Cox Named Chairman For Coming Year

Pitt Commissioners Reorganize Today

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's governing board was re-organized this morning as the commissioners held their regular monthly session.

Commissioners Vernon Cox, J. Vance Perkins and B. Alton Gardner, whowere re-elected to their posts on the board during the past election, took the oath of office from Clerk of Superior Court H. L. Lewis. Commission members then elected Cox as their chairman for the coming year and named Charles Gaskins as vice-chairman. Cox served as vice-chairman during the past year and replaced Perkins as chairman.

More than a half-dozen county officials were reappointed to their posts under the annual re-organization plan.

Those reappointments included: H. R. Gray as county manager and auditor; Margaret Roberts as clerk to the board; W. W. Speight as county attorney; Walter Gould as Superintendant of buildings and grounds; John J. Payne III as electrical inspector; Michael Worthington as fire marshall and W. R. Smith as tax collector.

Other appointments, to such posts as the Pitt County Development Commission, and the Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees, were expected to come later in the day.

In other business at their morning session, commissioners received bids for eight new cars, seven for use by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department (including three new cars and four with trade-ins) and one vehicle for the Tax department (a trade-in).

Net bids received included: Phelps Chevrolet Co. $18,223.08 (for seven cars) plus $390 per unit for air conditioning for eacn car, and $2,250 for one car; Hastings Ford, $18,377 for seven cars, plus $390 for air conditioning each car, and $2,149 for one car; Bright Leaf Motors, $18,616.44 for seven cars, plus $350 per car for air conditioning, and $2,148.09 for one car.

Contracts for the vehicles were not awarded pending further study.

Commissioners this morning also approved establishment of a Resource Conservation and Development region, composed of the counties of Pitt, Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford and Martin.

The region includes the counties that compose Region Q under the Department of Administration's planning and development district program.

Under the plan, federal resource conservation and development funds will be made available for technical assistance, education and loans for resource projects in the region.

West Germany Renounces Claim To 40,000 Square Miles Of Pre-War Land

By NICHOLAS LILLITOS
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's campaign to improve relations between his West German government and the Soviet Bloc moved another step forward today as he and Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz signed a treaty calling for normalization of relations.

The most important clause of the treaty was one renouncing the German claim to the 40,000 square miles of prewar German territory which Poland seized at the end of World War II.

The two government chiefs signed the treaty at a ceremony in the Radziwill Palace.

Brandt's government is holding up ratification of a similar treaty signed last August between Bonn and the Soviet Union until an agreement is reached easing the situation of isolated West Berlin and acknowledging that West Germany has a special relationship with the city.

Asked if the same condition had to be met before the Polish treaty is presented to the Bundestag, West Germany's parliament, the spokesman said: "This question is not answerable at this time. It is a matter of political expediency."

But Brandt's government is expecting a difficult fight for ratification of the treaty because of the territorial concession.

The treaty does not establish diplomatic relations, but the West German spokesman in Warsaw said they will follow ratification.

Like the Bonn-Moscow pact, the treaty recognizes the current national boundaries in Europe, including the Oder and Neisse rivers as the boundary between Poland and East Germany.

Bonn claims more than a million ethnic Germans live east of the Oder-Neisse line, and Polish Foreign Minister Stefan Jedrychowski gave Scheel a letter promising no interference if they want to emigrate to Germany. But Poland contends they number in the tens of thousands and considers them Poles instead of Germans.

The treaty provides the first diplomatic contact between West Germany and Poland, whose invasion by Hitler's army on Sept. 1, 1939, started World War II. Poland has claimed repeatedly that the West Germans are plotting to regain regions that were East Prussia, Pomerania and Silesia.

But after the treaty was initialed, Polish Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka told the Hungarian Communist party congress Brandt's movement toward improving relations with Communist Eastern Europe "in our opinion is irreversible."

The Bonn-Warsaw pact pledges nonaggression and peaceful settlement of disputes and says it is aimed at developing normal relations between the states.

West Germany cannot officially recognize Poland without the concurrence of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, which retain postwar rights and responsibility for Germany.

Brandt arrived Sunday night and went into discussions with Gomulka. Cyrankiewicz was to join the talks today after he and Brandt signed the document.

Nine-Story ECU Dorm Is Dedicated

Tyler Dormitory, the nine story men's dormitory on East Carolina University's College Drive, was dedicated at services held yesterday afternoon.

U. S. Congressman L. H. Fountain made the dedicatory address for the 500 man dormitory, the first high rise one in the men's area on College Drive.

Other college and State officials participating in the dedication ceremony were State Attorney General Robert B. Morgan, who as Chairman of the Board of Trustees for ECU accepted the portrait of Arthur Lynwood Tyler, for whom the dormitory is named; Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of ECU, who gave the address of welcome; and Dr. Robert L. Holt, vice-president and Dean of Administration of ECU. The Men's Glee Club sang Marschner's "The Testament" and Miss Beth Gardner unveiled the portrait of Tyler.

Tyler, a native of Richmond, Virginia was born in 1896. In 1908, the Tyler family moved to Henderson, North Carolina where he finished high school in 1913. For one year he attended the University of North Carolina, then returned home to help his father with the education of five other children in the family, all of whom later earned college degrees.

In 1915 the young Tyler was sent to Rocky Mount as Manager of a department store, followed by service with the field artillery during World War II. In 1931 Tyler joined the Belk organization, where he continued until his retirement this year. At the time of his retirement Tyler was Chairman of the Board of Belk Stores Services, Inc. for 418 stores throughout the Southeast.

Tyler has been active over a long period of years in a number of religious, civic and educational fields, including six terms on the Executive Council of the Diocese of North Carolina; as a member of the Board of Trustees at East Carolina University for which he later served as Board Chairman. At the present time he is on the Board of Trustees of North Carolina Wesleyan College. He was chairman of the original fund raising drive for two million dollars to begin Wesleyan College.

All-Night Talks On Ford Terms

DETROIT (AP) — Bargainers for Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers Union negotiated through the night in hopes of winding up a new three-year contract for 166,000 workers before today's midnight strike deadline.

UAW and Ford personnel ranging from public relations men to photographers waited nearby, a traditional sign an announcement is in the offing.

Navy Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Navy John Chafee was scheduled to appear today as leadoff witness before the Senate Public Works Committee looking into Navy conduct regarding creation of a huge oil slick off Florida's coast last week.

Suspect Refinery Sabotage

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — Police sought today to identify from a voice recording a caller who said "the refinery is gonna burn, baby, burn" less than two hours before an explosion and fire raked a 1,500-acre Humble Oil Co. complex.

The telephone call to the police was described by investigators as their only lead to the cause of the blast—felt 40 miles away—and petroleum-fed blaze which injured 29 and caused damage in the millions Saturday night.

Police said the FBI would be asked to compare a voice print made from the recording with its own file of voice prints in the search for the caller.

"We feel this was a deliberate act of sabotage," declared Mayor John Gregorio.

"We're assuming it was sabotage because of the actions throughout the country in the past few months," said a police lieutenant, referring to widespread bombings by militant groups.

The mayor said something dropped from an aircraft might have touched off the initial explosion. Four residents reported seeing a light plane or helicopter over the refinery at about the time the blast sent a fireball 1,000 feet into the air.

Winds Made It Colder

If you were out before dawn today and it seemed colder than it really was, it's probably because it was.

The effect of the wind pushed effective temperatures much lower than thermometers were actually reading early this morning.

Temperatures in some parts of North Carolina were in the sub-zero range, and the wind was keeping it equivalent to a few degrees above zero in many other places.

In Greenville, lows of 16 and 19 degrees were reported for the weekend's 24-hour reporting periods.

It was actually 24 degrees at Asheville at 5 a.m., but wind gusted to as much as 25 miles an hour, bringing the effective temperature to a minus seven.

The wind chill factor, as scientists call it, is a mathematical expression for the effect of the wind upon bare skin.

It was 25 degrees at 5 a.m. in Charlotte, but the wind on bare noses and cheeks made it seven degrees above zero.

Greensboro had 18, but there was only a five-mile an hour wind to bring that adjusted temperature down to aboat 14 degrees.

Raleigh-Durham and Winston-Salem reporting stations both had 22 at 5 a.m., but winds made it equivalent to five degrees above zero in the Raleigh-Durham area and about nine above zero at Winston-Salem.

It was a relatively warm 34 according to the thermometer there, but gusts of wind were bringing the effective temperature to seven degrees above zero.

Sworn In

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson, Clerk of Superior Court H. L. Lewis Jr. and almost a score of deputy sheriffs were sworn in for new terms of office today in Superior Court.

Judge Joshua S. James administered the oath of office to the county officials congratulated each member for his or her service to the county.

All will serve a four year term in their respective offices. The ceremony took place prior to trial proceedings in Superior Court early this morning.

Another Tar Heel Is Heard

HONG KONG (AP) — Radio Hanoi broadcast a Christmas message to his wife and children in North Carolina from Capt. Norman Alexander MacDaniel, a captive pilot from Greensboro.

The message, one of a series broadcast by Radio Hanoi, said: "Hi Sweetheart, Hello Randy, Hi Christal,

"Another Christmas season this year and we are still apart. But we have many things for which to be thankful. I wish you a happy, joyful Christmas and my thoughts and prayers are with you during this festive season. Hopefully next year we can celebrate Christmas together.

"Randy, Mommy says you are doing very well in school. Keep up the good work. If you are old enough and it's not too convenient, ask Mommy to let you join the Cub Scouts. I hope Santa brings you and Christal many nice things this year.

"Christal, you are very cute, but from your picture you look very mischievous. Be a good girl and help Mommy keep the house (one word indistinct.).

"Carol, I still plan to go to graduate school when I return, and I am interested in playing the piano and guitar as a hobby. My bridge playing has improved greatly. Hope you are (two words indistinct) and engaging in edifying endeavors.

"In the packages, toilet and groom items, chocolates, (two words indistinct) and preserves are most (one word indistinct).

Swiss Diplomat Is Abducted By Terrorist Gang

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher of Switzerland was kidnaped today by terrorists who shot a Brazilian government agent assigned to guard him.

The Swiss Embassy said Bucher was on his way to his office in his car. The car was blocked by the terrorists, the ambassador removed and the agent shot as he attempted to stop the abduction, the embassy reported.

The agent was reported to have been wounded by the gunfire.

It is Brazil's fourth political kidnaping in a rash of such seizures that began with the abduction of U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrich on Sept. 4, 1969, in Rio de Janeiro. He was released after the military government freed 15 prisoners held in connection with politically inspired crimes.

The other kidnapings in Brazil were of Consul Nobuo Okuchi of Japan in Sao Paulo last March and Ambassador Ehrenfried von Hollenben of West Germany last June. Both were freed upon the government's release of political prisoners.

According to initial reports of Bucher's seizure the terrorists carried out their mission in no more than two minutes. He was hustled into another car and driven away.

During the operation, the terrorists scattered leaflets signed, "National Liberation Alliance, Operation Joaquim Camara Ferreira, Command Juarez Gimaraes de Brito."

Witnesses said that after blocking the ambassador's car, the kidnapers ordered the driver out.

The agent, who was sitting in the front beside the driver, tried to resist and received three shots.

Truce?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers says the United States is considering a month-long Vietnam truce over the holidays in hopes it will lead to a permanent end of fighting.

A State Department spokesman said Rogers heard Sen. Henry M. Jackson make a similar proposal Sunday on a television interview show and promptly phoned the Washington Democrat to tell of his approval.

Rogers told Jackson the administration has been considering the plan for some time and intends to pursue it, the spokesman said.

Jackson recommended the annual Christmas cease-fire be extended through Tet, the Vietnamese lunar New Year at the end of January.

This would allow Paris peace negotiators to "really get in and dig hard" for a permanent standstill cease-fire, Jackson said.

Jackson appeared on NBC's radio and television program "Meet the Press."

Elections Board Slowly Unravels Vote Disputes

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Elections came up with a tie Sunday in the House of Representatives race between veteran Democratic Rep. Arthur Williamson and Republican Thomas Harrelson of Suthport.

In other actions taken after the board held long deliberations Friday, Saturday and Sunday, deferred a decision in the Alamance County Senate race in which Democratic Sen. Ralph Scott, uncle of the governor, held a lead of only 12 votes over Republican Hubert Lowe.

The board also sided with the Democratic candidate for sheriff of Ashe County who defeated his Republican rival by only 12 votes. The board rejected the petition of Republican James Hartman which means that Democratic George L. "Corky" Miller will be sworn in today as Ashe's sheriff.

In the Williamson-Harrelson race in Columbus and Brunswick counties, Williamson originally had a lead of two votes. However, a recount of the votes in the South Lees precinct cut the margin to one vote. The board decided Sunday to count a "spoiled" ballot that had been marked for Harrelson, and this produced the tie vote.

A tie vote for a legislative seat is without known precedent in North Carolina. It means that the General Assembly will meet in joint session one day next month to choose between Williamson and Harrelson. Since the assembly is overwhelmingly Democratic, it can be expected to side with Williamson.

In the Alamance case, the board decided to permit both sides to present written pleadings and supporting documents, but not to hear oral testimony and arguments. The board divided 3-2 on this motion when one Democratic member, L. H. Jones of Mt. Airy, voted with the two Republican members.

The board on Nov. 21 voted unanimously to uphold the action of the Alamance County Elections Board in certifying Scott as the WINNER. However, on Nov. 24, the board agreed to a request by Lowe's attorney that it reopen the case and hear further arguments.

It then voted to direct the Alamance board to case aside 32 paper ballots that had been taken outside polling place to be marked by aged and infirm voters who were considered unable to enter the polling places and work voting machines. Last Friday, the board voted to rescind that action.

In the Ashe County case, Hartman had petitioned a recount on the grounds that Republicans were not given an opportunity to challenge 41 absentee ballots cast by inmates of two rest homes. The board divided on party lines in voting 3-2 to deny Hartman's petition.

Engineered Beria's Fall, Says Khrushchev

NEW YORK (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev says he engineered secret police chief Lavrenty P. Beria's downfall after Joseph Stalin's death, according to the third installment of the reminiscences attributed to the former Soviet premier.

Georgi Malenkov took over after Stalin died, but the reminiscences published in Life's Dec. 11 issue say this was part of a plot by Beria to build up Malenkov and then discredit him, clearing the way for his own rise to power.

The memoir gives this account:

Soon after Stalin's death in March 1953, Khrushchev tried to persuade Malenkov that he was being led into a trap and proposed that he deal with Beria through the Communist party Presidium.

"Malenkov finally agreed," Khrushchev writes. "I was surprised and delighted. We wrote the agenda for the next Presidium session and included some issues on which the others supported us, and Beria was defeated. This pattern was repeated, and only then did Malenkov become confident that we could use party methods against Beria."

