House Demos May Write Their Own Economic Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reinforced House Democrats may present their own economic program if the Nixon administration does not change its policies, according to Rep. Carl Albert, the chamber's prospective new speaker.

Albert took issue in an interview with two interpretations of Tuesday's election—that the smaller-than-average Democratic House gains for off-year elections were not significant and that voter concern with inflation and unemployment did not play a major role.

"We are going into the new Congress with the biggest Democratic majority since the Johnson landslide of 1964," Albert said.

Democrats picked up at least nine House seats, for a total of 254. This contrasts with 243 at the beginning of the last Congress and 248 at the start of the one four years ago.

It is, however, well short of the 295 seats Democrats won in 1964 when Lyndon B. Johnson overwhelmed Sen. Barry Goldwater in the presidential election.

"I would hope this would encourage the administration to take the state of the economy more seriously," Albert said.

"They haven't done so up to now."

Albert said the Democrats in the House already have taken some legislative steps. Over administration opposition, they have passed standby credit, wage and price controls which have not been used.

"We could do more," Albert said. "I would hope that we could work together with the administration, but if not we will have to go ahead on our own."

Albert said his party will benefit not only its gains in the House but by a heightened sense of unity resulting from the deep involvement by Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in the congressional campaign.

"A lot of people are resentful because it was a sort of a smear campaign," Albert said. "It was absurd to try to put Democrats in the position of tolerating stonewalling of the President. We are just as much opposed to that as anyone."

Albert said while the election returns need more analysis, it appears the economic issue was important in areas, including notably California, where there has been a slump in business and employment.

"That was the No. 1 issue, although they denied it," he said. "I don't think there is any other way to consider this election than as a very splendid Democratic victory."

Since Democrats are assured of control of the House, they will name the speaker when the new Congress convenes in January, Albert is unopposed to succeed the retiring speaker, John W. McCormack of Massachusetts.

Robbery Suspect Was Found Dead

WALSTONBURG — A man believed to have robbed a bank Wednesday was found, shortly after being chased by a highway patrolman, shot to death with a bullet wound in the chest.

The suspect was identified as Elmer E. Laughinghouse, 47, of Washington, N.C.

A stocking-disguised lone gunman held up the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company's branch office here about 11:45 Wednesday. The robber was carrying a snub-nosed pistol and escaped with an undisclosed amount of money which as of Thursday morning had not been recovered, and investigation by Greene County authorities is continuing.

A witness who entered the bank shortly after the hold up, said that the two tellers shouted to him that the man has just held up the bank. The witness was identified as Eugene Sherrill. Sherrill gave chase to the late model blue truck. It ended when the truck had a flat tire on a woods path. Sherrill went to a nearby farm house to telephone officers. When he returned the truck was gone.

State Patrolman J.P. Whitehurst of Snow Hill spotted the truck at about 12:15 and gave chase. The chase ended in a farm lane. Whitehurst stated that suddenly the left door of the truck opened and a man fell out. The one shot in the left chest with the .32 caliber pistol was placed as the cause of death. The pistol with four unused bullets was found on the right floorboard of the truck.

Officers are investigating to see if the fatal shot was accidental or self inflicted.

An amount of money was found on the suspect, but it was not known if the money had come from the bank or not.

Officers are still checking the possibility that a second person might have been involved in the robbery since the money has not been discovered.

Fatal Fall
A worker on the new Presbyterian church building under construction at the intersection of Elm and 14th Streets was killed in a fall about 11:40 a.m. today.

The man was identified as Jessie Horace Mills, 57, of Blackjack.

Mills fell about 20 feet.

Says 'Raiders' Go Beyond The Limits Of Fun

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A group of East Carolina University students staged the second raid on the school's womens residence halls in less than three weeks late last night.

Officials said the raid, which began about 11:30 p.m., involved from 100 to 150 persons, and broke up about 1 a.m.

Dean of Men James Mallory said this morning that officials are "still investigating," and noted that university authorities last night "pulled ID cards on about eight to ten people." He indicated that the school "plans to take disciplinary action against them."

Officers said last night's incident differed from an October 16 incident in which a group of students, numbering several hundred strong, staged a panty-raid at several girls dorms — spurred on by cheers from the coeds — in that the men last night did not have the cooperation from women students that they received before, and that several police officers were pushed around.

"There were fewer (men) this time, it was raining, the wind blowing...and they were more fragmented...spread out more," Mallory said.

"We asked them to stop, tried to talk to them," he commented. "They were actually assaulting the police...pushing..." the dean said.

"We are issuing a directive today to all students to the effect that fun is fun, but this is past the fun stage. In the future, any mob action of a disorderly, disruptive, profane, riotous nature...we will ask them to disperse. If they fail to disperse, their IDs (student identification cards bearing a photo of the individual) will be lifted, and the student will be suspended summarily pending a hearing.

If they have no ID, they will be carried up town and charged with trespassing," the dean explained.

Last night's raid began at Scott Dorm, then the men gathered on the Mall and visited other women's residence halls.

Score Of Acts Of Vandalism Charged Four Local Youths

Greenville police have charged four 16-year-old boys with committing a score of acts of vandalism here Saturday, including shooting out car windows, yard lights and city street lights.

Charged with the series of shootings were John F. Williams, 200 Ridgeway St.; Richard A. Garris, 504A Watauga Ave.; Lawrence Calvin Oakley, 1523 Broad St., and Edmond C. Cook, 2705 Tryon Dr.

The four allegedly used a BB rifle to break windows in a number of cars, shot out one yard light and one street light, Chief T. E. Gladson reported. A number of victims of the shooting spree were able to give information which led to the arrest of the quartet, the chief explained.

The group was charged with damage to personal property for shooting of windows of vehicles at: 502 West Fourth St., 104 Herritage St.; Guy Smith Stadium; 1600 Spruce St., 813 and 817 Washington St., 503 West Ninth St., East Third St., three incidents on Myrtle Ave., James, Meade and North Greene Streets, 500 West Fourth St., 1510 Broad St., on 14th St., and at the intersection of 12th and Evans Sts.

They were also charged with damaging city property by shooting out a street light in the 200 block of South Meade St., and with shooting out a yard light at 1704 West Fourth St.

Estimated damage is in excess of $650.

Claim Rebuff

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam declared today that President Nixon had been rebuffed by American voters in his aim to turn America "in a reactionary direction."

U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce, replying to Hanoi's emissary at the Vietnam peace talks, said: "You have proved how little you understand our democratic process."

"These elections seem to have distracted you lately and now they are over."

"But one thing is clear. The American people, the American Congress and broad international opinion view President Nixon's (Oct. 7 peace) proposals as a constructive basis for a peaceful settlement of the war."

Ambassador Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's peace talks emissary, said "the results of the midterm election demonstrated the failure of his enterprise."

Nevertheless, Thuy said as the 91st plenary peace talks session began: "Nixon is trying to convince public opinion at home and abroad that he succeeded."

Thuy said this was "the same kind of lie as those he told about his Washington willingness to end the war... The reality is that Washington is ready to intensify and expand the war all over Indochina."

Fled, Fearing 'No Fair Trial'

ROME (AP) — Raphael Minichiello, former U.S. Marine corporal, testified today that he hijacked a TWA jetliner from California to Italy for fear he wouldn't get a fair trial in the United States.

The 21-year-old Italian-American went on trial here on charges of violence, assault and kidnaping in the dramatic 6,900-mile flight a year ago that was history's longest airplane hijacking.

He was not charged with the hijacking itself. Italian law makes no reference to air piracy.

Minichiello, who migrated to the United States with his parents when he was 13, told the court of his arrest in California on charges of breaking into an Army store.

"I am Italian," he told the court in his strongly American-accented Italian. "I went to the United States. I fought for them in Vietnam. And then that's the way they treat me."

He has contended that he broke into the Army supply store to get back $200 he claims the Army owed him in back pay during his Vietnam service.

He escaped when being taken to stand court-martial, and hijacked the plane to Italy.

His mother, Maria Giuseppa Minichiello, was here from Seattle, Wash., for the trial.

Asked whether she thought her son's case was going better than it would in the United States, she replied: "One hundred per cent better."

Minichiello took the stand after his defense lost a motion that he be released, or granted bail, because he had already been in prison a year.

Some Flooding On Outer Banks

MANTEO, N. C. (AP)—Spots of the Outer Banks from Oregon Inlet to Hatteras, a stretch of about 50 miles, were flooded today because of strong northerly winds pushing sea water inland.

Two mainland points, Mann's Harbor and Stumpy Point, also were getting flood waters.

The water in some cases was as much as 18 inches deep.

State Highway Commission and U.S. Navy trucks were helping stranded motorists.

Some of the flooded areas along the Outer Banks included N.C. 12 between Nags Head and Ocracoke; Pea Island Wildlife Refuge; between Avon and Buxton; and just north of Avon.

Growing Economic Impact By Food Stamp Program

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's food stamp program is mainly designed to help needy families but also is turning out to be one of the most rapidly expanding markets for farm produce.

Last December the Agriculture Department announced a liberalized program for putting more so-called bonus food stamps into hands of needy families.

Currently, according to department officials, the food-buying power of stamp recipients is running about $100 million per month more than a year ago.

Under the new plan, a family of four with an income of about $80 a month, for example, receives $106 worth of stamps at a cost of $10 a month. Previously, the coupons were worth only $58 per month.

The economic impact has been large, according to the latest food stamp participation figures issued Wednesday.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng said food stamp participation in September totaled 8.2 million persons, compared with fewer than 3.5 million a year earlier.

The larger enrollment plus the expanded benefits boosted the value of food stamp bonuses — the extra buying power provided by the coupons — to $116.2 million during September, compared with $22.2 million for the month in 1969.

On a cumulative basis, the stamp bonus total for the first nine months of 1970 was $726 million, compared with $193 million for the January-September period a year earlier.

Besides the food stamps, the department's commodity distribution program continues serving about 3.5 million needy persons, roughly the same as a year ago.

Lyng told an audience in Houston, Tex., on Wednesday that 1970 has been a "gigantic step" toward eliminating poverty-caused hunger in the United States.

"The job is not finished," Lyng said, "but we are succeeding. With continued public commitment I believe America will soon see the end of poverty-caused hunger and malnutrition."

Brooks Hays To Keynote Rally Here On Sunday

"Change and Challenge" is the theme of the wrap up public rally on Sunday afternoon at Wright Auditorium for Human Relations Week.

At 3:30 Sunday afternoon, the Honorable Brooks Hays, chairman of the North Carolina Good Neighbor Council, will keynote the rally with a speech on the "Change and Challenge" theme.

Dr. Andrew A. Best, Greenville physician and chairman of the Eastern Region of the N. C. Good Neighbor Council, speaking of the purpose of Human Relations Week, said, "The program is designed to promote understanding and personal commitment through communication and involvement."

"We feel very strongly," Dr. Best continued, "that human relations is the most critical of all the special needs for the survival and the overall success of education."

An earlier event to mark efforts to promote education through understanding and application of human relations is a dinner meeting to be held Saturday at the Aycock Junior

Scoffs At U.S. Charge Of POW Mistreatment

PARIS (AP) — A correspondent for the French Communist party newspaper Humanite reported from Hanoi today that U.S. prisoners of war are well treated and receive mail often.

Reporting on a visit he made to a prison camp in a Hanoi suburb Theo Ronco scoffed at "official U.E. propaganda describing their captivity in colors of hell and Dante."

Ronco's article gave names of five prisoners he said he had seen and talked with.

The names were "Hoffson," Lt. Alvarez, identified as "the head of the list of pilots arrested in North Vietnam following a raid on Quang Ninh province in August 1964," Lt. Cmdr. Osborne of California, and Col Miller of Iowa captured Oct. 13, 1967 at Quang Binh and William John Mahew.

Alvarez was quoted as saying he received letters "only from time to time." Mahew was said to receive mail regularly. Osborne was quoted as saying he didn't always like the camp food.

"I know that we received more than the Vietnamese and that our guards try to improve the food so that it will be more to American tastes," Miller was quoted as saying.

Mahew was said to be in especially good physical condition. The article said Osborne had been "seriously wounded in the legs and right arm" when his plane was shot down but that for years he received constant care.

Prisoner of war lists name Capt. Arthur Thomas Hoffson of South Carolina; Lt. Everett Alvarez Jr., Santa Clara, Calif.; Lt. Cmdr. Dale Harrison Osborne, Hanford, Calif., and Lt. William John Mayhew, New Manchester, W. Va.

Neither official nor unofficial lists carry a Miller with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Let Son Lead His Own Life

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son, 19, attended a boys' high school and never dated until he went to college. As a college freshman he met a girl and they became engaged. She is a year older than he, is of another faith, and she is an invalid, having had spinal surgery at age 13. She needs help to walk, and her coordination is poor.

Our son invited her to our home for a few days. [She lives 300 miles away.] It was heartbreaking! The poor girl made her bed to the best of her ability, but it looked like the work of a child. She left fingerprints on the walls where she had tried to get around, unassisted.

We've explained to our son that he will have a hard time getting insurance and hospitalization—that she will always need a full-time maid, and she is incapable of caring for a baby, if indeed she could ever bear one.

We've told our son that we will see him thru college, while he is still single, but if he marries in college, we'll not help him financially.

We love our son and don't want him to make a mistake he will regret all his life. Meanwhile, the girl's parents are encouraging this marriage. Would you recommend this marriage?

