

Disruption Campaign Successful

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — American and South Vietnamese forces pulled out of Kham Duc today after what they termed a successful seven-week campaign to disrupt a North Vietnamese buildup near the Laotian border.

U.S. officers claimed the allied troops disrupted "enemy logistical operations," destroyed "enemy supply depots prior to the onset of the monsoon season" and found "numerous ammunition and other supply caches."

Kham Duc, a onetime U.S. Special Forces camp 13 miles east of the Laotian frontier, was reactivated July 12 when about 2,000 South Vietnamese troops and up to 500 men from the U.S. Americal Division moved into the base.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, North Vietnamese troops lying in ambush killed five Americans and wounded two others in two jungle attacks 75 miles apart.

In one of the actions, military spokesman said, two other U.S. soldiers were killed and five wounded by American artillery fired on their position in error.

At the beginning of the Kham Duc operation, it was reported that South Vietnamese might use the base as a jumping off spot for forays into Laos.

No such incursions were ever announced, although the Communist Pathet Lao charged that South Vietnamese troops were airlifted into Laos by U.S. helicopters and had launched major operations. Allied spokesmen denied the charge.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese troops were evacuated from the base by helicopters and planes and moved to other, undisclosed areas in Quang Tin Province in the northern part of the country.

Three days ago, allied spokesmen claimed more than 200 North Vietnamese troops had been killed during the operation. They listed South Vietnamese losses at 24 men killed and 128 wounded and U.S. casualties at four killed and 25 wounded.

Schools Open With Apparent Boycott Of Sadie Sautler

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville schools opened today with an apparent boycott of Sadie Sautler Elementary School by white students of the Carolina-Heights-Hillsdale and adjacent areas.

Approximately 110 students failed to report to Sadie Sautler, based on attendance figures of 347 students as compared to an expected first day attendance of between 450 and 485.

How long parents plan to continue to keep their children at home cannot be determined. Early indications are that some parents may be planning to keep their children out of school several days or until a further decision is reached in the Federal court.

Federal District Court Judge John Larkins, Jr. last Friday ruled to permit a motion of intervention in the school plan on behalf of a plaintiff representing citizens of Carolina Heights-Hillsdale area in a class action for about 134 school children in the area. On a request for a preliminary injunction by the plaintiff seeking to restrain the Greenville School Board from implementing the portion of the plan affecting students of the area, Judge Larkins noted he was taking the request under advisement.

Friday has been set for the day the Federal court will receive responses from plaintiffs and the defendant, the Greenville School Board. Determination will follow later to decide what, if any, additional action will be taken by the Federal court in the case.

Not all parents from the Carolina-Heights-Hillsdale area kept their children home on opening day. One parent contacted emphasized the fact their attorney in the court case, Laurence Graham, was not a party to the boycott plans, and in fact, had earlier urged against any action of this nature.

Commenting on the boycott, Graham remarked, "I was not aware a boycott of Sadie Sautler School was to occur. Although I did not advise this course, this group has not received fair and impartial treatment from members of the Board of Education," Graham also noted that "parents are deeply concerned that their children are being used as 'guinea pigs' for the second consecutive year."

Other schools reveal the usual opening day excitement as students greeted one another and teachers stationed themselves in their home rooms for the annual ritual of greeting their new flock.

For administrative convenience students at Aycock Junior High have today been separated; boys in one section of school, girls in another. One young lad was overheard saying SGA PRESIDENT... Ernest Adams (in white suit) and three young cheerleaders assist in getting the Rbse High School opening day assembly underway.

"I'll give them one day to get us back together, I don't like this type of desegregation."

The first reported injury of the school year was noted at Rose High when a young male student crashed into steel cable, suffering abrasions on his head.

"We sent him to the hospital by rescue squad for a checkup just to be certain the injuries are not serious," principal Robert Alligood stated. "The boy, riding his motorbike, failed to see a cable which had been put up to keep people out of a construction site. The cable was well marked, but apparently the lad failed to see it."

Some busses noted pulling into school grounds were loaded with students—others were less than half full. Traditionally, opening day sees less use of busses than other times, especially at grammar schools where large numbers of parents take little ones to assembly points.

Third Street, Elmhurst, Wahl-Coates and South Greenville Schools all reported very smooth opening days. At Eastern Elementary, a spokesman said conditions there were good, and their only problem, a minor one, is in having a few more pupils than had been expected.

Jordanians, Guerrillas Battle In Amman Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Palestinian guerrillas and Jordanian security men battled in downtown Amman today, with one guerrilla reported killed and three civilians wounded. Lebanese demonstrated against guerrillas in the Biblical city of Sidon and in Beirut.

The Middle East peace talks at U.N. headquarters in New York were in suspension after an opening round Tuesday that brought no indication of any movement toward a compromise.

The cause of the Amman street battle was not learned immediately. But eyewitnesses said a group of guerrillas on one side of the street and "special branch" security men behind a parked car on the other blazed away at each other with pistols and submachine guns. Joint army-guerrilla patrols raced to the scene, stopped the fighting and made several arrests.

It was the eighth such incident reported since the guerrillas vowed to sabotage the cease-fire agreement in which Jordan's King Hussein joined Egypt and Israel on Aug. 7.

The demonstration in Sidon took the form of a general strike in the wake of street battles Monday between guerrillas and pro-Nasser followers of Maarouf Saad, the city's representative in Parliament. Two persons were killed, more than a dozen wounded and Saad was kidnapped for a time by the guerrillas.

Saad's followers called the strike because one of his relatives was still being held by the guerrillas, who were entrenched behind sandbags on roofs and at street intersections.

The demonstrators in Beirut were from the South Lebanese village of Chebaa.

Scott Asks For Regional Highway Net

ATLANTA (AP)—North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott proposed today that the Coastal Plains Regional Commission endorse a $2.6 billion regional highway development plan.

In a statement prepared for release at an Atlanta meeting of the commission, Scott proposed the adoption of a "highway development plan completed by Wilbur Smith & Associates, consulting engineers, in July, 1969.

The complete system would involve some 5,000 miles of roads and would focus on two intermediate levels of highway construction in the three states linked by the commission — North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

First would be a regional freeway system, constructed to interstate standards, which would connect the major urban centers in the region.

Second would be a "four-lane, partial control of access system" to link the secondary urban centers into the regional network.

Scott said, "The main features of this recommended highway system involves a coastal corridor between Norfolk, Va., and Savannah, Ga.; a fall line corridor between August and the Columbus, Ga.; and several east-west corridors which would connect the coastal area more closely with the Piedmont region.

"The transportation program is closely related to the other commission programs," Scott stated. "Industry will not go where it cannot ship its products and tourist will naturally go those areas where adequate means of access are available."

He said if the program were phased over a period of 10 years, "Then we are talking about an annual expenditure of some $260 million. At a minimum, the states must provide $7 million of that amount, assuming a 70-30 federal-state ratio.

"My own state would have to provide at least $27 million annually in order to develop this much needed highway system.

"If the matching ratio is on a 50-50 basis, then the states would need to earmark $180 million annually. North Carolina's share of that total would require an outlay of $45 million annually.

"Admittedly, this is a stiff challenge, but we in North Carolina are willing and anxious to get on with the job," Scott added.

Scott urged adoption of the highway study and suggested "that we get on with the job of convincing Congress and the U.S. Department of Transportation that additional authority and funds for this program are essential to the development of this region."

'Mizz'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In women's liberation language, if you're a female you're a Ms. — not a Miss or a Mrs.

That's pronounced Mizz and as Jean Crosby explains: "It's like what children call their teachers, they don't know the difference."

Jean, coordinator of today's women's liberation rally in Union Square, refuses to say whether she is a Miss or Mrs.

"In our society, women are very often defined in relation to a man rather than an autonomous human beings," she said. "To me that's very offensive, to have people not see me as me — and to know who I'm living with or married to."

"I don't think we ask the same thing of men," Jean said.

"If we must use some form of address, let's do the same thing as men do. Mr. doesn't mean one or the other. Ms. doesn't either."

Jean said the use of Ms. is "something that's just being tested out." But she added: "I've seen quite a bit of it in the Bay area."

To Jean, Ms. is just part of a larger problem—the male domination of the English language. "So much of our language is so male-oriented, we're going to have to come up with new words."

For example, Jean said, "every word that refers to males and females together is always male ... like mankind."

"In the Constitution, it says 'all men are created equal,'" she said. "And we had to pass an amendment because we clearly weren't covered under that."

The marriage ceremony says, "I now pronounce you man and wife." Why not husband and wife? asks Jean.

"I don't think it makes a whole lot of sense to pronounce somebody man and woman when they're already born that way," she said.

For Jean herself, Mizz hasn't yet become everyday speech. "I prefer to call people by their first names and I don't use it except when I write letters."

Eastern Belt's Prices Steady

Prices held relatively steady Tuesday for tobacco auctioned in the Eastern North Carolina flue-cured area, reports the Federal-State Market News Service.

About one-half the grade averages remained the same as those of the previous day with others varying mainly $1 per hundred pounds, the service reported.

Tuesday's marketings were made up of a larger percentage of leaf grades with less lugs and primings. The ratio of low, poor and nondescript offerings increased, while the proportion of more desirable tobacco was lower.

A total of 1,617,852 pounds of leaf was sold on the Greenville market yesterday for $1,201,409, yielding an average of $74.26.

Prices on the Farmville market yesterday were steady. Volume of lower grades of primings and nondescript grades showed an increase in volume as compared with Monday's sale, reported Louis Williams, supervisor of the Farmville market.

"Leaf grades accounted for most of the volume Monday and Tuesday," Williams said. "Better grades of primings were in strong demand."

Stabilization receipts accounted for 5.8 percent gross sales on the Farmville market yesterday.

A total of 670,740 pounds of leaf was sold for $500,423, giving an average of $74.61 per hundred pounds of leaf.

Goldsboro Vote Probe Ordered

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Police are trying to determine if 50 ballots seized from an office are genuine ballots from the May, 1969, mayoral election, which was decided by only 21 votes.

The ballots were seized Tuesday by Police Chief Roy Renfrow and SBI agent Warren W. Campbell after Mayor C. T. Gibson alleged they were described to him as uncounted ballots for Gibson's opponent in the election. Gibson won by only 21 votes.

Gibson said the ballots were shown to him Friday by C. R. "Larry" Lentz, who at the time of the election was a member of the Wayne County Board of Elections and chairman of the Wayne County Republican Executive Committee.

Lentz said Tuesday night he had no comment to make on the allegation.

Gibson, a Republican, upset incumbent Mayor Tom R. Robinson Jr., a Democrat.

The mayor said Lentz called him into his office and pointed to a stack of ballots. "Larry (Lentz) said there were 50 and that they came from the 5th Precinct and that had they been counted I would have lost the election," Gibson said.

Gibson said Lentz attempted to take credit for his narrow victory, as he had done on at least one other occasion since the election.

Gibson said, "I felt I had no choice but to call for an investigation. I want to be mayor and have worked hard at it but I don't want it this way."

Hearing Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger says the Supreme Court will hear arguments Oct. 19 to determine the constitutionality of the new law to lower the minimum voting age next year to 18.

Burger said Tuesday he had set the case for hearing after conferring with all other justices of the high court, now in recess until Oct. 5.

Bomb Scares

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Bomb scares swept through the Twin Cities on the heels of recent explosions, and one anonymous caller caused evacuation of more than 17,700 persons at a major league baseball game Tuesday night. No bombs were found.

The Minnesota Twins-Boston Red Sox game was halted in the fourth inning, at 9:13 p.m., when it was announced that suburban Bloomington police had been advised a bomb was set to explode at 9:30 p.m.

Spectators, without panic, went into nearby parking areas and onto the field to wait. The deadline passed and the game was resumed. Boston won 1-0.

At least 18 false bomb threats were placed by telephone Tuesday in the Twin Cities.

Other bomb threats were telephoned to the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, the Leamington Hotel in Minneapolis and the Minneapolis Public Library.

Runoff For Faubus Before Rockefeller Match

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas outpolled eight candidates in the state's Democratic gubernatorial primary Tuesday but faced a Sept. 8 runoff to gain a rematch with Republican incumbent Winthrop Rockefeller.

In other primary contests, Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma won renomination to a 13th term. He has no opposition in the November general election and is in line to succeed retiring Rep. John W. McCormack, D-Mass., as speaker. Tulsa attorney David Hall led a four-man Democratic battle to oppose Republican Gov.

Dewey Bartlett in November but fell barely short of the 50 per cent-plus-one-vote needed to avoid a runoff.

In Alaska, Republican Gov. Keith Miller was pulling steadily ahead of Rep. Howard Pollock in his bid for nomination to his first full term as the state's chief executive. Sen. Ted Stevens easily won the Republican Senate nomination.

Fabusu, 60, once a symbol of white resistance to integration, fashioned a substantial lead over the field but, as he had predicted, failed to gain a majority for outright nomination.

Dale Bumpers, a lawyer making his first political race, and state Atty. Gen. Joe Perceci were in a close contest for the other runoff spot.

Rockefeller, 58, easily defeated three little known opponents. He said he was looking forward to a possible rematch with Faubus who defeated him in 1964, when Faubus won a sixth two-year term.

"He whipped me once, and I relish the fact that I think I can whip him," said Rockefeller.

House Majority Leader Albert rolled up a better than 4-1 margin in defeating rancher Marvin D. Andrews, a political newcomer.

In the Oklahoma Democratic gubernatorial contest, Hall had been campaigning since he came in third four years ago. He won 49.5 per cent of the vote but faces state Sen. Bryce Baggett of Oklahoma City who started campaigning only six weeks ago.

In the Alaska Democratic primary, former Gov. William Egan led Anchorage grocer Larry Carr for the gubernatorial nomination and state Rep. Wendell Kay of Anchorage was ahead of state Sen. Joe Josephson of Anchorage in the Senate race.

