The Affluent Abandon Urban Cores
1970 Census Mirrors Coming Decade Problems

By BILL NEIKIRK Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1970 Census mirrors a nation troubled by central city decay and suburban sprawl, trends which may get worse in the decade ahead.

Measured in human terms, the Census means increasing problems for cities as the more affluent flock to homes in the suburbs, leaving urban cores with declining tax bases and rising social troubles.

4-Hour Traffic Toll: 10

By The Associated Press Ten persons were killed in traffic accidents in North Carolina during a three-hour and 45-minute span Monday night, including three in a Guilford County collision and three in Granville County.

"I can't recall in my experience so many fatalities occurring on a week-day night during such a short period," said State Highway Patrol Cmdr. Edwin Guy.

"We are greatly concerned that so many recent fatalities have involved young persons," Guy said. "All North Carolinians should be aroused over it. We're going to have to show more concern and positive action."

The fatalities Monday night occurred between 5:45 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

Three teenagers were killed when their car went out of control overturned and burned four miles north of Greensboro. They were identified as Stephen Lynn Whitesell, 17, of Gibsonville; Lawrence Dean Manning, 15, of Rt. 2, Gibsonville, and Michael Overman, 17, of Gibsonville.

Three persons died in the head-on collision of two cars on U.S. 158-A one-fourth of a mile south of Oxford. They were Henry Warfield Pernel, 20, of Baltimore, Md.; G. H. Norstrom III, 20, of Mamaroneck, N.Y.; and Shirley Thomas Boyd, 27, of Henderson.

The Highway patrol said two persons were killed when the car in which they were riding ran off a road just east of Sylva in Jackson County and hit a tree. The victims were Foustine Coleman McDonald, 40, of Sylva and John David Norman, 53, of Detroit, Mich.

James Ernest Jenkins, 67, of Rt. 1, Climax, died in the head-on collision of two cars at Archdale in Randolph County. Roy Otis Page, 19, of Rt. 2, Elon College, was killed when the speeding car in which he was riding ran off the road and overturned, the patrol said. The accident occurred on N.C. 62 about 14 miles north of Burlington.

ORDERS INQUIRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered a full and immediate investigation of a denial of political sanctuary to a Lithuanian sailor who jumped from a Soviet fishing boat onto the deck of a U. S. Coast Guard cutter last week.

increased demand for housing, land and highways but implies problems of pollution, unplanned growth and transportation.

Releasing its final 1970 national figures Monday, the Census Bureau said population in many central cities declined sharply in the last decade.

"Declines also occurred in the decade of the 1950s, but the number of cities showing population losses in the 1960s appears to be greater than in the previous decade," the bureau said.

The nation grew by more than 25 million persons between 1960 and 1970, to 204.7 million.

"Suburbanites now outnumber those living in central cities," the bureau said. More than three-fourths of the growth occurred in metropolitan areas, "with suburban rings showing rapid and substantial population growth."

Preliminary figures released earlier remained true indicators. They showed that 13 of the 25 largest cities had lost population, including Chicago, Detroit and Baltimore.

But, while population in many core cities dropped, the flight from the nation's countryside to metropolitan areas continued. The farm population, for example, declined by one-third since 1960, from about 15 million to 10 million.

The trend toward creation of megalopolises, groups of vast population centers stretching across state lines in an almost unbroken pattern, continued.

For example, in the dense corridor along the East Coast, more than one-sixth of the nation's people now live in a 450-mile strip running from Boston to Washington along the Atlantic Ocean and stretching 150 miles inland.

The Census showed too a people in search of warmer weather and water.

Migration patterns were from midcountry out, with coastal areas continuing to grow.

California led the nation in population growth, picking up four million, while Florida, Texas and New York also grew substantially.

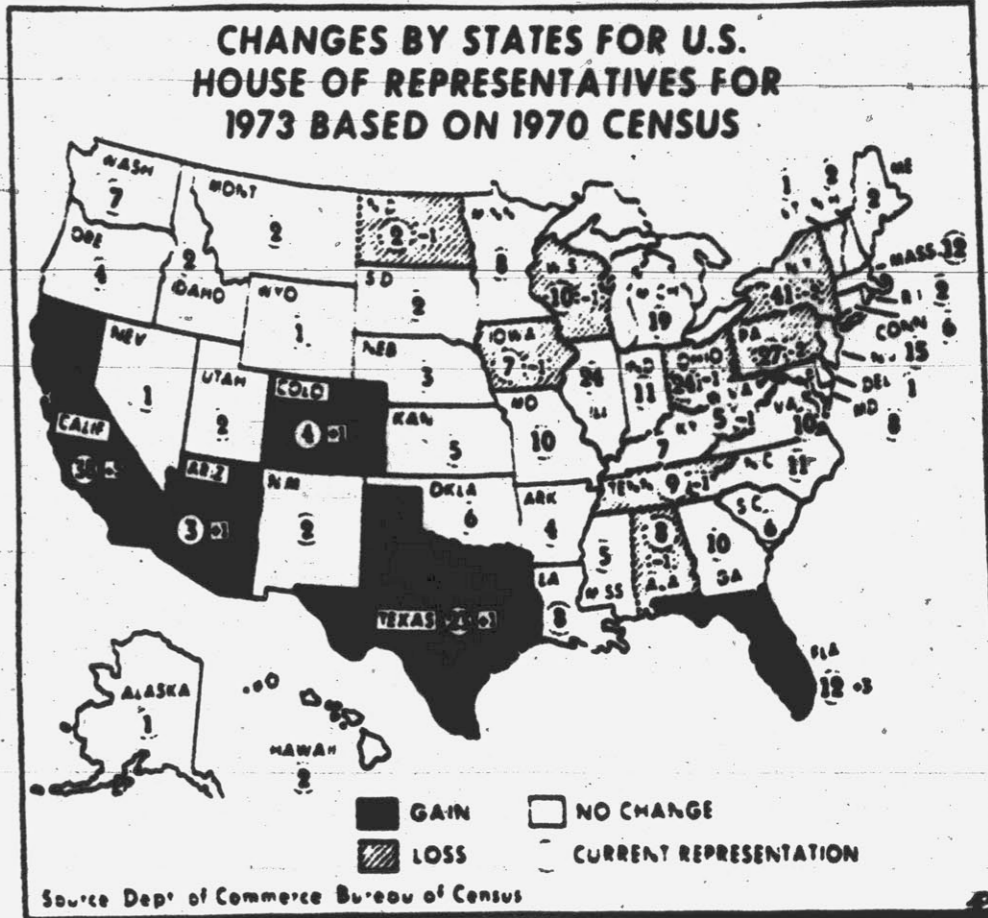

The final count for the nation was 204,765,770, including U.S. servicemen and federal employees and their dependents living abroad.

Within the U.S. borders, the population was 203,184,772, compared with 179,323,175 in 1960. Nevertheless, the percentage growth—13.3—was the lowest since the depression decade of the 1930s, reflecting increased concern by U.S. citizens over population problems.

One of the most practical results from the new census findings—and one of the main reasons the population counting was started in 1970—will be the reapportionment of Congress.

Under the new census, the 93rd Congress will have a slightly different complexion when it meets in January 1973—California will have the most seats in the House with 43, a gain of five, while New York will drop to second with 39, a loss of two.

Florida gains three new seats while Texas, Arizona and Colorado all pick up one more delegate in the House. The other losers are Pennsylvania, 2; and Alabama, Iowa, North Dakota, Ohio, Tennessee, West Virginia and Wisconsin, all losing one.

CHANGES FOR CONGRESS — Map shows by states the increase (circles) and decreases (boxes) in the number of seats in the House of Representatives based on the 1970 census. The changes are to take effect in 1973. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Need Blood Tomorrow

Tomorrow, from 11:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. the Pitt County Bloodmobile will be at the Greenville Moose Lodge to take donations of blood.

Bloodmobile Chairman Douglas Morgan commented, "With the advent of Thanksgiving and Christmas, there will be an urgent need for more blood to save lives of people."

"This time of year is always a critical time," he said, "Last weekend, for example, was one of the worst in the state in a long time."

Until the recent two day visit at East Carolina University, the Pitt County blood quota was trailing more than 240 units behind. With the big turn out by students on those two days, the gap has been narrowed to about 130 units behind the quota at this date. Morgan said he hopes the community will respond generously tomorrow, and possibly close the gap completely. "This is the last opportunity citizens will have in 1970 to contribute," Morgan commented.

Members of the Greenville Service League and Women of the Moose will be assisting doctors and nurses at tomorrow's Bloodmobile appearance at the Moose Lodge.

