Sorrowing Egyptians Mourn Leader's Death

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of grief-stricken Egyptians kept a vigil today outside Kubbah Palace, where their revered leader, Gamal Abdel Nasser, lay in state.

The Egyptian president 52, died of a heart attack Monday night. Thoughts in world capitals turned to the question of his successor and the future course of events in the Middle East, particularly the U.S. peace plan.

Gathered at Nasser's bedside at the time of his death were three men mentioned as possible successors, Vice President Anwar Sadat, who became acting president, Air Marshal Aly Sabri, and Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, commander in chief of Egypt's armed forces.

Nasser accepted the U.S. plan for a cease-fire in the conflict with Israel and his last official act was to obtain a truce in the bloody Jordanian civil war.

President Nixon was reported to believe Nasser's death will shelve the U.S. Middle East peace initiative, at least for several months.

The thinking is that the new Egyptian leader must take a harder line toward Israel.

Nixon was in the Mediterranean today aboard the U.S. 6th Fleet cruiser Springfield and was going ahead with his plans to visit Yugoslavia on Wednesday. President Tito of Yugoslavia designated a top adviser, Edvard Kardelj, to represent him at Nasser's funeral.

Nixon is sending Robert H. Finch, one of his principal advisers, to be chief U.S. delegate at the funeral.

A state funeral is scheduled Thursday in the Egyptian capital.

Cairo Radio said every railway station in the country was filled with peasants demanding passage to the capital. Mourners traveled the roadways, in buses, in cars, on donkeys and on foot.

In the capital itself, crowds roamed the streets Monday night. People jammed busses and taxis for suburban Koubbeh, where the body of Nasser lay in state in the presidential palace. Others walked the dozen miles.

The government radio read condolences from world leaders, political enemies and friends alike, most of them addressed to Anwar Sadat, who as vice president became provisional president under the constitution. His term will be for 60 days, during which Nasser's Arab Socialist Union will choose a broadcast said one of the new government's first official acts was to declare a state of "utmost emergency" along the Suez Canal cease-fire line with Israel to guard against any possible attack.

Cairo radio said the burial will be at a mosque near Nasser's home at Machiet el Bak ry, about five miles from Koubbeh.

The Cairo broadcast said those with Nasser when he died included his wife Tahia, Lt. Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, commander in chief of the armed forces; former Premier Aly Sabry; Hussein Shafiq, a former vice president, and Sadat.

Sadat Rules For 60 Days

By ELIAS ANTAR

BEIRUT (AP) — One of Gamal Abdel Nasser's most loyal followers will be Egypt's leader for the next 60 days.

Vice President Anwar Sadat, one of the "Free Officers" who joined Nasser in 1952 to overthrow King Farouk, took over Monday as interim head of state under the provisions of Egypt's 1964 constitution.

No one knows who will eventually emerge as Nasser's successor.

Within 60 days, the 360-member National Assembly is required to nominate a new president by a two-thirds majority. According to the constitution, the new president's term would be five years. Nasser was elected president for life following his brief resignation after Egypt's defeat by Israel in the 1967 war.

Diplomats in Paris said today that Sadat is not likely to emerge as Nasser's final successor.

Of all the officers who helped

Nasser launch his revolution, only two survive in power—Sadat, 52, and Hussein Shafiq, 51, who has little popular support. Both are members of the Supreme Executive Committee of the Arab Socialist Union, the only authorized political organization in Egypt.

Gov. Scott Asks N.C. Law Requiring Report Of Child Abuse Cases

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott called today for a law to require North Carolinians to report cases of child abuse.

Noting that the state is one of six without such a law, Scott said the State Department of Social Services received more than 2,000 reports of child abuse or neglect last year. It has been estimated there were twice that many cases unreported, Scott added.

Fewer Planes

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP) — The U.S. Air Force will buy fewer planes this fiscal year than at any time since 1935, while Russia will increase her new plane purchases by 50 per cent.

John Lang, administrative assistant to Secretary of the Air Force Robert Seamans Jr., made that disclosure Monday night at a meeting in Goldsboro.

Speaking at ceremonies chartering the Scott B. Berkeley chapter of the Air Force Association, Lang warned of reducing the effectiveness of military forces "below necessary levels."

"To do so," he said, "will create dangers far greater than we have faced" in the past.

He said the consequences of the lack of preparedness in World Wars One and II "could not compare with the consequences we could expect today."

and Youth, Scott also called for mandatory licensing of child day care centers. He said "at least a minimum level of health standards" should be required.

Scott recited a long and "depressing" list of needs of the state's children and youth and said, "let's try to bridge the gap."

He said the state needs more diagnostic centers for infants "so that the retarded can be detected early." And facilities and services are needed for multi-handicapped children, such as those who are blind and deaf," he said.

The east need juvenile diagnostic centers such as the one the State Department of Juvenile Correction operates in the western part of the state, he said.

"No need is more obvious or more immediate than the need to control the problem of drug abuse in North Carolina," Scott said. "Control of this problem requires enforcement, preventive education, treatment and habilitation."

"Our efforts in preventive education must begin early — perhaps in the elementary grades — and continue on through high school health courses," he added.

Turning to educational needs, Scott said "the need for expansion of our kindergarten program is obvious. He noted that about 10 per cent of the state's first graders fail.

The state's high school dropout rate "points out the need for expanding our new program of occupational exploration in the middle grades and for upgrading our other programs in vocational education," Scott said.

He said teachers need more pay, the state needs a lower teacher-pupil ratio and more teacher aides are needed.

"Other education needs include: using our present physical facilities to the fullest extent possible; encouraging more people to take an active interest in public education; offering a wider variety of courses from the kindergarten to the 12th grade; improving our school libraries, and our laboratories and our system of visual aids.

In calling for more cooperation among agencies that provide services for children, Scott said "a strong case can be made" for including the Department of Juvenile Correction in the proposed Department of Human Affairs.

Scott noted that the state's rate of illegitimate births is increasing and said the state "needs to find out why this rate is increasing and to determine how it can be curbed." He said that although this is a moral problem that cannot be solved entirely by legislation, "perhaps legislation can help."

Meet To Ponder Schedules For Marketing

RALEIGH (AP) — The industrywide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee meets in Raleigh tonight to consider marketing schedules for the various belts for the coming weeks.

A subcommittee planned to meet at 4:30 p.m. and make recommendations to the full committee at 7:30 p.m.

John H. Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said the committee probably will adopt a schedule for the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt for the remainder of the season.

The committee met two weeks ago and adopted sales schedules for the two-week period ending this week.

Wept At Nasser Bedside

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The five doctors who treated Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser for his fatal heart attack Monday night spent 15 minutes trying to get his heart beating again, the Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram reported today.

When the efforts proved unsuccessful they burst into tears and all present at Nasser's bedside then knew that the president had passed away, the report, quoted by Cairo Radio, said.

Strip Is Virtually One City Regulation Of Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says the Northeast Corridor, where 36.2 million or 18 per cent of the nation's population live, is now "deemed to be virtually one elongated metropolitan area or 'strip city.'"

The area, stretching 450 miles along the Atlantic from Boston to Washington and up to 150 miles wide, grew as fast as the rest of the nation during the 1960s, the bureau said Monday, but the people aren't staying in the central cities as they once did.

Virtually every major city in the corridor, the bureau said, lost residents while the population of their suburbs showed an increase during the '60s.

As an example, the bureau said, the Boston Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) showed a population gain of 5.2 per cent during the 10 years between the 1960 census and the 1970 census, but the city itself had a population loss of 10 per cent.

The bureau defines an SMSA as a central city surrounded by its supporting cities.

Here are the populations of some areas with 500,000 or more residents:

Seek To Drop Passenger Train Number On Her Doberman

RALEIGH (AP) — The Seaboard Coastline Railroad is seeking to discontinue operation of its passenger train, the Palmland, between Richmond, Va., and Columbia, S. C.

The Railroad is expected to file a petition with the North Carolina Utilities Commission later this week citing reduction in passengers and reduced income from carrying the mails as reasons for dropping the train.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has set in motion new regulations for local school spending some officials predict will prove as momentous as the civil rights laws of the 1960s.

The Office of Education — following up an announcement of last February — has told districts that to qualify for the major source of federal aid they must spend as many state and local tax dollars in schools serving low-income neighborhoods as in those for more affluent areas.

The federal government calls this "comparability."

Some districts spend as much as $500 more per pupil in their rich schools as in their poor ones, the education office says. In such districts federal aid seems to equalize expenditures between schools and does not, as intended, provide extra help for disadvantaged students.

Government officials blame this lack of comparability in part for disappointing results for the $1.5 billion aid program for upgrading the education of low-income students — title I of the Elementary and Secondary School Act.

The 16,400 districts receiving Title I funds must demonstrate comparability of expenditures among their schools by next July 1 or submit a plan for achieving that goal. Officials say as many as 12,000 appear not to meet the new standards.

Critical About Environment

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Elder inmates at the New Mexico State Penitentiary received questionnaires as part of a national survey seeking to pinpoint the problems of older people.

One question asked: "Are you happy in the neighborhood where you live?"

The inmates, all over 55-year-old laughed a bit then listed lack of transportation and income as major criticisms of their environment.

Districts without comparability will be ineligible for Title I money after July 1, 1972.

"These new requirements could be the most important thing to happen in the education of minority children since the 1964 Civil Rights Act," said an administration official who helped draft the rules. "They are going to become a very hot issue when people realize their impact and meaning for the financing of education."

The 1964 act made it illegal to support discriminatory programs with federal aid.

To achieve compliance, some of these districts are expected to face the politically uncomfortable choices of either raising school taxes or shifting funds from high-income schools into poor ones.

The measures of comparability will be the amount of state or local money spent in each school for instructional salaries, equipment and books and the ratio of pupils to instructional staff.

Morgan Making Justice Study

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan was due to arrive in London, England, today to begin a two-week inspection tour of European criminal justice methods and facilities.

Morgan said that in London he wants to "examine the English system of treatment of heroin addicts." He explained that the English permit certified addicts to purchase heroin at drug stores and attempt to cure them by gradually reducing the dosage.

Sowers Views Federal Gov't As A Monolith

WILMINGTON (AP) — A top state official described the federal government today as a "giant monolith" which has "replaced any sense of humanity it may have had with a sense of arrogance and a demand for obedience."

"The attitude of 'we must serve' has been replaced with one of 'we must win' and 'our point of view must prevail,'" said Roy Sowers, director of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

In a talk prepared for delivery to the 63rd annual convention of the N.C. Association of County Commissioners, Sowers said that state and local governments are partly responsible for what has happened in Washington.

Sowers said state and local governments had "permitted needs to go unmet, tolerated inexcusable situations and closed their eyes to

Hit All-Time High In PTI Enrollment This Fall Quarter

Pitt Technical Institute's initial fall quarter enrollment has reached an all time high with 655 full time students, representing an increase of 182 over last year, the school's board of directors were informed Monday night.

PTI President, Dr. William Fulford said current enrollment reflects an increase of 29 per cent in technical programs and 40 per cent in vocational programs.

"This makes for an overall increase of 31 per cent," which we think is outstanding for a school this size. First year students number 464 with 157 second year students.

Fulford said in comparison, in 1967-68 total enrollment for PTI was only 359 full time students.

Fulford warned that the time is at hand when serious planning must be made for the future growth of the campus. "We must be concerned with the need for additional buildings." Facilities are already crowded even with the new classroom and lab building in full use.

New programs such as practical nursing, mental health, commercial art were cited as factors in the large upswing in enrollment.

"If we had community college status the enrollment would be way over 1,000."

"We will fill every need that we possibly can from anyone in Pitt county, for our purpose is to serve the citizens," said Fulford.

"Thus every barrier must be eliminated where possible to allow us to better serve. This institution belongs to the people. It was voted by them," he said.

Raymond E. Hanger was approved for employment as a Law Enforcement Instructor.

Approval of both state and county budgets was given and it was voted that the school could purchase used text books from students for resale. "This will cut the cost of education for many students as we will be able to return some of the money to them and allow others to purchase the books in good condition at lower costs," said Fulford.

Mary Quant, Creator Of Mod, Says 'Wear Whatever You Feel'

By IRIS HARTMAN
LONDON (WNS) — "All lengths are good," says Mary Quant, the inventor of the mini, who is now designing maxis and who was wearing kickbockers when she said it.

"It is ridiculous to try to settle on one length; it should depend on how you feel," she protested. "Any length is right if it looks good on you, — or even if it doesn't — if it makes you feel marvelous."

And something entirely different might make you feel marvelous tonight or tomorrow, as Miss Quant sees it. It might be your Gypsy day or your Garbo day, but any day and every day it should be fun to get dressed in the morning.

Speaking of the way some retailers bully the public by showing only one length, she conceded there are some people who still need rules — "something they can follow so as to feel they are right."

But today's young people don't need rules, according to Mary Quant.

"They are adventurous," she declared. "Anything new has to start with them. What they do today, the couturiers confirm tomorrow." ROLLS

I felt very lucky to have an appointment with Mary Quant and her partner — husband, Alexander Plunket Greene.

