

City Bonds Amman Radio Claims Invaders Are Sold For From Syria Now Driven Out 5.57 Percent

Greenville city bonds amounting to $2,250,000 have been sold at a low bid of 5.57 percent, according to an announcement by the North Carolina National Bank (NCNB), which managed the account for the successful bidders.

Need More In Welfare Funds

RALEIGH (AP) - The state Department of Social Services asked the Advisory Budget Commission today for $3.5 million to finance the state's share of a $22.9 million boost in spending for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program over the next two years.

The lion's share of the requested increase, $8.5 million, would be used to increase state aid to counties in the cost of welfare administration.

Justice Dept. Lawyers Warn Bluntly Against 'War Legality' Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Supreme Court inquiry into the legality of the Vietnam war would hamstring President Nixon, insult Congress and embarrass the United States internationally, the administration has contended.

Justice Department lawyers Tuesday warned bluntly the court might have to set up its own military affairs office, supervise a troop withdrawal and deal on the diplomatic front with North Vietnam should it accept the state of Massachusetts' argument and declare U.S. participation unconstitutional.

"The Constitution does not require Congress to authorize American participation in hostilities only through a formal declaration..." Moreover, the government brief said, this court would face insurmountable enforcement difficulties.

The Central Committee of the Palestine resistance movement, however, rejected the plan. It announced in a broadcast from Iraq that it would fight to the last man. King Hussein was on record as saying that an attempt to destroy Jordan had been foiled.

Abu Ayad, co-founder with Arafat of Al Fatah and commander of the group's military arm, said he and other captured guerrilla leaders approved of the terms and he called on all commandos to begin pulling out of Amman when the curfew on the capital is lifted.

Precedents WASHINGTON (AP) - Officials cite more than 125 instances throughout U.S. history in which the President sent armed forces abroad without a declaration of war or a congressional authorization.

Some Sag For Tobacco Prices

The market for Eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco weakened somewhat Tuesday, reports the Federal - State Market News Service. A large majority of grade averages declined $1 to $3 per hundred or remained unchanged from the previous day.

Quality of marketings was not as good Tuesday. A large percentage of low and poor tobacco appeared for auction with a corresponding drop in the more desirable good and fair grades.

Living Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Living costs rose two-tenths of one per cent in August for the smallest monthly rise in 20 months, the government reported today.

As for Congress, they said any inquiry into its motives or participation in the war effort "would involve an impermissible judicial affront to the dignity of a coequal and independent branch of government."

Small Brownout

CHARLOTTE (AP) - The small brownout—a 5 per cent reduction in electric voltage—to Duke Power Co. and Carolina Power and Light Co. customers continued today.

But the situation to Duke's 951,000 customers in the Piedmont of North Carolina and South Carolina was slightly better.

Witnesses said the gunman was the estranged husband of one of three women reported killed. The other person killed was a male employee of the State Labor Department.

Gourmet Corner: Summer Cooking Is Easy

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
The best thing about summer eating is that it takes so little cooking. Most salads and cold dishes are easy to prepare and the simplest meal can, with a little imagination, be transformed into a masterpiece.
From the apartment terraces of Manhattan to the shoreline cottages of Maine, normally hesitant hosts are paying off their social debts with patio picnics and backyard barbecues.
Summer is also the time for light wines. The cool vintages of Bordeaux, for example, can turn a snack into a memorable occasion, provided the snack has attractive ingredients.
Start with a cold but hearty soup, serve the wine with generous helpings of Gruyere, cheddar and muenster cheeses on crisp French bread. Wind up with a bowl of colorful fruit, and your guests will purr with contentment.

Feeding four or forty is easy with this sort of fare, and the food bill won't bankrupt you.
The first course we have in mind is called le Soup d'Ete et d'Hiver, the soup of summer and winter, and it is easily made beforehand.
Hot in the winter and cold in the summer, it fills a variety of needs. Not a gazpacho and not a minestrone, it is something like both and comes from Bordeaux, the region near the Bordeaux wine country.
Robust in cold weather and soothing during warm spells depending on how you prepare it, this soup provides an ideal curtain raiser for an elegant lunch.
A good wine to serve with such a soup and the cheeses that follow is Graves, a dry white wine from Bordeaux. It is light, refreshing and fills a role both as an aperitif and an accompaniment to a cold meal.
Cheese is usually served with a robust red wine, which is fine in chilly weather. But in the mild and warm months, Graves gives cheese a refreshing new lightness and your guests a welcome lift.
Whether it's a brunch or a midday banquet, there is no reason for anyone to get so loaded with heavy food and strong drink that they spend the rest of the day looking gorged and glassy-eyed.
Dessert can be the key to such a meal. Avoid the tall, cream-topped parfaits, tempting as they are, and use a brimming bowl of fruit as your centerpiece. Not only will your table look attractive, but it will be a boon for dieting damsels and their overweight escorts. On a hot day, there is nothing like a few grapes or sliced peaches with a glass of chilled white wine.

SOUP BORDELAISE
(Summer Variety)
2 slices bacon
1 clove garlic
1 onion
1 leek
2 stalks celery
1 tbsp. olive oil
1/2 cup Medoc wine
4 tomatoes
1 medium can chicken stock
1 cup peas
1 cup red kidney beans
1 cup chick peas
1 cup mushrooms
Mince bacon, garlic, onion, leek and celery. Saute in oil several minutes. Add Medoc and stir until liquid has simmered down at which point alcohol will have evaporated. Add tomatoes and simmer together for five minutes. Add chicken stock, peas, beans and chick peas. Allow to simmer together for 90 minutes. Add mushrooms 10 minutes before taking off the heat. Chill. Can be prepared several days ahead of time. Serves four.

BPW Area Meet Held Sunday In Henderson
HENDERSON — The Eastern Area Meeting of The North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., met at the Holiday Inn here Saturday and Sunday.

Should Men And Women Travel Together In Business World?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A wife complained because her husband's boss sent him on business trips with a woman partner when he could have sent a man. You sided with her, saying, "A smart employer makes a conscious effort to keep the spouse happy, because an unhappy spouse makes her husband miserable, and a miserable husband isn't apt to be productive."
Your answer will probably keep women "in their place" for another 50 years.
If women are to achieve equality with men in business, the stay-at-home wives will have to accept the fact that working women must travel with male partners. Furthermore, it's time everyone realized that working women do not expect or wish to be regarded as a sex object by men in business.

DEAR WORKING: A woman with an abundance of sex appeal will be regarded by some [not all] men as "sex objects" whether they want to be or not. [And some women want to be.] Coed traveling, even for legitimate business reasons, sometimes makes strange bedfellows. True, there are some instances when a woman must travel with a man, but like the office parties which exclude spouses, why set up situations that tempt fate? Plenty of men and women travel together and it's strictly business. Traveling together doesn't make intimacy a cinch. It just makes it easier.

DEAR ABBY: Our 21-year-old daughter just graduated from one of the best colleges in the country and moved into an apartment with her boy friend.

Our 16-year-old hang around with hippie types and threatens to "cut out" if we try to control her choice of friends.

Both my husband and I are seeing a family counselor to try to find out what happened. We are honest, moral people and now we sit and look at one another and wonder why we ever had children.

DEAR BEWILDERED: "What happened" is not nearly so important as coping with the present. Seeing a family counselor is the most intelligent approach. You are doing that.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the widower who, seeking "pleasure" arranged for a girl to come to a local hotel room, only to find that she was the daughter of a friend. He was disappointed because he had thought she was a "lovely young lady," and he wondered how "she can face me" next time he visits her home.

It is amazing that you failed to see the hypocrisy of his attitude. If his needs as a widower drove him to this particular solution, he must accept the responsibility for his actions. The handing over of money does not remove him from involvement. He had other choices—he could have endured, or he could have sought an intimate relationship with a woman he cared for. He chose to be serviced by a hired female. Whatever level of morality that may be, he is free to decide for himself. But whatever he decides, he must recognize that the judgment is the same for both the man and the woman. He cannot excuse himself by saying that he was only trying to satisfy his needs [physical] without emotional involvement, for she was only trying to satisfy her needs [financial] also without emotional entanglement. A man's physical needs may be more rapid, but they are not necessarily more powerful.

Let him not wonder how she can face him when they meet again, nor should she wonder how he can face her. They should look each other straight in the eye, realize it was a mutual agreement, and then decide whether it was a worthwhile action.

Greenwich Village Serves As Playground For All Ages

NEW YORK (AP) — The Indians called it Sapokanikan. The Dutch who pushed the Indians out early in the 17th century retained the Indian name. The English who moved in in 1664 called it Greenwich. Today it is Greenwich Village, an enclave less than half a mile square in lower Manhattan.

It was farmland until about a century ago, and even its crooked and quaint lanes of today follow the old cowpaths. Its once elegant town houses, built beginning in the 1830s clustered around the heart of The Village, an eight-acre green called Washington Square Park. The park, in the late 18th century, was the city's potter's field and its trees were the public gallows. Potter's field was closed in 1823 and four years later the park began to take shape.

The Village became the wealthiest residential area in the city, and in the early 1900s home to artists and writers including Theodore Dreiser, O'Henry, Eugene O'Neill and Louisa May Alcott.

Today many of the fine old homes have been torn down for apartment houses, or converted for use by New York University. The park has become a playground for the young, who climb tree houses or romp in the grass; for their older brothers and sisters, who come to see and be seen, to play or listen to folk music or rock 'n roll; and for the retired set, who play chess or checkers on city-owned tables, or gather on benches to gossip and watch the people.

On the streets around the park are sidewalk artists and sidewalk hawkers, countless cafes, restaurants and nightclubs, as well as stores that cater to the young, selling posters, and buttons, books, records, jewelry and way-out clothes.

Chocolate Syrup Layer Cake
Iced Coffee
CHOCOLATE SYRUP LAYER CAKE

1 cup unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ pound (2 one-quarter pound sticks) butter
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 large eggs
1 cup chocolate syrup, from a 1-pound can

Line two 8-inch round layer cake pans with wax paper. On another sheet of wax paper thoroughly stir together flour and baking powder. In medium mixing bowl cream butter, sugar and vanilla. Thoroughly beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in flour mixture in 4 additions, alternately with chocolate syrup, just until smooth. Turn into prepared pans. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—25 minutes. Turn out on wire racks; remove paper; with another rack, turn right side up. Cool. Fill and frost with coffee-flavored sweetened whipped cream or with chocolate frosting. If whipped cream is used refrigerate cake.

¼ cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup sliced fresh strawberries

Soften cheese; gradually mix in confectioners' sugar; continue to mix, if necessary, until smooth. Whip cream; blend into cheese mixture. Spoon into pastry shell and spread evenly. Slice enough nectarines to make 2 cups; arrange on cream layer; refrigerate. In a small saucepan thoroughly stir together the granulated sugar and cornstarch; add water and lemon juice and stir until smooth. With a fork, crush strawberries; stir into cornstarch mixture. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Cool slightly; spoon over nectarines in pie shell. Chill. Makes 8 servings.

Compensation For The Victims

From time-to-time there has been talk of a system of compensating innocent victims of crimes in this country and it is interesting to note that Great Britain has such a procedure.

The government there gave $26,000 to a girl whose face was marred when a former boy friend threw acid at her. Some $12,000 went to a steward who was hit in the groin by a shipboard bullet.

The funds are awarded by a Criminal Injuries Compensation Board.

There are some cases where the board will not pay, however. Thus a man who was attacked by a husband who found the man with his wife was unable to collect.

We can see merit in a program whereby entirely innocent victims of crime are paid by the government for the disabilities or losses they incur, although we can see that such a program would have to be carefully administered to prevent abuses.

One particular part of the British program of compensating victims was most interesting to us. The funds are also used to pay private citizens who are injured as they attempt to assist a policeman in carrying out his duties.

While the rest of the compensation plan is still being studied in this country we feel this part of the plan should be instituted immediately.

There have been too many cases of police officers calling without success for assistance from private citizens. In many cases it is because the citizen knows he has no recourse if he is injured in rendering assistance. If a citizen knows he will be protected and compensated by the government in assisting an officer he will be far more willing to do so. This in turn would make it less likely that a lone officer in trouble would have to resort to use of his firearm.

