tied into the court reporter's stenotype machine —producing instant transcripts. The court calendar will be on a computer, with summonses and warrants going out automatically on the right date. Legal forms will be standardized throughout the country.

"We don't think the computer is the total answer to our problem," Clark said. "The court system is a human situation—but we are hopeful that computerization will be very, very helpful."

The new streamlined court methods, both on the human side and mechanical side, are being developed by the Federal Judicial Center in Washington, which Clark headed until recently.

Cutting Wasted Time
"We are trying to develop modern techniques and procedures which will assist in quicker disposition of litigation," the 70-year-old Jurist said. In one federal district, government attorneys have been persuaded to show the defense the evidence against the suspect.

"The district attorney practically gives his file to the defense attorney," said Clark. "As you know most of the federal cases are so well investigated they have a pretty open and shut case."

The result is that in that district "guilty pleas are up to around 90 per cent, compared with 45 to 50 per cent in other districts," Clark said. This eliminates the need for many lengthy court trials.

Clark was in San Francisco to hold pretrial hearings in 13 federal lawsuits which he will hear as a visiting judge. Although he had 19 years on the nation's highest court, he has never been on the bench in a trial court.

Seeing problems Firsthand
He is the first retired Supreme Court justice to preside in a lower court since Justice Willis Van Devanter did it in the 1920s. Clark was invited to take the 13 complex business cases by San Francis-

RETIRED JUSTICE Tom C. Clark checks a few facts in his study at San Francisco. Clark says he believes automation will soon break the jam in the federal court system. (UPI Telephoto) co Presiding District Judge George B. Harris.

The friendly Texan, who was President Harry S. Truman's attorney general before going to the high court, visited the federal press room during a lunch break and talked openly about justice in the United States.

"The Supreme Court is generally about three years behind the thinking of the public," he said. "This is because cases come to the court about three years after trial."

However, he said, in some areas the court "is leading the way." He cited decisions on criminal procedure, civil rights and voting reapportionment.

Would Not Take War Case
Clark does not expect any surprises from the new Nixon court.

"I doubt there will be any radical change in the philosophy of the court," he said. "Any change will be procedural rather than substantive."

He said if he were still on the Supreme Court and a case came up challenging the Vietnam War, "I'd vote not to take it because it is a political question which under the Constitution is entrusted to Congress and the president."

Clark said, however, he has "some apprehensions" about going into a court and making the spot decisions he will have to make as a trial judge.

He also observed that a trial judge's duty is to follow precedents of higher courts, something quite different from the role of a Supreme Court justice in creating the precedents.

Organized Christian Religion Saw N.C. Surge In Early 1700s

"The Light of History"
By H. G. JONES

Dept. of Archives and History
Written for the AP
RALEIGH (AP) — The first few years of the 18th Century witnessed the expansion of organized Christian religion in the "New World" and the subsequent construction of the first church buildings in the province of North Carolina.

When Provincial Gov. Henderson Walker took office in 1699 one of his first official acts was to push through the Colonial Assembly a bill to establish the Chowan Parish which later came to be known as St. Paul's Parish.

In the spring of 1702 construction was begun on a wooden church, said to be the first built on Carolina soil. With plain benches for pews, a ceiling of rough planks, and no windows, the building was completed the following fall. A second church was built in 1708, and in 1736 a new and more convenient site was acquired on Broad Street in Edenton. Construction on the present building began that year, though it was not occupied until 1760 and not completely finished until 1774 because of lack of funds.

Notable among other very early Carolina church buildings were the first Quaker Meeting House built in Pasquotank County in 1703 and the early buildings of the Chowan Baptist Church and the Shiloh Baptist Church which was established in 1727 and 1729, respectively, though in both cases the buildings were constructed some years later.

The oldest existing church building in North Carolina is believed to be St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Bath, the state's oldest incorporated town (1705). The St. Thomas Parish predates the establishment of Bath by four years, though the existing building was not constructed until 1734.

In the early days St. Thomas Church followed the English custom of burying deceased members under the church's tile floor with their heads toward the wall and their feet toward the aisle. The church houses several priceless possessions such as a three-branched Sheffield candelabra given to the church by King George II, a silver communion chalice given by the Bishop of London in 1740, and a Bible that was printed in London in 1703.

