Transfer Of Parking Facilities Approved

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Transfer of Greenville's parking facilities to the Greenville Parking Authority was approved in a two part transfer by the City Council last night.

The first document, covering jurisdiction involved in the transfer, permanently establishes the Parking Authority as a separate body in the city government. This document establishes means of managing and supervising parking to the mutual advantage of the city and the Parking Authority. It further sets out the separate agreements, traffic rights and privileges of the parking lots and on-street parking, and general operations and maintenance of city parking lots.

The second document describes the administrative details, including annual audit agreement.

A public hearing for street assessments rolls on six streets was held without opposition. Councilmen accepted and approved the assessments presented by City Manager Harry Hagerty, which are for: Curb, gutter and paving - Park Drive, $2,372.50; and Monroe Street, $1,975.00. For curb and gutter only the assessments are: Nichols Drive, $3,659.45; Emerson Road, $1,655.30; Kent Road, $1,961.15; and Belmont Drive, $615.37. This amounts to a total of $12,238.77, which represents the costs to be borne by property owners. To this amount, the city's share of one third is added.

Randy Honnet, representing the newly formed East Carolina Advisory Board, introduced the three appointed members to the councilmen. They are: Bill Owens, Martha DeWitt and Ronald Roussel. The fifth member, SGA president Robert Whitley, could not be present.

Honnet explained, because of an emergency meeting on campus in connection with trying to avert a publication strike.

Dr. Frank Fuller and Jerry Sutherland, the City Council committee working with this group, will meet with them soon to have their first joint talk. Honnet also announced that two alternate student members have been appointed - Benjamin Bailey and Carl Davis. The students represent different segments of the university.

A request for annexation of Brewer and Marshall Concrete Products and General Construction Company property located on highway 30 north of the Meadowbrook area city limits was deferred by the provision that city privileges be granted to the applicants for annexation. Councilmen will study the possibility of annexation in the area of more than just the lots requested by Brewer and Marshall.

A resolution to grant the establishment of a natural gas line under the right-of-way and the spur line of Seaboard Coast Line Railroad was approved. This is located at the Empire Brush Company spur line, and will not exceed a maximum pressure of 67 pounds per square inch.

The request for a non-exclusive bus franchise by the Raleigh Coach Line, which currently operates bus service for ECU on a contract basis with the Student Government Association, was approved. Before approving the non-exclusive franchise, the agreement, which originally contained a terminating clause at the latest of 1991, was changed to read July 1, 1971, with annual renewal procedures thereafter.

Approval was granted to Rudy Lloyd to place a mobile home at 2117 Montclair Drive to be used as a residence. The permit is for the standard one-year period. No opposition was expressed at the (Continued on page 16)

Successor May Have To
Scott Won't Seek New Taxes In '71

RALEIGH (AP) - Gov. Bob Scott says that although he will not ask the 1971 General Assembly to boost taxes, he feels the state needs the money so badly that his successor may have to seek more revenue.

Scott added that if he got a tax boost, "It would make it almost impossible" for the next governor to get one.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Scott also said he may ask the General Assembly to approve a statewide vote on a multimillion-dollar bond issue for construction at mental hospitals, universities and other state institutions.

Scott noted that requests from state agencies for construction projects totals about $600 million, but he "would not ask for anything near that."

"If we are somehow able to meet our most essential needs without the bond issue, then I won't ask for one," he said. "But I just don't know right now."

Scott also reiterated that while he will oppose any tax reduction moves that would cut state revenues, he would not object to cutting taxes in one place while increasing them in another as long as no one tax was allowed to get out of proportion.

He said he expects the tax lineup will remain the same because the interests affected would not be able to agree on such a proposal.

Scott said his administration's position is that any lineup of taxes is acceptable "so long as it does not reduce the net revenue."

The governor said he would "very definitely" fight any effort to reduce the state gasoline tax by one penny. He said he thought several factors would operate against such a move.

For one, he said, "There have not been that many legislators who have come out and committed themselves to repeal or reduction."

And, he said, "When the legislators get here, we can get them to come by and sit down with a map of his particular district and show what is being done on the highway in his district.

Scott pointed out that another factor is that "the municipalities are now looking for another half cent from the gasoline tax."

"They're expecting the cities' share under the Powell Bill to be increased from one-half to one cent because the governor said he would ask the legislature to do this.

The governor's proposal is almost certain to win legislative approval.

Many legislators favoring the proposal, and in addition it would not be safe politically for a legislator to oppose something favored by so many municipal officials.

Scott said he did not feel the GOP legislative losses and Democratic gains in Tuesday's general election was an endorsement of his 1969 tax program, because he had not gone over the state and made a direct appeal to the people to support the program.

Student Paper Staff Fighting SGA Control

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Staff members of East Carolina University's student newspaper, The Fountainhead, will meet Sunday afternoon in an effort to settle a dispute with the Student Government Association over control of appropriations earmarked for the publication.

David Landt, business manager of the student newspaper said if the dispute is not settled, staff members may vote to strike.

"The main problem is we have a certain amount of money - $33,000 this year - allocated for one year and we want to have the right to spend the money we have. If we don't ask for any more money, why can't we spend the money the way we see fit?"

Robert Whitley, SGA president explained that the present situation has evolved over the question of salaries for three persons working on the Fountainhead staff - two clerks and a staff photographer.

The SGA financial board, which oversees Fountainhead financial matters, set out positions and salaries for the year at the beginning of the fall quarter, Whitley noted, with an increase of 40 per cent over the budget figure for last year.

The positions in question, he continued, "were not approved by the board," he continued. "The board voted down the requests. The editor of the Fountainhead said they had already done the work for September and so the board did agree to pay them for September. Requests for pay were submitted again for October work and the SGA treasurer, bound by the board, can't pay them."

Whitley said there is a $60 per month appropriation for a photographer. Noting that the editor of the Fountainhead changed the method of paying for photos from a salary basis to a $2.50 per photo payment, Whitley said a $127 request was submitted for October. "The treasurer paid $60."

"The way I see it," Whitley commented, "the problem is one of the Fountainhead publication wanting complete autonomy from the SGA. 'Ideally in American History there should be freedom of the press. However, it is our feeling that our newspaper is unlike others where subscribers are voluntary."

He explained, "For students, it is mandatory that they subscribe. When they pay their fees, they pay subscription rates. Since they have no choice, they should have some say in the operation...something to say in how the money is spent. The way it is set up now, the SGA legislature controls how the money is spent, thus giving the students a say..." Whitley (Continued on page 16)

City Planner Announced

Dillon Watson, Executive Secretary for the Ayden Economic Council, has been named City Planner for the City of Greenville. The new position is to be occupied by Watson no later than January 1, 1971.

Announcement in Greenville of the appointment was made last night by City Manager Harry Hagerty at the City Council meeting.

Watson, a native of the Falkland community, is a graduate of Belvoir-Falkland High School. He received the B.S. degree in social studies from East Carolina University. He is also a graduate of the Division of Community Planning Training Program.

He served two years in the U. S. Air Force, 1959-60, with duty overseas in France. After his military tour, he completed his education at ECU.

From 1967 to 1969, Watson was employed by the State of North Carolina as a community planner for the Department of Conservation and Development.

For the past one and one half years he has been with the Ayden Economic Council. Watson is married to the former Blanche Myers Dudley of Greenville. They have one child, Lisa, two years old.

Hagerty notes that as City Planner, Watson will be concerned with all areas of city planning and will be involved with the many Greenville programs and projects now underway and planned.

Investigators 'Pulled Time'

Charge 3 Stole Arsenal

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) - Three young men face trial in federal court on charges of stealing a small arsenal of weapons, including two machine guns from the Washington, N.C., National Guard Armory.

Arrested and arraigned before the U.S. Commissioner in New Bern on charges of theft of government property were James Stevens Fink, 18, and Eric Charles Youmans, 22, both of Washington, N.C., and Ted H. Brinkley, 19, of Durham.

They were arrested in a secluded camp in a wooded area near Washington Thursday by Beaufort County officers.

Authorities said they recovered two .30-caliber machine guns, 17 M-1 rifles, and 28 .45-caliber pistols along with a quantity of ammunition.

State Adj. Gen. Ferd Davis, who came to Washington to aid in the investigation, said on his return to Raleigh the theft would have been "a sheer catastrophe" if it hadn't been solved. He said the weapons would have been "extremely valuable on the black market." The robbery was discovered about 10:30 a.m. Thursday when the armory's arms and supply rooms were checked.

Drug-Loaded Hallowe'en Candy Kills 5-Year-Old

DETROIT (AP) - A 5-year-old boy who had clung to life for three days after eating Halloween candy containing heroin, died today in a Detroit hospital.

"We were just sustaining him," said a hospital official.

The boy, Kevin Toston, had gone trick-or-treating with his two brothers, Glendarrell, 12, and Paul, 15, in their West Side neighborhood Saturday, Halloween night, according to their mother, Ida Foster, 31. When they returned home within an hour, they sorted through their candy, throwing away everything that was improperly wrapped or was open.

"Kevin even threw out the apples because he thought there might be razor blades in them," Mrs. Foster said.

