

Former Foes Changed Minds

Dismissal Of Sec. Hickel Dismays Conservationists

By STAN BENJAMIN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservationists who were horrified at the appointment of Walter J. Hickel as secretary of the interior...

indication of its modern evolution from a Western landlord to a nationwide resource manager.

Morton's nomination will go to the Senate early next year, said White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Meanwhile, Undersecretary Fred J. Russell, a former industrialist, California real estate operator and—like Hickel—a self-made millionaire, is to serve as acting secretary of the Interior.

Morton's nomination can be expected to have smoother sailing through the Senate than Hickel's did.

Hickel, then governor of Alaska, was viewed with suspicion by conservationists when he arrived in Washington as Nixon's nominee to the Interior post in December 1968.

Widely viewed as a resource-exploiter and a pawn of oil interests, Hickel was grilled for days by the Senate Interior Committee and was the last Cabinet member confirmed.

But former foes have changed their minds and now express admiration for Hickel's efforts to protect the environment.

The official White House explanation, after a half-hour meeting between the President and Hickel, was a lack of "mutual confidence."

Environment-minded observers in Congress and conservation groups put a more specific interpretation on it: Hickel took his job seriously, was too independent, and so became a maverick in the Nixon administration.

There was little comment, however, on the President's announced intention to appoint Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, R-Md., chairman of the Republican National Committee, to the Interior job.

Hickel, in a brief statement to newsmen, said, in effect, he found it impossible to play the White House kind of game.

"The President personally terminated me about two hours ago," Hickel said. "There is really nothing I can say at this time that would help the situation, and nothing I would say to hurt it."

"Given the hostility toward me when I first arrived, as you people know so well, and some of those incredible decisions I had to make immediately thereafter, trying to do a job for the President and all Americans, and still somehow survive as an individual, I had to do it my way."

Almost unnoticed in the furor over Hickel's dismissal was the fact Morton would become the first secretary of the Interior from an Eastern state in the department's 121-year history—an

Pitt Leading Area Growth

By CAROL TYER Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County differs from the counties that surrounds it in that it is the only one which has experienced growth during the past decade, according to preliminary Bureau of Census figures released by the Carolina Population Center in Chapel Hill.

Its population increased 2.9 percent to 71,991. Nearby counties and their percentages of decrease were as follows: Wilson—57,328, a 0.7 percent decrease; Edgecombe—50,607, a 6.7 percent decrease; Martin—24,050, an 11.4 percent decrease; Pamlico—8,790, a 10.8 percent decrease; Lenoir—53,991, a 2.3 percent decrease; and Greene—14,775, an 11.8 percent decrease; and Nash—57,233, a 6.2 percent decrease.

Figures were released on all towns in the county with populations of a thousand or over. Greenville led the county in increased population—28,522 an increase of 24.8 percent. Others are Farmville with 4,352, an 8.9 percent increase; Ayden with 3,342, a 7.5 percent increase; Winterville with 1,345, a 5.2 percent decrease; Grifton with 1,837, a 1.2 percent increase; and Bethel with 1,527, a 3.2 percent decrease.

Although Greenville's population did not surpass its larger neighbors, Wilson and Rocky Mount, it was far and away the biggest gainer percentage-wise. Wilson's population was recorded as 29,325, showing a 2 percent gain and Rocky Mount's was 33,297 showing a 3.6 percent gain. Greenville's gain was two-tenths of a point shy of 25 percent.

Other nearby larger towns and their populations and percentages of change are as follows: Kinston—21,840 a 12 percent decrease; Washington—8,633, a 13.2 percent decrease; Williamston—6,463, a 6.7 percent decrease; Goldsboro—26,373, an 8.7 percent decrease.

According to Miss Peggy Marrow of the Carolina Population Center, these figures are accurate as of April, 1970. Final tallies should be ready by the end of December, she said.

"There seems to be an exodus from the Eastern counties to the Piedmont and the North," she said. "Also, the small towns seem to be losing to their larger neighbors or to faraway urban areas."

Pitt County is one of the few Eastern counties that has shown signs of in-migration in recent years. According to figures released by the State Planning Division of the North Carolina Department of Administration, some 714 persons entered Pitt County to live between July 1, 1968 and July 1, 1969. This was with births and deaths accounted for, of course.

More babies were born in Pitt County in 1969 than in 1968 and fewer deaths occurred. According to records of the Pitt County Health Department there were 1,331 births in the county in 1968 and some 704 deaths, not counting fetal deaths which number 21. The births in 1969 number 1,414; deaths, not counting the 23 fetal deaths, 686.

The county's growth percentage—2.9 percent in no way equaled the state's, which was 8.7 percent. The national percentage of growth was 8.9 percent.

The national figure represents the smallest growth for a decade since the Civil War. The greater number of smaller families and the wider knowledge and use of family planning methods seems to be the reason for this smaller growth, Miss Marrow said.

Paused To Save 2 Fliers

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commandos who fruitlessly tried to rescue Americans held in a North Vietnamese prison camp stopped on their way home to pluck two downed fliers from Laotian jungles, the Pentagon has disclosed.

A spokesman said Wednesday the helicopter-borne rescue team was alerted to the location of airmen from the F-105 fighter plane while the main mission at the Son Tay prison camp was still in progress.

The fliers apparently were picked up within hours after they went down.

"These guys just happened to be coming by with helicopters and were in the right place at the right time," the spokesman said.

In making the disclosure, the spokesman gave the first official word that some of the elite Air Force and Army Special Forces rescue team members returned to ground bases in either Thailand or Laos.

There was some speculation that the dramatic rescue effort was launched from carriers in the Tonkin Gulf.

The Pentagon spokesman said the commando unit was alerted by radio and ordered to make the pickup.

American planes routinely fly over Laos pounding North Vietnamese supply lines and looking for targets on reconnaissance missions. Crew members carry homing devices in their flight suits which signal their locations to the rescue helicopters.

The American Command in Saigon had announced Sunday an F-105 crashed and was destroyed early Saturday in the Plain of Jars region of north-central Laos. Spokesmen said the crew members were recovered in good condition, and blamed the crash on mechanical problems.

Concern Over Pope's Health

By EDWARD MAGRI Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI left today for a 10-day journey to Asia and the Pacific amid criticism from many Roman Catholics and concern over whether he is well enough to go.

The Pope was smiling as he waved goodbye from his open limousine to an audience of about 500 persons in St. Peter's Square. But he was wan, and some witnesses felt his smile looked forced. There were dark circles under his eyes.

Wearing a white overcoat and a white skullcap, the Pope stood and waved as the crowd cried, "Happy journey!" A motorcade then sped him from Vatican City to the Rome airport, where a chartered airliner waited to carry him on his ninth and longest trip abroad.

At the airport, he once again rejected criticism of his trip and called it "an order of the Lord."

"In the moment that we leave," he told Italian premier Emilio Colombo and a crowd of several hundred well-wishers, "perhaps your thoughts are formed in questions."

WALTER HICKEL

"Our departure has nothing to do with tourism or the desire to discover new lands."

The pontiff said God has ordered Christians to "go and teach all the people. It is the mission itself of Jesus that continues."

Then, he walked unassisted up the steps to the green and white jetliner, turned unsmiling to wave at the applauding crowd, and walked inside.

On the eve of the trip, the 73-year-old pontiff was pronounced in "perfect health" and fit for his 25,000-mile journey to eight countries. He has covered 44,462 miles in the other eight tours during his seven-year reign.

The remark on the pontiff's health, issued by the Vatican late Wednesday night and quoting his personal physician, was prompted by a comment made by Eugene Cardinal Tisserant. The cardinal said in a French television interview that the Pope was "visibly ill" and had to be supported after a public audience Nov. 18.

The Vatican, quoting the Pope's personal physician, denied the statements.

Special Commando Group Home Again

By EDWARD CODY Associated Press Writer

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — The 102 Green Berets who had a hand in the U. S. commando raid into North Vietnam have come home for Thanksgiving.

A rush of wives and children greeted the men when they stepped from three C123 transport planes Wednesday at Pope Air Force Base.

None would discuss the fruitless prisoner of war rescue mission carried out last Friday.

"We're going to do it again, maybe," said Lt. Col. Thorne Marlow, a Pentagon information officer who accompanied the soldiers. "So we're not going to say anything."

The Berets, all stationed at Ft. Bragg, in eastern North Carolina, had been gone since early August preparing for the raid on a North Vietnamese POW camp about 23 miles west of Hanoi.

An undisclosed number of raiders helicoptered into the camp in a surprise 2 a. m. attack, the Army said. But they found the compound vacated.

Marlow said all the Green Berets who returned to Ft. Bragg had been "involved" in the daring rescue attempt.

He said some had not set foot on North Vietnamese soil but had played various supporting roles.

Marlow said an undisclosed number of Air Force personnel in the mission already had returned to their stations at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Asked from where the Green Berets were arriving, where they had been since the raid or where they were based during the four-month training period, Marlow replied: "No com-

He said the men's wives believed their husbands were on a field training mission until news of the raid broke Monday. In addition to embraces and kisses from their families, the men received an official welcome from Brig. Gen. Henry M. Emerson, deputy commanding general of the John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance, Green Beret headquarters.

The commander of Green Berets on the mission, Col. Arthur D. Simmons 52, was in Washington Wednesday to receive the Distinguished Service Cross from President Nixon. Also awarded medals at the White House ceremony were the overall commander, Air Force Brig. Gen. Leroy J. Manor, 49, of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and two enlisted men.

State Sen. Scott Asks Prompt Hearing On Vote

RALEIGH (JAP) — State Sen. Ralph Scott has called on the State Board of Elections to grant him a hearing at the earliest possible moment on the board's latest actions in the disputed race for the state Senate in Alamance County.

On Tuesday, the board voted to eliminate 32 paper ballots marked outside of polling places in the Nov. 3 election in which Scott led Republican Hubert Lowe by only 13 votes.

Scott said in a petition he presented the board Wednesday that it had acted illegally in allowing an attorney for Lowe to appear Tuesday and present new evidence.

Scott said he "had no notice whatever...of any hearing to be held by the N.C. Board of Elections with reference to the Alamance County Board of Elections."

He pointed out that the state board last Saturday "openly announced and formally reported" it has rejected Lowe's appeal of a ruling by the Alamance County board that Scott was the winner by 13 votes.

Scott, uncle of Gov. Bob Scott, was chairman of the Senate Finance Committee during the 1968 General Assembly and was regarded as the No. 1 Republican target in their election drive this year.

The Alamance County board, meanwhile, was asking the state board for "clarification, advice and direction" on the action it should take on the motion approved by the state board Tuesday.

H. Clay Hemric, chairman of the Alamance Board, said he believed the state board had acted illegally and said he would seek a rehearing.

Top $100,000

At Thanksgiving, the latest report of the Pitt County United Fund campaign shows the total pledges and contributions have now passed the $100,000 mark.

The report shows a total of $101,196.94 pledged for the 1970-71 fund—against a goal of $126,000 for this year.

A breakdown by division, chairman, and amounts collected for each division reveals:

Table with 3 columns: Division, Chairman, Amount Collected. Lists divisions like Advance County, ECU, Goal Buster Industrial, Leadership, Special Gifts, Professional A, B, and their respective chairmen and amounts.

The above report covers collections and pledges reported through Tuesday, according to campaign chairman Joseph O. Clark. "Naturally we are pleased we have reached this mark in our campaign," Clark said. "However, as always, the last part will be the hardest to raise."

Clark noted, "The majority of the balance of nearly $26,000 will have to come from the large number of still uncommitted individuals or smaller businesses, since most of our larger industries and business firms have already made their contributions."

Citing another Greenville firm which has again passed the 100 per cent mark, Clark commented "I should like to congratulate the management and employees of Garner - Wynne - Manning, Inc. of Greenville for once again participating 100 per cent with their overall contribution surpassing that of last year."

Clark and other officials have not given a firm indication when the drive will be ended, but have expressed a hope that the final stage can be completed at an early date.

Report Egypt Put On Alert

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The newspaper Al Jarida reported today that Egypt has put its land, air and naval forces on maximum alert to face a "war-like" Israeli buildup of troops and armor east of the Suez Canal.

The newspaper's Cairo correspondent said the Israeli buildup was revealed by recent Egyptian spy flights over the Sinai Desert.

The paper quoted a senior Egyptian government source as saying the cease-fire along the canal "is now passing through its most critical hours."

Al Jarida asserted that Egyptian planes carried out a series of high-altitude reconnaissance flights over Israeli positions east of the canal over the weekend. It said the flights lasted 24 hours.

Egypt has denied that the flights were made.

Al Jarida said the aerial reconnaissance photos "showed a warlike Israeli buildup that included tanks, heavy artillery, amphibious craft, troop carriers and mobile rocket launchers along the rear line of Israeli canal positions."

It said the Egyptians believe Israel is planning a pre-emptive attack.

Readers Give Thanks For Blessings Furriers And Others Trying To Deter Old 'Status Symbol'

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Today is the day to reflect and give special thanks for our blessings. My personal blessings are many. May I share with you a few letters for which I am extremely thankful.

Happy Thanksgiving!

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Your short-lived "romance" is over. Your newly found sweetheart, Sol Shecter, died on August 3, prematurely, at the tender age of 86½. I say "tender age" because Sol was perennially young, and he argued and fought and made up and kissed like a young boy because he had his big two-cents in everything, nothing daunted him, and we loved him for his "joie-de-vivre."

So, why am I telling you this? Because I want you to know that in the short period you corresponded with him, I wish you could have seen the glow you brought to his eyes in the last stages of his terminal illness—how he chirped around with pride when he discovered [or was informed] that you had alluded to him [who else?] in one of your columns, and how we had to make extra copies of the correspondence that went on between you two, so he could show it around with a huff and a puff.

You brought this little, old, endearing, effervescent man a few extra hours of happiness, Abby, and surely just rewards must come to a person like yourself who, despite the pressures of your professional life, can take the time to respond to another human heart.

HELEN SCHAFFS (MRS. S.)
PARK VIEW HOME, CHICAGO, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is to thank you for the two letters in today's Portland Oregonian, concerning the woman who wants to have her cat buried with her, and your replies to each.

At the present time, I am having "deep water" to go thru as I decided to remain with the husband I wrote you about two years ago. [I received from you a very heart-warming personal reply.]

Your column made me laugh aloud today—something I seldom do. Thank you for being you.

MRS. C. IN PORTLAND

DEAR ABBY: I am a 69-year-old man who has been around quite a bit and have always been able to take care of my own problems, so what am I writing to you for?

To say God bless you, and thank you from the bottom of my heart for your column in the Las Vegas Review-Journal yesterday.

You see, I have been a very sick man for the last three years. I had to give up all enjoyable activities, am on a very strict diet and I live in constant pain. I had not smiled or laughed for three years. Then I read your column [I never miss it] and two letters, one right after the other, struck me so funny, I burst right out laughing. I laughed for one hour—until the tears ran down my face, then I called up a friend and asked her to go dancing. And Abby, we went, and had a wonderful time.

She asked, "What happened to you? Did your doctor give you a new pain killer or what?" I said, "No, laughter is the best medicine and Dear Abby wrote the prescription." Then I showed her your column, and we both laughed for the rest of the evening.

How can I thank you?

DICK SULMAN

DEAR DICK: You just did!

DEAR ABBY: This is a fan letter—the first I've ever written to anyone.

Of course, I have my problems, but who doesn't? I have a fat, lazy stepson who is 28, won't hold a job and thinks his Dad owes him a living. Then there's my daughter in law who thinks I'm made of money. I solved that by telling her to get lost.

I've just enjoyed your column in the Austin, Tex., evening paper so much I had to tell you.

How about that Italian lady with the Irish husband who put an ad in the paper saying, "Marie, Come Home, the Dog Misses You." What a wonderful sense of humor.

