

Victory Along Northern Frontier

Amman Says 5,000 Surrender

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fierce Jordanian army attacks were reported to have broken Palestinian resistance in northern Jordan today and Amman radio said 5,000 guerrillas have surrendered.

New fighting broke out in Amman, Jordan's capital, and in the outskirts. But the fighting was not expected to halt the evacuation of Americans and others from Amman. A chartered Middle East Airlines plane was due in Amman to bring out 100 Americans and others.

In the north, where the Jordanian army reported it drove out invaders from Syria Wednesday, Palestine guerrilla resistance was broken, Israeli observers across the border reported.

The fighting centered in and around Irbid, Jordan's second largest city 50 miles north of Amman. Israeli observers said the Jordanian army opened up with a heavy artillery barrage.

They said that after the shelling ended, Jordanian troops pursued the guerrillas. One source described the activity as a "pogrom," and said the guerrillas were afraid and were giving up.

The main Syrian force withdrew across the border, the informants said, and was centered near Deraa in southern Syria. It left behind 25 damaged or destroyed tanks and a number of armored personnel carriers, they reported.

In Irbid, 50 miles north of Amman, the guerrillas said the 6th Royal Artillery Battalion was firing indiscriminately at the town, "but our fighters are holding fast and their morale is high."

Jordanian troops claim they drove Syrian forces from the Irbid area Wednesday with a tank-led two pronged assault and inflicted heavy casualties.

Guerrilla broadcasts from Damascus, the Syrian capital, said the commandos had pulled back some forces from Irbid as a tactical move. The guerrillas said they still dominated the city of Ramtha, 10 miles east of Irbid.

In Amman, the government radio announced that a dawn-to-dusk curfew would be lifted in different parts of the city for four-hour stretches so that the International Red Cross could step up its efforts to care for the wounded.

The broadcast warned residents to be wary of mines in the streets and report their discovery to the army.

The leader of a four-man Arab peace delegation returned to Cairo from Jordan today and called on King Hussein to "stop the fighting immediately."

"In the name of all Arabs and leaders meeting in Cairo," Sudanese leader Maj. Gen. Jaafar el Numairi said in a message distributed by the Middle East news agency, "I ask you to respect what we agreed upon in order to protect our nation against any foreign intervention."

used the delegation of collaborating with King Hussein to "liquidate" the Palestinian guerrillas.

Through its Beirut newspaper Al Hadaf, the front said the Arab leaders "fell into an unbelievable harmony with Hussein's bid for an outright annihilation of the guerrilla movement."

It was referring to the four-point cease-fire agreement concluded in Amman Wednesday between Hussein and a group of captured guerrilla leaders under the auspices of the summit mission. The agreement was an attempt to lay the groundwork for coexistence between the king and the leading guerrilla group, Al Fatah, under the umbrella of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Leftist guerrilla groups, including the Popular Front were left out.

Unveil Cancer Machine

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Cancer victims soon will be treated by a revolutionary system that shoots radiation into patients by remote control.

Dr. Carl F. von Eschen says he and associates at the University of California developed the system to overcome one of radiotherapy's toughest problems—getting radiation to a cancerous area without destroying intervening tissue.

"The instrument shoots small beads of radioactive cobalt into patients through thin metal or plastic tubes," he said Wednesday in an interview. "The beads are moved through the tubing and positioned at the cancer site by a series of cables operated by remote control."

Development of the system took three years and was done in collaboration with Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., said von Eschen, professor of radiology and director of the division of radiotherapy at the University of California San Diego Medical School.

"The entire treatment takes only a few minutes," he said, "and it can be done on an outpatient basis."

The machine, covered with lead to protect the patient and the operator, has three tubes which are inserted in body cavities such as the mouth, rectum and urinary tract, von Eschen said.

"But it can also be used in other areas by introducing the tubes into the body through surgery," he added. The cobalt beads or pellets, he said, are "about the size of a small pebble" and are positioned in the patient's body by technicians in a radiation-free area.

Third Day Of Limited Power On East Coast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hot and humid weather forced power cutbacks in the Middle Atlantic states for the third successive day today, and more appeals were made for voluntary restrictions on the use of electricity.

With weather forecasters predicting 90-degree heat in New York city—withdrawing their earlier prediction that the heat wave would be eased slightly—Consolidated Edison Co. put a 5 per cent voltage reduction into effect at 9:30 a.m.

New Jersey's four major utilities took similar action this morning despite restoration of service at two large generators whose breakdowns contributed to the crisis. The Philadelphia Electric Co., also reduced power by 5 per cent.

The Potomac Electric Power Co. issued what it called an "urgent message" to its customers in Washington, D. C., and parts of Virginia and Maryland, then reduced voltage by 5 per cent.

Saying that "an emergency exists again today," Potomac urged all customers to curtail use of electricity wherever possible.

The power reductions or "brownouts" affected the area from New England to the Carolinas. Millions of people turned out lights and turned off air conditioners to cooperate with conservation pleas.

Eastern N.C. Organizes Zoo Committee

RALEIGH (AP) — Eastern North Carolinians have formed the Central Zoological Park Committee to work for location of a proposed state zoo in their part of the state.

Similar committees have already been established in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg area and the Piedmont Triad of Winston-Salem, Greensboro and High Point.

Proposals from the committees will be reviewed by the North Carolina Zoological Authority in November. The site which is selected will be submitted to the 1971 General Assembly for funding.

Possible sites mentioned informally at Wednesday's eastern organizational meeting included Granville County and the Lee-Chatham-Harnett county area.

Money Problem Looms

RALEIGH (AP) — The present slowdown in North Carolina's economy likely will present the 1971 General Assembly with money problems.

Gov. Bob Scott raised this possibility today when he told his news conference he expects the state's surplus next June 30 to be lower than it was this year. He said it could drop below $100 million.

Scott pointed out that the surplus of $118 million last June 30 was less than it was a year before.

Scott noted that some 7,500 textile workers are without jobs, some textile mills are on a short work week and some have closed down as he pointed to a "substantial slowdown in our economy."

He said he expects this to be reflected in lower revenue collections early next year or the last part of this year.

For this reason, Scott said he does not look for an increase in the state's surplus and "I think it will be somewhat lower as of this moment."

In answer to another question at his news conference, Scott called for "tough" legislation to conserve North Carolina's water supply in order to assure an adequate supply for future needs.

Scott was asked for comment on the recent ruling by a Superior Court judge that state funds cannot be spent legally for the transportation of city school children. Scott reiterated his opinion that if the ruling is allowed to stand it could mean an end to free transportation for rural children as well. Scott noted that the ruling is being appealed to the State Supreme Court.

Airliner Safe After Explosion

LONDON (AP) — An explosion ripped a hole in the fuselage of an Irish airliner bound for New York today. The Boeing 707 jet, carrying 122 persons, made a safe emergency landing at Heathrow Airport.

No injuries were reported. First reports of the incident on the Aer Lingus plane did not indicate the cause of the explosion.

Crash truckers stood by as the aircraft landed 25 minutes after taking off from Heathrow. There was a hole about 3 feet by 2 feet in the first-class passenger section of the fuselage.

Passengers were quickly evacuated to a terminal building. The aircraft carried 112 passengers and a crew of 10.

Blood Collections Continue To Fall Short Of Quota For County

Yesterday's and Tuesday's collection of blood for the Pitt County Bloodmobile fell drastically short of expectations, according to chairman Douglas Morgan.

Morgan reported on Tuesday only 57 pints were collected. Wednesday, the picture improved somewhat with a total of 93 pints being donated. "This means that we are 262 pints short," Morgan stated. "We wound up last year with a shortage, and are beginning this year with a shortage," he noted.

The two day collection drive was held at the Moose Lodge, and constituted the third and fourth blood drives for the year. "One thing is significant," Morgan commented, "We had 39 first time donors which is encouraging." He said that workers from Winterville Machine Works and Union Carbide were the largest donors, and expressed his appreciation for their concern.

"Another big boost in yesterday's more successful collection was the fact that 19 or 20 East Carolina University students showed up," Morgan said. "Dr. Thomas A. Chambliss had asked his class to donate for a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital who needs blood. These young people responded as they always do."

Morgan says the prospects for Pitt County continuing to have the county unit do not seem encouraging at this point. "We could be on the verge of losing our program," he said. "If we do, we will have to go on a credit card system."

He explained that under such a system, "only persons who are donors would be eligible to participate in the present program. Others would have to pay at the rate of $60 to $75 for a pint of blood, whereas the cost under the present program is $25 to $30 a pint, which is the cost of processing and laboratory fees."

"The loss of our program would be a tremendous one," Morgan remarked, "not only in blood but in dollars."

Pitt County, according to information furnished by the program headquarters, the Tidewater Blood Center in Norfolk, is the largest user of blood and blood derivatives in northeastern North Carolina.

"Considering this and the fact we are constantly falling far short of our quota, we are getting to a critical stage," Morgan asserted. "We must somehow find more people willing to give blood or face losing our program."

The next visit of the bloodmobile will be a two day one on October 26 and 27 at East Carolina University.

Morgan expressed appreciation to the Women of the Moose for handling the phones; to members of the Greenville Service League for their assistance; and to volunteer student nurses from ECU. All assisted at the two day collection at the Moose Lodge.

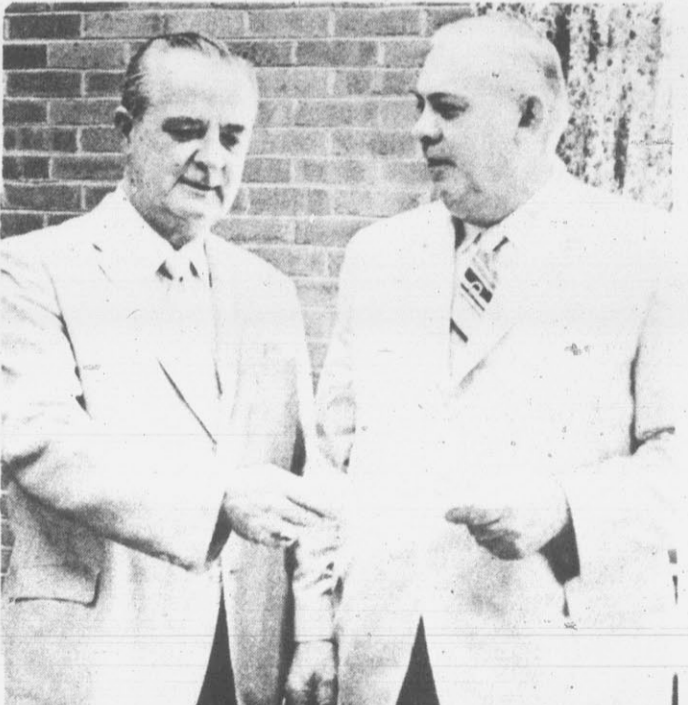

Will Not Impose

PARIS (AP) — The United States formally replied today to the Viet Cong's "new peace initiatives" by affirming that Washington "will not impose any government on the people of South Vietnam."

At the same time, Ambassador David K. E. Bruce said the United States "continues to favor withdrawal of all outside forces"—an answer to the Viet Cong's demand for a U.S. commitment to withdraw unilaterally from Vietnam by next June 30.

Last week, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh couped a June 30 withdrawal demand with that of replacing the present Saigon leaders in return for a cease-fire against American troops and negotiations on prisoners of war.

$10,000 Given To Foundation

FUNDS PRESENTED — A gift of $10,000 by the Bank of Winterville to the ECU Foundation is presented by bank president Don Langston to ECU president Dr. Leo Jenkins. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

The Bank of Winterville has made a gift of $10,000 to the East Carolina University Foundation as an indication of support of ECU programs and outreach and "to help the community" which the bank serves.

Don Langston, president of the bank, said, "We have always been a great supporter of East Carolina University and how that we have opened our Greenville branch we want the people of Greenville to know that we are a part of the community."

"We do not know of a better way to help the community than to support the Foundation at East Carolina University."

Accepting the gift, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECU president, said "We are very grateful to Mr. Langston and to Mr. Vernon White, chairman of the board of

Corpening New Co-Op Director

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott today announced the appointment of Wayne Corpening of Winston-Salem as director of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation.

Corpening, a senior vice president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., has been prominent in agricultural development for a number of years. He succeeds the late E. Y. Floyd of Raleigh.

Housing Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4 billion housing bill including money for government insurance in high-risk inner cities and to help pay the debts of mass transit systems has passed the Senate.

The bill requires President Nixon to make recommendations on a national urban growth policy and authorizes money to rebuild city slums, develop new communities, increase subsidies for public housing tenants and help poor families buy and rent homes.

Passage came Wednesday night on a 59-2 vote with only Sens. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., and John J. Williams, R-Del., dissenting.

The Senate earmarked $750 million for a five-year program of subsidies to mass transit lines. The money could be used for future deficits or for paying for equipment already in use.

The bill now goes to the House where similar legislation is nearing completion in the Banking Committee.

Rehabilitating Of 60 Houses Assigned Pupils

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Sixty inner city houses will be rehabilitated by Rochester high school pupils this year under a federally funded program.

The program, designed to keep youngsters in school, calls for half a day of class work and half a day of on-the-job training. The pupils are paid $1.85 an hour.

"The students selected are those who, for a variety of reasons, lack interest in the regular high school program and who are not preparing themselves either for college or vocationally for the world of work," said a spokesman for the program.

The government has granted $1 million to the city for training 350 youths in various work skills. About 100 will work on the 60 houses. The others will train in industries.

Tobacco Mart Slightly Down

Eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco prices were steady to slightly lower Wednesday, reports the Federal-State Market News Service.