The key meeting took place in June.

"As soon as Malenkov opened the session he said, 'Let us discuss party questions. There are some matters which we must deal with right away.' Everyone agreed. As had been arranged in advance, I requested the floor and proposed that we discuss the matter of Beria. Beria was sitting on my right. He gave a start, grabbed me by the hand, looked at me with a startled expression and said, 'What's going on, Nikita? What's this you're mumbling about?

"I said, 'Just pay attention. You'll find out soon enough!'"

Most of those present denounced Beria, and Khrushchev then proposed his removal from official posts.

"Malenkov was still in a state of panic. As I recall he didn't even put my motion to a vote. He pushed a secret button which gave the signal to the generals who were waiting in the next room. (Marshal Georgi K.) Zhukov was the first to appear ... Malenkov said in a faint voice to comrade Zhukov, 'As chairman of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R., I request that you take Beria into custody pending investigation of charges made against him.'"

Beria was shot six months later.

'Clubwoman Of The Year' Awarded To Mrs. Smith

The Greenville Woman's Club held its last meeting for 1970 Friday night with husbands and friends present for a covered dish dinner.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of the silver Revere bowl to Mrs. Argent Smith, who was selected as "Outstanding Clubwoman of the Year."

Mrs. George Snyder, last year's recipient, made the presentation in an original rhyme depicting the loyalty service and unselfish devotion of Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. J. Vance Perkins

Mrs. J. Vance Perkins was cited for winning a silver bowl as the Citizenship Award in District 15. She will compete for the state award.

New officers for 1971-72 were installed by Mrs. Nancy Willard and include:

President, Mrs. Milam Johnson; First Vice President, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare; Second Vice President, Mrs. George Clapp; Recording Secretary, Mrs. H. R. Phillips;

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Frank Polard; Treasurer, Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell; Historian, Mrs. Sally Klingenschmitt; and Reporter, Mrs. R. P. Rogers.

After accepting the gavel the new president, Mrs. Johnson, announced that the State President Mrs. Paul Keller of Statesville would be guest speaker at the first meeting of the new year on Jan. 8.

Mrs. George Clapp, president, presided and welcomed guests and a new member, Mrs. Troy Barrett. Mrs. J. L. Savage paid tribute to the late Mrs. Mildred Kennedy, lighting a candle in her memory.

The Rev. Adrian Brown gave the invocation and a Christmas meditation.

Reports of the year's work were given by the various chairmen and by the president. The club voted to make a contribution to the high school for participation in a presidential classroom for young Americans, to children in foster homes, to

Mrs. Argent Smith

Mrs. Clapp was thanked for her two years of service to the club.

Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. W. A. Pollard led the group in singing Christmas carols.

The meeting was held at the Woman's Club building, which was decorated with a Christmas motif.

Luncheon For Sappho Club

Mrs. Larry Averette and Mrs. Tommie Willis entertained the Sappho Book Club at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Bett Gray on Tuesday.

Mrs. Gene Ward, president, presided over the business meeting. The club voted to donate to Operation Santa Claus for the Pitt County Mental Health Society.

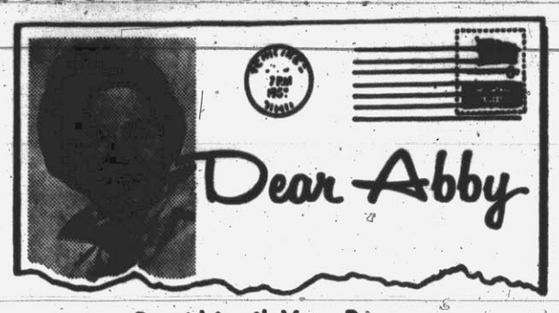
Wants Luxuries, Not Investments



By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: For years my husband brainwashed me into believing that the only thing money was good for was to invest it in order to make more money. It made sense to me, and for many years that is exactly what my husband did with his money, while we went without luxuries we could have well afforded.

However, now that we have more than enough security for our "old age," I think it is time we enjoyed a few luxuries. My husband totally disagrees with me and still insists on "investing" all our money.

Your previous advice to consult a marriage counselor did not work. In the first place, my husband is smarter than any marriage counselor, and in the second place, he says they are only after his money. He may listen to you, since your advice is free. DESPAIRING WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't bet on it. And why should he? He didn't ask for my advice, you did, so here goes:

Lady, you can catch more flies with honey than vinegar. And if at this stage in your life you can't inspire your husband to want to provide you with the luxuries you can well afford, you're in trouble. It seems rather unfeminine for a wife to consult a lawyer about how much of her husband's assets she is entitled to under the law, but it's an idea. And don't worry about his divorcing you. In your state, it's too expensive. So hold tight. You may outlive him.

DEAR ABBY: I enjoyed all those letters from the different preachers telling how they felt about babies crying in church. Little ones can be quite annoying when they set up a holler and their mothers don't take them out, but I will tell you what disturbs me even more. It's folks who go to sleep in the middle of the sermon and snore. JACKSON, MISS.

DEAR JACKSON: If too many people go to sleep during the sermon and snore, somebody should wake up the preacher!

DEAR ABBY: My sister, Lee, is in her early fifties. She is a very attractive divorcee who has been seeing a rather well-to-do married man. This man [Lee says] has promised to marry her when he gets his divorce, but no one knows when that will be.

Our family is concerned that Lee will be accused of breaking up this man's home, altho Lee assures us there is no danger of that.

We feel Lee is cheapening herself by going with this man while he is still married. Also, if he doesn't get divorced and marry her, she will have wasted a lot of valuable time. In the meantime, we're afraid people will talk. What should we do? LEE'S CONCERNED FAMILY

DEAR FAMILY: YOU shouldn't do anything, having already told Lee what you've told me. If Lee is accused of breaking up a married man's home, or gets herself talked about, it will be her problem.

DEAR ABBY: I was pleased to read in your column that there are dog psychiatrists who can help troubled pets. My problem is that I have a wire hair terrier who desperately needs psychiatric help, but the poor thing isn't allowed on the couch. R. E. L.: COLUMBUS, OHIO

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Business Going Up With Skirt Lengths

HAMBURG, West Germany (WNS) — Mini girls who wait on tables at the Monte Carlo raised their maxi skirts to midi, and tips rose ten percent. Two weeks later they raised their midi skirts to mini, and tips went ten per cent higher. "We looked frumpish in long clothes," said Marianne Wechler, five-foot-two and tallest of the mini girls. "It's nice to see our customers gay again."

Homemakers Can Cut Corners During The Holiday Season

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—It pays to practice sex discrimination when you buy a turkey for Christmas dinner. This is just one of the ways you can cut corners on the holiday meal as food prices continue to rise.

Hen turkeys up to and including 18 pounds dressed weight yield more breast meat than tom turkeys of identical weight. Up to and including 22 pounds, hens also yield more edible meat overall than toms. These figures are from a study by the late L. E. Cline of the University of Nevada for the Norbest Turkey Growers Association.

Provided the price per pound is the same or lower for hens than toms, you'll save money if you buy the female of the species.

You also get more meat for your money if you cook cut-up turkey parts instead of roasting a whole bird in the traditional way. The National Turkey Federation, Mt. Morris, Ill., says tests showed this cooking method can yield as much as 50 per cent more edible meat than whole-roast birds.

Roast-Poach Parts

The parts to be roast-poached should be placed cut side down in a single layer in a flat roasting pan, with no water or fat added. Cook at 340 degrees or less, turning each piece to brown other side. If necessary, add a small amount of water—about a quarter inch—to pan if drippings dry up. Smaller pieces and light meat, which cook quicker, should be removed if they are done before heavier cuts and dark meat.

Here are some other ideas to save holiday food money:

Avoid last-minute shopping for any ingredients that can be bought ahead and stored "as is" for future use or prepared at least part way and then stored.

Make your own bread stuffing with day-old bread bought after it's marked down. Either accumilate loaves in the freezer or dice each loaf immediately and dry the cubes in shallow trays in a low oven. Seal cubes in plastic bags on a pantry shelf until needed.

Omit Frills

Plan a menu that omits frills such as olives and other store-bought relishes, which few people will miss if they're saving room for turkey and trimmings.

Cut out extra vegetable courses—serve either white or sweet potatoes, not both; a single green or yellow vegetable instead of several.

Skip bread as such if the bird contains bread stuffing. If you want salad, make it with cooked or raw vegetables or mixed greens instead of higher-calorie fruit or jelled salad.

Provide homemade cookies instead of a rich, expensive desert.

Take the edge off appetites by offering mugs of hot clear soup to arriving guests as an alternative to alcoholic beverages.

Mrs. Davenport Gives Program

Mrs. James F. Davenport was guest speaker for the Seira Book Club's December meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. O. Derrick.

Speaking on birds, Mrs. Davenport began her talk with an Indian legend "Whence Came the Birds." She told of locating, identifying, feeding and attracting birds and showed illustrated pictures.

She suggested that bird feeders make good Christmas gifts especially for elderly people and shut-ins. She closed her talk with a reading of "The Christmas Legend of the Birds." Background music for the program consisted for a recording of bird songs and calls.

Mrs. Derrick introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Howard Moye, president, presided over the business session and welcomed the following guests: Mrs. Elvin Holstius; Mrs. Roy Berbert; Mrs. Charles W. Moye; Mrs. Joe Paulk; and Mrs. Davenport.

Mrs. Moye assisted the hostess in serving and Mrs. Paulk poured punch.

She Meets Fiance 'Quite By Mistake'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (WNS) — Lucienne Duval, 23, began as mail clerk six months ago but managed to meet the boss, Henri Darnel, the second day on the job and is now retiring as his wife. "I meet him quite by mistake, but he forgave me," she said. Her first day's work consisted of mailing out hundreds of sales circulars, each with a pre-paid envelope addressed to the Darnel company. "Next day I was called into his office because I had tucked each circular into its self-addressed envelope," she smiled. "Quite by mistake."

Miss Brenda Langley Is Bride Of Hardy White Jr.

Miss Brenda Langley became the bride of Hardy White Jr. on Sunday, Nov. 29, at six o'clock at the home of the bride. Bishop William E. Jones officiated at the ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Augusta Hopkins of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy White of Rt. 1, Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Arlean Sanders, vocalist, and Darrell Davis, pianist.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather. She wore a formal length white satin gown with an empire waistline and A-line skirt. The high neckline and sleeves were edged in lace.

She wore a shoulder length veil of silk edged in lace. Her bridal bouquet was of miniature carnations centered with a white orchid tied with white satin streamers.

Clarence Phillips of Durham served his brother-in-law as best man.

Mrs. Sally Ann Walker directed the wedding.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth trimmed in lace. A centerpiece of white carnations with candelabra on either side was used.

Mrs. Minnie Spain poured punch and Mrs. Joyce Norfleet served the cake.

After Jan. 1,, the couple will reside in Durham.

Hush Puppies® BRAND CASUALS Tales
By Larry Averette

The Relaxed Shoe

Do you know the story of Rip Van Winkle?

He's perhaps the greatest testament to the quality of HUSH PUPPIES shoes.

Rip was sort of a "relaxed" person. He never liked to work too hard. He did a lot of meandering and loafing.

Old casual Rip wore HUSH PUPPIES casuals: Breathin' Brushed Pigskin and crepe rubber soles were just right for him. They're twelve ounces light and heavenly comfortable.

One day Rip fell asleep. Twenty years later he woke up. His clothes were ragged and he had a long, white beard.

Everything about Rip showed the age but his HUSH PUPPIES. They were just as new as ever. Their exclusive soil and stain repellent fluorocarbon shield kept them spotless.

HUSH PUPPIES shoes pamper the feet that fill them. And they wear practically forever.

Psychologist: Being In Love Isn't Good Reason For Marriage

By BERNIE MOSS
Salt Lake Tribune Writer

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Being in love is really a lousy basis for getting married.

To be in love is to be in a neurotic state, according to Dr. William H. Brown, Salt Lake City psychologist. It is a neurotic state because it's a stirring of emotions and we don't know what it is that is stirring us up.

"To love, to really love, is another matter," said Dr. Brown. "And it's probably the rarest experience in the world."

"Love and understanding, real understanding, are closely related. Understanding augments the love thing. If you can have honest love and understanding for a person then things can be quite wonderful.

"Goethe said a very pertinent thing once: 'You can't condemn that which you understand.'

"Only as you understand had have a greater understanding of yourself do you begin to understand others."

Noting that if you're secure, really secure, then you can decide you are going to love someone and do it, Dr. Brown said, "If a fellow sees a girl, says she is lovely and wonderful and decides to love her, then he can, if he really wants to love.

"The way other people feel about you is not decided by themselves. It's an interaction that you have very much to do with. Though it might be something of an overstatement, you can have anybody feel about you the way you want them to. There are exceptions, of course.

"When the well being of another person is as important to you as your own well being, then a state of love exists.

"Probably the ideal marriage would be two people who do not need each other," Dr. Brown said. "It is easier for people who are adequate in and of themselves to love. They are more capable of understanding and giving in contrast to the person who needs and needs to take most of the time."

Marriage partners are often chosen as a neurotic complement to ourselves, noted Dr. Brown. "We choose them to fill a negative need; the person who needs to be rejected will find someone who rejects them consistently.

"A fellow who needs someone to do all the planning and organizing, make most of the family decisions, like mother has always done for him, will find a woman who has the need to be the dominant figure.

"But because these are such negative needs, something always goes wrong in the relationship.

"The cliche that love is blind really is quite true in a sense. Many people close their eyes to the other person's faults during the courtship period, thinking, 'If I should question this I might spoil the relationship.'

"We can look at a person and say, 'He's perfect, he's wonderful and he loves me...therefore I must be perfect and wonderful too.' This is a false ego builder in the sense that no one is perfect. People often decide to get married for these reasons. Then later, faults that were always there suddenly become apparent one day and are deeply resented.

"Before a couple gets married, both should make a separate list with column headings of the other person's assets and negative qualities. If they can't think of any negative qualities, they could just list whatever is the opposite of the asset.

"Remembering that no one is perfect, they can get a better appraisal of the situation and perhaps perceive what some problems would be.

Married couples seem to work more skillfully at relating with others outside the marriage than they do with their own spouse and family, he continued. They seem to think is is expected and is more important to impress others in their social world. When really their first concern should be for their partner and children.

"If we make a mistake in our jobs we make darn sure it doesn't happen again and we learn from that mistake. But for some reason we don't take marriage and family life as seriously as we do our work.

Statistics are in favor of success in a second marriage. But those statistics are often misleading. People go into a second marriage without any understanding of why the first marriage failed.

"If the person could say, 'Hey, I'm going to learn something from this mistake so it won't happen again,' they would be much better off."

