

Developers Withdraw Zoning Plea

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Planners for a covered mall shopping center proposed for a 47 acre tract of land last night withdrew their request for rezoning following two hours of discussion involving interested citizens, planning personnel, and members of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

At a public hearing attended by approximately 50 citizens, consideration was given to a request to rezone land bordered by U. S. 264-Bypass, 14th Street, and Reedy Branch.

Current zones for the land are a mixture of R-9 and R-20 residential and neighborhood commercial for a small part of the total area. The shopping center planners were requesting rezoning to shopping center (C.S.)

The withdrawal action was accepted by members of the Planning and Zoning Commission when it was presented by attorney Kenneth Hite on behalf of the planners-developers — David Fork and Arnold Stern of Drucker and Fork, Newport News, Virginia; Roger Cockrell and Edward Brandon of North Hills, Inc., Raleigh; and David A. Evans, Sr., representing the property owners.

Just before the withdrawal motion by the planners was presented, the commission members had approved a motion by Louis Clark to deny the petition to rezone the area. The commission then moved to reconsider and withdraw their denial in order to approve the planners' withdrawal offer.

William Holley, Edwin H. Stubblefield, Rudy Cox, Dr. Vincent J. Bellis, Stephen Tacker, Tom Butler, Mrs. Edwin H. Stubblefield, Mrs. Leslie Price, Mrs. Katye Sowell, Morton Congleton, Howard Stocks, Warren Whitehurst, John A. K. Tucker, Lee Brown, and Bruce Johnston, Jr. were spokesmen who voiced objections to a shopping center in an area surrounded by residential developments. Most of the spokesmen identified themselves as home owners in areas immediately adjacent to the 47 acre tract under question.

Principal objections to rezoning the area for a shopping center were based on safety hazards increased traffic would bring into the area, with particular reference to the fact that Eastern Elementary School is located there. Another factor mentioned several times was that most home owners had purchased homes in the area because it was residential and they had not expected commercial developments.

Dr. Bellis emphasized that it is his belief a large paved area at the location would result in increased water drainage problems for residents in the vicinity.

Several persons objecting to the shopping center being located at this area, did however, state approval of one of this nature located in another, less built up area.

Fork, asked to explain why he thought a shopping center at the proposed location, was a good idea, stated that it was because of the number of residents in the area that the planners wanted to place one there, pointing out they felt it would be a good investment.

He also commented, "We would not have considered this site except for the fact a five lane highway is to go there. I understand, of course it will go there whether we do or not."

Hite pointed out that shopping centers such as Cameron Village, the center in Kinston, and North Hills in Raleigh had all been located in residential areas with success.

After withdrawal action was approved, and before adjournment, commission members in an informal discussion asked the planners if they had considered the possibility of another site for the proposed shopping center.

Evans noted that negotiations were already being made with regard to a 33 acre site east of by-pass 264 and south of 10th Street extended, or U. S. 264. He mentioned that this land is already zoned for C.S. (shopping center), and the possibility of planners requesting expansion of the C.S. zoning to include an additional tract which borders Devonshire Street.

Indicating that such a suggestion was not a matter for action at the time, commission members did, however, voice a sentiment that a request for consideration of this area might be more favorably viewed by Greenville citizens.

Kings And Presidents Gathering In Cairo For Nasser State Funeral

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Kings and presidents are gathering in Cairo for Gamal Abdel Nasser's state funeral Thursday, but the fallen Egyptian president's cortege will belong to the people.

The government requisitioned Cairo's major hotels to house the dignitaries, who began arriving Tuesday night. Millions of Nasser's subjects also poured into the city and its suburb, Kubbah, where his body lay in state in the presidential palace and will be buried in a public mosque.

Cairo Radio said the funeral procession will begin at the old revolutionary headquarters on Gezira Island in the Nile River and will end at the mosque, five miles from Kubbah Palace.

The high-ranking foreigners — the United States will be represented by a five-man delegation headed by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot Richardson — will march across Kasr el Nil Bridge into Cairo, through Liberation Square and onto the premises of the Arab Socialist Union, by Nasser's decree the only political party in Egypt.

There the heads of state and official representatives will withdraw, and the mourning Arab multitudes will take the procession through areas which Nasser had developed early in his reign to symbolize change in Egyptian life.

Burial will be at Manshiet el Bakary Mosque, built with public donations two years ago. Nasser himself contributed to the project.

According to Moslem tradition, Nasser's interment should have been within 24 hours of his death Monday at the age of 52. It was delayed to allow representatives of foreign governments to arrive.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin of the Soviet Union, Nasser's most prominent patron during the last few years, was among the first to arrive. Weeping as he left his plane, he was embraced by Anwar Sadat, the acting Egyptian president, and Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, commander-in-chief of Egypt's military, their eyes reddened by tears.

Sadat, one of two military officers remaining in power of the seven who overthrew King Farouk and set up the republic in 1952, presided over an emergency meeting of the Cabinet and the executive committee of the Socialist Union soon after Nasser died of a heart attack. Nasser's chair in the center of a long table was vacant as the leaders presumably discussed when to select a permanent successor.

Cairo Radio said there was no statement after the 90-minute session. The constitution says the vice president — Sadat — becomes provisional president on the death of the president for a period not to exceed 60 days. The Socialist Union is designated to choose the successor.

Others among the early arrivals were Nasser's Arab friends and opponents. David Ben Gurion, Nasser's adversary since the early days of the revolution when Ben Gurion was Israeli premier, said Nasser was "certainly the most able leader in the Arab world."

The present Israeli government granted permission for Arabs from the West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip — lands occupied during the 1967 war — to attend the funeral, entering Egypt through Jordan or Cyprus. Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian guerrilla organization, cable-d its condolences to Sadat.

Taft Begins 3rd Term As CBD Chairman

E. Hoover Taft Jr. was reelected chairman of the Central Business District Project Advisory Committee Tuesday afternoon at their annual business session.

In addition to Taft, who will be serving his third term as chairman, Howard Moyer was reelected to the vice chairman's seat while Thomas Webb was returned for another term as secretary. Charles A. White Sr. was reelected assistant secretary.

During the business session, the director of operations, John Messick, who is leaving in October to accept a position with the Wilmington Redevelopment Commission, gave a status report on the CBD project.

Messick informed committee members that second appraisals and surveys of property in the CBD area are underway. Thorough inspections have been started in the area, he said, following initial inspections that were conducted in the CBD pilot project.

In addition, Messick noted that the official loan and grant contract is still unsigned but is expected from Washington in the near future.

The contract, he reported, has been approved in Atlanta and final approval is expected without problem in Washington. The vice chairman of the city, Park Authority, Ken Watkins, was on hand for the meeting and informed committee members that soon the city will be turning over the parking lots

Vice President Is Slated To Visit Raleigh Oct. 26

RALEIGH (AP)—Plans were announced today for Vice President Spiro Agnew to campaign in Raleigh Oct. 26 for North Carolina Republican congressional candidates.

"This is going to be the big straw that will push our candidates over the top," said state GOP chairman Jim Holshouser in announcing the visit.

Holshouser said tentative plans called for Agnew to arrive on the afternoon of Oct. 26 — a Monday — and appear at a rally at Broughton High School in Raleigh.

He said the Vice President probably would spend the night in Raleigh and leave the state the following morning without making any appearances outside the city.

Resume Balloon Search

NEW YORK (AP) — At the urging of two U.S. senators, the Coast Guard resumed an air search today for three balloonsists missing in the North Atlantic.

A Coast Guard spokesman said one of its planes took off at daybreak from Elizabeth City, N.C., while an air force plane took off from Pease Air Force Base, New Hampshire.

The aircraft planned to cover "two rectangular areas" 600 miles east-southeast of Newfoundland, the spokesman said. No ships were involved in the renewed search, he said, and no time limit was set. The Coast Guard reportedly had agreed to a final two-day reconnaissance.

The balloon — called the "free life" — took off Sept. 26 from eastern Long Island in an attempt to make the first unpowered balloon crossing of the Atlantic. Aboard the craft were Rodney Anderson, 32, a New York broker; his actress wife, Pamela Brown, 23, and Malcolm Brighton, 32, an English aeronautical engineer.

A final radio dispatch Sept. 21 said the balloon was at 600 feet, descending into the ocean in a rainstorm.

side the city.

Holshouser said the visit showed the importance the national party attaches to North Carolina, where Republicans are making a major drive to capture additional seats in the state's 11-member congressional delegation, now dominated by Democrats 7-4.

Holshouser was accompanied by two of the GOP's congressional candidates, Jack Hawke of Raleigh and Herb Howell of Goldsboro, when he made the announcement at a news conference.

Howell is running against Democratic incumbent David Henderson in the 3rd District. Hawke is opposing Democratic incumbent Nick Galifianakis in the 4th District.

Holshouser said Hawke and Howell were chosen to be with him "to dispel rumors and misinformation of any reticence of the Vice President to campaign" in their areas.

He apparently referred to reports published earlier that Agnew didn't want to publicly oppose Henderson and Galifianakis.

Holshouser said the Agnew visit would be on behalf of "the five eastern Republican candidates."

In addition to Hawke and Howell, he referred — without naming them — to challengers Frank Everett in the First District and F. R. Weber in the 7th and to GOP incumbent Earl Ruth in the 8th District.

The party already has called out one of its big guns, Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., the House minority leader.

Ford visited Raleigh Monday on behalf of Jack Hawke, who is running against Democratic incumbent Nick Galifianakis in the 4th District.

The House GOP leader will return to North Carolina Oct. 10 to campaign for Republican incumbent Earl Ruth, who faces opposition from Democrat Clifton Blue in the 8th District.

Arrest Trio After Truck Blew Up

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)

— A dynamite truck exploded on the outskirts of Springfield early today and the Missouri Highway Patrol reported the arrest of two men and two women in connection with the blast.

The truck driver, John Galt, 48, Oklahoma City, Okla., was missing and presumed dead.

The patrol reported an intercepted call from one of the women led to her arrest at a farmhouse near Ash Grove, Mo., about 10 miles from the interstate highway where the dynamite truck blew up.

The two men and the other woman walked out of the nearby woods as a highway patrol plane circled overhead and ground searchers approached.

The patrol said a witness told of seeing a shot fired at the truck as it passed an interchange on Interstate Highway 44 west of Springfield.

