GMC Offer Sent UAW Members For Ratification

By A. F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Approved by the union leadership, a new three-year contract estimated to be worth $2.5 billion in higher wages alone now goes to 394,000 rank-and-file United Auto Workers at General Motors plants across the country for ratification or rejection.

And the 155 separate GM-UAW bargaining units are under orders by the union's top leadership to complete their secret-ballot votes by Nov. 20 and report results by Nov. 21 in the hope the world's largest automaker can be back in production by Dec. 1.

A strike called to support the union's major economic demands, most of which it won at least in part, will be in its 10th week by the reporting deadline.

The new package, which includes a $500 monthly pension after 30 years service among fringe benefits, won 4-1 approval Thursday from 350 GM Council delegates from local unions over the country.

It previously got unanimous approval of the UAW team which negotiated it and the union's 25-member international executive board.

While UAW President Leonard Woodcock and General Motors refused to put an estimated value on the final package, one knowledgeable source who declined to be named said it was worth $2.5 billion in higher wages alone. That would figure out to $1.06 hourly over three years.

The source said the $2.5 billion estimate was predicated on a 4 per cent rise in the cost of living in the second and third years, when wages are geared to fluctuations of the government's Consumer Price Index.

One union executive estimated wages and fringe benefit advances were worth a total of $1.80 hourly, while still another source figured it at $1.90.

While saying "I am never satisfied," Woodcock told a news conference Thursday "This is a good solid showing of progress for the families we represent. We got something in virtually every area."

Ratification of the contract will not mean an immediate, or even necessarily a speedy, return to work for the 394,000 hourly rated GM employes in the United States.

GM officials say that even if ratification proceeds without a hitch, it would be Dec. 1 at the earliest before the firm returns to full production because of the time needed to set the giant corporation back in motion after the long shutdown.

Also standing in the way of a return to production are settlements on local contracts at 68 of GM's 155 U.S. [illegible]ties. Negotiations are continuing on the local issues which supplement the national contract.

The 68 plants without agreements include 18 of the 24 domestic car and truck assembly plants and 12 of the 54 plants GM has designated as vital to a resumption of full operations.

Negotiations between the UAW and General Motors of Canada Ltd. also are incomplete. The 23,000 striking Canadian GM employes are covered by a contract separate from, but similar to, the U.S. agreement.

Raleigh-Durham Flight Hijacked To Cuba Today

MIAMI (AP) — An Eastern Air Lines EC9 was hijacked today over South Carolina and, after a refueling stop at Jacksonville, was ordered flown to Cuba.

The Richmond, Va. - to - Dallas flight was commandeered 20 minutes after taking off from Raleigh - Durham, N. C., Airport bound for Atlanta' an Eastern Air Lines spokesman said.

The twin-jet aircraft carried 78 passengers and a crew of four Capt. Thomas W. Mayberry advised the Air Control Center at Atlanta that the hijacker took command at 9:31 a. m., EST.

Mayberry landed Flight 257 at Jacksonville International Airport at 11:22 a.m., the Eastern spokesman said. It took off 14 minutes later and head south for Havana.

Other crew members were identified as Flight Engineer James E. King and stewardesses Bonnie S. Culp and Diane Tiedge. The entire crew is based in Atlanta.

Complaints Dismissed By Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has dismissed as hogwash complaints about Republican campaign tactics. If any mistake was made, he said, it was "that we undersold our message."

Agnew, the administration's hard-line campaigner, said Republicans nationally accomplished their overriding and critical election-day objective by improving President Nixon's "precarious position in the United States Senate."

The vice president, talking to a GOP fund-raising dinner Thursday night, said Nixon will be two to four votes better off in the new Senate, and that "is a parliamentary revolution."

Republicans actually gained two seats in the Senate while losing nine in the House, where, Agnew noted, the average off-year loss to the party of a president has been 37 seats.

"In the 92nd Congress, President Nixon will fare better on foreign policy, better on national defense, better on crime and law and order, and at least somewhat better on fiscal responsibility," Agnew said.

"That's the nub of Election 1970. No thinking Republican should let professional detractors in or out of office brainwash him into thinking otherwise."

Agnew said he wished Republicans could have won more. He said he was sorry at the GOP loss of statehouses—Democrats gained 11 governorships.

But, he said, "in sum, I feel satisfied" the party and the administration "did all that could have been fairly expected."

Trying Exiles

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovaks who stayed abroad after the Soviet invasion in defiance of their government's orders to return home are being convicted in absentia of forsaking the country.

The Communist party newspaper Vecerni Praha reported this week that the first hundreds of cases are being tried under a law providing six months to five years in prison or confiscation of property for leaving Czechoslovakia illegally or staying abroad longer than authorized.

One reason for the trials is to provide a legal basis for seizure of government apartments assigned to those abroad and for the sale of their property.

More than 70,000 Czechoslovaks, including the cream of the country's intelligentsia and technicians, are estimated to have remained abroad after the Soviet invasion of 1968, Only a handful came back under a presidential amnesty to anyone who returned or legalized his stay abroad by Sept. 1, 1969.

Local Banks Join Trend In Reducing Prime Rate

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Following a cut in the prime lending rate Thursday by Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest, most of the major banks, including several in this area, announced similar reductions.

North Carolina National Bank board chairman Addison Reese announced that, effective immediately, the bank's prime interest rate would be reduced from 7½ to 7¼ per cent.

Reese said that reduction is "primarily the result of an increased supply of money which has eased credit. We expect that the change will benefit both the people and the economy of North Carolina."

Local NCNB president, J. T. Marston acknowledged the reduction and noted that the action is effective in all 101 NCNB offices in 30 North Carolina communities.

Bob Henley, city executive for Planters National here, also announced a reduction in the prime rate from 7½ to 7¼ per cent noting that the bank was trying to be immediately responsive to changing market conditions.

In comfirming a similar reduction in the prime rate, Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. vice president W. C. Glidewell Jr. said that, "I feel the reduction reflects a general softening of interest rates."

Glidewell added that the cut may affect the average consumer eventually although probably not at this time. The reduction at Wachovia also reflected a 7½ to 7¼ percent change.

The prime rate, the interest a bank charges its most creditworthy corporate borrowers, will probably be reduced at First National Bank of Eastern North Carolina branches, according to Farmville manager Robert Hunt.

Hunt pointed out that although he was sure the rates would be cut "proportionally," an announcement on when they would be effective has not been made.

The manager said that the rates would not affect many local customers since the prime rate is charged to mostly corporate concerns with high credit ratings. "We don't have many of the prime rate customers," he noted.

He added that, in the long run, the cuts may reduce consumer financing. "It will depend a lot on what the money market does," Hunt said.

At the same time, several local banks, including the Bank of Winterville and the Bank of Farmville, announced no changes in their prime rates.

Bank of Winterville president C. D. Langston said that "There will be no changes in our rates, at least not at this time."

C. C. Simpson of the Bank of Farmville noted that no word has been received as yet on any changes in the prime rate. He did not rule out the possibility of a change but said an announcement has not been made.

Executives at Edgecombe Bank and Trust Co. in Fountain and Southern Bank and Trust Co. in Ayden also said that they had not been notified by their home offices of any reductions in rates.

The small reduction in the prime rate is not expected to have any immediate impact on the ordinary consumer although some economists say it could lead to an eventual easing of mortgage rates and unemployment.

Chase Manhattan, in announcing the cut Thursday of one-quarter of a percentage point in the prime rate, was followed by the nation's seven other largest banks as well as many smaller firms. By late Thursday, the count totaled 50.

Economists linked the cut to the Federal Reserve Board's decision Tuesday to lower the discount rate, the price member banks pay for borrowing money, to five and three quarters per cent from six per cent at six of its banks.

The economists also cited the general reduction in short term interest rates in major money markets and also the easing in some areas in the demad for loans.

Monarchs, Presidents Depart, But Frenchmen Still Mourn DeGaulle

PARIS (AP) — Ten African presidents and two Soviet officials made a pilgrimage today to the grave of Charles de Gaulle in the village cemetery of Colombey les Deux Eglises.

The African leaders were paying their private homage to the man who gave their countries independence from colonial rule. The Russians—Deputy Foreign Minister Semyon Kozyrev and Marshal Vassily Tchouykov—paid tribute to the statesman who worked to build bridges between East and West.