Wednesday's visit is being sponsored by the Moose. Leon Smith, directing the fraternity's campaign to solicit a minimum of 250 pints, noted "Repeatedly we have seen the same people turn out to give their blood to the bloodmobile. This is fine; we're all for it; I do it myself. But to keep up with the need we must have blood from many more people—some from people who are afraid, and some from those who could, but simply do not give. Believe me, the county's blood bank needs help from all who can give."

New Sea-Level Canal Is Advised In 6-Year Study

By GEORGE GEDDA Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission has ended a six-year study with a controversial proposal to build a $2.88 billion sea-level waterway across Central America within a few miles of the Panama Canal.

But before a shovel is turned, the proposal faces major budgetary, diplomatic and ecological hurdles in both the United States and Panama.

The Atlantic-Pacific Inter-Oceanic Canal Study Commission spent $22 million before turning its conclusions over to President Nixon Monday, calling for the canal to run across Panama and parallel to the existing passageway.

The commission said the current lock-type Panama Canal, which opened in 1914, will reach its maximum capacity of 26,800 annual transits by the end of the century, and a new, wider canal is needed for defense purposes and to avoid "intolerable constraints on world shipping." It said the waterway could be built in 14 years.

For some time, the commission considered nuclear devices as a means of blasting open the canal's path. But after spending $17 million studying the Panamanian terrain and available nuclear technology, it recommended conventional excavation techniques.

Panel members said there are too many unanswered questions about the safety of nuclear devices and possible conflicts with the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty.

Because implementation of the commission's proposals requires a treaty, approval is needed from the United States and Panamanian governments and the U.S. Senate.

State Department sources said growing nationalism in Panama will complicate negotiations relating to sovereignty over the new canal and provisions for its defense. The commission avoided making recommendations on these issues, saying they were outside its purview.

A big hurdle to be overcome in the U.S. Senate is the cost factor.

Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., one of the most influential voices in the Congress on canal affairs, has spoken out against the recommendation, saying the United States already has spent $5.1 billion on the present canal for construction and defense since 1904.

Flood also has warned against "invasion of the Atlantic or the Pacific by sea snakes, which are as deadly as the cobra."

Under questioning at a news conference Monday, retired Brig. Gen. Kenneth E. Fields, one of the commission's five members, said not enough is known of the ecological consequences of ocean mixing to substantiate fears expressed by Flood.

Finnish Sailor Is Hospitalized

CAPE HATTERAS, N. C. (AP) — A Finnish sailor was taken off a freighter 180 miles east of Cape Hatteras Monday and flown by Coast Guard helicopter to a Norfolk, Va., hospital.

The sailor, 55-year-old Eric Sommer, had seriously injured his head in an accident on the ship Seatrain Delaware Sunday. He was admitted to the U. S. Public Health Service hospital.

North Carolina's Culture Week Events Begin At Greensboro

GREENSBORO — North Carolina's biggest event of the year for all the arts, the annual Culture Week, begins today as approximately a dozen art, literary, music, and history clubs and societies converge here for business and festivities.

Statewide clubs and societies participating in the five day series of events include the Roanoke Island Historical Association, the Federation of Music Clubs, the State Art Society, the Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, the N. C. Symphony Society, the Literary and Historical Association, the Folklore Society, the Arts Council, Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Historical Book Club, the Poetry Society, and the Society of County and Local Historians.

Hundreds of leaders in these fields will be present to speak, to conduct business sessions and to listen in on the various activities planned.

Several attractions have been scheduled which will involve all participants as a single touring group. The first of these is a tour of the High Point Furniture Mart at 2:00 p.m. today. This same tour is to be repeated at 2:00 p.m. Wednesday. On Thursday, between 3:00 and 5:00 p.m. all the societies' representatives are invited to an open house at the Blandwood and Zenke Studios. The big group event Friday is an open house reception at the Greensboro Historical Museum between 2:00 and 5:00 p.m. Among highlight events scheduled, is a 7:30 p.m. presentation on Wednesday of award winners in the 1971 33rd Annual North Carolina Artists' Exhibition. The big major State show will open next Sunday at Raleigh's North Carolina Museum of Art.

Other highlights include: The general manager's report on "The Lost Colony" at the Roanoke Island Historical Association meeting on Tuesday; a concert from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. Tuesday in the ballroom of The Hilton Inn commemorating the 200th anniversary of the birth of Beethoven; announcement of winners of the State Composers Contest at a banquet from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m., and a concert at 8:30 p.m.; all under the auspices of the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

On Thursday the North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities will present a number of preservation project reports, covering ten historical sites. Historic Hope House in Bertie County, the Roberts House in Murfreesboro, and a survey of Beaufort are three of the current projects among the ten in the state.

U. S. Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr. will address the antiquities group at 1:00 p.m.

The N. C. Symphony Orchestra, in conjunction with the Society for Antiquities, will present a concert at Aycock Auditorium, University of North Carolina, Greensboro, at 8:30 p.m.

Also on Thursday, for the North Carolina Museums Council, the featured speaker will be Edward P. Lawson, Assistant Director, American Association of Museums, Washington, D.C. This event takes place at 2:00 p.m.

The Literary and Historical Association on Friday will have a review of North Carolina fiction of the year by Herbert C. Bradshaw of Durham; a non-fiction review by James S. Purcell of Davidson, and presentation of various awards.

As part of the N.C. Folklore Society meeting, Mrs. Anita Carpenter of Greensboro, on guitar and Glen Davis of Asheboro, playing the banjo, will present a program of folk songs. Folk dances will be performed by the UNC-G Dance Group.

On Saturday, the last of five days of Culture Week, the Historical Book Club of North Carolina will make plans for 1971 contests and for the May Awards meeting. Featured speaker for the book club session is to be H. A. Sieber, teacher and author. Poetry reading and criticism takes place at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday.

The final day includes a meeting of the N. C. Society of County and Local Historians, with an address by William E. King of Rocky Mount, who will speak on "The Institute Program 1889-1892, as Revealed by the Travels of McIver and Alderman," at 9:30 a.m.

Murder Charged

A Rt. 5, Greenville man has been arrested and charged with murder following investigation of a fatal shooting that occurred around Nov. 12 just off Ramhorn Road near here.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Andrew Ward, 23, has been charged with the murder of Jesse James Williams who was found shot in his home on Rt. 5, Greenville on Nov. 13.

Sheriff Tyson reported that Ward is in jail without privilege of bond. A hearing has been set for Dec. 14 in District Court here, he said.

The body of Williams, who lived alone on a farm off Ramhorn Road, was discovered by a neighbor the night of the 13th and reported to the Sheriff's Department around 7:40 p.m.

Indications were, according to officials, that Williams died of wounds in the neck resulting from a shotgun blast fired at close range. Investigators reported then that the man had probably been shot sometime during the night of the 12th.

Novelist Feared Leaving Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn says he decided against a trip to Stockholm to receive the Nobel Prize for literature because he feared the Soviet Union would not let him come back.

In a letter to the Swedish Academy made public by friends Monday, the novelist said he would like to accept the prize in Moscow if that could be arranged.

Explaining his decision to forego the Stockholm trip, he said in his letter he formed the conclusion from Soviet press attacks on him "that my journey to Stockholm would be used to cut me off from my native land, simply to prevent my return home."

School Lunch Policy Settled By City Board

Greenville's City Board of Education has established a policy to provide lunches free or at a reduced price to children determined by the individual school principal to be unable to pay the full price for their lunches.

The policy adopted provides that an application form be completed and returned to the school. Copies of the form are being sent home in a letter to parents today. Additional copies may be obtained at the principal's office in each school.

The form requests information needed to determine economic need based on income and number of persons in the family and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay for school lunches.

Information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility for school lunches.

Under the provisions of the policy, the individual school principal is the local official who will make the determination of individual eligibility. He will use the family size and income scale shown below which the Greenville City Board of Education has adopted for use in city schools.

—FREE LUNCH SCALE: Free meals will be provided for all children where the number of members of the family and total annual income are as follows; regardless of the number of children in schools or service institutions.

Table with 2 columns: Family Size and Annual Income. Rows show family sizes from 1 to 8 and corresponding annual income brackets.

—REDUCED LUNCH SCALE: Under this plan, depending on income, family size and number of children in school, some children will be eligible for lunches at the 20cents reduced rates, others will receive free lunches. This plan provides for a mixture of reduced rate and free lunches for families with several children in school. (F equates to free lunches in table).

Table with 3 columns: Family Size, Annual Income, and Number Children In School. Rows show family sizes from 1 to 8 and corresponding income brackets and school lunch eligibility (F for free, 20c for reduced).

