

School Bd. Names One Week Sales Holiday Principals And 4 For Flue-Cured Tobacco Ass't Principals

By BLANCHE HARDEE Reflector Staff Writer The Pitt County Board of Education named the principals for the D.H. Conley and Farmville High Schools, appointed assistant principals for all four new high schools, and delayed the opening of the North Pitt School one week at their meeting yesterday.

action yesterday, the new North Pitt High School will begin classes on Sept. 16 rather than on Sept. 8 when all other schools in the county will begin operation. The board's action came after Ralph Hall, supervisor of construction for the board of education, reported the North Pitt School was only 92 percent complete and that there were some problems which will take additional time to work out.

Earlier, the board named Walter Latham as principal at North Pitt and William C. Wiggins to head the new Ayden-Grifton High School. Assistant principals appointed yesterday included: Melvin W. Rountree, D. H. Conley; LeRoy Redden, Farmville; Frederick Parks, Ayden - Grifton; Farney M. Moore and Ernest Roy McNair Jr., both at North Pitt.

RALEIGH (AP) — Because of a glut in marketing and redrying operations, sale of flue-cured tobacco will be suspended on all operating belts next week.

Marketing Committee after a subcommittee recommended it. The subcommittee acted after it heard reports that several buying firms have been unable to obtain sufficient labor to remove purchased tobacco from warehouse floors.

Some companies also reported that their redrying facilities were glutted and that transportation problems have been encountered.

Howard B. Cone of Universal Leaf Tobacco Co., Richmond, Va., vice president of the marketing committee, said: "Nobody wants a holiday, but some companies will be forced to withdraw from the markets unless they are granted relief."

At that time it is expected to consider whether to increase sales time for South Carolina markets because of increased production and the lateness of the crop.

Gourmet Corner: Rich Harvest From Ancient Era

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
When we were writing news dispatches in the Italian city of Naples a number of years ago, we enjoyed going from restaurant to restaurant, and to a few private homes as well, to sample the robust spicy fare of that region. What remains etched most vividly in our mind today is the rich variety of olives we consumed.

We can still taste the huge bitter green olives of southern Italy, the pungent black ones from the island of Sicily and the plump, reddish variety of Greece. It was all the same fruit, basically, picked at varying stages of ripeness.

We also learned that olives were used as something more than part of an antipasto spread. The Italians did many wondrous things with them. There were breaded, stuffed olives, chicken and other fowl dressed with olive stuffing and such attractions as olive bread and olive soup to tempt the palate.

Probably no fruit has had as far-reaching an effect on the development of man as the olive. At least 3,000 years before Christ's time, the peoples of the Near East and the Mediterranean discovered the garbled tree with its rich, oily fruit.

Soon the olive became a centerpiece on dinner tables in Asia Minor, and olive oil was being used to light lamps and fuel stoves.

In the days of the Caesars, Romans rubbed their bodies with the oil of the olive, convinced that it would make them healthy and add years to their life.

Cutting down olive trees was deemed a serious crime in olden days, and since war was a prime cause of destruction, the olive branch became a symbol of peace. The Bible refers to the olive many times, and the dove carried an olive leaf in its beak to announce to Noah and his companions on the Ark that the flood was subsiding.

Although generally associated with nations in the Mediterranean area, the olive journeyed to the New World many years ago.

In the 16th century, Spanish explorers introduced olives to Peru and two centuries later, the Franciscan missionaries brought seeds of the legendary fruit to California.

Settlers in Georgia and South Carolina began experimenting with olive groves in the 1780s, and Thomas Jefferson, an ardent student of agriculture, tried to raise a few trees at Monticello.

The climate of our southeast proved too cold or too humid to grow olives, but they established a firm foothold in California which is still a leading producer of the fruit, especially the black olive with its distinctive, nutty flavor.

The olive tree is one of the world's hardiest plants, if the climate is right. It will grow in meager soil, sending its roots deep down for water so that it can withstand the most parching drought. Small wonder that the olive tree became almost a symbol of life itself to dwellers in barren lands where one sometimes depended on the local grove and its yield for survival.

Here are two recipes which present the olive both as an appetizer and as a source of real sustenance.

COCKTAIL KEBABS
1. Alternate on cocktail picks, stuffed olives and crisp radishes.

2. Marinate for 24 hours amount desired of large green and black olives in garlic dressing, drain, toss with cherry tomatoes and thread on picks.

3. Wrap stuffed green olives and water chestnuts with bacon, thread on slender metal skewers and broil till bacon is crisp.

Southwestern Olive Soup
Simmer 4 ounces minced ripe olives with small garlic clove in 1½ cups clear chicken broth. After 15 minutes, remove the garlic and add one egg beaten first with four ounces cream. Heat, stirring constantly for 7 minutes, without boiling. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve hot or chilled for three or four portions.

Wig Deal Causes Shaky Friendship

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago I won a wig at a raffle at our church bazaar. It was a good one that would sell for $65 in any store. I tried it on and my husband said I looked like Merv Griffin. Well, I never wore it.

One day a friend of mine came over and asked me what I did with the wig I had won. I told her it was still in the box. She asked if she could try it on. We both thought it looked great on her. Then she asked if she could take it home and show it to her husband, so I said sure.

The next morning she called and said she'd give me $35 for it, which was a good deal for me because I only paid a dollar for the raffle ticket I won it with.

My friend kept the wig and paid me the money. A deal, right?

Well, three months later she called and asked if she could bring the wig back. She said she wore it once and her husband decided he didn't like it on her, and she has no use for it.

Do I have to take the wig back? MAD

DEAR MAD: No. Tell your friend to send it to Merv Griffin. If he ever flips his wig, he'll have a spare.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband and his foolish ways.

We have five children, ages 3 to 17. We can't put a light on to go to the bathroom at night. (It's "wasting electricity.") If the telephone rings after 8 p. m. (it's usually for one of the kids) my husband wants to tear the phone out of the wall. (He did that twice.)

He locks his dirty clothes in his tool box in the cellar so I can't wash them. Once he took a bolt out of my washing machine so I couldn't use it. (He says the machine uses too much hot water.)

Our 13-year-old forgot to put the scissors back in its proper place, so my husband became so furious, he smashed a beer bottle against the wall.

Once he hurt the youngest one so bad I had to take him to the doctor to get him checked. He also hurt the 13-year-old bad enough for a doctor's care. I should have told the doctor how these kids got hurt but I didn't. Now I regret it.

Is there anything you can do about my problem? This man is murder to live with. NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Your husband's ways are more than "foolish." They are symptoms of a sick, and potentially dangerous man. See that he gets help before he does serious bodily harm to you or to one of the children. It's not too late to report him now. I sincerely hope you do.

DEAR ABBY: For the last year and a half my son has been keeping steady company with a girl I'll call Judy. The other evening Judy and her mother paid me a visit. I had no idea they were coming, and it just so happened that I was on the telephone talking to my daughter at the time. I must admit we talked for some time, I would say it was about an hour or so.

Well, my son's girl friend says that she will never come to my house again—that I was rude, inconsiderate and insulting! She said I should have cut the conversation with my daughter short, and entertained her and her mother.

Abby, she really hurt me with those words. I don't feel that I was in the wrong because there were other members of the family in the house to keep Judy and her mother company while I was on the phone.

I am terribly upset over this and wish you would tell me what I should do about it, if anything. UPSET

DEAR UP: I think you owe Judy and her mother an apology. An hour is a long time for visitors to be entertained by "other members of the family" when they came especially to visit with you.

DEAR ABBY: We thoroly agree with "SICK OF HYPOCRITES." Invariably, when an "X" rated movie is shown in our theater, some people will sit thru it twice, and then come out and complain about how disgusting it was. Some even have the gall to ask for their money back.

We feel that the most "disgusting" thing about an "X" rated film is the kind of people who come to see them. THEATER OWNER

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Majority Accepting Changes

All over the South now millions of school children are going back to schools which are fully integrated for the first time in history. Although there have been scattered reports of boycotts and minor troubles the majority of southerners of all races seem to be accepted the vastly changed school situation in a responsible manner.