The cockney street near me out on Covesby let me Number 3. Not at it, but near it because the full width of the building was spanned by the gray Rolls Royce parked there. That is the Alexander touch.

The Mary Quant touch starts when you open the door and step on the famous Mary Quant daisy motif of the mustard and navy carpeting everywhere.

The girl at the switch-board was ordering a helicopter "for Mr. Alexander Plunket Greene" at 60 pounds ($144) an hour, — the Alexander touch again.

Wearing a brown midi dress in dirndl style, a current Quant design, pretty Heather Tilbury, the public relations girl for the firm, led me upstairs to Mary's office. It was four o'clock, time for the tea break. I was served a cup of a very dark brew in my turn.

Alexander, huge and charming in Establishment charcoal gray, apologized for Mary's lateness. He cleared up my mystification about the Ginger Group. That is the name of their ready-to-wear dress operation — all Mary Quant designed of course. The clothes are sold in over 250 shops in Britain, in all the 300 J. C. Penny stores in America, and in Canada, France, Italy, Kenya, Japan, — in fact, almost all over the world.

Three Partners
Mary Quant Ltd., which takes in the designing, make-up, perfume, tights and almost everything else used by a woman, is made up of three partners "who work sort of jolly close together," it was explained. Archie McNair handles the business end, Alexander the presentation and promotion, and Mary the designing.

"No one interferes with Mary's desires," Alexander stated. Then, quietly, modestly, in walked Mary, exquiste red-head with a Sassoon haircut grown long.

Her manner was ladylike, her dress definitely Mod — narrow knickers of cinnamon satin, a soft crepe blouse, a cinnamon suede waistcoat hanging open, soft boots, one ring. On her, it looked tremendously feminine.

A model passed by the open doorway in Mary's current hit number, a black wool midi dress that completely buttons — or unbuttons — down both the front and the back. Alexander followed my eye as it noticed the dress was unbuttoned thigh high both back and front.

"Mary always has designed with an eye to man-appeal," he confided. "She insists sex and fashion are inseparable."

Mary was fondling a box of colored crayons. It looked like a set for kindergarten with a Quant label.

"It's make-up, and it's fun," she said. "It's for face, eyes, lips, anything you want."

Cosmetics
"There are such exciting things to do in cosmetics," Alexander enthused. "It's not just for a woman to decorate the face. She has to look and feel better. I'm afraid that the way life is now — pollution and all — the more urban life gets, the more you've got to take care of yourself."

I asked if there is a credo behind the Mary Quant Look, the look that set off a new image for girls. Is it anti-smart, anti-fashion, anti-establishment or anti-snob? "Mods aren't anti-anything," Mary protested. "That's the point. They are 'life is fabulous' people. They are daring and gay, and their clothes extend that. They took the snobbery out of fashion. Looking expensive means nothing to them, nor does wearing the right thing at the right time."

"What is the latest and most thrilling development here," I wanted to know.

Almost shyly, Mary confessed there is to be a complete Mary Quant Boutique at Bonwit Teller New York where not only the dresses, but everything with the Quant

Brother-In-Law Is No Picasso

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My wife's brother started painting as a hobby a couple of years ago. I'll admit I don't claim to know anything about art, but I know what I like, and his stuff looks like an explosion in a paint factory. Now he is doing a half finished with a portrait of my wife which he's about as a Christmas present. He's working from a snapshot. My wife and I have seen it and we can hardly keep our faces straight, but we don't want to hurt his feelings.

When it is finished, do we have to hang it up in the living room? Or should I take it right up to the attic where it belongs.

DEAR NAMELESS: Prop it up downstairs for a respectable length of time. Then "store" it in the attic with the Christmas decorations, and if your brother in law notices it's gone, tell him you just couldn't bear to hang his sister in the living room.

DEAR ABBY: Nobody believes me, but when I went to see "Midnight Cowboy" I honestly thought it was a Western. It won the Academy Award so I thought it was worth seeing. Well, after a while, I realized it wasn't the kind of movie I thought it was, so I went to the box office and asked for my money back. The girl selling tickets said she was sorry but I had seen nearly the whole movie and she couldn't give me my money back. How about that? GYPPE

DEAR GYPPE: I don't know how many minutes make a legal movie, but four and a half innings make a legal ball game. Next time, ask to see the manager.

DEAR ABBY: This is written with a prayer that it will save just one marriage. It's a long story, but I'll make it short:

Many years ago, after 16 years of marriage, I became attracted to a married man. He was a wonderful listener and I was lonely. My husband was a good man, but he was gone a lot. This other man and I started an innocent flirtation. He asked if he could call me. I said yes. Then we started talking on the telephone, morning, noon and night when we knew the other's spouse was gone.

This soon led to secret meetings. Within two years, we had become so deeply involved, we decided we couldn't live without each other, so we broke up two fine families and were married. My children hated me for what I had done, and his children hated him, so you can imagine what kind of marriage we had.

The unhappiness we caused our respective families cannot be described here.

To all married people who think it might be exciting to have a little innocent side affair, I have one word of advice. Don't! And if you are ever attracted to someone who asks, "May I call you?" say, "no"—and run like the devil is after you. Because he is. BEEN THERE label will be sold, from shoes to hats and from make-up to gaucho pants.

"Our gaucho pants are selling like hot cakes," she beamed, still managing to sound modest.

Teach Toddler To Tell Time

By AP NEWSFEATURES

If all the toddlers in the world could be taught how to tell time, they would never have to worry about anyone being late again.

"But many children do not learn how to master telling time until they are eight or nine years old" says Bulova time expert, Michael D. Roman. "So punctuality is a concept they cannot quite grasp. Actually, the real problem is that the majority of adults are unable to get the theory across to youngsters."

Roman has devised a "time-teaching" plan for parents, to be used as a pre-school introductory course or in conjunction with what is learned in the classroom.

What Time Tells Us
The first step in helping your child to understand time is to define its purpose. Explain that time tells us when it is morning or night, when to wake up or go to sleep, when to eat, when to play, etc.

Motivate him to talk about the types of clocks he is familiar with — alarm clocks, electric clocks, clock radios, wall clocks. Discuss what would happen if there were no clocks. How would he know when to wake up? How would he know when to go to school? How would mother know when to get dinner ready? How would dad know when to leave work to come home?

What Clock Numbers Mean
Providing your child can count to 12, the next step is to point out the numbers on the clock. Do so on a hand-made model, easily put together by a youngster with a paper plate, two strips of colored paper, and a paper fastener. Have him make one marker conspicuously longer than the other and attach them loosely to the center of the plate so that they move around easily. Print the numbers on the rim of the plate, first putting 12 on top and 6 on the bottom (to emphasize the hour and half-hour), then fill in the rest of the numbers.

The Hours...
Relate the numbers on the clockface to activities your youngster understands ... i.e., waking up at 7:00, eating lunch at 12:00, watching cartoons at 3:00, and arguing about going to bed at 7:00.

As you discuss these daily events, show him how to place the hands of the clock on the correct numbers. Indicate that the long hand points to 12 on the exact hour and the short marker points to the number that tells the hour.

...And The Minutes
Once the numbers become meaningful, explain that there are 60 minutes in one hour, 30 minutes in a half-hour. Point out that although the long and short hands move at the same time, the long one moves faster and tells the minutes.

Here, again, stimulate your child to become minute-conscious by asking pertinent questions. How long does it take to comb his hair? Or brush his teeth? How many minutes did it take to gulp down his milk? Pretty soon he will be timing all sorts of things.

Tell-Time ... Fun-Time

The simplest way of teaching your youngster to tell time is by making it fun to learn. Put the hours in the day to music and sing along with him. Create time games for him and his friends. He will not only look forward to "playing" his lessons, he will remember them well.

Demonstrated American Pride

We have never met Air Force Gen. Daniel James but we already admire him.

It has been well documented recently that the armed services are having their share of racial troubles, reflecting the problems the nation as a whole is having.

The 6-foot-4 Gen. James recently addressed 1,500 marines on the racial problems.

Found Home In The Bahamas

By BRYAN HAISLIP
FREEPORT — Sun and wind have squinted his eyes and bleached his hair. He steered the boat with the nonchalant ease of one for whom water is a natural and companionable element.

British, Americans, some from the European countries, and the native Bahamians. British law and custom prevails, of course, which means driving on the left, a more disciplined system of education, and an accent which Marty and Chuck are fast adopting in place of their Tar Heel drawl.

Beauty Beyond Words
For Wilkerson, the great attraction is the natural beauty of the islands and work suited to his taste and ability.

"I took a two-week sailing trip not long ago to about 50 of the 700 islands in the Bahamas group. I've never seen anything so beautiful." He searched for words and gave up. "You just can't describe how beautiful some of the islands are."

There are economic advantages, too — no income tax, no property tax, no sales tax. The principal source of revenue is a $2-a-head departure tax levied on visitors or residents each time they leave the island.

"When I make a dollar, it's a dollar," Wilkerson said. In addition to his job as marina dockmaster, he has started his own boat rental business as a source of income.

Mrs. Wilkerson, the former Peggy Atkins of Raleigh, has mixed feelings about the change of scene. "She's family oriented. She misses the visits with relatives, the get-togethers on Sunday," her husband said.

She laughed, perhaps with a small note of homesickness. "It's very different," she said.

Fluid Social Scene

"So many of the people are transients — here today and gone tomorrow. The bridge club I play with is hardly ever the same group from one time to the next.

"And you know we are the minority here. The Bahamians are friendly and very nice. But it's quite a switch to have the only white face at the super-market."

Living costs are high. The island produces virtually nothing, importing food, clothing, household articles — everything. Food costs are double, housing about triple, comparable expenses in North Carolina.

The Lucayan marina is one of the best and largest in the world. At the height of the season it is thick with the boats of the wealthy and famous. Art Linkletter, Victor Borge, Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis, Jr., Clint Walker are among the visitors.

Plans are in progress for dredging which will accommodate cruise ships. That is a project which involves another Tar Heel, Preston Locke of Kinston. He was helicopter pilot for President Eisenhower and now is an official of the Freeport Port Authority, guiding force behind the island's development.

"The problems are going to be solved and they are going to be solved by men and women who consider themselves Americans and not Africans," he declared. "It's up to you to keep the faith, baby!"

The marines, including several hundred blacks, broke into applause, according to news accounts. Following his address, Gen. James told the group he wished to tell them about another military man. Then he broke into a rendition of "When Joshua Fought the Battle of Jericho."

This brought on a two minute standing ovation. James is a brigadier general and deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. He is also a black man. Undoubtedly he is proud of it, but he is also more proud of being an American.

Ky's Presence Could Have Been Damaging

South Vietnamese vice president Ky has made a wise decision in deciding not to attend the Oct. 3 "March for Victory" in Washington.

While this is a free country and the sponsors of the rally had a right to invite Ky, his appearance at the rally would have done no good and perhaps caused much harm.

No doubt Ky was dissuaded from attending by our own administration. Whatever brought his decision about it was a good one.

Small College Crisis Grows

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK CLAREMONT, Cal.

Throughout the sleepy summer on the idyllic campus of the Claremont Colleges, administrators looked the other way amid continuing politicization which threatens to consume the nation's private liberal arts colleges.

A student-faculty group called the Movement Against War was busy on many fronts: preparing to support anti-Vietnam candidates in the fall campaign, distributing partisan political literature, conducting "anti-war classes," counselling disaffected members of the Armed Services, agitating in local high schools. What gave all this a semi-official status was the location of its headquarters in an office in the Claremont Graduate School supplied by college officials.

Such mixing of the academy and partisan politics, unheard of a few years ago, is commonplace today. What makes it noteworthy here is that Claremont was one of the rare educational institutions where, despite last spring's Cambodia-Kent State hysteria, a temporary victory against politicization was scored. The summer's continuing agitation only shows the struggle is far from over.

Indeed, the Claremont Colleges — a collection of five small undergraduate colleges and a graduate school, all with the highest academic reputation — provides a case study of the crisis in private higher education. Although pressure from taxpayers and politicians is beginning to inhibit politicization in the great state universities, the small liberal arts school is isolated from such pressure and therefore exceedingly vulnerable. Salvation will have to come from within.

Thus, while the scandalous breakdown of academic procedures at the University of California's campuses last spring was revealed in newspaper headlines, similar disruption at Claremont went unnoticed beyond the limits of this campus. Classes were arbitrarily suspended after the Kent State killings. Calling it a "renaissance" program, many professors substituted political activity for regular classes. The graduate school faculty voted to support the Movement Against War and, with overtones of coercion, suggested graduate students might channel their studies into anti-war activities.

The most flagrant venture into politics was a decision by the graduate school to help finance the Movement Against War's activities with $1,500 from mandatory student fees. This, more than any other factor, mobilized a handful of outraged graduate students into forming the Committee for Academic Freedom. Threatening legal action, this committee persuaded college officials to reverse themselves.

The victory, however, comes after what the minority of concerned professors and graduate students view as a pattern of steady politicization condoned by weak-kneed administrators.