HIS PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: The "marriage" may come off whether I recommend it or not. But I have a recommendation for you. You know you have your son's best interests at heart, it is his decision and his life, and even his "mistake" if that's what it turns out to be.

Don't point out the difficulties he will face should he marry this girl. [He's aware of them.] Your obvious disapproval of this choice could make him all the more determined to marry her just to prove you wrong.

DEAR ABBY: A man just can't win. Why is it that when I send my wife flowers for no special occasion, she looks at me funny and says, "Well, what have you done now?"

NOT GUILTY

DEAR NOT: She hasn't been properly trained. When she feels certain that your generosity was not prompted by a guilty conscience, she'll quit being suspicious. To "train" her—send her flowers more often.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about twin beds interested me because for 10 years my husband and I also slept "spoon style" and it was very comfortable—for him. He is 6'2" and I am 5'2" and I wasn't getting much bed, or much sleep.

Five years ago we bought twin beds and for the first year my husband hated it. Then we hit upon a good compromise. We pushed the twin beds together. That way we each have our own mattress and when one moves the other isn't disturbed.

Of course the bedroom doesn't look quite as attractive, but now we can hold hands when we go to sleep, and he can lean over and kiss me good night and we can get a good night's sleep.

I know I am much easier to get along with during the daytime if I've slept well and that's worth a lot!

Majorette To Salute Father At Game

As usual, fans at the ECU West Virginia football game Saturday afternoon will enjoy a real treat at halftime - the performance of East Carolina's "Marching Pirates" and star twirler Mary Dannehl.

But this Saturday's halftime show will have a special meaning for August Dannehl of Goldsboro, N.C., avid football fan and father of ECU's feature majorette.

Members Hear Donald Lennon

Donald Lennon, assistant professor of history and director of manuscript collection at East Carolina University, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Round Table Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

He provided information concerning the acquisition, preservation, organization and use of important historical documents in the recent collection.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. E. E. Rawl. Mrs. Thomas Patterson presided over a business session during which Mrs. Howard Mims was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. Robert L. Holt, hostess, was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Kenneth Mercer. Fall flowers were used in decorating.

His daughter will perform his favorite twirling routine and the announcer will dedicate it to him over the P.A. system. The routine calls for slow twirling of a senior flag baton to the band's rendition of "Exodus."

Dannehl, affectionately described by his daughter as a "real football fiend" attends all ECU games, at home or away.

He was a Major in the U.S. Marine Corps, having served as a Marine fighter pilot for 16 years. At present, he is district manager for Hill Publishing Co.

A native of Fredericksburg, Va., Dannehl played football in high school there, and later coached Boys' Club teams in Alexandria while Mary was first learning to walk.

In those days, Mary served as team mascot, wearing a tiny football uniform. She began twirling when she was 12 years old, with the wholehearted support of her father.

Since then, she has demonstrated her baton twirling ability at numerous games and majorette competitions and has held the titles of "Miss Majorette of North Carolina" and "America's Most Beautiful Majorette," as well as championships in twirling, strutting and two-baton twirling.

On display at the Dannehl home in Goldsboro are 150 trophies and 120 medals which Mary has won during the course of her eventful career as a majorette.

At ECU, Mary is a senior in the School of Art, and plans to pursue a career in interior design.

Voters Do Support Bond Issues

Pitt County citizens have shown they will support bond issues for necessary project by approving $9 million for construction of a new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

As votes were being tallied Tuesday night, it was late in the evening before passage of the issue was finally assured. However, it passed by a comfortable majority, 6,190 to 5,341. Two of the last precincts to report assured its victory, Greenville 9 with a vote of 757 to 392 and Farmville with a favorable vote of 850 to 527.

The issue carried in all nine Greenville boxes, while it lost in 13 precincts outside the city. However, if the 849 majority by which the issue carried 560 came from the four precincts outside Greenville which favored it. These were Falkland with a 54 vote majority; Farmville with 323 vote majority; Grimesland 1 with a 41 vote majority and Winterville with a 142 vote majority. In addition the issue lost by only small margins in a number of other precincts.

Thus every vote was essential in assuring that the

View 'Legacy' Of Revolution

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C. — The legacy of the American Revolution is the light for the uncertain final quarter of the 20th century.

To brighten its glow, giving contemporary meaning to the heritage of history, is the assignment of the North Carolina American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

"We are thinking of the future as well as the past," said Richard F. Gibbs, the Commission's executive secretary.

"We want to involve North Carolina citizens as broadly as possible in dialogue and discussion on the Revolution and its significance for our society and institutions today."

More than a grand scale 200th birthday party, the Commission has set the goal for its commemoration of the founding of the state and nation "as nothing less than a renaissance of the spirit of the American Revolution."

It's an undertaking too ambitious for the 23-member Commission alone. Participation from every community in the state is needed for success.

County Participation Asked Governor Bob Scott and Hector MacLean of Lumberton, Commission chairman, sent letters this week to boards of commissioners in the 100 counties asking the appointment of county bicentennial committees. These local groups will work with the Commission in planning their own observances and in implementing state and national programs.

"Since much of the bicentennial effort will be directed toward the future, due consideration should be given to having representatives of our young people" on the committees, Governor Scott said.

The bicentennial effort is long range. The 1967 General Assembly created the Commission. After organization and carrying up, operation began July 1, 1969. It now meets quarterly, next January, with day-to-day work carried on by Gibbs and through committees.

The Commission contemplates an observance over a 15-year span from 1974 to 1989. That parallels the Revolutionary period from the first stirring toward freedom in 1774 to the adoption of the Constitution in 1789.

North Carolina lays claim to an initial event. On August 25, 1774, the first Provincial Congress of North Carolina met in New Bern in defiance of Royal Governor Josiah Martin.

A Tar Heel First
"It was the first such group in the 13 colonies meeting openly," Gibbs explained. "They met although ordered (Continued on page 8) hospital bond election was approved and the vote tells us that Pitt Countians are concerned about the kind of medical care that will be available to them.

It should be remembered, however, that most of the votes cast against the issue did not represent people who were opposed to better hospital facilities. In talking to citizens during the campaign we found very few who did not feel that the county needed better facilities. Their only quarrel was with the scope of the planned project.

There is no doubt that the $9 million in local funds and $2 million in state funds is quite an amount of money to spend for the hospital. We are convinced that the county is following the best course. However, we would caution hospital trustees and the county commissioners to study carefully the plans for the new hospital and obtain the best advice that they can. Since the structure is being built to last many years in the future it should be designed with the future in mind. We should do everything possible to avoid constructing a facility which will require extensive renovation in a few years. The county should also study carefully the old hospital building to make certain that it cannot be used for further medical purposes before it is converted for county office space.

Pitt County is on the way toward obtaining a new and modern hospital. Now let's make certain that we have the best facilities that our money can buy.

Awaiting Word By Broughton

Mel. Broughton Jr. — former State Democratic Chairman, who lost a 1968 race for Governor—is seriously considering changing to the Republican Party and running for Governor again.

Broughton doesn't like to talk about such a switch, not publicly. He says: "Some people have brought that up to me but I haven't anything to say about it right now."

But politicians from Asheville to Wilmington are talking about it and one key Broughton supporter from 1968 candidly admits: "Unless I'm dead wrong, Mel will soon be announcing that he's leaving the Democratic Party. He's talked to many of us about it and I'm certain that he's serious about it."

Broughton took the first step in making the switch when he openly endorsed Republican Jack Hawke for Congress from North Carolina's 4th Congressional District.

It is known that Broughton is unhappy in the Democratic Party and much of that dates back to 1968, when he lost the gubernatorial primary to Bob Scott by more than 100,000 votes. He feels, according to people close to him, that the Democratic Party has given him little voice in its affairs since that 1968 race.

Broughton is trying to keep his political organization together, even though he is thinking of jumping to the opposition party.

"I had many people work for me in 1968," he says, "and those people have not lost their interest. We get together from time-to-time and talk about the future. Some of them have mentioned to me that I might consider switching parties but nothing has happened along that line."

Broughton says he "understands there's a good bit of talk across the State about people being unhappy with taxes. I hear it from clients who have to travel North Carolina."

I asked Broughton if he is happy with the job Bob Scott is doing as Governor. He dodged the question like a prize fighter getting out of the way of a knockout punch.

"I haven't commented on things like that since 1968," he said, "and I don't think I have anything to say about it now."

That, of course, sounds like a man who is getting ready to divorce his party for greener pastures.

Gene Simmons, chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party, says he's heard talk everywhere that Broughton is thinking of changing parties and running for Governor.

"I don't think he could get the Republican nomination," Simmons says. "People who have been working their heads off for 20 years aren't going to look kindly on a man switching parties and trying to take the biggest plum."

Simmons is ticked off about the Broughton situation.

"I don't understand how a man who has served as chairman of the Democratic Party, who has served as chairman of the highway commission, and whose father was Governor and a good one...how a man so steeped in the Democratic Party, would do what Mel has done," Simmons said. "I went to see Mel several months ago and told him that I wanted to do a good job and bring all factions of the party together. He told me he wasn't interested in actively helping to build the Democratic Party in North Carolina."

Simmons says he isn't sure what has caused Broughton to turn against the Democratic Party.

"I know some other leaders of our party have gone to see him to talk with him about reports that he might join the Republicans and run for Governor," Simmons says. "He refused to commit himself either way to those people. I don't know what Mel has in mind."

What Mel Broughton has in mind is getting out of the Democrat Party, which he might well do in the immediate future. He's giving it serious consideration, and while he won't talk about it publicly, it's one of the chief topics of conversation among other State politicians.

A Big Day In Scrabble

SCRABBLE, Va. — This past Sunday was a special day in my life, and I am minded to write of that day, without drawing any long conservative morals, partly to escape from politics and partly to make the gentle point that there is more to life than crime, violence, and seats in the upcoming Congress.

This special day began in the predawn darkness, when I woke up wide-awake, the way a man does as he grows older, conscious at once of the emptiness in the house. My wife is in Italy with her sister, having an all-girl holiday, and I have learned that emptiness in a house is a tangible thing, like heat or cold. You feel it in the heart.

It had been raining off and on for three days, and it was still raining outside, a slow, seeping autumn rain, brushing sequins of lamplight on the windowpanes. So I read for an hour or so in Nabokov's "Speak, Memory," delighting in his craftsman's perfect turning of a phrase, and raveling out a thread of thought: Only vaguely and generally can it be said that men are brothers. Men must stay forever strangers; they inhabit different worlds. Nabokov unlocks some doors to his childhood, but it is like a house tour: A velvet rope remains. We do not really come inside.

I now inhabit this mountain world, here in the Blue Ridge, but not truly, not yet. The sinking of roots takes time. Here I remain, an alien tree, transplanted from the nursery, a city boy still cowed by the country.

That lamentable truth became literally evident at half past ten. I had dressed for church, because there were some particular prayers I wanted to say, and had driven down to Burke's Store for the Sunday papers. Now the rain had stopped and I was sitting by the kitchen fire getting mad at the Washington Post and scratching Lorenzo with my shoe. He is the most beautiful collier in the world, and he knows it. He will tell you so. Ask him sometime.

All of a sudden, this vainglorious Barrymore leaped to his feet, in a torrent (Continued on page 6)

Other Editors Say Welfare Rolls Grow

(The Wilson Times)

This nation's welfare rolls are growing at the rate of 20 per cent in the past year. There are now 12.2 million persons on welfare, the record shows. The increase of two million welfare recipients from June 1969 to June 1970 is increasing the burden and will cause cutbacks in some welfare services.

The present federal budget of $8.7 billion may have to be raised as much as a billion dollars to cover new costs. Three factors are cited as contributing to the present conditions. These are the lagging economy, unemployment, recent court rulings and administrative decisions loosening welfare eligibility requirements.

One contributing factor, which is the most serious of all, is the growing attitude that welfare is your due. Welfare is now considered your right and not a mark of discredit.

The federal government pays about 52 per cent of the government's welfare bill for dependent children and their mothers, the blind, the disabled and the needy aged. Here is another proof of the lack of desire to curb inflation.

But the time must come when something gives. Great Britain went through what this nation is trying to solve some time ago. And while there are only a few signs on the horizon, the present Conservative government is cutting taxes, subsidies and public spending.

The British government is now trying to decide how gigantic government spending for social services actually helps or hinders a nation's progress and well-being.

Prime Minister Edward Heath has decided that a moderate swing away from welfareism and state intervention and back toward free enterprise is what is needed to spur the lagging economy.

This question has to be answered by every nation. The question in this nation is how far mounting federal expenditures can go without bringing on greater economic and social conditions?

Does centralization of spending kill local initiative? Are higher taxes the best means of seeing that all get a fair share? This modern society is increasingly committed to make life happier and better for everyone. But we are learning that is a complicated affair. The Conservative government's new policies are evidence of this.

So we are back at the beginning. What should be done about the ever increasing welfare rolls and how can the increase be slowed and incentive created?

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could do without:

City-written country music. Real estate dealers who describe a quarter-acre plot as "an estate," and 1 1/2-room apartments as "junior suites."

Discussions of world problems by politically illiterate movie stars.

Any new cocktails which try to marry the grape and the grain.

Hostesses who invite you to dinner and then serve a store-bought pizza pie.

Restaurant patrons who think it is a panic to mock the pidgin English of Chinese waiters.