Differences in grade averages from the previous sale amounted to generally $1 and $2 per hundred pounds with a few more losses than gains. Top price paid for untied offerings was reported as $93 per hundred for some choice leaf. However, one market sold some tied Wednesday for a top price of $104 per hundred pounds for fine lemon cutters.

Quality of marketings was similar to the Tuesday and almost three-fourths of sales consisted of various leaf grades. The volume remained heavy.

Covered Mall Shopping Center Plans Unveiled

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A development plan for a proposed covered mall shopping center of 268,000 square feet with eventual expansion to about 300,000 square feet, on the L. S. Hardee property adjacent to the intersection formed by U.S. 264 By-Pass and Fourteenth Street was presented to the Planning and Zoning Commission last night.

David A. Evans, Sr., assisted by David Fork and Arnold Stern of a firm from Newport News, Virginia, explained to commission members broad general plans for the proposed shopping center. It was noted that if it materializes, it would be Greenville's largest shopping center and would be similar to the North Hills Shopping Center in Raleigh.

Envisioned in the shopping center are a bank, a service center, two large stores, four department stores, a food store, drug store, and a variety store, with the possibility of a theater as a later addition, as well as store space for rental purposes.

Fork commented, "The property is large enough for what we have in mind. We feel it's an ideal location and are willing to put our money into it."

He also mentioned that modern concepts of shopping centers would form part of the planning.

Questions from the commission members on distances such a proposed center would be from Eastern Elementary School showed a separation of about 1200 feet, with the Cedar Lane recreation area of five acres being between the two. Access roads would be planned for a distance of about a thousand feet from the stop light at the intersection of 14th and the by-pass — to present constructing a second five points location in Greenville. There would be an access road from the by-pass and from 14th Street, to converge at Cedar Lane extension past the elementary school.

The role of the Planning and Zoning Commission in this plan is one of voting on rezoning that would be required as a preliminary step. This will require rezoning to C.S. (Shopping Center) of land now zoned R-9 residential, from the area of Eastern Elementary School to 14th Street bordering Reedy Branch; and from R-20 residential, for the area fronting along the by-pass.

The commission members approved a motion by Louis Singleton to table action by the commission pending a public hearing. His motion calls for a hearing next Tuesday, September 29, at 8:00 p.m. to study the proposal again before making a recommendation to the City Council. This will give citizens in the area an opportunity to voice their opinions on the proposed development prior to submitting a recommendation to the City Council.

The matter of Oakdale Subdivision, Section No. 1, entailed considerable discussion before it was decided to also postpone a recommendation by the commission to present to the City Council. This matter too will be taken up at the special meeting scheduled for next Tuesday night.

In discussion of the subdivision, it was revealed that the final plat had been recorded without approval of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The preliminary plat was approved on March 17, 1970 when John Moye was owner of the property. Present owners are Leroy Cherry and Pat Thomas.

The final plat also includes an (Continued On Page 12)

Reception Honors ECU's New Business Manager

East Carolina University President and Mrs. Leo Jenkins honored Clifton Moore, ECU's new business manager, at a dinner Tuesday night. Moore succeeded F. D. Duncan who retired in June.

Greeting the 70 guests with Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins and Mr. and Mrs. Moore were Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Moore of Raleigh, the Moores' daughter, Linda, of Raleigh and son, C. G. Moore of Rocky Mount.

The women were presented carnation corsages by the hostess. Mrs. David Middleton, Mrs. Robert Holt, Mrs. Ed. Monroe and Mrs. Douglas Jones assisted in serving the three course dinner.

Fall flowers decorated the Jenkins home. White carnations and yellow chrysanthemums, flanked with yellow tapers in silver candelabra, enhanced the dining room table.

AAUW Division Session To Be Held In October

The N. C. Division AAUW Convention will be held at the Durham Hotel and Motel Oct. 2-4. The theme for the meeting will be "Whose World?"

Keynote speakers will be Mrs. H. C. Donahue, AAUW travel speaker, Mrs. Cecil Gilliatt, AAUW regional vice president, and Dr. Jonnie McLeod.

The Oct. 19 UNICEF dinner was discussed at the meeting of the Greenville Branch of AAUW which was held in Erwin Hall Monday night. The dinner will coincide with the 25th anniversary of the United Nations. Dr. Robert Lee Humber will be the dinner speaker.

Mrs. Dorothy Johnson gave a summary of the "Follow Through Program" which several AAUW Branches throughout the state have worked with.

The Rev. William J. Hadden

Jr., Episcopal chaplain at ECU, spoke to the group on "The Academic Community--New Look on Campus." He based many of his remarks on Margaret Mead's book "Culture and Commitment."

Guests for the evening were Mrs. Edith Rand, Mrs. Marilyn Gordley, Mrs. Marcia Eakes, Mrs. Jean Holly, Mrs. Katherine Smith, Dr. Mary Jo Bratton and Dr. Emily Farnham.

The hostess was Dr. Marguerite Perry and Mrs. W. A. Pollard was program chairman.

Local AAUW members are urged to contact Mrs. Wellington Gray if they are planning to attend the division convention. Mrs. Charles Woodall is handling tickets for the UNICEF dinner, which is open to the public.

Sister Won't Leave Her Hubby Alone

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a girl being in love with her own brother? I don't want to believe my eyes and ears, but what else can I do? I've been married to Bud for two years now, and the only thing that keeps my happiness from being complete is "Sis."

She is 22. (I am 24 and Bud is 26.) Maybe I should go back to before we were married. Sis tried to break us up before she even met me. I later heard she made trouble for every girl Bud ever went with.

Sis uses our swimming pool, and if I didn't push her into the bedroom, she'd change into her suit right in front of Bud. (She walks around in her panties and bra in front of him.) She asks him, not me, to help zip her up. She puts the music on and coaxes Bud to dance with her. She sits on his lap and kisses him a lot. Her conversation when Bud is around consists of the dirty books she's read and dirty movies she's seen. She includes herself with our circle and invites herself along on weekend trips.

If I sound jealous, I am. How can I let Sis know it's time she found a man of her own?
BUD'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You don't give me a clue as to how Bud reacts to Sis' performance. Seems to me he's the one to let her know that she is out of line. And if he doesn't know how you feel about Sis, what are you waiting for?

DEAR ABBY: Are birth control pills deductible?
BERTIE

DEAR BERTIE: Only if they don't work.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both in a profession which takes us away from home all day. Our two children, ages two and three are cared for by a dependable, intelligent 62-year-old woman. She loves our children and they love her, but she has had very little formal education and her grammar is poor. (Example: "Have you ate yet?")

Our children are learning to talk, and that which they learn in their formative years will be hard to unlearn. Naturally, we don't want them to talk the way she talks. How can this be solved without hurting her feelings?
WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Better to have an intelligent, loving, dependable woman caring for your children than a grammarian who lacks these qualities. If the youngsters pick up some of her mistakes, correct them, and don't worry about hurting her feelings. She knows her grammar is poor. Somehow those who have been exposed to poor grammar during their formative years, manage to emerge uncorrupted—thanks to proper schooling. Witness the number of fine grammarians whose parents were foreigners—or illiterate. (P. S. What do you want? Good grammar or good help?)

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a way of squelching gossips which never fails. When someone says, "I'll tell you something if you promise not to tell a soul," he always says, "Don't worry. It's as safe with me as it is with you."

As you may guess, he seldom hears much gossip.

Absentminded Mayor Brought On Tears

PARIS (WNS) — Seventeen brides were in tears on a Saturday morning because they could not get married. The grooms and guests were on hand at the "Mairie" of Paris's 17 District, but the mayor who was to officiate was absent. He had appointed as assistant to do the jobs, and the assistant had forgotten. It wasn't until afternoon that police located Mayor Pierre Chedor, 51, and got him quickly to his office to substitute for the forgetful assistant. "These are the weddings I shall never forget," he told the brides.

Good Citizenship Is Displayed

Representatives of the Southwest Greenville Community Association took a laudable position in their appearance before the city board of education this week.

Members of the association had been understandably upset when their children were moved from South Greenville School to Sadie Sautler after only a year in the old school.

They had taken the matter to court and it had been rejected. However W. O. Powers, assistant moderator for the group came before the board and told school officials, "Our group must in reality abide by the decision of the courts to stay within the confines of law. We are not going to place ourselves or our children in jeopardy."

"What I'm really saying is that we are going to cooperate in your plan, to support your efforts."

Dr. E. B. Aycock, the appreciative chairman of the board told Powers, "If ever we have quality education, it will not be because of HEW or the federal courts, but because of good people like you."

Certainly these citizens have shown that they understand the principles of democracy. They have recognized that even though things don't always go one's way in a government under laws it is best to accept decisions of the courts and carry on.

The group also showed it was cognizant of sound strategy by requesting some improvements at Sadie Sautler, including additional fencing and traffic changes. With the other matter out of the way the board was most happy to do everything it could to accomplish what the delegation requested. Certainly we agree that the board and the City Council should do their best to meet these requests.

All over the nation there are groups which could learn a lesson from the Southwest Greenville Community Association. Good citizenship sometimes means accepting a set-back. This group has done this with good grace, and they have perhaps saved Greenville from new school turmoil.

Dreaming Of A Coastal Route

By BRYAN HAISLIP

WASHINGTON — Several hundred persons from seven states who have the same dream will meet in Myrtle Beach, S. C., on October 19 to set in motion a drive to make the dream come true.

A north-south coastal corridor highway is the goal which will bring business, civic and political leaders to the conference.

They will give testimony to the need for a major transportation artery to serve the region, the economic benefits which it would bring, and the urgency to secure state and federal commitment to make it a reality.

Governors Bob Scott of North Carolina and Robert E. McNeil of South Carolina have given their support to Va., area to the vicinity of Savannah, Ga. — this state has an important stake in the conference and its outcome.

Tar Heel Participants

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University at Greenville, will preside at the conference. Dr. Jenkins is a tireless advocate of development for the eastern part of the state.

Other Tar Heel participants will include Gilliam K. Horton of Wilmington, chairman of the State Board of Conservation and Development; Attorney General Robert Morgan; and Robert P. Holding, chairman of the board of First-Citizens Bank and Trust Company.

Congressmen from throughout the region have been invited, and a goodly number are expected to attend.

The conference will stick to the overall need for a four-lane, limited access north-south highway, and not concern itself with the sticky details of routing. "That will be left to engineers and the political decision-makers," said Kivett.

The principal item of business for the conference, after hearing from a half-dozen or so speakers on the need and benefits of the highway, will be the adoption of a resolution endorsing the project. Copies of the conference transcript and the resolution will be sent to the states, federal highway officials, Congressmen and others.

Political Overtones

The coastal corridor highway dream is a subject with political implications as well as economic potential in eastern North Carolina. The inadequacy of present north-south coastal routes have been painfully obvious for some time.

Further development of the east, for industry generally as well as for the important tourist business, hinges upon a modern transportation system. One part of that is the north-south major highway.

In seeking legislative support to stave off a reduction in the gasoline tax in the 1971 session, Governor Scott might find the key to eastern votes in his attitude on the coastal corridor project.

It is not without significance that two of the participants in the Myrtle Beach conference are men with political identification in the East. Both Dr. Jenkins and Attorney General Morgan have been mentioned as possible candidates for governor in 1972. Their enthusiasm for the coastal highway could keep their stock high in the east.

From the point of view of its sponsors, the Myrtle Beach conference is a demonstration of the economic, social and cultural need for a highway to open the coastal territory.

Grounds For Hope The Interest Pinch Easing

The most recent drop in prime interest rates offers some hope that the worst of the interest squeeze may be over and correspondingly the worst of inflation may be near.

Major banks, including North Carolina's, have this week dropped interest rates from 8 to 7½ percent. This has to be encouraging to industries, businesses and individuals who have held off on long term loans because of the tremendous interest charges.

Hopefully as inflation eases interest will continue to drop. Particularly is this needed for home mortgages since so many people have been hesitant to purchase homes because of the unusually high interest.

Judge Moore Cites Priority

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Former North Carolina Gov. Dan K. Moore — who now sits on the State Supreme Court — says in his opinion: "We must focus our attention on education rather than on integration."

Interviewed in his green-carpeted office in the Justice Building here, Moore was asked about the school desegregation controversy which has hit hard in several of North Carolina's larger counties.

"I think there has to be a reasonable approach to the question of integration," Moore said. "We lose sight of the fact that the schools are established to give children of all races an education."

Moore said that if "we use the schools only to achieve integration, regardless of how extreme the efforts to do that are, such as unwarranted busing of students for unusual distances and dislocating the children from their own environment, I think the public schools will suffer and we'll see more private schools established."

"People who should be supporting the public school system will lose interest in it," Moore said, "and I think that would be tragic for the state. We must have a strong public school system. But we must focus our attention on education rather than on integration, in my opinion."

Moore, who was Governor from 1964 to 1968, was appointed to the State Supreme Court last December by Gov. Bob Scott. He looks trim, relaxed and rested and says he likes his new job very much.

Moore was born in Asheville but lived most of his life in Sylva in Jackson County, also North Carolina mountain country.

He says he doesn't think campus unrest has been so serious in North Carolina that it has triggered a taxpayers' backlash against higher education.

