North Pitt To Open Later

County Schools Openings Are Underway

By BLANCHE HARDEE

It will be back to school for some 12,500 students when Pitt County Schools open their doors for another year in the next few days.

Most of the student population will begin classes Tuesday when all elementary schools and all but one of the high schools will begin classes.

North Pitt High School students have gained a reprieve from the Sept. 8 school opening because of the last minute jobs that need to be completed at the school before classes start there. North Pitt students will begin classes on Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Students, this year more than any school term in recent times face a year of change.

Belvoir - Falkland, Stokes - Pactolus, Bethel and Bethel Union high schools will exist no more when the North Pitt High Schools opens.

Likewise, when construction of the D. H. Conley, Ayden - Griftion and the new Farmville High School facilities are completed about the middle of the 1970-71 school year, the present high schools at Grimesland, Chicod, Winterville, Ayden, Grifton and Farmville will no longer be in existence.

Those old high school facilities will be used to reorganize the county's primary and grammar school programs into a completely unitary system.

Until the new schools are completed, the county will operate 13 elementary schools, nine union schools and one high school.

"The late opening date was a direct result of the board's receiving the court order this year on Aug. 9," Arthur Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, said. "It was impossible to make changes necessitated by the court order without delaying the opening of schools."

With North Pitt High School not being ready for occupancy, the board had a choice of opening in existing schools and then reorganizing with the completion of North Pitt or reorganizing elementary schools now and delaying the opening of North Pitt, which the board chose to do.

A total of 176 buses, including 22 for the Greenville city schools, will be operating this fall. Some six buses are unassigned, according to Alford. These will be used to relieve pressure points after school opens.

The buses will transport better than 9,000 students daily at an approximate cost of $34.28 per student for the school year.

Bus drivers will be paid at a rate of $1.63 per hour this fall. The rate will increase to $1.79 per hour after the first of the year.

For the first time, the Pitt County schools will have a dual transportation system, one for elementary students and one for high school students.

"The system will operate on the basis of elementary and high school students rather than on race," Alford noted.

The county system employs 582 teachers. These teachers are supplemented by 19 administrative and supervisory personnel plus 12 medical and social counselors. The county also employs 27 teacher aides for grades one, two and three.

"There are going to be some schools which will have crowded situations, such as Farmville High, Winterville High and Ayden High," Alford said. "Generally, the teacher - student ratio will be an excellent one throughout the county with a ratio of approximately one classroom teacher to 25 students."

Alford said there will be a few classes with as many as 30-31 students, but there should be no classes in the entire county with as many as 35 students.

"Our teaching positions are filled with the finest group of teachers available and we anticipate a good instructional year," the superintendent stated. "There have been some 125 vacancies and new positions which we have had to fill this summer."

Title I ESEA made possible 11 new reading laboratory specialists positions in the county. These teachers will be working with small groups of students who are not reading on grade level and who have the ability to read more proficiently than they are at the moment.

Also from Title I funds and other budget funds, the county schools will have approximately $55,000 worth of new materials and textbooks for use in high school programs above what the state supplies.

The county office held workshops last week for 133 teachers who will be using new teaching material in which new technics will be necessary for implementing the program.

From all sources (county, district, state, federal and local school budgets), the county system will be working with a budget of approximately $8,077,000. This figure is not exact in that the appropriation bills have not been approved by Congress in some categories so the figure could be increased or decreased slightly.

The school fee for elementary students has been set at $5 for all students. This amount covers the cost of materials, supplies, workbooks, playground balls, library books and other instructional items. Insurance will be an optional item provided through Pilot Life and Nationwide Insurance Companies at the cost of $2.50 per student.

"There will be no additional request for money during the school year unless it comes as a result of some fund - raising project carried on by the school and approved by the board of education," Alford emphasized. "These will not require participation except as elected by the parent."

High school fees will be the same as last year with a general

Passengers Are Safe

Jumbo Jet Is Blown Up By Guerrillas In Cairo

By LISETTE BALOUNY
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Arab guerrillas blew up a hijacked Pan American World Airways 747 jumbo jet here early today eight minutes after the plane landed. A spokesman for the airline said all 188 persons aboard had disembarked safely.

A Pan American Boeing 707 relief plane landed later at Cairo airport to pick up the passengers stranded by the hijackers.

It was one of four planes involved in hijacking plots Sunday all apparently by Arab commandos.

An earlier report that 15 persons aboard the 747 were missing was labeled erroneous by a Pan American spokesman.

The relief plane, flown here from London, was expected to fly out most of the passengers of the destroyed 747.

The jumbo jet was engulfed in flames after the passengers and crew had been removed.

Witnesses said four persons were injured fleeing the plane through its emergency exits. They said one appeared to have a broken leg and two others had back injuries. A pregnant woman just barely escaped with an injured ankle, the witnesses said.

The Egyptian government announced all the passengers would be released as soon as Pan Am sends another plane to pick them up. The airline said in Lebanon that a Boeing 707 was dispatched from London to get the stranded passengers. Cairo's Middle East News Agency said 85 Americans were among them.

In Beirut, the guerrillas said they would blow up the other two hijacked planes unless a set of demands were met. The Swiss Red Cross said a representative had been allowed to see the planes at Zerqa, 15 miles northwest of Amman, Jordan, and had reported the passengers and crew were safe.

The lives of more than 640 persons hung in the balance during the three hijackings and a fourth attempt that was foiled in a gun battle over England.

The Marxist-oriented Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, based in Amman, Jordan, claimed responsibility for all four incidents.

Passengers, crew, seven hijackers and 18 guerrillas picked up during a refueling at Beirut began disembarking as soon as the plane hijacked to Cairo landed at the airport. Witnesses said the hijacker had ordered everyone off the plane at gunpoint, then set a time bomb with nine sticks of dynamite that went off eight minutes after the landing.

All that remained of the huge plane after the flames were brought under control was the six-story-high tail section emblazoned with the Pan Am insignia.

The 747, valued at $20 million and in service less than a year, was seized by the hijackers after it took off from Amsterdam on a New York-bound flight.

Also hijacked Sunday were a Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 with 145 persons aboard and a Swissair DC8 with more than 155 aboard.

In Amman, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine threatened to blow up the TWA and Swissair planes unless authorities in London released a young woman held for an unsuccessful attempt to hijack a fourth plane, and Israeli El Al jetliner with 148 passengers and nine crew aboard.

Passengers said they captured the raven-haired, attractive young woman as she struggled, with a grenade in each hand, during the hijacking attempted after takeoff from Amsterdam on a flight to New York. Her male companion was killed in a gun battle with Israeli security agents.

Until Missiles Pulled Back

Israel Won't Go To Peace Talks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel says it will not return to peace talks at the United Nations in New York until Egypt pulls back the antiaircraft missiles it has placed in the Suez Canal cease-fire zone since the truce took effect Aug. 7.

"Apparently this will mean some delay," President Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, told newsmen in Washington. "We are hopeful that the talks will start soon. The United States will continue to make every effort to work out this problem."

Sources close to the Egyptian government in Cairo charged that the breakdown of the peace talks is a result of the State Department's confirmation of Israel's "false allegations" of Egyptian cease-fire violations. They said the SAM missiles had been placed along the canal before the truce started and they could not be pulled back.

In a dramatic development in the Middle East, Palestinian commandos hijack three jetliners over Europe and forced them to fly to Arab countries.

One, a Pan American World Airways Boeing 747 jumbo jet, was destroyed with a dynamite bomb minutes after it landed at Cairo. The 188 persons aboard —passengers, hijackers, crew and 18 Palestinian picked up during a refueling stop at Beirut —had left the plane moments before it burst into flame.

The other two hijacked planes were under guerrilla control at Zerqua, 15 miles northwest of Amman, Jordan. Guerrillas there threatened to blow up the planes unless three demands were met.

The first demand was for the safe return of a woman commando who was arrested after an attempt to hijack a fourth plane failed and it landed safely at London. The plane, an Israeli El Al jet with 157 aboard, was diverted after it took off from Amsterdam on a flight to New York.

The second demand was for the release from Swiss jails of three guerrillas who attacked an El Al airliner at Zurich airport in 1969, and the fourth demand was for the release from West German jails of three other commandos who made an attack on an Israeli tourist bus in Frankfurt the same year.

Informed sources said the Swiss government was inclined to meet the demand for the three guerrillas held in Switzerland, and British officials voiced concern that England would be caught in the middle of the dispute because the young woman guerrilla is being held there.

In another development in the Middle East, Jordan's King Hussein declared he has no intention of liquidating the Palestinian resistance movement. He said he would not longer remain silent at attempts to cast doubt on his patriotism.

Following Chilean Election

Marxist Congratulated

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A newspaper said Cuban Premier Fidel Castro telephoned congratulations to Marxist Salvador Allende for his plurality in Chile's presidential election, but supporters of defeated former President Jorge Alessandri took to the streets Sunday night shouting "Chile si, Cuba no."

Enrique Ortuzar, Alessandri's chief campaigner, asked in a statement that all Chileans support Alessandri's candidacy so Congress will pick him over Allende when it decides the winner Oct. 24.

By law, Congress selects a president from the top two candidates if none wins a majority of the popular vote. Allende, 62, outdistanced Alessandri, 74, by 39,000 of the 2.6 million votes cast in Friday's election, and Christian Democrat Dr. Radomiro Tomic ran a poor third. Traditionally Congress selects the candidate with a plurality, but it is not required to do so.

The Communist daily El Siglo said Castro, a personal friend of Allende, told Roberto Ferres, mobilization secretary of the Popular Unity, a coalition backing Allende, that Cubans were celebrating Allende's victory in the streets.

The Popular Unity which backed the Marxist candidate was formed by six leftist parties, including the Communists. Allende will be Latin America's first popularly elected Marxist president if Congress confirms him.

Groups loyal to Alessandri, a conservative, staged several demonstrations in downtown Santiago Sunday night. In the largest, police used water cannon and clubs to disperse about 3,000 demonstrators.

Ortuzar's call for support for the ex-president surprised observers. It was based on "the fact that provisional returns ... show a slim advantage of 1.4 per cent" for Allende. "The electoral process has not ended," he said.

"We call on all democrats— the free men and women of Chile—to unite to defend, within order and respect for the law, the constitutional norms that permit them to choose the president of the nation."

The congressional vote hinges on the Christian Democrats, and observers said Alessandri, an independent who governed from 1958 to 1964, obviously is banking on the influence within that party of retiring President Eduardo Frei to sway the election to himself.

Tomic is a long-time political rival of Frei, and each controls a faction of the Christian Democrats. Frei is forbidden by law to suoceed himself.

The Popular Unity dictates 83 of the 200 seats in Congress, and Alessandri controls only 43. Tomic indicated his support of the Marxist on Saturday by visiting him "to congratulate him on his triumph," but the party itself has not announced its position. Alessandri ran on a campaign to continue the policies of the Frei administration.

Some politicians say that if Alessandri should win in Congress, he would resign a short time after taking over Nov. 4. Chile has no vice president, so another election would be forced. The Christian Democrats could field Frei—and observers say he would have a very good chance of winning.

Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, commended Allende's victory at the polls today. "The campaign of slander and terror organized by the Chilean imperialists and right wingers was a flop," Pravda said.

But the paper warned that the Popular Unity must "mobilize the masses to protect the victory from different right-wing maneuvers to frustrate the people's will."

American Troop Strength In Vietnam Is Now Below 400,000

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — American troop strength in Vietnam dropped below 400,000 for the first time in more than 3½ years, as more cutbacks were announced today.

The U.S. Command said in a newly issued summary that American troop strength in Vietnam as of last Thursday was 399,500, a decrease of 2,800 over the previous week and the lowest since Jan. 14, 1967, when the strength was 398,400.

The top authorized U.S. strength in Vietnam was set in 1968 by former President Lyndon B. Johnson at 549,500 but that was never reached. Actual American strength in Vietnam reached its peak at 543,400 in April, 1969, a few months before President Nixon announced the first round of withdrawals.

In one of the new cutbacks announced Monday, the U.S. Command said the 7th Air Force's 31st Tactical Fighter Wing is being withdrawn from Tuy Hoa Air Base, 240 miles northeast of Saigon. The base is being transferred to the U.S. Army.

Headquarters said that the reduction of airmen has been accomplished partly by a cutback in the previously programmed flow of replacements to Vietnam. This means that not all of the airmen in the 31st Tactical Fighter Wing will return home immediately. Some will be reassigned in Viet to complete their 12-month tours.

The U.S. Command was expected to announce this week the first of a series of moves to bolster the South Vietnamese Air Force with an eye toward cutting U.S. troop strength in Vietnam to fewer than 40,000 men by the end of 1972.

About 1,130 authorized spaces are being withdrawn later this month in Marine Fighter Attack Squadrons 122 and 314 and All-Weather Attack Squadron 242, the command said. All are in Vietnam as support for the 1st Marine Division, and their 33 F4 Phantom jets and all-weather A6 Intruders will be returned to the United States.

The men of the squadrons began preparations for leaving last Friday, a spokesman said. Sources said their removal will cut the fighter-bomber strength of the 1st Marine Air Wing about in half, and there was speculation that at least two of the 1st Division's three infantry regiments south of Da Nang will leave by the end of the year.

In the other theater of Indochina fighting, Cambodian military authorities reported in Phnom Penh today that Radio Peking broadcast a message Aug. 28 by ousted Cambodian ruler Prince Norodom Sihanouk admitting for the first time that large numbers of North Vietnamese troops are operating in Cambodia.

A spokesman said the Cambodian-language broadcast called on Cambodians to overcome their ancient hatred of Vietnamese and cooperate with Hanoi's troops as they seek to overthrow the military government of Premier Lon Nol.

Sources at the American Embassy said it has no knowledge of the broadcast, but that it is possible the translated text has not reached American officials.

Fighting in Vietnam was light Sunday. The U.S. Command said two Americans were killed while U.S. forces killed 12 enemy. Ground fire brought down two U.S. light observation helicopters—14 miles southwest and 35 miles south of Da Nang—wounding three Americans, the command said. A GI died in an exchange of gunfire between about 30 enemy troops and infantrymen flown in to one of the crash sites to protect the downed crew. Seven enemy were killed.

The command also announced today the first U.S. attack since Aug. 28 on a Communist antiaircraft gun position inside North Vietnam. An F105 Thunderchief flying over Laos struck the gun-site five miles inside North Vietnam Saturday in response to "hostile actions," the command said.

The largest contact reported in today's battlefield communique was in the northern Mekong Delta, where South Vietnamese infantrymen under an umbrella of bombers and artillery reported killing 79 Viet Cong. Fields reports said five South Vietnamese troops died and 12 were wounded in the action 55 miles southwest of Saigon.

The Cambodian Command said Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops attacked three government positions along the southern defenses of Phnom Penh, but the strikes were beaten back. The attacks were reported at Saang, 20 miles south of the capital, and the villages of Siem Reap and Dangkor, each about 13 miles southwest.

THE GRIFFINS . . . Merv and Julann.

Merv's Better Half Does A Little Of Everything

By REBECCA MOREHOUSE

NEW YORK (WNS) — "Merv is exceptional," said Julann Griffin. "I wonder how I got such a good husband out of show business."

But consider what he got, in a single engaging package: An organic gardener, herbalist, cook, carpenter, upholsterer, plumber, electrician. Think of the money he saves. Think of the fun and variety, for along with her array of abilities, Julann has a talent for wackiness that keeps Merv marveling.