Warning Against 'GIGO' Issued At Roundtable

How to plot, plan, and sell various kinds of writing was discussed at the fifth annual Tar Heel Writers' Roundtable in Raleigh last weekend.

The two-day meeting was attended by Greenville freelance writer, Mrs. Betty Casey, and over a hundred others from six states.

In a talk about the requirement for technical writing, a warning against producing "GIGO" was issued by Richard A. Russell, manager of the IBM Publications Center in the Research Triangle Park and former president of the Society of Technical Writers and Publishers. "GIGO" is an acronym used in relation to computer, programming. It translates "a garbled message fed into the computer produces a garbled message out" and has been shortened to "garbage in, garbage out."

In discussing the religious market, Mrs. Irene B. Harrell said she preferred to translate "GIGO" as "garbage in, glory out." She gave an example of having translated a chaotic personal experience into an inspirational piece of writing which was published.

Other speakers covered different aspects of the writing field.

Mrs. Mebane Holoman Burgwyn, award winning author of "The Crackjack Pony" and other books for young people, explained that she selects worthwhile characters, interesting places and exciting events to write about. In a hard hitting, business-like talk, the Executive Woman's Editor of the Greensboro, N.C., News-Record, advised feature writers to "use verbs" and to "avoid long words, involved sentences, clichés and too many adjectives." She said to write about interesting people but to avoid invading their privacy.

James Street, Jr., an author, publicist and former literary agent, whose father was also a well-known author, pointed out that slick "magazine short story markets have practically disappeared," and that of $16,000 titles published last year, only 2,000 were in the literary fields of fiction, poetry and essays.

He warned against publishers who charge for printing writer's books because they do not help market the books. "A publisher's job," he said, "is to sell your work."

"Light verse," said Mrs. Agnes Thomas, author of "A Bit of Funny," is a universal idea to make people smile." An example illustrating her point was entitled, "Udder Nonsense." It read: "Some people think a cow gives milk. But that's a lot of bull; It's not so easy to get milk — It takes a lot of pull!"

Sam Ragan, well-known N.C. author, teacher and editor-owner of the Pinehurst newspaper, advised short story writers to "keep it short" and said that "86 publications, many of them 'the little magazines,' are publishing quality fiction."

He noted "an obsession with death" among teen age writers. "Playboy magazine," he declared, "is publishing the best fiction today — and their fiction editor is from North Carolina."

"In writing plays," asserted the outstanding playwright Elmer Oettinger, now assistant director of the N.C. Institute of Government, "the writer must be able to role play — whether he can act or not," and, "the proof

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am just about ready to blow my brains out. What did I do wrong? I went with Al for four years, He was married, but he and his wife never got along. We spent every weekend together. Pretty soon Al had more clothes at my apartment than he had at home. I even paid for his psychotherapy for a year. I never looked at another man. I loaned him money, shared my car with him, cooked for him, did his laundry and waited patiently for the day his divorce became final. Well, it did, five weeks ago. Last night he told me that the only "real" love in a man's life is his first love, so he has decided to remarry his ex-wife!

Why are men such rats, and why are women such fools?
ADELE

DEAR ADELE: You have just qualified for the "Old-too-Soon, Smart-too-Late" Club (women's department). Listed below are the most common traps which make membership automatic:

[a] An affair with a married man whose wife doesn't understand him. [She's usually "cold," extravagant or sick.]
[b] The working woman who keeps working while her boy friend keeps telling her he can't marry her until his mother dies, his kids are grown, or he gets all his debts paid off. [This never happens.]

[c] The woman who falls for the man-about-town who boasts publicly that he's not the marrying kind, but she hangs on thinking she's the one woman in the world who can get him to change his mind.

In the meantime, nothing changes but the color of her hair.

DEAR ABBY: I think the daughter who sent you her mother's letter about having her favorite cat "put gently to sleep" and buried with her ought to see about having her mother "put gently to sleep." It sounds to me as tho the old broad is a little dippy.

Ask her if there isn't perhaps a friend or two whom she'd like to "reward" for their devotion by having them "put gently to sleep" with her.

If she doesn't, I have a few I'd like to volunteer, among them, that fat-headed daughter who sent in her mother's letter. Sounds to me as if mental aberrations run in the family.

I agree completely with your reply. "Let nature decide." However, I'd like to suggest to the old bat that if she's really worried about the cat's welfare, she should make provisions in her will for the cat's care.

Failing that, she should make sure somebody competent will care for her cat after she's gone. I only hope that somebody isn't the same sort of "animal lover" she is. (sign me)

"OWNED BY A CAT"

DEAR OWNED: Thanks for your support. I needed it. Would you believe my mail ran two to one in favor of doing away with the cat? In the interest of fairness, here is a letter from the opposition:

DEAR ABBY: You apparently don't know much about cats, judging from your advice to that lovely elderly cat owner who asked if she should have her cat put gently to sleep and cremated with her, should she outlive the cat.

May I send word to her via you? She should, by all means, have that precious pet put to sleep and buried with her. Cats are essentially one-person animals. Having lived with her all these years, he would be lonely and forlorn without her, looking for her, crying for her, and wondering why she had deserted him. And at last he would wander off

Health Warnings For Male Bosses

HAMBURG, West Germany (WNS) — Dr. Erika Schmidt, 42, warned graduating secretarial students here that one of their jobs is to protect the health of their male employers. "If he refuses to take vacations and avoids decisions, he is in trouble," she reported. "When he starts to make love to you, he may be cracking up and pleading for help." Her advice: encourage him to avoid big lunches and to walk to appointments instead of using the company car. "Smoking is bad, short vacations are good, and regular medical checkups are necessary," she added.

Mrs. Sue Smith Gives Report To Pilot Club

Mrs. Sue Smith, finance chairman of Pilot International, District VI, and a member of the local club, reported on a workshop she attended at the meeting of the Pilot Club Monday night.

Mrs. Smith said, "Fund raising is the backbone of a community and of a service club." She also presented a suggestion from the Finance Committee which involves each member of the Pilot Club of Greenville "doing her thing," making cakes, candies or other items for sale.

At the first meeting next year the member who has accumulated the most money will be crowned "Queen Of Doing Your Thing For Pilot." Money raised through these means will help finance projects in which the club participates.

One project this year as a donation to the REAP program. W. N. Creekmore, director, presented to Mrs. Ruby Fields, acting president, a certificate of appreciation and informed the members that part of the tuition was paid for two children and some supplies were bought with the gift.

Visitors of the club for the program meeting were Mrs. Emily Moseley, Staunton, Va., Mrs. Jean Averette, Mrs. Syble Taylor and Miss Carol Anne Brusewitz.

Deeper Involvement By Voter?

A Democratic party study commission recommendation for a presidential preference primary deserves full consideration.

The commission recommended last weekend that the state Democratic Party endorse a presidential primary and also make changes in the way party delegates are chosen to the national convention.

The plan proposed would make the primary binding on the state party's delegation to the national convention through at least the first roll call vote. Votes for presidential candidates would be apportioned on the basis of votes received in the primary.

In selecting convention delegates the commission's plan would call for allowing congressional district conventions to select delegates to cast 75 percent of the state's votes in the national convention. The remainder would be cast by delegates at the biennial state convention in presidential election years.

There is little in the democratic processes which seems more remote to the individual citizen than the choosing of party candidates for the presidency.

Citizens who watch the conventions on television see their state delegates vote for potential nominees who have never been endorsed by the voters.

A preferential primary might provide the means whereby the party members could instruct the delegates as to their desires. Since the delegates would be bound for only the first ballot, there would usually be plenty of time to throw the entire delegation's strength behind another candidate should he appear obvious the first choice could not win.

Year May See End Of Integration Concern

Today thousands of city students and hundreds of staff members returned to local schools after a summer's vacation.

On the elementary level they found that every school in the city has been fully integrated in compliance with court orders.

On the Junior High level all students have been assigned to Aycock School and at senior high, Rose will continue as the single high school.

It can be a good year and it can mean the end of local concern over integration since the schools are now in full compliance.

To go on from here in building a quality education system for all our young people, understanding and patience will be needed between races and individuals. We believe this is the way it will be.

A Blue-Collar Vote Question

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

DETROIT — A cause for considerable glee in backrooms of the Michigan Republican party is the medium-boiled attitude toward marijuana taken by state Sen. Sander Levin, Democratic nominee for governor — a classic case of what's hurting Democratic candidates across the country.

The Levin quote cherished by Republican strategists came in reply to a student's question at Western Michigan University April 3. Asked whether he favored legalization of marijuana, Levin replied: "I'm not sure. The evidence is mixed, but I can look at the matter openly. Before I act, I want the weight of evidence to be clear."

This was no offhand reply. Levin, who as a legislator and onetime state party chairman won a reputation for prudence and onetime state party chairman won a reputation for prudence and thoughtfulness, gives much the same answer today. Yet, in Michigan as just about everywhere else, the only politically helpful answer to legalizing marijuana is just plain no—precisely the answer given by Gov. William Milliken, Levin's savvy Republican opponent.

Levin's failure to take a politically sensible position here is congenial. He and other liberal Democratic candidates are not satisfying blue-collar constituents on crime and civil disorder, indicating that the party's traditional pragmatism is running thin. In effect, such Democrats are relying on bad economic times to tide them over in 1970.

Considering Michigan's fast-rising unemployment, hard times may be enough to win for Democrats here. Indeed, 1970 does not shape up as a vintage Republican year in Michigan. The pendulum may be shifting after eight years of Republican administration in Lansing. Moreover, the Michigan Democratic party, inextricably linked with the United Auto Workers, has the financial and organizational muscle Democrats lack elsewhere.

Nevertheless, our interviews (in cooperation with pollster Oliver Quayle) of 64 registered voters in the blue-collar suburb of Warren, Mich., provided bad news for Levin. The results: Milliken, 36 percent; Levin, 42 percent; undecided 22 percent. Considering that the vast majority of these voters habitually vote Democratic (and most belong to labor unions) this backs up statewide surveys showing a substantial Milliken lead.

Levin's problem in the heavily Catholic neighborhood where we interviewed may be traceable to his opposition to state aid for parochial schools whereas Milliken supported it. Nor is the fact that Levin is Jewish a particular asset.

In spite of this, chatting with the Warren voters revealed a golden opportunity for Levin. These white workers are not entranced by Milliken's civil rights liberalism. Many grumbled that Milliken did not crack down on the Goose Lake, Mich., rock festival. Others associate him with his predecessor, George W. Romney, whose plans as Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to racially integrate Warren have made him Public Enemy No. 1 there.

The high 22 percent undecided, also confirming statewide totals, is the tipoff: basically Democratic voters worried about the economy and leery about Milliken are still not ready to accept Levin. They first need assurances that he will be firm on non-economic issues which trouble them—crime, drugs, violence, disorderly youth.

PLOWING THE OLD LIFE UNDER

There are a number of highly recommended ways for getting weeds out of a lawn. One is to stretch two pieces of string parallel and several feet apart and go carefully up and down these narrow lanes pulling up the weeds. That is the hardest way to meet the problem. Another is to try smothering the weeds with a generous sowing of good seed. Still another is to plow up the sod, plant in late summer, and the weeds which spring up will be winter killed before they have time to seed.

There are a number of highly recommended ways of getting the weeds of bad habits out of one's life. One way is to tug at these bad habits every day and try to pull them up by the roots. The trouble here, as in the case of weeds, is that the bad habits keep growing faster than our ability to handle them. A better way is to try to overcome evil with good. But admirable as this method is, it soon fills us with the realization that there is a powerful lot of evil in the world—and in us—to be overcome. The best way is to plow up the field of the soul and sow it over again.

Jesus told Nicodemus, a noted teacher of the Jews, that the thing he needed was to be born again. He needed converting. He needed to start at the beginning, to open his life to the beneficent influences of the spiritual world and let the Living God do for him what he could not do for himself.

The New Testament is the instruction book for those who want to make a new start in life.

Separate Garbage Cans

(Art Buchwald took off for vacation before anyone could catch him. He left behind what he claims are some of his more memorable columns.)

LOS ANGELES — Many communities are concerned about the separation of church and state, but Los Angeles has a much more serious problem; and that is the separation of tin cans and garbage. When the city council passed a law that said Angelinos have to classify their refuse, and garbage was to be put out on one day and bottles and tin cans on another, everyone squawked from the mayor on down. And when the council passed a law that anyone who didn't segregate his garbage would be liable to a $500 fine and six months in jail, the cries of anguish echoed from the hills of Hollywood to the streets of San Pedro.

I didn't realize how serious the issue was until I started talking to friends in Hollywood who were against separate-but-equal containers for garbage.

Allan Sherman, the folk singer, was disturbed by the logic of it all and told me, "Once you classify garbage, it's no longer garbage. The reason you call it garbage is that it is unclassified. Otherwise it becomes lettuce leaves, watermelon rinds, eggshells, clamshells and orange peels. We need filing cabinets instead of garbage pails to do the job properly."

Bill Dana, the comedian-writer, was even more disturbed. "I've never been good about separating garbage, even as a kid, and I was sure I would wind up in jail when the council passed the law. I could just see myself in a cell and a guy saying to me, 'What are you in for?' To which I'd have to reply, 'They found a broken Pepsi bottle in my rutabaga leaves.' Or, 'I was framed. My neighbor's kid tossed a Crackerjack box in with my TV dinner.'"

"How did the council plan on penalizing the people?" I asked. "No one is quite sure (Continued on page 6)

Other Editors Say End Tax Privacy

(The Wilson Times)

Like the census which requires more and more personal information, federal income tax returns are becoming more and more the property of the public. The census personal information is used and often sold to companies desiring mailing lists which give information as to the business and occupation of the one covered.