Following the Monday school openings the U. S. Office of Education in Atlanta indicated that it had

The Boom For Ramsey Clark

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — A light-hearted band of Raleigh Democrats is building a boom for Ramsey Clark for President in 1972.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Light-hearted, but not light-headed; they're sincere in their hero worship and serious in their intent to lay the groundwork to gain him the nomination.

Maybe it's not exactly a boom yet even in Raleigh, much less North Carolina. Accomplishments to date include a bumper sticker, a campaign song and a loose organization meeting weekly which since January has grown from around five to 150.

Nationally, it's a trail-blazing effort on behalf of Clark although similar groups now are stirring in Boston, New York and elsewhere.

Who is Ramsey Clark? At this point only the politically attuned, particularly to the liberal Democratic wave length, are likely to know.

He is the former Attorney General under President Lyndon B. Johnson, the son of U. S. Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, now practicing in the Washington - New York law firm which includes Arthur Goldberg in the string of names on its door.

He is a drawly Texan variously compared to Gary Cooper and Abraham Lincoln, and on occasion described as "a real Southern populist."

The lack of broad public identification will be remedied this fall with the publication of his book, "Crime in America." Its selection by the Book-of-the-Month Club will put it on coffee tables in middle class households throughout the land.

The publisher, scenting the promotional value of the Raleigh group's existence, asked for 1,000 "Clark for President" bumper stickers to send to book reviewers.

Chairman Cyrus King, like others of the founders on the staff of North Carolina State University, chucked as he prepared to report the request to a recent meeting of the group. "That press agent obviously isn't aware of our financial resources," he said.

So far the treasury has benefited from a $5-a-head assessment and a smattering of contributions. That has financed the printing of 1,500 blue and white bumper stickers, an ad in a national magazine of literary and intellectual cast, and some correspondence with Clark fans in other states.

Musical Fund Raiser Next
The first fund-raiser is scheduled September 19 at the NCSU Faculty Club, scene of the regular meetings. Billed as a "Sing-In for Ramsey Clark," it is aimed to draw students into the movement. The feature will be the premiere of the campaign song composed by Milton Bliss of the music faculty.

"Roll On Ramsey" is the title, and to a rocking rhythm it proclaims: "Out of the dark with Ramsey Clark. Justice, Equality, Freedom for you and me (Yes o Yes o Yes)!" The emphasis will be on fun as well as funds, typical of the good-humored approach to politics which has been the organization's tenor all along.

Its members are Democrats active in their precincts and keen on political discussion, though none swings weight in the party hierarchy. Casting about for a '72 standard-bearer, Clark swam into their vision through an interview in Playboy magazine. Incidentally, the author was Tom Wicker, a North Carolinian and Washington bureau chief for the New York Times who has since written his good wishes to the group.

Borrowing Vice President Agnew's rhetoric, the name first selected was "Effete Snobs for Ramsey Clark." Under that heading a speaking invitation was extended to Clark, but the polite response was that he was much too busy.

Into Public View
Adopting the less witty but more workable title of "Citizens for Ramsey Clark," the group surfaced first at the Democratic State Convention in July. A booth drew heavy traffic from delegates for free coffee, picked up enough contributions to foot the bill, and collected 80 names of Democrats across the state interested in more information on Clark.

Chairman King said similar exposure is planned at the Young Democratic Clubs meeting in Winston-Salem later this month. Hopefully, it will be a foot-in-the-door for organizing young voters under the Clark banner.

The Raleigh movement is an early and spontaneous manifestation of a tendency among liberal democrats nationally to look in Clark's direction for a prospective candidate.

Clark himself has looked the other way, but with an attitude of modesty and political realism that fails to deflate his admirers. Up to this point, he has disclaimed any Presidential ambitions or intentions.

received few reports of problems. "No news is good news," a spokesman said.

There are still many problems to be faced in school desegregation, of course. The Supreme Court is to hear arguments on Oct. 12 on whether or not to require all schools to be racially balanced. There are also many school districts which simply have not been able to find the funds to provide bussing that is necessary to fully integrate a city school system.

All-in-all though the mood of the south seems to be to get school integration behind us and then to get on with the job of building schools which will provide the best education to all pupils. In doing this most southerners recognize that the laws were written to leave school segregation outside the south untouched and so far the courts have shown little inclination to tamper with pupil assignments outside the south.

Be that as it may, most southerners want most now to get our school situation settled down so that our youngsters can have a sense of security in their own schools.

We have often predicted that when integration was finally accomplished all southerners would accept this new way in a responsible and mature manner. There have been problems, of course, but this year's peaceful school openings have borne this out.

A Good Indication Of Medical Care Needs

The Malaysian Family Planning Board has found that every half minute 100 children are born in developing countries. Twenty of these will die within a year. Of the 80 surviving, 60 will have no access to modern medical care during their childhood.

These figures give a good indication of how far mankind has to go before adequate medical care is universally available.

Scranton Sees New Hostility

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Military resentment that the Scranton commission staff has been antagonistic in its investigation of the Kent State tragedy was buttressed by one bizarre incident on the eve of hearings.

At about 1 a.m. on Aug. 17, the duty officer at Lockbourne Air Force Base near Columbus, Ohio, received a highly unusual telephone call from Kent, Ohio, some 130 miles to the northeast. The caller was 28-year-old Lloyd Ziff, a senior law student spending the summer working on the staff of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest headed by former Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania.

Ziff demanded that a helicopter be dispatched immediately to the Holiday Inn in Kent where he was staying, pick him up and take him to Camp Grayling, Mich., where Ohio National Guard units were in summer encampment. Ziff's intent was to serve subpoenas on Guardsmen involved in the May 4 killing of four Kent State students.

The duty officer, explaining there were no helicopters at Lockbourne and he had no authority to provide transportation anyway, turned down Ziff. But Ziff would not take no for an answer. He called Lockbourne again at 2 a.m. — and again and again through the long night right up to 5:55 in the morning.

Ziff was referred to higher officers at Lockbourne and finally to a civilian Pentagon official in Washington, routed out of bed to take the call. The fiasco finally ended when William Matt Byrne, the commission staff director, was awakened to be told of the nightlong pestering and turned off Ziff. Although Ziff's superiors told us he was just overly eager, the military feels his calls were part of a pattern of hostility which became clear during the open hearings — a view shared by Rep. William Scherle of Iowa, a hard-line conservative Republican. In a letter to Scranton, Scherle charged that the commission staff was "involved in antics which harass the military forces of this country."

A footnote: Some White House aides privately share the aggravation of conservative Republican Congressmen over the staff selected by Scranton. It contains an abnormally high percentage of ex-Justice Department lawyers from Kennedy-Johnson days plus two unsuccessful Democratic aspirants for Congress in California and Idaho.

The Banker-Governor
The latest in the series of embarrassing bloopers in Republican fund-raising conducted by direct mail tycoon Richard Viguerie was a misdirected appeal in the 1969-'70 school year. One of the three not mentioned was South Greenville Elementary School on Howell Street, obviously, to most people, because it was satisfactorily integrated.

The South Greenville student body was drastically changed for the '69-'70 term. All four hundred fifty (450) children and their parents, teachers and principal worked hard to make adjustments that created a good integrated school situation. It did not need to be altered for the '70-'71 school year to any appreciable extent. One hundred thirty-four (134) white children to whom that school is nearest, are

Strength For Today

Not Too Bad At That
Someone had it framed and standing up in a conspicuous place: "As soon as the rush is over I'm going to have a nervous breakdown. I worked hard for it. I owe it to myself and nobody is going to deprive me of it."

We have often heard people declare that if they had more money they would have a nervous breakdown — not because the money would produce the breakdown but because they would be able to get through a breakdown and not have the sheriff take everything they own.

Psychiatrists assure us that people have nervous breakdowns because they are the kind of people they just happen to be. They may have been pampered too much in childhood and youth. They may have a heritage that is not too good. They may be too excitable. They may have the tendency to blame all their failures on others. They may have failed in areas where they most wanted to succeed. They may be hateful and unreasonable in the dealings they have with their contemporaries.