That pattern emerged in 1968 when, in a violent upheaval including 25 separate arson incidents, administrators capitulated to militant demands for black studies courses with a 10 percent black quota. When radicals staged a Nov. 15, 1969, sit-in at Claremont Men's College (one of the five undergraduate colleges), administrators turned the other cheek.

The end result is the gradual disappearance of the liberal arts college isolated from outside pressures and devoted to free inquiry. New contact with minority groups outside the campus in well-intentioned attempts at social service is partially blamed for an alarming rise in violent crime by non-students on this once-serene campus. Worse yet in academic terms is the growing conformity within the faculty, implicitly establishing a political test for academic seats.

Curiously, Claremont's board of trustees, largely conservative business men, provides no substitute for the public pressure exerted on state universities. Classes were arbitrarily

The Danish Solution?

Prostitution has this dictionary definition, short and to the point: "The practice of engaging in sexual intercourse for money." It may be the oldest of all professions, but prostitution stands condemned by every great religion and by every major culture.

In the real world, the traffic bears no musical-comedy trimmings. Prostitution is a depraved and sordid business. Yet it has just received the friendly encouragement of a presidential commission, named by Lyndon Johnson and financed by American taxpayers through the Congress.

The report of the President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, scheduled for release this week, is one of the most curious — and most repellent — documents ever to come from the government's press. The report deals with sexuality, which is to say that it deals with the very essence of human procreation; yet the report contains not one single breath of the human spirit. The commission's approach is abstract, statistical, legalistic; its offspring is sired by Dow Jones out of the Minnesota Law Review. In reading this report, it is necessary constantly to remind oneself of what its authors are talking about. They are talking about pornography, about a traffic in commercial erotica that runs to half-a-billion dollars a year. They are talking of films, magazines, paperbacks devoted to graphic debasement of the body and soul of man. But the prostitutes who are paid to engage in these infinite acts of photographed intercourse never emerge from the commission's tabulations as human beings. They are as lifeless and remote as so many sow bellies traded on the Chicago exchange.

It is by now widely known, even in advance of a report's official release, that a majority of the commission has opted for what is known as a "Danish solution." The commission recommends that the United States, following the example of Denmark, scrap all existing laws proscribing the sale of obscene materials, save only for statutes to prohibit the public display of pornography and to prevent the sale of such materials to juveniles.

The commission's conclusion is based entirely upon this line of reasoning: In a free society, all conduct should be lawful which causes no demonstrable harm to others; empirical proof cannot be adduced that pornography causes such harm; therefore the traffic in pornography should be lawful.

As an abstract theory, the proposition is flawless; but the theory collapses on its premise that all harm is scientifically measurable, and that every aspect of human behavior yields to "empirical proof." It simply is not so. Society can be only generally, and not precisely, compared to a fabric, or a rock, or a river; and those instruments that measure rot and erosion and decay cannot calibrate the slow insidious wasting of public taste and private morals.

In fairness, it should be said that the commission acknowledges the inadequacy of its own ventures in research. Each of the many studies "has its limitations." Some of the studies are more adequate than others. Nevertheless, an impression persists that the commission staff, reflecting the permissive attitudes of the American Civil Liberties Union, set out with the deliberate intention of not proving that which it was certain could not be proved, i.e., that pornography causes social damage and may therefore be proscribed by law.

To be sure, dissenting members of the commission cannot prove the opposite proposition — that pornography is in fact harmful and should be prohibited. They have to rely upon reasonable surmise and plain common sense, but in doing so, they cut straight through the legalisms, the fine-spun (Continued on page 5) right shall prevail. Also, I have seen countless movies and read numerous articles that gave proof to the fact that good triumphs over evil. I believe in this still.

I knew our cause was right and good. We who could have averted this injustice but to no avail.

Finally, we were pitted in this struggle of injustice with those economically more powerful than we. Fate selected the courts to be our courage and our victor over injustice with the might of the foundation of our judicial system.

We were beaten not by those in power, but by its lack of concern for economically oppressed people.

Life's Real Thrills

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things that make life worth living:

Opening the door to greet a loved one coming home to stay for a good long spell.

Catching a big one in the lake where the big ones were all supposed to have been caught early in the season.

The first splashdown of huge raindrops after a long drought ... They look like falling silver coins.

Seeing mother bravely cry through her tears because her little man was going away to a summer Boy Scout camp for a whole two weeks. The taste and feel of salt spray on your face as you hold the tiller of a small sailboat laboring through white-capped waters.

Chasing a small snake through tall grass and feeling secretly glad when it makes its escape, because then you don't have to kill it and carry it home still wriggling on a stick.

Being informed by a kindly teacher that she won't flunk you after all, even though you turned in your term paper three days late.

Building a tree house in the backyard and staying in it until the stars came out, gleaming on a vast kingdom you imagine as your own.

Getting the first love letter from your best girl in which she finally signed it "love, Rosalie," instead of "as ever, Rosalie."

The wild orgy of a fresh watermelon eating spree in the fields of Sicily after two weeks of eating nothing but Army combat rations.

Drawing to an inside straight — and making it — in a poker game with $50 in the pot.

The sound of your own name read aloud by the principal as you walk up to get your high school diploma. You have to fight down a mad desire to wave the diploma aloft and shout, "Hurrah for me!"

The sight of a tawny harvest moon, gilding a field stacked with cornstalks that glimmer like the ragged ghosts of a forgotten army.

Buying $2 worth of fading roses in the subway to make up with your own true love after your first big quarrel.

Deciding, after seeing your first-born child in the hospital maternity ward, that you'll keep it no matter what the neighbors may think of it.

Throwing a tremulous kiss, misty-eyed, to the Statue of Liberty as you view that green goddess from shipboard on returning safe from a long hot war.

Saying a prayer you know in your heart you have no right to make, and getting a favorable response you know you don't deserve.

Strength For Today

EVER THUS
Almost a hundred years before our Lord had been crucified, the great conqueror Pompey accorded the citizens of Rome the greatest spectacle of triumph they had ever witnessed. For two whole days the procession went by what we would call today the reviewing stand. A thousand castles had been taken, and nine hundred cities. Kings and chieftains walked in chains, and behind them came thousands of captives soon to be sold into slavery. Pompey had conquered the world. Everything of any value was in the hands of this mighty man.

crumble. The birth of a Babe in Bethlehem, less than a half-century after Pompey died, would begin a new era, and this Babe, grown to manhood and nailed to a cross, would become a greater King than all the Pompeys of history rolled into one. The boasted glory of Pompey and those who came after would give way to the glory of a spiritual order which Jesus called the kingdom of heaven and which He founded securely upon the earth.

There's little chance that there can be both a full measure of growth in the economy and slowing down inflation at a pre-Vietnam level, Robert C. Turner, professor of business economics at Indiana University, told the National Industrial Conference Board. We'll have more inflation, he said, unless we are willing to pay the price of a "long-continued period of sluggish economic growth, reduced profits and high unemployment."

He may be right. The Other Side

Twenty years ago Joe took out $20,000 worth of life insurance. The cost was heavy in proportion to his income; Doakeses often had to eat beans and franks instead of steaks. But Joe figured that if he died, there would be enough to keep his wife in comfort, and if he lived, it would see his kids through college. But because of inflation, if he died today his wife would have to work while she still could, and his three kids probably couldn't get through college on what was left.

Joe, ever since he got a raise in 1950, has been putting $10 a week into a savings account. Now he's getting 5 per cent on it.

But every year, the buying power of his savings account was worth very little more than the last year because prices were being inflated, and the interest was being taxed as income, even though it was almost no real income. Joe might have done better spending that $10 for beer. At least he would have a pot belly to show for it.

Annuity Shrinks

When Joe's uncle Arpad died 10 years ago, Aunt Matilda took the money he left and bought an annuity. It paid $200 a month, which seemed to promise her a comfortable living. But with higher rent, higher prices and higher taxes, today Joe has to slip her a few dollars a week so she can get by.

Joe got one break — or did he? He bought a house in the early 50s for $10,000. It's almost paid for now, but the interest made it cost $20,000 in all. But because of inflation, he could sell it today for $22,000. Of the profit, if there really is any, Joe would have to pay a 25 per cent capital gains tax.

Sure, as Prof. Turner knows, constant inflation increases new ventures, prompts the issue of new stocks, booms the stock market, creates millions in paper profits in Wall Street, raises prices, enlarges profits, increases employment and generates an aura of prosperity.

But Joe Doakes pays for it all. Joe Doakes? He's that fellow down at the end of the bar mulling to himself.

Inflation Set Back In Boise, Idaho

The Boise Idaho Statesmen reports that a classified ad offering a 1969 Cadillac for $50 ran several days without an answer. Everybody was suspicious except a young man who found the offer wasn't bait and that a little old lady would really sell a gleaming Caddy for that price.

But he hesitated long enough to ask why the bargain? The little old lady explained her late husband's will specified that the proceeds of the car should go to his girl friend.

Slowly Gaining On Brush Fires Church Formally Opens 35th Annual Gathering broke out in the huge park yesterday. It is another in a series of ravaging southern California fires of the past five days. (AP Wirephoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A fierce battle to beat back the largest brush fire ever in California was being won today near San Diego while a favorable weather outlook encouraged fire fighters on dozens of other fronts across Southern California.

The death toll from the five-day siege in six counties rose to eight Monday night when a pilot and four fire fighters were killed in a helicopter crash while heading for a fire in the Angeles National Forest outside Los Angeles.

A number of new small fires were blamed on arsonists.

Thousands of evacuees returned to their homes. Hundreds had none to return to.

The federal Small Business Administration estimated the over-all property loss in the state at $175 million, with fire damage to 1,500 homes, businesses or other buildings. California was declared a disaster area, making victims eligible for low interest loans.

In Los Angeles and San Diego counties alone, 666 structures were destroyed, including 490 homes, and 336,000 acres—an area half the size of Rhode Island—lay charred by the flames.

Fire fighters began to breathe more easily about a 200,000-acre fire halted Sunday at the outskirts of several San Diego suburbs. But winds helped another major blaze flare up Monday night and race over 10,000 acres of a heavily wooded area, drawing within 10 miles of the main fire. A heat wave that reached 100 degrees was expected to continue.

Elsewhere, winds diminished. Forecasters predicted the air flowing from the high desert east of here would grow weaker north of San Diego County. They held out hope for rising humidity and possibly scattered showers.

Thousands of exhausted fire fighters had been on the lines almost constantly since last week.

Firemen began to gain the upper hand after a five-day battle against flames in hills in Los Angeles and Ventura counties. Few of the fires spread.

Five new fires sprang up Monday but were quickly halted. Three were tentatively laid to arsonists. The number and proximity of many small fires have led authorities to suspect they were set. However, of six persons arrested for investigation of arson, all but one had been released.

More than 2,000 fire fighters, including Marines from nearby Camp Pendleton, battled the massive blaze that started Saturday from a fallen power line in the Cleveland National Forest 50 miles east of San Diego. It had destroyed 250 homes.

Fire officials said the blaze was now staying within its 120-mile perimeter.

The helicopter crashed while delivering fire fighters to fire lines in San Gabriel Canyon, east of Los Angeles. Cause of the crash was not immediately learned.

Three persons died earlier when caught by the flames.

Church Formally Opens 35th Annual Gathering

The 35th annual Holy Convocation of The Apostolic Faith Church of God and Christ began this morning at Brown Chapel Church.

Bishop R. A. Griswold, host pastor, presided over the 10 a.m. meeting this morning. The Sunday, Senior Bishop's Day with Vice Bishop Blow presiding. Sunday School will begin at 10 a.m. and devotion services will be held at 11 a.m.

Bishop Thomas Foreman of Trenton, N. J., will preach at 1 p.m. and Bishop Griswold will preach at 2 p.m. Devotion will be held Sunday at 7 p.m. and Elder Ernest Johnson of Hertford will preach at 8 p.m.

Nasser Earlier Had An Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahrām said today that the heart attack that killed President Gamal Abdel Nasser was not his first.

He suffered a serious heart attack last September and spent six weeks in bed, the newspaper said, but "for certain important reasons it was then decided to say that President Nasser was suffering from an acute case of influenza."

Al Ahrām gave this account: Nasser spent two weeks in a Soviet clinic when he visited Moscow last July. The doctors told him it was imperative he should not work so hard. But Nasser had to work hard because his acceptance of the U.S. Middle East peace initiative set off a chain reaction in the Arab world.

Nasser was persuaded to take a rest and he went to the Mediterranean resort of Mersah Matrouh, near Libya. But the day he arrived, Sept. 16, the Jordanian fighting started. So Nasser had to return to Cairo for the Arab summit.

He worked very hard and was very tired Sunday night when the pact to end the fighting in Jordan was signed by King Hussein and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, Al Ahrām said.

If lust is an evil, if debauchment of the body is an evil, if prostitution is an evil, if the presence on city streets of sleazy bookshops and pornographic movies is a kind of pollution—if these propositions are so, the dissenters contend, then society has the right and power to legislate against such evils. I am a free-speech man, but I will buy that view.