Income in all cases refers to combined total incomes of all members of a family unit.

Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox stated the plan is scheduled to go into effect January 4. He asked that letters going (Continued on page 10)

Time To Sacrifice Her True Feelings

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Although I have often taken exception to your "hardnosed" advice to persons involved in extramarital affairs, I respect your advice and am now in need of your viewpoint.

For 11 years I was deeply in love with a married man. Our relationship provided a purpose for living in an otherwise pointless existence. I was free, but his devotion to his family prevented him from making the break and marrying me. We were both extremely discreet and no one knew about us.

He passed away last year and I have managed to adjust to the loss fairly well, with one exception.

My beloved's final resting place is in an unkempt cemetery without even a marker for his grave. Please understand that he was well-to-do and well-insured and his children (grown and married) are all well-off.

I have no desire to embarrass his family because I respect his memory and the discretion he practiced to protect them, so I have done nothing thus far to correct the situation, but I would appreciate your advice on how to handle it. It hurts me terribly to know that my beloved lies alone and forgotten by the family for whom he sacrificed his own happiness. He was the most important part of my life. What advice have you for . . .

HIS ANGEL?

DEAR ANGEL: Now it's your turn to "sacrifice." Stay out of sight. Don't do anything to destroy the memory he sacrificed so much to create. Beautiful memories are more important to him now than a beautiful grave.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Sermons of Greenville announce the marriage of their daughter, Johnnie Lynn, to Thomas Harris Healy, son of Maj. and Mrs. Harold Thompson Healy of Jacksonville, on Nov. 27 in Dillon, S. C. The couple will reside in Jacksonville.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rastus Taylor of Bethel request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Glenda Christine, to Willie Lee Williams, on Friday, Dec. 11, at 8:00 p.m. at the Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church, located on Hwy. 43. Reception will follow the ceremony. No invitations were mailed.

By DON G. CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (WNS) — When, in the early days of Chicago merchandising, retailer Marshall Field firmly insisted that his clerks "give the lady what she wants," he was hardly in a position to know that the girls would take him so literally. Consider, for instance, the plump and matronly lady at the sweater counter who remains so blithely oblivious to the Christmas crowd swirling around her. Even an autopsy wouldn't reveal the fact that she has a larcenous streak funning through her capable of accommodating two pony carts racing abreast.

Her voluminous handbags already holds $35 worth of costume jewelry, a pen-and-pencil set, three women's blouses, four expensive ties and three sets of cuff links. Only in her stroll through the store's piano department did the company break even on her visit.

'Leakage'

Slap-dash as the shoplifting trade may seem to be to the casual observer, it is still a form of "inventory leakage"—the nicey-nice term that retailers use to mean that someone has sticky fingers—that accounts for about $2 billion in lost merchandise a year, according to police and insurance company estimates. And, of this figure, about $600 million of it is accounted for in the two weeks preceding Christmas. "Unfortunately," according to D. A. Rush, an executive of Pinkerton's, Inc., "shoplifters look forward to Christmas as much as children." It's a form of larceny, the security executive said, that has ballooned about 134 per cent in the last 10 years.

While the public tends to shrug off shop-lifting as being pretty small potatoes, three or four "boosters"—as professional shoplifters are called—and a handful of greedy amateurs can do more damage to a store in one afternoon than a pair of gun-toting holdup men. On today's small profit margin in retailing, the loss of no more than $100 in merchandise may mean that the merchant will have to sell as much as $2,000 in other merchandise to take up the slack. And it's a loss that someone has to pay for—namely all of us—in the form of higher prices.

Price Drop

A survey some time ago by the investigative firm of Dale System, Inc. indicated that retail prices of merchandise in many stores could be reduced by 10 to 15 per cent if shoplifting losses could be eliminated.

Not illogically, the three elements necessary for a field day in the shoplifting trade are merchandise, opportunity and privacy, and there isn't a whole lot that can be done about eliminating merchandise if one intends to stay in the retailing field. Limiting the opportunity for the shoplifter to get his hands on the goods gives the retailer a little more room for maneuvering but, in these days of wide-spread self-service operations he is still limited in how much he can prevent it. Privacy—or forcing the shoplifter to make his move right out in the open—is one area where the retailer can pretty well call the tune.

Actually, though, Pinkerton's Rush said, fewer than 30 per cent of all retailers take any specific action to prevent shoplifting.

"Some common sense security measures will help store owners avoid becoming part of the sad statistics which appear every year," he added.

For instance: post signs conspicuously stating that shoplifters will be prosecuted; require all bags to be sealed if purchases are made in several store locations; locate cash registers near the exit so that all customers leaving the premises must pass by store personnel; display high-cost, easily-pilfered merchandise in view of sales or check-out clerks and keep expensive items such as jewelry behind glass; and keep gondolas at a reasonable height (4½ to 5 feet) so that they don't obstruct store personnel's view of customers.

Other devices encountering greater acceptance in the fight against shoplifters include closed-circuit television installations, the use of thin, metallic wafers on soft goods—removable only with a special tool by the cashier at the time of purchase—which trigger an alarm if anyone tries to carry them out of the store, and the installation of large, convex mirrors to cover "blind spots" in aisles.

The latter device, one retailer concedes, really requires the clerk to have the eyesight of a diving osprey to spot anything very subtle in the mirrors but, in spite of this, they are undoubtedly a deterrent to the amateur who THINKS her every move is under scrutiny.

"The mirrors don't stop the real professionals in the slightest, of course," he said. "Turn your back for a minute and they'd steal the mirror too."

Suburban Beauty Hints

from Clara Garris
The Diamond is A Girl's Friend?

Diamonds should be accentuated, whenever and wherever possible. That is, unless that diamond is your head!

That's right; the diamond-shaped face should be compensated for with a selection of the proper hairstyle.

If your face is diamond-shaped, your best hairstyle should be very full and wide at the top, although not too high. This will broaden and de-emphasize the wide cheek span. Experiment with different lengths, keeping the hair soft at the sides. A attractive style may be ear length with upturned ends.

Do not brush hair straight back from ears to temples; also avoid bangs that narrow the brow.

JOHNNY WEAVER . . . one of six wrestlers in the main event slated for Thursday night at ECU's Memorial Gym at 8:15.

Bobby Kay faces Joe Soto in the opening bout of the third in a series of Jaycee - Boys' Club monthly wrestling matches coming to Greenville Thursday night at 8:15 p.m. at ECU's Memorial Gymnasium.

Beginning in October, the Greenville Jaycees initiated the monthly wrestling matches to raise funds for the Greenville Boys' Club.

The main event on the card for December's bout has three wrestlers — George Becker, Johnny Weaver and Argentina Apollo joining forces in taking on the team of George (Two-Ton) Harris, Bronce Lubich and Christ Markoff.

Argentina Apollo is considered one of the most colorful and spectacular men in wrestling. He wrestles bare-footed and uses his feet as much as he uses his hands. Harris will not be wearing his big belt buckle for this fight.

This big six man Tag Team main event will be for the best of three falls within an hour time limit.

Another highlight on Thursday's card is the appearance of Luther Lindsay, U.S. Negro champion, who will be taking on Kurt Stroheim in the semifinal bout.

Lewis filed his damage suit against the firm which sold him the boat and two insurance companies. Terms of the settlement Monday were not disclosed.

Most Complex Satellite Fails To Orbit

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The most expensive, complex scientific satellite ever built lies in ashes somewhere in Africa or the Indian Ocean today while a review board seeks to learn why it failed to reach orbit.

The doomed Orbiting Astronomical Observatory, OAO 3, had carried the world's largest space telescope, which might have unlocked many secrets of the universe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration blamed the failure of the $98.5 million project on a protective nose cone which did not jettison as planned four minutes after launch here Monday night.

The 12-foot-tall cone, made of honeycomb fiberglass, was designed to protect the satellite during the Atlas-Centaur rocket's upward thrust through the atmosphere.

It was to have opened like a clamshell, and the two parts were to have been blown off the rocket by explosive charges once the booster pushed above the atmosphere.

Radio signals indicated the shroud deployed partially, but did not fall away. There were these results:

—The Atlas-Centaur had to carry along an extra 2,000 pounds of weight for the remaining eight minutes of powered flight. That was too great a burden for it to achieve orbital speed.

—When the satellite's solar panels and antennae tried to extend, they were restricted by the sides of the shroud. Thus, even if orbit had been reached, the OAO 3 would have been useless.

NASA said the 4,680-pound satellite plunged back to earth over Africa or the Indian Ocean.