Hospital Board Eyes Several Possible Sites

Pitt Memorial Hospital's board of trustees is looking at a number of sites for a proposed new hospital.

However, Chairman Woodrow W. Wooten said that the final site will not be selected until after the Nov. 3 referendum on the $9 million in bonds. These funds, and a minimum of $2 million which the trustees anticipate receiving from the Medical Care Commission, would be used for site purchase and construction of the new hospital.

Wooten said that several suitable sites for construction of the new hospital have been made available by property owners. "No specific site has been selected, nor could be, until after the bond election and after soil borings, traffic counts and other necessary tests have been made."

He encouraged other property owners who have sites they would like to make available to contact the hospital board of trustees.

Proposals should be submitted in writing with a stated price per acre so that the proposal can be considered by the board. Sites must be a minimum of 100 acres, as required by the Medical Care Commission.

"The board hated to leave the old site because of the investment there," Wooten stated. "However we were advised by the Medical Care Commission that it was not feasible to renovate the old hospital and sustain the loss of room while construction was underway. Conditions would be intolerable for treatment of patients."

Wooten said also that the board of trustees "realize and appreciate that the present hospital and land will still be retained by the county and the taxpayers will benefit from its use."

The chairman said the board had been told by every outside consultant that the present building was obsolete for modern hospital use.

The board decided on building an entirely new hospital at the urging of the Medical Care Commission and with the expectation of obtaining a grant from the Medical Care Commission.

Agnew Says He's Following Truman's Example

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says he is carrying on the Harry S. Truman tradition of "give 'em hell" campaigning — "I'm crisscrossing this nation telling the truth and they still think it's hell."

The Republican vice president invoked the name — and noted political characteristic — of the former Democratic president in a speech Tuesday night to a GOP rally after noting that Truman had spoken in Minot exactly 18 years before.

The vice president bore down heavily on the Vietnam issue in a speech dotted with references to his two trips to Asia.

He declared that "if we were to cut and run before the South Vietnamese can adjust to defend themselves, South Vietnam would fall," leading to the murder of hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese and affecting the fate of at least six other nations. He did not specify the countries he had in mind.

"The best way to forestall such a calamity," he said, "is to elect Republican Rep. Thomas Kleppe in place of Democratic Sen. Quentin Burdick this November."

The race is considered close with some local observers believing the GOP candidate has cut considerably into Burdick's early lead.

A crowd of close to 5,000 heard Agnew's speech, applauding frequently. The only sign of dissent was a banner held up by a group of young people in the balcony at the start of the speech proclaiming, "We're not impressed."

Earlier, Agnew spoke to several hundred Republicans at a

$50-per-couple reception and predicted that in November "we're going to score the biggest upset in an off-year election that this country has ever seen and part of it is going to be in North Dakota."

After taping a television interview here today, Agnew's schedule called for him to fly to Salt Lake City where he speaks tonight for Rep. Laurence Burton, running against Democratic Sen. Frank E. Moss in another tight Senate contest.

The vice president flew here from Sioux Falls, S.D., where he assailed the report of the Presidential Commission on Campus Unrest. He called its contention that President Nixon bears the responsibility for ending student disruptions "scapegoating" of the most irresponsible sort.

For Lynda Bird Robb, Decoupage Is The Thing

By DOROTHY MARKS

Women's News Service
WASHINGTON — Julie Eisenhower needlepoints. Mrs. Eugene McCarthy does crewel embroidery. And Lynda Bird Johnson Robb has decided "decoupage" is her thing.

Across the country there seems to be a growing interest in expressing oneself through do-it-yourself arts and crafts.

"I'm a rank amateur but I find it great therapy," says President Lyndon Johnson's older daughter. Other young marrieds and what she calls "establishment types like me" are taking it up. The high school and college crowd seem to prefer tie-dyeing or making leather belts or sandals or fancy headbands for their flowing locks.

Webster's New Third International Dictionary defines "decoupage" as "the art of decorating surfaces with applied paper cutouts." This makes it sound like some sort of kindergarten project but actually it is an elegant art form which probably originated in Asia, was imported and first copied by the Venetians and reached its peak in 18th-century France. Mesdames Pompadour and du Barry, mistresses of Louis XV, were fanatic "decoupeurs," and Marie Antoinette and her court snipped up priceless Watteau and Boucher drawings to make their fans and powder boxes. The poet Lord Byron dabbled in it too.

Only recently revived in this country, one couldn't even find the word in a dictionary ten years ago. Now every fair-sized American city seems to offer classes in it for fun or profit.

Lamps And Boxes
Lynda Robb has been a decouper for only six or eight months but has several handsome lamps and boxes to show for her efforts.

Her handiwork was on display — waiting to be packed — when the Robbs held a "last hurrah" for a few neighbors and friends before leaving their Arlington, Virginia home to move to Charlottesville. Colonel Charles Robb is packing away his Marine Corps gear in mothballs to start a new career at the University of Virginia law school this month.

"I recommend decoupage as a hobby for young housewives and what my mother calls 'ladies-in-waiting,'" Lynda says.

"I signed up for a neighborhood class last winter when I was several months pregnant with Kathie and had my one-year-old Lucinda very much underfoot." A new house to put the finishing touches to and a semi-vacation from her writing assignments for the Ladies Home Journal also got her started on her new hobby.

"Lamps are the easiest and most satisfying thing to decoupage. Using your favorite prints, you can design something very personal which gives you satisfaction even if it isn't exactly a work of art," she says.

Rare Books
Lynda didn't have far to search for ideas and the cutouts she wished to use. "I've been collecting rare editions of children's books ever since I was in high school. Daddy and mother have been giving them to me for birthdays and Christmas for years."

Lynda expanded her collection of children's books to include several rare editions of books and engravings by satirists like Hogarth, Daumier, George Cruikshank and, moving up to World War I, the British cartoonist Bruce Barnesfarther. During her travels while her father was in the White House she added a few first editions and after meeting Chuck Robb the collection was expanded further to include several volumes of illustrated memoirs of the Civil War.

"I love my books too much to cut them up to decorate a lamp or a box but there are always damaged prints in old magazines. I have a lot of those too."

Lynda first became acquainted with decoupage when Mrs. Lester Lindow, whose daughter Helene was an intimate of Luci Johnson, gave Mrs. Johnson a lamp for the White House. Mrs. Lindow, the former Baroness Andree F. C. de Verdor of Holland, travels widely to get 18th-century prints for lamps she sells to Bergdorf Goodman and decorating shops around the country. The Johnsons presented one of her lamps to the President of Iceland in 1967 and others are in the United States Embassies in Madrid, Berne and Copenhagen.

How To Do It

To make a decoupage lamp, one needs the glass lamp cylinder, the print for pasting inside the lamp, colorless mucilage, fine manicure scissors or an X-acto knife, acrylic paint and perhaps a sealer. Foil, teapaper or gold leaf may be used instead of paint. Decoupage boxes require, in addition, much sandpapering and as many as thirty or more coats of clear varnish to create the illusion of the print being imbedded or painted on the box rather than applied to it.

"It is helpful if you liked to cut out paper dolls as a child," says Lynda, "but the pasting and placing of the prints is even trickier."

The first lamp she made for her husband's study would please any Vietnam "dove." It features several cutouts of anti-war cartoons by the World War I cartoonist Bruce Barnesfarther. One shows two tired British Tommies crouched with their rifles while a huge black bird on a rock looks down on them. The caption reads: "Quoth the Raven, 'Nevermore.'"

A handsome beige box made for daughter Lucinda is covered with vintage prints from her favorite A. A. Milne, and includes illustrations of Christopher Robin, Winnie the Pooh and Eeyore the Donkey. She is at work on a larger box to hold the lengthy correspondence she has carried on over the years with Dr. Ernest Shephard, illustrator of the A. A. Milne books.

Lynda doesn't expect to have much time for her new hobby for the next several months. She will be taking care of Lucinda, who will be two in October, and four-month-old Kathie, and getting her new house in Farmington near the University of Virginia pulled together. She has no burning ambition to start decoupage furniture. "That is the really advanced course," she says. "Maybe someday when we get settled in and the girls are a little older I may go back to college to take a few courses myself." Lynda graduated with honors in history from the University of Texas, used to describe herself as a "frustrated history buff."

As for planning for more family? "Who knows? Right now, though, I think I will be ready to give away all the baby clothes six months from now."

How To Get Person To See Psychiatrist

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: You frequently recommend psychiatric help, but you never say how to get a person to see a psychiatrist, and that's our problem.

A member of our family needs psychiatric help, (our family physician told us so) but if we just mention the word "psychiatrist" she tears the place apart, saying she isn't "crazy." Do you think we could prevail upon a psychiatrist to come to the house and pretend to be just a "friend"—or a regular doctor? That way he could observe the patient, and maybe win her confidence, and then later on treat her? If she knew he was a psychiatrist, she wouldn't even stay in the same room with him.

She likes and trusts the family physician, but HE says he can't do any more for her, she needs a psychiatrist. She refuses to go. Any suggestions?

MEMBER OF THE FAMILY

DEAR MEMBER: No reputable psychiatrist would permit himself to be introduced to a patient as a "friend" or even a "regular doctor." When the patient learns that the psychiatrist was part of a plan to trick her, she will lose all confidence in him and I wouldn't blame her. Ask the family physician, whom she likes and trusts, to try to persuade her to see a psychiatrist. Honesty is still the best policy.

DEAR ABBY: Can you please tell me where the custom of kissing a lady's hand originated? And why? S. C.

DEAR S. C.: It originated in France. A person has to start somewhere, and I suppose that's as good a place as any.

DEAR ABBY: People have written to say they were offended because they had received gifts which were obviously "used," and they accused the giver of trying to save money.

Whenever I have occasion to give a gift to a cherished friend. I first try to find something among my possessions that I have owned and loved (a small piece of jewelry, a rare old book, a piece of antique silver or china). I am not trying to save money. I merely want to give something of "mine" which I hope will be considered more precious than a newly purchased item.

Many of the recipients have told me they were deeply touched by such a gift. And I sincerely hope that no one thought me "cheap" or shabby.

YOUR HIGGANUM CORRESPONDENT

DEAR CORRESPONDENT: I agree. A cherished item from one's own personal collection of treasures makes a far more precious gift than a newly purchased item. But there are those materialistic dolts around who regard an antique as a white elephant—whose giver is trying to get off for "peanuts."