It is often thought that a couple should go together for a long time before they get married. But Dr. Brown says that doesn't prove anything.

"People can be engaged 10 years before they get married and they still might not know each other or communicate and relate," he said. "Another couple might go together a week or two before they decide to get married. If they have spent that time to get to know each other it will work.

"The point is that it is not the amount of time that is important...it's that decision to love."

Housewives Fooled For Nine Years

BRUSSELS (WNS) — For nine years Belgian housewives have been buying margarine and believing that it was butter. Food inspectors who arrested 47 people in one of the biggest fraud cases in the nation's history revealed that 160 million packages of "margarine-butter" had been sold since 1961. "Housewives never did notice the difference," reported the chief inspector. "Disgruntled employees reported the crime.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (WNS) — Helga Laukant, 19, gave up her acting career because she doesn't like to take her clothes off in front of the camera. Now she has a job entertaining tourists at night when there is no sightseeing. Helga, who speaks four languages perfectly, says that men seldom make passes. "At this season, they're pretty old," she reported. "Most of them just want help in doing crossword puzzles."

Old-Fashioned Dessert: Potato Cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

An old-fashioned dessert that deserves a come back is called Mexican Potato Cake.

Don't ask us why it's labeled Mexican because we aren't sure. It's not to be found in any of our dozen or so Mexican cookbooks. Our guess is that it was given this nomenclature because the recipe calls for both chocolate and cinnamon—two flavors Mexican cooks like to team.

Well, here it is—with the same delicious flavor and moist texture it's always had, but made the modern way. The original recipe called for regular mashed potatoes; our updated recipe uses the excellent instant country-style mashed potato flakes—a great convenience.

We like the cake best served warm with a topping of whipped cream. But other tasters like it as well eaten cold and out of hand. We suggest you try it both ways.

MEXICAN POTATO CAKE

1½ squares (1½ oz) unsweetened chocolate
1 cup flour, fork-stirred to aerate before measuring
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ cup water
¾ cup milk
2-3rd cup instant country-style mashed potato flakes
½ cup (¼-lb stick) butter
1 cup sugar
2 large eggs
½ cup chopped (medium-fine) pecans or walnuts
Vanilla or chocolate-flavor whipped cream, if desired

Line a square cake pan (8 by 8 by 2 inches) with waxpaper; grease paper.

On another sheet of wax paper coarsely grate chocolate; chill until needed.

On another sheet of wax paper, with a fork, thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves.

In a small saucepan, bring water to a boil; remove from heat; add ¼ cup of the milk and the instant potato. When liquid is absorbed, stir lightly with a fork; do not whip. In a medium mixing bowl cream butter and sugar; add eggs; beat until thoroughly blended. Beat in warm mashed potato. (Mixture will look curdled, but this doesn't affect finished cake.) Stir in remaining ½ cup milk. Add flour mixture and stir until well blended. Stir in ¼ cup of the nuts, then grated chocolate. Turn into prepared pan; sprinkle with remaining ¼ cup nuts.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 35 to 40 minutes or until top is browned and cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean.

Place cake in pan on wire rack and let stand 5 minutes. With a small metal spatula loosen edges; turn out on rack; remove paper. With another rack turn right side up.

Serve warm or cold. If used, top individual portions with whipped cream.

Makes 9 servings.

NOTE: Be sure to grate the chocolate coarsely so the cake will be chocolate-flecked.

To Be Dumped Beside Roads?

At a recent City Council meeting Greenville's city manager asserted there is a need for a "definitive ordinance" prohibiting the use of the city dump for disposing of things the city has trouble disposing of.

Said Public Works Director Kenneth Beatty, "We've got to let the public know that they cannot continue to bring stumps, old tires, scrap lumber and old cars to the city dump to be burned."

We supposed Mr. Beatty could have added to the list old refrigerators, old stoves, rusty buckets, bottomless garbage cans and a long list of other items.

But if the city with its "solid waste disposal facility" is not in a position to handle such refuse, how can it expect the individual citizen to be in a position to?

What are we to do, Mr. Councilman, just throw the stuff out in the street with the hope that somehow it will go away? Or are we suppose individually to find some place along a roadside or in a wooded area to slyly deposit such refuse?

Seems to us there has been far too much of the latter in recent years, and if anything too little of such items finding their way to the dump where they should be handled. Perhaps Greenville does have a problem at its city dump, but it is nothing compared with what the problem would be if each citizen had to figure out for himself how to get rid of the old tires, old stumps and the long list of other items the city's Sanitary Department would prefer not to handle.

In a matter of months the whole community would begin to look like a neglected garbage dump.

The city may have problems disposing of such items deposited at the city dump; but it also has the responsibility to find a solution to the problem.

Rather than concentrating on how to prevent citizens from using the city dump as a deposit place for litter and refuse, it seems to us the city should be encouraging dumping refuse there rather than letting it accumulate in little, unsightly piles all over the city.

History Given New Dimension

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — History is dates and wars — 1492, 1663, 1710; the American Revolution, the Civil War, World Wars I and II.

Or is it?

Maybe it is the study of how people live together, how institutions serve human needs and evolve with social change, how ideas affect the flow of culture and life.

Adopt the latter concept, as most educators are doing these days, and it becomes impossible to fit history neatly into its own cubbyhole. It spills out and blends with economics, geography, sociology, anthropology, political science.

Exactly that is happening in North Carolina's public schools. It is embodied in a new social studies program, kindergarten through 12th grade.

Developed out of a three-year study, the program was approved last summer by the State Board of Education. Several more years will be required to complete its implementation through the senior high level.

Is History Neglected?

Parents and even historians sometimes say history is neglected and being phased out of the schools. That brings an expression of despair to Jesse Vuncannon, director of the division of social studies education in the State Department of Public Instruction.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he said fervently. "History will receive as much emphasis as before. It will be more effective, because it will be presented in a context relevant for the students."

Vuncannon and division consultants June Gilliard and John Ellington agreed there is a classroom crisis in history. Students are turned off by traditional methods of presentation: dates and names to memorize, dry facts to assemble in chronological order. Teachers are baffled in searching for ways to make the past vital in a turbulent, disturbing present.

"High school students are concerned about the world they will live in, and the decisions they will have to make," Miss Gilliard explained.

"Because change is so rapid, we can't even see what the world will be like tomorrow. It becomes important that the student learn basic skills and concepts, so that he can analysis new information and reach sound decisions."

Education for Citizenship

This is the design of the new social studies program. "Ultimately, the program aims at providing students with learning experiences which will enable them to gain the knowledge, skills, values, and attitudes necessary for becoming effective participants in a democratic society," Vuncannon noted.

Blending academic disciplines in teaching social studies is a contemporary trend. Wisconsin, Colorado and California have gone well along the road, with what educators regard as notable success. All three states were sources for study in developing the North Carolina program.

In educator's jargon, the trend is styled the "conceptually based, multi - disciplinary approach."

Simply, Ellington said, it means drawing together concepts from several fields of study in order to provide a basic understanding of society.

In-service training in both content and methodology to prepare teachers for the new social studies curriculum is underway in many school units and will continue untilthe program moves through the junior and senior high schools.

Salisbury, Washington and Greensboro already have implemented the new social studies in selected junior and senior high schools.

A Hit With Students

"The kids just love it," said Miss Gilliard. "They like the flexibility, the open-and approach that gives them more freedom to decide what they want to study."

The sequence proceeds from "near-to-far." The child in kindergarten is beginning to be aware of himself as an individual and as a member of social groups. That's the start of social studies.

It moves upward and outward like this by grades: 1, Home and School; 2, Neighborhood and Community; 3, Communities; 4, State and Region; 5, The Americas; 6, Europe and USSR; 7, Africa, Asia and Pacific Islands; 8-9, U.S. and North Carolina Heritage; 10-11, World Cultures; and 12, U.S. in Today's World.

Although aspects of history are involved from the earliest grades, it comes into the curriculum in a formal sense at the 8th grade level.

Now Let's Keep That Blood Bank Level High

Pitt County has much to be thankful for at this Christmas season that its citizens have given so unselfishly to the Bloodmobile.

The Bloodmobile collected 247 pints on a visit to the Moose Lodge last week. A day later at the DuPont plant 260 pints were collected.

This is an outstanding record and one of which donors at DuPont and other citizens who gave on the visit here can be proud.

It is an exception when the county is up with its quota for Bloodmobile visits. This is one of those times, however, and we must all resolve to keep this fine record going.

A Carnage In Hickel's Wake

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A glittering example of why an unwholesome malaise is now spreading through top levels of the Nixon administration is the heavy-handed way the White House fired six top Interior Department officials following Secretary Walter Hickel's dismissal on Nov. 25.

A telephone call from the White House to Interior Undersecretary Fred J. Russell on Nov. 20 hatched the secret plot. Russell has close connections with the President's White House family. For months he and White House aides John Ehrlichman and John C. Whitaker had been panting to clean out what they regarded — in some cases correctly — as departmental dead wood.

Informed by that phone call that Hickel's ouster was imminent, Russell made his final recommendations on who else should be axed. The list was longer than the six subsequently fired, the others having won at least temporary grace by the reeking publicity that grew out of the inept handling of the first six.

Having submitted his list, Russell slipped out of town for a long Thanksgiving Day weekend. He next surfaced with a transcontinental telephone call to Interior Deputy Undersecretary William Rogers on the morning of Nov. 27. That call ordered Rogers to prepare his office for temporary occupancy by White House personnel chief Frederic V. Malek, designated by Ehrlichman as the executioner.

In the background was clear evidence of poor administrative practices within Interior and bitter feuds between ranking officials. The swelling anger of Undersecretary Russell that Hickel and some of his aides had deliberately ignored him ever since his appointment last April 9 was also a factor.

There was, in short, good reason for a bit of judicious housecleaning following the firing of Hickel (who, despite high credentials as a conservationist willing to take on the oil industry, never shined as an administrator).

But in his haste to clean out dead wood, Malek struck not with a scalpel but with a bludgeon, spreading terror through one department, alarming others, and vastly complicating the job of incoming Secretary Rogers Morton.

Moreover, Malek was so poorly briefed on the men he fired that in one case he broke a Federal law. Among the six removed by Malek's bludgeon on Nov. 27 was Thomas Holley, a Hickel assistant and director of the department's Congressional affairs. Holley had a temporary Schedule C political appointment as a GS-17 ($30,000 a year), which exempted him from Civil Service protection. Malek fired him effective at once (although he did offer him 30 days' pay).

But Malek failed to check Holley's personnel file, thus missing the vital fact that he also holds a permanent Civil

The Poor Went Too Far

WASHINGTON — Poor people, who were very popular a few years ago when poverty was such a big fad, are running into hard times. Most of the programs for poor people have been cut back, and there is even some question as to whether poor people are entitled to free legal aid.

There is now a concerted effort being made by the Establishment to prevent poor people from using the courts to get justice. While some poor people consider this bad form, other poor people are resigned to it.

"I understand their position," Dembow, a poverty-stricken friend of mine, said. "If you allow poor people to take their complaints to court, you'll clog up the system. Poor people have a lot more to sue about than rich people, and no system can stand poor people using the courts for their own interests."

"I'm surprised to hear you say that, Dembow," I said. "It seems to me that you would be on the side of poverty."

"I'm much more concerned with my country than I am with myself," he replied. "When they set up the poverty program, they provided funds for poor people to get free legal aid. This was a big mistake because a lot of young lawyers decided to participate in the program and use the laws on the books to get a fair shake for the poor people in the country."

"How frightening," I said.

"These young lawyers, who were trained in law school to defend the Establishment, turned into Benedict Arnolds and used the nation's laws to attack the vested interests in this country."

"They went too far," I said.

"Not only that," Dembow said, "but they used the law to sue the government for not upholding the law."

"That's treason!"

"The minute the government found out what the lawyers were up to, they had to take action. It's one thing to give poor people free legal aid, but it's another to go into the courts and accuse the government of violating the law."

"Why would they do it?" I cried.

"Because they didn't un-

Other Editors Say Rule By Emotion

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

While we have the tools to communicate — press, radio, TV and even satellites — and the public is saturated with information, there seems to be more confusion and misunderstanding on many basic issues than ever before.

The consequences is that the country is threatened with rule by emotion. If a bloc or a minority doesn't get what it wants, it goes on a rampage until its wishes are granted.

Emotion is particularly noticeable in environmental matters where the very life of basic industries and the health and well-being of millions of people are at stake.

For years there has been an emotional campaign against certain agricultural chemicals, a campaign whose intensity is all out of proportion to the true situation, granting that some pesticides have been mishandled on occasion.

In the tumult, there is a danger that the voice of reason will be totally obscured. John Durkin, extension entomologist at New Mexico State University, is a member of the growing force of scientists and agricultural experts that fear the result of continued public misunderstanding of the pesticide issue.

He says, "The American public in general is so well fed and we have so few disease problems that people are inclined to think farmers are using pesticides just for the sake of using them, that they don't have any real need."

The role of pesticides in maintaining life, as we know it, is truly incalculable. Writes Dr. Thomas Jueks, professor of Medical Physics at the University of California: "Without pesticides we can't produce the food and the public health measures that are necessary to maintain a large human population."

Without pesticides, millions of lives would again be lost to such diseases as malaria, typhus and yellow fever, and large areas of land reclaimed for human habitation through the use of chemicals would have to be abandoned in many parts of the world. We need communication, but not the kind that breeds rule by emotion.

Strength For Today

LEADERSHIP

Leaders die and the world wonders if their places can be filled.

They always have been filled and undoubtedly always will be. If the time should ever come that we have no leaders, then we would have no life. Once in a while a leader sends the race off on a new pathway. For the most part, however, leaders are simply manipulators who take events as they are and mold them to what they believe will be something better—for nation, industry, the human race.

Drop the names of a dozen or more men off the list of world history and there would not be any history. Time is dated from the birth of a Carpenter who lived his life in an obscure village and suffered a painful death. Socrates and Plato gave the world direction in thought. A little handful of artists have made the world resplendent with a new glory.

And the strange thing is that frequently world leaders pass across the stage of world events and out into the wings and do not realize that they have made profound changes in world history. One of the strangest leaders the world has produced was Shakespeare, in the field of literature. He died believing that he would be remembered for his sonnets (which practically nobody reads today, except scholars in the field of English). His plays were "pot-boilers." He wrote them to make money, and when he had made enough he stopped writing and got ready to die.

Leaders and their leadership are perplexing factors in world history.

The Family Business Problems

By ELMER ROESSNER

A large number of family-owned businesses have gone public this year. One reason is that in the current slump these, like many other businesses, need fresh money to survive. Since banks are not always eager to lend money to family businesses, especially if profits have declined, the best and sometimes only way is to sell part of the equity to the public.