Former Beauty Queen Stricken

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Jacqueline Mayer Townsend, Miss America of 1963, has been hospitalized with a stroke.

Her husband, John Townsend, a lawyer, said Monday night doctors believe there is a good chance the 27-year-old beauty "will make a substantially total recovery."

Mrs. Townsend was stricken Friday and taken to Montefiore hospital in Pittsburgh. She lost the power of speech and the use of her right arm and leg.

School Law Brings Fines

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Members of the True Light religious sect have been fined $25 apiece for keeping their children out of public school, but have appealed to Superior Court.

Judge I. Willard Gatling of state District Court, who imposed the fines Monday, said he agreed with the defendants that local public schools have some of the problems they mentioned. But he suggested that the children be sent to public school and that the parents work with school officials to resolve the difficulties.

The defendants are members of the Shiloh Church in suburban Mint Hill. About 25 couples have declined to send their children to public schools in Mecklenburg County. Their spokesman, Ellis McComb, told Judge Gatling they had kept their children home because they believed the environment in public schools is bad, and because of religious conscience. The children were given instruction at home. McComb referred to physical abuse and vulgar language he said some of the children had encountered in public schools.

However, the judge said the children should not be kept home. "Two wrongs don't make a right."

Ambassador, Wife Take Their Lives

LISBON (AP) — West Germany's ambassador to Portugal, Dr. Hans Schmidt-Horix, and his wife committed suicide during the night, the embassy announced today.

A brief statement said the couple killed themselves for "private reasons."

Schmidt-Horix was 61 and had been ambassador in Lisbon since April 1, 1969. He served in Washington just before World War II and again in the 1950s. He had also been ambassador to Afghanistan and Iraq.

He and his wife, Barbara, had two children.

Voters May Have To Decide

Gov. Bob Scott's recent announcement he will not oppose a move to increase the state-wide sales tax to four cents has encouraged proponents who have been seeking a new source of revenue for local governments.

The four-cent sales tax is now in effect in 26 of North Carolina's 100 counties. Mecklenburg was the first county whose voters approved the extra penny tax for local purposes under special legislation. Subsequently, when the legislature granted each county the option to levy a one-cent local sales tax, voters in 25 additional counties approved the measure. The additional penny tax is earmarked for local government operations under a formula which provides for distribution of the revenues among the counties which have the special tax levy.

Since the last legislative session, local government organizations in the state have kept up pressure to have the extra one-cent tax made state-wide in order that each county may participate in the revenues. That pressure is sure to mount between now and January when the 1971 General Assembly convenes.

In a year in which the legislature is expected to be shy of new tax measures, it will be interesting to see whether a state-wide measure can gain sufficient support for enactment.

If the recent election campaign is indicative things to come, there are certain to be efforts in the General Assembly to reduce taxes at some points in the state's existing structure. The extra two-cents a gallon added to the gasoline tax in 1969 is certain to come under attack as is the soft drink tax, and of course the tax on cigarettes.

With prevailing sentiment in the state apparently being to hold the line on taxes, it is questionable whether legislators will of their own action authorize a new tax which county governments already have the authority to impose with an approving vote of their local citizens.

From a practical standpoint, there is much to be said for a uniform four-cent sales tax across the state, one cent of which would revert to the local governments. From a political standpoint, however, legislators may prefer to have the question decided at the local level by local voters under the existing law.

Richardson's Major Error

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — In a private conversation Nov. 19 with Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, Secretary Elliot Richardson of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) revealed a fatal misunderstanding with implications that cloud not only the slim hopes of his welfare-reform bill but his own future relations with the Senate.

The usually knowledgeable Richardson flatly informed Long that eight of the 17 members of the Senate Finance Committee were ready to vote for President Nixon's major rewrite of welfare assistance laws the next morning. Would Long, chairman of the committee, provide the ninth and decisive vote to send the bill to the floor even though he opposed the bill? Long, grinning like a Cheshire cat, replied that, of course, he would vote for the bill but told the Secretary he was sadly mistaken; there was nothing close to that many committee members for the bill.

When the Finance Committee met Nov. 20, Long's 20 years of Senate experience proved superior to Richardson's nose-counting. Three liberal Democrats counted on by Richardson turned into opponents, defeating the bill by a 10 to 6 vote (even with Long in favor). Deeply embittered, Richardson declared publicly: "Yesterday we had enough Finance Committee votes. Sudden switches lost necessary votes." He singled out these "firm commitments" by name — Sens. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, and (with a special jab from the Secretary) Fred Harris of Oklahoma.

The episode reflects the amateurish conduct of Congressional relations permeating the Nixon administration at the departmental level. In this case, Richardson compounded his poor head-counting by committing an error not easily forgivable on Capitol Hill: he implicitly accused Senators of bad faith. Their resentment over that won't soon subside.

Richardson's miscount stems in part from the Administration's congenital failure to understand its dilemma on welfare reform. The more the President's proposal is amended to satisfy conservatives who want tougher work requirements for a welfare recipient, the less appealing it is to liberals who want fatter welfare payouts.

The point of no-return for one such liberal, Sen. Harris, came last week. Even before Richardson claimed Harris's vote in his conversation with Long, Harris emissaries had informed HEW that the Senator could no longer back the bill in its present, more conservative form. Obviously, Richardson himself simply was not informed by HEW officials of Harris's switch.

Nor should this switch have been all that surprising to HEW or Richardson. Harris badgered Richardson relentlessly in Finance Committee hearings, particularly on one day when he took over the chair from Long. More recently, he applauded left-oriented criticism of the program by the militant National Welfare Rights Organization (NWRO).

The point is that Richardson, though brilliantly efficient in taking command of the snakepit HEW bureaucracy, is a novice in Senatorial head-counting. Friends and foes of the bill think he may have mistaken exaggerated graciousness of Senatorial speech patterns for a hard commitment — particularly in the case of Clinton Anderson.

When the committee reconvened last Monday, Anderson was still outraged that Richardson had accused him of breaking a "firm commitment." Old pro Anderson, 75, declared to HEW officials at the closed-door meeting that during 24 years on Capitol Hill he had never wobbled on a commitment and had never been accused of doing so. The Secretary was just plain wrong, Anderson asserted.

The hearing might have degenerated into a round-robin of Senatorial accusations, but Chairman Long spread some Southern cheer. There had been a pleasant weekend and that excellent LSU-Notre Dame football game since the harsh words of the preceding Friday, he said, so everybody should let bygones be bygones.

But the bitterness lingers. Harris plans to send a copy of a letter explaining his position (printed in last Tuesday's Washington Post) to HEW — pointedly not to Richardson but to Under Secretary John G. Veneman. "From now on, I think I'll put all my dealings with HEW in writing," Harris told us.

Leadership Is Being Learned

By BRYAN HAISLIP
GREENSBORO — Leadership is learned, not innate.

If that's so, young people of potential can be exposed to models and experiences which will develop them as future leaders.

The North Carolina Leadership Institute works on just that theory. Right now, 149 young men and women on five campuses in the state are participating in its "North Carolina Fellows" program designed to stimulate and draw forth leadership capabilities.

The objective, of course, is a reservoir of talented leadership equipped to deal with the complexities of tomorrow in business, government education and other fields.

"Opening new horizons" is the way Dr. John T. Rowell speaks of it. He described the Institute as another forefront, innovative idea growing in North Carolina. Nothing comparable to it, in objective and scope of operation, is found elsewhere.

Dr. Rowell is a behavioral psychologist (Ph.D. in clinical psychology, Florida State University) who is rounding out his first year as Institute president. The Institute is only a few months older. The outgrowth of a pilot study and program begun in 1967 by the Richardson Foundation of Greensboro, it was incorporated in mid-1969.

Present Leaders Involved
Its Board of Trustees is a roster of top echelon Tar Heel leadership today in business and education. Financial support comes from the Foundation, other private foundations, business and industrial interests.

"One has only to glance about him these days to realize that our nation is in a leadership crisis," said Dr. Rowell. "Symptoms of this crisis are seen in the form of deeper and deeper involvements in war, widespread hunger, destructive riots, expressions of hopelessness, and numerous breakdowns in government and private services.

"There is no question that the present failure in leadership is one of the most severe in our nation's history and that it has critical implications for the survival of our society."

How to tackle the problem? Tomorrow's leaders are somewhere out there among the youth of today. If likely candidates can be identified, they can be given opportunities to prepare themselves for leadership roles.

The Institute's approach along this line is the Fellows program. At the college level, students of high potential are selected for participation in seminars, discussion groups, and summer internship experiences in business, government and other areas.

