Fiscal Year Report Made On Utilities

Greenville Utilities had a net income after city turnover of $620,572.95 for the fiscal year which ended June 30, the annual audit by CPA John C. Proctor, presented to the commissioners last night, showed.

Operating revenue for the year totalled $5,662,124.67 while operating expenses were $4,646,050.86. There was $27,725 in bond interest paid and miscellaneous revenue totalled $27,800.31. Turnover to the city government totalled $395,576.17.

The Utilities Commission also received $45,000 from the county government to extend utilities lines to the Burroughs-Wellcome site, there was a $39,406.77 increase in Consumers Deposits and depreciation amounted to $622,621.21.

During the year the commission spent for improvements and extensions: $945,255.57 for the electric department; $305,548.25 for the water department; $163,379.10 for the sewer department; $180,451.03 for the gas department and $51,288.56 for equipment and other items. Bond retirement during the year amounted to $95,000.

Invested funds increased by $139,042.49, inventory by $80,824.92 and cash on deposit by $113,534.59.

Accounts receivables decreased by $6,015.59, prepaid insurance decreased by $23,817.26; accounts payable increased by $16,890.26 and borrowed funds amounted to $700,000.

Proctor also reported that under the formula used to compute turnover to the city, the municipal government would receive $436,061.71 for the fiscal year 1971-72.

The Utilities Commission is owned by the city but is operated independently by its own board which is appointed by the council. An amount of turnover is computed annually which is paid to the city where it is used in the municipal government's operating budget.

Proctor said there was a 14.57 percent increase in kilowatt hours delivered to the customer during the fiscal year. He described this as the largest increase in ten years.

He reported that internal control of finances is well distributed among the personnel and he said he felt the commission's funds were being protected as well as possible.

UNDER ARREST — Angela Davis, first woman ever listed among the FBI's 10 most wanted fugitives, is escorted by two FBI agents after her arrest in New York last night. (AP Wirephoto)

Fugitive Angela Davis Is Captured By FBI At Manhattan Motel

NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Davis, the black militant philosophy instructor, has been arrested by the FBI at a motel after being sought for nearly two months on murder and kidnapping charges in a California courthouse shootout.

Miss Davis, 26, a former faculty member of the University of California at Los Angeles, is accused of purchasing the guns used in the courtroom breakout that took the lives of the judge and three others in San Rafael, Calif., Aug. 7.

Arrested with Miss Davis at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in midtown Manhattan Tuesday evening was David Rudolph Poindexter Jr., 36, also black, who was charged with harboring a fugitive. They were to be arraigned today.

FBI agents took Miss Davis into the U.S. Court House in Foley Square through a rear door about 9:30 a.m.

In front of the federal court, about 100 demonstrators chanted "Free Angela" and "Free our sister."

Miss Davis, whose public avowal of communism created a still unresolved academic freedom controversy at UCLA, was placed on the FBI's 10 Most-Wanted List after being charged in connection with the California shooting.

The FBI said it traced Miss Davis here through a car owned by Poindexter, who was born in Chicago and had reportedly been active in radical political organizations there in the early and mid 1960s.

In Miami Beach, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell said Tuesday night that a chance sighting of Miss Davis in south Florida led to her capture.

John Hushen, a Justice Department spokesman who was attending a political function with Mitchell, said Miss Davis was in the Miami area three weeks ago.

A young black pilot who asked not to be identified told an Associated Press newsman in Miami Beach that preparations had been made there to fly Miss Davis to Cuba from a deserted Miami airstrip.

Hospital Bond Need Stressed Bond Rally Told No Alternative

Woodrow W. Wooten, chairman of the Board of Pitt Memorial Hospital, spoke at a countywide leadership rally for the "Bonds for Your Life" campaign last night.

Over 100 civic and business leaders representing the county's 26 voting precincts attended the dinner meeting held at the Moose Lodge here. Wooten told of the vital need of the county for a new hospital to alleviate overcrowded conditions, reduce the waiting time for elective surgical patients, and function as a modern, efficient updated unit which would be expandable as the population of the county increases.

Wooten stressed, "There is no alternative to a yes vote on November 3, as the hospital is at the present in jeopardy of losing accreditation by the State of North Carolina based upon present conditions. The present conditions will become steadily worse and, at best, a new hospital cannot be completed for three years from a vote of approval on November 3."

He continued, "We now have the finest medical staff in Eastern North Carolina. However, we cannot expect to hold onto this staff or to attract new members to it without the proper facilities for them to work in.

"A community hospital is the only realistic answer," he said, "as otherwise room costs and other hospital services would be completely prohibitive price-wise, plus we would not receive any of the $2 million - government grant under any other plan."

Dr. J.W. Pou, general campaign chairman, re-emphasized the need for a new hospital which could expand from 330 beds to 500 to an eventual 700 beds if needed. All rooms would be private, he said, as suggested by hospital architectural consultants, but would be classified in different categories to fit all hospitalization plans.

Dr. Pou said the county precincts will begin their individual area kickoffs the week of October 26. Interested volunteers are urged to contact the campaign office at 758-4192.

Bonds Voted By Farmville

FARMVILLE—Farmville voters approved a $150,000 bond issue for water and sewer improvements in a special referendum yesterday.

The vote was 426 for; 60 against.

"We are very happy over this affirmative vote," Mayor Will Joyner said. "Now we can go forward immediately to get some much needed work done."

Town Clerk Carl Beaman said advertising of bids for all the jobs will be placed today.

"As soon as the 30-day advertising period is up, all the bids will be let hopefully the same day. We hope the contractors will begin work right away to get the work done before bad weather," Beaman said.

Two especially urgent projects are water and sewer extensions to the new consolidated school which is set to open January 25 and water and sewer extensions to a rest home now being built on the Highway 258 South outside Farmville which should open in December.

Other projects are water and sewer extensions to the Marlboro area, construction of a water storage tank in the Marlboro area, construction of a new well to be built outside the city limits off 264-A to serve the town, water and sewer extensions on Perry Street, and sewer extension to the public housing project now being built here.

The combined estimated cost is $322,000, but about half has been promised by federal grants which were contingent on this bond referendum.

Deputy Relates Stocks Statement After Arrest

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Testimony was concluded early this afternoon in the Thomas Earl Stocks rape-burglary trial under way in Pitt County Superior Court.

The state rested its case at 12:08 p.m.

The defense indicated at 12:14 p.m. that it would rest, without presenting evidence.

Pitt County Deputy Sheriff Dalton Respass this morning testified that Thomas Earl Stocks told officers during an interview on May 3, that he (Stocks) was involved in an April 27 rape and burglary at a Brook Valley home.

Judge Joshua S. James heard testimony Monday afternoon and yesterday relative to the admissibility of Stocks' alleged statement.

When the jury returned this morning, Respass told the court that officers were questioning Stocks about the Brook Valley incident when Stocks said, "Don't get me wrong, I'm guilty of the crime at Brook Valley, but my father is going to see Milton Williamson for me... After I see him, I'll give you all the details."

Respass said Stocks also told investigators he and Barber entered Whichard's Store in Grimesland about 10:30 or 11 p.m. April 26 and took some merchandise from the store, then "went down toward Black Jack."

During an interview May 5, when Stocks was questioned in the presence of Williamson, (who had been appointed by the court to represent the defendant) according to Respass "Stocks Barber was handling dope..." and that "he (Stocks) was using marijuana that night (April 26)."

The deputy added that during the May 5 interview, Stocks said he passed out after they arrived in the Black Jack area and "had no memory" of what occurred from that time until he awoke in the Mills' car at his home.

Respass said when asked if he had admitted his guilt to officers earlier Stocks replied, "I wouldn't say I did say that and I wouldn't say I didn't say that. I just don't remember."

Stocks took the stand in the absence of the jury yesterday and told the court that he had no memory of making any statement implicating himself in the alleged crime. He also said he was warned of his constitutional rights and was not intimidated during the time he was being questioned.

Elmo Barber, referred to in today's testimony, is a Negro who was tried on similar charges stemming from the rape-burglary incident during the August term of Superior Court. He was found guilty by a jury and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Immediately after both sides rested, Judge James recessed court until 2 p.m. when the attorneys for the defense, Williamson and co-counsel C.W. Everette Jr. and the prosecuting attorneys, District Solicitor Luther Hamilton Jr. and John B. Lewis are scheduled to begin their arguments before the jury.

Although paid attendance at the Pitt County Fair was 28 persons short of Tuesday night last year, fair manager S. C. Winchester said "I think more people were on the midway than they were last year."

Adult paid attendance last night totaled 2,314, while 26 children's tickets were sold after 9 p.m., Winchester explained.

Yesterday was Greenville City Schools Day and children were admitted free. There is no record kept of the number of students admitted, Winchester explained, or of the number of adults admitted on passes.

The fair, operated by the American Legion Posts of Greenville, Ayden and Farmville, features educational and commercial exhibits and livestock exhibits. The Buck-Page Exposition Shows are on the midway with 30 rides, 14 shows and some 80 concessions. Officials said the midway this year is the longest ever formed for the Pitt County Fair.

Today and Friday have been designated as Pitt County School Days and Pitt School students will be admitted free until 8 p.m.

Thursday is East Carolina University and Pitt Technical Institute Day and ECU and PTI students will be admitted for 50 cents upon presentation of their identification card.

A fireworks display will be featured each night except Saturday, at 9 o'clock.

Bomb Building At Harvard U.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A bomb exploded early today in a third-floor library of the Center for International Affairs at Harvard University after a warning telephone call. The blast blew out windows, shredded concrete and bent steel reinforcing rods in the ceiling.

Archibald Cox, a former U.S. solicitor general and now a Harvard law professor, described the damage as "a terrible mess." Cox spoke for the president at a news conference on campus shortly after the explosion.

Newsmen were barred from the building.

Cox said a woman with a "nervous" voice called campus police about 12:30 a.m. and warned, "There's a bomb at 6 Divinity Avenue... going to go off in six minutes. This is not a joke. Get the janitor out of there. Remember the Brooklyn courthouse and California."

Two police officers rushed to the building but found no one inside. After waiting outside for a few minutes they entered to search for a bomb. It exploded on the third floor just as they were inside the first-floor door. Neither was injured, nor were other injuries reported.

State Police Lt. Joseph Sainato, a bomb expert, said damage would run to $40,000.

Neither Cambridge nor Harvard police made any statement connecting the Harvard bombing with others in California, Washington and New York recently, or with radical groups. The Weatherman, a radical faction of Students for a Democratic Society, has said it has started a "fall offensive" to attack its enemies around the country.

The Harvard center has often been a target of radical students who refer to it in publications as a "tool of American imperialism." Police said leaflets denouncing the center's activities were circulated in Harvard Square Monday night by Harvard-Radcliffe Students for a Democratic Society.

School Board Awaiting Official ECU Decision

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

An agreement that the Greenville Schools Board of Education awaits an official decision from East Carolina University on change of time for Rose High School football games was reached at a special call meeting of the board yesterday afternoon.

The sole purpose of the special meeting was to discuss the matter of plans to alter the time of the next home football game to an afternoon time, instead of playing the game at night, as originally scheduled.

Also under consideration was the status of firm plans for Rose High's team to continue using Ficklin Stadium, at East Carolina University, as the site for home games.

Following half an hour of discussions, Sugg suggested that Board Chairman Dr. E. B. Aycock telephone university officials for a statement clarifying or verifying statements in the newspapers.

He also commented "if we can get an official decision, then we can act on that."

Dr. Aycock was unable to contact Dr. Jenkins during the board meeting, but assured the other members he would attempt to contact him in the morning.

School board members generally agreed that newspaper reports, telephone conversations and other expressions did not constitute an official action on which they could base action or a decision. At one point Sugg stated, "We ought to have a formal statement in writing." Later he pointed out, "We need to put this matter in our records so that the minutes can show action taken, and whatever the official statement sets forth."

