JERUSALEM (AP) — Defense Moshe Dayan charged today that Egypt has deployed Soviet missiles in the Suez Canal region in violation of the Middle East cease-fire and demanded that the United States move for withdrawal of the missiles. "Israel regards the Egyptian move as of serious military significance," Dayan said. Speaking in the Israeli Knesset (parliament), in answer to urgent questions raised following reports of the missile emplacement, he declared officially for the first time that the Egyptians violated a "key clause" of the cease-fire the first night it went into effect. A highly placed Egyptian official in Cairo denied the Israeli report, saying: "It's just not true." He said there had been some movement of troop replacements, which are allowed under the cease-fire agreement, but no reinforcements. The Israeli state radio had reported earlier that Egypt had moved several SAM anti-aircraft missile batteries to within 12 and 18 miles of the canal. The Jerusalem Post said that because of this the government was considering postponing appointment of its delegate to the peace talks that are to open soon with U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring as the go-between. The government radio said the Soviet SAM2 and SAM3 batteries were put into place north of the Cairo-Suez road and between the Ismailia road and the Nile delta four hours after the cease-fire went into effect at midnight last Friday. The Israeli military command refused to comment. But on Wednesday U. S. officials in Washington said the American government had received the report from Israeli sources and was investigating it. Some Washington sources suggested movement of the missiles closer to the canal might have taken place several hours before the cease-fire went into effect and were not noted by Israeli reconnaissance until later. Israel and Egypt meanwhile accused each other of a minor cease-fire violation. The Israeli command said the Egyptians fired a few rifle bullets at an Israeli patrol along the canal Wednesday. A spokesman said no Israeli was wounded, and the fire was not returned. An Egyptian spokesman in Cairo said the Israelis broke the cease-fire Sunday by firing a few shots at a soldier standing guard on the canal. He said the soldier was not hurt. An Israeli spokesman denied the accusation, saying, "We haven't shot even one bullet on the canal since the cease-fire." An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman scored the Greek government for releasing seven Palestinian commandos from jail in exchange for 53 passengers aboard a hijacked Greek airliner last month. The seven terrorists were flown to Cairo early today on a plane chartered by the International Red Cross. The Greek government said an Arab diplomat in Athens had assured that "Greek soil and Greek interests in general will never in the future be used for illegal actions by Arab commandos." Neither the diplomat nor his country was named. "It's blackmail," said an Israeli spokesman. He repeated his government's stand that the deal to release the seven was made "under duress," and that the Greeks were not "morally bound" to carry it out. The seven included two men convicted of machine gunning an Israeli airliner and killing one of its passengers at the Athens airport, two convicted of a hand grenade attack on an El Al office, resulting in the death of a Greek boy, and two men and a woman arrested as they prepared to hijack a Trans World Airlines plane.

New Bid By ABM Foes

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Foes of President Nixon's Safeguard antiballistic missile system, claiming they may have found the formula for victory in the ashes of two Senate defeats, will mount a final drive next week to restrict expansion of the system. But Safeguard supporters, who masterminded the defeat of a bid to carve $322 million and two ABM sites from the program, said they have the votes to withstand any challenge. The third effort will come on an amendment by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., to block construction of two additional ABM sites. The funds instead would be spent to improve the two existing sites. Brooke said he would call his amendment up for a vote next Wednesday. "I think the opposition to ABM has hit its peak and that we can now move on to other things," said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., floor manager of the bill that includes expansion of Safeguard to two new sites. The Senate rejected Wednesday by a 62-32 margin a bid by Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, to kill all Safeguard expansion funds except those for research and development. Then, by a far-slimmer 52-47 margin, it ended a drive to cut $322 million from the President's Safeguard budget and restrict the system to the two sites approved last year. The amendment was sponsored by Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich. Brooke's proposal would allow funds now earmarked for geographical expansion of the system to sites in Missouri and Wyoming to be used to improve sites already authorized in Montana and North Dakota. The improvements specifically include the Safeguard radars which have been hotly scored as vulnerable to attack and relatively easy to deceive by sophisticated decoy devices. "But the important thing is that my amendment would limit the degree to which they could expand the Safeguard system and would confine them to the real estate they have right now," Brooke said. Earlier, Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., a leading Safeguard backer, said the White House was opposed to all amendment, including Brooke's, and warned that a vote for any restrictive amendment would be counted as a vote hostile to President Nixon. Brooke disagreed. "I think mine is an amendment with which the administration can live very comfortably," Brooke said. "I have evidence from the administration and the Department of Defense that technically we would get as much protection for our Minuteman missiles from a bolstered first phase as from expansion to two new sites, he added. He declined to reveal the source of his confidence. He said two senators who voted against the amendment backed by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., would definitely support his compromise and that he had strong indications he might be able to persuade as many as two others.

Lanier And Morgan Disagree Over Auto Liability Programs

RALEIGH (AP) — Insurance Commissioner Edwin Lanier has made a strong plea for retention of North Carolina's rigid system of establishing auto liability insurance rates. He urged Wednesday rejection of any plan under which liability insurance rates are set by open competition between insurance companies. He also opposed no-fault plans under which insurance companies reimburse both parties to an accident. He said such plans ignore a person's responsibility for his negligence or recklessness. Lanier stated his views in a presentation before the Governor's Study Commission on Automobile Liability Insurance and Rates. At an earlier session the commission had heard Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and a representative of the American Insurance Association call for replacing the present "prior approval" system of rate setting with some system that would allow rate competition. Under the prior approval system insurance rates that are approved by Lanier each year must be followed on a uniform basis by all companies. Lanier urged careful consideration of the "file and use" plan used in Georgia and Virginia under which insurance companies file their rates with the insurance commissioner and put them into effect without his approval. The commissioner can require the firms to justify any rate he considers excessive. But Lanier said he did not think the file and use plan would result in lower rates. He called for laws which would "achieve a substantial reduction in the number of private automobiles insured through the assigned risk plan." Lanier also urged passage of laws to tighten the licensing of drivers, and rougher license revocation provisions. He said "automobile accidents are the real and major cause of our rising auto insurance premium costs."

Branch Bank Is Held Up By Duo

RALEIGH (AP) — Two masked gunmen held up the Longview Gardens branch of the First-Citizens Bank & Trust Co. and escaped with $3,177 Wednesday. They ordered employees and customers to lie on the floor. "Don't anybody try anything foolish or I'll kill you," one of the robbers warned. They helped themselves to money at the tellers' windows before fleeing on foot. On July 30, 1969, the bank was robbed of $2,877.

Easing Of Welfare Load Said Up To Assembly

RALEIGH (AP) — Officials from 82 of North Carolina's 100 counties have been told that only the General Assembly can relieve them of some or all of their financial responsibility for welfare programs. John R. Jordan, chairman of the Board of Social Services, and Social Services Commissioner Clifton Craig, headed a group of officials who spoke to the county officials Wednesday. Some 170 local officials attended the three-hour luncheon session sponsored by the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. Most of the questions during the session concerned what the local officials feel is too much local financial responsibility for welfare programs and too little local control over them. Deputy Atty. Gen. Harry McCalliard told the officials that it is mandatory that they provide the welfare funds requested of them by the General Assembly. He said if counties refuse, the attorney general would have no choice but to take legal action. Jordan said that 82 of the 100 counties are now in compliance with budgetary requirements under federal law. Earlier this year more than 30 counties had said they would not be able to meet welfare budget increases. Figures released by welfare officials after the

West Germany's Views Made Clear To Kosygin

MOSCOW (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt flew home to Bonn today after signing a nonaggression treaty with the Soviet Union and inviting Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to visit West Germany. A government spokesman in Bonn said the chancellor had scheduled a meeting with key government ministers upon his return to report on his talks with Kremlin leaders. A West German spokesman said Kosygin has accepted in principle an invitation to visit Bonn extended by Brandt at their final meeting today. But no date was set for the visit. Brandt told newsmen shortly before his departure from Moscow that West German views on Berlin were expressed "calmly and clearly" in his second meeting with Kosygin which lasted 1 hour and three-quarters. The chancellor expressed belief the Soviet side fully understands that progress toward a satisfactory settlement on Berlin would provide favorable conditions for development of cooperation between the two countries. Brandt said the talks had been conducted in a relaxed atmosphere without pressure or sharpness. He noted also there was no effort to interfere with either country's relations with its allies. The meeting following the signing Wednesday of the new Soviet-West German nonaggression treaty. In banquet speeches and informal comment, both leaders hailed the document as a basis for future understanding and cooperation between their two countries after decades of conflict. The Communist party newspaper Pravda this morning emphasized the importance of the treaty, particularly in its recognition of the present boundaries of European countries, including the border between Poland and East Germany.

Gain In Private Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal income rebounded in July to a $3.6-billion gain, the Commerce Department reported today. Income for the month was at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $801.8 billion. The month's gain compared with a decline of $1.5 billion in June when the effects of the retroactive federal pay raise are included, and a $2.3-billion increase with the pay raise excluded. The department reported that private sector wages and salaries increased by $1.5 billion, the same as in June. It said declining employment was more than offset by higher pay rates and increases in working hours. For the first seven months of this year, personal income reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $793 billion. The department said this was an increase of $7 billion, or 8 percent, from the corresponding period of last year.

Red Offensive Said Aimed At 'Pacification'

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting in which more than 300 North Vietnamese were reported killed indicated today that the enemy is trying to launch an offensive against the pacification program in the populous lowlands of South Vietnam's two northernmost provinces. One battle still raged at dusk with North Vietnamese troops holed up in villages along the French Indochina war's "Street without Joy." Field reports said 17 South Vietnamese troops had been killed and 44 wounded. Among the dead was Maj. Nguyen Van Van, commander of Fire Base O'Reilly, killed in a mortar attack. American planes and helicopter gunships flew some of the heaviest strikes of the war. At stake is the pacification operation which over the past year has brought security to the villages in the lowlands of Quang Tri and Thua Thien provinces. Some of the villages were reported damaged, and hundreds of refugees fled as fighting broke out. There was no estimate of civilian casualties. The heaviest fighting broke out in a string of villages along the coastal strip French soldiers named "the Street without Joy" in the early 1950s because of their losses there. Intelligence officers said nearly two battalions of about 700 North Vietnamese filtered through allied defensive lines in the foothills to the west and reassembled after they reached the coastal region at points ranging from four to 12 miles southeast of Quang Tri City. Captured North Vietnamese documents said the goal was to "liberate people in the lowlands," one intelligence officer said. Fighting broke out at 7 a.m. Wednesday, and military spokesmen said 188 North Vietnamese had been killed by late this afternoon, some of them by American helicopter gunships firing rockets and machine guns. The coastal villages are guarded by a chain of artillery and patrol bases in the foothills to the west. Their mission is to choke off the flow of enemy troops and supplies toward the coast and keep large-scale fighting out of the villages. South Vietnamese troops in the infiltration corridor encountered another North Vietnamese force 15 miles southwest of Quang Tri City and killed 11 of them. One government soldier was wounded. In another action, a small North Vietnamese unit entered a hamlet at the edge of the foothills, and fighting broke out.

Snake Followed A Thermometer

DENVER (AP) — A nurse tucked a thermometer under the tongue of a 15-year-old patient at National Jewish Hospital, then went about business elsewhere. When she returned a few minutes later, the hospital said, she removed the thermometer—and stood rooted in horror as a small, green snake followed it. The hospital, which declined to identify the youth or nurse, said the patient apparently spared the harmless reptile on a field trip and saved it for the occasion, concealing it in his mouth during the nurse's absence.

A Witness?

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Defense attorneys said today they had found a witness who might be able to identify members of a mysterious band of intruders Capt. Jeffrey R. MacDonald contends attacked him and killed his pregnant wife and two children in their Ft. Bragg home Feb. 17. Dennis Eisman, one of the 27-year-old Green Beret physician's two civilian attorneys, told newsmen of the witness as the witness prepared to testify at a closed-door Army hearing into charges that MacDonald killed his family and made up the story about the intruders. The lawyer said the witness identified a sketch of one of the intruders. Eisman refused to identify the witness, saying, "He fears for his life." Eisman said the witness told him he was living in a hippie section of Fayetteville at the time of the MacDonald slayings. Eisman said the witness told him he saw an automobile arrive in the section between 3:45 and 4:30 a.m. on the morning of the slayings and saw people get out of the car, including a girl with long blonde hair whom he knew by name. Eisman said the witness also identified a sketch of one of the alleged intruders into MacDonald's home as the owner of the automobile. The sketch was drawn for the defense by a police artist from MacDonald's description. The defense said it planned to introduce later sketches of the two other men. A sketch of the girl MacDonald said was in the group was introduced Monday.