Active on Five Campuses
The Five campuses where students are eligible for appointment as Fellows are East Carolina University at Greenville, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State University at Raleigh, A & T University in Greensboro, and Davidson College.

As a general rule, 15 students in each class are chosen during their freshman year and remain in the program through four undergraduate years. In the present group, 20 per cent are women and 20 per cent are blacks.

Under a grant to each participating institution, a faculty or staff member is designated program director and spends one-fourth to one-half of his time working with the Fellows.

Selection of students as Fellows involves study of the track record rather than a search for nebulous leadership traits. "Past achievement is the best indicator of future performance," Dr. Rowell said.

The Institute looks for smart young men and women. High intellectual functioning is a must. It's true, Dr. Rowell agreed, that no correlation exists between

WHO EVER THOUGHT IT'D HAPPEN TO HIM!

By JAMES KILPATRICK

James Madison, Return

The Center of the Study of Democratic Institutions operates in Santa Barbara as the off-Broadway branch of the intellectual world of entertainment. Its motto, if it had one, might be paraphrased from Dante: All conventional wisdom abandon, ye who enter here.

Pursuant to this commandment, the Center embarked six years ago upon the writing of a "Model for a New Constitution," with Rexford Guy Tugwell as director and Robert Hutchins as producer.

The script was made public in September. Last month they put the show on the road. Mr. Hutchins undertook to defend the merits of the Center's proposed Constitution in a debate with former Attorney General Ramsey Clark. Mr. Clark won.

It wasn't much of a victory. The Tugwell draft is so poor, in every particular respect, that almost any critic could poke it full of holes. The document's preamble will suggest the murky style:

"So that we may join in common endeavors, welcome the future in good order, and create an adequate and self-repairing government — we the people do establish the United Republics of America, herein provided to be ours, and do ordain this Constitution, whose law it shall be until the time provided for it shall have run."

They didn't need constitutional experts out there; they needed a couple of veteran rim men off a desk. Here is another sample of Tugwellian prose, from his Article IV, Section 3:

"Except in declared emergency, the deployment of forces in far waters, or in other nations without their consent, shall be notified in advance to a national security committee of the Senate and if it object, and the Senate shall agree, it shall prevail."

One could forgive Mr. Tugwell his orphan antecedents, wandering away in a fog, if only his ideas exhibited some sense of clear direction. Sad to say, there is not much clarity here.

For openers, the authors of this curious mish-mash propose to abolish the States altogether. In their place would arise perhaps twenty "Republics," but these would not be "republics" in any rational sense of the word. The "Republic of Ohio" and the "Republic of Illinois" would be mere administrative eunuchs, having few real powers beyond the paperwork assigned them from above.

The Congress would be abolished also. We would have a House of 400 members, whom 100 would be elected at large. We also would have a Senate, patterned roughly after the House of Lords, whose members would serve for life.

The Supreme Court would be scrapped as well. The founding fathers of Santa Barbara propose a proliferation of new courts under the general direction of a Principal Justice of the United Republics, who would appoint all judges thereafter and remove them "for incapacity or violation of rules."

Under the Model Constitution, a President would be elected for a single term of nine years, though he could be turned out after three years if 60 percent of the electorate so desired. This gentleman would be head of the government, "shaper of its commitments and expositor of its policies," but beyond calling upon the legislators each year "to do their part for the general good," it is not clear what a President would do. Apparently two Vice Presidents would perform most of the work, though their authority would run into the conflicting powers of an Overseer, a Watchkeeper, a National Regulator, and a Planning Board.

The document runs on for ten thousand words. In violation of the rule that constitutions should not (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Law And Order

(Christian Science Monitor)

France seems to have been tougher than any other Western democracy in the action it has taken to stamp out violence by revolutionaries of the New Left.

The reasons are understandable. The student upheaval of May-June, 1968, is still a recent memory. An attempt last spring to spark a new wave of student agitation involved some spectacular acts of wrecking and arson.

The government responded by outlawing the leading far-left group, the Maoist Proletarian Left, and by pushing through Parliament a stern anti-violence law.

Now the leader of the Proletarian Left, science teacher Alain Geismar, has been given a maximum two-year sentence for continuing his group's activities despite the ban. This is the second sentence handed down on Geismar within two months — in mid-October he received an 18-month jail term for inciting to violence.

The crackdown on the Maoists has led to a major public debate in France on the law and order issue. Some newspapers and many liberals accuse the government and police of repression and curtailment of civil liberties.

Yet it must be clear that any democracy has the unquestioned right to protect itself against those who would unlawfully destroy it.

Strength For Today

THESE PRESENT PROBLEMS
A picture of a young man appeared recently in a newspaper, saying that he was missing and that his family would be grateful to anyone who could locate him and inform his parents.

We are inclined to believe — if we allow our emotions to get out of hand — that we are living in the worst age people have known for centuries. Certainly there are problems confronting us today which may well startle us. But every age has confronted problems. The appalling factor about conditions today, especially among young people, is that they are different from the conditions we have been used to in the past. People just disappear and that's that. Rebellion is widespread, which in itself is not bad for there would be no human betterment without

Save Margins And The Forests

By ELMER ROESSNER
Outside of a few corporations who pollute the air, water and land because it's cheaper that way and a few cities who dump sewage into the rivers, lakes and oceans, almost everybody is in favor of cleaning up the ecology, without detergents, of course. However, a lot of nonsense has been injected into the anti-pollution fight. For example, Mayor John Lindsay of New York wants the Sunday New York Times' many sections sold separately, so that people not going anywhere won't have to pay for the travel section and to save work by his Sanitation Department. And many dogooders have demanded the end of the nonreturnable bottle even though, as has been pointed out here, bottles are not contaminating.

But here is a proposal that no one has whopped it up for: Abolish margins!

Waste, Waste, Waste!
This refers to margins on paper, not on the stock exchanges.

Fish any unanswered letter out of your pocket. You may notice that half of the paper is wasted because one side is not used at all, and that half of what's left is wasted because of the wide margins left and right, top and bottom.

Look at any piece of direct mail, telegram, billboard, contract, magazine, book, newspaper. All flaut margin waste. Some margins, of course, are necessary. Newspapers have to have margins because high-speed presses might let the first three or last three letters of every line off the page. I have to leave margins on my manuscripts so that my editors can correct my spelling. But there is a large amount of waste space in other printing and writing.

There's also a lot of space wasted in fashion art by drawing models as if they were 11 feet tall, but we'll come back to that some other day.

Save The Forests!

If all except technically necessary margins were abolished, perhaps by levying a margin tax, America may save about half of its paper every year. It may be recalled that during World War II book publishers were required to reduce margins and blank pages and it did not hurt the flow of literature.

And if half of paper requirements were eliminated, the nation could save many more of its forests and about half of its watersheds. Or we could use the timber for building houses instead of making paper, and we surely need more houses than we do margins. And reducing paper - making would reduce pollutants now flumed into many streams.

And if I am wrong about nonreturnable beer and pop bottles (they can be tossed into the sea and eventually ground into sand by waves, building up our beaches), then nonreturnable liquor bottles should be abolished. The law could be changed to require every person and every tavern to turn in one empty booze bottle for every filled bottle they buy.

Restructuring Presbyteries

RALEIGH (AP) — The Commission of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina has drawn boundaries for reducing from nine to six the number of presbyteries in North Carolina and has set Dec. 31, 1971 as the date for the new church organization to be effective.

The Presbyterians have been discussing for four years a possible restructuring of the church in North Carolina.

After a plan presented by the Wilmington Presbytery was approved by the synod, the Synod Commission was charged with putting it into effect.

The commission was empowered to deal with all related problems "concerning property, presbytery institutions and presbytery boundaries."