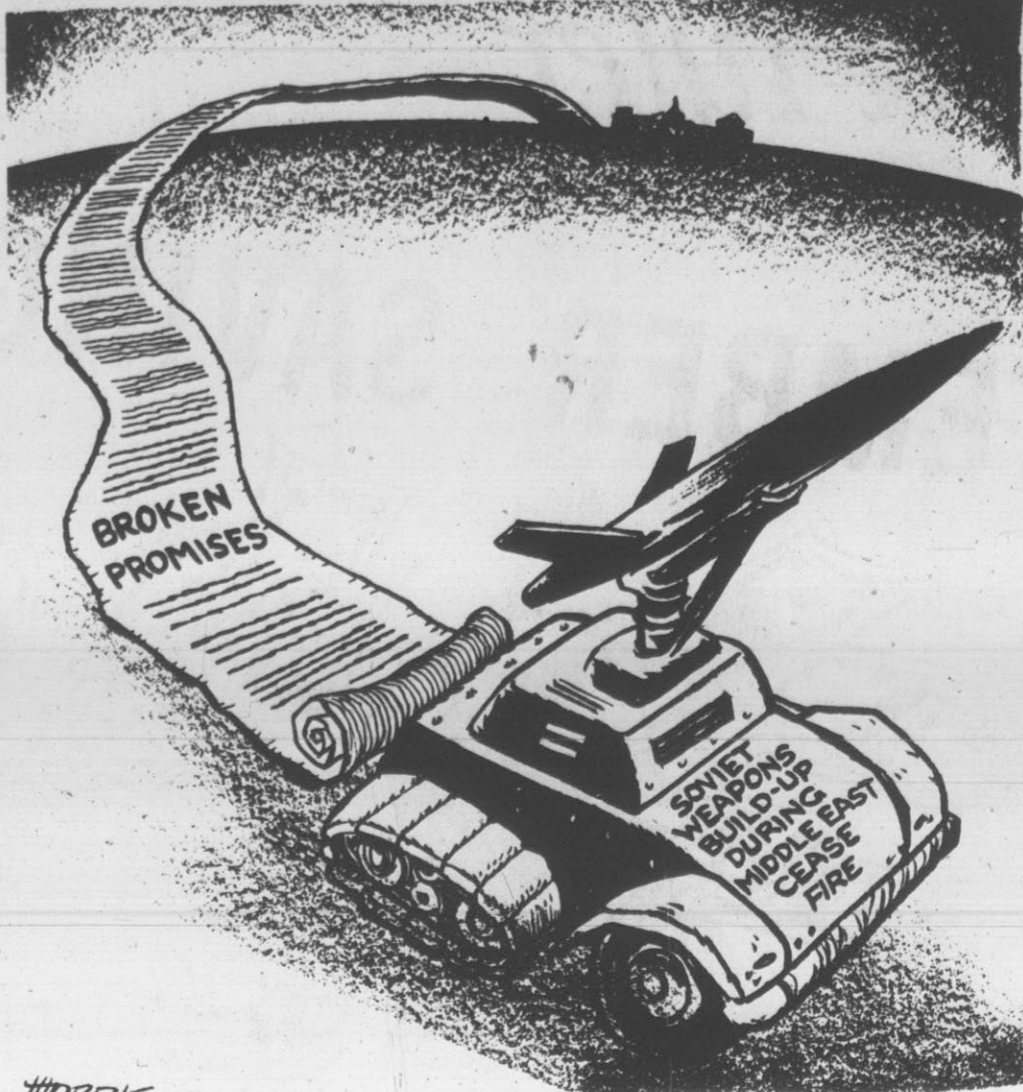

"That would be tragic if it happened here," Moore said. "North Carolina is known as a progressive state and I think the University of North Carolina has been one of the outstanding, distinguishing features between North Carolina and some other Southern states."

The former Governor says he has watched with alarm the increase in crime and drug abuse in the state and across the nation.

"Frankly," he says, "I'm not in a position to judge the drug abuse situation in the State, but I'm convinced from what I've heard from official sources that it is most serious. But the thing that has shocked and alarmed me

KEEPING A LONG RECORD INTACT!

By JAMES KILPATRICK

Not So Friendly Skies

The airline industry is doing its best these days to keep a stiff upper lip. On the surface, the going's still great, the skies are still friendly, and those mini-skirted stewards still have legs that stretch all the way to the floor. Back in the counting rooms, it's another story entirely.

For the first time in history, so far as the Air Transport Association knows, the domestic industry will show a net annual loss this year. The airlines live on the dear old load factor — the percentage of seats actually sold — and for the past 16 months the DOLF has been slumping.

Since the days of the DC-3, air travel has been a great growth industry. It isn't growing greatly anymore. Most domestic passengers are business and professional people, flying on expense accounts from A to B. The economic recession, or whatever it is we're in, has put a chill on such travel. The threat of hijacking hasn't helped.

Add to these miseries the high cost of capital investment. A new 747—one of the jumbo jets—costs in the neighborhood of $23 million. It's a great airplane, fast, comfortable, and spacious; no self-respecting airline can possibly be without one; but in the present money market, it takes 10 to 10.5 percent interest to finance a 747, and for that kind of interest you have to sell an awful lot of tickets.

Airline fares have gone up by 13 percent in the past 15 months, and probably will go up another 5 percent by mid-winter. Higher labor costs have sopped up the added revenue. As one consequence, the number of flights on hotly competitive routes is being reduced, and the cupcakes at lunch are getting smaller. Easy on the blue cheese dressing, George.

This past week, Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association, was up on Capitol Hill trying to fight off still another vexatious problem: the mounting peril of the "supplemental" or charter airlines. He made an excellent case.

The scheduled carriers who compose the ATA are required by law, as a condition of their licenses, to maintain hundreds of unprofitable flights. They depend for survival upon a relatively few high-volume routes. Nearly 80 percent of total domestic traffic comes from 50 cities only. The same thing is true of international travel: Take off the cream and what have you got? Skimmed milk.

Pan American and TWA earned $42 million from April through September of last year on their North Atlantic routes. That peak-season profit, Tipton told a House committee, "provided just enough of a cushion to reflect a new international profit for the year." Now the two giants are hurting. A significant part of their vital April-September traffic is being drained off by the supplementals, who fly full charter flights at bargain rates to "club members."

Tipton testified, the supplementals increased their share of U.S.-flag trans-Atlantic traffic from 3.7 to 24.2 percent. In the past two years alone, they have doubled the number of passengers traveling on charter flights — most of them from Los Angeles, San Francisco-Oakland and New York, to London, Paris, and Rome. Some 80 percent of this traffic is concentrated in the summer tourist season.

"This isn't supplemental air transportation," Tipton complained. "It is nothing more than a hit-and-run wholesale tapping of rich, established markets at times

Strength For Today

WE NEED TO WAKE-UP

We looked at the alleged "blessings" of Communism yesterday and decided that a little more light thrown on the subject might be helpful.

Communism has been tried before but has never worked. It is amazing that people do not turn to the Bible and read there of a communist failure that almost wiped out the Christian Church before it got started.

We read in Acts 2:41-47 that "all that believed were together, and had all things common; and sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need." The first catastrophe was dishonesty and death. Ananias and his wife Sapphira, "sold a possession, and kept back part of the price and brought only a certain part and laid it at the apostles' feet." Husband and wife both lied about their possessions and, died as a result. As time went on the Christian believers in Jerusalem and its environs became so poverty-stricken that Paul had to gather money in Gentile Christian churches and take it to the Christians of Jerusalem to keep them from starvation.

Jesus was a religious figure, not a political or economic figure. However, he seemed to have accepted what we today call "free enterprise" as the natural way of conducting business. Men bought and sold for a profit. The parables of the Talents (Matthew 18) and the parables of the Pounds (Luke 19) probably indicated the economic theories with which Jesus was familiar and with which he apparently agreed.

Communism is illogical and impractical. Wherever it has been tried it has failed. Modern Communism has added cruelty to its bag of tricks.

Unworkable, unjust, impractical and ruthless.

If Baseball Conduct Prevailed

By ELMER ROESSNER

Suppose stockholders acted like baseball fans? Darrell Thorpe, editor of Collage, a little publication of the Motorola Government Electronics Division at Scottsdale, Ariz., pondered. As a result, the current issue contains a report of an imaginary meeting of a corporate staff in Madison Square Garden to determine the most effective way to bid on a very important contract. There is a microphone before each staffer and the Garden is packed.

The account continues: "Dr. Del Vecchio, project engineer, speaks: 'I'd say the best approach would be to—'"

"A box seat fan shouts, 'Del Vecchio, you dumb paisano, you wouldn't know a MOS from a mouse.'"

"Back To Geraniums"

"A white-haired VP of research and development begins to speak: 'Well we know that the strength of our competitors is in production, while we're more known for our advanced technology. Perhaps we should compromise a bit and—'"

"Fan: 'Hah, listen to who's talking — a parolee from Sun City. Hey, you old—, the only reason you're on the payroll is because the company can't afford to buy back your stock. Why don't you go back to your geranium pots and let someone who was born in the twentieth century have a shot at it?'"

"The VP of marketing speaks: 'Frankly, I think that a realistic examination of the facts will show we can underbid the competition — I mean underbid the competition—'" will mean opposing the President of the United States.

Most Americans want to see the Vietnam war end with a realistic peace. Most are willing to trust their President. They don't need a controversial marshal, appearing at a right-wing rally, to make policy for them. The "victory" rally will stir sharp counterdemonstrations in Washington. It will give extremists excuse for violence. It could jeopardize the Nixon policy. It will stir nothing but criticism and anger against Vietnam's government.

If Marshal Ky wishes well for his country he should eschew personal ambition, take the advice of all the American and Vietnamese officials who have talked to him, and avoid a visit under such damagingly controversial circumstances.

Child Abuse, Neglect DOES Exist In Pitt County

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
Miss Dorothy Bolton, director of the Pitt County Department of Social Services, feels the problem of child abuse and neglect is becoming serious and the public should be informed about it.

"The local office receives about five phone calls per week concerning the problem of child abuse or neglect," Miss Bolton said. "Normally about two out of three five calls will be legitimate. However, all calls we receive are checked out."

Child abuse and neglect cases are learned through the schools, physicians, neighbors and sometimes the police department.

"We try to work with the families and do not take the cases to court except as the last resort," Miss Bolton explained.

The North Carolina law protects persons who report suspected child abuse or neglect in good faith.

"The law spells out the proper place to report such action and that is the county social services office," explained Miss Bolton.

"The law requires the county director of social services to investigate and take whatever action necessary to correct the situation."

The primary purpose of the investigation is to determine the nature, extent, and cause or causes of the injury; the identity of the person or persons responsible; and the age, condition of other children in the household.

"The purpose of protective services is to help parents recognize and remedy conditions harmful to a child and to help them better realize and better fulfill their parental roles," the director stated.

"When parents are unable or unwilling to utilize protective services, the authority of the court must be sought to obtain substitute care or protective supervision for the child," she added.

Some of the child abuse and neglect cases reported in Pitt County include:

—A two-year-old child brought to the social services agency by an aunt who gave him away. The agency learned that the mother had abandoned the child five months ago, and he had been shifted from home to home since that time, a total of four homes in five months. The mother was taken to court and the child was placed in a foster home.

—Two children, one eight months and one about one and one-half years old, found abandoned in a room attached to the back of a pool hall. There was no heat in the room even during the month of November, unbelievable filth, dirty clothes and no food. The children were placed in foster homes. Permanent damage resulted from the early deprivation.

—Pre-teen girl found wandering around neighborhood late at night was taken in by a neighbor. The agency learned the child's mother had been in a fight and was part of an all night drinking party. The mother whipped the child with a belt and the child was not able to go to school due to the lack of her mother's concern and supervision. The child was removed from the mother's home by court order.

—Public Health Nurse found a baby in a crib with no clothes on and wrapped in a plastic cleaning bag. Over the years, this child has suffered neglect and eventually was placed in a foster home. A very low IQ was a result of this neglect.

—Three month old child suffered skull fracture and burned legs which required surgery. The child returned home after several weeks. Three months later the child was back in the hospital with two broken legs, one leg almost healed while the other received a new break. The child was placed in a permanent home.

—Three-year-old girl with dark bruises on her face and fingerprints on her arms. Neighbors reported the child was beaten unmercifully and hit against the wall. The child was also made to sit on the floor in a corner for several hours at the time.

This week has been proclaimed "Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention Week" in North Carolina by Governor Robert W. Scott.

According to the proclamation, the North Carolina Department of Social Services has records of reports in one year alone of more than 2,000 cases of abuse and neglect of children under 16 years of age, ranging from brutal beatings, burnings, freezing, bone and skull fractures, to malnutrition.

The purpose of this week is to emphasize the magnitude of the problem and how professional persons such as doctors and school personnel should report any such incidents of abuse or neglect they might observe in pursuit of their profession.

Egg Referendum Set Sept. 30

North Carolina poultry producers will vote Wednesday, September 30 in a special Egg Referendum which proposed a one cent per case additional assessment to be used to support two egg marketing associations. The North Carolina Egg Marketing Association is sponsoring the referendum which will affiliate all North Carolina producers with National Egg Company, a regional egg cooperative, and United Egg Producers, a new national organization. The North Carolina Egg Marketing Association points out that individual membership in these organizations would cost five cents per case rather than the one cent per case cost if the referendum passes.

The additional assessment would become effective November 1, 1970 and continue until April 30, 1975. The present two cents per case assessment program will not be affected regardless of the outcome of this vote. The money will be collected by the North Carolina Egg Marketing Association and an annual report of amounts collected and disbursed will be made.

All producers of eggs including hatching egg producers are eligible to vote. If several members of the same family or firm are employed in a poultry enterprise, all those who share in the ownership of the hens are eligible voters.

Pitt County producers may vote at the Agricultural Extension Office, 203 West Third Street, Greenville, or at the F. C. X. Feed Mill Office at Farmville.

If any producer would like additional information about the vote, he is urged to contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office.

even more than drug abuse is the enormous increase in crime rate. All of this seems to indicate a lack of respect for laws and for people who enforce the laws. It is really an alarming situation."