For example:

"When we were first married my mother-in-law showed me how to spray wild weeds for Christmas decorations. One day, Merv came home to our New Jersey farm and found all these silver, gold and white streaks on the lawn where I'd sprayed the weeds.

"He was quite put out and I said, 'Gee, honey, what do you want?' The next day I painted those streaks green and when Merv came home he was very pleased. That winter the lawn turned brown except for the green I painted on it."

She Cooks

Julann and Merv — he's the bubbly, bouncy emcee of CBS-TV's "The Merv Griffin Show" — have a 28 - acre farm near Califon, N.J., where she grows vegetables and herbs, and a large Manhattan apartment on Central Park West. In both places, she does the cooking.

"When we were married, Merv had a small apartment and a cook and laundress. The cook turned out seven - course meals, but there were so many people in the place I cried every day. Finally, I asked Merv if I could do the cooking and I've been cooking ever since. I enjoy it."

They met on the Robert Q. Lewis television show, which she was serving as comedienne, and were married 11 years ago. Their one and only sprout, Tony, age 10, plays piano like his dad.

"Tony came into town to see the orthodontist the other day and went to Merv's show and sat in the audience. Merv called him up and had him play the piano. He said his hands were shaky but he loved it.

"He's very interested in music and wants to play drums, but I think he should know piano first."

Julann Wright Griffin says she learned the joy of work from her mother — "She and my father, who is a retired judge, live in Ironwood, Mich., in the north woods. My mother loves scrubbing floors and so do I. She says it's good therapy and while you're down there you might as well pray."

Organic Vegetables

A grandmother touched off her interest in organically grown vegetables and herbs.

"I subscribe to 'Organic Gardening' (a monthly magazine) and I've read a lot of other material on the subject. I searched for a way to grow plants without pesticides and found that ladybugs and praying mantises destroy insects. So I ordered ladybugs and praying mantis eggs from the Ladybug Sales Co. in St. Mary's Calif.

"I use them in the garden and I plant garlic and marigolds between vegetables that get slugs or Japanese beetles. Garlic and marigolds will protect roses, too. Soap suds are good for roses."

Her garden is not rich in vegetables this summer: She was in California with Merv at planting time.

"My sister planted the garden and I have a whole backyard full of radishes. She's crazy about radishes. She says they cool her off."

She grows the usual herbs — thyme, rosemary, sage, dill, parsley, marjoram, etc. — plus comfrey, which she read of in an old book on medicinal herbs.

Comfrey

"Comfrey is good for asthma and chest congestion and, actually, it's cured cancers. It's a high - protein fodder. I had a friend who had a bad sinus headache. I gave him a leaf of comfrey to chew and his headache went right away.

"At the end of the season I make up a batch of comfrey tea and freeze it. It makes a good poultice. When Tony gets a sliver in his foot I take a slice of bread, soak it in milk, and put it on the spot. In the morning it's all drawn out."

"We met at Pip's, the West 48th Street restaurant opened recently by Merv and several partners. It has the look of an English pub (pewter, tapestries, dark wood beams) and is named for the quintessential Englishman, Arthur "Pip" Treacher, Merv's acid - tongued second banana.

"Merv's mother, who lives in Santa Clara, Calif., taught me upholstery," Julann said. "I wanted to change the couch cover and she said, 'If somebody else can do it, we can do it.' She's terrific. I upholstered the dining room chairs and Merv handed me the tacks.

Cabinet Making

"I'd like to start a course to teach women the simple facts about plumbing. I took a course in cabinet making and learned a lot. I've learned how to splice wires and fix electrical appliances. Women can do all these things and it's fun.

"I try to keep my cooking simple: turkey, ham, chicken, steaks. Merv has a constant weight battle but when he begs for ice cream, my heart melts. You like to please your husband whether it kills him or not and that's awful.

"I came to New York to act. I did a lot of acting off - Broadway and I was on the road with sleazy shows where we got stranded. That's why I'm so happy now, I really had it.

"I'm very grateful to have the kind of life I have. I had no idea it would turn out this well. When we got married, Merv was subbing on all the Goodson - Todman shows. After we bought the New Jersey farm, Merv had to have a lake on it (we have several natural springs where watercress grows). My brother-in-law looked at the lake and said, 'Think what God could do if only He had money.' "

'Do Adults Have Divine Rights?'

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: Do adults have another "divine" right that we teen-agers are denied?

For the past year, my mother has told the entire family that my father can't keep up with her in the love department. She further states that since he is out of town a lot she needs someone who can keep up with her.

Recently, to the knowledge of everybody except my father, she has found someone who can "keep up with her." When I questioned her about the early hours she was keeping, she replied, "Your father is probably doing the same thing." [The latter I could neither prove nor disprove.]

My question is twofold: First, why do adults feel they have a right to sex when teen-agers are told it is taboo? It seems to me that if you can abstain from sex when you are young, why can't you give up a little of your sex when your lifelong mate starts slowing down? It also seems to me that sex outside of marriage is worse than sex before marriage. My second question: Should my father be filled in?

A WORRIED SON

DEAR SON: Don't put all adults in the same bag. Not all adults feel they "have a right to sex outside marriage." It's "taboo" and they know it. And no, your father should not be "filled in." [But the holes in your mother's head should be.]

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter who met a boy six months ago and she really fell for him. She is 19 and he is 22. He isn't working now and he's not even looking. He keeps saying the jobs he wants won't pay him enough money. In the meantime he borrows from my daughter, eats every meal at my table and his clothes are washed in my machine.

He says marriage will come "later." And my daughter looks at him like he's a "god," and she calls this "love."

Would I be wrong to ask this boy what his intentions are?

HEARTSICK MOM

DEAR MOM: You can ask him, but I think I can give you a more accurate answer. His intentions are to eat at your table, have his clothes washed in your machine, and freeload off you and your daughter as long as you let him.

DEAR ABBY: I am a "domestic" and work for a family. Will you please tell me if you think it's right or proper for the lady you work for to introduce her friends to you as "Mrs. John Smith," and then say to them, "And this is 'our Marybelle'," . . . just like I didn't have a last name? I think it's time we had a little respect.

VERY MAD

DEAR VERY: I doubt if your employer meant any disrespect, only affection, which outranks respect any day in my book. But if you object, ask your employer to please call you "Mrs. ——."

DEAR ABBY: That nurse who wears her white uniform and white shoes on the street complained because strangers would approach her while she was waiting for a bus and ask her medical questions. Well, she doesn't have very much imagination. When somebody spots my white uniform and white shoes and asks me what's good for an upset stomach, I say, "I wish I could help you, but I only work in a delicatessen."

Formal introductions were extended: Mrs. Laura Dalrymple Smith, Worthy Grand Matron; J. Hilton Forbes of Williamston, Associate Grand Patron; Lewis M. Watson of Bailey, Grand Chaplain; Mrs. Emma Lou Johnson of Morrisville, Grand Marshal; Mrs. Margaret Griffin of Williamston, Grand Esther; Mrs. Beulah Forbes of Williamston, Grand Representative of Montana in North Carolina; two District Deputy Grand Matrons, Mrs. Dorothy Foy of Newport, Third District, and Mrs. Myrtle Allen of Farmville, Seventh District;

Two District Deputy Grand Patrons, James Allen of Robersonville, Second District, and Bobby Hooker of Goldsboro, Seventh District, Nine Grand Chapter Committee Members; Eleven Worthy Matrons; nine Worthy Patrons; and many past matrons and past patrons. Mrs. Ruth Watson, wife of the Grand Chaplain, and Mrs. Nita Hooker, wife of the District Deputy Grand Patron of the Seventh District, were also present.

The Chapter Room was decorated in the Worthy Grand Matron's colors with the focus being on her theme for the year, "The Understanding Heart," which was inscribed in white letters on a blue background above the east. Seven branch candelabra cast their glow over the setting below these words, which featured a large, white, open Bible within an enormous pink satin heart against a gold background. A low white fence enclosed a small garden at the base of the heart with greenery and flowers in pink, white, shades of orchid and a touch of blue, as well as yellow roses.

Her watchwords were spelled out on the other three walls by large colorful flowers. Above the west was the word "prayer" and a "stairway to God" stood on a pedestal with the praying hands at its base and a cross with a dove at the top. "Faith" was depicted on the north wall by a gold anchor and "Understanding" on the south wall was represented by a large pin, sequinned candle on a tall brass candleholder based with fern on a pedestal.

Mrs. Smith, W.G.M., delivered a short, message on "Kindness" and Hooker spoke on behalf of the Worthy Grand Patron, Samuel A. McPherson, who was unable to attend. Mrs. Smith presented 25 year certificates and members of Greenville Chapter who received theirs were Miss Alya Ray Taylor, secretary, and Mrs. Grace Hill, Associate Conductress. The Worthy Grand Matron was honored by a program and a song "Prayer is the Key to Heaven but Faith Unlocks the Door" sung by Mrs. Marguerite Cook, after which honorary memberships and gifts were presented from all three chapters to the Worthy Grand Matron and Worthy Grand Patron by members of the co - hosting chapters. Acceptance speeches were made by Mrs. Smith and the District Deputy Grand Patron, who accepted on behalf of McPherson.

Following a short program given by Mrs. Nell Moore about the founder of the Order, a love offering was collected, the money being donated to the care center at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home at Greensboro.

Immediately following the meeting, a reception was held in the Sugg-Whichard dining room. The refreshment table was covered with a white organdy cloth and yellow candles in silver candelabra framed a floral arrangement in mixed colors.

Presiding over the refreshment table were Mrs. Pauline Mooney and Mrs. Elizabeth Ewell. Greeting guests were: Mrs. Nell Moore; Mrs. Pattie Mizell; Mrs. Eva Corbette; Mrs. Byrdie Williams; Mrs. Hannah Brown; Rev. Adrian Brown; and Clifton Perry. Approximately 125 were present from Eastern North Carolina.

Congress May Continue After Nov. Elections

By ROBERT A. HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House returns from a 3½-week vacation Wednesday amid growing indications Congress won't be able to finish its heavy work load before election day in November.

A crowded docket of legislative business faces the House members who have been on vacation since Aug. 13.

But an even heavier schedule confronts the Senate, which comes back Tuesday after a nearly week-long recess around Labor Day.

"It would appear very doubtful that Congress will be able to complete its work before the elections," said House Speaker John W. McCormack.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has said adjournment before the Nov. 3 elections must be considered "a long shot possibility, a near miracle."

If that long shot doesn't materialize, Mansfield said the Senate probably would recess around Oct. 15, returning after the election to complete its work.

And if the Senate took such a recess House leaders undoubtedly would find it hard to hold their members here when all 435 House seats will be at stake in the November elections. One third of the Senate seats are up for grabs.

There are 11 bills on the House docket this week, but none are considered major.

The Senate turns its attention to a controversial House-passed proposed constitutional amendment dealing with abolition of the electoral college. A lengthy debate covering several weeks is expected.

Next week the House has set aside more time for consideration of the congressional reorganization bill it has debated off and on for about a month. Leaders hope to pass it by mid-September and send it to the Senate.

Along with reorganization, other bills high on the House priority list are those dealing with $90 billion in appropriations, crime control, drug abuse curbs and consumer protection.

There also is a move to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas but it might never reach the House floor.

A special Judiciary subcommittee inquiring into the jurist's conduct was given 60 days to make a decision. The deadline expired during the recess and there may be objections to another extension. The proponents of the impeachment drive may insist that a special committee be created to handle the matter.

Other compromise bills still facing final House action include those dealing with political broadcast controls, curbs on the use of troops abroad, weapons procurement and appropriations involving about $35 billion.

The House still has to consider a $70 billion defense appropriations bill

There also is a $20 billion money bill pending for the Housing and Urban Development department and related agencies.

Only four of the 14 annual money bills for the fiscal year which started July 1 have become law. The agencies with funds tied up in the pending money bills receive money through an emergency law which expires Oct. 15.

While the House has taken four shorter recesses earlier it still is ahead of the Senate in its work program.

Major House-passed bills still stacked up on the Senate calendar include a proposed constitutional amendment on women's rights, a farm bill with a $55,000 per crop limit on subsidy payments for wheat, feed grains and cotton, Social Security and family assistance, and air pollution.

City Libraries, Bookmobile Have Nearly 100,000 Volumes

Nearly 100,000 volumes are in stock in the three libraries and the bookmobiles making up the Greenville City Library System.

This and other highlight information is contained in the Annual Report of the Sheppard Memorial Library, headquarters for the city library system. Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian, prepared the report.

With 6,235 volumes added, and 4,583 withdrawn in the one year period from July 1, 1969 to June 30, 1970, the number of books in Sheppard Memorial, Carver and East Branches, and the two bookmobiles total 97,857.

The six thousand new volumes added represent a total of 3,202 new titles available to the reading public.

Although books are the stock in trade of libraries, the report shows that other items constitute a growing part of the overall services available to the public.

These services includes 14 newspapers, 204 different magazines, 2,164 recordings, 270 film strips, 290 slides, 330 micro-films, and 91 paintings. The paintings, which can be checked like books, are the newest addition to the library services.

To supplement these services, sound and movie projectors, record and tape recorders, slide and filmstrip projectors, and audio-visual retrieval system including ten audio and video monitors are part of the libraries' inventories.

Circulation of books, the yardstick for measuring the effectiveness of a library, revealed that 201,889 books were circulated during the year. Of this total, Sheppard Memorial accounted for more than 50 percent, or 109,313. The bookmobiles distributed 59,548 books, East Branch had 27,868, while the Carver Branch accounted for only 5,160 books distributed in the one year period.

Operating receipts for July 1, 1969 through June 30, 1970, were $150,524.00. Of this total, the City of Greenville accounted for more than half of the funds, with an appropriation of $77,958.00. Pitt County's share was $38,251.00. Other receipts were: State of North Carolina $17,303.00; U. S. Government $12,208.00; gifts to the the library, $376.50; fines and fees, $3,606.18; and refunds $82.52.

In expenditures, salaries accounted for the greatest single outlay, a total of $99,281.55, including social security and other costs. Materials, including the purchase of books, recordings, etc., resulted in an outlay of $30,815.98; operating expenses took $10,378.43, of which more than half was for utilities; vehicles, library supplies, equipment and miscellaneous expenses accounted for the remainder of the $151,679.34 in expenditures.

At the present time, the libraries and bookmobiles utilize the services of 17 full time employees and the assistance of seven part time workers.

Letter Goes To Students

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Freshmen students at Duke University are finding something new this year in their orientation material — a letter from university president Terry Sanford on the dangers of drug abuse.

Sanford told the youngsters that he had seen enough examples of drug abuse "to know that the danger to health, both mental and physical, is not inconsiderable."

"I decided to write this letter because I do not want the lack of a decisive official statement to be a contributing cause to the damage to the lives and careers of Duke students," he said.

Sanford warned the students of severe penalties for offenders and told them they could seek psychological "and other confidential counseling" at the university. He said the presence of those services didn't mean the university approves of the use of illegal drugs.

Hearing Is Set To Resume Tues.

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A closed-door Army hearing into charges Capt. Jeffrey MacDonald mudered his pregnant wife and two young daughters is scheduled to resume Tuesday after a three-week recess.

MacDonald, a Green Geret physician, is charged with three counts of premeditated murder in the Feb. 17 bizarre slayings at the family's Ft. Bragg apartment. His wife, Colette, 26, and daughter Kimberly, 6, were stabbed and bludgeoned. The youngest daughter, Kristen, 2, was stabbed.