Actors who think the quickest way to stardom is to imitate Cary Grant.

All dishes made with either squash or eggplant.

Hat check chicks who make a fellow feel like Benedict Arnold if he only has 20 cents in change to leave as a tip.

Rouge prints on a highball glass.

Saucer-sized sunglasses worn by girls who lack the ingenuity to find more interesting ways to attract attention.

That "one for the road."

College presidents who speak of their students as the hope of tomorrow but personally find them the despair of today.

Cemeteries with fanciful names such as "Final Gardens," "Everlasting Heath," or "Gateway to Nirvana." (I'd rather be buried in one called "Moor to Come.")

Any "new" deodorant, tooth-paste or laundry detergent put on the market only this morning to replace a deodorant, tooth-paste or detergent that was "new" only the day before yesterday.

Women Santa Clauses. Overly chummy ministers who like to be regarded as "just one of the boys."

Men who brag about how they keep their beards in shape by sleeping with them in hairnets. The new arithmetic.

Lectures on sex by so-called authorities who seem to be determined to turn everybody else's boudoir into a public clinic.

Any humorous birthday greeting cards sent to a woman over 30 or a man over 40.

People who think they can brighten your life during the morning coffee break at the office by telling you in detail the plot of an old movie they saw the night before on the boob tube.

The high cost of either high or low living.

From these and other nuisances, dear Lord, deliver us, Amen.

Public Forum

(Letters submitted for the public forum must be limited to 300 words).

To The Editor,

Everyone is concerned about the group of rebels and revolutionaries in our country, specifically the recent incidents here at Rose High. Perhaps these statements might lend light for this phenomenon.

There may be reasons, but here is one that makes some sense. I believe that the alarming rise in violence, narcotic use, and sex sickness among many of our young people is caused by failure. Frankly, if you'd study these rebellious youngsters, just about everyone of them have failed in some area of life. Certainly they have failed spiritually. They are spiritual drop-outs. When a child realizes that he has failed he begins to act irrationally and irresponsibly and to strike back at society.

Parents and teachers have a great responsibility to help these youngsters to maintain a clear conscience, to reverence God and man, and to respect authority.

We are all "missing the mark." The Bible says this will be one of the signs of the "last days." "Iniquity shall abound, and the love of many shall wax cold." (Matthew 24:12)

The cure to present ills must be a spiritual cure.

Strength For Today

WHAT IS EDUCATION?

We speak of a man as being well educated, yet seldom do we analyze the meaning of this term. Merely going through college does not educate a man. Some men who never attended any college have been educated in the highest sense of the term. Neither Washington or Lincoln had much formal education, yet the first founded the Republic and the second not only preserved it but became a great master of English prose.

Someone once asked Socrates to define the term "an educated man." The answer he made was, "Whom, then, do I call educated? First, those who control circumstances instead of being mastered by them; those who meet all occasions manfully and act in accordance with intelligent thinking; those who are honorable in all dealings, who treat good-naturedly persons and things that are disagreeable; and furthermore, those who hold their pleasures under control and are not overcome by misfortune; finally, those who are not spoiled by success."

We moderns, and especially those of us who prize Christian faith, would want to add a few items to the list made by Socrates. We should, however, all agree that the nub of his argument is sound, namely, that education, when it is genuine, produces a man who has self-control and who does something in the world worth doing. It is not a matter of degrees and diplomas — important as these are — but of inward quality of mind and heart.

Productivity Said Slightly Up

By ELMER ROESSNER
Output per manhour in the third quarter of this year increased at an annual rate of 4% per cent, Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the

ELMER ROESSNER

President's Council of Economic Advisors, told a meeting of economists in New York.

President Nixon's chief economic advisor is undoubtedly correct.

There are powerful reasons why productivity should be increasing in terms of physical units; there are even more reasons why it should be increasing in terms of dollars.

A large number of plants have been shut down in recent months. These that have been closed have generally been those that were obsolete. Productivity is lowest in obsolete and inefficient plants, hence these shutdowns should increase average productivity.

Overtime has been sharply cut, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics figures. Most personnel men agree that physical productivity declines after seven or eight hours; men get tired. All agree that productivity declines around 50 per cent when measured in dollars.

The Spur Of Fear
Productivity increases with new and more efficient machines, better work scheduling, better supplied production lines, more pleasant factories. All of these are instituted as a rule by management. Even when workers perform better when music and clean air are piped in, it is management's doing.

Worker performance can contribute very little to productivity. No matter how hard he works, a man can't increase his productivity of hand-turned spokes as much as a new automatic machine can turn them out.

Nevertheless, with layoffs spreading, the average worker is trying a little harder. Too many defective parts, too many loose bolts can mark him for a layoff, or can mean shutting down his entire plant instead of another one. So fear of being furloughed can have an effect on productivity.

Sees Slower Rise
McCracken told the meeting of the Association of Business Economists that even with recent wage increases, "labor costs per unit of output are going to be rising far less rapidly than they were in 1969 and the early part of 1970."

This could be aided, of course, by shutdowns of inefficient plants. However, if the rate of increase can be slowed in face of current wage demands, strengthened by rising costs of living, it will be something of a miracle. Contracts through September raised wages 10 percent this year.

While McCracken was speaking, Robert P. Mayo, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, was telling a business conference at Racine, Wis., that inflation will never be brought under control, but that over the next 20 years it can be confined to an average of 2 per cent.

"I don't subscribe to the idea that inflation is like pregnancy — you either have it or you don't," he said. "It's a relative term."

Phoned Threat To Courthouse

RALEIGH (AP) — A telephoned bomb threat resulted in evacuation of the Wake County Courthouse Wednesday.

The call came during a demonstration by more than 100 blacks in the Juvenile Court room.

A search produced no bombs and employees and others returned.

The demonstration came while court was in recess pending trial of a case in which a black youth is accused of cutting a white youth during a fight at Lockhart High School near Knightdale.

Greensboro.

The program was dedicated to the memory of the late Mrs. Ruth D. Burnett, noted for her efforts to enrich the lives of the youth of Greensboro. Mrs. Burnett died this past summer.

The combined choruses included 150 singers and an orchestra of 35 outstanding student instrumentalists and faculty members from both schools. Their first selection was the "Requiem" by Gabriel Faure, with soloists Charles Lynam and Susan Ward. Other selections on the program included "Tenebrae Facta sunt" by Ingegneri; "Quam Pulchri" super montes by Berger; selections from "Kismet" and a spiritual, "Great Day" by Martin.

Dr. Aliapoulos has been guest conductor at a number of festivals and special occasions. Among these have been the New England Music Festival.

Kilpatrick . . .

windows, right on the lawn, munching their way toward the wild flower garden, were three black cows and two black calves. Lorenzo was hollering "Trespassers!" and "Call the cops!" and leaping to get at them. He flew outside, with me just behind. I was waving a shillelagh and yelling. We were brave as lions. Whereupon the lead cow charged, spilling the bird feeder as it came.

Well, the Noble Beast hid behind the woodpile. I retreated to the kitchen and telephoned Garfield

Burke, which is what one always does in an emergency, and went to change out of my church clothes. When I returned to the scene of battle, Lorenzo had come off the bench. He had driven the opposing team down by the fence, under a dogwood, and there they stood, huddling and glowering, heads down, and we were eyeball to eyeball. Nobody blinked.

Then Garfield arrived in his pickup truck, put on his boots, and went over to these cows. He said, very softly, "Hoo, there." That was all. "Hoo there." They turned on their heels, these behemoths, and trotted docilely up the fence row, with Lorenzo, triumphant, 50 yards behind. Then I helped Garfield patch up the fence, and we talked a little politics, and he went on home. This is Garfield's world. Black Angus cattle do not talk to me.

It was too late for church, so I loafed and read some more, and watched the opening few minutes of a football game. Those hapless Redskins plainly were in for a bad afternoon. Just as I snapped off the set, the sun came out, and in two minutes, no more, the fog lifted like a curtain and all of autumn beckoned.

So we went for a long walk, Lorenzo and I, to a high hill I had never climbed before, looking down on White Walnut Run, swollen by the rain, tumbling toward the sea. The wet leaves in the sunlight were burnished armor, glistening red and green and gold, and the mountains were tapestries meant to hang on Camelot's walls. I said my prayers up there, in God's own good world, and walked on home. My wonderful Redskins were winning, 19 to 3, and out on the lawn, under the bird feeder, 17 bobwhite quail were having a family dinner. I dined on pork chops, blackeyed peas and stewed tomatoes, stirred up the fire, and afterwards Lorenzo and I watched Lassie on the tube.

He thinks the dog has talent and may go far. It was my fiftieth birthday, and if it weren't for the emptiness, it might have been the nicest birthday ever.

not to do so, made policy for the colony, and established machinery for enforcement. It was very probably the beginning of Revolutionary government in the colonies."

John Harvey of Perquimans County was moderator for the Congress attended by 71 delegates.

Gibbs is hopeful that its commemoration will be an opening gun for the national bicentennial celebration. "We've got a foot in the door," he remarked, hauling out the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission's report to the President to note its recognition of the New Bern Congress as one of the significant starting points for Revolution.

Contact with the national commission, and those of other states, is maintained through Gibbs' office. James Holshouser of Boone is the North Carolina representative on the national commission.

Public celebrations represent only one area of the Commission's planning. Others are publications and public education.

"It may seem surprising, but there is not in existence an adequate history of North Carolina in the Revolutionary period," Gibbs said. "We'll get that done."

Completing the Record
The aim is a series of booklets or monographs, written by competent historians in a readable vein, dealing with various aspects of the period. Taken together, they will give a complete picture of Tar Heel life and times at the founding of the nation.

"The pivotal role of North Carolina in the Revolution has not been fully appreciated simply because of the lack of primary research," Gibbs said. "If we can remedy that we will have accomplished a great deal."

The Commission's publications will be available for classroom use in public schools as well as to the general reader.

Underlying the total work of the Commission is the objective of giving relevancy to history as a guide for the present and the future.

Gibbs described it as the cultivated habit of thinking historically. The founding fathers did so, he reminded, constantly referring to the lessons of the past as the rationale for decision.

the problems of the ghetto right in their own living room.

It is played on a board with cards which teach participants to survive in the world of the poor just as "Monopoly" taught them to acquire property.

The game, called "Dignity," was invented by Ken Christiansen, a 27-year-old University of Chicago divinity student, who plans to become a United Church of Christ minister.

Christiansen, a native of Remsen, Iowa, worked for two years in a church group on Chicago's South Side. He spent a lot of time with residents of a public housing project and learned first hand the problems of the poor in the city.

He wanted to communicate what he had learned.

"I started a book on the subject, but it seemed to me nobody reads books in the area of race relations unless they're already interested in the problem," he said.

"So I started thinking about recreation as a way of getting into the situation."

So far about 6,000 copies of the game have been sold at $4.95 each.

The object of the game is to reach a square called Dignity. To get there, a player, who is given five cards and $100 to begin with, tries to avoid Shanty Town Housing projects, Skid Row and other unpleasant places.

Decrees Angela May 'Mingle' With Inmates

NEW YORK (AP)—Attorneys for black militant Angela Davis have won a federal court order directing officials of the Women's House of Detention to end her solitary confinement and let her mingle with other inmates.

Miss Davis, 26, awaiting a hearing on extradition to California to face murder and kidnap charges, went on a hunger strike Oct. 24 when removed from a cell she shared with three other women and lodged in a room in the prison medical clinic.

Jessie Behagen, superintendent of the detention center, said her presence had disrupted normal routine and might result in bodily harm to her or other inmates.

CROWDED AREA
SINGAPORE (UPI)—Singapore, with a land area of only 225.6 square miles and a population of 2,016,800, has a density of 8,964 persons per square mile, according to official figures. This compares with 7,277 in 1960 and 1,014 in 1801.

through Uncle Tom's Limbo, but then he can't play Freedom Move cards, which are generally helpful in the game. He can take another short cut through the University, but that costs $2,000, which is difficult to acquire in this game.

He can also move to the Place of Hope to think, as Christiansen says, "about where you're going."

Some times a player moves ahead at the expense of fellow players by using "Cut Throat" cards. For instance, by taking a bribe to ignore a building violation code, the player (in the role of building inspector) gets $100 and everyone else moves back two spaces.

"The cards put you in different roles," Christiansen said.

Christiansen copyrighted and sold two editions of the game himself. Then, on the suggestion of a divinity professor, he sold the rights to Friendship Press, which is associated with the National Council of Churches.

Ward Kaiser, of Friendship Press, which is based in New York, said the game has been sold in most areas of the country through religious bookstores.

(Ancient Chinese Eyeglasses)

Do you know why the ancient Chinese wore spectacles? During certain periods the wearing of spectacles indicated position.

It was also a mark of affluence, profession and intelligence. But superstition soon crept in.

Belief that a tortoise-shell frame would bring good fortune captivated eyeglass wearers. At the time the tortoise was a sacred reptile. Sometimes frames were worn without any glass in them. Such a practice was sure to extend the life of the wearer.

Chinese glasses were usually oval in shape. Some of the frames were made of papier-mache or horn.

They were kept in place on the head by strings that looped around the ears. The nose piece was often hinged in the center for folding purposes.

By RAMESH C. PANDE
NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Indian government led by Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi is making another effort to wipe out once and for all the practice of untouchability.

It is no easy task; India has been unable to accomplish it in 23 years of freedom under a constitution that forbids it.