Making federal income tax returns available to the states has endangered the confidential status of the returns. Access to federal income tax returns should be limited to those directly involved with enforcement of the income tax laws. The state tax office usually accepts the checking of the return by federal authorities. For if there are mistakes on the federal return, it will not be long before you receive a notice from the state tax department showing what you owe on the same error to the state revenue office.

Representative George E. Brown Jr. of California recognizes that access to federal income tax returns should be limited and a person's federal income tax is "confidential information."

Some 45 million tax returns are being put on computer tape this year for states to use in checking against state income tax returns. This information is easily obtained. You can see the possibility of snooping. It is said unauthorized use of the personal information has increased.

So Rep. Brown has authored a bill which would limit access to federal returns to tax enforcement personnel and affirm that tax returns "are privileged and confidential information" entitled to legal protection.

The bill would also keep tax returns from federal agencies other than Internal Revenue and the Justice Department. The present U. S. tax code does provide punishment for federal employees and state officials and employees for disclosure of tax return information.

Congressman Brown would put further restrictions by attacking the problem by limiting access "to those people who have legitimate business looking at them and end indiscriminate snooping by politicians."

All that is being said and done is true. But there will be no way you can keep tax returns confidential information if the material is put on the computer tape and the information stored in the computer bank. When returns are put on the computer tape privacy goes out the window.

Living Costs Pushed By Blight

By ELMER ROESSNER

A short time ago the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicted that while food prices may rise a bit during the rest of the summer, they would decline in the fall.

Sorry. Unless the effect of the Southern corn leaf blight is far less than presently indicated, food prices will shoot up to new highs in the fall.

Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin said the Department will have no estimate of the total damage until the Sept. 1 crop report is released. So we may know more about it a week from today.

Meanwhile, private estimates put the loss at various figures, ranging mostly from 20 to 40 per cent of the crop.

Prices Shooting Up
Corn futures have been shooting up in Chicago, which of course might be expected. But soybeans, wheat, oats and rye have also risen sharply. These can be substituted for corn in many uses.

Shell egg futures have gone up to new highs for the season. Laying hens eat a lot of corn.

Both live hogs and pork bellies have risen. Pigs eat a lot of corn.

Live cattle has been rising and beef prices will rise. Steers are fattened on corn. Cereals are not likely to advance much at retail. Even in the corn cereals, the amount of corn per package is small.

Other Price Jumps
Prices of corn syrup and corn starch have already gone up. Corn syrup prices went up 25 cents per 100 pounds on August 12 and have gone up another 45 cents since then. The new price is $6.05 per 100 pounds.

Starch products have been increased 75 cents a hundred pounds except for certain industrial uses, for which they will go up Sept. 1.

Prices of corn oil are also going up.

Eventually the price of bourbon will rise. So will beer prices, since corn is used in many brews and the expected corn shortage will affect other grains used by breweries.

And all other corn products may rise in price, even hominy grits.

It may be difficult to control the blight, in which event the price rises will continue. Chemicals have been found to control the blight in sweet corn, but have not been tested for feed corn. What Will Happen If Inflation Ever Ends?

In its fight to end inflation, the Federal Reserve has increased interest rates so much that corporate

All In Your Mind

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A man is usually as mentally healthy as he thinks himself to be.

But the world is so mixed up today that if a fellow feels good he wonders what is wrong with him.

Is he on the beam or off his rocker? Maybe his best friend won't tell him and even his hair-dresser doesn't know for sure. Whom can he turn to for help? Here is a handy little do-it-yourself test that should show you what state your mind is in. Simply ask yourself the following questions:

Do you have five friends whose loyalty to you is unquestionable, who would defend you under any circumstances, and who would be truly glad if you unexpectedly made a million dollars?

Every now and then when you look into the mirror don't you get a wild hope that your hair is coming in a little thicker on top?

Does your wife understand you—perhaps only too well?

Is it not true that you sometimes suspect your doctor knows his best medicines for himself and some of his pet patients?

Even though you know nutty people often have the delusion they are being followed, haven't you more than once had an uneasy conviction that you were being followed yourself?

If you just had more time, you'd learn a foreign language or do something else to improve your cultural level, wouldn't you?

Suppose you were in a wagon train under attack, and someone had to try to ride through the encircling Indians to get help from the U.S. cavalry. You'd volunteer for that mission—right?

Can you write down from memory your Social Security number, your car license number, your blood type, the number of people you have borrowed $5 or more from in the last year, and the manner in which the 50 stars in the American flag are arranged?

When the boss tells a funny story to the gang around the office water cooler, you laugh along with the others even though you don't catch the punchline, do you not?

Those are the questions. Now to the score.

If you answered either yes or no to all the questions, you are a mentally unbalanced hypocrite — a menace to yourself and to others.

But if you answered yes to some and no to some—it makes no particular difference which—you are a normal liar, no more confused than most people, and can let your mind alone, which is about the best thing you can do for it anyway.

Final Step In Court Reform

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Voters in 17 counties this fall will bring to final culmination the court reform movement of the late '50s and early '60s.

The district court judges they elect will take their oaths in December, and the General Court of Justice of North Carolina will be a complete, functioning reality.

For the first time in history there will be a statewide, unified court structure, from top to bottom. The same costs, procedure and — hopefully — quality of justice will prevail from the relations and juvenile courts, justice of the peace court, and various others.

Implementation has proceeded through the creation of the nine-judge Court of Appeals, and activation of district courts in 83 counties.

The transition has gone smoothly, generally functioning well, and promises much for the future, said Chief Justice William H. Bobbitt.

"In structure and theory, it is as advanced a system as any in the country," he said.

"How well it works in practice," he added, "eyes twinkling, depends on who's running it." That is, the caliber of judicial manpower is the final determinant of the quality of performance.

Manpower Quality Important

The subject is one which gives the Chief Justice general satisfaction for the moment but concern for the future, particularly for the district courts. "We are fortunate to have some excellent district court judges," he said. "It is an office that demands qualifications equal to those for a Superior Court judge."

Will it be possible to attract capable persons to run for election as a district judge? "I believe there is a responsibility for attorneys and citizens to seek out qualified persons and give them the encouragement and support which will make them available," Chief Justice Bobbitt said.

Districts in which judges will be elected this fall, rounding out the organization of the District Court Division, are: No. 17, Surry, Stokes, Rockingham and Caswell; No. 19, Randolph, Montgomery, Rowan and Cabarrus; No. 22, Alexander, Iredell, Davie and Davidson; and No. 28, Buncombe.

The system's strength is statewide uniformity, yet this has a weakness to guard against. No local governing body will have any authority or responsibility over personnel, operation or financing of the courts. Will this diminish local interest and support for the judicial system?

Will it give rise to pressure to create new judgeships through action of the General Assembly since the costs will be borne by the state, not local government?

It calls for continual citizen alertness to the operation of the courts.

BRYAN HAISLIP

mountains to the sea. Without irreverence, one can imagine the shade of J. Spencer Bell will smile from the great courtroom of eternity. The last vestiges of the hodge-podge system at which he hailed will be swept away.

As a state senator from Mecklenburg County, Bell was a leader in the legislative battles which placed before the people enabling Constitutional Amendments approved in 1962 and 1965. While others also were prominent in the movement — including former Governor Luther Hodges and present Lieutenant-Governor H. P. Taylor, Jr. — to a large degree it was Bell's intense drive and cutting intellect which epitomized the urgency for court reform.

Victory was in sight although short of final realization when he died while serving as a federal circuit judge.

Study Preceded Revision
The scheme for the General Court of Justice was fashioned out of seven years of study and public debate, and now has been tested through eight more years of study and implementation.

It includes three components: the Appellate Division, composed of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals; the Superior Court Division, the court with general trial jurisdiction; and the District Court Division, which replaces the previous welter of local courts — city and county recorder's courts, domestic

Manson Again Raps Attorney

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles M. Manson shook his head in displeasure as his attorney—short, stocky Irving Kanarek—cross-examined the county coroner about the Sharon Tate murders.

"Doctor, do you have any opinion on whether Abigail Folger received any of her injuries in the place where she came to rest on the lawn of ..."

"Objection, your honor!" cried Paul Fitzgerald, attorney for defendant Patricia Krenwinkel. When Kanarek protested that he hadn't finished, Fitzgerald added: "The question is objectionable as far as it went."

"But your honor," said Kanarek, "maybe I could have saved it."

At that point Tuesday, Manson, diminutive and pale in blue jail denims, renewed his efforts to fire Kanarek and represent himself. The judge denied Manson's motion.

"This man is not doing what I want," he said of the attorney, whose conduct also has been criticized by other defense lawyers.

Manson was perturbed Tuesday, reliable sources said, because Kanarek's questioning hurt the defense of his three women codefendants. The state's key witness, Linda Kasabian, has testified that she saw Miss Krenwinkel chasing Miss Folger across the lawn while holding a raised knife. The dark-haired coffee heiress was stabbed 28 times, the coroner has said.

Kanarek's question, the source said, reinforced the prosecution theory of a chase across the lawn.

The state says that Manson, 35, leader of a hippie-style "family," sent his followers to kill Miss Tate and six others on two nights last August. On trial with Manson, for murder-conspiracy, are Miss Krenwinkel, 22, Susan Atkins, 21, and Leslie Van Houten, 20.

Miss Van Houten's attorney, Ronald Hughes, joined in Manson's request to represent himself.

No Charges in Auto Collision

No charges were reported in a 7:55 a.m. mishap yesterday at the intersection of Fourth and Cadillac Streets that resulted in an estimated $275 property damage.

Police reported cars driven by Arthur Chapman, 69 of 1504 West Fourth St. and Alexander Bell of 517 Ford St. collided, causing an estimated $75 damage to the Chapman vehicle and about $200 damage to the Bell car.

The judge excused the jury and allowed Manson to argue his motion.

"I have no rapport with this attorney," said Manson. "I've asked Mr. Kanarek to do certain things but it has no effect. He's a good man, a sincere and honest and truthful human being and I like him very much, but as an attorney he doesn't represent me."

Manson said if he couldn't represent himself, he wanted all four attorneys "hooked up" under one leader, Fitzgerald. The judge repeated his belief that Manson is incompetent to represent himself and said no attorney can be made subject to orders from another. He denied the motion. After Manson's complaint, Kanarek ceased questioning and Coroner Thomas I. Noguchi was excused subject to possible re-call.

Earlier, he had testified that blonde, pregnant Miss Tate was hanged, probably after she had been stabbed 16 times. The cause of death, he said, was stab wounds and there were no medical signs of strangulation.

His topic was the role of the advocate and the adversary in rate-making.

The Tarheel Electric Membership Association approved a four-fold expansion of its board of directors at Tuesday's session of the three-day convention.

About 150 TEMA members passed with little opposition a plan to enlarge the board from 15 to 60 members.

The board will include two members from each of the 30 rural electric co-ops in the TEMA.

thrower, is a shrewd politician who understands these needs of blue-collar voters. But herein lies the great anguish of Democrats in Michigan and elsewhere. The liberal-labor coalition here is so ideologically frozen on social questions that Levin and other party leaders simply cannot make the gestures—denunciations of campus rioters and rock festivals—that their constituency wants.

The problem scarcely arises for Sen. Philip Hart, a doctrinaire liberal Democrat seeking a third term against Lenore Romney. Blue-collar voters will not vote for George Romney's wife no matter what Hart says or does not say (our interviews showing Mrs. Romney, 8 percent; Hart, 81 percent; undecided, 11 percent).

The Democratic hope is that economic conditions, likely to be exacerbated by an auto strike, will push Levin over the top. But such a win provides little long-range solace for Democrats. If they are out of tune with their constituency on all but pocketbook questions, defeat will stalk them in the years ahead.

though, that the Soviet ladies neglected to mind the store. While they were given, on paper, everything their Western sisters are campaigning for, in reality they wound up with little of anything. The canny Russian men still run almost everything, and many of the ladies don't even have the fun of acting like ladies.

Karl Marx, the granddaddy of communism, said "the foundation of female emancipation—the liberation of the woman as an individual—is her economic independence." Marx's faithful sidekick, Friedrich Engels, professed to discover that inequality of the sexes was the result of "economic oppression of women."

"Soviet power," said its founder, Vladimir Lenin, "is the first and only one in the world to destroy entirely all the old, because the council rescinded the law the next day," Mr. Sherman said, "but I have a friend in city hall and he said it would have worked something like this: If you threw an anchovy can into your garbage it would be considered a misdemeanor, a Campbell's tomato soup can would have meant a felony, and for a Dole's pineapple juice large-economy-size can they would have sent you to the gas chamber."

Mr. Dana told me the thing about garbage in Los Angeles is that it attracts flies and Los Angeles citizens have been urged to spray their garbage before putting it out.

"We have a saying in Los Angeles," he told me, "a family that sprays together stays together."

Mr. Sherman contributed this: One of the reasons people here have been less vociferous about the city council's doings in regard to garbage is that everyone is afraid to complain because the council might put into effect an alternate plan, known as Plan B.

The implementation of Plan B would be that you could only dispose of garbage which began with the letter of the day. For example, on Monday the sanitation department would only collect things starting with "M," such as muskmelon, mint leaves, macaroni, myrrh and melba toast. On Tuesday, you could only throw out tea bags, tomatoes, truffles, tripe and tarts.

Mr. Dana said, "Plan B is unfair because only German-born people can throw out zwieback on Saturdays."

"What happens to the segregated garbage and tin cans?" I asked my friends.

"They take them to Arizona on freight trains," Mr. Sherman said, "and mix them up together again."

I wanted to talk longer, but my friends had to go home classify their next day's garbage.

iniquitous bourgeois laws which have placed women in an unequal position as compared with men."

Well, said the Communists, that being the case, women would have to be liberated from dependence upon men economically. Out of this the women got the right to work. They didn't get much else.

What's the situation today, a half century later?