Lunch Program Started With Mother's Savings

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Twenty-four years ago, Esther Coley used $500 of her savings to start a lunch program at the school her daughter attended near Watts, Calif. The district was too poor to establish a program itself.

Today, Mrs. Coley is the first negro director of food services for the Compton Unified School District, California's seventh largest, and consulting home economist for a major food manufacturer in a low-cost cookery program.

In an interview here, Mrs. Coley discussed her work. When she started serving hot soup, fruit and milk to 50 pupils at one of Willowbrook's two schools, the enrollment was 60 per cent Mexican-American, 30 per cent white and 10 per cent Negro.

In the unified district she now serves, she estimates enrollment at 60 per cent white and 40 per cent Negro and Mexican-American, plus a few Orientals.

Mrs. Coley uses psychology to reconcile the children's food preferences. She said she works with school art directors and social studies departments to feature a different specialty food one day each week. For Hawaii day, art students made leis for pupils to wear in the cafeteria when they sat down to a Hawaiian-style meal.

"We've even taught the Orientals and Mexicans to like cabbage and ham," she said. "When I went to Willowbrook, a lot of Mexicans wanted tortillas and enchiladas. I developed a recipe for enchilada pie, which is cheaper to produce because there's less labor involved."

"The great problem is getting people to use available information," she said of her new food company assignment. "If I can lecture and demonstrate, person-to-person — get them to recognize good nutrition and learn to stretch food dollars."

Mrs. Coley's job with Hunt-Wesson Foods, Inc., includes development of economical, nutritious recipes for an advertising campaign and direction of a pilot program to teach Negro shoppers how to get the most for their money in Los Angeles ghetto area supermarkets.

Her shoppers helpers are mothers of two to 10-year-olds. They were recruited through the Urban League, PTAs, churches and clubs.

On Fridays, Saturdays and at payday periods, they work in the markets to distribute printed information and answer questions. They show shoppers the best buys, teach them to read labels — to look for canned fruit, for instance, with the highest drained weight. They teach shoppers how to plan and budget meals.

"Very few women know that whole chicken at 29 cents a pound can save them a lot of money over cut-up chicken or chicken parts," Mrs. Coley said. "If pork chops are on sale, a family of eight needs to be shown if they can afford them. If they can budget only $1.50 for meat for a meal, pork chops are too expensive."

A lot of soul food is no bargain anymore, she added. Cuts such as pork neck bones and pigs tails, that used to be thrown away, bring high prices these days. Even chitterlings aren't cheap, because the weight loss in cooking pigs intestines makes the actual cost of edible meat more than $1 a pound.

TASTY
Esther Coley's enchilada pie makes an economical main dish of 4 to 6 servings.

In a skillet, cook together, stirring, 1 pound of ground beef, 1 large onion, chopped, 2 large cloves of garlic, chopped, 1 (7-ounce) can of chopped olives, 1 tablespoon each of chili powder and oregano, 2 tablespoons of ground cumin and half of a 28-ounce can of chili sauce. Add salt and pepper to taste.

When meat is lightly browned, pour half of it into a greased 1½-quart casserole that has been lined with 6 canned or frozen corn tortillas, broken in pieces. Repeat meat and tortilla layers. Sprinkle with ½ pound of grated American cheese and ¼ cup of chopped scallions. Mix remaining chile sauce with 1½ cups of water and ½ teaspoon of salt. Pour over casserole, bake 1 hour in preheated 325-degree oven.

Safety Expert Says 'Burn Accidents Easy To Prevent'

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"Of all the accidents, the burn accident is the easiest to prevent, just by doing two things: setting up a safe environment and practicing safety procedures," declares safety expert Dr. Irmagene Nevins Holloway.

"Unfortunately it usually takes a tragedy to make people safety conscious, to focus on the need for doing something," adds the first woman to get a Ph.D. in safety education from New York University. "The key to the whole thing is prevention. Recognize a hazard, know what to do about it, and then do it."

Dr. Holloway, formerly with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, now devotes most of her time to fire prevention. She lectures and writes extensively on the subject and is consumer consultant on fire safety for Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

"Everyone's for safety but most people think the accident is going to happen to somebody else," says Dr. Holloway. "I think every woman would do everything humanly possible to protect her family. But she doesn't realize how easily fires can start and she doesn't know what to do to prevent them."

Dr. Holloway considers creating a safe environment elemental. This means using fire-retardant fabrics, especially drapes and curtains, and leaving clear traffic lanes through the house for quick exit. In addition she advocates that every family develop its own fire safety plan and actually hold drills that involve learning two escape routes from each room in case one is blocked.

There should also be an assigned place for the family to meet, to avoid the tragedy of someone losing his life going back into a building to rescue a person who is actually already out.

"Make a game out of it for the small children," she advises. "They won't be frightened if they realize they will know just what to do. While parents don't want youngsters to be neurotically afraid of fire, they must make them aware of the hazards."

"In some cases," she adds, "it's better to spank a child's little bottom than have his clothes catch on fire. Better to have him emotionally scarred than physically scarred. If he's physically scarred he's emotionally scarred anyway."

She thinks consumers should demand flame-retardant clothing from manufacturers, especially for the most burn-prone age groups, under 5 and over 65.

"The youngsters are curious and don't realize the danger. The elderly are getting forgetful and taking things for granted," she notes. "They've been doing this sort of thing and getting by with it for 50 years but they're not as quick as they once were."

Dr. Holloway also offers advice on what to do if clothing should catch on fire: "Lay down and roll. If possible take a heavy rug or coat (not nylon), wrap around the body beginning at the neck. Under no circumstances run, as this fans the flames and causes deeper burns."

Some other tips on fire safety: When striking matches, close box and strike away from body. Never toss a lighted match away.

Use large, noncombustible ashtrays, never plastic ones. When emptying, make sure all tobacco and matches are out and sprinkle with water. Never smoke in bed. You might fall asleep. Remember toxic gases may asphyxiate you before the heat wakes you up.

In putting out a fire aim the water or extinguisher at the base of the fire where flames start. It is material rather than flames that should be smothered and drenched.

In case of an electric or gas fire turn off source of heat, then smother flame with baking soda, which should always be kept handy for use.

Husband shamed her into losing 50 pounds

It was a movie book in a beauty salon that finally made Rita O'Dwyer reduce. She had gone for her weekly up-sweep, though she knew she'd come home to her usual letdown. A mirror that wouldn't hide her 190 pounds and a husband disgusted with her shape. But this trip, she'd read about a woman who'd lost weight with the help of Ayds and decided to be a loser, too.

Her weight problem actually started after her husband and she had moved from New York to the south. He had enrolled in dental school and they went with the intention of staying just until he finished. Surprisingly enough, after her husband's graduation, they settled in Celina, a small town 100 miles from Nashville.

At first, things were tough. In fact, her husband had to teach a few days a week to make ends meet. Meanwhile, Rita did nothing but complain, cry and eat. Her husband didn't say much for a long time. But finally her figure got to him. And when the day came that she had to call him to help her get out of the bathtub, he said: "Don't you think this is the last straw?" And she knew it was.

Right after that, she read about Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy, and decided to buy a box. It contains no cyclamates, no artificial sweeteners. You take one or two Ayds as directed and it helps curb your appetite. On the Ayds Plan, you eat less because you want less, so you lose weight.

In six months, Rita O'Dwyer lost 50 pounds on the Ayds Plan and her whole life changed. Even her husband's practice picked up. Wow! Did she go on a clothes spree. And her husband loved every cent of it.

Ayds comes in four flavors: vanilla caramel, chocolate fudge type, minty chocolate fudge, and butterscotch fudge type.

The process of "selling" your hogs before they're ready for market is called hedging. Farmers have been hedging a variety of products for over fifty years on the U.S.D.A.-regulated Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The main purpose of hedging is to avoid losing money due to an over-supply of hogs at market time. But there are a number of other advantages as well. And the commissions are extremely low. Commission Asks Repeal Most Pornography Laws

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Discounting fears that pornography corrupts either individual Americans or the nation's moral climate, a divided Presidential Commission on Pornography has called for repeal of most U.S. adult censorship laws.

The commission's report recommends state laws against exposing children to smut or putting it on public display — but no ban on written erotica in either case — and a mass sex education program partly to blunt the public's taste for perverted sex information.

The final report was kept under wraps for release this afternoon but a two-week-old copy still subject to revision was obtained by The Associated Press.

The finding that pornography does not cause sex crimes is modified, apparently at least in part because of statistics showing an increase in rape arrests since an increase in erotica in the United States.

But the report still says extensive investigation has "found no evidence to date that exposure to explicit sexual material plays a significant role in the causation of delinquent or criminal behavior among youth or adults."

And it says the powerful influences in the current flux in U.S. sexual values include ready availability of contraceptives, the changing American woman's role, increased education and mobility — not the increase in pornography.

Three dissenting commissioners accused the commission majority of manipulating evidence and proposing moral anarchy. They recommended stiffer anti-obscenity laws, prosecuting divisions in the Justice Department and state film censorship boards like Maryland's.

The recommendation for repeal of all 114 federal and state laws against importing, showing or selling erotica to adults was approved by 12 of the 18 commissioners.

They said censorship laws are so vague they are unevenly enforced and sometimes used against legitimate material and are rendered ineffective by a lack of public support.

The 12 also said "there is no reason to suppose" legalization would greatly alter the U.S. smut industry — which they said is small — and concluded there is not enough evidence to connect the industry with organized crime.

"On the positive side," the report says, "explicit sexual days?" I said.

"It's hopeless. The internal security subcommittees are only interested in students," he said. "It's impossible to explain to Moscow that nobody cares what we do."

"Why couldn't you get the students interested in the party?" I suggested. "Surely you could get some attention if the student unrest was thought to be a Communist conspiracy."

"We tried, but the students won't have anything to do with us. They think we're as old-hat as the Republican and Democratic Parties."

"It's a crying shame," I said.

"We thought maybe when Nixon became President we'd get a break, because in his day he was one of the great Communist-hunters in this country. But he hasn't mentioned us since he's been in office. It wouldn't have hurt us to call us 'bums,' after all we did for his career."

materials are sought as a source of entertainment by substantial numbers of American adults. At times, these materials also appear to serve to increase and facilitate constructive communication about sexual matters within marriage."

Besides fears of national moral decay, the majority said, it considered concern that legalization of pornography for adults would lead to greater exposure to children.

