Heavily Guarded Nerve Gas Train Crosses Western N.C.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A heavily guarded munitions train carrying deadly nerve gas slowly crossed the western portion of North Carolina this morning and headed into South Carolina on its winding trip to Sunny Point, N.C.

Law enforcement officers said the train passed through the North Carolina mountain town of Marion about 7 a.m. and moved through Forest City, N.C., about a half an hour later.

A small crowd gathered in the rain at Spartanburg, S.C., when the train pulled into the city about 8:30 a.m.

The train stopped at Spartanburg for 40 minutes before resuming its trip. The Army did not explain why the train had stopped in the city.

The train pulled out of an Army depot near Richmond, Ky., shortly before noon Monday.

It is carrying a load of deadly nerve gas rockets to be loaded aboard an old Liberty ship at Sunny Point, near Southport, port, N.C. Then the ship will be towed out to sea and sunk, sending the nerve gas to its final resting place three miles deep and about 282 miles off the coast of Florida.

In Virginia on Monday there was a festive atmosphere along the route the train took through that state. As the gas train rolled through the lush green hills of southwest Virginia, hundreds flocked to the edge of tracks.

The people waved as if they were watching a circus train pull in.

At Appalachia, Va., a group of teen-agers waved to soldiers aboard the lead train, which contained hospital equipment and paraphernalia for leakage tests.

One of them waved a sign proclaiming: "Welcome to Appalachia — We're not nervous."

The troops aboard the lead train had a cheerful air, too, waving to the throngs lining the tracks in the lightly populated Virginia mountain area.

The curious gawked from trackside at the passing concrete cases aboard the second train, then went away satisfied they had seen what all the fuss was about.

Virginia highway patrolmen stood guard at overpasses and refused to let onlookers take up vantage points there.

Five Army helicopters hovered over the train and scoured the winding tracks for obstacles.

Bloodmobile Due

The second collection in the current fiscal year of the Pitt County Bloodmobile has been announced for Thursday, again in Greenville at the Moose Lodge.

Chairman Douglas Morgan said, "We will again be seeking to raise 125 units as our quota. After the successful drive in July, we have high hopes of having another collection equally or even more successful."

Noting that he believed much of the success of the last drive stemmed from efforts of the Pitt Memorial Hospital staff in sending out letters to recipients of blood, asking them to give blood or have a donor give for them, Morgan said, "I hope those of this group who were not able to respond in July's drive will be able to this time."

Hours of collection Thursday will be from 11:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Women of the Moose and members of the Greenville Service League will again be on hand to assist in telephoning, furnishing refreshments and in administrative details.

Prospecting donors are reminded that anyone who has not contributed in eight weeks or more is eligible to report again for a donation of blood.

Confirm Aerial Blows Doubled

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. fighter bombers and gun ships have doubled the number of air strikes against enemy targets in Cambodia this month, Pentagon sources said in confirming reports of stepped up U.S. air attacks.

Since Aug. 1, the sources said, U.S. warplanes have flown an average of 50 attack sorties a day against enemy troops and supplies throughout Cambodia as compared to a daily average of 24 during July.

A sortie is one flight by one plane.

In addition, there have been an undisclosed number of photo-reconnaissance flights.

The sources gave no reason for the sharp increase in U.S. air raids which coincided with a step-up in ground fighting between the Cambodians and communist forces.

Eyewitness reports from American newsmen say U.S. planes, loaded with napalm and conventional bombs, are being used to provide direct combat air support for beleaguered Cambodian troops.

The Nixon administration has repeatedly denied giving close air support to the Cambodians.

Body In Water-Submerged Car North Carolina Flooding Claims Its First Victim

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Flooding in North Carolina during the last two days has claimed its first victim.

The body of a Cleveland County man was found in his river-submerged car before dawn today. He apparently had driven into the river thinking it was shallow where it covered the road.

When deputies found the car the river was beginning to recede.

The victim was identified as John Rich Hector, 52. His family reported him missing Monday morning after his company said he failed to show up at work.

Meanwhile, the Weather Bureau said Monday that it can give no assurance of dry weather today or Wednesday in western North Carolina.

However, the weather bureau said that the rain should not be as heavy and that the situation is improving.

Several counties have reported heavy crop damage and loss of livestock. Homes have been flooded, mobile homes have been swept away and highways have been submerged.

Although the floods have caused much damage, a state official said they have also flushed out the Yadkin River, where pollution has caused five fish kills this summer.

The fish kills have been blamed on Winston-Salem's overloaded sewerage system.

Earl C. Hubbard, assistant director of the state Water and Air Resources Department, said Monday the flood waters will "supply adequate dilution water" to prevent any additional kills for a while.

The dilution water, he said, will supply "oxygen requirements" sufficient to sustain aquatic life.

The Weather Bureau says it can give no assurance of dry weather for the next day or two in western North Carolina, where recent rains have caused rivers and streams to flood. However, it says, the rains should not be as heavy, and the situation is improving.

No injuries have been reported. But several counties reported heavy crop and cattle damage, flooded houses and mobile homes, and submerged highways.

The weather bureau expected most rivers to crest during the night, but one was expected to reach a crest several feet above flood level Tuesday. The bureau said the Yadkin River should crest at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Yadkin College in Davidson County. The high was expected to be 30 to 31 feet, some 12 feet above flood stage.

Most rivers were slowly receding. But the Weather Bureau said the Yadkin was expected to crest tonight at Yadkin College in Davidson County at 30 feet, some 12 feet above flood stage.

At Elkin, where several low-lying businesses were flooded Sunday night, sheriff's deputies reported property damage was heavy. They said some businesses near the Yadkin River were still filled with water and some streets still impassable.

In neighboring Yadkin County, a trailer park was inundated and deputies reported the residents had been evacuated.

The Highway Patrol said most primary roads have remained open during the flooding. N.C. 268 between North Wilkesboro and Elkin and the Lenoir bypass portion of N.C. 18 were closed Monday when water covered them, but were reopened several hours later.

Large acreage in the foothills and western Piedmont became inundated Monday as the flood waters moved downstream. In some places the water was so deep some cars completely disappeared in the fast-moving water. There also were scattered reports of cattle being swept away.

Lake Norman near Charlotte was expected to rise 6½ feet by today, but it had been at a near-record 10 feet below normal before the rains.

Tougher Policy Mapped In Campus Disruptions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
RALEIGH (AP) — The chancellors of the six units of the university of North Carolina will have more authority for dealing with campus disruptions under a tougher, rewritten policy.

The new policy, approved Monday by the Executive Committee of the university trustees, will be presented to the full board of trustees Oct. 26.

It permits suspension of anyone suspected of repeated disruptions, and clarifies procedures for acting against disruption.

The chancellor of each university, rather than the president of the consolidated university, is given the responsibility for investigating and bringing charges under the policy.

"In trying to clarify and simplify this matter we underscore that we mean business," said Victor S. Bryant of Durham, a member of the Executive Committee.

"We've endeavored to preserve the right of peaceful dissent, but willful disruption and violence cannot be tolerated and will be dealt with effectively," he added.

Bryant and William Friday, president of the consolidated university discussed the policy at a news conference after the Executive Committee meeting.

In other action, the Executive Committee: —Approved the appointment of Dr. H. Brooks James as vice president for research and public service for the consolidated university. James is dean of the School of Agriculture and Life sciences at North Carolina State University.

—Approved budget requests to be presented to the Advisory Budget Commission in September.

Dr. James, who will take over his new duties Sept. 1, will succeed Dr. C. E. Bishop, who resigned to become chancellor of the University of Maryland.

One of the changes in the new disruption policy involves the section under which a UNC-Charlotte instructor, David Blewins, was found guilty of violation for failing to meet his classes during a Vietnam moratorium observance.

The change did not abolish the offense, but moved it to another section which will make the faculty member subject to action by regular faculty courts instead of the special hearing committee created under the disruption policy.

The rewritten policy retains sections prohibiting amnesty to anyone charged or suspected of disruptions, and penalties for professors who fail or refuse to carry out assignments.

The policy places a one-year statute of limitation on offenses and spells out the investigative and hearing procedures.

Two Demos Warn Food Stamp Cutback Likely

By ROBERT A. HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Democrats predict a massive reduction in the food stamp program within a year if new restrictions approved by the House Agriculture Committee become law.

The claims were made Monday by Reps. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., and Allard K. Lowenstein, D-N.Y., the only members of the House panel who voted against a three-year bill when it was approved 25-2 last month.

They said in dissenting to the committee's report that the present program reaches only about one-fourth of those in need and the new proposals "may, in reality, prove to be regressive."

"We predict, that by July 1, 1971, should the committee's amendments become law, less than one-half of the people now buying stamps would still be enrolled in the program," Foley and Lowenstein said.

About 5.9 million people in 44 states and the District of Columbia now take part in the program under which eligible persons exchange money normally spent for food on coupons which then are worth more.

The version approved by the House Agriculture Committee doesn't resemble the liberalization of the program passed last fall by the Senate.

Foley and Lowenstein, who are preparing an alternate bill, the value and the amount paid by eligible recipients.

—A work requirement which, they said, is probably unworkable "and, where it can be enforced, might well in many cases be socially destructive."

—Restrictions which bar free food stamps to families with no income.

—National eligibility standards for which no minimum income level for participation is defined.

said their predictions on the sharp drop in participation were based on these provisions in the pending House bill.

—A new cost-sharing provision under which states would be required to pay 2.5 per cent of the bonus value of the coupons in the first year and slide upward to 10 per cent in the fourth year. The federal government now pays the entire bonus value of the stamps, which represents the difference between

He said he was under a military court order not to discuss other events of that day.

Medina, who commanded the company that entered My Lai, said authorities have spent some $3 million investigating the incident and that the Army has refused his requests for money to conduct investigations for his own defense.

That is why he is appealing to the public for defense funds, he said.

Claims FTC Can't Serve The Public

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Retiring Federal Trade Commissioner Philip Elman called today for virtual abolition of his agency. He recommended splitting the FTC's functions between a single administrator, recallable by both the President and Congress, and a trade court.

Elman asserted the FTC, and other so-called independent regulatory agencies, are independent from all but the interests they regulate. As a result, the public is the loser, he said.

In addition, the combination of prosecutorial and judicial functions in a single agency usually make the outcome of a commission proceeding "a foregone conclusion," he contended. "Without a doubt, the theory underlying the independent regulatory commission was original and brilliant," Elman told the antitrust section of the American Bar Association. "We must now look to experience more than theory."

Elman a veteran of 31 years in the federal government and an FTC member since 1953 recommended replacing the current five-member commission with a single administrator who would serve at the pleasure of the President Congress and would be removable by either.

Judicial functions, he said, should be given to a trade court, which could hold hearings in every state.

ON STAGE — Cast members of current ECU Summer Theatre production "Man of La Mancha" are shown during one of the play's well-received songs.

Host Of Strong Points In 'Man Of La Mancha'

"Man of La Mancha," the final musical of East Carolina Summer Theatre's summer season, is a production in which the strong points far outweigh some rough spots.

Jeananne Kain as Aldonza turns in an evening of inspired singing and acting. She is convincing as the bawdy kitchen maid who is the rough and ready bride of any man with a coin, and projects tenderness and beauty as the young maiden who experiences the poetry of pure love. Miss Kain's performance is the torch that keeps "Man of La Mancha" a radiant affair.

The role of Don Quixote (Cervantes) is surely one of the most challenging in contemporary theater. The constant transitions from Cervantes playing Cervantes to Cervantes playing Don Quixote were sketched in, more than adequately, by David Long, but in this opening night performance he never managed to sustain the promise of inspiration he showed in several scenes.

One of the finer brief moments is the remarkable feat Mark Ramsey made of his appearance as the barber. It is moments like this that linger long in one's memory. The short dance of Andy Keyser and Mister Haskins as the horse and the mule is another of those delightful little things in this show.

John Sneden as Sancho, Cervantes' manservant, Michael Sartor in the role of the padre, Baillie Gerstein as the housekeeper, and Rena Dubberly's performance as Antonia are all positive accomplishments.

Ken Eliot is first rate as the innkeeper (and governor). He is the central focus of reality around which all the dreams, fantasies and other realities revolve. Eliot's performance meets this requirement with a sensitive awareness of what the role demands.