Summrell Is Found Guilty

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer Julius Summrell, 21-year-old Negro charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and assault on an officer here July 6 following an incident at Pitt Memorial Hospital was found guilty of the charges in District Court here this morning and given an active jail term. Chief District Judge J. W. H. Roberts ordered Summrell to serve a total of six months in jail on the assault and resisting arrests charges and 30 days jail on the disorderly conduct charge. Summrell's attorney, Jerry Paul, immediately gave notice of appeal to Superior Court. The trial opened yesterday afternoon with officer Barley Phillips — the only prosecution witness to take the stand — testifying for the State. In recounting the events that resulted in the officer being severely beaten and in Summrell being shot, Ptl. Phillips testified that he had responded to investigate a traffic accident at the intersection of Fifth and Ford Streets in which Summrell, a passenger in one of the cars, was reported injured, as was Kelly Wooten, the driver of the car in which Summrell was riding. Phillips noted that he went to Pitt Memorial Hospital to talk with Wooten about the accident. "I was attempting to get a statement from Wooten," who was on a stretcher in one of the hospital's emergency rooms. Summrell, according to the policeman, was on another stretcher in the same room, "talking loudly, complaining about not being able to get treatment." "A nurse came in and told him that Dr. Best (Dr. Andrew A. Best, a Negro physician) had been called but couldn't be contacted. Then he (Summrell) said, 'get out of my face, white woman,'" the officer testified. "After this, Ptl. Phillips said, 'I told him to quieten down,'" and noted that Summrell's mother also tried to quiet him. The officer said Summrell replied to his mother, "That's what's wrong now, we've been quiet too long." Officer Phillips testified that Summrell continued his loud talking "disturbing the functioning of the personnel in the Emergency Room" and that he then placed Summrell under arrest for disorderly conduct. "He (Summrell) told me I was not going to arrest him or take him anyg...d...where." As the commotion continued,

Phillips said he and Wooten went into a room across the hall from Summrell to continue the questioning about the accident. Then, the policeman said, he saw Summrell in the hall. "I told him to go back and lie down and that he had already been placed under arrest." There was a confrontation in the hall then, Phillips testified. And after a tussle, "I drew my blackjack." Summrell, the officer said, asked "don't hit me with that thing." Phillips said he replied, "I'm not going to hit you unless I have to." Another scuffle then erupted, "I hit Julius one time on the shoulder and he hit me on the face and body," Phillips said. "My blackjack was taken away by Summrell. I kicked him off me. I drew my revolver." Phillips said "Summrell was standing there with the blackjack up in his clinched fist," and the officer said he ordered the prisoner to drop the blackjack. "He threw the blackjack at me and hit me in the chest." "I continued to tell him to stop and he continued on. He did not stop. I came up behind Julius and hit him on the head with my revolver, then put the pistol back in the holster. "There was more arm slapping. By this time we were on the ramp (where ambulance patients are loaded just outside the hospital's emergency room complex). I continued to tell him to stop." "There was more arm slapping, another blow to Summrell's head with the officer's pistol, and more scuffling, Phillips recounted, as the two men moved from the rear of the hospital toward the front parking area. As the two men reached the front parking lot, Phillips testified that Summrell approached a car in which two Negro women were seated. The two women "yelled stay away from where they were," but according to the officer, Summrell "opened the rear door on the left side. "The woman jumped out. I told the lady driving 'get your keys and get away.'" Summrell, who had entered the car then emerged, Phillips told, "then we fell in a bush. Summrell on top," and the scuffle continued. "Streeter came over (referring to Summrell's brother Jerome Streeter), and he was on me too, I don't know if Streeter was trying to help me then or (help) Julius." The officer continued: "I put (Continued on Page 10)

Type Sometimes Louder Than Words

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This time it was the psychiatrist who sprawled on the couch and talked—talked about his practice confined to young people in the creative and performing arts, talked about his new novel, his books, plays, movie script and poetry, talked about music, art and the theater.

But most of all, 32-year-old Dr. David Viscott talked about the need for communication and about the "Sensitivity" greeting cards he has originated for people reluctant to articulate their emotions.

"It's hard for someone to admit that he's wrong, that a situation is bad or what he has been hurt," he said, looking boyish and earnest as he described the problem of expressing honest feelings.

"Anger is especially difficult to put into words. Most of the time people bottle it up and let it grow," said the bouncy, ebullient Bostonian who wears his hair fashionably long and speaks in gestures as well as words.

He was in New York to talk about the cards he and Boston advertising executive Jonah Kalb have created.

"They're wedges, to pry the door open just a little and allow for better communication," he said. "Most people in a painful situation have so much pain that words just pour out of their mouths and in the end you don't know what they've said."

In the Sensitivity cards, Dr. Viscott has said it for them succinctly: "Not always, but sometimes, it's your fault," "You don't solve problems with a kiss," "You take my love like medicine, one spoon at a time," or "You hurt me." These cards are categorized under "You Hangups," and make up a third of the 60 brief and pointed messages.

Another 20 cards are under "My Hangups." These include, "You were right, of course, but I just couldn't tell you that." Or, "I don't trust yet. I want to, but I just don't," and "I do love you, even if I can't say it all the time."

In the "Our Hangups" group are statements such as, "If we can't talk, we can't grow," "If only we could laugh together again," and "This is no better—and much lonelier."

"I can write hangup messages from here to China and back—they're my business," said Dr. Viscott, sitting up suddenly and parking his buckle shoes on the tiled coffee table. "The No Hangups are harder—I'm afraid they'll end up being trite."

Among his creations in that division are "Life means more now," "I measured it. I'm skipping six inches above the ground," and "Thank you for touching my life."

"These are direct, simple, easy-to-understand statements," Dr. Viscott continued. "Besides being to the point they have the advantage of being put in print by someone else, which means it must be a universal feeling. If it's a common feeling it's okay to have it—there's safety in numbers, you know."

Dr. Viscott, who defines sensitivity as "communication of honest feeling while caring for the feeling of others," selected cover designs to help the message inside come through. They take the form of ink blots, kaleidoscopic views, bold brush strokes or soft blended tones.

"Take the graphics on the card, 'Much of the time, you frighten me,'" he explained. "Here's this little blib being overpowered by a big blib and you're confronted visually by how one person is overwhelming the other."

A graduate of Dartmouth College and Tufts Medical School, Dr. Viscott served as senior psychiatrist at Bridgewater State Hospital in Massachusetts. His novel, "Labyrinth of Silence," is based on that experience. He got interested in teenagers when he worked with them in an experimental theater, and now specializes in "creative young people."

"Basically creative people have all the problems everyone else has, to be dealt with in the regular way, plus the problem of confronting themselves in their art in a direct and measurable way," he said. "Like it's either a good or a bad painting, the music sounds good or not, the sculpture works or doesn't."

"They're putting a part of themselves that was formerly very private on public display. They seem to live a whole life cycle around each creative process. After completing it they can suffer depression comparable to postpartum depression in a new mother."

Father of three children age 4 to 9, Dr. Viscott advises parents to "listen to kids and don't comment; just let it soak in. Listen to lyrics of the songs they're singing to find out what they're into. Try to remember what you wanted when you were their age and how you felt, but not how you acted."

While many of his Sensitivity cards appear to be relevant to male-female relationships, Dr. Viscott insists they can bridge the communication gap between any two people.

"One woman in California bought a dozen of the ones that say, 'When I'm with you I feel complete,' and used them as invitations for a party," he laughed.

Fiance Working Without 'License' Hair Should Be Coiffed For Midis

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you are determined to wear your long hair straight, buy a broom to go with the witch costume, advises hairdresser Marc de Coster, whose New York salon glitters with society's beautiful women.

"Straight hair looks good, Tahitian style, when it is wet on the beach," he says, "but that is the only time."

Generally speaking, he says, choosing between long or short hair is a bit of nonsense. In this age, one can have both with hair pieces in between.

"If you have two wigs and a postiche, you can wear your hair long, short, high, curly, and you can vary it with a wig to match the color of your costume, if you like," he said recently, while waiting for some of his elegant clients to arrive for the fashion show at his chic French furnished salon.

The bright blue-eyed Frenchman with the Van Dyke beard looks as if he just stepped out of a painting.

He had expected the Duchess of Windsor, but the boat had been delayed many hours (she came the next day) and a few other clients—Mrs. William Paley and Mrs. John Whitney—were on vacation. But that didn't dampen the enthusiasm of the guests, among whom were the Countess Guy de Brantes, Princess Edward de Lobkowitz, Mrs. Gilbert Miller.

They had come to see "Mr. Marc" illustrate how one could be well-coiffed whether one chose mini, midi or maxi-length clothes.

"I'm really going in every direction. I think younger people will keep the miniskirt but wear the maxi coat. The mini is sexy, but there is a lot of elegance in the longer lines."

Many of his clients, like Mrs. Paley, are the first to wear new fashions.

"The younger people have said, 'We don't want to dress like our grandmothers (great-grandmothers?) did, but grandmothers were beautifully elegant in their big hats, veils and long sweeping dresses. It was a beautiful look,'" he continued.

For daytime wear, mini or midi, he likes the "small, curly head with small earrings." At night, one can add long, dangling earrings for a new look.

Several models in the show wore short curly type wigs and the contrast in their appearance was dramatic. One girl's long hair is normally swept back severely to a chignon at the back of her head.

For maxi evening length skirts, there were a number of hair style choices. One was a wide braid that went from the nape of the neck to the crown of the head.

Another maxi hairdo was one with long fat braids to the waistline.

A midi-length hairdo had a "pleated" (horizontal) postiche falling to the shoulders.

A number of curly hairdos were shown for mini skirts.

After 20 years as a hairdresser—he started with Guillaume in Paris—if Mr. Marc were to pinpoint the secret of his success, he says, he might attribute it to the fact that he will let a woman make a suggestion about her hair.

"I ask her what she would like to have and if her idea is good, I give her that hair style. A woman knows herself better than anyone else knows her. I always listen when women talk about themselves."

All For Love Has No Future

LONDON (WNS) — Lionel Swift, conductor of the Waltham Forest Symphony Orchestra, complained in court because cellist Patricia Banks phoned him 30 times a day, sent him dozens of telegrams, and tied up his car with rope so that he couldn't get into it. Miss Banks said she did it because she loves the fellow and can't understand why he fired her from the orchestra. She promised the judge that she would leave him alone in the future.

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: My boy friend [I'll call him "Seymour"] is a pre-med student. We plan to get married in 3 or 4 years. Last night Seymour was over to the house and I complained of a pain in my back. [I had been bowling the night before.] Well, Seymour had me lie face down on the sofa so he could work on my back. [Naturally I took off my shirt and unhooked my bra.]

All of a sudden my mother walks in, and boy, was she ever mad! You could have heard her in Jersey. Seymour left shortly after that and my mother yelled some more, saying how terrible I was and so forth. Abby, Seymour is studying to be a doctor, which I think gives him more of a right to be working on my back than if he were a law student, right? I think my mother has an evil mind and I would like your opinion. Believe me, we weren't doing anything wrong.

ACHING BACK

DEAR ACHING: Since Seymour is not yet a doctor, he shouldn't have been working on you professionally. And since he's not yet your husband, he shouldn't have been working on you, PERIOD.

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem like a big problem to you, but if you can publish a letter from someone asking you if you ever saw a bald-headed Indian, you can publish this.

Have you ever seen a man carrying a small change purse in his pocket? My fiancée has a fit every time I take it out of my pocket to pay for something. She claims it looks sissy, and she's ashamed to be seen with me in public because of it. It's not a fancy one. It's just a plain, ordinary black change purse. My grandpa carried one all his life, and I have carried one for 10 years and she is the only one to ever object to it. I think it is a very convenient way to carry my change and I am not about to give it up because she says it embarrasses her. What is your opinion?

DAHLONEGRA, GA.

DEAR DAHLONEGRA: "Change purses" for gentlemen are not the most up-to-date accessory, but many men still carry them, so if that's your preference, suit yourself. And tell your fiancée if she's too "ashamed" to be seen with you in public because you carry a change purse, the next change you make could be HER.

DEAR ABBY: Every time I see a letter in your column with no answer, I don't even bother to read it. It's usually some long drawn out sad tale of woe from a cry baby who wants to have her say. Or it's a letter from some nut which is so ridiculous, I can't imagine why you would want to print it.

I like your column best when you run somebody's problem and give them your answer—especially when you tell them off.

You are getting paid to answer people's problems, Abby, so get busy and don't goof off.

ABILENE, TEXAS

DEAR ABILENE: Please read on:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years and have found it to be both entertaining and educational. I like the way you will print letters from readers who just want to give others the benefit of their experience. It's good to read points of view other than the one we have always held. Some of them make a lot of sense. Thank you. Keep up the good work.