My husband is half Irish and that sounds like something he would do. And I'd love it.

Your column makes my day. Thanks for making my happy life happier.

Couple Honored Saturday Night

Miss Debra Jones and Tom Barrington, whose marriage will take place in December, were honored by Mrs. S. R. Spain Jr. at her home on Saturday night.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Ashley Jones and Mrs. Lee Dennis, aunts of the bride-elect.

A pink and white theme was used in decorating the house. Mrs. Russell Jones and Mrs. Rhondell Barrington, mothers of the bride and groom, received the gifts.

The refreshment table was covered with an imported lace cloth and centered with a wedding bell trimmed with sprays of lily-of-the-valley.

The honorees were presented a gift of china in their chosen pattern.

Good-byes were said to Mrs. Judy Jones, sister-in-law of the honoree.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Andreoli and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Barrington.

By ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA-UPI

More and more people are rushing to the aid of those animals unfortunately blessed with beautiful fur, but this probably does not signal the end of one of mankind's most persistent status symbols.

When the furriers union last summer announced in New York an agreement not to handle the skins of such species as leopards, ocelots and jaguars, another blow was struck against a fashion which echoes back to the dawning of history.

Fur, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, has been valued in almost every civilization as an ornament or decoration.

In Medieval Europe fur was emphatically a luxury. It was forbidden by the church to all but the highest ecclesiastics and among the laity possession or wearing of furs was regulated by law.

Women Get Into the Act None but those of royal blood were allowed to wear certain furs, and in general a man's social importance could be gauged by the amount and nature of his furs. Not until later did the women get into the act. When they did, the symbolizing if anything became even stronger.

Starting Young In Hostess Role

KNOTTINGLEY, England (WNS) — Gillian Furniss, only nine years old, became the youngest First Lady in England when her divorced father became head of the city council here. "I'll be hostess at all his receptions except those that interfere with classes at school," she announced. "It will be good training because I intend to enter politics as soon as I grow up." Her first job: to open the new sewage plant and officiate at the luncheon that follows.

Millions of foxes, ermine, seals and other furry creatures have been sacrificed to enhance the fashionability of wealthy women around the world, but in the United States mink won the highest place among most status strivers after World War II, and by the early 1960s accounted for about 75 per cent of the fur trade.

Leopards also are among the "endangered species" of the world, as are otters, cheetahs and polar bear. Governments, including the United Nations, have ongoing programs to prevent slaughter of a large assortment of animals unlucky enough to have luxuriant pelts.

Over 80 countries on six continents contribute to the world's pelt supply. Nearly 80 varieties of furs can be made into apparel.

North America is the home of the greatest variety of fur bearers, the frozen wastelands, forests and marshes harboring a vast fortune in fox, bear, otter, sable and lynx. The United States has 40 different types, including muskrat, beaver and raccoon.

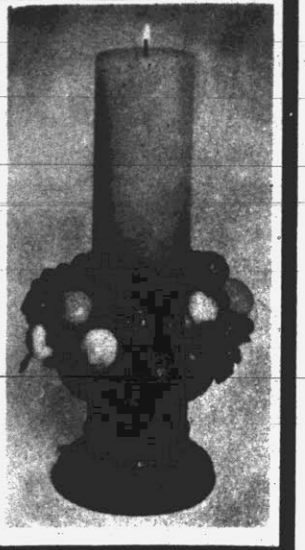

But furs traded on the market originate primarily from ranches or fur farms.

Among other animals ranches for their fur are foxes, chinchillas and martens. But, contrary to what you may think of your neighbor's new coat, only a very few rabbits are raised for their fur.

Upton-Spear Vows Said Serve Yam Puffs With Your Holiday Turkey

Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Karen Denise Spear and William Eugene Upton Wednesday at 2:00 p.m.

The Rev. Troy Barrett, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Paul Toll.

The church altar vases were filled with large white mums and pom poms. At the altar were two cornet candelabra with thirty-eight candles and springerli greenery. Pews were marked with white satin bows. White carpet was rolled out for the bridal party.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Richard S. Spear of Greenville and the late Dr. Spear and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Upton of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by Col. Milton E. Godfrey. She wore an original gown of bridal satin designed with an empire A-line styled skirt with Venice lace bib, front and back. The gown had a high lace neckline and full bishop sleeves with Venice lace trimmed cuffs. The front was adorned with lace panels and small satin buttons down the center front.

She wore a matching lace trimmed mantilla of illusion flowing chapel length. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids, carnations and miniature yellow sweetheart roses tied with yellow and white satin.

Mrs. Leroy Nichols of Argentina, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, and Miss Lynn Nichols of Argentina, niece of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

The attendants wore two-tone dresses of sapphire blue designed with a blue velvet bodice with long sleeves and high neckline attached to a sky blue chiffon skirt. They wore matching headpieces and carried nosegays of yellow daisy pom poms with tips of yellow net accented with Baker's fern tied with narrow yellow streamers.

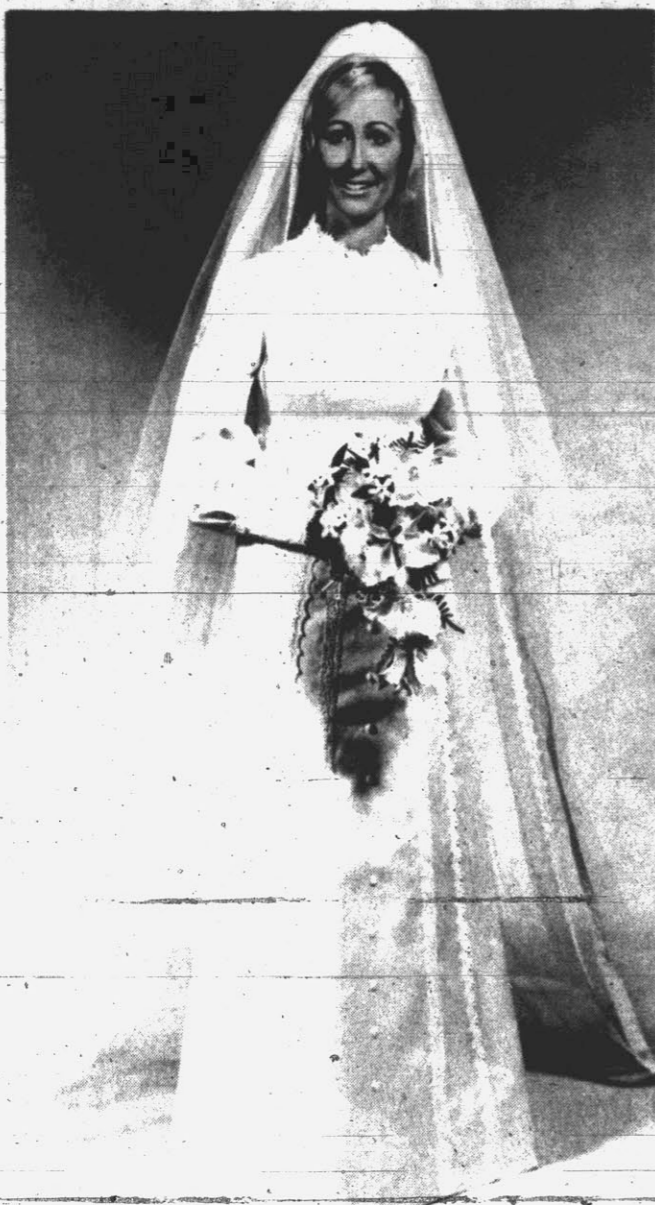

Kenneth R. Dail of Colonial Heights, Va., uncle of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Tony Nichols of Argentina, nephew of the bridegroom, and Duffy Lincoln of Greenville.

The mother of the bride chose a sky blue sheath dress with a cowl neckline and long sleeves with lace inserts. She wore a lavender orchid corsage.

The mother of the bridegroom selected an ensemble of ice blue accented with rhinestones on the collar. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. The grandmothers wore white rose corsages.

Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of

MRS. WILLIAM EUGENE UPTON

Rose High School and is attending East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and East Carolina University.

He is employed as an engineer with Carolina Tel and Tel Co. The bridal party was honored at a rehearsal dinner held at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Bride-Elect Entertained

GRIFTON — Miss Rebecca June Packer of Clinton, bride-elect of Joseph Milton Hart Jr., was honored at an informal party Saturday morning.

Hostesses were Mrs. Sam Nelson, Mrs. Edward Hart, Mrs. Roger Johnson and Mrs. Conrad Hart.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Nelson and presented to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. W. L. Packer, and Mrs. J. M. Hart Sr., mother of the bridegroom-elect. They wore white mum corsages, gifts of the hostesses.

The dining table was covered with an embroidered lace trimmed cloth and centered with an arrangement of white gladioli and pom poms. The house was decorated with arrangements of pink and red fall flowers.

Mrs. Edward Hart served ice drinks and was assisted by Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Conrad Hart.

The honoree was remembered with a gift by the hostesses.

Special guests were Miss Dianne Packer, sister of the honoree, and Mrs. Lottie Packer of Clinton, grandmother of the bride-elect.

Promise Broken For Good Reason

VERNON, France (WNS) — Last year Mme. Clemence Huilan promised her husband that she would never hitch-hike again after having her handbag stolen by the lady driver who picked her up. But the other day while walking in the forest with her mother, she suffered labor pains and quickly gave birth to a baby boy. Her mother hitched a ride to the nearest hospital for Mme. Huilan and her young son. "There are times when women must have the privilege of breaking promises," agreed the new father.

yams with roast turkey. Canned? Plain mashed or baked?

This year we suggest you offer a Pineapple Yam Puff with the holiday bird. You can prepare the dish a day ahead, then all you'll have to do an hour before your holiday dinner is to bake the yam puff in a moderate oven.

In this recipe the yams are pared before cooking instead of being cooked in their skins—the cooking direction most often given. We suggest the paring method because when the yams are cooked this way their color is a little better than when cooked with skins on and then peeled.

PINEAPPLE YAM PUFF
4 large (2 pounds) yams
¼ cup (½ of a quarter-pound stick) butter
¼ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 can (9 ounces) crushed pineapple, undrained
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 eggs
Toasted pecan halves for garnish, if desired
Pare yams, dropping them into cold water; cut each yam in half crosswise. Place yams in a large saucepot and cover with boiling water; cover and boil 30 minutes or until tender when pierced with a fork. Drain. Put through food mill, placed over the large clean saucepot, to mash.

In a small skillet melt the butter; add the brown sugar and heat, stirring, until bubbly; stir into mashed yams adding undrained pineapple, the orange rind, salt and nutmeg.

In a small mixing bowl beat the eggs until thick and ivory color; fold into yam mixture.

Turn into an ungreased deep casserole or soufflé dish (about 1½ quarts). Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven about 1 hour or until heated through and top is slightly crusted. If used, garnish with pecan halves.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.
NOTE: Dish may be prepared ahead; in this case, cover and refrigerate until time to bake.

A Uniquely American Holiday

Today is Thanksgiving and on this uniquely American holiday perhaps it is time to consider for a moment how blessed we are.

It is true that there are those who are poor in our country and there are some who do not get enough to eat. For most of us, though, this vast country provides ample, even sumptuous, food. Comparatively few of us even know what it is to go to bed hungry at night and starvation is rare in our country. There are vast areas of the world where this is not the case.

We enjoy freedoms which are not even understood in many nations. We can say unkind things about our government officials or level needed criticism at them and if they do not respond we can throw them out in periodic elections.

We live in a nation where we can usually pursue whatever career that appeals to us and, after paying taxes and taking care of necessities, we can spend the money we make on whatever luxuries that we like.

Our country has been involved in an agonizing war for some years. At the same time it has not been necessary to totally mobilize in 25 years and a precarious peace has been maintained between the super powers of the world during all that time.

There are areas of our country which have become wretched because of water and air pollution. Still there are vast areas which are still relatively untouched by the manmade ravages. Thus we can hope that we have tackled environmental problems in time to save our surroundings.

The automobile has polluted our air but there is reason to believe that stringent laws can control these problems. And the automobile has made it possible for millions of Americans to see their country from ocean-to-ocean.

Today and every day all Americans should be conscious of the many problems that we have. We should concern ourselves with them and demand solutions for them from our elected leaders. But this day particularly, all Americans should give thanks to God, in whatever way each of us worships, for all of the good things that have come our way.

Pitt Tech Role Sees A Wide Acceptance

It is interesting that Pitt Technical Institute's enrollment includes students from 33 counties for the fall quarter.

Sixteen Pitt County high schools, 106 state high schools, 13 out-of-state high schools and one foreign high school are represented among the students enrolled.

The technical institutes and community colleges which have been established across North Carolina reach beyond county lines to offer training to our young people. Most of them are getting training in these institutes that they could not have obtained otherwise. The institutes are filling a vital role in North Carolina education.

Sees Crack In Political Door

By JOHN KILGO
GREENSBORO—The first black man to serve in the North Carolina General Assembly since 1899 says "the door is cracked for the black man in North Carolina politics, but it's going to take a lot of concentrated effort to get it wide open."

Rep. Henry Frye of Guilford County also says the Democrats must appoint blacks to some important decision-making positions if they hope to keep the lack vote in North Carolina.

"In the black community," Frye says, "the trend is to vote for the man rather than the Party, unless the Party can show that it is concerned with the problems facing the blacks."

Frye led the ticket in the State House race in Guilford County, getting 20,401 votes. The 38-year-old attorney will be going to Raleigh for his second term. He says he felt sure he would be reelected but leading the ticket came as a pleasant surprise.

"The Democrat Party in North Carolina saved a lot of the black vote from swinging to the Republicans when it reorganized the party structure," Frye says. "There was a feeling among many blacks that the Democrats, regardless of its reason, had to do more for blacks."

But Frye is concerned about the lack of black faces in important appointive positions across the State. He says the Democrats must tend to this business, if they expect to keep the black vote in their corner.

"Blacks are not on the higher level," Frye says. "We've got people here and there, but there would be nothing wrong with a black man heading some agency. We have two blacks serving as District Court judges, but have none on the Supreme Court, Superior Court or Court of Appeals. A black person would feel that they have a better chance of getting justice if every now and then they saw a black face on the bench. And somehow if we could spread that to Eastern North Carolina I think it would be a great thing for the State."

Frye won't be pinned down about his opinion of the Bob Scott administration. He just smiles when you ask him the question and responds: "I just hope he does better the next two years."

The Guilford County representative feels leading whites and blacks in North Carolina communities need to do more communicating, rather than waiting for a crisis to sit down and talk.

"Take the school problems," he says. "We need more advance planning. There's too much waiting until black students walk out and we send in the Highway Patrol, the National Guard and the tear gas. Integration isn't something that was just cast upon us."

Frye has served one term in the North Carolina House, and he's cautiously optimistic about what he saw.

"I would say that in comparison with other States, we are somewhat progressive," Frye says. "We're ahead of some, behind others, but we're above the average. I saw evidence in the Legislature that freshmen legislators could participate more fully than they could four years ago. We're getting away from the pure seniority system."

Frye says the people in the Legislature treated him fine in 1969 and he was generally satisfied with his committee appointments. He will be joined in the 71 Legislature by one other black man. He's the Rev. Jay Johnson of Fairmont.

Frye is often mentioned as a possible candidate for Statewide office or even for the U.S. Congress.

"I don't like losing," he says. "Before I'd run for anything else, I'd have to be shown that I'd have a pretty good chance of winning. I'm not giving any of that much serious thought at this time. I'm going back to Raleigh in January, and while I could hardly be more active than I was in 1969, I do hope to be more effective."

Strength For Today

ISSATAN AMYTH? Few people today believe in the existence of a personal devil. One recalls, however, the oft-repeated statement of the evangelist Billy Sunday. "I know there is a personal devil," Sunday often shrieked as he pounded the pulpit, "and the reason I know is that I've done business with him."