The musical score remains one of the star attractions of this play... with the unforgettable "The Impossible Dream," the lovely "Dulcinea," the enchanting "Little Bird, Little Bird," and the wistful "Golden Helmet of Mambrino."

Orchestration, staging, and costuming were, as by now expected, all outstanding in their standards of perfection. "Man of La Mancha" is much

Hijacker Is Loose Again

SAIGON (AP)—An American soldier who tried to hijack a Vietnamese airliner from Saigon to Hong Kong went to the bathroom Sunday and didn't come back, U.S. authorities reported today.

Army spokesmen said Pvt. George M. Hardin, 20, of St. Louis, Mo., escaped from a Saigon hospital where he was taken to see a Korean flight engineer injured during his attempt July 22 to hijack an Air Vietnam plane at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport.

Hardin was accompanied by his military defense counsel and some U.S. military police. He asked to use the bathroom, was given permission and disappeared. Police cordoned off a six-block area and searched for two hours but were unable to find the soldier.

Hardin was being held in the Army stockade at Long Binh, 12 miles northeast of Saigon, during an investigation into charges against him of assault with a deadly weapon, attempted hijacking and attempted kidnapping.

Hardin tried to hijack the plane on the ground by threatening the crew with knives. He surrendered after airport guards let the air out of the plane's tires. The flight engineer, the only person injured, was cut about the throat when he tried to escape.

Brandt Bids For Summit

WASHINGTON (AP)—West German Chancellor Willy Brandt wants a summit meeting with the United States, Britain and France after he signs a non-aggression treaty with the Soviet Union, the White House says.

A spokesman said Monday that President Nixon received Brandt's request in a letter over the weekend. Full details were not disclosed, and there was no immediate indication of how Nixon might respond.

Earlier reports from London said Prime Minister Edward Heath was studying a Brandt proposal for a Western summit. Diplomatic sources say Brandt wants to discuss the future course of East-West relations following the signing of West Germany's pact with the Soviets.

Additionally, it is said, Brandt wants the meeting to dramatize West Germany's close ties with the Western alliance.

Nixon reportedly will not reply until after Brandt's trip to Moscow to sign the treaty with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

One speculation is that the meeting might be held in the United States in conjunction with the Sept. 15 opening of the 25th anniversary session of the United Nations.

Guidelines On Subpoena Rule

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has announced new guidelines for the subpoena of newsmen by the Justice Department, but he says the government is "not in any way conceding our constitutional and statutory power to request a court to subpoena the press or anyone else."

Mitchell told the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association Monday that the controversy over free press-fair trial was "one of the most difficult problems I have faced as attorney general." He asked the ABA to consider an immediate study of the issue.

He said the new federal guidelines stress negotiations between prosecutors and newsmen. If that fails, subpoenas will be issued only with express authorization of the attorney general.

"A newspaperman," he said, "may have information which may convict a criminal or which may exonerate an innocent man."

Mitchell said the guidelines were to take effect immediately, but he said they were only interim.

In a later news conference, the attorney general said the guidelines probably would have avoided issuance of subpoenas in recent cases, but he did not cite them.

Mitchell also said he would not oppose legislation to grant newsmen the right to keep their sources of information confidential—similar to the privileged relationship between lawyers and clients.

"Serious journalists from all the media have told me privately they would rather go to prison than comply with subpoenas," Mitchell said. "The press views subpoenas as an effort by the government to use them as quasigovernmental investigators."

The guidelines require Justice Department investigators to first try to obtain information needed for prosecutors from nonpress sources. Also, Mitchell said, caution should be observed in requesting unpublished information where a serious claim of confidentiality is alleged.

Illness Due Insecticide

RALEIGH (AP)—A North Carolina health official says that contact with tobacco sprayed with organic phosphorus insecticides have caused 10 persons to become ill in North Carolina since mid July, and possibly caused two deaths.

Dr. Martin P. Hines, director of the division of epidemiology of the Board of Health, said Monday that two other deaths are being investigated to determine if such insecticides were involved.

He urged that persons who come in contact with the insecticide to take a bath or shower immediately.

In Chapel Hill, Clarence Boyette, said his 11-year-old son is in fair condition as the result of insecticide poisoning. The youth, Curtis Boyette, was found unconscious in the family's tobacco barn last Wednesday and taken to North Carolina Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill.

Hunger Problem Said Affecting Million In N.C.

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—Dr. Raymond Wheeler, president of the Southern Regional Council, said Monday night nearly one million in North Carolina don't have the money to purchase enough food to be well nourished.

Hunger is "a very serious problem" in North Carolina, Wheeler said in an interview on the University of North Carolina's educational television stations.

Wheeler, a Charlotte internist, said the problem of hunger is not confined to Negroes. One-third of North Carolina's families, he said, have incomes lower than the established poverty level.

Wheeler was co-author of the 1967 report, "Hunger, U.S.A.," which reported on conditions in Mississippi.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP)—The 850,000 residents of the District of Columbia apparently will have a taste of congressional representation next year, even if just a single, non-voting delegate to the House.

The House cleared two bills by wide margins Monday. One would give the Capital City a non-voting delegate in both the House and Senate, while the other allows only for a House delegate.

The Senate so far has rejected the idea of having a non-voter among its own membership, but it has okayed one for the House. The different bills now go to a conference committee.

16 blocks Monday before the Republican senator pulled over.

Johnson said he had his red light and siren on for the last half of the chase, and hadn't noticed until the end that the car bore the license plate "South Carolina No. 1." No citation was issued.

Thurmond later declared the "whole matter has been blown out of proportion. If I was being pursued I did not know it. As soon as I noticed that a policeman wanted me to pull over, I did so. I ran no red light."

Police Lt. Maurice McDonald noted that members of Congress are exempt from arrest while on official business and said "Sen. Thurmond is satisfied, and so are we."

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP)—Recent heavy rain has caused the cancellation of today's scheduled start of the annual Blue Ridge Wagon Train trek in western North Carolina.

Urges Teaching Go Year-Round

BOONE, N. C. (AP)—Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor says the use of public school teachers and school buildings only nine months a year "should be an affront to the taxpayers."

Taylor urged about 900 teachers at a workshop of the state Trade and Industrial Education Association to help legislators find new ways to finance extended school programs.

He said Monday he realized some teachers have to use some weeks during the summer to improve their education, but that considering teaching only a nine-month job is an obsolete idea.

Arab Specialties Are Popular

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

Most people have at some point sampled shish kebab, that Middle East delicacy that can be traced back to the mountain warriors of the Caucasus who impaled meat on their swords and roasted it to a nice turn over a roaring fire.

But how many have sampled the delights of mihshee warak inab while they toasted their dinner companion with mint tea? It's just one of many succulent specialties of the Arab world that is finally finding favor on Western tables.

It is common knowledge that many of the spices we use today were introduced to the West by Arab traders centuries ago. Not so well known is the fact that many of the staples we consider indispensable were brought back from the Holy Land by the Crusaders in the 11th, 12th and 13th centuries. Knights of the Cross returned from the wars with their saddle packs laden with sesame, rice, millet and most important of all, sugar, which was virtually unknown by Western cooks who had done their sweetening with honey and fruits.

And don't forget the exotic eggplant which fired the imagination of Middle Eastern gourmets many centuries ago when they came from the kitchen dripping with olive oil and seasoned with a variety of spices.

Unfortunately, eggplant had a slow start in the West because some early botanist discovered that it was a distant cousin of the deadly nightshade plant. Dubbed the "mad apple," eggplant was avoided like the plague by all but an enlightened few in Western lands.

In recent years, Middle East fare has come into its own, however, and many students of international cookery rank it as the world's third finest cuisine, after France and China.

A table of appetizers, for instance; often includes up to 30 dishes such as white goat cheese, black olives, iced white onions, pistachio nuts, labani, a yogurt-like cultured milk product, pickled turnips, volcanic peppers and a variety of meat and rice specialties wrapped in grape leaves.

These delicacies are usually accompanied by thin, pliable loaves of Arabic bread. Pieces of it are torn from the loaf, folded to form a scoop and used to convey the various appetizers to the mouth.

One of the tastiest specialties of this ancient land in our opinion is Mihshee Warak Inab or ground lamb, rice and peppercorns wrapped in grape leaves.

MIHSHEE WARAK INAB
1 cup raw rice
1 1/2 pounds ground lamb shoulder
half a dozen lamb bones
1 pound grape leaves juice of three lemons
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon whole peppercorns
1/2 teaspoon all spice

Mix uncooked rice and raw ground lamb in a bowl adding about 6 ounces water, salt, crushed peppercorns and all spice.

Soak grape leaves in warm water about 45 minutes to make them more pliable. Place leaves, greener side down on a board and top it with a heaping teaspoon of the rice and lamb mixture.

Space must be left on both sides of the leaf so they can be tucked in and the whole thing rolled as a package. The roll should be firm but loose enough to allow the rice to swell inside. The wet leaf should hold together during cooking.

Distribute lamb bones on bottom of kettle and cover with several grape leaves. This bed serves to keep the rolls from sticking at the bottom of the kettle. Arrange the rolled leaves in rows on top of each other. Place a medium sized dish atop the rolls to keep them in place and add enough salted water to reach this inverted dish. Cook the preparation over a medium fire for about half an hour. Add the lemon juice to bring out the grape leaf flavor and let dish simmer another 10 minutes.

Serve warm or cold as desired with yogurt or a green salad. Good with a dry white wine. Serves Four.

His Kisses Aren't Up To Standard

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't solve myself and I don't want to ask anyone else for fear of appearing foolish. I'm fairly good looking, clean, have a good job, a late model car, sharp clothes, and I have no trouble getting dates. But when it comes to kissing, I must be doing something wrong because all I get is complaints.

It's gotten to the point where I just skip the kissing and go on to the next step, but I find most girls don't like this.

Can you help me? They say, "practice makes perfect," but I don't get a chance to practice because after I kiss a girl once she doesn't want to kiss me again.

WANTS TO LEARN

DEAR WANTS: Most people learn how to kiss without lessons, but you may need a few. You can't learn to kiss alone—you'll need a girl, so find one you'd like to kiss, and kiss her at the appropriate time. If she complains, ask her what was wrong with the kiss. [There are a variety of "bum" kisses. Too "wet," too dry, too hard, not hard enough, too passionate, not passionate enough, too prolonged, too brief.] If the girl likes you, she won't mind giving you a few pointers to improve your technique. If she doesn't like you that much—find another girl.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is constantly asking whomever he happens to be with to "lend" him a couple of dollars, or a "five." His excuse is that he has to cash a check, and he hasn't anything less than a twenty or a fifty on him. No one doubts him, either, as this man is very well-to-do. [He also never picks up a check when he is by far the one in the crowd who is best able to treat everybody, but that's another problem.]

Abby, this man never makes an effort to repay any of these "emergency" loans, and I for one am fed up with it.

Now why would a man who is worth a fortune want to chisel in this manner? And if you can think of a good way to get my money back, I'd appreciate it.

FED UP

DEAR FED: Don't look for any deep psychological reasons for your friend's behavior. He's just cheap. And the best way I know to get something one has coming to him is to ask for it.

DEAR ABBY: When a girl asks a boy to a "girl-ask-boy" party, is the girl supposed to provide the transportation? We are not old enough to drive, any of us kids, so one of our parents will have to take us and call for us. But whose parents?

UNDER AGE IN WATERLOO

DEAR UNDER AGE: When a girl asks a boy to a party, she's asking him to "escort" her only. The "escort" should provide the transportation. If for some reason, he can't manage it, the girl's parents are next in line.

DEAR ABBY: May I air my gripe in your column? The offenders probably don't even know they are guilty, and it might wake them up.

Whenever I drop a note to someone, asking for a recipe, an address, or some other bit of information which I want, I always enclose a stamped, addressed envelope as a convenience to that person. Also, since I'm the one who is asking for the favor, why should the person of whom I'm

She Accepted Swimming Course

COLOGNE, West Germany (WNS) — Rosa Peffgen, 42, had never swum in her life, but she did not hesitate to dive into deep waters when her eight-year-old son called for help and began to drown. She brought the boy safely to shore, too, then announced, "I don't know how I did it, and I wouldn't like to try it again as a novice." For her courage, she has been offered (and has accepted) a free course of swimming instruction.

