Second Meeting With Franco

Spaniards Give Nixons Big Reception

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

MADRID (AP) — Spaniards gave President Nixon an enthusiastic welcome today as he arrived in Franco's Spain after making the first visit by a U.S. president to Communist Yugoslavia.

Spanish radio sources estimated the size of the crowd along the motorcade route from the airport into and through the city to number about a million. A hundred mounted horsemen screened Nixon from the crowds during the first part of the drive but a motorcycle escort replaced them about halfway and the crowd's response doubled.

Spanish national radio described the reception as "the most enthusiastic."

Spain's leader, Gen. Francisco Franco, arrived at Madrid's Barajas Airport minutes before Nixon's plane landed. Wearing the uniform of a general in the Spanish army, Franco waited at the bottom of the ladder as the President and Mrs. Nixon got off the plane.

The two chiefs of state shook hands warmly. Franco's wife, Dona Carmen Polo, gave Nixon's wife, Pat, a bouquet of flowers decorated with the Spanish flag.

It was the second time Nixon and Franco had met. They first met in Barcelona in 1963 when the U.S. chief executive visited Spain as a private citizen.

In Belgrade three hours earlier, President Tito, Mrs. Tito and top Yugoslavian officials had accompanied the Nixons and their party to the airport and had waved goodbye as the presidential jet, Air Force One, took off into an overcast sky.

The President's airliner touched down in Madrid shortly after noon.

Nixon told Franco he was "greatly honored to be the first President to visit Spain" since President Dwight D. Eisenhower's stop here in 1959.

After the ceremonies at the airport, which were colorful and warm, the two chiefs of state drove off to Madrid in a closed limousine flanked by motorcycle outriders.

Nixon's route took him past the Plaza of Eisenhower named after the late president's visit.

Nixon's six-minute speech laid emphasis on military cooperation between the two countries but also stressed social and economic relations.

His and Franco's remarks on the new agreement on U.S. bases in Spain underlined the determination of both governments to carry them out by executive agreement despite U.S. Senate opposition and mild criticism of the pacts in Spain.

Before the President's visit, Communist leaflets called for demonstrations against Nixon.

Nixon entered Madrid under the tightest security in the city's history.

More than 10,000 policemen — in uniform and in plain clothes — lined the streets and the roofs along the route of the 13-mile motorcade. Infantry troops also guarded the route.

Police were busy 24 hours before Nixon's arrival covering up slogans denouncing the President, the United States and the bases agreement that popped in the capital's suburbs.

Recognition For But One

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jordan's new government said Thursday it would recognize only one Palestinian guerrilla organization, Al Fatah, headed by Yasir Arafat. Arab truce teams persuaded guerrillas and army troops to stop shooting at each other in Palestinian strongholds in northern Jordan.

Maj. Adnan Abu Odeh, Jordan's information minister, said the move to recognize only Al Fatah was not a measure against the Palestinians. "We are against chaos and disorder," he said. "I tell you, the struggle in Jordan has been between the government and the Marxists."

Odeh suggested that members of other guerrilla groups join Al Fatah. The Jordanian government has offered a $14,000 reward for the capture of Dr. George Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a pro-Peking guerrilla group responsible for the recent spate of airline hijackings to the Middle East.

In Beirut, Lebanon, an Al Fatah spokesman said Amman government forces and guerrillas were persuaded to lay down their weapons at Ramtha, a Jordanian border town on the Damascus-Amman highway, the commandos' principal supply route from Syria.

The guerrilla spokesman said Ramtha and nearby Irbid, Jordan's second largest city, were quiet after reports of shelling by Jordanian troops earlier in the day.

Jordan's King Hussein said the truce that ended his country's civil war was largely the work of Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser who died Monday of a heart attack.

A correspondent for the Parisian newspaper Figaro, Jean-Francois Chauvel, wrote that Hussein said Nasser "threw all his weight into the balance" in negotiations for the cease-fire and "it was thanks to him" that it succeeded.

Before the agreement was signed in Cairo, Hussein and Nasser had exchanged a series of bitterly worded messages over charges that the Jordanian army was trying to liquidate the Palestinian movement.

More than a thousand tons of food and many more tons of blankets have arrived in Jordan from Israel under the auspices of the Red Cross.

The supplies for the victims of the civil war came mainly from such organizations as the United Nations Relief Works Agency, CARE and the Catholic Relief Organization.

Charge Parents

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Four sets of parents in Forsyth County were charged Thursday with failure to comply with North Carolina's compulsory school attendance law.

They are apparently all that are left of 31 parents who had said they would keep their children out of school this fall to protest crossbusing.

Six of the parents face one count of violating the law. Two of the parents are charged with two counts each.

Violation of the law is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $25 to 30 days in jail.

The leader of the protesting parents, the Rev. David R. Jones, is among those charged.

Tobacco Market Generally Steady

The market for Eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco was generally steady Thursday as the sixth week of auctions ended in this area.

Variations in grade averages from the preceding day amounted to mainly $1 per hundred and established no trend, reports the Federal-State Market News Service. Tied offerings sold for a top price of $177 per hundred pounds Thursday. This was for choice wrappers. No significant change has been noticed in quality of marketings during the last three days. Volume of sales remained heavy.

The Greenville market averaged $71.64 per hundred pounds Thursday when 1,431,584 pounds of leaf was sold for $1,025,579.

The average for the Farmville market yesterday was $73.84 per hundred pounds. That market sold 509,783 pounds of tobacco for $376,428.

Sharp Rise In Unemployment

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment climbed sharply in September to 5.5 per cent of the nation's work force and millions of employed workers brought home smaller paychecks because of shorter working hours, the Labor Department reported today.

The national jobless rate, up from 5.1 per cent in August, was the highest in nearly seven years, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The number of unemployed rose some 75,000 to 4.3 million, but the bureau said on a seasonal basis the increase amounted to 375,000 because unemployment normally drops substantially in September.

Total employment in September was 78.2 million, down from August but figured as about unchanged on a seasonal basis.

The report said that the average pay of some 45 million rank and file workers rose three cents an hour to $3.28.

But because of a drop in the work week, average weekly pay declined 84 cents to $121.36, the bureau said.

However, manufacturing paychecks of some 20 million workers rose $2.04 weekly to a record $136.17, the report said.

It added that total manufacturing jobs were unchanged after five straight monthly drops.

The report said most of the rise in unemployment was among young people aged 16 to 24 and that the big jump may have resulted because of an early survey week. Many young people in that week may not have stopped actively seeking jobs to return to school, the bureau said.

The unemployment total included 1,562,000 men, 1,598,000 women and 1,131,000 teenagers.

The jobless rate for men aged 20 to 24 shot up from 8.5 to 11 per cent, highest in nine years. Unemployment rates increased for both white and Negro workers, up from 4.8 to 5.1 per cent for whites and from 8.4 to 9 per cent for Negroes, the report said.

The jobless rate for men rose from 3.7 to 4 per cent. The rate for women went up from 4.8 to 5.1 per cent and the rate for teenagers increased from 15.9 to 16.8 per cent.

Prayers For Nasser In Egypt's 20,000 Mosques

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Prayers for the repose of the soul of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser were said in 20,000 mosques all over Egypt today, the Moslem holy day and the day after Nasser's tumultuous funeral.

Islamic priests gave their sermons on the greatness of Nasser, who died Monday of a heart attack, leaving the Arab world without its chief unifying force.

A quiet fell today in Cairo, where an estimated three million persons packed the streets in hysterical crowds to see the funeral cortege Thursday.

Trees snapped by the crush of mobs and climbers hoping for a view of Nasser's passing coffin lay on the sidewalks.

Egyptians walked in large numbers to their local mosques for services.

In the early hours today, only a small honor guard watched over Nasser's mausoleum in the gardens of Nasser Mosque in Cairo's suburbs. However, as the sun rose, Egyptians began gathering around the mosque.

Speculation in Beirut, meanwhile, was that Nasser's political heirs would set up a presidency council to rule in place of acting President Anwar Sadat. Designed to head off a divisive power struggle, the council would include Sadat; Ali Sabry, secretary general of the Arab Socialist Union; Hussein Shafi, a conspirator with Nasser in the 1952 overthrow of King Farouk, and Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, the army's commander-in-chief and war minister.

In London, the Daily Telegraph reported under a Cairo dateline that the army had taken control of Egypt under orders from Nasser's successors.

The newspaper said police have rounded up large numbers of anti-Nasser extremists in a wave of arrests.

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev praised Nasser as a "great patriot ... and a wise government leader."

Brezhnev promised the Arab world continued "complete support" from the Soviet Union.

Brezhnev, in a nationwide television speech from Baku on the Caspian Sea, said he was sure the new Egyptian leadership would "carry on with honor the cause of the late president."

The Viet Cong's clandestine Liberation Radio said Viet Cong flags were flying at half staff in Nasser's honor.

An Egyptian government spokesman denied reports that Sadat and Sabry had suffered heart attacks during the funeral.

Key Cambodian Highway Links Reported Cut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Commandos have destroyed part of the main highway between Phnom Penh and Saigon in what looks like a coordinated North Vietnamese and Viet Cong campaign to sever the major land routes in Cambodia.

The military command said in a communique that only two of Cambodia's eight major roads were fully open today. They were Highway 7, between Phnom Penh and the provincial capital of Kompong Cham 47 miles to the northeast, and Highway 5, from the capital to the western and northwestern sections of Cambodia.

Highway 4, between Phnom Penh and the country's only deep-water port at Kompong Som, was under the most active pressure. The military command said the road was technically open to civilian traffic wanting to take the risk but that all military traffic had been halted.

A spokesman said enemy troops attacked a government outpost on the highway for six hours before dawn today. The attack, 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, wounded 10 Cambodian troops, the spokesman said. He reported that three enemy bodies were found after the battle at Sre Klong.

The spokesman said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are now concentrating their attacks on Cambodia's highway lifelines. The nation has such a small air force that roads are the only way to supply most of its troops.

A spokesman said a mine detonated near the South Vietnamese border closed Route 1, the main road to Saigon, but that Cambodian engineers hoped to have the route reopened later today.

No casualties were reported in the fighting Thursday along the Mekong River within sight of Phnom Penh involving South Vietnamese naval craft and Cambodian and Vietnamese planes.

The South Vietnamese boats drew fire from enemy positions on the east bank about eight miles southwest of the capital and returned the fire. Phnom Penh's river road was jammed with spectators watching the action.

Recover Most Of $100,000 Stolen From Home

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Police say a textile worker charged with stealing $100,000 from a home in the mountains led them during Thursday night to an abandoned old house where he had stashed $63,750.

The money, placed in plastic bags and stuffed in cardboard boxes, was recovered from a back room of the four-room house on a dirt street of Lowell, a small town near Belmont where the accused man lives.