We think that every state should have a system of compensating private citizens who are injured if called upon to assist a police officer.

Has Message For The YDC

By BRYAN HAISLIP
DURHAM — Blacks and young people have gained a voice but not a hand at the controls through the reorganization of the Democratic Party of North Carolina.

That's the assessment of A.J. Howard Clement III whose color and age give him standing in both categories. "I'm still not happy," he said. "If you do not share unhappiness with party leadership is the failure to name a black vice chairman of the state Democratic Executive Committee. The reorganization plan adopted by the committee last January created the position. Early in the summer blacks who were consulted recommended Mayor Howard Lee of Chapel Hill. Party Chairman Eugene Simmons has yet to fill the spot.

"In my opinion the chairman has had sufficient time to make the appointment," Clement said. "I have written to Mr. Simmons. I have received no reply. I am writing to him again."

He also had correspondence with Simmons on the choice of Governor John McKeithen of Louisiana as speaker for the Governor's Luau, the party's eastern fund-raising dinner earlier this month. "I do not think the choice was a representative one as far as blacks, and maybe many young people, are concerned. If we had an impact on the inner workings of the party perhaps we would have had some influence on the selection," he said.

Simmons gave assurance that speaker with another point of view would be invited for the western fund-raiser, the Vance-Aycock dinner slated for Asheville in October. It was an unsatisfactory response.

"To try to please by turns all segments of the party is to please no one," Clement said. "A party which attempts to be all things to everyone ends by being nothing to no one."

Articulate and intense on black aspirations in politics, Clement nonetheless refuses the role of black spokesman, when whites ask him who speaks for blacks, he returns the question: "Who speaks for you?"

His opinions, he said, are his and are not expressed as those of all black people.

"Positive Pessimism"

Conversation with Clement surveys an impression of disillusion, dogged determination, and sometime exasperation with the system. He described his mood as "positive pessimism," a commitment to push ahead with faint hope for forward movement.

"Howard Fuller tells me I am wasting my time, exhausting myself like this. I do not think so. The key to any group's aspirations is in the political process. I would not say I am working within the system so much as working to change the system."

He paused. "We've come too far to give up. Sometimes I think the forces who oppose us wish we would give up. I'm not going to give them that" equitable and effective control of the machinery it makes no difference how much voice you have."

Clement is a 36-year-old executive with North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, the Durham-based firm which is one of the state's prime examples of black capitalism. His political involvement includes presidency of the Durham County YDC, and service on the statewide study committee which prepared the reorganization plan.

It's his view that a political party should be an educational force through which citizens of differing background discover common interests and act to meet the needs of the total community.

Relevancy on Issues

That demands a readiness to face current issues squarely without hang-ups on race, social or economic status; in short, it calls for a party to be relevant to the times.

The message is one Clement will take to the YDC State Convention in Winston-Salem next weekend. He will use his place on the program to challenge the YDC, as the fountainhead for the senior party, to attract the participation of young blacks.

The YDC now has the image of a whites-only social club, Clement said. Black membership is token or non-existent in chapters throughout the state.

"I'm not interested in socializing. I'm sure some of them don't want to socialize with me. That's all right, too," he said.

"When the YDC speaks to the issues of poor housing, jobs, discrimination and racism, lack of educational opportunity, etc., it will attract young blacks. When it speaks on these issues, it will speak to whites, too, because these are the interests which concern all of us."

Counting On A False Premise

MOSCOW — The most ominous political element in the Soviet-Egyptian decision to violate the Suez Canal rigid tenet of Soviet foreign policy in the Middle East (not to mention the fiction that the American President can be toyed with). In this tortured Soviet logic of how the U. S. — Israeli power equation really works, the U. S., by validating Israel's claim of violations, became the sinner and Moscow the saint in the ugly battle over the peace plan.

But the Soviet misreading of Mr. Nixon goes farther. Russian experts here are now actually hinting that Egypt's reinforcement of its Suez Canal air defenses played into U. S. hands by ruling out all possibility of an Israeli preemptive attack against the missile sites after the Aug. 7 cease-fire took effect.

"Israel recognizes only military strength," one such expert told us. "If you are right about all these violations, it should help you because now Israel will have to behave."

Considering the strong tone of U. S. Ambassador Jacob Beam's missile protest to the dangerous misreading of President Nixon. One widely-accepted explanation here of these gross violations (all but privately admitted by Moscow) is that Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser sought and gained the consent of the Kremlin to reinforce his Suez air defenses as a condition of accepting the U. S. peace plan.

But that explanation rests on the wholly false Soviet premise that President Nixon was already so deeply committed to his peace plan that not only would he himself excuse the violations but would also compel Israel to do the same.

Thus, the fiction that Mr. Nixon has the same kind of satellite control over Prime Minister Golda Meir's government that Moscow has, say, over Bulgaria is a

Other Editors Say Training Doctors

(Raleigh News & Observer)

There are increasing good signs of sound action to help alleviate the shortage of medical doctors in North Carolina. It is time for the State Board of Higher Education to try to alleviate the doubt about a new medical school at East Carolina University.

On Friday the executive committee of the higher board adopted a series of recommendations and positions that would continue a substantial increase in physician training launched by the last session of the legislature. The executive committee gave priority to continued expansion of the UNC School of Medicine at Chapel Hill and to increased support for North Carolinians enrolled by the private medical schools at Durham and Winston-Salem. Based on action by the last legislature, the Chapel Hill school enlarged its entering class from 75 to 100 this year. It can be soundly expanded to 120 by 1973, according to the higher board leaders. Increased assistance for in-state students at Duke and Bowman-Gray is even more productive initially. The $2,500 annual assistance per student granted by the last legislature has, in only two years, doubled the number of North Carolinians admitted by those schools. The number is up from 33 to 66. An assistance increase to $3,600 per student annually is urged, and clearly is justified by results to date. These efforts offer the best hope of early relief of the doctor shortage, but they will not fill the need entirely.

The ECU medical school question burns, because it is a reality in state law, a fact in legislatively authorized curriculum planning. It is bound to burn, divisively, or fruitfully, into the future. Yet the higher board leadership was noncommittal on the matter. Friday beyond recognizing the realities of the present.

The struggle of ECU in its go-it-alone campaign and the potential benefits of a reputable medical school at Greenville are obvious and in sharp contrast. Only with great difficulty, if at all, will ECU obtain provisional accreditation of its planned two-year program before the next session of the legislature. Even if it does, its partisans in the assembly will have to horse-trade and fight another sectional battle to win piecemeal appropriations. Repeat struggles loom in the decade ahead and beyond. Regardless of disapproval of the ECU method — and sound doubt about the educational result — this effort will be aimed at a legitimate need and based on previous legislative policy.

A better course for establishment of the ECU medical school can be opened by the higher board. Without changing its priorities, the board can associate itself with, instead of merely recognizing, the idea of the new medical school. This association would call for a soundly planned and adequately financed four-year school, meriting statewide confidence and support.

As far as the higher board is concerned, it should not matter that ECU officials have bypassed it before, and been rewarded by the legislature for doing so. This is a different board, strengthened by the last assembly. The governor is its chairman and the chairmen of taxing and spending committees of the assembly are among its members. The board can recommend sound medical school development policies that lift the level of debate and encourage wiser appropriations for the school. All North Carolina, not just the East, would benefit from this sounder course.

Now, The Naked Man

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — A new book will soon appear on the market which will cause a sensation in scientific circles. It is titled "The Naked Man" and it was written by Frederick III, a chimpanzee attached to the Rockefeller Institute. Frederick III was involved in some enzyme experiments at the institute which took up only a few hours of his day. Because he was restless, the directors gave him a typewriter to play with. You can imagine their surprise when instead of just messing around, Frederick wrote a book.

Frederick's book, and this is the shocker, claims that all chimpanzees, monkeys and apes evolved from man. He says that man was the first primate before there were apes of any kind.

Frederick is not certain when man first appeared on earth, though he suspects it was at least 30 million years ago. As time went on and man went through many stages, he started to develop many apelike qualities until today it is easy for apes to identify with man and realize how much they have in common.

Many apes and chimpanzees are horrified to think they resemble man in any way and a chimpanzee named Treetop, with the National Institute of Mental Health, has written a paper denouncing Frederick III's thesis. Treetop maintains that although in some respects men are looking more and more like apes, the ape could not have possibly evolved from man. He has attacked Frederick III's research on the grounds that except for the few men he has come into contact with at the Rockefeller Institute the only other men he has observed are flower children in the park that he can see from his caged window.

Frederick says in his book that the similarities between apes and man are greater than one might think. Man today is behaving like apes used to behave before they were civilized. Man puts great emphasis on territory and seems to be willing to kill to protect his turf. As a lower form of ape, a man is unable to deal with any situation without screaming and shouting. Frederick cites examples where men have been placed in large apartment buildings for lengths of time and have gone berserk.

Treetop says that man's behavior is more similar to rats than to apes, and while man behaves irrationally in almost any situation and may resort to extreme measures when endangered, it does not follow that just because men beat their chests and growl that they belong in the ape family.

Frederick thinks that the primitive personality traits of man have been adapted by apes. Having studied man under laboratory conditions, Frederick has discovered that the eating habits and sex life of homo sapiens follow a pattern similar to those practiced by modern apes. Survival seems to be the basic principle in man's jungle, and while apes do not resort to violence unless provoked, man has not yet evolved to a point in his development where he can

Strength For Today

FACE THE ISSUES

Confrontation is a word much in use today. It is the act of confronting a person or a situation.

Confrontation meets a great need. We have come to see that most disputes can be settled if people who sincerely want them to be settled—regardless of how widely different their ideas of satisfaction may be—talk the matter over in a sincere spirit of justice.

There is injustice in the world today. Much as we love our country we cannot get away from the fact that there are people who do not want to do the right thing and will not do it unless compelled to act justly. We are sufficiently educated that practically everyone can discuss a situation with an opponent and not feel that he is being looked down upon or degraded. It is a healthy sign in any nation when people confront one another, even at times with clenched fists, and demand that justice be done.

Opinion is quite united in Russia. In fact, it had better be unless one is willing to get himself into a mess of trouble. Only three per cent of the Russian people are Communists, but they make the other ninety-seven per cent bow their heads and keep quiet. That's one of the reasons Communism is so indescribably dangerous. It is a menace that will have to be met (confronted) before it puts the world in chains.

But more about that tomorrow.

By Earl L. Douglass

On a somewhat wider front, the world seems to be in an even worse pickle than it was when I set out to reform it little more than a quarter century ago.

We were in a war then, and we are in a war now—and perhaps looking around for more to get into.

The value of money falls . . . international affairs are in a muddle . . . domestic crisis piles on domestic crisis . . . yes, the world's in a mess.

But let me point out one thing. Since I started writing my column, six U.S. presidents have been in office. Every morning for 27 years I have dusted the cobwebs from my phone so it would be ready to respond to an emergency call by the White House for my advice. Not once has the White House called.

So I don't see how I can be altogether blamed for the plight we're in. One fellow can't make a better world single-handed—not even a columnist. So if we're to improve things in the next 27 years, we're all going to have to pitch in together.

I know I can count on your help, can't I?

Inborn Impulse For Fresh Air?

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Census figures show a tremendous surge of population toward the suburbs. One of the reasons may be a drive for survival, an inborn instinct for improvement, and inner influence like the human shrubs also trap dust and soot and absorb carbon dioxide. They also act as sound barriers, which may appeal to another subconscious survival desire.

"The average lawn around a house provides enough oxygen for a family of four," according to Maynard DuRei, president of C. W. Stuart Nursery Co., Newark, N. Y. Air Conditioners

"They are nature's own air conditioners," he said. "Plants make air more breathable, cleaning it of pollutants and cut down on harmful and noxious gases. "Plants even help keep the air cool," DuRei added. Quoting the American Association of Nurserymen, he said there has been a significant increase in the carbon monoxide that blankets the earth and some scientists believe that carbon dioxide traps heat, therefore increasing temperature levels on earth.