But it said: "It seems too wholly inappropriate to adjust the level of adult communication to that considered suitable for children."

The commission said state laws against pornography for children are recommended because it is less confident about evidence such material does not hurt them, because there is a greater public consensus for such laws and because it believes parents should have control over what their children see.

But it said laws should cover only graphically defined obscene pictures because written material inappropriate for children is too difficult to define.

For the same reason, the commission said, laws against public display of obscene pictures should not try to ban dirty words. Such words are so commonly used they have lost their power to shock, the majority said.

A massive sex education program for adults as well as children, the report says, should be aimed at establishing healthy attitudes about sex as a normal part of life and should allow for a range of sexual values, not try to impose a single orthodoxy.

The conclusion that there is no evidence pornography plays a significant role in causing crime or deviancy is toned down from the finding in an Aug. 2 draft report that there is no such ascertainable relationship.

But while citing a 55 per cent increase in adult rape arrests and 86 per cent rise in juvenile rape arrests since 1960, the report says the data do not indicate such a relationship because pornography has increased more — and the rate for all sex crimes dropped 4 per cent for juveniles and increased only 18 per cent for adults. It also says sex crimes including rape have decreased 50 to 60 per cent in Denmark since the increase in erotica there. "The data, however, do not conclusively disprove such a connection," the report says.

The Girls of BRAZIL

In Brazil she's a "broto"—flower bud.

A swinging threesome in Sao Paulo.

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Sweet, lissome, prickly, pert—all define the character of the girls of Brazil, where nature has been prodigal with beauty.

In Rio de Janeiro, the slim, sun-tanned girls attract more stares than Mount Sugarloaf. In Sao Paulo, the dressed-to-kill lovelies soften the impact of that cavernous metropolis of concrete canyons.

Call her the girl from Ipanema—and what better inspiration for a world-hit samba?—or any other name, the chances are you'll find she's an elegant beauty with a talent for fun.

Brazilian girls, no longer tied to Victorian standards, love the outdoors by day and the swinging indoors by night. Wherever they are, they display an equal flair for sharp dressing and for casual elegance.

Daytime life revolves around the lovely beaches of Rio de Janeiro or the smart shopping streets of Sao Paulo. At night, it's the discotheques that snap to life. On weekends, the well-to-do prefer exclusive clubs or distant, secluded beaches.

There's always intense rivalry between Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo. It's there in girls, too. Nowhere else could claim to have fathered lovelier girls. But in Rio de Janeiro the youngsters seem to have a more casual style, whereas in Sao Paulo, perhaps, sophistication has the upper hand.

No one is more aware of the beauty of Brazilian girls than the country's men. They aptly call young girls "brotos," the Portuguese word for flower buds. And invariably the "brotos" later blossom with the exuberance of all tropical growth.

Registry For Private Duty Nurses Set Up

A Private Duty Nurses' Registry for Pitt County has been established.

Persons needing a private duty nurse, whether at home or at the hospital, may secure the services of one or more by calling the Registry. The phone number, 752-4613, is listed under Greenville Directory Assistance.

Hospital nurse supervisors will no longer secure private duty help as they have done in the past as favors to patients and their families.

"Besides being a means of securing nursing help on short notice, the Registry will also enable local private duty nurses to get together to talk over mutual problems, arrange educational programs, and assist in keeping nursing standards high," Mrs. Grace Turner, one of the organizers of the Registry said.

"All the nurses on the Registry are experienced, having practiced many years in either private duty, full- or part- time hospital staff nursing or other positions in the nursing field," she explained. "Most have kept themselves informed about the best nursing practices and techniques through reading nursing journals and attending in-service hospital classes, lectures, workshops, and demonstrations at professional meetings."

"Traditionally, private duty has been the province of the older nurse who can no longer take the pace of floor nursing or the young housewife with young children who cannot nurse full-time. They are self-employed, but their fees, which are generally in line with pay scales for general duty hospital nurses, are set by the state and district professional nurse organizations. Being self-employed, they do not have benefits like paid holidays and vacations, hospitalization insurance, pension and retirement plans, or part of their Social Security paid by employers.

"Private duty nurses are useful for patients who need individual and constant care that the general hospital nurse cannot possibly provide. Many post-operative and burn patients fall into this category," Mrs. Turner said.

Officers recently elected for the Registry are Mrs. Doris Pollard, chairman; Mrs. Ann Barlow, vice-chairman and program coordinator; Mrs. Margaret Rogerson, recording secretary; Mrs. Gretchen Riddick, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Grace Turner, treasurer; and Miss Allie Clarke, telephone chairman.

City Counts 2 Accidents

An estimated $1,550 property damage resulted from two wrecks investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 5:30 collision at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets which involved cars driven by Charlie A. Holliday, 63, of 1703 Rosewood Dr. and Shirley Garis Worthington, 27, of Route 2, Farmville.

Damage to the car driven by Holliday was set at $400 while damage to the Worthington car was set at $800.

Mrs. Worthington was charged with failing to stop for a red light.

Josephine Cherry Godley, 606 Griffin St., was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 6:45 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Skinner Street and Dickinson Avenue.

Officers reported the Godley vehicle collided with a car driven by I. B. Koonce, 61, of 609 East 11th St. causing an estimated $200 damage to the Koonce car and about $150 damage to the Godley vehicle.

No injuries were reported in either mishap.

Mountain Climbing Is 'Safer' Claims Expert

By JERRY HENRY

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) —Dangling over the edge of a cliff while hanging onto a rope may sound dangerous, but one expert at it thinks it's safer than sitting in a car.

"Climbing is a hell of a lot safer than driving to get here," asserts Wayne Merry, director of the Yosemite Mountaineering School and Guide Service in this rock-climbing capital of the nation.

He means well-supervised climbing with the right equipment, of course, but more and more people apparently agree, according to the climbing's school's enrollment figures.

Climbing Enrollment

Merry said during the school's first year of existence last year about 1,300 took his one and two-day courses. This year some 1,700 have tried their hand at it with several weeks of good climbing remaining.

Merry, a former park ranger who was with the first party to conquer the sheer, 3,000-foot face of Yosemite's towering El Capitan 12 years ago, said about two-thirds of his customers come to him as rank novices.

The veteran mountaineer said by the end of the first day the student will know how to climb a rock wall 80 feet high and slide back down on a rope, how to handle and tie ropes and follow a leader up the mountain.

The second day the student learns how to place pitons (metal spike-like tools jammed into cracks in the rock which the climber ties himself to with ropes) and how to belay, or hold a rope so as to cushion the fall of a partner or leader climbing above him.

"After two days, if the person is reasonably agile, he usually is capable of following a guide on what would have been considered a severe climb 20 years ago," said Merry.

Teach Direct Aid

He and his staff also teach advanced classes in various kinds of "direct aid" climbing meaning climbing up a sheer face with the use of ropes, pitons and other hardware.

Sound Scary?

"The worst injury we've had in two years is a rope-burned finger," Merry said.

"A person can fall without necessarily coming to harm," he said. "People have fallen as far as 180 feet with only minor injuries, although we don't want that to happen here."

"There have been tremendous advances in equipment during the past 10 years," he said. "We have better ropes and better hardware. I remember when we used to use the legs off old tin stoves for pitons sometimes."

Special hammocks allow climbers going up a perpendicular face to stop anywhere and go to sleep for the night while hanging off the wall.

Techniques Refined

Techniques have been refined so that previously difficult climbs can often be made in half the time it took years ago, he said.

Merry, now 39, said his party took more than 11 days to make the final assault of El Capitan in 1958 while today the experts reach the top in two or three days.

"And attitudes have changed too," he said. "People realize these things can be done and they push to do them," he said.

Merry described mountaineering as competitive but not in the traditional sense.

"That's one of the good things about climbing. Your opponent is yourself. There's no pitting of man against man."

Pirates' Lair Now Overgrown And Not Wanted

INDIAN KEY, Fla. (UPI) — Indian Key once was infamous as a pirates' lair, later as one of the most corrupt cities of its time, but now it is overgrown with thorny hemp plants and no one really wants it. The tiny island sits undis-history as a haven first for the turbed and uninhabited off the coast of Florida, with only a few ruins left to mark its 300-year pirates of the Spanish Main, then for a 19th Century "pirate" who made his fortune salvaging wrecked ships —ships that sometimes may have been wrecked by the so-called salvage crews.

Bloody Ending

The history of Indian Key came to an end 130 years ago with a massacre by Seminole Indians, the second massacre in the island's history.

Indian Key, then known as Matanzas, began its bloody history in the 1650s after fierce Calusa Indians killed some 400 survivors of a shipwreck off the island. In the late 1690s a trader named Antonio Gomez settled the island and made friends with the Indians. Some of the customers at his trading post were pirates, who began using Indian Key as a base from which to raid Spanish galleons passing through the Florida straits.

When the pirates were chased away in the early 1700s, Gomez abandoned the island to the vegetation which grew back into the area he had laboriously cleared.

In 1825 Jacob Houseman, runaway son of a New York merchant, bought the island from two squatters and used it as a base for his wrecking business.

The wrecking-salvage business generally was conducted out of Key West in those days, with crews salvaging the cargo of vessels gone aground or sunk on the uncharted reefs of the straits and filing claims with a Key West judge.

Found Friendly Judge

Houseman, however, found a friendly judge in St. Augustine and filed there. If business were slow, it was said, Houseman would order the masters of his wrecking fleet to force cargo-laden ships aground. Sometimes he would have filed a claim in St. Augustine before news of the wreck had even reached shore.

As his profit grew, Houseman built a mansion near the center of the island and set up housekeeping with one of the women he had imported from Charleston, S.C., to entertain his guests and wrecking crews.

With the help of Negro and Indian slaves, he built a huge warehouse and four big wharves, as well as the Tropical Hotel. Located on the sandy south shore, it had two floors, a big dining room and plush gambling casino, as well as a wing that housed the Charleston women.

One man attracted to the island for other reasons as Dr. Henry Perrine, who had served 12 years as American consul in Campeche on Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula. He planted dozens of Yucatan hemp plants on the key in hopes of launching a profitable new hemp industry.

Houseman received a setback in 1839 when his wrecking activities became so blatant that his master wreckers' certificate was revoked. To support his island, he decided to turn his scruffy wrecking crews into a militia and the Territorial Legislature agreed to ask the federal government for funds so it could pay him $200 a head for every indian he killed.