Beautiful pictures can be a joy to use and can enhance any room if they are properly located and correctly hung. Limit the number of pictures in any one room, so that each picture will be appreciated for itself and walls won't look over-decorated. A guide is to use no more than one important picture or grouping plus one or two smaller ones in one room. A picture on every wall is not necessary; it is restful to have a few bare walls, and the bare walls lend emphasis to the decorated ones.

Don't hang pictures on just any empty wall with nothing near them; they need furniture for support. The pictures should be close enough to the furniture that they appear to belong together. Keep the size of the picture or group of pictures in scale with the size of the furniture it accompanies. The shape of the picture should harmonize with the shape of the wall space on which it hangs and the shape of the furniture it accompanies.

Pictures should be hung so that the center or center of interest of the picture is at eye level. In most cases, this means the standing eye level of the average adult. However, if the picture will be viewed mainly while sitting, hang the picture low, as in the case of pictures over a desk. Children enjoy the pictures you hang in their room, so don't forget to hang them at their eye level. You can raise the pictures as the children grow.

Hang pictures in relation to architectural lines. If there is more than one picture in a room, all should form an even line at the top, bottom, or centers. The height of furniture and the sizes of the pictures will determine which line is best. Grouped pictures of varying sizes should follow the line of the furniture above which they are hung. If the piece of furniture forms a straight line, keep the bottom of the frames on the same line; if the furniture creates an uneven line, it is better to hang pictures so the tops are on the same line.

Use a piece of paper cut the size of the picture to help determine the best location for the picture in relation to the furniture and other items of the grouping. To find the right spot for the nail or hook, measure from the bottom of the picture to the wire. Mark this point on your paper, then through the paper onto the wall.

Pictures should hang as flat as possible against the wall. In this way they seem like part of the wall and do not throw shadows. The picture won't tip forward if the screw eyes that carry the picture wires are placed within the upper one fourth of the frame. Hang pictures blind, with no wires showing. However, it is sometimes impossible to hang pictures blind because picture hooks cannot be nailed to the wall, or because the picture is too heavy for wall hooks. In these cases, the picture may be hung with two parallel wires from the moulding at the ceiling. Wires should not form a triangle. If wires must show, keep them subordinate to the picture and paint them the same color as the wall. Avoid using heavy cords and tassels; they are decorative but are often more conspicuous than the picture.

The Nation Will Be Watching

It appears that, at long last, a real effort will be made to streamline the postal service so that the mails can be delivered more efficiently.

Both Houses of Congress have approved a bill which will set up an independent publicly owned corporation to be known as the U.S. Postal Service. In so doing Congress was giving up the direct control of the post office which it has maintained since the nation's beginnings.

The bill provides for establishment of the federal agency within a year. The Postal Service will be operated by a nine-man board of governors to be appointed by the president. The board will select a postmaster general and a deputy postmaster.

It is expected that the new board will strive for more efficiency by instituting the use of more automated equipment in moving the mail about the nation. A rate commission will have the power to set postal rates with the approval of the board of governors. This is a major difference from the old way when rates were set by Congress.

It has become obvious to everyone that changes had to be made in the post office department if it were to continue to cope with the ever increasing volume of mail. The new Postal Service, which is sure to become reality when President Nixon signs the bill this week, offers the opportunity to make the needed improvements.

However, just changing the administrative procedure in itself will not be sufficient to do the job. Those charged with the responsibility of running the Postal Service will have to reorganize the system from top to bottom if their work is to be effective. The nation will be watching to see if the increased postal rates, which are sure to come, really mean better postal service.

Starting Gun For Campaigns

By BRYAN HAILSIP
RALEIGH. — Labor Day, the last fling of summer, this year also will be the starting gun for campaigns in North Carolina's Congressional Districts.

Candidates have played it low-key during the vacation season, quietly plotting strategy, building an organization, and keeping alive with mild activity such as occasional civic club appearances and infrequent public pronouncements.

During the final weeks of August they will be lining up workers for the campaign, and gearing for the September-October push looking to the November 3 general election.

It's a time when all candidates can maintain a hopeful but wary posture, watching for any development in their district or on the national scene which might turn to their advantage.

Reports from visitors to Raleigh indicate that, as of now, incumbents are in the driver's seat. The best prospect for an upset appears to be in the Eight District, where Republican first-term Earl B. Ruth of Salisbury is opposed by H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen, former state legislator and House Speaker.

Tight Race in Tenth

Another tight race is shaping up in the Tenth, where former Congressman Basil L. Whitener of Gastonia is challenging Republican James T. Broyhill of Lenoir.

The one incumbent who has absolutely no worry at all is Democrat L.H. Fountain of Tarboro, dean of the delegation. His is the only name on the ballot in the Second District.

Economics and school integration are likely to be the themes given most attention in the races. In both cases, developments over the next few weeks will be all-important.

Democrats can be expected to play on the Republican national administration's inability to lick inflation and pull the economy out of the doldrums, and to link HEW with problems local school units are having with integration plans.

Meanwhile, Republicans are hopeful that an up-turn in the economy will blunt the first issue, and that a calm start for the school year in September will quiet the second.

Wallace Sentiment?

A factor difficult to assess at the moment is the presence of right-wing American party candidates in a couple of races. Gene Leggett of New Bern is carrying the standard in the eastern First District, and Linwood Bullock of Greensboro is the candidate in the Sixth. The vote they get may give some indication of Tar Heel sentiment for a candidate such as Alabama's George Wallace in the 1972 presidential sweepstakes.

A run-down by districts:

First—Democrat Walter B. Jones of Farmville, the incumbent, is favored over R. Frank Everett of Hamilton, Republican, and Leggett, American Party Jones, seeking his third full term, has a conservative political philosophy well-suited to the temper of the district.

Second—Democrat L.H. Fountain, unopposed.

Third—Democrat David N. Henderson of Wallace, going for his fifth term, opposed by Herbert H. Howell of Goldsboro. Howell may run strong, but Henderson has the edge.

Fourth—Democrat Nick Galifianakis of Durham, faces Jack Hawke of Raleigh who is making an aggressive effort. Galifianakis's strength with the Duke and University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill academic communities, plus his record in two previous terms, will stand him in good stead.

Fifth—Republican Wilmer D. Mizell of Winston-Salem has a strong lead on Democratic challenger James G. White of Winston-Salem.

Sixth—Democrat Richardson Preyer is opposed by Republican Clifton B. Barham, Jr., of Reidsville and Linwood Bullock of Greensboro, American Party. No real difficulty is seen for Preyer, barring unforeseen complications.

Seventh—Democrat Alton A. Lennon of Wilmington looks secure against Frederick Weber of Lumber Bridge, a retired U.S. Army colonel and the Republican candidate.

Democrats Best Chance

Eighth—Republican Earl B. Ruth of Salisbury, is after his second term, running against H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen. It's a race to watch. Democrats regard it as their best chance to win.

Ninth—Republican Charles R. Jonas of Lincolnton, dean of the Tar Heel minority in Congress, is opposed by Cy N. Bahakel of Matthews, a broadcaster making his first run for office. Jonas stands strong with the big Mecklenburg vote, and is expected to win.

Tenth—Republican James T. Broyhill of Lenoir is running against Basil L. Whitener of Gastonia, former Congressman. Broyhill is favored as the incumbent, seeking his fifth term, but it could be close.

Eleventh—Democrat Roy A. Taylor of Black Mountain is opposed by Luke Atkinson of West Asheville. He is expected to win a sixth term in Congress.

A Long Term Peace Is More Than Possible

Now that the guns are silent in the Middle East the world has its best chance in many years to begin moving toward peace.

If a lasting settlement can be achieved in the Middle East then there is no reason why something similar cannot be done in Southeast Asia or in other world trouble spots.

There usually can be no prolonged war between smaller nations without support from the world powers. Thus if the super powers wish to cool down the small wars they can do so by limiting their support. This will mean that the smaller nations will be forced to turn to negotiations to settle their differences.

Long term peace is possible and the Middle East truce is a step in that direction.

An Ambitious Team's Work

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The eye-bugging political organization now being put together for Sargent Shriver's "Congressional Leadership For the Future," which aims at fattening Democratic Congressional majorities in the November election, looks suspiciously to some politicians like the forerunner of a 1972 Shriver-for-President organization.

Shriver agreed two months ago, at the request of Democratic members of Congress, to offer his time and talent as a fulltime party campaigner in House and Senate races this fall.

But his just-completed organizational chart, which has been shown to select party leaders, reads like a full-fledged Presidential-style campaign blueprint — surely the most ambitious off-year ad hoc organization ever constructed to help either party win seats in Congress.

With the former U.S. ambassador to France and Kennedy brother-in-law, at the top, the "Congressional Leadership For the Future" organizational chart places Myer (Mike) Feldman, former White House counsel in the Kennedy-Johnson era, and famed Washington lawyer Edward Bennett Williams just under Shriver as vice-chairmen.

Executive director is William H. Crook, a Texan who ran ANTI during Shriver's anti-poverty period. Crook's "executive assistant" is Mark Lynch, formerly with International Volunteer Services (IVS). Crook's "management

Other Editors Say Subsidy Ceiling

(Christian Science Monitor)

Farm subsidies are one of those practices which irritate most Americans who aren't in the agriculture business — and even many who are. The $3 billion a year in direct subsidies for not producing crops, or for making up the difference between what it costs to raise a crop and what it sells for, is a considerable sum. It is being eyed by both houses of Congress and the administration. And at this point, it appears that the end of unlimited subsidies is near.

The Senate has in effect already approved a $20,000 limit, the House a $55,000 limit, and the White House has intimated it could live with anything in between. In any event, it appears there won't be any more subsidies like the $4.4 million one which a California grower got last year.

In principle, we approve of the subsidy limits. The dollars saved by the government would not amount to all that much — $150 million to $250 million for the $20,000 limit, and about $60 million for the $55,000 limit. With the tight federal revenue situation looming, even this amount would be a help. And there is something about paying for unproductivity which thwarts common sense.

But the country shouldn't fool itself about other likely effects of cutting farm subsidies. The agriculture industry in America is troubled by overcapacity. If the large growers, many of them in California, decide to switch from cotton and other heavily subsidized crops to mainline vegetable crops, a number of smaller growers could be forced out of business. This would be regrettable for two reasons. It would further hasten the transition to "Big Farm" or corporation agriculture. And it would likely lead to the conversion of more valuable farmland into housing tracts. With the population of the United States rushing to increase by half again in the next few decades, this farmland perhaps would be better kept in subsidized trust for eventual needs.

Of course, by keeping the subsidy limits between $20,000 and $55,000 the middle-income farmer would still benefit from the direct subsidy. But he won't be saved from the competition of the big grower.

The subsidy ceiling issue isn't a simple one of ending a political giveaway. And yet it is both likely and right that the ceilings be set down anyway.

Case No. 44, brought by the sovereign State of Texas.

In this timeless quiet, it all comes back — the framing of a Constitution, the powers delegated, the powers reserved. This is a part of the seamless fabric of our history, woven here this morning. "In the Supreme Court of the United States," the plea begins, "October term, 1970, State of Texas, plaintiff vs. John N. Mitchell, Attorney General of the United States." The clash of contending powers has begun.

The issue, of course, is the new Voting Rights Act just passed by Congress and signed by the President. The act would extend a right to vote in all elections, federal, state and local, to qualified citizens at age 18. But Texas, "acting pursuant to the powers reposed in it as a sovereign State," has fixed its own minimum age at 21.

And the plaintiff does not propose to see its laws nullified by act of Congress.

Oregon joins Texas. Article II of Oregon's constitution also sets a minimum age of 21. As recently as this past November, the people of Oregon decisively rejected a proposal to lower that age. The power to fix a minimum age for voting has been described by the Supreme Court itself as an "obvious example" of the States' prerogatives. Can the Congress, by simple statute, thus usurp the powers of the States?

Obviously, Congress thinks it can. So far as Congress is concerned, citizens at age 18 have an "inherent constitutional right to vote," a right not to be denied or abridged

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't ope his mail:

How fat are Americans? Well, the body of a very lean man of woman contain 10 to 25 per cent fat, but most Americans are 25 per cent fat and some 50 per cent or more. About 80 per cent of U.S. men are above the weight which statistically, for their height, leads to the greatest longevity.

On the other hand, the heaviest baby of modern times was Turning streets in the business districts of cities into pedestrian malls isn't a 20th century idea. One of the first things Julius Caesar reportedly did when he became the boss of ancient Rome was to ban the daytime use of carts and chariots in the crowded center of the empire's capital.