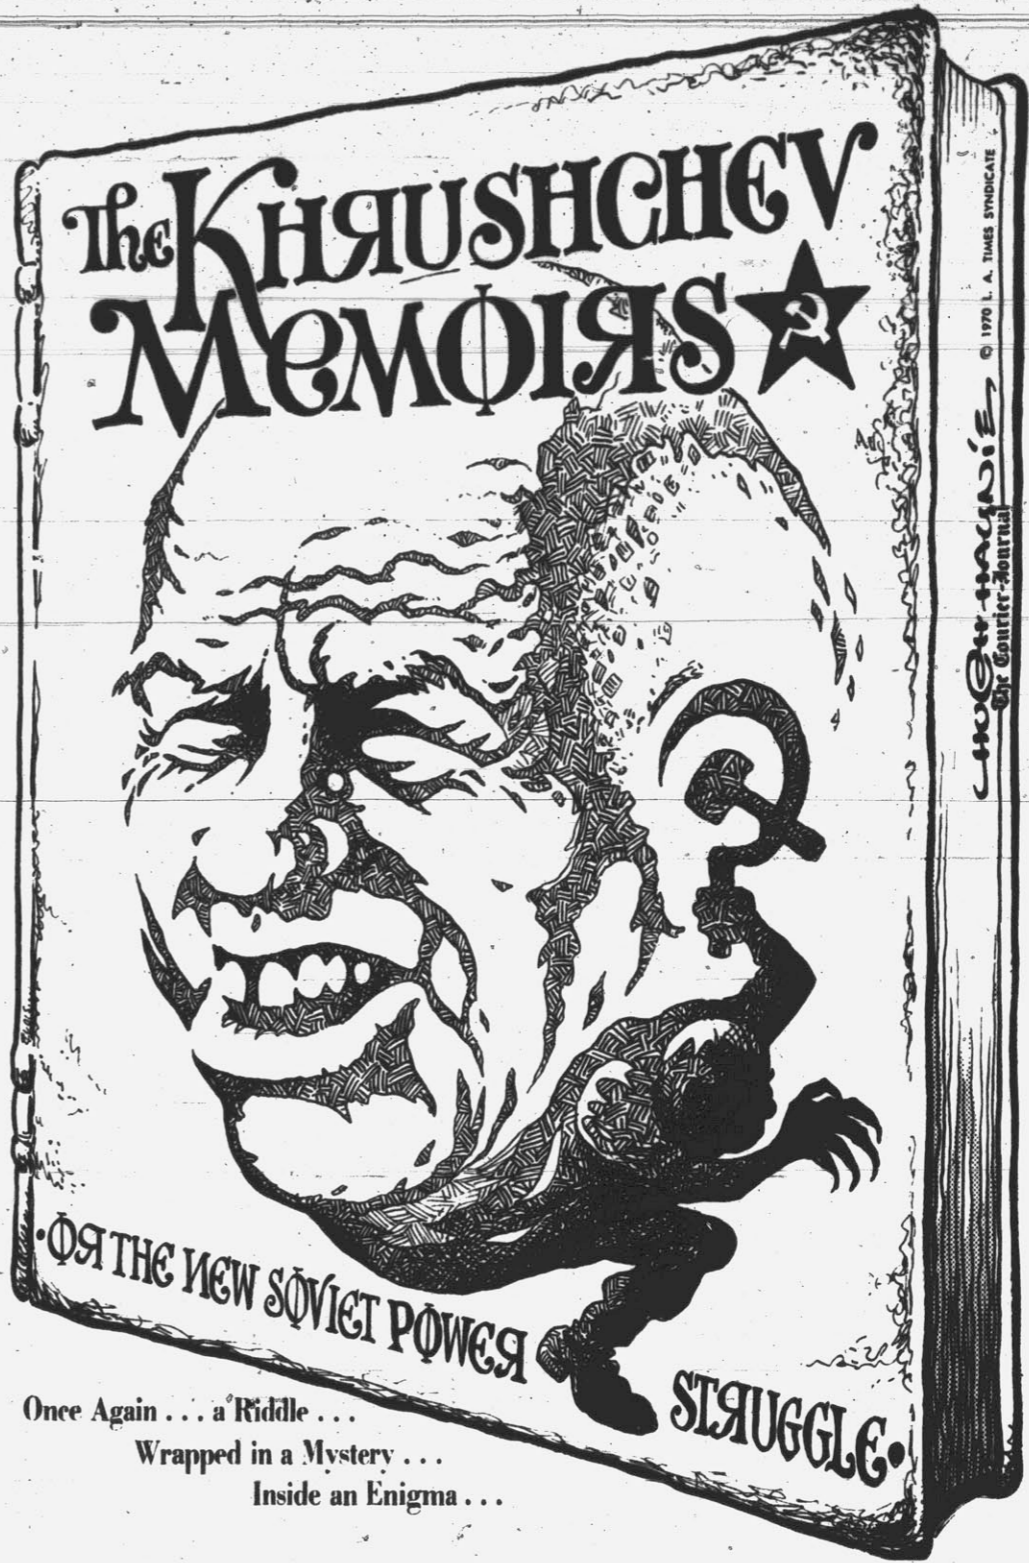

Someone has said that the smoothest piece of work the devil did was to spread the report that he had died. "Do you believe in the devil?" said a little boy to his pal. "Naw," said the other little boy. "Y'see, it's like Santa Claus, it's your Pop."

But the Bible undoubtedly teaches that a supernatural evil personality (referred to as Satan, which means "adversary") is at work contravening the plans of God and destroying men's souls. Martin Luther though he beheld Satan on one occasion and threw an inkwell at him. We may smile at Martin's excitement, but that doesn't explain away the devil.

The Bible writers knew nothing about impersonal force. To them all supernatural power was personal. They believed and taught there is a supernatural power working evil in the world, just as there is a supernatural power working for good. And even a cursory reading of the Gospels reveals that Jesus shared this belief.

Reason To Give Thanks

WICHITA, Kansas — "My husband works at Beech," the waitress said. This was at the airport, over a cup of coffee and two eggs scrambled light. She was a tall woman in early middle age, with a plain face and a nice smile, but on this overcast morning the smile was as feeble as the sunshine. "He's afraid they're headed for a big lay-off out there."

The morning paper confirmed the apprehension but not the fact. A spokesman for Beech Aircraft Corporation, in an effort to dispel rumors of a major layoff, had announced that no further cutbacks were planned for the rest of November.

"Every effort is being made to maintain as stable a work force as possible until such time as business improves," said E. C. Burns, vice president for operations. The picture for December is uncertain. The local unemployment compensation office reports that in Sedgwick County, 15,250 persons are jobless in a civilian work force of 164,650.

It has been a long time since any substantial portion of our country experienced the fear of layoff. The very word strikes terror to the heart; and this waitress in Wichita, twisting her wedding ring and gazing empty at nothing in particular on the counter, sees the world with the same troubled eyes that one encounters widely across America this fall.

I have been on the road for another ten thousand miles, and venture only to add a word of confirmation to the widespread reports of other correspondents: If these are not bad times in the United States, these are not good times either. In Portland, local school boards hear a warning from legislative leaders: Further tax increases are "out of the question." In Chicago, Mayor Daley offers a budget based upon a 15 percent boost in the property levy; he faces a chilly public reaction.

In another Western city (I have forgotten just where, and cannot find the clippings), a union spokesman is urging his members to get behind an effort to bring in a new chemical plant. True, the plant would add to local air pollution, but he has no patience with this. "Whaddya want?" he asks. "Good ecology or good jobs?"

This is part of the edginess, the uneasiness, the faint cool wind of anxiety. Here in Wichita, an aircraft worker with 30 years' experience has applied in three States for a job; he has turned up nothing so far. Meanwhile, he would like to sell his house; no takers. Another man, laid off at Beech and Boeing, has taken repeated civil service

Other Editors Say State Is Generous

(Henderson Dispatch)

Politics or not, salaries of top echelons of officials in the State government are pretty high and well in keeping with services rendered. No one can say for a certainty, but it may be that most of these public servants are being paid more than they have earned or could earn in private life.

Some, or at least one, official is in the $42,000 bracket, and half a dozen or so others are not far behind.

Revelations of these schedules has pointed attention to the fact that some or all of them have salaries in excess of the $35,000 paid to the Governor. On its face, that seems out of line, in the thinking that the chief executive should be at the top. The governorship is, of course, a political office, and is aggressively sought each quadrennium as much for the prestige and honor involved as for the salary, though that is not to be sneezed at.

Time was when it was claimed the State could not obtain the services of the best qualified men because of the low salary schedules. That is hardly true any longer. The State is far more generous than it has ever been before.

It is not difficult to find those who think the rank and file of State employes are underpaid by comparison with those entrenched in the top brackets. There may be merit in that claim.

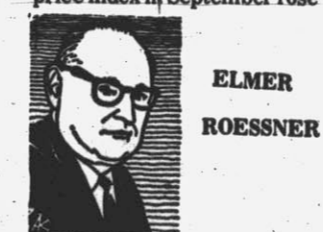

In recent years the number of departments, officials and personnel has mushroomed seemingly out of all proportion to actual necessity. It is seldom that a session of the Legislature is held without creating some new department agency or commission. So rapid is this process that construction of office quarters can hardly keep up with the demand for accommodations. The State establishment has long been in the realm of big business and is constantly escalating. Extent to which it will ultimately go is anybody's guess. But the pay is good, and financially those manage to get in on the ground floor can be considered fortunate, certainly for themselves.

Most Of Us Losers On Savings

By ELMER ROESSNER
Nobody gained anything from bank savings accounts in September. In fact, none of us gained anything in the past year.

In fact, most of us lost. That's what the government says.

The Department of Labor reported that the consumer price index in September rose 0.4 per cent which, on a seasonally adjusted basis, was 0.5 per cent. On the latter basis, that's 6.0 per cent a year. It also reported that the increase from September, 1969, was 5.6 per cent.

The Federal Reserve System, as empowered by law, has limited interest on ordinary savings accounts to 5 per cent. So every dollar in such an account, instead of "earning" 5 per cent, shrank almost half of one per cent in purchasing power in the past year.

The Sliding Dollar
And on top of all this, the gain from interest, imaginary as it is, is taxable for federal income taxes, and most state income taxes and many city income taxes.

It recalls a story of Octavius Roy Cohen's day about the slicker who opened a bank in a store in a ghetto. One man came in one day to withdraw his deposit. The banker looked up his account and said, "Sorry, son! Your interest ate up all your money."

Or, equally appropriate is the story from the same era of a farmer who bought a pig for $25 in the spring and sold it in the fall for $25. When a neighbor questioned him about the wisdom of the deal, the farmer said, "Well, I had the use of the pig all summer."

Seriously — perhaps gravely is the word — the Department of Labor calculated that, on a basis of 1957-59 prices, the consumer dollar was worth 73.2 cents in September and, on a basis of 1939 prices, it was worth 35 1/2 cents.

Of course, it is possible to get a higher rate of interest from banks on time deposits, certificates of deposits and other means. While savers with larger sums, $1,000, $10,000 and more can get higher rates of return by buying bonds, some of which are tax exempt, the law says that the little people can have no more than 5 per cent or perhaps slightly more on their savings, on which banks get 8 to 18 per cent and sometimes more.

Origin Of Tar Heel

By H. G. JONES

RALEIGH (AP) — Why are North Carolinians called "Tar Heels?"

There are several versions, none of them documented well enough to satisfy historians who generally stick to the traditional belief that the nickname came from the tar, pitch, and turpentine industry in early North Carolina.

It is not difficult to imagine travelers referring to bare-footed Carolinians from the pine forests as "Tar Heels."

North Carolinians, however, tend to be sentimental. Consequently, some of the other versions of the term are appealing.

For instance, there is the story that during one of the Civil war battles North Carolina soldiers were greeted by the retreating troops of another state with the derisive question, "Any more tar down in the Old North State, boys?" When told that "Old Jeff's bought it all up," the retreaters asked why. "He is going to put in on you-uns' heels to make you stick better in the next fight," the North Carolinians are said to have answered. According to the writer R. P. Creecy, Gen. Lee upon hearing of the incident said "God bless the Tar Heel boys."

But historian Hugh T. Lefler remembers having seen a document written prior to 1860 in which a traveler in North Carolina referred to "poor whites" as Tar Heels. The citation has been lost, however.

Richard Walsert, N.C. State University professor, recalls having seen a reference to a captured North Carolinian in 1864 as "a poor starving Tar Heel" in the military prison at Elmira, New York. Walsert also says that the nickname was made one of pride in 1864 when Gov. Vance addressed a group of soldiers in Virginia: "I don't know how to address you boys. I can't say fellow citizens because none of us are citizens of this state of Virginia. I cannot say fellow soldiers because I am not one of you. Therefore I have concluded to address you as fellow Tar Heels."

The late Kemp P. Battle, who was a president of the University of North Carolina, had still another account of the origin of the term. Down in Mississippi there was a popular game in which a coin was placed in a ring where slaves were to

Black Male Workers Content In Their Jobs

Black male workers in blue-collar jobs are somewhat more satisfied with their employment than their white co-workers, a preliminary study by three New York University psychologists indicates. The survey, paid for by the Department of Labor, also found that black workers do not harbor race-oriented animosity toward white supervisors and co-workers or have other serious adjustment problems.

The survey was made in the New York and Philadelphia area by Drs. Raymond A. Katzell, Robert B. Ewen and Abraham K. Korman.

Only Parking Meter For Miles Around Is Fun To Farm Children

BUBBLE GUM PENNIES are willingly inserted in Lookingglass' lone parking meter. Twelve minutes for a LOOKINGGLASS, Ore. (UPI)—Twelve minutes for a penny, and you can hitch two horses at a time when annual budget-making is in progress. The proposed uniform state law would move that to November, Tuesday after the first Monday. Haislip Col. . .

Most municipal balloting now comes in May, just at the time when annual budget-making is in progress. The proposed uniform state law would move that to November, Tuesday after the first Monday. Non-partisan elections, the most prevalent basis in North Carolina cities and towns, would be held in odd-numbered years. Partisan elections would be held in even-numbered years at the same time as state and county elections.

One-Time Registration
The entire registration process for municipal elections would be placed in the hands of county boards of elections. One registration would qualify the voter for all elections.

The State Board of Elections would have supervisory authority over all municipal elections. If cities chose to conduct their own elections, rather than contracting with county boards of election, they would do so through a municipal board subject to the State Board.

The non-partisan primary system now used in some 20 cities would be abolished. In cities under 5,000 conducting non-partisan elections, candidates would be elected by a plurality without a run-off. For cities over 5,000, a run-off, if necessary, would come under the rules for determining a majority now used in party primaries. That is, candidates receiving a majority would be elected; candidates receiving the highest number of votes but short of a majority would be subject to a run-off called by the candidate with the next highest number of votes.

miles around, but it is such a novelty that the farm children around here would rather put their penny in the meter than buy bubble gum.

Since it was installed in May, the meter has collected $15, according to store owner, Norman G. Niblett.

He is saving the money to build a watering trough to put in front of his 118-year-old store. Many of his customers ride horses instead of bicycles or autos to "downtown" Lookingglass.

Niblett has Plans
"After that," Niblett told UPI, "I think I'll put a street light on the front porch . . . and then maybe a pedestrian walkway signal at the intersection."

He was referring to the only intersection in this sheep ranching community in Western Oregon. The rest of Lookingglass is composed of a school, an auto repair shop, and a scattering of rural homesteads.

Niblett got the nearby city of Roseburg to donate an old parking meter. In official dance. The coin was given to the dancer who could manage to get the coin between his toes and hold it there until he could dance out of the ring. Upon inspection, one dancer who won habitually was found to have tar on his feet. According to this story, when the Mississippi troops joined North Carolinians on the battlefields of Virginia, the association of North Carolinians with tar products suggested the old game, and their new friends became "Tar Heels."