At the beginning of the discussion, Dr. Aycock told the board members "I did not want to get caught in the middle of this, that is the reason I called Dr. Cleetwood. I wanted a full board meeting."

When asked if Dr. Leo Jenkins had contacted him, Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of the Greenville City School, stated he had not been contacted.

Saying that the decision to change the game to an afternoon one "may be the best answer," Dr. Cleetwood added "but the dramatic, unilateral action, when there is plenty of time before the game, is not the best possible course."

"I know," Dr. Cleetwood continued, "it is hard not to over react when people are hurt physically, but the truth is, progress has been made in the overall school situation. We had already decided on making a report to the school board at Monday night's regular meeting for the board's consideration and decision at that time."

"My opinion is that the decision is made," board member Dr. James Bearden commented. "I honestly don't believe we can change, after (Continued on page 16)

Sewer Outfall Expansion Needs Before Utilities

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector Managing Editor

Utilities Commissioners got a look at long range plans for a sewer outfall system in the area east and south of Greenville last night.

A study of the area was presented by representatives of Rivers and Associates engineering firm which had carried out the long range planning.

The study showed that a portion of the area still to be developed can be served by the present treatment plant location, although eventually two additional treatment plants would be required. There was also a limiting line to the south to which the local sewage system should logically be extended. The report recommended that Greenville Utilities should definitely establish the area as being in the GUCO sewer service area "and planning for the future expansions of sewers into this area should commence."

It suggested temporary lift stations be installed and sewers laid in the Pinewood Forest and Westhove subdivisions.

Commissioners last night turned over to City Manager Harry Hagerty, Director Charles Horne and Chairman Ed Waldrop the task of determining the proper forklift to purchase for utilities use. Horne presented three bids: N.C. Equipment Co., $8,450; Hendrix-Barnhill, $7,977.04 and Eastern Tractor, $11,366.96. He recommended the N.C. Equipment unit. Hagerty's motion to accept the low bid of Hendrix-Barnhill was not acted upon after Horne explained that the N.C. Equipment unit was equipped with an automatic transmission, which the other unit did not have. Commissioner Hoover Taft offered the motion to name a committee to study the units.

Director Horne reported also that plans have been completed for a sewage treatment plant expansion and bids for the project are expected to be called for late in November or early December. Commissioners, on Horne's recommendation, accepted the low bid of T.H. Faulkner for construction of a sewer outfall in Meadowbrook. The low bid was $15,920.

Commissioners also approved the low bid of N.C. Equipment Co. for an air compressor. The bid was $3,972.40.

Horne and Business Manager Larry Brown were instructed to study further a plan for authorizing local banks to accept Utilities bills payments. A report on arrangements which can be made with the banks was requested for the next meeting.

Commissioners also received for study a plan for budget billing for All-Electric customers.

Actress K. Callan Broke Into Film Part By Playing Footsies

ACTRESS K.
By NAOMI RUBINE
HOLLYWOOD (WNS) Ask actress K. Callan how to get your first part in a big film, and she'll tell you to play footsies with the director — literally!

Well, it may not be absolutely foolproof in every case, but for the young, blue-eyed Mary Lou in one of the year's biggest films, "Joe", the way to the director's heart was indeed through his sore feet.

"I went to read for the part," explains the Dallas-born actress, "and they didn't have a script yet. So director John Avildsen said we'd improvise a scene. He explained that Mary Lou was the kind of wife whose entire job was to keep her husband happy, to smooth things over for him, and just generally try to please. He said he'd be Joe (Mary Lou's husband and center of attention in the film) and I should do my thing.

It Worked
"Well, he was sitting there in his office with his feet on the chair in front of me. What more can a wife do to please her husband, I thought, than massage his feet? So I took off his shoe, and while we were talking, I rubbed his foot!"

It worked. So well, in fact, that at the end of 10 minutes, when K. (she spells it that way "just because") got ready to take off the other shoe, Avildsen "suddenly snapped back to reality, and said 'Okay, okay, that's fine, that's enough for now'."

That foot massage did more for K. Callan than all her years of commercials back in Dallas. It did more for the thirtyish mother of three children than the four years she'd spent in New York before the try-out.

Until that film audition, K. had done several commercials, some off-Broadway and television ("As the World Turns," "Route 66," and others), but no motion pictures. She'd even spent some time singing and playing guitar in Greenwich Village cafes, trying to support herself and three kids without having to live in a one-room apartment like the one they'd stayed in when they first arrived in Gotham.

Housewife Type
"I did all right in commercials because I really looked like the middle-class mid-West housewife — in fact, that's what I was." (Until her marriage broke up, she and her husband had lived in Oklahoma, where he went to school. When they split, it was either back to Dallas, or on to New York. She decided to take the chance on the big-time.)

"But it's really a mind-blower," says K., delighted over her "instant success." "Before, my freckle-face and red hair all fit, so I got commercial parts. But now the agents are actually looking for 'K. Callan types.' It's weird; I was a nice person before. How come they like me so much more now?" she asks rhetorically, with a smile that shows she understands only too well.

But while the graduate of North Texas State University will do more commercials ("I can't turn down what served as my bread-and-butter for four years" she's really interested now in doing more films, and she's already gotten several offers. Even more, the energetic actress would like to sing on Broadway.

Keep In Tow
When an actress truly "makes it" almost overnight, the obvious question is: "will success spoil...?" Say K.:

"It might be a bit different if I didn't have kids. But when you have three children, ages 7, 10 and 11, and you still to fix breakfast and do that whole routine (she doesn't begrudge it one bit, however), it kind of snaps you back into reality. Kind of keeps you in tow."

The kids are proud of their mom. "They keep drawing stars and pinning them up on my bedroom door," she says. "The other day, my little boy put one up, and underneath it, he wrote: 'K. Callan, Actor!'"

What's more, the "actor" rubs his feet for free!

Homemaker's Haven By Evelyn Spangler Pitt Home Agent

Home might be more of a haven for those ten million American disabled homemakers if only they and their families were aware of the many pieces of equipment available to them to make life a little easier. Of course, any homemaker would benefit by applying work-simplification principles at home, but when there is a handicap, it's imperative that tasks be simplified.

Basically, the handicapped homemakers must plan - she must practice good management. She might start by asking herself several questions - Is the job necessary? If so, when should it be done? Who should do the job? When should it be done? How should it be done?

There are several goods and pamphlets on the market to aid the handicapped homemaker. Call or write our Office for the Names. We also have some printed directions for making some very simple, inexpensive pieces of equipment for handicapped or disabled people. These items are in a kit at our office if you'd like to see them. We're located on the corner of Third and Greene Streets. Our telephone is 758-1196.

His Social Drinking Goes To Extremes

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I should entertain his clients more often, but lately every party is ruined by his conduct. Sometimes he arrives home that day already half intoxicated. He believes a good host should drink with his guests, load their drinks and keep their glasses filled.

When he drinks, his language grows profane — then obscene. If I give him one of those "you've had enough" looks, he tells me loudly to "get lost."

I know he needs professional help, but he turns a deaf ear to any such suggestion. He says he's a "social" drinker, but there is nothing social about a host who passes out on the sofa before his guests leave.

We owe so many invitations, and in his business it pays for us to entertain clients, but I just can't face another one of those evenings. People still ask us to their homes, and when we go, I have to drive us home.

Can you help me, Abby?

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: There is no help for the person who refuses to admit that he needs help. It may take a boot in the bank balance to get your husband to face reality. In the meantime, try to figure out why your man can't face life sober. Drinking is a symptom of deeper trouble.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me why it is that when a son reaches physical maturity and has affairs with the opposite sex his father will excuse his actions with, "Oh, boys will be boys . . . he is only sowing his wild oats."

But just let a daughter do the same thing and she's apt to get kicked out of the house and called a tramp.

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: It's the same kind of cockeyed thinking that makes Mr. Wonderful want to pulverize the rat who would attempt to violate his sister's virtue, yet he does his darndest to get a chick in the feathers without realizing that she's somebody's sister.

DEAR ABBY: Men complain because their wives are "cold." May I tell you about my marriage? My husband and I both work. I have tried to draw him into conversations about my work, because it is fascinating, but he isn't interested. And he never says a word about his work, altho I ask lots of questions, hoping to generate a little conversation between us.

Our "day" together is Sunday. And this is what it's like: I am up at 8 a. m. He sleeps until noon.

When he gets up, lunch is ready for the family, but he wants only coffee.

Around 3 p. m. he eats lunch alone, and fixes a snack for the kids which ruins the nice meal I've prepared for the evening.

The afternoon is for viewing sports on TV and he gets up hourly to change the channel. Sunday night is his night to "relax" so we don't go anywhere. I go to bed at 9:30 as I've spent my day cooking and cleaning. He hits the hay after the late movie. Then he starts looking for an affectionate bed partner.

I wonder how many married women are eager to make love to a stranger who hasn't talked to them all week.

"COLD" WITH GOOD REASON

DEAR ABBY: My husband thinks you should settle something. Our children are 5, 4 and 2 years old, and my husband insists that every time they want something at the dinner table, they should say, "Please." And when they get it, they should say, "Thank you." That makes a lot of "pleases" and "thank you's" at the dinner table. What is your opinion?

K. P.

DEAR K. P.: I'm with your husband. And please say, "Thank you" to him for allowing me to settle it.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Wifely Restraint For Future Gain

CHICHESTER, ENGLAND (WNS)—Peter Ascher, 27, was given a suspended sentence for stealing $24 and warned by the judge that if he is caught in another crime, he will lose his $100,000 inheritance from his step-father which stipulates that he must stay out of jail. Ascher promptly arranged to marry fiancée Carol Shoet, 16, immediately. "A man needs a woman to keep him on the straight and narrow," said Ascher. Carol said that she and her groom will honeymoon in Spain for three years until the inheritance comes due.

Nasser's Widow, Tahia, Rarely Has Been Seen Publicly

By ANGELE DET. GINGRAS
WASHINGTON (WNS) — With the passing of Gamal Abdel Nasser, President of the United Arab Republic, his wife, Tahia, will probably go right on living unnoticed in Egypt.

Prior to the worldwide TV coverage of the Arab leader's funeral procession, almost nobody knew what she looked like. With his demise she is expected to again melt into the background.

In a statement after she left her husband's deathbed, she is reported to have said, "I want nothing. I've never wanted anything in my life except him. He was not a President to me, he was my husband. My only hope is to be buried at his side."

In the years of her husband's leadership of the Arab world, Tahia Nasser could shop unrecognized without security guards. "With a woman companion she visits the Cairo stores to buy her grandchildren's clothing that she does not make herself and to purchase her own simple Western garments," according to Pauline Frederick in "Ten First Ladies of the World" (Meredith, 1967).

Concerts

Mrs. Nasser also attended concerts, operas and ballet as just one of many women, and stopped unnoticed at a cafe afterward, if she chose, for pastry and coffee.

More than once she heard her husband speak from a place as inconspicuous as that in Alexandria in 1956 when she listened to him deliver one of his most important addresses. Before a hundred thousand people massed in Liberation Square she heard Nasser proclaim, "Suez belongs to us."

She was sitting, not on the platform beside the President, but in an obscure seat on the balcony of a nearby building.

All this was possible because by 1959 Tahia Nasser had attended only two state dinners. In part because of his effort to restore Egypt's dignity after King Farouk's philandering, Nasser suggested that official ladies should appear in public as little as possible, and then under the most discreet circumstances.

Tahia was quite content to follow this idea, glad that it meant no disruption of her modest ways.

In the early years of his presidency, Nasser acted as host at state functions in the palace, but always alone. He accepted invitations only for himself, even when the wives of other officials were on the guest list.