Well, it says in article 122 of the Soviet Constitution that women have complete equality with men in all economic, social and political spheres.

The labor law, revised as of 1970, lays down in articles 68 through 73 just how women are to be protected against heavy labor or harsh conditions.

Fact of the matter is that the men simply ignore the constitution and the labor law when it suits them. Any visitor to any city or farm in the Soviet Union can see Soviet women at heavy labor. Indeed, they are the principal source of farm labor, while men hold down practically all the bureaucratic desk jobs.

There is only a tiny percentage of collective farm chairmen who are ladies.

In the cities, women do much of the menial work and look it. Women, about half the labor force, leave their children at state-run nurseries while they work as truck drivers, street car motor-men, crane or other heavy machine operators, bricklayers, hod carriers, building laborers, street sweepers, and even lumberjacks and miners.

The Soviet press points proudly to the number of Soviet women who are engineers, doctors, lawyers and so forth, but—they are a small minority of the 130 million women in the Soviet Union.

The press also notes frequently that there are a large number of women in government. There are, and most are all powerless. For example, 30 per cent of the deputies of the Supreme Soviet, which passes for a parliament, are women. The parliament is completely without power.

But there is no woman on the Communist party Politburo which runs the country. There is no woman on the party central secretariat. There is no woman heading any central party department or publication. Of all the first secretaries bossing parties in the 15 republics around the country at republic and regional levels, not one is a woman.

nor does a woman head a ruling party committee in any important city. One lady bureaucrat, Yekaterina Furtseva, is the only ranking government figure, and as culture minister, she has little real authority.

Women in the Soviet Union outnumber men by more than 10 million, and have outnumbered the men for years, sometimes by a good deal more. Maybe they need organization—something like a women's liberation movement.

Esperanto Dream Still Is Pursued

By FERRY WIMMER
VIENNA (UPI)—Recognize this language? La internacia lingvo esperanto estu la dua lingvo de cium homoj por doni samajn kulturajn sanciojn al cium popoloj.

It's Esperanto and it means: "Esperanto" should be the second language everywhere in the world to give equal chances to everybody."

The fact is that it is not, despite the hope of Esperanto's Polish founder, Ludoviko Zamenhof, that his artificial, simplified language developed in 1887 would become the world language.

Esperanto advocates say English is the number one enemy.

"The Logical Solution"
But English, despite its growing acceptance as the second language in most nations, cannot replace Esperanto as a world language, they maintain.

"It's tremendous nonsense to spend $20 million a year for translations at the United Nations in New York," said Ivo LaPenna, president of the 55th Esperanto World Congress, which met recently in Vienna.

"Esperanto would be the logical solution."

LaPenna said politicians all over the world oppose Esperanto only to preserve the privileges of their own language.

"Esperanto's Much Easier"
He recalled that French was the only language at the 1815 Congress of Vienna, French and English were spoken at the 1919 Versailles peace talks, five languages were officially admitted at the first United Nations session in San Francisco in 1945 and UNESCO today has eight official languages.

"National language pride prevents a logical solution," LaPenna complained.

Despite this, he is optimistic. "Sooner or later, Esperanto will succeed," he said. "The need for an easy, universal world language has never been greater."

LaPenna, who speaks seven languages, admitted English is easy to learn but said:

"Esperanto is much easier. In one year, an average person can speak it fluently."

Only 600 schools throughout the world, some in the United States and Russia, teach Esperanto. "Naturally, this is not sufficient," LaPenna said.

"Gis Revido"
Estimates on the number of Esperanto speakers range from one to eight million. Even LaPenna and his followers admit the number is "probably closer to one than to eight million."

Esperanto enthusiasts complain about "an obvious reluctance to teach and learn Esperanto in the western world," but appear impressed by positive signs from the East.

Communist China, for instance, heads the worldwide list of Esperanto publishers. Daily Esperanto broadcasts are carried by Radio Peking. Even the works of Mao Tse-tung are available in Esperanto on records. East European radio stations in Warsaw, Budapest and Sofia also carry Esperanto broadcasts.

But it looks as if it will be a while before "gis revido" replaces "goodbye" in popularity.

Blind Carpenter Continues To Ply His Trade

JOHNSBURG, Ill. (AP) — Clarence J. Smith, who is in his middle 50s, is blind and is known among his neighbors as the "Sightless Carpenter."

"I guess I am just a stubborn Dutchman and wouldn't give up," he said.

He builds lawn furniture and has been in the business for many years.

Losing his sight began the day after Christmas 1934 when a piece of steel broke from the hammer head he was using and pierced his left eye. The eye was destroyed by the accident and the infection that resulted spread to his right eye which soon lost its sight. By Easter, 1935, he was totally blind.

"I just couldn't sit around and do nothing," he said.

Two years after he lost his sight, he found some old crating wood, and started building things.

Women Liberationists Strike For 'Equal Rights'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
In the streets, at work and on the homefront, women liberationists today are demanding equal rights with a nationwide "Strike for Equality," timed to coincide with the 50th anniversary of adoption of the 19th amendment, which gave women the right to vote. The National Women's Strike Coalition, sponsor of the demonstration, has urged women to stay away from work if possible, stop performing menial household chores, boycott certain allegedly degrading products and take children to husbands' offices to demonstrate the need for child-care centers. Rallies were scheduled in most major cities, including New York, Washington, San Francisco, Detroit and Boston. Some local feminist groups have urged members to dump bras and cosmetics in trash cans, symbolizing opposition to women being forced to look sexy.

President Nixon, noting the suffrage anniversary, proclaimed Tuesday asking Americans "to recognize the great debt we owe to those who dedicated their life's work to the cause of women's suffrage."

He added, "Let us all recognize that women surely have a still wider role to play in the political, economic and social life of our country."

Several politicians endorsed the women's cause. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller proclaimed today "Women's Rights Day" in New York State. Mayors James Tate of Philadelphia and Peter Flah-

POLLUTION PRICE
NEW YORK (UPI)—It would cost the government $20 million a year to start reversing the course of pollution, according to an estimate by Robert J. Day, chairman of the board of Northeast Pollution Control Corp., manufacturer and installer of air pollution abatement systems.

In Texas a state permit is required to feed garbage to hogs.

erty of Pittsburgh took similar action in their cities.

Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., held a news conference with Betty Friedan, a leader of the National Organization of Women—NOW—and other feminists and announced plans to introduce new federal legislation for women's rights.

Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., one of 11 women members of Congress, complained that the nation's newspaper editors "are treating this thing as a joke."

"If it's not an absolutely fabulous success," she said, "then they will say that women don't want rights ... they're happy where they are."

In Washington, the Secret Service announced Tuesday that for the first time it had hired women as police officers to be part of the new Executive Protective Service, responsible for protecting the President and his immediate family when they are in residence in the White House.

The strike coalition, at a news conference in New York Tuesday, urged women to boycott Silva Thins cigarettes, Ivory Liquid detergent, Prestine feminine deodorant and Cosmopolitan magazine.

The women accused the cigarette of portraying women as "objects of contempt" in their advertising; said of the detergent, "We feel older women have something to offer to society besides soft hands and clean glasses;" and claimed the magazine was "geared to selling women as sexual objects."

The New York women also were angry with city officials who said feminists would be limited to one lane of Fifth Avenue in their early evening march to a Bryant Park rally.

Mrs. Friedan said suffragettes had the whole avenue when they marched to celebrate and "we can have it again. This is our hour of history and we are going to take it."

She said, "I am not threatening violence, merely expressing determination."

One woman who disagreed with the feminists was Sausan Young, 22, of Lethbridge, Alta., Canada. Participating in a beauty contest in Montana, she was asked about women's liberation.

"Any girl with a head on her shoulders can get anything she wants out of a man. Honey, I've got better things to do than change tires." She won the contest.

Scholarships Given In Memory Of Dr. Hoot

Two $100 scholarships have been given by the Island View Shores Summer School class in memory of the late Dr. Melva P. Hoot.

The recipients of the awards are Muriel Moore, a student at Appalachian State University, and Ricky Cartwright, a Pembroke University student, both members of St. Clair Christian Church located about a mile and a half from Island View Shores.

The Sunday School class, consisting of about 50 members of which a large number are Greenville residents, meets on the banks of the Pamlico River each Sunday morning during the summer months and holds formal sessions of Bible study and fellowship.

Dr. Hoot was a charter member of the class. His widow presented the scholarship checks to Miss Moore and Cartwright, Sunday, the last meeting of the summer for the group.

According to Dr. John O. Reynolds, the scholarship committee chairman, the needs of 14 students from the area of Bath, Belhaven, Pinetown, Washington RFD, and Babbage Crossroads were studied. Others on the committee were W. H. Taft, Mrs. Myrtle Roberson, and William Gray. The funds for the two scholarships were taken from collections from the Sunday School which are also used for contributions to nearby churches, foreign missions, and other causes considered worthwhile by the members.

North Viet Supply Lines Said Reduced To Dribble

Occupational Education Plan Put To Board

RALEIGH (AP) — The Board of Education will be asked Sept. 3 to approve a proposed five-year, occupational education plan for North Carolina's public schools and community colleges.

The plan, developed by the Department of Public Instruction, was aired Tuesday at a public hearing.

A. G. Bullard of the department's division of occupational education said the programs would give pupils the opportunity to explore the "broad world of work."

"Studying career material and getting actual work experience will allow pupils to make meaningful career choices," Bullard told the hearing.

The long-range plan outlines future programs in agriculture, home economics, trade and industry, health, office education, distribution and marketing and prevocational exploration.

Courses would be offered in junior and senior high schools as well as at the state's technical institutes and community colleges.

Two farm leaders appeared at the hearing to express fears that the plan might deemphasize vocational agriculture.

Mrs. Harry Caldwell, master of the State Grange, asked that agriculture teachers be given 12-month salaries based on a competitive scale with business and industry.

Jack Cole of Madison County, president of the North Carolina Occupational Teachers Association, noted that 85 of the state's 574 agriculture teachers had recently had their months of employment cut or been transferred to teach other subjects.

The five-year plan would continue the vocational agriculture program, but training in off-farm skills such as landscaping, mechanics and carpentry would receive more emphasis.

If the Board of Education approves the plan, it must be presented to the U. S. Commission on Education for approval.

Appeals would be made to local, state and federal governments to increase their outlays for occupational education to finance the program.

The Department of Public Instruction said the 1970 program has a budget of $46,010,000. The cost of the program in 1971 would be $53,174,000, and by 1975 the yearly cost is estimated at $114,130,000.

Tina Louise On Divorce Course

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Tina Louise, who starred in the television series "Gilligan's Island," will receive $5,000 in temporary alimony and child support monthly from television moderator Les Crane.

The red-haired actress received the award in Superior Court Tuesday, pending a divorce hearing in November.

Miss Louise is expecting a child in October. The couple has been married four years.

Vietnam because of intense American air attacks on river infiltration routes.

These sources believe North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia have had to draw on arms and supply caches that escaped discovery when U.S. and South Vietnamese units swept enemy base sanctuaries near the South Vietnamese border in May and June.

Nixon administration officials have estimated the allied drive into the Cambodian border base areas uncovered about 60 percent of the materiel stockpiled there.

There also is evidence that the enemy may be bringing some supplies back into Cambodia from South Vietnam, where military action has been at low ebb, American sources say. U.S. reconnaissance planes recently spotted more than 120 loaded bicycles moving west from the border region north of Saigon.

With rain making many dirt roads through southern Laos unusable, American sources said, the North Vietnamese have been relying heavily on streams to float supplies to Cambodia.

Reconnaissance photographs show long strings of bags and barrels guided by what appear to be bamboo rails placed in the water to prevent the supplies from drifting aground.

In one recent raid, U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jets reportedly destroyed an estimated 900 steel drums floating near Tchepone, a longtime enemy supply base in the Laotian panhandle.

American warplanes have seeded the streams with mines. Between early June and early August, about 500 of them were dropped into the Se Kong and Se San rivers near where they join the Mekong in Cambodia.

The North Vietnamese also have laid pipelines into Laos in an effort to speed fuel southward. Several originate at Quang Khe, a busy port some 60 and the lower regions of South Vietnam.

Borman Arrives In New Delhi

NEW DELHI (AP) — Former astronaut Frank Borman arrived Wednesday for a one-day visit as part of his world trip aimed at getting better treatment for American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

Borman, acting as President Nixon's special representative, hoped to meet with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Foreign Secretary T. N. Kaul.

Today In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking and Currency Committee has approved legislation which would make businesses damaged by water pollution eligible for disaster loans.

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said Tuesday the bill is of particular importance in Alabama, where mercury pollution has "virtually closed down many fishing and related businesses."

Meanwhile, the Interior Department said that it might be willing to permit small discharges of mercury into waterways if it can be proved that they would not be harmful.

Last month, the Justice Department filed suit against ten industrial firms, seeking injunctions to halt immediately the discharge of "any mercury or mercury compounds in any form."

Interior officials said that stand is subject to negotiation and amendment, but they still

Powell Running As Independent

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell will run for his House seat as an independent if petitions he filed with the Board of Elections are found valid.

The Harlem congressman, who lost the Democratic nomination to state Assemblyman Charles B. Rangel last June, filed 3,377 signatures post-marked before the midnight Friday deadline, the board announced Tuesday.

Rangel, who also has the Republican designation, charged that many of the signatures were invalid because they were not from registered voters in the 18th District. Petitions bearing 3,000 valid names are required.

FOUND EGGS

DUBLIN (AP) — Workers at the North Wall Railroad junction heard a bird tweeting from beneath a freight car. They found a mother thrush who had been dutifully sitting on her eggs during the car's 60-mile journey from Carlow. Transport authorities ordered the freight car not to be moved until the eggs were hatched.

The publishers of this encyclopedia came to us with a good idea. An idea so good, in fact, that we're happy to pass it on to our customers.