Finally, an undated newspaper clipping in the State Library says Gen. Cornwallis's Revolutionary War soldiers, fording the Tar River, found their feet black with tar that had been dumped into the stream. According to the clipping, "Their observation that anyone who waded North Carolina streams would acquire tar heels is said to have given North Carolinians the nickname of 'Tar Heels.'" examinations, "but I haven't heard from anyone."

Yet the gray picture should be overdrawn. For all its troubles, Wichita is bidding confidently for convention business; the city's central business area is undergoing transformation, with a stunning new Holiday Inn and some municipal fountains that will splash as cheerfully as Boston's. Salem, Ore., also is building a new city center. Portland has problems, but Portland has great vitality also. In most cities, campaigns for the United Givers Fund appear to be doing pretty well.

America has a vast deal to be thankful for this week. The war in Southeast Asia no longer dominates our public concerns. Crime rates appear to be trending downward. Campus violence subsides. Even at Berkeley, a three-day conference of the Young Socialist Alliance, featuring a Sunday afternoon speaker on "How to Make a Revolution," arouses no particular uproar. The Young Socialists may have gone old capitalist: They have a Saturday night banquet, complete with after-dinner speaker.

I had to charter a small plane one day, and flew for hours across a great chunk of the Pacific Northwest. It is no bad view of America — the view from 4,000 feet: Rugged hills reach up, pine-forested, and there are other reachings-up as well: Chimneys, church spires, TV towers. Small towns hang in clusters from ribboned freeways. Everywhere big trucks are rolling.

Our country has its worries; of course it does, and these ought not to be minimized in some mistaken endeavor to report the good news only. But in this week of special prayers and thanksgiving, for a relatively free land and a generally contented people, most Americans will find more in their hearts of gratitude than of dismay.

Feast Of Thanksgiving Also Day To Extend Hands

By LARRY SIMONBERG
Associated Press Writer
Thanksgiving Day has become for many Americans a time to extend a helping hand to their less fortunate countrymen. In cities and towns across the nation, they worked to make to day's feast of gratitude meaningful for those who might have reason to question the bounty of the land.

A dozen welfare recipients in Muskogee, Okla., will enjoy holiday turkeys because officials responded to their sit-in at county offices by providing each with a gobble.

In Chicago, pupils at a Roman Catholic school in a poor, black section of the city collected 150 boxes of food for the needy in a "getting it together" drive their priest hailed for its selflessness.

Students at Glendale Community College in Arizona collected money and food to help 1,200 persons, mostly migrant workers and the elderly.

Two dozen Indiana University students gave up holidays at home to tour nursing homes in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Missouri, providing entertainment.

Five boys 9 to 13 collected old bottles and newspapers and did odd jobs so that a poor family in St. Louis could have a traditional dinner.

No Job, Inflation For Returnee From Vietnam

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When GI Joe comes home from Vietnam, chances are he will find himself without a job—a victim of unemployment and war-induced inflation, a Senate labor subcommittee has been told.

In addition, witnesses testified, the stress of guerrilla warfare may have rendered the soldier at least temporarily incapable of finding his niche as a civilian.

Malcolm R. Lovell Jr., assistant secretary of labor told senators Wednesday the unemployment rate for returning veterans has leaped to at least 7 per cent, significantly higher than the jobless rate for the population as a whole.

Sen. Alan Cranston who is chairing hearings of the veterans subcommittee.

"But these men enter an economy that isn't providing enough jobs for the people already there, and there is no evidence that the administration is doing very much to provide the special individualized help our veterans require and are entitled to in this trying situation," Cranston said.

James F. Oates, chairman of the President's national Jobs For Veterans Committee, and other administration witnesses disagreed with Cranston's estimate that the government's efforts have been "scant, diffused and uncoordinated."

Dr. Gerald Caplan, a professor of psychiatry at the Harvard Medical School and senior psychiatric consultant for the Peace Corps, said veterans exposed to combat in Vietnam may require two years or more to adjust to civilian life.

Medically speaking, he said, they may well suffer such symptoms as job instability, anger, resentment, alienation, poor control over aggression, alcoholism and drug addiction.

WHALE OF A CLAIM — Walter Umenhofer collected $4,460 from the Oregon Highway Division's insurance company on a claim that his 1969 auto, pictured above, was bashed in by a chunk of flying whale blubber. Umenhofer's car was parked along a southern Oregon beach when the highway division decided to dynamite the carcass of a whale that had washed ashore. Officials hoped the blasted bits would be small enough to entice scavengers to carry them away. Well, they weren't. And they stunk besides. Umenhofer said in his claim the smell didn't do his car any good either. (AP Wirephoto)

Young Woman Shot In Exchange Of Gunfire As Police Raided

By ED TUNSTALL
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A young woman who police said exchanged gunfire with them was shot today when officers stormed a barricaded apartment held by Black Panthers.

The raid on the apartment in the Desire Street Housing Project at 1:30 a.m. resulted in the arrest of five others who police said fired at them with automatic weapons and shotguns. None of the police was injured. The raid came several hours after police arrested 25 others who had occupied the apartment several weeks and refused to heed a police order to evacuate. Police contended the militants were guilty of trespassing by occupying the apartment without paying rent in the huge, predominantly black project.

They were picked up after they left the apartment in autos rented by Jane Fonda. The wounded woman, identified by police as Betty Powell, was hit in the right chest by a pistol bullet. There was no report on her condition but police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso said doctors believed an artery might have been severed. Officers confiscated an automatic rifle, identified as being stolen in June from a Marine base in California, five shotguns, a .30-30 rifle, two dismantled shotguns, two tear gas grenades and hundreds of rounds of ammunition. All except the wounded woman were led to Central Lockup in handcuffs where they were booked with attempted murder of six police officers, aggravated battery and several lesser charges.

The raiders, nearly all of them black, were led by Giarrusso as they surrounded the apartment building where the Panthers have lived several weeks, holding classes for black children, furnishing breakfast and teaching Panther doctrines. The children have been taught to call all police officers "pigs." Giarrusso said other members of the 25-man raiding team covered the apartment with weapons while five broke down the door.

Police surrounded the apartment building last week and tried to convince those in the apartment to surrender on a charge of criminal trespass. They refused, asked for a "cooling off" period to appeal to the courts, and Giarrusso ordered his men from the scene. "We don't have to worry about the trespass charge the court is considering," Giarrusso told newsmen later. "We're talking about attempted murder now." "As far as we're concerned, we think we have most of the Panthers' cadre members," Giarrusso said. The 25 arrested Wednesday afternoon on a highway leading out of the city were in four cars rented by Miss Fonda who took part in a demonstration Tuesday in support of the militants. Harold Holmes, one of the 25 and identified as New Orleans leader of the National Committee to Combat Fascism which is identified with the Black Panthers, was charged with criminal anarchy. Giarrusso said Miss Fonda was under surveillance by detectives and they learned she rented the cars to take 19 Negroes and six whites to Washington, D.C. After their arrest, Giarrusso told newsmen: "I don't know if Miss Fonda was aware that she unwittingly helped us. I think her."

Club Campaigns For Developing Hiking Trails

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The Belleville Junior Women's Club is in a campaign to convert nearby railroad right of ways into hiking and recreation trails. Mrs. Terrell R. McLemore, conservation chairman of the club, has made a survey of trails in existence and those that could be developed.

"There are miles and miles of unused tracks in the Belleville area which could be converted to trails or parks as part of community improvement," she said.

To support her argument, she cites other trails that were developed.

One is the 30-mile Illinois Prairie Path west of Chicago in DuPage County. It utilizes the old road bed of the abandoned Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Railway.

Ivan Dixon Hurt In Movie Fall

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Ivan Dixon fell over backward and struck his head on concrete in a movie scene at Hollywood Bowl, a spokesman for the film reported.

Dixon was hospitalized and reported in satisfactory condition Wednesday.

The actor formerly played the electronics expert among the prisoners of war in the "Hogan's Heroes" television series.

In the movie, "The Clay Pigeon," he is toppled by an apparent ax blow to the stomach. An observer said, "His head snapped back and hit the concrete."

That, Too

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — One of the most relaxed turkeys in the United States lives in an Oklahoma City backyard.

This is the fifth consecutive year that the pet turkey of the A. B. Cox family has watched Thanksgiving approach without even a ruffle of a feather.

But that's not to say Tom, as he is called, doesn't await the festivities without some anticipation. He shares in today's traditional family feast.

The Coxes say Tom will enjoy a bountiful dinner of salad, celery, dressing, gravy, potatoes—and yes, some of that, too.

Will Display New Snorkel

Greenville firemen will demonstrate the department's new 85-foot snorkel at the Fire Department Drill Tower at the intersection of Skinner Street and Myrtle Avenue Sunday, beginning at 2 p.m., if weather permits.

Fire Chief Ray Smith said the demonstration is being held in order to give local residents an opportunity to see the big truck in action.

The program will include rescue and firefighting demonstrations.

Chief Smith said persons wishing seats for the demonstration should bring their own chairs.

The big truck, delivered several weeks ago, cost about $90,000 fully equipped.

It's 85-foot long boom can deliver more than 1,000 gallons of water per minute on a fire, or make rescues directly from the eighth story of building, and from higher levels with the use of a ladder, extended from the bucket at the end of the long boom.

Hog Epidemic's End In Sight

RALEIGH (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham expressed the hope Wednesday that a severe cholera epidemic that has ravaged swine herds in eastern North Carolina for several weeks is about over.

"The end of this thing is in sight," Graham said as he announced the lifting of cholera quarantines in Pitt County and a portion of Greene County. The action left quarantines in effect on some individual farms.

Quarantines are still in effect in portions of Hertford, Greene and Northampton counties.

The California Gold Rush began when gold was discovered at Sutter's Mill on the American River Jan. 24, 1848.

Rehabilitating The Drug-Users

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Twenty-five persons have been sentenced to the Kentucky Department of Mental Health in the state's new program for rehabilitating Kentuckians convicted for the first time of possession of dangerous drugs for personal use. Before the law took effect June 18, they would have been serving prison terms.

Second Half Rally By Belhaven Nips Grifton In Final Minutes

GRIFTON — Belhaven High School rallied in the final half to nip Grifton, 58-57, last night in basketball between the two schools. The Grifton girls, however, rolled to a 42-24 victory to remain unbeaten in two games.

In the girls contest, Grifton ripped off 14 points in the first period while holding Belhaven to just one point. In the second frame, the Bulldogs cooled off some, and Belhaven outscored them, 7-6, but still was far down, 20-8 at the half.

In the third period, Grifton put the game on ice, running up a 16-9 margin in the period, carrying the score to 36-17. With the reserves in the game for the Dogs, Belhaven again managed to outscore them, 7-6, in the final period.

Hazel Coles led the Grifton effort with 18 points, while Ruby Cutler had 11 for Belhaven.

In the boys game, Grifton was in control most of the way, but finally ran out of steam in the final period. The Bulldogs pulled out into a 13-9 lead in the first period of play, then outshot Belhaven, 19-12, in the second quarter. That left the Bulldogs in a 32-21 lead at halftime.

Oak City Tops Bear Grass

OAK CITY — Oak City High School picked up a pair of wins last night at the hands of Bear Grass. The boys won, 44-37, while the girls took a 45-20 victory.

The contest between the two Martin County teams, was not a conference affair.

In the girls game, Oak City pushed out into a 10-3 lead in the first period and was never in trouble after that. Oak City again outscored Bear Grass, 12-10, in the second quarter for a 22-13 lead at the half.

In the third period, Oak City pushed through 14 points while the Lady Bears could manage but two. That made the lead 36-15 as the final period got underway. Oak City again outthrew Bear Grass, 9-5, in the final frame.

In the boys contest, it was about the same. Oak City gained a 13-6 lead in the first period, but then had to fight off a Bear Grass rally in the second period. The Bears outscored Oak City, 16-12, but still trailed, 25-22 at the half.

The third period meant the difference as Oak City outthrew Bear Grass, 12-8, running the lead out to 37-30. Both teams hit seven points each in the final period.

Bertie Runs By Greene Central

SNOW HILL—Northeastern Conference power Bertie rolled to a 62-43 victory over Greene Central High School last night. It was the first loss in two starts for the Rams.

Bertie did most of the damage in the first and last periods of play. In the opening frame, they held Greene Central to only five points while ripping the nets for 22 of their own. In the second frame, however, things were quite different. Greene Central still was unable to get going, scoring only nine, but Bertie managed only six. That cut the halftime margin to 28-14.

In the third period, Greene Central managed to chip away a few more points from the lead, outthrew Bertie 15-12. But that still left the Rams trailing, 40-29. Then, in the final period, Bertie poured it on again, outshooting

Snead Is ECU Guest

Norman Snead, quarterback for the Philadelphia Eagles, and a former Wake Forest University star, will be the speaker for the East Carolina University football banquet, to be held December 7.

Coach Mike McGee, winding up his first season at East Carolina, said the banquet would be held at 6 p.m. at the Candlewick Inn. Tickets for the banquet are on sale now at Hodges Hardware, North Carolina National Bank, Wachovia Bank and Coffman's Men's Ware.

"The banquet has been timed to be over by 7:45 so that those interested in attending the East Carolina - Baptist College basketball game at Minges Coliseum will be able to," McGee said.

Season Seen As Rebuilding One For Inexperienced Rose Cagers

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

The 1970-71 basketball season at Rose High School must be listed as one of rebuilding for coach O. A. Meteye and his Rampants.

There is only one starter back from last year's team, forward Charlie Harris.

And there are only three other lettermen around, none of whom have a great deal of experience. "We are extremely light on experience," Meteye said. "We have 11 newcomers among the 15 we are carrying on the team."

Joining Harris as lettermen are Carlton Daniels, Jimmy Hagans and Drew Rumbley, all of whom saw limited action last season as reserves.

Harris is expected to return to his forward position this year, and will probably bear the brunt of the Rampant scoring punch. He averaged around 17 points per game last season as one of the top scorers on the team that finished in a tie for third place in the Division II standings of the Eastern 4-A.

In the center position, Meteye has two candidates, 6-5 senior Sylvester Tyson, and sophomore Allen Whichard, 6-4. Tyson played for the junior varsity last season, while Whichard didn't play at all, leaving very little experience here at all.

The other forward post is up for grabs by several players. Among these are Lonnie Peyton, a sophomore, and upperclassmen Rumbley, Robert Carraway and Clarence Snuggs. Carraway was a starter for the junior varsity last year, while Snuggs was a reserve man.

There are four prime candidates for the guard positions. They include Daniels, Hagans and Tommy Williams and Robert Kear. Both Williams and Kear were starters for the junior varsity last year, and Kear was the leading scorer on the team.

Another sophomore, who led Aycock's junior high team last year, Al Hunter, had been hampered by an ankle injury, and has yet to offer a threat to one of the others for a starting berth. Meteye feels that he may be ready to challenge by the start of the new year, however.

"Things are kind of up in the air," Meteye said. "We have so little experience, and so many rookies, that we are behind in training. They've been working a lot on conditioning and fundamentals. And if things don't come around soon, I may just have to turn them loose and let them go with the ball."

Meteye said the rebounding thus far hasn't looked too good. "Without experience, players don't seem to jump as high and go to the boards as much as they should. I'm not saying that desire isn't there. It is. They'd have to have desire to stay out there and work as hard as they have."

Shooting also, is not up to par, according to the coach. "We have two real shooters, Harris and Kear, "Williams may come around and be a help here," the coach said. "But I wish he had several more weeks to work to get ready."

Defense, however, may be a bright spot. "I'm not really sure," Meteye said. "It's looked good in practice, but I don't know whether it's because we're playing good defense or poor offense. I'll find out when we play somebody."

So the key for this year lies in how quickly the Rampants come around in their experience and maturity. As it stands now, there is a long way to go. But there is also a lot of basketball to play between now and tournament time.