The hearing, which is to determine whether MacDonald should be court-martialed on the murder charges, started at Ft. Bragg in late July and there had earlier been a two-week recess in the testimony. The hearing for the 27-year-old physician from Patchogue, N. Y., was recessed Aug. 15 after the defense completed its case.

It was first scheduled to resume Aug. 24, with only a few days of testimony and rebuttal expected before closing. But Col. Warren V. Rock, the officer who is conducting the inquiry, continued the recess so that MacDonald could undergo psychiatric examination by Army doctors.

Mrs. Mitchell Blasts Sen. Fulbright On War

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martha Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, said early today "the Vietnam war stinks" and "if it weren't for Fulbright we'd be out of it."

Mrs. Mitchell, who has feuded in the past with Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., was asked what she thought the senator's motive is.

"He wants to promote himself," she said. "The war would have been over 16 months ago if it hadn't been for Fulbright."

The Cabinet wife volunteered her views on the war and the senator to reporters on Air Force One while it was flying President Nixon, Atty. Gen. and Mrs. John Mitchell and other officials back to Washington from the Western White House.

Mrs. Mitchell came back to the press section of the aircraft, sat down and chatted, played a bit of gin rummy and bridge, and said along the way there was something she would like to say. And she wanted newsmen to take it down.

"If we could stick together as we used to," she said, "we would have been out of the war a helluva long time ago. What we need is a united America ... We have no reason to go to Paris and try to find a common ground when they realize over there we're not in agreement."

This was a reference to the Paris Peace negotiations.

Mrs. Mitchell said we shouldn't have gotten into the war in the first place.

When asked whose fault it was that we got into the war, she replied:

"The Nixon administration is not at fault. The Nixon administration inherited it and they're trying their best to get out of the war."

When a reporter said Nixon had backed former President Lyndon B. Johnson's actions and decisions on the war, Mrs. Mitchell replied:

"The only thing I know, the thing I feel most seriously about, is that if this country were wise enough to get together and feel we were a united country and not a divided country, this is the most important thing in the history of the country."

She added that she knows nothing about the statistics and the military background of the war, but went on to say:

"But this is an unpopular war, an extremely unpopular war. But if somebody would only take a few months off in Congress and say let's get together, this should not be a political operation—we need something that would bring us together, not separate us."

Asked what she would suggest, she replied:

"I suggest that Congress say to the American people we're in a very horrible state of war which the American people do not subscribe to ... consequently, we should try our very best to get out."

When the attorney general later walked back to the press section, a reporter asked him if he would like to hear what his wife had to say.

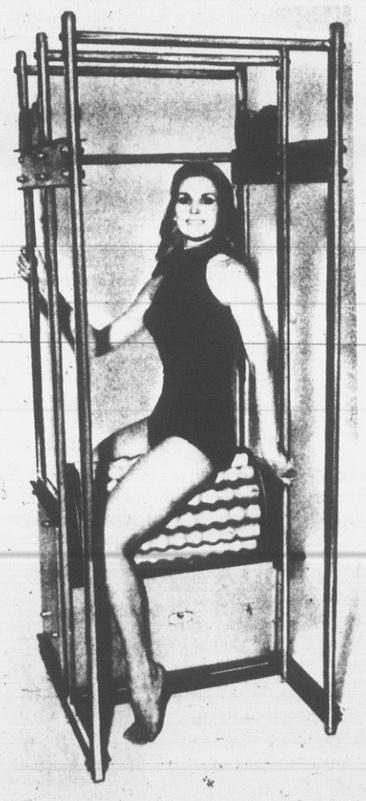

"Heavens no," Mitchell replied. "I might jump out the window."

Prison Reform Needs Money

A budget of $8.4 million for expanding prison operations during the next biennium has been endorsed by the Correction Commission.

This would mean the hiring of 305 additional custodial and professional personnel for 1971-73.

"This is a go-forward budget," Lee Bounds, Correction Commissioner said. "We think we can justify it."

The commission had already requested $71.6 million for the biennium compared with $44.7 million received for this biennium.

Almost everyone is recognizing now that North Carolina is going to have to spend more on its corrections program if the penal system is going to become a truly modern one dedicated to rehabilitation.

The Advisory Budget Commission and the General Assembly should go as far as they can in granting the additional funds which are being requested. The money should be spent, not so that hardened criminals can be coddled, but rather to attempt to return as many men, women and youths to useful lives outside the prisons.

20th Season Of Beating Drum

By LOYAL PHILLIPS
(Elizabeth City Advance)

MANTEO — Aycock Brown is rounding out his 20th summer season as drum - beater for one of North Carolina's favorite vacation and travel regions.

As director of the Dare County Tourist Bureau, Brown is perhaps the busiest and certainly one of the best of the Tar Heel press agents.

He uses print media and broadcasting to seel the Outer Banks to the nation. His Manteo office is decorated with the stock-in-trade of pictures of pretty girls in bikinis, grinning anglers with huge fish, and happy families at play.

He sells fun and excitement for the young, entertainment and recreation for the middle aged, and retirement fot the elderly. He is a photographer, writer, an information bureau and a clever dramatist.

Brown is a mountaineer from around Happy Valley who came to Manteo by way of Beaufort, Durham and New York where he studied journalism at Columbia University.

The Tourist Bureau and the Nags Head Chamber of Commerce are very important to Dare County's economy and also to thousands of people who visit the Outer Banks.

All Kinds of Requests

More than 7,000 people write the Bureau each year and approximately 1,000 telephone for many kinds of information. In quirers want to know about accomodations, rates, where to stay, where to fish, and where to surf.

One inquirer wanted to rent a lighthouse for a week, another wanted to find a taxidermist who would sell a large mounted turtle. Several students have requested a few grains of sand from the sites of the lost colony and the Wright brothers' first flight. People from all over the country write for information on pirates and shipwrecks. Some time ago there were rumors of a sunken city in the area and the mails brought numerous requests for all available information.

Basically, the function of the Bureau is to generate publicity which will cause people to want to visit Dare, and to answer their requests for information.

Brown has released thousands of stories and news pictures in addition to assisting writers and photographers who have come to the Bureau for assistance on special assignments.

National Media Coverage

A major feature in National Geographic magazine was a full year in the making. A writer spent a week on the scene and a photographer made two trips here. Next came a cartographer followed by a caption writer to do cutlines for the photographs. Four different people participated in the article.

House and Garden and other national publications have carried colorful features on the Outer Banks. Chevy Camper, a new magazine, publisher a six - page feature on the Banks in its first issue. Wachovia, bi - monthly publication of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., devoted four scenic pages in a spring issue to Dare's vast waterfront areas.

Large eastern newspapers, including the Pittsburgh Press, have printed hundreds of illustrated articles prepared with assistance from the Bureau.

Brown and his assistants are still amazed at the mountains of mail inquiries generated by publicity in the mass media. A single Pittsburgh Press article produced several hundred pieces of mail. Around 250 persons wrote as a result of the Chevy Camper story and perhaps as many responded to the Wahcovia feature.

His Own TV Special

In the near future WUNC-TV will broadcast a 30 - minute show, based on Brown's experiences during his 20 years as manager and news director of the Bureau.

Mrs. Sarah Owens, Brown's secretary, said the Bureau distributes 75,000 color folders annually to travel agencies and to fill mail requests. The folders cost around $9,000, and are financed by advertising space sold to leading Dare businesses.

Mrs. Owen has been with the Bureau for 12 years, and Brown happily shares with her credit for the organization's efficient performance. She has a close personal interest in "The Lost Colony," partly because her mother for years has played the role of "A-CON-Y," the Indian maiden friend of Old Tom.

As a cub reporter for the new defunct Elizabeth City Independent, Brown fell for the oldest gag in journalism. His foxy associates sent him over to the rival newspaper, The Advance, on an emergency mission for a paper stretcher. A practical joker at the Advance gave Brown a neatly wrapped heavy object. Brown took it back, where it was unwrapped to the hearty laughter of everyone but Brown. The package contained rusty junk from an abandoned coal heater.

Potential Voter Has A Limited Time Left

Citizens who want to be registered for the Nov. 3 General Election should remember that the books will close Oct. 5.

Registration is now carried on continuously at the Board of Election's office in the Court House. The office is open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Not only should new citizens register but those who are already registered but have changed their place of residence should visit the office to see that their names are moved to the new precinct.

While this is an off year election there is a race for the First Congressional District seat and there are other races which will have to be decided. There is also the hospital bond issue which must be decided by the voters.

Registration must be taken care of by Oct. 5, however.

An Effort To Regain Center

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The clearest and most dramatic evidence of the transformed mood at Democratic National headquarters is an attempt by Robert Strauss, the party's national treasurer, to strip Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard of all official Democratic sanction.

Strauss wants Galbraith to resign from the Democratic Policy Council, which is supposed to set national party policy. If he does not resign, Strauss wants to see him kicked off. In any event, Strauss wants to erase any connection in the public mind between Democratic party leadership and Galbraithan radicalism.

Whether or not Galbraith stays on the generally inert policy council could scarcely matter less, as Strauss understands perfectly well. Rather, Strauss is making a symbolic gesture against what he terms "kamikaze Democrats" who want to purify the party in the flames of defeat. And that attitude, in turn, symbolizes the new mood at the Democratic National Committee.

It has taken the party hierarchy fully two years to shake off the trauma of the Chicago convention. In the aftermath of the 1968 Presidential defeat, Democratic leaders assumed that they had lost because of insufficient appeal to the black, the young, and the poor. Subsequently those elements were doggedly appeased through the post - election tenure of Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma as National Chairman.

When Harris was replaced by Lawrence F. O'Brien as National Chairman and Strauss was elected treasurer six months ago, a reassessment began. Since then, Democratic leaders have been approaching the view that the 1968 loss was caused essentially by defections from the party's traditional power source: the working man. Leftward steps under Harris only further alienated that blue - collar vote.

Strauss, a Dallas lawyer businessman and Democratic National Committeeman from Texas, typifies the changed atmosphere at national headquarters. Moderate ideologically, close to the Texas conservatives personally, and a staunch party loyalist over the years, Strauss has conducted himself cautiously rather than stir up enemies on the left.

But now he is ready to move, beginning with a call to divest Prof. Galbraith of party credentials. Galbraith, to Strauss, is "Nothing but a spoiler" because of his campaign — overwhelmingly unsuccessful — to purge Democratic incumbents and his call for Democratic Congressmen to break the seniority system by voting for a Republican speaker.

"I blame people like me," says Strauss, "who have let Galbraith and his type use the party as a podium." As chief Democratic fund - raiser, Strauss has found such use has alienated potential contributors, large and small alike. To repudiate the Galbraithan Democrats might turn the money spigot back on.

But the new mood at the National Committee transcends money-raising. Rather, O'Brien shared and Strauss his disapproval of Galbriath's leftward thrust and a determination to get the party back to the popular center, where elections are won.

The catalyst that has strengthened that determination in recent weeks is a new book — "The Real Majority" by Richard M. Scammon and Ben J. Wattenberg. Although publication is not until today (Friday), advance copies have been pondered by key party figures for the past month. Seldom has one book had so instant an impact on political affairs.

Accordingly, Democratic politicians are now repeating the Scammon - Wattenberg formulations: the key to winning elections is not the black - young - poor minority but the wife of the machinist in Dayton. While the

Luggage-Bashing Pupils

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass. — Many air travelers have noticed that their luggage has been getting more of a bashing recently than it has in the past. This is no accident. Most airline luggage handlers must now go to school before an airline will allow them to touch a piece of baggage.

I was fortunate to visit the Dent Airline Luggage and Freight Handlers School in St. Louis last week. The Dent school trains most of the airline baggage handlers in the United States. Mr. Dent, the founder and president of the school, took me out on a large playing field the size of a football gridiron. Several classes were in session. The teachers all wore baseball caps and sweat shirts, and had whistles around their necks. The pupils were dressed in white coveralls. The first class we stopped to watch was throwing pieces of luggage to each other.

"All right, let's throw them a little harder," the coach yelled. "What are you guys, a bunch of cream puffs! You there, Pitowsky. You're not supposed to catch every bag. Drop a few."

Pitowsky dropped the next one and it broke open, scattering clothes all over the field.

"Beautiful," the coach yelled. "Now you've got it."

"We use real luggage," Mr. Dent said proudly. "We simulate every possible situation a luggage handler will face."

"Ryan, you're catching the bags with two hands," the coach yelled. "You'll never break any that way. How many times have I told you to use only one hand when trying to catch a piece of luggage."

ART BUCHWALD

We walked on down the field and came to a 16-foot tower. Several men were on the tower, dropping boxes marked "fragile" to the ground.

"The object of this exercise," said Mr. Dent, "is for the men to get used to dropping fragile packages from great heights."

"But nobody's catching the packages," I said.

"Of course not," Mr. Dent chuckled. We went over to the coach who was inspecting each box after it dropped.

"Claremont," he yelled up to the tower, "these scientific instruments are still intact. What are you using for a throwing arm?"

"Threw them as hard as I

Other Editors Say Law Needs Teeth

(Charlotte Observer)

The criminal bombing that destroyed the military research center at the University of Wisconsin reminds us again that stronger federal law is needed on the possession and use of explosives.

In the last 18 months in this country, there have been 40 persons killed and 348 injured in bombings in and around public buildings.

President Nixon sent Congress two measures last March dealing with bombings. These are bogged down with others in the legislative process.

Federal law now merely prohibits moving explosives in interstate commerce for criminal purposes and the possession or use of explosives to damage equipment or facilities used in commerce.

Police Commissioner Howard Leary of New York City urged some useful steps last month in Senate testimony. He said federal law should:

—Require coding on explosives and bomb components.

—Require strict record-keeping on sale or use of explosives.

—Require frequent inspection of the records by federal authorities.

—Provide strict penalties for unlicensed transport of explosives.

In addition to these things, The Miami Herald suggests that the federal government provide funds for rewards for information about bombs and bombers as most local units of government are already empowered to do.

The situation is getting worse as Congress dawles. Police in New York City, where there were 68 criminally set explosions from January, 1969, through last June, have announced publicly that they cannot guarantee the safety of any person visiting in a police station.

Is there any further proof needed that the laws need some teeth?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Delegates to the Revolutionary People's Constitutional Convention are encountering a problem that has troubled philosophers through the centuries—how do you agree on basic rights, let alone devise ways of safeguarding them?

There were indications Sunday that delegates to the three-day event, sponsored by the Black Panther party in the city where authors of the U.S. Constitution met from May 17 to Sept. 17, 1787, were getting a more impressive lesson than their history books could give in the difficulties of drawing up a constitution.

Take the workshop labeled "Self-Determination for Street People."

One black delegate began by defining street people as people who live by their wits in the street.

Several whites objected. Calling themselves rebels against their "middle-class, bourgeois homes," they said they were street people "by choice."

The immediate compromise, a phrase about people who were oppressed "because they chose to be," didn't seem to satisfy anyone. When the workshop demands were presented to the general convention in the evening, no definition was included.

Then there was the workshop on "Distribution of Political Power." It split into five discussion groups, one of which reported that its members could think of no system of distributing power that didn't have some loophole allowing it to become oppressive.

The question of police power wasn't much easier. Since there was general agreement that everyone would have the duty to bear arms, one delegate pointed out, the bullet would be the final police power.