Disappointed By Small Turnout

Henry Daws, sponsor of a parade designed to demonstrate support for American principles and ideals here Sunday said the turnout, both by participants and spectators was disappointing.

According to Daws, "I was very disappointed in the turnout for the parade, and I think Greenville citizens should seriously consider the consequences of dropping their guard against Communism."

Only four persons showed up to participate in the noon-time parade, Daws said.

The Rev. Gene Costlow from Jacksonville gave a brief talk on the growing threat of communism at the Town Commons where the line of march ended after beginning at City Hall.

About 10 spectators were on hand to hear Rev. Costlow speak, Daws said.

"We plan another parade, maybe later on next month sometime," Daws explained.

Will Ballot Cite Pressure On Hollerin' To Give Drugs

SPIVEY'S CORNER, N. C. (AP) — Hollerin' may become an international competition if things go according to plans this week.

The Voice of America, which has been broadcasting some of the hollers recorded during this year's National Hollerin' Contest at Spivey's Corner, is the key to the plan.

Phil Erwin of Washington, who conducts the VOA's "Breakfast Club" program, asked his listeners to send a card to him telling their opinion of who has the best holler.

The ballots have been tallied and Erwin will be in nearby Dunn Thursday to present Voice of America certificates to the five hollerers who got the most votes. Erwin said votes came in from 48 countries, including some Communist countries.

The five winners were H. H. Oliver of Goldsboro, Leonard Emanuel of Godwin, Floyd Lee of Newton Grove, O. B. Jackson of Roseboro and E. B. Maynard of Dunn.

To complete the international flavor, the Voice of America will solicit tapes of foreign listeners who think they've got a holler worth hearing.

Erwin said he'll ask that the tapes be mailed to radio station WCKB in Dunn. Then in April, officials of the Spivey's Corner contest will listen to them and decide which is best. The winner will be flown to the United States by the VOA to attend the 1971 Spivey's Corner contest June 19.

John G. Thomas of WCKB said the international winner can compete in the national contest if he wants to, but he doesn't have to.

By BROOKS JACKSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two witnesses told Congress today some school officials have harassed and pressured parents for permission to give drugs to problem children.

They testified before a House privacy subcommittee looking into the use of amphetamine to treat overactive children—as many as 300,000 of them by the estimate of one federal mental health official.

The drugs are medically accepted in treating a children's nerve disorder known as hyperactivity or minimal brain dysfunction—the problem child syndrome.

However, subcommittee chairman Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., said in prepared opening remarks he wanted to find if drugs are being used to quiet normal children who appear fidgety because they are bored.

Theodore Johnson, a Veteran's Administration chemist from Omaha, Neb., said in his prepared testimony that parents there had been coerced by techniques including threats that their children would be expelled unless they agreed to drugs.

He said officials would refer parents to doctors who would make the desired prescription.

Mrs. Daniel Youngs of Indianapolis said she and her husband left Little Rock, Ark., in 1966 after a three-year "nightmare." Officials pressured them to permit their two grade-school children to be given drugs in an experimental program run by the University of Arkansas Medical Center, she said in her prepared statement. Mrs. Youngs said school officials, not doctors, diagnosed her son and daughter as having learning disabilities and pleaded with them repeatedly to submit them to drug treatment.

The couple's home was watched, she said, and both children were given extra work.

The family left two weeks before the end of the school year after officials threatened to go to court for permission to use drugs on the children, she said.

Two Arkansas Medical Center researchers denied that children were recruited for their program.

"The decision to seek professional help through the services of the Child Study Center is made by parents, who may first consult with their family physician, school personnel or other community resources," said a joint statement by John E. Peters and Sam D. Clements.

Dos Passos' Books Reflected Changes

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — John Dos Passos, who died Monday at 74 of a heart ailment, wrote more than 30 books that reflected his changing political opinion.

A liberal in his youth, he became a staunch conservative in recent years. But he remained an individualist and a strong believer in individual rights.

His writing style breathed reality and immediacy. In 1957 he received the Gold Medal for Fiction from the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

Born in Chicago of Portuguese descent, he received his early education in England and the United States. He was graduated from Harvard with a bachelor of arts degree in 1916.

In World War I Dos Passos served in the Volunteer Ambulance Service in Italy and the U.S. Medical Corps, experiences that gave him valuable material for "Three Soldiers," the novel that first brought him fame.

As his views changed over the years, labor leaders who appeared as heroes in his early "U.S.A." trilogy became villains some 30 years later in the 1961 novel "Midcentury."

You don't need to be told to save. What you need is a bank that makes saving a bit easier. And no bank, no bank in North Carolina, makes saving easier than NCNB.

For one thing, we don't have something other banks have. We don't have passbooks. Passbooks that you can lose or forget. Passbooks that could be stolen.

A husband can use the NCNB office near where he works (we have 100 offices) and his wife can use the office near her home. Both can deposit or withdraw money from the same account without presenting a passbook.

And we have lots of savings plans. Regular savings. Bonus savings. Savings certificates. No bank pays higher interest.

We also have will power. Will power for you. In the form of automatic savings. Tell us what amount you want taken out of your checking account and put in your savings account, and we do it automatically.

We have other things going for you at NCNB too. But what they all add up to is a nice sum put away for you, by you, as easily as possible.

Local Man First Advisor To S. Viet War College

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
"It's going to be an interesting assignment," Commander Marcel B. Humber said. The career Navy man, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, was talking about his forthcoming assignment to Vietnam.

Commander Humber has been selected by military officials in Washington to be the first military officer to fill a new post created jointly by the U. S. and South Vietnam...that of American advisor and liaison officer to the War College of South Vietnam, in Saigon.

In a few days, the young naval officer will be on his way to Saigon. He expressed only one disappointment in having been chosen for this singular assignment. "I am still a little disappointed in leaving the best a Navy man can have," he commented. This was in reference to being pulled three months early from command of a destroyer, the "Richard E. Kraus."

Commander Humber recalled the immense satisfaction he experienced in being given command of the "Kraus" in May 1969. "This is something any man wearing the Navy blue looks forward to so much," he said, "and we're always sorry when the day comes its over."

He noted also that chances of getting command of another ship at a later date "are getting slimmer each time a ship is taken out of commission." Mostly, the reasons behind the Navy's slowed down rate of adding new ships or replacing ones taken out of commission are due to budgetary cuts, he observed. "It will take quite a while get back to what it was before, if ever."

Although Commander Humber is a Navy man who has spent much of his career on ships — serving tours with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and the 7th Fleet in the Far East — his enthusiasm for a Navy career has not been dampened by the one-year land assignment in Saigon.

"I plan to make the Navy a career for a long time to come," he noted. "I first entered in 1952, and then became regular in 1955." He explained that the first few years were with Naval Aviation.

Since 1955 he has seen service on ships whose names are familiar to many Americans — the USS Ticonderoga, the USS Coral Sea, and the USS Forrestal. Before receiving his own ship, he prepared for this hoped for achievement with tours as operations officer on the Benner, and executive officer on the Shields, both destroyers.

And, he points out, "this is not my first land assignment." For two years he was aide to the Commandant of the 12th Naval District under Admiral C. L. Russell in San Francisco. "I also had two years duty with the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington," Commander Humber remarked, "and was an American representative at the French War College."

While commander of the "Kraus", Charleston was his home port. Since saying farewell to his destroyer a short time ago, he has been undergoing a series of briefings and orientations at the Norfolk Naval Base.

"My chief duties will be advisor and liaison between the Naval Chief of Staff, The Vietnamese War College, and the Vietnamese Navy," Humber said. He noted that the War College in Vietnam, equivalent to "our National War College" was set up in 1967. "In one way, it is unlike ours," he pointed out, "in that there is a much higher proportion of civil servants we have. I understand something like 20 percent are civilians."

"I feel certain its going to be an exciting assignment, and I hope to be able to find some time to learn something of the language."

Born in Paris, Commander Humber is fluent in French. This, he admits, was very likely a deciding factor in his being selected as the first military man to fill the War College post. French is the second language in Vietnam.

His father, Dr. Humber, revealed that very early he and Mrs. Humber devised a plan for teaching their children both languages. "Any time one of the boys spoke to his mother, it had to be in French," Dr. Humber related. "When they talked to me, it was in English." Dr. Humber feels this plan worked well, as it made the children alert to the necessity of remaining bilingual every day.

Humber's early boyhood was spent in Paris, he and his brother, John, now studying for his doctorate, consider Greenville home. The Humber family returned to make Greenville their permanent home in 1940, just prior to the outbreak of World War II.

"I graduated from the old Greenville High School," Commander Humber said, and added he misses seeing it standing on Fifth Street. At Wake Forest College, he received his degree in chemistry prior to donning the Navy blue.

"I had dreams of his being a professor," his wife, the former Ann Kimrey of Clinton (N. C.) said. "Maybe when he retires," she smiled, "he'll reconsider this."

Commander and Mrs. Humber have two sons, Robert, 14 and Stephen 5. Their two daughters are Eileen, 11, and the youngest of all, Alexandra, 3.

In talking about plans for herself and the children while her husband is in Vietnam, she commented that "being a mother of four, with all the activities and chauffeuring involved, will keep me busy." She plans to continue her work in the church choir, "and I've already started thinking about going to Hawaii to meet Marcel when his R and R time comes around." The family will be making their home in Falls Church, Virginia.

As a Navy wife, she feels that "your family is your roots."

Like any mother, Commander Humber's mother, needs something to be concerned about while her son is away. Realizing that in Saigon there's no need to worry about her son staying warm, Mrs. Humber, a native of Paris, expressed the thought "I do hope the French cooking in Saigon is up to proper standards."

Dr. Humber revealed he has put the abilities of the Navy to good use while his two sons and their children are visiting them here. "I've assigned each some task," he commented, "one to working on my car, the other to work needing attention around the house."

Inflation's Cost Seen In Many Towns, Cities

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The evidence may be seen in many towns and cities throughout America: overcrowded schools, potholed roads, poor water supplies and otherwise inadequate municipal facilities.

State and local governments have had a hard time of it in the financial markets during 1969 and most of 1970. Borrowing costs were up, money was tight. And though the situation has eased lately, the physical evidence remains.

Moreover, a good many financial analysts speculate that the situation may become chronic and suggest that new methods of borrowing must be devised for nonfederal governments, perhaps even involving subsidies of some sort.

This is the situation that has produced a somewhat shabby appearance in more than a few cities and towns today:

Inflation during the late 1960s grew so dangerously that the federal government was forced into action. Stringent monetary policies were put into practice in order to stifle demand that was overstraining the economy.

This meant upward pressure on borrowing costs, and that meant that cities and towns were forced to pay steadily increasing yields in order to induce buyers to purchase their bonds.

As the prices rose, shocked controllers faced their highest borrowing costs in history. And finally, as bond buyers continued to demand higher inducements, one town after another was forced to delay or postpone projects.

Other sections of the bond market apparatus were being hurt also. The profits of underwriters were being shaved thin, and some of them began losing. It was difficult to sell bonds when money rates were higher elsewhere.

One of the main attractions of municipal bonds, the tax-exemption feature, also came under attack, and the House Ways and Means Committee announced it would re-examine the traditional policy. Buyers were frightened.

Investors in tax-exempt municipal bonds now must balance the rewards of tax-exemption against the possibility that sometime during the life of purchases the tax policy might indeed be changed.

The total effect of this was devastating to the plans of many cities. With a federal tight money policy in effect, and with some investors frightened away by the question of tax-exemption, there just wasn't enough money available for the most necessary projects in some of the most financially sound municipalities.

The question now being argued in financial circles is whether the structure will ever be able to accommodate the borrowing needs of local and state governments.

What will the remedy be? Some proposals call for federal subsidies to investors. And some suggestions call for subsidies to lenders, so as to permit them to offer more attractive yields.

The more optimistic seers still maintain that the market will straighten itself out and that the financing needs of governments will be handled without chronic problems—if inflation is contained.

It's a very big "if."

Chemist Has A Specialty

REDLANDS, Calif. (UPI) — She's a chemist with a specialty that reads like something right out of science fiction.

She's also a pretty blonde and her job is for real.

Dr. Ann Baugh Tipton is a chemist with the Lockheed Propulsion Co., specializing in microwave spectroscopy and the effects of internal rotation on the microwave spectrum of molecules.

Dr. Tipton is project engineer for an Air Force financed study of the sensitivity of aluminum hydride, an advanced rocket propellant ingredient. Recently she was added to the roster of the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America, published annually to honor women between 21 and 35.

Dr. Tipton, whose husband plans to be a lawyer, received her doctorate in physical chemistry from the University of Texas in 1966 and served for three years as assistant professor of chemistry at Southwestern University.

"I had always excelled in science and mathematics and by the time I was a senior in high school I had firmly decided that chemistry would be my field," she said.

"It surely beats doing housework," she added.

Dawson Received High N.C. Military Award

A North Carolina National Guardsman from Greenville recently received the State's highest military award from Governor Robert W. Scott.

M.Sgt. Jack D. Dawson was presented the North Carolina Distinguished Service Medal for his "devotion to duty and outstanding service" in the National Guard during ceremonies in Raleigh.

