

Blanket Of Dirty Air

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — A research agency that has been taking air samples over the East Coast since 1967 has discovered a fixed blanket of dirt particles hanging over Boston. The forces that keep it intact defy wind and rain, according to the study.

Results of research were made public today by the Charles D. Sias Laboratories of Brookline.

The study took spot samples of air over Boston three times a day, five times a week beginning in 1967. Color photographs of the Boston skyline were used to show smog and cloud formations. Wind direction, force, humidity and barometric pressure were also recorded.

By 1969, the research team suspected some unusual formation in the atmosphere. Scrutiny showed that enough material was being discharged into the air to form a large mass of small inert particles.

The mass is so dense, said researcher William A. Curby, that it is unaffected by the rain and is seldom broken up or dispersed. The cohesiveness comes from forces greater than the earth's gravity, Curby said.

Wind from the east has always been considered a cleansing agent in Boston, bringing in cool, clean air from over the ocean. The study shows it also brings back the pollutant dirt particles.

It rarely moves more than a few miles off shore. The debris concentration is now so dense it shows signs of altering major weather patterns to create "high and low bursts," very good weather for a number of days followed by several days of bad weather.

Farmville Chief Of Police Submits His Resignation

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Police Chief Graham Creel handed his resignation to Town Commissioner Dr. S. H. Aycock this morning.

The immediate cause of the resignation, Creel said, was a town meeting last night called to air racial grievances which changed into a continuation of an attempt to oust him from his position as Police Chief here.

The resignation will not be effective until the Board of Commissioners acts on it, but Creel said a show of support from a majority of the Board would not change his mind this time, as it did once about a year ago. "I ask the Board to accept the resignation. I have enjoyed the five and a half years I have served in this capacity, but I feel I can no longer be effective here," he said.

A hearing had been set for last night for two Farmville policemen charged with failing to report the firing of their police pistols in the Negro section of Farmville around 1:15 a.m. October.

Although neither Bruce

Morrison nor Mack Boney, the two accused, were present last night, some 11 witnesses were interviewed by Mayor Will Joyner and the Board of Commissioners.

Before the interviewing began, Attorney Richard Powell of Greenville asked that Chief Creel be called so that he could answer questions. He was sent for by the Mayor.

Nine of the witnesses said that they either heard or heard and saw the shots from the police car. Mrs. Margaret Suggs, the only witness, who reported seeing all five shots fired, said they came from the right side of the police car. Two, she said, were fired while the car was on South George Street; three after it had turned onto Acton Place. It was her son-in-law who lives with her, John Gorham, who with a neighbor, Jay Parker, reported the incident.

Gorham and Parker both testified they went to the police station to report the incident, that the two policemen denied their allegations, and that the policemen's guns were not checked by the ranking officer on duty, Lt. Carl Tanner.

It was brought out that Boney and Morrison had gone first to Police Commissioner W. C. "Bill" Garner, then to Chief Graham Creel Saturday. They said they had been shooting at a dog with a pistol, but refused at first to report it because there are departmental rules against shooting an animal with anything other than a shotgun. Both were suspended without pay by the Chief.

Chief Creel told the packed courtroom that he had immediately suspended both officers without pay. The Chief has no authority either to fire or to reinstate the men — either move would be up to the local Board of Commissioners.

Rev. J. R. Person, pastor of Macedonia Baptist Church here and Mrs. F. H. Mebane Jr. both appealed to the Board to discharge the two officers. The Board, on advice from their attorney, said they could not act upon such a request since this matter was not on the meeting agenda.

Milton Williamson, a Greenville attorney who lives in Farmville then took the floor and asked that the Board fire Creel. He said he had appealed to the Board before about the same thing. He charged, "Creel should have come to the station during the night when he was called by Lt. Tanner about the pistol-firing. By not doing so, he created, in Marx's words, an 'atmosphere of violence.'"

Creel asked, "Mr. Williamson, did you know that I had flu and a fever of 102 at that time?" Creel then walked out of the courtroom after telling Mayor Joyner that he (Joyner) knew that day what was going to happen and had not even informed him of the meeting.

Mayor Joyner declared to the audience that the charges against Creel had not been planned.

Joyner, Williamson, Commissioner Hap Nichola and others had been verbal in an attempt about a year ago to put Creel out of office after an altercation between him and Marvin Speight, a local merchant.

Nichola then spoke up recalling events in the town in recent months and telling how he believed that Creel had been responsible for all of them. Nichola went on to say that there has never been anything but racial harmony in Farmville. He also told how much he resents reading police news and plans for Board meetings in the newspaper before he, as a Commissioner, is informed.

Paul Tripp, a local merchant, then took the floor to extol the high quality of leadership to be found "among our colored people."

The meeting was adjourned (Continued on page 6)

'Party' Was For Robbers

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An estimated $100,000 in cash and jewels was taken by six masked bandits in a bizarre aftermath to the Clay-Quarry fight Monday night, police said today.

About 100 heavily jeweled ringside patrons were either given engraved invitations, or word spread, about a party after the famous match to be held at a northside Atlanta address.

As each group of persons arrived at the house, police said, they were met at the door by a woman. As they stepped inside, a bandit wearing a ski mask and carrying a sawed-off shotgun greeted them.

The "guests" then were taken into the basement where they were forced to disrobe and lie down on the basement floor, officers said they were told. Their jewelry and cash were taken.

One of the persons robbed told police that people were "piled on top of each other at one point."

Police said among the victims was a New York detective, Andrew West, who said he lost $485 in cash, a $6,000 diamond ring and his badge.

When the robbers fled, police said they took two women as hostages. The hostages were released a short time later.

Police said only a few persons had filed complaints, but that they had talked to a number who had been robbed. They said the majority were "too embarrassed to file a complaint."

Honors Revoked

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Army announced tonight it is stripping a brigadier general of two honors, including the nation's third highest award for valor, because they were based on fabricated citations.

An announcement from Army headquarters said, however, that the investigation has so far shown conclusively that the general, Eugene P. Forrester, was not aware of the fabrication.

It was the first known time in Vietnam that the Army had revoked such awards from a general officer.

Forrester, 44, received the Silver Star, the nation's third highest award for valor in combat, and the Distinguished Flying Cross on Oct. 15, before leaving his post as assistant commander of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division. He is now assistant chief of staff for civil operations and rural development at the U.S. Command headquarters in Saigon.

Some 7,000 Tar Heels At Raleigh Rally With Spiro

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, launching a final campaign push in Dixie, says the so-called Southern strategy means only one thing—playing fair with the South.

"That's what it is, and that's all it is," Agnew declared Monday night in North Carolina's state capital.

And playing fair, Agnew told some 7,000 cheering Republicans in the North Carolina State University's Reynolds Coliseum,

"is exactly what we do."

The vice president hammered away at this theme in campaign appearances Monday here and in Greenville, S.C. He pledged more Southern nominations to the Supreme Court, firm opposition to school busing, and administration support for the legislative textile quotas so favored by the region's most important industry.

Agnew goes to New York City tonight for what is billed as a nonpolitical and long-planned appearance before the Navy League. He returns to Georgia and Alabama Wednesday before heading out to the Midwest for the windup of his eight-week campaign tour.