Kevin ate some of his Halloween candy before going to bed at 11 p.m. Monday and was discovered sweating and breathing heavily about 3 a.m., Mrs. Foster said.

He was taken to a hospital and never regained consciousness. A drug analysis of Kevin's

Halloween candy showed traces of heroin and quinine in powder form, authorities said.

"They've got to rule out Halloween," Mrs. Foster said. "It's too dangerous for kids."

Record Voter Turn-Out For Off-Year Election

WASHINGTON (AP) - When the counting is finished it's almost certain to show more Americans went to the polls Tuesday than in any off-year election, but—as usual—not anywhere near that of a presidential year.

With scattered precincts yet to be counted and thousands of absentee ballots to be tabulated, an Associated Press survey shows an unofficial total of 56,146,618 tallied so far.

That's near the final 56,827,994 total of 1966 and well over the 53,510,425 in 1962. The 1960 presidential vote was 68,883,341 and the 1968 total was 73,359,968.

The voting-age population has grown from 106 million in 1960 to an estimated 124 million this year and the turnout pattern has remained about the same.

Republican National Committee researchers had figured 49 per cent of the 124 million would vote this year, the same percentage as in 1966 and 1962. That would be 60 million votes.

The presidential vote turnout was 63.2 per cent in 1960, 62 per cent in 1964 and 61.1 in 1968.

Getting an accurate voter turnout picture is more complicated in off-year elections than in a presidential year. It can be done only by taking the vote for all candidates in a statewide race such as governor or U.S. senator or adding the totals for all U.S. House seats in the state.

But while most voters cast their ballot for president many may skip balloting for senator, governor or congressmen in off-year elections. So they're lost in the calculation.

The 1966 vote already has been surpassed in most of the states where there were key battles for Senate seats, notably Florida, Texas, Tennessee, Ohio and Michigan. In Tennessee, where there were hot Senate and gubernatorial races, the 1,101,476 counted for governor was a record turnout for a nonpresidential year.

But in some states with big election battles—California, New York and Illinois—the 1966 totals have not been reached, but they had big contests that year too.

The final count has been slow in a few states, notably Louisiana, with only about two-thirds of the vote tabulated. There was no gubernatorial or senatorial race in Louisiana.

Groundbreaking Little Regard Shown Seniority System Slated Sunday

Arlington Street Baptist Church has set the 11 o'clock morning worship hour on Sunday as the occasion of the groundbreaking for a new educational unit.

Following a service in the sanctuary the congregation will gather on the grounds for the groundbreaking ceremony.

The new unit will enlarge the present fellowship hall, add Sunday School classroom space and provide a new library, church office and pastor's study. It will encompass approximately 1,300 square feet. Construction is to begin immediately.

Arlington Street Baptist Church began a mission under the dual sponsorship of Memorial and Immanuel Baptist Churches in June, 1955.

On June 3, 1956, the mission was constructed as a church and called its first pastor, The Rev. Mark Owens. The congregation moved into its new constructed building on Oct. 6, 1957. Fire destroyed much of this building in 1961 and it was rebuilt in its present form.

J. G. Gibbs, first Sunday School superintendent of the church, will return and assist in the groundbreaking ceremony. Others assisting will be Howard Shearin, chairman of the building committee; Ralph Crawford, chairman of the building finance committee; James Barnes, chairman of the deacons; and the Rev. John A. Moore, associational missionary of the South Roanoke Baptist Association. The Rev. Charles D. Edwards serves as pastor.

Never Forgotten By Arm Of The Law

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—The long arm of the law never forgives or forgets, not even in the case of a 75-year-old handyman who sat in the Mecklenburg County jail today awaiting possible extradition to Georgia.

In Georgia, he's known as Gobby Gantt, escaped murderer—not that anyone but perhaps some records clerk remembers him.

In a rural section of Mecklenburg County the 5-2, 120-pound Negro is known as George Thompson—harmless, friendly, the hired help for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Faires.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Voters showed little regard this year for the seniority system so well-loved in Congress.

The system protects the promotion privileges of members with long records of service. The longer they stay in Congress, the better their chances to win higher and more important assignments and become more strongly entrenched in office.

Voters decided that for 15 senior House members with combined service of more than 250 years, the time had come to look for other jobs.

The 15 were defeated in primaries or in last Tuesday's general election.

The political casualties included two committee chairmen, one former chairman and four who were in line to become chairmen if political winds blew the right way.

Ten were victims of primary elections. Five lost out in the general elections.

These chairmen and a former chairman were among the casualties:

George H. Fallon, 68, D-Md.,

who headed the Public Works Committee and whose service as a member started in 1945.

Samuel N. Friedel, 72, D-Md., who first was elected in November 1952. He chairs the House Administration Committee and is No. 2 Democrat on the Commerce Committee.

Adam Clayton Powell, 62, D-N.Y., whose service started in 1945. He headed the Education and Labor Committee until stripped of the post by Democrats four years ago in a disciplinary move.

In line to become chairman had they held office long enough were these losers:

—Michael A. Feighan, 65, D-Ohio, first elected in 1943. He ranked second on the Judiciary Committee and heads its important immigration subcommittee.

—Philip J. Philbin, 72, D-Mass., whose service started in 1943. He was in line to head the Armed Services Committee if that post were vacated by L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C.

—E. Ross Adair, 63, Indiana Republican first elected in 1951. He is senior minority member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

—William H. Ayres, 54, R-Ohio, with 19 years of service. He is No. 1 Republican on the Education and Labor Committee.

Controlling Mine Fire Is Difficult, Expensive

FROSTBURG, Md. (AP)—At least a dozen invisible fires—one of which has been burning 55 years, are scattered through the Appalachian mining region. The fires, often known only by occasional wisps of smoke or by bare areas during the normally snowy winter months, are glowing in coal mines hundreds of feet below the ground.

One which was started in 1915 by a miner's lamp, has burned to within 2,000 feet of the city of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. It is costing the U.S. Bureau of Mines millions of dollars to control.

In Maryland, underground mine fires are burning near Frostburg and Lonaconing, but are not endangering any populated areas. Because of this fact and because they are privately owned, the Bureau of Mines is not authorized to work on them.

No one knows when some of the fires began, but extinguishing a 12-year-old fire on the edge of Scranton, Pa. required the demolition of dozens of shops and homes. A $50 million industrial complex was saved from a mine fire at Throop, Pa.

Because the fires cannot be seen, 6 to 8-inch boreholes must be drilled to determine their depth, perimeter and direction.

Burning areas sometimes can be flooded if they are below the natural water line. If they are higher, any water pumped into the ground will run into subsurface rivers instead of putting out the fire.

In that case the mass of hot coal must be blocked off and allowed to burn itself out. Sometimes, as with the Scranton fire, the burning area can be dug out.

The fires, which sometimes reach temperatures exceeding 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit, often send smoke and fumes seeping into homes above.

When the fires burn through wood and coal supports in the mining region, the earth above collapses, tilting or toppling nearby homes and other structures.

In one case a man complained he could get only steam out of the cold water faucets in his house. Another fire collapsed the earth so that two homes tilted towards each other, their roofs touching.

The 55-year-old Wilkes-Barre fire now being fought is burning under suburban Georgetown, where nearly 200 homes and shops were vacated and demolished. An urban renewal project will rebuild the area after the fire is extinguished.

Wilkes-Barre itself is not in danger because the fire there was far enough underground to be flooded, federal officials say.

C.S. Kuebler and W. W. Everett, who are in charge of the regional fire-fighting program, are confident that all the mine fires can be put out.

Progress can proceed only as funds become available, however. The Scranton fire, which required excavation 200 feet below the surface, cost about $5 million.

Under the 1965 Appalachian Regional Development Act, 75 per cent of the cost is paid by the federal government and the remaining 25 per cent by the state of Pennsylvania.

Elections In Angel Flight

Angel Flight at East Carolina University has announced the election of a new information officer and the successful completion of the Campus Blood Drive and a record number of signatures for the National POW-MIA Signature Drive.

Wilma Holland, sophomore from Dudley, N.C., has been elected information officer for the Angels for the remainder of the academic year.

A total of 496 pints of blood, only four short of the goal of 500, were collected in the recent campus blood drive. The blood drive, directed by the Red Cross, was co-sponsored on the ECU campus by the Angel Flight, AFROTC and the Arnold Air Society.

Approximately 3000 signatures have been attached to the National POW-MIA (Prisoners of War-Missing in Action) Signature Drive, sponsored locally by the Angels.

Dam Contract To Sanford Firm

SILER CITY, N.C. (AP)—A Sanford firm, the Sanford Construction Co., has been awarded a $6,850,570 contract to build the long talked of New Hope Dam in Chatham County.

Construction is expected to begin before the end of the year, with completion scheduled for the spring of 1973.

The dam will be located on the Haw River in eastern Chatham County. It will be of earth-construction with concrete spillway, and will back up waters over approximately 50,000 acres in Chatham, Durham and Wake counties.

The Army Engineers have purchased about half the land needed. About 50 families will have to move.