Dawson joined the Tar Heel Guard in 1948 as one of the first enlisted men in Headquarters-Battery, 196th Field Artillery Group in Kinston.

He has served continuously with the Guard for more than 22 years and is currently assigned to Headquarters-Headquarters Detachment, 690th Maintenance Battalion in Kinston.

During World War II, Dawson was a seaman with the United States Merchant Marine and served in all combat zones during his tour of duty.

A foreman with Carolina Telephone and Telegraph here, the sergeant is married to the former Margaret Whitfield of Kinston and they are the parents of three. They reside on Wright Road in Greenville.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost any Saturday around 9 a.m. Joe Sisco can be found between the frozen foods and the fresh vegetables in a supermarket.

It's not the usual place to look for the government's top Middle East expert, but Joe Sisco's imagination, energy and indifference to formality frequently propel him down unusual aisles.

Last April in an effort to save something from the collapse of earlier Middle East peacemaking attempts, Sisco made an extraordinary tour of the hostile capitals. As assistant secretary of state for Near East and South Asian affairs he renewed high level U.S. contact in Cairo with a call on President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

When Nasser told him the United States was pro-Israel it couldn't possibly be fair to Egypt in any kind of go-between role, Sisco said: "Test us."

Nasser evidently was impressed, and Sisco's undiplomatic "test us" undoubtedly helped produce Cairo's August acceptance of a U.S. plan for Egypt and Israel to stop shooting and start talking.

When asked recently whether he is the State Department's foremost expert on the Middle East, Sisco waved off the implied compliment. "No," he said, "it's not that way. What I know is the policy. I probably know more about that than anyone else here. I've been involved in it for 20 years."

This accumulated experience is responsible for his unusual record of successive service under Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon.

Only a few senior diplomats are asked to serve presidents of different parties in the high policy positions Sisco has held.

Sisco, who will be 51 next month, joined the State Department in 1951 and almost immediately began working on Middle Eastern problems.

Four years later he joined the Foreign Service and in 1965 was named assistant secretary for international organization affairs.

When William Rogers succeeded Dean Rusk as secretary of state, he knew the Arab-Israeli conflict would be a major concern and he wanted an experienced man on the job. Still, Sisco was caught by surprise when asked to stay on.

Expecting normal acceptance of his resignation by the incoming president, Sisco had decided to go into some other activity, possibly politics.

However, he had known Rogers liked him and he decided to stay on when the new secretary offered him his present position.

"The Middle East appealed to me," Sisco recalls. He knew what he was getting into in assuming responsibility for operations and the development of U.S. policy for one of the great crisis regions of the world. But Sisco has been through many international crunches.

During the 1962 Cuban missile crisis he helped prepare many of the State Department papers which went to President Kennedy.

In previous crisis he's worked on the simultaneous 1956 Suez and Hungarian situations, the East-West struggle over the Congo and the U.S. intervention in Lebanon in 1958.

Like many officials Sisco finds the energy for dealing with crisis in the challenge and excitement of the situations themselves.

In a crisis, he explained, "You build up a plateau of excitement and maintain it. You eat more and sleep less, but you don't gain weight. You exercise as you can."

He enjoys golf but has played very little in recent years. Tennis is his more frequent game and he was a varsity player in college. He also played Big Ten basketball at the University of Chicago.

"I'm responsible in part for the death knell of Big Ten basketball in Chicago," he said. "Our record was 0-12."

A more regular activity has been Sisco's shopping expeditions. Carried out quietly for years, they were discovered mainly because an acquaintance saw him loading a market cart with groceries.

"I start every Saturday morning around 9 o'clock," he explained. "It takes me just an hour and I still have time to get into my office about 10:15."

"I enjoy the shopping and I'll tell you why. It's relaxing. It's planning of a different kind. Anyway, it's something I started doing when my wife and I were in graduate school at the University of Chicago. And my wife says I'm a better shopper than she is."

When the latest Middle East crisis slackened, Sisco, still looking a little tight-eyed from lack of sleep, was asked if he still likes his job.

"I love it," he said.

Nixon Asks Hoover View To Be Aired

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has urged college administrators to outline to students J. Edgar Hoover's views on avoiding campus trouble.

Nixon sent administrators a letter in which the FBI director listed eight tactics employed by campus extremists to lure students into their activities.

The President called Hoover's letter "a cogent and enlightening analysis" of extremist tactics and urged college presidents to get the message to students.

In the letter, Hoover said the campus situation may be serious at some institutions but added: "Along with millions of other adults, I'm betting on the vast majority of students to remain fair-minded, tolerant, inquisitive, but also firm about certain basic principles of human dignity, respect for the rights of others and a willingness to learn."

Here are the eight extremist tactics listed by the FBI director:

—"They'll encourage you to lose respect for your parents and the older generation.

—"They'll try to convert you to the idea that your college is 'irrelevant' and a 'tool of the establishment.'

—"They'll ask you to abandon your basic common sense.

—"They'll try to envelop you in a mood of negativism, pessimism and alienation toward yourself, your school, your nation.

—"They'll encourage you to disrespect the law and hate the law enforcement officer.

—"They'll tell you that any action is honorable and right if it's sincere or idealistic in motivation.

—"They'll ask you to believe that you, as a student and citizen, are powerless by democratic means to effect change in our society.

—"They'll encourage you to hurl bricks and stones instead of logical argument at those who disagree with your views."

A total of $51,000 in damages was awarded to Paul Q. Topper of Greenville during the past civil term of Pitt County Superior Court, based on a complaint filed with the court here June 4, 1968.

Topper, in that complaint, alleged that Charles G. Wiley, now of North Dakota, had alienated the affections of Topper's wife, Elizabeth Ann Roberts Topper.

The complaint alleged that Wiley, first "gave the appearance of being a lonely widower" who came to the home of the plaintiff "more and more frequently and began to center most of his attention to the

First Month Is Most Dangerous

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A baby specialist says the most dangerous age of life is the first month and this has been a "stepchild" of medicine.

"An intensive care unit for the newborn in the small community hospital is the last thing on the priority list," Dr. Marvin Cornblath told newsmen recently.

Cornblath of the University of Maryland School of Medicine said more humans die on the first day of life than at any other age until the 14th year and more in the first week than at any time until their 70s.

"If the infant survives the nursery years, his life expectancy is about, 74 years," he said.

plaintiffs wife." Toppers complaint said "the full import of the success of the defendants... efforts to alienate the affections of the plaintiffs wife were brought to the plaintiffs attention on the night of December 15, 1937, when... the defendant met secretly with... plaintiffs wife and then and there did engage in criminal conversation with her at the defendants home... on East Third Street.

Topper asked in his complaint for $100,000 compensatory damages and $100,000 punitive damages.

A jury, after hearing testimony in the case found that Wiley did alienate Mrs. Toppers affections and did engage in criminal conversation with her and awarded $11,000 in compensatory and $40,000 in punitive damages to Topper.

The judgment was signed September 23, by Superior Court Judge Joshua S. James.

Topper, a member of the School of Music faculty at East Carolina University, received a divorce from Mrs. Topper, on the grounds of adultery, September 4, 1969.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady to weaker Monday. Supplies adequate demand no better than fair. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:

Grade A large whites: 48 1/2 to 49; medium whites: 43 to 44; small whites: 29.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The North Carolina poultry market today was steady. Offerings adequate, demand slow to fair. Live at farm price 12 cents per pound. Offerings of heavy types barely adequate to short, demand good.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were mostly steady. Tops of 19.75-20.25 at Rocky Mount; 18.00-19.75 at Tarboro; 19.25-19.50 at Wilson; 18.50-19.00 at Siler City, Denton and Aberdeen; 18.00-19.00 at Bethel; 19.00 at Greensboro and Salisbury.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market activity was leveling off today. Prices were beginning to show some recovery from the early decline apparently triggered by the death of Egyptian president Nasser.

Trading settled back to the moderate level.

At 11:30 a.m. the Dow Jones Average of 30 industrials was off 4.04 points to 754.93. Earlier it had fallen by more than 6.5 points.

On the New York Stock Exchange declines continued to hold a large advantage over advances, leading by almost 7 to 2.

The market opened in a flurry of down-side activity, which saw the Big Board tape run one minute late for about a half-hour shortly after 10 a.m.

Cooperation Pledge By YDC President

"We intend to cooperate with the Senior Democratic Party and other Young Democratic Clubs in the nation in working to support Democratic nominees for the upcoming election," said Richard McLawhorn, newly elected president of the Pitt County YDC.

McLawhorn said the local group is working to expand its membership so the YDC can play a larger role in the Democratic party affairs.

A member of the YDC must be a registered Democrat and must be under 40 years of age. He must also be a registered voter of Pitt County.

"However," McLawhorn said, "if someone is under 21 and is loyal to the Democratic party, he can participate in our activities."

There are college YDC groups which college students may join and participate in Democratic affairs, explained McLawhorn.

"The organization of the Democratic party has recently been changed to give blacks and young people more voice in party affairs," the YDC president stated. "This was made evident by the platform adopted by the State Democratic party at their July convention."

He continued, "as a result, the Democratic party is broad enough that it can include many people from all social and economic classes. Now all people can have a voice in the party's affairs."

"The Democratic party can now profit from both the experience of the older members and new ideas of the younger members," McLawhorn noted.

The new slate of officers for the Pitt County YDC includes: Mrs. Naomi Dunn of Greenville, vice-president; Clifton Everette Jr., treasurer; and Beth Clayton, secretary.

McLawhorn, a long time resident of Pitt County, is currently teaching social studies at G.R. Whitfield School, Grimesland.

Mrs. Dunn is currently teaching at Rose High School. McLawhorn succeeds Jerry Paul as president of the YDC.

Sharp Border Battle

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese armored column attacked North Vietnamese troops along the Cambodian border and killed 21 of them in sharp fighting, military spokesmen reported today. Six South Vietnamese troops were killed and 14 wounded.

The battle Monday 75 miles northwest of Saigon was the only significant action reported across Indochina, although the Communist command posed a new threat to Phnom Penh's vital link to the sea.

A Cambodian military spokesman said a sizeable force of North Vietnamese, Viet Cong and Khmer Rouge—Cambodian Communists—had moved out of the Kirirom Plateau southward into position to cut Highway 4, the only link between Phnom Penh and the nation's deep water port of Kompong Som.

But the spokesman said he did not believe the North Vietnamese would mount large attacks in the area again, but would attempt to disrupt traffic by ambushing trucks and cars.

Associated Press correspondent John T. Wheeler reported from Phnom Penh that the highway was closed today as Cambodian forces mounted a clearing operation in the Kirirom area.

In the past, the highway has been closed repeatedly for short periods by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces. Last week they ambushed two Cambodian military trucks and killed 13 government soldiers.

Viet Cong guerrillas, meanwhile, kept up scattered rocket, mortar and terror attacks in South Vietnam in a continuing drive against the government's pacification program.

South Vietnamese headquarters said six civilians were killed and 16 wounded in attacks on a resettlement center, a hamlet and a district town along the central coast.

In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers kept up raids against North Vietnamese supply areas along the Ho Chi Minh trail in south-

Agnew Regards Campus Report 'More Pablum'

SIoux Falls, S.D. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew today assailed the Presidential Commission on Campus Unrest, saying its failure to blame disrupters and their apologizers "will be taken as more pablum for the permissiveness."

In the strongest criticism of the report yet from the Nixon administration, Agnew said it is "imprecise, contradictory and equivocal." Aides said the vice president's views did not necessarily represent the viewpoint of the White House, which has not yet commented.

The commission headed by former Republican Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania in its report issued Saturday laid the blame for campus unrest on many shoulders but said:

"Only the President has the platform and prestige to urge all Americans, at once, to step back from the battlelines into which they are forming."

Agnew's attack on the report came in a speech prepared for a Republican luncheon here, first stop on a three-day campaign trip by Agnew that takes him later to Minot, N.D., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

He also criticized North Dakota's junior senator, Democrat George S. McGovern as "one of the foremost national leaders of national liberalism—and its chief fund raiser today." He called on Democratic candidates for governor and Congress to repudiate McGovern, who is not himself a candidate this year.

In discussing the Scranton commission report, Agnew denounced what he called "the self appointed interpreters and translators on the commission, and within the nation's 'academic journalistic complex,' who rushed before the cameras to sell us what it said."

"First," he said, "the American people have been led by this truncated and distorted report to believe that the primary need for restoration of order on the American campus is for the President of the United States to exercise greater moral leadership."

"This is an unfair, outrageous and unacceptable charge to make against the President, who has time and again spoken out in defense of dissent—time and again spoken out in unequivocal condemnation of violence and disorder wherever it occurs," Agnew added.

"The second conclusion of the contrived second report—the one purveyed by press and America—is that somehow, because there is a war going on, and because there are remnants of injustice and racism and poverty in America—there is, therefore, some explanation or justification for antisocial conduct and disorders by disaffected students," Agnew declared, adding: "This is totally false and utterly unacceptable."