But there is another reason. As profits drop, tensions among family owners rise. New blood, even completely new management, is necessary for both peace and better direction.

A third cause may be the aging of some of the leading members of a family. Their retirements or deaths can throw a business into confusion, power struggles and litigation. But if their interests are represented in neat shares of stock for which there is a market, they can put their affairs in order and get out of the business without having to negotiate with other members of the family.

Tensions, Feud, Relatives

Of all these reasons, tensions and family disputes are probably the most pressing when they arise.

Often families divide on basic policy. The younger members want aggressive expansion and are willing to take risks, even gambles, for greater success. The older members may typically be conservative, clinging to conservative methods that seem to assure them financial security.

There can be personality clashes among family members. And there can always be the case of one relative who gets a job solely because his side of the family has a major ownership and thereafter does nothing.

These situations arise so frequently that the Small Business Administration has seen fit to publish an eight-page booklet on "Problems in Managing a Family - owned Business." It was written by Robert E. Levinson, president, Steelcraft Mfg. Co., of Cincinnati. Copies are free from SBA field offices or by writing the SBA, Washington 20416.

Problems, Problems

Levinson points out that the job of family manager is complicated by the fact that the top executive must reconcile the facts of the market place with the emotions, whims and delusions of expertise by family members.

Sometimes the manager may be unable to make decisions on his own. One solution: hire a nonmember of the family to run the enterprise.

Then there is the problem of acceding to demands of relatives for jobs. "The major concern is how the relative affects other employees," wrote Levinson.

Sometimes other employees won't take overbearing relatives and the turnover is high; at other times family employees resent outsiders and make jobs unpleasant.

And sometimes good outsiders quit because relatives have first call on promotions.

And there are often disputes over the division of profits; whether nonworking members should get as much as the working members and whether salaries should or should not include shares of profits.

BACH ARIA GROUP will be at Wright Auditorium Wednesday night in a concert of vocal and instrumental music.

Concert Slated Here Wednesday

The nine member Bach Aria Group, coming to Wright Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday night, completes the first half of this season's Artists Series.

The noted performing group, under the direction of William H. Scheide, consists of nine vocalists and instrumentalists. The singers are Norman Farrow, bass-baritone; Maureen Forrester, contralto; Richard Lewis, tenor; and Louis Marshall, soprano.

The instrumentalists are Samuel Baron, flute; Robert Bloom, oboe; Bernard Greehouse, cello; Oscar Shumsky, violin; and Yehudi Wyner, pianist.

First formed in 1946 by Scheide to perform the arias and duets from the cantatas of Johann Sebastian Bach, a repertoire at that time comparatively unknown, but remarkable for its vigor, melodic qualities, its beauty and infinite variety, the group has since appeared in innumerable concerts, has made recordings, has appeared on radio and television, and made films.

Their tours have taken them thoughout the U.S., into Canada, South America and in a number of European countries.

The Bach Aria Group is available to holders of season tickets for the Artists Series. Three more major musical events are scheduled for the remainder of the season — Ivan Davis, pianist; the Jose Greco Dance troupe; and the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatr's production of "Don Giovanni."

derstand Congress' reason for passing the poverty law.

"When the free legal aid program for poor people was set up, it was hoped that the lawyers assigned to it would explain to the poor people why things were the way they were. The advice the poverty lawyers were supposed to dispense was that things would get better if they just went along with the system. That was the only kind of legal aid Congress had in mind."

"That's enough for anybody," I said.

"Instead, the lawyers decided to use the courts to get a better deal for poor people.

"Now the government has to take measures to correct the situation. They'll probably phase out the Legal Air Program or merge it with the Justice Department."

"I don't see them having any choice," I said.

"In the meantime, the poor people will have to get their legal aid some other way. No democracy can survive if people are going to resort to the courts for justice."

"Dembow, you make a lot of sense," I said, "but since you're poor yourself, I'm surprised you're on the side of the Administration."

"If the poor people won't stand up for America, who will?"

Holshouser Denies N.C. Disaster

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former North Carolina Republican gubernatorial candidate James Gardner says the state party needs a sweeping reorganization, "new leadership from the top to the bottom."

But Party chairman and State Rep. Jim Holhouser replies: "By and large the record looks good" and the current leadership of the Tar Heel GOP is going to be responsible for the election of a governor and a senator in 1972, in addition to carrying the state for the national Republican ticket again.

The exchange of charges came over the weekend. Gardner, largely retired from politics since his defeat by Gov. Bob Scott in 1968, spoke out first in a talk to an Asheboro group Saturday. Holhouser answered in a newspaper interview.

Gardner, a Rocky Mount businessman for former congressman, said the 1970 election was a "smashing defeat" for the state party. He said he would ask Holshouser to call a meeting of the partys leaders in January "to pick the old party apart and solve problems" which he said have kept Republicans in the minority for years.

Gardner accused the party hierarchy of ignoring minority groups and youth, in addition to concentrating on the Piedmont and ignoring the east and the west.

The ex-candidate said, "There is not a black face in this crowd. How can we go out to the people and say we can cure the ills of this state if we cut off 24 per cent of our population?"

Chairman Holshouser responded Sunday that the party did not suffer a smashing defeat this fall. He added that the needs of youth are reflected in the fact that both he and Gardner are in their mid 30s, that the Republicans have the youngest state legislator and that "better than half of the district and county chairmen" in the state are under 46.

On the subject of minority representation, Holshouser said, "We've worked through the '60s in varying degrees to open lines of communication to the black community." He said the party has not "actively sought the bloc vote, because seeking bloc votes fails to recognize people as individual personalities."

In the subject of sections within the state, Holshouser said "Some of our strongest Republican organizations are in the mountains and east, and they're doing some of their best work for the people of these regions."

The chairman said the party organization meets regularly "to pick things apart" and said a January gathering would not be needed.

Holshouser attended a meeting Saturday of GOP legislators-elect at Hickory which named officers for the coming General Assembly GOP caucus.

Sen. Harry Bagnal and Rep. Charles Taylor of Brevard were minority leaders. Sen. Phil Kirk of Salisbury was named joint caucus secretary.

Sen. Norman Joyner of Iredell and Rep. Joe Hege of Davidson were picked as minority whips.

Holshouser said another caucus would probably be held before the legislatures meets next month.

Service job classification at the GS-15 level ($22,800 a year), guaranteeing him regular Civil Service job security.

As a result, White House aides (one of whom privately informed Holley before Malek's arrival at the department that Holley had nothing to worry about) are falling all over themselves to conceal Malek's mistake. They have now offered Holley other jobs.

Moreover, the firing of Dr. Leslie Glasgow as Assistant Secretary for Fish, Wildlife, and Parks smacked of revenge by Russell with White House consent. On four separate occasions in the past eight months, Russell overruled the uninspired but competent Glasgow on important fish-and-wildlife decisions. In each case, Glasgow took his case to Hickel and won a reversal of Russell's veto.

Glasgow also had a hot feud going with Charles H. Meacham, Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife and a member of Hickel's Alaska mafia who was extremely inept with Congress. When Hickel was fired, Glasgow aides were certain that Meacham would be eased out by Morton. Instead, Glasgow and Meacham both were fired by Malek, with no offer of 30 days' pay. Moreover, thickening the plot was the fact that a White House aide — not the one who called Holley — took the trouble to telephone Glasgow with the same soothing message: sit tight, you're safe.

In sum, Malek's mallet-hammer converted what should have been quiet and overdue surgery into carnage. With the White House steadily laying claim to more and more power over Cabinet-level bureaucracies, the unwholesome malaise now seeping though the top levels should surprise no one, least of all President Nixon.

Denies 'Meditation' Is System Of Punishment

BUTNER, N. C. (AP) — Blaine Madison, state juvenile correction commissioner, denied Sunday that North Carolina Training Schools punish inmates by placing them on "meditation" which consists "of a Bible and a blanket for seven days."

In a talk to a workshop group at the C. A. Dillon School at Butner, Madison replied to criticism of the state's juvenile correction program by an official of the Institute for Government at Chapel Hill.

Punishment in the schools, Madison said, consists of being placed in a segregation room for from five minutes to seven days.

He said that when students are on segregation "they are served regular meals, given opportunities for recreation and exercise and provided counseling service."

Madison said the Department of Juvenile Correction does not permit "corporal punishment under any circumstances."

Madison said the schools have a responsibility to protect citizens from the crimes committed by runaways and said his office gets "more criticism for being too lax with students than we do for being too firm."

Madison agreed that some of the training schools are too big and said he is making plans to limit them to a maximum of 300 pupils.

Answering the criticism that the training school staffs "are hardly trained for their jobs," Madison said they are "as well trained as are professional staffs members of other agencies and institutions."

The workers, he said, are devoted and are "overworked and underpaid."

Madison said he feels "that religious and moral training stands at the very center of a good treatment program." He said he has requested funds for "a clinically oriented chaplain for each training school."

Fear Cambodian Unit Decimated

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops may have decimated a Cambodian battalion and captured a district headquarters it was defending 37 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian command said today.

Pilots flying air support had been unable to establish radio contact with the defenders at Peam Chikang since late Sunday, a spokesman said. At that time, he reported, heavy losses had been incurred by both sides in a day of fighting.

The government has been unable to resupply the embattled district headquarters or evacuate casualties, the spokesman said, because mechanical failures have grounded all its helicopters.

The assault on Peam Chikang began Saturday night with a mortar barrage, then Cambodian fighter-bombers were called in against attacking ground troops.

In Phnom Penh, terrorists made a grenade and pistol attack on an army headquarters in the heart of the capital, apparently trying to kill some high-ranking officers. Seven persons were reported wounded, including two soldiers, and a military spokesman said three terrorists—including a Viet Cong—were captured.

Little action was reported in South Vietnam, but there was other fighting in Cambodia east, south and west of Phnom Penh.

The battle for control of Highway 4, Phnom Penh's link with Kompong Som and the Gulf of Siam, continued with fighting reported about 20 miles northeast of the coast. A source said enemy battalions which had faced government troops 50 miles north of Kompong Som had moved nearer the city, tightening their control of the road.

There also was a 9½-hour battle at Prek Thnot Dam, an international project 40 miles west of the capital on the Thnot River.

U.S. Stratofortresses based in Thailand dropped bombs over North Vietnamese supply routes in Northern Cambodia Sunday, attempting to slow down the enemy offensive, the U.S. Command in Saigon said. Other B52s began the third consecutive month of intensive bombing of the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos.

The U.S. Command in Saigon announced American forces in Vietnam had been reduced last week by another 6,100 men, leaving only 5,700 to go to comply with President Nixon's target of 344,000 American troops in the country by Dec. 31.

The reduction last week was the largest in some time. Spokesmen said the withdrawals were accelerated to get the men home for Christmas.

On the battlefields, the U.S. Command said, American forces killed 24 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in ground actions and air strikes Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 29 enemy soldiers killed in four small actions in the southern half of the country, another 36 killed in the central highlands, and six near the coastal city of Qui Nhon, all with no government casualties.

N.C. Traffic Toll Soaring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina traffic deaths, which recently had been running as many as 100 fewer than a year ago, have climbed to within only 11 of the number at this time last year.

Fifteen were killed over the weekend, pushing the year's total to 1,589. There had been 1,600 killed by this time in 1969.

The weekend's tragedies included four pedestrians struck down. One was a victim of a hit-and-run driver.

The pedestrians killed were William I. Davis, 56, of Wilson, victim of the hit-and-run driver; James Hartley, 48, of Dunn, George Lott, 44, of Winston-Salem and Joe Atlas Phillips, 39, of Southern Pines.

Wreck victims were Raymond O. Louis Mabe, 24, of Madison; Henry Sam Williams, 64, of Rt. 1, Claremont; Charles Robertson, 17, of Madison; Mitchell Ezell Bell, 18, of Shalotte; James Douglas Johnson, 20, St. Paul; Donald O'Neil Temples, 38, of Winston-Salem; Katherine O. Petrie, 42, of Morganton; Bobby Thompkins, 18, of Bladenboro; Edison Moore, 32, of Maple Hill; Herbert Hoover Leigh, 41, of Kings Mountain, and Patricia Moore Brackett, 27, of Gastonia.

2 Accidents Here Sunday

An estimated $700 property damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday by police.

Officers reported both drivers involved in a 12:14 a.m. collision at the intersection of 10th and Charles Streets were charged with violations.

Arch Wayne Thomas, 18, of Durham was charged with failing to yield the right of way, while Ernest Lee Quinn Jr., 19, of Farmville, was charged with operating under the influence.

Police set damage to the Thomas car at $150 while damage to the Quinn car was set at $200.

Mildred Burnett Reddick, 22, of 1912 South Pitt St. was charged with failing to reduce speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 6:25 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Pitt and 14th Streets.

Investigators reported the Reddick auto collided with a car driven by Sylvia Johnson Jarman, 20, of 1907B Norcott Circle, causing an estimated $250 damage to the Jarman car and about $100 damage to the Reddick auto.

Teacher Holiday Plan Rejected

RALEIGH — A proposal that teachers stage a mass professional holiday on the opening day of the General Assembly has been turned down by the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Association of Educators. Instead, the Board approved five proposals designed to dramatize teacher concern over public education needs.

The five proposals—including a mass rally in Raleigh on the day Governor Robert W. Scott presents his budget message to the General Assembly—are designed to keep teacher concerns about the needs of education before the General Assembly and the public throughout the 1971 session.

Christmas Season Is Good Time To 'Think Safety'

CHICAGO (UPI) —Christmas is coming. For many, that means the time to think about toys starts now.

The National Safety Council advises parents to avoid the chaos and depleted stocks of the Christmas rush and start shopping early for children's toys. Early shopping, the council said, allows parents to search out the danger —some of them hidden —that make it a difficult task to choose a safe toy.

Unhurried consideration can help parents avoid "playthings" that can bring tragedy into their homes because of faulty design or manufacture, improper labeling, unclear instructions or misleading advertisements the Council said.

The United States Public Health Service has estimated that toys injure 700,000 children every year. This does not include those injured using backyard play equipment. The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness said many thousands of children are treated annually for eye injuries caused by operating toys.

The Child Protection and Toy Safety Act of 1969 authorized the Federal Food and Drug Administration to ban from the market children's products found to involve hazards from sharp protruding edges, fragmentation, explosion, suffocation, asphyxiation, electrical shock, excessive heat unextinguishable fires. The sale of toys that are poisonous or radioactive, and those that cause rashes, had previously been prohibited.

Some Toys Still Dangerous

But despite the new legislation, and the work by many toy manufacturers to improve the safety of their products, dangerous toys are still on the market.