Yugoslavia

In 1959 Tahia and her five children went to Yugoslavia on a state visit but her picture with Marshal Tito and his wife was never printed in the Egyptian press. In 1960 when Nasser took her with him to Ethiopia, she appeared in pictures with Emperor Haile Selassie but was not identified in the captions.

Gamal Abdel Nasser leaves five children. The daughters,

Hoda and Mona, are married, and the sons, Khaled, Abdel-Hamid and Hakin, are in secondary schools or beginning college. Tahia, in her middle forties, has had time these past years for her music and needlepoint.

For many years, Tahia entertained at a relaxing dinner once a month for her husband's oldest and closest friends, some of whom had lowly stations in life.

Hard Work For All Tar Heels

Associated Press writer Yvonne Baskin's recent article on pollution in North Carolina should make us all realize that we Tar Heels are going to have to work very hard to keep our environment as clean as it is.

So far our air and the water ways in North Carolina have remained relatively clean and some people fear that this may be part of the problem.

Trends Set In Varied Centers

By BRYAN HAISLIP
HIGH POINT — It's Paris for hemlines. It's Detroit for autos. It's High Point for furniture.

Sensing the Future
The market itself is something like a horse race. It deals with the ability to identify future trends, and make the correct decisions in advance.

"The logistics of the industry are such that buying decisions must be made four to six months ahead," explained Heer. "The buyers at the October market will be making commitments for their spring business."

A mood of optimism prevails that the fall market will provide a good volume of business for manufacturers. "There are signs that the downturn in the economy is about over, and that improvement will become noticeable within the next 30 to 60 days," Heer said.

"All portents are that it will be a rewarding kind of market which should manifest itself in orders over the next few months."

The 30 acres of display space in the Southern Furniture Exhibition Building is a major facet in the furniture market complex which stretches to Thomasville, Lexington, Hickory, Lenoir and Drexel. Along that route is another 1 1/4 million square feet of display area in the showrooms of individual manufacturers and in satellite markets.

Buyers scatter over the route. As a rule of thumb, Heer explained half will begin the route in the west and move east, while the other half starts east and goes west. "Coverage of the entire area is necessary for the buyer who wants the total view of what the market has to offer," he said.

Design for the Masses
Between the world wars, Americans in the middle income groups bought utility furniture. Quality design was available, but it was limited to the upper 10 to 12 per cent of the market.

Immediately before and following World War II there came the realization of fashion as a factor in choosing home furnishings. The challenge was to provide furniture of good design and quality construction for the mass market.

At the same time, the shelter magazines were developing an audience among homemakers and stimulating a consumer interest in homes which would have beauty and taste for individual expression as well as utility.

The convergence of these trends gave emphasis to the South as a furniture production center, Heer said. "Gradually other markets began to lose prominence on a national basis," he said.

"Regional markets have continued, and have proliferated over the past decade. There are markets which may exceed ours in attendance, but in buying power represented there is not another one which can challenge us."

That is that pollution will have to get worse before the public becomes aroused enough to do anything about it. By then, of course, it could very well be too late.

Earlier this week Greenville was shrouded by a heavy smog. No one is certain just what caused the smog since there were no reports of major emission problems in the area. The best guess seemed to be that the fog mixed with the usual fumes and smoke to cause the problem.

It is rare for Greenville to be afflicted with the smog problem, primarily because our city has not grown to the size where there are enough fumes to cause it. However, the experience earlier this week is a good example of what can happen. If exhausts and fumes are not controlled in the future, then the problem can become more severe here and throughout North Carolina.

North Carolina's five million people are relatively spread out; consequently environmental pollution problems have not yet plagued us as they have more populous areas. It is a situation where we have to run to stand still, though. We must control unnecessary burning of wastes; we must control the dumping of sewage and chemicals in our water ways and each of us must resolve not to dump our trash irresponsibly along the highways.

We can keep what we have, but it will take effort.

Farmer Takes Risks; Gravy To The Govm't

It must be discouraging to the tobacco farmer to learn that while he takes all the risks in growing his crop the government gets the gravy.

That seems to be the case, however, according to figures released by the Tobacco Tax Council's executive director William A. O'Flaherty.

He says the tobacco grower grosses about $1,407 per acre. At all levels of government the tax on tobacco produced on one acre amounts to $7,462.

It is just another example of how small the farmer's percentage is of the total dollar for which his product is sold.

Psychological War By Nixon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A still muffled chorus of complaints from political critics that President Nixon should have presented his cease-fire proposal in the privacy of secret negotiations instead of over worldwide television misses the basic point of the Nixon plan.

The President and top advisers who have been closely watching the North Vietnamese government were certain that Hanoi would unleash its usual invective against any cease fire plan. Before the Communists get down to hard bargaining at Paris, they must improve their military position — probably starting with a swallowing up of Cambodia.

Accordingly, it made no difference whether Mr. Nixon proposed his plan in secret or in a shout. The results that the Nixon administration hopes will flow from it, though nothing so dramatic as a battlefield truce, are vitally important in the realm of psychological warfare.

What those few critics of Mr. Nixon's public diplomacy failed to realize is that a private proposal would have had no such effect.

First, and most obviously, Mr. Nixon was seeking a proposal that would attract a unanimity of support among U. S. politicians not seen since autumn of 1964. Since Hanoi has always counted on winning the Vietnam war in the United States, unanimity here might — in time — induce North Vietnam to scale down war aims.

Second, Mr. Nixon was seeking to undercut the hitherto high resolve of the North Vietnamese population. Recent telltale signs of home-front troubles for Hanoi could multiply when the word gets out that the government has rejected a cease-fire and prisoner exchange.

As a result, even though a negotiated settlement is still a long way off, the U. S. psychological warfare position is better than at any time since President Johnson intervened massively. For a change, the next move is Hanoi's.

The attempt to build a broad range of home support behind Mr. Nixon to impress Hanoi, strongly urged by Ambassador David Bruce, has been a success so far. Words of praise from former Ambassador Averell Harriman, frequently quoted by Radio Hanoi as a war critic, could impress the Communists. The Administration shulzed hard at it. George Shultz, powerful head of the Office of Management and Budget, on his own called prominent doves outside of government urging them to watch Mr. Nixon's speech and, if they like it, to comment on it.

conceivably more productive goal of dividing Hanoi's home front is based on unmistakable signs of disquiet from North Vietnam's war widows, dependents of soldiers now in South Vietnam, relatives of captured soldiers, and repatriated wounded veterans — adding up to an incredible 50 percent of the entire population by some estimates.

There is strong evidence that low-level Communist cadres are gobbling up

Bank-Building Nation

WASHINGTON — Every time an old building is torn down in this country, and a new building goes up, the ground floor becomes a bank.

The reason for this is that banks are the only ones who can afford the rent for the ground floor of the new buildings going up. Besides, when a bank loans someone money to build a new building, it usually takes an option for the street-floor facilities. Most people don't think there is anything wrong with this and they accept it as part of the American free enterprise system. But there is a small group of people in this country who are fighting for Bank Birth Control.

This is how Huddleston Hubbard, the BBC's chairman, explained it:

"Whenever you see an old building torn down," Hubbard said, "you usually see a candy store, a dry cleaner, a delicatessen and possibly a florist torn down with it. These shops are all replaced in the new building with a beautiful glass, aluminum, wall-to-wall carpeted money-factory."

"Now from an esthetic viewpoint, a bank looks better than a dry cleaner, a candy store, a delicatessen and a florist. But from a practical point of view, it's a sheer disaster. If you want a newspaper, a candy bar or a chocolate milk shake, you can't get it at a bank. Nor can you run out to a bank for a pound of Swiss cheese and a six-pack of beer when you have guests coming over."

"A bank is great if you want to buy a car, but it's useless if you want to have your dress cleaned."

"And while a bank might buy flowers to give itself a human image, it doesn't sell any when you want to make up with your wife."

"What you're saying then, Mr. Hubbard, is that every time a bank goes up, something in all of us dies."

"Exactly. One of the reasons kids are getting in so much trouble these days is that there are no candy stores to hang around any more. When they tear down a delicatessen, the tangy smells of potato salad, salamis, corned beef and dill pickles are lost forever. Unless you're trying to make a loan, no one ever salivates in a bank."

"It's true," I said.

"The situation is more crucial than anyone thinks," Hubbard said. "At the rate they're tearing down consumer stores and replacing

Other Editors Say The Major Feature

(The Raleigh Times)

Liquor-by-the-drink advocates say they believe the 1971 General Assembly probably will approve local option votes on that matter.

The Assembly may do just that, or it may refuse to do so. In its consideration of this potentially explosive matter, the legislators should keep the two major issues in the forefront of their thinking:

This is an attempt to secure passage of a law to permit some North Carolina individuals and businesses to make a personal profit from the sale of liquor.

This is a direct attack on the basis of North Carolina liquor legislation, which is the state control of alcohol sales and the limitation of profits from such sale to governmental agencies.

Advocates of liquor-by-the-drink call their committee the "Right To Vote Committee" of the North Carolina Travel Council. The reasoning they are trying to sell the public and the legislators is that the basic feature of the bill is the right of local communities to decide on whether certain restaurants shall be permitted to sell liquor by the drink. The idea is that such sales will boost travel and convention business, which would increase the personal profits of those individuals and businesses which deal with tourists and conventions.

Former Governor Dan Moore opposed this measure when he was in office, on grounds that North Carolina's liquor laws are based on state control. His opposition was well grounded then, and it is well grounded now. The legislature followed his advice at that time, and it should follow that sound advice in 1971.

When the 1935 legislature passed the first ABC laws, it made the word "Control" the key word in that legislation. It has continued to be the key word, and it should continue to hold that position.

The State ABC Board sets up rules and regulations controlling the sale of liquor by local governmental units across the State. It sets the prices, it determines which brands shall be sold, it determines the manner in which they shall be sold. The law controls the way in which liquor shall be consumed, limiting it to home use except in cases of "brown bagging". The custom of brown bagging has served acceptably.

Under State law, only governmental units now get the profit from liquor sales. This is part of the control motive, in that the governmental units take the position that their chief point is to control alcohol, not to make a profit out of it.

This dual basis of control and of no private profits should be continued in North Carolina's handling of liquor.

Never Liked Smoker

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For the younger half of my life I planned to be a ballet dancer. I divided the world into people who danced and people who didn't. Dancing was the neat, disciplined, healthy world of orange juice and steak. Journalism was the most opposite extreme—given to coffee, cigarettes and tension.

As fate would have it, journalism is where I wound up, and my colleagues' smoking habits continue to amaze and appall me.

Take the first editor I met. He interviewed me with cigarette in hand.

I was so busy watching the ashes dribbling down his sleeve and chair onto the carpeting that I missed the part where he explained how "cub reporters" were supposed to learn their craft on the job and that I should, therefore, spend my college summer working six days a week for a salary I'm still trying to forget.

Today, I know a very charming white-haired editor and former foreign correspondent, who dresses immaculately—and deposits the butts from 2 1/2 packs on the floor at his typewriter every day.

I once worked a shift starting at 7 a.m. and the man who got off at that time smoked a pipe—which apparently was cleaned out onto the floor periodically during the early morning hours.

By the time I sat down on the desk, the floor crunched like the bottom of a monkey cage. I requisitioned a broom and swept out every morning.

A magazine advertising artist I knew composed her best layouts stretched out on her stomach on the floor, puffing a cigar.

Smokers have a special talent for arranging their tobacco objects in ashtrays so that the smoke wafts away from them and under the nose or into the eyes of the closest nonsmoker.

I have a special affection for the few airlines which ask if you want a smoking or nonsmoking seat.

Would that bars, party-givers and offices did the same.

And to be absolutely, perfectly honest, a whiff of tobacco at the wrong time can do more to kill a romance than a whole passel of other women.

Strength For Today

POLLUTION
We are hearing a great deal today about pollution, the problem that has crept up on us without our realizing that it existed.