Disturbed Tots Aid In Workshop

By SANDRA VAUGHN
NEW YORK (WNS) — Although most guidance clinics and special schools are structured for youngsters 5 years of age and older, many emotionally ill children can avoid being institutionalized if their problems are recognized and treated at an earlier age.

"Even 2½ years old is not too early to begin," says Mrs. Judith Block, director of the Pre-Schooler's Workshop in Garden City, N.Y. "By five or six, they have established behavior patterns that must be undone."

The nursery school is a pilot project to demonstrate the value of working with neurologically-impaired, schizophrenic and autistic children at an early age. Only severely impaired children are admitted to the school. Often, they are unable to speak. The youngsters have two common problems: they suffer multiple impairments and they cannot function in a normal environment.

Programs are tailored to the individual within the classroom structure. The overall program includes toilet training, teaching the children to take off their jackets when they come in, "juice time," "going out time" and lunch. Persistence and individual application are keys to the program.

Instant Reward "Baiting the shelf" is a technique used to encourage language development. An object the child wants is placed out-of-reach on a shelf. The child is then asked what he wants. If he verbalizes his desire, or indicates what he wants in a socially acceptable manner, he gets the object. The reward is immediate.

The universal language of music and song is also an important part of the program. Songs help the students to identify with body parts and to develop comprehension. Often, the youngsters will ignore verbal questions, but respond to musical ones.

Another effective tool is picture books with snapshots of teachers and other students. This helps the child to recognize and identify with other people.

Since the school opened in the fall of 1966, there have been many "success stories." There are, of course, no typical cases. The causes of the children's emotional disturbances are as varied as the children. It could be neurological, biochemical or the result of a traumatic experience. Even medical authorities do not agree.

At the school, the program is adjusted to the individual child.

Peter, born out of wedlock, was placed in a number of foster homes. He was unable to speak. At age two, he was diagnosed as psychotic by one physician; another termed him mentally retarded. He was a hyperactive child subject to rages and uncontrolled, unmeaningful behavior.

Shortly before enrolling in the Pre-Schoolers Workshop, he was placed with foster parents who wanted him, despite his problems. They were indulgent and, according to Mrs. Block, a psychiatric social worker, "the tender loving care undoubtedly helped him."

Peter came to school eagerly, but he was unable to control himself. He occasionally engaged in parallel play — playing side by side, but not with other children. His contact with others was limited to grabbing toys, biting, hitting, screaming or throwing equipment.

He was encouraged to verbalize his wants rather than hitting others. "Baiting the shelf," musical games and getting him to give messages to other children were among the techniques employed. His first words were, "No! Don't wanna."

Speak At Times He still communicates non-verbally, but he does use speech to tell what he's doing, what is happening, why it's getting dark, what machines are doing. He no longer sees others as inanimate objects.

Recently a volunteer at the school promised him a gift on her next weekly visit. He immediately learned the days of the week so he would know what "next week" meant.

"If life is not too cruel to him," Mrs. Block predicts, "he should be able to move into a regular school and learn a trade."

ORANGE SOUFFLE

¼ cup (¼ tub) diet-type imitation margarine
¼ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup skim milk
3 egg yolks
1-3d cup sugar
¼ cup orange juice
1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
5 egg whites, at room temperature
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

In a small saucepan over low heat melt margarine. Blend in flour and salt; cook, stirring, until bubbly. Remove from heat and gradually stir in milk, keeping smooth. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and set aside. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon color; gradually beat in sugar; blend in orange juice and orange rind; gradually blend in milk mixture. With clean beater beat egg whites and cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Carefully fold in egg-yolk mixture. Pour into greased 1½ quart souffle dish. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven until a silver knife inserted in center comes out clean—45 minutes. Serve at once. Makes about 6 servings, about 150 calories per serving.

No Special Amendment Needed

At the risk of being out of favor with the fairer sex, let us here and now voice our opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment guaranteeing women's rights.

It's not that we do not think women should have equal rights. Indeed, they should and do have equal rights under the constitution without the necessity of making them the special point of a special amendment.

It would be just as logical to have a constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights for those people over six feet tall or under five feet tall; or perhaps guaranteeing equal rights to left handed individuals, or those hair colors do not permit them to have as much fun as blondes.

There may have been some point in the constitutional amendment 47 years ago when the legislation to bring it about went to the House Judiciary Committee. But the question of women's rights under the constitution and otherwise has long since been settled. The reasons for the measure that existed 47 years ago are no longer valid in the courts or in society.

The desire on the part of members of the House not to offend women voters is evident by the lopsided 350 to 15 vote by which this ridiculous measure has been passed in that body of Congress. Certainly members of the Senate are no less gallant than members of the House, and on that criteria alone may be expected to follow with overwhelming approval.

At some point, however, it should be recognized that the amendment may well create more problems for women than it will solve. It may prove a greater stumbling block to women enjoying their full rights along with other citizens, than if they would accept that individual rights guaranteed under the constitution apply equally to citizens regardless of sex.

The courts of the land have well established and recognized that point. The vast majority of those who make up the citizenship of this nation well recognize that point.

If it is necessary at this point in time to amend the constitution to guarantee women equal rights, then we'd better draft a whole series of amendments also guaranteeing constitutional rights to Northerners, Southerners, Westerners, Mountaineers, Flatlanders, youngsters, Senior Citizens, and every other conceivable sub-group of citizens.

Reasonably Good Leaf Yield For Tar Heels

With the opening of the big Eastern Belt approaching it appears that there will be a good tobacco yield this year.

The N.C. Crop Reporting Service has forecast production of flue-cured tobacco in North Carolina will reach 728 million pounds. This is 23 million pounds above the July 1 prediction and 4.6 percent above the 1969 crop which reached 695.7 million pounds.

July rains were reported generally adequate for the bright leaf crop.

Thus it appears that despite dry weather early in the growing season and heavy rains at the end, producers in this area have done reasonably well with their tobacco crops this year.

Burden Feared By Governors

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. — The reason why Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) officials from Secretary Elliot Richardson on down were swarming all over this week's national Governors conference was a new threat to President Nixon's welfare reform: rising opposition from key Republican Governors.

Nixon administration officials, anticipating an early release of the reform bill from long hibernation in the Senate Finance Committee, became aware of the vehemence of opposition from Governors shortly before the conference assembled here. Indeed, until recently, most Governors themselves were not overly concerned.

What happened was that neither the Nixon administration nor Republican Governors previously had added up all the figures. Their unpleasant finding, the welfare reform bill, as formed in Congress, will increase welfare costs in Northern industrialized states — a politically unendurable burden for Governors deeply scarred by past tax increases.

The result is deep political irony. Mr. Nixon's only major piece of social welfare legislation could prove catastrophic for Governors — all of them Republicans — in populous Northern states now carrying the heaviest tax and welfare burdens. On the other hand, the bill provides some budget relief for Southern and Border state Governors, most of them Democrats.

While Republican Governors played golf and rode luxury yachts on Lake Ozark this week, their aides and HEW technicians were trying to work their way out of the mess. But to undo what has been done so far will not be easy. And if left undone, Mr. Nixon will face the spectacle of his own party's Governors in active opposition to his top priority legislative proposal.

Until now, Nixon administration strategists had regarded Republican foes of the bill — principally conservative Senators on the Finance Committee and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California — as ideologically opposed to the family assistance cash payments as a "guaranteed annual wage." Particularly suspicious Nixon men perceived a Reagan maneuver undercutting Mr. Nixon on the Republican party's right wing.

In truth, most Republican Governors like the family assistance principle. What they don't like about the bill has little to do with ideology and everything to do with dollars and cents. Critics of the reform bill include highly liberal Republican Governors — John Love of Colorado, Daniel Evans of Washington, William Milliken of Michigan.

Even conservative Reagan phrased his opposition in fiscal terms when talking to Mr. Nixon in California two weeks ago. Medical provisions of the bill alone, Reagan told the President, would cost his state $20 million extra annually. When Mr. Nixon expressed doubt, Reagan got quick confirmation from Caspar Weinberger, the new Federal budget chief.

The fact that such worries extend beyond Reagan was not fully impressed on the Administration until last week when Gov. Evans, one of the party's most articulate liberals, surfaced in op-

Crumb Of Consolation

By J. J. KILPATRICK

J. Edgar Hoover's annual report for 1969, just released to the press, contains one small ray of statistical hope: The rate of increase in serious crimes last year was not quite so high as the rate of increase a year before. That is the only crumb of consolation the FBI director offers.

Over the past nine years, while population increased by 13 per cent, crime increased by 148 per cent. Every classification of crime has soared; and every section of the country has shared in the appalling experience. The director's "crime clocks" indicate that every 36 seconds, somewhere in the nation, an auto is stolen; every two minutes a person is robbed; every 14 minutes, a woman is raped.

Hoover is a methodical man, not much given to sociological speculation. His pages of tabulations, compiled from the reports of local police departments, offer few insights into the causes of this ugly picture.

My own guess is that the disproportionate increase in crime is largely a product of fundamental changes in American society over the past 20 years. The whole meaning of "community" has altered perceptibly in this time, and the restraints once imposed by the mores of a neighborhood or a small town have diminished year by year.

Add to the disintegration of community the steady erosion of other forces that once were powerful: The church, the school, the family unit. Through some terrible perversion of democracy — the perversion that twists freedom into anarchy — the meaning of discipline has been sacrificed to a cult of permissiveness. Behold today's movie listings: Anything goes.

At least one other subtle factor has played a part. This is a constant conditioning to violence. The criminal of 25 was born in the year of Hiroshima; he has grown up to the vivid immediacy of war in Vietnam. The subjective fantasies of TV, movies, and comic books have been accompanied by inbreeding violence in real life. In the process, sensibilities grow numb; shock values lessen. Here in Washington, serious crimes seldom make news. They are routinely covered in the small type used for classified ads: Raped Yesterday. Mugged Last Night.

These changing influences and attitudes are not easily pinned down. Hoover's annual report suggests a number of other causes, more directly in point. Three of these merit special attention: The increasing burdens piled on police, the failure of our prison system as an instrument of rehabilitation, and the easy availability of handguns.

Police continue to do fairly well in solving crimes against the person — murder, rape, and assault. But they do steadily worse in solving crimes against property.

Taking all crimes together, only one offense in five is cleared by arrest. Part of this poor record, as Hoover tersely remarks, is owing to court decisions that have needlessly fettered police in obtaining admissible evidence. A larger problem is that our cities have failed to expand their police departments to keep pace with rising levels of crime.

As Hoover's report makes clear, a vast deal of serious crime is the work of repeaters — of professional criminals who make a career of crime. Our present system of criminal justice plainly is ineffective against these offenders. A follow-up study of 3,145 convicts, released from Federal prisons in 1963, presumably rehabilitated and ready to rejoin society, discloses that 76 per cent of them had been rearrested by the end of 1969. Prison had done nothing for them, or for (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Flimflammers Busy

(Washington Daily News)

Let a fellow get a few bucks in his pocket, and it seems that there is another fellow close by ready to figure out some way to get them.

The old adage says "a fool and his money are soon parted." While the content of the adage has a brutal ring, the bare fact is that it is still better to be safe than sorry. If it takes a little brutal talk to cause people to listen, then it should be made.

The Better Business bureau of North Carolina along with several chambers of commerce and law enforcement agencies are sending out numerous warnings right now about flimflammers.

And people seeking to rob other people by sly means are rampant in many places. They pull all sorts of ruses to get a man's money.

The latest plan we know of is taking place, it appears, on various tobacco markets in the state which have already opened. A so-called "team" of experts calls on some tobacco farmer who has just received his check after selling his tobacco. This "team" through a quick-tongued spokesman, impresses upon the farmer the dire necessity of having his lightning rods recharged. And when they are through with the spiel, we are told that men will actually go to a farmer's house and go through some sort of process whereby they guarantee that the lightning rods on the man's house are amply recharged. And for their services they exact a handsome fee.

If anyone reading this fails to understand, there is no such thing as "recharging lightning rods."

It is a pure flimflam trick, and while this is just one of the many ruses which might be pulled, all our people should be warned not to warm up to any proposition made by strangers. They might be completely honest, but then they also might be "lightning rod rechargers" or go around under some other designation.

The "quick sell" is the tragic sell also. Paying for lightning rods to be recharged falls into the same category as buying the Brooklyn bridge.

In all walks of life let us be on guard. Let us be on guard on warehouse floors, on the streets, and wherever we might be.

If there is any lightning rod discharging to be done, let the judge do it in meting out sentences for those found guilty of such acts.

Facts Are Gold To Marketers

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — It may not particularly concern you that the average French family has more children than the average Italian family or that one-fifth of Swedish households contain only one person.

Or, for that matter, that only 38 per cent of France's Catholics went to church last Christmas or that the average Briton drinks only 1.696 cups of tea a year, or 400 fewer than a decade ago.