Ragazzo, Claiborne Among Fired Coaches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Five college football coaches were looking for new jobs today after either resigning or being fired from their posts on Thanksgiving Eve.

Bob Odell, coach at Pennsylvania since 1965, and Jerry Claiborne, who had coached Virginia Tech football for 10 years, both resigned. Fred Taylor of Texas Christian, Vito Ragazzo at Virginia Military and Gayton Salvucci of American International were dismissed.

Odell said he was leaving Penn to give himself time to think about his future. "I've been coaching for 24 years," he said, "and I felt this was the time to sit back and review my career."

Claiborne, whose Tech teams compiled 61 victories, 39 defeats and two ties, had been expected to resign ever since mid-season when he had been told he would not be retained by the school. He issued a statement in which he said "Mutual trust and reciprocal confidence in relation to the administration" had been missing since mid-season.

Taylor will remain with TCU for Saturday's final game of the season against Southern Methodist. The Horned Frogs have compiled a 14-25-1 record under him since he took over the club in 1966.

A feud between Ragazzo and Lieutenant General George R.E. Shell, VMI's superintendent, led to the coach's dismissal. "I'm real disgusted," said Ragazzo, "you tell the team what should be done, how to approach football. Then something like this comes along and knocks the bottom out of everything."

VMI has won just one game in the last two seasons.

Salvucci, coach at American International for 15 years, compiled a 49-78-5 record. The team was 2-6-1 this season.

Verga Wins It

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bob Verga used to pop in the winning basket in his college days at Duke.

He did it again Wednesday night for Carolina in the American Basketball Association to give the Cougars an upset 95-94 victory over Utah, the Western Division leader.

Verga turned the trick with a three-point goal from more than 25 feet out in the final second of play. Utah had taken a 94-92 lead on Mike Butler's basket with four seconds to go.

Verga finished with 27 points. Zelmo Beatty was high for the Stars with 26.

Kentucky routed Denver 153-138, Indiana downed Virginia 109-100, Pittsburgh beat New York 99-96 and Texas whipped Memphis 113-103 in the other scheduled ABA games.

In the National Basketball Association, Milwaukee made it 16 in a row by beating Detroit 113-87, New York tripped Atlanta 114-111, San Francisco trimmed Cleveland 108-99, Philadelphia defeated Buffalo 99-92, Boston humbled Portland 122-115 and San Diego overcame Cincinnati 138-120.

Kentucky set a team scoring record in beating Denver for the Colonels' seventh straight victory. Larry Cannon topped Denver with 36 points. Louie Dampier was high for the Colonels with 29.

With John Brisker scoring 22 points, Pittsburgh survived a closing rally by the Nets. Down by 18 points at halftime, the Nets pulled to within one point with one minute left before two free throws by Stew Johnson sewed it up for the Condors.

Second Place Made Important By Pros

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Realignment has made second place an important spot for National Football League teams this year and three clubs which would like to finish second and one that wouldn't will be playing important games today.

Under the realignment plan adopted by the NFL this season, champions in each of six pro divisions—three in the National Conference and three in the American Conference—qualify for the playoffs along with the second place team with the best record from each conference.

So even though Green Bay and Dallas trail in their respective NFC Eastern and Central Division races, second place could be worth a playoff spot and that's what both teams have in mind right now.

The Packers and Cowboys will clash in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas as part of a Thanksgiving Day pro doubleheader. In the other half, Detroit, one game ahead of Green Bay in the race for second place in the Central Division, hosts Oakland. The Raiders, leaders in the AFC Western Division, shun any talk of second place. They want to finish on top.

The Cowboys, Packers and Lions would like that, too, but the numbers don't favor them.

Dallas is tied with New York at 6-4 in the NFC's Eastern Division, 1 1/2 games back of first place St. Louis with only four to play.

Green Bay is 5-5, a full game back of second place Detroit in the Central Division. The Lions at 6-4, are three behind Minnesota, which has all but clinched that title.

Oakland holds a one-game edge over Kansas City in the AFC West and that, of course, is how they'd like to keep it.

The Raiders will have to cope with a hot hand against Detroit. The Lions are expected to start Greg Landry at quarterback after his three-touchdown performance a week ago.

And the Lions will be facing the oldest and hottest toe in pro football in 43-year-old George Blanda, the kicker-quarterback, whose last-minute heroics are becoming routine.

Dallas gets a chance to shake its Green Bay jinx. The Cowboys have never beaten Green Bay in championship play, losing four regular season and two NFL title contests to the Pack-

A&M Could Be Spoiler Today

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Texas A&M, apparently without a wing or a pryer, is on the menu today for Texas' tough birds.

But the Aggies could be a real bellyache if the eyes of Texas are upon Arkansas.

Top-ranked Texas is supposed to have easy pickings with Texas A&M in their traditional Thanksgiving Day game, but you couldn't fault the Longhorns for looking ahead to Arkansas the week after.

The Dec. 5 meeting with the Razorbacks will determine the Southwest Conference champion and a place in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day.

The loaded Longhorns have trimmed 28 teams in a row and the Aggies have been easy prey for their opponents, winning two games all year. Last year, Texas creamed Texas A&M 49-12, but the Aggies are looking for a replay of their 1963 battle when they almost pulled off the upset of the year, succumbing by two points.

Lew, Oscar Are Spelling Success

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Big A and Big O are earning their letters with Milwaukee ... and spelling success for the young Bucks.

Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson, a perfect parlay of scoring power and precision ball-handling, helped Milwaukee win its 16th game in row Wednesday night with a 113-87 National Basketball Association conquest of Detroit.

The Bucks' streak puts them two games shy of the NBA record held by the New York Knicks, whom they meet in a home-and-home series Friday and Saturday.

Philadelphia beat Buffalo 99-92 in the first game of a double-header in Boston and the Celtics took the nightcap, beating Portland 122-115 Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the NBA, New York turned back Atlanta 114-111; San Diego crushed Cincinnati 138-120 and San Francisco bounced Cleveland 108-99.

In the ABA, it was Pittsburgh 99, New York 96; Virginia 109, Indiana 100; Texas 113, Memphis 103; Kentucky 153, Denver 138 and Carolina 95, Utah 94.

Alcindor, the NBA's Super Soph, scored 31 points and veteran smoothie Robertson, in his first year with Milwaukee, scored 15 and propelled the Bucks with his backcourt play.

Otto Moore scored 17 points for Detroit, which lost its eighth game in the last ten after a spectacular 12-1 start.

Billy Cunningham scored 27 points and Hal Greer fired in 26 as Philadelphia walled a 17-point lead, then pulled away in the final minutes of their opener at Boston Garden.

JoJo White scored 14 of his 23 points in the fourth period to break open the nightcap for Boston.

Willis Reed scored 35 points and took down 18 rebounds as New York whipped Atlanta for the second straight night. The Knicks beat the Hawks 128-119 in New York Tuesday night.

Elvin Hayes fired in 48 points and had 22 rebounds and Stu Lantz added 30 as San Diego ripped Cincinnati.

On the Sidelines
with Mike McGee
Head Football Coach - East Carolina University

If the Monday night pro football telecasts have proven one thing, it's that more women than ever are watching the sport.

And with at least three dozen assorted bowl games, all-star games and pro playoff games headed for the tube in the next six weeks, the trend very likely will continue.

That's why I thought this an appropriate time to unveil some hints on how women can get more out of their football watching.

The key to watching football is to keep your eye on the quarterback, get involved with his problems. Wives, your husbands may tell you that the offensive guard who pulls out of the line and blocks the linebacker is just as important as what the quarterback does. And he's right. All 11 men each contribute in a specialized way to every play. However, nobody — not even Bear Bryant — can watch all 11 men at once.

So you focus on the quarterback. He is more or less a barometer of the efforts of the other 10 men on his team. He is also the trigger to the action on every play.

Let the offensive line coach watch the offensive guard. You watch the quarterback — that's step No. 1.

The next step is to put yourself in the quarterback's shoes — mentally. Get involved with his problems.

Basically, the quarterback's problem is this: he must advance the ball 10 yards and he has four plays to do this. If he succeeds, he gets a "first down" meaning he has four more plays in which to move the ball another 10 yards forward — and so until he either scores a touchdown (or a field goal) or until he fails to get a first down, at which time the ball goes over to the other team.

One important thing to remember here is that if a quarterback fails to move his team the necessary 10 yards in three plays, he (his coach) may elect to punt on fourth down. The strategy here is that by kicking the ball downfield, you normally will turn the ball over to the other team further away from the goal line that team is going for than you would if you tried a fourth time for the first down and failed.

Now, back to the quarterback's problems.

Knowing that he must move the ball forward 10 yards in three (or four) plays, the next thing we must consider is how this can best be accomplished.

This, as you might have guessed, is the crux of the problem.

In general terms, there are five basic ways the quarterback can try to outman ever the defensive team and move his own team for a first down. They are:

(1) To run right at the defense. This is what you call a "line plunge" or an "off tackle" play. Here, the quarterback usually will give the ball to one of the other backs and let him smash straight-ahead. The strategy here usually involves "setting up" the defense so that just when they're expecting you to run up the middle again you decide to run outside.

(2) That's the second choice — to run outside or outflank the defense. The speed of the runningbacks is important here. Just as important is to catch the defense at a time when they're expecting you to run up the middle. The element of surprise is very, very important in football.

(3) The quarterback may elect to fake a run — either inside or outside — and instead throw a pass. This is the "option" play you hear so much about. On the play the quarterback has the option of running or passing. In this case, he passes. If he runs, it would come under (1) or (2). Or it may not be an option, but a straight fake-run play, in which the quarterback fakes a handoff and passes.

(4) More and more popular is the drop-back pass, which the pros use a lot more than the college teams. Here, the quarterback does not try to fool the defense. He simply takes the snap from center, drops straight back into a pocket of blockers and looks for his intended receiver, then throws the ball. Technically this is the best way to throw a pass. However, it lacks the element of surprise, unless the quarterback pumps his arm like he's going to throw to one receiver and instead throws to another.

(5) The final choice is a "misdirection" play. By this, I mean a "reverse" type of play in which the team starts to run the ball around, say, left end and at the last second the man with the ball hands off to another back who is running in the opposite direction. Thus, a play which looks like a sweep of left end turns out to be a reverse around right end. It was a play just like this that broke open the Super Bowl for the Kansas City Chiefs last January.

Now that you know what the quarterback must do and the ways in which he can do it, put yourself in his shoes as huddles before each play. Try to guess what play he is going to call. Will he run up the middle, run wide, fake a run and pass, drop back and pass, or try a reverse?

While you are guessing, the defensive team is guessing too. That's what football teams try to do — try to out-guess the other. Of course, the team with greater physical strength and talent has the advantage. But you never know.

Restoration Of 'Hope House' In Bertie Progresses

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
About 30 miles from Greenville, on the road between Windsor and Lewiston in Bertie County, Hope House, built by a former governor of North Carolina, is nearing the final stages of restoration.

North Carolina's Governor Robert Scott will head a delegation on December 5 which will dedicate a portion of the project, a small colonial house on Hope House grounds which has been placed there as a caretaker's house.

Dr. Francis Speight, artist-in-residence at East Carolina University, spoke about the upcoming dedication ceremonies and the work which has led to the saving of the fine old home and its restoration.

Dr. Speight, whose boyhood home was within five miles of Hope House, is a vice president of the Bertie County Historical Society and one of the directors of the Hope Foundation, which was formed to carry out the Hope project.

"The exact date of the house is unknown," Dr. Speight remarked, "but it is supposed to have been built around 1795. It was built by David Stone, who later became governor."

The big wooden house has Chinese Chippendale banisters on the porches and surroundings the look-out on top, a square enclosure much like a widow's walk.

"The house was sold by his family around 1833," Dr. Speight said. "There have been many owners since. Although the house was not taken care of properly, it has not been changed except for a porch built about 1835."

Dr. Speight noted the fate of this old plantation house had been far better than most of this age and that outside restoration was not one calling for extensive work. The house was purchased by the Bertie County Historical Association under the auspices of the Historic Hope Foundation. "We received support from the State, and from the Richardson Foundation," Dr. Speight continued. "John E. Tyler of Roxobel is president of the Hope Foundation."

Outside work primarily involved some restoration and touch up work on woodwork and chimneys. "However, considerable restoration is being carried out inside the house," Dr. Speight noted.

"The small colonial house

Host Clients Of Workshop

The Golden Link Club of York Memorial Methodist Church honored the clients of the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop with a Thanksgiving party Tuesday afternoon.

Representatives of the Golden Link Club included Mrs. Olga Myers, Mrs. Maggie Woodard, Miss Essie Wiggins and Mrs. Laura Humphrey.

Harvey Brown, assistant director of the workshop, served as master of ceremonies. She gave the welcome and introduced the staff to the guests.

Mrs. Humphrey, supervisor of the workshop, introduced the hostesses for the event and each representative spoke on the Thanksgiving theme.

Songs of the Thanksgiving season were sung. Miss Mary Moore, a former client of the workshop, sang a solo.

Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed by the clients.

Legend says Rome was founded by Romulus in 753 B.C.

which has been moved from near Roxobel to the grounds of Hope Plantation to serve as a caretaker's house is now restored and is the part being dedicated on December 5, for which Governor Scott will be the speaker."

State Archeologist Gary Stone, carrying out excavations around Hope House, has unearthed the site of an old kitchen. "It is a brick foundation," Dr. Speight observed. He mentioned too that a foundation site of a house in a nearby field had been uncovered. "This is believed to be the foundation of the Francis Hobson residence." He was Governor Stone's mother's first husband, before she married Zedekiah Stone, the governor's father."

David Stone was a young man when he died in 1818. Born in 1770, he was an attorney who served as Governor of North Carolina from 1808 to 1810. He was also a Representative and a Senator to the U.S. Congress from North Carolina; a member of the North Carolina Assembly; and a Superior Court Judge of the N. C. judicial system.

An individual with strong personal feelings, Stone resigned from the U. S. Senate amid controversy over opposition to the war of 1812. He was a slave holder, having 29 slaves registered in his care at his death in 1818.

Dr. Speight said invitations to attend the luncheon, being held on December 5 in Windsor, were being issued to any individual who contributes $10 or more to the restoration of Hope House. Persons interested in the luncheon at which Governor Scott will speak can get full details by contacting Dr. Speight at his home, telephone 758-2944.

Opening lead: Seven of ♠ South, the declarer at four hearts, capitalized on an unusual feature of his opponent's distribution to rescue his contract from the very brink of defeat.

West opened the seven of spades, East put up the queen and cashed the ace. He continued with a small spade, and since South had nothing to gain by taking a discard, he ruffed with the queen of hearts. West discarded the seven of diamonds to inform his partner that he had strength in that suit.

Declarer obtained only momentary gratification at West's inability to overruff, for with the king of hearts clearly marked in the East hand, it appeared that South must lose a heart trick as well as a diamond. Declarer's only legitimate chance apparently was to drop a singleton king. South observed an additional prospect which the somewhat remote, could be tested at slight additional cost.

He began by cashing three rounds of clubs—discarding a diamond from dummy as both opponents followed suit. Now a heart was led to the ace, and when East's king held firm, South proceeded to develop his alternate plan. The last spade was led from dummy and ruffed with the nine of hearts as West parted with another diamond.

A diamond was led to the ace and with both hands stripped of black cards, North exited with a heart. East was in with the king and since he was out of diamonds, his forced return of either a spade or club permitted South to ruff in his hand as the dummy disposed of its remaining diamond. Declarer had restricted his losses to two spades and one heart.

Despite the fortunate division of the diamonds which found East with only a singleton in the suit, West was in position to nullify South's astute performance. When the third round of spades is led and declarer ruffs with the queen of hearts, West can fell the stripping operation by discarding a club instead of the high diamond. When South plays three rounds of clubs, West ruffs the third round forcing North to overruff and thereby preventing the diamond sluff. In the end, the dummy is left with a losing diamond.