That didn't seem to sit too well with what many thought was the function of police power —to guarantee the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

By and large, beneath the "off the pigs" rhetoric, the discussions revolved around aspects of current society that the primarily young delegates found unsatisfactory—free housing, transportation, and medical care, freedom from oppression, and the like.

The workshop ended on the unresolved issue of whether individual groupings of people, whether chosen by race, religion, or any other criteria, should be allowed to put any of their interests before the interests of "all the people."

Perhaps predictably, some blacks argued yes, whites generally said no.

"It really started me thinking," one young woman said as she stepped from the Friends's Meeting House after a four-hour session. "I mean, this is going to take a lot more work."

Strength For Today

THE CARPENTER

"The laborer is worthy of his hire" (Luke 10:7). These words were uttered by none other than Jesus himself who during most of his life was a carpenter in the little village of Nazareth.

Some of us can remember when the American workman was an industrial slave with an iron collar about his neck. Then came labor unions and the picture changed. Many people believe that the labor unions have gone too far and are frequently unjust in their demands. But if this is true what we need is confrontation and conference. That country is in a bad way that is not willing to settle its differences around the conference table.

And what a glorious thing it is to realize that Jesus of Nazareth, whom millions of people regard as Saviour, was a man who worked with his hands. If Jesus had been a person of noble birth, regal appearance and high station in the affairs of his day it might please some people but it certainly would not please the majority. This North American continent is one of the greatest experiments in high and useful living that the world has ever known. We regard people who don't work as parasites. We still say that there are a lot of unanswered questions and unsolved difficulties that are crying out for the conference table, but a nation dedicated to hard work and fair dealing is a nation that will lead its people into real prosperity and justice.

Time is dated from the birth of a child that grew up to a carpenter. Hallelujah!

Auto Strike Can Hurt Union

By ELMER ROESSNER

It has been a popular prediction that the United Auto Workers' demands in current bargaining sessions will be tough and would lead to a strike.

ELMER ROESSNER

The reasoning has been that the new union president, Leonard Woodcock, would have to demonstrate a lot of toughness to prove to the membership that he is a worthy successor to the late Walter Reuther. This, it has been predicted, would cause him to make enormous demands on the industry, and even spoil for a strike.

This reasoning may be too superficial.

A strike this year may be one of the worst things that could happen to the union. There are large numbers of unemployed in the auto cities, 6 per cent in Detroit, and strikers could not easily pick up other jobs.

A strike might endanger the survival of one of the smaller companies. And a strike this fall would get organized labor generally and the U. A. W. in particular, blamed for failure of the economy to pull out of the current slump.

Ricochet Effects

A long strike would push recovery far into the future. It would cut sales of many suppliers, including makers of tires, auto glass, steel, plastics, wheel and brakes, batteries and dozens of other components, thereby spreading unemployment in those industries.

A strike in the present situation could spawn demands for ending some of the legislative advantages unions now enjoy.

Prediction: Demands will be tough; but both union and manufacturers will work hard to avoid a general strike, although there may be a few wildcat stoppages. As the weatherman might say, there is only a 20 per cent chance of a storm.

Airlines In Trouble

Airlines are having more darned trouble. U. S. lines lost $73 million in the first half of this year, the business slump has cut passenger traffic; expenses are rising. The cost of paying for those new 747s is heavy; several orders for new ones have been cut. They are costly to operate and many are flying less than half full.

Predictions: Airlines will get the increase in fares they are now asking; more flights will be dropped; the airlines will step up demands that non-schedules operators be made to toe the law, and there will be more merger proposals.

Several life insurance companies have raised their rates, not because of any rise in the death rate but because operating costs are rising. Companies are carrying some policies at rates set when they could hire a good stenographer for $25 a week and the only fringe was soap in the washroom.

Prediction: Almost all life insurance rates will rise, as have auto, fire, riot and other coverages.

School openings, with more busing than ever, is turning public attention toward the safety of the buses. The National Transportation Board has stated that school buses haven't been built for safety and as a result a number of accidents have taken young lives.

Primaries To Be Held In Eight States Tuesday

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight states hold primaries Tuesday with attention focused on Florida's battle between Republicans G. Harrold Carswell and Rep. William G. Cramer for nomination to a Senate seat the GOP expects to win Nov. 3.

Seven of the states hold gubernatorial primaries—Arizona, Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Florida, Vermont, Arkansas and Colorado. And Georgia will follow Wednesday with its gubernatorial primary.

In addition, the Virgin Islands will top off the biggest primary week of the year with the territory's first primary in history for governor, between two Democrats.

Florida also provides the main excitement in the contests for state offices. Flamboyant Gov. Claude Kirk faces millionaire druggist Jack Eckerd.

In addition to Florida, senatorial primaries will be held in Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin and Arizona. Both Democrats and Republicans are running unopposed in Wisconsin and Utah. Nominations to House seats are up in all states.

Utah is the only state holding a primary this week without a governor's race. But Republicans are eyeing the Senate seat held by Democrat Frank E. Moss. Both Moss and his GOP challenger, Rep. Laurence J. Burton, are unopposed as they prepare for their November ballot tussle.

The Vermont primary sets the stage for a Nov. 3 contest the Democrats think they can capture for the first time in the state's history. Popular former Gov. Philip H. Hoff is expected to win the primary over state Sen. Fiore L. Bove and former U.S. Rep. William H. Meyer.

Hoff is given a good chance to unseat Republican Sen. Winston L. Prouty, who faces no primary opposition, and become Vermont's first Democratic senator.

In the Florida senatorial race, Cramer is generally rated a slight edge over Carswell, the spurned Supreme Court nominee.

Carswell has said little about Cramer, focusing his campaign on criticism of the Senate, repeating that he will "raise the level of mediocrity in the Senate if elected."

Cramer has campaigned on the school busing issue, pointing to his authorship of an antibusing amendment in the Senate in 1964. He says court rulings in which Carswell participated prove he is a "busing judge."

Former Gov. Farris Bryant is considered the front runner in the four-man field for the Democratic nomination. His main challenge is from state House Speaker Fred Schultz.

In the gubernatorial race, Eckerd has criticized Kirk's flamboyance and accused him of influence peddling. He says Kirk has alienated Florida Republicans from Washington at a time when they could reap the benefits of a Republican administration.

Kirk has focused his campaign on the courts, filing repeated petitions for a federal ruling against compulsory busing.

The Democrats have four candidates in their primary with no clear favorite. This is expected to force a Sept. 29 runoff.

Another hot gubernatorial battle is in New Hampshire where Gov. Walter Peterson, trying for a second two-year term, is running a neck and neck race with Meldrim Thompson, a law book publisher who has conservative backing. The Democrats are staging a three-man race in this heavily Republican state.

Arkansas will hold its runoff between former Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Dale Bumpers, a small town lawyer, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Faubus is heavily favored to win and face Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, whom he defeated six years ago. Faubus retired after six terms and Rockefeller was elected twice to succeed him.

In Vermont, Gov. Deane C. Davis is favored to win Republican renomination over the challenge of Lt. Gov. Thomas L. Hayes, a liberal running as a peace candidate. Former Lt. Gov. John J. Daley and state Sen. Leo O'Brien Jr. are waging a tight race for the Democratic nomination.

In Arizona both Republican Sen. Paul J. Fannin and Gov. Jack Williams are unopposed for renomination and are favored to win Nov. 3. Sam Grossman, millionaire shopping center owner, appears the leader in a three-man contest for the Democratic nomination to oppose Fannin. And Jack Ross, a Phoenix area auto dealer, is considered likely to win the Democratic nomination for governor.

Wisconsin's former Lt. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey is rated for the favorite in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, with Donald Peterson, a leader of the New Democratic Coalition his chief rival. Lt. Gov. Jackson Olson is assured the Republican nomination.

In Wisconsin's Senate race, Democratic Sen. William Proxmire has no opposition, nor has Republican John Erickson, a former University of Wisconsin basketball coach.

In Colorado, Republican Gov. John A. Love, seeking a third four-year term, has no opposition. And his November opponent, Democratic Lt. Gov. Mark A. Hogan is unopposed in the primary.

In the Georgia primary Wednesday, former Gov. Carl E. Sanders and former state Sen. Jimmy Carter, are rated the front-runners in a nine-way Democratic race for governor. This is almost certain to force a Sept. 23 runoff between the two top finishers.

Of three Republicans running, James L. Bentley, the state controller and a former Democrat, is considered the leader.

The Virgin Islands, which have been U.S. property since 1917, is electing its chief executive for the first time through an act of Congress Aug. 23, 1968. A heavy turnout of Democrats is expected to choose between two-term Sen. Alexander Farrelly and Atty. Gen. Francisco Corneiro.

The current Gov. Melvin H. Evans, a Democrat turned Republican who was appointed by President Nixon, is running to succeed himself in a territory traditionally strongly Democratic. Cyril E. King, for eight years government secretary and acting governor for almost five months, heads the Independent Citizens Movement slate and could force a runoff after the November election.

could," Claremont yelled back.

"Well, put some spin on it the next time."

Claremont threw another box and we heard the glass shattering. The coach nodded his head.

"Good boy."

The next group we came to was running an obstacle course. Pieces of luggage were strewn on the field and the men had to jump from one piece of luggage to another without their heavy work boots hitting the ground. The hinges were broken on most of the bags and the locks were crushed.

"After running the 100-yard course, stomping on the luggage," Mr. Dent said, "the men then have to throw a 40-pound bag 15 yards, kick a cosmetic case 25 yards and thrust a sharp object through a canvas suitcase, blindfolded."

"You're doing wonderful work here," I told Mr. Dent.

"When a man finishes our school," Mr. Dent said, as he picked up a broken camera that had fallen out of bag, "he is certified to work as a baggage handler for any airline in the world."

Democratic party should maintain its economic liberalism, it must also show genuine concern for her apprehensions about crime, drugs, and student disorder.

Much the same theme was sounded by Hubert H. Humphrey in a speech to the American Bar Assn. (written by Wattenberg, now a Humphrey aide). Excerpts from the speech were reprinted in the Democratic National Committee's newsletter, which also recommends "The Real Majority." Simultaneously, O'Brien has endorsed similar remarks by AFL-CIO president George Meany.

Put into this contest, Strauss's desire to run John Kenneth Galbraith out of the Democratic Policy Council is no mere factional dispute but quite possibly a symptom of returning sanity. At the highest places, as another election nears, Democrats are rediscovering their old precept that the function of a political party is to win elections.

Nixon Meets With Labor Leaders At White House

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is back at the White House today to celebrate the Labor Day holiday with a gathering of 3,200 labor union leaders and their families.

The President invited top union officials and their wives to a dinner for 200 in the East Room, with a menu featuring prime rib of beef and fine wines.

Afterward, 3,000 others including Labor Department employes and union members and their families were to gather on the White House lawn for a torchlight military review featuring drills and music.

The President came back from San Clemente, Calif., Sunday night, ending an 18-day absence from the capital that began Aug. 20 with a visit to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, for a meeting with Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

Winding up his last day at the Western White House on Sunday, Nixon took an unannounced 60-mile helicopter trip northeast to Riverside to pay a call on his 90-year-old aunt, Edith Timberlake,a patient in the Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital.

The helicopter trip, with presidential assistant John Ehrlichman and friend C.G. 'Bebe' Rebozo along, was not announced in advance and was conducted in secrecy. An aide explained later that it was considered "poor taste to make a press thing" of the visit to his ailing aunt.

After the Labor Day holiday, Nixon planned to zero in on the returning Congress to push for passage of still-pending administration legislation, especially the family assistance plan to provide a minimum income for poverty level families.

He was expected to meet with Republican congressional leaders Wednesday and later to issue a statement on the status of his domestic program after 19 months in office.

Foreign affairs continued to take up much of Nixon's time.

On Sunday, the Western White House said the United States will "make every effort" to help work out problems in the Middle East and to keep peace talks going despite Israel's announcement it will withdraw because of cease-fire violations.

N. Pitt Plans Are Announced

North Pitt High School will open Wednesday, Sept. 16, unless there is some unforeseen delay, it was announced today by W. C. Latham, principal.

Orientation for seniors will be held Monday, Sept. 14, at 9 a.m. at the school and orientation for the juniors will be held at 2 p.m. that same time. Orientation for sophomores will be held Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 9 a.m., and orientation activities for freshmen have been scheduled for 2 p.m. that same day.

Teachers will report for work Friday, Sept. 11, at 9 a.m. They will be at North Pitt on the following Monday and Tuesday to assist with registration and orientation.

Students registering for the first time will wait in the rooms adjoing the counselors offices, Latham said.

"Most of the pupils destined to attend North Pitt have already been registered by the counselors and teachers of their respective 1969-70 schools," Latham stated.

"North Pitt will not be able to take students from other school districts unless the students have been released from their respective administrative units and accepted by the Pitt County Board of Education," the North Pitt principal explained.

He added, "The enrollment at North Pitt is already near the 1,100 mark and 13 mobile units have been moved to the site to take care of the instructional services at the school."

The bus drivers will meet at North Pitt Tuesday at 1 p.m. for instruction about driving, safety and description of their routes. The drivers will meet at the Pitt County Garage at 2 p.m. that same day to pick up their buses.

Latham said no bus service will be provided for orientation on Monday and Tuesday. The buses will not operate until the first day of school. He added the lunchroom will not open until Thursday, Sept. 17.

Varied Items In Magazine

YADKINVILLE, N. C. (AP)—A yacht for $585,000 and a Late Ming Dynasty ivory statue of Lohan the Chinese philosopher —$10,000—are two of the items available through a Yadkinville publication.

Claude V. Dunnagan, who along with his brother Harry D. Dunnagan owns the magazine "The Regal Mart," says the booklet is the product of $20,000 research into a mailing list of the top 15,000 investors in the country.

Dunnagan and his brother say they spent more than six months gathering the names of the big money families.

The magazine also carries apartment complexes, mansions, ski lodges and motels with real estate making up most of the market its readers are expected to provide.

One of the choice items listed in a recent edition is a French chateau overlooking the Lot Valley in France. The owner is too modest to list the price.

Jones To Speak

FARMVILLE — Congressman Walter B. Jones will be the principal speaker at a groundbreaking ceremony for 150 low-cost housing units here tomorrow at 10 a.m.

This first project of the Farmville Housing Authority will be called Pine Grove Apartments. It will be located on the east side of South Main Street adjacent to the Farmville Division of U.S. Industries.

Congressman Jones and other officials will turn the first few spades of earth for the $1,338,000 project.

fee of $3 plus additional costs for typing and other courses offered. Special courses subject to fees include: science, $2; agriculture, $2.50; home economics, $3; typing, $7.50 for each semester; club fees, $1; distributive education, $2; industrial arts, $2.

Alford said the board of education has considered the possibility of charging one flat amount for high school fees for another year regardless of the course selection by the child.

The lunchrooms will begin operating Wednesday, Sept. 9, for the first time. The lunchrooms will serve approximately 9,000 students per day throughout the school year.

"The greatest problem facing us now is going to be that of preparing for the mid-year transition which will have to be made according to the court order," Alford stated. "This involves reorganization of the high school program, student bodies and the elementary schools."

Chicod, Grifton and Falkland elementary schools are already completely desegregated, thus leaving only Winterville, Ayden, Farmville, Grimesland and Fountain for mid-year changes.

The school office has attempted to assign personnel and to schedule the programs and activities in such a manner as to cause the least amount of disruption during the transition.