There undoubtedly is a great deal to what authorities in this field declare to be true. Certain manufacturing processes create waste that when dumped into rivers or sent out into the air endangers the life and health of human beings. Our planet is surrounded by a blanket of atmosphere, and it is easy for this atmosphere to become contaminated. We have been turning waste material into streams for so many years that it doesn't seem to manufacturers that any other procedure is possible. But it is reasonable to suppose that we may sometime so pollute the air, water and other physical factors upon which we depend for life that it would be hard for the human race to keep on going. Think of the massive energy that is thrown out into the air when smoke rolls out of the smoke stacks of manufacturing concerns.

This is a system that, of course, cannot be changed in a few months, but it had better be changed before we get to the place that we have no more strength left to change anything. We all need an added sense of responsibility to keep our environment clean for ourselves and others.

And let us not forget that we are primarily spiritual beings and as such we can be spiritually corrupted — polluted. Moral and spiritual pollution constitute the most deadly variety of such hazard.

Alert—government, school, industry, church. Here is a great problem that simply has to be solved.

Risking Insurance Regulation

By ELMER ROESSNER
The insurance companies of America are risking federal regulation and possibly state or federal competition.

ELMER ROESSNER

The insurance industry's image has probably never been worse. It is not entirely insurance companies' fault. Their labor costs have shot up. It is no longer possible to hire a girl for $30 a week. This and other costs have forced Automation has become a requisite, demanding greater capital investment. Even worse is the great American generosity with other people's money. (Must go deeper into that some day, including how much fun it is for Congress, school boards, city governments, etc., to spend other people's money.) Juries' awards in insurance cases are often fantastically large.

In some jurisdictions, attorneys are not allowed to tell jurors that compensation awards are tax free and jurors, in their ignorance, increase awards to cover imagined tax bites.

Multiple Regulators
Because Congress has left policing of insurance companies to the states, 50 state regulatory bodies have been created. Most charge the insurance industries fees and all of them have different sets of regulations, adding to insurance companies' costs, which are passed on to customers.

Because of financial mismanagement, a swig of companies have failed during recent years. This has not improved the industry's image.

Casualty insurance companies have been denounced for their refusals, not without imperative reasons, to sell insurance in ghetto and riot-prone areas. Only a week ago the District of Columbia city council rapped companies and the district insurance superintendent for failure to provide crime insurance at affordable rates.

Auto Insurance Problem
Many antagonism have aroused antagonism by getting out of auto liability insurance, or taking only exceptionally fine risks. Many states have set up assigned-risk plans whereby people who cannot buy insurance in the market are assigned to insurance companies in proportion to their business in the state, for special policies of limited amounts and at high rates. This system increases the rates careful drivers must pay.

So many insurance policies were cancelled in New Jersey that the state, in an emergency action, interdicted further cancellations. Meanwhile, policies are being cancelled by hundreds in New York, Connecticut, Illinois and other states.

In Massachusetts, where no-fault auto insurance and a 15 per cent rate cut goes into effect Jan. 1, almost all insurance companies are pulling out even before the plan is tested (It could save the insurance companies millions). The state is considering forming its own insurance system.

Kentucky polled 2,140 persons at the state's 1970 fair and found that only 39.6 per cent of policyholders thought insurance companies treat policyholders fairly.

The board members instructed Town Manager Peter Vandenberg to have the Planning Board conduct a study on the feasibility of such a zone.

Quang Doi Nhan Dan, the army newspaper, has mentioned "shortcomings in aid to families whose sons and brothers fight in faraway places." Another newspaper, Hanoi Moi, has proclaimed that young men can "join the army with enthusiasm and free from anxiety because in the rear their families were assured" good treatment by the government — an attempt to erase obvious doubts on that score.

Now, on top of this unrest, the war-weary home front confronts the disquieting news that its government has turned down Mr. Nixon's offered end to the killing and exchange of all war prisoners. The U. S. problem is how to get this word to the masses (no easy task in view of the fact that Washington forewore leaflets along with bombing in 1968).

In fact, steady deterioration of North Vietnamese morale is essential to a negotiation on any basis other than abject U. S. surrender.

Buchwald . . .

(Continued from page 4) them with banks, we estimate that in 10 years it will be impossible to buy a loaf of bread in the country. What good is it to get 7 per cent on your money, if you starve to death?"

"Then what you're saying is that it isn't a question of not taking it with you. It's a question of staying alive while you have it," I said. "Something like that,"

Hubbard agreed. "We're trying to get the public to wake up to the fact that it's better to have a store that sells screwdrivers than a bank that gives away alarm clocks."

"What's the solution?" "A government decree that a bank has to supply the same services of the stores it tore down on the same property. It's a bakery, they have to sell cake; if it's a photography shop, they have to develop film; and if it's a dry-goods store, they have to sell warm underwear. If they provide the services of the stores they tore down, then we'll let them do a little money lending on the side."

Ground Now Broken For New Church In Farmville

NEW FARMVILLE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH . . . An architect's rendering of the new sanctuary, educational building, and offices begun this week.

FARMVILLE — Ground was broken for the new Farmville United Methodist Church complex Sunday.

Layman's Day Sunday was celebrated with an assembly by the congregation first at the present church at 100 West Church Street. Stacy Simmon, the architect for the new church unit, spoke outlining the general design, the ecclesiastical meaning, and the utilitarian purposes of the new structure. Irvin Morgan Jr. commented on the financing of the new building. The congregation was then dismissed to reassemble at the new church site at the intersection of West Church Street and Highway 264-A west.

At this site, which is adjacent to the Benjamin May DAR Chapter House, the Rev. Howard M. McLamb, superintendent of the Greenville District of North Carolina Methodism, read the opening scripture and made a statement of purpose. Also taking part in this ceremony were James Howard Harris Jr., the Church's minister of youth, who read Scripture, and the pastor, the Rev. Jack L. Hunter, who made the "Statement of Declaration" charging the congregation "to cause a Church to rise here."

Those who led the turning of spades of ground symbolic of the new church were the Rev. McLamb; the Rev. Hunter Harris; Thomas G. Bullock, chairman of the Administrative Board; Dr. Bert B. Warren, chairman of the Council on Ministries; Marvin V. Jones, chairman of Church Trustees; Morgan, Church Lay Leader; Robert T. Monk Sr., chairman of the Building Committee; Joseph D. Joyner Sr., chairman of the Site Committee; Vance B. Taylor, president of the United Methodist Men; Mrs. Robert T. McLaughy, president of the Women's Society of Christian Service; J. Howard Harris, superintendent of the Study Program; William C. Monk Sr., chairman of the Commission on Finance; Miss Sarita Hardy, president of the United Methodist Youth; Charles Joyner, coordinator of Youth Ministries; Mrs. Jack Tyson, coordinator of Children's Ministries; and Mrs. A. W. Smith, coordinator of Adult Ministries.

The entire congregation was then requested to break ground.

The building has been planned by Freeman - White Associates Inc. of Charlotte. The sanctuary was designed by Rambusch of New York and the offices and educational facilities by Omnia Design Inc. of Charlotte. Lewis Clarke Associates of Raleigh is designing the landscaping. Davidson and Jones of Raleigh is the general contractor.

Bank Bandit Costs Cut Into Dairy Profits

WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP)—A bandit told a bank teller he wanted $4,500. She gave him about $4,000 and he left without counting.

The robber, carrying a pistol and with adhesive bandages disguising his face, escaped with the cash Tuesday.

Police said the man, dressed in hunting clothes, walked into the branch of the Wachovia Bank a little before the 5 p.m. closing time.

A teller, Mrs. Ruby Braddy, was pulling down one of the blinds. She told police the robber pulled down the other blind and handed her a note saying, "I want $4,500."

After she brought him about $4,000 the man put Mrs. Braddy, another teller and a customer into a restroom.

She told police he shouted, "I'm still after you" just before he left in an automobile.

Police believe a second man who was waiting in the getaway car, and they broadcast an alert for a car with two men in it.

RALEIGH (AP) — Shifting nervously from foot to foot, the dairy farmer stood before the North Carolina Milk Commission and ticked off a lengthy list of increases in the cost of his operation.

Feed costs, up 10 per cent.
Fertilizer, up 24 per cent.
Labor, up 4 per cent.
Equipment, up 10 per cent.
Interest on borrowed money, up 28 per cent.

"It's hard to keep going when things are like that," said the speaker, Bill Lawrence, operator of a Randolph County dairy.

Lawrence was one of a long line of persons who appeared at a commission hearing Tuesday on a request for a 3 per cent increase in the producer price of milk, a boost which probably could bring a hike of one cent per quart at the retail level.

Lawrence was considerably less eloquent than many of the speakers, but his story summed up what they all painted as the dairy farmer's plight: Soaring inflation continually nibbling away at his profits.

"We're in an era of unprecedented inflation," said James Walker, a spokesman for Dairy-men, Inc., one of two organizations which made the original request for the price increase.

The commission listened closely to the speakers and said it would rule later. About 200 persons attended the hearing, and virtually no opposition to the price hike was expressed.

The commission controls only the price paid to producers — which now is $7.40 per hundred pounds. But those who are considering the issue are well aware that any increase would be passed along to the consumer.

Charles D. Colvard, manager of the North Carolina Milk Producers Federation, said some dairy farmers might be forced out of business unless the commission grants the increase.

He said 30 per cent of the state's dairy farms are losing money and another 30 per cent are earning less than $6,000 per year.

Unless something is done, Colvard said, "It must be expected that some of these will discontinue production."

Colvard said that a retail increase of one cent a quart would cost the average family of four $3.35 a year.

The State Farm Bureau asked for an increase of 3.38 per cent, or 25 cents a hundred pounds. But a liaison committee appointed by the North Carolina Dairy Products Association urged that the boost not exceed 20 cents a hundred.

Dairyman Jack Shore of Yadkin County said any boost of less than 23 cents a hundred would benefit the processors more than farmers.

This is because a penny-a-quart retail price hiked by processors and merchants would be the equivalent of about 46 cents a hundred for farm-produced raw milk.

"How can we call it a producer raise if we don't get half of it?" Shore asked.

'Sounding Board' Today Serves As Liaison Body

The Rose High PTA Sounding Board, appointed from members of Rose High Parents Teachers Association, members of the school staff, and students, is well on its way to becoming what the name implies — a sounding board for the community, a liaison group between the school and the people.

This board, set up to be a contact and action group in the city, in a sense is carrying on the impromptu work performed during critical days at Rose High last year by the ad hoc Citizens Awareness Committee.

"I feel this group can give me a sampling of the feeling in the community, an indication of thinking among the people," Robert Alligood, principal of Rose High, said about the group. "It is designed to let us know how things really are, so that we can have a better understanding. In this way anybody with gripes or grievances can clear these up. We can find out the real cause for grievances, and find out if and why true information is not getting across to people."

Mrs. Jack Wilkerson is chairman of the Rose High Sounding Board. She was appointed to fill the post by Kelly Darden, president of Rose High PTA.

Others in the membership of the board are Benny Roundtree, James (Pete) Hagans, Harry A. Allen, Jr., Percy Cox, Mrs. John L. Wooten, Mrs. Martha

Chapman and Mrs. Margy Perkins. Teachers on the board are Mrs. Grace Carraway and Charles S. Plater. The two students representatives are Ernest C. Adams, Jr. and Connie Minges, president and vice-president of the Student Government body.

"We meet religiously the first Tuesday night of each month at Rose High," Mrs. Wilkerson commented. "At these meetings we have an opportunity to discuss anything parents or children are concerned about," Mrs. Wilkerson noted. "Anyone, whether a parent, student or anyone else, is always encouraged to attend. We are there to listen, and are glad to be of service in any way we can."