CANNES, France (WNS) — Emilio Baccarani was forced to change the name of his successful Club Play Boy because Hugh Hefner threatened legal action. The new name of the night spot: CLUB Play Girl. "I'm doing bigger business than ever now," enthused Baccarani. "Women take the change of name as special homage to the so-called weaker sex. Nosey Neighbor Has Noisy Mind

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor, a very beautiful woman who is a college graduate, very refined and has the reputation of being a perfect lady. I know for a fact that she is a downright cheat.

One night last week I couldn't sleep, so I sat at the window, and at midnight I saw this woman come home. Fifteen minutes later she admitted a strange man into her home thru the garage. He stayed exactly one hour and 50 minutes. I know for certain that her husband was out of town that night.

I told my husband about it, and said I thought her husband should be told the kind of woman he is married to. My husband said I should mind my own business. I'd like your opinion.

DEAR NEIGHBOR: I think you wasted a six-cent stamp. Your husband's advice was A. O. K.

DEAR ABBY: My son is getting married and the bride's people are having a reception for 150 guests, out of which they are allowing us to invite only 40! I felt this was unfair, but I accepted it.

On our side is a nine-year-old nephew, and when the bride's mother heard he was invited, she called me up and said no children at the reception, so I had to cancel out my nephew. Now I hear the bride's side is having two children in the wedding party and I am sure they will attend the reception. My son says no, but I am betting they will be there.

Abby, if after we get to the reception, we see one child there my whole family plans to walk out. Do you think we would be wrong to do this? MAD

DEAR MAD: Yes. Put your own feelings aside for this one day. If you were to walk out for any reason, it would spoil your son's wedding day. [You will find something else to be mad at his in-laws for later. From the way you describe them, you'll have many opportunities.]

DEAR ABBY: That woman who got jealous because she saw her husband with his arms around his secretary must be a real dope. He said he was showing his appreciation to a good secretary, and I believe him.

That woman should know what it is to see real trouble, like paralysis, cancer, arthritis. I see it every day as I am a therapist, and I'm thrilled to pieces when one of the doctors meets me in the corridor, puts his arm around me and gives me a little hug and says, "Gee, girl, you're wonderful—we got him walking again, didn't we?"

If that doctor were to pass me in the hall with only a cold, "Good morning," everyone in the hallway would be sure we were sleeping together. Very truly yours, APPRECIATED

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HUGGED IN HOLLAND": Speak for yourself. Maybe you'd rather have your boss put his arms around you to show his appreciation for your services. But you're out-numbered 50 to one. The others prefer a "raise."

For Her Husband, Mrs. Sophie Baldino Learned To Cook Italian Style

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

Walk into Sophie Baldino's kitchen in Fairfield, Conn., and you'll see at once that it's the kitchen of a woman who loves to cook, who loves to have guests.

Even if you're unexpected company, the chances are Sophie will treat you to a slice of her fabulous Italian cheesecake or—if you're really hungry—to a sandwich of her homemade bread filled with fried peppers and eggs.

Yes, mostly the dishes are Italian style. For nothing daunts Sophie? Of Polish background, she didn't know a frittata from eggplant parmigiana when she married Dominic Baldino.

But because it was obvious that Dominic preferred Italian cuisine to all others, Sophie learned to prepare the dishes he favored. From her husband and his family, from friends and printed recipes here and there, Sophie made it her business to ferret out the secrets of Italian cooking.

Here then is the recipe for Sophie's Baked Eggplant (Eggplant Parmigiana). When we made the dish in our kitchen all our tasters lavished praise upon it. But even better we tried our version on Sophie's son Tom, who said, "It tastes just the way Mom makes it!"

MRS. BALDINO'S BAKED EGGPLANT (Eggplant Parmigiana)

Tomato Sauce, see recipe
1 medium-large (about 1½ lbs) eggplant

Salt

3 large eggs

3 tablespoons flour

¼ cup (about) olive oil

Oregano

1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Pare eggplant; slice into ¼-inch thick rounds. Sprinkling with salt, layer the slices in a colander; cover and let stand about 1 hour to drain; dry with paper toweling.

In a mixing bowl, with a fork, beat the eggs until yolks and whites are combined; add flour and beat until smooth.

In a large skillet heat 2 tablespoons of the oil. Dip the eggplant slices in the egg batter and brown slowly on both sides, in single layers, in the oil; add more oil as needed.

Place a layer of eggplant in an oblong 2-quart glass baking dish (11½ by 7½ by 1½ inches) or similar utensil.

Heat Tomato Sauce and cover eggplant with a layer of it; sprinkle with oregano and cheese; continue to layer in this fashion, ending with cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until hot through—25 to 30 minutes. Serve with crusty Italian bread.

Makes 6 servings.

TO MAKE AHEAD: Prepare dish as directed above. Cover and refrigerate overnight if you like. Before baking, let stand at room temperature for a couple of hours; uncover and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until hot and bubbly at sides and in center—about 45 minutes.

TOMATO SAUCE

¼ cup olive oil

1 small onion, peeled and chopped (about ¼ cup)

1 can (2 lbs, 3 oz) Italian-style peeled tomatoes with basil

1 can (6 oz) tomato paste, undiluted

2 cloves garlic, peeled and minced

2 tablespoons minced parsley

½ teaspoon dried crushed basil

1 teaspoon salt

½ teaspoon pepper

In a large saucepot heat the oil; add the onion and cook gently, stirring often, until golden.

Add remaining ingredients; bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer until reduced to about 4 cups—about 1 hour.

Use as directed in Mrs. Baldino's Baked Eggplant recipe.

EGGPLANT PARMIGIANA — Sophie Baldino, in her Connecticut kitchen, fries the eggplant for this famous Italian dish.

Scientists Are Not Political Experts

By BILL STOCKTON

AP Science Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The first woman scientist to receive the Atomic Energy Commission's citation award says scientists engaged in politics don't necessarily have all the answers to social problems, even if some think they do.

"I think it's good for everybody to be politically involved, but I don't think a scientist, just because he's a scientist, has any more insight into solutions to problems," said Dr. Jane Hamilton Hall, former assistant director of Los Alamos, N.M. Scientific Laboratory, who retired June 30.

The 55-year-old mother of two and veteran of 25 years at the Los Alamos installation where the first nuclear weapons were built received the AEC's 1970 citation award. It was for "outstanding service to the nation's atomic energy program."

"A number of scientists decided after World War II that they should try to influence the political scene—for one thing, they knew the atomic bomb had changed the course of history," Dr. Hall said, relaxing during an interview on the patio of her home.

"If a scientist has technical knowledge that is going to influence the debate, then he must participate. But just because he is a scientist doesn't mean he is a great political figure."

Physics has been a family affair for Dr. Hall and her husband, David, also on the Los Alamos staff. Married in 1939 while they were graduate students, both received doctorates in 1942 at the University of Chicago where research on tapping nuclear energy had begun.

They accepted positions in the metallurgical laboratory at the university. Then the properties of plutonium and uranium, the two fuels for a nuclear weapon being studied there. From Chicago, the Halls went to the secret Manhattan Project installation at Hanford, Wash., where nuclear reactors produced the plutonium Los Alamos scientists used in the first atomic bomb.

For the young physicists, 1945 was a turning point. Their first child was born and they were invited to join the Los Alamos staff.

The invitation came at the laboratory's lowest point. Two atomic bombs had ended the war, Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer had resigned as laboratory director and scientists were leaving in droves—some to return to prewar research, others out of a sense of guilt about the fearsome weapon they had created.

Dave and Jane Hall accepted. "We went," she recalls, "because we believed firmly that the work on nuclear weapons had to continue. Building nuclear weapons had to be done, there was no doubt about it."

How do Malcolm, 25, and Linda, 20, feel about Mom and Dad helping build nuclear weapons?

It's never been an issue, Dr. Hall said, searching her memories.

"No it was never a problem. I think they probably have their beliefs, at least I hope they do, that one is governed by one's own conscience."

And why my conscience dictates may not be what their consciences dictate."

Still Need Grass-Root Votes

For whatever else may be read into the results of Tuesday's election, the tenor of the pre-election campaign carried a stronger indication that North Carolina is becoming a two-party state than the results of the election.

In spite of active campaigns from both sides of the political fence in congressional races, all incumbents retained their seats. With the exception of the race between Rep. Nick Galifianakis and Republican Jack Hawke in the Fourth District, none of the Congressional races could be considered close when the votes were counted although a number of them had been seen earlier as hot races.

The Republicans were able to hold their own so far as the Tar Heel congressional delegation was concerned, but neither the GOP nor the Democrats could muster the necessary strength to capture an additional seat.

Off-Year Vote Heeds History

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — The thread of history ran unbroken through general election results in North Carolina.

True to the pattern of the past, voters in the off-year balloting cut back on gains given the party winning national power two years ago. Eastern Democratic strength remained intact.

Incumbents fared well. All 10 House members involved in contests in their districts won return trips to Washington and Congress. Clearly, Tar Heel voters shared the antipathy to change which is symptomatic of the times. Despite dissatisfaction with the way things are, they chose to hold to the old rather than turn to the new.

Their decision keenly disappointed Republicans who hoped 1970 would be the watershed year for their party in North Carolina.

The GOP, spending freely and calling on the campaign talents of President Nixon and Vice President Agnew, looked to pick up one or two seats in Congress and to fatten their delegation in the state legislature. Instead, they merely held their own in Congressional races, and suffered losses in the General Assembly.