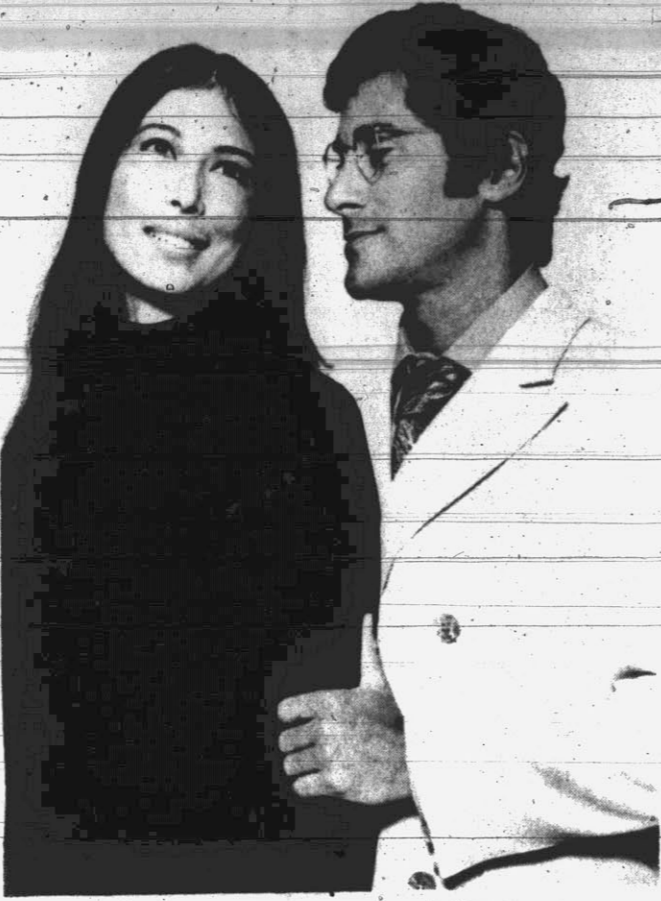

The restructuring plan calls for:

Combining the present presbyteries of Winston-Salem, Concord and Kings Mountain into one presbytery.

Removing Montgomery and Richmond counties from the Mecklenburg Presbytery and adding them to the Fayetteville Presbytery.

Combining the Orange and Granville presbyteries, which include the Greensboro, Chapel Hill, Durham and Raleigh areas, into a new presbytery.

Adding Lee, Richmond and Montgomery counties to the Fayetteville Presbytery to form a new presbytery.

Letters To Hanoi Grow

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Three weeks ago Charlotte television station WBTB began a "Write Hanoi" drive, seeking letters from viewers to be carried to the North Vietnamese delegation at the Paris peace talks.

Station officials said Monday they expected 100,000 letters at most. But they have gotten more than 303,000 and more are coming. The letters ask for information about U.S. prisoners of war.

An eight-man group will go to Paris with the 85 to 90 mailbags of letters this weekend and expect to deliver them to the North Vietnamese. The Charlotte group will be headed by Tom Cookerly, WBTB managing director.

The Charlotte station was sent a telegram to the North Vietnamese asking for an appointment. If they receive no response they say they will go any way and try for a personal visit.

The television station organized the campaign after Texas industrialist H. Ross Perot spoke in Charlotte this fall, urging such drives. Perot was unsuccessful in an attempt to deliver Christmas packages to GI prisoners last year.

The following moderators and clerks pro tem and they were directed to call meetings for the organization of the new presbyteries:

Four Auto Wrecks Reported Yesterday

More than $3,900 property damage resulted from four wrecks investigated here yesterday by police.

One person was injured in a 7:15 p.m. collision on Evans Street, 500 feet South of the Fifth Street intersection.

Officers reported a passenger in a car driven by Debra Lou Hardee, 16, of Route 3, Greenville was injured when the Hardee car collided with a car driven by Peggy Jean Taylor, 19, of Route 5, Kinston.

Damage was estimated at $700 to the Taylor car and at $400 to the Hardee vehicle.

Miss Hardee was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

James Arthur Williams, 69, of 1310B Mills St. was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 10:40 a.m. collision at the intersection of Ninth and Washington Streets which involved three vehicles.

Police said a truck driven by Williams collided with a car operated by Nathan Hugh Wetherington, 31, of 400 Manhattan Ave. which in turn collided with a parked car owned by J. J. Crouter of New Orleans.

Damage to the Wetherington and Crouter cars was set at $500 each while damage to the Williams truck was placed at $200.

A 3:57 p.m. collision on N.C. 43, 180 feet west of the Memorial Drive intersection involved four vehicles.

Officers identified drivers involved in the chain reaction rear end mishap as Eunice House Roberson, 25, of 610 Contentnea St.; Robert Allison Wood, 23, of 2402 East Third St.; George Sanford Cates, 58, of Falkland, and Margaret Duvall Walder, 23, of 418 West Fifth St.

Damage was set at $75 to the Roberson car, $300 to the Wood car, and $600 to the Cates vehicle. No damage was listed to the Walder auto.

Mrs. Walder was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

Heating Tips For The Coming Winter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The best way for home owners to keep heating bills down this winter is to use heat efficiently.

Virginia Knauer, the President's special assistant for consumer affairs, suggests the following:

- Lower thermostat settings to 68 degrees at night and when no one will be in the house for 24 hours or more. If any rooms are not used during winter months, turn off registers and radiators and close them up. Heating costs increase 3 per cent for every degree over 70. Reducing a thermostat four degrees can save $1.60 on a $60-a-month heating bill.
- Check furnaces to make sure they are operating efficiently and the filters are clean. Furnaces operating improperly will waste fuel, cause furnace damage and could prove a health hazard.
- Insulate exterior walls, ceilings and floors, starting with the attic and working down. If an uninsulated home is insulated to meet FHA standards, fuel consumption and heating bills can be reduced 23 per cent. Fully insulated homes could realize a savings of from 45 to 55 per cent.
- If possible, install storm windows and storm doors and seal cracks between window

Half-Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina has more than half a million more residents than it had 10 years ago, official census figures show.

The 1970 tally shows the state has 5,125,230 persons, compared to 4,556,155 a decade ago.

The count means the state will continue to have 11 congressmen.

Census Bureau figures released Monday show the nation has 204 million people, up from 180 million in 1960. As the result of population shifts, nine states lost at least one congressman. California gained five.

The significant part of the program, perhaps, is the summer internship which gives the Fellows intimate association with leadership models.

"We're not interested simply in getting the interns summer jobs; we want to place them on the inside of a business or governmental or institutional operation where they can really get to the guts of the job," Dr. Rowell explained. "And then we encourage them to undertake specific and meaningful projects within the framework of these jobs."

East Carolina University Freshmen Cagers

row, Coach Al Ferner, John Viquiera, Brad Ferguson, Dave Clinard, Steve Close, Barry Pasko, manager Jerry Hodge, and graduate assistant coach Bill Flanagan.

Pirate Freshmen Out To Improve On Record

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)
East Carolina University's freshmen are short in depth, but they may make up for it in hustle and ability.

This year, Coach Al Ferner is starting his first season as freshman basketball coach, and he has high hopes. "We'll do better than last year's freshmen, and we'll win more than we lose."

The freshmen put on a good showing against the varsity in the annual Varsity - Freshman game a week ago, and nearly pulled off a victory. There are nine members to the team, and Ferner says that they might pick up another member before it is all over. Six of these are receiving some aid through the grant program.

The shortest man on the team is 5-9 Barry Pasko of Irvington, N. J., but he may be a little man in size only. "He has done real well so far as our point man," Ferner said. "He had a lot of turnovers in the varsity - freshman game, but he handled the ball a lot more than anybody else, too."

Ferner said he expects Pasko to do a lot of scoring this year. "He'll get a lot of points at the foul line," he said. "Since he handles the ball so much, he'll get fouled more."

Backing Pasko up will be 6-0 Steve Close of West Palm Beach, Fla. "His ball handling needs work, but he's a real good shooter," Ferner said.

Wing-men for the Bucs will be Mike White of Laurinburg and Ray Peszko of Greenville. Mike is 6-3, and Peszko, 6-7.

"Physically Mike is as good in ability as anyone," Ferner said. "He can jump and run; he's quick. He just hasn't gotten his shooting together yet."

Peszko, who played his high school ball at Rose High School, is the surprise of the team. "He's potentially a heck of a ball player," Ferner said. "He just needs experience. Being a local boy will be hard on him, but he should do right much rebounding. He's strong inside, but he needs to work on his shooting more."

At the post positions are 6-7 Steve Steinberg of Freehold, N. J., and 6-8 Nicky White of Kingston. "Nicky doesn't know his own potential yet," Ferner said. "He's like an atomic bomb. One of these days, he'll explode and really be a great ballplayer. He's strong and has shown he'll be one of our leading rebounders. Steinberg needs to be more aggressive, and improve his defense. Both are good shooters."

Dave Clinnard is one of the top reserves in the win position, while Fred Lapis of Charlotte will be working both inside and outside from the bench. "He's going to play a lot," said Ferner. John Viquiera of Bethesda, Md., will provide backup strength at the point.

"Our board play so far has looked good," Ferner said. "I think we showed against the varsity we'll be able to handle ourselves well here."

The overall offense still has a ways to go, according to the coach. "We're not as quick as I would like us to be, but I think we'll get there."

Defensively, with Nicky White using his ability to block shots, the Baby Bucs may be strong. "He makes us look better than we are, but there is still room for improvement."