In an emotional address to the Indian parliament, Mrs. Gandhi said the main reason for "this continuing social malady" was the traditional attitudes which had been deeply ingrained over many a century. She urged parliament to remind the people that the campaign against untouchability should be treated as a national campaign.

From time to time, cases of alleged tormenting of "untouchables"—mostly from rural districts—are reported in the Indian press: Untouchables' villages have been burned, their children massacred in front of their parents and low caste people have been segregated in villages.

Shameful Acts Deplored
The prime minister, deploring these "most shameful" acts, called for more stringent laws against the practice of untouchability.

There are more than 80 million untouchables in India today, and their plight is little better than it was before the country achieved independence in 1947, although the practice now is confined mostly to rural areas.

In India's widely criticized and controversial caste system, the untouchables are the lowest of the four varnas (colors) into which Hindus are divided according to the code of Manu, which was written around 100 to 300 A.D. to define rules of domestic conduct and ceremony.

The four classifications: Brahmins (priestly caste), Kshatriyas (warriors), Vaishyas (traders) and Shudras (untouchables).

News caster Said Going To ABC

NEW YORK (AP)—Newscaster Harry Reasoner will leave the Columbia Broadcasting System to become New York anchorman for the American Broadcasting Co.'s evening news program, industry sources say.

The sources said the present ABC New York anchorman, Frank Reynolds, would become a network special correspondent.

There was no comment on the report from ABC or Reasoner, but a CBS spokesman, noting that his contract expires Nov. 14, said "Mr. Reasoner has entered into serious negotiations with another network's news division."

By tradition, the untouchables are restricted to such occupations as sweepers (scavengers), cobblers, taxidermists, barbers and launderers.

It is impossible to exaggerate the extent to which rules for maintaining the social distance between various castes were made in Indian society until very recent times.

The whole set of gradations prescribed among castes was based on the idea of the purity of the Brahmin and the utter impurity of the Shudra.

Most fantastic was the popular belief that the breath, or even the shadow, of an untouchable would pollute another person. In some places, untouchables were required to wear gauze masks over their mouths so that their lowly breath would not pollute the atmosphere.

Privileges Given Shudra
In the effort to eliminate the practice of untouchability, the Indian constitution sets aside the untouchables certain privileges or reservations in government posts and in educational institutions to protect them from social injustice and exploitation.

Seats for untouchables in parliament and state assemblies are reserved (77 seats in the 521-member lower house of parliament and 506 of the 3,563 seats in state assemblies).

The Indian intelligentsia, by and large, is opposed to the evil practice of untouchability. Such leaders as the late Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru and Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (himself born untouchable and one of the principle architects of the Indian constitution) all denounced the practice of untouchability. Gandhi called the untouchables "God's people."

A report on a two year study dealing with parasites of sunfish and the effects upon the economy of Eastern North Carolina is to be presented Nov. 6 at East Carolina University.

The study was conducted by Miss Lily Kohlweiss, formerly a teaching fellow in the ECU Department of Biology now a research assistant in the School of Health, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

HAS A POINT

MACON, Ga. (UPI)—Mercer University basketball Coach Dwane Morrison has the word "KISS" in large letters on the blackboard in his office but it has nothing to do with the act of bussing. Morrison said it means "Keep It Simple, Stupid," and he feels that is "one of the golden rules in coaching basketball and other team sports."

Climate Of Fear Vatican Details Said Due Story Mass 'Reform'

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The president of Greensboro College says a short story in the student newspaper describing the assassination of a fictional dean has created a "climate of fear" on the campus.

The story, written by a student, has resulted in the firing of the paper's editor and the resignation of its staff in protest of the firing.

Students have called a meeting for tonight to support the editor, Robert Collins. He also received support from the Student Government Association, which wrote President David G. Mobberly to ask that he be reinstated.

FREE WATERMELON
SHAMROCK, Tex. (AP) — During the Labor Day holiday weekend Shamrock civic clubs provided free watermelon for traveling motorists. The community has been offering the service the past 14 years. In 1968, officials estimated 3,000 persons were served free watermelon.

Mobberly said Wednesday in a letter explaining the firing that the story had "specifically intimidated the deans of this college by strongly suggestive words implying violence upon their persons."

He said the story had "effected a campus climate of fear, threat and deep concern for the safety of members of this campus community."

Collins said he had not felt the climate of fear cited by Mobberly.

"I don't see where I've done anything that wrong," he said. "I was trying to use the paper as the voice of the students. Apparently they don't want a newspaper like that."

The story, "The Dean," was written by Gerry Hepner, a student who submitted it to the paper for publication. Mobberly said no disciplinary action would be taken against the author, who is not a member of the newspaper staff.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican today issued a detailed reform of the Mass allowing women a greater role in the liturgy. It also in effect sanctioned such musical modernization as rock and soul Masses if the local bishop approves.

Women now can lead the congregation in hymns and scripture reading, except for the Gospel, and can serve as usherettes and collection-takers. They are still barred from serving as acolytes, even in convents or women's chapels.

In many Roman Catholic communities, including those in the United States, women already have been performing the permitted duties on an experimental basis.

The reform also permits: —Celebration of Mass outside the church, such as in the home, but only with permission of the local bishop in cases of "real need."

—Selection by the local bishop of music for the Mass, without excluding any instrument or style.

—Experiments in the Mass within "clearly defined limits," to be conducted only for one year, then reported to the Vatican for permission to continue. The document urged that "all means be used to promote singing by the people." Jazz, rock and folk Masses were not mentioned specifically, but the document said the music "must serve the worship of God."

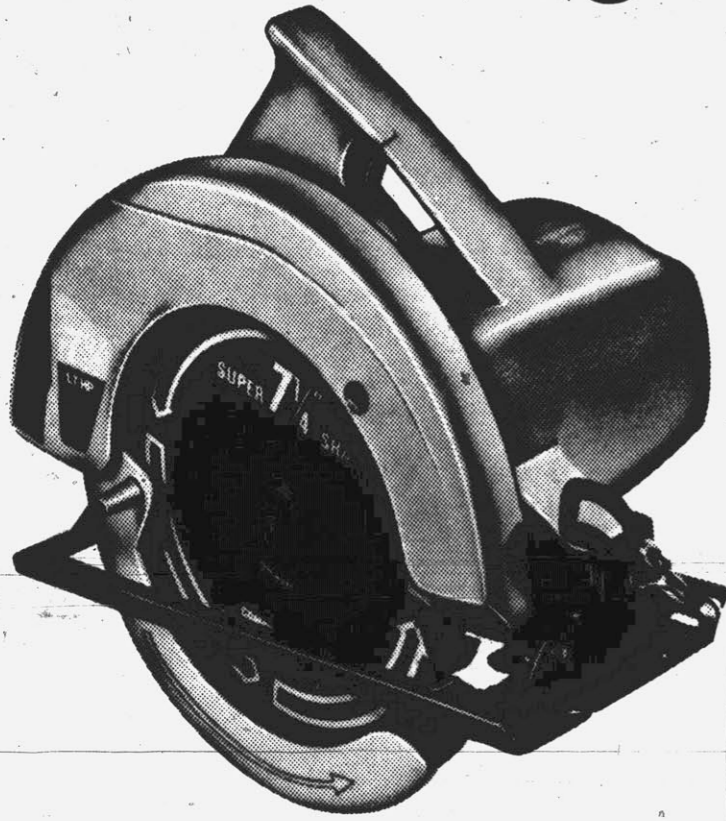

"Great care should be given to the choice of musical instruments," the document continued. "These should be few in number, suited to the place and the congregation, should favor prayer and not be too loud."

See Standoff In U.S. Elections

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Some European newspaper commentators today viewed the outcome of the U.S. election as a standoff for the Republicans and the Democrats.

Others considered it a setback for President Nixon. "The contest ended a draw, as the pollsters predicted," said Paris' conservative Le Figaro. "America, face to face with its terrible problems, didn't really make a move."

Denmark's conservative Berlingske Tidende commented: "Mr. Nixon wanted to mobilize the silent majority by stressing the nationwide problems of law and order. He did not succeed. The majority kept quiet by staying at home."

L'Unita, published by the Italian Communist party, headlined its story "Grave Defeat for Nixon."

One winner, according to the conservative London Daily Mail, was American democracy. "Despite all the talk of crazy swings and vicious tactics," it said, "the American voter has kept his feet on the ground and his eyes on the candidates themselves."

Motor Club Rules Shelby Safest City

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The North Carolina State Motor Club has cited Shelby as the safest city for motorists and pedestrians last year.

The club released statistics today showing that seven cities and towns with more than 10,000 inhabitants got through 1969 without a traffic death. But Shelby carried off the honors because it has the largest motor vehicle registration of the eligible cities.

The rankings are based on the number of traffic deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles.

Others with no fatalities were Kinston, Chapel Hill, Albemarle, Eden and Roanoke Rapids. Other cities in the top 10 according to the registration death rate were Concord, with .05 rating, Salisbury, with .06 and Wilson, Raleigh and Durham, all with 1.0.

Shelby, which will receive a plaque for its achievement, was the first city to receive the "safest city" award in 1962. Kinston got the award in 1968.

The city with the highest registration death rate was Rocky Mount, with 4.9 deaths for every 10,000 vehicles registered.

Hold Athlete For Knifing

MOUNT HOLLY, N.C. (AP) — A senior who had been a member of the Mount Holly High School football team until two weeks ago is accused in the slaying of the coach in a school hallway Wednesday.

The head coach and physical education teacher, Delmer Wiles, was treated at a Gastonia hospital for knife wounds on the face and back, and then transferred to Charlotte Memorial Hospital. He is reported in satisfactory condition. He was slashed while he was acting as a monitor.

Police said they had charged Russell Johnson, 17, of Rt. 1, Mount Holly, with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

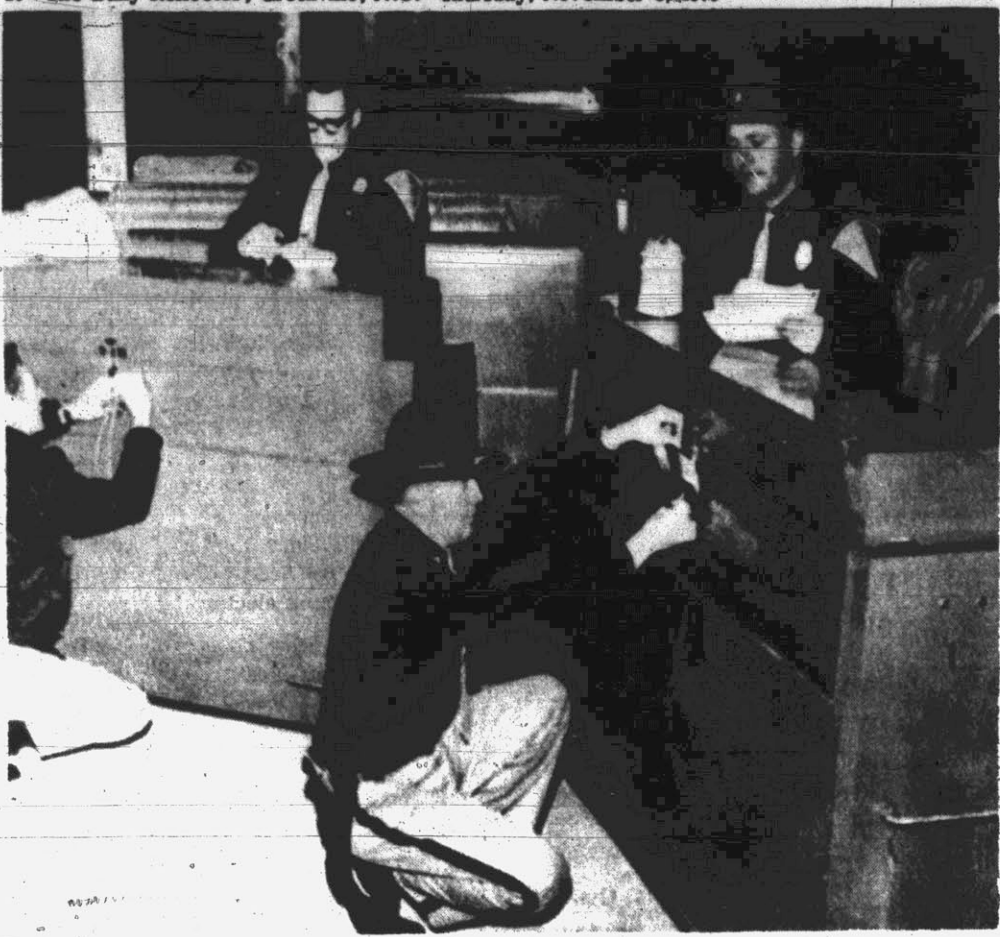

Lee Phoenix, an assistant superintendent of Gaston County schools, said he did not know why Johnson had left the football team.

Black Candidates Fared Well In Tuesday Voting

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

There'll be more black faces in the House of Representatives as a result of Tuesday's elections — up three to a total of 12. But the dramatic victories for blacks this year came mainly at the state and local levels.

For the first time since the turn of the century, blacks won seats in the lower houses of the South Carolina and Alabama legislatures, victories that surprised even some of the black political strategists in those states.

There were four black candidates for the South Carolina Legislature. All were Democrats and all won. James Clyburn, one of the candidates from Charleston, said in a pre-election interview that victories by even two would give blacks some hope of gaining influence within the state's Democratic party machinery.