But growing things take in carbon dioxide, just as humans and animals take in oxygen. Plants use the carbon for growth and expel the oxygen just as warm-blooded creatures give off carbon dioxide.

Thoughtful planning around a home, the preservation of trees and the reservation of more land for parks, DuRei said, can increase the quality of suburban air.

Hot Times in the Old Town

Another factor in addition to better air that drives people to the green suburbs is the heat generated in cities. Every car and bus generates heat as well as sulphur oxides, carbon monoxide, lead and other pollutants. Every electric motor, every powered construction machine, every braking, every elevator, every store and oven and every light bulb generates heat. And every human body generates heat into the air, regardless of the temperature.

Twenty years ago it was estimated that these heat generators, plus the subways, kept New York 4 degrees warmer than the surrounding countryside, winter and summer. Today the difference may be 12 degrees. California Develops Seedless Watermelons

Harold Otto, a University of California Farm Advisor, is encouraging growers near Anaheim, Calif., to grow seedless watermelons. The seedless variety is a hybrid of melon varieties with the normal number of chromosomes and a variety that has been treated to produce twice the normal number.

"You might call it a sexually frustrated watermelon plant," said Otto.

He and other advisors have grown four seedless varieties, one being exceptionally sweet from rind to rind and called Triple Sweet.

ELMER ROESSNER

tendency to gather around a fire.

This instinctive impulse to move to the suburbs may not be caused as much by the foul, sulphur-laden, lead-poisoned, carbon-monoxide charged air of the cities as by a subconscious search for more oxygen.

Green grass and plants produce oxygen. Trees and

Joan Kennedy Stirs Gathering With A See-Through Blouse

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Joan Kennedy, who once created a nintremor in Washington society by wearing a thigh-exposing miniskirt to the White House, has scored another fashion first by wearing a see-through blouse and midskirt to an East Room reception.

The blonde wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., easily created the biggest stir Tuesday at the reception Mrs. Richard M. Nixon held for Mrs. Ferdinand Marcos, wife of the president of the Philippines.

Mrs. Kennedy's blouse was a gossamer, transparent light blue lace. A slightly darker blue brassiere was very visible through the lace.

The blouse was tucked into a midlength silver-colored leather skirt with a slit up the front.

She added a pair of front-laced black boots to complete the ensemble.

She told reporters, almost mischievously, she had decided she was wrong 18 months ago when she wore a very short miniskirt to President Nixon's first reception for Congress.

Photographers at that time caught Mrs. Nixon staring at the goodly expanse of Joan Kennedy's thigh (her mini was one of the shortest then seen here). (Cameras at Tuesday's event preserved the glance downward by Mrs. Marcos as she and Mrs. Kennedy shook hands warmly.)

Mrs. Nixon wore a turquoise midi at the reception.

The tall, dark-haired Mrs. Marcos, who pinned a diamond brooch at the lowest point in a vee-neckline, wore a floor-length pink dress.

Six To Attend Training Meet

Six Pitt County employees of the Soil Conservation Service will attend a civil rights training meeting in Goldsboro Sept. 30.

Those who plan to attend include: Roy Beck, Elmer Bland, David Hardee, Carey Evans, Noel Webb and Roland Wadsworth.

Similar meetings are scheduled to be held in Raleigh on Sept. 29, Asheville on Oct. 20 and in Greensboro on Oct. 22.

Speakers at the workshops will include Dr. L. C. Dowdy, president of Agricultural and Technical State University at Greensboro; Dr. B. C. Webb, dean of agriculture at A & T State University; Leonard Hardy of the SCS State Office in Raleigh; and State Conservationist Bartlett.

"Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin has made it clear that administration policy does not condone segregation or other forms of discrimination, including economic barriers or limits to participation in Department of Agriculture programs," Bartlett commented. "These training meetings will emphasize these objectives."

The Goldsboro session will be held at the Goldsboro Motor Hotel for SCS workers from 36 counties in Eastern North Carolina.

satisfaction." Despite any disenchantment with the Democrats and the conviction that blacks should not chain themselves to any party, Clement regards the Democratic Party as the best opportunity for blacks to find political expression.

"And, to be fair, the Democratic Party has made an attempt through reorganization to speak to our interests," he said.

Soviet government, this Alice-in-Wonderland attitude is dangerous in the extreme.

Beam forcefully warned Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Kuznetsov on Aug. 22 that the Soviet government would be making a most serious miscalculation if it took the U. S. protest lightly. Last week, the foreign office kissed off Beam's protest as much ado about nothing.

What that means is that Soviet policy is still based on the same misreading of President Nixon which led to the missile violations in the first place—in short, that his desire to preserve the peace plan will compel him to compel Israel to come to the New York talks.

Behind this preposterous miscalculation lie other political-military factors that spell trouble for the Soviets. There is no love here for the escalating Soviet military commitment to Egypt and no confidence in Egypt's fighting capability. With the Soviet position in the Middle East now a hard fact and with the opening of the Suez Canal to the Persian Gulf, the Indian Ocean, and East Africa an immediate Soviet goal, the Kremlin does not want any more Arab-Israeli war.

But still deeper Soviet involvement in Egypt is predictable unless the Kremlin takes a correct reading of Mr. Nixon and draws a correct conclusion from the U. S. missile protest. The next move is the Kremlin's, and it is dangerously overdue.

tell why he behaves the way he does.

Treetop disagrees. He maintains that man has gone as far as he'll ever go, and hasn't changed from the day he was born. The instinct in men to destroy is so strong that it is slander to class them in any way with apes.

Frederick's response to that is to cite King Kong's destruction of the Empire State Building as something man might do.

Treetop says King Kong was an exception to the rule, and it's unfair to use one gorilla's behavior as a sample.

In any case, when the book comes out there will be a continuing controversy on it. On one side will be the apes who would hate to acknowledge they have inherited any characteristics from man. On the other side will be those monkeys, chimpanzees and gorillas who will admit that some of their traits are possible man-evolved, and will now try to deal with the problem in an ape-like way.

Aussies Fight Different Kind Of War In Vietnam

By BARNEY SEIBERT
NUI DAT, Vietnam (UPI) — It's a different kind of war at the Australian base here.

The 5,000-man Australian task force, including a battalion size element of New Zealanders, is the only Allied unit in the Indochina war with tactics markedly different from those used by the Americans, South Vietnamese, South Koreans and Thais.

The South Vietnamese, Koreans and Thais all were trained and advised by Americans. So were the Laotians. Even the Cambodians are learning the American counter-insurgency tactics, from the South Vietnamese.

But the Australians have needed no advice from Americans in scouring the jungles for the Viet Cong in Phuoc Tuy Province, a lightly populated area of jungled forests and mountains along the South China Sea 50 miles southeast of Saigon. Independent, Well Equipped Japanese infantrymen who were experts in the craft of jungle warfare told American captors at the end of World War II that the Australians were the real jungle experts on the Allied side. "Americans are not jungle fighters," one prisoner of war remarked. "They simply remove the jungle."

The Australian expertise in jungle war was forged in expeditions to maintain order in New Guinea, polished in the Australian Army's jungle warfare school, and honed in 12 years of campaigning against the Communists in Malaysia.

The Aussies are the only U.S. allies in Vietnam who brought along most of their own equipment and who pay their own way.

In addition to the 5,000-man task force there are another 3,000 Australian fighting men in Vietnam—airmen, sailors and military advisers working with South Vietnamese units. About 50 per cent of the Australians are conscripts.

Jungle Fighters
Because of their jungle warfare expertise, the Australians are less oriented toward air mobility in the Indochina conflict.

One of the first things Americans notice at Nui Dat is the absence of helicopters—the Aussies have only about half as many as a conventional U.S. infantry unit of equivalent size and about one-fourth of the total assigned to an American air mobile division.

Another major difference in the Australian concept is the absence of Vietnamese civilian workers at the base. "We do not have a security problem," one officer said.

Other differences: The Australians live in tents rather than "hooches," call their infantrymen "crunchies" rather than "grunts," maintain their vehicles and equipment almost as well as the Koreans—the most spit and polish soldiers in Vietnam—and leave the trees standing to provide shade when they build a base camp rather than removing the vegetation to minimize the infiltration danger.

Equipment & Results
The Australians buy their artillery pieces and ammunition from the United States—"in the quantities in which you make it we can buy it cheaper than we could make it ourselves," an officer said. They also buy machineguns, grenade launchers, armored personnel carriers and some web equipment.

Their tanks are British Centurions. Their rifles are the Belgian NATO weapon, which uses the same cartridge as the U.S. M16; the Aussies say it has better range and is less susceptible to jamming than the M16. Their jeeps and weapons carriers are various modifications of Australian-Built Land Rovers and their trucks are built by the Australian subsidiary of International Harvester Corp. The trucks do not have the familiar dual rear wheels of U.S. army vehicles.

The elite Australian unit in Vietnam is the Special Air Service Squadron, highly trained volunteers who are paratrooper qualified.

In four years of operations in South Vietnam's Phuoc Tuy Province, the Australians have killed 2,840 Viet Cong and driven the only two main force Viet Cong battalions, D445 and D440, from the province.

'Pacification' Skills
Intelligence estimates show about 800 Viet Cong guerrillas remain in the province and the Communist infrastructure has been reduced 50 per cent to 1,500 persons. During the 1968 Tet offensive there were an estimated 5,000 Viet Cong soldiers in the province, supported by an infrastructure of 3,000 persons.

The Australians in Vietnam know more than just how to fight.

"Take a look at the Aussies' pacification program," a civilian official of the U.S. mission in Vietnam advised a reporter. "It's one of the most effective in the country."

Lt. Col. Keith P. Outridge, 43, of Canberra, commander of the 1st Australian Civil Affairs Unit, said: "we only try to do things as the Vietnamese see it and wish it done, and try to do something to stimulate their development as we see it and hope they see it the same as we do."

The "Australian province"—Phuoc Tuy—is a 400-square-mile area of mountains, jungle, forests and coastal swamps. Its 105,000 residents are poor and the province has never been self-sufficient in food. Before war disrupted its economy, its people made their livelihood by working on the large rubber plantations, lumber mills, salt drying ponds and in the resort hotels along the beaches.

Military-Civilian Relations
The Australian pacification program is similar to but somewhat smaller in scope than American efforts in other provinces. There is some U.S. pacification activity by the American Civil Operations Rural Development Support (CORDS) program in the province. But most of the effort is Australian.

The Australians, who learned to tackle water resource problems the hard way in the arid areas of their own country, place somewhat more stress on water development than do Americans, and somewhat less on agriculture. Otherwise the programs are similar—road and public works building, medical clinics, education.

The principal difference is the administration. Pacification is a civilian responsibility among the Americans, a military responsibility among the Aussies.

Outridge sees both advantages and disadvantages in a militarily administered pacification program.

On the plus side, he said, is that fact that "most authority in a country at war is military and there is an empathy between military men; we have closer access to military resources to carry out the programs."

Disadvantages, he finds, are "a lack of expertise in specific fields and lack of continuity in projects" due to the one-year military rotation.

Rebuilding Country

However, he feels that a military pacification program may get to the areas where it is needed most sooner than a civilian program because the soldier is less likely to be kept at a distance by absence of physical security.

"We try to work with the soft moccasin instead of the hob nail boot," Outridge said. "We try to get the Vietnamese into the program as soon as we can. We insist on their input. They must initiate the project, it must benefit the government and they must help carry it out."

About 22 per cent of Phuoc

Tuy Province's population are fishermen, 35 per cent farmers. To stimulate agriculture, the Australians have introduced breeding stock and model farm methods for chicken and hog raising operations.

"We go up and down the highway and persuade a farmer here and there to try it out. After that it spreads from neighbor to neighbor," Outridge said, and added:

"I think we are creating an environment in which the people can win themselves."

Rat Population Boom Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of the two-year-old federal rat control program point to marked successes in some cities but believe a nationwide rodent population boom is underway, even in the suburbs.

"My impression, based on scattered and fragmented reports, is that the rat population is on the rise," said Robert E. Novick, head of the Bureau of Community Environmental Management.

"And this means not only in central cities but in the suburbs now."

Paradoxically, the small $15 million-a-year control program has reduced rat incidence an average of 25 per cent in target areas of 17 cities surveyed so far, Novick said in an interview.