De Gaulle's home village in eastern France sank back into its rural lethargy, littered with the debris left by 50,000 mourners who packed it Thursday for the former president's simple funeral. After the burial, thousands filed past the plain marble grave where De Gaulle lay next to his daughter Anne.

The crowds went home in the early evening.

Two policemen stood guard at the grave through the night. The lights were out in the De Gaulle residence, La Boisserie.

In the French capital, hundreds of thousands of Parisians marched silently in pouring rain up the Champs Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe and the tomb of the unknown soldier beneath it. They were the plain people of Paris, answering the City Council's call to pay homage to the hero of the World War II liberation.

The broad avenue was filled from the Rond Point to the Etoile, and officials estimated there were as many as 500,000. The march lasted about an hour, but some stayed on to keep a midnight vigil at the arch.

The monarchs, presidents, premiers and other world leaders who came to Paris for the memorial service in Notre Dame Thursday went home after a reception given by President Georges Pompidou at the Elysee Palace.

During the reception President Nixon talked briefly with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny. White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the conversation was "very animated" and consisted of such pleasantries as, "I give my best wishes to you and your people."

Nixon flew back to Washington Thursday night.

Change Site For School Board Meet

The monthly meeting for November of the Greenville City School Board will be held Monday night at 8:00 o'clock in the conference room of the principal's administrative offices at Rose High School.

The change in meeting place for this month's meeting was announced today. The agenda will consist mostly of general reports and carry-over items in the areas of school facilities, personnel and budget-finance.

New items on the agenda will include: review and adoption of new policies relative to free and reduced price student lunches for needy children; presentation of preliminary plans for the construction of a new home economics classroom complex at Rose high; consideration of a proposal regarding utilization of a school site; approval of plans for cooperation in the Rubella immunization program scheduled for next month; and review of proposed new athletic conference for AAAA schools in the area.

Yippie Jerry Rubin Threatens As Irish Police Arrest Him

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Police arrested American Yippie leader Jerry Rubin today after his seven-day visitors' visa to the United Kingdom expired.

Rubin and a companion in the Youth International party, Stew Albert, were seized in an apartment in south Belfast after a news conference. A third Yippie, Brian Flanagan, was not arrested.

"This is an insult to the Irish people!" Rubin and Albert cried as police hustled them off to headquarters in a police car.

"If we are deported," Rubin said, "police will pay."

"We do not recognize England's authority in Ireland," he said. "Here the authority is the Irish revolutionary movement. If we are arrested in Britain there's going to be repercussions in the United States."

He refused to say what the repurcussions might be.

Rubin, 31, flew from London to Belfast Thursday and went into hiding because his visitor's visa was due to expire at midnight. The British Home Office announced it would not be renewed and said if Rubin didn't leave the country today, "We shall start taking action."

A friend said Rubin flew to Belfast from London Thursday because he thought he would have a better chance to beat deportation, presumably because of the unrest here. Northern Ireland is part of the United Kingdom, along with England, Scotland and Wales.

The friend said Rubin has laid out a "plan for revolution" in Northern Ireland, scene of recurrent bloody strife between the Protestant majority and the Roman Catholic minority.

Offer Recommendations On N.C. Health Needs

RALEIGH (AP) — More doctors, regional health programs and more inovative health services are called for in the report of the Governor's Advisory Council on Comprehensive Health Planning.

The council, in its report issued Thursday, gave 59 recommendations which included:

—Increasing the number of all medical personnel and reaching the national physician-patient ratio by 1990.

—Developing outreach programs and using allied health personnel in areas of the state without adequate medical care.

—Supporting regional health planning organizations with multi-county pooling of tax funds and minimum standards for health programs.

—Expanding the role of schools in offering preventive and remedial health care for students.

—Including poor people in regional decisions about health.

About 500 persons attended a meeting here Thursday at which the report was made public.

Gov. Bob Scott told the group to "carefully consider" the recommendations but warned that "The demands, the needs, the expected services" facing state government "far exceed our financial capabilities."

Scott strongly endorsed the portion of the report calling for coordination of health services across county lines.

The council chairman, J. Alexander McMahon, told the group that some of the recommendations will be presented to the 1971 General Assembly, some may be implemented by various state agencies, and some are simply long-range goals.

The recommendations included a proposal to set up regional health planning organizations across the state with the General Assembly putting up $15,000 to finance each organization.

One central state agency, with the approval of the regional organization, would determine whether any health facility should be constructed or renovated.

The report said decent housing should be provided all citizens and called for creation of a new state Division of Housing to work toward this goal.

Install President Of Boys' Club

Dr. M. W. Aldridge was installed as new president of Greenville Boys' Club in the annual dinner meeting installation ceremony held last night at the Boys' Club house on Skinner Street.

Outgoing president R. W. Howard, tracing progress made since the club first opened here in December 1968, noted "when Dick Ullom came here to be director, he came on faith. Now, just two years later, the club is serving 600 boys in two locations. This is the type of progress we look forward to in Greenville."

Howard commented "we are still just getting started in our work, we are still operating on faith, but we all know these things are going to work out."

The outgoing president presented certificates of membership to newly elected board members present for the dinner meeting. These were Mrs. Nancy Dunn, and Mr. and Mrs. James Hagan. Other new board of director members elected, but not present, are Judson Blount, Jr. and Don McGlohon.

Aldridge told the board members, "Each of us are missionaries of the Boys' Club. We need to let people know what is going on, we need to let them know we need their interest, their help and their dollars."

Director J. Richard Ullom, speaking on developments during his two years in Greenville, cited the wrestling matches sponsored by the Jaycees for the benefit of the Boys' Club as the type of help which shows what can be done. "And we must do other things, there are many people who want to help with these boys, and we must find ways they can."

Ullom revealed the possibility existed that East Carolina University may add a course on Boy's Club to their Recreation curriculum. "If this works out," he said, "it will be the first time in the U. S. that such a course will be on a college curriculum."

Other officers who will be serving on the Executive Committee for the coming year are vice - presidents Howard Hodges and Max Stephenson; treasurer Johnny May; and secretary Jerry Raynor.

Soviet Writer To Labor Camp

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei Amalrik, author of the anti-Communist book "Will the Soviet Union Survive Until 1984?," has been sentenced to three years in a labor camp.

Informants said the sentence, on a charge of uttering "falsehoods derogatory to the Soviet state and social system," was handed down in Sverdlovsk Thursday.

Lifts Hog Quarantines

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina hog producers have heard good news as Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham announced the lifting of hog quarantines in seven counties.

The counties listed in the announcement Thursday were Chowan, Perquimans, Washington, Bertie, Chatham, Moore, and Randolph. However, some individual herds remained under quarantine.

Perquimans and Chowan counties are included in the Federal Task Force Cholera Eradication Area where a concerted drive has been underway to eradicate hog cholera. The area includes portions of northeastern North Carolin and Southeastern Virginia.

The State Department of Agriculture said one area in Northampton County was kept under quarantine because it is adjacent to Hertford County, scene of a recent cholera outbreak.

Sirhan Sentence Being Appealed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The death sentence of Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, is being appealed to the California Supreme Court.

Luke McKissack, attorney for Sirhan, said Thursday his 740-page brief raises 18 issues as possible grounds for either a reversal of his client's murder conviction in the shooting death two years ago or a reduction to a life sentence for second-degree murder or manslaughter.

Railroad Plight Is Told To Club

The general attorney of Seaboard Coast Line Railroad said Thursday that a financial crisis in the railroad industry has reached a point where a choice must be made between nationalizing the railroads or bringing them into the transportation system as "part of the family."

Speaking at the Coastal Plains Traffic Club here, Edward A. Charron reviewed solutions to the crisis recommended in a recent report by America's Sound Transportation Review Organization — a study team that was created by the Association of American Railroads.

These recommendations, Charron said, offer an alternative that would be far less costly than a government take over.

They involve a cost to the public that might amount to "nothing at all because a railroad industry, with restored health, would pay more than enough in taxes to offset the outlays proposed," he said.

Nationalization, he predicted, "could cost as much as $60 billion just to transfer ownership" leaving unmet the industry's need for capital improvement and inviting "almost certain" operating losses.