"My friends," Agnew told Republicans here, "the so-called Southern strategy is simply one element, though an important element, of a true national strategy."

Agnew said it was a "conscious, studied policy of evenhandedness everywhere in America, applying to the people of the South the same standards applied to people in every other state in the union."

It was a highly friendly crowd in Raleigh. But despite the frequent applause, the vice president did not draw the standing ovation that he got before 6,000 people in Greenville's Memorial Auditorium when he referred to President Nixon's visit to the South just six days ago.

Agnew said that in a visit to Asheville, N.C., Nixon had made "crystal clear once again our stance on busing and the neighborhood schools."

"My friends," Agnew said, "you can take that for gospel. He was talking from his heart. We flatly oppose compulsory busing solely for racial balance. We wholeheartedly believe in the neighborhood school concept, and there we take our stand."

Agnew was campaigning in South Carolina chiefly for the Republican gubernatorial candidate, Rep. Albert Watson, rated now an even bet to capture the statehouse for Republicans for the first time in 97 years. The Democratic candidate is Lt. Gov. John West. There are two other candidates: A. W. Bethea, a self-avowed segregationist nominated by the Independent party, and Thomas Broadwater, a black lawyer from Columbia who is a candidate of the Negro-oriented United Citizens party.

In Raleigh, he was campaigning for the re-election of the four GOP members of the U.S. House of Representatives and the defeat of Nick Galifianakis, considered most liberal of the seven Democrats.

Noting that Galifianakis was of Greek extraction like himself, Agnew said that it "tugs at my ethics" to call for his defeat.

Nobel Prize In Physics Shared

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The 1970 Nobel Prize in physics was awarded jointly today to a Frenchman and a Swede at the University of California's San Diego branch. But the Swede's wife refused to wake him up to tell him he was $40,000 richer.

"It's too early in the morning," the wife of Prof. Hannes Alfvén told a newsman who telephoned their home in La Jolla at 3:35 a.m. PST. "It's too early—he's still asleep."

Mrs. Alfvén hung up, then took the phone off the hook.

Prof. Alfvén shared the prize with Louis Neel of Grenoble University.

The last Nobel award of the year, in chemistry, also was announced today and went to a native of Paris now living in Buenos Aires, Argentina, Prof. Luis F. Leloir, for his discovery of sugar nucleotides and their role in the biosynthesis of carbohydrates.

Alfvén, 62, works alternately in the United States and at the Royal Advanced Technical School in Stockholm. He once threatened to emigrate to America unless the Swedish government gave him a professorship with adequate funds for his research in plasma physics. The government complied.

Neel, 66, is a native of Lyon and a graduate of the Ecole Normale Supérieure in Paris.

Find People In America For Over 50,000 Years

Los Angeles (AP) — A noted scientist says new archaeological findings prove that man migrated to North America—probably from Asia—30,000 to 80,000 years earlier than previously supposed.

"Man has been in America for more than 50,000 years," Dr. Louis S.B. Leakey told newsmen Monday. "We are satisfied that we have uncovered a new chapter in the history of man in America." Leakey said small pieces of stone unearthed eight months ago in the Mojave Desert of Southern California show that man lived there at least 50,000—and more probably 100,000 years ago.

Leakey, one of the world's best known experts on early man, announced the findings at the Leakey Archaeological Foundation, together with scientists who worked under his direction.

Earlier calculations placed man on the North American continent no earlier than 20,000 years ago. The new findings, in a gully near the desert town of Calico, now present scientists with a gap of at least 30,000 years about which they know absolutely nothing, Leakey said.

The stones found at Calico under 22 feet of topsoil apparently formed a hearth about 16 inches in diameter, he said. A colleague, Ruth Simpson, reported that magnetic tests showed the rocks had been subjected to intense heat.

Near the hearth were chips of stone that must have been used for scraping, perhaps to skin animals, Leakey said.

Leakey said carbon dating and other tests place the age of the stones at 50,000 to 120,000 years.

The nature of the soil prevented fossils or other signs of animal or plant life from being preserved, scientists said.

Asked Monday where the first North Americans come from, Leakey said, "They must have come from Asia. Your bisons, your mountain sheep all arrived here fully evolved and undoubtedly came from Asia. Man must have followed them."

Jumbo Jet Passengers Slid Down Chutes

LONDON (AP) — The 89 passengers aboard a 747 just arrived from Los Angeles slid down escape chutes today when the jumbo jet's inner port engine burst into flames.

"We looked out the window and saw a giant flash and a huge sheet of flames," one passenger aboard the Pan American World Airways plane said.

The passengers, some in near-panic, took off shoes and wrapped themselves in blankets for the slide. Several suffered minor cuts and bruises. Two fainted.

Capt. Bob Marshall, the pilot, said he planned to restart the engine to snuff the fire but decided to open the escape hatches when some passengers grew excited.

"If the fire had occurred in flight I could have put it out by increasing the revolutions of the engine," he said.

The plane had been on the ground about two minutes.

The Federal Aviation Administration in the United States earlier this month praised the 747's safety record and said engine overheating was not a problem. That statement came after the National Transportation Safety Board said 747 engine fires had been caused by "near critical temperature conditions." It urged the FAA to act to prevent recurrences of incidents such as had occurred aboard 747s belonging to American Airlines and Air France.

One Pan Am spokesman said he presumed that in today's incident the engine had overheated after landing. Mechanics at Heathrow Airport began taking the engine apart.

Glenn James, a Qantas Airline employee traveling as a passenger on the Pan Am plane, said the crew should have announced an emergency.

"The passengers were not told there was any trouble, and the result was that a lot of them, having seen the flames, stood up and were making moves to get out. We ... were told to keep our seats until we got to the tarmac, which is the normal announcement when there is nothing wrong with an airliner. This resulted in a great deal of confusion," he added.

Says 'Nuisance Taxes' Good Issue

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Vice President Spiro Agnew said Monday night Republican General Assembly candidates in North Carolina "have an excellent issue—nuisance taxes on cigarettes, soft drinks and gasoline."

"I can't get into your legislative races beyond saying that," Agnew declared in a brief aside during a speech to a capacity crowd of 7,000 persons in North Carolina State University's Reynolds Coliseum.

The vice president had come to Raleigh to bolster a GOP drive to cut into the Democrats' 7-4 margin in the North Carolina House delegation.

He predicted that Republicans would gain control of the delegation to provide "solid proof that a full-fledged two-party system has set its roots in the great state of North Carolina."

Referring to North Carolina's tax situation, Agnew said he had "faced the same problem in Maryland" when he was governor.

"Instead of levying irritating little taxes that drive everybody up the wall," Agnew said, "we reformed the whole tax structure to give relief to hard-pressed local governments whose property and nuisance taxes were going up out of sight."

"That tax reform sent $100 million of new revenue to the cities and counties of Maryland. A new legislature in North Carolina can do equally well."

The vice president's coliseum speech came after a 10-minute visit to a $100-per-couple cocktail and buffet attended by about 600 persons.

From the time he arrived at Raleigh-Durham airport for a warm but sedate welcome, the vice president saw no sign of dissent.