People that have nervous breakdowns should not be discouraged and give up hope. In every generation some of the most wonderful people have nervous breakdowns and recover from them. A nervous breakdown may mean defeat for some persons and a triumphant victory for others. The mind is a marvelous mechanism that works after one pattern today and another tomorrow. We cannot smile our way through life; neither can we shriek and curse our way through it.

Tennis Court Protest

MARTHAS VINEYARD, Mass. — Each person celebrated Women's Liberation Day last Wednesday in her own way, and even on a beautiful island such as Martha's Vineyard the women protested in their fashion.

I hadn't even realized it was Women's Liberation Day until I got to the tennis court and my wife said at the start of a doubles game "I'm not going to serve today."

"What do you mean you're not going to serve? You have to serve."

"I'm sick and tired of serving all the time," she said.

"But if you don't serve, we can't play."

"Aha," she said. "That's the first time you've even acknowledged that my serving meant something."

"I've always admired your serve," I said. "You serve very well."

"Well I'm not serving today. You can serve for the both of us."

I looked hopelessly across the net at the Styrons who were in a serious argument. "You ready?" I asked.

"Rose says she's not going to serve today," Styron yelled. Then it dawned on me it was Women's Liberation Day. I glanced at the other courts. None of the wives was serving.

"Rose says I have to serve for her," Styron yelled. "She says all the women on the island have pledged not to serve today. They're sick and tired of being oppressed on the tennis court."

"All right," I said. "We'll serve for them if it means that much."

"We also want child-care centers on Martha's Vineyard," my wife said. "We're fed up with taking care of our children all day long."

"Can it wait until after the tennis game?" I asked.

Styron yelled across the net. "Rose says she won't play the net unless women can have abortions any time they want them."

"It's okay with me," I said. "Are you ready?"

"I'm not going to play the back court," my wife said, "unless women have equal opportunity in jobs."

"You've got it," Styron said.

The game began grimly. I served to Rose who hit it out. "Male chauvinist!" she screamed. Styron hit a smashing ball past my wife's ear, and my wife yelled "Sexist."

Despite their cursing, the women played extremely well. We discovered later that the Martha's Vineyard chapter of Women's Lib had advised all women playing tennis on Wednesday to pretend the tennis ball was their husband's head. It seemed to improve every woman's game.

Styron and I had to serve the entire three sets of tennis, and when we walked off the courts the women were fresh as daisies.

"I want you to know," my wife said that evening as we were retiring, "I'm not a fanatic about Women's Lib. I'm prepared to fulfill my wifely duties."

"That's very decent of you," I said. "But it really doesn't matter because I'm too bushed from serving."

Snuff Sees Revival

By RANDOLPH SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — One of my childhood images built up by years of movie-going has been ruined. I took a pinch of snuff, held it to my nose, inhaled sharply, and failed to sneeze.

For some reason the dandies in all the old Erroll Flynn movies always sneezed. I was a little disappointed. It was an interesting experience, though, and surprisingly pleasant.

America's current fashion movement toward many of the styles that were popular long ago seems, although quietly, to be affecting the snuff industry. The snuff-makers estimate that more than six million Americans now use snuff — although less than one per cent of them inhale it.

Tom Vaughan of the Conwood Corp., in Memphis, formerly known as the American Snuff Co., explained that Americans lost their taste for inhaling snuff right after the Revolutionary War. Since then, he said, almost all Americans have used snuff by placing it between the lower lip and gum in their mouth.

Basically snuffs, the dipping kind you put in your mouth, are either dry or moist with moist popular in the North and dry in the South.

Conwood is now test marketing sniffing snuff for the first time in this country, to see if it will catch on. In fact in a move for convenience the company is also selling what it calls "Snuffettes." These are little tablets of compressed snuff which you can pop into your mouth without worrying about spilling all that finely ground tobacco all over the place.

"Snuff which you inhale can be especially good at breaking the ice at a dull party," Vaughan commented, "it brought most of the people around me asking what it was and wanting to try it."

Snuff was being regularly used by the Indians when Columbus landed and, of course, his crew took the habit back to Europe where it took society by storm.

After a grand age in the 17th and 18th centuries snuff use declined, giving way to smoking. It climbed again during World War II, when thousands of servicemen chose to chew rather than show their position with a lighted cigarette.

To the uninitiated, chew snuff tastes rather like mild chewing tobacco, although its first few uses can make you sick.

Starting in 1949 snuff use took a dip and continued steadily down until three years ago, when the trend began reversing itself.

Opinions In Brief

Other Side Of Ecology Fight

By ELMER ROESSNER
There's another side to all this storm and stress over pollution, ecology and nonreturnable beer bottles. George Fett, who draws the comic strip Little No-No and Sniffy, recently made a sentimental journey to old fishing haunts near Sudbury, Ontario. There is no more fishing. The area is the largest source of nickel in the world. Huge mines are being worked. Water from the string of lakes in which the fish used to play is used to process nickel ore. At times the demands of the refineries had lowered the water level by as much as four feet. The temperature of the shrunken lakes changed and the pike disappeared. And the trout, which drop their eggs under two feet of water, disappeared as the sun parched the old breeding grounds.

"We haven't seen a trout in five years," a native told him.

A Reunion
And the guides were gone, too. The Indians and French-Canadians who knew the woods, lakes and fish habits so well, were working in the nickel mines and refineries.

But the word got around that George Fett, known there more as a sportsman than an artist, and his nephew, were staying at a camp on an island in a fishless lake. One Saturday night a motorboat roared up carrying a half-dozen old guides to see George again.

"It was a happy reunion," he said. "They went through a case of beer and a Canadian quart of whiskey in the first 15 minutes."

George questioned the miners about the changes. Didn't they miss the fishing?

"Look," said one visitor, "I used to make $5 a day as a guide, which was barely enough to support my family. Now I make $35 or $40 a day in nickel."

"But the clean water, the fishing?" George asked.

"My family now gets plenty of food to eat and plenty of clothes to wear. Two of my boys are going to college. I don't give a damn if that takes all the fish in Canada." Over The Snow To The Tavern
"You remember the tavern on the edge of one lake, George?" another asked. "We used to have to walk across the ice to get a drink in winter, or paddle canoes across the lake in fall and spring. Now we blow across the snow in snowmobiles."

"I've counted as many as 150 snowmobiles around the tavern," another put in.

"But," George protested, "isn't the countryside being ruined?"

"I like it this way, at $40 a day," said one.

"Some day the nickel will all be gone," said another. "Then we can stop using the lake water. And because we'll all have lots of money, we can pay to bring back the trout and the pike. The woods will come back and so will the wild animals. Then we can hunt and fish again. We can afford the life you Americans could afford a few years ago."

McGovern Says Presidential Role Is 'Unchecked'

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate vote against the end-the-war amendment "was the final step in turning over complete responsibility for the Indochina war to President Nixon, contends George McGovern.

"His unchecked and unfettered role now as the chief executive makes him responsible alone now for developments in the future," the senator said in an interview. "If things come out well, he'll be a hero. If things come out as I think they will—which is very poorly—then he's in trouble."

McGovern, leader of the forces that lost 55-39 on the Hatfield-McGovern amendment requiring withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam by the end of 1971, was relaxed and unruffled as he sat in his office a few hours after the vote Tuesday and talked about its meaning.

"I think it is an abdication of our constitutional responsibilities to place the whole burden on the President," said the South Dakota Democrat.

"Today, all during this debate, the White House message was 'leave it to the President. He's getting us out, he's in charge, don't try to influence judgments or provide any guidelines at all—give him a free hand.' And the Senate voted to do that today."

The President, McGovern said, made a mistake in insisting on keeping the sole possession of the decision when to end the war.

"He has whatever ego satisfaction comes from demonstrating that he's running the show, that he's running the war," the senator said.

"But he has the great political hazard of making a decision that at best is going to be controversial and unpopular. There's no way to back out of this war now and look graceful about it. You can't settle a war that we're going to settle short of victory without setting off a lot of cries of anguish in the country."

The amendment was born in McGovern's office in late April—just before the incursion in Cambodia. Four versions of it came to the Senate—all of them bearing the imprint and zeal of the senator from South Dakota. Is he now discouraged?