Two black candidates cracked the all-white Alabama house. One, attorney Fred Gray, ran on the regular Democratic slate; the other, state NAACP President Thomas Reed, under the banner of the black-oriented National Democratic party of Alabama.

Dr. John Cashion, a Huntsville dentist who formed the party two years ago to challenge the seating of the regular party at the 1968 Democratic National Convention, was trounced overwhelmingly in his challenge to George C. Wallace for the governorship.

But black candidates running on Cashion's NDPA ticket took over a few more county government posts, including a new black sheriff of Lowndes County, right next door to the turbulent area ruled by Selma Sheriff Jim Clark wearing his "Never" button in the mid-1960s.

California voters picked a mild-mannered, 53-year-old black deputy administrator, Wilson C. Riles, to end Dr. Max Rafferty's eight-year reign as the outspokenly conservative head of the nation's largest public school system.

As state superintendent of public instruction, Riles became the first black to win a major statewide elective office in California.

Voters in California's 7th District elected Ronald V. Dellums, a tall, Afro-haired Berkeley city councilman, one of the three new black House members.

The other two new black house seats went to Parrin J. Mitchell, a Baltimore civil rights activist and political science professor, and George W. Collins, 45-year-old ward boss on Chicago's heavily black West Side.

All seven Democratic House incumbents were returned, and black Democrats kept control of two seats held by Reps. James Dawson, D-Ill., and Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y.

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University will hold "all foundations day" Friday. About 400 business and professional leaders from across the state are expected.

Directors of nine foundations and three allied organizations will hold 12 separate sessions during the morning. A meeting of the NCSU Development Council will follow in the afternoon.

The foundations have raised more than $20 million for the university since they were formed in the 1920s.

The present calendar, devised under Pope Gregory XIII, went into effect Oct. 15, 1582.

Air Turbulence Hit Jumbo Jet

By TOM KELLY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A Paris-bound Pan American World Airways 747 jumbo jetliner carrying 163 persons including Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., was forced to return here Wednesday night after being buffeted by severe air turbulence that injured 14 passengers and six stewardesses.

Two persons were hospitalized. An airline spokesman said injuries to the 20 ranged from lacerations to broken bones. Some persons with minor injuries were treated at the Pan Am terminal.

Four ambulances met the plane, the largest commercial aircraft in service, on its return to John F. Kennedy Airport at 11:30 p.m. It had taken off at 9:14 p.m. and hit the turbulence over Nantucket, Mass.

Javits was not among the injured but said he was "a little shaken up because it took a long while to get out of the turbulence."

Javits, who was on his way to a NATO meeting at the Hague, said "A lot of people who were in their seats literally hit the roof of the plane."

A veteran Navy pilot who was a passenger, Lt. Cmdr. J. L.

Meiling, told newsmen, "We must have fallen anywhere from 2,000 to 5,000 feet in a matter of no more than five minutes."

Javits praised crew members "for their cool-headed control in handling the situation."

Other passengers praised Meiling, of Provo, Utah, who was traveling with his wife Sheila and 6-month-old son, Neal.

They said Meiling made a "circus catch" to save his son from injury after the boy was hurled out of his bassinets.

Passengers said that Meiling then turned to help others including a stewardess who was bleeding from the back of the head.

The airline spokesman had no immediate comment on Meiling's report that the plane had fallen 2,000 to 5,000 feet. He said the plane was at about 30,000 feet when the incident occurred.

He said the crew would be questioned by Pan Am officials and by investigators for the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board.

When the plane landed newsmen could detect no evident damage to the exterior but the cabin was littered with broken dishes, pillows, hand luggage, blankets, clothing and other items.

The captain "explained to us that the turbulence did not show up on the plane's radar or at JFK," another passenger said.

Later, 119 of the original 148 passengers, including some persons who received minor injuries, boarded another 747 to resume the journey to Paris. The plane took off at 4:32 a.m.

Seneca Indians Elect President

SALAMANCA, N.Y. (AP) — Members of the Seneca Indian Nation have elected James E. George, a structural steel worker from the nearby Allegany Reservation, to a two-year term as national president.

In balloting Tuesday on the Allegany Reservation, 30 miles to the north, George got 503 votes to defeat two opponents.

George succeeds William Seneca, who was elected treasurer of the 4,500-member nation.

To Re-Close Vance School

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Protesting Negroes in Vance County apparently have won their battle to keep Nutbush Elementary School closed as part of the county's school desegregation plan.

The school was closed this fall, but was reopened Oct. 1 for more than 80 Negro pupils transferred out of a predominantly black integrated school.

School officials said the reopening was to alleviate overcrowding at other schools, but Negroes charged it was to circumvent the desegregation plan.

The blacks staged a march and school boycott in an effort to dramatize their dissatisfaction. About 13 blacks were arrested on charges stemming from the tension.

Schools Supt. A. Woodrow Taylor announced Wednesday he had received instructions from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that the school would have to be closed as part of the HEW-imposed desegregation plan.

100 Per Cent Participation Lauds Negro Vote Loyalty

Old Dominion Uniform Service, a local business firm, is the first business organization in Pitt County which has reported a one hundred percent participation in the current United Fund campaign.

The employees of the firm, responding to appeals for the annual drive, contributed substantially with individual contributions averaging $55.50 per employee. William J. Warrington is manager of Old Dominion Uniform Service.

Carlton Taylor, chairman of the Special Gifts Division, the division covering this firm, stated: "This generous contribution by all employees of this firm is certainly appreciated by the United Fund and organizations which benefit from the drive."

"If we can have cooperation from all this," Taylor continued, "our United Fund drive will soon be completed. Remember, if you don't do it, it won't get done."

Private School Wins Exemption

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The Fayetteville Academy, a private school, has been granted tax-exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service.

The announcement was made Wednesday by the IRS state office in Greensboro.

The school's application for exemption was pending when the IRS announced its position on private schools last July. Such schools are tax exempt as long as race is not a factor in admission.

Anti-Pollution Plans Approved

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's plans for water pollution control for this year have been approved by the Federal Water Quality Administration.

The approval will make $264,000 in federal funds available for expanded inspection, enforcement, training and other activities of the state Department of Water and Air Resources.

Frank R. Blaisdell, director of the administration's Middle Atlantic Division, said North Carolina also is eligible for $19,863,000 in federal funds to assist communities in building or improving water pollution control plants.

RALEIGH (AP) — State Democratic Chairman Gene Simmons has expressed appreciation to Negro voters for supporting the party's candidates in Tuesday's general election.

"Their loyalty to the party and solidarity in voting made the difference in many races," Simmons said in a statement. "I hope those who gained directly from this support realize the contribution they made on election day."

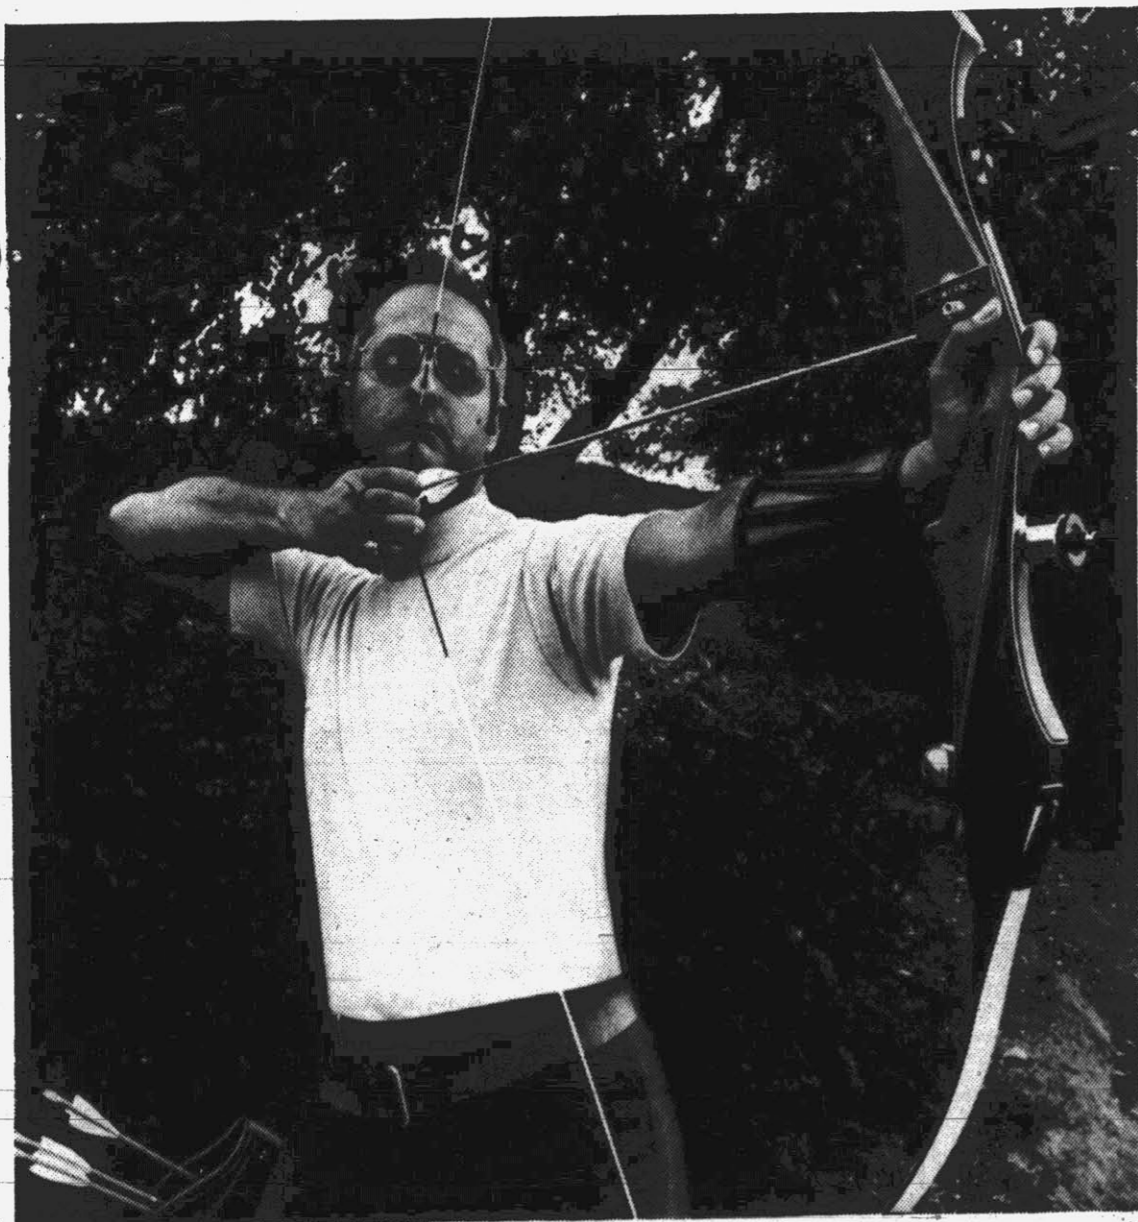

Simmons was joined by Gov. Bob Scott in hailing the results of the election.

Scott noted that the Democrats held their own in congressional races and made gains in the General Assembly despite the fact the Republicans "spent an unusual amount of money." He also noted that they brought President Nixon and Vice President Agnew into the state to back their candidates.

"... It is obvious that the President's and vice president's visit had no effect upon the election," Scott said. "As matter of fact, it would appear that it had some adverse effect."

Simmons said, "the successes we enjoyed would be considered great under normal circumstances, but they become even sweeter when you consider we scored them at a time when the opposition party was riding high in the land. We were a target state."

Buddy Poppy Sale Saturday

The annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars will take place Saturday. Greenville's Mayor Frank M. Wooten Jr. has signed a proclamation for the observance. The poppies are assembled by disabled veterans and the proceeds of the fund-raising campaign are used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

More than 200 orphans of veterans are being cared for in the Veterans of Foreign Wars National Home, Eaton Rapids, Mich. A portion of the cost is raised through the annual sale of poppies.

The poppy sale has been conducted nationwide since 1922. Nearly 100,000 men, women and children donate a day of their time and effort each year to conducting the poppy sale.

Assistance in establishing disability claims or gaining other veterans benefits is available without charge to any veteran through a nationwide system of veterans service officers maintained by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. A portion of the cost is contributed by the public through their purchase of poppies.

Application Review By Soil Supervisors

WASHINGTON — Soil supervisors met here Wednesday to review the draft of an application for a Resource Conservation and Development Region that will cover North Carolina Planning Region Q. Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin and Pitt Counties are in the newly established planning region.

The application will be presented for approval to Boards of County Commissioners and to Soil Conservation District supervisor boards at their regular December meetings. Town boards, planning agencies and other groups will be asked to endorse the application.

The application, addressed to the administrator of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, will then be forwarded to the North Carolina Planning Division in Raleigh for review and approval.

Arch J. Flanagan, Pitt Soil and Water Conservation district chairman, reported that natural resource aspects of ten major problems of this region will be attacked.

They include: development of land use plans for the five counties; protection of the environment; water resource development; mineral resource development; income producing recreation and tourism; transportation and communications; beautification and litter abatement; economic problems; government administration and service problems; and people problems.