About 300 persons cheered and applauded as he waved to them at the airport and then shook hands as he moved along a single strand of chain holding back the spectators.

Thousands who couldn't get in the coliseum heard Agnew's speech on a public address system.

Republican officials said they had distributed between 18,000 and 20,000 tickets, each good for the admission of two persons, for the 7,000 available seats.

Raleigh Fire Department inspectors ordered the coliseum doors closed when the 7,000 figure was reached an hour before the scheduled start of the rally.

What dissent there was at the coliseum and in the surrounding campus area wasn't visible to Agnew.

Several hundred persons attended an outdoor "Free People's Dinner" near the N.C. State Student Union Building as a protest to Agnew's visit.

In the coliseum, a few signs written on notebook paper hung along a section of one balcony, bearing slogans, one of which said, "Spiro Is Not My Hero."

Some young persons sat with arms folded as most of the others in the crowd applauded and cheered.

Nine of the Republican party's 10 congressional candidates sat with Agnew on the speakers' platform.

Only Charles Raper Jonas, who notified party officials he had a prior commitment in his Ninth District, was not present.

Those present were incumbents Jim Broyhill, Earl Ruth and Wilmer Mizell, and hopefuls Frank Everett, Herb Howell, Jack Hawke, Clifton B. Barham Jr., F. R. Weber and Luke Atkinson.

Adopted Children Should Know Facts

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A young mother complained that her mother in law always introduced her and her children, who were still toddlers, as "my daughter in law and her two adopted children." The young mother was resentful and you agreed that she had a right to be. I think you are both wrong. It is never too soon to let children know that they are adopted. They should hear the word "adopted" long before they even know what the word means so they'll grow up knowing that they are adopted.

I still remember when I was 8, running home from school, crying because someone told me I was adopted. I begged my mother to tell me it wasn't true. She assured me it wasn't! When I was 12, I heard that story again, and again I asked my mother if it was true. Again she swore it wasn't. Not until I was 24 and about to be married did my mother tell me the truth, and even then it was a terrible shock.

Please retract your statement, Abby. That mother in law was wise to have introduced the children as "adopted."

DEAR MRS. L.: I agree, it is never too soon to tell children they are adopted, but I think the parents should tell them, and having once been told, unless it is said with obvious pride, it's not necessary to include the word "adopted" in every introduction. From the young mother's letter, I assumed that "pride" was lacking. She could have been mistaken. And so could I. Thank you for making a valid point.

DEAR ABBY: I am not even sure how to word this, but I will do my best. There are six couples of us who go around together. We are all in our middle thirties, and we all like to dance. There is no hanky panky in our crowd. We're all satisfied with our own husbands and we don't fool around.

There is one man in our group, who is really a nice person but when he dances, he holds his partner extremely tight and close. It's not only the tightness and closeness, but he gets so intimate when he dances—it's downright indecent. I just hate to dance with him. I keep pulling away and struggling the whole time.

At first I thought he danced that way only with me, but I noticed another girl having the same trouble with him. Finally, a few of us started talking and it turns out he dances that way with all of us. Abby, is it possible that he isn't aware of what he is doing? His wife is a lovely person, and I'm sure she doesn't know the way he dances with us. Can this problem be solved without hurting his feelings?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Why all the pussyfooting around? It's a pretty safe bet that this man is aware of what he is doing. When he asks you to dance, tell him no — you don't care for his style of dancing. He'll get the message. And don't worry about hurting his "feelings." I have an idea he can look after himself.

DEAR ABBY: I have never written a letter to you before but I think the following might interest you and some of your readers:

Yesterday was an old man's birthday. He was 91. He awakened earlier than usual, bathed, shaved and put on his best clothes. Surely they would come today, he thought.

He wouldn't take his daily walk to the gas station to visit with the old-timers of the community because he wanted to be right here when they came.

He sat on the front porch with a clear view of the road so he could see them coming. Surely they would come today.

He'd skip his noon nap that day, because he wanted to be up when they came.

He has six children. Two of his daughters and their married children live within a few miles. They hadn't been to see him for such a long time, and today was his birthday. Surely they would come.

At supper time, when a small cake and ice cream was served, he wondered if perhaps he shouldn't wait and have dessert with "them" when they came.

Night time came, and he went to his room and got ready for bed, and his last words before turning out his lights were, "Promise to wake me when they come." It was his birthday and he was 91.

Surprise Meatballs Combine Pineapple Tidbits And Prunes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Prunes take to meat. Scandinavian cooks often stuff a pork roast with prunes and then roast it in the oven or braise it on top of the range.

Jewish cooks like to braise beef brisket before finishing it off with a sauce that contains prunes and sweet potatoes.

Now comes a new combination. A California cook stuffs prunes with pineapple tidbits and then molds a meatball mixture around the prunes. And it's just this recipe that we have for you today. We think you'll like the flavor of the meatballs as well as the delicate gravy that accompanies them.

SURPRISE MEATBALLS
1 drained pineapple tidbits, from 8½-ounce can
20 whole pitted prunes
1 egg
¾ cup milk
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons salt

¼ teaspoon pepper
1 small onion, finely grated (pulp and juice)
1 pound lean ground beef
¼ pound lean ground pork
1 tablespoon shortening
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 tablespoon flour
2 beef bouillon cubes
1 cup boiling water

¼ cup dry vermouth
Put a pineapple tidbit inside each prune; set aside.
In a medium mixing bowl beat egg until yolk and white are combined; add milk and beat to blend. Add bread crumbs, salt, pepper, onion, beef and pork; mix thoroughly. Divide meat mixture into 20 portions and shape each portion into a meatball around each stuffed prune.

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat melt the shortening; add meatballs and brown on all sides; add more shortening if necessary. Remove meatballs; pour off fat from skillet but leave drippings.

In the skillet over low heat melt the butter; stir in flour. Add bouillon cubes and water; stir to dissolve bouillon cubes and get up drippings; increase heat to moderate and continue stirring until sauce thickens; stir in vermouth.

Return meatballs to skillet; cover and simmer for 20 minutes.

Makes 5 or 6 servings.

Fabric Wall Coverings Go Wild And Wonderful

Leaping frogs, un-squared squares, kabuki dancers and gargantuan florals are among wallcovering patterns offered to fall decorators. Many have fabrics to match.

In addition, there are textured coverings in leather-like materials, burlap and even a real wood grain.

There is a covering for every decorating taste. Beige people will enjoy a handsome floral in beige and white inspired by a carnival in Venice (United). And for beachcombers there is the turquoise, blue and white of a shells pattern, Costa Brava. A new flamestitch pattern (KB design) is in a large color range that includes green, beige, black, and red, black and beige printed on white or natural backgrounds. The popularity of flamestitch in everything at the moment reflects its timeless design that is as popular with lovers of modern furnishings as it ever has been with traditional-minded decorators.

For op-arters, who are tired of dizzying circles and monotonous squares, James Seeman has an eye-diverting geometrics pattern which assembles small and tall, wide and narrow squarish designs in white and jet, silver and white, silver and jet. In addition to squares, Seeman has introduced 18 wet-look designs in vinyl or foil, pre-trimmed in vivid colors or silvers, golds, blacks, browns.