Moore says he thinks North Carolina's system of District Courts and Superior Courts can handle the criminal caseload in the State.

"There are of course abuses and some cases are continued for too long," Moore says.

"I think all who are connected with the courts would like to see a speedy trial in criminal cases . . . If a criminal is apprehended, given a speedy trial, and given the proper punishment, that in itself tends to discourage crime. On the other hand," Moore said, "if a man indicted of a serious crime can wear it out in the courts, that simply encourages crime. We've got to insist that the courts go about their business as efficiently as possible."

When Moore was Governor, there were some political observers across the State who said he didn't like the job. This brings a soft chuckle from Moore's throat.

"There are some unpleasant moments in the Governor's job," Moore said, "and there are times when the Governor wishes he didn't have to make a certain decision. But all in all, it's a very rewarding job, a rare opportunity to serve your State. I enjoyed it very much."

Rumor Control Center Is Walking Tightrope

By MARTIN KRUMING
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Luther Fuller was a reporter for a local television station during the 1965 Watts riots which left 34 persons dead. There he saw the damage rumors can do.

So two years ago he and Cees King III, a member of the local board of directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, set up the Los Angeles Rumor Control Center with donated equipment and services.

The center drew praise from Police Chief Ed Davis and Mayor Sam Yorty.

But pats on the back don't always mean money. With about $150 in the bank and bills for rent, telephone and other expenses running up, the agency is walking a financial tightrope.

Fuller has turned down financial help from the City Council and the county Board of Supervisors.

"We question if the community would accept us and if our credibility would remain as high if we took the money," he says. "The people would start thinking that we had been bought off."

When disturbances break out, Fuller and his investigators are on the scene, talking to witnesses, residents, firemen and police.

The information is fed to the office and put on a tape recording which plays the message over five phone lines at once. The number: 29-NAACP.

Fuller, 46, says he gets information from the police, civic groups and the Black Panthers.

"We make enemies and we make friends. But we are really concerned with putting out the facts and quashing dangerous rumors that might incite riots," he says.

2,200 calls a day. In trouble-free times it puts out community service messages, including those from militant groups if the center doesn't think they will heighten tensions.

N.C. Ranks 46th Nixon Appears In Tax Payments At Testimonial

CHICAGO (AP) — North Carolina ranked 46th during fiscal 1969 in the amount of state and local taxes paid by the state's citizens, according to the Commerce Clearing House.

North Carolinians paid an average of $259 in taxes during the year — compared with the national average of $380. The national high was in New York, $576, and the low in Arkansas, $221.

The clearing house, a private research organization, said per capita state-local tax burdens increased in every state.

World Tour Fulfills A Dream

By NAOMI ROCK
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When Anastasio Goumas was a small boy in Greece, he dreamed of one day going to the United States to see the White House. As he grew to young manhood his dream grew too. Now he wanted to see the entire world.

On April 9, 1967, Goumas, then 36, and his wife Maria, 33, left Athens in a black Mercedes Benz. They took with them minimal camping equipment, including a tent, a good camera, some clothes, a small brown mutt named Bobby, and $19,000 — the remains of $24,000 saved over 15 years of buying, selling and repairing old cars (the rest had gone for the car and supplies).

Three years and three months later they arrived in Washington, D.C., another stopover in an around-the-world journey that thus far had taken them 247,000 miles through 79 countries in Europe, Africa and South America.

"This is best souvenir," Goumas beamed, holding a picture of his car and his family taken across from the White House. "I pay $10 fine because police say I can stop. I say, 'I no go before I take picture.' Was worth money. Many people say Switzerland is most beautiful, but for me Washington."

Goumas, a small, slight figure with deep creases in his cheeks, leafed lovingly through three bulky picture albums, as his smiling wife relaxed in an easy chair, allowing her husband to do most of the talking in English.

"Me and my wife, we speak languages—English, Spanish, Portuguese, French, German, Italian, Russian and Greek," Goumas said. "I know about each country. If you speak language and like people, you can learn."

"People very nice everywhere," he continued, adding that although he and his wife had had some bad encounters they had made many many friends.

The worst experiences, he said, occurred between Paraguay and Bolivia when Indian arrows pierced the car's windshield, and in Colombia, when "banditos" stole the tires off the car, and all their equipment and supplies.

"We thought maybe we be killed," Goumas said. "We afraid banditos come back. But some people pick us up and take us to the nearest town. There we get food, new tires and go back to car."

"We not afraid," Goumas continued. "If something happens it happens. If you die you die. Some day we all die anyway."

Goumas has only praise for all the countries he's visited and all the people he's met. Once he and his wife got used to living in a tent (something neither of them had tried before) the main difficulty was roads.

"Often in South America we must go through with a machete," the veteran voyager said with a smile. "We cross many mountains, go through many jungles. Luckily the car good, and give no trouble. But even if yes," he shrugged, "I could fix."

The Goumas began their trip by visiting all of Europe, including as Goumas says proudly, the tiny principalities of Andorra Monaco and Lichtenstein. From Spain they crossed to Morocco, covered most of the countries of North and Central Africa, and then went by boat across the Atlantic to Brazil.

Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, Paraguay, Bolivia, and the other South American Countries came next, followed by Central America, Mexico and finally Laredo, Tex., and northeast to New York.

"When you go from South America to the United States it like going to another planet," Goumas declared. "The cars, the highways, the factories, the bridges, the noise. I not say U.S. is best, but it very nice."

He had been warned, Goumas recalled, that New York was massive and that he would surely get lost.

"New York was the first time I scared," he said. "But only before I get here. Didn't get lost

Tour Scheduled For Astronauts Nominated For Music Awards

WASHINGTON (AP) — James A. Lovell Jr., John L. Swigert Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr., the Apollo 13 astronauts, will visit five countries next month as personal representatives of President Nixon.

The White House announced Wednesday the itinerary would be Iceland Oct. 1, Switzerland Oct. 4, Greece Oct. 8, Malta Oct. 11 and Ireland Oct. 13.

The astronauts also will make a good-will stop at the 21st International Astronautical Congress in Constance, Germany, Oct. 5.

because you got straight routes. It's very nice New York. Big buildings are very nice."

From New York, Goumas said he and his wife, planned to go to southern Canada, and then through Detroit, Chicago, and across America's heartland to California, then to Seattle, Wash., and Vancouver from where, he said, the Panhellenic Seamen's Federation promised them passage to Japan.

"I want to make all continents," Goumas explained.

"Trip not easy or everyone would make it," he declared. "If God wants and if we keep health we finish it in maybe a year."

"We could have gone like tourists," he continued, "but we no get to know people that way. Me and wife met millions of people. Got 40,000 addresses. One day we hope to send each family a card. And some day, my wife says, we going to make another trip."

(Most Popular Contact Lens Type)

Do you know what is the most popular type contact lens? The most popular type is the corneal lens.

The corneal lens is a plastic disc about half the size of a dime in diameter. It is curved to fit a portion of the cornea, the transparent dome covering the iris and the pupil.

By means of capillary action, the curved lens adheres to a layer of tears. No artificial fluid is necessary to hold the lens in place. However it is immersed in a sterile lubricating solution before being inserted.

The fitting for corneal lenses is relatively simple. First the corneal curvatures are measured. Next the degree of visual defect is gauged with special instruments. Lenses will then be made from your doctor's prescription.

Hickel Launches Nationwide Litter Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel has opened a nationwide antilitter campaign with a speech from the Lincoln Memorial steps—and by picking up some trash himself.

Hickel told an audience of hundreds of school children and Interior Department employees Wednesday the campaign is "a do-it-yourself environmental program that everyone can join."

He demonstrated what he meant by picking up some cigarette butts, a plastic fork and a can and taking them to a rubbish can near the reflecting pool between the memorial and the Washington Monument.

Arthur Godfrey, the television entertainer, advised the crowd that "good habits are as easily formed as bad habits" when it comes to keeping the scene clear of trash.

Fleeing Reality Termed Harmful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marijuana is harmful because "it is used mostly by young people attempting to escape from reality just at the time when they are reaching out for independence," says the U.S. surgeon general.

But Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld added Tuesday that "in this sense anything that promotes escape from reality is harmful."

Steinfeld, in Los Angeles to address the American Cancer Society chapter, told newsmen that legalization of marijuana is unlikely while President Nixon is in office.

Asked if the Nixon administration is "antimarijuana," he replied: "I would hope so, yes."

Playwright Has Reached Japan

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP) — American playwright Tennessee Williams arrived today for a seven-day visit to Japan.

Williams, who wrote "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" and "A Streetcar Named Desire," said he planned to see historical sites and collect material for a short story.

Volunteers Are Helping Felons To Find New Place In Society

By ELIAS CASTILLO
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — "Stinking-thinking" and long-lasting friendships are helping "hunks of junk" and "nobodies" stay out of trouble in Washington State.

Undamaged By Overuse

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ophthalmology has made great strides in the detection and treatment of eye disorders and countless words have been written about them, yet there are many popular misconceptions about the eyes, says a specialist.

One, according to Dr. Robert H. Pfeifer, consultant in ophthalmology to the Society for Visual Care, is that eyes can be damaged by overuse.

Not so, says Pfeifer, adding that the conductive elements essential to sight are not working any harder when reading than when gazing out the window.

Another misconception, he says, is that the child with perfect eyesight is the best student. The myopic (nearsighted) child, he says, may achieve greater academic success and have greater reading ability.

Pfeifer lists other popular beliefs he says are not supported by the facts: Children will outgrow cross eyes.

False: In some cases, the crossed eyes (when the eye turns in) can improve with age. In most cases, however, where the eyes turn out, they will become worse with time unless proper treatment is instituted.

help Washington felons find jobs and become useful members of society.

The program, called Job Therapy, Inc., and Man to Man, is aimed at the convict who, officials say, sometimes regards himself as a "hunk of junk" or a "nobody."

Life for such persons can be an endless agony of loneliness, says Richard Simmons, Job Therapy director.

But, some of the "toughest prisoners" in Washington State have been helped by the program, prison officials say.

It's all based on a system developed in the Netherlands in which volunteers help rehabilitate criminals. Simmons says the system involves eliminating "do-gooders" whose only aim is to make themselves feel good.

"We want persons who will realize that this is a permanent relationship, not a counselor-client situation," says Simmons. He calls the volunteers "job advisors" and their prisoner friends "clients."

"We encourage our job advisors to bring their families when they visit their clients inside prisons," he said. Advisors also must be willing to help find work for a client after he is released from prison.

A successful job experience for the ex-convict, says Simmons, is the program's main goal.

A job, program officials say, results in having "the client upgrade his self-esteem and ambition and gain the respect of family and friends."

Washington State Appellate Court Judge Robert Utter, president of the 4-year-old group, calls all other programs "sheer failures" because of what he sees as their not stressing the importance of helping an ex-convict find a job.

Utter says that out of 450 prisoners who have participated in the program, 65 per cent so far have remained outside jail.

In Washington State, he said, only 15 per cent of the men released from prisons normally remain outside. The other 85 per cent become lawbreakers again. "Stinking-thinking," meaning recognizing one's faults instead of blaming others, is another vital part of the program, Simmons says.

Once a "client realizes the fact that he's in jail because he's either lazy or irresponsible, he stands a better chance of staying outside bars," he says.

But there are failures. One Job Therapy official said a client robbed a grocery store on the same day he was released from prison.

"He had gone to prison for holding up the same grocery store and apparently wanted to get even because of his being convicted," the official said.

The job advisor had stopped briefly near the grocery store to run an errand and left his client inside the car when the second robbery occurred.

The Washington State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and The Department of Institutions have praised the program and have cooperated in matching job advisors with clients.

Prisoners participating in the program by volunteering for Job Therapy.

The group has asked the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration of the Department of Justice for a $211,700 demonstration grant to underwrite part of one year's operating expenses for the program.

Simmons says Job Therapy's staff of about 10 persons has had to operate on private donations since its formation.

One of Simmons' pet projects is to establish some type of air transportation that would ferry advisors from the Seattle area to the Washington State Penitentiary in Walla Walla, Wash.

The prison is located in central Washington, making it difficult for advisors from Seattle, 263 miles away, to visit their clients.

The giving of one's wife to the gods at the end of a successful hunting trip may not still be practiced among the Indian natives of Central Mexico, but the idea is still very much alive in folk religion and lore.

Trial Dates Set In Drug Cases

RALEIGH (AP) — Trials for 22 Wake County youths arrested in a drug roundup this month will be held Sept. 30 and Oct. 28. The cases had been scheduled for Wednesday. But Solicitor Henry Newton said the laboratory reports on confiscated drugs were not ready in many of the cases, and continuances had been requested in others.

appeasement to the dieties in Central America has been recorded. This summer, Dr. Werner Stenzel of the Anthropology Department at East Carolina University was able to document the tradition among the Aztec-speaking natives of Central Mexico for the first time.

Accompanied by two students, Roy Brophy of ECU with camera, and Ray Medlock of the University of Arkansas with tape recorder, Stenzel visited the almost inaccessible Sierra Madre Region of the Gulf Coast in which is found the most concentrated Indian population in the Republic.

"Because of the very heavy rainfall, the village of Castillo de Teayo in the state of Vera Cruz was the primary study area for this year's trip," said Dr. Stenzel.

"Castillo de Teayo is especially well-known for two things: its Aztec-speaking natives (a rarity on the coastal plain) and a pyramid, constructed by the Aztecs shortly before the arrival of Cortez. The pyramid is unique in Central Mexico and possesses a preserved temple on the top.

"In Castillo de Teayo, we had a rare opportunity. An Aztec-speaking native freely related orally a number of traditions. Fortunately we were equipped to record them.