With fuel costs going up, you want to keep your heating bills down.

We want to help.

This is the winter to do everything you can to cut your heating bills. Because this winter some combustible fuel costs will be higher.

We're facing the same problem. The cost of fuels we burn to generate electricity has climbed this year. Coal, for example, is up 35 to 40%. So we understand the problem. And we want to help.

If you heat your home electrically, you know you're getting your money's worth. There's no wasted energy...and money...going up the chimney. Your family enjoys all of the clean, flameless heat that you're paying for.

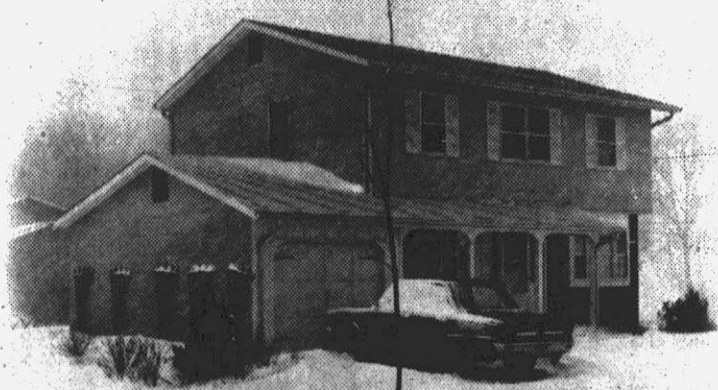

Whether you heat your home with oil, gas, coal, or electricity, there's still a lot you can do to cut your heating bills. By making sure your heating system works as efficiently as possible. And by preventing unnecessary waste.

Here are four suggestions that will help:

- 1. Make sure your home is properly insulated. It takes twice as much fuel to heat an uninsulated home as it does to heat an insulated one.
- 2. Install storm windows and doors. They can reduce heat loss by as much as 10%. Sure, it costs money. But it's an investment that will pay for itself over the years.
- 3. Make sure your entire heating system is cleaned and checked at the start of the season. That includes furnace, flues, filters, and thermostats.
- 4. Caulk around windows and eaves. And weatherstrip doors. Every opening and crack wastes fuel.

Will all this insulating, checking, cleaning and caulking really make a difference in your heating bills? It really will. By a significant amount.

And that could go a long way toward keeping the rising cost of fuel from hitting home.

FREDERICK COMBS appears as Henry David Thoreau in the East Carolina Playhouse production of "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail." Combs, who recently scored successes in the Broadway and movie versions of "Boys In The Band" is making his first appearance in Greenville. He has also appeared in the New York productions of "A Taste of Honey", "The Knack" and "The Lady of the Camellias". "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail" plays nightly Dec. 9-12 at 8:15 in McGinnis Auditorium. A special high school matinee is also scheduled Dec. 8 at 2:15.

Practical Nurse Capping Is Held

Pitt Technical Institute's Practical Nurse Education Department held its first on-campus capping ceremony yesterday morning. The ceremony, administered to 19 candidates, marks the end of the nursing student's introductory instructional training and the beginning of her clinical experiences.

Janice Leggett, practical nurse instructor at PTI, said: "The cap is symbolic of service to mankind. It is an ancient symbol which began with the nuns of the Middle Ages, and which has been adopted by those women dedicated to helping humanity."

The particular cap awarded to the nursing students at Pitt

Technical Institute was designed by the PTI Practical Nurse Education staff, and is reserved for wearing only by Pitt Tech students.

The 19 student nurses who have completed the introductory phase and who will begin their clinical training at Pitt Memorial Hospital on December 2 are: Eleanor Baird, Lousie Bell, Dorothy Blair, Lynette Croom, Dorothy Gorham, Carolyn Haddock, Cherry A. Haddock, Maxine Hawley, Kay Jefferson, Nancy Lewis, Alice Little, Faye Manning, Mollie Peterson, Nina Sue Pitt, Lullah Pringle, Peggy Roberson, Kay Sherrod, Margaret Smith, Valerie Tompkins, and Juanita Wainwright.

Suggests Types Of Seed Corn Suitable To Decrease Blight

S. J. Weeks, agricultural extension agent for Pitt County has suggested types of seed corn suitable for planting the 1971 crop in an effort to decrease the possibility of corn blight.

"It is highly probable that Southern corn blight will be a serious threat to the 1970 corn crop," Weeks said. "The supply of blight tolerant seed is not expected to be sufficient for the 1971 planting."

In view of the situation, according to Weeks, the types of seed corn suitable for planting the 1971 crop, in order of preference, include:

—(N) Hybrids, seed with normal (N) cytoplasm, (hand-detasseled);

—(B) Hybrids, a blend of seed with both (N) cytoplasm and (T)

Texas cytoplasm (male sterile). Since blight tolerance is associated with (N) cytoplasm, a high percentage of (N) cytoplasm is preferred when planting a (B) hybrid.

—F-2, or second generation seed, seed from second generation single-cross male parent or second generation double-cross hybrids. If second generation seed are planted, they should be from crosses with a (N) cytoplasm origin. F-2 or second generation seed will normally produce 20 to 35 percent less than first generation seed.

"In order to get the best quality seed available, farmers should place their corn seed order with a reliable seed dealer," Weeks explained.

Memorial Fund Set Up For Dr. Moore

A memorial fund has been set up in memory of Dr. Davis Lee Moore by his family.

Contributions to the fund are to be applied to equipment for the obstetrics department of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital, according to Mrs. Catherine Moore King, the late Dr. Moore's daughter.

Dr. Moore, who was a practicing general practitioner here at the time of his death November 16, set up the obstetrics department at the present Pitt Memorial Hospital. Having done post graduate work in obstetrics at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md., he was one of the first trained obstetricians to practice in this area.

Mrs. King emphasized that the fund will be saved until the new county hospital recently approved by the voters is completed. Checks are to be made payable to Pitt Memorial Hospital, stating that the money is for the Dr. Davis Lee Moore Memorial Fund, she said.

C. D. Ward, Pitt Memorial Hospital administrator, expressed the delight of the hospital trustees and staff at such an arrangement. "Dr. Moore was a great asset to our hospital during his life," he said, "and we find it gratifying that his family would make this memorial to him to include the new hospital. The people of Pitt County — specifically our new mothers and babies — will continue to benefit from his having served so well."

Says Judges Uphold Rules

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — School principals who stick by their guns when students challenge their regulations in court will find judges upholding their school rules, says a leading school solicitor.

William Fearen, past president of the Pennsylvania School Board Solicitors Association, challenges the widely held view that recent court decisions have eliminated school's powers over student dress and speech.

Fearen, at a Pennsylvania School Boards convention here, said his studies have convinced him courts will uphold a school principal who "stands by his regulations," even if the judge thinks the rules are wrong.

He cited a federal case in the South where a school district prohibited students from wearing beards.

"The courts thought this rule was nonsense, but the judges would not substitute their judgment for the school board's," Fearen said.

Worry Clinic A Heritage Of Buck-Passing

Girls, listen to the tragedy facing Louise! And all you working wives better take care! For you can't always trust a man's words. He may tell you one thing for 20 years, then divorce you for doing what he had urged all those 20 years! Never inflate your living scale with two salaries! Send for the "Budget Chart" below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE 0-593: Louise B., aged 39, is heartbroken. "Oh, Dr. Crane," she wept, "my husband is demanding a divorce!

"For he says I haven't given him an heir!"
"But I wanted babies early in our marriage."

"That first year I had a good position, so my husband suggested I keep on working."
"He made $125 per week and so did I."

"Our combined income thus amounted to $250 weekly, so we bought a lot of furniture and made a payment on a nice new automobile."

"At the end of the year, we had so many bills to pay that he decided I should work another year."

"Well, Dr. Crane, we never did find it possible to get along on his salary, though by the 4th year, I kept pleading with him to have our babies."

"And now he argues that I am too old!"

"Besides, he has met a young girl about 20 and grown infatuated with her, so he demands a divorce."

"For he says she wants children and so does he."

"But he never desired them enough during our marriage to let me quit my job!"

Let this case be a lesson to all you young wives!

For you dare not take your husband's words at face value! You must look behind the obvious and also look ahead.

Men are often very illogical. They will make a mistake; then blame you innocent wives.

On several previous occasions, I have told you that Adam was the first inventor.

For he devised buck-passing and thus blames his wife for offering him the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden.

Actually, he knew it was verboten, so he didn't have to accept a bite of that taboo apple which Eve offered him!

But he found it very convenient to blame Eve and thereby try to escape the wrath of God Almighty.

Ever since then men have been passing the buck to their wives. It is standard husbandly behavior.

I do it myself whenever it is to my advantage!

And so do most husbands, for Adam was a clever inventor!

Seeking To Qualify For Award Program

But when you young couples marry, be sure you operate the home on the husband's pay check. Don't splurge with fancy furniture, a new auto and other attempts to "keep up with the Joneses."

Buy used furniture, for if you expect to have kiddies, they will mar your household equipment, anyway.

And you'll scold them less if they scratch secondhand merchandise than if they dent the fender of a new car or pound your black walnut table with a hammer.

Smart people can live on much less money than stupid couples!

For those with a high I. Q., plus "horse sense," look for bargains even in groceries.

So check on the net contents of peanut butter jars. See how many calories you get per penny!

And don't waste money on fancy breakfast cereals when oatmeal is better, gives far more calories per penny, and has plenty of "protein."

Send for my "Budget Chart," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

The Winterville Chamber of Commerce has been seeking to qualify for the Governor's Award Program for the past several months.

The program, which is designed to help small towns throughout North Carolina acquire industry, is under the supervision of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development.

According to R. E. Boyd, coordinator of the Winterville project, most of the work has been completed. Categories which have been completed and the chairman of each include: organization, Thomas McSkill; community audit, Elwood Nobles; industrial sites, James A. Little; and brochure, J. Preston Corey.

The final category, "Clean-up, Fix-up and Paint-up" is being completed this month. Chairmen for the part of the project are

Congress Ponders 'Salute' To Prison-Break Team

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Could a proposed congressional salute to the daring prison-break volunteers be another Tonkin Gulf resolution? Just how did the North Vietnamese acknowledge the "understanding" that brought about an end to the bombing two years ago?

These and many other questions made for a flurry of activity in Congress Wednesday as senators and House members considered the weekend's brief resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam and the dramatic, vain attempt to free the vanished prisoners of Son Tay.

Besides broad-based support of both actions in the two chambers, there were these developments:

—Secretary of State William P. Rogers doubted before the House Foreign Affairs Committee that either event had any substantive effect on the Paris peace talks.

—Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., a presidential aspirant, was considering moving again to deny funds for the Indochina fighting.

—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, following Rogers into the same House forum, alluded to a substantial diversion for the break attempt, perhaps accounting for all the noise reported around Hanoi and said, in part, that the prison story had to be told in public because of the nature of U.S. society.

The resolution praising heroism of the volunteer Army-Air Force raiders was introduced by Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., but was blocked temporarily by Sen. J. W. Fulbright.

Earlier in the day, Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the Foreign Relations Committee, told newsmen the raid itself reminded him of the Tonkin Gulf incident of 1964. "I don't think it's justified to say the rescue mission was contrived," Fulbright went on. "But it was a most peculiar mission." And, "One lone bullet fell on the deck of the (destroyer) Maddox. This time they said one American was nicked or hit in the leg. But they haven't produced the bullet"—presumably meaning full disclosure of raid details.

Fulbright did not question Dole's heroism resolution, asking only that it be put over until all senators have a chance to read it.

Rogers was pressed to assess effects the raids might have on the Paris talks with the North Vietnamese.

"What has happened is not in any way inconsistent with what we've been doing," Rogers said, referring to earlier "protective reaction" bombings. He granted that Congress should be consulted in "other policy areas," but called the breakout solely a humanitarian move.

"If we attempted to get congressional approval to rescue prisoners, we wouldn't be able to rescue prisoners," Rogers said.

The secretary said he sees a connection between the actions and Paris, but he discontinued it.

"I don't believe it would have any effect on negotiations at all ... If they ever decide to negotiate a settlement they'll do it because they think it's in their best interest ... not because they like us," Rogers said.

Laird, again adding more shreds of detail to the raid, told the House committee the raid rehearsals were carried out at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Laird said fighter bombers accompanied the rescue helicopters as they sped toward Son

Tay, that a good part of the North Vietnamese missile firing was at the "naval force" diversion "opposite Hanoi-Haiphong." It was said earlier that Navy aircraft dropped flares in a diversion attempt, but the site was not disclosed.

Laird's remarks suggest the scale, or suddenness, of the diversion brought a mounting reaction from North Vietnamese missile and antiaircraft batteries.

Laird was asked by a congressman why the administration disclosed the raid. It would surely scotch any further operations, the congressman said.

"It was not my plan to bring this to the attention of the public, necessarily," Laird said.

"We were being accused of something (by Hanoi) we had not done: waves and waves of planes over Haiphong."

"We have certain problems living in the society we do ... I think it would have generated tremendous problems in the United States. There is not much going on in Vietnam. People would have gone in to it (the Hanoi claim). We could have not continued to handle it with 'no comment.'"

Rep. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., asked Laird the exact nature of the "understanding" with Hanoi, the supposed Communist agreement to leave the Demilitarized Zone alone, allow U.S. reconnaissance and stop shelling South Vietnamese cities in return for a halt to U.S. bombing of the North.

Laird stressed the understanding was arrived at by the Johnson administration. He said he talked to former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, Paris negotiator Cyrus Vance and former Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

"There is no question in my mind, I sat with these people, they told me what the understanding was," Laird said.

But whether the agreement was oral, written, or implied was not made clear by Laird. The point is considered relevant because the understanding is cited everytime the United States bombs the North.

Laird promised the House Foreign Affairs Committee he would furnish "the background papers of what they (perhaps Clifford, Vance, he did not make clear) thought and knew of the understanding."

Laird and Rogers were before the committee to push for President Nixon's request for an extra $1 billion foreign aid for several countries, including Cambodia, Jordan, Israel, Korea and Vietnam.

The sense of both secretaries' testimony was that increased economic and military assistance would enable the countries to do the job themselves and avoid future Vietnam-type encounters.

Nurses Attended 2-Week Course

Mrs. Violet M. Jones, public health nursing supervisor from this area, recently attended a two-week supervisory skills course in Lenoir.

This was the first phase of a program to improve supervisory skills of nurses. It was sponsored by Caldwell Community College and held at the First Presbyterian Church in Lenoir. The other three phases will be conducted quarterly at the School of Public Health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (UPI) — Soldiers who staff the Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS) station here are helping families bridge the miles between them and their men overseas.

Twenty-five men from the 17th Signal Co. operate the station which, through contact with similar stations in Vietnam, enables three-minute conversations between soldiers and wives or parents.

The Ft. Lewis station, which will place about 80,000 calls this year, is known around the United States as "The King of MARS," because it makes about 20 per cent of all MARS calls to Southeast Asia, explains SSgt. Mike E. Philpott, who is in charge of the station.

Since it began operating in 1967, Philpott says, the station has put through about 175,000 calls.

By utilizing the MARS net, the price of a call is figured on the long distance rate from Tacoma, which is near Ft. Lewis, to the home town. By going through civilian channels, the price would be about $20 for three minutes and the quality often would be poor.

"We've had many calls that sound like the two parties are just across the street from each other," says Philpott.

Working 24 hours a day with three different radios, the Ft. Lewis station can contact any three of 49 radio outfits in Vietnam for MARS connections.

Gift Valuation On Art Advised

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A Norfolk art expert has warned the city it could be "headed for the biggest scandal in its history" unless it finds out just how much Water P. Chrysler Jr.'s art collection is worth before the city accepts it — and some terms — as a gift.