"Temporarily," McGovern said. "I'll recover by tomorrow. I am baffled as to why so many senators who are willing to admit the whole war is a mistake are so reluctant to terminate it. That, I think, is a paradox that is discouraging."

There will be no more efforts this year on McGovern's part to stop the war by legislative action.

"I'm going to continue to speak out against the war," he said, "but we've made a major legislative test now and I don't see any point in running that exercise again this year. After the elections this fall, I think we ought to try again—next year—with some kind of vehicle.... Now it seems to me the next step is to test the issue out on the political hustings this fall and then we'll see what we can do with a different Congress next year."

A number of things could change the outcome on the next try, McGovern said.

"I hate to say this, but I'm afraid it's going to take another debacle of some kind to bring the Senate to its senses. I deplored, as every American did, the Tet offensive in early '68, but it did awaken us to the false assurances that the administration had been giving us."

"Now we're getting all those same false assurances again: that the war is going well, we've had a great victory in Cambodia. I think that situation in Cambodia is a disaster."

Over the years, McGovern said, Congress has gone along with the idea that the world was so dangerous the president, as commander-in-chief, should be given a free hand.

"We have become accustomed to executive wars and executive arrangements," he said, "so people feel uncomfortable when you say the time has come now to stand up and make a decision on this: Do you want it to go on or don't you?"

And then McGovern leaned back in his chair, touched his finger tips together in thought and said:

"I would have liked to have seen a stronger showing. But I suppose it's the first time in the history of the country that 39 senators have stood up in the middle of a war and voted to cut off funds."

Embarrassingly for Viguier, however, the Bank of North Dakota is state-owned and its head is Gov. William L. Guy, the nation's senior Democratic governor. Moreover, Republican solicitation of a banker is ironic in North Dakota, where eight Democratic officials are being prosecuted by the Federal government for being directors of a bank which allegedly contributed to the Democratic party.

Arms for Israel

The fact that the Nixon administration will have legal authority to supply sensitive new military equipment to Israel if negotiations fail is due to a quiet legislative maneuver by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, oddly, over the objections of the militantly pro-Israel Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The military sales bill providing authorization for Israeli arms purchases has been dying a slow death in Senate House conference because of the Cooper-Church amendment on Cambodia. Consequently, Laird and Jackson (the Administration's most effective Democratic helper on foreign policy) collaborated to slip into a different bill—the military procurement bill—authority for Israeli purchases.

Foreign Relations Committee members objected that their control over all foreign aid was being usurped by the Armed Services Committee, which has jurisdiction over the procurement bill. Nevertheless, the bill will pass this week with open-ended authority to sell military hardware Jerusalem.

Cross-Busing Protested In Winston-Salem By Some Parents, Children

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twenty-five white parents and some children marched on City Hall in Winston-Salem Tuesday night to protest cross-busing of school children to achieve desegregation in the Winston-Salem-Forsyth County system.

Other North Carolina school systems which also opened Tuesday under new desegregation plans were the High Point, Wilmington-New Hanover County and Wilson city secondary schools. Officials reported no unusual problems caused by the new plans.

Charles D. Bryant, a leader of the Winston-Salem march, said the group broke away from a meeting of a citizen's organization called No Busing Our Children. He said the larger body had begun talking about opening a private school and that persons in the march could not afford that move.

Mayor M. C. Benton talked with the parents but urged them to await a Supreme Court decision on the busing question.

In Robeson County, about 500 Lumbee Indian pupils continued to sit-in at predominantly Indian schools, which they want to attend to preserve their Indian heritage. The Indians had been assigned to other schools under new district attendance lines.

In Raleigh, attorneys involved in a suit of desegregation of Raleigh schools heard details of a new plan to integrate the schools in the capital city.

The plan was drafted by Dr. John A. Finger, Rhode Island consultant who drew controversial desegregation proposals for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg and

Calls Parents Of Kindergarten Group To Meet

Parents of children selected to be part of Greenville's first public kindergarten program are asked to attend a meeting tomorrow, Thursday night, at Agnes Fullilove School.

Joseph Smith, Jr., principal of the school, states the meeting will take place at eight o'clock tomorrow night in the auditorium. Agnes Fullilove is located at the corner of Chestnut Street and Manhattan Avenue, off Dickinson on the west side of Greenville.

For this meeting, Smith notes that an orientation and registration session is being planned, with a visitation and open house for the general public to follow at a later date.

Wilmington-New Hanover school systems.

Details of the new plan were not made public at Tuesday's conference. But it was learned it involves cross-town busing between white schools in the northern and western fringes of the city and predominantly black schools in south Raleigh.

Attending the conference was U. S. Atty. Francis Kennedy and attorneys for the school board and the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

Adam Stein, lawyer for the fund, said he will submit the plan to U. S. Eastern Dist. Court next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The court will decide whether it will order the board to do away with its neighborhood school plan, which has resulted in 28 of the city's 38 schools being predominantly of one race.

Man Charged With Preliminary Pesticide Rules Are Approved

BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP)—A man has been charged with murder in the fatal shooting Tuesday of a deputy sheriff who was trying to serve papers committing him to a hospital.

Sheriff John Stockard said Ralph Kirby Averette, 34, was charged in the death of Deputy Jerry Davis, 39, and sent to Cherry Hospital at Goldsboro for observation. The Alamance County sheriff said that Averette had been in hospitals before for mental observation.

The sheriff gave this account: Davis and another deputy, A. G. Horner, went to the home of Averette's stepfather, Edward Isley, about four miles north of Burlington shortly before 2 p.m. They were told by Isley that his stepson was upstairs and not in a violent mood.

However, when the two officers entered Averette's room a fight ensued and Averette grabbed Horner's pistol. Davis, the father of three children, was shot seven times, in the chest, neck and legs.

Horner ran to his patrol car and put out a call for help, which was answered by more deputies, Burlington policemen, ABC liquor enforcement officers, FBI agents and state troopers. Tear gas was thrown into the room a short while later.

Burlington Police Lt. Tom Long and sheriff's department Det. David Wilson rushed the room in which Averette had barricaded himself, kicked in the door and wrestled him to the floor.

Lt. Long was treated for a broken ankle and seven officers were treated for tear gas burns.

Rep. Ford Will Aid N.C. GOP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Republican congressional candidates in North Carolina will get campaign help from House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan this fall.

Ford's office says he will speak at Raleigh Sept. 28 for Jack Hawke, who is opposing Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., and Oct. 10 at Southern Pines for Rep. Earl Ruth, R-N. C.

RALEIGH (AP)—A preliminary report detailing proposed controls on pesticide use was approved Tuesday by the Pesticides Committee of the Legislative Research Commission.

The report will be presented to the full commission Sept. 18.

The committee also recommended steps to finance a new pesticide advisory board, which would draft a pesticide program. Funds would be raised largely from licensing and registration fees on pesticide dealers and applicators. The General Assembly would be asked to appropriate additional money from the state's General Fund.

A $25 registration fee on all pesticide brands registered in the state, and a $50 fee for commercial applicators of pesticides was proposed. The fee for inspection of aerial spraying equipment was set at $10 and for ground equipment at $5.

Wisconsin Univ. Looks For Radicals Bent On Ruin

By ARTHUR L. SRB
And
ROBERT E. KESSLER
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — With school reopening only three weeks off, officials of the University of Wisconsin are fearful of a renewal of the bomb-and-fire violence that has plagued the sprawling campus here.

Gone, they feel, are the days of giant, though peaceful, protest marches.

"Now, we'll have 50 radicals bent on destruction," said a university spokesman.

Reopening is Sept. 21.

Less than a month previous, however, on Aug. 24, a high powered bomb exploded in the Army Mathematics Research Center, killing one person and injuring three others.

The bombing stunned, angered and disillusioned many persons in this college community of 170,000 where campus protests have prompted Gov. Warren P. Knowles to mobilize the National Guard three times since 1969 to restore or maintain order.

But not all were shocked by the blast.

"Anybody working for the Army is committing suicide," said a student who writes for an underground newspaper distributed on the 34,000-student campus of the university here.