"We will more than likely close our first semester in high school work at the time of reorganization. This will vary from one high school district to another as D. H. Conley will be ready for occupancy by Jan. 1, with Farmv...e to follow within 30 days and Ayden-Grifton to be the last school for reorganization," Alford explained. "This is subject, of course, to the readiness of these facilities. The contractors stated for the court's consideration that all of the schools should be ready by Jan. 25."

Principals William Wiggins, Russ Cotton and James R. Carraway have all been provided administrative relief in order to plan for an orderly change, Alford stated.

The central office will also be working to make provisions for the changing of desks, bus routes, lunchroom operations, transfer of material and supplies and many other aspects of the program.

"Efforts are now being made to look toward 1971 in the area of athletics with all four new high schools fielding football teams as well as basketball and baseball squads and with the addition of track, wrestling and possibly tennis," he said.

"There is need to either join with another conference or create a new athletic conference that will provide good competition with as little travel outside the immediate area as possible," Alford added.

Alford continued, "There will be some decisions made in the very near future concerning athletic programs at each of the schools during this year of transition as well as conference alignment for 1971."

Alford commended Tom Craft, associate superintendent, and Assistant Superintendents W. J. Edwards, Jamie Keeter and John Taylor for the job they have done throughout the summer in preparing for the many changes that had to be made between Aug. 9 and the opening of schools.

"Craft, especially, has been involved in the reorganization which involved work at the individual schools through the maintenance department and, at the same time, has coordinated the $8 million construction program underway in the county," Alford said.

"These responsibilities have been tremendous," he emphasized. "These men, along with others at the central office, as well as principals of more recent date; have responded to the challenges which we face. I commend them all."

Generally, all schools will take in by 8:30 a.m. Tuesday morning and all students will be dismissed before 12 noon.

The board of education leaves to each school area the determination of exact opening and dismissal times of the schools. Several schools have to coordinate their transportation program and other school activities which make it impossible for one opening and closing time for all the schools to be set county wide.

Says U.S. Lags In Power Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. is behind in building electric power systems, and hasn't much chance of catching up soon, according to Sola Basic Industries, a company that makes electric power distribution equipment. Frank Roby, president of the company, sees a dramatic increase in electric power use in the 70s, but fears the possibility of power "brown-outs" and "black-outs" at more frequent intervals the year round.

Roby believes repeated "outrages" might change the country's traditional attitude about regulating electric utilities, and perhaps provide for the expansion required to meet skyrocketing electric power needs.

Queen Needs A Raise

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II, said to be worth as much as $480 million, is in line for a pay raise, but she's getting an unsympathetic ear from her subjects.

The monarch gets $1.14 million annually in tax-free government allowances, plus about $480,000 in income from her estates.

But from that she must finance Buckingham Palace's operation—which includes 400 aides and the rest of the royal trappings. She is forbidden by tradition from engaging in debate over royal finances.

One peer, William Hamilton, a dedicated republican from Scotland, has made it known he will lead a fight against a higher Royal salary when the question comes up in Parliament. Calling the monarch "a corrupting influence in Britain," he said he wants parliamentary hearings held in public.

Repercussions From Nostalgia

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — A bit of nostalgia backfired on the Adirondack Enterprise when the local daily published an advertisement out of the past and dropped the line explaining it was from a 1942 edition.

The ad sent hundreds of youngsters, and a few of their parents, to the Saranac Lake Supply Co. looking for apples at 10 pounds for 19 cents and squash at 3 cents a pound.

What made the day for the store owner, however, was the price of chicken.

The 1942 ad offered chicken for 45 cents a pound. The 1970 version next to it read 29 cents per pound.

ALARM WAS FALSE

Greenville firemen today were called to the intersection of 12th and Clark Streets when a false alarm was turned in from Box 221 at that intersection.

The false alarm was received at 1:10 a.m.

The Greenville city code provides for a $100 reward to be paid to anyone giving information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone turning in a false alarm.

Negotiations Are Continuing

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union and industry management spend Labor Day today at the bargaining table with a strike deadline one week off for either General Motors Corp. or Chrysler Corp., or both.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock declared Sunday that a strike will come unless the industry narrows the gap in differences over a new three-year contract.

Woodcock—in an interview on NBC's "Meet The Press"—put particular stress on the union's demand that the present ceiling on a cost-of-living wage escalator be removed.

The UAW leader termed the situation "critical."

The UAW has exempted Ford Motor Co. from an immediate strike.

The union represents more than 700,000 Big Three auto maker employes.

Current three-year pacts expire at midnight Sept. 14.

Woodcock refused Sunday to reveal specific wage demands presented to the automakers in private sessions Saturday.

However, he said what the union asked was both within range of and less than recent agreements by the Teamsters Union and by printers at the New York Times.

The Teamster settlement in both wages and fringe benefits over more than three years is estimated to be a 43 per cent hike. The printers at the New York Times settled for a 41 per cent increase in wages over three years.

The Big Three have offered a wage increase of 13.5 per cent over three years.

Miss Nude World Has Been Chosen

FREELTON, Ont. (AP) — Blinking back tears, Miss Rhonda Stallan, 21, sat in photographers' lights Sunday night wearing only a crown, high-heeled shoes and a sash reading "Miss Nude World."

Miss Stallan, a first-year member of a nudist club at Aurora, Ont., was selected over 11 other contestants during two sessions of nude judging. Runners-up were Miss Annette Greef, 25, Burlington, Ont., and Miss Barbara Uldricks, 27, Campbellsville, Ont. The only American was Evelyn Kane, 29, a mother of two from Rochester, N.Y.

"The only thing I was worried about in the contest was certain pictures being published," Miss Stallan said in a press interview. She said her boyfriend also is a nudist.

She received a trophy, a trip to Florida for two and a pet monkey.

Development Corp. Is Given Grant

RALEIGH (AP) — The Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina announced Sunday a $500 grant to the Economic Development Corp. in Warrenton.

The Rev. E. N. Porter, the diocese's director of racial and urban affairs, said the money would help finance nutritional meals and adequate medical care for poor families.

Riot Launched 1924 Assembly

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The 1924 session of the Rhode Island Legislature began with a riot when spectators and senators engaged in a battle which brought sheriffs and police to quell the disturbance. The trouble ended two days later when a "gas bomb" was placed in the senate chamber.

The stormy session conducted virtually no business with Republican senators going into exile in Rutland, Mass., where they stayed until the 1925 general assembly took office. Twenty-three banks loaned the state $400,000 with which to operate since no appropriation was passed.

State Board Will Convene

The State Board of Examiners of Plumbing and Heating Contractors will convene for the purpose of examining applicants for plumbing, heating and air conditioning licenses October 20.

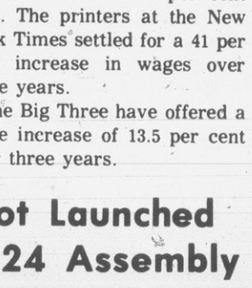

The examination period will run through October 23 and include a full series of examinations.

FOOT NOTES OF INTEREST

Reptile's Contribution

Did you know that one of the most dramatic trends in women's shoes this year may well make use of some very original material?

In a recent showing of coming fashions in shoes in London, attention was drawn to styles using reptile skins. That's right. The skins of such snakes as the cobra and members of the constrictor family will be some of the big news in British shoes this fall.

Other members of the reptile community will also make the limelight. Crocodiles currently have the edge in these exotic women's fashions. It is poetic justice that the crocodile should be employed in women's shoes, what with the great popularity of alligator among men. . . These unique skins will add greatly to the charm of foot fashion in the coming season.

Jackson And Odom Having Their Problems

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Reggie Jackson hadn't started a game in 10 days and Blue Moon Odom hadn't finished one in five months.

But they've both got nine innings behind them today, and the Oakland A's are hoping to get more distance from them through the American League homestretch.

Jackson drove in two runs with a single and his 18th homer while Odom pitched a two-hitter and swatted a bases-empty homer as the A's ripped Kansas City 7-1 Sunday for their sixth consecutive victory.

It was the first start for Jackson since Aug. 26 when he was benched during a prolonged batting slump. It was the first complete game for the injury-plagued Odom since April 16—when he beat Chicago 3-1 in the A's eighth game of the season.

The victory, coupled with California's 3-1 loss to Minnesota, moved the A's into a second-place tie with the Angels in the AL West. They trail the first place Twins by six games.

In other Sunday action, Boston downed Baltimore 9-8 in 11 innings; Detroit shaded Washington 8-7 in 12 and the New York Yankees trimmed Cleveland 4-1. The White Sox were rained out at Milwaukee.

In the National League, Pittsburgh nipped Philadelphia 4-3 in 10 innings; Cincinnati got by San Diego 6-5; San Francisco edged Atlanta 1-0; St. Louis beat Montreal 7-2 and Houston defeated Los Angeles 4-3. The New York Mets-Chicago Cubs game at Chicago was washed out by rain.

Jackson, used primarily as a pinch-hitter or late innning defensive replacement in recent weeks, replaced Felipe Alou, out with a hand injury, in the Oakland lineup.

His fourth-inning single ended Wally Bunker's scoreless string at 20 innings and tied the game 1-1. Then, after Odom hit his third homer of the year as the A's scored twice in the fifth, Jackson belted his 18th homer in the sixth. It was his third in the last seven times at bat.

Odom, a 15-game winner last season whose effectiveness has been limited this year because of arm troubles, gave up a second-inning homer by Billy Sorrell and then stymied the Royals until Lou Piniella doubled in the ninth. Odom has won eight of 13 decisions.

Cesar Tovar capped a big weekend at Anaheim by driving in all of Minnesota's runs with a double and homer as the Twins completed a three-game sweep of the Angeles. Tovar had seven hits, including the homer and two doubles, in the three games. He scored four runs and stole four bases.

Tom Hall blanked the Angels on three hits until the ninth, when he needed help from relief ace Ron Perranoski.

The Red Sox beat Baltimore on a bases-laoded wild pitch by Pete Richert in the 11th after tying the game in the eighth on a two-out, RBI single by Carl Yastrzemski.

Frank Howard drove in five runs with his 39th and 40th homers, personally erasing a five-run Detroit lead, but the Tigers won it in the 12th on Norm Cash's single, double by Elliott Maddox and an error by right fielder Del Unser.

Fritz Peterson hurled a five-hitter, bringing his season mark to 17-9 and pacing the Yankees to their third straight over Cleveland. Ron Woods' two-run triple broke an eighth-inning deadlock.

Everything Is Go At Darlington

DARLINGTON, S. C. (AP) — With battle plans drawn and engines tuned to perfection, 40 drivers were scheduled to try to outrace and out last each other today in the grueling Southern 500 at Darlington Speedway.

Some of the battle plans sounded simple. Bobby Isaac outlined his when he said, "I'm going to just try and survive the first 300 miles and then race the last 200.

"The key here is to stay off that wall in the beginning so you can race at the end," the Dodge driver said. "You try to survive first and worry about winning later."

Cale Yarbrough of Timmonsville, S. C., already a two-time winner this year on the NASCAR circuit, had victory in mind when he switched engines in his Mercury prior to the race for the $137,000 purse event.

"We'll be running real hard and we need new engines to take the grind," Yarbrough said. "All of the top qualifiers changed engines and so did many of the others."

Yarbrough started the race in 7th spot after qualifying at 146.378.

Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., also changed engines in his Ford before the race started. He qualified at 144.903 m.p.h.

Pole winner David Pearson of Spartanburg, said he turned the 1⅜ mile oval at better than 151 m.p.h. after an engine change. He qualified with a speed of 150.555 m.p.h.

Others in the first five rows of two abreast were Buddy Baker of Charlotte, in a Dodge; Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., in a Dodge, Charlie Glotzbach of Georgetown, Ind., in a Dodge; Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N. C., in a Dodge; Pete Hamilton, of Charlotte, in a Plymouth; Donnie Allison of Hueytown, Ala., in a Ford; and Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., in a Plymouth.

Pirates Refuse To Lose First Place

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cool-Hand Luke and Hot-Hand Bob are two of the main ceasons the Pittsburgh Pirates refuse to slip out of first place in the frenzied National League East.

The left-handed pitcher and slugging first baseman-outfielder did it again Sunday, leading the Pirates to a 4-3 victory in 10 innings over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Coupled with the rainout of the Mets-Cubs game in Chicago, it boosted Pittsburgh's lead to two games over Chicago and 2½ over New York.

Walker went the route for his 12th triumph and Robertson, who drove in two earlier runs with fly balls, smashed a 10th-inning homer off Dick Selma for the winning run.

Elsewhere in the NL, St. Louis downed Montreal 7-2, Cincinnati edged San Diego 6-5, San Francisco nipped Atlanta 1-0 and Los Angeles tripped Houston 4-3.

In the American League, it was Minnesota 3, California 1; Oakland 7, Kansas City 1; Boston 9, Baltimore 8 in 11 innings; the New York Yankees 4, Cleveland 1 and Detroit 8, Washington 7 in 12. The Chicago White Sox and Milwaukee were rained out.

The Pirates don't really care that Walker and the sidelined Dock Ellis are their big winners with only 12 apiece or that none of the hitters is approaching 100 runs batted in. Al Oliver leads that department with 77 and Robertson has 71.

"So what," snorted Robertson. "We're in first place, aren't we?" And Manager Danny Murtaugh adds: "The only thing we care about is winning ball games. That other stuff doesn't mean beans."

For a while it looked as though the Pirates might lose Sunday. They trailed 3-1 but tied it in the fifth and Walker held the fort until Robertson finally won it.

The only bad news the Bucs received Sunday was that star right fielder Roberto Clemente will be hospitalized for a few days to determine the cause of a lower back injury incurred when he grounded out Friday night.

The Mets and Cubs waited almost three hours for the rain to stop but the umpires finally gave in and called it off. The game will have to be played in New York when the Cubs come in for the last series of the season.

According to NL rules, they must schedule a doubleheader for Sept. 29, first day of the series. But both teams said they will ask the league for permission to play on Sept. 28, an off day, if neither team is delayed by other postponements.

Bob Gibson became the first St. Louis pitcher ever to win 20 games in five seasons as the Cards turned back the Expos. Gibson helped his cause with a two-run single while Joe Torre and Lou Brock homered.

Jim McGlothin achieved his 12th victory on his 12th try as the Reds overtook the Padres on two-run homers by Bobby Tolan and Johnny Bench. It was Bench's 43rd but his first since Aug. 23. Ed Spiezio and Clarence Gaston connected for the losers.

Gaylord Perry hurled a four-hitter and Bobby Bonds homered in the third for the only run as the Giants shaded the Braves.

The Dodgers blew a 3-0 lead in the eighth on home runs by Cesar Cedeno and Norm Miller but squeaked past the Astros with a run in the ninth on singles by Billy Grabarkewitz, Tom Haller and Manny Mota.

Denver Broncos Thinking Positive For This Year

By LOUDON KELLY
Associated Press Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Stocky Lou Saban, on the verge of the fourth season of his 10-year contract as coach and general manager of the Denver Broncos, says: "We are sure we will have a good, solid ball club this year."

Every starter on offense and defense, except possibly one linebacker, should be an experienced pro veteran.

One linebacker spot in the starting defensive eleven should go to Dave Washington, from Alcorn A&M in Alabama, a draft choice, or to Bill Butler, signed as a free agent from San Fernando Valley State College. They are among a half dozen rookies who have brought a slight gleam to the frosty Saban eye.

"We have a good mixture of rookies and veterans and the youngsters we have had for the last two or three seasons are beginning to mature," he said.