But facts such as these are gold to a marketing man, or at least they are convertible to gold, for he is the man who must tell the sales force how to utilize statistics in the interest of profits.

Realizing that a comprehensive marketing survey of all 16 nations of Western Europe had never been made, The Reader's Digest commissioned 14 research firms to conduct hourlong interviews with 17,500 adults, a cross-section of 320 million people.

The survey revealed marked changes in living patterns during the past 20 years as material prosperity spread throughout the continent. Wages are rising. More than 50 per cent of families have cars. And the urbanization of population grows even more concentrated.

Housing has improved greatly, but postwar rebuilding projects have not eliminated notable slums in Britain, France and Italy, and housing shortages still exist in many countries.

The survey's 55,000 separate findings, says the Digest, are expected to be a boon to government planners, sociologists, economists, marketing teachers and forecasters of all kinds. Facts such as these: —Forty-three per cent of French families live in houses built before 1900

Resorts Aren't Singing Blues

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Businessmen frown at the mention of this summer's economic slowdown, but people in North Carolina's travel and tourist industry laugh right out loud.

They're not singing the blues. They're humming along with cash registers jingling the sweet music of their biggest season ever.

It's a Tar Heel tune. Many resort and travel attractions in other states have glum reports of traffic off from last year.

State Travel and Promotion Director Bill F. Hensley, serving this year as president of the Council of State Travel Directors' membership representing the 50 states and five U.S. Possessions, heard his colleagues bemoaning a slow season and blaming the downturn in the national economy.

To size up the Tar Heel situation, he ran a spot check recently on mountain-to-coast locations. The general verdict: better than last year.

Promotion Pays Off

"It proves what we've been preaching," said Hensley. "We've got what it takes to stay on top — the great attractions, the scenery and friendly people, the variety in things to see and do — everything that makes North Carolina a natural for vacationtime."

It's proof, too, of the selling job performed by Hensley and his staff, with the active cooperation of the Travel Council of North Carolina, and others interested in boosting the tourist industry.

The state has won awards recognizing its travel promotion efforts as tops in the country, but everyone agrees the real pay-off is the tempo of business at the height of the summer season.

Last year 38 million visitors spent $752 million in North Carolina, making travel the state's third most important source of income.

Jim Gauthier of Brevard, Travel Council president, said the fact that North Carolina is enjoying a good summer of travel business while other states are lagging shows movement towards realization of the full potential of the travel industry.

"It's unlimited," he said. "There's a good possibility that travel will be the state's most important industry in a few years.

"Our objective is to make it a year-round thing across the state, so that North Carolina will be the destination of tourists regardless of the calendar."

Strides in that direction have been made in recent years with the development of ski resorts and other mountain wintertime activity. Mid-South golf in the Sandhills always has beckoned in late winter and spring. Coastal beaches more and more attract visitors to the fall for fishing and sightseeing.

Still, it's the summer vacation season that counts, if you don't make it big then, it can be rough the rest of the year.

Vacationing at Home

Both North Carolinians and out-of-state visitors are contributing to the brisk pace of this summer's business. "There's no way to separate them, of course," said Hensley, "but I'm convinced both are a factor."

Tar Heels are becoming aware of what their own state offers, and vacationing at home, he said. Folks from the mountains are discovering the coast, and easterners are going west for the variety of attractions there.

Through the years, the Travel Council has been an

Strength For Today

The Way To Release

Scientists are telling us that "at least one million earthquakes may occur annually, with some one hundred and fifty thousand being of 'substantial intensity.' There is no place on the earth which is immune to earthquakes of destructive violence.

But of all the earthquakes going on about us in the physical world the most important earthquakes are those which occur within our own lives. There are over four hundred earth tremors every day according to scientific instruments. Earthquakes within the human heart and mind continually wracking us and turning us upside down emotionally are as numerous as world population.

Some of us whose recollections go back a considerable length of time are quite sure that we have never encountered situations as important and breathtaking as those through which the human race is passing at the present time. To riots, strikes and wide-spread protest in which millions are taking part we have to add drug addiction slaying its victims by the tens of thousands. Legal enactments have their place in this situation, and we should be alert to see that "pushers" and other criminally-minded persons get what is coming to them.

But this will not bring back those who have died and others who are experiencing a living death because of addiction. We cannot escape life's realities by turning to drugs or anything else which we feel will make us immune to suffering. Scientific medicine, plenty of religious faith, a solemn apprehension of evil as it presents itself in the world — all this points the way to release, redemption, salvation in the best sense of the term.

(Color-Blindness)

How much do you know about color-blindness? All colors we see are composed of the three primary light colors—red, green and violet. The cones and nerve connections in our eyes allow us to see these colors.

Some persons are not able to see colors combined from the three primaries. These persons are called color-blind.

The term "color-blind" is itself misleading. Nearly all color-blind persons do see many colors. However, red looks green and vice versa.

About four per cent of all men are color-blind. In women only about four-tenths of one percent are afflicted.

Color-blindness is incurable.

position. Having toted up the figures to find that the bill adds $40 million in annual state spending, Evans wrote a sharp letter to Secretary Richardson and all his fellow Governors.

Open Republican opposition increased as the Governors conference convened. On NBC's "Meet the Press," the bill was sharply attacked by moderate Gov. Norbert Tiemann of Nebraska (whose state welfare experts estimate the program would enlarge Nebraska's welfare rolls by 100 percent). Blunt-spoken Gov. Richard Ogilvie, a staunch Nixon loyalist, arrived here to warn that new welfare regulations threaten "to bankrupt us in Illinois."

Only party loyalty has prevented sharper outbursts. Undeniably, further escalation in the high cost of welfare is what really bothers Republican Governors here — far more than irritation that neither President Nixon nor Vice President Agnew is attending the Governors conference, than over-publicized bickering about lack of liaison with the White House, than pain caused by continued cutbacks in Federal highway funds. The Administration is deeply concerned.

It is still looking ahead, said Gaither. Plans are in the making for a Governor's Travel Seminar Conference this fall, perhaps in Winston-Salem, with national reputation speakers on travel development. Short, two-day travel missions to nearby states are in the discussion stage.

Another goal is to persuade the 1971 General Assembly to set up a system under which local areas could vote on serving mixed alcoholic beverages — more commonly known as liquor — by the drink. A euphemistically titled "Right to Vote Committee," headed by Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Linville, has the assignment. "Virginia has such a system, and it has been highly successful," said Gaither. "I've talked to people in the travel business there and they are well pleased. They feel like it has been a great help for convention business and tourists."

society either. As for handguns, the grim record grows worse. Hoover is no nut on gun laws; neither, I hope, am I. But when 67 police officers are slain in a single year by criminals using handguns, and when nearly 9,000 persons are murdered in this period by firearms, common sense cries out for better control on the transfer of these weapons and the sale of ammunition for them.

These few paragraphs barely skim Hoover's 1969 report. For any serious student of American life, the book is a valuable reference tool. It can be had for $1.50 from the Government Printing Office here in Washington.

GOP Campaigners Told Profits In Veto Strategy

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (AP) — A White House emissary has told Republican campaigners not to fret at the prospect that Congress might override President Nixon's veto of budget-raising money bills, advising them that the move will pay GOP political dividends anyway.

Democratic governors charged that the vetoes of education and housing appropriations were part of a GOP political strategy designed to put the blame for inflation on Congress.

Herbert G. Klein, director of communications for the administration, said the move was vital for the sake of the economy—and will win voter support.

"Politically, the public will support the President when the public is so very conscious of increased prices," Klein said after a political strategy session with 15 GOP governors and five state house candidates.

He said that will be true even if the Democratic-controlled Congress musters the votes to override Nixon on either or both of the vetoes.

At the windup business session of their 62nd national conference Wednesday, the nation's governors got word that one of their favorite financial proposals, for a state share of federal revenues, may receive at least preliminary consideration in Congress.

Illinois' Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, said Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., had sent word that his House Ways and Means Committee would hold hearings on a Nixon revenue-sharing proposal.

The governors voted to lobby with "every means available toward the immediate and favorable enactment of revenue sharing."

They named a committee headed by Gov. Robert W. Scott of North Carolina to decide how to go about it.

On an issue shelved amid earlier controversy, the conference dismissed the protests of highway interests and voted to seek state authority to spend a portion of federal road-building aid for other modes of transportation, such as rapid transit systems.

Dealing with disorders on the campus and in cities, the governors adopted a statement declaring:

"We condemn the excesses of lawlessness on all sides, be it by those who are called upon to keep or restore the peace.

"We affirm that the first responsibility of the peace-keepers is to protect the safety and lives of all those involved," their policy statement said.

To that was added, at the behest of Democratic Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi, "However, we recognize also the correlative right of the peacekeepers ... to use such force as may be necessary for their own self-protection."

Assessing the significance of Nixon's vetoes, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, chairman of the GOP governors, said, "The President called the bluffs of those in Congress who are attempting to embarrass him by adding money that would feed the fires of inflation."

Shafer said the embarrassment was the motive of Democrats—but not Republicans—who voted for the two spending bills.

Harry Dent, a Nixon political adviser, told the governors the President has no present plans for overt political campaigning in the state and congressional elections this fall.

"The President felt that he could be most helpful to candidates of our party just by doing a good job as president," Shafer said Dent reported. But Shafer also said Nixon plans to continue his periodic trips to confer with state and local officials away from Washington.

Shafer said the GOP governors consider those trips politically helpful.

New Jersey's Republican Gov. William T. Cahill, said in an interview—he regretted the education bill veto. Cahill, for whom Nixon campaigned in person a year ago, said he understood the reasons, but added:

"I think there could be different priorities. I regret that there has been an attempt to reduce the amount available for education."

Maryland's Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel said he doesn't think a GOP campaign attempt to fix the blame for inflation on Congress would succeed. "I don't think you can fool the people with these devices," he said.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, the Missouri Democrat elected to take over as chairman of the governors conference, charged that "political strategy" was Nixon's motive.

"He's going to try to convince the voters that Congress is responsible for inflation," Hearnes said. But he acknowledged that the Democratic-controlled Congress also had some political motives in passing the two bills to push spending beyond the budget.

New Rioting Prevented By Troops, Barricades

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer
LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — Roman Catholics in Londonderry battled British troops for four hours early today, but the troops and barricades of barbed wire prevented a repetition of last year's bloody Aug. 12 religious warfare.

line bombs.

Crouching behind riot shields, the troops fired about 50 rounds of their latest antiriot weapon—six-inch rubber bullets intended to cripple the legs. They scattered the rioters for only a brief time. The rioters regrouped for another round, and the soldiers responded with volleys of tear gas, filling the winding streets with clouds of choking smoke.

Three soldiers and one civilian were reported injured: Casualties among the rioters were not known. The Catholics have their own first aid stations deep inside their district.

The riot was a backlash reaction to the parade through Londonderry Tuesday of more than 6,000 Protestant men who marched in bowler hats and gaudy sashes to drum and fife commemorating the lifting of a Catholic siege of Londonderry in 1689.

Last year's parade touched off fighting between the Bogside and the Protestants which spread across Northern Ireland and has broken out again and again since, with more than a score killed and hundreds wounded.

This year, double barricades of barbed wire and thousands of troops and police kept the Catholics away from the parading Protestants. Although the government had banned the parade, the security forces did not try to stop the marchers because there was no confrontation between the two religious factions.

Sir Arthur Young, Northern Ireland's chief of police, said it was the attorney general's responsibility to "decide what is a procession." He said the names of some of the marchers had been recorded, and the attorney general would decide whether they should be prosecuted.

Only two brief incidents were reported.

One casualty of the day was a visitor from the Irish Republic, Conor Cruise O'Brien, the expert on Africa and the United Nations, critic of U.S. foreign policy and member of the Irish Parliament. Gangs of Protestants set on him twice and beat him up. He said he got "a few busted ribs," and the police gave him a protective guard.

In London, Scotland Yard refused to comment on newspaper reports that sabotage experts of the outlawed Irish Republican Army plan to blow up seven military bases in England.

The reports said an IRA team would attempt to block delivery of arms and ammunition to British troops in Northern Ireland, and their chief target was the factory in Surrey that makes the CS nausea gas the troops are using in Northern Ireland.

In addition to the barn fires, two house fires, one in a mobile home, were reported by Worthington.

These were: On August 9 at 11:35 a.m., a trailer home belonging to Leroy Everett, located on Road 1247 one and one half miles east of Falkland, caught fire. Worthington stated the fire apparently started from something left cooking on the stove which sent flames into the cabinet area. Heavy damage was reported for the kitchen and living room area, with damage to the $7,000 trailer estimated at $2,000. Firemen from Falkland sent two trucks and Belvoir sent one. A new brick home, located five feet from the burning trailer, was saved from damage by firemen.