Alligood, referring to the presence of parents on hand on several occasions this year during times of stress, said "We have always been interested in getting parents in school at such times, and it has been a good thing."

"I feel students are definitely responding to the interest shown by parents in being there. I only hope we can continue this program."

Alligood stated his belief that "anytime we get ideas, concepts from parents, when we have interested parents, teachers and students, black and white, working together on whatever it takes to make Rose High a better place, then good things are bound to happen."

One of the general problems Mrs. Wilkerson mentions, which she hopes can be resolved soon, is one dealing with wider representation among parents as visitors to the school whenever the need arises, and for participation in other activities.

"We have about 140 to 150 parents who have volunteered, and many of them have been on hand, in the hallways and around the school," she commented. "But we do need more participation by Negro parents."

Mrs. Wilkerson acknowledged that because of working commitments and for other reasons, it's not always an easy matter for a parent to find time to volunteer for this. "I do hope, despite this," she said "that we can get more of our Negro parents involved in this program. Their participation is vital to making this an even more successful program."

Urge Opposing Limit On Rates

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—The North Carolina Association of Broadcasters has called on the state's representatives in Congress to oppose a bill to set a maximum rates stations could charge certain political candidates.

The Political Advertising Bill was vetoed by President Nixon Monday, but some congressmen are considering an attempt to override the veto.

The resolution opposing the bill was passed at the broadcasters' annual convention.

Rennie To Speak At UNC

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—One of the seven defendants in the Chicago conspiracy trial, Rennie Davis, plans to speak twice on the Chapel Hill campus of the University of North Carolina Friday.

Davis will speak first to a political science class with about 1,000 students enrolled. The class meets in Memorial Hall, the university's main auditorium, and brings speakers with a wide range of political views to the campus.

Davis is to speak later at a public gathering under the sponsorship of the New University Conference, an organization of activist graduate students.

A Language For Blind Is Shaping Up

NEW YORK (UPI)—The blind soon may have a new language—or series of languages—of their own called Spelltalk.

Spelltalk in English might sound deceptively like Chaucerian Old English or Anglo-Saxon. Actually it simply is a letter-by-letter phonetic rendition of any text without variations in the sounds of either consonants or vowels. For example, the word "Once" comes out "ownkun."

Spelltalk is the creation of a company called Siltronics, Inc., of Oakmont, Pa., and a team of scientists at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh. Its purpose is to develop a cheap and fast way of reducing virtually all printed matter to sound records for the blind.

Dr. Everard Williams of Carnegie Mellon and Joel Silverman of Siltronics believe Spelltalk is in its way "as challenging as outer space."

Spelltalk already has been tested on groups of blind for some months in Pittsburgh and it has been demonstrated that they can learn to understand the letter-by-letter phonetic talk.

Since only 25,000 of the more than one million blind in the United States can read Braille, any oral recording system for the blind is useful but all standard recording methods require a human reader and can store only a relatively small amount of copy—up to about an hour's listening—on fairly expensive disks or tapes.

Spelltalk eliminates most of the recording cost by using the standard perforated tape made by the compositors to set the book in type in the first place. This tape is run through the Spelltalk converter which turns each letter into a single sound on a magnetic tape. From this tape are made cheap paper disks capable of holding an entire 300-page book on a single side. These disks can be played back only eight or 10 times at very slow speed on a special record player.

The player will cost $400 or more but it will last many years and can be used by several blind persons.

The big advantage, said Dr. Williams, is that it makes it possible to record almost anything printed in oral form for the blind very cheaply.

Spelltalk, of course, is expressionless and until one gets used to it, it takes some guessing to get the sense out of it, but the tests so far indicate it works pretty well, Silverman said.

New Reactor Is 'Midget'

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (UPI)—A midget nuclear reactor—nine inches in diameter and 10 inches high—has been put into operation at Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. here and officials of the government company have high hopes for its future.

Called "Slowpoke", the reactor "is designed to be safe, reliable and maintenance-free, to turn off and on with the flick of a switch, and to run for as long as 10 years without being recharged with fuel," the company said.

The reactor is suitable for "neutron activation analysis", a highly accurate means of identifying and measuring the chemical elements in a material by bombarding it with neutrons. The company said it could be used in research, industry, archaeology, criminology and pollution control.

Slowpoke—which stands for "Safe Low Power Critical Experiment"—also produces short-lived radioisotopes used for medical treatments, university and hospital research and forensic science.

Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. said the reactor and all its auxiliary equipment would occupy floor space of about 16 to 20 feet and could be operated safely by relatively unskilled personnel.

Following further experiments, the company's commercial products division will build a prototype, and consider the possibility of manufacturing and selling the reactor.

Egyptian
Desperado
On The Run

By RAY WILKINSON
CAIRO (UPI) —Egypt's most wanted desperado is once more
on the run.

The kingdom he carved out in the southern desert is smashed and a plantation of hashish bushes from which he made a fortune has been destroyed.

Abu Omar, 28, and a gang of 300 fugitives for years terrorized the Al Ghanayem area, a region of graceful palm trees, citrus fruits and mud brick homes in the heart of Egypt's untamed south. Nearby was the desert, honeycombed with caves hiding hundreds of other escapees from the law.

Abu Omar's band ruled by the gun in an area the government has never been able to fully control. The swarthy gang leader was wanted for five murders himself. His men were responsible for many of the 75
slayings recorded in the district in the last two years, police said.

Protected by his guns,
speaking out from a ring of mud hut "strongpoints," Omar reaped a personal fortune from the thousands of hashish bushes
he planted in the rich soil of the Nile Valley floor.

Reinforced by regular troops,
scores of police have sealed off Omar's stronghold and besieged
it. In a climactic battle lasting 17 hours, they overran the area.

Police said Omar's gang, firing from behind trees, from trenches and from the tops of houses, were killed or rounded up.

Omar, however, slipped through the net with some close followers and vanished via one of the many trails and tunnels
in the area.

The government said "a number of police and soldiers were killed" in the engagement.

At least 10 villagers were slain during the fighting.

Police leveled the area,
uprooted the hashish plants and vowed to bring law and order to the region. They put Omar at the top of their wanted list.

According to government figures, authorities have poured $223 million into the area for development. But it remains a wild region of vendetta, child bride marriages, murders and almost no law and order.

Omar, like most of wanted men living in desert caves and raiding Nile Valley homes for food, became a fugitive through the vendetta.

Members of his family were gunned down by a second family. Omar revenged their deaths and was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1966.

He surrounded himself with other fugitives and established his little kingdom in the desert, safe behind his ring of guns
until police moved into the area in force.

Omar fled into the desert.
The police pulled out after the battle, leaving the area once more free territory for hot-blooded Egyptian families to settle old scores on.

Says Australia
Very 'Urbanized'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A UCLA professor says despite the large amount of "out back"
land unoccupied in Australia, 84 per cent of the Australian population is classified as urban, compared with 72 per cent in the United States.

Professor Tom L. McKnight,
in a book entitled "Australia's Corner of the World; A Geographical Summation," says
57 per cent of Australia's population is concentrated in its seven largest cities while only 20 per cent of the United States' inhabitants live in America's seven largest cities.

Roaches Found To Relish Beer

RACINE, Wis. (UPI) —How about "crooked as a cockroach" to replace the old
"drunk as a skunk?"

According to entomologists at the Johnson Wax Biology Center here it might be more accurate, for they've found the roaches have an insatiable appetite for fermenting liquids.
Indeed, the scientists often use bread soaked with beer as cockroach bait.

GOOD EXAMPLE
INDIAN WELLS, Calif.
(UPI) —For the second consecutive year, this city has reduced property taxes. The City Council voted a 2-cent reduction in the tax rate, to 10 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. City officials said the reduction would not affect plans to increase expenditures in fiscal 1970-71.

South Vietnam Undermined By Homefront Enemies

By FRED HOFFMAN and HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writers
SAIGON (AP) — After nearly 10 years of holding off the Communists with massive American aid, South Vietnam stands in danger of losing the war to its old homefront enemies: inflation fed in part by corruption and greed.

One long-time American observer summed up the situation in the embattled country this way:

"There's no feeling of sacrifice here. It's like the war is a half a world away."

Dwindling U.S. payrolls as the big contractors phase out and Vietnamization takes over the war effort and the plummeting value of the piaster raise the threat of widescale unemployment, a demoralized, underpaid army and civil service and growing discontent and disaffection in the overcrowded cities.

No matter how the war turns out on the battlefield as the Americans leave, the already anemic lifeblood of the nation is being sapped by flagrant black marketeering, widespread money manipulation, a reckless rush to convert the nearly worthless currency to gold and hard goods and an ancient and honorless system of bribes, payoffs and kickbacks infecting the Vietnamese government, army, business and society.

These are among the conclusions reached by a team of Associated Press reporters who made a two-month study of the effects of profiteering and corrupt practices on the viability of the South Vietnamese government as America cranks down its military involvement.

Four years ago, at the peak of the U.S. buildup, the same AP team reported that hundreds of millions of U.S. taxpayer dollars had gone down the drain in theft, bribery, waste, black marketeering and money manipulation.

Revisiting the scene, the AP newsmen found that since then, the U.S. and Vietnamese governments had effectively combined to put the damper on a number of the more flagrant opportunities for smuggling and theft; had reduced diversion of U.S. aid goods and PX supplies through improved security and upgraded auditing controls, and had made a sizeable dent in the illegal money market by stemming the flow of GI money order and tightening up airport customs procedures.

But while the over-all situation had improved markedly from the control standpoint, corruption in the meantime had become more sophisticated, more pervasive as the war subsided in the countryside and more dangerous because of its instant effect on the shaky piaster.

"The ship may founder on economic shoals far from the sound of the guns," warns Pham Kim Ngoc, the Minister of Economics in President Nguyen Van Thieu's government. "Corruption, collusion, tax evasion, graft are major evils. Anyone who doesn't recognize them as such is a fool."

From the American side echoes the same stern warning.

In a classified report, intended only for official eyes, a high level U.S. government task force concluded after an on-the-spot survey:

"In this country, complicated by a long and costly war, there appears to be a climate which encourages many to engage in corrupt practices ..."

"The adoption of austerity measures appropriate to a wartime situation and the strict enforcement of necessary controls are mandatory if the economic war in Vietnam is to be won."

But it isn't only Vietnamese who are weakening this country's fragile economic structure—it's also American civilian renegades who traffic on the black market in the knowledge they can't be tried by American courts. And it's Koreans and Filipinos who populate the same underworld.

Then, too, the process of "Vietnamization"—turning back major responsibilities to the Vietnamese government and military—has created new problems while reviving some old ones.

Illegal money changers, mostly Indians, have perfected an organization with family and other connections abroad and channels to overseas bank accounts.

Undeterred by occasional fines—and spared heavier penalties—money black marketeers suck between $100 million and $150 million a year in hard currency out of Vietnam's economy.

The black market in goods, smuggled in with the acquiescence of bribed Vietnamese customs officers or stolen from the U.S. Military PX and commissary system, has become more sophisticated in its methods and has gone partially underground. It's possible these days to order a camera, a high-fi set or some other such item from a stall keeper and pick it up the next day.

A "black market supermarket," located in a network of narrow streets and alleys out of eyeshot of most Americans, displays stacks of hams, packages of bacon, cases of fresh eggs and other choice items which could only have come from U.S. commissaries, warehouses, mess supplies and similar sources.

A key official of the U.S. Mission's Irregular Practices Committee says flatly "there's collusion at the warehouse between U.S. personnel and Vietnamese." He indicated the collusion involves some U.S. guards, truck drivers and supply hands.

PX officials acknowledge "accountability shortages" totalling about $35 million over the past three years. They forecast this year's loss at about $9 million. That's only about 2.5 per cent of sales totalling $441 million, but still a considerable dollar loss.