So, until the day comes when all toys must meet high safety standards, the National Safety Council offers these guidelines to toy-shopping parents and relatives:

Generally, go by age, matching the complexity of the toy with the maturity of the child. Toys for non-readers should be carefully screened by parents.

Know the capabilities of the child for whom the boy is intended, but remember that the toy may fall into the hands of a more impulsive younger brother or sister who can't read warnings or instructions.

Price Can Be Guide

—Price can be a helpful guide, but this means comparative price. Obviously, an inexpensive rubber ball can be safe, but a toy automobile could be another matter. The more expensive item might have rolled metal edges and secure attachment of parts well worth the high price. But since comparison shopping for toys is impractical, a sound approach is to patronize established stores with a reputation for quality merchandise.

Truckers' Strike Could Cut 13 States Fuel Oil

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 1,300 Teamsters Union drivers in Michigan and northern Ohio walked off their jobs Sunday night in a strike which could eventually stop the flow of fuel oil in areas from Kentucky to North Dakota.

More than 5,000 other drivers of fuel oil trucks in 13 Midwestern states are considering whether to join the walkout. Contract negotiations broke off Thursday in Detroit between the Teamsters and the Labor Relations Advisory Association, the bargaining unit for the truckers. Negotiations resume here today.

As subfreezing temperatures covered the states involved, oil company spokesmen said the strike—at this stage anyway— will not drastically affect consumers but rural areas will feel the pinch in several days. Fuel oil is one of the most widespread forms of home heating, especially in rural areas.

The affected states are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

A spokesman for Standard Oil Co. of Ohio said the company will keep fuel moving despite the walkout of about 700 drivers in the Cleveland area.

Fuel suppliers in the Columbus, Ohio, area said that current supplies of fuel are sufficient for "a few weeks maybe."

Aside from the 700 striking drivers in the Cleveland area and 600 in Michigan, Teamsters across the 13-state area are undecided as to their next move.

Iowa drivers are split on whether to strike. In Milwaukee, an official of Teamsters Local 200 said its 1,000 members will wait and see what happens in the bargaining session today before making a move.

Teamsters bargaining committee chairman Steve Shultz said the union is demanding a $1.65 hourly raise in increments of 65, 50 and 50 cents over a three-year period. Robert Bray, representing the truckers, said the industry has offered a $1.65 hike for a 48-hour week.

Tanker drivers currently earn an average of $4.07 an hour.

The previous contract expired Nov. 15.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ8 ♡AJ 10 ◇Q 10 9 3 ♣J8 6
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ◇
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two no trump. Despite the lack of a club stopper this is easily the most descriptive call on your balanced holding. Following an original pass this bid shows 11-12 high card points and asks partner to go on with any values approximating a sound opening.

Q. 2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J 4 3 ♡K 6 ◇K 8 5 ♣A 8 5 4 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. While you have a very sound hand, no stronger call is indicated, inasmuch as you have already described a highly respectable holding by your take-out at the level of two.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ 8 7 5 3 ♡AK 6 4 ◇Q 7 ♣2
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ◇	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	3 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Prospects looked very bright when partner opened the bidding but his subsequent actions have dimmed all hopes for slam and a simple game should now be your goal. Holding a singleton club, four spades looks a little safer.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable. With a 70 part score, as South you hold:
♠AQ 4 ♡7 5 3 2 ◇A 9 8 ♣J 9 6
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. West was not anxious to let you get vulnerable and he may live to regret his lack of generosity. Whatever strength he hoped to find in his partner's hand is in your possession and the size of his loss will depend on the strength of your partner's club holding.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK 9 ♡AK 8 5 3 2 ◇A 7 4 ♣10
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Either four hearts or four spades could prove to be a safer contract but it might not be prudent to override partner's decision, especially since he has already been warned to expect an unbalanced hand from us.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q 10 3 ♡KQ 4 2 ◇K 9 3 ♣K 6 2
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ◇	?

What do you bid?

A.—Two no trump, the same call you would have chosen without the intervening bid.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQJ ♡8 4 3 ◇10 6 ♣7 5 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. Taking a second bid on this holding is slightly aggressive but there are many hands that partner could have where a game contract, at worst, would depend upon a finesse.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠5 ♡A 8 3 ◇K 10 9 7 5 ♣A 10 6 4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five clubs. Partner obviously holds a highly distributional hand, probably 6-4-2-1, and a good one since he preferred to raise our diamonds first rather than make a rebid in his own suit. Our aces are tremendous cards and make slam prospects very strong. It is not possible to show both of them at this point, but a cue bid in clubs may prove sufficient to induce partner to contract for a slam.

Farm Scene

By SAM J. WEEKS

It is highly probable that corn producers will be confronted with the Southern corn blight disease again in 1971. The most practical way to combat this serious disease is to use disease tolerant seed.

Seed produced from Texas male sterile cytoplasm parentage are highly susceptible to the disease. Seed with normal cytoplasm partenage are tolerant to the disease.

All reliable seed will be labeled identifying the type of cytoplasm used in the production of the seed. Seed with 100 percent normal cytoplasm will be labeled (N) hybrid. Seed with part normal cytoplasm and part Texas male sterile cytoplasm will be labeled (B) hybrid indicating a blend of (N) and (T) cytoplasm. The percentage of (N) and (T) cytoplasm will be labeled (T) hybrid.

Some F2 seed will be available. These seed will also be labeled with a tag giving the percentage of (N) and (T) cytoplasm. F2 (second generation seed) will normally produced 20-35 percent less than first generation seed.

Since there will be a shortage of disease tolerant seed, I am suggesting below, in order of preference, types of seed corn suitable for planting in 1971: (N) Hybrids - a blend with normal (N) cytoplasm (hand detasseled.) (B) Hybrids - a blend of seed with both (N) cytoplasm and (T) Texas cytoplasm (male sterile). (Since blight tolerance is associated with (N) cytoplasm, a high percentage of (N) cytoplasm is preferred when planting a (B) hybrid.) F2 or second generation seed - seed from second generation single-cross male parent or second generation double-cross hybrids. (If second generation seed are planted, they should be from crosses with a (N) cytoplasm origing.

In order to get the best quality seed available, place your seed order for corn with a reliable dealer.

Has Role In Nat'l Survey

CHARLOTTE — A number of households in the Pitt County area will take part in a nationwide survey on employment and unemployment to be conducted the week of December 14-18 by the Bureau of the Census.

Mrs. J. C. Wilson of Grimesland Route 1 will be the interviewer visiting households in the area.

The survey is taken monthly by the Bureau for the U. S. Department of Labor. The households interviewed are scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all households throughout the U.S.

Men and women who have done hired farm work during 1970 will be asked to provide information about their work experience. These additional questions are asked in the survey annually for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Facts about individuals collected in the survey are held confidential by law; the results can be published only as statistical totals.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM J. WEEKS

During the past few years, the tobacco farmers have not received as much net profit from their tobacco crops as was received in earlier years, for example 1951-60. One reason for this is that the production costs have increased more rapidly than the prices received for the cured leaf.

If we were to single out one production cost that is causing the largest reduction in profits, labor cost would be close to the top of the list.

New innovations in tobacco mechanization are being introduced each year. These innovations will help reduce the labor requirements, but not enough to counteract the high labor cost enough to bring the margin of profit back in line.

There are some management alternatives that should be considered on many farms that will help increase the margin of profit. Listed below are some of the practices that can be used:

1. Crop rotation, (2) Variety selection, (3) selection of nutrient source, (4) replanting, (5) number of leaves produced per acre, (6) chemical sucker control, (7) harvesting at proper maturity stage, and (8) application of insecticides on a needed basis. Most of these practices will require little or no additional investment.

There are also some alternatives that require investment that have a high probability of being profitable.

I will be glad to discuss any of these alternatives in more detail with you upon request.

To Challenge Gov. Scott

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A developer with big ideas for a semitropical island on the coast said Sunday that he'll butt heads with Gov. Bob Scott and try to serve the island with ferry service.

As of now, there is no convenient way any future residents of Bald Head Island, at the mouth of the Cape Fear River, can reach the island.

Gov. Scott had warned the developer, W. H. Henderson, that if he proceeded with development plans the state wouldn't grant necessary permits for dredging.

Scott and conservationists have fought to keep the island in its semitropical state.

Henderson said in a talk to a conservation group here Sunday that no more than 16,000 people would ever be housed on the island. Bald Head has only 3,000 acres of high ground and there are 9,000 acres of salt marsh.

The development would come in clusters, he said, of 100 acres or less.

About the ferry service, Henderson said his lawyers had told him that there is no basis for the state not granting him a dredging permit.

He also said he had doubts about whether the court would uphold any state effort to condemn the island.

Henderson is president of Carolina Cape Fear Corp. He spoke Sunday to the Conservation Council of North Carolina.

Nab Son, Father

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — An Edgecombe County father and son were in county jail today under $1,500 bond each on charges of felonious assault with firearms on law enforcement officers.

James Gupton and his son Willie were jailed Sunday after a high speed chase and an exchange of shots. Willie also was charged with failure to stop for a state trooper's blue light and siren.

Trooper D. E. Boyette said Willie Gupton was clocked through radar at 100 miles an hour on N.C. 43, north of Pinetops Sunday afternoon.

Boyette chased the car and said after Gupton stopped at his father's house and ran into nearby woods, both father and son exchanged shots with officers.

Sheriff's deputies and SBI agents were called to assist the patrol.

A patrol car driven by Sgt. F. M. Lemmond, collided with a car while speeding to the scene of the shootout. An occupant of the car, 23-month-old Paula Sue Tori of Hampton, Va., was injured and taken to Pitt Hospital at Greenville.

First Witness For Doss Trial

Testimony began this morning in the trial of Owen Swanson Doss, charged with the June 4 murder of a 15-year-old Winterville youth.

The father of the alleged victim, Paul Raymond Pearce, took the stand as the first witness for the state and testified that during the night of June 3 he was awakened when he heard his son talking to two men who he identified as Doss and a co-defendant in the case, Henry Manning.

Pearce said the two men spent the night at his trailer home west of Winterville and were there, along with the boy, William Pearce, when he left for a job around 11 a.m. June 4.

The witness testified that he knew Manning but did not know Doss. Manning, Pearce said, informed him that he (Manning) had "made his time today" (June 3) and was out of prison.

Doss and Manning had allegedly escaped from a state work release detention unit in the Greensboro-High Point area before the alleged murder occurred.

District Solicitor Luther Hamilton and District Prosecutor Eli Bloom, are handling the prosecution for State while M. E. Cavendish and James Cheatham are representing Doss.

Superior Court Judge Joshua S. James is presiding.

Pearl Harbor Survivors Meet Here

Approximately 45 North Carolinians from throughout the State, all survivors of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, met in Greenville Saturday afternoon and Saturday night at Holiday Inn to mark the 29th anniversary of the attack.

The Pearl Harbor Survivors Association is made up entirely of men who on that Sunday morning nearly three decades ago were in the immediate area of Pearl Harbor and who survived the destructive attack which immediately plunged America into warfare with Japan. All the men attending are now civilians.

In the afternoon, the survivors met for a business session to elect new officers for the coming year. Those elected were: James Norris, Garner, president; A. W. Wallace, Charlotte, first vice-president; John Allen, Asheville, second vice-president; H. B. Streewalt, Kannapolis, secretary-treasurer; and Charlie McBryde, Sanford, chaplain.

Saturday's meeting is the second one held in Greenville. Ralph Broughton, of Sylvan Drive Greenville is State Chairman of the Pearl Harbor Survivor's Association.

A program of entertainment for the annual dinner Saturday night consisted of the appearance of a Greenville Trio with Becky Starkey, Ann Wilkerson and Sheila Marlowe; and Don Johnson, a magician.

The next meeting of the association is scheduled for Raleigh. Four meetings are held annually. Selection of the site for the annual December meeting for the 30th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor will be announced at a later meeting.

Pactolus School Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at Pactolus Elementary School have been announced as follow:

Tuesday — Spaghetti with meat sauce, cabbage and carrot slaw, applesauce, cheese biscuit, milk;

Wednesday — chicken and pastry, mixed greens, candied yams, hushpuppies, peanut butter brownies, milk;

Thursday — baked ham, steamed cabbage, buttered potatoes, sliced beets, hushpuppies, milk;

Friday — soup, sandwiches, cheese and carrot strips, crackers, milk.

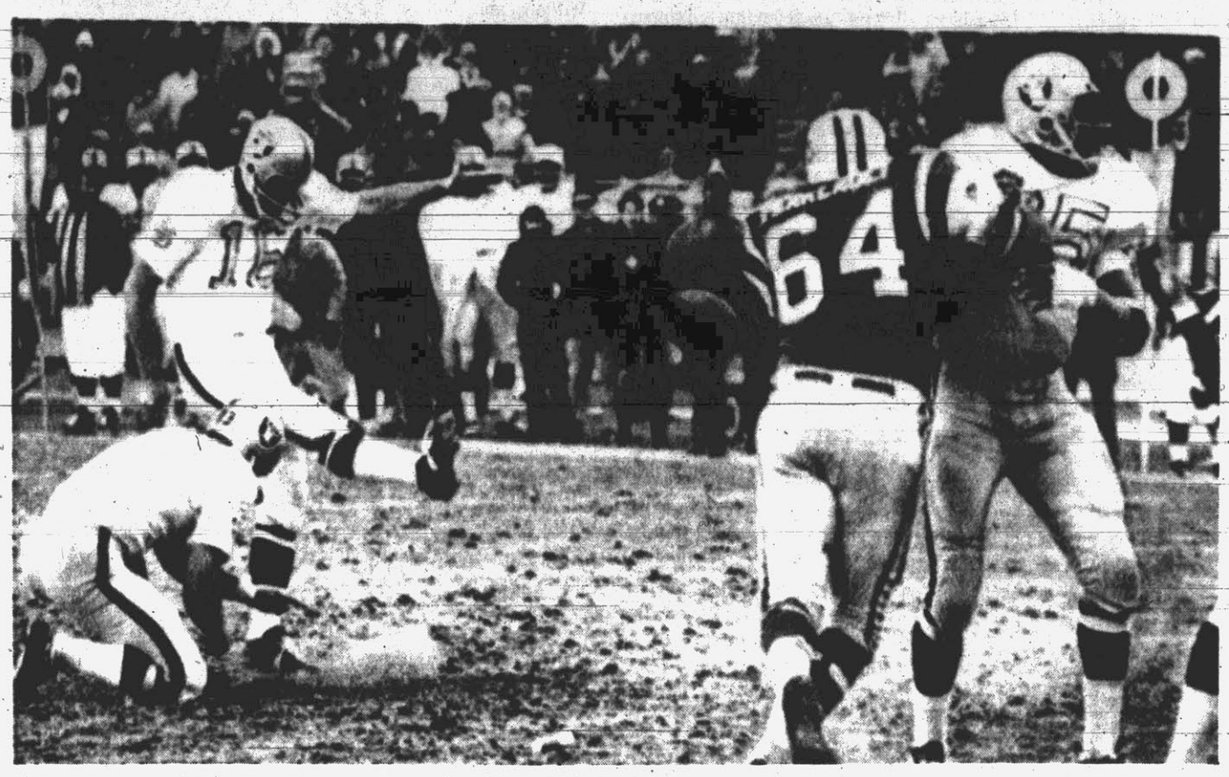
Oakland Miracle Workers Eke Win In Final Second



BLANDA'S BOOT EDGES JETS — George Blanda, Oakland Raiders place-kicker, boots extra point to give the Raiders a 14-13 victory over the New York Jets Sunday. (AP Wirephoto)

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

So now Daryle Lamonica is playing the role of Miracle Worker for Oakland's Minutemen, pulling a football game out of the air.