On August 10, at 10:21 a.m., the Ralph Pollard home north of Belvoir on Road 1400 was reported afire. Worthington stated the fire apparently began from wiring in the ceiling. Considerable damage was caused to the attic, but the house was saved. Belvoir and Bethel answered the alarm. Damage has been estimated at $800.

Ayden Board To Assist Project

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board Monday night agreed to assist the Ayden Housing Authority in paying the interest on the proposed public housing project for the town.

Clay Stroud, director of the authority, and J. D. Dennis, chairman of the authority, appeared before the board to seek assistance from the board.

The maximum interest rate the Housing Authority can pay is six percent. The federal government is currently lending money at 6.38 percent and the town's share will be that over six percent.

The board heard from Bob Booth, town attorney, in reference to a petition submitted to the board on July 13 in which local citizens were seeking to have the proposed public housing for Ayden relocated.

The board had approved earlier the purchase of the Stancill Sumrell property for the housing project.

In Booth's opinion as town attorney, the Board of Commissioners has no authority to decide on the matter presented in the petition.

The board declared a 1968 Chevrolet police vehicle as surplus property and voted to take sealed bids on the car. The bids will be opened Aug. 21 to 10 a.m. in the town office.

The board set Sept. 14 as the date for a public hearing to consider the annexation of the property owned by Jesse Cannon and Leroy Cherry. The property is located east of East Avenue and south of Edge Rd.

The hearing will be part of the regular board meeting which begins at 7:30 p.m. in the town office.

Town Manager Pete Vandenberg and Police Chief James

Ross were appointed to the East Law Enforcement Planning Division. Board members accepted the final plat of Phase I of the Belair Estates Subdivision. The plat consists of 10 lots.

Actress And Director Here To Introduce Film

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Corinne Shull has lost her southern accent but not her southern warmth, according to her director, Albert T. Viola.

This quality was exactly what won her a leading role in his film, "Interplay" which will premiere at the State Theater here today, he said.

"I chose Corinne for one of the three major parts out of about a hundred girls because of the compassion and genuineness I sensed in her personality when she read a portion of the script for me during our first interview. Working with her three months on making the movie proved I wasn't wrong. For all her glamour and good looks, she comes through to the audience as a real person."

"Al really is serious about trying to immediately sum up my personality as well as my acting ability," Corinne said. "A large part of my work is interviews—lining up jobs - and I've been to as many as ten or 11 in a day, but I've never had a director take as much time with me as Al did. Most directors will hand you a script, perhaps tell you, 'This is a wife, a suburban housewife who's in love with her husband' and you start reading. Al spent about 45 minutes conversing and telling me about the character and the situation. By the time we had finished he knew about me and I had a feeling for the part."

Corinne was born in Bristol, Va., just outside North Carolina, but she has lived in this state most of her life. Her parents moved to Boone when she was four years old. They operated a summer resort at Blowing Rock and it was there that she attended grammar school.

Is An R.N.
She has a B. S. in nursing from the Presbyterian School of Nursing in Charlotte which is combined with Queens College there. She said she was a nurse in Charlotte and in Miami and has worked in some New York hospitals to support herself while she sought work as an actress here.

"I loved nursing, but acting and modeling have always held an attraction for me," she said. "I figure one should try to do well anything he is good at, so I decided to try to begin my acting and modeling career while I'm young. I may go back to nursing later and I hope to find a man to love and be loved by and have a family later on, also. In the meantime, I will do my utmost to be successful in this field."

The statuesque blond is five feet, eight inches tall and has a 23½-inch waistline. A high protein diet is her secret, she said.

Her first experience with "the big time" came while she was nursing at Mount Sinai Hospital in Miami and taking acting and modeling lessons, also. She met Jackie Gleason and was featured in a widely used dog food commercial with him.

Making commercials, posing for photographers, and playing on afternoon "soap operas" still sustains her financially, she said. "All My Children" is one soap opera she has appeared on lately.

"The soaps provide work for a lot of actors and actresses while they aim for bigger things," Viola said. "What are they paid, Corinne?"

"About $750 a week, or more if they are regulars according to the value of their roles," she answered. "Commercials pay well also," she said. "For instance, a hand model would receive $79 an hour for making a dishwashing detergent commercial. There are set rates."

"Interplay" has provided Corinne with her best movie role so far she feels, but it is not her first. She appeared in Mary McCarthy's "The Group" and in "A Fine Madness" with Sean Connery and had an important part in "The Producers" with Dick Shawn and Zero Mostel.

The theme of "Interplay," according to Viola is a woman's struggle for identity and integrity in a morally decaying world. Miss Zee Wilson plays a wife trying to preserve her marriage in spite of her husband's bizarre ideas about sex. Corinne is cast as his secretary.

The photography is directed by 29-year-old Jack Malick, who has won an academy award for his special effects photography in "A Space Odyssey: 2001 A.D."

New Talent
This is Times Films Corporation's first effort to produce a quality film with new talent in the cast and doing the technical work. Viola was recruited for his debut as a director from the Village Drama Workshop and the Triangle Drama Center. He was the founder of both. A San Antonio, Tex. native, he appeared on Broadway in such plays as "The Balcony" — 560 performances, "MacBeth," "Daughter of Silence," and "Much Ado About Nothing."

"I like acting, but I have more drive to accomplish in directing," he said. "Life's too short not to do what you want to do and to try to do it well. I could have made more money on a three-day put together porno film, whereas 'Interplay' took a year and a half to make. I would never compromise by making a second-rate movie."

Corinne has strong ideas about compromise, also. "I have been offered as much as $250 an hour to pose for nude still pictures and as much as $5,000 for a few days of work on a quickly - and poorly made nude film," she said. "I would never do either because it would violate my code of conduct and probably label me, too."

"Interplay" has received an x-rating which Viola contends is unwarranted. "The theme admittedly is adult," he said, "but there is no cursing, no frontal nudity, and no violence." He named several films made by big-name companies having both sex and violence which have received R (restricted) and even GP (for general audiences with parental guidance) ratings.

"Interplay's" x-label is being appealed, Viola said. Some 15 simultaneous showings in Eastern North Carolina will be the first to the public anywhere. Movie going seems to be a way of life here," Viola commented, "which is why we chose this area to try our film out. Some three percent of the money grossed by movies comes from eastern North and South Carolina."

The film has been shown before only at the Cannes Film Festival in the South of France and at the Berlin Film Festival, both times by invitation, of course.

Examiner Asks They Be Rehired

SPRUCE PINE, N. C. (AP)—Alvin Lieberman, trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board, has recommended that the Lawson - United Feldspar and Mineral Co. be ordered to rehire employees who were replaced during a strike.

Lieberman also recommended that the firm give the rehired employees back pay for time lost. The workers had not been given their jobs following a strike last year by the Textile Workers Union of America.

The examiner upheld the company's position on charges it fired three employees because of union activities. But he warned it against attempts to discourage union membership.

Either the company or the union may appeal the decision to the NLRB.

Youths Charged With Larceny

Two teenagers were taken into custody this morning and charged with a 6:37 a.m. robbery at Riggs Gulf Station on Dickinson Avenue.

The larceny was reported at 6:37 a.m. Police quoted station attendants as saying two youths came into the station and took money from the cash register while station employees were away from the cash register.

Charged with the incident were James Brown, 17 and Radel Jones, 16. The two were placed in Pitt County Jail about 8:15 a.m.

N.C. Firm Adopts Guaranteed Wage

MEBANE, N. C. (AP)—The hourly employes of Universal Textured Yarns, Inc., at Mebane and Booneville will receive a guaranteed annual wage, the company said Wednesday.

Officials of the nonunionized firm, which processes filament acetate, nylon and polyester into products for clothing manufacturers, would not say how much the average employe will make. The company said full details of the arrangement will be announced to the workers before the effective date of Aug. 31. Workers with more than three years' tenure will be affected. The company has about 700 employes.

Jerry Armstrong, assistant to the president, said he knew of no other textile firm with similar plans.

"We've been working on this for a couple of years," he said.

"We want to do this; we're going to do it."

A statement from the firm's president, G. Allen Mebane, was posted on bulletin boards at both plants. It said, "In the past, management (of textile companies) has made decisions, which while not adversely affecting the income of salaried personnel, has had a definite detrimental effect on the income of the hourly paid workers through no fault of his own.

"Universal Textile Yarns believes that the hourly worker cannot meet his year round responsibilities as a wage earner if he must be laid off in accordance with the seasonal requirements of the textile industry."

The announcement also said a pay increase averaging 6 percent would be given hourly employes, beginning Aug. 31.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets stronger Wednesday, supplies adequate, demand fair to good. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:

Grade A large whites: 42½ to 43; medium, whites: 35 to 35½; small, whites: 24½ to 26.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market seemed to be sinking from its own lack of momentum as prices sagged further today in slow trading.

At 11 a.m. the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slid 1.64 point to 709.00.

Declines led advances almost 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

With the market offering such an instimulating performance in the last few days the analysts found themselves looking to the future to see what course lay ahead. Some said if the market was currently in a base-building phase as it seemed to be at present, then it was quite possible a full rally could be in the offing.

Summrell . . .

both hands on my gun to keep him from getting it. I had been knocked to the ground. Then someone held me and someone kicked me . . . in the neck and head . . . from the waist up.

"I was lying down. Jerome Streeter was over me. He had his hands over my hands on my gun."

The officer said Streeter left him there.

"Julius was no more than 10 feet away . . . both fists clinched. I got back on my feet. I had been beaten. I was hurting. My clothes partially torn off of me."

"I felt like . . . how do you describe about dying?"

"He (Summrell) started back toward me. I pulled my service revolver and fired six times."

"Summrell was advancing toward me from a distance of no more than 10 feet. I fired six times, unloaded and loaded three more rounds."

"I never saw him after I started firing," Phillips concluded.

"The first defense witness, Summrell's mother, Mrs. Olivia Streeter, said she never heard the officer place her son under arrest, but said Phillips, after urging Summrell to quiet down, did telephone for a warrant for disorderly conduct."

"She said her son said 'I'm going to get some help before the warrant gets here,' and started out."

"She pleaded with the officer, Mrs. Streeter, Mrs. Streeter said, to let Summrell go get help."

"He (Phillips) then grabbed his blackjack like a wild man," Mrs. Streeter testified, and the scuffling began.

"I didn't see him take the blackjack away or hit Phillips," Mrs. Streeter said.

Jerome Streeter, who testified this morning, said he witnessed Phillips and Summrell scuffling in the parking lot in front of the hospital as he arrived to find out his brother's condition.

"They started tussling again and fell to the ground, my brother on top of officer Phillips," Streeter said.

He then said he got his brother off the officer and "left the officer on the ground." Streeter then said as he and Summrell walked away from the officer, Phillips began firing.

No testimony was offered by the state as to how many times Summrell was struck or where he was wounded. Streeter said Summrell was shot twice, "in the back and in the wrist . . . in the wrist the second time."

In his argument before the court, chief district prosecutor Eli Bloom, who earlier termed the case "just another case where a man is charged with a minor offense," said if Phillips had "wanted to shoot him (Summrell), he could have shot him 15 times" before the actual shooting.

"The officer was in a dazed condition."

And addressing Paul, Bloom said the state was prepared to tender 17 witnesses "none of whom would have helped your man. I did not call them because I was not going to let you go on a fishing expedition and made a three-ring circus out of this."

"The officer was trying to protect his own life which he had a right to do."

Judge Roberts, prior to entering his guilty verdict, told the court, "We are not trying the officer or trying to determine whether his actions was proper or whether he used good

Stand With Summrell

D. D. Garrett, president of the Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), today released a statement saying the U. S. Justice Department would be called in on behalf of Stewart Summrell.

This and other actions resulted from a special meeting held last night by the NAACP Executive Committee following a call by Garrett for the meeting.

Other actions taken at the meeting and announced by Garrett are:

"The North Carolina branch and the national association of the NAACP would be invited into Greenville and Pitt County."

"The Pitt County branch is pledging its full support to see that justice prevails and those who violate the rights of others are punished," and,

"We are not going back — every step must be forward."

Offer Improved Terms For Fla. Citrus Workers

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Coca-Cola Co. has announced plans to improve wages and benefits for its full-time citrus workers in Florida and to initiate a program that may give migrant workers full-time employment.

Wage increases will average 23 per cent, an increase of about $17 weekly, for 300 full-time citrus workers, said J. Lucian Smith, president of the company's foods division.

The company told a Senate subcommittee last month that it was considering such a plan. The subcommittee was looking into working conditions of migrant farm laborers.

Smith said the company also plans to begin a pilot training program to enable migrant farm workers to become full-time employees.