The reduction since 1969 is as high as 80 per cent in such cities as Buffalo, N.Y. and Charlotte, N.C. But two cities, Atlanta and New York, registered increased rat populations despite the program.

The government estimates there are 14,000 cases of rat bite a year in the nation; many thousand cases of infectious disease spread by rats; and innumerable electrical fires caused by rats chewing through wires.

In saying the rodent danger appears to be spreading to once-immune suburbs officials gave these examples:

Some homeowners in affluent Montgomery County, Md., near Washington, say they have heard rats in the walls; the New York City suburb of Nassau County reports a tripling of rat complaints recently; 41 suburbs in Pennsylvania applied last year for antirat money.

A total of 25 cities are receiving federal aid for rat control programs in selected neighborhoods.

Progress reports available on 17 cities show the overall rate of buildings with evidence of rat infestation has dropped from 16 to 12 per cent in two years, Novick said.

The figures, however, increased from 8 to 18 per cent in New York City and from 23 to 26 per cent in Atlanta, he said. Both cities experienced lengthy garbage strikes.

And, said the Health, Education and Welfare official, rat reduction is inseparable from efficient garbage storage and removal.

In fact, the government will probably consider withdrawing antirat funds from cities thwarting the program with poor garbage service, Novick said.

Sell now.
Raise later.

Very often, you can assure yourself of getting the price you want for your hogs while they're still in their infancy. The process of "selling" your hogs before they're ready for market is called hedging. Farmers have been hedging a variety of products for over fifty years on the U.S.D.A.-regulated Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The main purpose of hedging is to avoid losing money due to an over-supply of hogs at market time. But there are a number of other advantages as well. And the commissions are extremely low. Your nearest broker is probably a member of the CME. He'll be happy to tell you more about hedging. So will we. Just send us the attached coupon.

Cambodians Are Moving Again

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The biggest government operation of the Cambodian war moved forward again today after being stalled 10 days by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

A spokesman said advance elements were meeting light resistance as they moved toward the major enemy stronghold in the village of Taing Kauk, 47 miles north of Phnom Penh. It was the first forward movement reported by the government since its troops were driven from Taing Kauk and stalled in their drive northward toward the provincial capital of Kompong Thom and the nation's heartland.

The spokesman said the government force had moved about half a mile toward the town. Reports reaching Phnom Penh said up to 2,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were believed still in Taing Kauk.

There were no indications of why the enemy had apparently relaxed its pressure. Fighting intensified on another Cambodian battle front. South Vietnamese headquarters in Saigon said six South Vietnamese marines and 41 North Vietnamese were killed in heavy fighting along the Bassac River, 30 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. Twenty-three South Vietnamese were reported wounded.

The U.S. Command repeated a prepared statement saying, "There are no U.S. ground combat troops in Laos." But it is known that South Vietnamese special forces and American reconnaissance patrols operate along the Ho Chi Minh trail in the lower Laotian panhandle.

In Laos, the Communist Pathet Lao accused royalist government troops of launching attacks with American and South Vietnamese support. Hanoi Radio quoted a Pathet Lao broadcast saying 11 battalions of royal Laotian troops had staged attacks since Aug. 31 north and south of Attopeu in southern Laos, which fell to the Communist command in April.

Military attaches assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane and Central Intelligence Agency agents also advise and operate with Royal Laotian troops.

The Cambodian command in Phnom Penh said that 60,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have been killed or seriously wounded by Cambodian, American and South Vietnamese forces during the first five months of the Cambodian war.

Crafts, Handicrafts To Be Displayed Sept. 29

Crafts and handiworks from eastern North Carolina will be on exhibition in Greenville Tuesday.

Called the Creative Crafts Carousel, the exhibit is sponsored jointly by the Pitt County Home Economics Extension Department; the Greenville Recreation Department; and Pitt Technical Institute.

Street For Happiness

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of people swarmed along a 19-block stretch of Madison Avenue Tuesday night as the city continued its experiment in returning streets to the people.

The avenue was closed to vehicular traffic from 60th to 79th Street and scores of shops stayed open for strollers and shoppers. Strolling folk singers, miniature sidewalk cafes and free gifts enlivened the evening.

The idea came from the Madison Avenue General Ideas Committee—MAGIC—which represents many of the merchants on the avenue.

Mayor John V. Lindsay led the ribbon cutting ceremonies to open the avenue and later observed, "From what I can see, it looks busy, crowded and the people happy. So I guess it's getting off on the right foot."

A midtown portion of Fifth Avenue has been closed to vehicles on some Saturdays.

Exhibit will be held in the Greenville American Legion Building. Featured in this year's exhibition will be craft displays in copper tooling, decoupage, silk screening, picture framing, eggshell craft, chair caning, truck decorating, china painting, wood carving, knitting, weaving, crewel and canvas embroidery, Danish cross-stitching and rug-hooking.

Both men and women will be participating in the craft show as demonstrators in their particular fields. Persons interested in the possibility of becoming a participant are asked to call 752-2355, the Recreation Department, and ask for Mrs. Linda Burrell.

Exhibits will be on display beginning at 10:00 a.m. and continuing to 5:00 p.m., and again from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Demonstrations of the various crafts techniques will be held periodically throughout the day.

For further information, persons can contact the Pitt County Home Economics Extension Department, the Recreation Department or Pitt Technical Institute.

Admission is free, and all members of the public are invited to attend the Creative Crafts Carousel.

Craftsmen from Greenville, Pitt County and all parts of eastern North Carolina will be on hand to take part in the carousel.

New Malaysian Cabinet Named

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak named a 20-member Cabinet today, dropping one minister from the previous government and adding two new ones.

There are seven assistant ministers in the expanded government. Razak took the portfolios of foreign affairs and defense, with two ministers and an assistant minister under him. His deputy Prime Minister, Ismail Bin Abdul Rahman, is home affairs minister and will assist in foreign affairs.

Pitt's Farm Bureau Met

The Pitt County Farm Bureau held its regular board meeting last night at the Farm Bureau building.

President J. C. Galloway appointed a nominating committee to name a slate of officers for the coming year. The committee named includes R. H. McLawhorn, chairman; Chester Don Worthington, and Mrs. Wilbur Worthington.

Mrs. Worthington, chairman of the Family Night Banquet, reported the event will be held Oct. 8 and 7 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

John Sledge, vice president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, will be the banquet speaker. Entertainment will be provided by "The Difference."

All Farm Bureau members and their families are invited to attend. Reservations must be made by Oct. 6 with the Pitt County Farm Bureau office.

The commodities committees met after the board meeting to make recommendations to be presented at the annual meeting of the Pitt County Farm Bureau to be held Oct. 22 in the Pitt County Court House.

Probe Theft At Sorority House

Greenville police are continuing their investigation today into a reported theft at the Alpha Delta Pi sorority house at 1407 East Fifth St. early this morning.

Officers said a man allegedly entered the home through a window about 3:20 a.m. and took a total of $8 or $9 in one dollar bills from three handbags.

Police took a suspect into custody shortly after the incident on charges not related to the sorority house entry.

Utilities Are Advised Power 'Back To Normal'

"We have been advised power is back to normal, and have not received a request to curtail power usage today," Charles Horne, Jr., director of Greenville Utilities commented about the recent VEPCO request to patrons to curtail non-essential use of electricity.

Yesterday officials of Virginia Electric and Power Company (VEPCO) had requested all of its customers to dispense with

Completed PTI Lines

WINTERVILLE — The one-mile water and sewer line project to Pitt Technical Institute from the town of Winterville has been completed. Final inspection for the $133,000 project has been set for Oct. 6.

Contractors for the project were Northstate Constructors of Dunn and engineers were William F. Freeman Co. of Durham.

The project was financed with both county and federal funds. Included in the project was the installation of 10 - inch sewer lines, 12-inch water lines and a lift station from the town of Winterville to the Pitt Technical Institute site.

Field Day Will Be On Thursday

WINTERVILLE — The annual field day and wiener roast for participants in the summer recreation program here will be held Thursday at 5 p.m. at Winterville High School.

The event, sponsored by the Winterville Kiwanis Club, will be held for both Babe Ruth and Little League players.

Trophies will be awarded to the winning team and medals will be given to the most valuable player of each team.

Kindness Proved Fatal To Fawns

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Starving fawns plucked from the flooded Everglades last year, then returned this year, are probably dead now—killed by kindness, says an official.

"You simply can't take a baby fawn out of its normal surroundings and put it into a situation where it doesn't have to learn to forage for itself, and then put it back and expect it to survive," Ed Dail executive director of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, said Tuesday.

When heavy rains flooded feeding areas, 25 of the tiny white tail deer were taken to a wildlife tourist attraction; 17 died; the other eight appeared recovered and were returned to the swamp.

Biologists have found the bodies of three of the fawns including two which had radio transmitters around their necks, said Dail.

"They haven't found the bodies of the other five but they're pretty convinced they're gone," he added.

non-essential use of electricity, including air conditioning as soon as possible in order to enable the company to continue to serve vital needs.

Greenville Utilities purchases electrical power from VEPCO and resells it to users within the city. It also contracts to provide power to Winterville and Ayden.

VEPCO said the major cause of the present condition is due to the unseasonably hot weather, coupled with the interruption of its generating equipment. The company had sustained damage to major generating equipment which they termed "of such magnitude" that "immediate relief is absolutely necessary."

Boiler tubes failure at the Bremo and Chesterfield Power Stations and bearing problems at the Chesterfield Power Station No. 6 were factors necessitating the request for

Apparent Low Bidder For Road Project

C. B. Renfro Jr. of Goldsboro was the apparent low bidder for the improvement and four-laning of U.S. 264 bypass to Tenth Street.

Renfro's bid totaled $481,363.85. The bid price does not include engineering and supervision costs which generally equals a minimum of 10 percent of the project.

The project includes 1.752 miles of grading, coarse aggregate base course, bituminous concrete binder and surface for improvements on U. S. 264 bypass in Greenville from approximately .24 mile west of Sherwood Drive easterly to Tenth Street.

Completion date for the project has been set as Nov. 15, 1971.

Fire Damages Local Dwelling

Greenville firemen were called to 907 Cherry St. early this morning when a fire erupted in a bedroom of the wood frame dwelling there.

Fire officers said the call was received at 3 a.m. and reported that heavy fire damage resulted to the bedroom and heavy smoke damage resulted to the remainder of the house.

Firemen said the blaze may have been caused by dropping a cigarette on the bed in the room.

Church Begins Revival Monday

GARDNERSVILLE — Revival services will begin at the Timothy Christian Church on Monday, Sept. 28.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. Richard McIntosh of New Bern and will begin at 7:45 nightly.

Homecoming will be observed on Sunday, Oct. 4, with lunch to be served on the church grounds.

reduction. These problems were expected to be resolved.

Last night VEPCO announce that after 10:00 p.m. customers could resume normal use of electric power, although it would be necessary to effect a voltage reduction of five percent through today as a precautionary measure. The announcement said "if a load curtailment is necessary, the public will be notified promptly."

Horne stated that in Greenville "we have not been asked to step down our regulators. Usage yesterday was slightly less than on peak days, but whether this was in response to request for non-essential use we can't tell."

New Minicar Not Compatible With Car-Wash

DETROIT (AP) — The new Chevrolet Vega minicar has run into an unexpected problem—incompatibility with automatic car wash systems.

A trade association has warned operators of car wash systems that the small car would be damaged while going through the line because its undercarriage is one inch below the 5¼-inch minimum.

"Extreme caution is advised before washing this car on conveyors," said Automatic Car Wash Association International in a bulletin to its members in 49 states and 15 foreign countries.

A spokesman for General Motors said the firm was working on the problem. "We think it can be alleviated because it affects only one point on the underside of the car."

Holding Revival Through Week

Bishop Raymond Griswold is conducting revival services this week at Brown Chapel Holiness Church.

Services, beginning each night at eight o'clock, will continue through Friday night.

Three Injured In Tuesday Accidents Set Records On Market

An estimated $5,250 property damage resulted and three persons were injured in a series of three traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville policemen.