State House Losses

Unofficial tallies showed Republicans elected seven Senators and 23 House members, compared to 12 Senators and 29 House members serving in 1969. It amounted to a cut of roughly one-fourth in GOP strength, from 41 to 30.

Democratic jubilation was tempered by victory margins that were close in some instances, particularly the Fourth District, and by the intense effort it took to win.

The conspicuous disappointment for Democrats was in the Eighth District where H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen, former House Speaker, failed to unseat Congressman Earl Ruth of Salisbury.

The election returns will be the subject for study and debate by politicians and others for months to come in search of trends to guide the 1971 campaigns.

Some immediate, therefore tentative, conclusions:

1. The most ambitious off-year effort by Republicans in history served primarily to stir Democrats out of apathy and to the polls. Looking back, it does not seem so much that Republicans did anything wrong as that everything they did spurred the Democrats to activity.

As the minority party in voter registration, the task for Republicans is to persuade voters to cross party lines. That is much more difficult, in these times, than simply to call upon old loyalties.

In retrospect, it seems the movement to a two-party system in North Carolina is that of a glacier rather than a tidal wave.

Outside Campaigners Ineffective

2. Visits by President Nixon and Vice President Agnew failed to give sufficient boost to GOP candidates. Their appearances may have helped, but just not enough.

In the absence of a direct test, which '72 may provide, it appears obvious that the President and Vice President enjoy popularity in North Carolina but it is not transferable to other GOP candidates.

3. Disaffection within the Democratic party as a result of steps to broaden the base of participation by young people and blacks is not so serious as some had supposed, at least not at the voter level. Efforts by the GOP to play on the issue had little impact.

It would be wrong for either party to conclude that the election conveyed a business-as-usual attitude on the part of Tar Heel citizens. There is deep public concern on many issues, including crime, school integration and busing, and uncertain economic conditions.

Voices of Protest

A clear reading of this mood of protest was the apparent defeat of a Constitutional amendment to abolish the literacy test for voting. An ineffectual gesture since federal legislation has invalidated the literacy test, but voters took the opportunity anyway to say they didn't like it.

In the campaign ended by the general election, they saw little difference among the candidates other than party label. There were no significant divisions on issues.

On level of state legislative races, the GOP failed to find taxes and tax repeal a subject with enough steam to win. Again, the answer may be

At the legislative level, it was a different story. At places throughout the state there were pitched campaigns for legislative seats. The campaign had all the earmarks of a stronger Republican bid for legislative positions than two years ago when a total of 41 Republican were elected to the General Assembly. But when the campaign ended with Tuesday's voting, the Republicans had lost considerable strength in the legislature. Instead of 41 GOP members as was the case in the 1969 General Assembly, next year's legislature will convene with only 30 Republicans, a net loss of 11 legislative seats for the GOP.

On the basis of the pre-election campaigns, it appeared that the Republican party had made greater penetration at the grass roots level in the state than in previous years. On the basis of the election returns, however, it is clear that the Republican candidates — while they had the resources for stronger campaigns — failed to attract voter support as they did two years ago.

At the state and congressional levels, North Carolina still remains firmly in the Democratic column.

White House Versus Morton

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — An incident last week in which President Nixon overruled his inner White House circle and invited a top Republican National Committee operative to travel on Air Force One through Florida reveals growing, politically damaging bitterness between the committee and top Nixon aides.

Sen. Edward Gurney of Florida had specifically asked that James Allison, deputy national chairman, be aboard Air Force One to handle, among other things, an embarrassing political problem on Mr. Nixon's Florida tour.

But this routine request—based on Allison's intimate knowledge of Florida's feuding Republicans—was rejected by H.R. (Bob) Haldeman, Mr. Nixon's number one aide, and Dwight Chapin, a Haldeman factotum in the White House. That rejection stemmed from the Nixon inner circle's Byzantine suspicion of and disrespect for Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland, Republican National Chairman and Allison's boss.

When Gurney discovered Allison had been blackballed, he went for help to Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, Mr. Nixon's top political strategist. Mitchell, who does not share the Haldeman clique's suspicion of Morton or the National Committee, intervened with the President. Mr. Nixon himself, according to Gurney intimates, then ordered Chapin to invite Allison along.

This hostility toward Morton and the National Committee has several roots. One is the animosity between Morton, a moderate conservative with close ties to the Eastern Republican establishment, and Murray Chotiner, Mr. Nixon's longtime political mentor.

Soon after the 1968 election, Chotiner boasted publicly that he would be running the National Committee for Mr. Nixon as chief of staff under a figurehead national chairman. Morton then informed Mr. Nixon he would not become chairman if Chotiner were anywhere near national headquarters. Chotiner, first shunted to an obscure bureaucratic post and then quietly brought to the White House, has not forgotten.

Beyond Chotiner, the Haldeman clique at the President's elbow has always resented the National committee staff as interlopers, traced back to what they regarded, wholly unfairly, as the committee's anti-Nixon bias during 1968 pre-convention days.

Most important, as seen by objective Republican politicians, the President's inner circle has become almost pathological in over-protection of Mr. Nixon and its jealousy of outside interference. For example, not even Morton himself—whose record of obeying Presidential requests has no blemish—was cut in on Mr. Nixon's 1970 campaign plans until all the dates were filled in.

Morton has become the target of subversive warfare which could only have one source: the White House inner circle. Republican politicians believe regular attacks on Morton by Human Events and other conservative publications have their origin in the White House.

Further, he was humiliated the evening of Oct. 7 when Mr. Nixon made his Vietnam speech. The White House suggested that a call to the President from Morton praising Mr. Nixon's speech would be appreciated (a standard White House device to generate praise).

Morton duly made his call moments after the speech ended. Waiting in his office, he finally got Mr. Nixon on the phone — shortly before midnight. In the interim, the President had found time to receive scores of similar congratulatory calls, some from Morton's colleagues in the House.

Likewise, Haldeman aides peremptorily ordered Morton to hold a press conference two weeks ago to denounce Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien for an alleged attack on Mr. Nixon's extended campaign absences from the White House. National Committee operatives searched the record but could find no O'Brien attack. The simple reason: there was none. Had Morton jumped to the White House bidding, he would have been sadly embarrassed.

At stake, besides a high-level Washington feud, is whether the White House inner circle will reduce the National Committee to a level of impotence equal to that of the Democratic National Committee during Lyndon Johnson's Presidency.

Strength For Today

DOING THE BIG THING

The great scientist Agassiz learned that Cuvier was preparing a work on the same plan as his own, and he realized that if Cuvier's work should be published before his, all his work would be in vain. While Agassiz was thinking about this and greatly lamenting his ill fortune, Cuvier — who was much older than Agassiz — sent for his younger contemporary and went over with him in detail all the material he had collected for his book.

Then Cuvier said, "I have examined your material, Agassiz. I know your scientific method well, and it is so excellent and your work so much farther advanced than mine that I deem it no more than right to put my material at your disposal, hoping that you will be eminently successful in your efforts."

We do not know just what reply Agassiz made to this generous offer on the part of his colleague Cuvier, but we do know that Agassiz reached great scientific fame, and no doubt the generosity of his elderly friend made some contribution to that triumph.

It seems when a person is generous that all the power of the universe is suddenly marshaled behind him for moral triumph. Cuvier might not have become as great a scientist as Agassiz but he certainly had the satisfaction of knowing that he had done the big thing. There are few people in the world who have the courage to do the big thing, but we may be sure that God marks them and singles them out for His loving favor.

Other Editors Say A U.S. Epidemic

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

It is no secret that too many Americans are overweight — fat is the proper word — and most of them are not proud of the fact. Another fact is that too many of them simply don't have the will power to stick to the diet necessary to lose those unnecessary pounds.

More than 60 million Americans are too fat, and this is a health problem of gigantic proportions. Researchers from the Medical College of Wisconsin at Milwaukee are studying more than 80,000 obese women in cooperation with the TOPS Club Inc. TOPS means "take off pounds sensibly." It has a membership of 200,000 women with weight control problems. There ought to be similar clubs for fat men.

The results of the report on over-fat Americans represent the most extensive study of obesity ever undertaken. Thus, it is of significant value to anyone who has a weight problem.

More than 25 million of the overweight Americans are more than 15 per cent above their standard weight. Since it has been demonstrated that obesity is associated with increased morbidity and mortality, it is clearly a disease; and in this country it is of epidemic proportions.

The problem of obesity is probably more critical to national health than undernutrition. The epidemic of obesity is not generally recognized, partly because of the difficulty of getting across the consequences of it.

The obesity study by the Medical College of Wisconsin was undertaken primarily in an effort to bring home to the general public the consequences of being overweight.

If such an awareness could be established then meaningful preventive programs might be worked out.

The obesity study involved a questionnaire distributed to TOPS clubs to be filled out by members. The members' physicians also completed questionnaires.

The study confirmed previous findings that overweight women have larger babies than others and that smoking reduces the weight of newborn babies.

The study also revealed that very fat women had almost twice as high an incident of long-term pregnancies (longer than 9.5 months) than other women.