"The game is not being played in a gentlemanly fashion anymore," he said. "Peaceful protests do no good."

An anonymous group, in an article printed in circular, hailed the deed as an act against "American genocide throughout the world."

The explosion killed Robert Fasnacht, 33-year-old graduate student, and caused damage estimated at up to $6 million.

The bombing was the most violent in a series of protests which have included arson, window-smashing and an abortive attempt to bomb the U.S. Army ammunition plant at nearby Baraboo on New Year's Day from a plane.

Who are the revolutionaries and their sympathizers? Police claim to know little about them.

The radical community in Madison, however, is believed to be made up of college drop-outs, high school runaways, transients who travel from one campus to another, as well as students enrolled at the university.

Radicals who might have actively sought publicity during antiwar protests three years ago have gone underground as demonstrations have escalated from street protests to hit-and-run guerrilla warfare.

The three students who have thus far been arrested for isolated arson attempts had not known organizational ties police reported.

Publicly organized radical groups on the campus, including the Students for a Democratic Society—SDS—have been torn apart in recent years by dissension over revolutionary tactics and goals.

The defunct Wisconsin SDS chapter, which at one time boasted 300 members, split into fragments after the national group's 1969 Chicago convention.

There are five acknowledged members of the American Communist party and one member of the Progressive Labor Movement, a pro-Chinese Communist faction in the campus community.

But they are scorned by most radicals as "too corny and ideological."

The 500 black students have not staged a demonstration since a February 1969 classroom boycott. The school created a black studies department, one of the blacks' demands, but refused to accept an open-admissions policy.

The one visible political group is the Young Socialist Alliance—YSA—a Trotskyite Communist organization which has 35 members.

The YSA is opposed to violence and the use of drugs, according to David Williams, a 21-year-old junior who is a member of the group's Executive Committee.

Gone from the Madison scene in recent months are the various factions of SDS, which broke into the Mother Jones Revolutionary League, the Weathermen, the White Panther party, and the Youth International party.

The Weatherman philosophy of street fighting failed to attract more than a handful of professed adherents in the campus community. A former member's explanation of the end of this organization may explain the disappearance of most radical groups on campus.

"We saw that if you're open and visible, you can be picked off by the police," he said recently.

"The Weathermen as a group is dead, but the Weathermen idea lives on."

"Look at the out-of-sight bombing of the Math Research Center," he explained. "If you go underground and work in 'affinity groups' of two or three freaks, the cops will never catch

Would Expand State's Prison Operations

RALEIGH (AP) — A budget request for $8.4 million to expand prison operations in North Carolina during the next biennium was endorsed Tuesday by the Correction Commission.

If the General Assembly approves, the department will be able to hire an additional 305 custodial and professional personnel for the 1971-73 biennium.

"This is a go-forward budget," said Correction Commissioner Lee Bounds. "We think we can justify it."

Affinity groups are composed of a few radicals who live and operate together on a "buddy" system. Their limited size makes infiltration extremely difficult, police report.

"These affinity groups," said Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, "are developing a form of a domestic Ho Chi Minh trail, moving from campus to campus, infiltrating in their cause of limitless irrationality to kill, maim and destroy."

The budget requests bring to $71.6 million the amount the commission has requested for prison operations during the next two fiscal years. This compares with $44.7 million the department received for its operations this biennium.

The commission also is requesting $9.9 million for new prison facilities. It got only $500,000 for building from the last legislature.

Hanoi Propaganda Reflecting Post-Ho Uneasiness

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
"All men are created equal," said the document. "They are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights. Among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."
With those words 25 years ago today, a declaration framed by Ho Chi Minh proclaimed independence for what he called the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, with himself as president. Ho, a veteran international Communist and agent of Moscow, long had planned to use the American words for his proclamation. Perhaps it was sincere admiration for the 1776 declaration, but perhaps, too, it was a device to mask Ho the Communist behind Ho the patriot.
Ho died a year ago Wednesday, at the age of 79. This week North Vietnam is commemorating the 25th anniversary and Ho's death, and the tone of the accompanying propaganda carries a strong suggestion of political uneasiness in Hanoi. Evidently some tension has been generated over the question of how Ho's legacy of power is to be distributed.

Ho had no successor. He could not have had one, since none of his heirs had anything like his stature. Thus there is now repeated stress in the Hanoi press on the motion of "collective leadership."
None of this seems likely to have any immediate effect upon the wars in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Up to now the ruling Politburo in Hanoi has not let its political differences interfere with the machinery of battle. There could be a long-range impact, nonetheless, since what apparently has been at issue in Hanoi has been the "how" of the war—whether "protracted war" should continue for years, or whether heavier investment should be made in a bid for a less distant decision.

The protracted war concept was originally espoused by Red China's Mao Tse-tung and supported in Hanoi by Truong Chinh, a powerful Politburo member. Chinh lost out early in 1968 when Hanoi decided to go all-out with the Tet offensive. Le Duan, now 62, as first secretary of the ruling Laodong Workers party seemed the architect of the strategy.
Curiously, however, both sides in the argument appeared to win out, a development which might have averted a Politburo showdown. The Tet offensive failed to achieve its objectives, but it was followed by President Lydon B. Johnson's departure from the 1968 presidential campaign, by talks in Paris, by the end to bombings of the North and, perhaps most significant of all, by intensified turmoil in the United States generated by the war issue.

Today, Hanoi's leaders seem resigned to protracted war for as long as necessary, while hopeful still of forcing the U.S. presence out of Vietnam entirely before South Vietnam's regime can become stable enough.
Named Judge In Livestock Show
TIMONIUM, Md. (AP)—Hayes Gregory of Aurora, N.C., in Beaufort County, has been chosen one of nine judges for the Eastern National Livestock Show Nov. 14 at the Maryland State Fairgrounds.
Gregory will judge hogs in the $52,000 show, the largest livestock event east of Chicago.

to resist the North's pressure. The North Vietnamese effort thus appears to have been slowed, even though Hanoi is more involved than ever as the result of the new front in Cambodia.
Hanoi has huge home front problems, as its propaganda makes abundantly clear. It has lots of military hardware and there is more where it came from, but the country is painfully short in civilian manpower and in every day necessities for the people. So the stress now is on "using small forces to defeat larger forces." This suggests that the Viet Cong in the South must rely more heavily on their own guerrilla tactics.
If there is a struggle for power going on at the top, no clear evidence of it comes through the propaganda at the present time. The indications are that Le Duan, the practical man as dis-gambler. If they can hold out long enough, domination of all Vietnam, North and South, may one day be theirs. But the price will be heavy. Until then, the already tight North Vietnamese belt must be drawn even tighter.

And so, 25 years after the invocation of the ringing words of the American Declaration of Independence, it seems clear that equality and the pursuit of happiness have not come to the North Vietnamese.
One gets the impression that the men whom Ho brought up as leaders over the past quarter-century are obliged today to be

Two Probes Of Parathian Risks

RALEIGH (AP) — Officials of the Department of Agriculture and the Board of Health continue in disagreement over details of an investigation of illnesses and deaths in North Carolina attributed to use of the powerful agricultural pesticide parathion. As a result the two state agencies are making separate probes.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday restrictions on its investigators laid down by the health board would have placed its personnel in "an untenable position."

The health agency answered with a reiteration that it "continues to stand ready to coop-

Milk Price Boost Seen

RALEIGH (AP) — The possibility of an increase in retail milk prices in North Carolina has been raised by a request to the Milk Commission for a boost in the price paid producers.

The commission set the request by Dairyman, Inc., and United Dairies for a hearing on Oct. 13.

The dairy groups asked that the present price of $7.40 per 100 pounds for Class I milk be increased to $7.65 or $7.70. This would amount to a rise of about two-thirds of a cent per quart in the producer price.

The commission was told that the Virginia Dairy Commission has not yet decided on a request received last week for an increase, that the price has risen from $7.05 to $7.25 in eastern Tennessee, and from $7.20 to $7.40 in Georgia.

Commission members noted that dairy feed has risen $12 a ton recently, and that the corn blight epidemic is expected to increase feed costs even more.