The roads to most major cities are lined with "bottle shops" selling black market gasoline that commercial firms insist is stolen from military sources. In an effort to halt thefts of millions of gallons of combat fuels in Vietnam and elsewhere in Southeast Asia, military petroleum comptrollers have instituted a variety of checks to seek out false bottom rucks, secret tank compartments and cargoes topped off with water or weighted with sandbags.

Control to the South Vietnamese, stealing from U.S. ships unloading cargo is once more on the rise. As many as 2,000 bags of ice have disappeared from a single ship, and the Vietnamese government is trying to make U.S. ship owners pay for the losses inflicted by Vietnamese stevedores and bargemen.

In recent months, through investigations by the understaffed Vietnamese Inspectorate General, province chiefs have been removed on charges of corruption in Pleiku, Chau Doc, Khanh Hoa, Vinh Dinh and Hau Nghia provinces.

A top American official in the Mekong Delta points out that none was ever brought to trial and almost all wound up with equal or better jobs.

Valuable goods still are stored in the open where they are vulnerable to deterioration and pilferage. The PX system last year wrote off an accumulation of about $6 million worth of goods, mostly cigarettes, which had been ruined by weather.

Four years after it was dumped in a marshy field near the village of Phu An, about $1.4 million worth of U.S. paid-for steel is rusting away while U.S. government and congressional investigators check on a potential scandal involving a new contract to dispose of the steel. The plates were too thick to make barges, for which the steel was intended.

U.S. military and civilian advisors in the field complain that the Village Development Fund, which makes up to a million piasters in public works available to hamlets and villages setting up local government, has become "a license to steal," especially in Montagnard areas where Vietnamese officials disregard the desires of the people to build their own pet projects.

American officers, overseeing measures to improve the lot of Vietnamese militiamen, report that U.S. supplied tin roofing and cement intended for new housing seems to disappear somewhere in the South Vietnamese government chain. Sometimes only forlorn, weather-beaten wooden frames are erected—and remain unfinished.

Vietnamese sources say families can arrange to have their men transferred from dangerous or far-away posts for a minimum of 50,000 piasters ($420 legal rate, $140 black market) and as much as 300,000. The soldier is shifted on paper to a unit near Saigon, never spends time with his unit, is given leave papers so that he can remain home and even work. His unit commander pockets his paycheck. This sort of practice raises questions about the validity of figures on the size of the South Vietnamese army.

A top U.S. official in the Mekong Delta states flatly that "ghost payrolls" for national police, regional and popular forces are lining the pockets of any number of corrupt district and province officials, again with Uncle Sam underwriting the cost.

In 1966, when thousands of tons of machines and supplies were dumped on Vietnam's beaches to support the half million American troops being funneled into the country, there was no official measure of the losses from waste, pilferage and diversion. Estimates ranged anywhere from $200 million to $1 billion, with the loss of PX supplies alone pegged at nearly $500,000 daily.

Today, despite a number of congressional investigations and constant scrutiny by the Government Accounting Office (GAO) there is still no valid yardstick of losses down the drain from all the various leaks, but there are indicators which point up the dimension of the problem.

The drainoff from the money black market is estimated at from $100 million to $150 million a year: In Thailand during an 18-month period more than five million gallons of high grade U.S. jet fuel went astray. PX supplies, now stringently controlled, still slip away to the tune of $10 million a year. The U.S. Mission's Irregular Practices Committee, which Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker created to fight the corruption battle on a day-to-day basis, says "it has been impossible to quantify the extent of these activities with any degree of accuracy, but they undoubtedly are substantial."

Royal Surveyor Not Impressed During His Tour

By H. G. JONES
RALEIGH (AP) — Hugh Finlay, the British government's "Surveyor of the Post Roads on the Continent of North America," spent nearly three weeks in New Bern in March, 1774. It is interesting that he made no reference in his journal to the growing discontent in the colonies.

After visiting Gov. Josiah Martin and the General Assembly, Finlay set out to find a new deputy postmaster to succeed "Mr. Doves," a surgeon who could not devote the necessary time to the task. A "Mr. Tomlinson" agreed to take the position.

Hearing continued complaints about the difficult ferry passages between New Bern and Edenton, the surveyor decided to make a circular trip to Tarboro, Halifax, Edenton, Bath, and back to New Bern. Upon his arrival at Halifax, he wrote, "This place contains about 50 houses, stores are kept here to supply the country around with European and West India commodities, for which pork, tobacco, Indiana corn, wheat and lumber are taken in return."

Because there was no government post rider, the people had employed a private rider to bring letters weekly from Williamsburg. The residents argued that the regular route should come from Suffolk to Halifax, thence to New Bern, avoiding the long ferry rides to the east.

On April 4, Finlay left for Edenton, passing through "a place called Windsor." Of Edenton he wrote, "This place has but little intercourse with Great Britain, but it has great trading connection with the West Indies. The town contains 160 houses and about 1,000 souls whites and blacks." The ferry from Edenton across the Albemarle Sound was often delayed because of bad weather.

The deputy postmaster at Edenton was Joseph Hewes, a man who became famous during the Revolution. Finlay called him "a man of the best character, a Gentleman of merit." Hewes had no post office; instead, the letters were received in his "compting house."

Finlay was shocked to learn that mail from Virginia was detained at Edenton for 10 days before it was picked up by the rider going southward, and that letters from the south were detained three days before they were taken to Suffolk. "There's no apartment appropriated for their reception, they lie in an open compting house, and lie for a long time," he wrote.

From Edenton the surveyor rode to Bath, "a small insignificant place on Pamlico River." He charged that William Brown, the deputy, "never kept a book, he has his accounts of receipts of postage on scraps of paper." Mail from the north remained in Bath five days and that from the south four days.

Following his return to New Bern, Finlay settled up affairs there and then proceeded again to Halifax. By the time he entered Virginia by way of "Wynnton" a small town on Chowan River, he had obtained first-hand evidence that the mail from Charleston to Suffolk require 27 days, of which 16 days were wasted by the detention of the mail at New Bern, Bath, and Edenton. Thus the mail traveled at a rate of only 16 miles per day.

He was prepared to recommend a weekly post delivery and a change of the route to avoid the costly delays occasioned by the sounds and wide rivers near the coast.

Just around the corner, however, was the American Revolution. Postal reform had to await the establishment of a new government. Nearly three-quarters of a century would pass before postage stamps and the Pony Express would enter the postal picture; more than a century would elapse before rural free delivery would be started; and about 150 years would pass before the advent of air mail. Now, almost two centuries later, a radical new course is being tried—a course that eventually may return the postal system to the one established by the people of little Halifax in 1774 when they gave their postal contract to a private mailman.

Dr. Cleetwood suggested, "in that case we ought to make a statement to the effect that Dr. Jenkins has made the decision, and that we are taking under advisement what to do about the ball game. We had no voice in this."

Sugg said "I want to point out that the decision was made without our having one thing to say about it. Whether its a good or bad decision is a different matter."

Dr. Cleetwood stressed recent progress made in the schools. "My viewpoint is that the situation in the schools are pretty near normal. Credit for this is due to the parents, the staff and the students working together."

"There are peripheral problems," he noted, "such as these muggings and attacks, but

'Bundy Night' Is Designated

FARMVILLE — Friday night has been designated as "Sam D. Bundy Night", here.

Bundy, associated with the Farmville schools for 23 years, plans to retire at Thanksgiving. He will be honored at a special ceremony during the Farmville-North Lenoir football game Friday night.

The occasion is being held to honor Bundy for his services to the school profession in general and to the Farmville area in particular.

Currently principal of the Sam D. Bundy Elementary School, Bundy is the Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives in the November election.

the game itself was no problem, it is the outside areas where the trouble lies."

Dr. Cleetwood observed it would be easy to resort to an attitude of "over simplification, just to quit everything. Over the week-end, the principals of Rose and Junior High and myself explored all these things. Our feeling is to quit would be to cop out.

"It is only a bunch of hoodlums creating these problems," he remarked, "and its up to the community at large to deal with this element."

Dr. Aycock, in reply to questions about a joint statement with Dr. Jenkins, said he had told Dr. Jenkins about the school board meeting this afternoon, and that he was not issuing a joint statement until after that was done.

He also stated "Dr. Jenkins never came right out and said to me you've got to play in the afternoon. He advised this, but did not say it had to be done."

The school board plans to take action on the entire issue at their regular October meeting scheduled for next Monday night.

After Mayor Pro-tem Percy Cox of Greenville snips the ceremonial ribbon to open the new Maxwell Furniture at 608 Greenville Blvd., visitors will discover a new world of furniture.

Apparent almost immediately will be the variety and distinctiveness of the various settings—from traditional and period to modern and Mediterranean.

The store is one big show window. The display area measures 25,000 square feet. Every piece of furniture, rug and accessory is arranged so that it will relate to a picture or ensemble of what you may have in mind. Many minds and many tastes are reflected.

"We can give you better prices because of our volume buying and better shipping coverage," he says.

Lesley pointed out that with 68 stores, it is the biggest furniture chain in the South, and can take advantage of the latest stocks of well known brands for the most reasonable prices.

"You'll find that we can give you longer terms and financing on the spot. You'll also appreciate our free consulting and decorating service."

As a customer, you'll also like the deep shag rug, in restful tones of avocado and moss green, which goes well with all ensembles in the entire store.

In addition to furniture, the store carries appliances and stereo and electronics—arranged in the sections close to where dining furniture is arranged.

"We are also equipped for customer needs in carpet and area rugs," Lesley said, with colorful selections to pick from.

He added that customers will find the ensembles throughout the store "easy to relate to their homes."

Lesley added that "Extensive study has been made to bring to Greenville residents accessory lines and prices to compliment anyone's home."

Customers will also notice the restful arrangement of furniture and accessories and be at ease listening to the background music filtered through the store.

Lighting throughout the store is indirect, with small spotlights accenting certain areas of the building.

You will find early, traditional and contemporary furniture and furnishings.

Becoming popular is the sturdy Spanish style, in which living room, dining room and bedroom sets are available.

The setups also will offer ideas for patio furniture, recreation rooms, dinettes, formal living and dining rooms and traditional and modern bedrooms.

Well known brands of furniture are available in all items sold in the store.

For the convenience of customers, an ample parking lot is provided in front of the store.

BROTHERS HONORED — Grover C. Maxwell Sr. (left) and Robert J. Maxwell (right), founders of Maxwell Furniture stores, receive a plaque for distinguished service to the industry from Walter F. Whilden, vice president of Family Finance Corp. The Maxwells have since retired, leaving their sons to carry on the business.

Assisting Lesley as assistant Manager will be George "Pete" Small.

Maxwell Brothers Left Duplin County In 1904

Sixty-six years after the founders left Southeastern North Carolina to form what became the largest furniture chain in the South, a Maxwell Brothers Furniture Store will have its grand opening in Greenville.

The event is planned for Thursday at 10:00 a.m. after Mayor pro tem Percy Cox of Greenville cuts a ribbon.

The new Maxwell Furniture store, with close to an acre of furniture and accessories under one roof, is another in the chain numbering 68 that had its start in Augusta, Ga.

Maxwell Brothers Stores were founded in 1904 by Bertram Maxwell, Robert J. Maxwell and Grover C. Maxwell Sr., who left their farm home in Duplin County with the novel idea of selling furniture on the installment plan.

The brothers readily recall the difficult early days. In January, 1905, after being in business three months, merchandise on hand was valued at $2,300 and accounts receivable, $4,400.

By 1906, merchandise on hand had increased to $4,600 and accounts receivable to $16,692.

Two years later, merchandise had increased in value to $11,300. Accounts receivable totaled $43,000.

In 1914, the store began its first expansion. Branches were opened in Spartanburg, S.C., and Durham. By 1935, stores had grown to 16.

In 1968, shortly before the merger with Family Finance Corporation, the firm was operating 36 stores in four states of Georgia, the Carolinas and Alabama.