Again, it was discovered that the chance of miscarriage was greater among obese women but that there was no relation between obesity and premature delivery.

want, kill me if you must, but you are going to pay higher taxes in 1971.

State legislatures increase taxes, mostly effective next year, by $800 million, according to the Tax Foundation. That is less than any year since 1966. Almost all cities and most towns will increase taxes next year. And there will be a whopping increase in federal taxes. Here's why:

The administration faces a deficit of $12.8 billion in the current fiscal year, according to Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Unless stringent cuts are made, the budget for the fiscal year starting next July 1 can be $30 billion to $35 billion higher, according to Caspar Weinberger, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Tax Hikes or Else

Those increases in spending mean a large increase in federal taxes or a sharp increase in the rate of inflation.

The situation is worsened by two important factors:

1. While personal income showed a small increase in September, there may be no gain in October and the outlook for November and December is not hopeful. Wages, salaries and dividends may level off, thereby making tax revenues fall further behind spending.

Corporation profits are also declining, and since the federal government is more than a 50-50 partner in the profits of corporations, this will further cut government tax collections.

2. The government is paying constantly higher rates on the many billions it is borrowing. While the rate has, for the moment, leveled off, the total cost keeps going up as the Treasury is forced to pay around 7 per cent for funds to pay off earlier bonds and notes that pay 5 per cent, sometimes under 5 per cent.

Return of The Surtax

It is likely that the surtax will be re-enacted. It is possible that it may be at a higher rate to meet the enormous government deficit. It will also be touted as a remedy for inflation.

Furthermore, a surtax is likely to come quickly after the new Congress takes office. Neither Congressmen nor the administration will want this embarrassing measure to haunt them in 1972, an election year. They will prefer to have the pain over with early in the new term in the hope that the pain will be softened by 1972.

24 Airlines Now Show Movies in Flight

While domestic airlines have been cutting out movies, especially on short and morning flights, Air Congo has added them, according to an announcement by Inflight Motion Pictures. This makes the 24th line to add them, according to David Flexner, Inflight president. Twenty-second and 23rd were El Al and Aer Lingus.

My sister, Katrina, wore an outfit like that until she got a job."

You may not think disinfectants are of great importance in your life, but consider this fact: if the descendants of one microscopic bacterium were allowed to grow unchecked, at the end of two days they would have a volume greater than the earth itself. What—two days? Yes, less than two days. Well, I vum!

You can't always believe what a wise man tells you. Aristotle taught that if a one-pound ball and a five-pound ball the same size were dropped at the same time from the same height, the five-pound ball would fall five times as fast as the one-pound ball. That isn't the way they teach it today.

Southerners In Claim Women's Right To Abortion Senate Keeping Key Positions

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern Democrats—most of them conservatives—will continue to head nearly all the major Senate committees when the 92nd Congress convenes in January. These include Appropriations, Foreign Relations, Finance, Armed Services and Banking and Currency.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., will take over as chairman of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee—the only major Senate panel to change leadership as a result of this year's elections.

Williams succeeds another liberal, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., defeated in the Democratic primary by Lloyd Bentsen, who then won the seat.

The Labor and Public Welfare Committee handles legislation in the fields of education, poverty, health and labor. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said it originated more than 75 per cent of all his Great Society measures.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., outranks Williams in seniority on Labor and Public Welfare and could have taken the chairmanship.

But Randolph said he decided to remain chairman of the Public Works Committee because of its great importance to his home state.

Public works handles the Appalachia program, which has funneled millions of federal dollars into the region, as well as bills dealing with federal highway aid, air and water pollution controls, and river, harbor and flood-control projects.

Southerners will continue to chair nine of the present 16 Senate standing committees.

They include Sens. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., the oldest senator in point of service, who heads Appropriations; James O. Eastland, D-Miss., Judiciary; John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Armed Services; Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance, and J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations.

Others are Sens. John Sparkman, D-Ala., Banking and Currency; Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Agriculture and Forestry; John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Government Operations, and B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., Rules and Administration.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, was defeated Tuesday. He is expected to be succeeded by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., is one possibility to be chairman of a newly created Veterans Affairs Committee.

Smith is also employed as administrator at Duke University. Prior to coming to Greenville he was the minister of St. Michar's Cathedral, Aberdeen, Scotland. He and his wife, Barbara, have two children.

All former members and friends of Holy Trinity are invited to attend the services Sunday. The congregation is presently meeting in the library of the Aycock Junior High School, located on Red Banks Road.

The Rev. Waldrop, during 17 years in the parish ministry in the North Carolina United Methodist Church Annual Conference, had pastorates including High Point, Newport and Clayton.

the American Civil Liberties Union.

Katz, Charlotte ACLU attorney George S. Daly and a second New York lawyer for the ACLU, Roy Lucas, made the assertion Thursday in a federal court suit attacking the North Carolina abortion law as unconstitutional.

The suit alleges that the law infringes on a woman's right to decide whether she wants to bear children in the same way former contraceptive laws did.

It was heard in U.S. District Court by a panel of three federal judges. No decision is expected for some time.

Arnold Loewy, a University of North Carolina constitutional law professor representing the state, said the law was a legitimate way to protect a living organism even if the fetus was not considered a human being.

"I don't believe we have to define an embryo as a full-fledged human being," Loewy said. "But it is more than nothing, more than just an appendix. It has a full set of genes, which, given time to develop, will turn into a full-fledged human being."

Katz said the basic issue was the "fundamental right to privacy." He argued that unrestricted abortions were the logical next step from a Supreme Court ruling which said states cannot outlaw use of contraceptives.

"It's one thing to say there is a constitutional right not to create and quite another thing to say there is a constitutional right to destroy," countered Loewy.

The ACLU attorneys argued that abortions would be performed by back-room outlaws if they are prohibited in authorized hospitals and clinics.

Properly performed, they said, abortions in the first 20 weeks of pregnancy are safer than childbirth. But restrictions prompt women to seek out of-ten-dangerous abortions from unauthorized practitioners, they added.

The attorneys were arguing in behalf of State Rep. Art Jones of Charlotte, Dr. Elizabeth Corkey, a Mecklenburg County family planning consultant, and Dr. Charles Hendricks of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Roy Parker of Duke University and Dr. Richard Burt of Wake Forest University.

are the chairmen of the obstetrics departments of their medical schools.

Jones, who was the main force behind the present abortion law passed in 1967, has taken the lead in bringing the suit. He said the law now on the books was the most liberal he could get in 1967 but that now the time was ripe for further liberalization through the courts.

The law permits abortion if the pregnancy results from incest or rape or if there is danger the child may be defective or the mother may suffer damage to her health.

the legal conditions have been met before the abortion can be performed. Jones says that North Carolina doctors have used the law conservatively and that as a result many women who want abortions are being turned down.

Mountaineers Invade Ficklen Stadium

Pirates Entertain Mountaineers

East Carolina University's Pirates will play host to the Carolina of West Virginia Saturday at 2 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium. Two of the Bucs on the field will be Bill Croisetier, left, and Mark Pohren. Croisetiere, a 6-1, 205-pound sophomore from Alexandria, Va., has seen action as a starter at tight end. Pohren, a 6-1, 210-pound junior from Brighton, Iowa, is the starting center for the Pirates.

This weekend brings to Ficklen Stadium the "finest team ever," according to East Carolina University coach Mike McGee.

This week, starting at 2 p.m. Saturday, the Pirates of East Carolina play host to the Mountaineers of West Virginia University. The Mountaineers were listed in the Top 20 teams earlier in the year before injuries forced them out of the winning column and the AP Poll.

West Virginia comes into the game with a 5-3 record, but they have lost three of their last four contests. After opening with a 43-7 romp over William & Mary, they beat Richmond, 49-10, and VMI, 47-10. But after that, the injuries began to mount up, and the Mountaineers barely beat Indians, 16-10, then lost to upstart Duke, 21-13. Pitt followed with a 36-35 victory, but West Virginia managed to nip Colorado State, 24-21 the following week.

Last week, they fell to Penn State, 42-8. Next week, they face another tough foe, Syracuse, and this might be their biggest problem in meeting the Pirates. There may be a tendency to look past the Bucs to the Orangemen, who have come on strong after curing some early season problems on the Syracuse team.

East Carolina meanwhile, will be coming into the game with a win, a 7-0 victory over Furman, behind them. It was the first win of the year to the crippled-up Pirates, and did a lot for the team spirit.

"It was an unusual game in some respects," McGee said looking back. "Furman wasn't as consistently up for it or emotional about the game as we were and this had a lot to do with the outcome."

McGee said that the execution of Pirate plays last week was "superior. Our offense had a game in which we felt we could match the opposition physically. We played a form of ball control, using the short pass and the running of (Billy) Wallace, (Les) Strayhorn and (George) Whitley."

The Bucs also had the problems of moving a large number of people around to new positions due to the injury situation. For instance, Mike Kopp and Bill Hileman both moved into tackle slots and did a good job, McGee reported. "Dave Callahan started his first game at guard, and Tim Tyler played offense for the first time. Monty Kiernan was playing inside linebacker for the first time. All of them did their job well."