The man, James Harland Kirkland, 23, is free on $12,500 bond pending a hearing Oct. 20 in Jackson County on charges of grand larceny and second-degree burglary.

The $100,000 was reported stolen Sept. 12 by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Arnold of Cherokee, a small mountain town in Jackson County, about 175 miles west of Belmont. Kirkland is a native of the Cherokee area.

The Arnolds, who are engaged in several tourist-oriented business enterprises, said the money was taken from their home while they were away.

Police said they recovered $32,136 in a suitcase when Kirkland was arrested Tuesday at Gastonia, near Belmont, after someone told police he was flashing big amounts of money.

Detective Sgt. Charles Flowers of Belmont said Kirkland told officers he threw away, spent and gave away some of the money because he did not know what to do with such a large amount. Flowers quoted Kirkland as saying he expected to find about $150 in the house.

Flowers said that after Kirkland was released on bond he led officers to a bridge where he said he threw at least two bundles of currency in the Tuckaseegee River in Jackson County. The officer added there was probably about $1,000 in each bundle.

Altogether, the police have now recovered $95,760. Flowers said Kirkland spent about $5,000 since the robbery and this, the money recovered and that thrown in the river probably represents the entire haul from the robbery.

Flowers said the items Kirkland bought included five horses because he loves animals, a tractor, western attire, an automatic shotgun, baby clothes and a crib for a friend and a pickup truck on which he made only a down payment to avoid suspicion. The horses and the tractor were taken to a relative's farm in Iredell County, Flowers said.

Flowers and Sgt. Dewey Duncan of the Belmont Police Department sealed the $63,570 in a box, put it in the trunk of a car and drove it to Sylva, the Jackson County seat. Kirkland, father of two daughters, remained in the home of a relative in Belmont.

The detective said Kirkland was vague about the exact location of the money even after he and police arrived at the abandoned house.

"I believe he told us where it was as soon as he remembered," Flowers said. "He had been a lot of places after the robbery and it was all jumbled in his mind."

Manson, Co-Defendants Barred From Courtroom

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson and his three women co-defendants have been banished from the courtroom for taunting the judge in the Sharon Tate murder trial.

The trial was ordered reconvened today with the four listening to proceedings over a loud-speaker in an adjoining room.

Their outburst came late in an already lively court session Thursday in which the chief prosecutor, Vincent T. Bugliosi, was found in contempt of court for shouting at Manson's attorney. He was fined $50.

Suddenly, Manson shifted in his seat at the counsel table and broke into a chorus of "The Old Gray Mare Ain't What She Used To Be."

The hippie-type clan leader then told Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older: "Judge, you're a woman," and repeated it several times. Ordered to be silent, Manson replied, "You've ordered me to stop living." He recited several old complaints—no enough pencils in jail, missing mail, not enough time with his attorney. The judge then ordered him out of court.

Attorneys had a conference with the judge in his chambers and Manson was readmitted.

Facing spectators and newsmen, Manson loudly proclaimed, "I'd like everyone to know I am not represented in this trial. I do not have any attorney. I am not allowed to speak for myself."

At that, the three long-haired brunettes beside him began a sing-song chanting: "The judge is a woman, the judge is a woman ... The judge is a joke."

Older ordered all defendants removed. The three girls laughed and shouted taunts as they were led out. One cried: "Your wife's in the front row telling you what to do."

Attorneys said later Manson was upset because during a recess the judge ruled that all visitors except his attorney would be barred from conferring with him in a detention area near the courtroom. The attorneys said the judge acted because of prosecution complaints that Manson slipped a note to a reporter, commenting on the contempt action against Bugliosi.

Later, a reporter for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner said he received the note which said in part:

"All the good guys wear white hats and ride white horses, live in big white houses. But today one of the good guys lost his head. The judge only fined him $50. If I were the judge and he lost his head, I wouldn't give it back to him. Each of us must live with ourselves. Where is your head? Everyone has lost their heads over this trial but me."

Pitt County's more than 500 4-H members are observing National 4-H week this week, along with more than 8,000 North Carolina 4-H'ers and nearly four million others throughout the nation.

According to Phyllis L. Wooten and Hency C. Riddick, Pitt County extension agents, the local 4-H'ers will be participating in activities all week in an effort to inform the public and prospective 4-H members about the 4-H program. Local members will also make an attempt to recruit more members, recognize the support of parents and honor 4-H friends.

"We Care" is the theme for 4-H Week.

"Opportunities in 4-H and the opportunity to join 4-H are greater now than ever before," Mrs. Wooten said. "Young people between the ages of nine and 19 qualify for membership whether they live on farms, in towns, cities or suburbs."

Students of all cultural and economic backgrounds are welcome to join the 4-H Club, Mrs. Wooten emphasized. The Pitt County 4-H Council, with help from local 4-H officers, adult volunteer leaders and the county extension service staff, is heading the special week-long observance.

"To help call attention to their achievements during the past year and point out what 4-H offers Pitt County youth, local 4-H'ers have arranged window displays and exhibits and will participate in 4-H Sunday services at several local churches," Mrs. Wooten noted.

Mrs. Wooten continued, "In the modern 4-H program the major part of the 4-H story is project work." "Members choose from some 100 projects dealing with everyday learning experiences that fit them and the places they live," Mrs. Wooten said. "Pitt County boys and girls were enrolled in 700 educational learn-by-doing farm, home, personal development, and community projects last year," the extension agent reported.

A total of nine county project champions were named this year. Larry Bowling of Rt. 2, Robersonville, was named state winner and will represent North Carolina along with other state champions at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Ill.

"However, projects aren't the whole story in 4-H," Mrs. Wooten explained. "Pitt County 4-H'ers have fun, go camping, take special trips, attend dinners, banquets and rallies; participate in area and state fairs, earn awards, including scholarships; enroll in leadership and citizenship programs; and discover new and interesting ways to enjoy life while living it."

Anyone interested in joining the 4-H Club may contact Mrs. Wooten at her office, 203 W. Third St., Greenville, or telephone 758-1196.

Mrs. Nixon Is Thrilled By Yugoslav Multitude

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — America's first lady has left Yugoslavia today, taking along the memory of the thousands of people who turned out to greet her and President Nixon in Zagreb.

"Weren't those people something out there in the rain?" Pat Nixon asked of the crowd that packed the streets of Zagreb, 250 miles from Belgrade. "Bless their hearts," she added.

Hatless and wearing a bright pink raincoat, Mrs. Nixon started the day Thursday with morning coffee for 25 Yugoslav and American newspaperwomen and ended at a glamorous farewell American state dinner for Yugoslav President Tito and his wife.

The fast-paced presidential tour moved on to Madrid, Spain, today for more rounds of entertainment and political talks.

The Nixons, both seasoned world travelers, put their stamp of approval on Yugoslav tourism after a visit to Tito's birthplace—a peasant cottage in Kumrovec, in picturesque hilly countryside 30 miles from Zagreb.

Nixon said he got "the feel of history" driving past the green pastures with peasants tending their cattle and he was glad rain forced him to abandon helicopters and make the trip by car. "You don't get the feel of the countryside from the air," he said. "I recommend it to tourists," the President said.

Tito told him anti-Nazi partisans hid out in the area during World War II.

During the lingering tour of Tito's small tile-roofed wood and stone home, filled with mementoes of his partisan fighting years, Mrs. Nixon told Mrs. Tito:

"It's nice to have a (historic) place before you die. Usually they have these places done up afterwards."

At her coffee hour with Yugoslav newsmen in an elegant blue and white salon of the Old Palace, Mrs. Nixon said she felt Yugoslav women were "strong, vibrant looking people. They have a lot of energy and enthusiasm. I noticed they were chic, really well dressed."

Asked if she thought women make history, Mrs. Nixon laughingly said, "I think men make history. I don't want to be responsible for history."

Though women have influence, she said, "when the final decision is made I think the men are all in there talking together."

She doesn't really think it should be that way, though, the President's wife said. She said more women should run for Congress. "I think they have an influence for good."

Mrs. Nixon's schedule included a visit to a big modern recreation center for Yugoslav youngsters, where she was applauded by a crowd of about 2,000 and looked in on classes in a variety of subjects from photography to ballet.

Opines Interest Rates To Drop

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy says he expects interest rates to continue to decline after the Nov. 3 general elections, but that unemployment will remain above 5 per cent.

Kennedy would not predict where interest rates might level off, saying, "The answer is rather difficult. It will take time, and there is heavy demand for capital."

There will be no "quick or sharp drops," he added. Unemployment will remain "in the 5 per cent plus range" for some time, the Treasury secretary told a news conference Thursday.

Is Raising Kids A Thankless Job?

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We are in the process of raising four children, and have asked ourselves a thousand times, "Why are we doing it?" The only conclusion we can come to is that we didn't know any better than to have had them in the first place, and obviously we had rocks in our heads for ever thinking we wanted to be parents.

It's the most thankless job in the world. If every young couple would stop and ask themselves why they want children, and answer the question honestly, 9 out of 10 wouldn't have any.

After being a mother for more than 19 years, I honestly can't think of one good reason anyone would choose to be a mother.

DEAR MOTHER: If the truth were known [and there is no way of getting an honest count], the number of children who were really "wanted" would probably be shockingly low. Many young couples want "a baby" without considering the headaches of rearing a child. You say, "Parenthood is the most thankless job in the world," as though a child should "thank" his parents for having had him. Children do not ask to be born, and they don't owe anyone [mother included] "thanks."

Parents become parents [or should] because they want children, but they should first seriously consider the responsibilities that go with parenthood. In answer to your question: YOU are raising four children because you had them.

DEAR ABBY: This problem concerns my bachelor brother, age 24. He is in the Navy. Last year he lived with a married woman [I'll call her Mary] for a while. Mary was separated from her husband. Shortly thereafter, Mary wrote and told my brother she was pregnant, and was divorcing her husband. Mary then telephoned my parents to inform them of the situation. Naturally they were upset.

Mary had the baby and my brother went to visit her to see if the baby resembled him as he wasn't sure the baby was his.

He came home and said the baby looked like him but he didn't want to marry Mary. [He found out that she had had a child out of wedlock before her marriage and had given it away.]

My brother asked my parents if they would take Mary's newborn baby rather than have it given away to strangers. They flatly refused saying they wouldn't be around forever.

My question: What legal obligations does my brother have to Mary and her new baby—if any? Please don't mention real names or cities.

BROTHER'S KEEPER, 1970

DEAR KEEPER: Your brother needs a "keeper," but he needs a good lawyer even more. Even though the baby "looks" like him, it may not be his. And if Mary was still legally married at the time of the baby's birth, the baby is legally her husband's, not your brother's. A man who is in the mess your brother is in needs a good attorney to advise him of his "rights" as well as obligations. And if he ever gets out of this one he should never go ashore without the chaplain.