In the same collection is a witty look at the animal kingdom—Once Upon a Time—designed by British artist Tony Walton as a setting for Beatle John Lennon's play, "In His Own Write."

One can use wallcovers de-pecting stallions, tigers, zebras and ferocious looking stylized beasts of the jungle or one can answer the call of the wilds with walls of white crocodile, reptile or ostrich, all made with new manmade materials of vinyl and polyester that look pretty authentic.

And there are a number of new shiny wet-look fabrics for walls, including a slithery snakey one.

A pre-pasted dry strippable wallcloth (Birge) depicts mini, midi, maxi fashion scenes right with the current beat.

They also have introduced a new wallcovering technique—the embossing of laminated vinyl impregnated sheets. The Duplex printing achieves deep textural decorative effects.

Reorganization Is Necessity

If state government in North Carolina is ever to reach the degree of efficiency most citizens and officials would like to see, it is essential that meaningful reorganization take place.

When voters of the state go to the polls on Nov. 3, they have an opportunity to put the state on the road toward better, more efficient and less expensive state government by voting in favor of the constitutional amendment for state government reorganization.

The proposed amendment is one of the few ever passed by the General Assembly without a

Need A Sense Of Belonging

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — School is a place to find a sense of belonging.

When it's there, students and teachers can work together at the business of education. When it's missing, unrest and trouble comes to the surface.

"Going to a new school is a ball game all its own," said Gene Causby, associate director of the human relations division in the State Department of Public Instruction.

"Kids look for the things which assure them it's their school. If they find them, they adjust and all goes well.

"They are unhappy when they see things which remind them it's not really their school at all."

Things like student government in which one racial group has no chance for representation...cheerleader squads with all white (or black) faces homecoming courts of girls of only one race.

Symbols of Belonging
Adults may think these peripheral matters to the school's fundamental purpose of education. To students they are basic as symbolic of the standing their group has — or does not have — in the total school community.

And it is to just such issues that instances of overt problems and disruptions caused by racial integration have been directly related. What goes on in the classroom is seldom the major cause for complaint.

Thousands of North Carolina students went to new schools this fall. If not actually new in location, schools where they enrolled were new in racial composition. For the first time, approximately 95 per cent of the state's school units began the year on an integrated basis.

Two months after, Causby and co-workers in the human relations division feel the process has gone smoothly, not without stress and strain, but with a minimum of dislocation.

"There have been overt disruptions in 2 per cent of the state's school units," Causby said. "I don't suppose there is any way to really check, but wonder if there was not that much difficulty of one kind or another in 1948, too."

Each incident involving race, however minor, stands out like a sore thumb, he noted.

The point is not to play down the seriousness of those disruptions which have occurred, but to acknowledge the sincere efforts of students, teachers and parents in those communities where they have not.

Making Plans Work
With integration a fact of school life, emphasis for the human relations division has shifted from compliance to implementation. Last year, the staff concentrated on assisting in the development of plans to comply with integration requirements; this year, they are involved in helping schools make the plans work.

Robert Strother, division director, described it as a matter of "working with attitudes." In simple terms, he said, it means "30 students and a teacher, each understanding the worth and dignity of every person in the class."

Day-to-day for the staff, it means meeting with groups of students, parents and school personnel to deal with practical aspects of integration.

Students are front and center. "Students are directly involved. They ought to have in-put," Causby said. "It's pretty fundamental that if students accept the method, they will accept the result. If they distrust the method, they will reject the result."

Significantly, there is less of a problem when the mix of races is 50-50 or thereabouts. "One man, one vote makes sense in that setting," Causby said.

"When one group is a definite minority — and it doesn't matter whether it is blacks or whites; the concerns are the same in either case — the kids feel, 'We don't have a chance to win,' and there is potential trouble."

Causby and others of the staff let students work out their own way to select class officers, student government representatives, cheerleaders, so that fair minority representation is possible.

"We don't tell them how. We tell them what others have done, and let them come up with their own plan. They go about it with a real seriousness and sophistication."

One approach copies the federal system — an upper body on a proportional basis similar to the Senate (the relative number of whites and blacks corresponding to school population), and a lower body representational as the House. Another abolishes the homeroom as a unit and requires candidates dissenting vote. That in itself indicates the urgency for reorganization felt by members of the legislature. It has the support of the leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties. The proposal has been heartily endorsed by Gov. Scott and by each of the three living former governors of this state.

By adopting the amendment next week, voters will be instructing the legislature to proceed with reorganization of the state's administrative structure during the next five years. The amendment will provide a framework with which the state government's administrative branch will be reorganized into a maximum of 25 major departments.

As it is now, there are more than 300 separate boards, agencies and commissions, each of which reports directly to the governor. Administratively it is impossible for the governor to keep track of so many individual segments, much less have a finger on their operations. The result is overlapping responsibilities and activities, inadequate planning and coordination within state government, and inability to get maximum efficiency for each tax dollar spent.

Without meaningful reorganization, the situation will get worse rather than better in North Carolina. New boards, agencies and commissions will spring up each year, and the degree of efficiency in state government will continue to drift downward.

State government reorganization is of utmost importance to North Carolina, its people and its future. A favorable vote on the reorganization amendment next week will put North Carolina on the road to better, more responsive and more economical state government.

Goodell's Fall Is Very Visible

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WEST HARRISON, N.Y. —

The devastating decline of Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell is starkly, almost unbelievably visible in the new political culture of lower middle-income neighborhoods like this one, where both President Nixon and liberal Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits won handily in the 1968 election.

The harsh political punishment now being visited on Goodell by angry Republican voters we surveyed here this week is dramatized by this statistic: out of 35 Republicans who voted for Mr. Nixon in 1968, only one today plans to cast a ballot for Goodell.

Those 35 Nixon voters were part of an overall sample of 59 voters in this small community just above New York City. With the professional help of pollster Oliver Quayle and his field chief, Eleanor Seaman, we uncovered not only the full extent of Goodell's downfall but the precarious nature of Rep. Richard Ottinger's uneasy lead in the zaniest — and perhaps most important — Senate race in the country.

Liberal Democrat Ottinger gets 34 percent of the Senate vote in our sample, Conservative party candidate James Buckley 57 percent, and Goodell 9 percent. Ottinger's 34 percent is almost exactly the vote cast here in 1968 for Hubert Humphrey, who comfortably carried New York state. Accordingly, if Ottinger can hold his 34 percent of the vote in this strongly Republican territory, he too should carry New York state on Nov. 3 in what is becoming a two-man race between him and Buckley. Running as third man out, far, far behind, is Goodell.

But one highly revealing fact in our voter sample dramatically shows how vulnerable Ottinger's present 34 percent support here is. It is the fact that fully two-thirds of his West Harrison strength now comes from Republican voters who voted for Mr. Nixon in 1968 (the balance of his strength is 1968 Humphrey voters).

The root of this surprising Republican support for the liberal Ottinger is almost surely anti-Goodellism — in other words, regular Republicans whom Goodell has turned off with his own espousal of liberal positions. These Republicans, in short, are now planning to vote for Ottinger more out of spite for Goodell than out of love for Ottinger. They are, then, ripe for plucking by the conservative Buckley, and therein is found Ottinger's Achilles heel.