The No. 1 quarterback will be Steve Tensi, but he won't be ready for heavy duty for another week or so. Tensi, whose pro career has been short-circuited often by injury, underwent surgery this summer for removal of a disc from his back.

Pete Liske, opening his third season with the Broncos after a stretch of canadian football, is the backup quarterback and has done most of the signal calling in exhibition games this summer.

The Broncos have two excellent runners in Floyd Little, former Syracuse All-American, and fullback Willis Crenshaw, a battle-tested veteran obtained in a trade with St. Louis.

Until he was laid low by a knee injury, Little led all American Football League ball carriers last season.

The Broncos have strengthened their forces substantially in other trades, getting safetyman Paul Martha, tight end Billy Masters, and cornerbacks Cornell Gordon and Booker Edgerson.

Edgerson played under Saban at Buffalo and Western Illinois College. Martha gives the club an excellent free safety—"a position that is difficult for a rookie to fill," the coach said.

The offensive line has veterans like tackles Mike Current and Sam Brunelli, guard George Goeddeke and center Larry Kaminski. On defense, such as Rich Jackson, Dave Costa, Rex Mirich, Pete Duranko, Jerry Inman and linebackers Chip Myrtle, Carl Cunningham and John Huard don't have to step aside for anybody in the National Football League.

The pass-receiving corps has able operatives like Al Denson, Mike Haffner and John Embree plus first-year man Jerry Hendren. At Idaho last season Hendren was the top pass-catcher among major collegiate teams.

All-America back Bob Anderson, who set a career total offensive record in the Big Eight Conference at Colorado last season, has been pretty well swallowed up among the horde of husky job seekers at the mile-high training camp and also has been bothered by a slight knee injury.

But Saban says: "The young man has lots of promise and he'll learn and develop." Anderson was the Broncos' No. 1 draft choice.

Another rookie the coach is high on is 250-pound defensive end Alden Roche from Southern University.

Denver, a charter member of the AFL when it was formed in 1960, never has been a contender. Under the new alignment of the expanded NFL, the Broncos are in the same section of the league's American Conference with the Kansas City Chiefs, Oakland Raiders and San Diego Chargers.

Saban calls it the toughest division in the NFL. "If we can win in this division," he said, "we won't be afraid of any of them."

Soviet Union Upsets U.S.

By PIERO VALSECCHI

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The Soviet Union turned an eight-day pursuit of the United States into a triumph in the last days of the sixth World University Games, taking four more gold medals than the Americans.

It was an unexpected conclusion of the Games for the United States, which had held the lead in gold medals for 11 days and had been expected to win the unofficial team standings. The Russians won 26 gold medals to 22.

The Americans dominated the swimming events, but the Russians did much better in the track and field competition, and piled up golds in the minor events, such as baseball, fencing, volleyball and gymnastics.

The United States remained empty-handed in the minor sports. The Soviet victory was obtained by a team of over 200 competitors, twice as many as the Americans.

The Americans felt the absence of many top college stars, mainly in the track and field and in the basketball tournament.

Russia posted a surprising 78-71 victory over the United States in the basketball final Saturday night. The Americans missed a number of shots from close and medium range.

The Soviet Union over-all copped 26 gold, 17 silver and 16 bronze in the two-week tourney which drew 2,370 athletes from 64 countries. The United States had 22 gold, 18 silver and 11 bronze.

East Germany was third with eight gold medals, followed by Italy's four and three apiece by Japan, Hungary, West Germany, Great Britain and Poland.

The difference between the American team at the 1967 Universiade and the Turin team could be seen through the numbers—10 world records in the swimming in 1967 and not one here.

In thd track and field the only two world records came from an East and West German. The Americans won only three of 33 track and field titles.

The University Games in Turin have confirmed the rising strength of East Germany as a top track and field country. The East Germans, European champions in the competition for national selections in Stockholm one week ago, won eight titles here.

Japan has proved to be the top team in the men's gymnastics, while the Soviets have dominated the women's event.

Willie Shoemaker Ties Longden's Record

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Shoe is tied.

Jockey Willie Shoemaker won his 6,032nd race Saturday, and tied the career record of Johnny Longden.

Blanked on his first four mounts at Del Mar, including odds-on favorite June Darling in the $75,425 Del Mar Debutante, Shoemaker tied the record by winning the ninth race aboard favored Esquimal.

The Shoe was scheduled to ride seven races today.

The big races on today's holiday schedule were the $100,000-added Governor Nicolls at Belmont Park, the $75,000-added Hawthorne Derby for 3-year-olds at Hawthorne and the $50,000-added Del Mar Handicap for 3-year-olds.

Joining the Del Mar Debutante, won by Generous Portion, were the $58,700 Gazelle Handicap for 3-year-old fillies at Belmont Park, won by Missile Belle, and the $41,500 Kelly-Olympic Handicap at Atlantic City, taken by Red Reality.

Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Johnston's Generous Portion, ridden by Dennis Tierney, got home by 2½ lengths ahead of June Darling, with Ulla Britta third in the race for 2-year-old fillies.

The winner ran the six furlongs in 1:09 3-5 and paid a winning mutuel of $13.20.

In the Kelly-Olympic, a 1⅛-mile turf race, Charles Engelhard's Red Reality, 115, won by a nose over Paul Mellon's Fort Marcy, 126, with Nathan L. Cohen's Mister Diz, 116, third. Bill Hartack sent the winner, $8, over the distance in 1:48 2-5.

Red Reality was coupled in the beting with Mr. Leader.

In other Saturday features, Barley Once, $4.20, won the Illinois Owners' Handicap at Hawthorne; King of Cricket, $3.80, won the Bay District handicap at Bay Meadows; Pagan King, $29.40, scored in the Michigan Derby Trial at Hazel Park; Pilot Knob, $8.80, won the Chester Purse at Rockingham Park.

Namath's Knee Hurts Him But His Arm Kills Others

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Namath's knee hurts. Ooh, it hurts the New Orleans Saints.

As a matter of fact, his arm kills them, too.

Namath's fabled knee took an un-saintly whacking Saturday night, but he shook off the pain and passed the New York Jets to a 27-14 National Football League exhibition victory over New Orleans.

"Namath was the difference," said Saints' Coach Tom Fears. "He was tough. He didn't show us anything that we didn't know he had. He threw the ball beautifully, he threw it perfect every time."

The Saints' Mike Tilleman, a 280-pound tackle, tested Namath's ravaged right knee, barging through and spilling the Jet quarterback. But it appeared to hold up, even though Joe needed some exercise before returning to action.

In other Saturday exhibitions, the New York Giants belted Philadelphia 27-7; Denver turned back Chicago 30-17; Kansas City Handcuffed Dallas 13-0; Los Angeles ripped Houston 20-3; Washington stopped Miami 26-21; Baltimore edged Detroit 20-14; Green Bay and Cincinnati played to a 10-10 tie and Minnesota beat Cleveland 24-21 and San Diego took St. Louis 38-27 in a doubleheader.

Oakland rocked cross-bay rival San Francisco 31-17 in Sunday's only game.

Namath only played the first half, but did enough damage for the whole game. He hit 7 of 9 passes for 188 yards, including a touchdown throw to George Sauer. He also punched over another TD himself from a yard out. His performance gave the Jets an unsourmountable 27-0 halftime lead.

Namath didn't suit up for the second half, but strolled along the sidelines in a sweat shirt and shorts, an ice pack strapped to the knee which almost forced his retirement earlier this year.

"The knee's all right," he said. "Once I began walking around on it, I began feeling a little better."

Fran Tarkenton scrambled Philadelphia's defense by hitting his first 12 passes in leading the Giants' victory out of their revitalized "I" formation.

"We got back to the offense that the team is best at," said Tarkenton, referring to Coach Alex Webster's preference for the formation which stacks the running backs directly behind the quarterback.

Tarkenton passed for three touchdowns as the Giants struck quickly and never looked back.

Floyd Little set up a touchdown with a scintillating 77-yard run, pumping life into Denver's offense in the second half as the Broncs stampeded the Bears.

Len Dawson moved Kansas City 79 yards following the opening kickoff, climaxing the drive with a 30-yard TD shot to Warren McVey as the Chiefs turned back Dallas. The Cowboys were unable to penetrate the Chiefs' gutty defense.

Roman Gabriel's fourth-quarter passing sparked a 17-point uprising in the Los Angeles triumph over Houston. Until the fourth quarter thunder, field goals by Houston's Roy Gerela and Los Angeles' Davis Ray had been the only scoring.

Stunned by two Miami scores within a minute of the first period, Washington rode Sonny Jurgensen's bullet passing to a comeback victory over Miami.

John Unitas passed for one touchdown and set up another as Baltimore tamed the Lions. The 37-year-old veteran hit 11 of 24 passes for 102 yards.

Fullback Perry Williams busted through the middle for 12 yards to the one-yard line, then crashed over for a touchdown to give Green Bay a come-from-behind tie with Cincinnati.

Fred Cox kicked an 11-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to give Minnesota a last-minute victory over Cleveland in the second game of the NFL twnn bill at Municipal Stadium. Backup quarterback Marty Domres led San Diego to three touchdowns in the final period to point the Chargers over the defenseless Cardinals in the opener.

Daryle Lamonica fired two touchdown passes to Warren Wells in Oakland's Sunday success over San Francisco. The 49ers were losing by 24 points before they got their first score, a third quarter field goal by uce Gossett.

Catcher Ted Simmons presents the baseball to Bob Gibson, who gained his 20th victory of the season today in a 7-2 conquest of the M... al Expos at Busch Stadium.

Ralston Says That Laver Is Slipping

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Is Rod Laver slipping?

Dennis Ralston, who plays the Australian court king next in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, says so—although Dennis may be guilty of some wishful thinking.

"I think Rod definitely has slipped a little and the rest of the field is closing in," said Ralston, the contract pro and Davis Cup coach from Bakersfield, Calif.

Jack Kramer, the ex-champion and ex-promoter who has seen the great and near-great pass in the unending parade, agrees with Dennis, but both of them get a good argument from Laver himself.

"I've won four of the last five tournaments in which I've played," the little left-hander said tartly when advised of Ralston's remark. "If that's slipping, I'll take it.

"All I can say is: we will find out Tuesday."

That's when the top-seeded Laver, the defending champion, and the 19th-seeded Ralston play in the fourth round of the men's division.

"I've always played well against Rod," Ralston said. "I don't dread him as some do. I don't mind his wide left-handed service to my backhand. I lob and volley well against him. I am 1-2 against him in matches this year."

Kramer said age tends to be a factor in this tough tennis test and at 32 Laver may be beginning to feel the inroads of time.

"That frail little body of his has put in a lot of miles," Kramer said. "If you look over the record, you'll find few men in modern history who won this tournament after they were 30—of course, Bill Tilden and Wilmer Allison. I can't think of any others.

"Laver is still the best in the world. But he has to feel well and be on top of his game or he may be beaten. At Wimbledon, we said, 'nobody can beat this guy—he'll have to beat himself.'

"And he did. He lost to Roger Taylor in the fourth round."

Laver insists his game has lost none of its old edge. "In fact," he added, "I've improved my service. I get more first serves in. It is true there are more good players and competition is tougher."

Both Laver and Ralston won third-round matches impressively Sunday. Laver whipped fellow Aussie John Cooper 6-1, 7-6, 6-3. Ralston topped Fred Stolle of Australia, three times a Wimbledon finalist, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Dogged Cliff Richey of San Angelo Tex., also kept America's hopes alive by beating Pierre Barthes of France 7-6, 6-3, 6-4. He next plays Spain's Manuel Santana, who ousted England's Taylor 6-3, 7-6, 2-6, 7-6.

Arthur Ashe Jr., of Richmond plays Tom Okker of the Netherlands in one of the featured matches today.

Other fourth-round duels send Stan Smith of Pasadena, calif., against Roy Emerson of Australia, Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia against Ken Rosewall of Australia and Clark Graebner of New York against Wimbledon champion John Newcombe of Australia.

The women's division completes the quarter-final bracket with favored Margaret Court of Australia playing Pat Faulkner of Australia and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., opposing Russia's Olga Morozova.

McElreath Wins The California 500

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) —Veteran driver Jim McElreath surprised the bigger names and a crowd of 180,223 with victory in the spectacular California 500 mile inaugural race and he himself wasn't totally prepared.

"I might not be too well dressed for the victory banquet because I sent my clothes home on Saturday night," the 42-year-old from Arlington, Tex., admitted after averaging 160.106 miles per hour for the gruelling test that knocked bigger names out.

In the final two laps, McElreath outduelled another vet, 45-year-old Art Pollard of Medford, Ore., to take the checkered flag in a two-year-old Coyote-Ford.

Not running among the seven finishers were such stars as Al Unser, the 1970 Indianapolis 500 champ who led the California much of the time; pole-sitter Lloyd Ruby, Mario Andretti, Dan Gurney, A. J. Foyt and others.

Victory earned $146,850 for Mc Elreath, who started 18th in the 33-car field, and Pollard, who was next to last in the qualifying, collected $73,500.

Asked if he were resigned to taking fourth or fifth place as the race conclusion neared, McElreath said, "No, it's not all over until the checkered flag. I thought I might be able to get a break toward the end."

As trouble struck first Unser's P. J. Colt-Ford and then the Brabham-Offy of stock car Ace LeeRoy Yarbrough when they led, McElreath and Pollard were in position to go for the top price.

First it was Pollard's Scorpion-Ford in the lead when Yarbrough's car blew an engine with less than 23 miles to go. He led for four laps before McElreath passed him. They traded the lead twice more before the Texan took over on the 196th lap and won by two seconds in a race lasting 3 hours, 7 minutes, 22 seconds.

Foyt, whose car had ignition troubles most of the race and then hit the wall, had prepared the McElreath car and A. J. said the outcome wasn't too surprising.

A wind of 13 miles an hour at the start blew some sand on the track and the conditions were bothersome to many. Some who went out early complained of dirt sucked into the engine.

Unser led 166 of the laps before going out with engine trouble after completing 186 of the 200 circuits required at the new $25.5-million Ontario Motor Speedway. Still he collected $55,000 including lap prizes and this boosted his winnings this year to $396,944, most of any driver in a single season.

William And Mary's Running Star Injured

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The final preseason scrimmages for most Southern Conference football teams turned up offensive stars at almost every stop, but one of them wasn't Wes Meeteer — and that's the reason for the frown on the face of William and Mary coach Lou Holtz.

Meeteer, counted on to bear the brunt of the Indians' running game this fall, injured a knee on the first play of William and Mary's scrimmage Saturday and sat out the rest of the action.

The extent of Meeteer's injury isn't known — but the extent of his value is. Said Holtz: "His availability is critical to our team."

William and Mary opens the season Saturday at West Virginia in one of two nonconference afternoon games. The other was The Citadel at Clemson. Furman is at Virginia Military Institute in an afternoon league scrap already billed as possibly the battle for the basement.

The Saturday night program has East Carolina at Toledo and Richmond entertaining North Carolina State. Davidson's Wildcats, the defending conference champions, open their season Sept. 26 at Richmond.

William and Mary's first team offense and defense turned in a 41-0 victory over the second team offense and defense under game conditions for one half. The freshmen took it on the chins at three other stops — 52-0 at VMI, 41-10 at Furman and eight touchdowns to one at Richmond.

Junior slotback Phil Mosser scored on runs of 1, 78 and 18 yards as he gained 116 yards in nine carries and grabbed four passes for 31 yards at William and Mary. Warren Winston and Todd Bushnell scored on runs and David Knight took a 34-yard scoring pass from quarterback Bubba Hooker.