DEAR READERS: I am continually receiving letters from readers who ask, "How can you give advice to parents on rearing children when you are an old maid yourself?" Or, "The lady next door told me that the picture you use with your column was taken around World War I." Others have asked, "Are you married? Have you ever been divorced? Do you have any children?"

I have on numerous occasions answered these questions in my column, but for those who apparently still do not know, I offer my vital statistics:

Abigail Van Buren is the pen name of my own choosing. I was born on the 4th of July in 1918. I am married to the same man I married in 1939. We have two grown offspring—a boy for you and a girl for me. The picture that appears with my column is a new one. [It's a passport picture.] I've never had plastic surgery, but I'm not saying I never will.

I stand five feet nothing and weigh 108 pounds and was raised on Iowa corn. [No remarks, please.]

Any more questions? SINCERELY, ABBY

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hats And Caps Coordinate For Fall

BACK TO SCHOOL — The keynote of the newest looks in back to school outfits is a strong re-statement of "be yourself." The feeling definitely will be sporty, with boots, pants and midi skirts in the forefront, and something else — a hat for every outfit. To the left, the reptile fabric is a favorite in an outfit of brown snakeskin for midi-skirt, vest and head-hugging cloche. In the center is a smashing head-to-toe look, achieved through bold use of a brilliant "horse blanket" plaid pattern in a fringed midi skirt, long sleeveless jerkin and visor cap. These ensembles are from the fall collections of Geronimo Sportswear. In the outfit to the right, double fashion exposure is achieved, with a reversible sleeveless jerkin of brown and white Aztec print on one side and an all fur treatment on the reverse. Even the floppy hat is reversible.

Reading Plan SAIL Stressed Learning As Fun

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — During a reading lesson the word "conceited" came up in a story. The teacher explained it meant the character thought he was "hot stuff."

"Do you know what 'hot stuff' means?" the teacher asked.

"Yes," the child replied, "that's when you steal something."

The incident occurred at Summer Adventures in Learning (Project SAIL) a cooperative venture of the public and parochial school systems designed to raise the reading level of third to sixth grade pupils.

The children, one to two years behind in reading, attended SAIL five days a week from 9 a.m. 'til noon on a volunteer basis.

High school students tutored the children in reading and other language skills. Regular teachers instructed the tutors. In addition to reading the children participated in art, music, and writing activities.

Children attended classes at five centers in the city. SAIL students at the Alexander Wilson School in West Philadelphia studied journalism and published a newspaper. The 100 Wilson students saw reporters in action when they visited the Philadelphia Bulletin.

The program emphasized learning as fun and the children responded. Some students walked almost a mile to school. They came on rainy days and they stayed on days when temperature passed the ninety degree mark.

They said they liked it.

"The thing I like best Wilson is that you don't have to act like you do in real school," Steven Flynn said in the newspaper. "You can be yourself," he added.

Administrators of the program placed the emphasis on the individual child. The children spent three days at Camp Marple in suburban Springfield, Pa., so they would know their teachers and tutors on a personal basis.

The Functions Go Hand-In-Hand

Roy G. Sowers, director of the Department of Conservation and Development, cited some all too well-known figures here this week.

Lyrics Mostly For 'Initiated'

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Current song lyrics are brainwashing young people into an acceptance of the drug culture. Or are they?

The pro side of the question is taken by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew who charged recently with characteristic fervor that the words to many rock tunes carry a message that threatens to sap our national strength unless we move hard and fast to bring it under control.

"I can't believe anybody ever tried drugs because of a song they heard," said Charlie Brown, announcer for WKIX Radio who plays the music heard by a sizeable segment of the Raleigh teenager — young adult audience.

Music is a reflection of the culture, not an influence. It shows the situation you are already into rather than leading the way.

Most song lyrics are open to several interpretations, and it's tricky to attempt to find a hidden meaning. "You can't try to read between the lines and say whether it's a drug culture song or not," he said.

"Are we going to stop playing every song that has the words 'pill' or 'high' in it? You just don't do things that way."

Any way, for the most part kids dig the beat and not the words, the deejay said. The two examples cited by Vice President Agnew were '67 vintage songs, prior to the present wave of concern with drug use and abuse, Brown pointed out. "If they were drug songs, only the really super-hip people knew it," he added.

On the Positive Side
There are many current songs which are anti-drug in their tenor. Ironically, one of these gave such heavy emphasis to a profanity that it was not played over most radio stations.

Broadcasters and performers have given strong support to the campaign to tell it like it is about drugs, to educate young people to the hazards, and warn them against experimentation. Drug abuse spot announcements are a staple on most stations.

"We are very selective in the songs we play," Brown explained. "If there is a serious question about lyrics, we keep it off the air. I was at a meeting in Las Vegas this summer where top-level radio people from all over the country discussed song lyrics and how to handle any problems involved."

There's a positive side to the message of contemporary music. Love, brotherhood and peace are themes which come through. "Maybe if adults would listen to some of the songs and take seriously what they are saying, we'd be in a better situation," Brown said.

shame."

He said, "We need economic growth in North Carolina, especially in our poor regions, and it must be accomplished within the framework of a protected environment."

The director then went on to point out that conservation and environmental factors have to be considered by the development interests of the state.

Sowers said that Maine and some other states have organized commissions to veto any development project which could substantially affect the environment of the state.

North Carolina is moving in that direction. "We are now legally required to examine all dredging proposals along our coast from the viewpoint of protecting the breeding grounds for marine life before issuing permits."

This is the basis for his opposition to splitting the Conservation and Development into two agencies. Both of these involve the state's natural resources and "it is my belief that those functions should not operate independent of each other."

It is difficult for us to agree with or dispute, Director Sowers argument at this point, although we can see that conservation of our resources and development of industry are going to go together in the future. North Carolina cannot improve its average annual income without bringing in more industry. At the same time we cannot afford to bring in industry which is not willing to preserve our unpolluted water and air. Whatever is done with the C and D it is obvious that the two divisions will have to work closely together if we are to have simultaneous development and conservation of our resources.

Our United Fund pledges and contributions should not be put off. We should take care of this promptly so that the men and women who are giving their time to the drive will not be unduly delayed.

Pitt County's United Fund drive is underway with a goal of $126,387 to support 15 service and charitable agencies.

Last year, after a long struggle, the United Fund finally met its goal and we think the citizens and firms of our county will meet it again this year.

We can only point out that if the goal can be met after several months of work by volunteers, it can also be met in a few weeks.

Our United Fund pledges and contributions should not be put off. We should take care of this promptly so that the men and women who are giving their time to the drive will not be unduly delayed.

Washington — There's probably nothing more embarrassing for the President of the United States than to appoint a commission to investigate a serious situation in the country, and discover he's part of the problem.

This seems to have happened with the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, and the White House is taking it very hard. There is even some talk of a presidential commission to investigate unrest on presidential commissions.

Nasser Death Raises Queries

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Although a key Israeli objective ever since their brilliant victory in the 1967 six-day war was to topple Gamal Abdel Nasser as President of Egypt, his death Monday will intensify, not resolve, the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The Israelis made no secret of their conviction that Nasser could not hold power while the Israelis occupied the Sinai peninsula and the east bank of the Suez Canal. The ignominy of the Egyptian defeat, they reasoned, would sooner or later drive him out. His successors, they believed, would inherit a regime of such instability and internal convulsion that Egypt would be unable either to lead the Arab world or to maintain endless war against Israel.

But Nasser never was driven out of office and his death now seems certain to set back the tentative moves toward a political settlement both along the canal and on Israel's other bloody borders with the Arab world.

In the first place, no Egyptian other than Nasser could have risked the wrath of militants in the Egyptian army and his own personal political organization, the Arab Socialist Union (ASU), as he did when he accepted Washington's June 19 peace plan.

Even with his own unchallenged preeminence which easily survived the 1967 defeat, Nasser was compelled to secretly spend long hours with these militant forces, staving off passionate criticism of his acceptance of the U.S. peace plan.

Moreover, the critics went far beyond the peace plan. At one closed-door meeting on Aug. 24 with the ASU's central committee, Nasser was hit hard on the question of the growing Soviet presence in Egypt.

Asked whether he could guarantee a Soviet exodus at some future date, Nasser's reply, published here for the first time, was that all the Soviet contingents were "surrounded" by Egyptian forces and that they would leave the country "any time I want."

His death now raises an ominous question: will his successor have the same leverage on Moscow that Nasser claimed to have?

Strength For Today

DON'T POINT THE FINGER
Why is the world so fearfully astray at the present time? A new and lower set of moral standards appears to be in operation today and many people wink at derelictions that they would have denounced a generation ago.

Then there is the desire of nation to overrun nation, to extend commercial and political power to far distant lands. A mode of education was introduced some fifty years ago which said that the way to let children express themselves is to give them a free hand to do whatever they want to do.

The automobile has often played into the hands of evil, necessary as automobiles are in the present setup of human affairs. There is nothing new about criminal gangs, and crime is a persistent disease from which humanity recovers only partly in each generation. In fact when we investigate social affairs we find that the past hundred years has not made as much difference as we sometimes assume that it has. Evil takes on different patterns. One gang of crooks moves out and another gang moves in. There is, and always has been, evil in high places. When the high and the low join hands then the precipice and destruction are not far away.

We are all involved in present-day evil. This does not mean that we commit criminal acts. It only means that we are weak and selfish and all too often allow evil in its worst forms to continue without rebuke.

Unrest In White House

Other Editors Say Price-Fixing

(The Raleigh Times)
North Carolina's Milk Commission heard some talk yesterday that milk is being sold in some stores in some marketing areas at prices lower than those set, in effect, by the Commission. The talk included such phrases as fair-trade orders, sales below cost, retailers doing this just to harrass competitors, and the job the Commission would have making a court case stick just now on below-cost sales.

All of it sums up to one important point, however: The Commission seems to be in doubt as to its ability to make price-fixing orders stick. The next question is this: Would it be best for the public to be able to seek out bargain prices on milk, or for the public to have to pay certain state-fixed milk prices?

Milk industry people say that the fixed prices benefit the public in the long run by making it possible for producers to get enough for their milk to stay in business. They say that the dairy business gets more chancy each year, and that without such help, more and more producers will get out of the business, and that North Carolina dairying would suffer and that in the long run North Carolina consumers would suffer.

The Commission feels that all it can do now is to try to persuade stores not to sell below cost, and to search for evidence that would permit law enforcement. Or, if you prefer, would permit price fixing.

It would seem reasonable to assume that if the state is going to have a law giving legislative blessing to milk price fixing, that the Commission should have the power to enforce that law without too much trouble. On the other hand, if the Commission isn't to be given that power, the fiction of price fixing should be dropped. The next legislature will have problems galore. Adding one more, on milk fixing, wouldn't hurt.