The commission chairman, Neil Bolton of Winston-Salem, expressed the opinion that the commission should wait until after a producer-cost study is completed Nov. 15 before deciding on an increase.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped lower today in slow trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 5.82 to 752.33 at 11 a.m., an hour after the opening of trading.

Declines outnumbered advances by about 2 to 1 among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Most analysts viewed the decline as the continuation of a normal profit-taking phase.

Moreover, the dull trading just before Labor Day was called typical.

Motors were lower against the background of the auto industry's wage-package offer which labor rejected as "meaningless."

erate in joint investigations." It added that it sent a letter to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham on Aug. 19 that "was stated to be a satisfactory resolution on the problem."

The Agriculture Department said the health board agreed to a joint investigation with state and federal agriculture personnel only if (1) just one Agriculture representative accompanied a Health investigator, (2) the Health investigator was in charge, and (3) the Agriculture investigators would be confined to farm sites and would "not have freedom to speak with personnel at hospitals or physicians."

"To conduct a complete investigation these guidelines would have placed the Agriculture personnel in an untenable position," the Agriculture Department said, adding:

"The discharge of our particular responsibility involves gathering facts at all levels of involvement. It was considered absolutely necessary that medical personnel be consulted not only for case histories, but for personal observations as to circumstance surrounding the illnesses."

appointed to study what could be done with the Falkland teacherage.

Alford said the facility, a two-apartment building, will not be used this year for the first time.

One apartment is being rented by a local resident and a request from another Falkland resident to rent the teacherage side has been received by the board.

The two members will report their findings at the next board meeting.

Mark Webb was named a member of the Farmville area advisory council.

Alford announced a meeting will be held this week with the school principals to set the school fees for both elementary and high school students for the coming school year.

Robersonville May Be In Fight For The Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

ROBERSONVILLE — The Robersonville Rams won the Tobacco Belt Conference championship two years ago, and just missed out last season.

This year, coach Noland Respass feels that the Rams may be ready to strike again.

"We're going to be right in the thick of it," Respass said. "There are four teams that have the potential to win it," the coach said. He picks Saratoga, Vanceboro, Bath and Robersonville to battle it out.

"I feel we are going to have a good club. We're not going to win them all, but we are definitely going to be improved. We are already ahead of where we were last year, despite the fact that we have changed the offense."

Robersonville has switched over to the slot-T and I formations this season after using the single wing for several years. "We did this because it is easier to learn and we have a lot of new players who have never played football before." This was brought about, the coach noted, by the consolidation of Robersonville and East End High Schools.

"We were also having some ball handling troubles with the single wing. Now with the T, we feel more confident. We have a quarterback who can throw well, but who isn't a real good runner, and the T will help here too."

Respass feels that the Rams, with Glenn Forbes at quarterback will throw twice as much this year as last. "Our attack is going to be much more varied than in the past. We have a good running game and our fullback, Jesse Coppage, is the best back I've had at Robersonville. Hal Knox (halfback) is an outstanding runner, and Ed Warren, at slotback, is a good blocker and a fine receiver." Respass feels that Forbes, who was moved in to the quarterback position from his end position of last year, is going to be a good leader.

At the ends, Respass has Phil James at the split position. "He's an outstanding receiver," the coach said. The tight end position is up for grabs between Harvey Whichard, Eddie Gaynor and Glenn Edmundson. "Whichard is the stronger blocker and appears leading for the spot at this time," Respass said.

At the tackles, Respass has some depth. Lang Hardison is back, along with Richie Williams, who got some experience last year. James Gaynor and James Barnhill provide additional strength.

D-Dock Ayers returns to a guard position, and will probably be joined by Bobby Hollis. Backing them up is Tim Roberson.

Robbie Leggett returns to the center slot. "He's small, but a real good blocker," the coach said. "He gets downfield well."

"We have no size. This is our biggest problem. We're not real fast either, but we have good quickness everywhere. We're just going to have to push hard."

Defensively, Respass feels that the line will be real good. "We lost five players who were in there a lot, and our linebackers are inexperienced. The secondary lacks height."

At the ends will be probably Phil James, along with either Whichard or Eddie Gaynor. Williams and James Gaynor appears headed for the tackle slots. Ayers and Hardison will be at guards, with Leggett and Roberson at linebackers. Knox, Warren and Forbes will handle the secondary.

"Our quickness and depth in the line will be our strong points," Respass said. "And I guess our biggest weakness is a lack of depth in the halfback slots."

Robersonville and the other members of the Tobacco Belt Conference open the season Friday night with a full slate of games scheduled.

Three members of the conference were in action last weekend, with two coming out of the short end of the score, and Aurora moving out into an early lead in the standings.

In last Friday's games, Saratoga lost to North Duplin, 14-7, and Aurora beat Elm City, 18-0, in a conference game.

This weekend, Grifton travels to Saratoga for a conference match, Elm City is at Louisburg, Chocowinity is at Mattamuskeet for another loop game, Belhaven is at Camden, Vanceboro and Aurora mix in a conference game, Bath is at Pantego and Williamston visits Robersonville.

Grifton's Claude Kennedy feels the Bulldogs will get a stern test from Saratoga. "They are about the same size physically and in numbers as we are," he said, "small."

"They rely a lot on their fullback Jimmy DeRatt, who is a fine player. We are weak on experience, and we don't have a

Noell Resigns ECU Post; Goes To Wake

Walt Noell, a graduate assistant at East Carolina University in basketball last season, and named earlier this summer as freshman coach, resigned yesterday to take a similar position at Wake Forest University.

Noell, 28, will assume the post given up by former Deacon star, Billy Packer, who has joined a Winston-Salem radio station.

A graduate of Wake Forest, Noell played freshman basketball while there, but starred in baseball for the Deacons. Following graduation, he played in the Philadelphia farm system for several years before deciding to take up coaching.

He was head basketball coach for three years at Hargrave Military Institute, then came to East Carolina as a graduate assistant in 1969. He received his master's degree earlier this year, and when Kirk Stewart resigned as freshman coach, Noell was appointed as his successor in mid-July.

"Walt had done a fine job for us as a graduate assistant," East Carolina head basketball coach Tom Quinn said. "We felt that he would make us a fine freshman coach, and we are sorry to lose him. I wish him luck in his new position."

Quinn said that it is late to be looking for a new assistant coach, but that work has already begun on the task. "We have several people in mind for the job, and we hope to have something settled by as early as lot of depth."

the end of the week," Quinn said. This year, the Pirate basketball program was given a boost by the decision to add a new coach to the program, bringing the staff up to three. With Stewart's resignation to become a head coach at a Florida high school, Noell was given the freshman spot, and a new coach, Harry Brown, was brought in as the new varsity assistant and chief recruiter.

Farmville, Greene To Open Season On Friday

Farmville and Greene Central open their 1970 football season along with the other members of the Eastern Plains Conference Saturday.

Charles B. Aycock and Southern Wayne both got the jump of the other six teams in the league last Friday, but it wasn't a good beginning for them. Both lost opening season encounters.

Aycock fell to new North Johnston, 25-10, while Southern Wayne was shut out by 4-A Goldsboro, 21-0.

This week's schedule has two conference games on top, along with three other non-conference games.

Hobbs is at Farmville and Southern Nash travels to Aycock

Central, but it'll be an old foe he'll be looking at in Ayden. "I've played them once before, two years ago in the state finals when I was at Red Springs. Ayden beat us then, 14-13, for the title, and I'd like to start getting some revenge for that this week," he said.

"We've had a slow start, however, and we really didn't get things going as far as practice was concerned until about the middle of last week. I hope things are going to continue to pick up now, and that we'll be ready to go."

Smith admits that Ayden has had the time advantage on him. "They've got more people out, and have had more time to work on the specialties. But I feel like if we don't fumble the ball away too much, we'll have a chance."

Greene Central will be attacking Ayden from the I-formation, and Coach Smith said, "I'll make no bones about it, our game is running. We'll pass only when necessary."