McGee was disappointed with the four fumbles the Bucs lost, but felt that the team had the poise to hold Furman and keep getting chances until they finally scored.

Injuries this week again become an important factor for the Kamakazi Kids, who continue to lose manpower each week. Punter Tony Magline may miss the game. Grover Truslow is hurt, but will probably be ready. Don Mollenhauer is definitely out of action for this one.

"We've been looking around at various punters," McGee said. Among those who might end up kicking are Rich Peeler and Earl Clary.

The Mountaineers present quite a challenge to the Pirates. "They are a great football team," McGee said. "They have big, strong outstanding players. There is a bevy of outstanding backs."

One of the key men in the backfield will be 230-pound Jim Braxton. A member of the backfield last year, Braxton was switched to tight end for this season, then found some double duty in both the line and backfield in the Colorado State game. "He has great speed and strength," McGee added. Braxton's statistics show that he has run 40 times for 291 yards, an average of 7.3 yards per game. He's also caught 17 passes for 351 yards, over 20 per catch.

"Their quarterback, Mike Sherwood, has been playing for three years," McGee said. "He is an effective thrower, and he has two good wide receivers." Sherwood has hit on 70 of 114 passes for 838 yards. He's had only eight intercepted.

"They have a highly mobile line, coupled with a defense that is healthy for the first time in six weeks. This includes one of their All-American candidates, Dale Farley," McGee said. "We are in for a tremendous challenge," the coach said. "They are primarily a running team, but they can throw well. Is it going to be a very hard game for us?"

The Bucs expect to start Bill Croisetiere and either Carl Gordon or Pete Wooley at ends, Bob Hileman and Mike Kopp at tackles, Steven Davis and Dave Callahan at guards, Mark Pohren at center, John Casazza at quarterback, Dick Corrada at flanker, Billy Wallace at fullback, and either Les Strayhorn or George Whitley at tailback.

Cubs Drop Last Start

The Goldsboro Junior Varsity rolled to a 20-0 victory on the strength of three second-half scores yesterday, defeating the Rampant Cubs of Rose High School.

After a 0-0 deadlock in the first half, Goldsboro broke the game open with a 12-yard touchdown run in the third period, taking an 8-0 lead.

Then, in the fourth period, Goldsboro picked up two more. They scored on a 40-yard pass, and again on an 87-yard interception return on the last play of the game.

Immediately after the final touchdown, a fight broke out between the two teams, and play was suspended by the officials. No injuries were reported.

Singled out for offensive play by Rose were J. C. Daniels, Rusty Purser, Lonnie Payton and Dean Phillips. Defensive standouts were Pete Payton and Randy McKinney.

Scott Proclaims Perry Bro. Day

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. — Governor Robert W. Scott has proclaimed Tuesday, November 10, 1970 as "Perry Brothers' Day in North Carolina" in honor of the day set aside to pay tribute to Gaylord and Jim Perry. In the proclamation the Governor cites the outstanding contributions made by the Perry brothers to baseball and the resulting recognition for the State of North Carolina.

Highlighting the day, set for Williamston, N.C., will be a motorcade through the city at 4:00 p.m. followed by a huge testimonial dinner at the high school gym at 7:00 p.m. The affair is open to the public and upwards of 1000 are expected to attend. The event is expected to attract sports personalities, government and civic leaders, and friends and fans of Jim and Gaylord.

Bobby Richardson, former

New York Yankee second baseman, will be the featured speaker at the affair. Richardson, now a member of the University of South Carolina's baseball coaching staff and active in affairs of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, will travel to Williamston as the personal representative of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Others expected to attend include: Charlie Fox, manager of the San Francisco Giants; Jim Odom, American League umpire, who will represent American League President Joe Cronin; representatives of the National League and the Minnesota Twins; Congressman Walter Jones; and other representatives of the federal and state governments.

The committee in charge of arrangements reports that ticket sales for the dinner have been brisk and those who have not yet purchased tickets should do so at once. The seating capacity is limited. Tickets may be secured from any director of the Williamston Sports Club or at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Williamston Closes Out Season Against Plymouth In Bid For 3rd

The Williamston Tigers, knocked out of their chances for an Albemarle Conference title by two points last week, go about winding up their season tonight, playing host to Plymouth.

At stake for the Tigers is third place in the league standings. Williamston fell to champion Ahsokie, 15-13, in the contest when a punt return for a score was disallowed because of a penalty. A victory would have put the Tigers into a three-way tie for the title with Ahsokie and Gates and a poll of the league's coaches would have been necessary. But it all went by the wayside as Ahsokie claimed both the win and the title.

In other league games last week, Plymouth fell to Edenton, 33-14, while Northampton lost to Bertie, 38-6, and Oxford Orphanage lost to Gates, 38-14.

"It was just a question of not wanting it as bad as they did," Williamston Coach Dinky Mills said. "We lost both of our conference games in the closing minutes of the game. I just can't put my finger on what our problem is. We have some pretty good players, we just seem to lack unity."

Mills felt at the start of the season Williamston had the potential to take the title. But a total of five points in the two league losses have meant the difference. "A little more effort and we might have gotten it," he said.

One player is listed out of action for the final game, Eugene Hicks. "He was running real well for us in the Ahsokie game, and then got a knee injury," Mills said. Another starter, tackle James Bell, is also injured, and his status is questionable.

The Tiger foe this week, Plymouth, comes into the game with no chance of a winning year, but can, with an upset, claim a three-way tie for third place.

"They have a potentially good team," Mills said of Plymouth. They are having some of the same problems we have. They have some real good players, but they just can't seem to get going."

The key man in the Plymouth attack is their fullback, Hill, according to Mills. "He's a real good running back. He's quick and he runs low and is hard to bring down."

Williamston, by winning could wrap up third place in the standings, while a loss would drop them into a three-way tie for third.

The current standings in the Albemarle Conference:

	Conf.	Overall
Ahsokie	6 0	6 2 1
Gates	5 1	8 1 0
Williamston	3 2	4 4 1
Edenton	3 3	6 4 0
Plymouth	2 3	3 6 0

Detroit Takes Twelfth Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Detroit Pistons and Buffalo Braves just keep doing their things—which are two very different things as a look at the National Basketball Association records will attest.

The hotter-than-a-pistol Pistons won their 12th game in 13 this year Thursday night and the baby Braves, who began their premiere season with a triumph, lost their ninth in a row.

They were both on the same court—Detroit's—where a slim crowd of 3,751 watched the Pistons break open the close contest in the third quarter and belt the Braves 121-109.

In the night's only other NBA game Portland stunned Baltimore 135-131 and, in the lone American Basketball Association duel, the Floridians tamed Texas 130-110.

Buffalo remained on Detroit's heels until the final minutes of the third stanza when two baskets and two free throws by Dave Bing and a three-point play by Terry Dischinger gave the Pistons an 89-80 bulge going into the final frame. They widened it to as many as 21 points before Buffalo staged a futile rally.

Bing paced the balanced Detroit attack with 28 points and scoring honors went to Mike Davis of the Braves with 30.

Larry Jones of the Floridians exploded for 41 points—his best

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

This is the week that winds up the high school football season for just about everyone. Only one team in the Daily Reflector coverage area still has a chance at a post-season playoff berth, and a victory must come this weekend if they are to claim it.

The colleges will carry on for several more weeks, however, before they wind it up.

Rose High School finishes off its year by traveling to Goldsboro tonight. The Cougars already have the Division II title sewn up, and will be shooting for a victory to propel them into the playoffs with momentum. Rose, meanwhile, would like to claim an upset win and take a little of the glory off the Cougar finish.

Things don't look favorable for the Rampants, however, and the choice must go to Goldsboro.

Farmville travels over to Grifton in a cross-county game. The Red Devils will be finishing up a good year, while Grifton completes a poor one. There is no question as to the outcome in this one. The Bulldogs simply don't have the horses to keep up with Farmville.

Robersonville travels to Vanceboro in the game that will decide the Tobacco Belt Conference. Robersonville must win to take the title, otherwise it will go to Saratoga. The Rams and Vanceboro both want this one badly, and it looks like a very tough game for both teams. We'll have to pick Vanceboro in this one, since they are the hosting team.

Williamston hosts Plymouth in its season closer. The Tigers lost their chance for a title last week and could be down this week. Plymouth can move into a tie for third with a win. Still the Tigers must gain the favorite's role.

Ayden's Tornados, also out of the title picture, seek to wrap up their year with a win as they play host to Knapp. Ayden has a lot going for it. They are finishing their last season as a separate school and they want to show that they should be the champs. We'll stick with Ayden.

Rounding out the high school schedule is North Lenoir and Greene Central. The Rams were beaten badly by Northern Nash last week and will be out to make up for that. We'll stick with Greene to win this one.

In the collegiate ranks, the big game here is the East Carolina - West Virginia contest. The Mountaineers come to Greenville with a winning, but disappointing season. They were ranked in the Top 20 early in the year, but losses have knocked them out of that. They have lost three of their last four games, and injuries have been a problem to them.

The Kamakazi Kids of East Carolina are battered and bruised too, and could be ripe to pull off another upset after last week's win over Furman. West Virginia might be looking ahead to Syracuse next week, but we don't think so. West Virginia must be the choice.