Just imagine owning a handsome family encyclopedia for only $1.89 a volume. Starting this week, we're offering the Funk & Wagnalls Standard Reference Encyclopedia at that remarkably low price. And to prove to you what a fine value this encyclopedia really is, we're offering Volume No. 1 at the trial price of 25¢.

Don't let the low price fool you. This is a quality reference work in every sense of the word. The publishers called upon over 200 leading authorities, experts in their respective fields, including Nobel Prize winners, to help gather the information and to write the easily understandable text. It contains nearly 10,000 pages in 25 beautifully bound volumes. 7,000,000 words. 30,000 subjects. Over 5,000 pictures and illustrations. Plus a full-color World Atlas. It all adds up to a fine encyclopedia that can benefit every member of your family.

School-age children don't have to be coaxed to consult it frequently. They find new interest and excitement in study periods and their grades can improve noticeably. It's an excellent way to help your child work up to his full potential in school. Parents, too, find it useful and informative and often wonder how they ever did without it.

We won't quote the complete review by the Subscription Books Committee of the American Library Association*, but its final paragraph says:

"Because of its wide coverage of information in factual and clearly-written, well-illustrated succinct articles, and because of the convenience of its lightweight yet durable format, Funk & Wagnalls Standard Reference Encyclopedia is recommended for the purpose for which it is intended, that is, as a brief reference set, especially for home and family use."

The Funk & Wagnalls Standard Reference Encyclopedia can be offered at such an exceptionally low price because it's sold through supermarkets. In fact, the publisher has already sold more than 100 million encyclopedia volumes to smart families through supermarkets across the country.

Stop in today and see what the excitement is all about. Volume No. 1 is on sale right now. Pick up a volume or two each week when you shop and in no time at all you'll have the complete 25-volume set.

It's everything you'd expect a good encyclopedia to be. And it's not expensive.

Decision Erases Old Practice

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—In a decision wiping out a 300-year-old practice, a judge ruled Tuesday that juveniles may not be held in jail awaiting trials, but may be kept in custody of the state Youth Service Board.

Judge Levin H. Campbell of Middlesex County Superior Court made his ruling in the cases of two boys, one 15, the other 16, who were charged with using an automobile without authority. Bail for each had been fixed at $1,000 and when they were unable to raise it they were sent to jail.

Between June 1, 1969 and June 1, 1970, Buckley said, 229 juveniles—under 17—were held at the jail for various periods.

Senate Rejects Volunteer Army Plan

School-Opening Takes Edge From Women's Lib

No local activity for the 50th anniversary of Women's Suffrage was evident this morning.

Getting the children off for their first day of school seemed to take precedence over making any outward show for "Women's Liberation."

Contacted to learn whether the Provisional League of Women Voters of Greenville - Pitt County had any special activity planned, Mrs. Philip Clark said, "Since we are still a provisional league, we are having no active observance locally."

She said that the League is as old as the Woman's Suffrage amendment and that one of the leading campaigners for Women's Suffrage, Carrie Chapman Catt was the first honorary president of the newly formed League.

1970 has been designated by the League as "The Year of the Voter," not only to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Women's Suffrage, but the 100th anniversary of Negro male suffrage provided by the 15th amendment, she said.

Miss Meighan Johnson, an instructor in sociology and anthropology at East Carolina University, commented, "I like some facets of the Women's Lib Movement and take issue with others."

"I think some of the girls are trying to deny men the very rights that the women are crying for — to be treated equally and well. I argued recently with the Raleigh Women's Lib president who said she wanted to get every woman out of the home and into the job market. This, I said, would be denying them the choice that is every person's right."

"What I am in favor of is equal compensation for equal work and the end of discrimination in hiring. This is not true in my job but I know it is in many places in this area. Women better qualified than their male counterparts are denied jobs and promotions in favor of men. I also would like to see more day care centers so women who need to work to get off the welfare roles may."

Mrs. Doris Marlowe, president of the local Business and Professional Women, said, "I don't want to be a coal miner or a football player and I still would like for a man to be President, but I do believe that when a woman is qualified for a job she should receive the same pay and benefits as a man doing the same work. I think the others in my organization feel the same way."

POPULATION WARNING
KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)—The Malaysian Family Planning Board carried the following quotation in bold print in its monthly news letter:

"Every half minute 100 children are born in developing countries. Twenty of them will die within the year. Of the 80 who survive 60 will have no access to modern medical care during their childhood."

Contacted to learn whether the Provisional League of Women Voters of Greenville - Pitt County had any special activity planned, Mrs. Philip Clark said, "Since we are still a provisional league, we are having no active observance locally."

She said that the League is as old as the Woman's Suffrage amendment and that one of the leading campaigners for Women's Suffrage, Carrie Chapman Catt was the first honorary president of the newly formed League.

1970 has been designated by the League as "The Year of the Voter," not only to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Women's Suffrage, but the 100th anniversary of Negro male suffrage provided by the 15th amendment, she said.

Miss Meighan Johnson, an instructor in sociology and anthropology at East Carolina University, commented, "I like some facets of the Women's Lib Movement and take issue with others."

"I think some of the girls are trying to deny men the very rights that the women are crying for — to be treated equally and well. I argued recently with the Raleigh Women's Lib president who said she wanted to get every woman out of the home and into the job market. This, I said, would be denying them the choice that is every person's right."

"What I am in favor of is equal compensation for equal work and the end of discrimination in hiring. This is not true in my job but I know it is in many places in this area. Women better qualified than their male counterparts are denied jobs and promotions in favor of men. I also would like to see more day care centers so women who need to work to get off the welfare roles may."

Mrs. Doris Marlowe, president of the local Business and Professional Women, said, "I don't want to be a coal miner or a football player and I still would like for a man to be President, but I do believe that when a woman is qualified for a job she should receive the same pay and benefits as a man doing the same work. I think the others in my organization feel the same way."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defeat of a plan to maintain an all-volunteer army virtually guarantees extension of the draft, but the resulting pressure could quicken U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam, senators say.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the Armed Services Committee, who opposed the all-volunteer plan, said the defeat "will make it simpler to get the draft extended."

"The draft didn't get us into Vietnam, but it may get us out," commented Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., who opposes the war but also fought the volunteer plan.

The Senate defeated 52-35 Tuesday the plan to raise soldiers' pay to a level that would make military life more attrac-ive and possibly eliminate the need of the draft.

"I feel the Senate took a very long step today toward committing the country toward the extension of the draft," said Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., who co-sponsored the amendment with Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz.

"We face a June 30, 1971, Selective Service expiration date and if we do not have by that time some alternative plan, it's very obvious the administration and the Congress will be forced into the role of extending the draft for another two years," Hatfield said.

Javits and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who oppose the war and have spoken out against what they consider inequities in the draft system, voted against the amendment.

Starkey children. One of the children, he said, told him that he ran out of the house for help after seeing Mrs. Starkey shot once in the leg and heard another shot after leaving the house.

The Sheriff said that all indications are that the twin deaths resulted from a shotgun blast in the back of the neck of Mrs. Starkey, and a subsequent suicidal shot in the right temple of Willie James Starkey.

The Greenville rescue squad was called to the scene this morning around 1:55 a.m. The Sheriff added that both people were dead when officials arrived.

Further investigation will be conducted, it was noted.

Seeking Fuel In Grain Research
HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP)—The Kansas Wheat Commission, in an effort to find new markets for wheat, begins experiments today mixing tax-free grain alcohol with gasoline in the hope of finding a pollutant-free fuel.

The commission was notified Tuesday that a federal permit for the use of the tax-free grain alcohol had been issued by the U.S. Treasury Department.

The proposed fuel mixture will be tried in state-owned cars assigned to the Wheat Commission.

Teacher Ass'n Program Slated At Pitt Tech
Pitt Technical Institute in cooperation with the Pitt County Schools will offer a one year program, Teacher Assistant, beginning Sept. 9, 1970, and ending Aug. 25, 1971.

In order to qualify for admission, a student must be at least 18 years of age and a high school graduate.

There will be no tuition or fees for this program for the 1970-71 term.

For further information and application blanks, interested persons may call J. E. Downing, director of extension, PTI, 756-3130, or write P. O. Drawer 7007, Greenville.

It is unwise to insulate from the horrors of war middle and upper-class Americans who might lead the protest against senseless foreign adventures," Kennedy said. He contended it is unfair to allow the burdens of military service to fall only on the poor who might be induced to join the army because of a pay raise.

"I frankly might question, for example," Kennedy said, "whether the current pressures for de-escalation of the Indochina war would be as great if young men from every social background were not threatened with service in that war," Kennedy said.

The volunteer army amendment to the pending military procurement bill would have paved the way to ending the draft by raising military pay and allowances by up to 50 per cent in some cases as an inducement to recruitment of a professional armed force.

The amendment was opposed as untimely and too expensive by President Nixon and the Pentagon.

Stennis said it would cost $4.3 billion the first year with no guarantees it would work.

"We're going to have complete hearings on the question of continuing the Selective Service and also on the possibility of the volunteer army as a future goal," Stennis told newsmen after the vote.

"I don't believe pay is the answer," Stennis said. "You have a good many people who don't like the military life and aren't going to stay, regardless," he said.

By DICK COUCH Associated Press Sports Writer Roberto Clemente was a victim of fowl play, but the Pittsburgh Pirates were fair game for San Diego's Dave Campbell.

Campbell drove in three runs, including a ninth-inning winner, as the Padres plucked the Pirates' feathers 4-3 Tuesday night in a game marked by Clemente's encounter with a runaway chicken.

Top Pass Thief Is Dropped By Cowboys

By MIKE RECHT Associated Press Sports Writer The "great thief" has been turned loose, and he doesn't like it one bit. The nickname goes with Dave Whitsell, a free safety for the past 13 years in the National Football League, who had more career interceptions, 46, than any other active player.

Pirates Lose Defensive End

East Carolina University football coach Mike McGee got the bad news yesterday that he had lost one of his starting defensive ends for the year. Ron Douthit, injured in the spring, was told yesterday by his doctors to stay out of action for this season. A sophomore from Winston-Salem, Douthit was scheduled to start at a defensive end decision wasn't made until yesterday.

"We were afraid this would be the verdict," McGee said. "When Ron was healthy, he showed promise of being one of our best defensive linemen, particularly as a pass rusher." The loss of Douthit leaves Wes Rothrock and John Rowe battling for the position. Jim Gudger is the leading candidate for the other defensive end

Colts Sue For Field

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Circuit Court has been asked to grant the Baltimore Colts use of Memorial Stadium for a Sept. 28 National Football League game against the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Colts in a suit filed Tuesday afternoon, contended that their contract with the city Park Board entitles them to use the stadium. The suit alleged that the contract guarantees them availability of the facility any day or night after the last Sunday in September, this year falling the day before the Colts want to use the stadium.

The court action named as defendants the Baltimore Orioles and their president, Jerold C. Hoffberger; Baltimore Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro III, and Park Board president Joseph Rash.

No date was set for a hearing. Under the Orioles' stadium contract with the city, the Park Board is supposed to use its "best effort" not to schedule a football or soccer game closer than 36 hours before a baseball game.

The baseball schedule released last December kept Sunday, Sept. 27, free for the Colts' home opener, but two months ago the NFL released a schedule calling for the Colts to host the Chiefs on Monday night, Sept. 28.

The game is scheduled to be carried by the American Broadcasting Co. as part of its 13-game prime-time Monday night TV package.

The Orioles are scheduled to play a two-night doubleheader against the Washington Senators a day later and say they need the field ready by 3 p.m., or about 15 hours after the football game would end.

The New York Giants left a number of veterans wondering where they'll next be playing as they cut offensive tackle Steve Wright, tight end Butch Wilson and quarterback Bob Davis, who had been acquired last winter from Houston.

Spiders Work Against Frosh

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS That new look new coach Mike McGee is promising this year for East Carolina's football Pirates apparently is going to extend beyond a change in offensive and defensive formations.

The first thing McGee did when he took over at East Carolina, a disappointment the last two seasons in the Southern Conference race; was junk the single wing formation on offense and install a pro-set T with some pro-set I plays.

The former Duke All-American also revamped the Pirates' defensive alignment somewhat. Both involved some switching around of players, and McGee apparently isn't through yet in that department.

As the Pirates went through their second day of preseason drills Tuesday, McGee announced flanker Will Mitchell—East Carolina's second leading pass receiver last year—had been moved to defensive back.

"We are moving Mitchell to the secondary because we need more speed back there and we know Will can give it to us," McGee said.

By TOM SALADINO Associated Press Sports Writer A bomb scare failed to materialize in Minnesota but nearly 700 miles east the California Angels set off an explosion of their own, posing a definite threat to the Twins.

The bomb threat occurred in the fourth inning of the Twins-Boston Red Sox game Tuesday night and Metropolitan Stadium was evacuated by the 17,697 fans for 44 minutes before play was resumed.

Tony Conigliaro slammed a homer in the eighth inning and the Red Sox held off the Twins for a 1-0 triumph while in Detroit—693 miles east—the California Angels blasted the Tigers in a doubleheader, 6-4 in 12 innings and 10-6.

The double victories by the Angels placed them a dangerously close 3 1/2 games behind American League West Division leading Minnesota.

In other AL action, Dave McNally won his 20th game of the season—the first major leaguer to make it—and the Baltimore Orioles trimmed Oakland 5-1. Chicago edged Washington 4-3. The New York Yankees nipped Kansas City 2-1 and Milwaukee nudged Cleveland 4-2 in 10 innings.

In the National League, Atlanta edged New York 7-6, Philadelphia trimmed Cincinnati 2-1 in 12 innings, Houston drilled Montreal 6-3 in 13 innings, Los Angeles downed Chicago 4-1, San Diego outdueled Pittsburgh 4-3 and San Francisco dropped St. Louis 4-2.