But you'd probably know that the old master—George Blanda—had a hand in it.

Blanda came off the bench in typical fashion to revive listless Oakland with a touchdown pass, then Lamonica threw a scoring strike at the last second to give the Raiders an unbelievable 14-13 National Football League victory over the New York Jets Sunday.

"God's on our side," said Blanda, pro football's most famous backup quarterback with a string of single-handed saves this year.

You'd have to believe his pronouncement after Warren Wells latched onto Lamonica's 33-yarder in traffic and carried it in for the winning score.

"I kept sight of the ball all the time," said a joyful Wells. "When I saw that it was going to fall short, I slowed up because I didn't want to let the defensive men get it. When I saw that it was tipped, I still kept my eyes on it, although I was losing my balance."

The victory kept Oakland tied with Kansas City, a 16-0 conquerer of Denver, in the American Conference's tight Western Division tangle. Both have 7-3-2 records and will meet next Saturday in a showdown battle.

Other Sunday results didn't do anything to settle the other division fights, either.

The National Conference East was thrown wide open after the New York Giants trimmed Buffalo 20-6, Dallas crushed Washington 34-0 and circuit-leader St. Louis fell to Detroit 16-3. The Cardinals, 8-3-1, lead that struggle by a mere half-game over the Giants and Cowboys, both 8-4.

The Cards and Giants try to settle matters in a match next Sunday.

Los Angeles ripped New Orleans 34-16 and stayed even with San Francisco, a 24-20 winner over Atlanta, in the scorching NC West. Both have 8-3-1 marks.

Baltimore, 9-2-1, stubbornly clutched a 1½-game margin in the AC East over Miami after slapping Philadelphia 29-10. Miami, 8-4, outlasted Boston 37-20.

Cincinnati 6-6, won its fifth straight by beating San Diego 17-14 and pulled into a half-game lead in the AC Central Division. Pittsburgh, 5-7, dropped to third after losing to Green Bay 20-12. Cleveland, 5-6, the runnerup in that circuit, plays at Houston in the weekly Monday night game.

The Minnesota Vikings have already clinched the NC Central.

Blanda, who provided four victories and one tie in previous relief appearances, came into Sunday's game with the Jets holding a 10-0 third quarter lead and Lamonica temporarily sidelined with bruised ribs.

The 43-year-old magician hit Fred Biletnikoff with a seven-yard pass, then was roughed by Jet tackle John Elliott on a penalty that moved the ball to the 13. Blanda then put the ball in Wells' hands for a 13-yard TD strike. 4

The Raiders, trailing 13-7, regained the ball on their 30-yard line with 38 seconds left. Lamonica then passed incomplete to Wells.

But—hold on—Jet defender Earlie Thomas was called for interference, setting the ball on the 33 and setting the stage for Lamonica's desperation heave to Wells.

PS: Blanda kicked the winning extra point.

Ed Podolok rambled 65 yards for a touchdown on the second play from scrimmage and Kansas City slammed the door on Denver with an unyielding defense. Podolak's TD burst with 47 seconds gone was all the Chiefs needed.

The Giants, admittedly flat for Buffalo while looking ahead to St. Louis, went into the halftime dressing room behind 6-3. Then a 62-yard second half kickoff return by Les Shy drummed life into New York, and quarterback Fran Tarkenton steered two late TD drives.

Walt Garrison whistled through defenseless Washington for two scores as Dallas held the high-scoring Redskins to their first regular season shutout in nine seasons.

Errol Mann kicked field goals after Detroit pounced on three first-half St. Louis fumbles, then Mel Farr sewed it up with a 28-yard touchdown jaunt for the Lions.

Roman Gabriel unfurled two touchdown strikes, Les Josephson broke through for two more overland and Tom Dempsey spiced Los Angeles' scoring with three field goals.

Baltimore turned two interceptions into touchdowns and breezed over the Eagles. Baltimore's John Unitas, having trouble with the wind, only completed 10 of 18 passes for 113 yards.

Mercury Morris ran back the opening kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown, setting the tone for Miami's victory over Boston.

Lemar Parrish scooted 79 yards for a touchdown on a punt return, sparking Cincinnati's triumph and Bart Starr survived snow and ice-cold winds to pitch two second-half TD passes for Green Bay.

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali takes another step in his bid for a showdown with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier when he meets tough Oscar Bonavena tonight in his first New York fight since 1967.

Frazier is scheduled to sing tonight with his rock groups in the Catskills, biding his time for the greatest one-night stand in boxing history—a possible $7 million title match with Ali.

Ali is a 6-1 favorite to beat Bonavena, probably the last stumbling block to a fight with Frazier in February.

The scheduled 15-rounder is set for 10:45 p.m., EST, and will follow a 10-round non-title bout between lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Scotland and Donato Paduano of Montreal.

A crowd of about 19,000, paying an estimated $650,000, is expected in Madison Square Garden.

The fight, Ali's second since being deposed as heavyweight king, will be shown on closed-circuit television and beamed to 42 foreign countries but will not be broadcast on radio.

The closed-circuit telecasts, handled by Top Rank, Inc., will be seen at 175 locations, including New York, in the United States and Canada with a seating capacity of 1 million.

Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, is guaranteed $200,000 against 42½ per cent of all receipts. Bonavena gets $100,000 against an option of 22½ per cent.

The fight will be Ali's first in New York since March 22, 1967, when he knocked out Zora Folley in a title defense. He then was stripped of his championship because of a conviction for refusing induction into the military service, and went into a 3½-year exile from the ring that ended with his fight with Jerry Quarry six weeks ago.

Ali's conviction, which carried with it a five-year prison sentence, is still pending before the U.S. Supreme Court. This is not expected to block a Frazier fight should Ali beat Bonavena.

What about Ali's stamina?

Ali, angered when Bonavena said to him last week, "Why you not in Army—you chicken," has predicted he will win in nine rounds.

But Bonavena, a bull-strong, brawling type of fighter, went 25 rounds with Frazier, a numbing puncher, and never left his feet. Although he lost two decisions with Frazier, the second a 15-rounder, he slugged with the champion and dropped him twice in the first round of the first fight.

Ali, 28 like Bonavena, has been knocked down twice in his 30 pro fights, both times early in his career and both times by left hooks.

Bonavena has never been knocked out and has scored 32 knockouts in compiling a pro record of 46-6-1. The Argentine has said he will win in 11 rounds.

At 6-foot-3, Ali has 6½-inch reach advantage over the 5-11 Bonavena.

But Bonavena does have bull-like strength and a tremendous ability to absorb punishment. These qualities along with his awkward style make Bonavena a dangerous opponent.

OSU, Texas Share Honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Ohio State, bully-boys of the Midwest, and Texas, scourge of the Southwest, have been named co-winners of the MacArthur Bowl.

The award, announced Sunday by the National Football Foundation, is presented each year to the top college football team in the country.

The Buckeyes and Longhorns, both undefeated and bowl-bound, will get the official presentation at the foundation's 13th annual Football Hall of Fame banquet here Tuesday night.

Texas, No. 1-ranked team in the country, wound up its regular season with a 10-0 record after beating Arkansas 42-7 Saturday. The Longhorns will play Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day.

Ohio State, 9-0, rated No. 2 in the Associated Press poll, plays Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

Cougars Attain .33 Average

WEST HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The Carolina Cougars reached the .333 mark in the American Basektball Association once more with a 94-90 win over the New York Nets Sunday night.

Dave Newmark, a seven-foot substitute center, scored 10 points in the final period to insure the win for Carolina. Frank Card was the Cougars' high point man with 25, followed by Joe Caldwell's 22.

The Nets had won four games in a row before the game, while Carolina dropped a 121-117 game to Texas Saturday and lost to Indiana Friday.

The New York Mets open their 1971 baseball season in Shea Stadium against the Montreal Expos on Tuesday, April 6. The Mets end the campaign at home against the St. Louis Cardinals on Thursday, Sept. 30.

NEW YORK (AP) — After riding 25 losing races in succession, Panamanian jockey Braulio Baeza won three races at Aqueduct on the 10th day of the fall meeting.

Dooley Gets An Extension

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina Head Coach Bill Dooley who guided the Tar Heels to an 8-3 season and a berth in the Peach Bowl has been given a new four-year contract.

Extension of Dooley's contract through the 1974 season was announced Saturday by UNC Athletic Director Homer Rice.

Rice recommended the new contract for Dooley and his aides after North Carolina wound up its regular season with a 59-34 win over its arch rival, Duke.

The UNC athletic council and J. Carlyle Sitterson quickly approved the recommendation.

Dooley was faced with a rebuilding program when he arrived at UNC in 1967. After two losing seasons, the Tar Heels broke even in 1969 with a 5-5 record. Then this year's team swept 8 of 11 games and will play unbeaten Arizona State in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta on Dec. 30. It is the best record for the Tar Heels since 1963 when they had 9-2.

Four SC Contenders May Shed Light On Close Race This Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pair of games involving four of the teams generally considered to be leading contenders may shed some early season light this week on the Southern Conference basketball race — which for the first time in four years is not considered to be a Davidson cakewalk.

The most crucial of the two comes Wednesday night in Charlotte, N. C., when the three-time defending champion Wildcats open their campaign against East Carolina's Pirates, the team many observers believe could take it all this year.

William and Mary's Indians invade The Citadel for a league encounter Saturday night that could establish one of those two as a challenger.

Even just two family squabbles will come as a welcome relief to conference teams, who came out of the first week of the first week of the season with a 3-7 record against outside opposition.

Four of the defeats were Saturday night as The Citadel lost for the first tiemat Tulane 75-69, Furman bowed to West Virginia 101-95, William and Mary was overpowered by North Carolina 101-72 and Virginia Military's Keydets took an 82-47 drubbing at Army.

The Citadel held a 30-24 halftime lead as Tulane shot just 21 per cent in the first 20 minutes, but the green Wave rallied after intermission to win even though it finished with 33 per cent accuracy to 39 per cent for the Bulldogs, whose John Sutor had 20 points and 21 rebounds.

Will Robinson's second straight 39-point performance paced West Virginia past Furman, which pulled to within two points at one stage in the second half before the Mountaineers went on a 14-2 spree for a 70-56 lead. Lisco Thomas had 23 points and Bernard Collier 18 for the Paladins.

The opening of William and Mary's new $5.3 million convocation center wasn't a success any way the Indians looked at it. There was no heat in the not yet completed facility, but that didn't bother North Carolina, which shot a blistering 58 per cent from the floor.

The Tar Heels, leading at intermission, outscored the Indians 25-13 in the first eight minutes of the second half to turn the game into a rout. Sophomore George Karl had 27 points for North Carolina, while the Indians were led by Steve Dodge with 22 and Tom Jasper with 18.

Ed Mueller scored 16 of his 19 points in the first half as Army raced to a 34-17 lead in handing VMI its third successive defeat. Doug Clevenger led Army with 22 points, Jan Essenburg the Keydets with 14.

Tonight's schedule lists three more nonconference scraps with VMI entertaining Old Dominion, East Carolina at Home against Charleston Baptist and William and Mary playing host to Georgetown.

Already One Upset For ACC Cagers In 6 Days

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 1970-71 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball season ends its first seven days tonight with one upset already on the books. Another conference team — South Carolina — is challenging for the No. 1 spot in the country.

And a key game is tonight in Durham when Michigan comes to try and avenge a home court loss last year to Bucky Waters' Duke Blue Devils.

Duke was the team which was upset Saturday, 95-90 at Virginia, but Waters said, "We don't have time to mourn."

The young coach added, "The only injuries were to our pride (in the loss to the Cavaliers). I'm disappointed but we still have a good basketball team."

He said, "It was no fluke Virginia played very well. We had them down by 13 points with less than 10 minutes to play — then had some good shots but didn't hit them. It was a phenomenon of the game in which the momentum changed.

"Now Michigan comes. They're a good team. We've got to be ready."

The Wolverines have lost both their games but Waters pointed out their opponents were nationally ranked teams. First Notre Dame took a 94-81 victory, then Saturday night Kentucky won, 104-93. Notre Dame was ranked fifth by The Associated Press last week and the Wildcats third.

The only other game involving an ACC team tonight pits N.C. State against Georgia at Athens.

The other surprise in the conference was the relatively easy way the No. 2-ranked South Carolina Gamecocks handled Notre Dame at South Bend, taking an 85-82 victory on John Roche's 32 points. The Gamecocks held the Irish All-American Austin Carr to 27 points, 21 of them in the second half.

Gamecock coach Frank McGuire said, "I think our zone defense plus John Roche's play were the keys to the victory. We started out in a man-to-man defense but switched to a zone to shut off Carr.

"I'll say one thing," McGuire added. "The people who were there saw the two best when they saw Roche and Carr."

In other games featuring conference teams Saturday, only N.C. State lost, 91-85 to Auburn. Maryland walloped Buffalo, 109-70; Clemson stopped Mercer, 61-46; North Carolina downed William & Mary, 101-72; and Wake Forest socked Temple, 71-55.

Broke Bone In Punching Rival

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers of the National Hockey League will be without the services of left winger Vic Hadfield for approximately four weeks, Coach Emile Francis announced Sunday night.

Hadfield broke the middle metacarpal bone in his right hand while landing a punch to the head of Vancouver forward Rosaire Paiement in a fight during Sunday night's New York-Vancouver game.

RALEIGH — The Greenville Tennis Club was admitted to membership for the 1971 year at a meeting of the East Carolina Tennis Ass'n over the weekend.

Teams representing Greenville will play in both the Men's League and Ladies League. It marks the first time Greenville will be competing in the eastern division of the ECTA, playing against Kinston, Rocky Mount, Goldsboro and Wilson.

Wes Hankins was elected team captain for the season.

Those attending the ECTA meeting from Greenville, were: Jack Stoughton, Bill Still and Hankins.