Stealing, robbing and embezzling have become among America's most profitable industries. Property valued at more than $3.5 billion is now stolen each year—more than $9.5 million every day. Only about 50 per cent is recovered or, in the case of stolen automobiles, about 85 per cent.

Quip: Comedian Flip Wilson says he knows a teen-age girl who has the most frustrating allergy he's ever heard of. She's allergic to telephones.

Troubled waters: You're not safe on the highways and, if you're not careful, you aren't safe on the nation's busy waterways either. In lakes, rivers and coastal waters last year, 4,067 boating accidents took 1,350 lives, caused 1,004 injuries and property losses $6.37 million.

Hot enough for you? Well, last year in 140-mile-long Death Valley, Calif., which has a population of about 50, the air temperature rose above 100 degrees for 126 consecutive days. If you're the thirsty sort, some days there you can measure your consumption of water by the gallon.

It was Samuel Butler who observed, "The public buys its opinions as it buys its meat, or takes in its milk, on the principle that it is cheaper to do this than to keep a cow. So it is, but the milk is more likely to be watered."

Opinions In Brief

Reformists Clashing On Needs

Everyone uses gross national product figures in studying or discussing the state on the economy and the nation. But hardly anyone seems very happy about them.

Not that individuals object so much to rising productivity, although there are a few of those, too. But critics apparently feel that GNP statistics are either inaccurate or reporting the wrong thing.

Housewives' work, for example, is not included in the figures. And any distaffer will tell you, their combined output makes du Pont, GM and all the Standard Oils put together penny-ante operators.

Also excluded are such factors as volunteer work, do-it-yourself home improvement, "service income" from purchased consumer goods, and such intangibles as personal gain through education or the use of public facilities such as libraries and parks.

Negative Side

At the other extreme complainers claim GNP is overstated. Production, according to these critics, often has negative aspects of the argument runs, the net contribution to real product is the difference between the figures, not their sum, or only $750,000.

A third criticism of GNP is on an entirely different plane. GNP, according to some, is meaningless because it should, but does not, reflect the quality of life.

Here the reasoning is that GNP is popularly considered to indicate how well off we are. But contention is that increased GNP in many ways detracts from our lives through excessive noise and dirt, ill health, inconvenience, annoyance, inequities, and what have you.

Reversal Sought

Extremists of this persuasion argue that a rising GNP has a net negative effect and economic expansion should be brought to a screeching halt and reversed, if possible.

These and other criticisms indicate misunderstandings of what GNP is supposed to measure and indicate. GNP was never intended to do more than roughly size up the U.S. economy, show which direction it was going in and, approximately how fast.

Basically, it is an imperfect description of how big the old factory called America is and what rate it is producing at. It is not meant to measure how happy the worker in the factory is with his lot; whether the foreman is getting more than his fair share; if the vice president's kids are making an extra dollar mowing lawns; whether the salesman's wife is mopping the floor or watching TV; or how much cleaner the river outside the plant is upstream than down.

Of course adjustments in GNP reporting criteria and techniques are necessary to be more precise and keep with changing times. But if social, ecological and moral factors are put into the equation then GNP will no longer measure what it was intended to.

SHRINE

The word "shrine" means "a receptacle in which are deposited sacred relics." It is a place or object hallowed from its association with a famous object or person. Around the shrine is always an atmosphere designed to bring persons who enter the shrine perhaps to their knees, but certainly to holy contemplation.

Shrines today have largely come to be associated with churches. But a shrine is more than a church. A shrine is a holy place where something of great value is kept and venerated. Shrines all over the world draw followers into their sacred boundaries. If a shrine does for us what it is supposed to do it lifts our minds, fills us with adoration, brings us perhaps to prayer, but certainly to veneration.

Luxury Cruises Heavily Subsidized By Uncle Sam

PASSENGERS DANCE at a bon voyage party aboard the S. S. Santa Paula, top, before departing New York for a cruise to the Caribbean islands (bottom). (AP Wirephoto)

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is paying as much as $400 per passenger in federal aid to finance luxury cruises aboard ocean liners to such exotic ports as Hong Kong, Tahiti, Jamaica and Bora Bora.

Even a bubbly New Year's Eve party aboard a ship cruising off the California coast is covered by the rich flow of federal aid.

The payments are part of a special subsidy to American passenger ships that has cost taxpayers an estimated $240 million over the past five years. The aid was begun for national defense reasons before World War II. But now, Government records show the only passenger liners benefitting from the payments are 10 cruise ships sailing the South Pacific and the Caribbean.

Congress, fed with plush campaign contributions from both seamen's unions and the shipping industry, moved this year to expand the aid to more cruises. The subsidies go mainly to pay the difference in the higher wages for American seamen as compared to the low-paid crews on foreign ships. The aid can run as high as half the total cost of a cruise ship's voyage. Cruise ships don't even need to go to a foreign port to get the government support. The S.S. President Wilson plans a three-day New Year's Eve "party cruise" off San Francisco this year, and a company official says it will qualify for aid. The ship sailed to Mexico last New Year's Eve.

Shipping officials say that without this federal aid to pay their higher wage costs, they would be priced out of business and the privately owned American fleet would be certain to vanish from the seas.

The aid law makes keeping American ships sailing on overseas shipping routes a goal along with the national defense reasons.

The defense purpose of the payments seems outdated, government officials agree, in an era when a single jumbo jet can carry twice as many troops across the Atlantic in the same week it would take all cruise ships out of New York to cross the ocean.

"I don't know if it's necessary for national defense," concedes a Maritime Administration official. "But it keeps our flag at sea."

The government aid goes to both cargo vessels and the passenger ships. Because they have much larger crews, the passenger liners require much more aid per ship.

About $160 million a year is spent in federal aid for around 250 cargo ships sailing for American firms. Although far outnumbered by cargo ships, passenger liners' aid has amounted to nearly one-third the cargo cost.

The six passenger vessels sailing to the Caribbean and South America for Prudential-Grace Lines out of New York got $11 million in aid last year.

About $7 million went to the President Cleveland and the President Wilson on the Pacific routes out of San Francisco, and $6 million was paid to another set of sister ships, the Monterey and Mariposa, which also said the South Seas.

The aid for these 10 cruise ships may be up this year, but the total spent for passenger liners should be down from the $50 million annual rate to perhaps $30 million because the number of ships has been shrinking. Seven have stopped sailing since 1968.

Congress passed virtually unnoticed this spring the law to ease the aid eligibility for the cruise ships. One section permits them to carry one-way passengers between American ports now without losing aid for doing so.

Ship owners are also giving an airing to a new idea to try to write into the law next year a flat guarantee of enough federal aid to insure that all cruise ships will break even—at the very least.

A source close to the House Merchant marine Committee confirmed congressmen already have been talking informally about such a guarantee.

Key members of the House panel have been among the candidates getting big donations from committees for Seafarers International Union, which gave $500,000 to congressional and national campaigns in 1968.

The union is now under indictment for illegal campaign contributions. In another case, two shipping firms pleaded guilty in San Francisco in February to making illegal campaign contributions.

Wages for American seamen can run four times as high as the pay for foreign crews, a Maritime Administration official said. As a result, well over half of a merchant sailor's pay will come indirectly from the U.S. Treasury.

The government subsidy goes only to make up this difference in wages plus some lesser costs, such as insurance and American shipyard repairs. The liners get no help with fuel, pier fees, management or other costs.

But the wage subsidy for the President Cleveland and the President Wilson still topped half of the ships' total expenses last year, a company official said.

'Black Monday' Called A Myth

HELSINKI (UPI)—The drinking man's "Black Monday" is a myth, says a group of Finnish medical experts. It should be "Black Tuesday," the doctors said.

When special clinics were set up in 1966 to cure hangovers they were all set to handle the heaviest traffic on Monday mornings. But it turned out that Tuesday is the day when the clinics work under heaviest pressure, said a spokesman for the medics.

EVEN 'MADE IN USA' IS MADE IN JAPAN

OITA, Japan (UPI)—On Shikoku, the smallest of Japan's four islands, there is a city named Usa. Its products are marked "Made in USA".

The world's largest lumber-shipment port is Coos Bay, Ore.

Cruise ships like these and the Santa Paula carry large crews, with almost one sailor or steward for every passenger. The Cleveland, for example, carries 390 persons and has 329 crewmen.

The Prudential-Grace Lines, which carries considerable cargo on its cruise runs to pay much of the bills, hopes to break even on its two biggest ships this year. The Monterey and the Mariposa, owned by a subsidiary of Matson Lines, have been making a slight profit.

But the American President Lines reports losses of about $4 million on the Cleveland and Wilson last year. A company official said airline fares put a ceiling on the prices the ships can charge and force the losses despite the federal aid.

by any state. The theory of the act is that when a State limits voting to persons 21 and older, persons of 18, 19, and 20 are denied equal protection of the laws in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.

To many of us, reared in a States' rights school of strict construction, the theory seems absurd. As both Texas and Oregon insist in their briefs, they have applied their 21-year limitations without discrimination. Up to this moment, that is all the Constitution has required.

It is a doctrine as old as the Republic, explicitly stated in the Tenth Amendment, that Congress has no powers beyond those vested in it by the Constitution. The power vested in Congress by the Fourteenth, to enforce that amendment's provisions "by appropriate legislation," is not an unlimited delegation. And what is often overlooked is that the obscure second section of the Fourteenth — the paragraph that almost no one ever reads — expressly fixes 21 as the "appropriate" voting age for Congress to deal with legislatively.

The suits filed by Texas and Oregon go solely to the matter of the minimum age. Another provision of the new Voting Rights Act is almost as important and equally unconstitutional. This provision serves to prohibit literacy tests not merely in Southern States, where such tests once were a device to keep Negroes from voting, but in every State. It has to be asked, where in the Constitution does Congress find power to do that?

Arizona has indicated that it may ask the question in a separate suit defending its power to impose a non-discriminatory literacy requirement. New Hampshire and Wyoming reportedly are considering similar action. Idaho and Vermont might also get into the fight on this issue.

Time is of the essence. The prohibition on literacy tests already has become effective. The extension of the vote to 18-year-olds becomes effective January 1. If the challenged statute is constitutional, the newly franchised voters must be provided an opportunity to register by the end of this year. If the act is unconstitutional, the sooner the high court says so, the better.

And this is peculiarly the Court's duty. "In all cases in which a State shall be party," says the Constitution, "the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction." The battle for a constitutional concept has to be waged here, before nine men at this great bench. It can't begin too soon.

Appropriations Committee. Overall, however, the advisory panels are heavily weighted on the liberal side, with such Kennedy-era names as former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, Pentagon aide Adam Yarmolinsky, and Mary Lasker, a major party contributor. If the Democrats do well in November, the political fallout for Shriver might just equal rewards reaped by Richard M. Nixon's 1966 campaign for Republican Congressional candidates. That was his essential launching pad for the 1968 Presidential nomination. In short, "Congressional Leadership For the Future" could become the nucleus of a 1972 Shriver-for-President operation.

An unpublished portion of the Oliver Quayle poll (which showed Rep. John V. Tunney leading Republican Sen. George Murphy in the California Senatorial race) has distinctly bad news for the onetime song-and-dance man. The poll shows conclusively for the first time how badly Murphy has been hurt by disclosures last June that he had a financial deal with Patrick J. Frawley, Jr., at that time head of Technicolor, Inc.

The deal — now terminated — gave Murphy an annual $20,000 "consultant's fee" from Technicolor, together with one-half the rent of his high-cost Washington apartment and generous use of credit cards, including an air travel card. Of the California voters sampled in the Quayle poll, 52 percent "disapproved" of this Murphy-Frawley financial link, of whom 48 percent said they felt "very strongly" about it. Tunney has made little effort to exploit this chink in Murphy's armor for the simple reason that Murphy's Republican primary opponent, millionaire Norton Simon, made it a central issue. Only 19 percent said they did not know enough about the matter to have an opinion — and 29 percent said they approved of the payments to Murphy.

The Omaha Indians were close allies of the Pawnee and fought beside them in battles against the Sioux and Cheyenne.

Making money off of us is a snap. There's no risk, no worry, no gamble. All you need is a little patience. And the more you have, the more money you make.