Police informed the Twins at 10:30 p.m., EDT, of the telephoned threat and it was announced over the public address system that the male caller said the bomb would go off at 10:30 p.m.

The evacuation was orderly and without panic with some 2,000 fans, players, police and vendors gathered in the center-field area. The rest of the people milled in the parking lot.

After a 27-minute wait the fans were allowed to return to the stands and the game was resumed at 10:57 p.m.

Bill Zepp went seven innings for Minnesota, giving up only four hits before Tom Hall came on in the eighth and surrendered Conigliaro's 25th homer, a 360-foot shot into the left field seats. The Twins have lost three in a row and 13 of 17.

Jay Johnstone capped California's second-game explosion with a grand slam homer in the Angels big six-run ninth inning.

overcoming a 6-4 Tigers' lead.

Jim Fregosi's two-run single earlier in the inning had tied it. Alex Johnson had a two-run homer and Roger Repoz a solo blast for the Angels while pinch-hitter Kevin Collins rocked a three-run belt for the Tigers.

The Angels fell behind 4-0 in the opener but eventually won it in the 12th on Fregosi's sacrifice fly and a run-scoring double by Johnson. Billy Cowan's two-run double in the seventh started California's comeback after solo homers by Dalton Jones and Norm Cash had given the Tigers their edge.

McNally, reaching the 20-victory mark for the third year in succession, after taking his eighth straight, got all the support he needed when the Orioles scored four times in the third inning.

The left-hander, who has lost seven, said afterward: "It feels real good. I was struggling not too long ago."

It was also McNally's 110th victory as an Oriole, tying Mill Pappas' club mark for most triumphs. Campy Campaneris had four hits off the crafty veteran who claims "control has been the biggest factor lately."

Rich Morales stroked a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the ninth inning for the White Sox' victory over Washington.

Rookie Jim Lyttle dropped a run-scoring single into center with two out in the ninth inning, enabling the Yanks to edge the Royals for the 10th time in 11 outings this season. Bob Oliver clouted his 28th homer for Kansas City.

Southern Cal Appears Among Leaders Again

Giants May Have Finally Found A Man To Replace Sam Huff In Linebacker Jim Files

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Our team this year will be somewhat like last year," said Coach John McKay of the Southern California Trojans, "except this time our experience is on offense instead of defense."
The Trojans finished third nationally a year ago in The Associated Press football poll and appear destined to land among the leaders again.
In the 56-year history of the Rose Bowl, USC last year became the first to play for the fourth consecutive time.

When the Trojans beat favored Michigan 10-3, they also became the second USC club in the McKay era to conclude an undefeated season—10-0-1.
Southern California's backfield returns intact with Jimmy Jones at quarterback, Bobby Chandler at flanker, Clarence Davis at tailback and Charlie Evans at fullback.
While many believe the Trojans bank entirely on a running attack ala O. J. Simpson of 1967-68 and Davis a year ago, the fact remains that Jones as a sophomore in 1969 threw 210 passes, the most in USC grid annals.

Graduation, however, took the center, both guards and a tackle from the offensive line and these must be replaced.
Defensively, the ace should be Charlie Weaver, a hard charging, fast end counted on to lead the rush. Weaver, at 214, was one of last season's "Wild Bunch" who continually tormented opposing quarterbacks.
Another is Tody Smith, a 247-pound tackle, the "little brother" of pro star Bubba Smith.
Linebacker Greg Slough, 230, and fast cornerback Tyrone Hudson, are others from the first defensive club returning.
With the increase to 11 varsity games this season, the Trojans open against Alabama at Birmingham Sept. 12, a time McKay could settle an issue he considers paramount—pass defense.
"If you don't play pass defense well, you're going to get beat," said the coach whose club faces an awesome schedule which also includes Nebraska and Notre Dame in addition to its Pac-8 conference foes.
Carter is a junior college transfer slated for duty at linebacker.
McKay doesn't entirely agree with those preseason selections which picked his trojans to be the nation's No. 1 team this fall.
"I would hands down pick one team this year—Ohio State," he said. "Penn State is another with a schedule indicating it should be favored in most of its games."

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — His name is Jim Files, but every day it sounds more like Sam Huff.
Since the retirement of Huff, who taught the Violent World of linebacking to the American sports fan through television, the New York Giants have used a cast at middle linebacker that includes Lou Slaby, Jerry Hillebrand, Mike Ciccollella, Jeff Smith, Vince Costello, Henry Davis and Ralph Heck.

Not one fit the mold. Files breaks it.
At 6-foot-4, 240 pounds, the No. 1 draft choice from Oklahoma has the size and the ability to get the job done in the Huff manner.
There is no doubt about it, according to defensive Coach Norb Hecker, who watched Tommy Nobis blossom at Atlanta.
"You just feel it with certain guys," Hecker explained. "This kid already is much better at pass defense than Nobis. He has great range and a natural knack of getting back and reading patterns. He'll have to learn to meet the running game like Nobis does, but he will."

The Giants hope to bring back the days of their feared defensive unit through Files and other additions such as Wes Grant, John Baker, Jim Kanicki and Jerry Shay in an attempt to improve a club that finished 6-8 last year.
The main weakness during 1969 was defense and the additions should help, particularly at linebacker, where Files figures to anchor the middle, and up front, where the others are batting for spots.
Grant is a high draft pick from UCLA battling Baker, down from Canada, and holdover Bob Lurtsema for a defensive end spot. Kanicki, acquired from Cleveland, and Shay, acquired from Atlanta, are penciled in at tackle.

Offensively, the Giants may have a more consistent strike force with quarterback Fran Tarkenton set to steer a crew that will run out of Coach Alex Webster's multiple offense system the entire season.
Webster began installing the formation the last four games of the 1969 season and states frankly:
"We'll use more formations than the Kansas City Chiefs."
Tarkenton's aerial targets likely will be Clifton McNeil, acquired from San Francisco after leading the league in receptions two years ago.

Jack, Billy Eye $60,000

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper are casting a special eye on pro golf's richest prize, the $300,000 inaugural Dow Jones classic which goes up for grabs Thursday with its $60,000 first prize.
Either Nicklaus or Casper, battling for the lead in money winnings, could move into the shadow of $200,000 in earnings this year with a victory here.
And any of the others among the top 10 money winners could grab the top spot with a victory.
Nicklaus, who gave up the lead to Casper when he sat out last week's Avco Classic while Casper collected the $32,000 first prize, has pocketed $134,660 this year to Casper's $139,585.
Nicklaus, who many feel is just reaching his peak, is the likely favorite, as usual, in the bulky field of 150 of the world's greatest shot-makers. He is aiming for his third victory in 18 tournaments this season.
However, as imposing as he is, he can only be ranked a mild pick in the 72-hole chase over the rolling, 7,058-yard, par-72 Upper Montclair Country Club course.

Arrayed against him are all the great names of golf including Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Lee Trevino, Frank Beard and Casper.
Casper, the Masters champion, never attracts the crowds or the publicity as do some of the others, but no one has won more tournaments this year than the former fat man with the exotic diet. He has taken top prize in four of the 17 tournaments he has entered.
Palmer, who also sat out the Avco after finishing second to Dave Stockton in the PGA championship, will take earnings of $112,869—No. 7 on the list—into this test which ends Sunday.
Player, Trevino and Beard also are over the $100,000 mark this season, along with Bruce Crampton, Dick Lotz, Dave Hill and Bruce Devlin, all of whom are entered.
There is also Tony Jacklin, and Bruce Devlin, all of whom are entered.
There is also Tony Jacklin, U.S. Open champion, and Stockton, the new PGA king.

Intrepid Slips Past Valiant

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Intrepid skipper Bill Ficher alertly spotted a door barely ajar, slipped through and then slammed it shut on Valiant, and thus takes a narrow one race lead into today's next test in the grueling America's Cup trial races.
Intrepid takes a 5-1 record into the resumption of its head-to-head clash against Valiant, 4-2. The boats are expected to continue racing daily against each other until one is picked by the New York Yacht Club's Race Committee to defend the cup the United States has not lost in more than 100 years.
The challenger will be either Gretel II of Australia or France, the French 12-meter yacht, which resume their best-of-seven series today for the right to challenge for the cup Sept. 13. Gretel II leads their competition 2-0.

Intrepid raised her record against Valiant to 2-1 with a tricky starting maneuver Tuesday that sailed her into a lead she never relinquished.
"I thought I had the door closed, but it opened up a bit too soon," said Valiant skipper Bob McCullough, explaining the crucial maneuvering at the start. "I thought he (Ficher) was going to go around."
"I bore off to gain speed and thought when I did that I'd absolutely close the door on him," But McCullough left a small gap between his boat and the committee boat, and Ficher daringly sailed Intrepid through and into the lead at the start.

Clay Back Very Soon

By WILLIAM CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A state senator seeking a title fight between Cassius Clay and Joe Frazier says Clay will soon enter the ring for the first time in three years for an exhibition bout with an unnamed ranking heavyweight.
And, said Sen. Leroy Johnson, head of House of Sports Inc., the certainty of the exhibition bout makes him "very confident" Clay and heavyweight champion Frazier will meet in Atlanta Oct. 26.
Yancey Durham, who manages Frazier, has said such a title fight could take place if "we see that he (Clay) gets into the ring."
Clay was recently licensed to box by the Atlanta Athletic Commission after three years of making futile efforts to obtain a license in a number of other states.
The former champion was denied a license after he refused induction into the Army on grounds that his Muslim religion forbade the carrying of arms. He lost the title when he was unable to defend it.
Johnson's announcement two weeks ago that Clay had obtained an Atlanta license caught the boxing world by surprise. Unlike the other states to which Clay had applied for a boxing license, Georgia has no state athletic commission.

Hyman Misses Tar Heel Drill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Starting defensive tackle Eric Hyman missed Tuesday's football practice at the University of North Carolina because of an undiagnosed illness.
Hyman, a 240-pound junior was outstanding during spring practice and is a key man on the defensive line. Coach Bill Dooley expressed hope that Hyman soon would be able to rejoin the team.
Elsewhere in the Atlantic Coast Conference, South Carolina, Coach Paul Dietzel made several third team changes after two workouts in light equipment.
Joe Regalis was switched from offense to defense at tackle; Jimmy Prevette from defensive guard to center; and Bob Miranda from third team to second team fullback.
Duke's Blue Devils continued their light workouts, but registered the first casualty when promising sophomore fullback Joe Connors suffered a broken arm. The 200-pound Washington, D. C., native will be out for the year.

Virginia's Cavaliers worked on fundamentals and basic formation. Coach George Blackburn was noncommittal on his squad's over-all condition, but singled out letterman Andy Selfridge's physical improvement and noted offensive captain Danny Ryzek's added weight.
Clemson staged a controlled-type scrimmage, and Coach Cecil Ingram said he didn't think his players "reacted too well."
Ingram said the scrimmage prevented the quarterbacks from operating a game plan, "but we wanted to try certain things under these conditions."
Passing highlighted the offensive portion of North Carolina State's practice. Goal line play made up the defensive work.
Standing out in the passing drills were wingbacks Butch Alaman, Pat Kenny and George Botsko. Defensively, sophomore linebacker Bryan Wall drew praise for his hard hitting.

Greece Leading World In Telephone Expansion

By JOHN RIGOS
ATHENS (UPI) — Only a few years ago, telephones were so hard to get in Greece that well-to-do Athenians included them in their daughters' dowries. Some people waited more than 10 years to obtain a phone. Others bribed politicians and government officials with as much as 30,000 drachmas ($1,000) to get one. Such phones as existed had limitations. Long distance calls were occasions for frantic shouting to make oneself heard. Few cities had dial systems and all long distance calls had to be placed through an operator. Greece now leads the world in the expansion rate of telephone installations, 55 of its cities are linked by automatic inter-urban exchanges and the delay in obtaining a telephone has been cut to four months. "By the end of 1971 waiting time will be down to one day," says Leonidas Alexandropoulos, governor of the state-owned Greek telecommunication organization. Greece had 530,000 telephones in 1967. At the end of 1969 it had 900,000 and another 5,000 a month are being installed. Athens has almost half the telephones in the nation — 461,000. Salonika is second with 65,000. Early this year Greece was linked to the European international automatic exchange. Now most western European cities can be dialed direct from almost any telephone in Greece.

voters in a village a telephone exchange or offer city backers priority on their applications for home phones. Members of parliament were entitled to free long distance calls and let friends use their telephones to conduct business. When Premier George Papadopoulos came to power he issued a list which showed some members of parliament would have had yearly phone bills of more than 900,000 drachmas ($20,000) had they paid for their calls. "It was not so much the free call that made us use the telephone of our deputy. It was the priority that politicians' offices were given by operators that made us abuse their privileges," one businessman said. He does not miss the privilege at all, he says. "Now I can dial direct from the coffee shop."

Ball Beeps For Blind Players

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A football that beeps has been developed at Massachusetts Institute of Technology for use by blind players. Vito A. Proscia, director of MIT's Sensory Aids Center, showed the football to a group of visitors recently. Proscia, who is blind, said the scientists also have developed a braille-oriented computer. This, he said, might make possible the production of daily newspapers in braille.

Alexandropoulos treats the government-run telephone system like a private enterprise. "We are here to make money and to serve the people. This means we have to invest in equipment and to make telephones available to everyone who asks for them," he says. Part of that investment comes from the new subscriber. He must pay a 4,200-drachma ($140) deposit which is refunded only when he moves to another city and surrenders his telephone. Before 1967 telephones were a special item of political patronage. Candidates would promise

Barracuda Fail Shake Snorkler

By WILLIAM S. HARVEY
CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, V.I. (UPI)—Snorkeling enthusiasts by their nature can be expected to remain unruffled in most underwater situations, but having a bunch of barracuda hanging around as spectators could be asking too much in the nerve department.