In May, 1968, Maxwell Brothers merged with the family corporation whose operating offices were in Miami.

Grover C. Maxwell Sr. and Robert J. Maxwell retired from the business. Bertram Maxwell had died earlier. They were succeeded by their sons, Grover C. Maxwell, Jr. and J.V. Maxwell.

well, president and vice president respectively.

The home store and executive offices are still in Augusta in a four-story building.

With a finance company as part of the operation, continued growth can be expected. The stores are able to provide on-the-spot financing of merchandise.

Through the chain, furniture and accessories can be bought in volume and this savings passed on to the customer, to give them a large variety of reasonable prices.

The Princely Look of Italian Classic... by Thomasville

This is a truly aristocratic collection with the architectural lines and details of furniture designed for Renaissance palaces. The motifs are classical and elegant: precise dentil moldings; fluted legs; intricate egg-and-dart patterns framing door panels; hardware with ribbon-crossed wreathes, Roman style. All done with the taste and skill you expect of Thomasville. Cherry veneers and solids of cherry and beech are finished in Sauterne, a sophisticated pumice color, and Patrician, a regal wood tone. Orioles Hand Reeling Reds 3rd Loss

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Sparky Anderson wasn't throwing in the towel today, but he had to be wondering from which direction the next Baltimore punch would come—and whether it would be a World Series knockout blow to his reeling Cincinnati Reds.

"It ain't over yet, but it's getting awful close," the Cincinnati manager murmured Tuesday after the Orioles, striking with brute force from expected and unexpected sources, flogged the Reds 9-3 to koar within one victory of their second series sweep in five years.

The Reds, glassy-eyed and rubber-legged after walking into a grand-slam uppercut by pitcher Dave McNally as well as bases-empty clouts by Frank Robinson and Don Buford, pinned their flickering hopes on the strong right arm of Gary Nolan today in game No. 4.

Jim Palmer, who beat Nolan 4-3 in the series opener last Saturday, was Baltimore pilot Earl Weaver's choice to try for the takeout—and the 11th four-game sweep in the 67-year history of baseball's premier main event.

"I like to walk out a winner, but if I'm a loser, even in four games, I won't go out with my head down," Anderson said after Tuesday's lopsided setback to a Baltimore team which has won its last 17 games—11 at the end of the regular season, three in the American League playoffs against Minnesota and three more in the series.

"I remember a man named Walter Alton who got beat four straight and he's still walking around with his head high."
The Orioles shocked Alton's favored Los Angeles Dodgers with a four-game series blitz in 1966, outpitching Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Claude Osteen in the process.

This time, they have outpitched, outhit and—due primarily to the sensational play of third baseman Brooks Robinson—outfielded one of the strongest National League series contenders in recent years.

As far as Weaver is concerned, the Orioles could be doing even better—at least in one department.

"I really don't honestly feel that any of our three starting pitchers have had their best stuff," he said after McNally scattered nine hits while adding a second post-season victory to 24 in regular AL play. "When they do, they pitch shutouts."

Neither Weaver, nor any of the 51,773 bird-watchers at Memorial Stadium Tuesday could find fault with McNally's hitting and the stickwork of the Robinsons, Buford and Paul Blair.

McNally became the first pitcher in series history to hit a grand-slam homer when he unloaded into the left field bleachers off Reds relief ace Wayne Granger in the sixth inning to give Baltimore an 8-1 lead. It was the 12th grand-slam in series play.

Frank Robinson, hitless in the Orioles' two one-run victories at Cincinnati last weekend, broke loose with two singles and a third-inning home run off losing pitcher Tony Cloninger that cleared the center field fence.

Brooks Robinson, a hitting and fielding standout from the outset of the best-of-7 classic, cracked two doubles, the first one for two runs in the first inning. Buford homered over the right field fence in the fifth and Blair stroked two singles and a double, for a total of six hits in 12 series at-bats.

Boog Powell, who had clubbed two homers and delivered four runs in the first two games, went 0-for-3 and was hardly missed.

The Reds' heads also were shaking over spectacular plays by Brooks Robinson and second baseman Davey Johnson that helped back them into a dark corner from which no other club in series history has been able to escape.

Brooks took a hit away from luckless Johnny Bench in the sixth when he sprawled headlong to snare the Cincinnati slugger's vicious line drive in the webbing of his glove. Johnson made a leaping, backhand stab of a third inning liner; ticked off for extra bases, off Rose's bat.

Knicks Knock Celts In Opener

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
It was an old story for the new-look National Basketball Association as the expansion-minded league inaugurated its 25th season.

The New York Knickerbockers successfully launched defense of their NBA championship Tuesday night with a 114-108 victory over the Boston Celtics.

In the only other game, the Chicago Bulls proved a rude host in whipping the San Diego Rockets 111-96.

The American Basketball Association opens its season tonight with one game, Denver at Utah.

The Knicks, who defeated the Los Angeles Lakers in seven games in 1969-70 for their first NBA crown, picked up where they left off. They outscored the Celts 42-27, built a commanding 71-54 halftime bulge and then staved off a belated Boston surge before 18,938 fans.

York's Walt Frazier sealed the verdict.

Willis Reed collected 35 points in triggering the Knicks while John Havlicek kept Boston in contention with 31.
The victory, however, might turn out to be costly for New York. Bill Bradley and Dick Barnett were injured and will be examined further today.
Bob Love and Chet Walker provided the scoring punch with 28 points apiece in Chicago's conquest of San Diego. The Bulls opened a 27-point advantage in the third quarter after leading at halftime 56-45.

High-scoring Elvin Hayes of the Rockets was limited to six points in the first half and wound up with 14 after sitting out the third period. Stu Lantz topped San Diego with 24 points.

Brooks Hypnotizes 'Em With His Glove; Crowns 'Em With His Bat

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds are being hoodwinked just like everyone else.
The National League champions are so mesmerized by the fielding of Brooks Robinson that they fail to realize that Baltimore third baseman is also helping to club them senseless with his bat.

The 33-year-old Robinson, called "the human vacuum cleaner" in Baltimore and nasty names elsewhere, has made a sensational play in each of Baltimore's three straight World Series victories over the Reds.

After the second game in Cincinnati Sunday, Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson contended that Robinson was the difference in two consecutive one-run decisions and that Cincinnati would have won both had it not been for Brooks.

"I'm beginning to see him in my sleep," Anderson said, while eating in the clubhouse off a paper plate. "If I dropped this paper plate, he'd pick it up on one hop and throw me out."

On Tuesday, Brooks came up with an other spectacular play. The victim this time was Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, with Robinson diving to his left to spear a low liner for the final out of the sixth inning.

Bench said when Robinson came to bat in the bottom of the inning, he told Brooks he was going to "hit the ball over his head.

"That's the only way I can get the ball to left," Bench said. "Pie Traynor may have been better. He was before my time. But even Traynor couldn't make those kind of plays."

Robinson, a 10-time Golden Glove winner as the best fielding third baseman in the American League, said during a postgame interview that when he talks salary, "They never say anything about my fielding. They just want to know how I hit."

The Reds have yet to comment on Robinson's offensive contributions:

—A seventh-inning homer which broke a tie and won the opener 4-3.

—An RBI single which tied the score in the fifth inning of game No. 2. Brooks scored the final run of the five-run rally, the one which meant victory in a 6-5 decision.

—Two doubles, the first driving in Baltimore's two first-inning runs in Tuesday's 9-3 rout.

"We could win four straight and take the Series," said Anderson, "but Brooks has to win the most valuable player award. He's got it won already."

Dave McNally, who hurled a complete game and slugged a grand slam homer, and Frank Robinson with two singles and a homer, shared the hero honors with Brooks.

"I liked my hitting better than my pitching," said McNally, who allowed nine hits while becoming the first pitcher ever to hit a World Series grand slam and the 12th player on the all-time list.

The Orioles have now won 17 games in a row including the last 11 of the regular season and three straight over Minnesota in the AL playoffs.

Senators May Try For Flood

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Short, the flamboyant owner of the Washington Senators who recently latched onto bad-boy Denny McLain, now is out to land another of baseball's renegades—Curt Flood.

Short revealed Tuesday night that he had traded a fringe player to the Philadelphia Phillies for the right to negotiate with Flood, the controversial outfielder who is involved in a $1.4 million anti-trust suit against baseball.

Short, who only last Friday added McLain to the Senators' roster in an eight-player trade with Detroit, admitted his unusual bid for Flood was a gamble. And Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Major League Players Association, which is backing Flood's suit, seconded that opinion.

Short also said the deal had the approval of Manager Ted Williams.

John Quinn, the Philadelphia general manager, meanwhile, said the transactions had what he termed, "the blessing" of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who also is one of the defendants in Flood's suit.

That brought a chuckle from Miller in Washington.

"I think it's nice they have the blessing of the defendants," said Miller. "Now all they need is to get the blessing of the plaintiff."

The plaintiff, of course, is Flood.

Vanceboro, Saratoga Battle For Loop Lead; Robersonville Meeting Grifton

The Tobacco Belt Conference race won't be over Friday night, but it may take a big step toward deciding who bear the league's colors in the playoffs. Vanceboro and Saratoga, both unbeaten in league play, face each other on the Farm Life field, and the winner will definitely take the favorite's role in the remaining weeks of play.

Robersonville trying to stick close and maybe clean up as the others knock each other off.

Vanceboro and Saratoga both warmed up for the big game by winning last week. Vanceboro polished off Pamlico, 32-26, while Saratoga nipped Aurora in a loop game, 12-8. Elm City surprised Grifton, 18-13, on a blocked punt return, Chocowinity rolled by Bath, 30-6, Robersonville edged Belhaven, 13-8, and Mattamuskeet beat Pantego, 50-14.

"We won in the last five seconds," Vanceboro coach Roy Lupton said. Roland Hooks carried the ball into the end zone from the 20 for the winning tally, and it broke tradition. "It was the first time we've beaten them in eight years," the happy coach said. Hooks scored on a pass play from freshman quarterback Clay Jordan.

This week, Vanceboro feels it is in the best physical condition in weeks. "We had a lot of early season injuries, but most of these have been overcome now," Lupton said.

He feels that the Saratoga game will go a long way towards deciding the crown. "Robersonville is not out of it yet, and they're going to be tough."

Saratoga meanwhile has the hard running of Jimmy DeRatt, and "they have a good quarterback who can either run or throw," Lupton added.

Earlier in the year, Vanceboro beat Aurora, 36-16, but Lupton feels scores can't be compared. "Aurora has come a long way since then."

For Grifton's Claude Kennedy, last Friday night was "like an old horror movie, and seeing the films on Monday made it even worse."

"We looked bad. We went over there (Elm City) flat and we didn't block or tackle. We just stood around. They should have made us pay admission. It was the worst game we've played since I came here," he said.

Mike Coles, one of the top running backs for the Bulldogs was hurt in the game, and is questionable for this week. Also out will be Doug Edwards, Jimmy Herring and the other star runner, Mike Tyndall. "We're getting pretty near the bottom in manpower," Kennedy said.

In stopping Robersonville, the Bulldogs have a big task. "I thought they played Elm City just enough to beat them," Kennedy said of an early game. "Glenn Forbes throws the ball well, and they have some good receivers. Both Hal Knox and this Coppinge boy run the ball real good. They're deeper than we are, and this may be the biggest factor in the game."

On the opposite side of the field, Coach Noland Respass of Robersonville, looks for a tough game from the Bulldogs. "It's their Homecoming, so they'll be up. We figure they'll play us a real tough game."

Respass said he feels his team is not a real powerful club. "We don't have the killer instinct. The defense has done a good job of holding our opponents down, but we have to win the hard way."

Against Grifton, the Rams will probably go to the air. "Ayden had eight such successes that way, so we'll probably try the same thing. We expect them to try to power the ball at us on the ground."