As for the broad report itself, Agnew praised its "unequivocal stand against violence and its historical analysis into the background of unrest.

Truce Force In Jordan Watches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Arab truce team today monitored the cease-fire in Jordan between government troops and Palestinian guerrillas that was worked out by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The peace force of 100 officers from Egypt, Sudan, Saudi Arabia, Tunisia and Kuwait arrived Monday in Amman, Jordan's capital, and immediately set up truce observation posts. Shooting stopped there at dawn and inhabitants poured into the streets in desperate searches for food and water. There were no new reports of fighting as the Arab world mourned Nasser's death Monday in Cairo.

King Hussein of Jordan called Nasser "my brother" in a cable and said the Egyptian president was "admired by the whole world all his life."

"Nasser's last efforts were to heal Jordan's wounds during its last ordeal..." the cable said, "but the wounds incurred by his loss will never heal."

The cease-fire agreement, signed Sunday in Cairo by Hussein and Yasir Arafat of the Palestinian guerrilla command brought a halt to Jordan's 11-day civil war. However, some guerrilla broadcasts from different Arab capitals assailed the agreement Monday on the ground that it would weaken the Palestinian movement.

Premier Bahi Ladgham of Tunisia also arrived in Amman on Monday to head a truce commission made up of a guerrilla envoy and a representative of King Hussein. The commission's task is to implement the pact.

The agreement provided for the withdrawal of the Jordanian army to its barracks and the guerrillas to positions better suited to carry out their fight against Israel. It also called for the release of guerrilla prisoners by Jordan.

On Monday, the U.S. Air Force flew a 50-bed field hospital into Jordan aboard a fleet of C130 transport planes bearing Red Cross markings. A 60-bed hospital was due later.

A chartered plane also arrived with 12 tons of food given by the United States, and another flew in with 22 tons of food donated by Britain.

Meanwhile, Switzerland announced that it would release three imprisoned Palestinian commandos as soon as the last of the airliner hijacking hostages were evacuated from Jordan.

Diplomatic sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said Sunday the remaining six hostages had been freed and turned over to the Egyptian Embassy in Amman, which has been acting as a go-between for the International Red Cross.

Thirty-three Americans who had been hostages arrived in New York Monday night.

Citizens of Greenville
Greenville, North Carolina
September 21, 1970

Dear Fellow Citizen:

We, the Southwest Greenville Community Association, would like to have the answers to several questions. We have asked some of these same questions and others of the City School Board, the Superintendent of City Schools, a Superior Court Judge and a Federal Court Judge. So far, we have received double-talk, half answers and even complete silence.

1. Since South Greenville School was not mentioned in the recent desegregation suit in Federal Court, why was the student body disrupted at all? Why were 134 white children bused out of this school and other white children moved in from across town?
2. Is the City School Board elected or are the members appointed?
3. Is this Board a member of the North Carolina Association of School Boards or is it one (1) of only two (2) Boards in the State not associated with this group?
4. In what sub-division does the Superintendent reside? Where does his son attend school?
5. Does it seem strange that the Honorable Judge Larkins dismissed a case before him without hearing both sides of the matter? Is it true his son-in-law was a co-defendant in this case?
6. Does this matter involve socio-economic discrimination against 134 white children who had totally and satisfactorily integrated South Greenville School last year?

We would appreciate complete and satisfactory answers to these questions.

If you have any clues, please let us know.

Dick Evans Is City Golf Champ

Dick Evans captured the Greenville City Golf Championship this weekend at Brook Valley Country Club. The tournament is held jointly between the Brook Valley and Greenville Golf and Country clubs on an alternating site basis.

Evans, a Brook Valley member, fired a 74 Saturday, then came back with a 36-41-77 on Sunday to claim the title. It was the second title he had won at the club in two weeks. He won the Brook Valley Invitational the previous week.

Second place in the tournament went to Mac MacKenzie, another Brook Valley member, who had a 75-78-153.

In the first flight, the winner was W. L. Allen Jr. of Brook Valley, who had a 78-80-158. Lee Ball of Greenville had an 80-78-158, but lost out on the top prize in a playoff.

In the second flight, Conner Merritt of Greenville took top honors with a 162, while Troy Riddle of Brook Valley was second at 163. Paul McMahan of Brook Valley won the third flight with a 168, with Joe Taylor of Brook Valley second at 169.

Fred Wagner of Brook Valley had a 172 to win the fourth flight, with Charlie Odom second at 175.

In the fifth flight, Bill Sneed of Brook Valley won, shooting a 189. Roy Hunneycutt of Brook Valley took second place with a 195.

Mets Win, But It's Too Late

By TOM SALADINO

Associated Press Sports Writer Wayne Garrett's dramatic home run came too late to help the New York Mets after their lost weekend in Pittsburgh but it did get the defending world champions even with the Chicago Cubs.

The Mets, who dropped three straight to the Pirates, including Sunday's 2-1 loss, enabling the Pirates to clinch the National League East Division title, were on their way to dropping another Monday night when first Donn Clendenon and then Garrett exploded.

The Mets pulled it out in the 10th inning, winning 6-3 on Garrett's 12th homer of the season, placing the Mets and Cubs in a flat-footed tie for second place with three games remaining against each other.

In the only other National League game, Houston blanked San Francisco 3-0.

In the American League, Minnesota edged Kansas City 1-0 and California nipped Chicago 4-3.

Clendenon gave the Mets a life Monday night when he slammed his 22nd homer—a two-run shot—in the ninth inning off Ken Holtzman, giving New York a 3-3 tie. The pair of runs batted in gave Clendenon 95 for the season, a club record.

Holtzman had been breezing on a four-hitter until Cleon Jones slammed a two-out single before Clendenon's shot. The left-hander was given a 3-1 edge in the sixth when Tommy Davis connected for a three-run blast. Then in the 10th, Jerry Grote doubled off Hoyt Wilhelm and after two outs, Dave Marshall walked. Garrett then followed with his game-winner.

Starter Gary Gentry issued only three hits in six innings and Met relievers Tug McGraw and Danny Frisella stopped the Cubs the rest of the way without a hit.

Jack Billingham tossed a six-hitter for his 13th victory and struck out 12 Giants. San Francisco holds a slim one-half game margin over Los Angeles for second place in the NL West behind runaway winner Cincinnati.

The Astros scored all three runs in the second inning off Ron Bryant, 5-8, on a run-scoring single by Larry Howard, an RBI groundout and Cesar Cedeno's perfect bunt single for the third tally.

Minnesota, the AL's West champion, got a squeeze bunt in the fifth inning from rookie Danny Thompson for its victory over the Royals.

Tom Hall, 11-6, expected to start the second playoff game against East winner Baltimore on Sunday, went eight innings and scattered five hits while striking out seven.

The Angels Tom Murphy held Chicago hitless for six innings but was reached for three hits in the seventh inning, including a three-run homer by the White Sox's Bill Melton. Ed Fisher came on to halt the Sox and preserve Murphy's 16th victory.

The Angels scored a pair of runs in the first on run-scoring singles by Tony Gonzalez and Jim Spencer and added a pair in the sixth on RBI singles by Mickey Rivers and Murphy.

Carolina Edges Into AP's Football Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer Ohio State, Texas and Stanford retained the first places today in The Associated Press college football poll while Colorado and Air Force joined the Top Ten following impressive victories over Penn State and Missouri, which were knocked out.

Colorado's 41-13 rout of Penn State, which hadn't lost in 31 games and had won 23 in a row, boosted the Buffaloes from 18th to eighth and dropped the Nittany Lions from fourth to 16th, the biggest decline.

Air Force climbed from 20th to 10th via a 37-14 rout of Missouri while the Tigers, ninth a week ago, barely stayed in the Top Twenty with a ranking of 20th.

Ohio State opened its season with a 56-13 walloping of Texas A&M and received 25 of the 42 first-place votes cast by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters and a total of 782 points.

Texas, which trailed the Buckeyes by only 13 points a week ago, received 14 top votes and 758 points. The Longhorns whipped Texas Tech 35-13.

The other three first-place votes were divided among Stanford, Southern California and Michigan.

Stanford remained in third place by rallying in the second half to defeat Oregon 33-10. Notre Dame climbed from sixth to fourth in the wake of a 48-0 rout of Purdue and Southern Cal rose from seventh to fifth after trouncing Iowa by the same score.

Nebraska blanked Army 28-0 and moved up from eighth to sixth while Mississippi was down from fifth to seventh after edging Kentucky 20-17. Rounding out the Top Ten were Colorado; Michigan, a 17-3 winner over Washington, and Air Force.

The second Ten consisted of Arkansas, Auburn, UCLA, West Virginia, Georgia Tech, Penn State, Alabama, Arizona State, North Carolina and Missouri.

Auburn, Alabama, Arizona State and North Carolina are newcomers to the Top Twenty, replacing Houston, Florida, Oklahoma and Tennessee, all of which lost.

The Top Twenty teams, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 29-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7 etc.

1. Ohio State (25) 782
2. Texas (14) 758
3. Stanford (1) 568
4. Notre Dame 528
5. South. Calif. (1) 422

Units, who didn't play the last 35 minutes, undoubtedly had the worst day of his 15-year storied career. He had five completions in 15 attempts for a net of just 28 yards after his three losses behind the line were subtracted.

Morrall, dumped four times for 43 yards, wound up with 200 yards net on 17 for 36 and had three scoring passes. Ed Hinton caught 11 Baltimore passes for 190 yards and one TD.

"I could read their keys," Unitas said of the Kansas City defense, "but I just didn't have the proper amount of time to throw. Our guys were picking them up, but couldn't hold them. They just kept coming."

Quarterback Lenny Dawson of the Chiefs picked apart the Colts' defense for nine pass completions in 12 attempts for 152 yards and four touchdowns. Frank Pitts caught three passes for 62 yards and two TDs.

Place kicker Jan Stenerud booted three field goals and scored 14 points.

Safety Johnny Robinson grabbed three of Kansas City's five interceptions, setting up 10 points with his runbacks of 14 and 27 yards. He also scored a touchdown after running 46 yards with a Colt fumble.

The massive Chiefs also crashed through to toss John Unitas and Earl Morrall a total of seven times for 73 yards in losses.

The first half ended with the Chiefs on top 31-7 and they increased the bulge to 41-10 before Baltimore added two meaningless fourth quarter touchdowns.

The time was ripe for a good showing by Baltimore. After posting the best record in the NFL during the past 12 years, 112-48-4, the Colts were one of three old guard teams shifted to the American Conference under the realignment.

In their first home game against a team from the old American Football League, the Colts were taking on the Super Bowl champs. The Chiefs had lost their 1970 opener to Minnesota the week before, and Baltimore had beaten them in an exhibition 17-3.

The Chiefs exploded. They were tricky, elusive and explosive on offense and running back kicks. They were devastating on defense.

Quarterback Lenny Dawson of the Chiefs picked apart the Colts' defense for nine pass comple-

Ayden, Just Waiting, Set For The Bulldogs

From now until the last week of the season, it's sit back and wait for the Ayden Tornadoes. They have finished their East Tidewater schedule, except for Knapp.

And that game is the final one of the year for Ayden. Meanwhile, they have to hope that someone will knock off Manteo, and that they'll have a chance to win or tie for the title.

The Tornadoes got new life in the conference last Friday night with a 41-6 romp over Camden in a loop game.

Elsewhere in the loop, Manteo rolled over Barry Robinson of Norfolk, 24-0, and Knapp remained unbeaten with a 30-12 victory over Columbia in a non-league affair.

"It makes things a little better," Ayden coach Nelson Gravatt said of the big victory. "We played pretty sloppy in the first half, but in the second we came back and did well."

The key to the Ayden second-half success was the return of Ken Cleaton to quarterback. Gravatt and his staff had moved Cleaton to end after last week's loss to Manteo to help bolster the receiving game.

But things just didn't go right with that situation, and Cleaton was returned behind center with fine results. He ran for three touchdowns and passed for two more after that, getting the Ayden offense spinning.

"He had a right good night," Gravatt said.

The coach was also pleased with the defense, which picked off four Camden aerials. "Demetrius Edwards did a real good job for us at defensive end," the coach added.

The Tornadoes came through the game in good shape, and have begun their plans for one of their two arch-rival games, against Grifton.

That contest will be played Saturday night on the Bulldog field.

"This is a big one for us," Gravatt said. "Grifton could lose 'em all and beat us and call it a successful season. People around both towns put a lot of weight on this game. They are going to want to beat us bad, too."

The contest, however, will be the final one in the series, and coaches hope that feelings on the field will quickly be dispelled. The two schools will be merged after this year into a single consolidated unit, and instead of rivalry, it'll be comradeship.

"We've got to stop Mike Tyndall and Rich Ricciarelli. Both of them have good speed, and are quick. We are a little more afraid of Tyndall, however. He's the key to their offense, and we know he is the kind of player who can beat you."

In other games in the conference, Knapp is at Manteo in a nonloop encounter, while Camden goes to Columbia, also not to be counted in the conference standings.