Just how ripe for plucking is clearly evident from the correlation in our voting sample between the "law and order" issue and support for Buckley, whose campaign is almost wholly pitched to that social issue, including pornography, bombings, cop killings, and campus disorders.

Thus, 61 percent of our voters put "law and order" at the top of the list of issues they want their new Senator to deal with. Two-thirds of these law-and-order voters are now planning to vote for law-and-order candidate Buckley. The remaining one-third goes to Ottinger, despite the fact that his identification with the law-and-order issue is scarcely noticeable.

Therefore, Ottinger is extremely vulnerable to the loss, first, of 1968 Nixon voters who have already left Goodell and, second, to the voters who regard law and order as the No. 1 issue.

But if he tries too hard to consolidate his support with these two groups, to prevent their defection to Buckley, he risks the wrath of his own hard-core liberal supporters and a consequent buildup for Goodell. On the other hand, if he overplays his hand in bidding for Goodell's remaining liberal support, he may speed the flight of his Republican supporters to Buckley.

Strength For Today

FREEDOM AND BONDAGE
We need to ponder in these days of drug addiction, alcoholism and other weaknesses which put the mind and soul of men and women in bondage — that release from such bondage is one of the greatest blessings that ever came to humanity.

"Probably the best way to get release from any kind of moral bondage is never to put ourselves in its power. People of the highest moral character have different ideas about the way to avoid the dangers of alcoholism. Many of us believe that the best way to avoid the possibility of alcoholism is not to start drinking in the first place. Certainly if we never allow ourselves to be persuaded to try any variety of habit-forming drugs we will never become addicts. If we don't get ourselves into this trouble we will never have the painful experience of having to get out of it. Every form of education and restraint needs to be examined and put into operation if we are to keep ourselves and our descendants from sheer slavery.

And without being offensive to ourselves and others, isn't it a wonderful feeling to realize that there are certain forms of moral bondage from which we do not have to extricate ourselves because we never got into this bondage in the first place? The best way to avoid moral corruption and cataclysm is not to get involved in disadvantageous moral situations in the first place. It's wonderful to be free, and the way to be free is never to get started on ways of life that may lead us to bondage.

Traveling Whig's Notes

MOBILE — The reporter who scrambles his way through six States in eight days is not likely to pick up much of anything, as they say, "in depth," but when he finally dumps his brief case of papers, notes, torn clippings, political fliers and things scrawled on the back of hotel bills, a few tea-leaf readings emerge from the mess.

With only a week to go before the general election, political interest remains dimly low in Dixie. Whatever the situation may be in Miami—I didn't get down there—northern Florida is one big yawn. Republican Bill Cramer will make it to the Senate, but you will see few fireworks. Georgia has a gubernatorial contest that ought to be lively, but the unconcern is massive.

Tennessee, in other years, would be in an uproar over a senatorial race featuring two such formidable candidates as incumbent Albert Gore and challenger Bill Brock. This time the decade count is low. Early in the campaign, Brock had some billboards that read: "Brock Believes."

When the Gore people wrung some mileage out of mocking this pious banner, by asking "Brock believes what?," the signs were amended: "Brock Believes in What We Believe In." How's that for slam-bang politics?

There is nothing much doing in North Carolina. Mississippi is uptight about school desegregation—the whole South, for that matter, is still uptight about school desegregation—but the only House contest, down in the southwest part of the State, has raised no. Mississippi dust. Over in Texas, newsmen tell me the Senate race between George Bush (R) and Lloyd Bentsen (D) is too close to call. If it weren't for another whisky referendum, the polls would stay uncrowded all day.

Here in southern Alabama, where I am holed up for the night, they have rolled up the political sidewalks. There is a revivalist in town, selling gifts of the spirit in a tent crusade, and he is drawing larger crowds than the candidates.

Speaking of candidates, Alabama has a raft of them. For some years I have identified myself as a Whig, just to prove how non-partisan a critic can be, and I had innocently supposed that Vermont Royster and I were the only Whigs still around. Not so. An Alabama Whig Party has been formed by John Watts III of Harpersville, a 51-year-old retired colonel. He is running for Governor under the Whig symbol on the Alabama ballot—a collie dog, with a motto that reads: "Guardian of the Flocks." A candidate also has been fielded by the Prohibition Party' its ballot symbol is a two-humped camel, appealing, perhaps, to those who are twice as

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

On the eve of the last presidential election in 1968, a fear grew that a close contest could lead to a deadlock in the Electoral College and a protracted delay in the selection of the next President.

The fear proved groundless. As it had for 200 years, the mechanism of the Electoral College worked smoothly, and Richard Nixon assumed office on schedule.

However, this didn't prevent a movement from getting under way in Congress to abandon the Electoral College in favor of direct popular election of the President.

The so-called Bayh Amendment to establish the direct election process passed easily enough in the House of Representatives while many people were still disturbed over what they considered to be a "near fiasco." Since then, as Time magazine pointed out, "there have been some serious second thoughts" about the merits of the Bayh Amendment.

Theoretically, direct election of a President would be a simple process. But as Time points out, "opponents are arguing that it might well be even more chaotic and dissatisfying than the Electoral College system."

If there should be a deadlock among candidates in the direct election of a President, the loser would be compelled to ask for a nationwide recount of votes. And that could hold up the official election outcome for weeks.

Time concludes, after a lengthy discussion of the direct election proposal a President will not merely change how votes are counted. There is a possibility, not yet fully appreciated, that the entire political makeup of the country might be affected in ways yet unanticipated and unexplored."

That makes a great deal of sense. Debate over methods of electing a President has shown one thing: representative government and the freedom we enjoy under it is a highly perishable commodity.

Banks Optimistic Over Future

By ELMER ROESSNER
Many regard banks as being smarter than other institutions and individuals. Certainly, banks averaged high earnings in the third quarter while many other businesses saw profits shrink, and many cut dividends.

So let's see what the banks are now saying about the economy in their monthly letters and releases:

Chase Manhattan Bank: "Economists have increasingly come to believe that the recession in the U.S. economy has ended. They are also inclined to believe—although with much less unanimity—that price inflation is on the wane. But the optimism that these views imply is rather generally tempered by indications that the economic recovery now under way will be a slow one." New business statistics are likely to be somewhat erratic for the next few months—up a little here, down a little there. But the weight of the evidence, nevertheless, appears to favor some upturn."

"After The Strike"
First National City Bank: "There are good reasons to believe that the economy will move up rapidly when the General Motors strike ends. ...The strike will last long enough to have an even more pronounced effect on fourth quarter statistics....The effects will be transitory. In the past, pre-strike production levels have been rapidly regained and pre-strike levels of sales have often been exceeded for a time as augmented demand has been signaled by sales to buyers who were unable to obtain delivery during the strike....Among the expansive forces that will be at work in the economy are the upturn in residential construction and a step-up in orders by steel users in an effort to build up inventories as insurance against the possibility of a steel strike next August."

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis: "The pace of real economic activity remains sluggish as the response to last year's fiscal restraint continues. Despite the slowdown of production and employment, the pace of inflation has not yet moderated significantly."