Officers reported Clayton Lee Humphrey, 58, of Jacksonville and one passenger in the truck he was driving were injured when the Humphrey vehicle collided with a car driven by Fred Linwood Carr, 23 of 212 Garris St., Ayden about 5:27 p.m. at the intersection of Pitt and Dudley Streets.

Police, who charged Carr with failing to stop for a stop sign set damage to the Humphrey truck at $1,000 and estimated damage to the Carr car at $1,500.

Alton Russell Barrett, 64, of 517 Longmeadow Rd. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 10:10 a.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and Moore Streets.

Investigators reported the Barrett car collided with an auto driven by Randy Michael Nichols, 22, of Route 2, Greenville, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Nichols vehicle and about $1,500 damage to the Barrett auto.

Nichols was reported injured in the crash. An estimated $125 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 3:52 p.m. collision on 10th Street, 250 feet West of the Monroe Street.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were identified as Jennifer Vernon Whitford, 20 of Route 3, Greenville and Jackie Dean Summerlin, 19 of Route 3, Greenville.

Miss Whitford was charged with failing to keep a proper lookout, following investigation of the collision.

FARMVILLE — Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Market said "yesterday's average broke all previous records on the market." Average sales price per hundred pounds on Tuesday were $79.55.

Prices per pound also hit a season high, with a top company price of $1.09 per pound reported. Williams stated that the high prices, are the result "of offering of choice and good leaf grades on the floor, the best quality offered this season."

Volume of sale consisted mostly of leaf and smoking leaf, with the volume of non-descript less than any previous day.

Stabilization accounted for 6.65 per cent of gross sales. A total of 587,328 pounds sold for $467,226.85, giving the high average of $79.55 per hundred pounds.

Miller, Verga Lead Cougar Victory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The Carolina Cougars came back to town last night, and this time the results were better.

Last year, the Cougars came to Greenville for their first visit. They had beaten the Los Angeles Stars the night before, but dropped the game to them that night.

But last night, the Cougars met the Pittsburgh Condors, and by the time the final buzzer sounded, the Carolina team had taken a 129-117 victory that was not as close as it seemed.

It was the opening exhibition game of the season for both teams, and one fact was quite evident, the Condors were not in the shape the Cougars were. The main reason for this was two weeks of extra work in getting ready by the Cougars.

Perhaps the brightest spot for the Cougars was the outstanding play of Larry Miller. Last season, Miller came to the Cougars from the Stars, but never quite came up to the hopes of the Carolina management.

Last night, however, he looked like the Miller of old in his collegiate days at the University of North Carolina. By the time the game was over, he had dumped in 21 points, including two three-point buckets.

Former Duke Star Bob Verga continued to play his fine, steady brand of ball for the Cougars. He finished with high scoring honors with 22 points.

Another pleasing look came from Ira Harge, who was brought to Carolina by a trade for Doug Moe in the off-season. Harge, who scored 11 points, gave the Cougars more strength on the boards.

The Cougars were icy cold in the early part of the game, however, and Pittsburgh ran up as much as a four-point lead in the early minutes. George Thompson scored on a fast break for the opening basket and Mike Lewis, formerly of Duke, hit two foul shots for a 4-0 lead. The Cougars came back on a bucket by Hank Whitney and two by Verga to tie it up at 6-6. They later tied it at 8-8 and finally gained the lead for the first time at 12-11 on a rebound by Whitney.

Pittsburgh regained the lead on a jumper by John Brisker, however, and moved back out by as much as three, until in the closing minutes of the first period, the two teams swapped the lead until Carolina took a 26-55 lead on Harge's bucket with four seconds left.

The Cougars pushed out by five in the opening four minutes of the second period, but a three-point play by Arvesta Kelly cut the lead to two and Stew Johnson hit to tie it up at 38-38. It was tied again at 40-40, but the Cougars got the lead again on a follow-up by Vann Williford for the lead, 42-40, and they never lost it again.

Williford, a rookie from N. C. State, hit two more buckets in the next couple of minutes, along with five points from Gary Bradds as the Cougars pulled out into a nine point lead at 51-42. They later upped the margin to 12 points, at 61-49 at the half.

In the third period, the Cougars continued to slowly pull away, moving out by as much as 18 points at 91-73 with a minute left in the quarter. They led at the end, 93-76.

The final period merely set the margin. The Cougars rolled up as much as a 21-point lead, then just relaxed as the Condors cut it back to as much as 10 in the closing minute of play.

Brisker was the high scorer for Pittsburgh with 16, while Tompson has 14. Moe Barr and Lewis each had 12, while Chuck Williams and Johnson both added 10.

For the Cougars, besides Verga's 22 and Miller's 21, Bradds finished with 18, Williford had 12 and Harge and George Peoples each had 11.

Keeping Ahead of the Ball

Former N. C. State Star Van Williford comes to a stop with the ball in last night's exhibition game between the Carolina Cougars and the Pittsburgh Condors in Minges Coliseum. Closing in on Williford is Pittsburgh's Dennis

Grifton, Vanceboro Meet; Rams Seek Win

Saratoga Central continues to roll along in first place in the Tobacco Belt Conference, with last year's champ Vanceboro close behind.

Surprising Grifton, however, has pushed its way into third place in the standings, while Robersonville falls into a tie for fourth after a surprising upset at the hands of Aurora.

And Grifton coach Claude Kennedy is not unhappy about his position in the standings, and his team's 34-8 victory over Bath last week.

"We didn't do anything wrong," he said. "We had three touchdowns before I could believe it."

"Bath was a disappointment to me. They are big, but I thought they'd be better than they were against us. They didn't execute well and they stood around a lot," Kennedy said.

Meanwhile, he was pleased that the Bulldogs did a good job of blocking and tackling. "We got an outstanding effort from our offensive line. It was their best game."

"Our defense is still ahead of our offense, however, and if we can keep up our desire, we're going to be okay."

Tobacco Belt

Kennedy was pleased over the performance of halfback Rick Ricciarelli who gained over 100 yards in 10 carries.

Grifton came out of the game in good condition, and according to Kennedy, it couldn't have come at a better time. This Friday, Grifton entertains tough Vanceboro, "and we're going to need all the players we can get."

Vanceboro will be coming into the game after its first loss of the year, a 22-0 setback by Farmville. "They should be ready after that loss," Kennedy said, "plus the fact that we were the only conference team to beat them last year."

Top man for Vanceboro is tough running back Roland Hooks, who sat out most of last week's game. "He's a real outstanding player for this league, and he could play about anywhere." Meanwhile, Robersonville has to snap back from a 26-20 upset at the hands of Aurora. The Rams travel to meet the same Bath team Grifton beat this Friday night.

Coach Noland Respass was bitterly disappointed in the performance of his team in the loss. "We got beat the same way we did against Williamston, on kickoff and punt returns," he said. "Aurora played a better game than they have against anybody else, and we looked like we didn't want to play."

Respass pointed out that Robersonville had a third and goal situation from the 18-inch line and failed to push the ball over on two tries. "You can't expect a lot if you fail here. I was very disappointed."

The Rams came through the game in good shape, however, and should be at full strength for this week's game.

"This has been a year of surprise already," Respass said, "so we really don't know what to expect from Bath. They got beat badly the last two times out, but it doesn't mean a lot."

Respass said he had never been as upset over a game as he was over the Aurora loss. "We moved the ball well when we wanted to," he said. "We scored the first two times we had the ball, and then things just fell apart."

Elsewhere on last Friday, Saratoga continued to win, downing Mattamuskeet, 48-8, while Elm City shut out Belhaven, 34-0, and Dixon beat Chocowinity, 28-14.

This week, besides the Vanceboro - Grifton and Robersonville - Bath encounters, the schedule finds Saratoga at Belhaven, Chocowinity at Elm City, and Mattamuskeet at Aurora.

Bucs Name Co-Captains

Jim Gregory, a 6-7 forward from Elbert, W. Va., and Mike Henrich, a 6-0 guard from Leavittown, Pa., have been named co-captains of the 1970-71 East Carolina University basketball team.

The two seniors were chosen for the honor by their teammates.

Gregory was honorable mention All-Southern Conference last season as he averaged 16.5 points and 10.4 rebounds per game. He is a big reason why the Pirates are picked by some magazines as the team to break Davidson's stranglehold on the conference title this year. ECU has finished runner-up to the Wildcats the past two seasons.

Henrich was East Carolina's No. 6 man last season, playing in 21 games. This winter he will probably step in as the point guard in Coach Tom Quinn's 1-4 "yo-yo" offense. Tom Miller, All-Conference at that position last year, has graduated.

"I am very pleased with the selection of Gregory and Henrich as co-captains," said Quinn. "They should make fine leaders for us."

East Carolina opens a 24-game schedule on Dec. 4 against strong George Washington here at Minges Coliseum.

HALIFAX (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 in a National Hockey League pre-season game before 5,500 fans Tuesday night.

No Help Needed By The Spiders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The University of Richmond Spiders don't need any help to get ready emotionally for this Saturday night's game at home against Davidson.

It was Davidson that played host to the Spiders last year, and crushed the fellow Southern Conference titleholder 37-7 in an upset victory.

Davidson and Richmond wound up co-champions of the SC, but Davidson got the invitation to the Tangerine Bowl because of its win over the 1968 conference champions.

"We remember last year," said cornerback Ray Easterling during Tuesday's practice session under 95 degree heat in Richmond. "No problem for us to get up for this one," he said.

East Carolina University, in a building program under new head coach Mike McGee, spent Tuesday working on defending against The Citadel's passing attack and its potent triple option.

McGee said, "we expect The Citadel to be back in full strength after leaving several starters home for the Vanderbilt game." The Citadel and East Carolina clash in a Saturday night SC encounter. The Citadel team, meanwhile, drilled for more than two hours Tuesday, and coach Red Parker was less optimistic about the health of his team.

Parker said linebacker Charlie Baker's ankle injury and tailback Bob Duncan's bruised thigh might keep both players out of the game.

Quarterback John Rosa was impressive in running the Bulldogs' veer offense as he completed pass after pass to ends Brian Bimer and Tom Skordal.

Furman head coach Bob King continued to work on offensive precision Tuesday, seeking to develop an attack that can click Saturday when the Paladins entertain Wofford.

King said backfield coach Don Kemp has shifted his right cornerback starting assignment again, going back to sophomore Jimmie Hagelthorne for Saturday's starting post. Hagelthorne started the Paladins' first game but last week sophomore David Williamson was the starting cornerback.

Virginia Military Institute and William and Mary play non-conference foes.

Greene Central High School Rams

Farmville After Fourth Victory; Greene Central Seeks Even Mark

Farmville's unbeaten Red Devils return to conference action Friday night, after a fine shutout victory of Tobacco Belt leader Vanceboro last week.

But Greene Central is still hunting for its first loop victory after a one-point loss to Charles B. Aycock last time out.

Farmville rolled by its opponent, 22-0, while the Falcons were tripping Greene Central, 21-20. Elsewhere in the conference, Southern Wayne was downing Hobpton, 21-0, Northern Nash downed Roanoke Rapids, 24-8, North Lenoir nipped Eastern Wayne, 12-6, and Oxford Orange ripped Southern Nash, 72-14.

"Somebody up there is looking after us," Farmville Coach Gene Brewer said of his team's 3-0 record. "We didn't play real well offensively or defensively, but we own. Again, the defense did a better job than the offense."

"We still made a lot of mistakes. We had a lot of penalties that cost us."

Brewer said that things seem kind of static with the team this week. "We didn't show much improvement. Three or four players did well, but others just gave their average game, while others just stood around."

This week, Farmville plays host to the team that nipped Greene Central, the Charles B. Aycock Falcons. "They beat both the Rams and Southern Nash by one point," Brewer said. "They didn't look good in their opening and they were lucky to win against Southern Nash. But they were much improved against Greene Central."

Brewer said that one of the Falcons to watch is Dennis Crumpler, a center and linebacker who is tough on defense. "They have a sophomore, Alex McCall, that is a real speedy halfback."

Brewer said that the Falcons like the run the ball straight at you and that they block and tackle well.