Chrysler values the collection at between $40 million and $60 million, but art expert William T. Parker told city council his "fair guess" is that it is worth about $650,000.

The council heeded Parker's warning and Tuesday night voted to appoint a three-man committee to make an independent appraisal of the art collection.

Parker is board chairman of the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences, for which the council has agreed informally to build a $1 million wing to house the Chrysler collection.

Some of the strings placed on the city's gift from the son of the founder of the automotive firm included changing the museum's name to the Chrysler Museum and agreement to keep the collection intact at the museum.

Chrysler, a member of the museum's board of directors, said earlier this year he had decided to give the collection to the city because he married a Norfolk native and has close ties with the city.

Chrysler reportedly has said he would welcome an appraisal of the collection by the city.

Mayor Roy B. Martin Jr. said Parker's warning placed "a cloudy over this very fine gift to the city. We certainly don't want this council or the people of Norfolk to have any doubt."

But Martin said the Chrysler collection is "too vast" for any small group to appraise.

"I hope the committee, however, will pick a section of the collection and get it appraised," Martin said. "I think this will show Parker just how wrong he is."

CONFUSED?

Sometimes it is difficult to find your way through all the claims and counter-claims of advertising media.

But there is one no-nonsense report that tells it exactly like it is—not like we (or anyone else) dreams it to be.

That's the report of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an advertiser controlled circulation fact-finding and fact-reporting organization.

Next time you question a circulation claim, just ask to see proof—the ABC report.

And that's a fact, for sure.

Jim Arness Leading A Double Life

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The unmistakable figure of Matt Dillon hustles a burly drunk out of the Long Branch saloon. The drunk takes a swing at Matt, who cools the unfortunate with two swift blows, then orders him out of town.

"Cut! That's fine," says the director, and Matt—James Arness—ambles over for a chat. Two things are unusual: Arness giving an interview; a fight on "Gunsmoke."

"That's the first fight we've had in a long time," said the television star, "and I suspect that the network will cut it out of the finished show."

Like all action series, "Gunsmoke" underwent a clampdown on violence in the wake of the Kennedy-King assassinations two years ago. Said Arness: "We have a little more freedom now, but not much. I can understand the reasons for cutting down on violence, but I must say it makes it damned hard to film a Western when you can't use fists or guns."

Despite the restrictions, "Gunsmoke" continues to flourish. On the day we met, the CBS series was No. 1 show in the Nielsen ratings.

That was one reason Jim Arness seemed happy. Another was that he was nearing the end of his 16th season as the marshal of Dodge City. He would soon be departing for other climes, as is his custom when not filming.

A shy and retiring man despite his fame and wealth—"Gunsmoke" has made him a millionaire two or three times over—Arness rarely gives interviews. But he invited me for a talk in his dressing room, and unpretentious place with a photo mural of a surfer sliding down a monstrous Hawaiian breaker—surfing is an Arness hobby.

He spread his sturdy built 6 feet, 4 inches on the soiled bed cover and talked about his double life as Matt Dillon and Jim Arness.

How does he keep up his enthusiasm after 16 years in the same role?
"That's not hard to do. Sure, a lot of the work is routine, like walking in the saloon and saying, 'Hello, how are you,' and that sort of thing. But every now and then I get scripts that really make me stretch as an actor. That's where the fun is; that's how I keep alive."

Does the filming routine get him down?
"Not really. I spend a lot of time here, but the shows are planned so that only one out of every four or five are heavy with my scenes. The rest of time, I'm in and out, and the others in the cast carry the load. So I get a couple of days off here and there. Then we get eight to 10 weeks off in the winter and eight to 10 weeks off in the summer."

Why has "Gunsmoke" managed to hang on so many years—coming back stronger than ever after a brief cancellation in 1966?
"I've never really analyzed it. Except that maybe the characters wear well. I think it's good that the stars are spread out on the shows; that leaves people wanting more, which is the best approach in show business."

How long can "Gunsmoke" continue?
"Gosh, I don't know. CBS hasn't told us yet that we're renewed for next year. You never can tell until you get the word. Sure, the ratings have been good, but that isn't the whole story any more. They have this thing about the nature of the audience—demographics, it's called. What's our demographics? I haven't the slightest idea."

What would he do if the series folded?
"I suppose I'd look for another job. Not right away. I wouldn't have to go right to work, because CBS has my payments spread over a period of time. I suppose I'd drop out for about six months and then look around. Maybe features. Or feature for television—that's getting to be a big field. And castles are going to be a big field, too. I imagine I could find something I could do."

(Chicago-Grimesland-Winterville)
D. H. Conley High School
N.C. Highway 43—S.R. 1711
Office of Smart-Woodall-Isley and Associates
Greenville, North Carolina

Sealed proposals will be received for furnishing of all labor materials and equipment entering into the construction of parking lot and access for D. H. Conley High School, Greenville, North Carolina. To be located on the Owner's property located on State Road 1711 approximately five (5) miles south of Greenville, North Carolina. Sealed proposals will be received up to 2:30 P.M., Tuesday, December 1, 1970.

Complete Plans, Specifications and Contract Documents will be available for inspection in the office of Smart-Woodall-Isley and Associates, Inc., Architects and Planners, 100 Reade Street, Greenville, North Carolina, 113 North Boylan Avenue, Raleigh, North Carolina, and 602 West Chapel Hill Street, Durham, North Carolina, in the School Board Office in Greenville, North Carolina, or may be obtained by bidders upon deposit of Five Dollars ($5.00). Additional complete sets will be furnished upon request at cost of reproduction and mailing (not refundable). The full deposit, except for the cost of extra sets, will be refunded to those making a bona fide, prime proposal, providing all plans and specifications are returned to the Architect in an unutilized condition within ten (10) days after the date set for receiving bids. All deposit checks and purchase checks shall be made out to: Smart-Woodall-Isley and Associates, Inc., Box 728, Greenville, North Carolina 27834.

The work consists of clearing site, grading, shaping, placing gravel and access to parking lot.
All Contractors are hereby notified that they must have proper licenses under the State laws governing their trades.
The Contract will be administered and supervised by the Office of Smart-Woodall-Isley and Associates, Inc.
Each proposal shall be accompanied by a cash deposit or a certified check drawn on some bank or trust company insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, of an amount equal to not less than five per cent of the Proposal, or in lieu thereof a bidder may offer a bid bond of five per cent of the bid executed by a surety company licensed under the laws of North Carolina to execute such contracts and to guarantee the performance of the bid. The cash deposit shall be retained by the Owner as liquidated damages in event of failure of the successful bidder to execute the Contract within ten (10) days after the award or to give satisfactory surety as required by law.
A Performance Bond and Labor and Material Payment Bond will be required by each and final payment for one hundred per cent of the contract price.
Payment will be made on the basis of ninety per cent of monthly estimates and final payment upon completion and acceptance of work.
No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for receipt of bids for a period of thirty (30) days.
The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive formalities and to award contracts in the best interest of the Owner.

CARD OF THANKS
WE WISH to thank our friends for the many expressions of sympathy extended to us at the loss of our loved one, Frank Hart. Your prayers, words of sympathy, flowers and food helped sustain us in our hour of grief. To his doctors, nurses, aids and staff of Pitt Memorial Hospital, who attended him so faithfully during his illness, we are very grateful for your compassion. We will never forget your kind deeds toward our family. May God bless you all.

THANKSGIVING—

A time for togetherness with prayer and gratitude. Family, neighbors, friends . . . we should all take this time to reflect in community spirit our appreciation for all that we have. We share in this joy of Thanksgiving and wish to show our gratitude with special thanks for the opportunity and obligation of serving our friends and neighbors and working with them for the betterment of our community. To all, a Happy Thanksgiving.

Near-Extinct Eagles Often Being Hunted

AN EAGLE sits majestically in his nest high in a tree in the San Juan Islands in Puget Sound. (UPI Telephoto)

By ELDON BARRETT
FRIDAY HARBOR, Wash. (UPI)—Charles Nash and other concerned residents and authorities of the San Juan Islands in Northern Puget Sound have a mission—to save the area's eagles, hawks and falcons from extinction. The eagles, particularly, are in danger from destruction of their habitat and predators armed with guns. The islands, about 60 miles northwest of Seattle, are one of the few places in the United States outside of Alaska where eagles still dwell. But the once populous flocks are down to about 40 permanent resident eagles and perhaps that many transients.

Nash, Friday Harbor's 48-year-old, postmaster and a member of the Audubon Society, says the 1970 bird count in the archipelago turned up only five golden eagle nests and 15 aeries of the northern bald eagle, which is America's official symbol.

"Once they nested all over the islands wherever they could find a tall snag," Nash explained. "I've even seen them dive bomb branches to break them for nest building. "But, of course, as man moves in, the eagles move out. That aspect is bad enough. But when thoughtless persons start shooting the birds just because they are targets, it is time something was done to save them. It is just pure maliciousness.

"It also is a trap. The eagles and hawks that get shot are those that can get along with man around. The ones that stay far away, that don't get shot, are losing their habitat."

Three Carcasses Found
Last year the carcasses of three adult eagles were found under a log on a beach. Obviously, Nash said, they had been hidden after being shot. During the past year about a dozen eagles have been found shot to death.

"We have no way of knowing how many dead birds were not found," he added.

Two birds, a bald and a golden eagle, were found wounded and nursed back to health by Marvin Sharpe, a National Park Service official. One was healed after eight weeks of care and released the first week of October. The less severely wounded bird was released earlier.

Carl R. Stoddard, the supervisor of the San Juan Island National Historical Park, came up with the idea of establishing a sanctuary.

Backed by Sharpe and Nash as well as other islanders, Stoddard drew up a request asking island county commissioners to make the entire county—its land and its waters—a sanctuary for all raptors—eagles, hawks, ospreys and falcons. He listed 14 species of raptors that live in the islands. He declared it was a "unique privilege and responsibility" of the islanders to provide the habitat and the home for "the last remnant of the northern bald eagle."

Nash said that persons from as far away as Chile and Vietnam have "expressed interest and support for our work." Journal Starts Fund

The Friday Harbor Journal, a weekly, began a fund to provide rewards for the arrest and conviction of any person accused of the federal offense of shooting a bird of prey on San Juan Island.

Many of the dead eagles have been found at Cattle Point on San Juan Island. That is a place where the rabbit hunters go for sports and the eagles and hawks go for food.

The rabbits were brought to San Juan Island many years ago from Australia, and being rabbits they multiplied rapidly. In turn they attracted birds of

Too Few Black Law Students In South

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—With black lawyers in the South numbering less than 1 per cent of all attorneys, the legal profession "remains one of the most segregated in America," a young civil rights lawyer says.

And, with black law students holding at about the same percentage, relatively little change is seen for the immediate future, according to a survey just completed by Neil McBride, Southern director for the Law Students Civil Rights Research Council.

The survey indicates that of 43,248 attorneys in 12 Southern states, only 423 are black.

The study also discovered that of 12,340 students in Southern law schools, only 208 are black.

McBride said he conducted the study by telephone and obtained the figures from law school records, students and a report prepared for the American Bar Association. He had to rely on students in cases where schools do not maintain records by race, he said.

The young lawyer, a 1970 graduate of the University of Virginia Law school, called the legal profession the chief avenue for peaceful change in society but said it was seriously hampered by the "segregation of the profession."

McBride is mainly concerned with the recruiting of black students for Southern law schools, part of a national effort by the council.

McBride said the group was operating on a $15,000 grant awarded last year by the Carnegie Corp. and has just received a two-year $72,000 grant to continue its recruiting programs.

Speaking of the survey, McBride said it did not include two predominantly black law schools, North Carolina Central University in Durham with an enrollment of 130 and Southern University in Baton Rouge, La., with 56 law students.

The civil rights worker said one major reason for the small percentage of black law students, was inadequate scholarship assistance.

"Most black students have to work while attending school," he explained, "and, believe it or not, some young black lawyers have to take second jobs while establishing themselves in the profession."

Financial problems are not the only dilemmas facing the black students, he said.

"Sometimes law schools accept students who are not adequately prepared, academically, and the schools make little or no effort to assist them," McBride charged.

He also blamed the manner

Three Musical Groups In Area

Three musical groups will be in this area to present programs during the weekend.

The groups are the Waters Family, the Time Travelers and the Jackson Brothers from Michigan.

The three groups will appear at the following churches: Broad Creek Christian Church, New Bern, Saturday at 7:30 p.m.; Tarboro Church of Christ, Sunday at 10 a.m.; and the Mount Pleasant Christian Church, Greenville, Sunday at 7 p.m.

Ministers of the churches are: William H. Clifton, Broad Creek; Henry D. Mann Jr., Tarboro; and Hugh E. Jarrett, Mount Pleasant. A free will offering will be received. The public is invited to attend.

LECTURES

Dr. B. A. Bishop of the East Carolina University Department of Geology lectured twice last week to students and faculty in the geology department of UNC at Chapel Hill.

in which many black undergraduate institutions have been operated for the lack of many of their students going on to law schools.

"Most of these schools are traditionally for the teaching profession or the ministry," he explained. "They just are not used to thinking in terms of the legal profession."

ATLANTA, Ga., black law students, add "legal profession."

Social problems also play a big part in cutting down the black percentage, he said.

"Most of the contact poor Southern blacks have had with the legal profession has been adverse and has caused hostility," he said. "In trying to recruit blacks for the profession, we don't deal with the financial and professional rewards of being an attorney."

Rather, he declared, the recruiters attempt to ingrain potential law students "with a sense of community legal ser-

Ayden Christmas Parade Planned For Dec. 3

The Ayden Christmas Parade has been set for Thursday, Dec. 3, at 7 p.m., according to Dillon Watson, chairman of the event.

The parade, sponsored by the Ayden Chamber of Commerce, will include three bands, a drill team, floats, the Sudan Motor Patrol, Cadet Marching Band and others.

Prizes will be given for decorated bicycles, pets, and the best non-commercial or non-professional float.

The Minutemen, a recording group composed of two bands, will give a concert on Lee Street two hours prior to the parade time, beginning at 5 p.m. The group now has a recording out entitled "Civilian Soldier."

FALSE EYELASHES

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—A customs man found 11,000 false eyelashes sewn into Bing Chi Wong's overcoat on his return from a visit to Hong Kong.

He was fined 1,500 New Zealand dollars—$1,680—on charges of smuggling and importing prohibited goods. The eyelashes were worth about $5,500 New Zealand dollars—$6,000.

these 30 attorneys are in private practice," McBride continued. "The majority of them work for the state and federal government, insurance companies or the like." And, McBride charges, unless more black students enter—and complete—law school, the trend will continue.

Free School Lunch Goal For All Needy Still Unmet

EDITOR'S Note: President Nixon's hunger expert pledged last year that all needy school children in America would be getting free or cut-price lunches by this Thanksgiving. A study by the AP Special Assignment Team has found the goal will not be met. This dispatch, citing scattered abuses and problems in the massive program, documents why.

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
Every weekday morning, four of Mrs. Mary Hudson's children leave their weather-ravaged wooden shack in the northeast

Mississippi hill country and trudge down the muddy, red-gravel road toward the school bus.
At lunch, two children get free meals. The other two, victims of a free lunch quota system, often go hungry until they get home again.
Despite new federal laws and funds to back up a White House pledge, the goal of giving all needy children free or cut-price school lunches by this Thanksgiving has not been met in many classrooms—north and west as well as south, urban as well as rural.
Inside the Mississippi shack,

Mrs. Hudson said her income, all from welfare, is $90 a month. There are "a heap of days," she said, when she can't give the two children the 30 cents each needs to buy lunch.
Mrs. Hudson's poverty may be extreme, but her problems with the federal school lunch program are not.
An Associated Press study disclosed that varied school districts—from Massachusetts to Mississippi and from North Carolina to Nevada—are not meeting new federal requirements.
The government estimates 4 million to 5 million children benefit from the program, but some schools, such as the one Mrs. Hudson's children attend, have a quota system which gives free lunches to some needy children while others just as needy have to pay.