It should be settled one way or the other.

reclaiming reusable chemicals from old tires. Aluminum companies are buying aluminum cans and scrap for reuse. Steel cans are less of a problem since they eventually rust away. Rheingold Breweries has spent $1,600,000 changing its Brooklyn boiler operation to eliminate sulphur dioxide and soot.

Government Aids
The National Air Pollution Control Administration has let a number of contracts for various ecological projects, including an $893,000 contract for development of a system of burning coal inside a mass of molten iron to eliminate sulphur dioxide. The sulphur can be removed from the iron in solid form.

Health, Education, and Welfare has contributed $1 million to a plant at Orchard Park, N. Y., that will burn 75 tons of garbage a day at 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit, reducing it to a residue than can be recycled into many products. But garbage is the responsibility of each locality. Bottles and cans are a small problem; they don't contaminate water, soil or air. Auto graveyards are not contaminating. Some are ugly; others are interesting in their futuristic array of colors and shapes. As has been argued here, they offend viewers most because they revive guilt feelings about waste in the American system.

Boyle Eyes Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — A man used to be known by the friends, or enemies he made. In this fretful world today he is more likely to be known by his worries.

Selecting the right worries, of course, is no laughing matter. The task is a worry in itself. One way to go about it is to make a list of worries, weed out those you don't think bring out the best in you, and then start brooding as hard as you can about the remaining ones.

For example, here are a few worries we are discarding for this season, and if any of them appeal to you, well—you're welcome to exercise your darkest anxiety upon them: The Hawaiian Islands are reported drifting toward Japan at a rate of from four to six inches a year. How soon will this precipitate a new crisis in the Far East?

What will Mr. Onassis give Mrs. Onassis for Christmas? A new diamond-studded, pushbutton, all-electric cook stove? A platinum washboard? One or two of the Greek islands?

Is it possible to control air pollution in an election year? Which should be first forced to wear mufflers—automobiles or politicians?

If the professors can't teach the students anything, and the students can't teach the professors anything, just why do we still need colleges?

Is the Volga boatman breathless as a result of tugging the boat too hard—or simply from tugging at a vodka bottle too often?

Will the big American health problem of the 1970's be nervous exhaustion? How about the dope menace? Isn't it getting to be a drug on the market?

If the road to hell is paved with good intentions, what is the road to peace being paved with? Since women are determined to have rights equal to those of men, will we now have to put ladies' washrooms in all the nation's alimony jails? When will it all end?

"We are apt to call things by wrong names. We will have prosperity to be happiness and adversity to be misery. If thou wouldst be happy, bring thy mind to thy condition and have an indifference for more than what is sufficient." —William Penn.

Few Results in War On Pollution

By ELMER ROESSNER
Everybody is getting into the anti-pollution act but so far the show is a flop. Almost every industrial corporation has announced plans to fight pollution.

Nelson Rockefeller, running for re-election as governor of New York, declared he will ask the 1971 legislature to abolish auto graveyards. Almost every candidate everywhere is running on an anti-pollution platform.

But almost nothing has been done to eliminate pollution from the air, which is shortening our lives, from our water supplies, which can kill us, or from lakes and fields, which are poisoning

Majority Of Greenville 1969 Grads Went On To College, Surveys Shows

A total of 63.6 percent of the 1969 graduates in Greenville city schools entered college while 30.5 percent of Pitt County's 1969 graduates entered college.

The information was released in a recent publication by the State Department of Public Instruction and entitled "Follow-up Survey of North Carolina High School Graduates, 1969."

Of the 67,287 students graduating from North Carolina high schools in 1969 (an increase of 3.9 percent over 1968), the percentage of those entering college increased to 40.98 percent. Only 38.47 percent entered college in 1968.

Of the 526 schools graduating seniors, a total of nine schools reported over 500 graduates while seven schools reported less than 15 graduates.

Graduates who don't enter college proceed down a number of paths. Some 28 percent of the graduates enter the job market, a percentage second only to the number who attend college.

In Greenville, 9.7 percent of the graduates took a job after graduation. A total of 33.5 percent of Pitt County's graduates sought employment.

Some 20.7 percent of the graduates from Pitt County enrolled in trade, business or nursing schools. Twelve percent of Greenville's 1969 graduates entered trade, business or nursing schools.

Other highlights of the survey showed that the percentage entering military service decreased from 4.55 percent in 1968 to 3.8 percent in 1969.

REV. TOM HAMILTON — of Hooverville, Ga., will conduct revival services at Parkers Chapel F.W.B. Church, Pactolus Highway, Oct. 5-11. Services will begin each night at 7:30. The Rev. Harley Brown, pastor, invites everyone to attend.

Growth Doubled By Kindergarten

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina board of education has been told that children in the state's 18 experimental kindergartens last year doubled their rate of mental growth.

Dr. Richard Ray, director of the Learning Institute of North Carolina, which conducted the evaluations, said Thursday that tests showed the five-year-olds gained an average of two months mental growth for each month spent in kindergarten.

Ray said the greatest gains in mental maturity were made by children who scored lowest on achievement tests when they entered kindergarten. He said this indicates that the ones who benefit most from kindergarten are those who would be least ready for first grade if they hadn't attended kindergarten.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips said the success of the experimental kindergartens shows North Carolina should be "ready to go" with a full statewide program. About 750 children were involved in the pilot kindergartens.

The 1971 General Assembly will be asked to provide $21 million to establish kindergartens for an additional 20,000 children during the biennium.

The Board of Education was also told Thursday of plans to study two school districts to see if techniques used by business can cut some of the red tape out of education.

The American Management Association will conduct the year-long pilot program in the Scotland-Laurinburg school system and the Cabarrus County system.

The U. S. Office of Education is providing $350,000 for the pilot program, which will also involve schools in Maryland.

In connection with the project, the board officially named former Rocky Mount school Supt. Dr. W. O. Fields Jr. as special assistant for management and leadership development.

Fields said the project would work toward "streamlining management procedures." State superintendent Phillips and 23 other administrators already have begun management training sessions in Durham as part of the program.

Food Stamp Discussion

A program to explain the food stamp program will be held Monday at Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church at 7 p. m.

Mrs. Faye Wilcox, specialist with the Food Stamp Center, said the meeting is being held to explain the emergency food and medical services functions as well as portions of the food stamp program.

A representative from the Office of Economic Opportunity will be on hand to help answer questions.

Representatives from the Greenville area to participate on the Advisory Council will be selected at the meeting. "It is hoped that all persons who receive food stamps and other interested persons attend the meeting," Mrs. Wilcox said.

Winterville Club Hears Bundy

WINTERVILLE — Rep.-elect Sam Bundy of Farmville spoke at Ladies' Night for the Winterville Kiwanis Club last night.

"Get More Done in '71" was his theme. Bundy is a Kiwanian himself, a past governor of the Carolinas District of Kiwanis.

Officers for the coming year were also installed. Linwood Hooks is the new president; Paul Braxton is vice president; and Vernon Cox is secretary-treasurer.

Officers Named By PTI Class Gets 100 Years For Slaughter

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte man was sentenced to 100 to 120 years in prison Thursday for killing three service station attendants and another man during a weekend of slaughter last March.

The defendant, Floyd Howie, 23, could be eligible for parole in 25 years.

Nickels Gone

AHOSKIE, N. C. (AP) — A year ago the town of Ahoskie began a "courtesy nickels" program.

Under the system, police deposited a nickel in parking meters for motorists whose meters had expired. The policemen left an envelope so the nickel could be returned.

The Retail Merchant Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which initiated the program, notified town officials this week that the funds for the program were depleted, because few motorists bothered to return the nickels.

Town officials said a $1 parking violation fine will go into effect immediately.

Blazers For Policemen

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Chapel Hill policemen will be putting their guns out of sight and donning blue blazers soon in an effort to improve their public image.

"We are hoping that the public will begin to look on an officer as they would any other businessman doing his job," Police Chief William D. Blake Sr. said Thursday.

He said the new outfits will first be worn by 12 men on their beats. The three-button blazers will have a gold emblem on the pocket and will be worn with gray trousers.

Blake said keeping the guns out of sight is an integral part of the experiment.

"We feel the presence of exposed weapons causes some resentment among certain people who resent the military look," he added.

He said the new look should be particularly useful to officers working around students at the University of North Carolina, since many of them "hate war and anything that resembles the military establishment."

He said the experiment had been tried in another university town, Menlo Park, Calif., and assaults on police officers there have dropped 50 per cent since the officers changed clothes.

Uncertain Over Midiskirt Ban

HANOVER PARK, Ill. (AP) — When the village board passed a resolution banning the midiskirt from this Chicago suburb it was considered a joke, but now, Police Chief Sam Polotto says, some women are afraid to go out of doors for fear of being arrested for improper dress.

The resolution—passed two weeks ago—stated that it is a "God-given and inalienable right" of men to observe "the niceties of the female form in all of its many varied shapes and sizes."

Although the midi was "banished forever from within the corporate limits of the village," with midied females liable to a fine, the resolution lacked legal himself was being seriously challenged as the most powerful voice in the Arab world by the muscle-flexing Algerians. Algeria not only rebuked Nasser for accepting the U.S. peace plan but also worked openly for his repudiation by Palestinian refugee organizations.

With Nasser dead, the Algerians and other Nasser-haters in the Arab world—notably the Syrians and Iraqis—may find this dangerous ground far more fertile. It is inconceivable that his successor will even approach Nasser's influence on the Palestinians, and even Nasser's influence, as the Jordanian civil war proved, was extremely shaky.

To the contrary, the Nasser void will enhance the power within the Arab world of the extremism that has led to the epidemic of skyjackings and the sporadic civil war in Jordan. For all Nasser's condemnation by the West as a conniving Arab whose word could not be trusted, he was a stabilizing force in contrast to Iraqi, Syrian, and Palestinian extremists.

Thus, his death raises far more questions than it answers, surely ending the meager hope remaining for the Nixon administration's peace effort. Whatever group or individual finally ends up on top in Cairo, any concessions to Israel would be the surest route to political disaster.

The prospect, then, is that the domestic turbulence foreseen by the Israeli government as the result of Nasser's fall is probably at hand. But the result of that turbulence, far from leading to a political settlement, will push it farther away.

"That's it," Troglodyte said. "By the time the commission has come up with the answers, the President is counting on the problem to have gone away."

"By attacking the Administration, all the Scranton Commission has done is keep the 'campus unrest' issue alive."

Gov. Scranton should have known better," I said.

"We should have," Troglodyte said. "One of the rules of politics is, 'Never ask for whom the bells toll during an election year.'"

Import Restrictions Cutting U.S. Agricultural Exports

RALEIGH (AP) — Assistant U. S. Secretary of Agriculture C. D. Palmy says foreign import restrictions have cut down on American agricultural exports and threaten to continue to do so.