"The most important tale was new and unrecorded in the annals of Central Mexican anthropology. However, similar stories have been documented from Southern Mexico and Central America.

"Aztec legend describes a god of the game animals who demands sacrifices in exchange for the animals in his charge. The successful hunter must appease this god. Only after lengthy questioning, the Aztec admitted that the hunter had to give his wife. This feature is completely new.

"It is possible that the 'setting-out' of a woman for the gods is still alive, although the contemporary folk religion of the area does not have any direct indications of it."

Dr. Stenzel was tremendously aided in getting this tale by his ability to converse alternately in Aztec and Spanish. He is a native of Vienna, Austria.

"We feel that this idea, even in tradition, is very significant for anthropologists and a most unusual revelation by a member of the tribe," continued Dr. Stenzel.

Dr. Stenzel's primary research is concerned with the religious life and beliefs of the Aztec-speaking natives of Mexico. At the present time, he is concentrating on the analysis of hieroglyphic manuscripts housed in the National Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City.

The results of his hieroglyphic study are to appear as an annotated interpretation and translation of the Aztec Cordix of Tula, to be published by Adeva of Graz, Austria.

Youth Draws Prison Term

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—An 18-year-old Winston-Salem youth, James Robertson Jr., was given a 15-year sentence in Forsyth Superior Court Wednesday after pleading guilty to armed robbery.

Robertson was being tried on charges of assault with intent to commit rape and robbery. A mistrial was declared in the assault case by Judge Harvey Lupton.

The youth is the third Negro teen-ager to be given 15-year sentences in the incident, which occurred April 25 during a Reynolds High School prom. He admitted holding a knife to the throat of John Arzonico, 16, a football player at the school, and taking his watch. Arzonico testified he and his date were walking in a park near the school during the prom when five young blacks approached them. He said Robertson held the knife on him while the others assaulted the girl.

Luna 16 Returns From Travels

By MICHAEL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union's Luna 16 moon-probe returned to earth today carrying the first samples of moon soil ever gathered by an unmanned spacecraft, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Ask Curbing Power Use

WILLIAMSTON — Because of Virginia Electric Power Company's successful efforts in getting its generating units back in service, the company did not have to ask its residential customers to curtail their non-essential use of electricity Wednesday.

According to an announcement Wednesday from the Albermarle District office here, the company, however, has asked its large industrial and commercial customers to curtail their non-essential use of power between 1 p.m. and 9 p.m. today.

The announcement added, "the company expressed its appreciation to all its customers for their cooperation Tuesday in cutting back on their use of power during this emergency and to its employees for their tireless efforts to correct the critical situation."

A voltage reduction of five per cent will continue in effect today as a precautionary measure until the abatement of the excessively hot weather, the release concluded.

and its cargo on windswept steppe brushfields in Soviet Kazakhstan about 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow and 50 miles southeast of the Kazakh town of Dzhelzdzhan.

Tass said the craft parachuted to earth at 1:26 a.m. EDT, six minutes later than expected.

The moon material will be turned over to the Soviet Academy of Sciences for analysis. The soil was gathered Sunday from the Sea of Fertility, a heretofore unexplored area of the moon's surface.

Luna 16 was launched 11 days ago with little fanfare and no word from the Soviet informants on the purpose of the mission.

Its controlled soft landing on the moon was announced Sunday as if it were no more significant than previous Soviet soft landings that were not intended to return to earth.

Only on Monday did Tass announce that the craft would attempt to return to earth with a load of moon soil.

Semi-official sources say the previous Soviet moon shot, Luna 15, was an unsuccessful attempt to bring back soil samples.

That mission 14 months ago coincided with the U.S. Apollo 11 manned moon landing and apparently was calculated to beat the Americans back to earth with the first moon samples.

Luna 15 crashed into the moon about 500 miles from the Sea of Tranquility, where U.S. astronaut Neil A. Armstrong took man's first steps on the lunar surface just moments earlier.

The Soviets have not announced how much moon soil the craft carried home and there has been no word on whether any samples of it will be distributed to non-Soviet scientists for study.

Tass hailed the return of the capsule as "an outstanding space experiment."

The Soviet press has given the mission heavy coverage since Monday, apparently seeking to make a propaganda recovery after the Americans won the race to put a man on the moon.

Cosmonaut Alexei S. Yeliseyev, a civilian engineer who orbited the earth last January in Soyuz 4 and 5, read a statement on Moscow radio shortly after the landing was announced.

He noted that Luna 16 succeeded "without risk to human life, and without unnecessary expenditure."

The Russians also have made much of the future of probes similar to the Luna series. Officials said Tuesday that Soviet scientists envisaged a similar soil sampler for flights to Mars and other planets. But there were no details on when such a mission might be attempted.

Craig Expects New Call To Retrench

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's top school official says the 1971 General Assembly will be faced with a "number of new reactionary voices calling for retrenchment, for drastic cuts in the use of our resources, even for possible abandonment of our public schools."

Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, said these voices "can and will block the real progress of a great state if allowed to happen."

His comments were made Wednesday as the Board of Education presented requests to the Advisory Budget Commission for a $295 million boost in state spending for the public schools during the coming biennium.

The board also asked for an additional $66.4 million for community colleges, bringing its requested increases to $362 million.

The requests included $120.8 million to hire and pay school teachers on a 10-month basis, and give them pay boosts totaling 15 per cent for the biennium. Also, $21 million to expand the kindergarten program to cover about a fourth of the state's 5 year olds; and $20.9 million to expand occupational education programs.

The board repeated a long-standing request for $3.7 million for the transportation or urban school children.

Hog Quarantine In Part Of Pitt

A state quarantine has been placed on swine in Pitt County in the general area bounded by Belvoir, Parker's Chapel, Stokes and the North Pitt High School.

According to Ed Yancey, executive director of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, only one farm in the area has hog chlorea.

The area quarantined because of the chlorea includes the area on the Belvoir High half way between Bell's Crossroads and Sallie Branch to N. C. 30 (Pactolus Highway) to a point beyond Parker's Chapel Church area (1537); thence follows the county roads generally in a northerly direction past Sweet Gum Church and across N.C. 11 near the new North Pitt High School; then travels down the eastern edge of Grindie Creek.

The quarantine has been placed on the swine in this area surrounding the outbreak to prevent the imposition of federal quarantines on larger areas.

All swine in the above area are under state quarantine and all farm-to-farm or farm-to-market movement of swine within the area will cease immediately except that movement of slaughter swine will be permitted under rules prescribed by the state veterinarian.

"Market hogs can be moved but must be inspected first," Yancey explained. "Vocational agricultural teachers at North Pitt High School are doing the inspection work."

The teachers should be notified as early as possible about the inspection. Regulations call for a ten-day advance notice but inspection has been done in less time than that, Yancey noted.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, deputies arrested Bobby Ray Harris at 2:10 p.m. yesterday following investigation of the alleged break-in at the Grimsley store located on the Falkland Highway near Rock Springs Church. Entrance was gained through a rear window, he said.

Sheriff Tyson said that two cartons of cigarettes, a quantity of wine, a check and some change were found missing following the incident. Value of the items was placed at an estimated $50.

Trial has been scheduled for Sept. 29 at 9:30 in District Court, the sheriff added. Harris is currently out on bond pending trial.

Rampants Test Unbeaten Jacksonville

Rose High School's Rampants face the third unbeaten team in four games Friday night when the travel to Jacksonville to meet the Cardinals.

And the Rampants are still hunting for their first victory of the season.

Jacksonville, coming into the game, hosts a 3-0 record, having beaten Camp Lejeune, Havelock and New Hanover. Only in the last game did someone manage to score on them, as they rallied to nip New Hanover, 8-6.

Earlier, they had rolled over Lejeune, 54-0, and then stopped the Havelock Rams, 20-0.

In the latest game, the Cardinals received their roughest game. New Hanover actually posted most yardage than Jacksonville, getting 153 yards as compared to 132 for Jacksonville.

The payoff in the game came, however, in the third period, when fullback Bradley Hewitt cracked over on a 16-yard run to tie it up. Hewitt, called "Baby Bull" by his teammates, then added the two-point conversion, giving Jacksonville the win.

Rose, meanwhile, was losing to Wilson Fike's Titans, 37-13, in a game that was extremely close for the first half of play. Wilson broke it open in the closing minute of the first half with a touchdown to go ahead 13-7, and then scored the first three times it got the ball in the final half to wrap it up.

"The first half, we did a real good job," Coach Bud Phillips said. "We had them confused and I think we had things going in our favor."

But then, the superior Wilson depth began to pay off. "We started to get injuries," the coach said, "and we couldn't replace them with experience.

That causes us to make mistakes, and Wilson took full advantage of them."

In the game, the Rampants lost the services of Mike Harris, and saw Bob Forbes and Al Hunter sidelined for part of the game and on limited duty for the rest of the time. Charlie Speight was also favoring himself because of a recently broken nose, the coach pointed out.

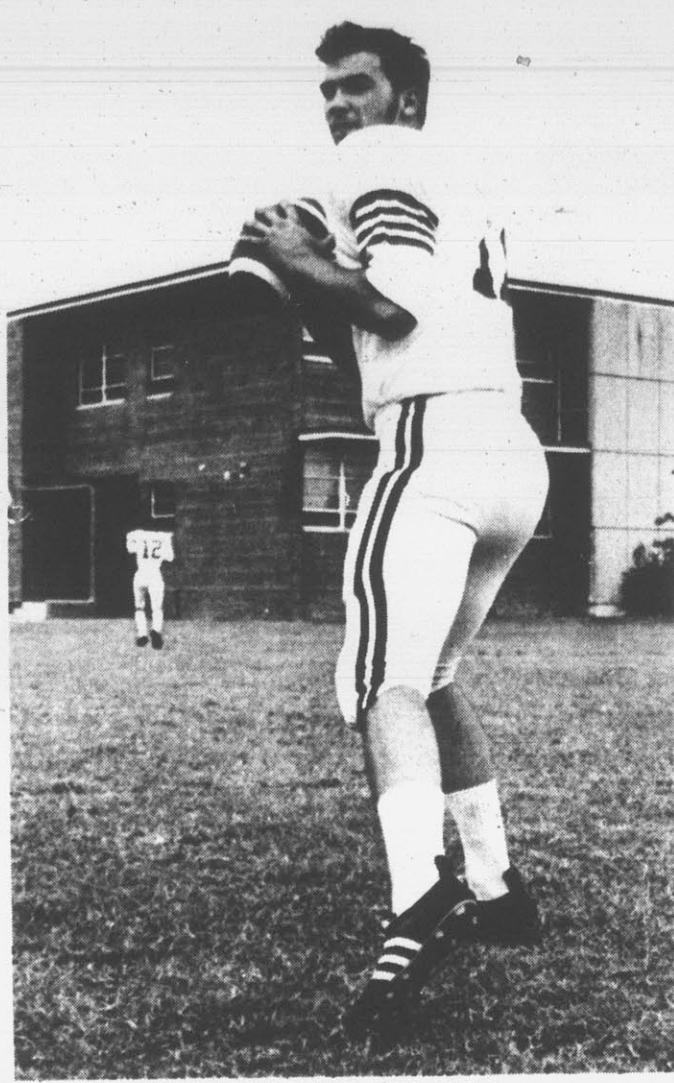

Kinston, in being shutout, still hasn't scored this year, while Rocky Mount and Wilson are the only teams who have yet to lose.

The slate for this week, in addition to the Rose-Jacksonville game, has Raleigh's Enloe High visiting Goldsboro, while neighboring Broughton entertains Rocky Mount. Kinston hosts New Hanover, while Durham is at Wilson and Washington visits New Bern.

The current Eastern Division II standings:

Conf.	Overall	W	L	W	L
Rocky Mount	1	0	3	0	0
Wilson	1	0	3	0	0
Goldsboro	1	0	3	1	0
New Bern	1	1	1	2	0
Kinston	0	1	0	3	0
Rose	0	1	0	3	0

Rampants Face Jacksonville

George Harris, left, and John Conway are two members of this year's Rose High School football team which will meet Jacksonville Friday night on the road. The Rampants are looking for their first win, while Jacksonville is still unbeaten. Harris, the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Allen, is a 188-pound junior, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Conway, and is the starting quarterback for the Rampants. &Reflector Photos)

Eastern 4-A

And the injuries may cause some problems for the Rampants this week, too. Harris is almost certain to miss the game, and Hunter is questionable.

Bubba Rawl, who didn't see any offensive action last week, will return to action this week, however, and this may help the offense.

"Jacksonville is going to be tough," Phillips said. "They like to run the sweep, and they throw a lot into the flats. They have a big end, LeBelle, who is 6-6, and they throw to him sometimes."

The running game is keyed to Hewitt and a speedy halfback, James Newkirk, who was hampered by a knee injury last week. Hewitt likes to take the ball inside, while Newkirk carries on the sweep.

"Their defense looks good, since they've given up only one score. They get real tough near the goalline."

The Rampants don't plan any changes this week, except to replace those injured players. This could cause some problems, however, since experience could become a key factor.

Phillips listed the starting offensive unit as having Ronald Taylor and Bob Forbes at ends, Tim Leith and Jay Hagans at tackles, George Harris and either Lee Cherry, Willie Barnhill or Bill Whiteford at guards, Tommy Diggs at center, John Conway at quarterback, and Bubba Rawl, Johnny Smith and Charlie Speight all in the backfield.

Defensively, the Rampants will start Harold Lloyd and Harris at ends, Leith and Haggans at tackles, David Bullock and Diggs at guards, Forbes and Todd Pair at linebackers, Speight and Bob Barrett at halfbacks and Calvin Moore at safety.