KILLED IN ACTION

judgment or bad judgment," but instead, was trying Summrell, who "uncontested and un-denied" was under arrest when the scuffling began.

At the onset of the trial, Judge Roberts denied a defense motion requesting a bench warrant be issued for Phillips for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Paris Concert By Young N.C. Chorus

PARIS (AP) — About 50 members of the Good News Singers from central North Carolina gave up a free night in Paris and sang for some 1,500 poor and elderly people Wednesday night at the Nanterre Hospice.

"It was probably the most enthusiastic audience we have had since we left the United States," said the Rev. Vam Ramsey, the group's leader.

The concert at the suburban institution, where about 5,000 aged and underprivileged persons are housed, was not on the choir's schedule. But when word came that a concert would be appreciated, there were many volunteers.

"We could only take 50 because that's all the stage would hold," the Rev. Ramsey said. "We hired a bus and the members of the choir 'chipped in' to pay for it. During the last number—Aquarius—about half the singers left the stage and filtered down among the audience, shaking hands. The people really appreciated that. They called us back for four or five encores."

Later, a reception was held for the 137 singers. They flew back to the United States today after a tour of England, Russia and France. Wednesday afternoon they gave a concert in the Luxembourg Gardens on the Left Bank in Paris.

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed a $3.2 billion bill providing an 11 per cent increase in disability benefits to veterans.

The measure is $218 million more than Nixon asked, and he said Wednesday he would offset the overflow by ordering reductions in spending by several agencies, including the Atomic Energy Commission.

The President said "Benefits for our two million disabled veterans have lagged behind the rise in the cost of living. This bill will allow them to catch up."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee wants to slow down the drive for action on the House-approved constitutional amendment to guarantee equal rights to women.

The committee approved Wednesday a motion by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., to ask the Senate leadership to permit the panel to conduct hearings on the amendment.

The motion stipulated that the committee would act by Sept. 19.

A dissenting member, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., declared that "further hearings are totally unnecessary."

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., earlier had obtained unanimous consent of the Senate to have the measure bypass the committee.

The amendment already has 83 Senate sponsors.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a bill which would give President Nixon temporary authority to impose wage, price and rent controls.

Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, charged that the action Wednesday was designed purely to embarrass the President.

"This is entirely political," said Bennett. "It is very interesting that the authority expires in six months—or right after the November elections."

"The President has made it entirely clear he does not believe such controls are the way to meet the inflation problem, and that he has no intention of using them."

Area Survey Favor Another Grant Made Dumping Site

A grant to assess the public attitudes and opinions about mental health problems of the children of Pitt County has been made to Mrs. Ann Davis, mental health planner for the Coastal Plain Mental Health Center here.

With the grant of $9,600, which was made by the North Carolina Department of Mental Health, information will be obtained from the public, also, about their knowledge and use of available resources and their opinions about the development of new programs in the area.

Approximately 700 randomly selected residents of the county will be asked to participate in the study, which will last several weeks. Those questioned are urged to fully express their views and opinions so the Mental Health Center can better plan and develop useful programs for children and families in this area, Mrs. Davis said.

Pickets Protest Case-Handling

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Twenty black youths, most of them high school pupils, picketed the Education Center Wednesday in protest of the way the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school desegregation case has been handled.

The center contains the school system's administrative offices. Placards carried by some of the protesters said, "Whites can be bused just like us," and "It's time for a new bag — desegregata now."

RALEIGH (AP) — An advisory committee to Gov. Bob Scott will ask him to request that the Army relocate its planned dumping site for deadly nerve gas.

The Governor's Advisory Committee on Economics and Environment voted Wednesday to make the recommendation to Scott, who was attending the National Governors Conference in Missouri.

The committee also named a subcommittee to find out what information he has on Army plans, which call for loading the obsolete nerve gas on a ship at Sunny Point, N.C., and scuttling the ship 282 miles off the Florida coast.

Two trains carrying 2,675 tons of the gas arrived at Sunny Point Tuesday night and early Wednesday.

In taking its action the committee toned down considerably recommendations made by Dr. James H. Bearden of East Carolina University, its vice chairman.

Bearden had asked that North Carolina join in a suit brought by Florida Gov. Claude Kirk seeking a delay in the dumping. He also had asked that the

Asks Policy On N.C. Land Use

RALEIGH (AP) — Roy Sowers Jr., director of the Department of Conservation and Development, wants a policy statement on land use in North Carolina to clear up public misunderstanding.

Sowers asked the Governor's Advisory Committee on Economics and Environment, which he heads, to come up with the statement.

At a meeting Wednesday he told the committee, "Some people think they are being advised as to how to use their land and what should be grown on it."

He stressed that the committee "does not want to go into the private enterprise sector" in suggesting land use.

Would Give Surplus Land

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians in North Carolina would receive 8.1 acres of surplus federal land under a bill approved Wednesday by the House Interior Committee.

The bill also would authorize transfer of any other federal property in the reservation when it becomes surplus.

Army be asked to send a representative to appear before the committee and explain details of the dumping.

Gov. Scott said in a statement several days ago that he was satisfied with the safety of the Army's plans to move the nerve gas through North Carolina for disposal at sea.

Bearden said, "North Carolina has tremendous stakes in the dumping." In arguing against the Army's plan, he noted that the Gulf Stream flows between North Carolina and "that dump," and the Gulf Stream is one of the "main currents coming into our state."

"If there is any disaster we're in direct channel to receive it."

But State Rep. Howard Peton Jr. of Wilmington defended the Army. "You've got to have confidence in the professional Army," he said.

"The governor must have had a great deal of confidence in the Army's information and I think they should go ahead and get rid of it — it's now in my home territory."

Convicted Boy Faces 2nd Trial

CHARLOTTE (AP) — An 18-year-old Charlotte youth was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon by a Superior Court Jury Wednesday in the 1969 shooting of a pupil from a rival high school. The youth, Kim Lamar Hunt, was acquitted of the more serious charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in the wounding of George DeWitt Jones.

Judge Harry C. Martin delayed sentencing.

The shooting death of another pupil in the same incident was not at issue in the trial. Hunt faces a second trial on second-degree murder charges in that death because the jury in the first trial was unable to reach a verdict.

The shootings occurred after the youths had gathered late at night at a filling station near a shopping center.

Babe Ruth Takes Win In The Eighth Inning

Greenville went into extra innings again last night but this time there was a different outcome. The All-Stars beat Georgia in eight innings to advance to the finals against East Nashville, the team that defeated them earlier. This made the second game that Georgia had lost so they headed home after the ball game.

Greenville started their scoring in the first inning. Barwick reached on a fielders choice. Lee singled and Daniels hit into a fielders choice but the play was errored and Barwick scored.

In the third Wilkerson walked and Barwick's fielders choice was errored, Lee doubled and both runners scored. Lee scored when Daniels fly ball was errored and Daniels scored on a sacrifice fly by Stanley Cobb.

The fourth brought in two more runs for the All-Stars. Barwick singled and then stole second, Lee doubled to left and Daniels singled to right scoring a run. Sugg singled and advance to third and scored.

In the fifth Wilkerson singled and stole second, Barwick walked and Sugg walked, loading the bases. Daniels fly ball was errored and two runs scored. Greenville scored one more in the eighth that proved to be the winning run. Jones walked Bailey sacrificed him to second, Caraway hit a slow roller towards first and it required the pitcher to go to first to make the play. While all this was going on Jones was rounding third and came in with the winning run.

Georgia scored in the first also. Whitehead singled and then advance to third and scored.

Collins sacrifice. In the third Whitehead walked, Dimitri and Collins walked and then Taylor hit a triple scoring all three runners.

In the fifth Whitehead singled and Dimitri tripled scoring Whitehead, the third baseman errored the throw-in and Dimitri scored. Phillips got an infield hit and Corbett doubled to right. Freeman, a pinch hitter, came up and hit a three run homer.

Smith got on by way of error and Dimitri singled him in with the tying run.

Greenville has got to win two games tonight to win the tournament. The games will be played at 7:00 our time, if there is a need for a second game it will be played after the first one.

Ingram Begins Workouts

CLEMSON, S. C. (AP)—New Clemson University football Coach Cecil (Hootie) Ingram will begin football workouts Saturday with a squad of 95, including 38 lettermen.

The players are due in tonight and will have physical exams and picture taking sessions Friday. They register for classes Saturday.

Although Ingram will start with two sessions Saturday, they may be his last twice-a-day rehearsals as classes start next week.

Afternoon workouts then will be the regular order.

While Ingram was getting ready to receive his players, Athletic Director Frank Howard announced the addition of William Andrew Clawson as an assistant trainer. The Ada, Okla., native has been trainer at Henderson State College in Arkansas, from which he was graduated.

In addition to the lettermen, Ingram will be counting on sophomore support from players on last fall's 5-0 freshman team. The varsity was 4-6 under Howard.

All Atlantic Coast Conference halfback fullback Ray Yauger, a senior, heads the returning starters. Yauger rushed for 968 yards and scored 68 points last year.

Quarterback Tommy Kendrick, ends John McMakin and Jim Sursavage; tackles Jim Dorn and Steve Lewter, and center Dave Thompson are the other returning starters on offense.

Starting defensive tackle Waldo Watts has been shifted to offense.

Returning defensive starters are backs Dale Henry, Sonny Cassidy and Don Kelley, middle guard B. B. Elvington, tackle Ralph Daniel and end George Ducworth.

Pirate Loses Game Of Tag — Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman Ted Sizemore relays ball to pitcher Bill Singer in a successful run down of Pittsburgh Pirate Matty Alou in Wednesday night's game.

Oakland May Win Pennant

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Only last weekend the Oakland Athletics were being counted out as serious pennant contenders in the American League West. Today, however, they're camping on the doorstep of first-place Minnesota, thanks in part to Campy Campaneris.

Five games ago the A's were third, 10 games back. But since the Twins have dropped every game they've played while Oakland has captured them all, including Wednesday night's 11-4 sheeling of Cleveland which, coupled with Minnesota's 5-3 loss to Washington, eased the A's within five games of the top.

Campaneris, the Oakland shortstop whose real first name is Bert, led the assault against the Indians, smacking four hits — one of them a triple — and scoring four runs. Frank Fernandez contributed a three-run homer.

A manager John McNamara said he "thought it was going to be one of those games" after the Indians grabbed a quick 4-1 lead. "We used up three pitchers in three innings."

"Bob Locker did a great job," McNamara said of the veteran right-handed reliever who blanked Cleveland through the final 5-2-3 frames.

In Wednesday night's other American League action, Baltimore nipped California 5-4. Milwaukee stunned Detroit 6-5, the Chicago White Sox trimmed the New York Yankees 5-1 and Kansas City split a two-night doubleheader with Boston, winning the nightcap 4-3 after the Red Sox took the opener 7-4.

In the National League, the New York Mets edged Cincinnati 2-1. Los Angeles bombed Pittsburgh 11-4. Atlanta outlasted Montreal 8-7. Houston blanked Philadelphia 4-0. San Francisco turned back the Chicago Cubs 6-3 and St. Louis squeezed by San Diego 5-4 in 14 innings.

Frank Howard's 31st home run and Mike Epstein's 15th, both two-run blasts, gave Washington its triumph over the reeling Twins, who managed just eight hits off Jim Hannan, 8-5, and reliever Joe Grzenda.

Andy Etchebarren drilled a two-run single in Baltimore's four-run fourth, then unloaded his second homer of the year leading off the seventh to pace the Baltimore attack that dropped California 1 1/2 games behind the A's.

Milwaukee erupted for four runs in the eighth inning with pinch-hitter Bernie Smith getting the decisive blow, a bases-loaded two-run double that capped the rally. Don Wert hit his sixth homer of the year for Detroit.

Ed Herrmann of the White Sox and Roy White of the Yankees traded solo homers but it was Bill Melton's two-run single in the seventh that made the difference.

Carl Yastrzemski knocked in five runs with a homer and a double and Gary Peters pitched out of several jams to boost Boston over Kansas City in the opener. But the Royals, after seeing their 3-0 lead vanish in the nightcap, got a ninth-inning double from Lou Piniella and the game-winning single from Paul Schaaf.

LEICESTER, England (AP) — Gordon Johnson, a 24-year-old Australian who turned pro one week ago, surprised Wednesday night by winning the professional world sprint title at the World Cycling Championships. It was the first Australian victory in this event in 50 years.

Falcons Lineup To Be Announced

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons lineup for Saturday's preseason game with the Jets was to be announced today—but one shift in the lineup appeared evident Wednesday when middle linebacker Don Hansen won words of praise from the coach.

Coach Norm Van Brocklin said Hansen, who played under him at Minnesota, was "playing fine—much better than last year." Hansen, who returned to pro ball last year after a year of retirement, may start in place of Tommy Nobis at the tough "defensive quarterback" slot.