The study team also proposed eliminating state and local property taxes on railroad property used in transportation and federal tax-sharing to reimburse state and local government for their losses, Charron added.

"Even if all of ASTRO'S recommendations for financial aid to the railroads were eventualy to be adopted, the total would contribute only about $700 million a year toward the railroad's capital requirements," the general attorney asserted.

Charron said that the "health and growth of our economy depend on the smooth functioning of the rail network." He noted that "railroads hold the answer to problems like pollution and alone can efficiently accommodate the growing volumes of goods that must be moved."

Pulled Office Out From Under Hippie

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas attorney general has pulled the office right out from under bearded, long-haired hippie Phillip Hill.

Hill was elected on the Democratic ticket without opposition Nov. 3 as one of two justices of the peace in Lawrence, a community of 45,000 and the home of the University of Kansas.

But Thursday, Atty. Gen. Kent Frizzell said the 1968 Legislature abolished the office in 108 first and second class cities including Lawrence.

"That's going to be challenged," Hill said of the ruling. He said he had an attorney and that a Washington, D.C., firm also had offered him legal service.

The ruling was requested by Secretary of State Elwill Shanahan after county clerks in Geary and Douglas counties asked whether they should certify the election of justices of the peace. Lawrence is the county seat of Douglas County.

Frizzell's opinion said: "There being no office to fill, in my opinion, purported elections for such offices were a nullity. Local election officers should therefore decline to certify the results of any such purported elections, and where such certification may have been made it should be disregarded."

Hill, 22, a self-proclaimed dealer in drugs, received more than 6,000 votes in the election. He said he did nothing to publicize his candidacy for fear a write-in campaign might be started against him.

After the election he said he would use the office to perform marriages for his hippie friends, including homosexuals, and hear damage claims of less than $1 in cases involving civil rights and pollution.

Clark was admitted to Baptist Hospital Tuesday night with chest pains. Dr. William Ewers described the ailment Thursday as a "coronary insufficiency."

South was the declarer in today's hand at a contract of three no trump. West opened the ten of diamonds, East covered with the jack and South permitted him to hold the trick. East continued with the queen and West overtook with the king to continue the suit. South ducked a third time but won the next trick with the ace—dummy having discarded a heart and a club on the third and fourth diamond and East did likewise.

Declarer observed that if the spades divided evenly, he would have eight tricks—four spades, one diamond and three clubs. Since the ninth must come from hearts, he resolved to put that issue to an immediate test.

A spade was led to the queen and a heart was returned. East followed with the six and South put up the king which held the trick. The king of spades was cashed, however when the jack appeared from West, South decided that a favorable spade division was not forthcoming and he embarked on a new course.

The king of clubs was cashed and the suit continued. On the third club, North discarded the four of hearts and East the ten. Declarer exited with a heart and East was in with the ace. His remaining cards were the 10-7 of spades and on the forced return, the dummy took the last two tricks with the A-9.

East could have averted his fate by discarding the ace of hearts on the third round of clubs, which permits West to win a heart continuation with the queen and then cash the setting trick in either diamonds or clubs. East had nothing to lose by releasing his high heart, for if South has the queen then there is no way to prevent him from establishing his ninth trick in that suit.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Sunday Afternoon

FARMVILLE — The Farmville First Christian Church was the scene of the marriage of Miss Doris Carr Wilkinson and Johnny J. Briley Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Rev. Jack M. Daniell officated at the double ring ceremony before a background of an altar arrangement featuring pom pons gladioli and mums, floor containers of fern and spiral brass candelabra entwined with greenery and lighted with white cathedral tapers. The pews were designated with bows of bridal satin, white tulle and gladioli spikes. For the benediction, the couple knelt on a prie-dieu covered with white satin and adorned with ribbon streamers and fern.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wilkinson and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Briley.

For the nuptials, Mrs. W. C. Mercer, organist, accompanied Mrs. Robert Deans of Wilson, who sang "The Song of Ruth" and the "Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal silk peau A-line gown fashioned with an empire bodice of peau d'ange lace, high jewel neckline, and long lace bishop sleeves. The skirt was embellished with lace appliques and the back enhanced with a detachable lace bordered train, flowing chapel length.

She wore a matching lace trimmed floor length mantilla and carried a formal bouquet cascade of white orchids with miniature carnations.

Mrs. Frank Bradham of Portsmouth, Va., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a dress of sapphire blue velvet with short puffed sleeves, a scooped neckline, and back panel accented with small bow at the waist. Her headpiece was of matching material with veil of illusion.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Douglas Johnson, Miss Ann Bass, Miss Jo Ann Jefferson and Miss Jane Ann Matthews, wore identical style and color dresses and matching accessories as the honor attendant. They carried long-stemmed red roses tied with red satin ribbon.

Honorary bridesmaids included Beverly Humphrey, Sue Joyner, Jane Darden and Janice Thompson. Child attendants were Shirley McArthur, flower girl, whose dress was like that of the bridesmaid's and Carr Wainright as ring bearer.

Mr. Briley was best man for his son. Ushers were Frank Bradham of Portsmouth, Va., brother-in-law of the bride, Tommy Worthington of Ayden, cousin of the bride, Bennett Dilda of Fountain, David Ryon and Sam Wainwright Jr. both of Farmville.

Mrs. Wilkinson wore an ensemble of mint green shantung encrusted with pearls and sequins. She wore matching accessories and a bronze cymbidium orchid. The mother of the bridegroom selected a costume suit of blue shantung accented with lace and matching accessories.

Mrs. Dessie M. Tripp, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a plum colored dress. Mrs. Briley and Mrs. Tripp both wore corsages of pink roses and cymbidium orchids.

For her wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a camel colored double breasted suit accessorized with brown. She wore the orchids from her bridal bouquet.

Upon their return, they will be at home in Farmville.

Mrs. Briley attended Louisburg college and is now affiliated with the Edgecombe Anak and Trust Company, Fountain. Her husband attended Oak Ridge Military Academy and Chowan college. After serving three years in the U.S. Army he is presently attending Lenoir Community College, Kinston.

Mrs. F. T. Carr and Miss Elizabeth Lang directed the wedding.

Reception

Following the ceremony, parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Humphrey received the guests and presented the receiving line, composed of the bride and bridegroom, their parents and their attendants.

A lace cutwork cloth covered the refreshment table which held a silver epergne of yellow and white French pom pons with base wreathed in French tulle and lace. Mrs. T. S. Worthington and Mrs. W. D. Andrews served the decorated bridal squares as Mrs. Billy Briley and Mrs. Harold Prichard presided at the punch service.

The register table, presided over by Mrs. T. T. Moore, was adorned with a wedding picture of the bride, flanked by a single candleholder and a floral arrangement of gladioli and mums interspersed with yellow tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Smith paid the good-byes.

She Won't Give Up The Treasure

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married in 1930, my parents couldn't afford to give us a wedding present, but in 1945 they gave us one—a lovely tea table. We used it for a while then I accidentally broke it, so I put it in our basement intending to have it refinished and repaired.

A few days ago a youth came to my home and my husband, without realizing the history of that tea table, sold it for five dollars to the boy who then sold it to the wife of a Navy recruiter for $25. When I learned of this, I went immediately to her, told her my story and she agreed to give up the table. [The boy also agreed to return her $25.] Then her husband told her, "Keep it." She saw an attorney who advised her that she didn't have to give it up.

Abby, I put little importance on material things, but my parents are gone now and this is one piece I treasured. I suppose in the face of world crisis, it seems stupid to be talking about a tea table, but perhaps the incident reflects the attitude of people today. Could you, under those circumstances, keep something knowing it was treasured by someone else? MINNESOTAN

DEAR MINNESOTAN: No. And I don't know anyone else who could. It is hard to believe there are such people in the world.

DEAR ABBY: I think I can help "TIRED" cure her overly amorous husband. Every time he gets lovey-dovey, go right along with his suggestion and ask for more. Before long, he will not get so lovey-dovey so often. At least, that's the way I cured my husband. SAN FRANCISCAN

DEAR ABBY: I know exactly what "TIRED" is trying to say because I have the same kind of husband. If I just look in his direction he takes it as an invitation for an immediate flop on the nearest flat surface. But before you condemn me for my "cold fish" attitude, please read this thru:

For years I have tried, without success, to teach my husband to be a little more considerate, subtle, tender and patient. I would like him to kiss me, caress me, and make me feel that he wants to please me, rather than use me for his own pleasure. His crude approach leaves me cold.