In a speech before an international trade conference in Raleigh Thursday, Palmy said a "productive capacity that is unmatched anywhere" is "not sufficient to assure a steady expansion in the rate of exports."

He said tobacco and soybeans are generally unaffected by present foreign restrictions, but he said a major threat to tobacco export levels is increasing competition, especially from developing nations.

Palmy said a particular problem for feed grain and wheat exports has been the recently-adopted Common Agricultural Policy in the European community.

"It is premature to judge specific effects of this action," he added. "We contemplate, however, a number of features that will tend to curtail our exports."

Palmy said the USDA is watching with great concern the pending negotiations between the United Kingdom and the Common Market which would increase the members from six countries to 10.

He said there are three general outcomes possible: —If there is no merger and the present agricultural policies continue, U. S. exports of feed grains and what to the United Kingdom and European community would drop, but soybean exports would tend to increase.

—If there is a merger and the Common Agricultural Policy is spread to all 10 countries, U.S. grain, wheat and tobacco exports would drop even more sharply but soybean exports again would increase.

—The most favorable possibility for the U. S., he said, "is that the nations will merge into the Common Market and a new agricultural policy somewhere between the strict one of the European community and the more favorable one of the United Kingdom will be developed."

"As we move onward in the uncertain world of trade policy, we must continue to work at maintaining and improving our agriculture's access to world markets," he said.

"At the same time, we must be pragmatic about protecting ourselves from unlimited imports of products put on our shores under subsidy," he added.

Sanctuary From Draft With Age 26

COED AT 86 — Myrta Dryer, 86-year-old widow, was enrolled in Detroit as a Wayne State University freshman because she didn't "wish to expire of sheer boredom". Mrs. Dryer, a novelist, has written dozens of stories and presently is working on her second novel that she describes as "moderately sexy". (AP Wirephoto)

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service System has told local draft boards that age 26 marks the border of a sanctuary they may not invade, even in hot pursuit.

At 26, explained draft Director Curtis W. Tarr, a man is too old for combat duty and drafting him might only jeopardize his fellow soldiers.

Tarr explained his views in an interview after draft spokesmen conceded new regulations might allow "dozens even hundreds" of men to escape the draft by using procedural delays until their 28th birthday.

The regulations, announced Wednesday, were in an executive order signed by President Nixon last Saturday upon the recommendation, spokesmen said, of Tarr.

"The change is affecting a very insignificant number," said a draft spokesman.

But he added, "we fully expect there will be dozens, even hundreds who do it."

The escape route of delay, however, would not be easy, he warned.

"Few will pay the price," he said, for it would take a heavy toll in skill, money, and years of uncertainty.

Those who do, however, must be replaced by other men in meeting the Pentagon's draft calls.

"Instead of these men, the system would take a couple of hundred younger, better qualified men," said the official spokesmen.

Tarr acknowledged this involved a question of fairness.

"You have to balance the safety factor for equity against the safety factor for the people who have to work with them once they get into the service," said Tarr.

He said Congress, in Selective Service legislation, had picked 19 to 26 as the desirable age limit for military induction, with the exception of doctors, whose training takes longer.

"We decided," Tarr continued, "that if 26 is a reasonable limit, then let's not go all out and get the man after he's past 26 ... you have to think about the combat situation and who will be best qualified. In practical terms, it's the only fair thing."

Men who reached age 26 without being drafted have for years been moved far down the priority list, to be drafted only in dire emergencies or certain special circumstances; the new policy does not change that.

But before last Saturday, regulations allowed boards to draft men after 26 if they had passed that borderline while involved in administrative process delays within the Selective Service System.

Saturday's executive order eliminated that hot-pursuit clause. Now a man may be drafted after 26 only if the notice of induction itself was issued before his 28th birthday.

A spokesman said that during the first eight months of this year 467 men over 26 were drafted; it was not known how many had been issued notices before or after they reached that age.

The change in regulations involves "such an insignificant group of people, we didn't consider it a major policy decision" the spokesman said.

"If it had been 10,000 guys it would've been different."

the spokesman said.

Westmoreland Is Now Aviator

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — He's rather old as Army helicopter pilots go, but one of the new crop to earn an aviator's badge is the boss, Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland.

The 56-year-old general has been working at it on and off since 1958 when he took his first instruction at Ft. Campbell, Ky. He was then in command of the 101st Airborne Division.

Another assignment that may have interrupted his instruction was command of all U.S. troops in Vietnam.

The commanding generals of these divisions routinely learn how to fly choppers since thousands of helicopters are in use throughout the Army for reconnaissance, troop spotting, resupply, medical evacuation and close air gunnery support.

Westmoreland, also a paratrooper, completed the same training, although on an informal basis, as other Army aviators, passed all the same tests and is qualified to fly UH1 Huey helicopters.

Westmoreland is the first Army chief of staff to be an aviator.

Dr. Irvin Hendryson, chief of the Commission on Emergency Medical Services of the American Medical Association, was the keynote speaker. Several sessions dealt with how Jaycees can help find local solutions to emergency service problems. Several also were concentrated on general safety and water safety.

1971. Buick introduces a new set of values.

Value, not gimmicks or ornamentation, sells cars. More people have been coming to Buick each year for just that reason. Buick concentrates on value. And this year, Buick introduces a new set of values. Features that will help make your new Buick perform better, last longer and get you more of a return on your investment at trade-in time. Only a Buick dealer can offer you our new set of values. So, test your values against our new ones. Then ask yourself this simple question. Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Something to believe in.

1971 Buick Riviera. A totally new design concept. And that's not all. Riviera offers MaxTrac, an exclusive power control system you can order with its own on-board computer. It helps you get securely over slick surfaces by reducing rear-wheel slipping. The new body features side-guard beams for protection, a bigger trunk, and a driver cockpit with a control center designed around the driver for new ease and convenience.

1971 Buick Electra 225. A new interpretation of quiet elegance. We've improved our Electra everywhere you look. There's more room in every direction, interiors that can be appreciated as much for their durability as for their beauty and comfort, even a new balanced braking system. A unique valve proportions braking force front to rear to help give you quick, smooth straight-line stops.

1971 Buick Centurion. This is our newest Buick, a city car with sleekness and grace as well as muscle. It features more nimble variable-ratio power steering, power front disc brakes, Full-Flo ventilation, and a vinyl roof on the Centurion Formal Coupe as standard equipment.

1971 Buick Skylark Custom. This is the car that has set the pace for value in its price class. Rocker panels that wash and dry themselves, big-Buick room and comfort inside, a cooling system that should never overheat, inner fenders that protect the outer fenders, and a modest price have put our Buick Skylark traditionally among the resale leaders in its class.

1971 Buick LeSabre. An incredible new offering of Buick value. The LeSabre, like the Riviera, Electra and Centurion, features AccuDrive, a new version of the directional stability system we pioneered. It will help give you smooth handling.

An Important Improvement. Every new Buick engine is now designed to run smoothly and efficiently, and with lower exhaust emissions, on no-lead and low-lead gasolines. And every Buick V-8 engine will have exclusive nickel-plated exhaust valves for smoother operation and longer valve life, and a new time-modulated choke to help give quicker warm-up and a more consistent fuel mixture.

Bids To Receive Review

The Greenville City School Board of Education will hold a special meeting at 8:00 p.m. Monday night to discuss and study the bids received for the demolition of three buildings.

Bids for the demolition project involving three buildings — the burned out portion of Eppes and the main section of Eppes School facing Fifth Street; the cinder block building at Eppes; and the storage room back of the Third Street Elementary School; were advertised. Bids were opened yesterday.

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the city school system, reported that bids ranged from a low of $8,640 to a high of $22,800. He noted that the buildings have been determined "uninsurable" under any plan, and that the condition of the buildings would have made use of them as storage sites useless because they would not be worth the labor cost that would be required to secure them.

Consideration of the bids is the only item scheduled for the Monday night special meeting agenda at the boardroom of the Central Administrative Office.

Hearing Held In Farmville

FARMVILLE — A public meeting to discuss the October 13 bond issue for water and sewer improvements was held at the courtroom here Thursday night.

Carl Beaman, town clerk, said there were from 30-35 persons present to ask questions about the improvement plans and about the proposed financing of the projects. He and J. A. "Bud" Wooten, director of the water and sewer department, answered most of the questions.

"If the referendum vote is positive," Beaman said, "the town will issue bonds of up to $150,000. The tax rate will not be raised by this issuance, since some old debts of the town have recently been paid up. We have the promise of about the same amount in federal money if we can provide these funds to match theirs."

"If the referendum vote is negative, our tax rate probably will have to be raised next year since certain of these project — water and sewer to the new consolidated school and to the new nursing home, for instance — must be done, even if we have to divert money from other projects."

"When we put it this way, how can anyone citizen interested in his own welfare or that of the town vote no?" Beaman asked.

Campaigners Can Ignore Prohibition Still Probe Gun Damage

RALEIGH (AP) — Campaigners in six North Carolina counties can ignore a state law that prohibits electioneering within 500 feet of polling places in those counties.

An injunction against enforcement of the 1969 law was granted Thursday by a three-judge federal panel in U. S. Eastern District Court in Raleigh.

The judges said the law would "discriminate between the counties to which it applies and the remaining 94 counties of the state," where the ban on electioneering extends only to 50 feet.

The law was introduced in the legislature as a statewide measure but on the way to passage all counties were exempted from it except Cumberland, Durham, Franklin, Guilford, Warren and Vance.

The law was challenged in a suit filed last Oct. 30 by several persons, including Warren County civil rights leader Mrs. Eva Clayton and the chairman of the Durham County Democratic party, Eugene Greuling.

The judges ruled that in addition to the difference in treatment of the state's 100 counties, an additional reason exists for not enforcing the law in four of the counties — Cumberland, Franklin, Guilford and Vance. The court said that under the provisions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, election laws in those counties could not be changed without federal approval, and approval had not been obtained.

The panel was composed of Judge Algernon Butler, Eugene A. Gordon and Harrison L. Winter.

Investigation of an incident on Sept. 26 during which a mobile home on Rt. 1, Washington was allegedly fired into is continuing by members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that a front window of the mobile home, owned by Mr. and Mrs. James K. Boyd and located on the Clarks Neck Road, was shot out sometime during the night of the 25th or early morning of the 26th.

The sheriff reported that the Boyds told deputies the incident occurred while they were away and the damage was discovered upon returning at 2:10 a.m. the morning of the 26th.

Sheriff Tyson added that the blast apparently came from a shotgun. In addition to the front living room window, damage was reported to the drapes and also a window on the back side that received pellets from the blast.

Damage was estimated at $150, he added.

The mobile home is located in Pitt County just west of the Beaufort County line.

Swine Exhibits At Pitt Fair Dropped

All swine exhibits for the Pitt County agricultural fair have been canceled for this fall, it was announced by Sam Winchester, manager of the local event.