The no-time-at-all wait. Keep your money in a Planters regular passbook, available to you at any time, and we still pay 4½%. Then we compound the daily interest every month, to give you more interest.

The 30-to-364 day wait. Put your money in Planters single maturity savings instruments for that time period, and take us for 5%.

The 1-year-but-less-than-2 wait. Same plan, but you get 5½% for your patience.

The more-than-2-year wait. Hang in there, and collect 5¾% for your patience. On multiple maturity savings instruments of less than $100,000, there's a little different time span. 30 to 89 days, collect 4½%. Or if you can wait from 90 to 364 days, take 5%. One year, but less than 2 earns 5½%. And it's very little trouble to wait 2 years or over, for 5¾%.

Everything comes to he who waits. Including lots of interest. Even 6½ or 7½%, on $100,000 or more. It's negotiable. So think about it. Saving at Planters is the easiest way we know of to make money. All you have to do is wait.

And while you're waiting, think these pleasant thoughts: Planters National Bank pays the highest rate permitted under Federal Reserve regulations.

No insured full-service bank pays a higher rate. However, we do pay more than many banks... more, in fact than most banks.

For instance, few financial institutions compound regular passbook savings monthly. But we do. This pays extra money to savers. Plus the Daily Interest method of interest computation!

On the popular Golden Passbook, interest is compounded daily, to yield a liberal 5.127% annually. So again, PNB Golden Passbook savers enjoy extra earning power not available at most institutions.

We'll be glad to discuss your savings goals in detail. But at least now you know why we keep saying: We want to help you save money.

WE'VE GOT THE MONEY, HONEY, IF YOU'VE GOT THE TIME.

Many Different Types Of Alcoholics Involved

"There are many different types of alcoholics and we cannot and should not attempt to treat them alike," Dr. Jack Blackley told representatives of the Eastern Regional School of Alcohol Studies here this morning.

Dr. Blackley, who is deputy commissioner on alcoholism of the North Carolina Department of Mental Health, talked about

"Behavior of the Alcoholic." Expanding on his thought that alcoholics are not of one personality type, he said, "There are persons who have difficulties with the abuse of alcohol who are mentally retarded, some who have had severe emotional illness (schizophrenia, manic depressive, and psychotic depressive), those in later stages of alcoholism, the elderly who have chronic brain syn-

Says Killing Was Revenge
NEW HAVEN (AP) — The second of the two Black Panthers who have admitted they joined in killing Alex Rackley was scheduled to return today to the witness stand in the kidnaping trial of Lennie McClucas of Wade, N.C.
George Sams Jr., who has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder, closed out the fourth week of testimony in the trial Friday with harsh words about the entire Panther party and with an indication of his differences with national chairman Bobby G. Seale.
McClucas is the first of eight defendants, including Seale, to come to trial in the case. He is charged with kidnaping and conspiracy stemming from May 1969 shooting death of Rackley, a novice New York City Panther.

dromes, neurotic abusers, and those who have character disorders or some personality defects.

He recommended more screening from the psychological, medical and sociological standpoint in order for professionals to better deal with the alcoholic. Once in-patient care is completed, he stressed the need for active followup care in the community including treatment, education, and counseling.

"After treatment," he said, "the patient may enhance his chance for recovery by association with some personal group who will accept him without judging his action or blaming him for his condition. An understanding family, a minister or physician, a trained counselor or mental health clinic, Alcoholic Anonymous, or a combination of these may provide this essential fellowship."

A Hamlet native, Dr. Blackley is a former assistant superintendent of John Umstead Hospital in Butler and a former medical director of the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center at Butler.

The Eastern Regional School of Alcohol Studies is being conducted this week at East Carolina University under the direction of Harry Campbell, director of the mental health training institute at East Carolina University, and Howard Dawkins, coordinator of the Eastern Regional Alcoholism Program.

Dawkins said, "The School is planned to meet the needs of professionals and non-professionals who are seeking better methods of working with problems related to alcohol, alcoholism, and drug abuse. Workshops for workers in mental health, public health, law enforcement, corrections, social service, probation, the judiciary, the clergy, teaching, and medicine and professionals in the field of alcoholic treatment from a particular area will be a key part of the six-day school. Hopefully a network of alcoholism services at the community, regional, and state levels will be the result."

"Other objectives are to inform participants of alcoholism and drug activities on a national level and to stimulate participants to make practical applications of insights and knowledge gained in their own community situations," he said.

All Of ECU Nursing School Grads Passed State Exam

By FRANCEINE PERRY
All June graduates of the East Carolina University School of Nursing who took the North Carolina state board examinations for nurses have passed the exams. This is the second time that the ECU nursing school has scored a perfect passing record.
According to ECU Dean of Nursing, Evelyn L. Perry, the results, released Monday, indicate that the 35 graduate nurses from East Carolina passed and are qualified to practice nursing in North Carolina.

The five-part examination was administered in June.
The North Carolina State Board Examination for Registered Nurses is the same test used in all states to qualify nurses. Passing the North Carolina examination entitles a nurse to receive a license to practice which is transferable to any other state.

"We are particularly proud of our student nurses for two reasons," said Dean Perry. "Our school's average score is well above the national and statewide average, as in our passing rate."
She added that East Carolina's high performance record on the examinations is especially remarkable since the entrance requirements for the ECU School of Nursing enable average students as well as superior students to be accepted.

The East Carolina University School of Nursing is accredited by the National League for Nursing and the North Carolina Board of Nursing. It offers a program leading to the B.S. in Nursing degree and prepares student nurses for admission to advance degree programs or for practice of professional nursing in the hospital, home, health department and other health agencies.
Practical nursing experience is provided through contractual agreements with eight hospitals and agencies and with various local physicians.

Will Question Disposal Method

The advisability of the disposal method, the selection of the dump site, and other factors related to the transport of nerve gas now en route to Sunny Point will be questioned by Dr. James H. Bearden, vice chairman of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Economics and Environment, tomorrow at 10 a.m.
Dr. Bearden, who is Dean of the School of Business at East Carolina University, will make the statement at a meeting of the Advisory Committee in Raleigh. He has asked Committee Chairman Roy Sowers for 20 minutes presentation time.

Enemy Buildup Bombed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers attempted today to scatter North Vietnamese troops reported massing for an attack on a South Vietnamese artillery and patrol base near the northwest frontier with Laos.

Twenty of the big bombers unloaded 600 tons of bombs on enemy bunkers, base camps and staging areas within three miles of Fire Base O'Reilly, one of five allied bases set up in the area to block an enemy advance into the populous coastal lowlands 20 miles to the east. Tactical fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships flew through anti-aircraft fire to pound North Vietnamese positions closer to the base.

Associated Press correspondent Willis Johnson reported from O'Reilly that despite the heavy air strikes, enemy gunners were still firing mortars into the base.

North Vietnamese infantrymen struck a few hours before dawn with machine guns, grenades and flame throwers, attacking government troops in night bivouac half a mile south of the base. Maj. Nguyen Van, commander of the base, said 15 North Vietnamese and one South Vietnamese were killed and four government troops were wounded.

Officers said at least seven South Vietnamese have been killed and 45 wounded in three days of fighting around O'Reilly. Most of them were in patrols operating from the base.

The regimental commander, Col. Nguyen Van Diem, estimated more than 200 enemy killed by air and artillery in the three days of fighting, and said about 50 more had been killed by South Vietnamese infantrymen.

A sixth base, Ripcord, was abandoned by paratroopers of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division last July 23 after North Vietnamese troops killed 61 paratroopers and wounded 345 in a three-week siege.
O'Reilly, a former 101st Airborne base reopened by the South Vietnamese 1st Division last March, sits on a 1,500-foot ridge less than five miles north of Ripcord. It is north of the A Shau valley and 12 miles from the Laotian border.

Maj. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, 1st Division commander, said elements of three North Vietnamese regiments had moved into the region from Laos. He predicted "an all-out effort to get O'Reilly."
More than 1,000 enemy troops have been reported within a mile of the base, and U.S. Air Force and Marine fighter-bombers have been pounding them for three days.

'DUMPING' OPPOSED
WASHINGTON (AP) —Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., called today for national and international measures to prohibit garbage dumping in oceans.

Require Permit Dump Wastes

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The Corps of Engineers says it will require industries to obtain permits before depositing waste into any navigable stream or its tributaries, a move in compliance with the Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and the Water Quality Improvement Act of 1970.

Georgia and South Carolina have closed to fishing 180 miles of the Savannah River because of mercury contamination.

Makes Instruments And Own Music

By SUSAN TEBBE
BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — Ranch hand Larry Larson makes his own music—and his own musical instruments.
Larson, who lives on a farm west of here, knows of musicians who might pay as much as a $500 for a mandolin. Not Larson. He made his own from a discarded tea kettle. He once made a fiddle from an old tin frying pan.

The lanky 33-year-old musician likes working with his hands, but hasn't had any technical training. "I just do it," he said.
Larson has played the guitar since high school, but didn't get the idea of making his own instruments until a few years ago when he was attending a fiddlers' jam session. Some northern Montana musicians showed him instruments they made themselves, and the idea appealed to Larson.

"I'm just like my daddy," he said. "He'd go to town to buy some sort of tool, and he wouldn't be home a day before he's modified it somehow to fit another need."
Odds and Ends
In his occupation as a ranch hand, Larson doesn't have any trouble finding old odds and ends for his instruments. He says there are lots of abandoned farm sites where household goods have been tossed into a cellar or an old shed as junk.

One of his most interesting instruments is a fiddle made of a horn from a Hereford bull. He says the horn has a good sound, but needs an amplifier. He hopes to pick up a Mexican steer horn, which is longer and thinner, and Larson says will probably produce a better sound.

One of Larson's favorite instrument is his bass guitar. The lid from an old fashioned oblong wash boiler forms the top. Larson likes the tone.
"I've played wooden guitars that didn't sound as good as this," he said.
Larson and his wife LaLonie, who also has a knack for music, travel around the state to attend jam sessions featuring country music.

Cholera Gaining In Soviet Union

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Fears mounted today that a cholera epidemic might spread over the Soviet Union despite newspaper assurances that it had been limited to the Astrakhan region.
Astrakhan, a major industrial city 800 miles southeast of Moscow, was the first to report the cholera outbreak last week. The labor newspaper Trud said that "owing to energetic measures, the hotbed of diseases has been localized there."

The paper did not explain why Soviet authorities imposed quarantines and travel restriction on 11 major cities from southern Georgia to the western Ukraine. Nor did it say how many cases of cholera had actually been treated or whether there had been any deaths. Residents of Moscow who contacted relatives on holiday in the south reported near panic conditions in summer resort areas on eastern shores of Black Sea and Crimean Peninsula.
They said thousands of vacationers trying to leave the quarantined cities were being refused airline and rail tickets. Newspapers continued to blame travelers from other parts of Asia for bringing cholera into the Soviet Union.

They warned all citizens that water, unwashed vegetables, flies and "dirty hands favor intensive spreading cholera."

Similar warnings which mentioned only "intestinal diseases" have appeared in Moscow's markets, sparking rumors that the disease had already infected the Soviet capital.
Asked how many cases of cholera had been discovered, the Soviet foreign ministry press department replied: "We have nothing to say on this."

In Geneva, the World Health Organization (WHO) said there was little danger of the cholera epidemic appearing in western Europe.
A WHO spokesman told newsmen that Soviet authorities seem to be taking all necessary measures against the disease and therefore there was "absolutely no reason why it should spread."

Sirens To Howl If Air Smoggy

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Riverside County supervisors have decided on sirens to impress on citizens' ears what they eyes and lungs will know already — the air is smoggy.
Supervisors voted Monday to use sirens in Riverside as a smog-alert experiment. The sirens will howl when the amount of ozone reaches .35 parts per million of air and will alert citizens to avoid strenuous activity that would increase their breathing.
Smog has reached the alert stage 16 times since June 4.

Fire Destroys Studio Sets

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — A three-alarm fire destroyed sets for the television series "The Partridge Family" and "Young Rebels" and badly damaged two others at Columbia Ranch Studio, officials said.
A studio spokesman said there was no immediate estimate of the loss Monday night when flames raged through the false-front structures. There were no injuries.
He said production of "The Partridge Family" and "Young Rebels," both planned for viewing this fall, will not be interrupted.