Got The Word

The Seminole Indians heard about the plan before Houseman had collected any bounty money.

Before dawn on Aug. 7, 1840 a Seminole war party beached their canoes on the southern shore of the island, near the hotel, and spread out. On signal, they stormed into the hotel and homes on the island, killing many islanders in their sleep. The Indians captured a huge arms cache, and set all buildings on fire before they left.

Houseman and his common-law wife managed to escape the Indians but Perrine was killed. All that remains on the island now are ruins, covered with vegetation and the descendants of Perrine's thorny hemp plants.

Several years ago a group of Keys residents asked the state to make the island an historical monument, but the plan was shelved for lack of government interest.

a pirate lair and later as one of the most corrupt cities of its time. (UPI Photo)

Those Fringe Benefits Are Certain To Rise

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If anything is more likely to rise than taxes it appears to be payroll fringe benefits, as they are called. Experience in the past 20 years shows that taxes don't always rise annually. But the record shows benefits do.

In fact, so large a portion of payrolls consists of indirect payments that the word "fringe" has become a misnomer and the word "benefit" is beginning to sound as dated as corporate paternalism.

The latest survey of the situation by the National Chamber of Commerce shows that benefits now average 27.9 per cent of employer payrolls, which is to say that more than a quarter of your income may not show up in your paycheck.

The sharp contrasts from one company to another in the amount of such compensations make salary comparisons almost meaningless these days, and often disguise tremendous advantages and disadvantages in certain companies.

Many couples who wonder why their neighbor seems to do so much better on the same salary, for example, may find the answer lies in a free company car, pension, life and health insurance, profit-sharing, bonuses, product discounts, free education and so on.

The Chamber survey, which is made once every two years and involves more than 1,000 companies, shows such payments through 1969 were up 330 per cent in 20 years, and 19 per cent since the previous survey year of 1967.

In 1949, the companies involved reported they paid $477 in benefits per worker. In 1969, this figure had risen to $2,052 for each employee.

The biggest increase, as might be expected, was in Social Security contributions which, being legislated, have little to do directly with corporate generosity. In 1949, the tab to companies was $27 a worker; in 1969, the figure was $335, a 1,141 per cent rise.

Unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation, also legislated, were up substantially, but some of the biggest increases were in pensions, insurance, vacations and other voluntary arrangements.

Kirk Wins In Fla. Primary

MIAMI (AP) — Claude Kirk, Florida's first Republican governor in nearly a century, has won renomination over drug store magnate Jack Eckerd in a runoff primary election.

Final unofficial results from Tuesday's balloting gave Kirk 195,863 votes to 149,191 for the Clearwater millionaire.

In the November general election, Kirk meets state Sen. Reubin Askew of Pensacola, who upset Atty. Gen. Earl Faircloth for the Democratic nomination on a platform promising a corporate income tax and tax relief for the average citizen.

Askew received 439,292 votes to Faircloth's 321,729.

State Sen. Lawton Chiles, who walked more than 1,000 miles in a unique campaign, scored a 2-1 upset victory over former Gov. Farris Bryant for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination.

Chiles amassed 463,108 votes to Bryant's 241,905.

Chiles said he would take to the road again in his general election battle with Rep. William C. Cramer, who won Republican nomination in the first primary Sept. 9 over former Judge G. Harold Carswell.

Sam D. Bundy of Farmville will attend a meeting of a new Democratic nominees to the 1971 General Assembly next weekend.

The meeting, to be held at Atlantic Beach, will be attended by nominees from the area east of Raleigh.

He was present at a meeting of new Democratic nominees from an eight-county area held in Goldsboro last Friday.

Blount-Harvey Building And Parking Lot Sold At Auction

The building occupied by the Blount-Harvey Co. on Evans Street, and the parking lot at the rear of the department store, were sold at auction yesterday at noon.

High bidder for the property was Leo Brody, affiliated with Interstate Realty Co., Kinston.

High bid for the property was $186,000. However, the sale was subject to deeds of trust totaling some $63,000 (plus interest since July 1), making the total price about $249,000.

The sale was also subject to a lease held for the building by Bount-Harvey.

That lease agreement, signed July 1, 1958, was for an initial period of 10 years, with the company having the right to renew for two additional periods, the first for five years, and the second for 10 years, beginning July 1, 1973.

Owners of the property included J. H. Blount Jr., F. L. Blount Jr., Nelson Blount Crisp, Marvin K. Blount Jr., William G. Blount, and Margaret B. Harvey. The property was sold, according to records on file with the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, H. L. Lewis, in order to divide the property.

J. H. Blount Jr., owner of two-sixths of the property, petitioned the court for the division February 6, 1970 and the court ordered the sale July 31, 1970.

Pitt County Tax Department records indicate appraised value of the building and lot on which it sits is $176,350 while the value of the parking lot is set at $13,750.

Former Ayden Star Paul Miller

Miller, Lanier Shine In Tar Heel Offense

CHAPEL HILL — Depth, confidence, and an improved offensive line are the primary reasons for this year's rapid improvement in Bill Dooley's North Carolina Tar Heels. At least that's the reasoning of a couple of ex-Greenville area grid standouts, Paul Miller of Ayden and Ricky Lanier of Williamston.

"We've really got a winning attitude," said Lanier who was an all-American quarter back to E. J. Hayes High School. Miller, who led the Ayden High to three consecutive state championships enroute to a 40-0 record, lists the addition of 233 pound offensive guard, Ron Gryzbowski to the Tar Heels' veteran offensive line as one of the prime reasons for Carolina's 2-0 record.

Throughout his career at Carolina, the 6'1" southpaw has been plagued with injuries. Last year it was back problems which were corrected by off-season surgery. However an ankle sprain in last week's win over State has sidelined Miller temporarily. "As I planted my right foot somebody hit me and something popped and my ankle turned," he said.

In Carolina's opening victory against Kentucky Lanier did not play due to an ankle bruise suffered in a pre-season workout. However by the time the State game rolled around Ricky had reclaimed his starting spot and opened up at split end against the Wolfpack.

Though Lanier, who was named the Most Valuable Lineman in the Blue-White game last spring, has not been used a great deal as a pass receiver his blocking ability on tailback Don McCauley's sweeps (171 yards against State) has proven to be invaluable. "With our offense I'm a blocker first and a receiver second," he said. Lanier, who has 9.9 speed in the hundred, has had some thoughts about the violent world of professional football after completing his career at Carolina.

RICKY LANIER

Both Lanier and Miller view the Gamecocks of South Carolina as the major obstacle that stands between the Tar Heels and an Atlantic Coast Conference championship and a possible bowl invitation.

In last year's loss to USC the Tar Heels outgained the Gamecocks 336 yards to 235, but came out on the short end of the stick, 14-6.

Though both Miller and Lanier are quick to point out that they aren't overlooking anyone, they both realize that this year's rematch between the Tar Heels and the Gamecocks in Chapel Hill on Oct. 10 will go a long way in determining the 1970 ACC champion.

Miller, who is a double major in English and Political Science, and currently sports a 2.8 average out of a possible 4.0, has ambitions of law school after graduation. One of the most modest men on the Tar Heel squad, Paul singles out a couple of Ayden natives for the bulk of his gridiron success; Billy Stokes, an all-American in basketball and Tony Dail, who was all-East in three sports while playing at Ayden High. "They taught me not to get excited while playing in a ball game," said the likeable junior. Miller also singled out Stuart Tripp, the Ayden High School basketball coach, as a man who was a major influence on his athletic career.

While talking about Lanier, the Pitt County native had nothing but praise for his speedy receiver. "He really has improved over last year. He runs his patterns well and comes back to the huddle and tells me whether or not he can get open where some of the younger receivers are more hesitant. He's so relaxed and always laughing and joking. He never gets tense. He's such a smart football player, it's like having another quarterback on the field," said Miller.

Miller, in playing in two of the three games this season before his ankle injury, hit 11 of 18 passes, an amazing 61.1 per cent, for 190 yards and three touchdowns. He has had one attempt intercepted.

On the ground, Miller has run or been caught passing 21 times with a net gain of 13 yards.

Lanier has only one pass reception, that for 47 yards, but it went for a touchdown in the victory over Maryland.

Farmville, Northern Nash Battling In Contest Of Unbeatens; Rams Host Wayne

The Farmville Red Devils get their stiffest challenge to date Friday night, in a game that may go a long way towards deciding the Eastern Plains Conference title.

And Greene Central's improving Rams may be able to help out in that situation. Between the two games, the three unbeaten members of the conference are all involved.

Farmville carries the league lead into the game, a half-game ahead of Northern Nash, their opponent, and Southern Wayne, Greene Central's foe. By the time the dust settles on Friday night, one team could be on top all alone.

Both Farmville and Greene

Central came out on top in their games during the past weekend. Farmville rolled by Charles B. Aycock, 25-7, and the Rams downed Hobpton by an almost identical score, 25-6.

Elsewhere, Northern Nash handed North Lenoir its first loop loss, 33-6, and Southern Wayne rolled to a 47-0 victory over Southern Nash.

"We could have done better," Greene Central Coach Stewart Smith said. "We still don't have the killer instinct when we get the other team down."

Smith said that this has been true in the last two games, and against Aycock two weeks ago, it cost them a victory. "We've got to develop this attitude. We didn't take advantage of Hobbton's mistakes, turning only two of six into scores.

"I feel we contained them well and we controlled the game. Our penalties helped them, but we came out of the game in good condition."

This week, Southern Wayne will present problems to the Eastern Plains

Rams. "They are the toughest team we've played so far, but we are looking forward to it so we can see how far we've come. I think we are in good physical condition now, and this will help us to speed up our play."

Smith feels that the big problem for the Rams will be to contain Southern's two speedy halfbacks, Boyzelle Johnson and Charlie Marks. "They are among the finest running backs we'll see," Smith said. "And Southern Wayne, of course, is one of the top three teams in the league."

While that battle goes on outside of Snow Hill, Farmville will be visiting Northern Nash in the battle of the unbeaten.

"I thought we showed some improvement last week,"

Farmville's Gene Brewer said. "We played in spurts, however. We looked good offensively, then we would look good defensively, and then sometimes we stunk. But overall it was better than it was against Vanceboro."

Brewer feels that the Red Devils are still not at the point he would like them to be going into the Northern Nash game. "I don't think we are as strong as we need to be at this point. I don't know if the offense has improved enough to take them."