Fish Losing To Airboats

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Airboats skimming Florida's Everglades at 50 miles an hour are a common thing but fishermen in search of new thrills are now riding the propeller-powered craft to the inaccessible and shallow flats of the Bahamas in search of bonefish.

The fighting bonefish are plentiful off Andros Island, but the clever gamefish often find refuge in waters less than six inches deep.

No longer, if you use an airboat.

"Airboats make bonefishing a different sport," says Bob Parker of Miami, who owns Andros Beach Colony with brother Bill.

"If you were brave enough before this innovation," he says, "you might be able to weave around and get there in a small outboard. Now the airboats can cover the 10-mile trip in 20 minutes and operate in as little as a quarter inch of water."

While the swamplands' airboats create ear-popping noise, the Parkers' specially-designed craft can cut back and scan for fish with the silence of a sewing machine.

"There's no exhaust to warn the fish you're coming," said Parker. "Bonefish are great fighters and have a keen sense of smell and hearing that allows them to escape fishermen who make racker. "It's a whole new ball game and anybody who has gone after bonefish in the conventional way will love this new method."

Sweet Revenge In Tourney

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — Davis & Elkins College of West Virginia got sweet revenge Saturday for a loss in the finals of last year's National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Socer Tournament.

The Davis & Elkins team shut out Quincy, Ill., College, 2-0, for the NAIA championship. Quincy had beaten the West Virginians in the 1969 finals.

Third place in the double elimination, four-day tournament was won by host Campbell College, 2-1 over New Platz, N.Y., in double overtime.

Bill Garrett Conquers His Nervousness

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Big Bill Garrett is a first time victor. Lee Trevino is the leading money winner. And Arnold Palmer still is looking.

"I was so nervous I could hardly walk when I started out," the gangling, drawling Garrett said of his final round 69 that won the $25,000 first prize in the Coral Springs Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

He hadn't even come close to winning before. His best finish this year had been a tie for 18th. The best in his five-year pro career was a seventh last season. He had won only $8,300 going into this tournament.

But the 6-foot-6 Texan conquered his nervousness, held off the frustrated Trevino and finished with a 72-hole total of 272, 12 under par on the 6,843 yard Coral Springs Country Club course.

Trevino, tied for the top spot going into the final round, just couldn't get it going, shot a par 71 and tied for third at 274.

But Trevino picked up $7,350 and moved past idle Billy Casper and Jack Nicklaus into the No. 1 money winning spot with $147,522.

"I'd like to be the leading money winner," Trevino said, "even though everybody knows I'm just making money for Uncle Sam now.

"I could have won the tournament, but I just couldn't make a putt."

Palmer had the same complaint, even though he had a 66 for 276.

"If I had made some putts, I'd have been in contention," Palmer said, then immediately filled an entry for this week's Bahama Islands Open, the last event on the schedule this season and Palmer's last chance at keeping alive his record of having won at least one tournament a year ever since 1955.

Bob Murphy, five strokes off the pace going into the final round, charged in with a sparkling 65 and took second at 273, one stroke back of Garrett. Rookie Vic Loustalot, with a 66, tied Trevino at 274 and Julius Boros was alone at 275 after a 70.

Garrett, a 30-year-old North Texas State graduate, made his round with a string of three consecutive birdies starting on the third hole, but said a couple of desperately scrambling pars on the first two holes was the key.

The big, laconie, moon-faced guy from Amarillo, Tex., had never been in this position before when he went to to the first tee.

He topped his drive on the par five hole, almost put his second in the water, was over the green in three, then chipped back to six feet and made the putt to save par. He put his tee shot in a trap on the next, a par three, but blasted out to one foot and again saved par.

TAKES BALL AND CAKE

It was his 100th win at Dartmouth and when the game was over his players presented him with the game ball and a cake bearing an appropriate inscription.

National Football League teams this year made 76 trades involving 113 players.

When they're looking up to you, are they really looking down at you?

The station wagon on the left is known in some circles as a status symbol.

The station wagon on the right is known in the same circles as a mistake.

Now the status symbol is long and low and really quite beautiful.

Whereas the Volkswagen is short and high and really quite ugly.

The status symbol features a powerful engine.

A Volkswagen engine is not as powerful, but it'll go a whole lot farther on a gallon of gas.

The status symbol boasts roughly 88 cubic feet of carrying space.

The Volkswagen has twice that amount. 176 cubic feet.

Conclusion:

If you're looking for something to show how big you are, then we suggest you get yourself a status symbol.

But if you're looking for something that's just plain big, then maybe it wasn't us who made the mistake after all.

Came Job-Hunting In America At The Wrong Time

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — For Raj Pal Sawhney, the distance between India and Charlotte, N.C., is several thousand miles of disappointment. He came looking for a job at the wrong time.

At any other time Sawhney (pronounced Sah-hah-nee) probably would have had offers from any number of textile mills.

Several months ago he quit his job as supervisor of 800 persons in a department of a textile mill in India that employed 12,000 persons. That alone is impressive, but there's more.

He has a bachelor's degree, a master's degree, four years in a textile institute, 19 years' experience and he's willing to work for $10,000 a year.

Sawhney is almost broke now. And with no good prospects for a job, he is faced with forced return to India when his money runs out.

Unluckily, he came to what he thought was the land of milk and honey when sour grapes was the big topic on Wall Street. Many middle-management executives are out of work all across North and South Carolina, and all across the country.

"My wife told me before I left, 'we're quite well, quite happy here in our homeland. You'll face a lot of frustration.'

"But," said Sawhney, "it had always been my dream to work in America with the latest technical machines."

Sawhney spent half his life preparing to come to this country.

He told his story as he sat in the living room of a friend who came here from India 10 years ago to work in textiles. Sawhney captivates a listener with his deep, pear-shaped tones as he rivets his brown eyes to another man's face.

At 41, he is graying heavily at the temples, and that gives him an outward air of sophistication. His English is impeccable. He could pass for a professor.

And he does not blunder through a conversation. Often he saw a puzzled expression of an interviewer who was listening to a technical explanation of what he did in the mill in India. He brought the explanation down to a lower level, but gradually, so the listener wouldn't feel embarrassed.

He talked about his failure to find a job so far as if it were a pleasant experience, a little smile tugging at the corners of his broad mouth every now and then.

"I first went to Augusta, Georgia where I have friends," he said. "I went to almost all the employment agencies there. After that I went to Philadelphia for two weeks."

Then it was more employment agencies. On to New York. More employment agencies. One interview. No job. On to Charlotte. More personnel agencies.

His face began to betray some of the disappointment and he swept the thick, stubby fingers of one hand across his jet black hair.

"But it is better to wait than go home," he said. "Everyone is saying the economy will pick up in 1971."

Since he has been here he has received a generous offer from a company building a new plant in Lagos, Nigeria. A letter from the company offers accomodations and medical aid free in addition to a good salary.

"My wife and I could have several servants," he said. "But I didn't come here for that."

What about his wife?

"She is very eager to join me with the children, but I can't call her unless I settle myself," he said. Even then it would be perhaps another five or six months while he saved enough money to help them get started.

He says he misses his wife and two children, and his broad shoulders sag a little when he talks about them. It's "very lonely," he said, and then quickly changed the subject to brighter days ahead.

Sawhney was asked if there might be some discrimination by American firms, for personnel agencies admit that companies tend to think that technical workers from India are prone to go back to that country after working here two or three years.

"They have told me this," he said, "but all I can say is that all I want is a chance to prove myself. I would go to work for $10,000 a year, much less than anyone else with my experience would take."

He says he can hold out for only a few months with the money he has. India, he says permits persons leaving the country to take only $600 with them.

Until then, or until he finds a job, he will continue to lead boring days of scanning newspapers, reading technical journals, and making trips by bus downtown to the employment agencies.

"I have hope," he said.

Plan Area Meet On Agriculture

An area meeting has been scheduled for Greenville on Wednesday, December 9, to give local people an opportunity to discuss agricultural matters with several administrators from North Carolina State University.

Ed Yancey, Pitt County Extension chairman, said the Greenville meeting has been planned for the people of Beaufort, Lenoir, Martin, Greene and Pitt Counties.

Twenty-one such meetings are planned across the state in an effort to improve communications between local citizens and the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences at NCSU, Yancey explained.

"The NCSU officials will report on what the University is doing in the way of agricultural teaching, research and extension. Local people will have an opportunity to discuss their problems and needs," Yancey added.

Farmers, agri-businessmen and other people with an interest in agriculture are invited. Starting time is 7:30 p.m. and the place is the Pitt County Courthouse.

John A. Senter, president of the N. C. Agricultural Foundation, plans to attend the meeting. NCSU will be represented by Dr. H. Brooks James, who was recently promoted from dean of the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences at NCSU to vice president of the University of North Carolina.

Also participating will be Harold Flanagan, who is a member of the N. C. Agricultural Foundation from Pitt County.

Toyota Once Loom-Maker

TOKYO (UPI) —The industrial giant now known as the Toyota Group began around the turn of the century when Sakichi Toyoda attracted world attention with his invention of the automatic loom.

In 1933, the Toyoda Automatic Loom Works, Ltd., began looking into the possibility of automobile production. The first cars and trucks were produced in 1936, largely handassembled by an all-Japanese staff.

Drawing an American techniques, the Toyota Motor Co. set up a huge assembly line plant at Koromo in 1938. Today, Toyota is Japan's No. 1 auto maker, fifth largest car producer in the world and 15th largest corporation outside the United States.

The original family name was Toyoda, but it was changed to Toyota for the brand name for the sake of simplicity in the written Japanese language. The name means "rich field."

Energy Crisis Facing U.S. With Winter Arriving

Editor's Note: An energy crisis of unprecedented proportions faces America as winter arrives. This dispatch, the first of four articles from the AP Special Assignment Team, traces the scope of the crisis affecting millions of consumers.

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is heading into a long, cold winter on the brink of an energy crisis that could force industry shutdowns, balloon already inflated fuel and utility prices and spur widespread rationing of oil, gas, coal and electricity.

And, barring a minor miracle, the situation next year will be even worse.

Problems are most acute along the East Coast, in the Tennessee Valley, in the upper Midwest and the far Northwest.

A nationwide Associated Press study of the energy crisis has disclosed:

—Some industries have been warned that if this winter is hard, their gas and electricity may have to be shut off to preserve sufficient supplies to heat private homes.

—Many businesses and industries have been told they can't expand or build new plants because there is not sufficient gas or electricity to operate and heat them.

—In some areas, private home builders have been told they will have to scrap their plans if they are thinking of heating with gas. There just isn't any available.

—Electric utility systems that use oil and coal to fuel their generators frequently have had to get by on a day-to-day basis as fuel contracts ran out. New contracts have been hard to come by and have run up fuel costs by anywhere from 10 to 275 per cent.

—The sky-high fuel prices paid by both gas and electric utility companies are being passed on to customers in utility rate hikes, and further increases in utility bills are likely later this year and next year.

—Rising prices for coal, oil, gas and electricity have been a big factor in the steady rise of the Consumer Price Index, a major gauge of inflation. In October, the index showed a 6.9 per cent increase in the price of fuel oil and coal over October, 1969. In the same period, the price of gas and electricity rose 5.6 per cent.

The crisis of power in the United States has been building for a decade, fed by schizophrenic regulatory systems, grossly inaccurate and inadequate long-range planning and emergency corrective measures which frequently proved too little, too late.

In addition, this year brought new air pollution laws which require the use of only low-sulphur fuels, crimping the market even further; a new coal mine health and safety law which adds considerable expense to the operation of coal mines and has forced the shutdown of some economically marginal mines, and international political crises which played havoc with the flow of oil from North Africa, the Middle East and the Caribbean.

The Consumers Power Co., which supplies nearly half of Michigan, is so short of natural gas that service has been put on a priority basis—private homes first, big industry last.

It was the new air pollution laws that require burning clean fuel which created the initial rush on Consumers' supply. Then a contract between Consumers and its pipeline supplier fell through because the pipeline company turned up short of gas.

"We've looked everywhere we can think of for new sources," said Jack Dyer, a company spokesman. "We couldn't find any. The only answer is for us to do our own exploring and drilling and we've begun that, but it's going to be at least three to five years before we get any relief."

The picture isn't much brighter for coal users.

The Tennessee Valley Authority, the largest electric utility in the country in terms of generating capacity, had only a 15-day coal stockpile at the end of October. That could be used up in a heavy cold snap.

But James Watson, TVA's power manager, said he expects big problems only in the event of a wildcat coal mine strike or strikes against the railroads, the principal means of coal delivery. Both are possibilities.

Coal delivered to the TVA under long-term contract has gone up slightly in price, and coal bought on the spot market—that is, on a day-to-day basis—has nearly doubled in price, from $4 a ton last year to near $8 a ton now. Similar price increases have hit such utilities as Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co. and Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co.

And the quality of the coal is depreciating.

"The coal we're getting now doesn't have as high a heat content," said TVA's Watson. "Heat production that took 32 million tons last year will take 34 million tons this year."

In the far Northwest, pollution and fuel quality aren't a problem for the Bonneville Power Administration which serves 250,000 square miles of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and western Montana. BPA's output is primarily hydroelectric power. Its water is always clean and doesn't vary in quality. But this year there is a problem of quantity.

The rivers in the Northwest are far below normal levels. This fall, the Columbia River was recorded at one of its lowest levels in history. BPA has been drawing water from its reservoirs for power, but now they are dangerously low.

Said Bernard Goldhammer, acting BPA administrator: "It's April or May until the mountain snows melt and refill the reservoirs and right now there isn't enough water in them to get us through until April."

Typical of the problem is the experience of the Electric Light Department of Braintree, Mass., a Boston suburb of 40,000. At the end of July the department was paying $1.79 a barrel for fuel oil it burns to run its generating systems. Now it is paying $4.91 a barrel.

"We have to pass the cost on to our customers and they're really screaming," said Alban G. Spurrell, manager of the department. "we took out a full page newspaper ad to explain to them that it was either pay the price or get no oil. But they just don't understand."

One Braintree resident wrote Spurrell: "Now that we, the consumers, are being soaked a combination oil and electric bill (sic), we trust that in the future we will hear less commercialism on radio and TV regarding the economy and self-sufficiency of electricity."

Braintree's contract for fuel oil runs only through January and the 20,000 barrels the city has contracted for is not enough to build up a reserve. So by January, Braintree is going to have to scramble again for another contract and Spurrell isn't optimistic. "We'll just have to hope for the best," he said.

Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co., of Chicago, figures it has enough natural gas to serve present customers through this winter "providing all things are normal—normal weather and normal operating conditions," said Edward Joyce, manager of corporate communications.