"There is a quarantined area in Pitt County because of hog cholera," Winchester said. "Because of this area, we are calling off hog exhibits for this fall."

Winchester said the livestock barn will still have beef and dairy cattle exhibits as well as poultry exhibits.

Winchester said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham announced yesterday he had canceled all exhibits of swine at the State Fair and all county and regional fairs in North Carolina for this year.

The spread of hog cholera to counties other than those east of the Chowan River was given as the reason.

Until recently, according to Graham, it was felt swine shows could be held safely outside the heavily infected area in northeastern North Carolina, but in recent days outbreaks have occurred in several other counties.

Says Muskie Has 'Edge'

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, would have a narrow edge over Richard M. Nixon in a 1972 presidential race if the voting age is lowered to 18, pollster Louis Harris says.

A special sampling of the 18-20 group was made during a regular Harris survey of 2,014 households between Sept. 7 and 14, the New York Post reported Thursday.

Harris said that among the potential young voters Muskie led Nixon by 43 per cent to 31, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey led him by 42 to 35, and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York led him by 41 to 33, with George C. Wallace drawing 8 to 9 per cent and the rest undecided.

Lumping the young vote with that of their elders, Harris said, Muskie led Nixon 43 per cent to 42, Humphrey trailed Nixon 38 to 47, Lindsay was behind 37 to 46, and Wallace received 10 per cent.

Pirates Challenge Tough West Texas

East Carolina University's Pirates left today for Canyon, Tex., where they are hoping to pull off an upset victory over the tough West Texas State University Buffaloes.

The contest is slated for 9 p.m. (EDT) Saturday night. West Texas is listed as a heavy favorite in the game.

But Coach Mike McGee's charges believe they could pull it off, and are going to be going after it.

Injuries, however, may be the key to the outcome. The Bucs have four top players who may not be able to play, or may see only limited duty. They include fullback Billy Wallace, tailbacks Les Strayhorn and Rusty Scales and flanker Dwight Flanagan.

For the Bucs, a touchdown will be the most sought-after thing in the game, aside from an outright victory. Thus far this year, they have been denied a touchdown, and have only a safety against Toledo to show for their previous three outings.

Last week, there were high hopes for a victory against The Citadel, but things went wrong and the Bulldogs romped to a 31-0 victory.

"They were extremely quick, and a fine football team," McGee said of The Citadel. "(Bob) Duncan is an exceptional back. They thought that this was going to be their year in the conference and they pointed to our game. They did not resemble the team that lost to Clemson and Vanderbilt earlier."

For the Bucs, there was a defensive breakdown at several points in the game, and they were critical. "When we started playing in the right areas, we stopped them cold," McGee said. "George Whitley, Rich Peeler and Monty Kiernan all played well defensively for us."

Offensively, however, the Bucs had even more problems.

"We turned the ball over to them six times, twice on interceptions and four times on fumbles," McGee said. "We had an inability to throw the ball well and-or to catch it well. We got pushed into an early situation of having to play catch up, and this hurt us. You just can't play a good time and give them the ball six times within scoring range."

McGee did feel that the team's pass protection should improve, but that the running game was hampered by injuries. "We feel like Wallace will be ready to play, but both Strayhorn and Scales are questionable. We are running into a general depth problem."

The opponent for the Bucs this week is one of the toughest of the year. The Buffaloes opened with a 33-28 loss to Lamar Tech, and then thrashed Wichita State, 43-0 last week. In the Lamar Tech loss, the game ended with West Texas on the one-foot line, striving for the go-ahead score. "They let Lamar Tech get three quick fluky touchdowns on them, then dominated the game after that," McGee said.

"And last week, they just demolished Wichita. They are probably the fastest team in the country."

The keys to the West Texas offense are some speedy backs. Tops among them is 5-11, 200-pounder Rocky Thompson, who runs the 100-yard dash in 9.2 seconds. Backing him up is Oland Thompson (no relation), a 9.6 dash man. "The West Texas coach, Joe Kerbel, rates them as faster than Mercury Morris, the man who put the school on the map a couple of years ago."

And fans who saw the West Texas-East Carolina game several years ago, won by the Buffaloes, 37-13, remember Morris well. He personally wrecked the Buc defenses with his amazing speed.

Another bright spot in the backfield is fullback Ramse Faleafine whom McGee rates as a fine runner.

"They have a tight end in Willie Walker (6-4, 225), who compares favorably with John Mackey," McGee said. "They are primarily a running team, but they mix the pass in well.

Quarterback Ed Holwig, a red-shirted sophomore, "is not real quick," McGee said. "He doesn't run the Veer offense quite as well as The Citadel does, but they are bigger and stronger than the Bulldogs, and make it work well this way, along with the great speed of the Thomp-sons."

Defensive standouts for the Buffaloes include Alex Davis, a tackle, and one of nine or ten junior college transfers on the starting 22.

"They have a much easier time in getting junior college people," McGee said. "They can bring them in with 36 semester hours and a 1.6 average, while we, in comparison, have to have to 48 hours and a 2.0 average. This is to their advantage. Also they have 130 full football scholarships to work with."

McGee said the Bucs realize that they will have their hands full this week. "Even without the injuries we have, it would be a big challenge, but we are going after them. We've had a good week of practice."

The Bucs will probably start Carl Gordon and Bill Croisietiere at ends, Paul Haug and Tim Tyler at tackles, Mike Kopp and Steve Davis at guards, Mark

Pohren at center, John Casazza at quarterback, Dick Corrada at flanker, Wallace at fullback and either Scales or Strayhorn at tailback.

Pirates Take On Buffaloes

Don Mollenhauer, left, and Les Strayhorn are two members of the East Carolina University football team that travels to Canyon, Tex., Saturday night to face tough West Texas State. Mollenhauer, a 6-2, 202-pound junior, is one of the starters at linebacker. Strayhorn, a 5-10, 195-pound sophomore, is the starting tailback for the Bucs. The Pirates, 0-3, are seeking their first win against the Buffaloes.

Williamston Faces Another 3-A Challenger In Roanoke Rapids

The Williamston Tigers, after being blitzed by powerful Tarboro, play host to Roanoke Rapids Friday night, as they face their second straight 3-A opponent.

And for the Tigers, it may be another real test.

Tarboro clawed Williamston, 56-0, last week, in a real runaway. In other Albemarle Conference games, Ashokie kept its conference record unblemished with a 20-8 win over Plymouth, Perquimans beat Frederick Military, 16-6, Murfreesboro topped Northampton, 28-8, and Gates County won its first ever from Edenton, 22-20.

"We got beat pretty good," Williamston's Dinky Mills said. "Tarboro is probably the best team in the state."

The Tigers managed to hold their opponent scoreless in the first quarter, but Tarboro broke loose after that and rolled. "They got a bunch of scores in the third period," Mills said, "but a lot of them we gave them on easy touchdowns. They kept their first string in there most of the way, too."

Mills continued his praise of his opponent, however. "I think they could beat anybody in the state...4-A 3-A, just anybody. And I'll keep on believing it until someone proves me wrong. They are a real machine, and they hide the ball so well, you can't tell who has it."

The Tigers came through the game without injury, however, but face another tough game this week in Roanoke Rapids.

"They are a big team, probably almost as big as Tarboro. They have exceptionally good size on defense. "They don't do anything fancy on offense; they stick with the basics, but they do a good job with it."

Mills said that under ordinary circumstances, he felt the game would be a good one. "We've got a few problems, however, that I don't want to talk about." Elsewhere in the Albemarle, there are two conference games on tap, with one open date. Perquimans travels to Plymouth and Northampton is at Ashokie for loop engagements. Edenton goes to Northeastern for a non-conference game, and Gates County has an open date.

The current Albemarle Conference standings:

Gates County	2	1	3	1

Aycock Teams Lose A Pair

Wilson Junior High School's "Blue" team squeezed out an 8-0 victory over the Aycock Junior High "Blues" yesterday. It was the third straight loss for Aycock's Blue team, which has not won this year.

The Blue actually piled up more yardage than Wilson, but was unable to put the ball across, despite moving inside the 10-yard line on two occasions.

Wilson's only threat came on its scoring drive. That climaxed with a 10-yard pass from Stan Wilkes to Stan Hicks. The two combined for the two-point conversion for the 8-0 score.

Also yesterday, the Aycock "Green" team suffered its second loss in as many games, falling to Rocky Mount's Wilson Junior High, 38-0.

Oh, for another week like last week! Only three incorrect helped out, but getting three more right this week would make things very good.

There are a lot of top games this weekend, both on the high school and collegiate levels.

First off, Rose High School plays host to unbeaten Rocky Mount this weekend. Last year, the Ram-pants and Gryphons had a tough game that wasn't decided until the final horn. The Rampants have the talent to pull off the upset, but need to put things together for it. They haven't done this yet, so Rocky Mount is the choice.

Farmville, unbeaten, travels to meet Northern Nash, unbeaten. It is a top game in the Eastern Plains Conference, and should be an exciting game. The pick goes with the home team however, with Northern Nash to win it.

Robersonville goes to Elm City in a Tobacco Belt game. The Rams should be rolling now, but Elm City has been surprising this year. We'll stick with Robersonville to take it.

Roanoke Rapids is at Williamston in a non-conference game. The Tigers were mauled by Tarboro last week, and things don't look any brighter this week. Roanoke Rapids is the choice.

Southern Wayne plays at Greene Central in another Eastern Plains game. Greene Central is improved, and might pull off a surprise, but we'll go with Southern Wayne to win this one.

Saturday night, the traditional Ayden-Grifton series closes out. The two merge into one school next year, and both would like to close out with a win. A tie would probably be the best thing that could happen, but Ayden will be the winner in it.

Saturday night, the East Carolina Pirates will be in Texas to face West Texas State. The Buffaloes have some tough runners, and will be hard to stop, so the Bucs must score and score a lot if they are to win.

But, this column doesn't feel that the Bucs will be able to put enough on the board. West Texas will win this one.

In other Southern Conference games, Arkansas State will down The Citadel, Davidson will beat Trinity, Furman will top Carson-Newman, Southern Mississippi will beat Richmond, Boston College will down VMI, and William & Mary will top Ohio Wesleyan.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, Georgia Tech will down Clemson, Ohio State will beat Duke, Miami will top Maryland, Vanderbilt will upset North Carolina, Florida will take N.C. State, South Carolina will beat Virginia Tech, and Virginia will beat Wake Forest.

Season's Record: 46 right, 17 wrong, 73.0 per cent.

Fagg Worried About Trinity

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Will success spoil Davidson's Wildcats? Dave Fagg, a winner in his first game as coach of the Southern Conference's defending football champions, may find out Saturday when the Wildcats make their first start at home against Trinity.