"We'll have to play real head-up ball to beat them," he said. "We've got to keep Crumpler out and McCall down, along with Brack Davis, another tough halfback."

Greene Central Coach Stewart Smith was unhappy with his team's one-point loss. "We made too many mistakes. We fumbled seven times and lost five of them, and we had two passes intercepted.

"The offense was really not that bad. We had 16 first downs, and controlled the football 65 percent of the time. We were just unable to score late in the game when we could have won it."

The Rams drove from their own five down to the 27 before giving up the ball on downs with 1:20 left to play. "I think we could have gotten a field goal if we were a little closer in, but we just couldn't get that last first down."

As to Aycock's scoring, Smith feels that his defense over-pursued three times and that each time, the Aycock runners cut back and scored.

"This week, we feel that we'll be in good physical condition for the first time this season, so this gives us a little optimism" Smith said.

The Rams will be hosting Hobpton in the Homecoming game. "They run the wing-T, and have better than average weight on the line. They have a fairly good backfield and they run basic football."

"We need to win this one badly to bring our record up to .500 and get a little momentum going for us," Smith said.

The current Eastern Plains standings:

	Conf.	Overall
	W	L
Farmville	2	0
North Lenoir	1	0
Northern Nash	1	0
Southern Wayne	1	0
C.B. Aycock	2	1
Greene Central	0	1
Southern Nash	0	2
Hobpton	0	3

Twins Win To Wrap Up Title

By TOM SALADINO

Associated Press Sports Writer

Tony Oliva quickly ended any no-hit thoughts by Oakland and Jim Holt put the finishing touch to the A's as the Minnesota Twins wrapped up their second successive American League West title.

The Twins, denied clinching the West race Monday night when rookie left-hander Vida Blue of the A's tossed a no-hitter, didn't waste any time Tuesday night.

After a leadoff walk, Oliva drilled his 23rd home run for a 2-0 Minnesota edge in the first inning and Holt drove in two more in the sixth inning with a bases-loaded single as the Twins swept to a 5-3 victory over runner-up Oakland. The Twins hold an 8½-game edge with only eight games to play.

Minnesota will open the best-of-5 playoff series at home against East champion Baltimore on Oct. 3.

In other AL action, the Orioles took their 100th victory of the campaign, trouncing Detroit 10-2, New York edged Washington 2-1, Milwaukee trimmed California 4-2, Boston slugged Cleveland 8-2 and Kansas City swept a pair from Chicago 2-1, 6-2.

In the National League, New York edged Philadelphia 7-6, Montreal and Pittsburgh split a doubleheader, the Expos taking the first 1-0 before dropping the nightcap 3-1, Atlanta shaded San Diego 3-2, Cincinnati topped Houston 6-5, Los Angeles blanked San Francisco 1-0 and Chicago at St. Louis was postponed by rain.

Oliva, who also singled and doubled, helped build another run in the seventh, stroking a two-out double, stealing third and coming in on Rich Reese's hit. Winner Jim Kaat, 13-10, went five innings, allowing one run and six hits. Chuck Dobson, 16-14, took the loss.

Andy Etchebarren drove in six runs with a single, double and homer in the Orioles romp. It was the Tigers' sixth straight loss.

Jerry Kenney capped a two-run New York fifth inning with a run-scoring single, giving the Yanks their fifth triumph in a row. It was Washington's fifth consecutive loss.

Tommy Harper's 30th homer, a two-run shot in the seventh, carried the Brewers to their victory over the Angels. Harper became the fifth major league player to hit at least 30 homers and steal more than 30 bases in a season.

Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli ripped two-run homers for the sizzling Red Sox, who captured their seventh straight in knocking out 20-game winner Sam McDowell of the Indians. It was No. 33 for Conigliaro and 29 for Petrocelli.

Football can, at times, be a funny game.

In my four years at Duke, I had the privilege of associating with one of the finest men in the history of college football. I'm speaking, of course, of Coach Bill Murray, who not only possessed a great football mind, but was a wonderful person as well. He did his job thoroughly, with very little fanfare.

Those days with Bill Murray also produced many humorous moments.

I remember on game...we were playing South Carolina, I think...and Ace Parker was on the phones upstairs. Coach Murray had a habit of grabbing the phone down the field and asking Ace where the ball was...to spot it exactly so he could call the play he wanted. The conversation went something like this:

"Where are we, Ace?"

"We're on the 45," came Parker's reply.

"Whose 45?" Coach Murray would shout, because he liked people to be specific.

"Our 45, coach," came the reply from upstairs.

We ran a play and gained about five yards.

"Where are we now, Ace?" asked Coach Murray.

"On the 50, coach."

"Damn it, whose 50?" bellowed Coach Murray.

Ace Parker didn't know how to answer that one.

The respect and discipline Coach Murray demanded from all who played under him comes to light in two other stories.

We were playing State and at halftime we had almost 70 yards in penalties, mostly due to clipping. Coach Murray was furious.

"The next man who is called for a personal foul is through for the season," said the coach just before we went back on the field.

The second half was just two minutes old when Dwight Bumgarner, one of our tackles, was called for clipping. Coach Murray yanked him out.

"What in the world are you doing?" stormed the coach. "Didn't you hear what I said?"

Bumgarner, who weighed about 240 pounds, stood there on the sidelines, shifting his feet nervously, his head hanging.

"Aw coach," said Bumgarner. "It wasn't my fault. He turned his back to me just as I was getting ready to kick him."

But the best story of all, I think, is told on Sonny Jurgenson, when he was Coach Murray's quarterback. In those days Coach Murray would throw the ball early in the game, but when it got to be the fourth quarter and we were ahead, it was time to be conservative. Under those circumstances, Coach Murray wouldn't think of passing. It was strictly sit-on-the-ball time. It was a Bill Murray rule you didn't dare break.

One day we were playing Clemson and Jurgy was at quarterback for us. It was late in the game and we were leading by three points.

For some reason, Jurgenson called a pass play.

That was his first mistake. The second was throwing the pass right into the arms of a Clemson defensive back. Now this particular Clemson defender also happened to be an ACC track star. And when he intercepted that pass, he took off like a jet — with an uninterrupted view of our goal line some 60 yards ahead.

Now, if Sonny Jurgenson had one weakness it is that he never was a track star. In fact, you might say Jurgy was a little slow. That's why it shocked everybody in the stadium when Sonny Jurgenson, the only man who had a chance to tackle the Clemson man and save the day for Duke, actually overtook the man with the ball from behind and brought him to the ground.

The Duke defense held and we won the game. In the dressing room afterward, a sportswriter buttonholed Jurgenson.

"You knew that man was the fastest guy on the field today. Did you ever doubt that you'd catch him?" asked the writer.

"Easy," said Jurgy. "That Clemson back was just running for the game — winning touchdown. I was running for my life."

Girl with the answers.

As one of Veeco's Customer Service Representatives, Stefani Gendron can answer almost any question about your account in a matter of seconds. And the question asked most often recently is this: "Why was my summer bill higher than usual?" The reason, as Stefani can tell you, is threefold:

1: Because of increased costs of fuel, environmental controls, labor, freight and interest, Veeco has just been granted its first rate increase in 17 years.

2: Under the new rates, there is a higher charge for electricity in the summer than in the winter because the higher summer demand requires the use of expensive production facilities not fully utilized during the balance of the year. (Bills vary, too, from customer to customer, depending on the amount of electricity used by each customer, and how he uses it.)

And 3: Some communities have increased the tax they place on your electric bill.

With all these factors occurring at once, your summer bill was higher than usual. Veeco, and all the Stefani Gendrons, can understand your concern. So if you have a question regarding your bill, please call one of the Customer Service Representatives in your area. She'll be glad to help.

Physiologist Joins Faculty

DR. D.H. HAYEK

Dr. Dean Harrison Hayek has been appointed associate professor of physiology in the East Carolina University Division of Medical Sciences.

Director of Health Affairs, Dr. Edwin Monroe said that Dr. Hayek will serve on the core faculty for development of a two-year medical school at ECU.

A native of Waukesha, Wisconsin, Dr. Hayek was previously a staff member of the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond. His function there involved curriculum development as well as teaching, research and committee work.

Dr. Hayek received his undergraduate degree from the University of Wisconsin and advanced degrees from the University of Tennessee.

Given $9,000 Grant Participate For Rehabilitation In Freshman Week Roles

A grant of $9,000 has been awarded to the East Carolina University School of Education by the North Carolina Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

The funds will be used to engage the services of two rehabilitation experts who will provide consultation and research expertise for the Division.

Dr. Sheldon Downes, director

While at Tennessee, he studied under Dr. Samuel R. Tipton and participated in summer research at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Dr. Hayek is a member of the American Institute of Biological Sciences, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, The American Society of Zoologists and the Society of Sigma Xi.

ECU's vocational rehabilitation program, and Dr. Paul Alston, a member of his staff, will assist the Division in its continuing education program for rehabilitation counselors.

The funds are to be used during the academic year 1970-71.

Dr. Downes noted that the total funds for East Carolina's vocational rehabilitation program, consisting of an earlier award from the federal government and the recent award from the N.C. Division, amount to $85,029.

This is the largest combined grant ever received by the ECU School of Education for a program.

Begin Merge Teacher Units

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The North Carolina Association of Educators, formed this summer from separate black and white teachers groups, is beginning to merge local teacher units.

Jerry D. Paschal of Goldsboro, NCAE president, said Tuesday that several local units of the old North Carolina Education Association and the North Carolina Teachers Association have joined. Under terms of the merger agreement finalized under direction of the National Education Association, the local units must join by July.

Paschal, superintendent of the Goldsboro city schools, was in Winston-Salem for a meeting of about 500 teachers from Forsyth, Yadkin, Surry and Stokes counties.

Sloppy Procedures Apparent In Handling Valuable Food Stamps

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Government food stamp officials say local welfare procedures are so bad in some areas printed cards authorizing purchases of the valuable coupons lie around openly for anyone to steal.

In some cases, say Agriculture Department sources, local food stamp workers have certified ineligible or fictitious low-income families with intentions of pocketing profits from bootlegged stamps.

Illegal or sloppy procedures have become so prevalent that the Nixon administration has served notice on state and local agencies to shape up or risk losing one of the country's best known antipoverty programs.

Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin warned of the crack-down Monday night at the Southern Governors' Conference in Biloxi, Miss.

"We have come upon widespread evidence of weak, careless and sometimes fraudulent administration," Hardin said.

"This is a situation that cannot and will not be tolerated."

James E. Springfield, head of USDA Food stamp operations, said Tuesday a number of cases are under investigation, some by local authorities, others by grand juries and all by the department in one way or another.

Thus far, Springfield told a reporter, the department has no plans to withdraw food stamps from any specific communities.

Hardin did not name any state or community in his Biloxi speech. Department sources said, however, that operations in Chicago, Philadelphia and San Antonio, Texas, are on the check list.

The food stamp program, developed as an antipoverty weapon since the early 1960s, has grown rapidly since the Nixon administration took office.

Under pressure from within the administration and Congress, the Agriculture Department has extended food stamps to 6.9 million persons this summer, double a year ago.

Food stamps are sold to eligible low-income families to boost their buying power at grocery stores.

For example, a family of four with an income of around $100 a month can pay $25 for stamps worth $106 at supermarkets.

Safe Handling Of Guns Given Special Stress

The Pitt County Safety Council, meeting this month heard a report from the National Shooting Sports Foundation on safe gun handling and firearms instruction for youngsters.

According to the Foundation, in an effort to prevent accidents involving firearms, hundreds of young people will be trained this fall through the work of four newspapers which are sponsoring "Young Hunter Safety Clinics."

During the clinics, the youngsters are given one or two days of practical field training and then must pass written examinations, the Foundation reported.

As a community service, The Detroit News began its clinics in 1963 and now trains 750 young hunters each September. Approximately 500 local sportsmen serve as instructors, range officials and in other services. Each youngster must be accompanied by a parent.

The Detroit news program emphasizes correct gun handling of firearms in addition to archery and conservation. Youngsters passing the course are awarded a certificate which qualifies them to purchase a hunting license.