The Indians' backs rolled up 281 yards in 30 carries and Hooker hit on 7 of 13 passes for another 69 yards.

Sophomore running back Mac Bowman ran for four touchdowns, one for 42 yards, in the vmi game-type scrimmage. Coach Vito Ragazzo praised the offensive blocking of tackle Pete Ramsey and guard Ned Mikula and defensive back Vern Beitzel, moved from quarterback to the secondary.

Mike Doolittle had touchdown runs of 40 and 60 yards and quarterback Charlie Richards threw a pair of 35-yard TD passes — to Jerry Haynes and Jim Livesay — in the Richmond scrimmage. Haynes also had a 70-yard punt return and reserve quarterback Ken Nichols hit on two short TD throws.

Running backs Steve Crislip, Mike Johnson and John Wolfrom rolled up 364 yards at Furman. Crislip gained 166 yards in 16 carries, Johnson had 106 in 16 carries and Wolfrom, shifted from quarterback, had 92 in 14 carries. Crislip scored twice.

It was only the second day of practice at Davidson, where koach Dave Fagg expressed pleasure at the team's progress. Fagg said the Wildcats have worked hard "and I think we could play a good game tomorrow if it was on the schedule."

White Sox Has New Manager

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox, following a growing major league trend to pluck managerial talent from the minor leagues, have a new pilot who bridges the generation gap.

Chuck Tanner, named Friday to supplant released Don Gutteridge, said Saturday:

"The mod style of some young players doesn't bother me. I'm just interested in their ability. I don't care how long their hair is if they can hit .300. They can even put on a wig like Joe Pepitone."

Tanner, 42, has crested a successful nine-season minor league managerial career by guiding the Hawaiian Islanders to the current Pacific League playoffs with the best record in all of baseball this season, 98-48.

Thus Tanner, signed from the California Angels system along with Roland Hermond who becomes director of Sox player personnel, joins the swelling ranks of non-big name minor league graduates now at the helms of big league clubs.

Most of them spent many seasons building reputations in the bus-ride circuits, including Frank Lucchesi of the Phils 19 years in the minors; San Francisco's Charley Fox 13; Baltimore's Earl Weaver 12; Oakland's John McNamara and Milwaukee's Dave Bristol 9 each, and Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson.

Few, however, were confronted by the task facing Tanner, former outfielder for the Braves, Cubs and Indians.

The White Sox are wallowing at a pace more feeble than even the most recent expansion clubs, both in the standings and at the gate.

Tanner, manager of the Year in the Texas League with El Paso in 1968 and in the PCL this season, said a mouthful at Spokane when signed by Sox general manager Stu Holcomb: "It will be a challenge to take this job."

After the PCL playoffs, Tanner and Hemond, almost 20 years a farm club and scouting director, will be unveiled at a Sept. 14 Chicago press conference and begin their new duties.

"I will devote the remainder of the season to evaluating and analyzing the Sox roster and then make recommendations to Hemond on what we need," said Tanner.

Tanner knows many of the current Sox players from his minor league managing and because Hawaii is a former Sox farm club.

He said at Spokane:

"My baseball philosophy is to try and get the best out of the material I have. If you can get the players to give you 100 per cent, you are bound to be successful.

"My objective with the White Sox is to bring them back where they belong."

Murphy Has Four Stroke Lead In Final Round

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Bob Murphy feigned a yawn, patted his mouth with the back of his hand and commented:

"Well, another boring day."

The chubby golfer, who had just fired his third consecutive five-under-par 66 for a whopping, four-stroke lead going into today's final round in the $100,000 greater Hartford Open, then broke into a big grin.

"I'm just playing good golf," he said. "I'm hitting the ball well, driving well.

"I'm real pleased with myself, real proud of myself the way I've hung in there."

Murphy's 198 total for three trips over the 6,568-yard Wethersfield Country Club course matched the low 54-hole score of the year on the pro tour and his four-stroke lead was tied for the biggest three-round margin.

Steve Opperman, an obscure five-year tour regular from Newark, Calif., was a distant second at 202. Opperman had a third-round 67.

Paul Harney, 69, and hometown favorite Jim Grant, 71, followed at 204. The big group at 205 included Dean Beman, Jim Jamieson, Pete Brown, Dave Hill, Chuck Courtney and Tom Weiskopf.

Murphy, a 27-year-old former National Amateur champion, is in his third full year on the tour and hasn't won since taking consecutive victories in the Philadelphia and Thunderbird Classics in 1968.

But he has been a steady performer, finishing second twice this year, recording nine finishes in the top 10 and accumulating winnings of more than $77,000.

The blustery, gusty winds bothered him not at all. Murphy, who didn't take up golf until his freshman year at the University of Florida, recorded seven birdies and a pair of bogeys, both from traps.

Murphy, a pudgy, red-haired 215-pounder, said his next tournament appearance would be in the Alcan Golfer of the Year Championship in Dublin, Ireland.

"I like to play in Ireland," he said. "They don't say I'm chubby or fat. They say I'm a bit on the supple side.

"I'm allready for the trip. I just bought seven pairs of green drawers."

The Worry Clinic

'Democracy' Is Rule Of Chaos

Paradoxically, we spend $31 BILLIONS of dollars annually on free public schools, yet rarely does any high school graduate know the difference between our Republic and a democracy! They may try to weasel out of the question by saying, "Oh, this is a representative democracy." It is not! So tutor your children with this Case Record!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE O-525: Martin D., aged 14, is a high schooler.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "in your convocation speech you said our government is a Republic.

"But our Civics teacher told our class it is a representative democracy.

"What is the difference and which one of you is correct?"

When we recite the Pledge of Allegiance we begin by saying:

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the ————, for which it stands . . ."

Which word do we insert in that blank?

It is "Republic."

"The difference," stated famous John Marshall, Chief Justice of our U. S. Supreme Court, "between our Republic and a democracy is the difference between order versus chaos."

Well, you readers certainly realize that "order" and "chaos" are definitely not synonyms!

Instead, they are direct opposites or antonyms.

"Oh, but Dr. Crane," somebody might protect, "what about a representative democracy?"

That distinction between a "true democracy" vs. a "representative democracy" doesn't alter the "chaos" that John Marshall mentioned.

Back in ancient Greece when towns were small, everybody could gather on the village square and vote directly on motions.

This was called a "true democracy."

But when populations increased, there were too many people to gather under the same roof or on the same town square.

So it became necessary to elect representatives, as we do even now to our State Legislatures and U. S. Congress.

But the same danger of "chaos" typified both the "true democracy" as well as the "representative democracy."

For in both types of democracy, minorities are always at the mercy or whim of a majority vote!

If, for example, a majority of even 51 percent can be produced in either the "true democracy" or any "representative democracy," then the remaining 49 percent can legally be looted, enslaved or killed and their property confiscated by the majority!

Under our Republic, however, certain inalienable rights still are guaranteed to all minorities AND IN WRITING, as per our wonderful Constitution.

Prime Minister Gladstone of England, called our Constitution "the greatest document ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man"

Evidence and truth and justice thus can be ignored in a democracy.

That was glaringly true in Pontius Pilate's courtroom, where a propagandised mob was allowed to vote as to whether Jesus should be released in preference to the murderer, Barabbas.

And the crowd, ignoring evidence, sent Jesus to Calvary, though Judge Pilate himself had said, "I find no guile in Him."

"A democracy," added John Marshall, "is mobocracy."

"Democracy," said Elbridge Gerry, 5th Vice - President of our U.S.A. and signer of our Declaration of Independence, "is the worst of all political evils."

A stampede of cattle or sheep illustrates a democracy, where the leaders can carry the whole herd over a precipice.

So never besmirch our country by calling it a democracy! It's a Republic!

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—Both sides vulnerable and as South you hold: ♠10 2 ♡J10 7 4 2 ◇A10 ♣KQ9 5

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
3 ♡	3 ♠	Dble.	?

What do you bid?

A.—This will be an adequate dummy for a vulnerable player who was willing to undertake a nine trick commitment. Even tho spades break badly I would feel confident of fulfilling the contract. On this line of reasoning a redouble is recommended.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠10 3 ♡8 5 ◇AKQ7 5 4 3 ♣6 4

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ♡	2 ◇	Pass	2 NT
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. You can contribute seven tricks to the cause and it would be strange indeed if partner could not help along with two, in view of the fact that he acted without your solicitation.

Q. 3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠9 7 ♡7 4 ◇Q10 9 7 3 2 ♣K5 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ◇	?

What do you bid?

A.—Discretion calls for a pass. If there were any assurance that this would prove to be the final contract, a vociferous double would be in order. But it is reasonable to expect that partner, relying upon you for certain high card values because of your double, will take some step that will be distasteful to you, such as doubling the rescue bid, toward the defeat of which you will be able to contribute little or nothing.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠K9 6 4 2 ♡K J 6 3 ♣K Q 10 4

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—On the basis of your partner's strong bidding there can be little doubt that the trump suit is solid. It will be observed that North by-passed an easy chance to show the ace of diamonds, so that it may be assumed that he does not have that card. This makes it all the more convincing that there is no trump loser. So that a grand slam bid in spades is quite in order.

Q. 5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠Q J ♡AK7 6 5 ◇KQ5 4 ♣AK

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Any further conversation by you would be mere filibuster. North may have as little as six points and you have but 22 with no fit established.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠KJ6 5 ♡A 10 ◇J3 2 ♣AKJ6

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♡	Dble.	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Partner has been brought into the auction, perhaps much against his will, and he may have little or nothing. A bid of two spades would be bad tactics and a call of two no trump would be the act of a man who looks upon currency with complete disdain.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠AK10 4 ♡AJ ◇KQJ8 6 4 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	2 ♣
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner may not have much high card strength but he ought to have great length in hearts, which is enough for your purposes. A raise to four hearts is, therefore, recommended. Nothing is to be gained by rebidding the diamonds. Partner may be unable to carry on.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠J3 ♡AQ5 ◇AQ8 ♣AKJ 10 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	1 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five no trump. This bid is not conventional but rather a direct raise inviting partner to bid a slam. Your 21 high card points when added to the 10 partner is known to have gives you at least 31 which puts you in the slam zone.

McKeithan Says Policy Varies In North, South

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Louisiana Gov. John McKeithan says the Nixon administration is promoting one school desegregation policy in the South and another in the North.

President Nixon has been preaching equal treatment for the South, but "we are still waiting for him to practice it," McKeithan said in a speech Saturday night to North Carolina Democrats.

About 650 Democrats paid $50 each to attend the second annual Governor's Luau. The luau, a fund - raising affair which began Friday, wound up Sunday with social activities.

"President Nixon came to New Orleans a few weeks ago and preached to us about obedience to law and order," said McKeithan. "He preached it; we practice it."

"I agree with him—we must numerically balance our schools. But the President can look out from his White House portico on a completely segregated school system," the Louisiana chief executive added.

"We would like those politicians in Washington to start practicing at home what they are preaching in the South," he said.

He told the Democrats the issue was not race but fair play and equal treatment for the South.

"We believe that integration is American and segregation is un-American," he said. "I have followed this principle since I have been governor."

He added that the South "is tired of sitting in the back of the bus."

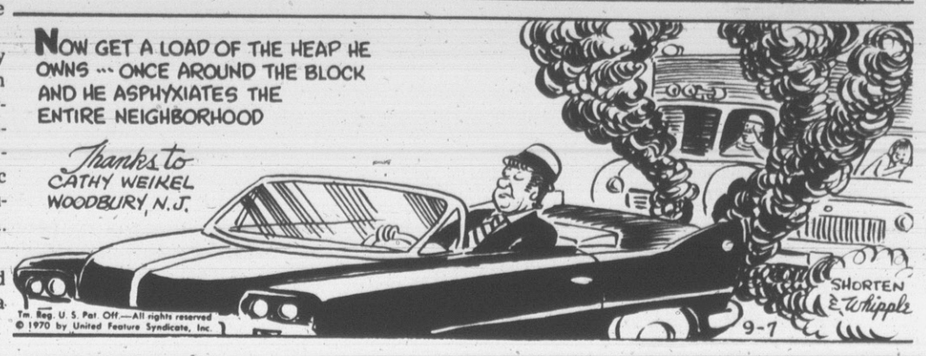

Famous Routes Lead To Alaska

ANCHORAGE (UPI) —Two famed routes lead into Alaska, the largest state, but one of the smallest in population.

The Alaska Highway stretched 1,522 miles from Dawson Creek, B.C. to Fairbanks, Alaska, while autoferries ply the "Inside Passage," 450 miles of scenic coastline between Prince Rupert, B.C. and Haines, Alaska.

The bustard is a game bird found in Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia.

Private School Concern Shown

RALEIGH (AP) — Public school officials are beginning to show concern over the spread of the private school movement in North Carolina as a result of public school desegregation.

More than 30 new private schools are expected to open in the state this fall. By time the federal desegregation push is completed this year, officials anticipate that as many as 230 to 240 private schools will be teaching as many as 30,000 children.

Already the impact on some public school systems has been profound, particularly in the Eastern section of the state.

Enrollment in public schools at Goldsboro has dropped from 8,400 to 7,000 in recent years with the advent of three private schools, officials said.

The public schools of Northampton County were 30 per cent white two years ago. But one-third of the whites fled to private schools after freedom of choice was thrown out.

A predominantly black public school system in Halifax County has become blacker with the advent of desegregation. Two more private academies are opening this fall to serve children in the county.

The private school movement includes four new schools at Greensboro, five at Winston-Salem and four in Wake County, officials estimate.

Medical Library Extension Has Answers

MARY ANN BROWN answers one of 200 medical reference requests received in past 8 months at Duke Medical Center.

DURHAM — Say, Doctor, what do you want to know?

What Ignaz Semelwiss has written?

The most recent article on myasthenia gravis?

More about psychedelic drugs—or the intravenous use of premarin?

Stump that staff — if you can.

It takes anywhere from a couple of minutes to a couple of days for the Medical Library Extension Service to answer requests it receives. The Service is funded by the North Carolina Regional Medical Program to provide better and faster information to the medical community.

No matter where he may be — in an isolated hamlet on the Outer Banks or in a microscopic mountain community—a North Carolina health professional can receive factual information, bibliographical material, books, or copies of any piece of published medical literature.

Biggest business, according to Mary Ann Brown, of Duke, is in requests for articles or books. Miss Brown is the Extension Library Administrator.

In addition to answering the individual requests of health workers, she says, the Medical Library Extension Service also provides loans to local and hospital libraries, workshops for hospital librarians, and consultation on setting up hospital libraries.

"Sometimes," Miss Brown says, "there is a siege of requests on a specific topic. Recently, we had a run on clinical chemistry. Coronary care and intensive care units are at the top of the popularity list. Lab methods and tests are also favorites."

The service stems from four medical libraries: Duke University Medical Center, where Project Director Terence Cavanagh is based; University of North Carolina Health Sciences, Chapel Hill; Bowman Gray School of Medicine; and the Medical Library of Mecklenburg County.

Requests which can't be filled from these bases (involving 300,000-plus volumes) are referred to the National Library of Medicine. Each base serves certain counties as its main responsibility, but any one of them will serve any area.

"It saddens you," Miss Brown sighs, "when you come upon people who don't know the service exists and have really been suffering for lack of it. Like the graduate student from Washington, N.C. who just found us and who, a few months ago, had desperately needed material in bacteriology we would have been delighted to send her.