The current Eastern Plains standings:

Bucs Work On Goal Offense

for the two conference tilts. The other games find Northern Nash at Rooky Mount, South Lenoir at North Lenoir and Greene Central at Ayden.

Southern Wayne has an open date.

For Farmville, the game is developing into a "wait and see" type contest as far as Coach Gene Brewer is concerned.

"Both teams will be going into the game without a scouting report, but we do know that they have 14 lettermen back. They'll have more depth than we will."

Brewer said he expected Hobbs to come up with the same type offense they usually employed, but that they had changed quarterbacks this year, and this might bring on some twists to their game.

"For us, it's a look and see type game. We'll be playing a lot of people to see what they can do. We've had a lot of boys who haven't been with us the entire practice period because of work, and we have some who are still working and missing practices. We've also got some new people we need to look at and see what they can do in a game."

The Red Devils will be using an entirely new backfield this year. Three members graduated, while another was lost for the year with an injury. "We have only one person playing in the same offensive position this year as last year, our center," Brewer said.

Coach Stewart Smith will be getting his baptism at Greene

The Pirates of East Carolina University put some work onto their goal line offense yesterday, using the final six yards for several strikes at the goal.

Coach Mike McGee said that the offense was able to score four times from that distance in the brief workout.

It was noted, however, that Paul Haug is pushing Hollingsworth, while Bill Croisetiere is right behind Hileman.

One new injury was reported yesterday, as Rusty Scales was hampered by a rib injury.

Griffin Among Best In World

Although he failed to bring home any first place trophies, East Carolina University swimming sensation Jim Griffin turned in his best freestyle times ever last weekend in the National AAU Championships in Los Angeles.

The rising junior from Norfolk, Va., was clocked in 0:54.2 in the 100 meter freestyle and 1:58.8 in the 200 meter freestyle. Griffin's times in these two events rank him among the top 25 freestylers in the world.

"It was an outstanding performance," said ECU swimming coach Ray Scharf, "though largely unrecognized because Jim did not place among the top finishers."

"Jim didn't start swimming competitively until his senior year at Granby High School in Norfolk, so there is just no telling how good he will be. His potential seems unlimited."

Scharf will welcome Griffin and other members of the ECU varsity swimming squad back for fall practice in Minges Natatorium on Sept. 16. He expects 20 upperclassmen and approximately 15 freshmen.

only three high card points is not a sound policy. By passing initially, South may reenter the auction subsequently if circumstances warrant him taking action, without running the risk that his partner will play him for as many as six points.

North's rebid over one heart was one no trump, East passed again and South, somewhat belatedly, chose to retire. West was reluctant to abandon the contest without a fight and he reopened proceedings by making a take-out double. East passed for penalties—he had 13 high card points and partner might be expected to have at least 10 or 11 which gave them a decided edge.

South ran to two hearts, reasoning that his hand would be worthless to North, whereas the opening bid might produce a few tricks for South. West doubled and all hands passed.

West opened the queen of spades and by the time the smoke had cleared, the defense took two spades, two hearts, three diamonds and two clubs to register an 1,100 point profit.

North would not have fared any better at one no trump, for if East opens a diamond and West—after playing the ace—shifts to the queen of spades, declarer can be held to three tricks in clubs and hearts for the same 1,100 point deficit.

Goldie Objects To Nude Scene

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Goldie Hawn has decided to ask the producer to cut some of the footage of her nude backside in her second movie.

The tousled blonde Oscar winner of "Cactus Flower" costarred with Peter Sellers in "There's a Girl in My Soup," filmed in London.

"It took a lot of talking to get me to do the scene," Goldie reported. "I'm not with anyone in it; I've slept alone. I get out of bed and put on a robe."

"We discussed it and we said, 'of course, this is a very free character and she wouldn't sleep with her clothes on.' It's beautifully shot, though a curtain, and not blatant."

"But seeing the rushes did something to me. I saw it wasn't as necessary as I thought. I'm going to ask if it can be toned down a bit."

"I don't think I'll ever do another," Miss Hawn said of nude scenes.

Goldie was back for a one-shot return to Rowan & Martin's "Laugh-In," from which the giggling young cupcake sprang to movie stardom.

In the segment, taped for "Personally? Nothing. But it's a lovely thing to feel accepted by a certain group. The fact they respect your talent gives you a nice feeling."

"We have a few good friends, and thank God for them."

"We" includes her director-husband, Gus Trikonis. At their Studio City home—"that's where I'm the happiest"—she plants flowers, dusts the mantelpiece Oscar and knits a baby blanket.

Baby blanket?
"It's for a girl friend," Goldie giggled.

TV DISTRIBUTION
NEW YORK (UPI) — Of the estimated 213 million television sets in the world in 1969, about 78 million were in the United States. There were 25 million in the Soviet Union and 20.5 million in Japan. The United Kingdom had 19 million.

The Worry Clinic Television Has Many Benefits

Bernie Herman and his TV colleagues render many moral and educational benefits. So when you hear violent criticism of television, just recite the five sterling virtues that TV offers our American society. For TV is a great boon to medicine, to religions, to education and to the insurance of marriages against divorce!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE O-520: Bernie Herman is the Moderator of a superb TV show.

He usually invites some specialist for an interview of maybe 15 minutes to set up the discussion; then invites viewers to telephone their questions the rest of the hour.

"Dr. Crane," Bernie said, "you are aware that some people criticize television for slanting newscasts and for exciting youngsters unduly with crime shows."

"But don't you think television renders a splendid service, both educationally and constructively?"

As a psychiatrist, let me list some of the many constructive aspects of television, as follows:

(1) It buoy up the morale of millions of elderly folks in Nursing Homes, plus the wounded man in Veteran's Hospitals.

For they get to witness the action that is going on outside their hospital rooms and wheelchairs.

Thus, they become interested in current ball games and other average clergymen try to improve his oratory, too.

In fact, many able bodied parishioners now tell me they'd rather stay home on the Sabbath to hear a superb sermonizer on TV than to doze during the stodgy preaching of their local clergyman.

The talented TV pastors thus prod the local clergy to better oratory!

(3) Apart from the special educational television stations, even the usual commercial TV station renders a remarkable educational benefit when it offers Disney pictures and others that combine a dramatic plot with exotic locales, as in Africa or the wilds of New Zealand, etc.

(4) Television also helps reduce the divorce rate, as well as drunkenness and even highway fatalities! How?

By keeping husbands at home, in front of the TV set.

Otherwise, they'd roam to distant taverns to spend the evenings where immoral women often try to entice them and where their excessive use of liquor makes them a terrible hazard on the automobile highways.

Remember, over 50 percent of auto deaths involve drinking drivers!

(5) TV also keeps millions of school kids off the streets and thus prevents marijuana parties and violent city gangs that would really wreck things!

Electronic Eye For The Forest

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Smoke the Bear may be getting an assistant.

It's a weatherman who doesn't mind living alone in remote areas and who stays on the job 24 hours a day. It's a four-pound instrument package being designed for the Air Force by Honeywell Inc. to send radio reports on local wind speed and direction, atmospheric pressure, humidity, precipitation and cloud cover.

The device is dropped from a plane and implants itself in the ground on a spear-like tip. When planted in remote forested areas, the electronic weatherman also can help rangers keep alerted to conditions conducive to forest fires.

The average age of Filipinos is 19.3 years, compared with India's 14.5 years.

Small Planes Bring Checks

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The time is 3 a.m.—in the dark morning—on a small field adjoining Philadelphia International Airport.

It is quiet. A few lights shine dimly in the dark. Little sign of life.

Then, in the distance, the sound of a light plane coming in for a landing.

From another direction, another plane. Another. And another.

By 3:15 a.m., five twin-engine planes have taxied onto the field, lining up in a rough rectangular pattern.

From shadows at the edge of the field five motor vans materialize. For the next 15 minutes, pilots and drivers work with cool precision passing small bundles from one plane to another and into trucks.

And there, overseeing the operation is Tom Tainer, a stocky man in his early 40s, looking like a Madison Avenue transplant in his business suit.

But what's it all about? Tainer explains that the nightly cargo of the planes is about $500 million in negotiated bank checks, plus radioactive isotopes, computer print-outs, film, legal documents and other high priority items.