The current East Tidewater standings:

	Conf		Overall
Manteo	1	0	3	1
Ayden	2	1	3	1
Knapp	0	0	4	0
Camden	0	1	2	2
Columbia	0	1	1	3

Pitching May Be National Key

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are both known for their offensive weapons. But when the National League playoffs open this weekend at Three Rivers Stadium, pitching should be the key.

Pittsburgh's pitching has suddenly blossomed after mid-season injuries hit the staff.

During the last 17 games, Pirate pitchers have allowed only 40 runs—35 earned—for an earned-run average of 2.30. The opposition has been held to one or less runs in six games and has scored more than three runs in just three of them.

The Reds, on the other hand, have won eight of their last 10 games, but have not had one complete game.

Gary Nolan, 18-7, recently the steady pitcher for the Reds, will start against the Pirates' Dock Ellis, 13-10, who won Sunday's game against New York that clinched the title for Pittsburgh.

Jim Merritt of the Reds, who was hit on the elbow three weeks ago and had been sidelined, pitched three innings last week. If he is healthy he is expected to start the second game against Luke Walker. The left-hander has become the "reliable one" of the Pirate pitching corps. He is 15-6, Merritt, with a 20-12 record, is the first 20-game winner Cincinnati has had since 1925.

The Reds are a better slugging club than the Pirates but the two teams are nearly even in batting percentage. The Pirates are hitting .269, the Reds .271.

Red catcher Johnny Bench is batting .294, has a league-leading 45 home runs and 147 runs batted in, also tops in the league.

Pete Rose leads the Reds in batting with a .318 average and Tony Perez is hitting .316 with 40 home runs and 129 RBIs.

Roberto Clemente, who will miss the St. Louis series this week to undergo more back treatment in Pittsburgh, should be ready for the playoffs. He's not eligible for the batting title this year because he has too few times at bat—but his average is .350.

Manny Sanguillen, the Pirate catcher, is batting .326, third in the league. Willie Stargell, Al Oliver and Bob Robertson are the RBI leaders on the Pirates. Stargell has 85, Oliver 82 and Robertson 81.

Both clubs will rely on their bullpens. The Pirates have Dave Giusti with a 9-3 record and 26 saves.

Jim "Mudcat" Grant, who won two of the three games against the Mets over the weekend, is not eligible for either the playoffs or the World Series, since he was acquired from Oakland after the Sept. 1 deadline.

Wayne Granger, with a 6-5 record and a 2.71 ERA and Clay Carroll, 9-4 and a 2.65 ERA, are the Reds' bullpen standouts.

Wayne Simpson, a Cincinnati rookie who has a 14-3 record, will not see action in the playoffs due to an arm injury.

Pair Tie In Contest

A two-way tie for first place resulted in the second weekly Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Sharing the prize-money for this week are Warren White of 236 Jones Dorm at East Carolina University and J. E. Parker Jr. of 1100 Charles St., Apartment D.

Both entrants correctly picked the winners in 25 games. They were also just one off the points scored in the UNC-Maryland game, 73, which topped those in the contest. Both had guesses of 72 points.

Five other entrants also picked the winners in 25 games, but were further off in their point totals.

The tie game between N. C. State and South Carolina was counted as incorrect for grading purposes.

The third weekly contest appears on the following pages.

Jones: They Didn't Believe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Frank Jones of Richmond has insisted the last two seasons that Davidson's Wildcats would cause trouble in the Southern Conference football race, but he's had trouble getting any listeners.

Even after the Wildcats ran over the Spiders last year 37-7, a loss that cost Richmond a second trip to the Tangerine Bowl, Jones couldn't find anyone who'd agree the same thing could happen again—not even his players.

"They wouldn't believe me that Davidson had a good football team," he said after the Wildcats upended Richmond 14-5 Saturday night for the second year in a row, "and I'm tired of reading and hearing that they don't."

And, added Jones—whose teams won or tied for the league championship the last two years,—"I'm tired of hearing them (Davidson) poor-mouth their program. They have a good program."

The Spiders worked out in full equipment Monday as Jones sought to correct some of the mistakes from the Davidson game. There was heavy emphasis on defense in preparation for Saturday's game at Southern Mississippi.

Coach Vito Ragazzo said he was satisfied with the way Virginia Military Institute's Keydets have adjusted mentally and physically to crushing defeats at the hands of Rice and West Virginia. The Keydets' next foe Saturday is unbeaten Boston College.

Defensive halfback Bob Carson, injured in Saturday night's 31-0 victory over East Carolina, will be lost for The Citadel's Saturday scrap at Arkansas State. The Bulldogs had a conditioning drill Monday.

There was a light workout in sweat clothes at Furman as the Paladins listened to a scouting report on Saturday's opponent, Carson-Newman. The two teams battled to a 21-21 tie last year.

The emphasis at East Carolina was on offense as the Pirates started preparing for Saturday night's game at West Texas State. Despite getting inside their opponents' 20-yard line nine times in three games, East Carolina has yet to score anything but a safety.

Saturday's other encounters have Davidson entertaining Trinity and William and Mary playing host to Ohio Wesleyan.

The Worry Clinic High Drama In Science Theme

Larry can perk up his geology report by the method outlined below. For science can be fascinating when it is dramatized the way a newspaper reporter or an advertising man will "package" the same dry facts. Send for the booklet below if you wish to learn how to write salable copy.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.D.
CASE 0-544: Larry P., aged 19, is studying geology.
 "Dr. Crane," he began, "I am supposed to write a theme on how the discovery of oil has affected civilization."
 "And I am to project into the future my predictions as to what will happen to mankind as a result of new oil discoveries."
 "Have you any suggestions of a psychological nature?"

constantly being located in Alaska, Arabia and South America.
 Some of these subterranean lakes of oil make our Great Lakes look like a child's wading pool, for size.
 Just suppose a vast offshore oil well should prove to be such a spouter that it couldn't be capped!

Imagine what would happen to mankind if such an oil reservoir should erupt freely into the ocean water!
 Try to visualize how much of the ocean's surface would then be sealed off from the evaporation of water, if an oil lake only the size of Lake Michigan should erupt its full contents.
 Remember, Lake Michigan is almost 4 times as large as the state of Massachusetts.
 And it is approximately 600 feet deep.

Visualize that volume of crude oil spread out on the ocean as a vast oil slick just one-quarter of an inch thick!
 It could cover a surface area on the ocean equivalent to 115,000 states the area of Massachusetts! And thus stop water evaporation thereon.

If Larry wishes to write a "Weird Tale" re geology, he might then show the resulting world deserts that could soon develop if most of the ocean's evaporation were stopped.
 For an oil film insulates water against the absorption of moisture by the surface air.
 So the moist winds that now come to America off the Pacific, as well as similar winds across Europe, would then be blasts of dry air.
 Little or no rainfall would ever be deposited thereafter on our continents and snow would soon be absent from our white capped mountains.
 Cities now dependent on huge surface lakes or reservoirs would soon be crying for moisture.
 Without rainfall to seep into the ground, even our wells would begin to run dry.
 And the black oil slicks that blew upon the icy beaches of the Arctic and Antarctic lands would soon absorb far more heat from the sun, thus melting those last remnants of fresh water on this planet Earth.
 The oceans would then rise until our coastal plains and cities like Boston, Miami, New York, New Orleans and Los Angeles would soon be buried under at least 100 feet of ocean, much as the Biblical flood is reported to have devastated cities at the time of Noah.
 So Larry could show that our tampering with the offshore oil deposits might produce the chaos that exceeds even that attributed to Pandora's famous box.

 For when whole continents became Sahara deserts, our climate would change and dustbowls would be nationwide.
 World population would soon drop back to less than the 300,000,000 people estimated to be living at the time of Christ.
 So send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c, and thus add dramatic excitement to brighten your prosaic science reports.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Murder Said In Planning

GREENSBORO (AP) — The trial of the former postmaster at Randleman, N.C., on charges of conspiring to rob her own post office produced testimony Monday about plans of murder.
 The defense told the jury, however, that it would prove that the chief prosecution witness, "made up this ludicrous, unbelievable story," to evade a possible 25-year sentence.

The witness, Vernon Paul Kimbrough, 61, of Jacksonville, Fla., is a codefendant with Mrs. Audrey Hester Cashatt Lineberger.
 Mrs. Lineberger's post office was robbed Oct. 30 of about $44,606 in stamps and $1,850 in cash.
 Kimbrough testified here Monday in U. S. District Court that she said she wanted her former husband killed over a child custody dispute. A postal inspector or also testified that Mrs. Lineberger had said she had asked Kimbrough to find someone to kill her ex-husband.
 The postal inspector, James E. Collins of Atlanta, was one of 12 witnesses heard. About 56 witnesses are scheduled to be called.

Kimbrough pleaded guilty to the charge here June 2. He is serving a six-year sentence in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta on a charge of possessing stamps stolen from the Randleman Post Office.

Hold Probe Of Truckers

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission is investigating charges that some truck lines in the state either don't pay or are slow in paying damage claims.
 At a conference Monday, the commission was urged to set up administrative procedures for a more reasonable length of time than the present 15 days customers have for filing claims for lost or damaged merchandise.

Neither vulnerable. South deals.

"It is unexplainable why it takes as much as a year at times to collect claims for damages, if at all, but the retailer is obligated to meet payments to the manufacturer," said Wade Penny, a Durham attorney.
 Penny's comment came during an informal conference called by the Utilities Commission to receive evidence from the N. C. Merchants Association to support the association's request for the commission to cite the truckers in a formal proceeding.
 Penny, who represented furniture outlets in Durham, Vance and Granville counties, told the commission it costs $25 to $30 in overhead for a merchant to process a claim and "some retailers don't bother if only a $50 to $60 loss is involved."
 Gordon Rawls of Williamston told the commission it took more than a year to settle a $107.50 claim for a damaged appliance.
 A Roxboro appliance dealer, Barker Berry, said he finally gave up on a $287 claim on a refrigerator damaged beyond repair.

STUDY TIME CHECKUP — Dr. W. R. Wagoner, president of the Baptist Children's Homes of North Carolina, Inc., will be in Greenville Thursday at 7 p.m. for a meeting at the Three Steers Restaurant to launch local participation in a $5½ million campaign to expand child care and family services in Eastern

Formally Opening Building Tomorrow

Roy Sowers, Director of Conservation and Development in Raleigh, and Percy Cox, Mayor pro-tem of Greenville, are two of the dignitaries slated to be hand for the official opening of the Smart-Woodall-Isley and Associates Building Wednesday afternoon.

Sowers will perform the ribbon cutting ceremony opening on an official basis the 5,000 square foot building recently completed at the intersection of Reade and First Streets.

The two story dark tan brick building, modernistic in design, features bronze tinted glass and exposed decorative panels of aggregate concrete.

Charles Woodall, resident architect in Greenville for the firm which maintains offices also in Raleigh and Durham, notes that construction began in October 1969, and that the building was completed in June of this year. "The internal structure is a combination of steel frame and masonry load bearing walls," Woodall explained.

The first office building erected in this area, it stands on a site which overlooks the Town Commons on First Street along Tar River.

In addition to offices for the architect firm, International Business Machines (IBM) will have their regional office on the first floor, with Charles E. Williamson, Jr., as their representative. The second floor will include office space for Wachovia Mortgage Company and the J. Frank Efrid Realty Company.

The architects and planners firm of Smart-Woodall and Associates opened in Greenville in April 1967. In November 1969, Max Isley joined the firm, making it Smart-Woodall-Isley and Associates.

George M. Smart, resident architect in Raleigh, is president of the firm. Isley is resident architect in the Durham office.

A listing of projects of professional work accomplished by the firm, or work in progress, includes North Pitt and D. H. Conley High Schools, the new addition to "The Daily Reflector", renovations at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, the Lawyers and Professional Building of Greenville, renovations to the Blount Building, the local State Highway office and the Pittman Building.

"We are also employed as consultant by the Redevelopment Commission of the City of Greenville for work in the Central Business Development," Woodall stated.

A graduate of the School of Architectural Design of the North Carolina at Chapel Hill and at Greensboro; for the Durham City and County School systems; and also for industrial parks in Taunton, Massachusetts and in Durham.

He is married to the former Martha Noble of Deep Run, Lenoir County. They have two young sons, Charles A. and Ross E.

A native of Smithfield, Woodall is a member of St. James United Methodist Church. In the late 1950's he served with the U. S. Army in Alaska, where he managed to find time during the summer season to cycle across the country.

Woodall's chief interest, aside from his professional duties, is painting. To date he has exhibited in the annual shows at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, at the Festival of Arts at St. James last year, and at several other exhibitions.

Suez Alert For Israeli

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's land and air forces in the Sinai and along the Suez Canal went on the alert today because of the death of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, after noon newspapers reported today.

An Israeli army spokesman refused to confirm or deny the reports.

The newspapers said there were fears that someone on the Egyptian side might open fire without an order from Cairo.

There also have been reports that the Egyptian forces facing the Israelis along the canal have been put on alert.

There has been a cease-fire along the canal since the U.S.-sponsored peace initiative went into effect.