The Wildcats edged the Southland Conference team 17-16 last year at San Antonio, Tex., but Fagg is concerned about the running of the visitors' freshman tailback Earl Costley, who has rushed for 448 yards.

"He is just one tremendous football player," says Fagg. "Our defense was fine against Richmond (in last week's 14-5 upset). But you have got to be worried when you face someone who can run like he can."

The game at Davidson, 1-0, is one of five afternoon nonconference scraps for league teams Saturday. Two more are scheduled Saturday night.

William and Mary's Indians, 0-3, are hosts to Ohio Wesleyan; Virginia Military's Keydets, 1-2, go to Boston College; Richmond's Spiders, 1-2, are at Southern Mississippi; and Furman's Paladins, 1-2, travel to Carson-Newman in the afternoon.

The night encounters sent East Carolina's Pirates, 0-3, to West Texas State and The Citadel's Bulldogs, 1-2, to Arkansas State.

William and Mary may have the best chance for a victory in the afternoon aside from Davidson and possibly Furman. The Indians are facing a team which like themselves has yet to win and hope to get an all-out effort from rushing leader Phil Mosser, bothered by a knee injury last week.

Wes Meter, who had been moved to fullback to start the season, may be back at quarterback again, depending on the status of injured Bubba Hooker. Meter has been at the controls most of the last two games against Miami and Cincinnati.

Richmond also has an injury problem against Southern Mississippi, a team the Spiders have beaten only once in eight tries. Halfback Buddy Woodie is definitely out of action and All-Southern defensive tackle Bruce Kasarda is doubtful. Tight end Ken Popovich and split end Jim Livesay are bothered by arm and shoulder injuries.

VMI, which opened with a victory over Furman and then ran into Rice and West Virginia, will be meeting an unbeaten opponent for the third successive week. The Keydets expect to be in their best physical shape since the Furman opener.

This will be only the second meeting between Furman and Carson-Newman, who battled to a 21-21 tie last year.

Reds Given Slight Nod In NL's Finals

By D. BYRON YAKE
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cincinnati and Pittsburgh begin Saturday what Roberto Clemente refers to as the "Little World Series," the best-of-5 National League playoff games.

Odds makers give the Reds a slight edge. Pittsburgh is host for the first two games.

Clemente, suffering from a back injury, didn't accompany the Pirates to St. Louis for the final three days of the season. But he is expected to be ready for Saturday.

Willie Stargell has been hobbling on a sore leg, but he's been doing that most of the season and should be rested enough to play.

Pitcher Bob Moose missed a turn at St. Louis due to a sore elbow. His status is uncertain. In the opener the Pirates will go with Dock Ellis, 13-10, against the Reds' Gary Nolan, 18-7.

Luke Walker, 15-6, is expected to start Sunday in the second game against the Reds' Jim Merritt, their only 20-game winner.

Merritt had a special workout Wednesday and was pronounced fit. He had worked three innings last week after a three-week layoff due to an arm injury.

The Pirates will probably go with their usual lineup, spiced with a mixture of veterans and youth.

If Clemente plays, left-handed Al Oliver will be at first against Nolan, a right-hander; rookie Dave Cash is scheduled to start at second because of his recent hot bat, and Gene Alley will probably be at short. Richie Hebner, another lefty, will play third.

Stagell will be in left, Matty Alou in center and Clemente or Oliver in right.

If Oliver is in right, Bob Robertson will be at first.

It will be difficult to keep Robertson or Oliver out of the line-up since they are the leading RBI hitters for the Pirates behind Stargell.

Manny Sanguillen, batting .326, will catch.

Lee May will be at first for Cincinnati, Tommie Helms, at second and Dave Concepcion at short. Tony Perez is the third baseman.

In left field will be Bernie Carbo, a candidate for rookie-of-the-year honors; Bobby Tolan will be in center and Pete Rose in right.

Johnny Bench, who could be the league's most valuable player with his .294 average, 45 home runs and 147 RBIs, is the catcher.

Rigney: Twins Must Contain Bird Hitters

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota Twins plotted simple strategy to challenge the favored Baltimore Orioles in the American League championship series that opens Saturday at Metropolitan Stadium.

Manager Bill Rigney practically concedes the Orioles will provide glittering pitching from left-handers Mike Cuellar, 24-8, and Dave McNally, 24-9, and right-hander Jim Palmer, 20-10.

"The secret of our winning is containing their hitters," said Rigney. "Our pitchers have got to hold them because we know they're going to throw good pitching. We have to match them."

Rigney sends his only ace, right-hander Jim Perry, 24-12, out to stop the major league's winningest team in the 4 p.m. EDT, opener against Cuellar.

Left-hander Tommy Hall, 11-6 with 184 strikeouts in 1551-3 innings, opposes McNally at 4 p.m. Sunday. The best of 5 series moves to Baltimore Monday with Palmer going against rookie Bert Blyleven, 10-9.

Frank Len, Baltimore scout who spent this week checking out the Twins, agreed with Rigney's theory and said that the Orioles probably would have to take the same attitude.

Rigney will go with Cesar Tovar in center, Leo Cardenas at shortstop, Harmon Killebrew at third, Tony Oliva in right, Rich Reese at first, Brant Aleya in left, George Mitterwald catching and Danny Thompson at second.

Baltimore, with the same lineup, swept the Twins in three straight games of the 1969 playoffs—4-3 in 11 innings, 3-2 in 12 innings and 11-2.

But with Killebrew slamming six of his 41 home runs, the Twins took a 7-5 edge in the 1970 regular season. With 1969 batting champion Rod Carew limited to pinch hitting because of knee surgery in June, the Twins have lost some of their hitting edge.

Oliva and Tovar made it for the Twins. Killebrew and Powell were almost even in RBIs.

Baltimore's bullpen has more depth, led by Dick Hall's 10-5 record, but the Twins have effective stoppers in Stan Williams, 10-1, and Ron Perranoski, 34 saves.

Odds makers have made the Orioles 3-2 favorites to qualify for their fourth World Series in the last five years.

The Worry Clinic She Erased A Former Image

Marcia was smart. She didn't lock the barn after the horse was stolen. For she enticed him back again by fighting fire with fire. This meant far more stress on "cheese" in the boudoir. Plus regaining the classy chassis of her youth. Wives, a devoted husband beats an alimony check, so get hep!

By GEORGE CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.
CASE 0-547: Marcia B., aged 42, is the grieving wife whose husband announced he was seeking romance elsewhere.

"Dr. Crane," she pleaded, "what can I do to stop him from leaving me?"

Well, Marcia was 40 pounds too heavy. So she had lost her former seductive chassis and now had the waddling figure of a good old motherly soul.

You wives who have been married 20 years, should meditate seriously as to why even virile young men seldom sexually attack fat girls!

So a middle aged husband, whose erotic verve may not be 25 per cent what it was when you were first married, naturally gets very little incentive to be romantic.

There are quick shortcuts, plus some "slow but sure" methods by which a wife can almost always rebuild her husband's ardor for her.

The shortcuts consist of smiling cheerfully and never mentioning the paramour.

For you wives must vividly realize that if you nag and scold, while the paramour smiles sweetly and builds up his ego, then which female will he prefer to meet at the end of a trying day at the store or office?

There is an axiom of psychology which states: No man (or animal) will voluntarily want to return to the place or person where he is pained and deflated in ego.

A wife who cries and berates her husband or calls him a heel and "throws up to him" all the sacrifices she has made for 25 years, is only deflating his ego that much faster.

So, by contrast, the sweet, smiling and complimentary paramour, gains extra appeal by this contrast.

So Marcia shifted her perfume and had her hairdo altered, in order to shatter the former image of being a good old motherly soul.

Meanwhile, though she shed tears in private, when she met her husband, she played the actress role that all smart wives must adopt, so she smiled and venter showed any jealousy of the outside siren.

But she vividly realized that paramours win their followers by their ability to furnish "cheese" in the boudoir instead of roast beef in the dining room.

Too many of you fat, stodgy wives have concentrated unduly on the roast beef.

You believe implicitly the adage that the shortest way to a man's heart is via his stomach. That went out of vogue when drug stores began to serve sandwiches!

Meanwhile, Marcia began that famous 10-day diet by which she lopped off 10 ugly pounds from the excess upholstery around her equator.

Then she shifted to Diet number 2, which takes off 2 pounds per week.

Her husband began to perk up even after she had shed 10 pounds.

'Street Priest' Couldn't Watch

By HARRY EISENBERG.
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The Rev. Paul Shanley, Boston's "street priest" the last four years, has given up walking his beat.

"It was the only thing I could do to keep my sanity," Father Shanley said in an interview. "I couldn't hack it any more."

Shaggy-haired, hippie-garbed and sometimes bearded, Father Paul, as he is called by those who know him, was a familiar figure wherever runaways gathered in Boston. They were his flock, these "street kids," youngsters who had left their homes and turned, for the most part, to drugs.

The controversial 39-year-old priest, assigned by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, to work with runaways, considered his unorthodox dress and appearance his tools.

"I adopted the dress of my people," he said. He has been off the streets now for almost seven weeks, at his own request.

"There wasn't anything more I could do for the kids," he said. "The first year we reconciled a lot of the kids," Father Shanley said. "The second year we were able to keep them on soft drugs, off the killers. Last year we could only keep them alive. This year we couldn't even do that."

"I can't watch any more what society's doing to its kids," he added. "I feel like a father whose son is about to be killed by a bus. It's bad enough to know it's going to happen without having to watch it happen."

At the moment Father Shanley is still technically assigned to his street mission. But he is doing nothing specific, awaiting a talk with the Most Rev. Humberto S. Medeiros, newly appointed archbishop of Boston, who will replace Cardinal Cushing early next month.

While working on the streets, Father Shanley would often talk to as many as 30 youngsters in a night. He would stalk their

Pres. Thieu Predicts War Will Fade In 3 Years

EDITOR'S NOTE: Conrad M. Black, publisher of the Sherbrooke, Que., Record, visited Saigon and this week obtained an interview with President Nguyen Van Thieu. He made the interview available to The Associated Press.

By CONRAD M. BLACK
SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu predicts the war in Vietnam will be reduced to a relatively minor frontier action within three years.

In a wide-ranging interview, he denounced foreign critics, denied there were any policy differences with the United States, confirmed he opposed the U.S. halt to the bombing of North Vietnam in November 1968 and saw complete failure for the Paris peace talks.

Thieu said the war would end by the pacification of the South, the decline of North Vietnam's war-making potential through manpower losses, morale problems, divided leadership and the loss of "the United States as the imperialistic bogeyman, through the carrying out of the Nixon doctrine, which I entirely approve."

The president said the greatest accomplishments of his administration had been to "bring security to more than 95 per cent of the population."