I am bursting with affection. I kiss the kids, the dog, and the cat. I even kiss the parakeet. But not my husband, because he doesn't give me a chance.

FRUSTRATED IN SAN JOSE

DEAR ABBY: Please give "TIRED" a message for me: Women make a big mistake when they allow themselves to be trapped by routine. If you love him and he loves you, what's the matter with showing a little honest emotion at six o'clock and having a romantic candlelight dinner at eight, or nine?

My first wife had to have everything just so. First she'd put her hair up. Then she'd take off her makeup. Then she'd suds her undies. Then she'd check the doors and windows. Then she'd get into bed and read the newspapers! And by the time she was ready, I was sound asleep. JIMMY

Major Decision To Be Made

The North Carolina Supreme Court will soon be making a major decision so far as busing of school children in urban areas is concerned.

The Supreme Court heard arguments this week on whether or not state supported free school buses in urban areas can be continued.

The court is hearing an appeal of an order issued last month by Judge James H. Pou Bailey which forbid the use of state funds for busing urban children.

The effect of the order was delayed by the Supreme Court so that the appeal could be heard. At stake is free busing for an estimated 111,000 children in 114 of the state's 152 school districts.

In quite a few cases the free busing is provided to implement desegregation plans which have been ordered by the federal courts or HEW.

Apparently the state's rules on busing of children are a hodge podge. Rural children have been bused to school for many years. School children in areas which have been annexed since 1957 are bused. Finally the state has recently begun furnishing bus service in municipalities to assist in developing desegregation plans.

It is obvious that the state is going to have to furnish buses in all areas, rural or urban, and this can be expected to be a matter to be taken up by the next legislature.

In the meantime, though, the court ruling is pending and a ruling against urban busing could prove most harmful to school districts which are already set up and operating with the state - furnished school buses.

Already Outgrowing An Eight-Year-Old Plant

Greenville opened its water pollution control plant in 1962—only eight years ago — but already the plant must be expanded.

Commissioners called for bids on Dec. 8 for work which will double the treatment capacity of the plant from four million gallons daily to eight million.

It is difficult to recall that only eight years ago Greenville was dumping raw sewage into the Tar River. Construction of the treatment plant helped clean up the river and now an additional outlay must be made to expand the plant.

Cleaning up the environment is expensive, as utilities customers paying the monthly sewer charge well know. However, it is essential if we are not to ruin what nature has provided us on earth.

No 'Doldrums' For Assembly

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Economic doldrums won't stall forward movement for North Carolina in the 1971 General Assembly.

"You're more pessimistic than I am," chided Samuel H. Johnson at the suggestion that a sluggish national economy might mean a hold - the - line posture on state spending.

"We'll have a progressive session," he promised, "in spite of the overall national economic umbrella. There will be a more moderate pace of progress, but not a reversal."

Johnson, beginning his fourth term as a Wake County Representative, has expertise in state budget - making and prospects for future spending. As House Appropriations Chairman last session, he served on the Advisory Budget Commission which prepared recommendations to go before the legislature when it convenes next January 13.

He's spent the past four months with the Commission listening to requests from state agencies, weighing priorities, and charting a course for the next biennium.

Budget Decisions Made

For practical purposes, the Commission has completed its task. It will meet again next month to review decisions, and turn the budget document over to Governor Bob Scott. He will present it, with his budget message, to the legislators in the early days of the session.

General fund spending requests to the commission totaled $3,022,000,000 (B), divided along these lines: A budget (to continue present programs and activities, allowing for normal growth), $2,026,000,000 (B); B budget (new programs, or expansion in fresh directions) $595,000,000 (M); C budget (capital improvements), $401,000,000 (B).

Comparison with the 1969-71 budget of $1,930,000,000 shows the amount of trimming to be done. "Very, very, very substantial" reductions in many requests is how Johnson described it.

Johnson is a homework type legislator. He carries in the trunk of his car, always ready for reference, his "Book of Knowledge." It's a fat, loose - leaf notebook crammed with statistics and data on North Carolina and its budget, progress of budget commission deliberations, comparisons with other states — a compendium of information for the well - versed Representative.

Low Tax Rank

Filipping its pages, he refuted the impression that North Carolina is a state with a heavy burden of taxation. "You see," he pointed, "we're sixth from the bottom among the 50 states in per capita state and local taxes." The figure for North Carolina was $259.

"And we're within $10 of the bottom of per capita state and local taxes in relation to personal income, the ability to pay." Ranked 13th from the bottom, North Carolina was listed with $98.75 of state and local taxes per $1,000 personal income.

Do the figures mean North Carolina can afford to tap new tax sources to finance proposed new services?

Johnson grinned. "Search the length and breadth of North Carolina, and see if you can uncover one — not ten, but one — elected Representative or Senator who will support new taxes," he advised. "I'd like to meet him."

If chances for new taxes are nil, prospects for repeal of present levies also are limited.

"The only possibility I see is the soft drink tax," Johnson said. "For these reasons: it's not a very good source — only a couple of states have tried it and stayed with it, and experience says something; it was enacted last session only as a last resort; and a lot of people running for the legislature committed themselves to try to take it off."

If repealed, somehow the revenue from the soft drink tax must be replaced, he added. How to do so is a $30-million question.

His own position, Johnson said, would be to accept

Send SOS To John Mitchell

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Shortly after emerging from a rosy-hued White House post-mortem on the election, a top Republican strategist said out loud what many party professionals are thinking privately.

"Who is the President trying to convince," he said, "himself or us?"

That expresses the deepening concern over evidence that President Nixon believes his own propaganda — that the Republicans really did gain an "ideological" or "working" majority in the Senate and that their huge losses in governorships resulted from purely local political factors.

This concern is a major reason for the SOS that anguished party leaders are sending to Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, Mr. Nixon's political mentor and Cabinet strong man, to take over the 1972 Presidential campaign and take it over now.

Their sense of urgency stems from the fact that tough, methodical John Mitchell had no major role in shaping the crazy-quilt 1970 campaign strategy (though he travelled and spoke for some Republican Senate candidates). During the crucial weekend of Oct. 10-11, Mitchell was not at Key Biscayne when Mr. Nixon suddenly decided — without consulting the Republican National Committee or any other party leaders — to commit his prestige by campaigning in 22 states.

Had Mitchell been in the driver's seat, these party politicians believe, Mr. Nixon would never have damaged his credibility as he did this past autumn. Moreover, they feel that the immediate presence of Mitchell on the scene as 1972 campaign manager would protect Mr. Nixon from self-delusion, about both the 1970 results and 1972 prospects, fostered by the White House inner circle headed by H. R. (Bob) Haldeman.

In truth, Mitchell has been blueprinting 1972 advance plans in the back rooms at the Justice Department for weeks. But politicians would like some public assurances about when or whether he will take over on a full-time basis.

Rep. Rogers Morton of Maryland, the Republican National Chairman, also would like some answers and has scheduled a long working session with Mitchell at the Justice Department. Morton, his relations cool with the Haldeman clique, is goint to the Attorney General for answers to questions such as this: will the National Committee be excluded from the Presidential campaign, or does Mitchell intend to use the committee's resources as a partner?

That question arises from post-election White House talk. Presidential aides have been quietly knocking Morton's performance in the 1970 campaign, complaining that he "spent a lot of time" campaigning for his own reelection on Maryland's Eastern Shore and was too soft on the Democrats. Such backstage griping means the White House intends to run the 1972 campaign much as Lyndon Johnson's White House ran the 1964 campaign — with the National Committee a minor appendage.

If so, Morton could not be clubbed into staying on as National Chairman. He has been told nothing but has heard all the White House rumors about Robert Finch, now a White House counsellor, taking his job. A new possibility is Rep. George Bush of Texas, one of the brightest Republican stars to lose a Senate race last week (though he would want a meaningless job no more than Morton).