Nasser was strong enough to keep the cease-fire working even though peace talks in New York have broken down, the Tel Aviv newspapers said, but with him out of the picture, they added, the Israelis are taking no chances.

U.S. Turns Over Base To ARVN

SAIGON (AP) — The United States has turned over another big combat base to the South Vietnamese army and has withdrawn four more units from battle to reduce American strength in Indochina by another 2,565 men, it was announced today.

Military spokesmen said the An Hoa combat base, about 20 miles southwest of Da Nang, has been given to the South Vietnamese 51st Infantry Regiment. It was the 57th American installation turned over to the Vietnamese in a little more than a year.

The U.S. Command announced that three units of the 1st Marine Division and an Army artillery battalion have been pulled out of action.

The moves are part of President Nixon's fourth round cutback of 50,000 troops that will reduce the authorized American strength in Vietnam to 384,000 within the next two weeks. The current U.S. strength is 394,100.

The new units being pulled out are the 3rd Battalion, 7th Marine Regiment, 3rd Battalion, 11th Marine Regiment; Headquarters Company, 7th Marine Regiment, and the Army's 7th Battalion, 13th Artillery. The newly announced cutback involves about 2,000 Marines. The rest are Army men.

Bryant said that Pond, an avid collector of decoys and blocks, has a formidable collection of old blocks, many of which were made by some of the masters of the trade including Elmer Crowell, considered to be one of the great decoy artists.

Some of the blocks saw service in the North Carolina sound country, Bryant added, and also in the Chesapeake Bay areas of Virginia and Maryland. Pond is expected to be on hand for the dinner.

Farley said that the wives of duck hunters are also invited as are everyone else who has an interest in the conservation and propagation of North America's waterfowl.

Role Of Hamlet Exhausts Judith

By JACK SCHREIBMAN Associated press Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dame Judith Anderson, after 45 years on the stage, achieved her dearest wish Monday night: she played Hamlet herself.

After the opening of a three-week run at the Geary Theater, Miss Anderson, 72, was exhausted in her dressing room from the demanding role that had her onstage most of 2½ hours.

Aside from the technical problems of an opening night, she said, doing the role "was the most marvelous thing."

"It's the greatest role in the world. I'm so thrilled."

She played Hamlet's mother 34 years ago.

As the melancholy Dame, Miss Anderson wears leather boots that go a few inches above the knee, black leotards, black velvet doublet, gray tunic and white blouse open at the neck.

The garb is in striking contrast to the red-and-white costumes worn by the other performers in the Shakespearean tragedy.

For the part, the actress wears her brown hair down to the middle of the neck.

Audience reaction was mixed. "I think she really gets the job done," said one man. His companion, a woman, gave him an arched-eyebrow look.

Others said, "She makes me nervous" ... "I'd rather see Richard Burton in the part" ... "the voice was too high" ... "she absolutely dominated all the other guys on the stage with her."

Dame Judith, if she was looking for an opinion of her performance, heard five minutes of applause at the end of the American Conservatory Theater performance.

After San Francisco, the company, the city's repertory group, goes on a 26-week U.S. tour.

City Counted Four Accidents Monday

An estimated $2,700 property damage resulted from four wrecks investigated here by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers estimated heaviest damage resulted from a 3:10 p.m. collision at the intersection of U.S. 264 and Kirkland Drive which involved cars driven by Lynn Hill Thomas, 24, of Kinston and Sallie Freeland Paige, of Greenville.

Police, who set damage to the Thomas car at $700 and estimated damage to the Paige vehicle at $450, charged Mrs. Paige with failing to yield the right of way.

Lonnie Jay McRoy, 20, of Route 1, Chocowinity was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Charles and 14th Streets.

Cars driven by McRoy and Warren Kermit Allen Jr., 19, of Rout 1, Pantego were involved in the mishap which caused an estimated $200 damage to the Allen vehicle and about $600 damage to the McRoy car.

No charges were reported in a

Mule Will Help Mark Birthdays

RALEIGH (AP) — A mule was to be the center of attraction today as North Carolina State University reconnected its first groundbreaking.

NCSU Chancellor John T. Caldwell, Raleigh Mayor Seby Jones and students were to watch a mule pull a plow along the boundary between the university campus and Pullen Park to symbolize the gift of the first 62 acres of the university campus.

Bussing Now Sales Tool For Houses

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The school desegregation controversy in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County has turned into a sales tool for some realtors listing out-of-county homes.

"No Busing," reads one classified advertisement in the Charlotte Observer and Charlotte News. "Concerned Parents," reads the headline on another ad. "No School problem," read a third. All pushed the fact that the houses were in areas where buyers wouldn't have to bus their children.

The appeals are aimed directly at the thousands of white parents who have angrily protested a drastic court-ordered desegregation plan begun this fall in city-county schools.

The plan, on appeal to the Supreme Court, required bussing thousands of additional children.

But despite the uproar, the Charlotte Board of Realtors reports homes sales in the city this September are up over last year.

Moreover, some realtors using the desegregation problem in their ads for out-of-county homes say they get no better results than with conventional sales pitches.

At least one Charlotte realtor says the ads work. The broker, who declined to be named, said "the only phone calls I've gotten in the last two weeks" were prompted by an ad with the headline "No Busing."

"I've talked to other brokers and they're experiencing the same thing," he added. "Activity outside Mecklenburg is the only action going on right now."

An official at the Board of Realtors said the ads are not an "outright violation of the code of ethics." However, he added: "We wouldn't feel it's very appropriate, very dignified way to sell property."

Ky Reportedly Invited Visit Later In Year

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials say South Vietnam's President Nguyen Cao Ky is being given an invitation by the Nixon administration for a red-carpet visit to the United States later this year — probably after the Nov. 3 elections.

Although no announcement of the invitation has been made, sources said the new invitation materialized after Ky disclosed Saturday he had changed his mind and would not address the Rev. Carl McIntire's "march for victory" here his weekend.

McIntire, the fundamentalist New Jersey radio preacher, angrily denounced what he called a "monstrous conspiracy reaching up to the very top levels of the government" to keep Ky from the rally.

Ky, however, said with a smile it was "not quite true" the Nixon administration tried hard to discourage him from coming here.

Administration officials made little effort to disguise their relief that Ky was not coming. Security agents already had been assigned to what was shaping up as a confrontation between Vietnam war supporters and anti-war demonstrators at rival rallies.

The White House and State Department declined comment on Ky's private visit, but there were many hints Ky would find developments at the peace negotiations in Paris sufficiently important to keep him there, rather than to come to the United States at this time.

Upon learning Ky had called off his plans to fly here this week, leaders of the counter-demonstration canceled their rally.

Ky announced Sept. 3 he would come to Washington Oct. 3 for the private visit. But he changed his mind, apparently as a result of a Paris meeting Friday with Bui Diem, South Vietnam's ambassador to the United States.

The Vietnamese envoy had flown from Washington to Paris last Thursday carrying word that the security problem was going to be a difficult one.

State Department officials who have dealt with Ky say he is a patriotic nationalist and once he became convinced that his coming here was bad for his country and would make it more difficult for the Nixon administration to support the Vietnamese cause, he realized it would not be wise to come at this time.

It was pointed out that any message Ky would have for the American people most likely would be lost in the violence of the demonstrations.

Fear Volatile Arabs To Be Anti-West

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

It will be a long time before the full impact of Gamal Abdel Nasser's death can be calculated, but it seems likely that it will release a vast torrent of emotion among a highly emotional and volatile people, and there is a good chance that this outburst will turn itself against the United States and the West.

The reasons are manifold. First, the Arabs will have a shocking sense of loss, a loss that cannot possibly be made up. As a leader Nasser is irreplaceable, and there is no sign of anyone on the horizon who can match his appeal. Second, the Arabs are already in a highly nervous state over the situation in the Middle East, which has just witnessed the spectacle of Arabs slaughtering brother Arabs in Jordan's confusing and bloody civil war. Most Arabs blame that development on the West, on "imperialism," and particularly on the United States. Militant Arabs, seeking the destruction of Israel, look upon Hussein as a tool of the Americans and upon his throne as a creation of British colonialism.

Third, the mood of the militant Arabs has been ugly since the 1967 war, when Nasser was humiliated by Israel. That memory is now likely to flood back and increase the bitterness.

Fourth, the Arabs—at least the many Arabs who are emotionally involved in the crisis—have long been infuriated by the frustrations their cause has met. Now, with their leader gone and nobody in sight to take his place, many are likely to be on the point of desperation—the sort of desperation that could lead to increasing and often un-reasoning violence. If the violence comes, the vast U.S. interests in the Middle East will be in danger. So will the economy of Europe, much of which now depends upon the free flow of Arab oil. In Arab fury, frequently the first objects of attack are the pipelines through Arab lands to funnel oil to the Mediterranean and Europe.

But oil is not the only thing at stake. Also in the balance is the question of dominating influence in an enormous strategic crossroads of the world. At stake too can be such things as airline routes, rights of passage, commerce with the East, and all the cultural ties the West has with the Arab East.

A serious outbreak of violence could even lead to some form of American intervention in the style of Lebanon in 1958, when nothing else would seem to suffice to restore some semblance of calm to the area. Intervention of that sort—just barely avoided in the Jordanian crisis up to now—becomes a specter all over again, and along with it comes the companion ghost of a showdown in the Middle East between the two great super-

Diplomats are likely to plead that it is enormously important now for the world's peace of mind to have some concerted big-power effort toward keeping the lid on a dangerous problem.

Area Students Are Studying In London

SPARTANBURG, S. C. — Two Greenville, N. C. students are among forty-one Converse College students who are now residing in England as participants of the college's first fall term in London.

The students, Miss Carol Andresen and Miss Cam Gaylord, both seniors, will spend the next three and a half months living at the Salisbury Court Hotel in the Kensington-Chelsea area.

Dr. Jeffrey Willis and Dr. John Byars, Converse associate professors of history and English, respectively, will teach the classes.

Dr. Willis explained the reasons for going to England if not to study in an English University. "There is a desire on the part of our students to study abroad and it is difficult, simply because of the huge demand, for American students to get into

Galifianakis Record Hit

RALEIGH (AP) — House minority leader Gerald Ford has leveled a charge of "irresponsible behavior" against Democratic Rep. Nick Galifianakis.

The Michigan Republican said Galifianakis was one "of just two congressmen from the South who voted in favor of the Cooper-hurch amendment, which would have tied the hands of the President in dealing with the Communist enemy in Vietnam."

Ford also said the 4th District congressman had lined up with "the big spenders" in opposition to efforts by the President to halt inflation.

Ford's charge came as he spoke at a fund-raising dinner for Republican nominee Jack Hawke in his campaign against Galifianakis.

Ford said Galifianakis was numbered among the "radical liberals" in Congress.

He said other examples of "irresponsible behavior" by Galifianakis came when he "voted for the voting rights legislation which makes a target of the South and ignores the rest of the country" and when "he refused to sign the congressional petition urging the U. S. Supreme Court to reject forced busing to achieve racial balance."

British Universities. So we have created the opportunity for Converse students without an affinity for a foreign language to go abroad and study," he said.

"Participants will be exposed to guest lecturers from several British institutions," Dr. Byars explained, "and many new course such as Modern Irish and British Drama and Problems in Modern British Government have been developed to take advantage of the famous historical sites available in the area."

Portraits In 'Tempest'

RALEIGH (AP) — A state official says 19 antique portraits now stored in a vault in the State Department of Archives and History have created "a very large tempest in a Wake County teapot."

The portraits, that include former Govs. Charles B. Aycock and Daniel G. Fowle, were hung in the old Wake County courthouse before it was demolished in 1967.

But they have not been hung in the new courthouse which was completed several months ago.

Several descendants of those portrayed in the paintings, mostly former lawyers and judges, have demanded that the county either hang the paintings or return them.

The Wake County commissioners are expected to decide the portraits' fate at a meeting next Monday.

Declares Spiders 'Nice' Creatures

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Spiders suffer from a bad "image."

But they shouldn't, according to Gordon Nielsen, an entomologist (insect expert) with the University of Vermont Extension Service.

"Actually," he said, "spiders are helpful creatures to have around your home and garden. They eat many insect pests, and some scientists believe spiders are more important than birds in pest control."

It's all in and it's been a good year. Now how do you keep that crop money right on working for you?

That's easy. By talking to a Wachovia Farm Specialist. A man who is as much at home in farming as he is in banking. So that he can help you work out a plan designed to meet your own special requirements. Part of the plan he suggests may be a regular Wachovia Savings Account. So that this part of your crop money earns True

Daily Interest, at the highest rate the law allows.

Or he may suggest one of several Certificates of Deposit to earn an even higher yield. Without tying up your money for long periods of time.

Part of your money should go into a Wachovia Checking Account. He'll help you decide how much and how it will help you provide vital records for tax time.

But whatever plan he suggests, you can be sure it will be based on a thorough knowledge of your particular needs. And it will help you make a sound decision.

Every Wachovia Bank office has trained Farm Specialists who know farm finances inside out. Talk to one this week. And let him help you make your money work just as hard for you as you did for it.