Even so, thousands of visitors to the U.S. Virgin Islands have had this experience and later, with the help of a few stiff rums, have described it as high adventure.

If your future includes a visit to the Virgin Islands and you feel you just have to mingle with barracuda in their natural habitat, the place is Buck Island. This heavily vegetated cay lies several hundred yards off the north shore of St. Croix, largest of the three main islands that comprise this U.S. territory in the Caribbean. Reaching Buck Island, however, involves a half-hour boat ride from Christiansted, the island's principal town.

A U.S. National Monument under the National Parks Service aegis since 1961, Buck Island features an underwater snorkel trail laid out through the dazzling coral reefs that lie off its eastern tip.

Picturesque Setting
The infinite hues and shapes of the coral make a picturesque setting for viewing the hundreds of species of tropical fish that populate the reef. Snorkel parties are led through the reef by experienced native hands from the charter boats that operate between Christiansted and Buck Island. The tour starts at a depth of 20 feet but the ocean floor falls off sharply and the greater part of the tour is done at depths of about 40 feet.

One visitor, recounting the tour for some less stout-hearted friends who viewed it through a glass-bottom boat, described the sensation of discovering that he had cold-blooded spectators hovering nearby.

"We were reading one of the underwater signs that tells what species of fish should be around," the snorkel fan said. "I looked around to see what was in the neighborhood.

"When I looked over my right shoulder I almost swallowed my mouthpiece. There, about 10 yards away and staring at me, were five barracuda, hanging motionless in the water. I yanked on the tow rope the guide leads you with. He looked back and I pointed to the barracuda. He just gave me a wave and moved along without another look at the evil-looking critters. I finished the tour with a stiff neck from keeping my head cocked over my right shoulder for the rear view."

Actually, barracuda pose little real menace. Their vision is extremely poor and they have no taste for man. In the rare cases where a barracuda has been known to attack a swimmer it has been because it was attracted by a ring or other shiny objects worn by the swimmer. At any rate there have been no known incidents of barracuda attacks at the Buck Island underwater trail.

Buck Island covers only 180 acres, about the size of a nine-hole golf course, but it has a beautiful white sand beach and a nature trail through the heavily vegetated slopes in addition to its underwater trail.

Part of the enjoyment in a Buck Island outing starts right at the dock in Christiansted harbor. Competing charter sail boats — mostly of the West Indian native sloop type, but also trimarans and catamarans — stage impromptu regattas, trying to beat their rivals on the half-hour run to the island.

Enough Time For One More Family Outing

RALEIGH (AP) — It is at about this time of year that many of us are struck by the realization that "the good old summertime" is almost over.

With the approach of September and the cyclic ritual of preparing the younger set for school, there is just enough time for one more family outing in the direction of our Carolina sand and surf-time, perhaps to pack in a few more memorable experiences, have some fun, and learn a little more about the land around us and about those who have passed this way before.

Today, visitors may ride a ferry from near Ft. Fisher to Southport, then drive up to Brunswick Town, also a state historic site. The town, begun in 1726, grew into the chief port for the exportation of naval stores and lumber from North Carolina. During the American Revolution, however, Brunswick Town was practically deserted.

Beginning in the northeastern part of the state and looking first to the land mass between the Albemarle and Pamlico Sounds, you'll find Somerset place. A 14-room mansion and several outbuildings form the heart of the once vast Josiah Collins plantation. The estate was founded in the 1780s by Josiah Collins Sr., and was willed to his grandson, Josiah III, who built the mansion about 1830. Located on Lake Phelps in Pettigrew State Park, Somerset Place once encompassed over 100,000 acres, and in 1860, with the labor of 327 slaves, produced 50,000 bushels of corn.

A little to the south, on the banks of a creek stretching inland from the Pamlico River, is historic Bath, North Carolina's oldest town, incorporated in 1705. St. Thomas Church was built there in 1734 and is now open to the public along with the Palmer-Marsh House, built in 1744, and the Bonner House, built about 1825. Bath is also famous as the home of Edward Teach, better known as Blackbeard, the pirate. A new visitor center with an interpretive motion picture and other exhibits will be dedicated Oct. 17.

On the Trent River at New Bern is the reconstructed Tryon Palace. Once described as "the most beautiful building in the Colonial Americas," its construction was completed in 1770, and it served as the governor's residence. State officials elected under the first constitution of the independent state of North Carolina were inaugurated there in 1777, and among the many distinguished persons who visited Tryon Palace was President George Washington. The palace and surrounding buildings have been furnished handsomely by the Tryon Palace Commission.

In the southeastern part of the state below Wilmington is Ft. Fisher, the largest Civil War earthwork in the Confederacy. Having been largely responsible for keeping the port of Wilmington open until only a few months before the end of the war, Ft. Fisher was the scene of a final bloody battle Jan. 15, 1865. A force of 3,300 Union soldiers attacked the fortification which was manned by 1,500 Confederates. The story of the battle is told in exhibits in the modern visitor center.

With the collapse of the stronghold at Ft. Fisher, many Confederates concentrated at Ft. Anderson which had been constructed on the site of Colonial Brunswick Town, just across the Cape Fear River.

Today, visitors may ride a ferry from near Ft. Fisher to Southport, then drive up to Brunswick Town, also a state historic site. The town, begun in 1726, grew into the chief port for the exportation of naval stores and lumber from North Carolina. During the American Revolution, however, Brunswick Town was practically deserted.

Vulnerability to attack by British warships was demonstrated in 1776 when the town was burned by English troops under the command of Cap. Collet. In addition to the ruin of St. Phillips Church, sixty foundations have been excavated and left open as archaeological exhibits. The well-preserved earthworks of Ft. Anderson, built in 1862, can also be seen at this site, and a visitor center opens one to the site and displays artifacts from this past.

FRANKLIN, Pa. (UPI) — A leading mining machinery firm here didn't let a trucker strike in Cleveland prevent it from exhibiting its equipment to the American Mining Congress' convention. It airlifted the trade show here instead.

After setting up its equipment display in a plant storage area, Joy Manufacturing Co. chartered a DC-3 to go with its own small executive aircraft and instituted an 80-mile shuttle service. Plant secretaries, dressed up in miners hats for identification, served as hostesses to guide arriving groups from the local airport to the plant by car and bus.

At the same time, 86 per cent of all graduates from UC medical schools in San Francisco and Los Angeles went into patient care as their major occupation, while only 2 per cent devoted their efforts solely to research.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Water consumption in the United States was 120 trillion gallons in 1969, according to Rockwell Manufacturing Co., manufacturer of water meters. That's nearly 600,000 gallons of water per person.

Washington Hopeful Crime Laws Are Answer

By JAMES HILDRETH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A tough new law and a steadily-growing police force may enable this city to shuck its unwelcome reputation as one of the most crime-ridden capitals of the world.

Residents, from President Nixon down, are encouraged by a recent police report that the crime rate has declined for six out of the last seven months.

This decline is attributed largely to the increasing effectiveness of Chief Jerry V. Wilson's Metropolitan Police Department, which has expanded from 3,600 men to 5,100 during the past two years.

Not yet reflected in the crime statistics is the impact of a new law which Congress enacted and Nixon signed last month.

Unsafe Feeling Remains
It provides for a massive overhaul of the local court system to relieve a staggering case backlog; authorizes preventive detention of some criminal suspects before trial; permits police to obtain warrants to conduct so-called "No-knock" searches; reduces from 18 to 16 the age at which juveniles charged with some crimes can be tried as adults; expands police wiretapping authority; and provides five-year mandatory minimum sentences for persons convicted twice of armed crimes.

Nixon is counting heavily on the new law to help him redeem his campaign pledge to make it safe to walk the capital's streets at night.

Despite the declining crime rate of recent months, Washington remains a city in which both residents and visitors have legitimate grounds for feeling unsafe—not only on the streets at night, but even in their homes and in public places.

Last month, William Darden, 48, of New Haven, Conn., was returning home from a holiday in North Carolina. He stopped at a Washington diner to get his 9-year-old daughter a hot dog. A family friend and her three infant children also were in the car. Three teen-agers walked up to the car while Darden was inside the diner and demanded money, threatening to shoot one of the children.

Darden returned to the car, saw what was going on, and started tussling with the youths. He was shot once in the chest and died on the street as his daughter watched.

The incident was not as unusual as one might hope. Washington had 291 homicides last year—an average of nearly 6 a week.

Armed robberies are even more commonplace. Washington had an average of 238 robberies and 442 burglaries each week in 1969.

Rape is less common than robbery—but more prevalent than homicide. And criminal sex attacks are not confined to women who have foolishly ventured out alone at night. The victims also include women who have the supposed protection of an escort and a home.

Recently, a George Washington University coed was sitting with her boyfriend on the front porch of her apartment in the Foggy Bottom section of the city, not far from the State Department. Three men walked up and one drew a gun. The couple was forced inside where the men found the girl's roommate, also a coed, asleep. Both women were raped as the boyfriend, bound and gagged, was forced to watch.

Washington recorded 326

Reinforcing Police
To combat this wholesale thuggery, Police Chief Wilson has poured increasing numbers of police into the inner city areas where crime rates are highest. Congress has proved ready, even eager, to authorize increases in police manpower, and

Marijuana Plant Seven Feet Tall
CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Dan Andrae wondered what that seven-foot-tall plant growing in the front yard of his new home might be.

It was an "unusually large marijuana plant," Sheriff Robert Humphrey said after authorities uprooted and hauled it away. He said the plant was growing there when Andrae moved in recently.

Wilson has built up his force rapidly through an energetic recruiting campaign.

At his request, Congress has raised starting salaries for police to $8,500 a year. The Defense Department also has cooperated, by offering to release servicemen five months early if they sign up to be District of Columbia policemen.

The racial frictions which inevitably arise when a predominantly white police force tries to maintain order in a city whose population is 73 per cent black have been reduced, though not eliminated, by an intensive effort to increase the proportion of Negroes on the force. Two years ago, the police department was 25 per cent black. Today it is 35 per cent black, and about half of the new recruits in training are black.

With more policemen on the streets, strong crime-fighting legislation on the books, and an energetic and innovative police chief on the job, Washingtonians are beginning to feel hopeful that crime here can be reduced at least to manageable proportions.

Wilson, 42, a candid career officer, promises no early advent of Utopia.

"There will always be some crime, until something realistic is done about our social problems," he said recently.

"We've really only been skimming the top." It gets increasingly difficult to cut into the core."

Bathing Caps For Long Hairs
LIMERICK, Ireland (AP) — Long-haired visitors to this city's municipal swimming pool have been ordered to wear bathing caps. "The pool had to be closed," said a city engineer, "because the filtering system is clogged up with great masses of human hair." But just how long is long? This wasn't answered in the order.

INDEPENDENCE
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Rhode Island declared her independence from Great Britain May 4, 1776, two months before the other 12 of the 13 original colonies.

No Desegregation Order Delay By Justice Burger

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has refused to delay desegregation orders in four large Southern school districts despite pleas for a Supreme Court ruling on busing before school openings.

The decision left the districts — Charlotte-Mecklenburg County and Winston-Salem-Forsyth County in North Carolina and Dade and Broward counties in Florida—with the problem of opening their schools in time with the required buses to transport pupils out of their neighborhoods.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg case has been considered the potential test case on the question of busing to achieve racial balance. Other Southern districts had hoped a stay in that case would free them of the busing burden.

However, the denial Tuesday means the Supreme Court won't rule on the case before the next regular session, which opens Oct. 5. In the meantime, the districts will be forced to implement their desegregation plans as ordered.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg integration order by a federal district judge will necessitate large-scale busing to achieve racial balance in the elementary schools.

Dade County, Fla., which includes Miami, had sought a stay of its order until the Charlotte case was settled.

In Miami, Dade County School Supt. E. L. Whitham, expressing surprise at Burger's decision, said his staff will have to work "nights, days and all week end," to try to open all schools on time Monday.

"We're putting the plan in action and hope to open all Dade schools on time," he said, but there may be some that will have to start on an emergency basis, some that may have to have their openings adjusted."

A 5th Circuit Court decision requires the busing of at least 3,000 children in addition to the 34,000 already being bused in Dade.

In Broward County, which includes Fort Lauderdale, and in Winston-Salem-Forsyth County, court orders call for clustering and pairing of black schools with predominantly white schools.

Charlotte school officials and community leaders joined in an appeal to the community to abide by the ruling and stand behind the board of education.

The number of additional pupils to be bused in Charlotte has been variously estimated at 13,000 to 17,000. The Winston-Salem school board will have to bus an estimated 2,700 pupils.

In Charlotte, school board chairman William E. Poe left open the question of how many schools will open on time Sept. 9, but asked "all my fellow citizens to put aside personal feelings and to join with the Board of Education in attempting to make the best of the situation that confronts us at this point. The Charlotte and Mecklenburg County schools had been scheduled to open Aug. 31, but the date was moved up to Sept. 9 to give more time to prepare the request for the stay, and avoid, if possible, any midyear change of course. Winston-Salem also had delayed its opening, until Sept. 8, in the hope of a favorable ruling before then.

School Supt. William Self has said only the junior and senior high schools in the combined Charlotte-Mecklenburg system can be opened under the desegregation plan, due to the lack of buses and money to implement the plan. The chairman of the county commissioners, Charles Lowe, said he doesn't know of any way the county can come up with additional money for the buses.

Dr. G. Don Roberson, one of the leaders of the Concerned Parents Association, which has fought the Charlotte-Mecklenburg desegregation plan from its inception, said there still are "avenues open" to avoid the plan, but he wouldn't elaborate.

Thomas B. Harris, a Charlotte-Mecklenburg school board member-elect who won on an antibusing platform, predicted "firm and yet quiet and cool dissent" to the plan. He said he believed the dissent would take the form of students staying at home.