In other Division II action last week, Goldsboro downed Kinston, 14-0, while Rocky Mount trimmed New Bern, 33-0, to go into a three-way tie with Wilson for the early divisional lead.

Pitt Schools Joining Eastern Carolina Conference Next Year

GOLDSBORO — The formation of a new 3-A athletic conference was agreed to yesterday in a meeting between schools from Pitt, Wayne, Greene and Lenoir counties.

The new conference, to be called the Eastern Carolina Conference, is expected to submit formal application to the Board of Control of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association in the near future. Approval is usually automatic unless there are formal protests submitted.

The basis of the new conference will be several schools from the present 3-A Eastern Plains Conference. Five of the nine teams which will form the new league are current Eastern Plains members.

The three remaining members of the old conference, which will continue through this year, are expected to seek new homes. They are Hobpton, and Southern and Northern Nash. Hobpton earlier had given verbal intention to withdraw from the conference anyway, so no problem is expected from that school.

It is also believed that the two Nash schools, in anticipation of the move by the others, is also believed to be making plans to move to another conference, but no formal word of this has been received by the others.

The new conference would be made of the five current Eastern Plains members, Southern Wayne, Charles B. Aycock, North Lenoir, Greene Central and Farmville. (Farmville's entry in the new conference will be the new consolidated unit, still to be known as Farmville High School.)

Others which will join include the other three Pitt consolidated schools, North Pitt, D. H. Conley and Ayden-Grifton. The ninth member of the league will be Eastern Wayne High School, a school, once known as New Hope, that was one of the original members of the Eastern Plains Conference.

According to Arthur Alford, Superintendent of Pitt County Schools, who attended the meeting yesterday, Jimmy Williams, principal of Southern Wayne, was named temporary chairman of the conference. He has appointed committees to draw up a constitution and to prepare a conference schedule for next fall's football season.

Alford said the conference made plans to participate in five sports during the initial year. These include football, basketball, baseball and track for boys, and girls basketball.

Other sports may be added in the future.

Alford said that future meetings may also be held before formal approval of the conference is given. "Simon Terrell, executive secretary of the NCHSAA was in attendance at the meeting, and seemed to feel that there would be no problem in getting approval for the formation of the new conference," Alford said.

Chips and putts from area golf courses: GREENVILLE

Members of the Greenville Golf and Country Club will make the journey across-town this weekend to participate in the Greenville City Golf Championship, to be held at Brook Valley Country Club this year.

In the past, this tournament was played over both courses, with one day's round at each. This year, and in the future, however, the tournament will be over one course. The site will alternate between the two, with the tournament returning to Greenville's course next year.

The club is also continuing on its plans for its Invitational set for October 24-25. Those wishing to participate are urged to sign up now.

Graham Jefferson recently had his best nine hole around, firing a 34 on the front. He got birdies on the fifth and sixth holes, and pars on the rest. On the back, he fired a 79, which was also his best 18-hole round. He was playing with Bill Bilbro and Carl Pierce.

GRIFTON

Bill Jackson fired a hole-in-one recently at Grifton Golf and Country Club. Jackson came up with the ace on the 140-yard seventh hole. He used a five-iron for the shot while playing with Grover Boykin.

Cecil Lilly and Herb Purser took top honors in the Member-Guest tournament held last weekend. First flight winners were George Suff and Cecil Kornegay, while Al Bremner and Dan Sutton took the second flight. Glendal Tucker and Les Albertson won the third flight. Closest to hole prizes went to Steve Rogers for the first day's round, while Bob Rose won for the second round.

AYDEN

The Ayden Golf and Country Club may have set some sort of record for the month of September in this area, as golfers there have recorded four holes-in-one so far this month.

It all started off on September 12, when Ralph Broughton dropped a six-iron shot into the cup on the 163-yard fourth hole. Five days later Tom Boyd duplicated the shot on the 165-yard 17th hole. He used a four-iron.

On Sunday, Cecil Hinnant picked up an ace on the 12th hole, using a four-wood on the 200-yarder. Then, Monday, Jeff McAllister hit a six-iron on the fourth hole, wrapping up the ace-parade.

Pat and Ray Joyner took top honors in a Scotch foursome played Sunday. Joyce and Bill Stroud won the prize for low net, while Janice and Joe Whitaker took low putts.

Aycock Blues Beaten, 14-6

ROCKY MOUNT — Edwards Junior High School nipped the Aycock Junior High School Blues here yesterday, 14-6 stopping a final drive at the three yard line with 20 seconds left in the game.

Edwards had scored first in the game, getting all they needed to win it. Ronnie Davis cracked over from the four for the touchdown. Phil Clark then picked up the two-point conversion with a pass reception to make it 8-0.

Aycock came back in the second period to score its only touchdown. That came on a three-yard quarterback sneak by Dickie Johnson. The try for the tying conversion failed, however and Aycock trailed, 8-6.

Edwards picked up its final touchdown in the third period. This time Phil Fad broke loose and went 55 yards for the score, making it 14-6.

Aycock had two drives stopped inside the five-yard line. In the second period, they were halted at the four, and then, with 20 seconds left, their last effort died at the three-yard line.

Aycock's Blue team is now 0-2 for the year.

	Aycock	Edwards

BATTING—Donn Clendenon, Mets, drilled a two-run, eighth-inning homer as New York edged Philadelphia 5-4 to move within two games of the National League East Division leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

PITCHING—Bob Gibson, Cards, fired a two-hitter in St. Louis' 2-1 opening game triumph over the Chicago Cubs. The Cards also took the nightcap 2-1, pushing the Cubs 2½ games behind the Pirates.

Mets Moving Up; But Is It Supernatural?

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The whispered story of the 1969 baseball season was that supernatural... perhaps even divine... help moved the New York Mets to the world championship.

There is a possibility now that the National League East race has reached the nitty gritty stage that the Mets are getting some extra help again.

—Item: The Mets, trailing Philadelphia 4-3 Wednesday night, find old friend Dick Selma on the mound at the start of the eighth inning. Selma, loser in the ninth the night before and fined $500 for his popoff after the game, promptly surrenders a two-run homer to Donn Clendenon and the Mets win, 5-4.

—Item: Pittsburgh, trailing Montreal 3-1 in the bottom of the ninth, scores a run on Coco Laboy's throwing error and has men on second and third with one out. Reliever Mike Marshall calmly strands the tying and winning runs by retiring pinch hitters Jose Pagan and Gene Glines to save the Expos' 3-2 victory.

—Item: Chicago, 2-1 losers to St. Louis and Bob Gibson in the first game of a doubleheader, trails the Cards 2-0 in the ninth inning of the nightcap. Glenn Beckert singles and Billy Williams tags his third double of the game. A wild pitch scores Beckert and advances Williams, the tying run, to third with none out. Rookie Jerry Reuss calmly mows down the next three hitters to nail down the victory.

—Item: The Mets who were in third place, 3½ games out with nine games to play and reeling on Monday, are second, two games out with seven games to play and alive again today.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, San Diego shut out Atlanta 2-0, Cincinnati belted Houston 6-2 and San Francisco went 10 innings to beat Los Angeles 14-10.

In the American League, Chicago shut out Kansas City 6-0, Cleveland tripped Boston 5-2, New York whipped Washington 6-4 and Minnesota whipped Oakland 7-4. California at Milwaukee and Detroit at Baltimore were postponed.

The Mets were behind 4-1 against the Phillies but knocked out Chris Short with a two-run rally in the sixth. Ironically, Clendenon, whose 21st homer won the game two innings later, crippled the early rally by slamming into a bases-loaded, none-out double play.

Selma, in a postgame tirade the night before, questioned the judgement and integrity of the umpires and said they had fixed the game.

The outburst resulted in his fine by NL President Chub Feeney and nearly caused a walkout by the four umpires. Selma apologized in writing for the remarks, which he said "had no basis" and were made "in a fit of anger."

His comments were more reserved after Wednesday's game. "I threw a curve ball and it hung," he said, claiming his clash with the umpires had not affected his performance. "Yesterday was yesterday," said Selma, "today is today, and tomorrow is an off-day, thank God!"

An interesting choice of words. Pittsburgh came close but could not quite catch Montreal.

NOTICE AUCTION SALE OF FARM LAND

Under and by virtue of an order of the Superior Court of Pitt County signed and entered in the Special Proceeding, entitled "Eitel Mills Haddock (widow), et al. vs. Merlene Pittman and husband, Sammy Pittman," the same being Special Proceeding No. 70 SP 234 on the docket of said Court, the undersigned Commissioner will on Friday, the 16th Day of October, 1970

At 12:00 O'Clock, Noon

at the courthouse door in Greenville, N. C., offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash, subject to confirmation by the Court, the tract of land known as the Elmer Haddock, deceased, farm, more particularly described as follows:

That certain tract of land situated in Chicod Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, near Black Jack, on the west side of the Greenville and New Bern Road, and beginning at a stake, Washington Mills' line, and running thence South 7¼ West, 80 2-3 poles to a stake in the Little Pocosin; thence North 82¼ East, 88 poles to the Road; thence with the Road to a stake in W. H. Arnold's line; thence with his line, South 82¼ West, 138 yards to a stake; thence North 9 deg. West, 69 yards to Washington Mills' line; thence South 82¼ West to the point of the beginning, containing 35½ acres, more or less, and being the Third Tract described in the deed recorded in Book U-24 at page 39 of the Pitt County Registry.

There is EXCEPTED, however, from said tract of land a parcel thereof containing 9.2 acres, more or less, conveyed by the said Elmer Haddock and wife, Eitel Mills Haddock, to C. W. Evans and wife, Pearlie Evans, by that certain deed dated October 24, 1949, and recorded in Book M-25 at page 419 of the Pitt County Registry.

This farm is located near Black Jack, has 1 five-room tenant dwelling, 1 large pack barn, 2 tobacco barns (electricity available), with 4.05 acres of tobacco allotment, 8,327 pounds, and 13 acres corn base.

The successful bidder at this sale will be required to deposit 10 percent of his bid with the Commissioner immediately after the sale to show good faith in his bidding.

This the 10th day of September, 1970.

East Carolina Names New Cage Assistant

Al Ferner, captain of the 1959 LaSalle basketball team, has been named an assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University, it was announced Wednesday by Pirate Head Coach Tom Quinn.

The 33-year-old Ferner will coach the freshman team this season in addition to his extensive duties as a varsity recruiter.

A New Jersey native, Ferner played at LaSalle in 1956-59 under three coaches, Ken Leffler, Jim Pollard and Duddy Moore. He was an All-East selection in 1958 and the same year won All-Big Five honors in Philadelphia. The Big Five is made up of LaSalle, Villanova, St. Joseph's, Temple and Penn. At Collingswood (N.J.) High School, Ferner had played under Coach Jack McCloskey, now the head coach at Wake Forest.

After graduation from LaSalle in 1959, Ferner attended Rutgers as a graduate student while coaching high school basketball in Pennsauken, N. J., Trenton, N. J., and Bridgeton, N. J. He received his Masters in education in 1965, and has remained as head basketball coach at Bridgeton High until joining the ECU staff.

"We feel most fortunate to get Al to come to East Carolina, especially considering the short period of time he had in getting released from his position as third "We had enough chances," said Cub Manager Leo Durocher. "I couldn't have asked for any better hitters coming up in the ninth than Santo and Hickman."

The double loss pushed the Cubs to third place, 2½ behind with eight to play. The Mets and Pirates each have seven left with New York two behind. Chicago plays St. Louis and Pittsburgh takes on Montreal today while the Mets are idle.

"It looks like two of them are going to give it away," said Montreal Manager Gene Mauch. "The Giants wiped out an 8-0 Dodger lead with nine runs in the seventh, the big rally being climaxed by Dick Dietz' grand slam homer. Then, after LA rallied twice to tie the score in the eighth and ninth, San Francisco rushed four more across in the 10th to win it. The last three runs came on Ken Henderson's homer.

assistant principal and head coach at Bridgeton," said Quinn.

"In addition to teaching in the physical education department, Coach Ferner will coach the freshmen, assist Harry Brown and myself with varsity, and recruit a large portion of New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania and Virginia," continued Quinn. "He will also recruit in the Carolinas, Kentucky, Tennessee and Ohio."

Quinn said he believes assistants Ferner and Brown give ECU a basketball staff which is second to none in all areas of major college basketball.

Ferner's hiring fills the vacancy left when Walt Noell decided to return to his alma mater, Wake Forest, as freshman basketball coach.

The Pirates begin practice Oct. 15. The first game is Dec. 4 against strong George Washington here in Minges Coliseum. ECU will play a total of 14 games at home this season. Tickets for the season will go on sale Oct. 1.

Baby Pirates Opening Season

The East Carolina freshman football team, which represents the first crop of Mike McGee recruits, opens its season here Friday night against North Carolina State.

Kickoff time for the Ficklen Stadium battle is 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $1.50 adults, 75 cents for all under 18. ECU students, Pirates Club members and season ticket holders will be admitted free.

The Baby Pirates, coached by former Wilson Fike High coach Henry Trevathan will start a backfield which has Carl Summerell of Virginia Beach, Va., at quarterback, Kenny Moore of Harrells, N. C., at fullback and Ron Hunt of Jacksonville, N. C. at tailback. Missing will be Carlester Crumpler, the scholastic All-American from Trevathan's state championship Wilson team. Crumpler is being held out of freshman competition this fall in order to concentrate on his studies.

Trevathan has a 40-member squad, 27 of them from North Carolina. The biggest of the group is 6-4, 235-pound Greg Burke, a defensive tackle from Winston-Salem, N. C. The smallest is 5-8, 160-pound Rickie Barnes, a defensive back from Wilson.