The Foundation this year provided a field man to assist midwestern newspapers which wished to start similar programs. As a result, there will be new hunter safety programs this fall under the sponsorship of The Kansas City-Kansas, the Wichita Eagle-Beacon and the Columbia Daily Tribune (Mo.).

All of the American manufacturers of sporting firearms package a brochure on safety with each new gun, the Foundation added. Five rules of firearms safety are emphasized.

The true sportsman, it points out, (1) treats his gun with respect and is careful where he points the muzzle, (2) keeps the safety on until ready to fire, is positive of his target and never shoots at water or hard flat surface, (3) loads gun only when in the field or on range and never climbs or jumps over obstacles with a loaded gun, (4) unloads gun when not in use, and (5) keeps equipment in excellent condition.

The Foundation asserted that hunting accidents could be reduced if more hunters would wear hunter orange, a fluorescent color which possibly shows up better in more varied light conditions than any other color.

The report said that extensive tests by the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Game, the U. S. Army and Harvard scientists in the early 60's proved that hunter orange could be seen at dusk, dawn and in shadows when other colors appeared black or blurred into the landscape.

In 1962, Massachusetts passed a mandatory law requiring deer hunters to wear 200 square inches of hunter orange and the first year results showed no fatal deer hunting accidents where visibility was a factor and hunters wore the regulation color. The same has held true in succeeding years.

In an attempt to standardize any mandatory hunter orange laws states which wish this type of legislation. The Foundation has written a "Model Hunter-Safety Training Bill" as a guide for states which wish this type of legislation.

The emphasis on getting more sportsmen to wear hunter orange has been aimed primarily at the big game hunters but the foundation points out that the color is also important in upland shooting.

Hunters seeking quail grouse, rabbits and woodcock often work through heavy cover. Where the hunter orange color is worn, it was noted, a hunter can more easily keep up with members of his own hunting party and also see other parties at a distance and stay a safe range away.

'Risk Analysis' On Earthquakes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A leading architectural and engineering firm in earthquake-conscious Southern California offers a "risk analysis" service which determines potential earthquake damage to older buildings. Developed by A.C. Martin & Associates, Los Angeles, the analysis tells the building owner the probability of damage from tremors of various intensities, pinpoints areas of the building most susceptible to damage, and estimates probable costs of repair. Risk analysis may make earthquake insurance practical for the first time. Most insurance companies either reject such insurance outright or set premiums exorbitantly high for lack of sufficient information to negotiate a realistic policy.

Medical Texts 'Translated' To Fill A Gap

By NAOMI ROCK
AP News Features Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "We don't consider it a do-it-yourself manual," said the petite, dark-haired young woman. "Usually sexual problems are only symptomatic of something else, and professional help is needed to cure the basic problem."

"We wrote the book," said her tall, distinguished looking companion, "to remedy what Masters and Johnson say is the most frequent cause of sexual dysfunction—lack of knowledge. The book won't replace the Masters' and Johnson's texts," Fred Belliveau continued. "But we feel that all married couples, even if they have a good sexual relationship, can gain something from it."

Belliveau, general manager of Little, Brown Co.'s medical division, edited "Human Sexual Response" and "Human Sexual Inadequacy," Masters' and Johnson's two ponderous medical texts that became best sellers.

Now, he and Lin Richter, medical division editor, have produced a readable, informative "translation" of the sexologists' texts: "Understanding Human Sexual Inadequacy."

Written at the request of Dr. William Masters and Mrs. Virginia Johnson, the 256-page paperback describes the sexologists' background, research, findings and two week therapy program at their St. Louis foundation.

The book, say Masters and Johnson in the foreword, "brings reassurance to the great number of people in this country who suffer from sexual dysfunction (a term used to describe a sexual problem)...It supplies information which reflects established sexual fact rather than myth or misconception. It should help many people to achieve a new level of understanding about sex and to lead happier lives."

The Belliveau-Richter "translation" describes how both men and women react physically, psychologically and emotionally during sexual intercourse; details the main problems that Masters and Johnson encountered in their 13-year study of sex, and explains how the sexologists treat these problems—with a 75 to 80 per cent success rate.

"Masters and Johnson estimate that perhaps 50 per cent American marriages have serious sexual problems or are on the verge of having them," Mrs. Richter said. "Women in particular suffer from these hangups. 'Sex,' she continued, "can be considered honorable or dishonorable, beautiful or dirty. From young childhood, women have been taught that sex is okay for boys, but that nice girls don't do that sort of thing. So when she begins to have sex, married or not, she's forcing herself to turn off years-long training."

"Masters and Johnson are saying that women should be allowed to honor their sexuality just as men do." It's not women alone who suffer from sexual inadequacies and fears, Belliveau added, explaining that repressive parents, fear-inspiring religious taboos and unpleasant early sexual experiences often make men sexually dysfunctional.

"No matter which partner has the problem to begin with," Belliveau explains, "Masters and Johnson treat both the man and the woman, because sexual tensions are bound to affect the marriage adversely. The therapists' goal is to convince the couple that sex is a natural, pleasurable experience, that they will get pleasure by giving it, and that all they have to do is relax."

Listening to Belliveau and Mrs. Richter talk is almost like hearing the experts themselves. "We've been reading medical texts for so many years that Masters' and Johnson work is second nature to us," said Mrs. Richter. "What's difficult for the general public are medical words, which to us are working language."

Now that they've written a book on "sex" how do family and friends react? "It's too soon to tell," said Mrs. Richter of her friends, noting that the book had just been published. "My husband is a doctor and he was very helpful."

"My wife," said Belliveau, "was very enthusiastic about the need for such a book. My children (age 12 and 15) are very sophisticated. I've read a lot of the book aloud. Like any kids they made jokes, but all in all they have a good sense of sex in perspective."

Tire Gauges Are Now 'In'

FORT AMADOR, Canal Zone, Panama (AP) — Swagger sticks went the way of the horse cavalry in the U.S. Army a long time ago. But at Ft. Amador, the officers and the senior enlisted men carry shiny, metal tire gauges.

"The tire gauge business is sort of a gimmick," says Maj. Gen. Chester Johnson, who thought of the idea. He heads the U.S. Army Forces Southern Command, which totals just under 10,000 men. That includes the 193rd Infantry Brigade, which is charged with the defense of the Panama Canal.

"This is the third command in which I've used them. They're a mean of reminding senior officers and noncoms of the importance of material readiness for combat readiness."

To a visitor, the officers and sergeants major carrying the foot-long tire gauges might appear to be on their way to an advanced class in automobile mechanics. But Johnson says they aren't just for show. After all, the gauges are official government issue.

"Oh, we use them all right," says the general. His gauge sports the unit's crest, the two stars of his rank and has his name engraved on the side.

"I take mine with me on inspections. I'll lend my two-star tire gauge to a soldier with the rank of private so he can make an infallible check of his vehicle's tire pressure. The troops get a kick out of it."

A Blessing And Danger

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Bees are both a blessing and a danger to man says Carl E. Killion, who has been superintendent of the division of apiary inspection for 33 years in Illinois.

"Life on this planet would be almost impossible without the honey bee," he said. However, he warned, "More Americans are killed by members of the bee family than by snakes and spiders combined."

Killion estimated that the honey bee added at least $50 million to agriculture in Illinois in 1969. He said they pollinate more than 50 kinds of food and farm crops.

But for all the good he does, the bee is a member of the insect group hymenoptera (bees, wasps, hornets, ants) which caused 50 per cent of 460 deaths from bites and stings observed in a 10-year study. An allergic reaction to insect venom can vary from minor itching to death. Symptoms may range from dizziness to headaches, abdominal cramps and extreme nausea, Killion said.

Thief Repaired 20 Times Over

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Years after stealing from a local store, an anonymous shoplifter repaired the management 20 times over.

Store manager J. H. Diederichs received a letter saying: "Dear Sir: A few years ago I pinched something in your shop worth 50 cents (70 U.S. cents). Will you please forgive me. I send you Rands 10 ($14) for it. I am very sorry. Will never do it again. Mrs. A."

Gambling $2.5 Million On Danny Thomas Show

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is there room in the new "relevant" television season for a new-old situation comedy about a family?

Tuesday Night Programs Stay

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC did so well last season with its Tuesday night schedule, it wisely left the programs alone this season. All three series between 7:30 and 11 came back with new material Tuesday night.

"Mod Squad," returning for its third year, opened with what can be identified as a typical "Mod Squad" tale. This time Pete, played by Michael Cole, hit a girl with his car while pursuing a suspect. In his guilt and concern, he became romantically involved with her during her convalescence. Then he learned that she probably was part of a gang of burglars.

Members of the squad are forever falling in love and the love affairs are always terminated at the end of the episode. In this case the girl was killed in the final shootout.

Fans of the program will find it pretty much the same as last year except that all three of the young stars are considerably more tomentose.

"How Awful About Allan," a suspense thriller, opened the season for the 90-minute "Movie of the Week." It was a story of a man suffering psychosomatic blindness resulting from guilt feelings in his father's death in a fire. The man, Allan, is treated in a mental hospital and returns to the family home to live with his sister, horribly scarred in the fire. Almost immediately he starts seeing, with his blurred vision, shadowy shapes and hearing whispered voices.

The program followed the tradition of the gothic tales, a nice change from the TV tendency to burlesque old-fashioned horror tales.

Kindergarten Sum Sought

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, outlines a request today for about $20 million to expand North Carolina's kindergarten program during the next biennium.

He goes before the Advisory Budget Commission which is holding hearings on budget requests by state agencies, departments and institutions for the 1971-73 biennium. Late this fall the commission will prepare budget recommendations for presentation to the 1971 legislature.

Phillips has said he hopes to expand the kindergarten program during the next biennium to include about 25 per cent of all North Carolina 5-year-olds.

About 320 children who participated in the state's first eight demonstration kindergartens from last December to May have shown considerable improvement, officials said.

Their scores on a national test jumped from the bottom third to the top third of children their age.

VC Saboteurs Damage Vessel

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. freighter unloading ammunition at Cam Ranh Bay was damaged today by an explosive charge apparently set off by Viet Cong saboteurs, the U.S. Command said.

No casualties were reported. But the ship, the 8,205-ton Amerigo, had to be towed aground for repairs.

The Amerigo, chartered by the Military Sea Transport Service from Crest Overseas Shipping Co. of New York, began to leak oil and list heavily, the spokesman said.

There was no indication that any ammunition had blown up.

plus that there will be. Tonight marks the debut of "Make Room for Granddaddy," a curious rebirth of one of the great successes of television history. Reviving a series isn't unique—"Dragnet" made it. But placing of a family comedy in this season's schedule runs counter to the trend of making a series relevant to today's America.

"Make Room for Daddy" later "The Danny Thomas Show" chronicled a nightclub comedian's family and had about as much relation to average Americans as say, Frank Sinatra's life style.

"This time it will be different," said Thomas during a rehearsal break at Paramount Gower studio. "Of course Danny Williams is not a normal American father, because he makes his living as a nightclub comic.

"But the family itself will be concerned with all the things that are facing American families today. These are subjects that we never could have hinted at in the first series.

"This season it's all changed. The censor just says, 'Go right ahead.' The only thing he asked was that we don't use four-letter words."

Thomas detailed some of the plot lines in the new series: Danny Williams is signed for a movie role, then learns he must play a love scene—in the nude. How does his family react?

The Williams daughter helps a couple move into their new apartment. The couple is unmarried. What is Danny's reaction?

Danny hires a new piano accompanist, a black. How do Danny and his family respond to entertaining a Negro in their home?

Relevant? It seems to be, compared to family comedies of yesteryear—"Lucy, what have you done now?" "Hi, Harriet, what's for dinner?"

Lands Thursday

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's Luna 16 rocket and its cargo of moon rocks will land Thursday in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan, Tass said today.

The official Soviet news agency report ended speculation that the rocket might splashdown in the Indian Ocean.

Tass said "all onboard systems are functioning normally." The rocket was 115,000 miles from the earth at 4:40 a.m. EDT.

Luna 16 was launched Sept. 12 and landed on the moon Sunday. It scooped up some moon rocks, did some probing with a drill, and lifted off from the moon Monday, Tass said.