The Baby Bucs open their season Tuesday, playing Duke in Greensboro. Their first home appearance will be Friday against Chowan.

"I couldn't keep quiet," he told the crowd later from the center of the ring at the Garden's Felt Forum, referring to Bonavena's prediction that he would stop Ali in 11 rounds.

Ali carried on a conversation with his delighted followers during his sparring sessions, then stunned them by slumping to the canvas as he traded punches with Los Angeles heavyweight Bunky Atkins.

The gasps turned to cheers, though, as they realized Ali was putting them on. "There are people who want to see me knocked down," he explained.

Notre Dame Tumbles After Loss; Texas, Arkansas Ready For Southwestern Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Coach Darrell Royal of Texas and Coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas might have found a way to beat Notre Dame last week, but upper-most on their minds now is how to beat each other.

Top-ranked Texas and No. 4 Arkansas clash Saturday with the rankings, the Southeast Conference title and a trip to the Cotton Bowl at stake.

However, with Notre Dame the other team in the Cotton Bowl, Royal and Broyles flew to Los Angeles together for a look at the Irish, just in case. They saw the Cotton Bowl lose some of its luster when Notre Dame lost to Southern California 38-28.

The defeat dropped the Irish from fourth to sixth place in the weekly Associated Press major college football poll Monday.

Texas, 9-0, after clobbering Texas A&M on Thanksgiving Day, easily retained its top ranking with 23 first place votes and 788 points in the balloting of sports writers and sportscasters throughout the nation.

Still, with Texas still faced with Arkansas and, if it wins, Notre Dame on New Year's Day, any number of teams still have a shot at No. 1, including the Irish. The final poll is taken after the bowls.

Ohio State, holding onto its No. 2 ranking with 12 top votes and 752 points, will be playing in the Rose Bowl, while Nebraska, still No. 3 with five first place votes and 702 points, plays in the Orange Bowl. Ohio State is 9-0 and Nebraska 10-0-1.

And should all three falter, there is Arkansas, Tennessee, Notre Dame and Michigan, all 9-1. Arkansas jumped from fifth to fourth place this week, Tennessee moved from seventh to fifth, and Michigan rose from eighth to seventh. Tennessee plays in the Sugar Bowl, but still has to get by UCLA Saturday, while Michigan is finished.

Louisiana State, 8-2, dropped from sixth to eighth place despite a 26-14 victory over Tulane, but the Tigers can convince a lot of people Saturday against Mississippi. A victory also would put them in the Orange Bowl and leave the Texas-Arkansas loser without a date on New Year's Day.

Arizona State, 9-0, remained ninth and has games left against Arizona Saturday and in the Peach Bowl against North Carolina. Auburn, 8-2, climbed from 11th to 10th after beating Alabama.

Mississippi was the only team to drop out of the Top Ten this week after losing to Mississippi State last Saturday. The Rebels fell to 16th.

Southern Cal's victory rocketed the 6-4-1 Trojans into the Top Twenty at No. 17. The rest of the Second Ten included Air Force, No. 11; Stanford, No. 12;

Georgia Tech, No. 13; Toledo, No. 14; Dartmouth, No. 15; Penn State, No. 18; Northwestern, No. 19 and Oklahoma, No. 20.

The Top Twenty teams, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9 etc.:

- 1. Texas (23) 788
- 2. Ohio State (12) 752
- 3. Nebraska (5) 702
- 4. Arkansas 495
- 5. Tennessee 438

- 6. Notre Dame 415
- 7. Michigan 372
- 8. Louisiana State 367
- 9. Arizona State (2) 287
- 10. Auburn 237
- 11. Air Force 155
- 12. Stanford 95
- 13. Georgia Tech 95
- 14. Toledo 67
- 15. Dartmouth 62
- 16. Mississippi 49
- 17. Southern California 38 1/2
- 18. Penn State 32
- 19. Northwestern 24
- 20. Oklahoma 23

Morris, Csonka Lead Dolphins To Victory

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka ripped Atlanta's touted defensive unit to shreds and Bob Griese added the big play touch as the Miami Dolphins kept alive their hopes of reaching the National Football League playoffs with a 20-7 victory over the Falcons Monday night.

"We just got whipped in every phase of the game," said Coach Norm Van Brocklin of the Falcons following the weekly national television (ABC) attraction.

The triumph boosted Miami's American Football Conference East Division mark to 7-4, leaving it 1 1/2 games behind Baltimore. Each has three games remaining, with all of Miami's at home against the New York Jets, Boston and Buffalo.

However, Miami still has another shot at a playoff spot by compiling the best record of division runners-up.

The only other teams approaching the Dolphin mark are co-leaders in the West, Oakland and Kansas City, both with 6-3-2 records. They still must face each other.

The Falcons never were in the game in the first half when Morris dashed for 71 of his 76 yards on the ground and added a vital 49-yard return of the opening kickoff that set up a field goal.

He also had a 27-yard run in the field goal drive and sprinted 40 yards in the second quarter to set up Jim Kick's one-yard touchdown plunge that helped the Dolphins to a 13-0 lead.

Atlanta, which hadn't penetrated the Miami 40 in the first half, took charge in the third quarter, holding the ball the first 10 minutes and driving to the Dolphin 21. There, on fourth-and-one, Bob Berry crossed up the defense with a pass to the end zone.

Art Malone stepped under the ball at the goal line, but the ball appeared to squirt through his arms, ending that threat.

Don Hansen then intercepted a Griese pass and returned it 15 yards to the Miami 40. Berry drove Atlanta to a touchdown.

Then Csonka, who compiled 70 of his 108 yards in the final half, sparked an 80-yard scoring drive for the Dolphins. He capped the march with a one-yard run with less than three minutes remaining.

Griese, who attempted only 11 passes and completed eight, said he preferred to stay on the ground after the Dolphins found they could run on Atlanta.

"If we can win without throwing a single pass, then that's okay."

Berry also threw well, hitting 18 of 24 for 160 yards, but most were short yardage tosses over the middle.

ACC Teams To Open Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Atlantic Coast Conference tonight begins a basketball season in which three of its eight members are nationally ranked in the Associated Press pre-season poll.

South Carolina is No. 2, Duke is No. 13 and North Carolina State's defending champions are 19th. At season's end last winter, South Carolina was No. 6 and N. C. State No. 10 after beating South Carolina in a double overtime ACC championship tournament final.

Unranked nationally this time is North Carolina, winner of three straight conference crowns before being dethroned last winter.

The Tar Heels open at home tonight against East Tennessee State, one of six games for ACC teams against outsiders.

Other games have Duke meeting Princeton at Greensboro, North Carolina State host to Atlantic Christian of the Carolinas Conference, Delaware at Maryland, Appalachian at Wake Forest and Virginia meeting Virginia Military in the opening round of the Virginia Big 5 tournament at Hampton, Va.

South Carolina opens its season at home against Auburn and Clemson starts at home against Furman, both on Thursday.

South Carolina, loaded with veteran talent plus some standout sophomores, and Duke, with last year's unbeaten freshman team pressing a flock of returning starters, have been tabbed as the two top contenders, with North Carolina State a dark horse possibility.

Overlooked in pre-season calculations is North Carolina. The Tar Heels have lost super star Charlie Scott from last season's 18-9 squad that lost to Virginia in the first round of the ACC tournament, then lost to Manhattan in the first round of the NIT at New York.

Coach Dean Smith has his Nos. 2, 3 and 4 scorers back in Dennis Wuycik, 6-foot-11 Lee Dedmon and Bill Chamberlain for starters but Smith says, "We need to make up for our graduation losses with teamwork. We will strive for a balanced scoring attack and we hope to get it."

The Tar Heels would do well to recall what happened to Duke two Decembers ago and not take too lightly the Buccaneers of East Tennessee State. The Bucs bombed Duke by eight points and still have a backcourt star from that team in Corky Gifford. East Tennessee, 15-11 last year, is small but speedy and plays a rugged Ohio Valley Conference schedule. It follows the game with North Carolina by flying to Ohio State to meet the Big 10 Buckeyes.