"Freshman football is like basic training in the Army," said Trevathan. "It's more physical than strategic. Very little scouting is done. Winning the big battles comes later. Right now we are trying to find out things about ourselves — what our strengths and talents are. Of course, winning is always a great motivating factor for any athlete. You always go out to win."

SKIRTING the ISSUE

The onslaught of the midi and even longer fashions for fall and winter brought these reactions from New Yorkers on fashionable Fifth Avenue. Self-conscious tugs on unyielding mini-skirts, left, were followed by puzzlement and even apparent disbelief or dismay on behalf of some.

These Bonwit Teller display windows include designs by Bill Blass, Pauline Trigere, Oscar de la Renta, Donald Brooks, Geoffrey Beene and others. Hemlines described as having a swing to fullness fall to the knees or far below.

Almost every major store in town has loaded up at length on length with serious intentions of committing mini murder. Such an act at first glance seemed an undesirable if not impossible goal to men and women alike who had taken to the mini style.

The fall of the hemline, however, has brought the return of a certain elegant mystery surrounding what had been so obvious for this short period.

SIDEWALK ART — Prancing pedestrians whose sidewalk superstitions keep them from stepping on pavement lines are headed for a real challenge on New York City's Madison Avenue between 78th and 79th Streets. The sidewalk art is the work of artist Alexander Calder who was commissioned to do the job by three art galleries fronting on the stretch of pavement. (AP Wirephoto)

Africans Have Flying Doctors

KIJUNGU, Tanzania (AP) — Spear-carrying Masai tribesmen, their red blanket cloaks reflecting the late afternoon sunlight, watched as the single engine plane passed low over a collection of perhaps 30 mud huts.

Pilot Harry Miller, 29, a doctor from Canada, landed the plane at a nearby cleared area, then drove to a tin-roofed, two-door dispensary where 25 patients awaited him.

Miller is known as one of the "flying doctors" or as one of "those who come from the sky." Officially he is with the East African Flying Doctors Services, a group financed by the African Medical and Research Foundation.

Money comes from the United States, West Germany, Holland, Britain, Switzerland, Canada,

Australia and Scandinavia. At present there are five doctors, one each from Canada, the United States, Germany, Switzerland and a European citizen of Tanzania.

The pilots operate out of tiny, locally cleared dirt strips which few other pilots would consider using. Flying is less expensive than using landrovers and saves hundreds of dusty, bumpy miles as well as thousands of hours.

Miller, of Napanee, Ontario, and his nurse, Elizabeth Senge of Tanzania, average more than 5,000 air miles, 500 patients seen and 14 clinics or dispensaries visited at least twice each month.

Many patients in Africa have malaria. Other common ailments are VD, eye problems, intestinal parasites, TB and, especially among children, malnutrition due to a limited diet.

At the dispensary in Tanzania, Miller was greeted by an African rural medical aid who had four years of training. He gave quick summaries of each case as a new patient was admitted for examination and gave the doctor a detailed card with the patient's case history. Of the 25 patients Miller saw, one was flown out for hospital treatment of probable TB and arrangements were made for three others to be transported by air to a hospital for surgery.

The Flying Doctors started working in 1961. Last year the service flew some 282,957 miles; saw 12,366 patients, performed 2,144 operations and made 420 emergency flights to handle patients gored by elephants, bitten by lions, speared or nibbled by crocodiles or burned in fires at sea.

Presently serving Kenya, Tanzania and a bit of Uganda, the service has requests for help from the governments of Ethiopia, Somalia, Malawi, Botswana and Egypt, according to a spokesman.

There is no charge to the patient and many local medical specialists give their time freely.

"The service would be much more worthwhile if we could also do preventive medicine," Miller noted. Lack of money prevents this.

Miller and nurse Senge plan to stop flying soon, he perhaps to take a job with a Canadian medical project among the Sampanns of Hong Kong, and she to take a ground job at Nairobi headquarters.

The two have been flying over northern Tanzania for two years, serving an area inhabited by perhaps 300,000 persons. Both say they've had enough of constant flying and the bush medical frustrations of too little time, facilities and supplies.

Big Choice: Urban Renewal vs. Saving Landmarks

By DEBORAH RANKIN
Associated Press Writer
GALENA, Ill. (AP) — Nestled in a craggy corner of northern Illinois near the bluffs of the Mississippi River, Galena is a cameo of 19th century history which is threatened by bulldozers of 20th century economics.

Historians say more buildings remain from Galena's heyday as a major river port than existed in Williamsburg, Va., before restoration started there in the 1920s.

But Galena's faltering economy has placed many of its historic buildings in danger of succumbing to the wrecking ball of urban renewal.

The city's main street, which contains a solid stretch of outstanding antebellum architecture, has fallen on hard times since Ulysses S. Grant worked in his father's leather store here.

The imposing buildings were vacated, neglected and sometimes destroyed as the city,

Computer Music Said Humanized

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A Stanford University music professor has come up with a method of "humanizing" music that is produced by a computer.

Leland Smith notes music which is played in perfect rhythm, such as a computer can play, is much less pleasing to the ear than music with human variations.

By using a pair of telegraph keys instead of a baton to "conduct" the music, Smith is able to produce those human variations which make a computer's music sound less machine-like.

once the wealthiest in Illinois, dwindled to a third of its peak population of 14,000.

The gracious shuttered brick and limestone structures built in the 1830s when Galena was the lead mining capital of the world, have won the city a spot on the National Register of Historic Places. Among the historic dwellings are the home the city gave to Grant before he became president and another which served as a treat for Herman Melville the summer before he wrote "Moby Dick."

The sprawling homes along the city's steep terraced slopes were built by prosperous merchants and steamboat operators more than a century ago.

The potpourri of architecture — Victorian, Georgian, Greek revival, St. Louis riverfront — attracts swarms of tourists. Many visitors from Chicago, charmed as well by the town's unhurried pace, have purchased and restored some 300 homes as weekend retreats.

Galena's commercial structures have not fared as well. Clustered together along a crescent called the Main Street Wall, the red brick buildings are badly in need of repair.

All the buildings except for three owned by the mayor are occupied, but the range of business activity is lopsided. There are more than 30 antique stores, a hardware store and a sprinkling of eateries, barber shops and specialty stores.

Disturbed by the stagnant economy, city officials, led by Mayor Robert Buehler, commissioned a study to determine how to improve Galena's business. The report concluded that the only way to improve the economy is to alter the economy through urban renewal.

It recommended that about 10 per cent of the buildings in the downtown area be torn down to provide sites for modern businesses.

The Galena City Council has approved preliminary plans for the $2-million federal-funded project, but not without vociferous protests from townspeople.

Treasure Trove In Excavations

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Founders Square here apparently was aptly named.

Excavations for a building housing a museum, theater information offices and statue of George Rogers Clark discovered a treasure trove of early ceramics and hand-blown bottles.

tered voters — signed a petition opposing Galena's entry into the proposed project.

The opposition includes historical preservation forces, property owners whose buildings are slated for demolition, and those who fear urban renewal will leave gaping holes in the city's landscape. Some worry that accepting federal funds will lead to interference by the federal government.

The urban planners, Barton-Aschman Associates, Inc., of Chicago, disagree. They say modern businesses will generate revenues needed for preserva-

Will Aid India Water Center

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — Faculty members at the University of California will assist India in establishing a water technology center under a $440,750 grant from the Ford Foundation.

The goals are instruction in water science, engineering and related fields for teaching, research and field posts; assistance in strengthening teaching, research and extension activities at agriculture universities in India; cooperation with existing program in the country.

tion of the town's prize buildings, which will otherwise decay. Galena, they say, is not a museum town; it must be a community for the living and not the dead.

But Larry Oestreich, a leader of the urban renewal foes, is adamantly opposed to the planners' position.

He says 500,000 tourists a year come to see Galena's quaint old buildings, and argues that city officials should solicit foundation support for preservation and restoration, and should try to persuade the state and federal governments to purchase landmark structures.

The supporters of urban renewal are curiously silent. Many persons mentioned as backers of the plan refused to talk with a reporter.

One druggist said his position on the subject had cut business so drastically he was adopted a noncommittal public stance. "Tourism isn't the salvation," he added. "I think what's important is to save the town for the people who live in it."

Larry Fleming, head of the urban planning team, said full-scale restoration of Galena in the manner of Williamsburg is impossible under federal urban renewal policies. "Besides," he added, "Williamsburg had a sugar daddy, John D. Rockefeller Jr., and if Galena had one, she could solve all of her problems."

Rep. Jones To Address Dinner

First District Congressman Walter B. Jones will be in Greenville on the first day of October to speak to a ladies group, the Pitt County Democratic Women.

Congressman Jones is scheduled to address the group as guest speaker at a dinner meeting to be held at 7:00 p.m. October 1 at the Greenville Country Club.

Dr. Kay Stokes, publicity chairman for the Pitt County Democratic Women, notes that reservations are now being accepted. Interested persons are asked to contact Mrs. Joseph F. Steelman at 756-2007 or Mrs. Charles Price, 752-7447 no later than 7:00 p.m. Monday, September 28.

May Veto Political Broadcast Reform

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — All the money in the world won't help future political candidates buy more than a limited amount of television and radio time under a bill Congress has sent to President Nixon.

And, some supporters fear, that aspect of the bill could lead Nixon to veto the measure during these days of overflowing Republican campaign coffers.

Approved by the Senate 60 to 19 Wednesday, the political broadcast reform bill would limit radio and television campaign spending and facilitate broadcast debates between major presidential candidates. The bill passed the House 247 to 112 last week.

A candidate for president, vice president, senator, representative, governor or lieutenant governor would be limited to seven cents for each vote cast in the last election for that office, or $20,000, whichever is higher.

Based on the 1968 election, that would limit Republicans and Democrats to less than $6 million each for the 1972 presidential campaign.

The ceiling for primary elections would be 3½ cents a vote or $10,000. The bill requires stations and networks to sell candidates time at the lowest rate offered to other advertisers.

The bill repeals the so-called "equal time" provision of the Communications Act as it applies to presidential and vice presidential candidates. This would enable broadcasters to offer debate time to major party candidates without being forced to offer equal time to minor parties.

At a press conference following the Senate action Wednesday, Russell Hemenway, national director of the National Committee for an Effective Congress, which urged the bill, said he had heard Nixon is having doubts about the measure.

Lending support to the veto possibility was the comment from Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Penn., that the bill was "loosely drawn and inequitable." He said, "If the bill were to be vetoed, I would support the veto."

Texas Sen. John Tower, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, added, "I don't think the President is pleased with this bill."

However, both Tower and Scott emphasized they had not been in touch with the White House concerning administration feelings.

Both sides agree Republicans, in most cases, could outspend Democrats if there were no lim-

House Quota-Setting Trade Bill Slows Rush

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A quota-setting trade bill, once thought to be romping toward House passage, has slowed to a walk as opposition mounts and both sides study strategy.

One member involved said he thinks many of his colleagues would rather not vote before the November elections on the controversial measure that would protect textiles and shoes, allow quotas on other products, freeze in the oil quota system and provide a new tax break for exporters.

Once tentatively scheduled for House action last week, the bill has not even cleared the Rules Committee, where determined efforts are planned to open it up for fundamental amendments. Bills of this kind traditionally go to the House under closed rules, permitting only a yes or no vote on the whole package.

The Rules Committee has been continuing hearings from day to day, and nobody objected much when it recessed in mid-afternoon Wednesday.

The two principal handlers of the measure, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, the senior Republican member, have urged the committee to specify the usual closed rule.

But the committee also has been hearing arguments for procedures that would not permit additions to the bill—which could open up a scramble for special industry provisions—but would allow attempts to knock out whole sections of it.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., a member of the Rules Committee, says he thinks he has a chance of amassing a committee majority for separate votes at least on the oil and exporter tax break features.

There is widespread feeling that if the Rules Committee opens up the measure for votes on each section, its handlers may not even bring it up. Such a decision would not necessarily doom the bill. Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., is prepared to offer the measure as an amendment either to the Social Security or the welfare reorganization bill. Chances of success in such a move, however, are in doubt since supporters of these bills might fight what they regarded as risky addition of a controversial measure.

Addressing the National Defense Transportation Association, Gralla said Wednesday all but four of the government's ocean-going cargo ships are nearly 25 years old.

The transportation specialist suggested a return to fatter subsidies for shipping may be "a premium we have to pay to insure development of an adequate strategic sealift force" in the face of Soviet shipping expansion.

'Open House' At Granville Jail

OXFORD, N. C. (AP) — It sounds like a prisoner's escape dream come true. They're holding open house Saturday at the new Granville County Jail.

There's a hitch, though. Prisoners will remain in the old jail until Oct. 1 when the new $250,000 jail will be ready for occupancy.

Children Given Funds Priority

RALEIGH (AP) — A boost in welfare payments for dependent children has been given top priority in the North Carolina Department of Social Services' financial requests.

The department has asked for $15.7 million in state funds for expanded welfare programs in the next two fiscal years.

The department asked the Advisory Budget Commission Wednesday for an added $3.5 million as the state's share of a $22.8 million increase in the aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) program during the 1971-73 biennium.

The budget commission is hearing requests of state agencies in preparation for drafting spending recommendations to the 1971 general assembly.

Robert Ward, assistant social services commissioner, said the department wanted to increase monthly payments under the AFDC program from the present average of $32.10 per child to $39.42 next fiscal year and $41.51 the following year.

Ward said this would cover 100 per cent of a poverty level subsistence for these needy children, compared to an estimated 86 per cent level covered by the present payments.

The $3.5 million in state funds requested for the program would be supplemented by $16.5 million in federal and $2.8 million in county funds.