There are a couple of Red Devils who will be hobbled by injuries during practice this week, but Brewer feels everyone will be ready by Friday night. "They are going to be tough," he said of the Knights. "And it's going to be a real tough game. The team that controls the ball and makes the fewest mistakes will probably win it. And I guess it will come down to defense and who wants it the most."

The Red Devils will have to stop the run and pass option of Knight quarterback Sam Tayborn and the up-the-middle ability of fullback Orlando Cooper. "They have a lot of good," Brewer said, "but these two are the big ones." Brewer feels that the game is a key one in the conference race. "The winner will have a good chance to win it all, if injuries don't tear them up. But it's still hard to say about that, since Southern Wayne still hasn't lost. But a win will help anyway."

Besides the Southern Wayne-Greene Central and Farmville-Northern Nash games, other Eastern Plains games pit Southern Nash against Hobpton, and Aycock against North Lenoir.

Mississippi Gets Nod Over Alabama's Eleven

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Stanford, Notre Dame and Kansas State are the picks this week to get revenge for past indignities at the hands of Purdue, Michigan State and Colorado.

Elsewhere, Penn State should start a new winning streak while Alabama and Mississippi will try to repeat last year's national television thriller, which saw all sorts of records set as Alabama sneaked through 33-32.

Purdue at Stanford—Mike Phipps passed Purdue to 15 points in the last period a year ago, including a two-point conversion with three minutes left, and a 36-35 come-from-behind victory. The shoe should be on the other foot this time of Stanford can avoid looking ahead to Southern California, its next opponent Stanford.

Notre Dame at Michigan State—The Irish have traveled to East Lansing nine times since their last victory there in 1949. Eight times they came home losers and the other was that fabled 10-10 tie in 1966, which Notre Dame wants to forget but no one will let them. This is where it all ends, even though Duffy Daugherty is 10-4-1 against . . . Notre Dame.

Colorado at Kansas State—What can Colorado do for an encore after ending Penn State's long unbeaten streak? Would you believe a loss? The Wildcats, who have lost five in a row and 19 of 25 to Colorado, sat quarterback Lynn Dickey and his injured rib cage out of last week's loss to Arizona State but he's ready to go. Kansas State.

Penn State at Wisconsin—One week ago the Nittany Lions had an unbeaten string of 31 games and a winning streak of 23. Now it's 0 and 0. Prediction is 1 and 1 coming up. Penn State.

Alabama at Mississippi—If the Rebels aren't up for this game, they'll never be up. Besides last year's heart-breaker, Ole Miss has an all-time record of 3-22-2 against the Crimson Tide. Archie Manning of Ole Miss and 'Bama's Scott Hunter filled the air with football last year as 24 national, Southeastern Conference and team records were established. Manning completed 33 of 52 for 436 yards and his total offense of 540 yards was the second biggest in college football history. Hunter was 22 for 29 for 300 yards. It'll all be on ABC-TV (9:30 p.m., EDT) and the pick is . . . Mississippi.

Duke at Ohio State — Although Leo Hart is the nation's passing leader, Duke has found points hard to come by. On the other hand, Ohio State ripped off 415 yards on the ground and 56 points in walloping Texas A&M. Ohio State, it is.

UCLA at Texas—Can Dennis Dummit pass the Bruins to a fourth straight victory? No. Texas.

Oregon State at Southern California—The Trojans may be looking right through the Beavers to Stanford. They also may run right through them. Southern Cal.

Nebraska at Minnesota—The Cornhuskers start their Big Eight campaign a week from Saturday against Missouri. The Gophers should be tough, as Minnesota teams usually are, but not tough enough. Nebraska.

Texas A&M at Michigan—Ohio State brought the Aggies back to earth after their upset of Louisiana State and Michigan should bury them a little deeper.

Robersonville After Third Loop Win; Grifton Hosting Tornadoes

The Robersonville Rams play another Tobacco Belt Conference opponent Friday night, but the Grifton Bulldogs go outside the loop on Saturday night for a traditional rivalry.

The Rams are on the road, going to Elm City to meet the up-and-down Elm City eleven.

Grifton plays host to Ayden's

Tobacco Belt

Tornadoes in a game packed with enthusiasm.

Last week, Robersonville picked up a victory over Bath, 29-0, while Grifton was falling to Vanceboro, 24-6.

In other games in the conference, Saratoga remained on top with a 54-0 romp over Belhaven, while Chocowinity beat Elm City, 22-8, and Aurora rolled by Mattamuskeet, 44-0.

"We got beat physically," Grifton Coach Claude Kennedy said. "They were big and they did a right good job on us."

Kennedy said the Bulldogs experienced a couple of breakdowns in their defenses, and Vanceboro made scores out of them. "We had told our boys to be awake for the screen pass, and then Vanceboro used it and I think everybody in the ball park knew it was coming except for our 11 players. Then later, they used a reverse on fourth and six near the goal line, and we completely were fooled in the other direction and the runner scored unopposed."

Kennedy said Grifton had three opportunities to score, and moved the ball well. "If our defenses had held up like we thought they would and if we had scored those three times, it would have been a different game."

Grifton was hurt additionally by the lack of depth on the team. "They used 18 or 19 players in the game and 10 of our 11 on offense had to go on defense, too. We just got worn down."

Grifton also suffered the loss of lineman Mike Foss, who will probably miss this week's game. Mike Tyndall, the key running back for the Bulldogs is also injured and may not be ready.

"I'm sure Ayden will be one of our toughest games," Kennedy said. "They have some real good boys, especially Ken Cleaton (quarterback) and Debro Blount (fullback). They'll be thinking of the loss we gave them last year. Also it's the last game we'll play due to consolidation."

Kennedy said Grifton had a letdown in the Vanceboro game, mentally, and he hopes that the spirit will come back quickly for this one. "They're impressive," Kennedy said, "it'll take a good game to beat them."

Robersonville Coach Noland Respass feels his team showed improvement in its win over Bath. "We did a pretty good job," he said. "We still had too many penalties, but overall I was pretty well pleased."

Respass said the score also helped in building depth as he got a lot of the reserves into the game.

"Hal Knox had his second 100-yard plus game of the year, and Glenn Forbes played a fine game at quarterback. James Gaynor and Tim Roberson looked good on defense for us."

This week, the Rams take on

Elm City, and Respass expects a tough game. "They have been up-and-down, and it's hard to rate them. They have played well against some good teams. We expect them to be ready for us."

Respass feels that Robersonville can not afford to lose another game, however. "We've got to stay right up there if we want to have a chance at the title," he said.

Other games this week sent Saratoga to Chocowinity, Vanceboro to Belhaven, and Mattamuskeet to Bath.

The current Tobacco Belt standings:

Scoring Leaders Richards Out To Tell The Story Recapture Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What so far has been a rather sad season offensively for Southern Conference football teams is reflected by the fact that the scoring leaders after three games have scored just two touchdowns each.

Bob Duncan of The Citadel got both of his six-pointers in last Saturday night's 31-0 victory over East Carolina as the Bulldogs got on the scoreboard for the first time this season.

Tied with him for the lead with 12 points is Fullback Jerry Mauro of Richmond, who scored two touchdowns in the Spiders' season-opening 21-6 triumph over North Carolina State.

The next four top scorers in the conference are kicking specialists.

DON Cupit of Virginia Military Institute has 11 points on two conversion kicks and three field goals, while Keith Clark of Richmond has scored 10 points with four conversion kicks and a pair of field goals.

The only other players with more than six points are Jim Leber of The Citadel and Bill Geiger of William and Mary, each of whom has seven on four extra points and one field goal.

Emphasis was on defense Tuesday as conference teams underwent workouts for upcoming contests this weekend.

A rough and aggressive practice was held at The Citadel in preparation for Saturday's meeting with Arkansas State. Defensive halfback Bob Freeman took over starting duties to replace injured Bob Carson.

Furman's defensive units got in some rugged contact work at Greenville in the hopes of finding the right combination to stop Carson-Newman's wishbone attack Saturday in Jefferson City, Tenn.

Virginia Military worked out in sweat suits, concentrating on offensive passing and defensively adjusting to Boston College's running and passing offense.

Defense also was on the mind of Richmond assistant coach Jerry Foshee, who termed the Spiders' foe this weekend, Southern Mississippi, very strong both offensively and defensively. Given praise at the close of the workout was all-Southern tackle Bruce Kasarda, who made a number of key defensive plays in the game against Davidson last week.

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Richmond quarterback Charlie Richards is off and running—oops, passing—in his bid to lead Southern Conference football players for the second straight year in total offense.

Richards has accumulated 469 yards in the Spiders' first three games for a 156.3-yard average per encounter and a comfortable lead over Davidson quarterback players for the second straight year in total offense.

Richards has accumulated 469 yards in the Spiders' first three games for a 156.3-yard average per encounter and a comfortable lead over Davidson quarterback Mark Thompson, who picked up 109 yards in his only game so far.

The leading rusher is listed as Phil Mosser of William and Mary with 230 yards in three games for a 76.7-yard average. There was no immediate explanation for the absence in NCAA statistics of last year's year's rushing leader, Bob Duncan of The Citadel, who gained 199 yards last Saturday night.

Richards is the passing leader with 49 completions, 16.3 per game, in 104 attempts for 470 yards and two touchdowns. Jerry Haynes of Richmond is the leading receiver with 16 catches, 5.3 per game, for 140 yards.

The punting leader is David Cripe of William and Mary with a 39.7-yard average on 27 kicks.

The individual leaders:

Total Offense — Richards, Richmond, 469 yards, 156.3 yards per game; Thompson, Davidson, 109, 109.0; Casazza, East Carolina, 307, 102.3; Rosa, The Citadel, 259, 86.3; Meeter, William & Mary, 258, 86.0.

Rushing Offense — Mosser, William & Mary, 230 yards, 76.7 yards per game; Strayhorn, East Carolina, 191, 63.7; Chavis,

The Citadel, 143, 47.7; Hall, Richmond, 128, 42.7; Woodie, Richmond, 113, 37.7.

Passing Offense — Richards, Richmond, 49 completions in 104 attempts, 16.3 average per game, 470 yards; Casazza, East Carolina, 34-83, 11.3, 405; Thompson, Davidson, 8-15, 8.0, 86.