Paint Job's Strain

By JOY STILLEY

New York (AP) — What causes sore muscles, headaches, a general feeling of malaise and a firm conviction that things will be even worse tomorrow — symptoms that appear regularly every three years?

It's not some dread tropical disease — it's a paint job on an apartment. And though it isn't an illness recognized by any medical authority, the recovery period is long and painful.

So is the preparation. It's a two-day operation to transform our abode into a setting untouched by human fingerprints, and the logistics must be charted accordingly.

Since I can get more meals in a restaurant that way, I always advocate doing the kitchen first, thus putting it out of commission for an extra day. A logical partner is the bathroom, and we throw in a couple of bedrooms for good measure. What we really should do is throw out the entire contents of those bedrooms.

Instead we empty all the closets, taking down shoe racks, tie holders and old empty boxes that might make it through one more Christmas, and remove pictures, lamps, mirrors and other impediments from the walls.

The clothes get draped gracefully across the dining room chairs and the rest of the stuff goes into boxes that optimistically seek a resting place under the table among sister and brother boxes filled with junk from the kitchen cabinets.

The table itself is covered with dishes, glasses, toasters, coffee pots, pans blenders and everything else that needs a temporary home away from home. Leaning against the walls at various precarious angles are ironing board, drying rack, vacuum cleaner, window screens and any number of long-handled objects that are fugitives from the broom closet.

Then all the furniture must be arranged in intimate little groupings in the center of the rooms to be painted. My husband supplies the brawn for this enterprise. I supply the brains, deciding which piece looks better atop the bed — the dresser, the bookcase or the night table.

Once the first day's art work has been completed, all these things must be returned to their place of origin. The the living room and the dining room and a few odd little alcoves and halls must be dismantled and the obstacle course through the house replotted.

We've pretty well solved the second-day problem this time though. Our daughter is away at college so we just stacked everything in her newly painted room, firmly closed the door and hope one of her classmates will invite her home for Thanksgiving. That way we have until Christmas to get things straightened out.

Reorganization Savings Cited

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—State Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, predicted Monday night that reorganization of state government would result in an annual savings to the state of $50 million by 1975.

Henley, head of a commission studying reorganization of state government, was interviewed on the University of North Carolina's network of television stations.

He said he thinks the constitutional amendment on reorganization will be approved by Tar Heel voters Nov. 3 because "the people want this and they realize the savings that can be accomplished."

thirsty. Campus unrest is the sole issue that ignites a light in the Southern eye. The name of George Wallace stirs only a low-key hurrah, even in conservative audiences, but the name of Spiro Agnew sets off a whoop. I see by the papers that Agnew is suffering from over-exposure in the North and West; here in Dixie they still love the Household Word.

Inflation and unemployment must be issues somewhere else. They count for little down South. A few days ago the Labor Department published its scare-head figures on joblessness in poor neighborhoods. The figures provoke incredulity and irritation here.

And no wonder. The Mobile Press-Register is bulging with help wanted ads. The day I was in Austin, the American carried whole columns of appeals for delivery men, service station attendants, rough carpenters, beginner typists, assistant bricklayers, and "body worker with H.S. shop training, $7,280." The Houston Chronicle had five pages of help wanted one day last week—for cooks, counter boys, car wash help, and for trainees in drafting, welding, plumbing and retail sales. One "equal opportunity employer," the code phrase that means blacks are especially welcome, advertised for 500 men on construction jobs: No experience necessary.

Same thing in New Orleans. The Times-Picayune carries countless ads for porters, handymen, messengers, drivers, waiters, scrap yard burners. Every restaurant in the French Quarter must be desperate for bus boys. Same thing in Dallas. Same thing in San Antonio, with emphasis on Spanish-American opportunities. Why should the unskilled poor be jobless?

These are fleeting impressions, mere wing-shots at moods of the South. Politically, they add up to some mild gains for conservative Republicanism. But not much. Not much.

Heard Views Of 3 Ass'n Honor For Greenville Man

The theme "Tomorrow's Teachers" was the one chosen for a recent dinner-lecture program of the Delta Kappa Gamma at the Woman's Club.

Three speakers, representing three different points of view, spoke to the members. Mrs. Sallie Klingenschmitt, a retired teacher, represented the retired teachers viewpoint. For the group constituting experienced current teachers, Mrs. Elsie Eagan was speaker. The young group of teachers was represented by Mrs. Joyce Lewis.

Mrs. Klingenschmitt is a retired Greenville city school teacher; Mrs. Eagan is a supervisor of student teachers at East Carolina University, and Mrs. Lewis is a high school teacher in the H. B. Sugg School in Farmville.

"The goal of a good teacher," Mrs. Klingenschmitt said, "should be to teach each child in such a way that he develops a love of learning that will encourage him to continue learning on his own all through his life." She mentioned a teacher's enthusiasm and love as an important factor in accomplishing this.

Drastic changes in teaching for the rest of the century are predicted by Mrs. Eagan—who mentioned more money for lower education rather than higher education; new approaches to education in inner cities, in rural areas and among migrant workers; and modification of junior and senior high school program as some of the many changes which should be taking place.

The young teacher, Mrs. Lewis, commented, "One of the most important challenges to the future teacher is communication. The teacher must involve herself in a position that has no barriers to break down the lines...must have a genuine interest in each student's ideas and feelings."

The Delta Kappa Gamma Society International is the largest organized group of women educators in the world. It provides each year a total of 18 annual international scholarships.

Mrs. Anna B. Harrington is president of the local chapter.

Charge Convict With Murder, Intent To Kill

RALEIGH (AP) — A 29-year-old convict has been charged with murder and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in the slaying of his estranged wife and the wounding of his mother-in-law.

Police identified the man as Jerry Douglas Watkins of Raleigh, who escaped Sunday from Blanch Prison in Caswell County.

He is accused of fatally shooting Mrs. Margie Watkins 27, of Raleigh and wounding her mother, Mrs. Mary Price, 50, Sunday night. Mrs. Price was listed in serious condition at Wake Memorial Hospital.

Police said Watkins was treated at Wake Memorial for a head wound believed to be self-inflicted. Later, he was placed in the Wake County jail.

Watkins fled while on a leave of absence to attend church in the community, prison officials said. He was serving a two-year term for breaking and entering.

Candidate Shook 'Wrong Hands'

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — Dr. Ross Pierpont, a congressional candidate in the 2nd District of Maryland, shook a lot of hands in the Harford County Courthouse Monday while waiting to testify as a physician.

But when the case was called, it was pointed out that the hands he shook included those of the jury members.

The judge ordered the case postponed. Pierpont said he was sorry but "if a voter has a hand sticking out, I'm going to shake it."

The first Oscar was awarded in the 1928 Paramount movie "Wings."

Police Shaken By 'Unexpected'

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — When a young man walked in the door of the police station holding a grenade in his outstretched hand, a woman desk clerk shouted! "Get out of here!"

A sergeant drew his pistol as two other officers rushed the unprotesting young man.

Then the man explained: He bought the unarmed grenade and later feared it might still be live, so he brought it in for the police to dispose of. It was unarmed, officers reported Monday, and they got rid of it.