The biggest request in the department's proposed $15.7 million budget was for $8.5 million to be used to relieve the counties of part of the welfare administration.

Ward said the counties now pay the lion's share of the administration costs, and the department proposed to equalize them.

The requests also included a $1.6 million increase in a program under which the state and counties share the costs of children in foster homes.

Ward said the additional funds would permit a boost in state matching funds, which are now limited to a maximum of $30 per month for each child.

Strong Dose Of Nature 'In Raw'

WINDHOEK, South Africa (AP) — Local Boy Scouts got a stronger dose of nature in the raw than they bargained for when they spent a night in Eto-sha game reserve. Just after Scoutmaster M. Mansfield ordered lights out, lions stampeded a herd of zebra right through the protective fence around Okaejuo rest camp and pulled down their prey a few feet from the scouts' tents.

Badgers will bury excess prey they have killed, returning to it when food is scarce.

Gov. Scott Says Ghost Is Indicated

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott thinks a ghost may be haunting him.

What's more, the ghost isn't even a Republican. It's Gov. Daniel G. Fowle, a Democrat elected in 1888 and the first chief executive to live in the Victorian mansion now occupied by Gov. and Mrs. Scott and their five children.

Fowle died in the mansion on April 7, 1891.

Scott has written for the November issue of "North Carolina Folklore," magazine giving this account:

After sleeping uncomfortably for a year in a bed specially built for Gov. Fowle, he and Mrs. Scott ordered a new and longer bed. The old one was the bed in which Fowle died.

The Fowle bed was stored in the mansion attic. That's when ghostly noises began.

Scott writes: "One evening Scott and I were in the bedroom reading, and we heard this strange knocking. It seemed to be coming from the wall near where the headboard of Gov. Fowle's bed had stood. The knocking had a rather unusual cadence, like bouncing tennis balls from a high distance.

"After the first knock, there was a pause of several seconds. Then there was a second knock and a pause, then the third knock. Finally the pauses at the end were almost negligible.

"We, of course, do not believe in ghosts. However, the knocking does occur, and it is usually about the same time every night."

He added that until some scientific explanation is offered, the Scotts have dubbed the noises the "Gov. Fowle Ghost."

Canada's Name Possible Error

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) Canada's name probably resulted from a mistake, according to many historians.

The French explorer Jacques Cartier visited an Indian village near what is now Quebec City, and Huron-Iroquois chief Donnacona described the village as "Kannata."

Cartier, who thought the word meant the entire area, took the name "Canada," as he spelled it, for his records.

WHOPPER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The chinook, a giant of the salmon species, averages 20 pounds. But, says the National Geographic, the biggest ever taken on sport tackle weighed 92 pounds, and a monster of 126½ pounds turned up in a trap near Petersburg, Alaska.

Enzyme Detergent Claims Said False

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has called enzyme detergent advertising by three leading manufacturers "unfair, false, misleading and deceptive."

In a proposed complaint, the FTC said Procter & Gamble Co., Colgate-Palmolive Co. and Lever Brothers Co. Inc. were engaged in false advertising.

Procter & Gamble denied the accusation, though the other companies had no immediate response.

The three were given a chance to settle the complaint through a consent decree, if their future ads listed types of stains not removable by enzyme detergents. Boxes would also have to carry such lists, the FTC said.

Procter & Gamble is the largest enzyme detergent producer, with about 75 per cent of total sales. Lever Bros. has 15 per cent, and Colgate-Palmolive about 9 per cent, the agency said.

Procter & Gamble's advertising for Gain was termed by the FTC as typical of the allegedly false claims: "Stains are locked into fabric fibers. But Gain's enzymes act like little keys to unlock stains."

New 'Dan August' Show Opens Fast And Tough

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In ABC's new "Dan August," which made its bow Wednesday night, the public has a hard-hitting police series with interesting production and plenty of action. It moves fast and tough.

Meeting Set On Tuesday

A public meeting will be held for all members of the North Carolina Agricultural Foundation, Inc. at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 203 West Third Street, Greenville, on Tuesday, September 29, at 8 p.m. Membership is composed of all persons who buy feed and/or fertilizer and pay five cents per ton in contributions to the Foundation. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the program of the Foundation and to select a nominee from Pitt County for the Board of Directors. The director selected will serve a four-year term. Mr. W. M. (Bill) McLawhorn of Route 1, Ayden, will complete a four-year term in October. The By-Laws of the Foundation forbid a director from succeeding himself. All users of feed and fertilizer in Pitt County are urged to attend this important meeting.

The first case involved the murder of a rich playboy. Although the plot was not extraordinary, it moved well because of the play of the characters against each other.

Reynolds' Dan August is not very different from the other TV detective he played, Hawk. He is tense, impatient, short-tempered. Norman Fell who once detected in "87th Precinct" is back in harness, this time to provide some light notes.

The series faces some difficult competition, disheartening to fans of mystery tales. Both NBC and CBS have cops-and-robbers series in the same time period. Earlier in the evening Danny Thomas and his former television family picked up just about where they left off several years ago as "Make Room for Granddaddy" made its ABC bow.

The first program of the revival of an old show concentrated on catching up with the family life of Danny Williams. It opened with Danny and Marjorie Lord, still playing his devoted wife, arriving home after a year in Australia. Before many minutes, they were joined by their three children—now young adults—and even Uncle Tonoose from Toledo. It was just like old times and at one point there was a flashback to the early days of "Make Room for Daddy."

There was just enough plot for Danny to acquire on a loan basis a 6-year-old grandchild who will help with plots during the months ahead.

Wednesday night's "Music Hall" on NBC was a tasteful and imaginative duet starring actor Anthony Quinn and singer Peggy Lee.

An unlikely combination, they worked beautifully together with a lot of effective material. Sketches ranged from Thomas Wolfe readings and a moving scene between an aging prizefighter and an employment agency interviewer to broad comedy. Miss Lee worked in the sketches, and Quinn joined her in some of the musical moments. It was a very special 60 minutes.

Recommended tonight: "Matt Lincoln," ABC, 7:30-8:30 EDT, premiere of Vince Edwards' new doctor series; "Barefoot in the Park," ABC, 9-9:30, premiere of a comedy adapted from Neil Simon's stage hit; "The Odd Couple," ABC, 9:30-10, premiere of another Neil Simon adaptation; "The Immortal," ABC, 10-11, premiere of an action series about a man with strange blood.

The Worry Clinic 'Horse Sense' Is Intelligence

Nina possesses wisdom in contrast to academic or mere braintruster education. This distinction is beautifully illustrated in the example of the engineering professor, as outlined below. So send for that "Horse Sense" test. The U.S. Navy used 500 of its test items to weed out candidates for the Navy Air Corps!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.
CASE O-539: Nina S., aged 36, is perplexed.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I never went to school beyond the 8th grade.

"But I read a great deal and always devour my daily newspaper.

"Since it contains your Quiz Column, entitled 'Test Your Horse Sense,' I started working that daily test about 4 years ago.

"And I am quite surprised to find that I almost always rate either 'Superior' or even 'Very Superior' on my daily score.

"But how could I make such high grades when I never even attended high school?"

Nina is an intelligent woman who has cultivated a taste for reading and has also acquired a wide variety of practical experience.

Many college graduates score only "Average" on my newspaper Quiz Column. Why? Because their knowledge is often of the braintruster sort and very textbookish.

But textbooks often are far off of touch with everyday problems. The textbooks, like many of the professors, are too academic or impractical.

When I developed my Quiz Column many years ago, I did it to help give non-college parents a chance to "show up" their college sons and daughters.

For those parents often had an abundance of knowledge about real life, though they might not even have finished high school.

Those parents had acquired real wisdom from the "School of Hard Knocks," whereas their Phi Beta Kappa college children were still braintrusters.

Previously I mentioned the engineering professor who had a luncheon date at noon, but a more important engagement at 2 p.m.

The luncheon lasted till almost 2 o'clock, so the professor trotted out to his parked car, only to find that he didn't have his car keys.

Frantically, he looked around and saw them in the ignition switch inside the car.

But all four doors were locked and the windows closed.

Since he simply had to make the 2 o'clock appointment, he picked up a brick and was just ready to smash the right vent window, when a big truck pulled in beside him.

"What's the matter, Mister?" called out the driver, and the professor told him his dilemma.

"Wait a minute," replied the trucker. "Maybe I can help you."

Whereupon, the trucker slid down out of his cab and deftly inserted a wire by which he lifted the door latch and let the professor enter his car.

"My, my," the professor exclaimed. "Here I am a professor of engineering and couldn't get into my car. Yet you had the door open in less than half a minute!"

The trucker shrugged off the compliment and said:

"Well, Mister, when you ain't got no education, then you got to use your BRAINS!"

Education, supplemented with "horse sense" or practical experience, then become a wisdom. Alas, too many braintrusters are still in government!

So send for my "Vocational Guidance booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c for it contains the original one-hour "Test of Horse Sense" out of which the newspaper column evolved.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Girl Scouts To Camp Hardee

Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts of the Greenville Neighborhood will spend Oct. 2-4 at Camp Hardee on the Pamlico River.

Plans for the encampment call for campfire ceremonies, a candlelight "Scouts Own", waterfront activities under the supervision of Tommy Worsley and an all-day "Tie Dyeing" party.

All transportation, direction, leadership and supervision for the camping and other Girl Scout activities is furnished by volunteer leaders and friends of Girl Scouts.

The bidding:
West North East South
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠
Pass 4 ♠ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠

East realized that cashing out promptly was of the essence in defending against South's four heart contract. His main problem however, was in deciding how many tricks to try for in each suit.

West opened the six of clubs and the ace was played from dummy. The opposing trumps were drawn in two pulls and South led the ten of clubs next and let it ride after West followed with the four.

East was in with the queen and he paused for a moment to reconstruct his opponent's holding. From South's play so far, it seemed apparent that the declarer had started with seven hearts and three clubs.

This left him with three cards in spades and diamonds. If he held the ace of diamonds, then the contest was over, for that added up to 10 tricks.

In order to defeat the contract then, East must play his partner for the ace of diamonds. Now if South's remaining three cards were divided two and one between spades and diamonds, there would be a problem in guessing how to cash out—for it was perfectly clear that just as soon as declarer regained the lead, he could run enough clubs to bring his trick total to 10.

In an attempt to probe for more information, East shifted to the seven of diamonds. This appeared to be a "top of nothing" lead and it was his objective to induce West to shift to a spade. The fall of the spots in that suit might clarify the picture.

West put up the ace of diamonds and dutifully returned the three of spades which was most revealing to his partner. Since the three was presumably fourth best and the deuce was located in dummy, it became obvious that West had a maximum of four spades and South therefore held two cards in that suit. East confidently cashed the setting tricks in spades with the queen and ace.

Observe that if East makes the conventional lead of the king of diamonds first, he has no chance to recover. For South ruffs the continuation and runs for cover.

Will Explain REAP Role

REAP director, "Skeet" Creekmore will explain the REAP program to members and guests of the Greenville Youth Association for Retarded Children Monday at 7 p.m. in the Community Room of Planters National Bank.

Creekmore, who developed and directs REAP, an ECU-affiliated program for pre-school and kindergarten-aged retarded children, will show slides dealing with the program. Youth ARC president, Sharlene Dunn said reports will also be given by several members who worked at a two-week camp for retarded children held at White Lake during the summer. Reports on a convention of the State Youth ARC will also be offered.

Any interested young person is invited. A social hour will be sponsored by the Pitt County (Adult) Association for Retarded Children.

A Majority Don't Smoke

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI) — The image of a college professor as a man in a tweed jacket puffing his pipe is nothing more than a "pipe dream" — at least for one college in Texas.

As a matter of fact, a survey of professors at Pan American College in Edinburg reveals that the majority not only do not smoke pipes, but do not smoke anything.

A survey by the school's Public Information Office showed 73.9 per cent of those queried don't smoke. Even more significantly, of the total, 57.3 per cent had smoked cigarettes regularly at one time.

The majority of those said they gave up the tobacco habit because of the publicity concerning possible links between smoking and disease.

Of those who gave up cigarettes, only 2.5 per cent decided to substitute a pipe and .54 per cent took up cigars. The rest went "cold turkey" and beat the habit completely.

The survey, conducted primarily among male faculty members, included all but one department at the college.

Park Police On Horses

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Mounted police may be making a comeback.

This is the opinion of Denis Ayres of the U.S. Park Service Police who is training rangers in Yosemite National park how to control crowds from horseback.

"Back east in the metropolitan areas the horse is being used more and more," he said. "New York City has 300 mounted patrolmen out daily. For years in police work the horse went down in popularity, but now everybody is screaming for them."

He said a horseman can move into traffic jams more easily than men in cruisers and the mounted policeman has a better vantage point for surveying a situation than the man in a car or the foot patrolman.

And he thinks the horse is a valuable public relations asset. While incidents involving objects thrown at police cars are increasing, he said few such cases involve police on mounts.

"People seem to have a different attitude toward a policeman on a horse," Ayres said.

Horsemen in Yosemite were criticized by a Florida physician who complained to Interior Secretary Walter Hickel that mounted rangers galloped through a group of young persons to disperse them for gathering in violation of curfew rules last July 4.

Ayres, who is putting Yosemite's 10-man horse patrol unit through an intensive training session in horsemanship and crowd control, said the "day of the cavalry charge is over."

"A mounted policeman must keep his horse at a walk or he will lose more than he gains by hurting or frightening people," he said.

Ayres said trainers have taught the horses to remain calm even if beer cans, paper and firecrackers are thrown at them.

"We have even sprayed fire hoses at them," he said.