Nobis may not play because of the chance he might again injure his knee before regular season play begins. Nobis has been withheld from most of the training camp contact work. The Falcons play their first preseason game against the New York Jets in Winston-Salem, N.C.

A major change in the line-backing row is expected to see Ted Cottrell on the left side usually patrolled by Grady Allen, now sidelined with an ankle sprain. It is Cottrell's second year in the NFL and Van Brocklin says he has matured. Regular Greg Brezina remains on the right side.

EUTIN, Germany (AP) — Dr. Otto Peltzer, famed German middle distance runner of the 1920s who competed in the 1928 and 1936 Olympic games, died Wednesday of a heart attack. He was 70.

Feldman Says He Didn't Ban Chuvalo

MONTREAL (AP) — Dr. Leon Feldman, international medical adviser to the World Boxing Association, said Wednesday the function of the WBA is not to ban fighters for medical reasons.

Denying public reports that he recommended to the WBA annual meeting Monday that Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo of Toronto be barred from the ring for his own safety, Feldman said in a statement:

"I urged any commission having jurisdiction over his future bouts to be careful before giving him a license, so that there could be no question about his physical condition prior to his next fight.

"At no time did I recommend that he be banned from professional boxing."

The Toronto Boxing Association reacted to the reports by sending a telegram to Feldman and the WBA Tuesday calling on them to back the statements with medical evidence.

Jet's Not Sure Who's Coming Or Going

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Joe Namath in Florida, Al Atkinson in Pennsylvania and George Saimes in Buffalo, the New York Jets can't be certain who's coming and who's going.

Normally about this time, after the first exhibition game, pro football teams are worrying about what rookies and fringe players to cut or keep, but not the Jets. They have other worries. Their offense and defense already have been crippled by injuries and strange happenings.

First and foremost is the case of Namath, the weak-kneed but strong-armed controversial quarterback who led the Jets to a Super Bowl victory two years ago.

The shaggy-haired rebel, who has been holding out for reasons known only to him, was sighted sunning himself on a boat in Fort Lauderdale Wednesday.

Earlier in the day, Coach Weeb Ewbank of the Jets said he had spoken to his AWOL ace by telephone and said Namath is "trying to resolve his problems as soon as possible."

Friends of Namath, meanwhile, reported he would not be back in New York until Sunday or Monday, which would leave him missing for the Jets' second pre-season contest against Atlanta this weekend.

Namath's absence also caused the Jets trouble on defense when middle linebacker Al Atkinson retired last week, blasting Namath.

However, Atkinson was quoted in Drexel Hill, Pa., as saying he might reconsider after reading that the Jets lost all-pro defensive end Gerry Philbin with a shoulder dislocation.

"I do have responsibilities to the Jets, and I really feel that I owe them all the responsibility of coming back," he said.

Then there is Saimes, a stand-out safety for eight years with the Buffalo Bills, who played out his option. The Jets' big weakness last year was in the defensive backfield.

Ewbank said he has talked to Saimes, and Saimes admitted "there's a possibility I'll be playing in New York. It's all a question of what Buffalo is asking for me," he said.

On the rest of the quarterback scene, Joe Kapp of Minnesota still was among the missing in his money dispute, but Greg Cook, Cincinnati's standout sophomore, showed up in camp for the first time. His whereabouts had been unknown, although it had been reported that he had stayed away to have his ailing arm checked again.

Cincinnati coach Paul Brown said Cook was being fined an undisclosed amount and had admitted he "made a mistake."

Several teams were hit by injury Wednesday, while still others were busy with the usual slashing.

The Super Bowl champion Kansas City Chiefs sent second year cornerback Jim Marsalis to a hospital for observation after he complained of pains in his chest. A team spokesman said it was thought Marsalis, a starter, had bruised ribs.

Washington lost six-year reserve running back Dave Kopay indefinitely with a fractured rib.

The biggest man cut was the little guy, Noland Smith of San Francisco, a 5-foot-6 kick return specialist who starred with Kansas City before he was picked up last year by the 49ers.

The St. Louis Cardinals released veteran cornerback Lonnie Sanders, who was obtained in 1968 in a trade with Washington and missed all of last season with a knee injury.

Denver let go running back Frank Quayle, a fifth round draft pick in 1969 who pulled a muscle and failed a physical.

The New York Giants cut two veterans, reserve defensive end Bruce Anderson and second string wide receiver Joe Koozts. They also placed starting center Tom Longo on the 21-day disabled list, Larson with an eye injury and Longo with a chipped vertebra.

competition and fan interest and encourage continued investment in player development."

However, he also wrote "we are convinced that the conflicts between the parties are not irreconcilable and that negotiations could produce an accommodation... which would be eminently fair and equitable to all concerned."

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, while applauding the decision, said he has "consistently maintained that the clubs and players can bargain out solutions to any problems that arise."

At least one player representative, pitcher Steve Hamilton of the New York Yankees, while reaffirming the Players Association's back of Flood, felt negotiation still is the best way.

"We had hoped the case never would go this far," he said. "We wanted to negotiate. We still hope to do so."

Before Flood sought his injunction on the reserve system and damages and forfeited his $90,000 a year salary by voluntarily sitting out this season, there had been talk of the players and owners getting together to modify the system.

Miller said negotiation "has been our precise position for more than three years, but the owners have taken a contrary position."

James Hylton Increases Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — James Hylton of Inman, S.C., increased his lead in NASCAR's Grand National point standings with a second-place finish in a West Virginia race Tuesday night.

Hylton pushed his margin over Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., from 65 to 88 points with his finish in the International 300 at Ona. Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., remained in third place.

Richard Petty, the winner at Ona, pushed his money-winnings lead higher over Plymouth teammate Pete Hamilton. Petty has collected $97,725 this season.

In NASCAR's Grand American series, Tiny Lund of Cross, S.C., is still the leader but has a narrower margin over Wayne Andrews of Siler City, N.C. Drivers in that challenge series compete in a 100-mile event at Raleigh, N.C., Friday night.

Flood Still Has A Chance

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's still three strikes before you're out, and Curt Flood's attorneys made it clear today they still have two big swings left.

Flood took his first strike while vacationing in Copenhagen when Judge Irving Ben Cooper upheld baseball's controversial reserve system against Flood in his antitrust suit.

The ruling didn't surprise Flood's backers, and they made ready for another swing, this time in a federal court of appeals, and then, if necessary, the U.S. Supreme Court.

"All that Judge Cooper held is that it is up to the Supreme Court to overrule the Supreme Court," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, which has supported Flood in his suit. "I think everyone knew it would be difficult for a district court to overrule the Supreme Court."

"There will, of course, be an appeal," said attorney Allan Zerman.

Flood, a 32-year-old star centerfielder who has a .293 lifetime batting average with St. Louis, filed a $4.1 million antitrust suit against baseball after the Cardinals traded him to Philadelphia last winter.

However, Judge Cooper, in his 47-page decision on the May 19-June 10 trial, upheld baseball's 51-year-old exemption granted by the Supreme Court from existing anti-trust legislation.

This reserve system is a set of rules which binds a player to one club unless he is traded, sold or released.

"Clearly the preponderance of credible proof does not favor elimination of the reserve clause," Judge Cooper wrote in his decision.

He said the effect of the system is to "deny him (the player) throughout his career freedom to choose his employer," but added that the system is "reasonable and necessary to preserve the integrity of the game, maintain balanced physical condition prior to his next fight.

"At no time did I recommend that he be banned from professional boxing."

The Toronto Boxing Association reacted to the reports by sending a telegram to Feldman and the WBA Tuesday calling on them to back the statements with medical evidence.

Gibson Sets Strike-Out Record With Win Over San Diego Padres

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
Manager Red Schoendienst wouldn't have given two cents for Bob Gibson's chances before the game and the fire-balling St. Louis Cardinals ace had to agree.

But before the night was over, the veteran right-hander had chalked up his 16th victory and snapped a major league record in the process.

The record—becoming the first pitcher in history to strike out 200 or more batters in eight seasons—was probably Gibson's easiest work Wednesday night, coming in the third inning when he fanned Nate Colbert, giving him an even 200 for the year.

However, the 34-year-old workhorse had to go 14 innings before subduing the stubborn San Diego Padres 5-4.

He was reached for 13 hits but also fanned 13, upping his season total to 210, sending him ahead of former American League hurlers Walter Johnson and Rube Waddell, who had shared the mark at seven seasons with Gibson.

"I didn't think I was throwing too good in the bullpen," Gibson said afterward. "I was lucky they were swinging."

"If you'd have seen him warm up, I wouldn't have given two cents that he'd go nine innings," said Schoendienst. "I was going to take him out after the 14th."

Carl Taylor, who won Tuesday's game for the Cards with a dramatic ninth inning grand slam, was the co-hero along with Gibson, drawing a bases-loaded walk off loser Ron Willis, forcing in the winning run.

Gibson, when told he had thrown 178 pitches, shrugged and said: "I don't care about the number of pitches. They always talk about the number, but you can throw 90 pitches and lose."

He was saved that fate when Richie Allen clubbed his 32nd homer in the eighth inning, enabling the Cards to tie the score at 4-4 after Colbert had slugged the 26th with a man aboard in the sixth for a 4-3 San Diego lead.

The victory was the Cards' 12th in 14 games and edged them to within eight games of the struggling Pittsburgh Pirates in the East Division scramble.

In other games, Los Angeles routed the Pirates 11-4, the New York Mets edged Cincinnati 2-1, San Francisco dropped Chicago 6-3, Atlanta nipped Montreal 8-7 and Houston blanked Philadelphia 4-0.

In the American League, Milwaukee nudged Detroit 6-5, Washington dropped Minnesota 5-3, Chicago trimmed New York 5-1, Boston and Kansas City split a doubleheader, the Red Sox winning 7-4 before dropping the nightcap 4-3, Oakland ripped Cleveland 11-4 and Baltimore edged California 5-4.

Wes Parker raced home with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning on Pirates' reliever Dave Giusti's wild pitch and then the Dodgers broke loose for seven runs in the ninth inning to wallop Pittsburgh.

The loss, coupled with the Mets' triumph, dropped the Pirates' lead to only 1 1/2 games over New York in the East.

Red-hot Ted Sizemore drove in the second eighth inning run for the Dodgers with a single and Jeff Torborg drilled a two-run single and Willie Crawford added a two-run double in the big ninth.

The Dodgers, who have won four straight, to get within 11 games of the Reds in the West, have ripped 67 hits, scored 36 runs and are hitting .419 during their streak. Sizemore has batted at a .667 clip with 16 for 24 in his eight-game hitting string.

Wayne Garrett cracked a pair of doubles and scored both runs while Gary Gentry stopped the Reds on four hits for the Mets' victory.

Gentry, 8-6, won his first game since June 27. Tony Perez spoiled the shutout for the right-hander with a run-scoring double in the sixth.

Willie Mays' third hit drove in the lead run in the sixth inning in the Giants' triumph. Mays' run-scoring single snapped a 3-3 tie. He had another single and a triple. Bobby Bonds had a homer for San Francisco.

Hank Aaron drove in three runs for the Braves with his 34th homer and a single and moved into an eighth-place tie with Al Simmons on the all-time RBI list with 1,827. Mack Jones homered for the Expos.

Larry Dierker spun a five-hitter in the Astros triumph, striking out three Phils in raising his mark to 11-10. Denis Menke rapped a solo homer for the Astros.

Floyd Says He's Not A Social Swinger

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
TULSA, Okla. (AP) — They have dubbed him "The Angry Playboy Of Golf" but Ray Floyd, who opens defense of his PGA Championship here today, begs to dissent on both counts.

"I'm not mad at anybody," the handsome 200-pound bachelor said, "and I'm not nearly the social swinger I've been pictured to be."

"I am single. I like girls. Sometimes I take girls out. I like to go to a nice place. If it's a nice place, you usually find liquor around."

"People see me in these circumstances and, knowing that I am competing in a golf tournament, say, 'look at that Ray Floyd, out on the town. He ought to be back at the motel asleep.'"

"That's the way it starts, and just escalates."

Acknowledging he's no angel, the strapping, curly-haired son of a Fort Bragg, N.C. pro told the world today that his principal current interest is in repeating as the national pro champion.

"Nobody's done it since Denny Shute in 1936-37. Shute, gray, bland and expanding at the waist line, is in the 135-man field challenging Floyd this week-end over the 6,962-yard par-70 Southern Hills Country Club course.

"I think I can do it," Floyd said after taking a single practice tour of the tough, demanding layout. "I don't feel any pressure at all. I have proven I can play tough golf courses."

"I have won the title once. It ought to be easier to win a second time."