Mitchell intimates now believe he will not quit as Attorney General to run the campaign, particularly with his recent moves to strengthen the Justice Department. Robert Mardian, a hard-line, highly efficient administrator, has been named as head of internal security but also will move into policy-making on other issues, including school desegregation — thus freeing Mitchell for politics.

Whether he quits the Justice Department or not, Mitchell cannot take charge of the 1972 campaign too soon for party leaders chastened by Mr. Nixon's performance in 1970.

Who Loves The Loser?

Other Editors Say Education is First

(Henderson Dispatch)

Hardest hit of all in the recent and current racial disorders in Vance county are students in the public schools. Training of the young people has been pushed into the background by violence and other disturbances. They are dropping behind in their studies, and it is a fair question as to whether they will be able to catch up.

The situation is a problem for seniors especially. They need to have the best possible record if they plan to go on to college after graduation, and must be adequately prepared if they are to keep abreast of classes in higher education. It is extremely difficult, if even possible, for students to concentrate on their courses in the midst of fears and threats such as they have been subjected to in recent days.

Citizens generally, for that matter, have not been able to carry on normal activities of their businesses, which have suffered as a result of disturbances. These lapses can be overcome, but it is questionable whether students in the schools will soon recover completely from interruptions that have occurred. Their problem is uppermost of the byproducts of events.

The schools are gradually returning to near normal. Students are anxious to devote themselves to scholastic activities. This is true of blacks and whites alike, or definitely should be. With buses operating on all routes and classes available for all students, with lunch rooms back in operation, conditions should improve. It can be hoped that activities can proceed without interruption from this time on. Some minor irregularities may remain to be smoothed over, but these should be corrected within a reasonable time. The schools exist for the training of young people, and ought to be able to get on with their services.

Words To Bug A Boss

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a boss gets tired of hearing:

"Chief, the accountant says we're running out of red ink. Shall I order another barrel?"

"Now that the junior vice president is getting his office redecorated, the senior vice president insists his office be redecorated too."

"It's your wife on the phone,

HAL BOYLE

sir. She says for you to remember to take your cough medicine at 10, 2 and 4 o'clock."

"Someone drew a mean cartoon of you on the washroom bulletin board, sir. Shall I tear it down?"

"I could give you a whole list of reasons why I should get a merit raise, chief, but they all boil down to the fact that my wife thinks I deserve one—and she's the one who knows me best."

"The old man is snarling at everybody this morning. He was three strokes off his golf game yesterday."

"Did you see in the paper, sir, where it says business is so bad at many firms that their executives are cutting out their winter vacations?"

"It's your wife, sir. She says for you to be sure to get a pound of caviar when you stop off at the supermarket."

"The chairman of the union delegation is waiting outside to see you, sir. He says the new contract is no dice unless it contains a clause saying that every man can have a holiday on his wife's birthday as well as his own."

"Well, the only way I can see out for us is to merge with another firm, but I can't imagine anybody else being dumb enough to hook up with us."

"The reason I figure that the old man has such a terrible temper in the office is to make up for being henpecked at home."

"Since the boss said everybody has to tighten his belt, he has limited himself to two Martinis at lunch. Now that's what I call real executive suffering.

"Your wife's on the other line, sir. She wants to know where you left the pawn ticket for her fur coat. She says she has to get it out of hock or freeze to death."

Strength For Today

RESPONSIBILITY

The word "Commencement" is more significant than we sometimes think. For those who take part in Commencement it appears to be the end of something — but of course it is not the end but the beginning. They are "commencing" to enter into life with all kinds of opportunities — good and bad alike — beckoning them to this career or that.

We who live on the North American continent pride ourselves on the fact that we regard people who do not work as parasites. In many parts of the world people of high position never do a tap of work as long as they live. This is one of the attributes of their distinction. But not so with us. We don't like the terms "bums" or "loafers," but what, indeed, are these people who go through life asking for all life's privileges and refusing to assume any of its responsibilities?

We understand, of course, that people of that variety constitute only a small percentage of our population. But they are a menace. There is nothing the matter with inherited wealth if the wealth was acquired honestly and is now being administered in that same spirit. But people who use wealth as an opportunity to indulge themselves or lord it over other people are despicable, to say the least.

Responsibility is a great and fine word in our language. The parents who set a good example for their children and bring them up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" are making a real contribution to national glory and world stability.

By ELMER ROESSNER

Without fanfare, a new industry has developed in America in the last five years: the corner print shop.

There have been print shops since the early settlement of America. But a new kind has sprung up recently, the quickie shop, usually small but many times faster than the letterpress job shop. There are several thousand today.

These shops are fostered by the paperwork explosion in business and in social life. They have been made possible by new, fast offset printing systems and assisted by the many copying devices and plastic encasing machines.

An offset print shop can be set up with as little as $15,000 worth of equipment. Furthermore, a proprietor doesn't have to know much about printing, no more than the lessons and instructions that come with his offset press. He doesn't have to know the difference between an em and an en or between a jim dish and a cutoff rule.

No Fancy Color Work

These shops flourish because of their speed. Furthermore, they are less expensive than letterpress printing because they do not require typesetting.

Most of them print in only one color. Two colors are possible but that takes a little longer. Some shops print only in black. There is very little choice of paper and none of the fancy folding, stapling, binding, die-cutting and other services many large print shops offer.

They can, however, reproduce photographs, drawings, and enlarge or reduce their size.

Convenience is another prime attraction. A businessman can drop off a job at noon, have lunch and pick up the completed work on his way back to the office.

Conventional printers don't mind the competition. Most of the quickie shops' work is short runs, 50 to 100 copies, which a big print shop would regard as a nuisance.

How It Works

The operator first makes a copy of the work to be duplicated on a treated polyester sheet with a machine such as the 3M Company's camera plate processor, which automatically develops the plate in less than a minute. Then it is printed on an offset press, a sophisticated descendant of the old office duplicator.

The bulk of a typical shop's business consists of form letters, intraoffice memos, menu inserts, church programs, company reports and advertising flyers.

When only a few same - size copies of a document are needed, they are usually duplicated on a Xerox or similar duplicating machine. Some shops specialize in this kind of work, offer in copies in a choice of half a dozen processes and sometimes sealing copies in plastic.

Urge Ministers Mark 'Concern'

Greenville and Farmville churches will observe "A Day of Prayer and Concern" for prisoners of war and men missing in action in Southeast Asia Sunday.

A letter about the request for special prayer for the men and their families went out early this week from Greenville Ministerial Association president, Father Hugh Mullholland to ministers of all the churches in the city association. Father Mullholland noted that Gov. Scott had declared this a "week of concern" for POW's and MIA's climaxed by the "Day of Prayer" Sunday. He also mentioned that there are 91 families in this state who have sons, husbands, or brothers who are either imprisoned or listed as missing.

The letter urged the ministers to impress the importance of letters from individuals to the North Vietnamese Government. These letters would show that American people are concerned about their prisoners and about the families of those who are listed as missing, leaving their families to wonder if they are dead or held incognito in North Vietnamese, Viet Cong, or Pathet Lao prisons. The address he suggested using is: Paris Peace Talks, North Vietnamese Delegation, Paris, France.

Rev. Marion Lark of the Farmville Ministerial Association has made a similar request to the ministers there.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Robinson of Robersonville, who have a son who has been held since 1965 in a North Vietnamese prison, ask that ministers in other towns acknowledge the prisoners and missing men and their families in their church services.

whatever the Finance Committee works out. He'd be disposed to follow the committee's action he said.

A Legislative Responsibility

That illustrates his firm view that budget-making is a legislative process. The Advisory Budget Commission and the Governor proposes; the General Assembly disposes.

"Our recommendations are advisory, a starting point for the legislature to do its work," he explained.

Aside from its role in drafting recommendations for the legislature, the budget commission has an important function as a healthy process of self examination for state agencies and departments, Johnson said.

For that reason, he regards the biennial nature of North Carolina's budget-making as a strength. "It takes out the little ripples." It makes us think in larger dimensions," he said.

Through every generation — people have looked for peace and security. Hundreds of volumes have been written on the subject and thinkers and writers have devoted their lives to the search.

But of all these books, the Bible is most concerned with peace and security. "Fear not, for I am with you; be not dismayed for I am your God."

No man-made philosophy can banish the worries and troubles of today's complex life. But in the gospel we find assurance of His care.