And they advised Douglas Yoakam, 21, next time he has to bring a grenade to the police station, please call first.

Ayden Travels To Meet Pamlico But Will Watch Knapp-Manteo

The Ayden Tornadoes face their second straight non-conference opponent while looking the other way this Friday night. The game will be in Bayboro against Pamlico County, but the Tornadoes will have an eye on the Manteo-Knapp game over in Currituck.

For in that game will lie the hopes of the Tornadoes for any chance to share the Tidewater Conference championship.

Knapp and Manteo are currently tied for the league lead with 2-0 records. Manteo has beaten Ayden, and Knapp still has to play the Tornadoes. Ayden's best hope is that Knapp will down Manteo, and then fall to Ayden. That would tie Ayden with Knapp, and since they hold a win over Knapp, it would normally mean they would claim the title.

But that is still two weeks away, and the immediate Ayden attention must be focused on Pamlico.

In last week's action, Ayden rolled over Louisburg, 43-18, while Manteo crushed Manteo, 52-26 and Columbia fell to Aurora, 16-8 in non-conference games. In the lone conference event, Knapp downed Camden, 32-6.

"Our defense made a couple of mental mistakes early in the game, and Louisburg picked up two touchdowns on them," Ayden Coach Nelson Gravatt said. "But after that we began to put pressure on their quarterback and held them in check. I thought we did a good job overall."

Ayden came up with two injuries in the game, to Derander

Holton and Ricky Allen. Both are expected to miss this week's game with Pamlico. "We'll also be sending some of our boys down for the junior varsity game with North Pitt, so we'll be at lower strength than usual for the game."

Gravatt said that Pamlico is a big, strong team with a couple of good running backs. "We are going to have to try and spread their defense, because they are too big to run over," Gravatt said.

Pamlico picked up its first win in eight games last week, but Gravatt cautions that their record is deceiving. "Vanceboro told me that they were one of the best teams they had played. It's also their Homecoming, so they'll be up higher than usual for us."

Gravatt is pleased in that the Tornadoes have been developing strength at running back lately. "Leroy Sumpter did a fine job for us Friday night, scoring four touchdowns. We now have about five people who can carry the ball well."

In addition to the Ayden-Pamlico game, and the Knapp-Manteo contest, Columbia will be at Camden in the battle for the league basement.

The current Tidewater Conference standings:
	Conf.		Overall
Knapp	2	0	7	0	1
Manteo	2	0	6	1	1
Ayden	2	1	6	1	1
Columbia	0	2	2	7	0
Camden	0	3	2	7	0

Taylor Is Winner

John Taylor of 217 Windsor Road is the winner of this week's football contest in The Daily Reflector.

Taylor correctly picked the winners in 29 of the 32 games listed in last week's contest.

Second place resulted in a tie between Beulah Dixon of Rt. 2, Box 140, Ayden, and Earl D. Clary of 1103 B N. Washington St., Greenville, and a member of the ECU football team. Both of them missed just four and had 28 right. Both also had guessed 73 as the point total.

The actual point total was 66, scored in both the Mississippi State-Southern Mississippi (51-15), and the Texas-Rice (45-21) games.

Six other people also had 28 right, but were further off the point total.

This week's contest appears on the following pages.

Quarry Polished Off In Three Rounds By Ali; Wants Frazier

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
ATLANTA (AP) — Muhammad Ali is back and ready to meet champion Joe Frazier in a fight that should be an explosive climax to what has been several years of confusion, frustration and doubt in boxing's heavyweight division.

"I'm ready to settle the title," Ali said Monday night after disposing of tough Jerry Quarry in three rounds in Ali's first fight in 3½ years.

"Quarry was much harder to fight than Joe Frazier will be," said the man who rose to the heavyweight championship as Cassius Clay and then was stripped of his title when he was convicted of refusing induction into the Army.

"We're ready to fight him as soon as we can get rid of Foster and as soon as Clay can get ready," Frazier's manager, Yank Durham said in East Stroudsburg, Pa., where Frazier is training for a title defense against light heavyweight king Bob Foster in Detroit Nov. 18.

Frazier did not see Ali's triumphant return, which was shown on closed circuit television, but he didn't go to sleep until he knew the result.

Foster, who has a thunderous left hook could upset an Ali-Frazier fight. Another block could be Ali's conviction which drew a $10,000 fine and a five-year prison sentence. The conviction still is being appealed.

Ali was a heavy favorite to win the historic fight at Atlanta's old Municipal Auditorium, jammed with 5,100 people, but it was the manner in which he won it which showed that indeed he once again is a major force in boxing.

From the opening bell of the scheduled 15-rounder until the fight was stopped at the end of the third round with blood gushing from Quarry's split left eyebrow, Ali was in complete command.

Using his 5½-inch reach advantage and showing he had not lost his punching speed, Ali peppered Quarry with stinging left jabs and jolted him with left hooks and rights. It was a straight right in the third round that ripped open Quarry's eyebrow, a wound that required 15 stitches.

"The guy I saw with Quarry was the same guy that fought Folley," said Ali's manager, Angelo Dundee. "I was amazed at what I saw."

Ali, now 28, fought Zora Folley March 22, 1967 and won by a seven-round knockout.

Ali's transformation from lecturer, actor and fast food impresario to a fighter that closely resembled himself 3½ years ago was truly amazing. Ali weighed 238 when he began training for the Quarry fight six weeks ago. Monday night he weighed 213½, just two more pounds than he weighed when he fought Folley and 16 pounds more than Quarry.

Ali's victory not only opened the way for him to get a crack at regaining the championship, which he points out he never lost in the ring, it opens the way for one of the most lucrative fights in history.

Monday night's fight did more for Ali than just restore his pride. He figures to get more than a million dollars from his percentage while Quarry could end up with about $500,000. Ali had been guaranteed $200,000 against 42½ per cent; Quarry $150,000 against 22½ per cent.

The only statistic announced was the sellout crowd of 5,100 in the Auditorium. There were no figures on the live gate or the gate from closed circuit television shown at 206 locations, with 900,000 seats in the United States and Canada.

The bout also was beamed live to Europe, South America, Australia, Asia and the Soviet Union, with a delayed telecast to Great Britain.

Winning the fight was termed by Ali "more than a win for a fighter—it was a social victory." This was a reference to his victory against the banishment imposed on him after his conviction.

Ali saw plans for many fights fall through until Atlanta granted him a license. Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox publicly opposed the fight but could not legally stop it since it was municipally licensed. Georgia has no state boxing commission.

Since being licensed to fight in Atlanta, Ali also has been granted a license by New York State.

The crowd, dotted with such personalities as actor Sidney Poitier, singer Dianna Ross, comedian Bill Cosby, baseball star Hank Aaron and fighter Jimmy Ellis, was solidly behind Ali and roared its approval of his victory, one of the most important and, for him, probably the most satisfying of his career.

Ali's comeback fight was the 30th victory, 24th by knockout, in 30 fights since turning pro in 1960.

While Ali's future is bright, the 25-year-old Quarry's career is clouded.

The fighting Irishman from California was outgunned from the start but he didn't want to quit. His trainer, Teddy Benham, shouted to referee Tony Perez at the end of the third round that it had gone far enough. Perez then examined the cut, without calling a doctor, and stopped the fight.