Will Speak At Revival Anti-Smoking Broadcasts Must Go On After Commercials Ended

DR. O. T. SPENCE

Revival services will begin tonight at 7:30 at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church, Rt. 3, Greenville. Services will continue each night through Sunday, Sept. 27.

Guest minister for the revival is Dr. O. T. Spence of Greenville, S. C. Dr. Spence is presently the vice president of Holmes Theological Seminary. He has pastored churches in Sharon, Pa., Hopewell, Va., and Washington, D. C. He also is an outstanding musician, having composed many sacred songs and several cantatas. He is at the present completing work on his second doctorate degree which he will receive from Bob Jones University.

The church choir and other special groups will be featured each night. Pastor R. M. Stewart invites the public to attend.

H is the chemical symbol for hydrogen.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-smoking broadcasts, required since 1967 to counteract cigarette commercials, must continue after the commercials end in January, says a top federal communications lawyer.

"We will have to have some transitional period," said Henry M. Geller, general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, in an interview.

Geller declined to estimate how long the "transition" might take but indicated antismoking broadcasts might be required as long as smoking-versus-health remains a public issue.

Television and radio broadcasters say this leaves them with a curious puzzle.

When he carried cigarette commercials, the broadcaster was required by the FCC to add anticigarette announcements under its "fairness doctrine" re-

Advocates Early Indoctrination

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Entertainer Art Linkletter says youngsters should start receiving instruction on the dangers of drug use in the second grade.

"Most educators do not know much about drugs and unfortunately do not want to know about drugs," he told a gathering of educators Tuesday. "They hope the problem will go away. It won't go away."

Linkletter's 20-year-old daughter Diane died nearly a year ago in a plunge from an apartment house window. Linkletter attributed it to her experiments with the drug LSD.

quiring balanced presentation of controversial issues. How can he now carry only one side of the issue—this time the antismoking side—without violating that same doctrine and perhaps jeopardizing his broadcast license?

Geller suggested a way. Smoking may be so widely seen as a health hazard, he said, that the subject is no longer "controversial" and therefore no longer subject to the

Kenton And Wife Divorced

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Band-leader Stan Kenton, 58, and his estranged wife Jo Ann, 39, have been divorced and she has been awarded $34,000 alimony to be paid over the next 30 months.

Superior Court Judge Charles G. Stratton granted the uncontested divorce Tuesday after Mrs. Kenton testified there were irreconcilable differences between the two.

They were married July 6, 1967, in Las Vegas, Nev., and had been separated since May 23, 1969, the court said.

Mrs. Kenton, the musician's third wife, also was awarded 50 per cent of profits from two movies Kenton has made.

FCC "fairness doctrine." Geller said the broadcaster may be required to continue presenting the antismoking side "under the general public interest standard."

"He has a duty to inform the public," said Geller. "If cigarettes continue to cause death, that can't be ignored."

"It could be through public service announcements," he added, "or he might do it by network coverage, documentaries, one-minute spots—he would have discretion."

A law passed last spring bans all cigarette commercials from television and radio effective Jan. 2.

Geller said the FCC has not yet established official policy

Britain Reports Cholera Case

LONDON (AP) — The first cholera case in Britain in more than 60 years was reported Tuesday night by the Ministry of Health.

Authorities said the victim was a 57-year-old man who returned to Wales 10 days ago from a vacation in Tunisia.

They said he had caught the El Tor strain of cholera, which is now spreading through the Middle East and North Africa.

beyond that point and has not been asked to do so.

In the absence of official policy, he said, the broadcaster can only "make a good faith, honest judgment and hope he's correct on it. If he wants guidance we'll be glad to supply it."

But Geller did offer this much guidance: the broadcaster could not bring an "abrupt" halt to antismoking announcements "the same day" the cigarette commercials end.

Geller said broadcasters need not worry about losing their licenses by guessing wrong on their next move.

"It doesn't put his license in jeopardy if it's a good faith judgment," he said. "The only time we've taken action against a license is where a violation is absolute and flagrant."

The ban on cigarette commercials means a loss of some $200 million to $250 million a year in revenue for the radio-TV industry.

The president of Mutual Broadcasting System, Victor C. Diehm, tried to rally a court challenge against the new law last May, but the proposal was killed a month later by the directors of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Opening lead: Five of ♣
In order to counter the efforts of an alert defense, South—the declarer at four spades—found it necessary to engage in a piecemeal campaign to draw one opponent's trumps.
West opened the five of hearts and East played the king. With the appearance of a singleton heart in dummy there was nothing to be gained by continuing that suit, and inasmuch as North's diamond holding would provide declarer with several discards once the trumps were drawn, it was essential that the defense develop their tricks without delay.

East accordingly shifted to a small club. West put up the ace and continued with the queen. The king was played from dummy and now South was obliged to take his discards at once to avoid the loss of a second club trick.
The ace and king of diamonds were cashed and a club was discarded by South on the second round, however when the dummy continued with the queen, East ruffed with the five of spades.
South overruffed with the queen and trumped a heart in dummy to put the jack of diamonds thru. East ruffed with the six of spades and declarer topped him with the king. The queen of hearts was trumped and the ten of diamonds was led. Fortunately for South, his opponent was out of spades and he was finally able to dispose of his remaining club.
A spade was led to drive out West's ace and declarer claimed the balance with high spades. In all, he lost one spade, one heart and one club.

They are fed pellets made of animal protein.

The Worry Clinic

Predetermined Sex Of Child?

Bill is now a prominent newspaper publisher in the West, who attributes his two sons to the scientific advice outlined below. For that advice has been verified repeatedly in the field of veterinary medicine. And hundreds of married couples have apparently predetermined the sex of their children likewise!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M. D.
CASE O-538: Bill X., aged 28, was a City Editor when I first met him.
At our luncheon, he mentioned his family.
"Dr. Crane," he said, "I have a lovely wife and two wonderful little girls, who are now 4 and 6 years of age.

"But we'd like to have a boy, too, so is there any way to order the sex of your children, in advance?"
Please distinguish clearly between sex diagnosis of an unborn baby, versus sex determination.
By analysis of uterine fluids and urine, we can score a very high batting average in telling whether the baby in the mother's womb is a boy or a girl.
But that is not what Bill wants. He desires to influence the sex of his next child IN ADVANCE.
And so do many families, for some parents will have 8 boys in a row and never get a girl.
Maybe down the block will be another couple who have 7 or 8 girls but never a boy.
There are various superstitious and voodoo methods that have come down from antiquity regarding sex determination. But the only simple and scientific method yet of value is the use of an appropriate alkaline or acid douche prior to mating.

A PITCHER OF WATER is emptied on Paul Fromm, member of the Edmund Burke Society, by William Kunstler, an attorney for the Chicago Seven. (UPI Telephoto)

Rightwing Activists In Edmund Burke Society

By DAVID COHEN
TORONTO (UPI)—On Oct. 12 "Chicago Seven" lawyer William Kunstler is due for trial in Toronto on charges of assault brought by two members of the Edmund Burke Society.

What, many will ask, is the Edmund Burke Society? Simply put, it is a three-year-old rightwing group that describes itself as similar to the John Birch Society in the United States but says it is "more activist." Its members believe in "counter demonstration."

If there's a protest march in Toronto against the war in Vietnam, or a peace vigil outside the U.S. consulate or a radical speaker addressing a meeting, Edmund Burkers will be there—waving flags, ready to fight for "western civilization and you!"

To anti-U.S. chants or songs such as "Give Peace a Chance," they roar back, "Reds Out!" or "Kill the Viet Cong!" or, more recently, "Let Spiro Speak!"

'Action, Not Word'
The society was formed, according to one of its three founders and present chairman, Donald Andrews, 28, to warn Canadians their country was being driven by its politicians "along the socialist trail."

The society says that leftwing activities—protest marches, peace demonstrations, even rock festivals—are condoned, and used, by politicians to achieve this goal.

Andrews explained in an interview with UPI: "It's their way of creating pressure from the bottom of society to allow them to go further along the socialist trail."

The society decided on a program of "action and not just words" as a counterforce.

Much of its program has been educational. Members speak at city schools, show movies with titles such as "Anarchy U.S.A." "Revolution Underway" (a public outcry last year stopped the showing of this film by Toronto police), and invite speakers to meetings.

Fighting Communism
But the Burkers do more than talk. They criticize the John Birch Society, in the words of Edmund Burke Society public relations officer Jeff Goodall, 21, as being "strictly educational... and that's not enough."

With a proud smile, Andrews told UPI, "I guess we have counterdemonstrated every major leftist demonstration in Toronto in the last three years." The results often have been violent and sometimes bloody.

In April at a banquet celebrating the centenary of Burke's birth, attended by the Russian ambassador to Canada, society members were present and refused to stand when a toast was proposed. In the fracas that followed, the Burkers and the Lenin-honorers fought it out with fists, chairs and bottles. The society claimed one of its members was stabbed. Police said he fell on some broken glass.

On May 9, in a demonstration in front of the U.S. consulate protesting the U.S. invasion of Cambodia and the student shootings at Kent State University, the society's counterdemonstrators clashed with the protester. Eleven Burkers were arrested and one was led away with a bleeding scalp. Eighty other demonstrators also were arrested.

Kunstler Scuffle Unclear
Predictably, the society made a showing June 22 at the University of Toronto's convocation hall where "Chicago Seven" lawyer Kunstler was speaking.

About 45 Burkers heckled Kunstler until he let one of them—Paul Fromm, 21, a student—come on stage to speak. Opinion vary on what happened next. What is clear is that Kunstler emptied a water pitcher over Fromm's head and a melee broke out. Kunstler was thrown to the stage floor. Fromm was later found unconscious, and was taken to the hospital and released after treatment for minor injuries.

Fromm and another society member, Alan Overfield, also 21, both laid assault charges against Kunstler, and it is that case that is due to be heard here Oct. 13.

"The trial will be very important," said Burke publicist Goodall. "We will see if we can rely on the courts for justice."

The trial also promises to be a publicity bonanza for the Burkers.

"You have to be dramatic," said Andrews of the Kunstler incident. "You don't get anywhere discussing things over a cup of coffee."

"But we didn't go to the Kunstler thing looking for a fight. We could have held that sgame—we had 45 members there—but only five of us were involved. We went there to heckle and maybe get five minutes to be heard."

Historical Influences
Fromm, who is working for a masters degree in medieval studies at the University of Toronto, founded the society along with Andrews and an Ottawa school teacher, Leigh U. Smith, 31.

They say they took the name of the 18th century English parliamentarian and philosopher Edmund Burke to symbolize their conservative attitudes.

Society critics have, however, pointed out that Burke's writings run contrary to a number of the society's stands. For instance, the group argues that the Nixon administration is committing "a kind of treason" by not bombing North Vietnam into submission to "win the war."

Burke once wrote, however, that "The use of force is but temporary. It may subdue for a moment, but it does not remove the necessity of subduing again; and a nation is not governed, which is perpetually to be conquered."

Using such reasoning, Burke advised King George III to negotiate with the rebellious American colonists rather than try to suppress them by force. "We use the name strictly as a symbol," said a society member, Jaanus Proos, 20. "Simply, we believe in individualism, hard work, a sense of history, morality and personal pride. And we know that a price has to be paid for freedom."

The society was formed in March of 1967 because its founders, according to Burke literature, were "profoundly disturbed by the continuing career of red imperialism, the official toleration of its fifth column activities in Canada, and appeasement of that imperialism by our home-grown defeatists."

Would Quit Public Life

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay says he is not interested in running for president and expects to retire from public office at the expiration of his second City Hall term in December 1973.

While denying that he was tired of being mayor, Lindsay told a news conference Tuesday:

"I've run six times—eight times if you include primaries. That's enough running."

Lindsay was a four-term congressman before entering his first mayoral campaign.

Pressed to be specific on his future plans, Lindsay said it was his present intention to leave elective public service at the end of his term.

"I may have to work for a living," the mayor joked. "Wouldn't that be terrible?"

Asked about reports that some Democratic leaders see him as a potential presidential candidate of their party, Lindsay said he was not interested.

"No, sir," he declared. "No possibility. I don't have the inclination personally, neither is it viable politically."