God loves us. When we go to Him in humility, He cleanses us of sin. Our minds are put at ease. Peace fills our souls.

Go then to the Book for modern man. Through study, prayer and worship we will find that peace which has been granted to millions — in every country — in every age. Discover anew the life for modern man.

Rule Against New Retirement Setup

RALEIGH (AP) — The Legislative Research Commission decided today to leave North Carolina's retirement system for ... Assembly members unchanged, despite criticism that the legislators don't pay any of the cost.

The commission acted after being told it would cost too much to administer the program if it were put on a contributory basis, as most other state retirement programs are.

"This is the most economical way to operate," said William Potter, a member of the Legislative Services Commission staff who researched the matter.

Commenting on criticism of the program, Potter said: "This certainly doesn't put legislators an easy street after a term or two."

The program, enacted by the 1969 session of the General Assembly, enables a legislator to retire after serving four terms—not necessarily consecutive—and draw $25 a month for the remainder of his life for each term he served.

Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, said the program is expected to cost the state between $2,400 and $3,600 next year.

"A contributory program would cost at least $6,000 a year to administer," Quinn said, "so this setup definitely is more economical."

Sen. Hector McGeachy, D-Cumberland, the Senate president pro-tem, said the program "has been very misunderstood" and that criticism of it has resulted from this.

Beaten, But 'Loves' Him

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A pretty teen-ager who has said she loves Charles Manson has ended her testimony in the Sharon Tate murder trial by saying Manson beat her, hit her with a chair leg and whipped her.

Dianne Lake, 17, had been on the witness stand seven days when finally excused Thursday.

Miss Lake said she couldn't remember why Manson was mad at her in June 1969 when "he hit me with a chair leg and he beat me and he whipped me with a cord." Another time, she said, Manson slugged her in the mouth, drawing blood.

The witness, who has given evidence against two women defendants, said Manson told her on another occasion, "I'm going to kill you, Snake, I'm going to kill you."

Manson, who was 36 Thursday, is on trial with three women followers on murder-conspiracy charges in the slayings of the blonde actress and six others in August 1969.

Miss Lake was the last major witness scheduled before the prosecution rests its case. Two psychiatrists will provide medical testimony concerning Miss Lake's mental competency. Their finding that she is competent was heard outside the jury's presence earlier.

In Memoriam

It is only a few steps from his home to the bank, so we saw right much of Robert Lee Humber. We shall miss him.

Like the young people of today, he hated war, poverty, and injustice, and he spent his life trying to do something about it.

At 72, he was the youngest of us all. His life exemplified the noblest ideals of our young generation. North Carolina and our community have lost a friend. We mourn his passing.

Pirates Host Marshall In Home Finale

East Carolina University's Pirates close out their first home season under new head coach Mike McGee Saturday at 2 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

And they'd like to close it out with a victory over the visiting Thundering Hurd of Marshall University.

The game is the second straight with a West Virginia team. Last week's Mountaineers of West Virginia University came into the game with a 5-3 record. This week, the Hurd comes in with a 3-5 record, just the opposite.

But the experts pick the Hurd as anywhere from 10 to 21 point favorites in the game, as much or more than the Mountaineers were favored.

West Virginia, however, had its hands full with the stubborn Pirates, who refused to bow easily. They were in the game all the way and the contest was much closer than the 28-14 score would indicate.

"There has been definite improvement in the team during the year," McGee said. "The players are continually making strong attempts to improve, and that they have done this is evident. For the most part, they are playing with 100 per cent effort. Proficiency has also improved a lot."

The Pirate defense ...lly did the job on the ground against the Mountaineers, holding them to just 92 yards. West Virginia managed to pick up over 300 yards through the air, however, but much of this came on long gainers, one of which was a 65 yard touchdown pass.

The Bucs meanwhile picked up more yardage against West Virginia then any other team except Penn State had done. East Carolina's defense also shows in the Southern Conference. They are allowing 309.2 yards per game, best in the conference. Their rush defense is giving up only 157.2 per game, also the best in the loop. Through the air, only The Citadel does a better job. The Buc average is 152.0 per game.

But the aerial defense is due for another tough challenge this week. Marshall has two fine quarterbacks, according to McGee, and they like to fill the air with footballs.

"Both (Bob) Harris and (Ted) Shoebridge are excellent players," McGee said. "They have some excellent athletes in the skill positions. They throw the ball a great deal, and probably throw the long ball as much as anybody around."

McGee feels that the Marshall defense has done a good job about all of the time. "They have played some fine teams. Their defense is similar to that of Furman, and they stunt a great deal, a real boom or bust defense." McGee said that Marshall has allowed most of the yardage against them on the ground.

"Their offense is a little different from anything we've faced," he said. "But I look for a real close game between the two teams."

Besides the passing attack of the two quarterbacks, Marshall has established a good running game with Joe Hood, a halfback who was switched from flanker last year. "He has fine running ability," McGee said. "He picked up over 100 yards against Kent State last week, mostly in the second half."

McGee said the Pirates were looking forward to the game. Most of them remember last year's 38-0 shutout and want to make up for that. "They are as good as they were last year, and they have more experience this year. They've got a lot of junior college transfers, too," the coach said.

The Bucs, as is usual, will be fielding a number of players with nagging - type injuries. Tim Tyler will miss the game due to an injury he received against West Virginia. Monty Kiernan is questionable.

"One bright spot is that all our backs are back and healthy now," McGee said.

The defensive lineup will have Wes Rothrock and Mike McGuirk at ends, Rich Peeler and either Chuck Zadnik or Jim Gudger at tackles, Grover Truslow and Monty Kiernan at outside linebackers, Butch Britton and Ralph Betesh at inside linebackers, George Whitley and Tom Pulley at halfbacks and Mike Mills at safety.

Just prior to kickoff, four members of the Fort Bragg Sports Parachute Club will jump into Ficklen Stadium. The first of the skydivers will come down at 1:45 p.m., with the last coming down five minutes prior to kickoff. He will bring the game ball with him.

East Carolina University's Pirates close out their home season Saturday at 2 p.m. when they play host to the Thundering Herd of Marshall University in Ficklen Stadium. Two of the Bucs who will see action in the game include Wes Rothrock and Dwight Flanagan. Rothrock, a 6-0, 195-pound senior from Enfield, is a starting linebacker for the Bucs. Flanagan, a 5-10, 167-pound senior from Edenton, has seen action as a wide receiver for the Bucs, both as an end and as a flanker.

Purple-Gold Cage Game Set

Basketball fans will get their first good look at the 1970-71 edition of the East Carolina Pirates Saturday afternoon in the Purple - Gold intrasquad game in Minges Coliseum.

The game is set for a 5 p.m. tipoff, coinciding with the end of the ECU-Marshall football game in Ficklen Stadium, adjacent to the coliseum.

"We are opening the doors to the public and inviting them to come see this intrasquad game free of charge," said Head Coach Tom Quinn. "We have more depth than ever before and this should make for our best intrasquad game ever."

The Pirates are regarded by many national magazines as the team that will topple Davidson in the Southern Conference race this winter.

Quinn has announced the starting lineups for Saturday's game as follows:

Purple Team — Mike Henrich at point, Greg Crouse and Terry Davis at the wings, and Jim Fairley and Steve McKenzie at the middle posts. No. 6 man will be Ernie Pope. Assistant Coach Harry Brown will coach the Purple.

Gold Team — Julius Prince at the point, Dave McNeil and Dave Franklin at the wings, and Al Faber and Arnie Ruegg at the middle posts. No. 6 man will be Milan Djordjevich. Assistant Coach Al Ferner will direct the Gold.

Absent will be wing man Jim Gregory, who is expected to lead the Bucs this year along with Fairley. Quinn regards these two players as two of the best five players in the conference. However, Gregory is now sidelined with a cast on his sprained ankle.

This will be the first of two intrasquad games the Pirate cagers will play within six days. The second, a Varsity vs. Frosh contest, will be held Thursday night, November 19th, in conjunction with Pirate Basketball Press - Picture - Autograph Night. That game will begin at 8:30 p.m. with the players and coaches on the court at 7 p.m. for pictures, autographs and interviews.