Floyd who was a $100,000 club member last year, said he developed a mechanical flaw in his swing during the Florida tour but now has corrected the fault through the help of his father and fellow pros Bob Rosburg and Phil Rodgers.

"It's very technical and hard to explain," he added. "I wasn't getting through properly with the lower part of my body, my legs and hips. I think I've hit more practice balls than I've hit in my life."

"By the time of the U.S. Open, I had my swing back again and I thought I was going to win the British Open—I felt that good. But I couldn't sink a putt. Last week at Akron I had 11 three-putt greens."

The powerfully-built Southerner, one of the game's big hitters, said a course such as Southern Hills, with its gun-barrel fairways and subtle hazards, reduces the number capable of taking the title.

"It will take a good golfer to win it," he said. "You can figure out five men who are playing the best golf at the moment and add five more who always come through in important tournaments and you have the list."

"I wouldn't name anybody but I think I can pick ten men I'd bet on against the field."

There seemed little doubt about who would be in Ray's club—Jack Nicklaus, Bill Casper, Tony Jacklin, Lee Trevino, Bruce Crampton, Frank Beard, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Doug Sanders, Dick Lotz, Bruce Devlin and Dave Hill—pick ten.

Would Ray Floyd include Ray Floyd?

"Sure," he replied, "I'd include myself."

Floyd, 27, a six-footer with a boyish face framed by a modishly longlock of hair, is one of the few eligible bachelors on the tour. He has a big feminine following and often is seen with a stunning beauty on one arm.

He is a close friend of manager Leo Durocher of the Chicago Cubs, who lets him work out with the baseball team. He plays golf with Dean Martin, Andy Williams and the Hollywood crowd. He has been criticized for walking out on sponsors after winning tournaments and failing to keep tournament commitments.

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — John Durbin of Kirkwood, Mo., won the world 12-gauge skeet shooting championship Sunday by breaking 856 straight birds.

Gardner Is The Man To Watch

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — It's like old times, having an Australian threaten to win the U.S. Grass Court tennis title.

John Gardner, a 21-year-old product from Down Under who attends Southern Methodist U., is the man to watch.

Gardner is playing Marcelo Lara of Mexico, the second foreign seed, in today's quarter-finals after upsetting fourth-seeded Dick Stockton of Garden City, N.Y., 6-3, 6-4 in Wednesday's third round.

Lara eliminated U.S. Amateur Clay Court champion Rosco Tanner of Lookout Mt., Tenn., 6-2, 6-1.

Gardner, displaying strong service and typical Australian aggressiveness, has another aim in this event. He wants very much to play top-seeded

Salute Given To Joe Louis

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Louis was called "one of the most fantastic black human beings put on the face of this earth" by master of ceremonies Bill Cosby as Detroit hosted "Salute to the Champ—Joe Louis" Wednesday night.

Louis was unable to be at the benefit-tribute as he remained in a Denver Veterans hospital while his wife Martha accepted the praise and applause of more than 8,000 who paid as much as $1,000 a seat to attend the event.

Sports personalities abounded with boxers Sugar Ray Robinson and Sonny Liston, basketball star Bill Russell, and football star Dick "Night Train" Lane all in the audience.

The entertainment headed by emcee Cosby featured Motown Record's top hit group the Jackson 5, along with B. B. King, Mahalia Jackson, Billy Eckstine, the Four Tops and the comedy of Redd Foxx to round off the bill.

Film clips of Louis' fight victories drew thunderous applause from the crowd as did the appearance of Mrs. Martha Louis on stage to accept the formal good wishes for her husband.

Rolley Named Tennis Coach

MORAGA, Calif. (AP) — All-male St. Mary's College has jumped ahead of the women's liberation drive by naming Lynne Abbes Rolley as intercollegiate tennis coach.

The pretty 21-year-old brunette from Orinda, Calif., is one of the youngest and no doubt prettiest coaches of a men's team in the country.

St. Mary's officials said Wednesday they did not know of any other woman coaching a men's team on the college varsity level.

"I'm really thrilled about this," Mrs. Rolley said at a news conference. "I like working with men."

Mrs. Rolley, who was ranked seventh among U.S. women tennis players before retiring in 1967, has been a teaching professional three years.

St. Mary's is admitting women for the first time this fall, and Mrs. Rolley plans to start a women's team. The Catholic school's enrollment is about 1,100 and about 130 women are expected to enroll.

The Ruins of PAGAN

Monks whitewash some of Pagan's temples to earn merit for future lives: the temples were built as offerings to religion.

Noble brick vault gave entrance to inner sanctuary through massive wall.

Monuments of Pagan extend for miles over the dusty silence of the Irrawaddy plain.

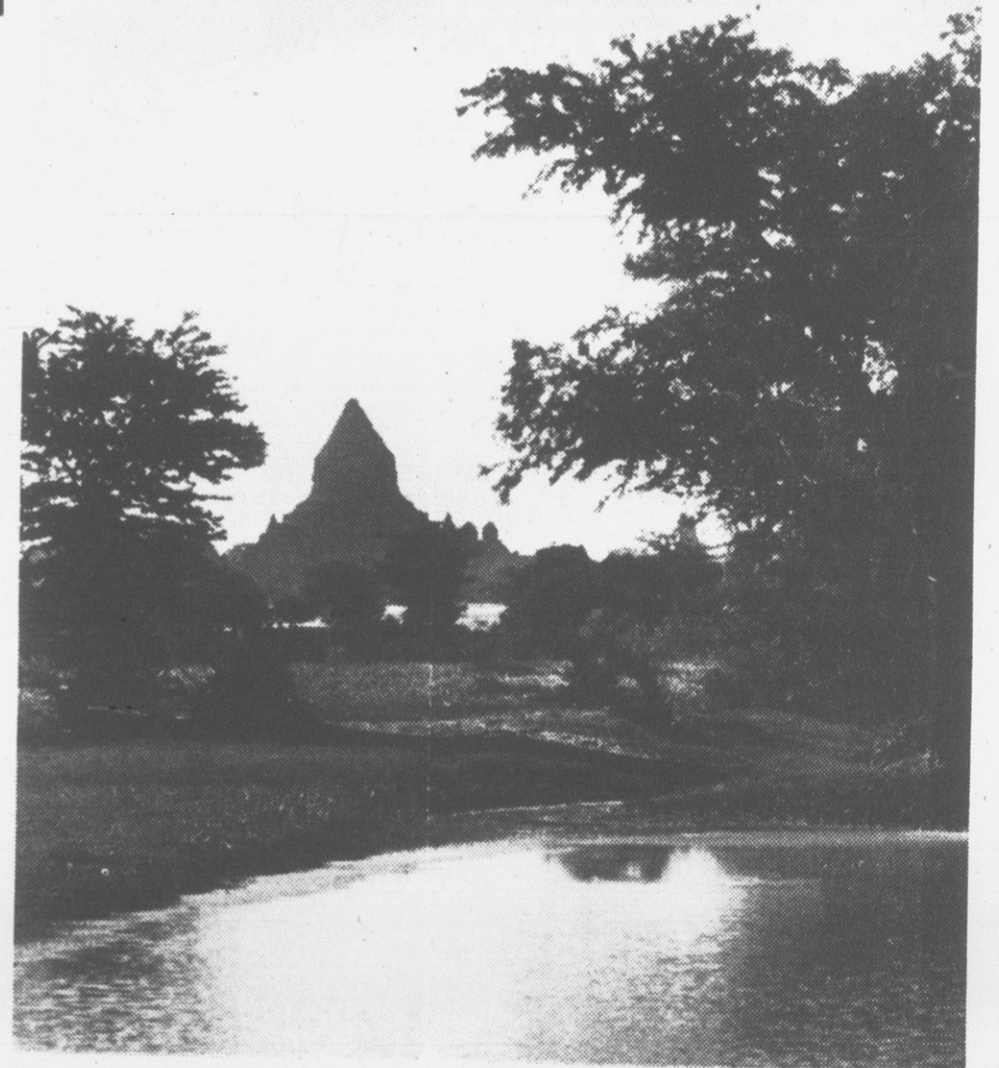

19th century pagoda (front) and 12th century relic (rear).

Secluded in the interior of Burma, a hermit among southeast Asian nations, lies an antique landscape of haunting beauty and majesty. The ruins of Pagan are one of the greatest and best preserved historical monuments in Asia, relics of the capital of an ancient kingdom which flourished for two and a half centuries between roughly 1044 and 1257.

The monuments stand witness to the ardent Buddhist convictions of Pagan's rulers. They were religious offerings, built as handsomely as the donor, usually a king or prince, could afford. Except for a few monasteries and libraries, the buildings had no practical value; they were not churches in our sense, though they did serve to remind the people of Buddha and his teachings. At one time, Pagan had about 13,000 religious buildings in brick or stone. Over 1,000 remain basically intact, and some 6,000 more survive in a ruined state, scattered over about 240 square miles.

The ruins of the old city of Pagan lie in a broad arc twelve miles long on the left bank of the Irrawaddy river. The people of Pagan today, hardworking peasants, live in a handful of quiet villages separated by arid land and dominated by towering monuments of all shapes and sizes. Their lives seem to have changed little since Pagan was overrun in 1257 by Mongol invaders led by Kubla Khan, and Burma's golden age came to an end.

Typical silhouette of Pagan's monuments is a bell-shaped tower; at one time there were some 13,000, of which over 1,000 remain intact.

Pagan peasant collecting wood is probably clothed much as his ancestors were a thousand years ago.

Study Habits Are The Secret

Tim's I.Q. was O.K. but he didn't know the shortcuts for efficient studying. One time through your chapter should give you an "A" on the teacher's exam thereon, if you employ the strategy outlined below.

Scrapbook this case for use by any students in your family. And it can help you oldsters, too!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE N-595: Tim B., aged 15, took a make-up class during the summer.

"For I had flunked one of my courses," he apologized.

"Dr. Crane, I seem to be dumb. For I can read the chapter that is assigned, and still not pass the teacher's True-False exam she gives us on that same chapter."

"The school psychologist, however, says my I.Q. is O.K. So why can't I do as well as my pals? They may make an 'A' while I am lucky to get a 'C,' though I spend more hours in study."

Beware, for it isn't the time you spend that makes you an "A" student.

No, it's the proper study habits and psychological "tricks."

For example, Tim told me he had often read the entire chapter 3 or even 4 times, yet might get a "D" grade.

Other boys got a "B" or an "A" on their reading!

Yet their I.Q. was no higher than Tim's.

So here are the shortcuts for most efficient study habits:

- Quickly thumb through the pages of the entire assigned chapter, casually noting the chapter's general coverage. This should take only 5 minutes.
- Casually observe any tables or illustrations. And note the sectional headings.
- This 5-minute quick exposure furnishes you a general "frame of reference," within which you can later focus for the bull's-eye data.
- Then start to read the chapter, with a colored pencil poised to underline anything that seems of a "meaty" of factual nature.

And by "meaty" items, I refer to definitions, often run in italics to show their vital importance.

Also, watch for dates and tables, plus any listing, such as their tabulation of the 5 shortcuts for efficient study habits.

(3) As you read, if you underline what seems to be a meaty item, then construct your own True-False exam, and phrase a statement containing that factual item.

But don't make your statement so self-evident that anybody not reading that chapter could guess the answer at a glance.

For example, if you were studying my college textbook in a course called "Applied Psychology," you might thus write:

T F (1) The acceptable definition of a sale first occurred in 1907. (P. 5)

Always list the page where you have underlined with a colored pencil the factual statement used in your own True-False exam. Then you can consult it quickly in a later review.

(4) After you have made at least 25 True-False statements on the chapter, then take your own quiz before bedtime.

Next morning, do the same en route to school, for you can cover such an exam over an entire chapter in a few minutes.

(5) Then see how many of your own True-False items overlapped with those the teacher included in her quiz.

Maybe you phrased your statement differently, but check to see if you dealt with the same "meaty" item.

Soon you will find that you can out-guess your teacher's exam maybe 20 times out of 25!

For when you take the teacher's viewpoint, as you certainly do when making your own exam, you soon start recognizing "meaty" items quickly.

For other advice, send for my booklet "How to Improve Your Memory and Study More Efficiently," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

Leaf Prices See Decline

The Federal-State Market News Service, noting that the drop in prices began Tuesday, said sales Wednesday showed more than half the grades sold were affected. One third were reported unchanged, and $83 per hundred was paid for a few baskets of fair lemon cutters.

A small increase in the percentage of fair lugs and fair leaf increased the quality of offerings slightly, as primings and nondescript offerings were down. Light to fairly heavy volume was reported.

Gross sales Tuesday totaled 9,506,548 pounds and averaged $72.69 per hundred, $1.61 below the seasonal high of Monday. For the season to Tuesday, sales totaled 99,487,730 pounds and averaged $72.12.