Pass Receiving — Haynes, Richmond, 16 catches, 5.3 per game, 140 yards; Livesay, Richmond, 15, 5.0, 163; Gordon, East Carolina, 14, 4.7, 159; Corrada, East Carolina, 13, 4.3, 106; Trotter, Furman, 11, 3.7, 106.

Punting — Cripe, William & Mary, 27 kicks, 39.7 average; Bailey, VMI, 28-37.5; Baldwin, Richmond, 10-35.9; Livesay, Richmond, 11-34.6; Hightower, Furman, 19-33.6.

Maddox Gets Ax

ATLANTA (AP) — Gov. Lester Maddox cannot block the heavyweight fight scheduled Oct. 26 between Muhammad Ali and Jerry Quarry, Georgia Atty. Gen. Arthur K. Bolton says.

Bolton ruled Tuesday that jurisdiction over the fight is left entirely to the city of Atlanta, where the proposed bout will be held, because the state has no law or laws pertaining to boxing matches.

Maddox asked Bolton last week to determine if he could take action to halt the fight. The governor said he feels the match would be "an affront" to veterans of the armed services in the state and added that he believes the bout should not be held until the deposed world heavyweight champion has said he is ready to serve in the military.

Ali, who prefers to use his Muslim name rather than Cassius Clay, was stripped of his title for refusing induction into the Army.

On the Sidelines
with Mike McGee
Head Football Coach - East Carolina University

In recent years it's gotten so the most familiar object at a football game, aside from the football, is the camera. Today no football coach — whether high school, college or pro — would think of going to a game without his cameraman. In fact, many coaches have been known to leave a second-team safety behind in order to squeeze in the cameraman on the chartered flight to an away game. For the game film is as much a part of modern football as blitzes and zone coverage and triple options and fly patterns.

At East Carolina University we use the camera in many ways.

Our game photographer, C. L. Perkins, can always be seen before any ECU game — home or away — lugging a couple hundreds pounds of equipment to the highest point in stadium — usually the top of the press box. There he will spend the game, recording each play on color film. When the final gun sounds, C. L. returns to earth with his cans of film. This film is a prized possession. Not even the game ball after a big victory is as valuable.

As soon as possible the film is taken to the WITN-TV studios in Washington for processing. Sometimes, like after a night game in Toledo or Canyon, Texas, "as soon as possible" turns out to be three o'clock in the morning. Ned Clark of the WITN-TV staff is the man who usually carries out this unsung task.

First stop for the finished film is the production studio at WITN-TV, where my weekly television show is taped at 9 a.m. Sunday for showing on Channel 7 that afternoon. I do this show with the station's sports director, Dick Jones. We review filmed highlights of the last game and talk about the next opponent. Some times these shows put a real strain on us — like last weekend when Dick, C. L. and I had to drive all the way back from Charleston, S. C., immediately after our night game with The Citadel in order to tape the show the next morning — just in time for Ned to process the film while we grabbed an hour's sleep before the show. However, these shows are the best exposure I know of for a college football program. They help our program in many ways — especially in recruiting — and are worth the inconvenience.

After the film has been edited for use on my show, it is taken to a photo shop in Wilson where a duplicate copy is made. This duplicate film is airmailed direct from Wilson to our next opponent. In turn, our next opponent mails us his film, all of this agreed upon when the contract for the game is drawn up. Sometimes, if there is no prior agreement, we have to contact the team our next opponent is playing the week before they meet us and have them make an extra copy of their film to send us: This was the case this week when we had Wichita State mail us film of their game with West Texas State — whom we play Saturday night in Canyon — since we had not signed an agreement to exchange game film with West Texas.

Sunday afternoon the film watching begins. While football fans all over the country are getting blurry-eyed watching pro football doubleheaders on TV, ECU coaches are spending hour after hour in the film room, viewing the film of the day before over and over and over. Sometimes we look at the same play a hundred times, looking for what our men are doing wrong. Finding out why this play didn't work for us — checking our defense to see who is doing the job and who isn't — and so on and on until 11 o'clock Sunday night.

Monday and Tuesday are other big film-watching days. Usually by Monday afternoon we have the film of next week's opponent and are scrutinizing it for every tendency our upcoming foe shows. What are their favorite plays? Which way — left or right — do they like to run which plays? What defenses do they go to the most? Which players execute best for them? What characteristics does their quarterback have? After the coaches have seen all the film, we show it to the players. These films don't feature Raquel Welch, but the players look at them just as closely.

In an average week, I'll spend 15 solid hours doing nothing but watching game film. And I haven't even mentioned the high school game films — we look at hundreds and hundreds of these for recruiting purposes. Nor have I mentioned the highlight films which we put together at the end of the season.

Like they say, a picture is worth a thousand words. And in college football, proper use of game film sometimes is worth a victory the next Saturday.

Fire Prevention Parade Scheduled Here Monday

Greenville's first Fire Prevention Parade will be staged here Monday, with some 45 units, including bands, new and old fire trucks and antique fire fighting equipment taking part.

The event is being sponsored by the Pitt County Firemen's Association.

Children (and adults too) who are thrilled by the sight of gleaming red fire engines will also have the opportunity to see Smokey the Bear and three Sparky the Fire Dog(s).

The parade is scheduled to begin at 4:30 p.m. and local residents will be reminded of the parade 30-minutes before the event is scheduled to begin by the testing of the large Civil Defense siren atop City Hall.

Highlighting the parade, according to Greenville Fire Chief Ray Smith and Pitt County Fire Marshal Michael Worthington, will be a number of pieces of fire fighting equipment including both new and old trucks and antiques including among other things a 1890 hose reel and an old hand pumper.

In addition to Smokey, sponsored in the parade by the North Carolina Forrest Service and the three Sparkys, the Rose High School and other bands are scheduled to participate as well as a number of clowns from the Greenville Moose Lodge. The parade is being staged in order to call attention to Fire Prevention Week, October 4-10, and trucks participating in the parade will carry placards with fire safety information.

Fire Prevention Week is held each year during the week of October 9. It was on that date when the great Chicago Fire occurred.

The parade will form at the intersection of Ninth Street and Dickinson Avenue and travel to Five Points, then down Evans Street to Third Street. From there the parade will go to Cotanch Street, then down Cotanche to Fifth Street then eastward to Reade Street.

The line of march will continue along Reade Street to the Town Commons where the fire and rescue units participating will be parked and on display to give spectators an opportunity to view them more closely.

Trucks from Greenville and various Pitt County fire departments as well as pumers and antiques from departments out-side of the county, will participate.

In addition to the parade, fire drills will be held in the city schools and most county schools during the week and talks will be made to various civic groups.

A Frame-Up To Convicts

GREENSBORO (AP) — Four convicts testified Tuesday that the former postmaster of Randleman, N. C., is being framed for the burglary of the post office there.

Mrs. Audrey Cashatt Lineberger, the postmaster at the time of the robbery last Oct. 30, is being tried on conspiracy charges in the robbery. A co-defendant, Vernon Kimbrough, has turned state's witness and has testified against Mrs. Lineberger in the U.S. District Court Trial.

The first convict to testify was Johnny Ray Smith, an inmate of the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta. He was once on the FBI's list of "10 Most Wanted" criminals.

Smith testified that Kimbrough told him he was "afraid he was going to be charged with the actual burglary and receive a mandatory 25-year sentence." Kimbrough pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of conspiracy and was sentenced to six years in prison.

Smith said Kimbrough stated that he "had to come up here and frame the postmistress to evade a 25-year mandatory sentence."

Three other convicts serving time in Atlanta with Kimbrough backed up Smith's story in their own testimony.

One of the convicts, Kenneth Robbins of Memphis, testified that Kimbrough offered $2,500 to each of the convicts if they would testify that he and Mrs. Lineberger had conspired to burglarize the post office.

Advise Knowing Agency's Policy

NEW YORK (UPI) —Before you book a tour, it's a good idea to find out what your travel agency's cancellation policy is, advises the Better Business Bureau.

The bureau reported that inquiries and complaints were being received from persons whose money had been forfeited after they had cancelled their tours. "Cancellation policies vary from agency to agency," said bureau president Woodrow Wirsig, who said customers should insist upon seeing the agency's policy in writing.

Foot Disorders Show Reactions

ENGLEWOOD, Col. (UPI) — Foot disorders can be contributing factors to mental illness in addition to endangering physical health, says a podiatrist.

Dr. C. A. Fritts said a study, based on private research and discussion among survey respondents, showed four typical reactions to foot trouble which can develop into reactive depressions. These were loss of pride, pain, poor posture and loss of locomotion.

GOVERNOR RESIGNED
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — In 1862, Beriah Magoffin resigned as governor of Kentucky because of his sympathies for the South in the Civil War. He was succeeded by James F. Robinson.

Statue Again Sees Trouble In Capitol

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1971 General Assembly may be asked to settle a new controversy over the roman-garbed statue of George Washington in the Rotunda of the state Capitol.

The statue, is a reproduction of one destroyed by fire when the old Capitol burned more than a century ago. Since it arrived several months ago it has rested on a foundation of wood while plans were made to mount it on a five-foot granite base.

Monday, engineers from the State Property Division drilled a hole in the Capitol's stone floor beneath the statue. To their surprise they found that the 5½-inch stone blocks rested on a dirt fill.

"If we put this thing in without a foundation," said property control officer Carroll Mann, "the dirt will settle, the floor will crack and we'll have a Leaning Tower of Pisa on our hands."

The stones would not hold the 22,500-pound statue and base, Mann said.

He proposed cutting a 60-by-40-inch hole in the stone floor and excavating the dirt in it to solid ground. Then a concrete foundation would be poured level with the floor and the base mounted on the concrete.

But Gov. Bob Scott did not like the idea of slicing through the stones on the Capitol floor.

Mann conferred Tuesday with C. T. West, Scott's press secretary. West questioned whether the General Assembly had agreed to alteration of the Capitol building when it approved placing the statue in the Rotunda.

West also pointed out that Scott plans to ask the General Assembly for funds to restore the Capitol to its original grandeur. He wondered if the General Assembly would go along with this proposal if the Rotunda floor were altered.

"Once we dig that hole, it's dug," West told Mann. "The statue has waited since 1833 to get here and it's been sitting on wood for three months. The General Assembly meets in three months. What's it going to hurt to wait that much longer for a decision on this?"