No Problems For Charlie Fox; Juan, Gaylord Catcher's Dream

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(Second of two parts)

The San Francisco Giants have finished in second place for what must seem like an eternity for Giant fans, but it was by the skin of their teeth that they made it this year.

And one of the primary reasons behind the Giant struggle back for near oblivion is Charlie Fox, the new manager of the team.

Fox took over in the middle of the early season, replacing Goldsboro's Clyde King. "It didn't present any great problems to start them," Fox said in an interview here. "I knew the players, and I knew what they could do. They knew my philosophy and what to expect of me," he said.

Fox was in Greenville, visiting with "Booger" Scales during the Perry Brothers Celebration in Williamston. Gaylord Perry is one of the Giant pitchers.

"My philosophy is to let the players play and not to get too smart. If a manager knows his players, he will let them do what they can do best and not try to get more from them than they can produce," Fox said.

The Giant manager felt that the team responded to this. "We put the best eight out there every day. (Dick) Dietz caught too many games, and we wanted to rest him more, but he did a magnificant job, along with Gaylord, Willie Mays and Willie McCovey."

Fox feels that Mays, the last of the old New York Giants, can play as long as he wants. "This will be his 20th year with the Giants. I saw him as a rookie and he's put on only two more pounds since then. He's in great condition. He doesn't smoke or drink, and he can go on and on as long as it's still a thrill for him. We're going to work out a rest program for him next year to keep him at his best all year."

About the only thing Mays hasn't done yet is break the lifetime home run record of 714 held by Babe Ruth. He's within 90 of that, but Fox said the Giant outfielder isn't thinking about it. "He'd have to have three more real good years. I don't think he's even thinking about breaking it."

Another player who became a question mark for the Giants this year was Juan Marichal, one of the best Giant hurlers of all time. He was striken in the early part of the season by a reaction to medicine, and missed nearly half of the year. "Near the end of the year, he began to look like the old Juan," Fox said. "He's working all winter, and if he comes back and has his potential of 18 to 20 wins, the Giants can have a chance."

"Gay should have another fine year, and if Dietz, Mays and McCovey hit like they did last year, we can win it. We need to have another pitcher take up some of the slack and win 10 to 15 games, however," the manager added.

"We have a young club for the most part. We need another pitcher and another infielder. We have a good prospect in Chris Speier at shortstop, but he may not make it up this year. The Giants have had great success in bringing players up, but many of them have been traded away. I don't see much hope of getting help through trades. We want good players now, and we have to trade away the backbone of our team to get the kind we need right away."

Joining Fox in the interview was the Giant catcher, Dietz, who said that pitchers like Perry and Marichal are a catcher's dream.

"The more you catch them, the more you can have a better idea what to call when they're throwing. They're always around the plate and they don't work you too hard."

Dietz classified Marichal as a control type pitcher. "He's a little easier to catch than Gaylord. He eats the back of the plate up and has a lot of pitches from everywhere, sidearm, three-quarters, overhand. And he can hit the outside well."

With Gaylord Perry, however, things are a little different. "He works real hard all the time, where Juan changes speed. Gay throws hard all the time. He's a great competitor and he's not going to give the batter a good pitch anytime. He wouldn't throw a good pitch to his own mother with a 3-0 count. You know he'll be out there every four days giving you 120 per cent."

Dietz classifies Atlanta's Hank Aaron as one of the toughest batters around. "We have a meeting on the hitters on each team, and we decide who we are going to pitch around. We won't let him beat us. Roberto Clemente is another good hitter, and Richie Allen hits us real well. They are the type you'd rather walk that let them beat you."

Dietz also feels that the majority of the umpires in the National League do a good job, since he has more contact with them that most of the other players. "They make mistakes just like we do. They're human, too. Being an ump is a hard life; they never go home, traveling all the time," he said.

Catching has the reputation of being a rough spot, but Dietz knocks on wood and says he's never had a broken bone. "Most catchers now are one-handed types, and broken bones are fewer."

But as to advice for future catchers, Dietz says it takes hard work and good training. Fox, a former catcher himself, says the best advise for a boy wanting to be a catcher is "to switch to the infield."

Swimming Team Goes On Display

East Carolina University's defending Southern Conference champion swimming team will hold its annual Purple - Gold intrasquad meet in Minges Natatorium Saturday afternoon immediately following ECU's home football game with Marshall.

Coach Ray Scharf will send his swimmers through the paces at 4:30 p.m.

Scharf and his staff of assistants have divided the squad in such a way as to provide an action - packed and close meet. The last two seasons the meet has been held the winning margin has been by three points or less.

Scharf hopes to use the meet Saturday as a final big tune-up for the fast-approaching 1970-71 season. The Pirates, who face their toughest schedule ever, have three of their toughest meets at the beginning of the season.

The tankmen open the season at N. C. State, come back home against Army and they travel to Maryland. Other teams featured on the schedule include Virginia, South Carolina, Florida State, North Carolina and Virginia Tech.

Swimmers to watch Saturday are freestyler Jim Griffin, who holds every middle - distance freestyle record at ECU; freestyler Paul Trevisan, who swims the sprint events; Gary Frederick, who swims the distance freestyle events; Wayne Norris, butterfly and individual medley; and diver Doug Emerson.

Scharf also is expecting much support this season from freshman John Manning, freestyler, diver Jack Morrow and freestyler Tom Rehm. All three were high school All-Americans.

It's hard to know how to act this weekend. For the second time in two years, no one in the Daily Reflector coverage area is involved in the post-season playoffs. We're not used to this.

So therefore, there are no high school games to predict.

Instead, it's all on the collegiate scene.

Topping the list is the East Carolina University - Marshall affair. It's the closing home game for the Bucs, and promises to be an exciting game.

Last year, Marshall mowed down the Bucs handily in Huntington, W. Va., under the guidance of their fine quarterback Ted Shoebridge, rolled to an easy victory. This year, the Pirates hope that things will come out differently.

It's the next to last game for the Bucs, who have one win to their credit, along with a number of fine efforts in losses. Last week, they proved that they could play with the big boys, playing West Virginia right down to the wire.

If the Bucs keep up their fine play, they might just pull this one off. I think they will.

The Southern Conference race gets a chance to settle down a little bit this weekend, but not a whole lot. There will still be a crowd at the top when it's all over.

The Citadel visits Furman in a big game. The Bulldogs are tough but smarting over a loss to Chattanooga, a team Furman beat. Furman has run up big scores on some teams, but the Bulldog defense is tough.

We'll go with The Citadel to win this one.

Davidson plays host to William & Mary. The Indians are on the warpath and just might sneak in ahead of everyone while The Citadel, Furman and Richmond battle it out for the top. William & Mary is the choice in this one.

Rounding out the conference weekend, the Spiders of Richmond play VMI. There is little that can be said here. VMI is down, Richmond is going up fast. The Spiders should win handily.

The Tar Heels of North Carolina battle Clemson in one of the old-time rivalries. Frank Howard is gone now, but folks are taking it out on Hootie Ingram. The Heels will do it this weekend.

South Carolina plays host to Duke in another top game. The Blue Devils must win to stay in the race. South Carolina nearly beat Tennessee last weekend. Defense should tell the tale, but we'll go with South Carolina.

The eyes of the state will also be on the N. C. State - Wake Forest game in Winston - Salem. The Deacons can just about wrap it up with a win over the Wolfpack and make Cal Stoll coach of the year in the conference. My fellow Wake alumni would kill me if I picked it any way but for the Deacons.

Elsewhere it'll be Virginia over Colgate, Nebraska over Kansas State, New Mexico over Brigham Young, Northwestern over Indiana, Notre Dame over Georgia Tech, Ohio State over Purdue, Kansas over Oklahoma, Oregon over Army, Oregon State over Washington State, Penn over Columbia, Penn State over Ohio, Rice over Texas A&M and Rutgers over Holy Cross.

Season's record: 124 right, 56 wrong, 68.9 per cent.

GREENSBORO (AP) — Avery Beck, a runnerup the previous two years, won the professional division of the Carolinas PGA Seniors golf championships by a stroke Thursday.

Dale Morey won the amateur division by four strokes.

Beck, of Whispering Pines, earned $600 for his two-day score of 73-73—147, three strokes over par at the Forest Oaks Country Club.