Lost Mail Sack Checks Found

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — A mail sack full of 2,200 Social Security checks lost last week has turned up finally, but no one knows where it was lost.
The checks, totaling $191,400, were supposed to be delivered to their owners Monday, Aug. 3, but were not received at the Independence Post Office.
The U.S. Treasury Department wrote a new batch of checks and they were delivered. Then the first sack was found and the checks sent back to Washington.

Paris Replacing Its Open Buses

PARIS (AP) — Those Paris buses with the open platforms at the rear are coming to the end of their run.

Car Runs Into Navy Gunboat

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — Margaret Mejia rammed a Navy gunboat with her car.
Mrs. Mejia, 58, lost control of the car Monday and ran over a dockside curb. Navy officials said. The auto's front wheels landed on the bow of the USS Tacoma and had to be lifted off by a crane. Mrs. Mejia escaped injury.

Soviet Launch

The official news agency said Cosmos 356 carried scientific equipment which was working normally. The first Cosmos was launched March 16, 1962.

Summit Session

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin "very probably" will attend the U.N. General Assembly's 25th anniversary session this fall, an authoritative U.N. source said today.
The assembly will mark its first quarter century during the three-month annual session that starts Sept. 15. Heads of state and government of all 126 member countries have been invited to speak either during the general debate Sept. 17-Oct. 2 or at a special commemorative session to be held Oct. 19-24.
Oct. 24, 1945 is the date the U.N. charter took effect.
The U.S. delegation has reserved places on the speakers' lists for the first day of the general debate and for the last day of the commemorative session. There are indications that Nixon might prefer the earlier date.
The Soviet delegation has also reserved places on both lists. If Kosygin shows up, it probably will be for the commemorative session.
The fact that a country is on the speakers' list does not necessarily mean a top leader will attend. Among those who have announced or indicated that they will appear are the presidents of Cameroon, the Central African Republic, Tanzania, Upper Volta, Cyprus and Finland; the chancellor of Austria, and the prime ministers of Afghanistan, Austria, Britain, Japan, Jamaica, Lesotho, Malta, Mauritius and Senegal.

Have you blown any fuses lately? I'm not referring to a state of mind. I'm inquiring about the electrical circuits in your home.
This is probably an area in the home that demands and unfortunately gets the least attention. If we walk into a darkened room, snap the switch and the light goes on, we assume all is well. We have been going through the same motions for years — and for years, the wiring in our home and the utility company has rendered faithful service.
Have you ever considered the number of changes that have taken place over the years? Have you thought of the added load put on the wiring over a period of time?
It is estimated that a house that is over 20 years old is underwired. It doesn't have a sufficient number of circuits to supply the needs of all the new appliances that are on the market.
If you are blowing fuses frequently, your home is suffering from Electrical Malnutrition and you should have your illness diagnosed by a licensed electrician.
A fuse, as you know, is an electrical safety valve. It is designed to blow out when you attempt to get more energy through the circuit than it is capable of carrying safely.
Over a period of time, the average home has added such items as radios (plural) — one or more TV sets, toasters, broilers, air conditioners, washers and driers. As a matter of fact, just about every appliance designed for our creature comfort is operated by electricity.
Aside from the potential hazards that exist, a house that is underwired is a source of added expense. Appliances do not operate efficiently. All of them might be operating but they are not doing the job they were designed to do. Consequently, we are paying more and receiving less.
Rewiring is not a do-it-yourself job. Attempts to do so could void your insurance coverage. Most areas have electrical codes with definite specifications that have to be followed. A licensed electrician can give you an estimate of the cost and the improvement can be financed by your bank.
Many homeowners have had little reason to employ the services of an electrician. As a result, they are reluctant to engage just anybody. If that is your reason for not updating your house wiring, stop in at your bank and inquire about a reputable contractor. They will be pleased to supply the names of several reliable firms.

Crampton, Believing In The U.S., One Of Favorites In PGA

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Bruce Crampton was waiting for his luggage at an airport, watching a series of conveyor belts snaking through, under and around walls and corridors.

"Do you think it will work?" a companion asked, looking skeptically at the arrangement designed to deliver the bags.

"I've got to believe in it," replied Crampton. "I'm at their mercy now."

Then he smiled and added: "If it's in this country, I'll believe in it. If you people can't make it work, it won't work. This is the greatest country in the world. If you can't believe in this country, everyone is in trouble."

Crampton, a 34-year-old native of Australia, had just arrived for the $200,000 PGA National Championship that starts Thursday on the 6,962-yard, par-70 Southern Hills Country Club course.

The soft-spoken veteran of 14 years on the tough American tour and one of the game's most consistent performers will be one of the top candidates for the $40,000 first prize in this, the last of the four major championships offered annually.

His credentials are impressive. He won the rich Winchester Classic two weeks ago, finished second in the American Golf Classic last week and teamed with Orville Moody for second in the National Four-Ball three weeks ago.

That's a victory and two seconds in three starts, second only in recent showings to Jack Nicklaus. His $50,000 first prize at Westchester boosted him to his third consecutive $100,000 season and made him, with Gary Player, the only foreigners to reach $500,000 in a career on the American tour.

"If I'd won $50,000 when I'd first come over here, I think I'd have just turned around and gone home," said Crampton, who now lives with his wife and son in Dallas. "At that time you could just about retire on $50,000."

Crampton, a native of Sydney, came to the United States in 1957 as a 20-year-old, a two-year professional and the recent winner of the Australian Open.

"I'd been invited over to play in the Masters," Crampton recalled, "and I came over early to play in some tournaments. The first one was Houston and I won about $700. Arnold Palmer won the tournament. The first prize was about $6,000. They came out with a big silver cup to present him and it was full of money.

"I looked at it and my eyes bugged out to here. I didn't know there was that much money in the world. I decided then that this is the place for me."

Since making that decision, he has won nine tour titles and more than $540,000, ranking ninth on the all-time list. Even though he's a steady performer, he's a relative unknown to the average fan, when ranked along side some of the giants of the game.

"That's one reason I'm glad I won Westchester," said the modest man who doesn't mix much with other players on the tour.

"It was a big, important tournament. Now when I enter a tournament, maybe I'll be an asset to the promoters, to the sponsors. I want to play a lot to help them. I want to put something back in this game."

Although now a factor to be reckoned with everytime he enters a tournament, it hasn't always been easy for Crampton.

"When I came to this country," he said, "the restrictions on currency at home were such that you could only take $2,500 American out."

"So I came over to play with only $2,500 and it wasn't that much even at that time."

He said it takes hard work over a long stretch to make it.

"The players on the American tour are the best in the world. You've got to stay at it. (Bruce) Devlin found that out when he tried to go home a couple of times each year. You can't do it. There's a young player who was over here for a year who turned tail and ran. You can't do that. You've got to stay here."

"I think Tony Jacklin (the young Englishman who recently won the U.S. Open) will find that out. I don't think he can commute between here and England."

Clay Seeking Canadian Trip

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The U. S. Attorney's office in Houston said it will oppose a request made by Cassius Clay to the U. S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals that the ex-heavyweight boxing champ be allowed to fight in Canada.

Clay is asking for permission to fight in the Maple Leaf exhibition at Toronto Oct. 18.

The U. S. attorney for the Southern District of Texas, Anthony J. Farris, said Clay's latest appeal is based on the U. S. Seventh Circuit Court ruling that Abbie Hoffman be allowed to go to Cuba.

Hoffman was convicted in the Chicago seven conspiracy trial and his appeal is before the Seventh Circuit court.

That court has allowed him almost a month to do research on a story on youth culture in Cuba for a Havana magazine, the WBA.

Bruneau, in his presidential report, told the meeting that while the sport is suffering in North America, "it is doing better than it ever did in the rest of the world."

Clay's petition stated.

The petition stated the only difference in the two men's situation — both appealing their convictions — is that Hoffman is white and Clay is black.

Clay was convicted in federal court in Houston in 1968 for refusing induction into the armed forces on the grounds he was a Black Muslim minister.

He won a new trial, claiming wiretapping of his conversations by the FBI was used against him illegally at his trial.

U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham, who presided over the first trial, ruled that the wiretaps had not been damaging to the exchange.

WBA Studying Pension Plan

MONTREAL (AP) — A proposal to establish a pension plan for professional boxers is under study by the World Boxing Association.

The organization is holding its annual meeting here.

The WBA was asked Monday by Van Nixon, secretary of the Washington, D.C., Boxing Commission to establish a pension fund and make it available for any veteran of 25 pro fights once he becomes 55.

"We are the only sport that doesn't take care of its own," Nixon said.

He was supported by David Ott of Cleveland, chairman of the Ohio Boxing Commission, who presented the results of a three month study which he said demonstrated such a move was feasible.

WBA President Emile Bruneau of New Orleans also backed the proposal, saying a pension "would be the greatest thing we could give boxing."

A committee was appointed to draft a format for a pension plan and will make its report Wednesday, last day of the meeting.

Delegates from at least 10 countries, including Canada and the United States, are attending the three-day conference to discuss ratings, organizational problems and ways to put boxing back on its feet, especially in North America.

Nixon said a pension plan was a necessity, considering the number of "scrambled fighters" who were left physically and financially ruined after their careers in the ring.

A plan has been proposed at WBA meetings before, Ott said, but "if we really care about any of these guys we must do something now."

Earlier Monday, the association amended its membership restrictions to allow state and provincial boxing commissions outside the United States to join the WBA.

Bruneau, in his presidential report, told the meeting that while the sport is suffering in North America, "it is doing better than it ever did in the rest of the world."

Cobb, Daniels In Fine Hurling Efforts; Lee On Hitting Spree

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — Greenville's Babe Ruth All-Stars rode the pitching arms of Stanley Cobb and J. C. Daniels and the strong hitting of Bill Lee to a pair of victories yesterday.

Greenville rolled past sister-city Greenville, South Carolina, 9-0, then came back to down Huntsville, Ala., 7-1, in the second game of the regional Babe Ruth Tournament in Huntsville.

Cobb hurled a two-hitter at South Carolina, and Daniels turned around to come up with a one-hitter for Alabama.

Lee unleashed two homers in the second game and finished out the afternoon with seven hits in eight trips to the plate. He accounted for nine runs batted in during the two games.

Greenville now faces Nashville, Tennessee, in the battle of the unbeaten today. That game is scheduled for 7 p.m. tonight. Should Greenville win, it will propel them into the finals on Friday night. The two teams are the only ones who have not yet posted a loss in the double elimination tournament.

Greenville opened the first game with a run in the opening inning and was never in any danger after that. Johnny Barwick led off with a single and Lee started off his run production with a double to centerfield, scoring Barwick for a 1-0 lead.

In the third, Greenville came up with three more runs. Barwick singled to left and Lee got a hit in the same place. Daniels followed with a double into center, scoring Barwick. A passed ball let Lee scamper home, but Daniels was cut down trying to make it on the same play. David Clifton then walked, and when the ball was errored an attempted pickoff play, he scampered the rest of the way home to make it 4-0.

Two more crossed in the fifth. Daniels singled into right and stole second. Cobb ripped a single to right, scoring Daniels, and Cobb came home on an error on Wayne Bailey's grounder.

Greenville wasn't through yet, and picked up two more in the sixth. Herb Wilkerson reached on a fielder's choice and Barwick singled. Both moved up on a passed ball and Lee cracked out a single to left, scoring both runners.

The final run came in the seventh. Harding Sugg reached on an error and took second on a passed ball. Robert Carraway singled and an error on the play let Sugg come across.

In tossing his two-hitter, Cobb struck out eight and walked one. Both of the hits against him came back to back, but did no damage. The first hitter was thrown out trying to steal, and Cobb neatly picked off the second before he even realized the play was being made on him.

There was nothing for Daniels to do but to continue his fine hurling that helped Greenville make the regionals. He gave up only one hit, a bunt single to the first batter he faced. Three others reached on walks and he struck out five.

Lee opened the scoring in the game, cracking out a homer to center in the first inning.

Alabama came right back to tie it up in the bottom of the inning, however. Keith Rosenbloom led off with his bunt single and was sacrificed to second. He stole third, and then came home when a pickoff play was errored.

It stayed a 1-1 deadlock until the fifth inning when Lee again took charge. Wilkerson had reached when his line drive to center was dropped. Barwick singled to right, putting two on. Lee then slammed one down the left field line out of the park for his second homer of the game, driving in three runs and giving Greenville a 4-1 lead.