The Worry Clinic Odds Against 'Other Woman'

Marcia is devastated by the fact her husband had declared a revolution. And she wants to know how to revive his dying love. Wives, the odds favor you if you will just play your cards more seductively.

The paramour wins your mates by "cheesecake" in the boudoir; not by roast beef in the dining room! Get help!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE 0-545: Marcia B., aged 42, is the wife whose husband told her he was going to "live it up" and go his own way in so doing.

"Dr. Crane," she wailed, "what can I do to revive his interest in me?"

"For I love him with all my heart."

"And our grown children would be shocked to learn that he had turned to an outside paramour."

"If a man's love has turned to ashes, can his wife ever revive it?"

Yes, you wives can avoid divorce, plus the heartache of staying at home, wondering if your husband is philandering elsewhere.

But it requires these rigorous steps:

(1) Don't nag or scold or berate the "other woman." Never mention her! But vividly realize her threat and fight fire with fire!

(2) Which means outbid her seductive allure.

This may demand that you shed 20 to 40 pounds of ugly blubber that has transformed you into a "motherly" instead of your former "sweetheartish" role.

Wives, beware! When your waistline equals or exceeds your bustline, you evoke only the dutiful respect according a good old motherly soul.

But men past 40, who are already worried about impotence, are not liking for "motherly souls" but for exciting sirens!

Even young, vigorous males are seldom stimulated to make a sexual assault upon a fat girl!

So how do you expect your middle-aged hubby to be excited by your elephantine torso?

You must slenderize if you wish your husband to romanticize about you.

(3) Adopt a new perfume to create a different "aura" and thus get away from the stodgy "motherly soul" stereotype that you may have developed over the past 20 years.

And if one brand of perfume doesn't perk him up, shift to another.

Be an experimental psychologist and keep "testing minded," till you find that special scent to which he may be subconsciously attuned from possible early childhood

For perfume and lace and soft fabrics are fetishes that the usual make develops in childhood regarding attraction femininity.

(4) If you have vulgarized the "image" that your mate has subconsciously cherished regarding seductive women, then start a quick rebuilding program.

Which means, cut out your cigarettes, which often kill a man's ardor and stop his kisses, because of the stale tobacco halitosis that you may exude.

And quit your swilling of hard liquor, plus your telling of vulgar stories, and other masculine imitations, such as male clothes and haircuts.

(5) Wax more seductively aggressive in your boudoir.

Remember, the usual wife loses her mate after the age of 40 because she still retains her early feminine reserve and passivity.

But after 40, you wives need to take a more active role in the boudoir, remembering that there is no "Emily Post" to prescribe your behavior.

Results are what you seek if you wish to beat your rival and avoid divorce, so be sure you defeat the paramour at her own game.

And she wins her conquests by boudoir "cheesecake," not roast beef!

So send for my booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. That will give you a fast start!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Friend Tells Nasser Attitudes

Editor's Note: Miles Copeland, former U.S. diplomat and author of "The Game of Nations," had been a close friend of the late Gamal Abdel Nasser since 1953, when Copeland first served as a consultant to the Egyptian government. He still visits Egypt every two months and held day-long talks with the Egyptian president in April. In this article Copeland describes some of Nasser's attitudes toward Israel, the United States and the Arab world.

By MILES COPELAND

Written for
The Associated Press
LONDON (AP) — "Israel is a country of two million people," the late President Nasser told me recently, "and we are a country of 30 million."

"For Israel to be able to fly its airplanes over Cairo any time it wants is as humiliating to me as it would be to you if the Cubans were able to fly over Washington and your armed forces were powerless to stop them."

Humiliation. This was the feeling which was particularly painful to Nasser, and up to the day of his death it was the one most on his mind.

Next to frustration, that is.

In September 1969, Israeli raiders struck deep into Egyptian territory and for an encore kidnapped a radar base. A group of senior Egyptian army officers reacted by partly curbing Nasser's power, at least to the extent of inducing him to cancel a number of dismissals, and to agree in the future to accept their "advice" on promotions, assignments and transfers.

At the same time Nasser suffered a heart attack then described as a severe case of influenza. His doctors advised him that his life expectancy would be short unless he agreed to cut down his working day from the usual 14 hours to a reasonable four or five.

Since then Nasser had been trying to operate in a sort of chairman of the board capacity. To one whose style was tactics rather than strategy, the experience must have been terribly frustrating.

One of his closest subordinates told me a month ago, "The boss feels very uncomfortable in delegating to us, and he's right."

By the time of the peace initiative by U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, it appeared that Nasser had simply begun to let things slide.

The world will never know how Nasser really felt about the Rogers initiative, or the possibility of peace with Israel.

To begin with, back in 1953-54, he needed Israel. With no strong feelings about Israel itself, he needed Israel as a common enemy against which to unite the Arabs.

If he could comfortably play the Americans and the Russians off against one another as merely the spokesmen for Egypt, how much more effective he would be as a spokesman for the whole Arab world.

Later, after two humiliating defeats, he developed a genuine feeling of hostility toward Israel. But then he saw the two most loudly anti-Israel countries, Syria and Iraq, virtually make peace with Israel. They made it clear by their actions that they had no intention of fighting Israel and were more interested in squabbling with each other.

Meanwhile, they accused Egypt, which had been doing all the fighting, of pacifist inclinations.

Finally, Nasser saw various Palestinian organizations behaving so self-destructively that he began to suspect that some of them were being backed by the Israelis.

Some of Nasser's lieutenants seemed to be genuinely convinced that the Israelis were behind the recent airliner hijackings. To them the argument was not without a certain crazy logic since the Israelis were the only beneficiaries of the hostile world reaction to the terrorists.

We cannot know how Nasser really felt about all this, but given his ambition to go down as a great historical figure, it is easy to guess.

What did Nasser want? First, like any good politician, he wanted to stay in power.

Second, he wanted to use his power for the benefit of Egypt — Egypt primarily, and then the so-called Arab world. He wanted to go down in history as one who had truly benefited his country.

As Nasser understood his economic situation in the 1950s, he saw that without massive aid, which could only come from the United States, he couldn't possibly achieve a growth rate to keep up with his country's birth rate, one of the highest in the world.

"With all the help in sight," he once told me, "and with all our best plans coming out perfectly, all I can hope for is to keep Egypt from slipping backwards." This was when, according to American economic experts, Egypt needed some $1 billion a year in hard currency, and the U.S. State Department was offering Nasser $40 million.

"If Nasser would only stick to Set Inquiry In Housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Banking Committee has ordered an investigation into charges that federal programs to subsidize low-cost housing are full of shoddy work and that some real estate men are making a killing thanks to the government.

The committee voted 34-0 Tuesday for the investigation. It will continue a staff study made two months ago, centering mainly on conditions in Washington and Philadelphia.

Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said that since the staff report was made, "the committee has received letters, telephone calls and telegrams from community organizations, individuals, lawyers, appraisers and real estate dealers citing the need for a thorough investigation of FHA programs from Tacoma, Wash., to Asheville, N.C."

The staff had reported instances where houses were sold under federal aid programs for 40 to 150 per cent more than the sellers had paid only a few months before.

The report also detailed cases in which houses allegedly were approved for sale despite numerous code violations, including peeling plaster, faulty wiring and plumbing, rotted beams and condemned furnaces.

Egypt and leave the rest of the Arab world alone," former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles used to say, "we would give him all the aid he wants."

But Nasser was programmed to observe U.S. actions, not words. The United States was then giving him aid and showing him deference to the extent to which he was influential throughout the Arab world and manifested a capability of making a nuisance of himself. When his behavior was not to our liking, we rewarded him. When he did as we wished, we forgot him.

"It seems to me," a senior associate told Dulles, "we should give Nasser credit for being at least as intelligent as Pavlov's dog."

And he was. Nasser began to hint that he might turn to the Soviets, and we raised our offer to $100 million. Then, being somewhat smarter than Pavlov's dog, he began to sharpen his hints and actually to take some Soviet aid.

The rest is history. Everyone knows how Secretary Dulles withdrew his offer of aid for the Aswan Dam and how Nasser immediately got what he needed from the Russians. What is not generally known is that once the U.S. government observed Nasser's new chumminess with the Soviets, it jumped right into the competition and began to offer greater amounts of aid than ever before.

Lebanese President Camille Chamoun was quick to spot the lesson. "Our difficulty in getting aid from the United States," he once told me, "is that we aren't very good at being anti-American. Perhaps I can get President Nasser to show me how," he said facetiously.

Chamoun knew, as any of Nasser's closest friends knew, that the Egyptian leader was never seriously anti-American, not anyhow until the U.S. government dropped out of the competition and became unreservedly pro-Israel.

The bidding:

East South West North
Pass 1♥ Pass 1♠
Pass 2♣ Pass 3♥
Pass 4♦ Pass 5♦
Pass 6♥ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠

An aggressive and yet well conceived sequence of bids landed North and South in the only slam contract that had a chance — six hearts — despite the fact that the partnership held only seven trumps between them.

South chose to treat his long suits as equals and open in the higher ranking suit to facilitate his rebid. Observe that if he bids one club and North responds with one spade, South is not quite strong enough to bid two hearts which is a reverse and promises 19 points.

When North did in fact bid one spade, South showed his clubs. When North made a strength showing call by giving a jump preference to three hearts, which is forcing to game, South reasoned that the hands fit well and he made a slam try by cue bidding the ace of diamonds. His partner cooperated by raising diamonds to designate the king and South decided to gamble out a slam on the chance that he could establish either the dummy's suit or his own.

West opened the six of spades and the ace was played from dummy. Declarer considered the prospects for establishing one of his side suits, and concluded that he lacked the entries to develop the clubs and that the odds did not favor working on the spades. He presently observed that if he could cash out his five winners, seven more tricks would be available on a straight cross ruff.

Three rounds of diamonds were played to which both opponents obligingly followed suit. A club was led to the ace and South proceeded to trump three clubs in dummy, reentering his hand on each occasion by ruffing a spade. The ace of hearts took the 12th trick.

West could have frustrated the declarer by opening a heart originally, thereby limiting South to six tricks in the trump suit. His best chance to succeed with this defense is to work on North's spades. If the suit divides favorably, declarer can withstand a four-two division in trumps. After the spades are established, he draws three rounds of hearts and then leads good spades until one of the defenders ruffs in with the long trump. South has the rest.

With neither major suit responding favorably, however, declarer cannot manage to play and ultimately loses control of the hand.