In other Southern Conference games, it'll be The Citadel over Chattanooga, Davidson over Lafayette, Furman over Guilford, North Carolina over VMI, and William & Mary over Connecticut.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, our picks include Florida State over Clemson, Virginia over N.C. State, Penn State over Maryland, Tennessee over South Carolina, and Duke over Wake Forest for the league title.

Also: Houston over Mississippi, Missouri over Oklahoma, and Nebraska over Iowa State.

Season's record: 113 right, 47 wrong, 70.6 per cent.

Death Claims Charlie Root

HOLLISTER, Calif. (AP) — Charlie Root won more than 200 games as a major league pitcher but he'll always be remembered for a gopher ball that Babe Ruth turned into a baseball legend.

Root, who died here Thursday at 71, was the victim of Ruth's "called-shot" homer in the 1932 World Series.

In his retirement years as a cattle rancher and antique shop operator, the former Chicago Cubs right-hander often remarked he was tired of being the "goat" of the story, which seemed to take on new embellishments with each retelling.

Funeral and burial services are scheduled Saturday for the silver-haired Root, who succumbed in a hospital after a long illness. He lived in nearby Paicines.

The incident that dogged Root for the rest of his life took place on a chilly October day in Chicago during the third game of the 1932 Series between the New York Yankees and the Cubs.

Ruth, who already had hit a three-run homer off Root, came to bat in the fifth inning with the score tied 4-4. Root got two quick called strikes.

Then, according to the story, Ruth raised his hand and pointed towards centerfield. Another version has him pointing with his bat.

In either case, it was interpreted by the howling crowd as meaning that he was going to hit the next pitch over the fence—and that is exactly what he did.

The Yankees won the game 7-5 and went on to win the series in four straight.

Root contended that all Ruth did was hold up one finger to indicate he still had one strike left.

Cub Manager Charlie Grimm had still another version. He recalled that pitcher Gay Bush was heckling from the dugout when Ruth pointed at the mound and called, "You'll be out there tomorrow and we'll

Jim Perry Slips Past Three To Take AL's Cy Young Award

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Perry of the Minnesota Twins, succeeding where his brother failed, was named the American League winner of the Cy Young Award today in one of the most competitive balloting in the 15-year history of the honor.

The right-handed pitcher, who compiled a 24-12 record for his second consecutive 20-victory season, won out in a four-way race with Baltimore's Dave McNally and Mike Cuellar and Sam McDowell of Cleveland.

Perry picked up six first place votes and a total of 55 points while McNally had 47, McDowell 45 and Cuellar, who shared last year's award with Denny McLain, had 44.

Jim Palmer, Baltimore's third 20-game winner, had 11 points; Clyde Wright of California nine, and Ron Perranoski of Minnesota five for his one first place vote, the only reliever ever to get a top vote in the balloting.

As the first Minnesota pitcher ever to win the award, Perry accomplished what his brother Gaylord of the San Francisco Giants failed to do in the National League. Gaylord finished a distant second to Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals in the voting for the NL Cy Young Award earlier in the week.

"I was just hoping," Jim said. "I had my fingers crossed. I'm really nervous now. A thing like this shakes you up. I'm usually calm and collected in a game."

"It's quite an honor—some players work so hard and don't get such an honor in a lifetime. I can't express it in words."

Cuellar also got six first place votes, McNally five, McDowell four and Palmer, Wright and Perranoski one each as all seven point-getters received a first place vote, the most ever.

The voting by two baseball writers in each American League city was based on five points for first place, three for second and one for third, a new system instituted by the Baseball Writers Association this year after the tie between Cuellar and McLain. Previously, the writers voted for only one man.

None of the seven was mentioned on all 24 ballots—Perry was named on 19, McNally 17, McDowell 15 and Cuellar 14. Only the 1958 voting produced a similar blanket finish when Bob Turley won with five top votes, Warren Spahn had four and Lew Burdette and Bob Friend three each. Only one award was given for the major leagues then.

Perry, who turned 34 Oct. 30, pitched 279 innings last season with a 3.03 earned run average as he helped pitch the Twins to the Western Division title before they lost to eventual World Series champion Baltimore in the playoffs.

McNally had a 24-9 record for 296 innings with a 3.22 ERA; McDowell was 20-12 with 305 innings and a 2.92 ERA, and Cuellar was 24-8 with 296 innings and a 3.47 ERA. All are left-handers.

Palmer was Baltimore's third 20-game winner at 20-10 in 305 innings with a 2.71 ERA. Wright was 22-12 with a 2.85 ERA, and Perranoski was 7-8 with a 2.26 ERA and 34 saves.

Perry, a crafty 6-foot-4, 195 pound veteran who only reached stardom in 1969, his 11th season in the majors, gained some measure of revenge after losing out to Cuellar and McLain last season despite a 20-5 record. It was by far his best season with the Twins since he came to them from Cleveland in mid-1963 in a trade for Jack Kralick.

He was 9-9 that year and since then turned in records of 6-3, 12-7, 11-7, 8-7, 8-6 and 20-6, working a great deal as a relief pitcher in 1964 and later as a spot starter.

At Cleveland, he was 12-10 as a rookie in 1959 and then tied for the most victories in 1960 with an 18-10 mark. But then he slumped to 10-17 and 12-12 before the trade. His career major league record is 150-106.

Stage Is Set For Ali-Bonavena Fight

By MURRAY ROSE

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The buildup is on for the Muhammad Ali-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight Dec. 7 at Madison Square Garden.

Although the undefeated former heavyweight champion figures to be at least a 3-1 favorite over the six-times beaten Argentine bull, he has declared to the world that Bonavena "is a strong, dangerous fighter, the toughest I've ever had to meet."

This came up at a press luncheon Thursday to announce the fight when Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, was asked if he regarded the fight with Bonavena as a tuneup.

"Tuneup? It's no tuneup," he said. "It's a serious fight. He's a bull, he doesn't cut easy. He fought Joe Frazier 25 rounds, knocked him down twice, and gave him a good lumping the second time. He hit Frazier at least 80 good shots in the last three rounds."

Asked for a prediction, Ali said he wouldn't make one now. He wouldn't even make one after Hiram Cuevas, one of Bonavena's co-managers, said his fighter predicted he would stop Ali in 11 rounds.

"He said that?" asked Ali, his eyes opening wide. "Imagine that. Maybe it won't go 11."

That's as far as he went. He may have more to say today, or in the next day or so, for the South American heavyweight king is due in New York today.

The stocky and cocky 28-year-old Bonavena had been scheduled to arrive for the press luncheon Thursday but he had to postpone his departure when his mother-in-law underwent an operation.

Bonavena, who has a 46-6-1 record, including 32 knockouts, is ranked as the No. 1 contender by the World Boxing Association.

Ali, 30-0 with 24 knockouts, isn't even ranked by the WBA, which stripped him of his heavyweight crown when he refused induction into military service. The New York Athletic Commission did the same.

New York even refused Ali a license until ordered to do so recently by a federal judge.

"I don't pay any attention to the WBA," said Ali. "Everyone who saw me fight Jerry Quarry knows I'm the champion."

He's not the champion in New York, either, despite his claims.

Edwin B. Dooley, the chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, told him that at the luncheon.

Introduced as "the former heavyweight champion of the world," Ali bridled, and proclaimed loudly:

"I am the heavyweight champion of the world. There's an imposter running around calling himself the heavyweight champion of the world. He will soon see who is the real champion of the world."

"Joe Frazier was the active champion. I am back now and I am the champion...."

"Remember I've never been stopped."

Dooley, who was sitting at the head table with Ali, turned to the fighter and said:

"The fight is not a title fight. It's just for the right to fight Joe Frazier for the title. We recognize Joe Frazier as world champion."

Loss Didn't Cost Award

By PAT THOMPSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Any worry Jim Perry had about failing to win a 25th game was forgotten today when the Minnesota Twins ace was named the 1970 Cy Young award winner in the American League.

Perry was leading 9-6 in his last start of the season against the Kansas City Royals when Manager Bill Rigney pulled him in the late innings. The Royals rallied and Perry lost a chance at No. 25, joining Baltimore's Mike Cuellar and Dave McNally as 24-game winners.

Some thought it might have cost the Cy Young award from the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The Twins, with Perry posting a 24-12 record, won their second straight West Division title but lost for the second straight year to Baltimore in the playoffs.

The award comes at an appropriate time for Perry. He and his younger brother, Gaylord of the San Francisco Giants, will be honored Nov. 10 in their hometown of Williamston, N.C., for becoming the first brother combination ever to post 20 victories in the same season.

"The governor of North Carolina, congressmen, senators, baseball officials, our former teachers and friends will all be there for Perry Brothers Day," said Perry.