Three more Greenville runs came over in the sixth. David Clifton led off, reaching on an error and Bailey singled to center. Sugg hit a high to left, loading the bases, and Wilkerson walked, scoring Clifton. Lee then obliged with a single to left, scoring both Bailey and Sugg with the final two runs.

The tournament continues today with three games slated prior to the Greenville contest. Each of those games will eliminate the loser, with the winner advancing to another round.

The eventual winner of the tournament will advance to the National Tournament, to be played August 21-29 at Brawley, Calif.

Kinston Takes Swimming Meet

Saturday, at the Minges Coliseum Pool, a large and talented Kinston swimming team completed an undefeated season by overwhelming a combined Raynez - Wilmington team 330 to 124. The Kinston swimmers outnumbered their opponents, especially in the older age groups.

Jane Elam, in 15 - 17 girls category, was the outstanding scorer for the Raynez contingent, but was the only member over age twelve to score more than one point for the local club. Greenville fans were encouraged, however, by the number and quality of young swimmers on the team.

Winning times recorded for the Raynez blue ribbon takers were: Jane Elam (freestyle 1:04.1, backstroke 1:19.1 and butterfly 1:21.2) all three for 50 yards distance. Janet Gantt (:34.2 in 50 yard freestyle). Don McGlohon (:17.3 in freestyle and :21.3 in breaststroke, both for 25 yards). Kevin Richards (:22.2 in the 25 - yard butterfly).

The Raynez - Wilmington combination team won four relay races, which netted them 7 points each race. Raynez swimmers taking part in these victories were:

In boys 8 & under freestyle relay: D. McGlohon, J. Shelton and B. Dawson; In boys 8 & under medley relay: D. McGlohon (backstroke), J. Shelton (breaststroke) and K. Richards (butterfly).

In boys 9-10 freestyle relay: K. Topper and J. Richards.

In girls 9-10 freestyle relay: C. Collie, G. Gantt and S. Tucker.

Several members of the Raynez groups who finished no higher than 4th place nevertheless swam well, and in some cases nearly scored in several races, as follows:

4th place winners: Cathy Collie in three races for 9-10 girls (free, back and breaststroke), Don Tucker in three races for 11-12 boys (also free, back and breaststroke), Margaret McGlohon in 9-10 girls backstroke, and Tom Johnson in 9-10 boys breaststroke.

5th place winners: Michel Tucker (8 & under boys breaststroke) and Tom Adams (15-17 boys breaststroke).

6th place winners: Keila McGlohon (in both backstroke and breaststroke for 11-12 girls).

7th place winner: Selena Wheelless (11-12 girls freestyle).

Almost Impossible To Compare Golf Today With Thirty Years Ago: Sarazen

Lights Go On, Bucs Go Out, Mets Go Off

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Gene Sarazen, one of four men who have won the Big Four titles in golf, finds it difficult to compare today's game with that of 30 and 40 years ago.

"They're not aware that nature can come in and knock them out. That's why so many of our courses turn into swamps when it rains.

"It's almost impossible to compare golf today with that of yesteryear," Sarazen said in a break during his visit to the Twin Cities and Hazeltine National Golf Club, site of the 1970 U.S. Open in June.

"When they say they have a course 7,000 yards long, they're lying. It's more like 8,500 yards. Because when you overwater a course, you're losing 30 to 40 yards a shot."

Sarazen, 68, figures that today's professionals are better players. "No doubt about it," he said. "They are great players. Terrific power players. Jack Nicklaus is the most powerful hitter in the history of golf. He's the first guy I've seen win the British Open without putting well. He didn't need to worry about his two putts.

'Ball Four' Author Calls Last Strike

By JOHN HOTARD
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Pitcher Jim Bouton, author of the controversial book, "Ball Four," has called his own third strike.

Bouton had pitched and lost two games for Oklahoma City, where the Houston Astros sent him July 31.

Meanwhile, the 31-year-old pitcher plans to see if he can make it in the semipro, indicating he will play for the Ridge-wood Paramus Barons near his home in Wyckoff, N.J.

Tony Jacklin won the Open June 21 by seven strokes over Dave Hill, who criticized the many doglegs on the course and said all it needed was 80 acres of corn and some cows. The comments resulted in a $150 fine.

"I've been playing golf for 50 years and I am the most critical man in the world when it comes to architecture of a golf course," Sarazen said. "I'm not capable of designing a golf course. But I can sure put the lipstick on it."

After a fire broke out in the vicinity of the stadium, power lines controlling the lights were shut off as a precautionary measure as the Pirates trotted onto the field for the start of the game.

Death Claims
By TED MEIER

NEW YORK (AP) — The passing of Joe Lapchick leaves Nat Holman and Henry "Dutch" Dehnert as the only survivors of the Original Celtics, the team which dominated pro basketball nearly half a century ago in the 1920s.

The Big Indian, as Lapchick was known, was inducted into basketball's Hall of Fame in 1967 two years after his retirement as coach at St. John's University after his underdog Redmen had won the National Invitation Tournament for a record fourth time.

Grass Courts Disappearing

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — It's a shame, Gene Scott said today, that America's amateur grass court tennis circuit is down to just one tournament, the U.S. Championships.

Scott, seeded second, is the only former Meadow Club invitation winner in the championship field this year. He won in 1964 and on Monday he advanced by defeating Rick Fisher, a Stanford player, 9-7, 6-3 after Fisher was serving at 5-4 for the first set.

He is technically under suspension until the retirement is official. Houston Manager Harry Walker said when the book came out this year that Bouton's pitching might suffer because he would be having interviews while on the road.

MIAMI (AP) — Shave the natty mustache and he's a double for older brother Cassius. Check the hotel register and he's the Rahaman Ali. Boxing placards at Miami Beach Auditorium tell you the man is Rudolph Valentino Clay.

He has drawn no fines from the Astros, although some consider the book critical of Richardson and Walker. He was called in for a conference with Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

When the lights came back on, the Pirates quickly set Seaver back, scoring twice with the help of three walks and Al Oliver's double.

He had started coaching at St. John's in 1936 and after 11 years, went to the New York Knicks of the pro NBA. He had the Knicks in the championship playoff finals for three straight years in 1951-53. He returned to St. John's in 1956. Altogether his record at St. John's was 335 won, 129 lost. With Knicks, his won-lost record was 300-222.

Pacifist Minister Is On Draft Board

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — A 44-year-old Methodist minister who opposes the draft and says he is a pacifist is the newest member of this Northern California city's draft board.

But the Rev. John V. Albright says he will vote to send youths into uniform if they don't meet the legal standards for conscientious objectors.

"I plan to give the widest possible latitude to conscience," says the minister, "but I'm going to uphold the law to the best of my knowledge."

The Rev. Mr. Albright says he became a conscientious objector as a result of his Army experiences shortly after World War II with the American occupation troops in Japan.

He says he has counseled young men in his church who are conscientious objectors, "but I have never counseled anyone to become a conscientious objector—that's something he has to work out for himself."

Asked how he would deal with a youth who objects to the Indochina war but doesn't fit the legal definition of a conscientious objector, the minister said: "I think his objection is valid, but I think as far as the law is concerned, we have no choice but to say he doesn't qualify as a conscientious objector."

The Rev. Mr. Albright was nominated to the five-man board by Shasta County Superior Court Judge Richard W. Abe.

"There's room on the board for all points of view," the judge said.

The Rev. Mr. Albright, father of five children, is pastor of the United Methodist church in Redding, a 12,000-resident mountain town.

Worry Clinic

Guest Shaken By A Pet Ape

A shocking reception greeted Mr. X when he stepped at our summer home in Indiana. We don't know his name nor what he wanted, for "Sweet Pea" interrupted Mrs. Crane's visit with Mr. X and may have started him so badly he decided to head straight back to his home in Tennessee.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.D.

CASE N-593: Sweet Pea, aged 2, is the gibbon which our son Daniel brought back from Thailand after serving with the Dental Corps over there.

Gibbons belong to the ape family so they do not have tails. The gorilla, baboon, chimpanzee, orangutan and gibbon are all apes.

But the gibbons differ in two ways from the others. First, they run upright, like a man, and by preference.

And they are the most agile tree performers, often jumping as much as 30 to 40 feet from one tree top to another.

Sweet Pea has become a family pet and in good weather we let her loose in the trees behind our farm home in Indiana.

She sometimes drops down on my shoulders, without any warning, and invariably I am startled when she does so.

Therefore, please consider the shock to a dignified visitor from Tennessee who stopped at our Indiana farm home.

He came around to the back door and knocked. Now please conjure up in your mind the possible apprehension that he already felt, for many folks wonder about psychiatrists and even hesitate to meet them in a medical office. So maybe this distinguished visitor had some trepidation about calling at my home.

When Mrs. Crane met him at the door, he asked for me. "Dr. Crane isn't here," she replied, "but you can find him at the newspaper office in the next town."

Maybe the visitor surmised she was a mental patient in my private sanitarium, for her very next words must have sounded crazy!

"Don't be alarmed," Mrs. Crane suddenly cautioned him, "but a small ape is creeping up behind you!"

Well, imagine his frame of mind, for who ever heard of a wild ape running free in North America!

He may thus have wondered if Mrs. Crane was a psychotic patient! But she had seen Sweet Pea silently swinging through the trees toward the back door.

Sure enough, hardly had Mrs. Crane's warning been uttered, when Sweet Pea dropped upon the visitor's shoulder.

Well, he never even moved! I marvel at his stoicism for even when I know Sweet Pea is in the trees, she still gives me a start whenever she unexpectedly drops upon my back.

Alas, Mr. X never arrived at my office at the nearby newspaper building! So we have teased Mrs. Crane about scaring him off till he decided to head straight back to Tennessee.

So I offer this blanket apology to all you thousands of readers of this column in the various Tennessee newspapers and if you know the identity of Mr. "X," please tell him I admire his fortitude but am sorry for Sweet Pea's behavior.

Incidentally, Mrs. Crane and I took Sweet Pea to Indianapolis when we were guests on the Jim Gerard TV show there.

Sweet Pea seems to think she is actually a human being, for she was raised from a baby by a zoo director in Thailand. She originated her game of "tag" and will run past me on her short bowed legs and slap my knee to indicate that I am "it." She then wants us to chase her.

Then she will race up the stairway to the landing and leap across the living room to land on

Women's Rights Go To Senate

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Martha Griffiths is counting on woman power to propel through the Senate and the state legislatures a constitutional amendment guaranteeing women equal rights with men.

"A lot of things have changed," the Michigan Democrat grinned as she savored a 350-15 victory in the House Monday. She had prided the measure from the Judiciary Committee shelf where it had collected dust for 47 years and engineered the floor victory.

But that was only the beginning, she said, pointing to the Senate where possibly fatal delays await the proposal. And after that, the amendment must be approved by 38 of the 50 legislatures before becoming a part of the Constitution.

Other backers are not so optimistic about chances of the amendment. Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., who says she has felt more prejudice as a woman than as a Negro, is fearful that men who run the game of politics still may block the proposal.

She cited, for example, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., 82 and a widower, who sought to have the amendment sent back to committee for more study.

"Let's face it, Mr. Celler has been one of the champions for the civil rights of minorities—but he is like other men in feeling women have a different place and there should be definite limitations on them," Mrs. Chisholm said.

And the galleries, packed with women, weren't buying Celler's argument that "there is as much difference between a male and a female as there is between a horse chestnut and a chestnut horse. Vive la difference."

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has approved a companion measure. Backers concede, however, there is enough opposition in the full committee at least to delay the amendment. Bayh is committed to pressing first for action on an amendment for direct election of the president, now ready for Senate action.

Until Monday, the House had never had a chance to vote on the women's amendment, which states that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

The Senate twice has approved similar amendments—but with a rider preserving legislation purportedly protecting women. The outnumbered opposition to the current amendment, led by Celler, contended no one could tell what effect it would have on a wide variety of laws, such as those relating to paternity, rape, military service, family matters and protection for working women. He promised early hearings if the measure were sent back to his committee, but the House brushed the suggestion aside.

"I don't want to be one of the boys," said Rep. Margaret M. Heckler, R-Mass., but laws discriminate against women on the jobs and in the home.

This time the women's champion was Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, Republican leader. There may be polishing needed, Ford admitted, but after all Celler had 20 years to do it as committee chairman.