"But, once people start using our service, they keep right on. There's a psychiatrist in Bryson City who makes his requests by encircling listings in the general library and the medical library newsletters and mailing them to us. One physician asked us for 144 items in a six-month period. He was doing research on physical fitness.

"Another doctor in Williamston, a blood researcher, received 132 items in a six-month period. And there's a 'regular' in Sanford who tells us that a personal visit to the medical library would take him most of a day; he's one of our most grateful patrons."

Requests from the Piedmont area are heavy, according to Mrs. Lynda Kahler, Library Assistant, who fills daily loan requests. "Quite a few" come from the mountain areas, but the Northeast hasn't quite caught up yet.

Requests are made direct to the Medical Library Extension Service; through a hospital library; or through a local public library, where they are relayed by WATS line to the state library, and thence by teletype to the Extension Service.

In an eight-month period, consultant services were provided 11 libraries, and 623 duplicate medical journals went to 18 hospital libraries. Some 200 reference questions, 141 of them involved in preparation of bibliographies, were answered for individuals, while 3245 loans and photocopies were furnished to 85 different physicians and other health workers and to 67 hospital and public libraries.

It is not unusual for the Library Extension Service requests for help in setting up a hospital library. A current request concerns a new library for the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center at Black Mountain.

MRS. LYNDA KAHLER prepares to mail a few of the 3245 items requested on loan since January.

The Medical Library Extension Service recently received notice from the North Carolina Regional Medical Program of its renewal grant for a two-year period.

This is good news for Tarheel health workers who now patronize the project and for those who, the Extension Service hopes, will start adding to its already arduous workload by taking advantage of the unusual services it offers the medical community.

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK

This year Pitt County has experienced a good growing season on peanuts. The size of the peanut plants and the stage of development of pods and pegs is above average, and we are about 10 days ahead of last years growth. This is largely due to the warm nights of July and August. It seems that the number of pods per plant is high and they are well distributed on the plants. If these can be maintained, the yield potential will be high, but remember that yield potentials were high last year at this time until the rains set in.

Leafspot is under fair control in most fields observed. But our weather pattern suggests careful attention to controlling leafspot for the remainder of the season. It is most important to keep as many leaves on the plants as possible to insure good pegs.

Pod rot organisms appear to be on the increase, and at present it seems to be our number one problem, although, on the whole, it doesn't seem serious enough to worry about. If pod rot or Southern stem rot is severe in your field it may be necessary to adjust digging in order to get the highest yield. These diseases may be present but unnoticed unless the fields are closely observed.

It looks now as if the first peanuts will be dug around September 15. These are the new variety N.C. 17. But be sure to keep a close check on all varieties beginning now. One point to remember is that as long as the vines remain green and healthy, the plant will continue to make additional peanuts. This additional weight may come from the addition of oil to the kernels as well as the maturing of additional pods.

THE NEW VARIETY of peanuts, N. C. 17, which will be mature and ready for digging around Sept. 15.

Open House Is Announced

Plans for the 1970 Open House of the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences and School of Forest Resources at North Carolina State University have been released by Dr. W. M. Roberts, chairman of the Steering Committee. Open House will be held Saturday, October 10 from 10:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. Reynolds Coliseum will house exhibits representing the various departments and projects of the two schools. Personnel will be available to discuss admission requirements and other topics of interest with prospective students.

Open House visitors will be able to visit the various departments of the two schools as well as athletic and recreational facilities at N.C. State. This will give prospective students, their parents, and friends of the University a quick view of the research, teaching, and service programs of these schools.

A special arrangement has been made so that all visitors who register for Open House between 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. can buy a ticket to the football game between N.C. State and East Carolina. These will cost $1 each.

The Pitt County Committee for Open House is making plans for encouraging attendance at this event. Limited transportation will be available to Junior and Senior High School students in a first - come - first - serve basis through October 6.

For more information about Open House, contact the Agricultural Extension Office at 758-1196, or write P.O. Box 1427, Greenville, N.C.

Penalties For Litter

NEW YORK (UPI) —Litterbugs traveling the nation's highways this year may find the going costlier than they ever imagined.

Keep America Beautiful, Inc., says a study of anti-litter laws in 30 of the 50 states reveals that penalties for highway littering may take the form of stiff fines or imprisonment, or both.

Allen H. Seed Jr., executive vice president of the national litter-prevention organization, reports 11 of the states surveyed may impose maximum fines ranging from $100 to $500 on any person convicted of littering highways. In 15 of the 30 states the maximum fine is $100; in four others, $50. Terms of imprisonment may run from five days to one year.

Other penalties include suspension of driver's licenses and vehicle registrations, as well as confinement at labor, cleaning up rubbish and debris from highways and other public property.

"The best way to curb highway littering is for every motorist to stash his trash in a litterbag," observes Seed.

City Native Is New Dean

FORT WORTH, TEXAS — Dr. William E. Tucker, native of Greenville and son of Mrs. Ethel G. Tucker and the late C. E. Tucker, has been named dean - elect of the Brite Divinity School at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

Chancellor James M. Moudy, in making the announcement, said that the action carries the unanimous approval of the Board of Trustees of Brite Divinity School.

DR. WILLIAM TUCKER

Dr. Tucker will succeed Dr. Elmer D. Henson, dean since 1955, who is retiring. Currently, Dr. Tucker is serving as Brite associate dean and professor of church history.

Chancellor Moudy's comment on the selection of Dr. Tucker was that "A natural groundswell of opinion brought Dr. Tucker to the fore - front as soon as it was known that the position would be open. No other name was even suggested."

Before going to TCU, Dr. Tucker was chairman of the department of religion and philosophy at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. He holds degrees from Atlantic Christian, TCU, and a masters and Ph.D. degree from Yale University.

The author of "J.H. Garrison and Disciples of Christ," Dr. Tucker is married and the father of three children.

Bloodmobile Visits Are Listed

Sixteen more Bloodmobile stops are scheduled for the remainder of 1970 and the first six months of 1971, according to Douglas M. Morgan, chairman of the Pitt County Blood Program of the American National Red Cross.

Morgan notes, with the two collections already accomplished in the 1970-71 season, that 18 drives, six more than last year, have been slated throughout the county.

"But the per visit quota has been lowered to 125 units per visit," Morgan explained about the additional collections. "The total annual quota is 2,250 pints for the 1970-71 collection year."

Recognizing that the total quota is somewhat larger than that for previous years, Morgan said, "This year's quota presents a much greater challenge and donations will have to come from first-time donors as well as those who donate on a regularly repeating basis," if the quota is to be met.

To help in keeping the dates and places constantly in mind, Morgan is asking all business and industries in the county to post a copy of the collection dates and locations in some place frequented by employees.

Beginning in September and continuing through June, the 16 remaining collection drives scheduled are as follows.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM J. WEEKS

This week (September 7-12) has been designated as the Big Week to get the R-6-P (Reduce 6 Pests) Campaign started on all farms in Pitt County. Several farmers have already completed the first two steps of this important program, while there are others that have not started.

A recent survey throughout the county indicates that about 60 percent of the tobacco stubbles have been plowed out. Some have been disked after being exposed to the sun for two weeks. An additional 18 percent of the stalks have been cut without the roots being plowed out. This leaves 22 percent of the stalks that have not been disturbed.

Growers that are not proceeding NOW with this important practice on their farms are making their first mistake of their 1971 crop. Both diseases and insects will most probably be increased on your farm in 1971 if you do not follow through with operation R-6-P now.

The diseases that can be reduced by this program are: nematodes, brown spot, and mosaic.

The insects that can be reduced are: hornworms, budworms, and flea beetles.

If you have completed the first two steps and have allowed the roots to be exposed to the sun for two weeks, it is now now time to thoroughly disc the fields and cover all trash and plant debris. This will further help reduce the severity of diseases and insects in your 1971 tobacco crop.

If you have completed this task and your neighbor has not, encourage him to do so. Let's make Pitt County a 100 percent R-6-P County in 1970.

Boys' Club Collections Already Show Results

Early responses to the Boys' Club of Greenville need for immediate assistance are begining to be manifest as individuals and groups are sending in unsolicited contributions to help keep the Boys' Club in operation.

One of the first groups to act was the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville. This club, now three years old, is composed of young women in Greenville and numbers about 30 members.

Mrs. Robert Dean, president of the club, which has this week given a check for $250 to the Boys' Club, said "We have been out to the Boys' Club in the past and saw the work being done there. When we read about it being in financial straits, our first thought was to do something to help out." Mrs. Dean stated the women in her club are very much concerned in giving the boys a place to go for recreation. "They have this place in the Boys' Club and we feel it's ideal."

A rummage sale is planned for this month and other projects are being scheduled for November and December. "We are planning on contributing more in the future," she said. "I have no idea how much it will be, but it will as much as we can possibly afford."

Richard Ullom, director of the Boys' Club, revealed that several unsolicited contributions, amounting to over a thousand dollars, have been received or pledged, including a check for $300 from a man and wife who contributed because of "their deep concern." Checks have been received from both firms and individuals.

Ullom remarked, "It is gratifying to get this type of response so early after our initial appeal. We certainly appreciate the concern and interest of organizations and individuals coming to our assistance in a time of need."

Plans are now being shaped up for a program to raise needed funds for the Boys' Club. A committee, headed by W. M. Scales, is expected to make an announcement in the near future of specific plans to help the Boys' Club reach their goal in getting sufficient funds to keep the club in operation, and to make it possible to expand services now given to the several hundred boys who are members of the club.

Tobacco Sales Off This Week

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Sales in flue-cured auctions on the North Carolina tobacco markets have been suspended this week because of congestion in warehouses and processing plants. But South Carolina markets will open for three days.

The cutback follows a record high weekly average price last week on the Middle Belt flue-cured tobacco markets. Gross sales for the week ended Friday hit $73.46 per hundred pounds, which was $1.36 above the $72.10 mark of last year.

The Middle Belt sales totaled 15,79,303 pounds last week, while the first three days of last year saw sales of 17,388,088 pounds.

For the first time this season, the weekly average on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt last week were sharply lower than the previous week.

For the week ending Thursday the average price dipped to $71.71, which was $1.62 off. The Federal-State Market News Service said the price was figured on sales of 27,040,690 pounds. That brought the season total to 220,932,891 pounds.

Prices were higher on the big Eastern North Carolina Belt, with 40,485,571 pounds for the week through Thursday averaging $74.40 per hundred. That was 39 cents more than the record high for the week before.

Eastern Belt sales reached 128,758,382 pounds and averaged $73.73.

Most grades on the nine Old Belt markets brought in record high prices for the opening week. A total of 10,716,857 pounds brought an average $72.27, two cents higher than opening week of last year.

MOVING THE MOUNTAIN — The six children of the Eugene Wenner family play on their old friend — a big boulder — which the family had moved with them when they transferred from Portage, Mich., to Tolego, Ohio. The boulder was a favorite plaything in Portage. The stone was packed with their other belongings and moved to Toledo. Logger's Capture Ends Manhunt In Canada

By WILLIAM MORLIN
Associated Press Writer

CRESTON, B.C. (AP) — A 31-year-old part-time logger was subdued by a police dog and arrested Sunday, ending a hunt for a gunman who killed eight Canadians, including five children.

Dale Merle Nelson was jailed and charged in one of the eight slayings. He is to appear before a magistrate Tuesday.

Found slain in two separate cabins in this community of 3,000 in the pre-dawn hours Saturday were Mrs. Shirley Wasyk, 30, Tracy Wasyk, 7; Raymond John Phipps, 42; his wife, Isa belle, 26; and three of their children, Paul, 10, Bryan, 7, and Kenneth, 18 months.

A fourth Phipps child, Cathy, 8, was found dead Sunday near a ditched car which the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said had been driven by the killer. Also found near the car was the body of Tracy Wasyk, which was taken from the cabin after officers found her and her mother dead and left to check nearby homes.

The RCMP said Cathy Phipps had been taken hostage by the killer after her parents and the others were shot to death and their bodies were mutilated with a knife. Cathy later was stabbed to death.

Fifty officers using helicopters and tracker dogs searched 41 hours for the killer near where the car was found abandoned on a country road. Nelson was spotted Sunday five miles away at a shack in which he had lived for a week, near the homes of the victims.

Heavily armed officers gathered 100 yards from the shack and saw Nelson lying under a tree, his rifle perched on a limb. Corp. James Barr of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said they called to Nelson to throw down his rifle. He stood up but did not throw down the gun. The dog then was unleashed and Barr said the animal "bowled him over." No shots were fired.

Black Panther Theme Is Socialist Society

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A demand for creation of an oppression-free socialist society was the central theme as the Black Panther party wound up the main event of its Revolutionary People's Constitutional Convention.

The capitalist system, U.S. activities in other nations, the present treatment of women and various minority groups including homosexuals all came in for attack Sunday as spokesmen for 15 workshops presented their ideas for bettering society.

About 6,000 people, most young and about 35 per cent white, shot clenched fists into the air and shouted "right on" and "power to the people" as each demand was read inside the Temple University gymnasium that served as a convention hall.

Most demonstrated a concern that "the people" must directly control everything ranging from what they do with their own bodies to education, police, court justice and the actions of the military.

One workshop demanded that national minorities be guaranteed the right to integrate, segregate, federate, amalgamate, congregate, secede, or do whatever they wish, provided that no group oppresses any other group.

Other demands included:

—Guaranteed representation for all ethnic groups in whatever government structure is formed in proportion to their numbers at the local level.

—Free housing, health care, education, and day care centers for children, all paid for by the government.

—The right, and the duty, for everyone to bear arms, perhaps in the form of a justice-dispensing "people's militia" that would include women.

—People judged only by their peers.

—Free abortion, sterilization, and contraceptive devices for men and women.

—Drastic changes in the present family structure, with more emphasis on communal living and men sharing house work equally with women.

—Both education and art to serve "the people," and assist in teaching revolutionary ideas.

A workshop on the distribution of political power produced a demand that present political boundaries be abolished and replaced by an undetermined number of autonomous, continuously evolving, self-governing communities from which political power would flow upward.

All special privileges would be forbidden, there would be no compulsory servitude or domination of one group by another and people would police and defend themselves.

The delegate who delivered that report said his group saw a gradual evolution from that point to a truly stateless society.

The purpose of the three-day convention was to lay the groundwork for the drafting of a new constitution.

The actual drafting of a document for presentation to a future meeting will be done by a committee of delegates from several black organizations that participated in the session.

Police remained out of sight for the most part, and there were almost no incidents. By early today, police said they had made no convention-connected arrests.

More Colorful German Trains

BONN (UPI) —West German passenger trains are to be enlivened with a new color scheme.

Instead of the dark green and blue now in use, the Federal Railways propose to paint all cars metallic gray below the windows and, from bottom windosill up, paint first class cars orange, second class cars blue, and sleepers and diners red.

Elderly To Discuss Their Needs

RALEIGH (AP) — The elderly of North Carolina will discuss their needs, concerns and interests at community forums to be held across the state the week of Sept. 20.

J. Eddie Brown, executive director of the Governor's Council on Aging, said Saturday he has called on the more than 400 senior citizens clubs in the state to help arrange the forums and to encourage the state's 410,000 elderly persons to attend.

A 17-member state advisory committee on aging will be named by the governor to help organize the forums, Brown stated.

He said results of the forums and other information will be compiled and forwarded to Washington as material for recommendations to be made to the 1971 White House Conference on Aging called by President Nixon.