Quarry, threw his hands up in anger and started after Perez. His father, Jack Quarry, shouted, "If you go back in that ring you'll never fight again."

So ended Quarry's third failure in a big fight. He lost a 15-round decision to Jimmy Ellis in the World Boxing Association Title tournament after Ali was deposed and he was knocked out in seven rounds in a title fight with Frazier with whom he was trying for a rematch.

Quarry's record now is 37 victories, five losses and four draws.

ECU-Cat Game Change

DAVIDSON, N. C. (AP) — The Davidson-East Carolina football game, scheduled Nov. 28 at Foreman Field in Norfolk, Va., has been moved to Davidson's Richardson Field.

Dr. Tom Scott, Davidson athletic director, made the announcement today. The game will end the season for both Southern Conference teams.

Scott said the change was made after Tidewater Realtor Bowl, Inc., sponsoring agency for the game in the Norfolk area, withdrew from its contract commitment for the game.

Goal-Line Stand Is Key To Vikings' Win

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Carl Eller simply explained that the Minnesota Vikings took the right attitude to the line of scrimmage on a game-turning goal line stand against the Los Angeles Rams. "We never doubt ourselves," said Eller, a 6-foot-6, 250-pound defensive end. "We realize the percentages. But we will never concede."

The Rams, after Kermit Alexander's 49-yard return of a deflected punt, had a first down on Minnesota's two with 19 seconds left in the first half and the Vikings leading 10-0 in a rainy, muddy National Football League game Monday night.

First, Les Josephson got a yard in the middle. Roman Gabriel got a few inches on a quarterback sneak. And Gabriel was smothered in the middle again on third down as time ran out for the second time of the half, and the Vikings finished up with a 13-3 victory in the Monday night television game.

The Rams actually got an extra down after Gabriel's second down thrust over right tackle and no time on the scoreboard clock. But referee Fred Silva ruled that the Vikings did not unpile in time, and gave Gabriel another down.

But it made little difference. Alexander actually thought he had put six points on the board with his run after Willie Ellison stormed into get a hand on Tom McNeill's punt. Jim Lindsey tackled him at the two.

"I thought I was over," said Alexander. "I should have tried to elude Lindsey, but I was worrying about a fumble."

Alexander had cause for worry. The Rams lost four of seven fumbles and Vikings turned two of them into 10 points.

Ram return man Alvin Raymond dropped a punt on the Ram 18 in the first period, and Kent Kramer recovered for the Vikings.

Bill Brown slipped between guard and tackle, sped up the middle of the field and took Gary Cuozzo's 17-yard touchdown pass in the end zone for a 7-0 edge.

Rams' running back Larry Smith fumbled in the second period, Alan Page picked it up at the Los Angeles 22 and ran to the 14. Fred Cox kicked a 13-yard field goal.

Dave Ray kicked a 23-yard field goal for the Rams in the third period, but Cox booted a 25-yarder for the Vikings in the final quarter.

The Vikings held the Rams to 100 yards total offense, 34 rushing, and piled up 146 rushing of their own against the team that had led the NFL in defending the run.

Bill Brown led Minnesota's ground attack with 62 yards and became the 13th player in NFL history to surpass the 5,000-yard mark in rushing. Dave Osborn added 58 yards.

The victory gave the Vikings a 5-1 record and sends them to Detroit next Sunday to meet the Lions, also 5-1, for the Central Division lead of the National Conference. Los Angeles, dropping to second with a 4-2 record in the West behind San Francisco's 4-1-1, plays at New Orleans.

Farmville Art Show

On Oct. 31, Nov. 1

FARMVILLE — For the eighth consecutive year, the Farmville Art Society will hold its Annual Fall Art Show. This year the show falls on Saturday, October 31 and on Sunday, November 1.

Hours for public viewing on both days are from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. with additional evening hours on Saturday from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

More than 120 paintings are expected to be entered this year. As in past years, awards are to be made for original paintings in four categories — landscapes, seascapes, portraits, and still life. Ribbons will also be presented for first, second, and third place winner in painted reproductions.

Other awards to be given include the "most popular" painting, to be judged by votes of those attending the show; and the Lettie Garner Award which will go to the student showing the most improvement during the year.

The Worry Clinic

Relics Of The Distant Past

Melody asks a good question concerning ritual. Why do illiterates use an "X" when they can't write their own names? Why not an "O" or a "T," etc? Many modern bits of social and religious ritual once had a very logical origin. But they have since outlived their usefulness and now persist through the inertia of custom!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE 0-566: Melody F., aged 14, is a high school freshman. "Dr. Crane," she asked when I addressed her assembly on practical psychology, "why do people use an 'X' when they can't write their names?" "Why not use some other letter, such as an 'O' or a 'T,' etc?"

We have many strange carry-overs from the past. Originally, they often had a

And they also cleaned the grease from their mouths after eating by wiping their faces with the new coat sleeves.

So Frederic had the coats called in and then commanded all the tailors of the area to sew sharp pieces of glass or stones on the upper cuff of the coat sleeves.

For when his men then absent-mindedly wiped their mouth or nose with the coat sleeve, they'd cut their lips and produce pain.

Those sharp stones on the upper cuff of a man's coat sleeve now have merely gravitated to the lower side, but are still retained just through the inertia of custom, though they have no practical value any more.

The bidding:
North East South West
1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♦ Pass 2♠ Pass
3♠ Pass 4♠ Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠ North was confronted with an interesting problem in today's auction. He opened the bidding with one heart and South responded with one spade. North showed his second suit by rebidding two diamonds.

When South failed to jump on the second round, merely persisting to two spades, North should apparently pass. He reasoned, however, that despite South's mild action, the latter had manifested some willingness to carry on when he bids a second time. Inasmuch as North's values figure to be useful, he decided to give his partner another chance by raising to three spades. South accepted the invitation and bid a game.

West opened the king of clubs and South won the trick with the ace. Inasmuch as declarer had too many clubs to ruff out, he decided first to lead a small heart from his hand in an attempt to establish some side tricks.

West put up the ace of hearts and switched to a trump. South played North's ace of spades, cashed the ace, king of diamonds—discarding a club from his hand, and then ruffed a diamond with the three of spades. The queen of hearts was played, followed by a club ruff in dummy.

The king of hearts was led and when both opponents followed suit, declarer disposed of his remaining club. A diamond was ruffed in the closed hand as East discarded the jack of clubs. All hands were down to three cards with South having the Q-9-6 of spades left while East retained the K-J-10.

A small spade was led putting East in with the ten. He cashed the king next, however declarer's queen took the last trick. In all, South lost one heart and two spades.

It may be observed that if West ducks when South leads the heart at trick two, the latter is still in position to win 10 tricks. The king of hearts is put up and the ace, king of diamonds are played, permitting declarer to discard the queen of hearts. A crossruff is inaugurated as South ruffs a heart, North ruffs a club, South another heart and North another club with the ace of spades.

A diamond is ruffed by declarer for a ninth trick and then he exits with his remaining club. There is no way for the defenders to prevent South from scoring the fulfilling trick with the queen of spades.