By 3:40 a.m., the five planes are again air borne. The vans have disappeared into the shadows. The silence returns.

Somehow, everything is on the right plane, going to the right place. "All the cargo is prepackaged in a specialized hamper, and is color coded," Tainer says. "This is to make sure that things go smoothly and quickly."

Before dawn, the pilots will wing their way back to 15 cities and with equal precision pass their packages to other planes and vans which in turn deliver them to their destination before the start of the business day.

Their nightly routine, Tainer notes, is only one phase of a high priority delivery service reaching into 42 states with a fleet of 17 aircraft, 1,500 ground vehicles and 4,500 personnel.

It is operated by American Courier Corp., a specialist in custom transit cross-country, which handles over one-third of the nation's bank checks—about $5 billion worth every 24 hours. What does this mean to the average person who has a checking account?

Tainer explains that, for example, a check deposited Monday in Sacramento can now release funds by 9 a.m. Tuesday morning in New York or other major financial centers. If the check does not release funds, the Sacramento bank can be advised within hours that the check did not clear and is not acceptable for exchange.

This drastically narrows the time limit on check-kiting and makes this once popular financial sport rather hazardous for the average check-writer.

Severe Quake Felt All Over N.C. In 1886

"The Light of History"
By H. G. JONES
N.C. Dept. Archives & History
Written for the AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Earthquakes seldom occur anywhere near North Carolina, but 84 years ago this week a severe quake was centered in South Carolina, and its effects were felt all over the Tar Heel state. An omen had been sounded Aug. 28, 1886, when it was reported that parts of Greece had suffered a damaging earthquake, the shock of which is said to have been felt at several points in the Carolinas and Georgia.

An occurrence three days later, on the night of Aug. 31, 1886, could be described in more definite terms. For on that night most people in the eastern United States unmistakably felt the tremor of the great "Charleston earthquake."

A news dispatch from Charleston reported: "The first shock of the earthquake was felt approaching last night at 9:50, and before people could realize what the trouble was, they found themselves being thrown around and their houses falling down on them. Everyone ran screaming into the streets, and in a few seconds the city was wild with human beings perfectly crazed with fright. The city was soon illuminated with flames, thus leading all to believe that what was left by the earthquake would be devoured by the fire. Fissures in the earth are noticed, from which fine sand, apparently from a great depth, exudes. A sulphurous smell is very noticeable."

Though causing nothing resembling the mass destruction at Charleston, the quake was felt distinctly over most of North Carolina. In Charlotte, a report said that the night "had been remarkably still; the skies were clear, but there was a hazy mist suggestive of an evening in early spring. Many had retired for the night while others were at church and at the opera house. In front of the Central Hotel the usual quota of people were sitting idly in the big red chairs under the electric light. A string of hacks was drawn up in front of the hotel, and the hackmen were dozing in their seats. The lights flickered, plaster came down in sprinkling sheets, and before one could think much there was another shake, and a single shrill and piercing shriek rang out. 'The earthquake!'"

The Home-Democrat wrote a few days later that, "In all parts of the city the occurrence produced a horrible feeling, and many females and children were thrown into spasms or nervous chills."

In North Carolina the damage was most severe at Wilmington, New Bern, and other points along the lower coast. Compared to the damage at Charleston, however, newspapers reported that "no harm of importance occurred."

From Raleigh came word that "excitement over the earthquake is unprecedented." In Durham the story was much the same—much alarm, but little damage. Reportedly bells rang, chimneys were knocked down, and a child was thrown from his bed to the floor in Fayetteville, causing "unsurpassed excitement."

Wherever groups were assembled in buildings there was particular panic. In one city a meeting was in progress at the city hall, from which the participants are said to have "stampeded in a lively manner." One writer described the scene at a camp meeting like this: "As the first shock came, the congregation were in the midst of a hymn, and every voice was instantly stilled. Another shock came, and there was a stampede."

The Rev. Goodman Laney of Union County was conducting a camp meeting across the line in South Carolina on the night of the earthquake. Exasperated by the seeming apathy of his audience, he reportedly prayed for an earthquake to shake up the sinners. The sharp tremor came almost immediately, and a mass of humanity fled from the arbor. According to local legend, one good sister turned to her husband and said, "It's the Judgment!" To which, the legend has it, the husband calmly replied, "Well, Susie, we will see who's who and who ain't who." Preacher Laney's tombstone in the Pleasant Grove Church cemetery near Waxhaw records that, "He prayed for an earthquake in Antioch Camp Ground—Prayer was answered."

Fresh Look In Open City

CHICAGO (AP) — Fountains and plazas beside downtown skyscrapers is a new architectural touch in open-city planning.

When the First National Bank of Chicago completes its plaza between Dearborn and Clark Streets along Monroe where the former bank building stood, a dramatic fountain spouting a 30-inch square column of water 18 feet high will be turned on in 1972, beautifying the area beside its new 60-story building.

Robertson H. Short Jr., vice-president in charge of the bank building, said the "water column" will be inside a 45-foot square pool. He said the column idea has only been used in one other fountain, in Dallas, but it is not as large as that planned for the First National.

Nine adjacent columns of water created by a large number of water jets, instead of a loose spray, will form what appears to be a solid square column of water. Three wind gauges will control the height of the column, reducing pedestrian spraying by strong gusts of wind.

CAN 'BIRTHS' LEAD
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Motor vehicle "births" in the nation outnumber human births by far, says the National Automobile Club. A total of 10,205,911 cars, trucks and buses were "born" compared with 3,604,911 persons.

School Attendance Near Normal Level

Attendance at Sadie Sautler Elementary School today is at almost full attendance yesterday after an obvious boycott during the first three school days last week.

A total of 433 children were in school at Sadie Sautler today, a slight increase over yesterday's figure of 424.

Ray Corbett, spokesman for parents of the Carolina Heights-Hillsdale area, where approximately 135 children have been the subject of efforts to be allowed to remain in South Greenville School, yesterday morning issued a statement relative to the current situation.

"The majority of the children in the South Greenville section have started attending Sadie Sautler School," Corbett said. "This action should not be interpreted as a sign that the people from this area are giving up.

"The welfare of the children," Corbett continued, "is most important in every parent's mind. It is our thinking that the best interest of the children could be served in school rather than out, regardless of whether the court determines that they should remain at Sadie Sautler or be returned to South Greenville."

Joins Staff Of WITN-TV

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Albert Weston, Jr., a native of Swanquarter, has joined the staff at WITN-TV, according to an announcement made today by W. R. Roberson, Jr.,

ALBERT WESTON, JR., president and general manager of North Carolina Television, Inc.

A graduate of Davis High School in Enlehard, Weston also attended Beaufort Technical Institute. He joins WITN-TV as a news reporter trainee under a new program instituted by the station to train personnel in various phases of television operations.

"We believe," Roberson said, "as dedicated broadcasters, that we must provide the training ground for qualified individuals in our community who seek careers in television."

Roberson added that "Albert is training in the areas of news reporting, a vital part of our television service. He, and others who may enter our training program, will be afforded the opportunity to learn by doing and in this way eventually become qualified for the positions they seek in the television industry."

Arrested 19 In Drug Raid

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — Maryland State Police have announced the arrest of 19 persons in a four-state raid on alleged major distributors of cocaine and heroin.

Federal and local law enforcement officials joined state authorities for raids which began about 5:45 a.m. Tuesday in the Baltimore area.

"As far as Baltimore (drug traffic) is concerned, these are the top people," claimed Sgt. Frank Mazzone, head of the State Police narcotics unit.

One of those arrested, a 34-year-old Baltimore County man, was reported by State Police as the chief of local drug pushers. A total of 36 search and 20 arrest warrants were issued. Some 150 police were involved.

No major quantities of drugs were seized, police said. Sgt. Mazzone said the organization purchased drugs in pure form and diluted them for street sales by low-level peddlers.

Nine persons were arrested in the city, three in Baltimore County, three in Harford County, three in Harrisburg, Pa., and one in Norfolk, Va. One of those arrested in Harford County is a Gastonia, N.C. resident.