William F. Maready, chairman of the Winston-Salem-Forsyth school board, said he had hoped the Supreme Court would "give us a definitive decision, definitive guidelines before school systems around the country are required to go into this kind of disruption."

He said the one virtue of the ruling was its finality. "Now that we have reached the end of the line and have no other place to go," he said, "we have the obligation to open the schools as soon as we possibly can to reduce the hardships as much as we can, to reduce disruption as much as we can, and do as much for quality education as we possibly can."

Mayor M. C. Benton asked the Winston-Salem residents to obey the court decision and keep their children in school.

Shied Away From Willie

NEW YORK (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor, recent victim of a $600,000 jewelry holdup, and Willie "The Actor" Sutton met in a television studio, and the glamorous actress immediately shied away from the former master thief.

"Don't you know who it was?" Miss Gabor demanded.

She clutched a heavy rhinestone necklace and edged away from Sutton, 69, after they were introduced Tuesday night at a taping of the Merv Griffin Show to be aired tonight.

"I'll try and find them for you," answered Sutton, who is reputed to have stolen more than $2 million during his lifetime. He was freed last year after spending more than 30 years in four prisons and escaping from three of them.

Miss Gabor lost two rings, one a 38-carat diamond, and a set of earrings to two holdup men in an elevator of the Waldorf Towers last week.

Willie told her he thought the job was the work of professionals.

South was close to the requirements for a demand bid holding 24 points in high cards and distribution, but he chose to open with one heart. West overcalled with two clubs and North freely bid two hearts. South reasoned that he might well expect to find his partner short in clubs and with good hearts or a high card on the side—either of which would give him a good play for slam. He, therefore, proceeded directly to six hearts.

West opened the king of clubs and declarer played the ace. He cashed the ace and queen of trumps. Had he ruffs divided evenly, South could concede one club, ruff two in the dummy and discard the deuce of spades on North's third diamond.

By Speed Train

NEW YORK (AP) — High speed trains may one day link Los Angeles and Las Vegas, according to Frank L. Whitney, president of Walter Kidde Constructors. In a study commissioned by the Southern Nevada Industrial Foundation and the Los Angeles Department of Airports, Kidde Constructors found that 300-mile-an-hour, air-cushion vehicles traveling on U-shaped guideways would be economically feasible. The system could be in operation by 1980, and could produce a net operating revenue of $30 million a year after 1990.

Frogmen Quit Drinking Cups

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Navy frogmen are doing without to cut down water pollution—without plastic-foam drinking cups.

"These cups float in water and do not break up or disintegrate," said Capt. Charles B. Bishop, commander of the Naval Undersea Research and Development Center, in an order banning the cups.

"There have been reports of fish dying from plastic lodged in the digestive tract."

Divine Sparks Makes Humans

Henry asks one of the most profound questions in all human history! So listen to the theory of Descartes. And remember that St. Paul said two forces were at war within him, namely, animal inclinations vs. spiritual idealism. We all have animal bodies but human beings get those "Divine Sparks" implanted at birth!

CASE 0-515: Henry R., aged 20, was one of my psychology students at Northwestern University.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "I have noticed that I get a lump in my throat and my heart seems to ache when I see the climax of a great play.

"Or when certain musical pieces reach their crescendo.

Salmon Count By TV Camera

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP) — Taking advantage of a pollution warning device, sportsmen in Northern California may find their favorite fall television show is a closed circuit view of the 60-pound salmon that got away.

The salmon, steelheads weighing up to 10 pounds and other fish living in the Sacramento River will appear on a special television hookup at the fish counting station 200 miles north of San Francisco.

Dale E. Schoeneman, director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife project, said the new fish counting operation opening next week will save manpower and equipment and should attract many visitors.

"People for one reason or another are particularly fascinated by these big salmon as they come up the river," Schoeneman said.

A lot of staff time was wasted, he said, taking them on tours of "the hole"—the concrete pit in the river locks where counters watch the fish through pressure glass.

Schoeneman said government fish watching goes back more than 40 years. Closed circuit

Family Honored At Sunday Tea

The Ladies Auxiliary of Piney Grove Original F.W.B. Church entertained guests attending a tea honoring Rev. and Mrs. Adrian Grubbs Jr. on Sunday afternoon at the church parsonage.

The auxiliary invited the community to meet the new minister and his family, who were formerly from Raleigh and recently accepted the pastorate.

An arrangement of snapdragons and pom poms accented the green and white color scheme of the refreshment table and white gladioli and greenery provided the focal point in the living room.

Refreshments were served the guests by ladies of the auxiliary.

Special out-of-town guests present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis of Rocky Mount. Lewis is the brother of Mrs. Grubbs.

Justice Dept. Says Post Office Heroin Smugglers Arrested In Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Americans, charged with smuggling $17 million worth of heroin into the United States, have been arrested abroad, the Justice Department announced today.

The department said the two men, Jack Grosby and Louis Stepenberg, had been indicted by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn, N.Y., last June. The indictments were kept sealed until the pair was arrested.

Will Head 4-H Bank Campaign

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Dr. J. W. Pou, vice president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Greenville, N.C., will head the 1970 4-H Bank Campaign.

The announcement came this week from Emmett G. Solomon, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Crocker-Citizens National Bank in San Francisco. Solomon is the Nationwide 4-H Bank Campaign chairman.

Pou joins with leading bankers in 35 other states who are also conducting 4-H bank campaigns this year.

The campaigns are conducted annually to help support the "service to youth" programs of the National 4-H Club Foundation.

Grosby in Geneva, Switzerland, and Stepenberg in Nice, France. In a statement from the office of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, the department said the arrests have broken up "an international heroin trafficking ring."

The indictment alleged Grosby and Stepenberg conspired to import and distribute heroin, including more than 60 pounds between June of 1969 and February of 1970. The department said that quantity would have a street sale value of approximately $17 million.

The department said Grosby was arrested by Swiss police at the request of the United States. Grosby had fled the country after posting $50,000 bail on a 1968 narcotics indictment.

Stepenberg was arrested after he flew from Madrid, Spain, to Nice. The department said Stepenberg had been under surveillance by Spanish authorities.

If convicted on each of the indictment's 36 counts, Grosby and Stepenberg each could receive a maximum of 615 years in prison and a $615,000 fine.

Post Office Promotions Announced

Donald F. Hargy, officer-in-charge of the Greenville Post Office, has announced promotions for four employees. John J. Foell has been promoted to Superintendent of Mails, Melbern Bailey to Foreman of Mails, Carleton R. McCollom to Assistant Superintendent of Mails, and F. Dan Gooding has been named assistant to the East Carolina University Station superintendent.

John Foell joined the Greenville Post Office in 1949. He served as a carrier until 1965, when he was promoted to a supervisory position. He served as superintendent of the ECU station from 1968 to October, 1969, when he was appointed assistant superintendent of mails. As superintendent of mails, Foell will be responsible for all postal handling operations.

Foell's new assistant, McCollom, joined the Greenville Post Office in 1960. He became a supervisor in 1966 and in his new position will be responsible for the delivery and collection services.

Bailey is being promoted from assistant to the ECU station superintendent. He has been with the post office since 1949 and as foreman of mails, Bailey will direct the dispatch of mails. Bailey's replacement, Gooding, joined the Post Office in 1965 as distribution clerk.

GUEST STAR
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Albertson will star in a guest role in ABC's new hour-long drama "The Immortal" starring Christopher George.

Stations Not For Meetings

Five Greenville Fire Fighters Association officers met yesterday afternoon with City Manager Harry Hagerty and were told again that the association could not meet in the central fire station.

Association members held an open-air meeting in the parking lot between fire department headquarters and city hall last Friday night after being told by an assistant fire chief that he had direct orders to request the men not to meet in the fire department's meeting room.

The Greenville Fire Fighters Association is a union affiliated with the International Association of Fire Fighters.

According to the local group's president, Jerry McLawhorn, Hagerty requested to meet with the union's officers at 4 p.m. The meeting lasted for about two hours.

Hagerty, McLawhorn said, told the officers that the city council, "can't permit us to meet in the station (fire station) because they would be recognizing us as a union."

Commenting on yesterday's meeting, the city manager explained that it was designed to "clarify with them..." the council's position.

"It's all a matter that the council handled way back... in March," he said, pointing out that according to state law and a ruling from the attorney general the union "cannot be recognized."

Albania Apparently Moving To End Isolation

By RICHARD M. SUDHALTER
BELGRADE (UPI)—The cocoon of isolation surrounding Albania, the least-understood nation in Europe, at last appears to be breaking. The abiding political question now for both East and West is why.

Tirana, the capital of the lone European ally of Communist China, has put out a series of diplomatic feelers in recent months clearly aimed at thawing relations on a wide variety of fronts.

It has exchanged ambassadors with Scandinavian countries and made open overtures to "revisionist" Yugoslavia next door. It has negotiated cultural and technical exchanges with Egypt and Turkey and increased trade with Romania.

Foes In War—Allies
Most surprising of all was Albania's signing in June of a trade agreement with Greece, with which it is still technically at war. A Greek foreign ministry spokesman went as far this month as to say he thought the accord ultimately could lead to "the start of eventual diplomatic relations."

Relations or no, the trade pact is an unprecedented Albanian gesture toward Greece a key Atlantic alliance member whose leaders are regularly decried throughout the Communist world as "a fascist military clique." It also is a landmark on what appears to be Albania's path to a new concept of its role in the international political picture.

Albania, a mountainous land of only two million inhabitants, is about the size of Vermont and Rhode Island combined. It borders the Adriatic across from the heel of the Italian boot, between Yugoslavia and Greece.

Countercurrents Begin
Its borders remain closed to all but a steady trickle of foreign visitors who are closely supervised during their stays. Albania participates in no regular diplomatic or political activity in Europe.

Once a Warsaw Pact member, it began a drift out of the Soviet orbit in the 1950s which culminated in a break with the alliance in 1968.

Since then Tirana has strengthened its political and military ties with China, though periodic reports of Chinese missiles and other weapons systems in Albania have never been verified.

East European diplomats in Belgrade said recent Albanian moves appear to indicate realization in Tirana that close ties with Peking—even ideological ones do not imply identical political needs or even attitudes.

Perspective On China
"It would be wrong to assume that Albania and China have completely similar views concerning world problems," the Zagreb newspaper Vjesnik commented April 25. "On the contrary, there have existed important differences (between them) and individual points of view on certain international issues. Internal developments in Albania, moreover, are certainly no imitation of Chinese socialism."

Accordingly, Albania has developed a highly individual approach to its relations with neighboring Greece and Yugoslavia, as well as with Bulgaria and Romania.

Communist Party leader Enver Hoxha followed up a series of friendly newspaper articles by praising "good neighborly relations" with Yugoslavia in a May 30 speech in Bajram Curry, near the Yugoslav border.

Peking Thaw, Too
His remarks followed only a week after a decision by the Yugoslav party Presidium to step up development of Kosovo, the largely Albanian-populated South Yugoslav province bordering Albania.

Hoxha took note—another unprecedented move—of the fact that Albanians in Kosovo are being granted more and more rights by the Belgrade government.

Diplomats warned, however, that the influence of Chinese policy on Albanian thinking, while far from absolute, cannot be underplayed. They recalled Peking took the lead in thawing out its international diplomatic relations, sending back to their posts many ambassadors pulled home during China's "cultural revolution" in the 1960s.

Yugoslavia's first ambassador to Peking in 12 years arrived in the Chinese capital in May. Peking's envoy is expected in Belgrade within the next few weeks.

Anti-Soviet Strategy?
Albanian-Yugoslav relations remain at legation level.

The reason or reasons for the Chinese and Albanian thaws remain subjects for discussion, at least for the moment. But most diplomats here advise close study of the Sino-Soviet dispute for possible clues.

"Both the Chinese and the Albanians fear the Soviet Union," one senior western diplomat said recently. "For them, good relations these days could mean more sympathy for their side of things—and possibly more support."

The Kremlin periodically reaffirms its declared readiness to restore good relations with its ex-Warsaw Pact ally on the South Adriatic despite what it terms "intrigues by hostile forces"—presumably the Chinese.

A Widening Future
But for Moscow radio, the Graeco-Albanian trade pact in June "meets the wishes of official circles in the U.S.A. for paving the path for American penetration into Albania through their links with the Greek fascist junta."

From all indications, Alba-nia's diplomatic "new look" has already begun to yield results.

Yugoslav President Tito, apparently taking Hoxha's cue, told a recent rally in Zabljak, South Yugoslavia: "We have not other interests than good relations as far as Albania is concerned. It has always been our wish to make our relations as good as possible. True, our systems are different—but this should not be a reason for poor relations on the frontiers."

Observers agreed the 78-year-old president's speech was Yugoslavia's warmest nod yet in Albania's direction.

"It's up to Tirana now," the western diplomat said. "And I've got a hunch the Albanians will accept the invitation."

It's here: lowest-lead, highest-octane gasoline for the money. New Big Plus.

We took most of the lead out, to help clean up the air.

We left half a cc of lead in, because engine tests show some lead is needed to prevent possible valve damage.

We doubled the amount of engine-cleaning detergent, to cut exhaust emissions even more.

We kept octane high, so 9 out of 10 drivers can use it without worrying about engine knock.

And we kept the price below most major premiums, leaded or unleaded.

We call it Big Plus. It's the lowest-lead, highest-octane gasoline for the money.

Ask for it where you see the Esso sign.

And help your car run clean.

Commemorate D.H. Lawrence

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — A D.H. Lawrence festival, commemorating the 40th anniversary of the British novelist's death, will begin Sept. 30 near this northern New Mexico community, famed for its artists in residence.

A $15,600 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to the University of New Mexico will enable 12 top D.H. Lawrence scholars to participate in the month-long festival.

Included in the festival will be panel discussions with Lawrence scholars, movies of Lawrence's works, exhibitions of memorabilia and other activities.