Only Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., of the 10 women members missed the vote and she stayed away deliberately so as not to embarrass her female colleagues. She opposes the amendment, arguing as do some men that it will end many protections for women.

The 81 cosponsors of the Senate version "never expected to have it pass the House and now they're really on the spot," Mrs. Chisholm said.

Rift Appears Growing In Tate Case Defense

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A rift appears to be developing in the defense team in the Sharon Tate murder trial. Three lawyers have accused Charles M. Manson's attorney of trying to "dump" three women codefendants to help Manson's case.

Manson, the shaggy-haired clan leader accused of ordering the women to kill Miss Tate and six others, joined the attack Monday on his own attorney, Irving Kanarek.

"I object to my attorney," Manson told the judge. "He's not speaking for me."

The complaints about Kanarek came during his sixth day of cross-examination of the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, who Monday was granted immunity from prosecution. He hammered away at details of the night a year ago when the beautiful actress and four others were slain at her Bel Air mansion.

Other attorneys said the testimony was repetitious. They objected particularly to accounts of the roles of two women defendants in the killings.

Paul Fitzgerald objected successfully six times to Kanarek's questions concerning his client, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and vehemently opposed introduction into evidence of a picture of the bloody body of one victim.

"The picture is prejudicial and inflammatory," Fitzgerald said. The judge ruled the picture would not be admitted until Kanarek laid a proper foundation with questioning. Kanarek dropped the subject.

Daye Shinn, representing Susan Atkins, 21, objected to a question eliciting testimony about a conversation Mrs. Kasabian said she had with Miss Atkins.

Later, Ronald Hughes, attorney for Leslie Van Houten, 20, told newsmen he felt Kanarek was hurting the defense case with his cross-examination.

"He's turned her from an incredible witness into a credible witness," said Hughes. "He's hurting us by getting into the crime. I keep asking him to stop."

"He sort of ignores me," Kanarek told newsmen. "In this type of case a lawyer can represent only one litigant. Conflicts arise. An answer to a question may hurt one party and help another. Reasonable minds can differ at a trial."

Fitzgerald said the original defense plan was to proceed on the theory that all four defendants are innocent and dependent upon one another in their defense. Kanarek has "slipped from the fold," he said. Fitzgerald added that Kanarek possibly was doing a good job for his client but damaging the case of the women.

The squabble among attorneys came after the judge granted a defense request that Mrs. Kasabian be granted her promised immunity from prosecution. The defense attorneys said they felt once the grant was final she could recant her testimony if she wished without fear of retribution.

Pastors Named At Convention

Ministerial assignments announced at the 60th annual session of the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church at Falcon affect many churches in the Greenville area.

In Greenville, the pastorate of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church is assigned to the Rev. M. D. McPherson, of Princeton, who comes to this church as successor to the Rev. W. Harvey Morris, transferred to Lumberton.

St. Paul Church, at the eastern city limits on the Washington highway, will be served by the Rev. R. H. Braddock, coming here from the First P. H. Church of Wilson. He succeeds the Rev. T. B. Henry who has been assigned to Bethel.

The Farmville Church has a new pastor, the Rev. Ralph W. Lambert, succeeding the Rev. T. M. Spencer.

Other appointments: Greenville District: Ayden, J. Hubert Thompson; Carson Memorial, Leonard H. Leggett; Faith Church in southeast Greenville near Brook Valley, Frank Seamster; Grifton, Ola L. Porter, Sr.; Grimesland, Paul C. Jackson; Meadowbrook, G. S. Holliday; Snow Hill, Norman W. Butts; Winterville, Jimmy C. Williams.

Board Cites Role Limits

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Education says it does not have any authority over local school operations that would be involved in desegregation.

The board also said in a statement Monday it has no authority to withhold funds from local school systems.

The statement was in reply to a suit filed by the NAACP. Legal Defense and Educational Fund and the U. S. Justice Department. The suit seeks to make the state responsible for enforcing desegregation in a number of local school systems.

Federal District Judge Algeron Butler issued an order July 28 calling on the state to "instruct" 10 local systems to help federal officials prepare new desegregation plans.

However, Judge Braxton Craven of the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals granted the state a delay in order to appeal Judge Butler's decision.

The U. S. Office of Education has submitted desegregation plans for eight of the 10 units. The units did not respond to the new plans last Friday as ordered by Butler. They contend the appeal removed from them any obligation to respond.

The eight units are the counties of Edgecombe, Guilford and Union, and the cities of Goldsboro, Maxton, Raleigh, Rocky Mount and Tarboro.

Vanceboro District: Hodges Chapel (Chocowinity), W. M. Hudnell; Holly Hill (Vanceboro), T. Alvah Watson; Hopedell (Greenville), Lotis C. Joyner; Shelmerdine, Roy O. Williams; Vanceboro, Daniel J. Jones; ordained evangelist, James McCandless, Vanceboro; licensed evangelist, Mrs. Blanche Pollard.

Williamston District: Bethany (Williamston), Timothy G. Creel; Rehoboth (Williamston), W. A. Crawford; Robersonville, William E. Donovan; Washington, Keith Marriner; Williamston, Vernon K. Clark; Plymouth, Samuel W. Weaver; Evangelism Department Project.

PTA Course Set Friday

A PTA School of Information will be held at Pitt Technical Institute Friday. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the program will conclude at 1 p.m. PTA leaders from 20 counties are expected to attend.

Participating in the School of Information from Greenville will be Dr. Frank Fuller and Mrs. John G. Allen, and Mrs. James Ward of Plymouth, members of the State PTA Board of Managers; Mrs. Carlton G. Watkins, State PTA president, and the field representatives from the State PTA Headquarters in Raleigh.

N.C. PTA is sponsoring six such "come and learn" days across North Carolina to teach new PTA officers at the local level leadership techniques and the basic knowledge necessary to fulfill their responsibilities.

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—A proposal which would require all British Columbia motorists to have their pictures attached to their drivers' licenses is being studied by the provincial government.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the photographic identification would eliminate the police problem of a motorist driving with a borrowed license while his own is under suspension.

District Moose Honor Retired Official Here

Representatives of Moose lodges in eastern North Carolina gathered here Monday evening to honor their Regional Director during 16 years of growth in the fraternity, Frank Ray.

Ray retired earlier this year, for reasons of health, and is currently making a farewell tour, saying his goodbyes to the lodges and friends in the five-state Golden Leaf region.

"I do not think I shall see you again", he told the Greenville gathering.

Ray described his satisfaction with the growth of the Moose in Eastern North Carolina since he took the reins of development for the area. "There were only a handful in those days", he recalled, and today there are dozens of lodges; all of them reflecting the qualities which make the Moose an honored brotherhood."

Eight lodges were represented at the meeting, among them, Washington, Snow Hill, Goldsboro, Kinston, Williamston, New Port, Smithfield and Greenville.

A special class of candidates for enrollment into the Moose was assembled by the lodge, consisting of 91 members. Of these, 47 were enrolled into the Greenville lodge.

The enrollment was conducted by the Greenville ritual team, assisted by the N. C. Champion Quartet from Kinston.

State Director Nandor Kozma was present for the occasion and welcomed the new members, urging them to take full advantage of all that their lodges offered, and urging active roles in the work of the Order.

Greenville Lodge Governor Ralph Heidenreich presided, and reminded members of the State Convention starting Friday at Wilmington.

Heidenreich also called attention to the election of a new Prelate to the board of officers next Monday night, to fill the seat of resigning M. J. Moye.

From Greenville, Ray will go on to the Sanford lodge to be honored at a meeting of District VIII, and from there to the State Convention.

New members enrolled into the local lodge last night, were: Donald B. Adams, Donald L.

Revenues In July Climb

RALEIGH (AP) — Income tax and sales tax receipts provided the big increase as North Carolina's General Fund collected $67.9 million last month, a gain of $11.1 million over July, 1969.

The state revenue commissioner, I. L. Clayton, reported Monday that the income tax collections amounted to $28.7 million, up $5.8 million over July last year.

The sales tax brought in $24.3 million, a gain of nearly $2.5 million.

Highway Fund collections amounted to $21.3 million, a gain of $3.2 million. The gasoline tax showed a rise of $2.9 million with total collections of $19.5 million.

The one-cent soft drink tax enacted by the 1969 General Assembly produced $2.1 million during the month, while the two-cent-per pack cigarette tax produced $1.4 million.

Asks Better Protection Of Judges

RALEIGH (AP)—The recent slaying of a trial judge in California and wounding of several jurors brought a call from a former Superior Court judge today for better protection of criminal courts in North Carolina.

Former Judge George R. Ragsdale said in a letter to C. D. Knight, Sheriff of Orange County and president of the North Carolina Sheriffs Association, that he was writing "out of a deep concern for the safety of trial judges, jurors, court personnel and lawyers."

Ragsdale, who stepped down from the Superior Court bench last week, said that "in too many cases men who are far too old, far too unfit and far too inattentive are assigned to act as part-time courtroom bailiffs" because of a lack of manpower.

The result he said, is that "the safety of many of our citizens is consigned to men who are simply not physically alert enough and strong enough to respond to an emergency situation."

"We need not labor under the misapprehension that all the militants or all the Black Panthers are in other states," Ragsdale continued. "They are in North Carolina. They have already made attempts to disrupt the orderly judicial processes, and I fear that if they went further they would, in too many instances meet with feeble and uncertain resistance..."

Ragsdale asked Knight to "examine the resources available to your association to determine what help you can give to the various sheriffs' departments in this state to promote security in the criminal courts of North Carolina."

Saw A Girl Like One Described

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — An Army hearing has been told that a military policeman reported seeing a girl like one Capt. Jeffrey MacDonald contends took part in the slayings of his wife and two children.

Brandt Delayed By Bomb Threat

BONN, Germany (AP) — An anonymous bomb threat delayed departure today of the plane that was to carry Chancellor Willy Brandt to Moscow to sign a treaty with the Soviet Union.

The big jet was ready to roll down the runway at Cologne-Bonn Airport when security officers apparently received the bomb threat. Police swarmed out and cordoned off the field.

closed-door inquiry into murder charges against MacDonald resumed after a two-week recess.

The hearing will determine whether MacDonald, 27-year-old Green Beret physician from Patchogue, N.Y., should be cleared or should be tried by court-martial.

Mica had testified earlier as a prosecution witness and had made no mention of having seen the girl, said Bernard L. Segal, one of MacDonald's two civilian defense attorneys.

The other MacDonald attorney, Dennis Eisman, said the defense had learned only recently, as a result of tips, of what Mica had reportedly seen. The Army has not supplied information on the closed-door hearing and newsmen get their information from the defense.

Segal said Mica identified a sketch, made by an artist under MacDonald's guidance, as looking like a girl he saw at a corner four or five blocks from the MacDonald home at Ft. Bragg about 4 a.m. on the day of the slayings last Feb. 17. Segal said that in separate testimony, Mrs. Edwin C. Casper, a former neighbor of the MacDonalds, reported she heard

Plans To Stop Quick Divorces

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz is planning to close down the quickie divorce mills for foreigners along the Mexican-U.S. border. He thinks they "contradict the respect the people of Mexico have for the family as an institution," the Interior Ministry reported today.

The divorce law now requires a three-month waiting period for Mexican nationals and foreign legal residents who file for an uncontested divorce. But foreigners can obtain uncontested annulments or divorces in a day.

the voices of two men and a girl outside her window — apparently walking toward the MacDonald home — during the night of the slayings.

Mrs. Casper testified via a telephone hookup from Ft. Walters, Tex., where her husband is now stationed. Segal said Mica testified the girl he saw had long hair and was wearing a floppy hat and a long coat.

MacDonald had told investigators he was awakened from a deep sleep on his living room couch and attacked by a group of four persons which included a girl like that.

The testimony by Mica was the first time anyone else had reported seeing any members of the group MacDonald described. Segal charged that the Army "tried to keep this information from us ... coming very close to suppressing evidence."

Segal said Mica reported seeing the girl as he drove in a Jeep toward MacDonald's home.

Military police had been dispatched to the house in response to MacDonald's telephoned plea for help.

They found MacDonald suffering from several stab wounds, one of which pierced a lung. Mrs. MacDonald, 26, and the children — Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 2 — had been beaten and stabbed.

The hearing is expected to wind up at the end of this week, after MacDonald testifies Wednesday or Thursday.