In other schools, the AP study and separate investigations by private welfare and church groups found, officials refuse to notify parents there is a free lunch program, ask children to work for their free lunches, deny lunches as punishment, and segregate children getting free meals so their classmates can see who is too poor to pay.
Local school administrators say such practices, all banned by the new law, have continued because of state and federal administrative delays or because of a shortage of funds to pay for the share of each lunch that federal money doesn't cover.
Without exception, the districts checked by The Associated Press said they would implement new lunch programs by the end of the Christmas holidays that would either conform to, or be closer to, federal law.
It was last Christmas Eve that President Nixon's adviser on hunger and nutrition, Dr. Jean Mayer, promised that all 6.6 million of the nation's needy school children would be getting free or cut-price lunches by Thanksgiving 1970.

—Although new federal law directs schools to "avoid overt identification to their peers of children receiving such meals..." high school students in Quitman County, Miss., said "students who pay for their lunches go first, five or ten minutes ahead of time." Those getting free meals, they add, stand in line together until, one-by-one, their names are called and they step forward for their food.

Similar practices were reported in some Massachusetts districts, where one mother said of her children: "They'd starve before they'd be singled out and let other kids know" they couldn't pay for their lunch.

—In Las Vegas, Nev., the nation's gambling capital, Clark County school officials did not send application blanks or information on the free lunch program home with school children.

Baltimore principal who "has never failed to give every kid a free lunch."
A long list of reported abuses was made public last month by the Children's Foundation, a private, non-profit group in Washington, D.C.

work for their meals." Effective Jan. 1, states must conform to a federal standard that provides such lunches for a family of four whose income is less than $3,720.
"I hope we'll be able to give every needy child who comes under the guidelines a free lunch," said Marshall County, Miss., school Supt. Stanley Mullikin after he was told the United Citizens League of Marshall County, a black political organization, was planning to press for compliance with the standard.
But he added that he wasn't 100 per cent sure. "It's impossible to feed everybody," he said. "I think if they (the federal government) are gonna feed the people, they ought to put a little more money into it. They don't consider our physical expenses."

Yule Parade Set Dec. 10

ROBERSONVILLE — Johnny Ray Crandell, newly elected president of Robersonville Chamber of Commerce, says "we are anticipating one of the largest Christmas parades ever. Our chairman, W. M. (Billy) Greene is working on plans to get everything ready."
Crandell noted that at least three bands will take part — Tarboro, Williamston and Robersonville. There will be also groups of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies and Cubs, as well as other groups, including the Martin County 4-H Club.
A Robersonville native, Miss Delbrah Wilson, currently Miss Martin County, will make an appearance. Among floats scheduled to form part of the parade, that of WITN-TV will be included.
Robersonville's parade is scheduled for December 10, to begin at 4:00 p.m. on South Main Street at Gray's Tobacco Warehouse and proceeding on uptown and return.

Phi Sigma Pi Initiates 13

Grifton Parade Planned Dec. 2

GRIFTON — The Grifton Christmas parade will be held this year on Dec. 2 at 4 p.m.
John Cameron, chairman of the annual parade, said bands from Savannah High, Greene Central High and Rose High School will appear in the parade. Also scheduled to appear in the event are the Sudan Shrine Motorcycle Patrol, five floats of Brownies, Boy and Girl Scouts, ponies and bikes and a number of professional floats.

National Cathedral Is Church That's Rarely Empty

By WILLIAM CLAYTON WASHINGTON (UPI)—They call it "the church that's never empty" and the description comes close to being literally true.

At every hour of every day, and often far into the night, something is going on at the massive Gothic edifice atop Mt. St. Alban which millions of Americans know as "National Cathedral."

Usually more than one thing is going on, and sometimes the simultaneous activities seem strangely incongruous. One evening, not long ago, a group of longhaired young people were inside the cathedral praying for peace while a middle-aged preacher with a bullhorn spoke to a crowd outside the cathedral about the urgency of pressing on to total military victory in Vietnam.

This kind of paradox doesn't disturb cathedral officials. They point out that the cathedral was chartered by Congress to serve as "a house of prayer for all people."

Others Borrow Facilities
Although it is the official seat of the presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, and uses the Episcopal liturgy at a majority of its worship services, National Cathedral has never been a narrowly denominational church. Other denominations borrow its facilities when they need an unusually large and impressive site for a special occasion. And some non-Episcopal groups have year-round use of its numerous chapels for their own worship services.

At the moment, it houses a Serbian Orthodox congregation and a Polish National Catholic congregation. In the past, a Jewish congregation met there

Horse Acquired Police Record

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP)—A horse that broke loose from its tether and damaged a fence was listed on police records as an offender.

The horse, owned by Roy Donaldson, was tied behind a service station when it made its break.

Louis Bolofson told police the horse broke down a portion of fence on his property and damaged a child's swing set.

TO REVIEW RESEARCH
Dr. Charles E. Bland, assistant professor of Biology at East Carolina University, has an idea for controlling the mosquito. He will review his research at the meeting of the Southeastern Electron Microscopy Society in Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4-8.

every Sabbath. Contrary to a conclusion some people draw from its popular designation as "National Cathedral," its real name is "The Cathedral Church of Sts. Peter and Paul." It does not receive a penny of support from the federal government. It has been built, and is staffed and maintained, entirely by voluntary private contributions from Americans of many faiths.

The building which will some day be one of the world's largest churches, has been under construction since 1907, and in use as a house of worship since 1912. But it's still only three-fourths completed. Its dean, the Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre Jr., has hopefully set 1985 as a target date for completion. But to meet that goal, he and others will have to raise $20 million, the sum builders estimate it will cost to finish the job in this era of steadily-rising construction costs.

Hubbub of Activity
Sayre, a tall, rangy, forthright man who resembles his grandfather, President Woodrow Wilson, glories in the continual hubbub of activity that surrounds the cathedral. And he's resigned to the fact that some of the more conventional faithful will be upst by some of the things that go on, such as guitar masses for the young (including the young-in-heart) every Sunday morning.

"Religious life today is in flux just as all life is," Sayre says. "Our mission is changing because society is changing, and the church must change with society."

Even in its uncompleted state, the cathedral is an awesome structure. Overlooking Washington from the top of its highest hill, it will eventually have the shape of a cross. Right now, the effect is somewhat truncated because the nave that forms the long part of the cross is still under construction.

The Gloria in Excelsis tower which now dominates the design soars 301 feet above the ground. The inlaid marble floor of the "crossing" is the design focus of the church and contains the pulpit and lectern.

Twin Tower Last
From the central tower extend two arms of the cross, called transepts. The crowning feature will be the twin-towered west front, the last part to be built.

The design with its flying buttresses and elaborate carvings is "pure Gothic," built just as the great medieval cathedrals of Europe were built, without any hidden modern short cuts such as steel beams. It is the only true Gothic cathedral now under construction anywhere in the world. Thus its stone carvers and other workers are a select group; of the dozen or so master carvers in the United States, seven are working on the cathedral.

Every corner or niche of the building contains or will contain carving or other artistry. There is no Lincoln statue yet for the Lincoln bay and many niches in the buttresses are empty while their sculpted occupant is prepared or the ground. Some stone projections are still plain, awaiting carving work to turn them into angels or historical figures or creatures of symbolism.

To the west of the cathedral, in an oak grove on the 57-acre grounds, is a "graveyard" of pieces of Indiana limestone, marked and lined up for placement in unfinished portions of the structure. The four cathedral schools, the sculptors' shops and assorted other buildings are scattered around the grounds, bounded by five northwest Washington streets.

Majestic Interior
The interior is majestic. At the crossing, one stands surrounded by four huge pillars soaring 104 feet up, holding the vaulted roof, the tower and its bells.

The scene is a profusion of carved wood and stone, of inlays and mosaic, of grandeur in contrast to the simple straight wooden chairs set out for worshippers.

The main altar, of stones from near Jerusalem, is backdropped by carved figures of Christ and the prominent men and women of the history of Christianity. Smaller chapels radiate from the main altar site, to the sides.

The cathedral has been the site of memorials for the might—the funeral for former President Eisenhower was held there. But it also is used for the weddings or funerals of little people as well. Within the limitations of a schedule for nearly 2,000 worship services a year, the church's officials go out of their way to make the cathedral's chapels available to persons of all faiths for baptisms, weddings, funerals or other services. Some 500,000 persons visited the cathedral last year.

An ideal time to take soil samples to determine next year's lime needs is in the fall months.

Hard Days Ahead For Anglo-French Concorde SST

By ROBERT MUSEL
UPI Senior Editor
LONDON (UPI)—In the air the Anglo-French Concorde airliner is a thing of beauty, if not a joy to the eardrums, as it sonic booms over Britain and France at around 1,320 miles an hour, or twice the speed of sound. In the air Concorde is beginning to look like what

Britain and France are betting two billion dollars it will become—the plane to supersede the American jumbo jet, wrest the lead in civil aviation from the United States, earn vast sums in sales to airlines the world over.

But on the ground this dream fades a little especially on the soil of Britain where so many are worried about its rising costs and the technical difficulties still ahead that a month ago President Georges Pompidou of France pleaded: "The British government must not let us down."

Concorde did not start, as is the U.S. pattern, with experience drawn from a supersonic military parent but with an idea on a drawing board to leapfrog the next American plane, the jumbo jet, and it has consequently been probing areas unknown on this side of the world.

This is one reason why the original 1962 estimate of 100 million sterling ($240 million) for research and development will have escalated to 825 million sterling ($1.98 billion) by next spring when the government will consider all the known facts and make its final decision on whether to stay or withdraw.

The cost is divided between Britain, 405 million sterling ($972 million), and France 420 million sterling ($1,008 billion).

The ranks of the opposition thinned a little Nov. 4 when the French prototype reached its target cruising speed of 1,320 miles an hour. Advocates of the Concorde claimed this made a government go-ahead for mass production almost a certainty and was positive proof the plane could, as promised, carry 120 passengers across the Atlantic in three-and-a-half hours.

"This is a vital step towards the stage at which we can offer the airlines performance guarantees and enter into final contract negotiations with a view to converting the options (airlines have taken options on 74 Concorde) into firm orders," said Sir George Edwards, chairman of the British Aircraft Corporation.

Sir George knows there is even now a very long way to go before he can win over all the doubters. When Frederick Corfield, the minister of aviation announced the 825 million sterling figure in the House of Commons Oct. 28 there were, as the parliamentary report put it, "some cries of 'Oh!'"

Guardian Writes Editorial
Recently the influential liberal newspaper, The Guardian, carried the headline "Stop the Concorde Now" over an editorial which stressed that the current cost to the taxpayer of 66 million sterling a year ($158 million) was exactly the sum cut by the government from the social services in its October little budget.

Nor have airline chiefs, even those who took precautionary options, been as optimistic as Sir George would have liked. Ross Stainton, deputy managing director of BOAC, which has options on eight planes, said:

"To the airlines it represents a tempting engineering development; but a heavy demand on limited investment with as yet no certainty of increased return."

More than 400 firms in Britain are involved in the Concorde project and 23,000 British Aircraft Corporation employees are working on it. But with a new government committed to rigidly cutting public expenditure everyone connected with Concorde knows the regime of Prime Minister Edward Heath has no intention of supporting expensive failures.

Concorde has to fly right if it is to survive the government decision in the spring, so the scramble is on for firm orders. In this connection the Daily Mirror recently reported "a remarkable rumor that Communist China is thinking of buying several Concorde. Informal contacts have already begun. What a strange slice of irony it would be if Red China rescued the Concorde order book ..."

airliner is running into financial problems as well as technical difficulties. (UPI Telephoto)

Igloos Said Safe Haven

YOSEMITE, Calif. (AP)—Here's a cool new development on the educational scene: instruction in igloo building.

It's aimed at persons, such as skiers, who might be trapped in the wilderness by sudden snowstorms and need a haven to keep from freezing.

The course in snow country survival techniques also includes instruction in contriving simpler shelters, such as snow mound houses, caves and tunnels.

"A snow house can be warm and cozy and there is no need for people to become ill from exposure if they are properly prepared for storm situations," says Wayne Merry, in charge of the program at Yosemite National Park.

"Such shelter can save lives in the event of a blizzard."

The course is offered by Yosemite's Mountaineering School and Guide Service. For $20 tuition, the adventurous get to go overnight snow camping on weekends—without tents.

Participants are taught how to carve igloo blocks from snow with a sharp stick, knife or saw. The blocks, at least four inches thick, are stacked firmly into a dome.

Then they make a mound house, a dome of snow tunneled into then hollowed out. Some settle for simply a tunnel or cave dug into a drift.

Whatever the design, all is comfy inside, says Merry, and living in a snow shelter on an overnight camping trip in winter "is an exhilarating experience which gives the participant a chance to enjoy nature in a new and exciting way."

Changed Law On Tax-Wise Loss

CHICAGO (AP)—Investors are in for a surprise in this year of the bearish market because their losses to reduce income taxes are confronted with the 1969 Tax Reform Act.

Commerce Clearing House, a tax authority, says tax-wise losses don't mean much any more. In the past, investors could deduct up to $1,000 of net long-term capital loss from ordinary income. Under the Tax Reform Act, only 50 per cent of the loss can be deducted, so it will now take $2,000 in losses to reach the maximum $1,000 deduction.

Investors with net long-term capital gains are subject to the 25 per cent tax limit on capital gains unless they have capital gains over $50,000. The excess over that amount is taxed at 29.5 per cent in 1970 at higher rates.

William Booth, a Methodist minister, founded the Salvation Army in London in 1865.

practically was adopted by the Royal Air Force. It was when the RAF flew him to Nairobi, Kenya, in 1960, that he was asked to paint something for the Nairobi officers' mess — something animal, not aerial. He did, and he has been painting animals ever since. Today he receives thousands of dollars for his paintings of Africa's "Big five" big game animals — elephant, lion, leopard, buffalo and rhino — as well as other beasts in their native landscapes.

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI)—To halt a charging elephant in its tracks, yell at it.

To avoid a rhinoceros on the run, simply step to one side and he will go thundering past. But if a buffalo bent on revenge is pursuing, probably the best hope is to pray for Divine intervention.

Those bits of safety instruction, African wildlife division, come courtesy of David Shepherd, a 39-year-old English artist who specializes in painting African animals from life.

Shepherd told UPI in an interview that of all the animals he has painted, only one actually has charged him — a cow elephant. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd, and a hunter-guide and his wife, had been incautious enough to approach her on foot.

Stops Elephant with Shout
"The hunter warned us to run back and we did," Shepherd said, "all colliding with each other. The hunter — a young American, by the way, with iron nerves — believed in stopping elephants by shouting at them."

"So he boomed out, 'Get back, you B!' She stopped dead. She charged four times and each time he yelled at her and she stopped. Finally, she gave up and headed into the forest."

"We were all laughing, but he told us we deserved a good fright — that all these animals are potentially dangerous and one just cannot get blasé."

Shepherd has had 10 years in which to become blasé, and then learn not to be. He began his painting career 20 years ago, specializing in aircraft, and

New Ways To Use Our Eyes

Did you know that eyes are running an ever-quickening race with technology? As each new year approaches, so do more ways and reasons to use our eyes. The constantly increasing flood of printed material is one large source of the expansion of visual utilization. Every year newspapers and magazines grow in circulation. Advertising materials, bulletins and organizational programs are on the rise. Duplicating machines are rapidly multiplying the printed material already in existence. The continual improvement of lighting systems will also lend to more use of our eyes. More and better light, of course, makes seeing easier, but it also increases our productive time. Although lighting will be better, we'll use our light and eyes longer. With each new year, we'll have more reasons to use our eyes - and more reason to take care of them.