Pitt County commissioners last summer approved the entry of Pitt County into an RC and D Region. They appointed Flanagan and Vernon White to serve on the committee. R. L. Mohler of Washington is chairman of the RC and D

Committee. The Soil Conservation Service is the federal agency responsible in assisting local people with the resource conservation and development effort. The entire Department of Agriculture assists RC and D sponsors. Roy Beck, district conservationist headquartered in Greenville, has been assigned to assist the sponsors.

When the region is approved, a coordinator will be named by the SCS to work full time with the sponsors in carrying out planned project measures.

Worth Chessom, development specialist with the Mid-East Economic Development Commission, has been assisting the RC and D Committee with preparation of their application.

Rampants Close Season

Rose High School's Rampants close out their 1970 football season Friday night in Goldsboro against the Divisional champs. Two members of the team who will be on the field are Kim Harbin, left, and Carl Lupton. Harbin, a 125-pound senior, is the son of Mr.

and Mrs. W. E. Harbin. He is a starting defensive halfback. Lupton, a 162-pound senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Lupton, is a starting offensive guard. (Reflector Photos)

Rampants Close Out 1970 Season With Visit To Champ Goldsboro

Rose High School's Rampants close out the 1970 football season Friday night, as they travel to Goldsboro to meet the Division II champions.

The Goldsboro Cougars wrapped up the title last week with a 14-12 victory over Wilson's Titans. Wilson or Rocky Mount, which meet each other during the final weekend's action, could tie Goldsboro should Rose pull off an upset, but Goldsboro would still get the bid, since it has beaten both of its challengers.

The Rampants come into the game after winning three of their last four, the latest a 25-6 victory over New Bern last Friday afternoon. In the other divisional game last weekend, Rocky Mount slipped past Kinston, 7-0.

Coach Bud Phillips of Rose was pleased with the play of the Rampants in their win over New Bern. "I thought our blocking looked better," he said. "We were able to get outside and run, something we've had trouble doing in the past."

The Rampants also got the best punting they've had this year. Kicker Bob Forbes had to kick only twice, but got off boots which averaged 55 yards. "We didn't throw much in the game.

We didn't have to," Phillips added.

The coach thought the Rampant defense looked good overall. "It was the first time we've blocked a punt this year," he pointed out. Phillips singled out Harold Lloyd, Todd Pair and Mike Harris for their play in the game.

This week, the Rampants will be at nearly full strength for the finale. Only Donald Cherry, a reserve, will miss the game. "A couple of players still have some minor injuries, but they will all be able to play," Phillips said.

Goldsboro is the only team the Rampants face this year that runs out of the single wing. "Actually, it's more of a shotgun," Phillips said. "They split both of their ends, and put a wingback in the slot. Sometimes they will go into a double wing."

The key to the whole operation is the ability of tailback Bobby Myrick. "He likes to go back and pass, but if he sees any daylight, he'll go for it. He's quick as a cat, and can fly. He's one of the most dangerous backs we've seen this year."

Fullback Danny Kempley is also a big threat for the Cougars. "He runs well, too, and he can throw the ball as well. They also have an outstanding receiver in end

Gene Hagans."

An example of their offense is shown in that Kempley got 46 yards in 13 carries and caught two passes for 40 yards in the mud last week against tough Wilson. Myrick was held to only 27 yards in 21 carries however, but he hit on 8 of 14 passes for 127 yards. Hagans caught five of those for 53 yards.

Defensively, the Cougars "are real aggressive. They hustle all the way," Phillips said. "Wilson was able to move the ball on them, but Goldsboro stopped them when it counted."

It all boils down to being the toughest game for the Rampants this year. "If our players want it bad enough, I feel we can give them a good game. But we've to be ready to hustle and have a lot of determination."

Phillips isn't looking for any letdown by the Cougars after they have locked up the title. "It's their Homecoming, and they have momentum going for them. It'll be a hard game for us."

The Cougars come into the game with an 8-1 record. They lost only to Seventy-First, a 3-A school just outside Fayetteville, in the third game of the year. They have won six in a row since then.

The probable starting lineup for Rose on offense has Ronald and Donald Taylor at ends, Jay Hagans and Tim Leigh at tackles, George Harris and Carl Lupton at guards, Tommy Diggs at center, Bob Barrett at quarterback, Johnny Smith and Al Hunter at halfbacks and Bubba Rawl at fullback.

The defense will have Todd Pair and Harold Lloyd at ends, Harris and Lee Cherry at tackles, Hagans and Leigh at guards, David Bullock and Gary Woods at linebackers, Kim Harbin and Mike Harris at halfback and Hunter at safety.

In other games this weekend, Wilson will be at Rocky Mount and Kinston will be at New Bern in the battle for the basement.

Jamesville Takes Two In Basketball Opener

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School rolled to easy victories in its first basketball games of the year Tuesday night.

The Jamesville girls rolled by Creswell, 36-6, while the boys crushed their opponents, 76-46.

In the girls game, Jamesville pushed out into a 9-2 lead in the first period and never was in danger after that. Jamesville pushed through eight more points in the second period, while again holding Creswell to two. That made it 17-4 at half-time.

Creswell still could manage only two points in the third period, as Jamesville again rang up eight points. That pushed the margin to 25-6. Jamesville pushed through 11 points in the final period and held Creswell scoreless for the final 36-6 margin.

Freda Perry led the Jamesville scoring with eight points, while Pam Modlin had seven.

In the boys game, it was about the same story. Jamesville shot away to a 26 point first period, while Creswell could manage only 11. In the second frame, the action fell off for both teams, but Jamesville still managed to tack three points to its lead, outscoring Creswell, 9-6. That made it 35-17 at halftime.

Things didn't change much the rest of the way, as Jamesville steadily pulled away. They outshot Creswell, 18-10, in the third period, running the lead out to 53-27. The final period saw Jamesville outscore Creswell, 23-19.

Larry Modlin led Jamesville with 19 points, while Tommy Mizelle had 16, Phil Blount had 14 and Herbert Ange had 12. Simmons paced Creswell with 11 points.

Jamesville travels to Jasper

Friday night.

Duke Defeats Buc Kickers

DURHAM — The Duke University soccer team scored two goals late in the first period, then went on to take a 6-1 victory over East Carolina Tuesday.

The Bucs played Duke even for the first ten minutes of the game, but the Blue Devils pushed in two quick scores, and added another in the second period for a 3-0 lead. They added two more in the third period and another in the fourth.

The lone East Carolina score came in the third period, with Tim Mockus getting the goal. Mike McFadden received an assist on the score.

"We played well," Coach John Lovstedt said. "Duke was perhaps the best team we've played this year. We made some mistakes late in the first period and they capitalized on them for goals, and that did it."

East Carolina, however, had only one less shot at the goal as did Duke, 17-18. Rick Lindsay, EC goalie, had nine saves, while Duke's goalie had 10.

Lovstedt singled out Mike Parker, Danny Rhodes and McFadden for their play in the game.

The Bucs close their regular season Friday, traveling to Williamsburg, Va., to meet William & Mary. The winner of that match will earn the right to represent the conference's Northern Division against the Southern Division winner for the conference title.

Frazier: I Can't Worry About Ali

A GAME PLAN AND HOW IT WORKED

Last week was "Furman week" here at East Carolina. This week is "West Virginia week." That's because when you're a football coach your whole week is spent preparing for next Saturday's game. Watching films, checking scouting reports, talking to doctors about the physical condition of your own players, the daily practice sessions on the field—all this and more goes into developing a game plan designed to enable your personnel to outmaneuver the team you are playing come Saturday afternoon.

Last Saturday we defeated Furman, 7-0. But the game didn't begin with the kickoff down there in the rain in Greenville, S. C. It began in my office the Sunday afternoon before.

Actually we had gotten a little look at Furman the week before when we were preparing for Richmond. One of the films we had looked at then was the Richmond-Furman game. Of course, we weren't paying much attention to Furman then. But Furman did win that Richmond game (23-9) and we did see enough of Furman while watching Richmond to know that Coach Bob King's Paladins had an outstanding running game. The weekly conference statistics sheet substantiated this. Furman was averaging over 200 yards rushing per game.

On Saturday, October 24th, when we went up to play Richmond, one of our assistant coaches, Carl Reese, headed in the other direction—to scout Furman's game with Chattanooga. He took a big thick notebook with him—full of blank pages. He came back with these pages covered with diagrams—of every Furman offensive play and defensive alignment used in beating Chattanooga, 18-16. Carl also made the observation: "Furman has now won four straight. They know they have a shot at the conference championship if they can beat us. They also know we've beaten them the last four years. And they'll be playing us in their Homecoming Game. They'll come out with fire in their eyes. They've got every motive in the book going for them."

On Sunday afternoon (October 25th) about 2:30, after we'd finished breaking down our own Richmond game film, we pulled out the Furman-Richmond film can again. We—assistant coaches Henry Trevathan, Al Ferguson, Sonny Randle, Jerry McGee and Reese and myself—were now ready to take our first real look at Furman.

We looked at this film for about an hour. First, we noticed that Furman is a basic 6-2 team on defense. They put six men on the line and put two linebackers outside the tackles and back a step. This defense is very strong outside, but is soft in the middle. It is something of a "contain" type defense, designed to keep you from getting outside for gains of five or more yards. Actually, a gain of two or three yards up the middle is considered acceptable by the team using this defense.

Strong outside—that was Furman's defense. Their pursuit was funneled back inside. In addition, they were stunting their linebackers a lot, meaning the linebackers were coming up hard which in effect meant Furman was often in an "eight-gap" defense with a man between each of our offensive linemen. This was a "boom or bust" defense. They'd either throw you for a big loss or you'd make a reasonable gain on them.

At this time we were looking only for how they structure their defense—not how well they execute it. You have to make a guessimate from what they've used in the past as to what they'll use against you.

We realized that their "eight-gap" defense would give us pass protection problems. So we decided to go with sprint-out, short, ball-control passes rather than try to protect John Casazza, our quarterback, while he dropped back and set up to find a deep receiver downfield.

We also felt that execution was the key against Furman. You've got to control the ball. Their defense will allow you to do this somewhat—since it permits the short gain in order to prevent the long gain. But if we don't execute our bread-and-butter off-tackle plays, we know we'll not be very successful against their "contain" defense.

Therefore, rather than a diversified offense, we decided to concentrate on the execution of three off-tackle plays. This is what we were to work on in

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There's not much you can say when your football team has lost seven in a row, given up a total of 329 points and has eight positions affected by injuries in the bargain.

But that's the prospect facing Virginia Military Institute coach Vito Ragazzo as he tries to ready his Southern Conference Keydets for a Saturday engagement against North Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference—and an ACC power to boot.

"I'll have to admit that we're awfully thin at some spot now," Ragazzo says matter of factly. Not only that, but "North Carolina is the strongest team we play this season," he adds.

practice all week, along with our short passing game.

On Sunday night, after a supper in the office, Carl Reese gave us his scouting report. On punch cards he had broken down each play as to down, distance, vertical and lateral position on field, formation and what play was run. Thus, in a moment, he could tell us how many passes they tried on third down, how many off-tackle plays, how many sweeps, etc. He had taken this information not just from the Chattanooga game which he had scouted the day before, but also from Furman's two previous games—against Richmond and Davidson. The main purpose now was to study the Furman offense. We had looked at their defense on film in the afternoon.

Carl also gave us a breakdown on Furman's personnel. Some of the players we were most concerned about:

Steve Crislip—a runningback, a guy we were determined to stop, he's broken games for them, is dangerous runner with speed, runs hard, not big.

Pat Carroll—the other runningback, has an injury problem, missed last half of Chattanooga game, but still their second biggest threat.

Phil Howle—tight end with excellent speed for his size, has played very well for them, their most dangerous receiver now.

Obviously, the main threat was the Furman running game. We had to stop Crislip. To do this we decided, on Monday, to put our best tackle, Rich Peeler, in man-to-man coverage on Crislip. We had done this with Peeler in

"They're big, strong and hard-hitting. Our main concern is to have enough healthy people to play the game."

The only consolation Ragazzo has gotten out of the season so far is the fact the Keydets, who lost all 10 games last year, opened their season with a 13-0 victory over Southern Conference rival Furman. It's been all downhill for the Keydets since then.

VMI, along with cross-state conference rival, William and Mary, was forced to move its practice session Wednesday indoors because of inclement weather that included rain, sleet and snow. Richmond, idle this weekend, took the day off.

The second half of The Citadel game when we put Rich on Bob Duncan, who had run wild in the first half. Peeler did a great job on Duncan in the second half and we felt he could do it again.

Late Sunday night we made our final decision—to employ an eight-man front against Furman. This means we would use various combinations of front linemen and linebackers totaling eight, with three men in the secondary. This is designed to stop the run. We had used it against The Citadel, West Texas State, North Carolina State and Southern Illinois with varying degrees of success. Of course, we're always throwing in a few new wrinkles to give our defense an element of surprise. Against Furman, we decided to have our other tackle, Tim Tyler, step into the outside gap (outside their guard) on each play, in an effort to confuse their normal blocking, which we did.

Our basic game plan was now set. On defense, we must stop their running game, particularly Crislip. On offense, we had to control the ball, primarily with off-tackle runs and short, play-action passes.

"Furman Week" was well under way. We worked with our players each afternoon, training them to carry out this game plan. In the mornings and at night we made minor adjustments as we looked at more and more film and learned more and more about the Paladins.