ATTENTION
Candlewick Swim and Tennis Club Members
We are pleased to have entertaining for us for the next two weeks a group known as the "Entertainers". They are a very talented group.
I am sure seeing is my greatest pleasure; however this past Saturday I had the pleasure of seeing and hearing one of the Entertainers who's greatest pleasure is music. The Entertainer was Marvin Cox, better known as Butch, who is blind. The trumpet player, Tom Harmon, is one of the best anywhere; the drummer, Barry Pachel, just can't be beat and you have never heard a big base played until you have heard Winston Dixon play it. Now getting back to the Piano player, Marvin, he is just gifted with the art of music. The group has a master of ceremonies, David Hamilton, who just makes it all cordial; he is another Flip Wilson.
Now these entertainers can just turn you on if there is such a thing. Come in and dance and enjoy good entertainment. We suggest you share this music with others, and invite a friend. See you soon.

The Worry Clinic

Hemingway's Style Relapse

Vicki wonders why Ernest Hemingway failed to follow the advice of the editors at the Kansas City STAR. Their superb rules for writing were proved correct when I used the tachistoscope at Northwestern University to find the most appealing way to "package" ideas on the printed page. Teach these laws in English classes!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M.D.

CASE 0-576: Vicki S., aged 20, is a journalism student. "Dr. Crane," she asked, "why do so many writers violate your rules about short paragraphs and simple words?"

"For example, I recently read a newspaper biography of famous Ernest Hemingway. "When he started work as a reporter on the Kansas City STAR, it said he was handed a sheet of newspaper instructions which gave these 4 rules:

"Use short sentences. Use short first paragraphs. Use vigorous English. Be positive, not negative."

"But some of Mr. Hemingway's newspaper stories then were reprinted and they contained paragraphs that ran from 18 to 22 lines deep in a single column width.

"And one of his sentences ran 58 words before he used a period!

"So how could he have violated those 4 standard newspaper rules so flagrantly?"

"Relapse to early habits," is my answer.

For in high school and college English courses, long sentences, as well as deep paragraphs, are common.

In fact, in some college textbooks one paragraph may fill almost an entire page!

Which is why those superb rules of writing from the Kansas City STAR should be drilled into all children even before they reach Junior High.

For the average sentence in spoken conversation runs about 12 words.

But many brilliant men and women become so preoccupied with the phrasing of their ideas that they often forget the basic rules for "packaging" them in print.

When I was Director of the Psychology Laboratory at Northwestern University, I used the tachistoscope (flash exposure machine) to prove these striking rules of print psychology:

(1) Use Arabic numerals, like 3 or 5, instead of spelling those numbers in Roman letters.

Yet it has been the time-honored custom of printers to write 3 or 5 as "three" or "five," which thus ignores the striking eye-appeal of Arabic figures.

(2) Employ quote marks, since they indicate dialogue.

And dialogue means at least 2 people are present, which sets the stage for all conceivable dramatic possibilities, including love, rape, murder, etc.

(3) Adopt a change of pace in the length of your sentences. And also alternate long paragraphs with short ones. Why? Because the page then looks less fatiguing to read.

(4) Occasionally use a clause (like the 2 lines above) as a separate paragraph.

Don't be coerced by the stodgy rule that you should not leave a dangling phrase or clause by itself.

(5) When you name local citizens, bold face those names so they will stand out. This is especially true of "Personals" and gossip columns.

(6) Use short words.

The average newspaper column width permits only 6 short words per line!

You can thus include more ideas in the same space by simple words. (The Bible's words average only 2 syllables).

(7) Occasionally brighten the page by means of parentheses (as in the above line).

Send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Shore Jobs For Sailors

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The Navy is putting a stop to replacing sailors with civilians on shore jobs, says Vice Adm. Dick H. Guinn, chief of naval personnel.

"There will be no further expansion of the civilian force at the expense of sailors," Guinn said Wednesday in an interview.

The Navy, he added, was never in favor of the system ordered in 1963 as a means of saving money by then-Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Guinn is on a fact-finding mission ordered by Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, chief of naval operations, aimed at determining why officers and enlisted men are leaving the Navy in large numbers after their first tour of duty.

Substituting civilians for sailors and officers in such shore jobs as missile sites, hospitals, offices, technical shops and mess halls—resulting in more sea duty for the Navy men—has been listed as a major complaint in surveys of personnel considering the Navy as a career, he said.

No one who was there will ever be the same.

The bidding:

1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♣ Pass 2♦ Pass
3♣ Pass 4♣ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

When an alert defender foiled his original campaign strategy, South, the declarer at four spades contrived an alternative plan that was foolproof.

The bidding may appear to be a bit indirect, nevertheless the auction was soundly conceived. Over South's response of one spade, North was confronted with a bit of a problem. A mere raise to two spades was a distinct underbid holding 18 points, yet a jump raise should be avoided with only three trumps. The two club rebid is a temporizing call, hoping to coax another bid from partner.

When South gave a preference to two diamonds, North now made a delayed jump to three spades. South had sufficient to carry on to game.

West opened the king of clubs and shifted to a trump. South could count nine top tricks — five spades and four diamonds — and in the absence of the spade lead, he could expect to obtain an eventual heart ruff in dummy for the 10th trick.

If he attempted to trump a heart after West's shift however, he would be risking defeat if the heart ace was located behind his king and the defense continued to play trumps every time they were in.

South developed a different plan. He drew the opponents' trumps in three rounds. The queen of diamonds was cashed followed by the ace and king to strip out that suit. Now the queen of clubs was led and South discarded a heart from his hand.

West was in with only hearts and clubs left. If he returned a club, dummy's nine forces out East's jack and South ruffs. The ten of clubs becomes established for the 10th trick and North has an entry to the jack of diamonds. West elected to play the ace and another heart, in the hope that East had the king. When South turned up with that card, the contest was over.

Identified By An Upper Plate

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The man pulled out a roll of bills and asked to open a savings account.

The bank teller took the money, wrote the necessary information, then inquired, "Do you have any identification, sir. The law requires it, you know."

The man rummaged through his pockets and found them empty.

He frowned, but then his face brightened.

He removed his upper plate and showed his name and address engraved by the dentist.

The account was opened.

Cushing Of Boston Had A Far-Reaching Appeal

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Brusque, bulldozing and bighearted, Richard Cardinal Cushing was probably the best loved Catholic leader on the American scene, esteemed by Protestants, Orthodox and Jews as much as by members of his own Church.

His death this week evoked a wide and poignant "last hurrah" for the rugged, old Irish prelate of rasping growl and free-wheeling generosity. "I don't pay any income tax and the money's not mine," he would say; impulsively handing out a big check to some startled charity. "I just keep the money moving and don't own a dime."

Englander on their first encounter after John XXIII became Pope. It was a fitting appellation for this unconventional U.S. prelate, who couldn't actually be tagged by any labels, but who in a quarter-century as head of his archdiocese had left a unique imprint, an ecclesiastical "original" identifiable only by himself—Cushing of Boston.

On Call At Pitt Hospital

Ministers on call at Pitt Memorial Hospital for the next four weeks are as follows: This week, the Rev. Leigh Earley of the Disciples of Christ Church; November 9-15, the Rev. Dana Hunt of the Disciples of Christ Church; November 16-22, the Rev. Lawrence Kepler of the Church of Christ; and November 23-29, the Rev. Dan Earnhardt of the United Methodist Church.

Ministers on call at Pitt Memorial Hospital for the next four weeks are as follows: This week, the Rev. Leigh Earley of the Disciples of Christ Church; November 9-15, the Rev. THE CHEF

He makes a marvelous picture—but would he really make a marvelous chef? Can you imagine what might happen if you let him brew up a pot of everything his chubby little fingers could latch onto?

Let's face it! It takes thought, direction and planning to do anything well in life—even to make a good stew. Though a true chef may not follow the cookbook precisely, he will select and blend his ingredients with care and precision. Only then will the dish be a success.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock market prices continued drifting late this morning just a fraction below Thursday's close. Trading was moderate.

Analysts said investors were waiting for signs of possible near term settlement of the General Motors strike and hoping for easier money. Until either of these factors materialized, they explained, traders were likely to adopt a cautious attitude toward the stock market.

Farmville Market Enjoyed Big Year

FARMVILLE — Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville Tobacco Market, reports the closing of that market at the termination of sales yesterday.

Williams stated "it was one of the highest, if not the highest sales year on record." The Farmville market closed its 66th selling season yesterday.

Farmville maintained the second highest average for price per hundred pounds paid for tobacco on the 17 market Eastern Belt, averaging $74.28 per hundredweight. This compares to last year's average price of $72.08.

During the season just ended, Williams reported that a total poundage of 23,239,301 pounds sold for $17,261,036. This marks a considerable increase over last year's volume 20,041,141 pounds sold for a total value of $14,445,274.

The Farmville market operated for a total of 44 selling days this auction season five days longer than the 39 day season last year. Highest realizations on the market were $1.76 a pound for tied tobacco and $1.10 a pound for loose leaf.

Williams indicated that farmers and warehousemen were pleased with the results of the season just ended.

Whitley said in his opinion, the dispute could be settled in one of two ways. First, he said, "Abolish the present publications board and set up a new one with student control...one which would assume the role of publisher."

Secondly, "We could tell the Fountainhead they have complete autonomy...that we will withdraw all funds and put it on a purely subscription basis. That way no one would have any say so except the staff."

Williams stated "it was one of the highest, if not the highest sales year on record." The Farmville market closed its 66th selling season yesterday.

Williams indicated that farmers and warehousemen were pleased with the results of the season just ended.