Sixty-three-year-old Orville White of Aiken, S.C., fired the final day's only sub-par round, 71. But he had opened with 77, and finished runnerup at 148.

Morey, from High Point, had 72-72—145. Harry Welch of Salisbury was second in the amateur division at 149, and next were Dick Davis of Southern Pines and Ben Goodes of Reidsville, tied at 158.

Here are some other scores from third on down in the pro division:

Johnny Palmer of Robbins 151, Aubrey Apple of Greensboro and Jim Gantz of Camp Lejeune both 153; Ed Brown of Plymouth, Boyd Huff of Greenville, N.C., and Red Jessup of Greensboro, all 154; Eddie Steere of Myrtle Beach, S.C., 155; Fairley Clark of Ft. Bragg and Al Smith of Kernersville both 156.

Seek Approval For New Loop

About this time every football season the fans start talking about who will go to what bowl games, who will win the Heisman Trophy, who will make All-American and who will be named to the All-Conference teams.

It's the latter that interests me now, because although most of East Carolina's victories have been moral ones this fall, there are five members of my football team who I sincerely believe are as good as any other players in the Southern Conference. In fact, when I compare them to players I worked with during my four years as an assistant in the Big Ten (at Wisconsin and Minnesota), I feel they compare every favorably with some of the better players in that conference.

If there's one thing that typifies all five of these men, it's unselfishness. East Carolina has fallen behind in a lot of games this fall. The Pirates could easily have quit. But this team never quit — and one of the big reasons for this attitude was the leadership, the courage and the pride that these five players gave. Not that they were the only players who were courageous — I feel most of our men were. But these five were the ones that just seemed to be natural leaders . . . the kind you look to when you're in trouble.

In no particular order 1970's five Pirates to remember are:

(1) Mike Kopp, a 6-1, 210-pound junior from Crestwood, Mo., had the courage to play with pain all season long. On his own initiative, he stuck with it, playing on a very sore, swollen knee. He was not in any threat of real danger — we wouldn't have let him play if he had been — but he did play with pain. And it's a good thing for us he did, because Mike was by far the best blocker in our offensive line this season. He is an excellent straight - ahead blocker, possessing great strength and the savvy it takes to get the job done time after time. He was a Junior College All-American last year, leading Centerville (Iowa) Jr. College to the No. 8 ranking in the nation. The loyalty to our program he displayed this fall is very unusual for a transfer player. I can't say enough good about Mike Kopp. He could make All-Big Ten if he played out there. And he is definitely an All-American candidate for next season.

(2) Rich Peeler, a 6-3, 240-pound junior from Shelby, is the finest defensive tackle in the conference. The whole country knows the story of how Rich got out of the hospital bed at 5:30 in the morning on the day of our game down at Furman and persuaded someone to drive him all the way to Greenville, S. C., 300 miles away, where he played one of the greatest games of his career that afternoon as we shut out Furman. Rich is so strong that he very rarely is blocked one on one. And even with two blockers on him, he possesses the knack of moving laterally in pursuit of the ball. He leads our team in tackles, which is very very rare for a tackle to do. A ferocious pass rusher, Rich Peeler is a quiet man both on and off the field. He leads by doing. Like Mike Kopp, he should receive some All-American next year.

(3) George Whitley, a 5-11, 180-pound senior from Huntersville, gave us everything you could ask of a co-captain this season. He was "our Joe Morrision," playing both offense and defense and undoubtedly hurting his chances of making All-Conference because he did split his time at two positions. When you talk about unselfish, you're talking about George. Not only did he do everything — run back kicks and punts, play cornerback on defense and tailback on offense — but he did it with a nagging injury. He sprained an ankle so badly that our trainer said most players would be sidelined for three weeks. George Whitley played the next week. Against West Texas State he played offense for first time in six years and ran for 96 yards. An intense, rugged competitor, George had a collision with West Virginia's Bob Gresham that rattled Ficklen Stadium. Gresham outweighed George by 40 pounds, but our man Whitley set him back on his car. He's got to be an All-Conference defensive back.

(4) Billy Wallace, a 6-0, 200-pound junior from Edenton, who is the best blocking back in the conference and one of the top three runners in our league. He is really an excellent blocker. Billy made a lot of clutch plays for us this fall, although he had hardly played fullback at all last year. He also is a real good pass receiver. I'd classify him as an all-around back, not flashy, just the unselfish workhorse who does whatever he's asked to do. He rushed for over 100 yards three times this year — against West Texas, N. C. State and Furman. I'm glad he'll be back next fall.

(5) Dick Corrada, a 6-0, 185-pound senior from Richmond, Va., broke every school pass catching record this year. Against Southern Illinois he caught 14 passes — the second best single game performance in the nation this year. Dick is an extremely intelligent man who responded very well to Coach Sonny Randle's teaching. He has great hands, but only average speed. It's his moves, plus the fact that he runs excellent patterns — rarely, if ever, does he run the wrong pattern — that makes Dick such a dangerous receiver. He's No. 2 in the conference in receptions this fall and among the top 20 in the nation. He also is a very good downfield blocker — he has the courage to do this which many great receivers don't have—and he is probably our best man on punt coverage. I don't see how they can pick an All-Conference team without him this year.

Buc Frosh Honored

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Six freshmen on North Carolina football teams were selected today for recognition of their classroom achievements.

The players are Ken Moore of East Carolina University, Eddie Michael of Duke, Scott Wilson of North Carolina State, Jimmy Jerome of North Carolina, John Pennington of Wake Forest and Danny Ward of Davidson.

They will be presented scholar athlete awards at the annual dinner of the Triangle Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame in Chapel Hill Nov. 30.

Groundwork was laid yesterday at a meeting in Goldsboro for the formation of a new 4-A conference in northeastern North Carolina.

The action followed the break-up of the Eastern 4-A Conference Monday at the annual meeting in Wilmington. The six members of Division II of the conference, has been urged to merge with Division III which includes three Fayetteville, two Wilmington and the Jacksonville high schools.

The Division II schools refused, however, claiming that this would make conference play too widespread and that they preferred to stay within their own playing area.

No agreement could be made at the Wilmington meeting, so the Division II schools finally moved that the conference be broken up, and the motion was passed, despite protests from Division III schools.

Then, yesterday in Goldsboro, the six Division II members, Rose, New Bern, Kinston, Goldsboro, Wilson and Rocky Mount, met with four other schools to plan a new 4-A conference.

The other four included three from the old Northeastern 3-A, which is also apparently breaking up, Washington, Tarboro and Elizabeth City Northeastern, and a former Eastern Plains member, Northern Nash. That conference, too, is breaking up.

The ten schools voted to form a new conference, and will make petition for approval to the North Carolina High School Athletic Association in Chapel Hill. Approval is usually automatic, according to NCHSAA Executive Secretary Simon Terrell. Superintendents from each of the school units involved, who were attending the Goldsboro meeting, are to write to Terrell requesting such approval.

The athletic directors of the 10 schools will meet in Greenville on November 30 to set the schedule for the new league, to be called the North Atlantic 4-A Conference. Plans call for the league to move into operation beginning next fall.

The schools involved will continue to operate within their present conferences for the remainder of this school year, through basketball and baseball seasons.

Offer Premiere Of New Kosteck Work

A new composition by East Carolina University Composer-in-Residence Dr. Gregory Kosteck will receive its world premiere in Philadelphia at Temple University on Nov. 20.

Barbara Haffner, cellist with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, is the guest soloist for the work, which will be presented in concert at 8:15 p.m. in Mitten Memorial Hall.

The 85 piece Temple Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Keith Brown in the first public performance of "Clouds", the title Dr. Kosteck has given his composition for percussion and strings.

Following the Kosteck premiere, the orchestra will present a program of two other pieces, a Brahms concerto and a symphonic study by Sir Edward Elgar.

Dr. Kosteck has received numerous compostion awards, including the International Prix Musical de Perugia Russoni in 1970; the 1969 silver medal of the International Prix Musicale Concours Elizabeth de Belgique and the Spoleto Festival of Two Worlds first prize in 1965. These are all international prizes for which composers from many countries are in competition.

Kosteck received his bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland and both his master's and doctor's degree from the University of Michigan.

Several new Kosteck compostions have been premiered in the last year at East Carolina University concerts.