Though the Methodists—a reform group which branched off from the Church of England—had no organization as a distinct church until after the American Revolution, they did leave their mark on North Carolina. George Whitefield, a Methodist evangelist, who it is said "could make hell so vivid that you could locate it on an atlas," came to North Carolina several times between 1739 and 1765, as did other traveling Methodist Methodist preachers.

The oldest organized Presbyterian congregation in the state is thought to be the Black River Presbyterian Church in Ivanhoe which was begun in 1740. Three other pioneer Presbyterian churches established in 1753 are the Rocky River Presbyterian Church near Concord which is called "the oldest church in the upper country"; the Old Fourth Creek Presbyterian Church, which was so named because it was located on the fourth creek away from Salisbury and is now the First Presbyterian Church of Statesville; and Cathey's Meeting House, also a few miles from Salisbury. The name of the latter has since been changed to Thyatira, and the present building was completed in 1860.

The middle of the 18th Century also brought many religious settlers of German background—the Moravians, the Lutherans, and the German Reformed. The Moravians established the Bethabara Moravian Church, and the German Reformed and Lutheran groups jointly used the Grace Reformed Church, or as it was commonly called, the Lower Stone Lutheran Church, on alternate Sundays. Soon other German churches were built in the western Piedmont.

These mentioned are but a few of the cornerstones on which our modern churches grew. There were many other churches built in the period before the Revolution, several of which still stand predating not only the nation but in some cases the counties and towns which now contain them.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠ Overconfidence on the part of the declarer provided his opponents with an opportunity on which they alertly capitalized.

The four heart contract was reached by North and South without a wasted motion. After West overcalled South's opening one heart bid with two diamonds, North was content to offer a simple raise. Coming in the form of a free bid, the two heart call designates a hand of average strength. South saw nothing to be gained by showing his second suit and he proceeded without further ado to four hearts.

West opened the jack of spades and the ace was played from dummy. A club was led to declarer's queen as East followed with the six. South now put the queen of hearts thru for a finesse and East was in with the king.

The switch was to the king of diamonds. West overtook with the ace and continued with the queen, on which his partner discarded the three of clubs—completing an echo in that suit. West, observing East's high-low, shifted to a club and East ruffed for the setting trick.

Altho South was the victim of a sharp defense, he should have taken precautionary measures to safeguard his contract. When the dummy is spread, declarer can virtually count 10 tricks—four hearts, five clubs and one spade. He should, therefore, be willing to forgo the luxury of a trump finesse—which at best represents a mere overtrick—in the interest of securing complete safety.

It is suggested that the declarer play dummy's ace of hearts at trick two and continue with the ten. East can take the king whenever he wishes, but after the defense cashes two diamond tricks, they are finished. When South regains the lead, he draws trumps and then runs the clubs.

Introducing the lowest-lead, highest-octane gasoline for the money. Anywhere.

New Big Plus.

We've taken lead out, kept the octane high. And we've priced it below premium.

To help clean the air.

Cleaning the air is the biggest thing we wanted to accomplish. So we took lead out of Big Plus. Actually, there wasn't that much lead to begin with. One-and-a-half cc's of tetraethyl lead, less than an eyedropper-full in a gallon. Now we've removed one cc of that. To make Big Plus 99.98% lead-free on a volume basis.

Then we doubled the amount of engine-cleaning detergent, to reduce exhaust emissions even more.

It all adds up to this: Big Plus can cut automotive air pollution from your car significantly. Right now.

9 out of 10 drivers can use Big Plus without worrying about engine knock.

Big Plus is high in octane.

It has what engineers call a 'research octane' rating of 96. Octane, of course, is not the only guide to choosing a gasoline. But it's important.

Big Plus will work perfectly in cars that don't have real high-compression engines. Cars that do should use our premium gasoline, Esso Extra.

There are 83,000,000 cars on the road today. What we've done is to make Big Plus an anti-pollution gasoline that 9 out of 10 drivers of today's cars can use without worrying about engine knock. And it'll be good for the 1971 cars, too.

Why we didn't take out all the lead.

We could have, of course. But engine testing shows that some lead is needed to prevent possible valve damage.

So we left the minimum amount in. And still made a cleaner gasoline. Try it soon. And help your car run clean.

There may be other questions about gasoline you'd like answered.

So we've prepared a comprehensive brochure. You can get it free at Esso stations. Or write Humble's Consumer Affairs office, Box 2180, Houston, Texas 77001.