The only member of the Ram cast who won't make the trip will be Ed Warren, who has been out for several games with an injury.

In addition to the Saratoga at Vanceboro and Robersonville at Grifton games, Elm City travels to Franklinton, and Mattamuskeet meets Pantego (on Thursday). Conference games also include Chocowinity at Aurora and Bath at Belhaven.

Carroll Grabs Scoring Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Not only did Pat Carroll of Furman earn the nod as Southern Conference offensive football player of the week for his performance in last Saturday night's 23-9 upset over Richmond, but he put quite a bit of distance between himself and his pursuers in the league scoring race.

Carroll ran 70 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage and later added an eight-yard run for another touchdown and a two-point conversion for a 14-point night. This gave him a season's total of 34 points and a 16-point lead over everyone else in the conference. Seven players have scored 18 points, but the only one who made any appreciable noise last weekend was split end Rick Lyon of Davidson, who caught three touchdown passes in the Wildcats' 21-20 loss to Bucknell.

Tied with him for the runnerup spot are Bob Duncan of The Citadel, Billy Wallace of East Carolina, Steve Crisp of Furman, Jerry Mauro of Richmond, Don Cupit of Virginia Military and Phil Mosser of William and Mary. All are running backs except Cupit.

The VMI kicking specialist has gotten into the race with five field goals and three extra points. He's two points up on kicker Keith Clark of Richmond, who has booted seven extra points and three field goals. Injuries are plaguing the SC teams as they prepare for this weekend's slate.

VMI reserve quarterback and leading passer Randy Kinsey was hospitalized Tuesday with a kidney stone condition.

Pirate Cagers Open Practice Thursday

This year, when the experts begin looking at the Southern Conference basketball future, it won't be quite as easy as it has in the past to pick the winner. Davidson College has dominated the scene for several years, but there are a number of people who feel that there could be three or four teams scrambling for the title this year.

And one of the most frequently mentioned is East Carolina University's Pirates.

Thursday, Coach Tom Quinn will begin to find out whether or not that prediction might be brought into being, as he welcomes 14 varsity players out for the start of practice.

"We have five men up from the freshman team, two transfers, and seven veterans off last year's team," Quinn said.

Chief among the returning players are three starters from last year, Jim Gregory, Jim Fairley and Julius Prince. The others are Lynn Green, Arnie Ruegg, co-captain Mike Henrich and Greg Crouse.

Joining them will be Louisburg transfer Terry Davis, and Purdue transfer Milan Djordjevic. Up from the freshman squad are Al Faber, Dave Franklin, Steve McKenzie, Dave McNeil and Ernie Pope.

"We have big losses in Tom Miller and Jim Modlin," Quinn said. "They were our leading and second leading scorer, with six years of starting experience between them. It is quite possible that one or two sophomores will be used in their place."

Right now, Faber appears to have the best shot at the pivot spot vacated by Modlin. "It's still wide open, however," the coach said. "McKenzie will be used some at the post, so we have depth there. Gregory can move inside on the pivot, if we need him to."

Quinn said that McNeil will probably see early season action both at the point and on the wing of his 2-2-1 offense. "Henrich worked early last year at the point, and is more of a natural for this spot. He has improved with a year of experience, and will see a lot of action."

Quinn pointed out that Henrich, at 5-10, is the only player on the team under 6-2. The tallest is Faber at 6-9½.

"Franklin, Ruegg, and Crouse will all see a lot of early season duty. They'll go about like Green did last year. They'll continue to play a lot until we see that mistakes are hurting us. But I believe they'll come along quickly this way."

Quinn feels that the team's strong points include the added experience of Gregory, who joins Henrich as a co-captain, and Fairley, now a junior. "Prince is also an experienced player and this will help us."

"Our sophomore ability is also stronger than in the past, so we can do deeper on the bench this year than we have been able to do before," the coach added.

One of the brighter spots which developed is the return of Green for another year. "We consider him to be valuable this year because of his ability to guard both the corner man and the guard. He has great quickness, and is the closest to what you would call a defensive specialist. And he might break into the starting lineup."

Quinn noted that Green could play on a wing, and that by adding McNeil and Henrich at the other wing and the point, coupling them with Fairley and Gregory at the posts could make a very quick team.

"We are not just concerned with quickness," he added. "We had good rebounding last year, and we feel that this should continue, especially on the part of Gregory and Fairley. I hope that our guards will be getting more rebounds too. If Faber goes inside, we hope that he'll show good rebounding, but is going to be hard for any pivot man to rebound Fairley and Gregory."

Quinn said that probably the weakest link in the Pirate chain will be the lack of experience in one or two positions, especially the point. "Question marks include our outside shooting, but I think we can get more points this year on the inside and on the fast break."

The coach hopes that the Bucs will maintain their high floor percentage of last year, their rebounding figure and increase their poor free throw percentages.

"I look for a winning year," Quinn said. "To what extent it is a winning year will depend on how quickly our newcomers come along and blend with the others. We are in a good position to win this year in the conference, but Davidson is still going to be strong, and I look for an upsurge from Furman and The Citadel."

"We have some disadvantages; we play Furman only on the road, but everyone else is home- and - home, including Davidson," he said.

"We have some tough games early, but we don't want to point to them like we did last year. Our goal is the tournament."

Farmville Hosts North Lenoir As Red Devils Try To Stay Close To Knights

Northern Nash sits firmly atop the standings in the Eastern Plains Conference, but Farmville and North Lenoir, who meet Friday night, still have the best chance of catching the Knights, should they falter.

Eastern Plains

Farmville returns to the Eastern Plains action after a week outside the conference, and the Red Devils will be out to snap a two-game losing string. Meanwhile, Greene Central, which is just a step behind Farmville in the standings, goes outside to meet South Lenoir.

Farmville lost last week's contest to Ayden in the final 40 seconds of play, 20-16. Greene Central, however, was rolling to a 24-6 victory over Southern Nash.

won over Midway, 48-20, in a non-conference game, while Charles B. Aycock tripped Roseboro - Salemburg, 21-0, also outside the loop. Northern Nash knocked off Southern Wayne, 27-15, to remain the only team in the league without a loss in loop play. North Lenoir was idle.

"We didn't play that good, and we didn't play that bad," Farmville coach Gene Brewer said of his team's loss. They (Ayden) made some breaks at the end of the game that gave it to them."

"We had two or three chances to score in the second half, and blew them. This fired them up, apparently, and they came back and won it," he said.

This week, it's North Lenoir, as Farmville struggles to stay within striking distance of Northern Nash. "They all came over and watched us play Ayden," Brewer said.

"They have a big, aggressive team. They have a real good running back in this boy Cash. From the comments I've heard from around the conference he may be the best back in the league."

Brewer said that North Lenoir likes to run the power play because of their size. "They are probably bigger than Northern Nash," he added.

"Our problem is a mental one. We have to bounce back after two straight losses."

Greene Central's Stewart

Smith felt his team's performance in downing Southern Nash wasn't as good as it could have been. "But I was expecting a letdown after the Southern Wayne game. They did about what I expected," he said. "We did manage to play a lot of people, however. Nearly everyone got in for at least a quarter."

This week, the Rams take on South Lenoir, in a non-conference game. "They run the same basic formation we do, the I. We are somewhat equal in size, strength and speed, so we appear to be very equal going into the game," Smith said. He said they had 3-3 record.

"It should be a very tight game. They had a real good halfback in Johnny Humphrey, who scored three touchdowns last week. Their quarterback is also very good, and they run the option well. We'll have to watch them closely."

Elsewhere in the conference, Hobbton entertains Midway, Southern Nash is at Northern Nash, and Aycock is at Southern Wayne.

Director Ida Lupino In Front Of Camera Again

BACK TO THE OTHER SIDE — Ida Lupino, turned director after leaving acting, returns to the other side of the camera. She is shown in a scene with actor Sebastian Cabot in a sequel of "Family Affair". (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — She among the most glamorous member of the Directors Guild of America, Ida Lupino returns to the other side of the camera on "Family Affair" this week.

"I like it," she admitted. "I like being able to come on a set and worry only about my own lines, instead of concerning myself with 5,000 other details."
She plays a cockney barmaid turned aristocrat, an old flame of Sebastian Cabot, major domo of the "Family Affair" realm. Another reason she enjoyed the engagement: She and Cabot were childhood chums in London. How long ago?
"I don't know if Sebastian tells his age, but I've never tried to hide mine: I was born in 1918," said Ida. "I've always said I'd rather have people say, 'How good she looks for her age!' instead of 'She must be lying about how old she is.'"

At 52 Ida Lupino has entered a new phase of an amazingly varied career. Born to a distinguished theatrical family, she grew up in the English theater, came to Hollywood in 1932 to play ingenues, graduated to distinction as a dramatic star "Higher Sierra," "Devotion," "Road House."

"I never meant to be a director," she recalled. "I had no driving ambition; it all happened quite by accident. I was making 'Not Wanted' for our own company when the director got sick and couldn't continue. So I moved in and finished the picture. Then the backers said they wouldn't finance our next one, 'Never Fear,' unless I directed it. So I was stuck."

Ida's acting career began to fade as she took more and more directorial assignments, first in features and then in television series. Oddly, she became typed as an action director.

After 10 years of directing television series, she decided to slow down. She told her agent to let it be known that she was available for acting assignments "as long as I can play my own age—or older."

Now she plans to limit her activities to occasional roles and to directing features. She is preparing a film for American-International to star Vincent Price.

Sees Eloquence In Movement

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A University of Pennsylvania professor believes eye movements, posture shifts and arm gestures can be as important to conversation as words.

Dr. Ray L. Birdwhistell, Penn professor of communications, said much of man's unspoken communication occurs through a spectrum of body motion such as the hitchhiker's thumb, muscle tightening and the lifted eyebrow.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Public Expenditure Council, a privately financed agency, says nearly one in every five persons employed in Colorado works for federal, state, county or city governments.

Healthy Kidney From A Sister

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Charlene Folsom has new hope for the future after receiving a healthy kidney from her sister, Lorene, during surgery at the University of California Medical Center.

Charlene, an education counselor, will soon return to her job.

Her sister, whose kidney was a perfect match, will return to Mississippi, where she teaches. "Charlene was fortunate," said Dr. Samuel L. Kountz, one of her surgeons.

"From the five siblings who volunteered to give a kidney, one sister was shown by computerized selection to be a perfect tissue match."

"This meant an earlier transplant and greatly lowered risk of rejection. To date, we have a 100 per cent survival rate among transplants who have received a kidney from a well-matched sibling donor." Because her own kidneys no longer functions properly, Charlene's activities during the past year were very limited. Now, enthusiastic about the care she received, she is preparing to resume a normal life.

Seeing people return to their useful place in the community again, commented Kountz, "is one of the big rewards those of us on the transplantation service experience."

Nearly one-fourth of the kidney transplant operations in the United States are performed under Kountz' supervision. UC medical schools are also pioneers in treating patients on the artificial kidney or dialysis machine. Tissue matching and computer selection are among several important advances which have resulted from research and its clinical application by UC faculty members.

Reaction To Art Studied

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — How a viewer reacts to a painting is the subject of a research project by Prof. George Hardiman of the University of Illinois art department.

Hardiman began by choosing 200 slides of famous paintings that represent a wide range of art styles and subject matter. Several art historians cooperated in the selections and verified them as representative of styles and subjects of the period.

Next the slides were viewed by students studying art and by non-art students. They covered five centuries of art, from the 14th Pisanello painting "Lionello d'Este" to the 1963 Vaserely "Kalota."

Hardiman found there was a significant difference in the types of responses chosen by trained and non-trained students. Responses by art students were more specific and intense. Non-art students tended to evaluate in "good-bad" and "beautiful-ugly" categories.