Then came game day—and the Pirates carried out the plan. Football as a science—as a chess game with blocks and tackles—had been exemplified again.

In sunnier climes, Furman's Paladins increased the tempo of their workouts in preparation for Saturday's inter-sectional tiff with Guilford. Quarterback John DeLeo and Cleve Hightower led running and passing charges against simulated Guilford defenses.

The focus was on passing and kicking at The Citadel as the Bulldogs got in their last workout in pads before Saturday's game with the University of Chattanooga. The Cadets also emphasized short yardage and goal line defense.

East Carolina worked hard in polishing its already league-leading defense in preparation for Saturday's game with ruggest West Virginia. Pirate coach Mike McGee said linebackers Monty Kiernan and Ralph Betesh, along with safety Tom Pulley, looked especially good in the workout.

Frazier refused to get into a discussion of whether or not Clay's title should have been stripped away 43-months ago by the World Boxing Association because of his refusal to be drafted into the Armed Forces.

"Yes, I consider myself the champ" Frazier responded to a blunt question of whether he deserved the title in view of the way Ali lost it.

The 28-year-old Ali returned to the ring Oct. 26 at Atlanta and won a technical knockout over Jerry Quarry. The match was on closed circuit television

Extensive War Materials Buildup By N. Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. reconnaissance jets have detected an extensive buildup of war materials in the southern provinces of North Vietnam awaiting shipment to Cambodia and South Vietnam, Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans said today.

Concluding a three-day inspection visit to Vietnam, Seamans said American bombers have stepped up raids along 200 miles of the Ho Chi Minh trail through southeastern Laos. However, he said that to the best of his knowledge U.S. planes were not attacking the staging areas in North Vietnam. The United States halted all offensive bombing of North Vietnam Nov. 1, 1968, but has continued reconnaissance flights over the North.

"This is a very, very crucial time for air war," Seamans said. "As a result of the Cambodian invasion, a large number of supplies were wiped out."

"For that reason, the North Vietnamese, to continue to operate in South Vietnam as well as Cambodia, must get in a major increase in ammunition and other supplies. They don't have this year the alternative of using the ports in Cambodia ...

"So far we haven't seen enough to really know what is going to happen. The North Vietnamese have been severely hampered up to now by very heavy rains so we're just at the beginning of a critical period. I think it's too soon to try to make a projection as to what is going to happen over the next six months."

Despite the new enemy buildup, the secretary said the program to phase down American air operations and turn over more of the war to the South Vietnamese air force "is solidly based and progressing, if anything, ahead of schedule."

Since last January, the U.S. Air Force in Vietnam has been reduced to about 175 fighter-bombers operating from four bases in South Vietnam. More than 200 fighter-bombers and reconnaissance jets have been transferred out of the country.

The air war also has been carried on by another 300 fighter-bombers based in Thailand and aboard U.S. Navy carriers operating off the coast, along with 45 B52s based in Thailand. This fighter-bomber fleet also is being reduced—one carrier pulled out this week—but there has been no word of any reduction in B52 operations.

The secretary indicated that despite the steady withdrawal of U.S. forces, some American air forces will have to remain in Indochina for several years.

Seamans explained that Saigon's air force would not be equipped with fighters capable of matching North Vietnam's MIG21s until 1973 at least.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command announced that 24 Americans were killed in action in Vietnam last week, the lowest weekly toll in more than five years, and another 23 U.S. servicemen died from accidents or illness.

It was the lowest weekly toll since Oct. 17-23, 1965, when 14 U.S. troops died in action. But the Command also reported 431 Americans were wounded in action last week, an increase of 152 over the previous week.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 309 of Saigon's troops killed in action last week, the highest in three weeks, and 800 wounded.

The U.S. Command said allied forces killed 909 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong last week, the lowest enemy toll reported in nearly four years.

Battle action Wednesday and early today was generally light except in the northern provinces of South Vietnam. There allied forces fought three sharp clashes south of Da Nang. The allies claimed 52 enemy killed. Five es with North Vietnamese and Americans were killed and Viet Cong troops, two of them three wounded.

Writing Poetry, A Matter Of Simply Not Stopping

ECU Poetry Forum chairman and poet; and William Stafford, poet and Consultant in Poetry for the national Library of Congress in Washington.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"My impulse, when asked when I first became interested in writing poems," poet William Stafford commented, "is to ask my questioner, 'when did you quit writing poems?'"

Stafford, Consultant in Poetry for the Library of Congress, was in Greenville Tuesday for a reading of his poems at the Nursing Auditorium on campus at East Carolina University, sponsored by the ECU Poetry Forum.

Stafford said children take part in almost all kinds of play impulses, and try new things, creative things, like poetry. "So I feel with me it was not a matter of when I began, it was a matter of not stopping."

He believes the poetic element in man is a natural thing, "like inhaling and exhaling," something that will survive as long as man survives. "Although poems may rise and fall," he commented, "the poetical element in man continues."

Stafford is on leave from a teaching position with Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon, for the tenure of his term as Consultant in Poetry to the Library of Congress. He explained this is a one year appointment, normally followed by appointment for a second year.

"This position has been in existence since the early 1940's," Stafford explained. Some of the poets who have filled this post are familiar names to the American public — Robert Frost, Archibald McLeish, Robert Penn Warren, James Dickey and Stephen Spender, among others.

In speaking of his duties, Stafford said that "More work is being done on library programs. We're very active in this field and have an auditorium and a pavillion to use for poetry readings."

He expressed enthusiasm for the Library's recording program. "There's a growing collection of poets reading their own works," he noted. "Efforts are made to contact all our poets whenever they come to Washington." Foreign poets are also encouraged to share in these programs. A Jamaican and an Indian poet were first on this season's program.

A native midwesterner, Stafford admits that his early life in the vast American heartland influences his poetry. "In many ways I've never moved away from these early influences. I feel connected with them wherever I live."

Stafford, commenting on the role of poetry in the current American renaissance of the arts, said: "I find that people, especially students, are relating to poetry. They find enjoyment in this activity, in writing poetry."

Vernon Ward, ECU faculty member and chairman of the ECU Poetry Forum commented, "My students like Mr. Stafford's poetry, especially his 'Un-national Monument Along The Canadian Border' which is expressive of the elimination of frontiers between man."

Stafford admits that his creative work reflects his feelings about current issues which concern him. "Every writer is somehow involved in the issues we feel," he commented. "These issues surface in one's writing."

Author of several books of poetry, one of them, "Traveling Through the Dark" in 1963 won the National Book Award for the most distinguished work of poetry in America.

When he completes his tour as Consultant of Poetry for the Library, Stafford says he plans to return to his teaching in Oregon.

'Fed Up' With N.Y. Recruiting

DETROIT (AP) — Mayor Roman Gribbs has told New York Mayor John Lindsay to "do your Christmas shopping" for administrative talent in Chicago or Los Angeles—instead of making further raids on Detroit.

have had calls from three mayors and two governors asking me to see what I can do to get Lindsay to give some of my guys a little attention."

"I'm getting a bit tired of my aides coming in here waving their clippings and demanding salary adjustments" Gribbs said in a letter to Lindsay.

"Every time we send one of them to the East Coast we have to check and see if he bought a round trip ticket," Gribbs' letter added.

Lindsay recently hired Patrick Murphy away from his job as Detroit police commissioner for a similar assignment in New York.

Since then, according to City Hall sources, City Controller Robert Roselle, Gribbs' administrative aide Philip Tannian and James Tainor, head of the mayor's Industrial and Commercial Committee, have been offered jobs in Lindsay's administration, as have several others.

Also, Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas and Undersheriff Loren Pittman have confirmed offers to join the New York police department since Murphy's departure.

"I know that in attempting to lure so many of my friends and aides to New York you are merely doing your part to help publicize the high caliber of public servants in Detroit," Gribbs wrote.

"Nevertheless, I wish you would spread your generosity around to some of our other colleagues. Already this week I

Agree To Ceasefire Continuation Along Suez

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Suez Canal cease-fire will continue after its expiration time tonight, but there is no prospect for a resumption of peace talks despite the U.N. General Assembly resolution urging Israel and the Arabs to start negotiating again.

The semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al-Ahram said President Anwar Sadat had ordered Egyptian forces to continue the truce for "a further short period," but not for another 90 days unless progress is achieved, in the current peace efforts at the United Nations.

Sadat coupled this with an order for a full alert on the canal front "regardless of any political developments."

Al-Ahram said Egypt will continue to observe the cease-fire "until the completion of current discussion at the United Nations and accompanying international efforts." This was seen as a reference to Egypt's campaign in the U.N. General Assembly to force the Israelis to return to the indirect negotiations for which U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring is the go-between.

Israel had said earlier that it would continue to observe the there has been no formal announcement from Amman. Since the 1967 war, the Jordanian army has left offensive action against Israel to the Egyptians and the Palestinian guerrillas, and now it is so occupied trying to keep the guerrillas from overthrowing King Hussein that it probably could not take effective action against Israel if it wanted to.

The first 90-day cease-fire period ends at midnight in Israel and Egypt—5 p.m. EST.

Yugoslavia and 20 Asian and African supporters of Egypt pushed a resolution through the General Assembly Wednesday calling for a 90-day extension and immediate resumption of the Jarring talks. The resolution was approved 57 to 16 with 39 abstentions. The United States and Israel opposed it.

Israel had two objections to the resolution: It included a specific call for her to withdraw from the territories seized in the 1967 war and it calls for resumption of negotiations while ignoring the cease-fire violations charged by Israel.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the Assembly that this emphasis on Israeli withdrawal threw off balance the Security Council resolution of November 1967, which laid down the framework for a Middle East peace agreement.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost told the assembly that the resolution was "clearly ... put forward in behalf of one side to the conflict and represents the views of that side." He said its adoption constituted a "step backward, not a step forward."

Israeli Premier Golda Meir said in London today that Britain has moved toward the Soviet Union and France in its approach to the Middle East conflict, leaving the United States as Israel's sole supporter among the Big Four.

Meanwhile, a military spokesman in Israel reported today that an Israeli army patrol killed three Arab guerrillas from Lebanon and found rifles and bazookas near their bodies after the clash Wednesday in Upper Galilee. There were no Israeli casualties.

At Beit Hanun, in the Gaza Strip, Arab students commemorating the 40th day since the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser tried to set up a road-block with burning tires, but Israeli troops dispersed them, a military spokesman said.

All shops in the strip were shut in tribute to Nasser.

Prime Minister Edward Heath and Foreign Secretary Sir Alex Douglas-Home advised Mrs. Meir Wednesday night that Israel should realize as a fact of military life that Egypt will not withdraw the missiles from the canal zone. They urged her to reconsider her government's refusal to resume peace talks unless the weapons are removed.

Mrs. Meir said there was absolutely no chance of Israel changing its position. She also said the new General Assembly resolution contained nothing to ease Middle East tensions and in fact introduced new obstacles to peace making.

Can Use TV In Teaching

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sesame Street" has shown that television can be used effectively to teach 3- to 5-year old children simple facts and skills, says Educational Testing Service.

ETS said Wednesday that results of its testing 943 children showed a gain in learning by all who watched the show, but the highest gains were made by those who watched most often.

The study also found that disadvantaged children who watched frequently made more gains than advantaged children who watched less regularly.

The authors, Dr. Samuel Ball and Mrs. Gerry Bogatz, said this finding meant the educational gap between advantaged and disadvantaged children could be reduced "even by the time they enter first grade."

The study also found that 3-year-olds who were regular viewers had learned more by the end of the series than older children who watched less frequently.

"Sesame Street," produced by the Children's Television Workshop and funded by public and private agencies, is an hour-long program for preschool children on public television stations.

The ETS survey was conducted in Boston, Philadelphia, Phoenix, Ariz., Durham, N.C. and a rural area of California. Children were tested before the program went on the air and after it had been on for 26 weeks.

Will Encourage Govm't Careers

A team from the Civil Service Commission and a number of federal government agencies will be on the East Carolina University campus Nov. 16 to present an employment outlook program and conduct individual interviews with students interested in careers in government service.

The federal government each year recruits and employs more than 13,000 college graduates for careers in a wide range of professions and occupations.

Scott Praises Student Conduct

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott has praised students at Triangle area colleges for their "mature and courteous conduct" when Vice President Spiro Agnew visited the state Oct. 26.

Scott said Wednesday his statement was probably overdue but that he waited until after the election "to avoid any contention that it was made for political reasons."

Scott said he was proud of the students who "completely avoided the senseless tactics that have been adopted by a few students in other parts of the country" and did not infringe on Agnew's right to speak.

Overdue Book Borrowed In 1914

PITTSBURGH (AP) — During an amnesty on fines this week, one overdue book that found its way to Carnegie Library had been checked out in 1914.

The borrower's card in the book, a biography of Benedict Arnold, listed Mary Blair Burgwin.

James O. Denny III, who said he found the book among his mother's belongings after she died in 1968, told the librarian, "If it would help get other books returned, then go ahead and tell about old Benedict Arnold's return."

Without an amnesty, the fine would have been $3, the library's top charge on overdue books.

Dairy farmers shipping to the Louisiana milk market produced a record of more than 1 billion pounds of milk in 1969.

TURTLE NURSERY

The "rookery," a protected nursery area for turtles on Jupiter Island, Fla.