He denied that he held any veto over U.S. policy because of the alliance between his government and that of President Nixon, as some U.S. critics have charged. He said the two countries were "making common cause" and that there were no significant policy differences between them concerning war or peace.

Thieu described former President Lyndon B. Johnson as "in large measure the savior of the freedom of South Vietnam."

Discussing foreign critics, Thieu emphasized a distinction between those who justly criticize South Vietnam's shortcomings but recognize progress when it occurs, and those whose condemnations of his regime "have made no allowance for change."

He spoke of some U.S. senators as in the latter group. He described them as "not constructive, ignorant, and politically motivated." He said that most of them "never come to Vietnam" and thus were incompetent to judge the progress of developments there. He mentioned no names.

He said the Communists had succeeded in exploiting the 1968 U.S. election campaign despite military catastrophes, and that the bombing halt, called just before the election, was a mistake, although he expressed gratitude and admiration for Johnson.

Thieu said the Paris talks would never get anywhere because Hanoi would then have to explain to its people why 600,000 of their countrymen had died in a war against the South that they had not won.

Thieu reaffirmed South Vietnam's determination to help Cambodia if it is heavily attacked by North Vietnam, but doubted Hanoi's capability to launch a "major assault" against Cambodia.

The president said the overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia and the allied attack on the Communist sanctuaries in Cambodia last spring together created a "decisive turning point in the war."

"Some say it will take the enemy nine months to recover," he continued. "I say they will never recover. Cambodia was from 1967 to 1969 a second North Vietnam, a whole rear area. The closing of the port at Kompong Som, the loss of access to the Cambodian rice harvest, and the seizure of the sanctuaries, even more than the heavy loss of men and equipment, have caused the enemy permanent paralysis."

Refuses To Order School Compliance

CLINTON, N. C. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Algernon Butler has refused to order Lumbee Indian parents to send their children to schools assigned them under a federal desegregation plan.

In a ruling Thursday, Butler also denied a request by the Indians for an injunction to require the Robeson County School Board to disregard school district boundaries.

Butler said it was not up to the federal courts to decide the question since the case has not yet gone before the appropriate state courts.

The school board's motion for an order against the Indian parents came during a preliminary hearing for a suit filed by the Lumbees.

The Lumbees filed suit against the school board after a week-long protest at the beginning of the year when Lumbee parents refused to send 500 children to schools assigned them under a desegregation plan approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Butler also dismissed Gov. Bob Scott and Interior Secretary Walter Hickle as subjects in the suit, and denied a move by school board attorneys to have the Indians' suit dismissed.

Lawyers representing a group of Robeson County blacks who are also challenging the desegregation plan were in court Thursday, too.

Churchmen Study Unity

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — About 80 bishops and other church officials from nine denominations in five states gather here today to consider a merger plan creating a new body of 25 million members called the Church of Christ Uniting.

The meeting, one of 13 being held throughout the nation this fall, will be convened by Episcopal Bishop Robert F. Gibson of Richmond, Va., a member of the Consultation on Church Union executive committee.

Those attending include representatives from Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The nine denominations involved are the African Methodist Episcopal Church, African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, Christian Church, Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, Episcopal Church, Presbyterian Church U.S., United Church of Christ, United Methodist Church and the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Doerner Band Will Play Here Saturday

A night of dancing to music of the "big band" returns Saturday with George Doerner and his orchestra playing for the Greenville Moose.

As has been the custom on other such occasions, attendance will be limited to 150 couples, with tickets available to the fraternity members on a first-come basis.

The dance will begin at 9:00 and close at 1:00.

Doerner is no stranger to North Carolinians, having played at the Azalea Festival in Wilmington, the Rhododendron Festival in Asheville; the N. C. Medical Ass'n Convention in Pinehurst; and was in Greenville five years ago.

The Doerner orchestra has played at Roseland Dance City (New York) and the Melody Mill Ballroom in Chicago.

What makes the musical group so unusual is that there are very few of the large traveling dance bands in the country today...only a handful such as Woody Herman, Count Basie, Si Zentner and a few others.

Doerner's formula for success is said to be in his ability to please the dancing public. The band's library stretches from the old standards to the most recent "in sounds", but all with the same criteria: they must be danceable and listenable.

Repeat engagements at the nation's top hotels, supper clubs and ballrooms indicate the band's popularity.

Old Cons Tell Kids The Score

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The kids were sullen, as you'd expect with the boy robbers, muggers and gun-toters held at Juvenile Hall.

Then the old convicts, their years in prison lining their faces, started telling what the kids face if they keep on their present paths.

Wilbert "Popeye" Jackson said he is 40 now and has spent nearly 25 years in prison, beginning with a stabbing and continuing through armed robbery. He got out of San Quentin recently.

Ferdinand Jolby said he is 41 and was released from San Quentin last May after 20 years for armed robbery and homicide.

Jackson and Jolby told how the city lights look at night across the bay from a fourth floor San Quentin cell—and how it feels to be a number, no longer a man.

They described the desperation that drives some cons to suicide.

Jackson told about homosexuality: "Older cons single out a likely new kid, pass him cigarettes and candy in a move to get to be their 'friend'."

And life is cheap: "I've seen a guy killed over a pack of cigarettes. Another guy, stabbed to death over a $30 debt when the lights went out at a prison movie."

"You don't get along with a dude, that means you live in fear of what he'll do to you."

"Change yourselves, before it's too late," they warned the kids.

"Like staying in school," said Jolby.

"You guys want money? The way to get it is not with a gun, but with an education."

It was a weekly group therapy program initiated by the chief juvenile probation officer, Joseph T. Botka. The old cons are supplied by a rehabilitation organization called the Seventh Step.

A dozen of the kids, dressed in Juvenile Hall white T-shirts and pants, eyed Jackson and Jolby as the recent session opened.

After the session was over, and Jackson and Jolby left, the kids sat silent for a few moments. Finally one spoke:

"I guess we learned something. Like stay out of trouble. Otherwise you end up in the joint, and that ain't good."

Crew Of Women Runs The Bank

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER ALTADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Actually, Margery Sweetland has no prejudices against men.

Some of her best friends are men—including her husband of 18 months and the security guard at the bank where she is assistant vice president and manager.

But all the other employees of the U.S. National Bank branch here are women, and it's been that way since Mrs. Sweetland became the boss a year ago.

"We don't have a large turnover," she explained in an interview, "and I couldn't see firing one of the girls just to have a man around. If an opening should arise, and a qualified man apply, I'd certainly consider his application. I'm not a women's liberationist, you know."

All-Girl Team However, Mrs. Sweetland is well satisfied with her all-girl team of 13 employees. Business at the bank has been increasing between 7 and 10 per cent a month, and she thinks her girls are the reason why.

"We're a neighborhood branch," she says. "We try to give personalized service. Our girls get to know the depositors. They're people to them, not numbers."

"The depositors seem to like dealing with women. Women have a tendency to listen

Homecoming At Church Sunday

Annual homecoming services will be observed Sunday at the Grimesland Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The homecoming sermon will be presented at 11 a.m. by the Rev. Roy O. Williams, former pastor. Following the morning service lunch will be served on the church grounds at 12:45 p.m.

The Rev. Paul C. Jackson, pastor, invites the public to attend.

easier. Men are accustomed to telling their troubles to women, and of course women are used to telling their problems to other women, too."

Mrs. Sweetland has a firm policy of promoting from within, and conducts constant in-house training for her employees.

"The more you know about your job, the better job you do," Mrs. Sweetland says. "I think it's helped."

Work As A Team

"I have no late problems—everyone is here ready to start before banking hours. My absentee problem is nil. One girl has been here five years without ever missing a day. The girls don't take long coffee breaks or spend long periods in the powder room. If they can crawl, they come to work. In other words, we work as a team."

"Sometimes in offices and elsewhere women employees play the cute little girl and get special privileges from male employers. But here we're all on an equal footing," she said.

The women say they never rely women's intuition in making loans—and the only time they really miss the presence of men is when they lug the cash out of the vaults in the mornings.

Their branch looks like any other bank—except for a few more bouquets of flowers.

And they rearrange the furniture a lot.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3	Pass	4
Pass	5	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠
 Failure by East to take charge at the outset proved fatal to the defensive cause in today's hand where South was the declarer at a five diamond contract.

West opened the queen of spades, the three was played from dummy and East signaled encouragement by following with the eight. West continued with the jack of spades which was ruffed by the declarer.

South led the queen of diamonds, however when West followed with the five, the finesse was refused and the ace was played from dummy.

The king of spades was returned and South ruffed away East's ace.

The jack of diamonds dislodged East's king and drew the outstanding trump. East returned a club, the ace was played from dummy followed by the queen. Declarer overtook with the king and cashed his remaining club honors, discarding two hearts from dummy. The ace of hearts provided a parking place for North's remaining side card and the latter's trumps took the balance of the tricks. Declarer lost in all, one spade and one diamond.

East was guilty of negligence in failing to take the proper measures to assure the defeat of the contract. He is looking at nine hearts between his hand and the dummy, and it is a cinch that South has the remaining four cards in the suit by virtue of his opening bid. Since West is therefore marked with a void in hearts, and East can expect to take book for his side with the ace of spades and the king of diamonds, he should grab the lead without delay to make certain of giving partner a heart ruff.

While it is true that overtaking West's queen of spades with the ace may cost a trick if South started with two spades, that is a small price to pay for the assurance of defeating the game contract.

ARCOsupreme gasoline helps it breathe easy.

If you didn't know that, don't be surprised.

Most drivers don't know their car's engine functions like a mechanical lung.

Like you, a car needs air to run on.

You breathe each time your diaphragm rises and falls.

A car breathes each time the pistons rise and fall. The vacuum created by the pistons sucks in enormous amounts of air.

ARCOsupreme is a new gasoline that helps cars breathe in easy to breathe out cleaner. And by doing so, it helps solve a problem caused by some other gasolines. They leave behind deposits that can build up in an engine's breathing tubes—the carburetor, the intake manifold, the intake valves and the anti-pollution valve. ARCOsupreme's special breathing formula helps to keep the deposit from forming. So your car gets more mileage, uses less gasoline and less unburned hydrocarbons pollute the air.

ARCOsupreme is at your Atlantic station now. It's worth remembering. Because knowing your car breathes easy, should make you breathe easier.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
 The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Wheels in Motion

When the gears of a machine mesh together in motion, things begin to happen. Wheels turn, and power is transmitted to every part of the mechanism.

Prayer is something like that. Individual prayer is a vital and sacred thing. Each of us has moments when we—and we alone—must turn to God.

And collective prayer—mass prayer—can be a tremendous force for good too. It is as if thousands of "spiritual gears" suddenly were meshed together into a unit directed by a single purpose.

On Worldwide Communion Sunday, remember the power of collective prayer. Join with your neighbors throughout the globe by attending church and praying both for peace and for each other.