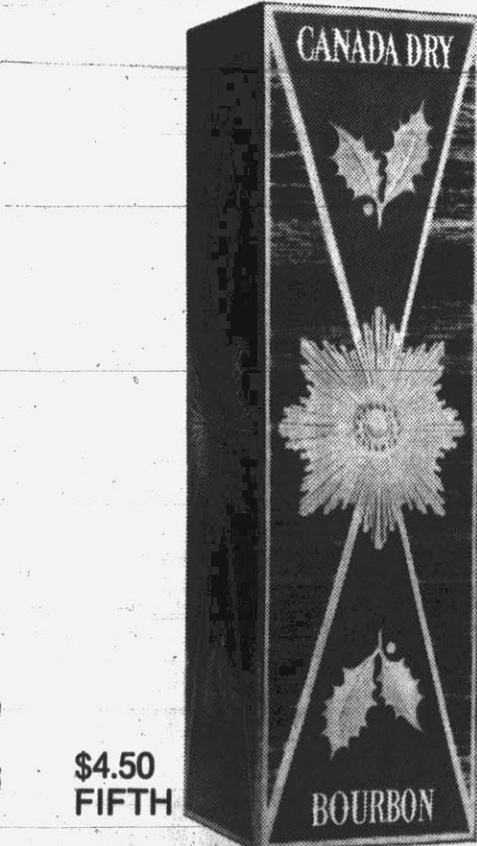

Benefit Set Saturday

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and First Presbyterian Church will play a benefit basketball game Saturday night. The game, at 8 p.m. in the Aycock Junior High School gym, will benefit the Greenville Boys' Club. Tickets are $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Worry Clinic Insidious Push To Socialism

Dr. Eli shows why our American churches are losing members fast, as well as failing to meet their budgets. "If you sow the wind," wisely states the Bible, "then you'll reap the whirlwind." Our colleges and seminaries "sowed the wind," beginning at least 25 years ago. We are now reaping the "whirlwind" of sit-ins, riots, empty pews and wild demands for "reparations!"

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE 0-590: Dr. Eli is a superb pulpit orator. Although his church is overflowing and adding new members, almost half of the churches in his denomination failed to raise their budgets last year. Why?

"Dr. Crane," he replied, "it is because so many graduates of our seminaries have been indoctrinated with Socialism. 'Yet the great silent majority of parishioners are more experienced in the grim financial realities of our 'Free Enterprise' system. 'Why, when I graduated from Garrett Biblical Institute in Evanston a generation ago, we had a Socialist professor on the staff. 'And he would mark down a student's grades unless that student parroted back the professor's Socialistic nonsense. 'A few of us were strong advocates of 'free enterprise' and very hostile to this teacher's Socialistic notions. 'But we knew he'd drop us below a 'B' grade (which was required for graduation) unless we repeated his inane ideas on our exams. 'And Garrett wasn't the only seminary, by any means, which was brainwashing its seminary students AGAINST America! 'In fact, other Protestant and even some Catholic seminaries were swinging openly toward Socialism even then. 'So you can easily see the harvest of such anti-American teaching, as it is coming nowadays from many pulpits. "This wasn't a sudden change! It has been developed from the top, both in seminaries and Liberal Arts Colleges, for at least 25 years!

Dr. Philip M. Crane, former American history professor, wrote a challenging book in 1964, on the invasion from England of the Fabians.

The Fabians were British Socialists. And Socialists are first cousins of Communists!

For Socialism decrees that the government should own the agencies for the production and distribution of goods.

This means factories, farms, plus railroads, trucking lines, airlines and shipping.

Communism merely says "ditto" and then states that the government should own your private homes, too!

Back in 1905, a big organizing banquet was held by the Fabians in New York, attended by about 100 leading American professors, seminary professors, writers and other leaders of public opinion.

They openly avowed that they would destroy our American capitalistic system. How?

By infiltrating seminaries and colleges, where they would brainwash the future clergymen and school teachers, as well as the communication media.

They admitted it might take 50 years, but they thoroughly "planned it that way."

My son Philip says it wasn't till 1960 that patriotic Americans woke up to this insidious sabotage of Uncle Sam and thus started organizing conservative clubs on some 300 college campuses.

Many economists are setting the year 1972 as the "point of no return" on our downward trend toward Socialism. So wake up fast!

If you want more shocking details, documented fully, go to your library and see if you can borrow a copy of my son's book, "The Democrat's Dilemma."

Some Highly Educated Taking Lesser Jobs

AP News Special
 (EDITOR'S NOTE: A stranger has been placed by the economy on the unemployed rolls in North and South Carolina. He is bright and highly educated and would expect to be making a comfortable salary. This is the first of a series of four stories telling why he is not and how his joblessness is affecting him.)

isothermal elastic constants of copper and nickel.
 Many other bright young men just like him have been turned out onto the streets, because companies can no longer afford to have three or four men working on a single project just to be competitive.

 University Job placement services say it is common now for Ph.D.s who have just graduated to find themselves without job offers.

 But the casualty list includes the older ranks, too.

 The vice president of a personnel agency, Tom Deen of Dunhill Associates' Charlotte office, says plenty of 40-to-45-year-old, middle-management executives are being fired because of companies having to cut back.

ness in textiles, which he says is doing great and working three shifts.

The job drain doesn't seem to be affecting the lower-paying fields either, he said, such as construction and other laboring-class jobs. In fact, he said, there appears to be a shortage of workers.

There are still jobs available for the middle-class technicians and managers, Deen said, but companies are becoming more selective in their hiring.

The firms are demanding a specific amount of experience in very narrow fields, he said.

And applicants are having to sell themselves now — a far cry from the days when major companies would knock themselves out making officers to lure a young man away from a competitor's hiring office.

And the untouched ones, the executives and technicians who haven't lost their jobs?

"They know there's a man out there in the breadline who can do his job," Deen said. "And they work twice as hard. They know they might be next."

JOB HUNTER — A hopeful job hunter talks with Tom Deen, an employment executive in Charlotte. Deen says more and more highly educated workers are being put out of work by the deflated economy. (AP Wirephoto)

By TOM WELLS
 Associated Press Writer
 CHARLOTTE (AP) — The deflated economy has many highly educated North and South Carolinians pounding the pavement looking for jobs. Some are taking low-paying, low-prestige positions just so they can make ends meet.

Companies built up their forces of management, engineers and technicians during the roaring 60s when expense was not a problem. Now, many companies are cutting away the fat, keeping only those workers absolutely necessary to stay in business.

A young man with a Ph.D. degree in physics was making $15,000 a year with a synthetic textiles company, before the economy went flat. Now he's a $125-a-week floor manager in a department store — a challenge far below his doctorate dissertation: the 3rd and 4th order

Eartha Kitt Romance Ends

LONDON (AP) — Eartha Kitt says her romance with a dashing Danish businessman is over — even though "I love him so much."

The 40-year-old singer, who had announced Friday her engagement to wealthy Ole Broend-Nielsen, told a reporter after they had a brief meeting here Sunday:

"My wedding plans are definitely off. I'm flying home to Beverly Hills as soon as possible."

The 32-year-old Dane explained there seemed to be a misunderstanding.

They met a few months ago when she was appearing in Copenhagen and he went backstage to inspect a faulty sound system.

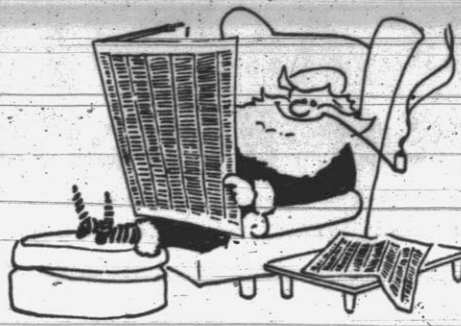

Ole, who manufactures stage sound equipment, explained:

"I have solved Miss Kitt's electro-acoustic problems. But from that to marriage is a long jump."

Passenger Rail Net Plan Aired

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe has unveiled a tentative plan for a railway network connecting 14 major cities and intermediate points in a revitalization of passenger train service.

The plan is part of a congressionally-approved program to improve routes not wanted by the railroads. The National Railroad Passenger Corp. will take control of the unwanted runs May 1.

The coast-to-coast network is intended to both improve service and make the corporation a profit, Volpe said.

Some 90 per cent of all railroads are expected to turn over their passenger service to the corporation, known as Railpax.

Mrs. Roach spent all her life in the Epworth Community and was a member of the Epworth Methodist Church.

Surviving are her husband, Ledrew Roach; three sons, Gilbert A. Roach of New Bern, Winfred M. and Lealon D. WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe has unveiled a tentative plan for a railway network connecting 14 major cities and intermediate points in a revitalization of passenger train service.

The plan is part of a congressionally-approved program to improve routes not wanted by the railroads. The National Railroad Passenger Corp. will take control of the unwanted runs May 1.

The coast-to-coast network is intended to both improve service and make the corporation a profit, Volpe said.

Some 90 per cent of all railroads are expected to turn over their passenger service to the corporation, known as Railpax.