If several thousand hearty young turtles toddle across the beaches of Jupiter Island, Fla., this fall and swim happily out into the ocean, Frank Lund can take a great deal of the credit.

Lund, a 20-year-old student at the University of Florida, has spent his last two summer vacations living on the beach, tagging loggerhead and green turtles and raising their young, out of fear for their possible extinction. Jesse and Mike White and Bruce Williams have been helping in this research experiment, whose aim is to determine the nesting habits of sea turtles, their populations, hazards they face when nesting, and percentages which hatch and return.

The boys dig up turtle eggs, take them to a "rookery" for hatching, and then keep and feed the turtles in a protected pool for several months until they are big enough to fend for themselves. So far 600 big sea turtles have been tagged. And this year there were 30,000 eggs in the rookery—with luck three quarters of them will have hatched and survived at the end of the season. Hazards facing turtles include raccoons, which eat eggs, extreme heat of the sand and erosion.

The four students hope to collect all their findings and publish them later. All this because, thirteen years ago, a fisherman friend happened to give young Frank Lund a turtle as a pet—which led to his present keen interest in turtles and concern for their survival.

Students Become Professionals In Political Wars

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer
PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — While campaign headquarters across the country were reaching peaks of emotional fervor, he election night mood at headquarters of the campus-based movement for a New Congress was more like the end of exam period.

Appropriately so, for the election season just ended has aught student political volunteers a number of things, about both their weaknesses and their strengths.

There were no roars of triumph or sobs of anguish as workers posted on blackboards results from the 70 congressional races MNC volunteers were involved in.

MNC leaders had avoided big predictions about what would be wrought by the estimated 50,000 volunteer campaigners working through the loose-linked organization for the last week of the campaign.

Results telephoned to the clipping and poster-bedecked basement of Princeton University's old physics building were about equally divided between wins and losses, and many of the watchers left their beer and went home shortly after midnight.

For every encouragement, like John Tunney's defeat of Sen. George Murphy in California, there was a disappointment such as the loss by the Rev. Joseph Duffey in the Connecticut Senate race. In contrast, the MNC had boasted an 80 per cent win record in 30 carefully picked primary races.

But raw won-lost figures don't reflect the impact of the student movement any better than raw figures on the number of student volunteers, insisted William Murphy, a Princeton graduate student who is codirector of the national organization.

"The percentage of the vote that the students have been able to deliver is the thing. We've been figuring on between 2 and 10 per cent. The trick is to put that percentage where it will do the most good.

"Take Winnebago County, Ill. A Democrat has never carried Winnebago County and three weeks ago Adlai Stevenson was running behind in a poll there about 57 per cent to 43 per cent. We sent about 150 kids in there and in three weeks they turned that around." Early Wednesday, Adlai Stevenson III was leading in the county by about 5 to 4 in his successful challenge to Republican Sen. Ralph T. Smith.

"Two to 10 per cent doesn't sound like much," said Murphy, "It's not of much interest to anybody in the world except the guy who's running and his campaign manager."

Murphy and his codirector,

Prof. Henry Bienen, also took issue with the notion that, after an emotion-charged beginning in the wake of the entry of U.S. troops into Cambodia and the deaths of students at Kent State and Jackson State last spring, the student political movement ran down in apathy.

"The number of student volunteers alone this year equaled the number of all volunteers of all ages in the usual off-year election," Bienen said.

"One reason people talk about apathy among students is that their rhetoric is at such a high level and their promise sounds so great that the result never measures up to it," he added.

"But we've proved that you can get the students out and successful bid for the New York congressional seat of Republican Martin McNeally.

Fram said student volunteers came to provide manpower but in some cases stayed to provide direction.

"For instance, we found that the regular party organization wasn't set up to do an efficient job of polling. They hadn't lined up enough phones or enough people in advance."

Fram is thinking of throwing over physics and going to politics fulltime.

Where does the MNC go from here? Its officers aren't sure.

Faculty Named Appointments

Dr. Henry Wanderman, chairman of the East Carolina University Department of German and Russian, has announced the following new appointments to the faculty:

Dr. Maria Malby, associate professor; Dr. Maurice B. Wells, assistant professor; Dr. Carol Krause, instructor; and Charles Edward Boyanton, instructor.

Churchill Elected Full AIP Member

Onslow County Planner Mack Churchill has been elected a full member of the American Institute of Planners (AIP).

Churchill, formerly of Greenville, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Churchill of Greenville.

The AIP is the professional planners organization with central offices in Washington, D. C. There are three echelons of membership, intern, associate member and full member. The membership is earned through education and experience in the planning profession. Of North Carolina's 127 professional planners, only 48 are full members of the AIP.

Churchill, 1968 recipient of the Jacksonville Jaycees Distinguished Service Award, worked toward the top AIP echelon for nine years, three as an intern and six as an associate member.

To qualify a candidate must have a degree in planning which requires four years of college, and three years of responsible supervisory experience after a minimum of six years employment in the profession.

A candidate must then undergo two years of counseling by an AIP counseling and screening committee. The committee reviews the work of the candidate. The candidate must also pass an examination on theory and planning.

Churchill attended Greenville High School, St. Petersburg Junior College, and East Carolina University, where he graduated in 1961 with an AB degree in urban geography and city planning.

He is married to the former Carolina R. Campbell of Rocky Mount, also an ECU graduate. The Churchills have two daughters and reside in Jacksonville.

Bring Charges Of Conspiracy

KENANSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Duplin County Grand Jury has indicted two former National Spinning Co. executives and a Kenansville man on charges of conspiring to obtain money by pretense.

The State Bureau of Investigation began a probe last July after an audit revealed an apparent shortage of $60,000 at National Spinning's plant in Warsaw.

Indicted Wednesday were Freddie Bell, former manager of the plant; James Norris, who was a department manager of the textile firm; and Davis Evans, a Kenansville service station operator.

Judge Joseph W. Parker ordered the arrest of the three men and directed that they be held under $10,000 bond each.

Worry Clinic Seek Maturity In Employees

By GEORGE CRANE

CASE 0-575: Dr. Joe belongs to the Academy of General Dentistry in Houston, Texas.

Earlier this summer I flew down there for 7 hours of lectures at its all-day clinic.

"Dr. Crane," Dr. Joe began as we dined together the night before the meeting, "I am in great need of another Dental Assistant."

"My 'front' girl who greeted patients in the outer office, married and left, so I hastily tried to recruit another."

"And I selected a nice looking young woman, aged only 19."

"She expressed keen interest in dentistry and said she liked dealing with people."

"Well, she seemed fairly competent for a couple of weeks."

"But on Tuesday she left for lunch and didn't come back."

"So I phoned her at home that night, and she told me she had decided to go back to California."

"I guess she has a boy friend out there."

"But I asked her why she couldn't at least have given me a little advance warning, instead of leaving the front desk vacant while patients were streaming in all that afternoon."

"She flippantly said she was just tired of the job, so she quit!"

"But she came back three days later to collect her Monday and Tuesday pay!"

"At the end of the month I got my phone bill and found that she had even charged a $22 dollar, plus an $18, long distance California call to my number, so she duped me out of that amount, too."

"Dr. Crane, how can an employer get competent help nowadays? For I still need a 'front' girl very badly."

In my address the next day, I briefly discussed this problem and told the Dental Surgeons to:

(1) Contact a local Business College, for a Dental Assistant should be a versatile girl, talented at bookkeeping, "fronting," etc.

And Business Colleges offer the best one-year practical education in America!

They train their graduates to have a marketable skill that pays dividends at once.

(2) Hire an oldest child! Other things being equal, the eldest child has been trained in "management's" outlook.

For she was always told, "Now look after your baby brother or sister" whenever they would go outdoors to play during childhood.

Thus, the oldest child has absorbed the "executive's" or "Manager's" sense of responsibility ever since kindergarten age.

(3) Other things being equal, employ a girl who spent her youth on a farm.

For farm children are usually taught to work hard. They have had chores to perform ever since they could toddle.

(4) Select a girl who is active in the church!

For such a person is more likely to apply the Golden Rule and not leave a boss in the lurch.

(5) Pick older married women, for they also have managed a household and thus are more likely to have the outlook of "management."

Thus, they also tend to plan their work ahead and apply efficient methods to their job.

But try to pick such wives whose husbands are not likely to be transferred to other parts of the U.S.A.

FIVE-YEAR LOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Fewer than 32 men died in Vietnam last week, marking a five-year low in casualties, the Defense Department has announced.

Set To Begin

The Special Projects Committee of Aycock Junior High School announced today it is ready to begin actual work on landscaping the school grounds, and prefaced the announcement with one word:

Help!
"We need men and some Junior High boys with rakes, shovels and wheelbarrows to join us Saturday morning at 9:00," says Mrs. Frank Meacham.

The landscaping project was adopted by the 1969-70 PTA. Money was raised, but work was delayed by several unavoidable factors.

Now, however, all is in readiness to begin Saturday morning.

Solid Victory For Everett In His Home Town

HAMILTON — R. Frank Everett, native of this small Martin County town on the Roanoke River, registered a solid victory in the turn-out of voters there.

In yesterday's voting, results of the congressional balloting showed Everett more than doubling the votes given incumbent Congressman Walter B. Jones. Everett received 217 Hamilton votes, Jones tallied 101 votes.

In Robersonville, where Everett operates a business, Everett failed to carry that town, the second largest in Martin County. 288 voters cast their ballots for Everett, and Jones received exactly 100 more votes at 388.

Throughout Martin County,

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
6 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.
West was virtually end-played from the opening gun, and he found the least damaging lead against South's six spade contract, the declarer steadily applied the pressure and forced his opponent eventually to succumb.

West opened the seven of clubs and inasmuch as declarer did not require an immediate discard, he played the ten from dummy. East covered with the queen and South ruffed. Trumps were drawn in three rounds. West discarding two diamonds and one club.

Declarer observed that he could discard a diamond on the ace of clubs. If the diamond finesse succeeded, he could afford to lose one heart trick. Similarly, if the queen of hearts dropped under the ace or king, the slam is safely home no matter which opponent has the king of diamonds.

South decided to test the hearts first by cashing the ace and king. Altho the queen remained outstanding, he led a third round of hearts. If the suit divided evenly, an end play might be in the offing—and the diamond finesse was always available as a last resort.

West was in with the queen of hearts, however he had no safe exit. If he returned a club, it would present South with a free finesse of the jack and thereby provide the declarer with two club discards. In desperation, West returned a diamond—hoping that East held the jack and that South would misguess the situation.

The queen of diamonds was played from dummy. When it held the trick, South discarded his jack of diamonds on the ace of clubs and claimed his contract. He lost only one heart trick on the deal.

Weyerhaeuser Plymouth Plant Sets Open House

PLYMOUTH, N.C.—Weyerhaeuser Company's Fine Paper Division will hold open house here on Sunday, November 8, it was announced by Robert M. "Bob" Mayer, Fine Paper Division Manager. The hours of the open house are from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m., Mayer said.

Parking will be provided for incoming guests in the Paper Division parking lot and the vacant area adjacent to the plant. Visitors will be asked to sign visitor passes before entering the plant.

Company officials said that due to safety regulations governing the operation of the plant, no one under the age of 12 years can be permitted to make the tour. Persons 12 to 18 years old must be accompanied by an adult. All ladies should wear comfortable shoes.

Maddox Sees Power Grab

ACCUSES GOVERNOR-ELECT — Georgia Governor Lester Maddox says Gov.-elect Jimmy Carter is engineering a move to take control of the Georgia Senate. (AP Wirephoto)

By TED SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A clash between Gov. Lester Maddox and Gov. elect Jimmy Carter, smoldering since Carter's nomination in September, has surfaced abruptly, centering on a power struggle in the Georgia Senate.

The strength of the opposing sides is expected to be tested today, when Democrats of the Senate caucus to organize and select a president pro tem.

The clash erupted Wednesday night, when an angry, shaken Maddox called his first night news conference at the Capitol in almost four years in office to charge Carter with backing a "sinister, selfish, lustful move" to seize control of the Senate.

Senators working on behalf of Carter have been using "coercion, threats and intimidation and pledges of rewards" in an attempt to name a loyal Carterman as president pro tem, Maddox said, and also were moving to try to strip the office of lieutenant governor of its powers.

"It's ugly, it's mean, it's vicious, it's a betrayal. It's a brazen grab for power," said the governor.

The charges were made little more than 24 hours after Maddox had won a decisive victory in his race for lieutenant governor, whose job it is to preside over the Senate.

The office has little statutory authority. It's power lies in Senate rules, which allow the lieutenant governor to name all committees and committee chairman and thus control the

Live Rocking Horse Gains Recognition

By MAX JENNINGS
LIMA (UPI) — A strange switch in genes, perhaps a couple of hundred years after the Spanish conquered Peru, made the country the home of the world's only live rocking horses.

The Peruvians call them "Caballos de Paso," literally "Horses of the Step" and their future seems just to be arriving as the play horse of the world.

Unlike other horses, the Peruvian "rocking horses" are born with a peculiar rocking stride, so amazingly smooth that it permits even a novice rider to sit effortlessly for as many miles as he wants.

So far, few of the world's horse lovers seem to know about the unusual Peruvian horse but the word is starting to spread, thanks largely to the National Association of Owners of Caballos de Paso, an elite group of Peruvians who have been meeting every Monday night for 26 years to discuss the virtues of the "pasos."

They believe the horses came from a mutation that occurred some time after the Spanish