"But I wouldn't call the situation good, or even satisfactory," he added. "There's no new gas available and until we get new gas we're not giving anything to anybody. We're not taking any new customers—industrial, commercial or residential. All we're taking now is applications."

The Bonneville crisis has reverberated all the way south to Los Angeles. Estimates of that city's winter fuel oil needs have been revised upward by 1.4 million barrels, due in part to the inability of Los Angeles to get excess power from the BPA.

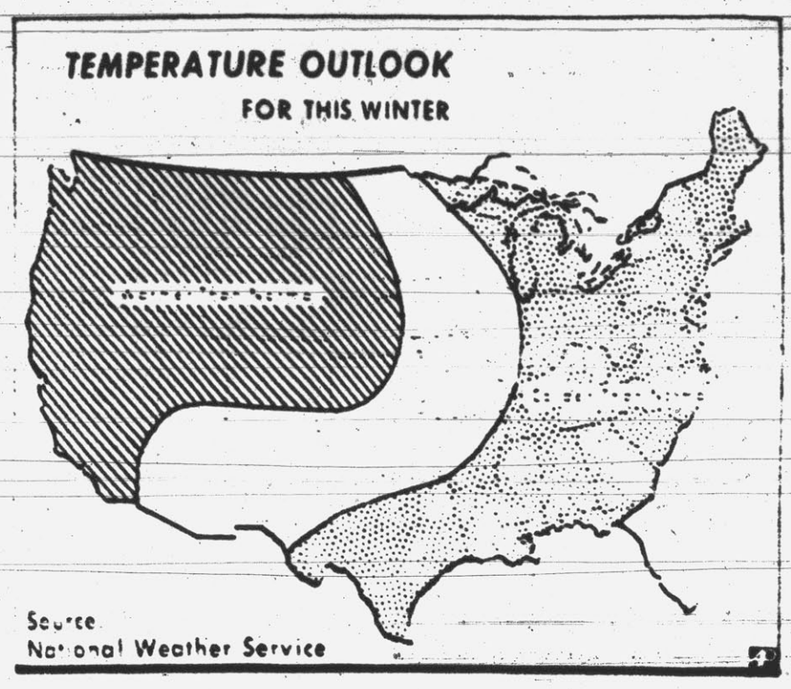
Floyd L. Goss, assistant manager of the Los Angeles Water and Power Department, reports he can't get enough additional fuel oil, either. As of mid-November, the expected winter deficit in Los Angeles was 1.2 million barrels.

The prospects for BPA aid to Los Angeles are slim, since BPA officials fear they may not have enough power to meet the needs of the Northwest.

"It's a hell of a thing," said an official of one Ohio utility. "We live in a nation with the best technology in the world. That technology depends entirely on energy to drive it.

"In my worst moments I have nightmares about the whole country coming to a grinding, screeching, blacked-out halt. Realistically I know it won't get that bad. But it scares me that it's gotten as bad as it is.

"It shouldn't be happening. There's really no excuse for it."



WINTER OUTLOOK — Map shows long range weather forecast for December, January and February by National Weather Service. Colder than normal temperatures are predicted over eastern third of the nation. (AP Wirephoto)

East Awaits Cold Winter

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — In the midst of serious fuel supply problems across most of the country, a special long-range weather forecast has predicted colder than normal temperatures this winter over the eastern third of the nation and along the Gulf Coast as far west as Texas.

All or part of 30 states may be in for a hard winter, according to the preliminary calculations of the Extended Forecast Division of the National Weather Service, formerly the U.S. Weather Bureau.

The same forecast is for warmer than normal temperatures in the Far West and over most of the Plains States.

A transitional zone which begins along the northern borders of North Dakota and Minnesota and sweeps to Texas and west to Arizona could go either way, according to Dr. Donald L. Gilman, chief of the development and testing section of the extended forecast division. Most of Florida also is in the "unknown" category.

The forecast was done in September at the request of a Senate subcommittee and will not be updated until sometime in December. Gilman emphasizes the tentative nature of a forecast made so early.

Decoration Contest Set

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Kiwanis Club will sponsor a Christmas home decorations contest the week of Christmas, according to Linwood Hooks, club president.

The houses inside the town limits and one-mile outside the limits will be viewed. If anyone living outside this area desires to enter the event, they may call Randolph Harris at 756-2813.

The houses will be judged during the week of Dec. 21-24 and the winners will be announced after Christmas.

First place winner will receive $25 while second place will receive $15. Ten dollars will be given to the third place winner.

A committee, composed of people living outside the Winterville area, will serve as judges for the contest, therefore, allowing Kiwanis members to participate.

President Hooks urges people in the Winterville area to do a good job of decorating for Christmas whether or not they are interested in the contest.

Women on the average lose 5.3 work days per year because of illness or injury compared with 5.4 for men, reports the Public Health Service.

Hussein, Dayan Making Visits To U.S.

By ENDRE MARTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Arab and Israeli leaders are due this week to meet with U.S. officials as part of stepped up maneuvering preceding the expected resumption of Middle East peace talks.

Jordan's King Hussein is scheduled to start the discussions upon arrival Tuesday. He leaves Thursday, the day before Israeli Defense Minister Moishe Dayan arrives.

The Israeli war hero originally scheduled his visit as a private, fund-raising trip, but he, too, will see high U.S. officials before returning to the Mideast.

Hussein, who is making his fourth trip to the United States since the 1967 war, is expected to dwell on the resumption of negotiations, military aid and the Palestinian guerrilla situation.

The question of the peace talks is overriding, however, in the minds of the U.S. officials.

They are also said to be convinced the talks, under the auspices of United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring, will resume before the current cease-fire runs out Feb. 5.

All parties, including Israel, are ready for a new effort at negotiations, the officials say.

However, there were indications in Jerusalem Sunday that Israel, which broke off the original talks Aug. 25 because of alleged Egyptian violations of the cease-fire, is not ready for the new talks.

Premier Golda Meir said she "sees the need for further clarification" with the United States on conditions sought by her government before rejoining the talks.

Dayan's trip apparently holds the key to the clarification sought by Mrs. Meir about American political, economic and military support.

She made her clarification statement in the wake of a note from President Nixon reaffirming U.S. pledges to supply arms to the Jewish state if necessary to maintain the Mideast balance of power.

The Nixon note, while described by Israeli sources as "friendly and sympathetic," nonetheless was said to be unclear, particularly regarding two questions:

—Whether the United States will continue to back plans disclosed by Secretary of State William P. Rogers last year calling for Israeli withdrawal from most Arab territory conquered in 1967.

—Whether the United States would veto a Soviet-Arab effort in the U.N. Security Council to obtain a new interpretation of the resolution that ended the 1967 fighting. The Israelis say that resolution called for peace talks and withdrawal to new borders. The Arabs say the resolution means Israel should withdraw from all conquered land.

He also is expected to tell the U.S. officials that the question of the Palestinian guerrillas cannot be settled until Israel evacuates the territory it won from Jordan.

Hussein, too, is expected to seek a clearer understanding of the U.S. position regarding his nation's role in any new negotiations.

The king obviously will discuss what military hardware he wants from the $30 million grant President Nixon proposed for Jordan.

Delegation Seeks Meet Diplomats

PARIS (AP) — A nine-member delegation from Charlotte, N.C., prepared today to attempt their first contact with North Vietnamese diplomats to discuss American prisoners of war.

The group arrived in Paris Sunday with about 380,000 letters asking for information on the prisoners, more humane treatment and Red Cross intervention. The letters were contained in more than 80 mailbags.

Roddey Dowd, a Charlotte businessman, said the group plans to stay in Paris, just as long as necessary to do the job."

They are seeking an interview with Mai Van Bo, head of the North Vietnamese diplomatic mission in Paris. They hope to speak with him and to deliver the letters, which were collected in a 2½-week drive.

The group was held up some time at Orly Airport while the huge consignment of mail was cleared. "They hadn't seen so many bags of mail at once," Dowd said, "and it took a little while to clear them."

The idea to flood the North Vietnamese with requests for information originated in Virginia, and two delegations from there have come to Paris with petitions signed by many thousands of persons. The North Vietnamese saw the first delegation and accepted their petition but turned the second one away.

Readers Provided Extra Information

Several interested readers have volunteered additional information on the big yellow two story frame house on Greene Street now being demolished.

The house was one of three pictured and described in a feature article in The Daily Reflector yesterday.

According to informants, the two story house was a wedding gift to James Benjamin White and Nancy (Miss Nannie) Fleming on the occasion of their wedding early in the century.

The late Mr. and Mrs. White were the children of Captain and Mrs. Charles A. White and Mr. and Mrs. James Leonidas Fleming, who gave the house to their children as a wedding gift.

Mrs. Thomas McMillan, one of the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Benjamin White, said that Mrs. White lived in the wedding gift house until her death in 1965.

States, Cities, Counties Seek Revenue Shares

ATLANTA (AP) — Representatives of states, cities, counties and state legislature agreed Sunday to ask the federal government to share substantial amounts of its revenue with state and local governments with no strings attached.

This was reported by North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott who said the group which met on the eve of the 47th annual Congress of Cities had agreed on eight principles of revenue sharing.

The eight principles were:

—Revenue sharing should be a per cent of the federal income tax base.

—It should be a substantial amount.

—There should be a continuing and predictable annual commitment.

—The revenues would be for general purposes of state and local governments.

—The revenues should be unrestricted as to use.

—The revenues would be allocated to the states on a formula basis as presently contemplated in the administration's bill.

—The states should share with local governments according to a prescribed formula.

—The group agreed to continue to work together.

Scott, who represented the National Governors' Conference at the session, said he plans to confer with the chairman of the governors conference, Gov. Warren Hearns of Missouri, about "the desirability of calling a special meeting" of the conference "to take a formal position on this proposal which we worked out." He said the conference has long favored the principal of revenue sharing.

"This meeting and subsequent actions to be taken by the Nixon Administration and Congress are extremely important to the 50 states as well as local government," said Scott who heads the governors conference committee on revenue sharing. The session was attended by representatives of the governor's conference, National Legislative Conference, National League of Cities, National Association of Counties, National Conference of State Legislative Leaders, National Society of State Legislators, U.S. Conference of Mayors, and the International City Management Association.

Annual Meet

The seventh annual membership meeting of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association will be held Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Speakers for the meeting will be Dr. Leo Jenkins, Dr. J. W. Pou, T. W. Willis and Woodrow Wooten.

A report on the nominating committee will be made. The presentation of the President's Award and the Citizen-Of-The-Year Award will be made.

Scott To Honor 19 Communities

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott will honor 19 North Carolina communities at a ceremony here Wednesday for making themselves more attractive for industry.

The communities are: Andrews, Boone, Creedmoor, Granite Falls, Holly Ridge, Hudson, Lenoir, Middlesex, Murfreesboro, North Wilkesboro, Red Springs, Roanoke Rapids, Sparta, Swansboro, Tabor City, Wallace, West Jefferson, Wilkesboro and Winterville.

Scott will present the governor's award to officials of the communities in the ceremony in the auditorium of the Archives and History Building at 11:15 a. m.

When was the last time you put a price tag on your children?

You've probably said that your children are worth a million dollars to you.

And if someone actually offered you that, it wouldn't be enough.

If you are like most parents, your children are beyond price. And their health has never been a place to cut corners.

Don't try to save a little by not buying enough milk. Penny for penny, milk gives your children more vitamins, minerals, protein and other nutrients than any other food.

And when it comes to your children, who counts pennies?

Milk.

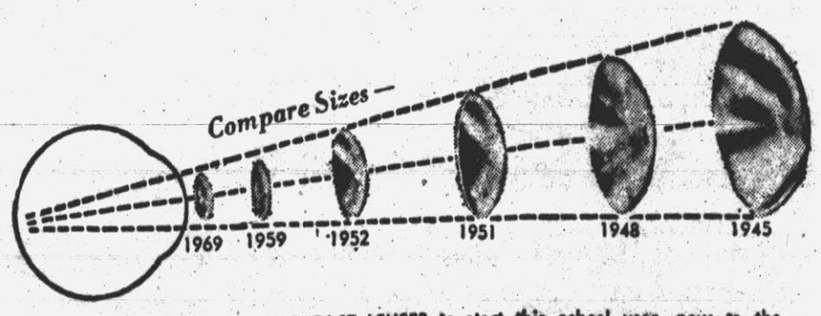
GET YOUR CONTACT LENSES NOW FOR BACK-TO-SCHOOL



If you are thinking about CONTACT LENSES to start this school year, now is the time to make your appointment! The ideal situation is to allow four to five weeks for your doctor's eye examination, your contact lens fitting, and follow-up visits or checks-ups. This is normal time required for your wearing time to progress properly so that you adapt to your new contact lenses before going off to school. Don't put it off . . . Call your eye doctor for an appointment and ask him about the many advantages of contact lenses. If your doctor recommends contact lenses or eye glasses, bring your prescription to us for prompt, accurate service!

Understanding The Difference

Opal wonders why men and women differ in their views of sex. So scrapbook this case. For it can relieve a lot of misunderstanding in marriage. Many wives have foolishly filed for divorce, thinking their mates didn't love them. But love is not required for a man to relish an affair with a paramour! Wives, get hep! Fight fire with fire!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE P-505: Opal G., aged 38 is puzzled.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I was fond of love stories and the 'soap operas' that used to be so popular on radio.

"But my husband can't stand them!

"So why do men dislike love stories but then tell so many vulgar jokes involving sex?

"But women, who enjoy love romances, seldom sit around in corners exchanging lewd stories. Why?"

Wives differ markedly from husbands in their attitude toward love and sex.

For love and sex are fused in the minds of the usual normal woman.

Then they discard the "love" aspect when viewing other women and think mainly in terms of sex alone.

This is a basic difference between the human male and female.

It is also difficult for many wives to understand.

"Dr. Crane," they may tearfully inquire, "how could my husband still love me when he is having an affair with another woman?"

But that "affair" is not like his romance with his wife!

It is merely a sexual attraction, maybe supplemented with some ego inflation at being able to function erotically when he had begun to doubt his own virility.

When a man is chasing around with another woman, he may tell her he loves her, as a means of soothing her conscience.

For women tend to feel that "love" excuses their sexual indiscretions.

Plus alcohol! Which is why women often drink when they are subconsciously on the prowl.

So the usual roaming male protests deep love for his paramour, though he knows he is fibbing to her.

Actually, he'd probably be glad to trade her off the very next night for another sensual beauty star.

For a man regards sex as a form of conquest.

Seducing a new woman is in much the same category as shooting a deer or catching a prize winning bass or rainbow trout.

Hunters and fishermen obviously aren't in a love affair with the deer or elk or fish! They merely relish the sport of conquest!

But women are seldom interested in shooting squirrels, rabbits, deer or bear.

Nor do they relish prize fighting or rough physical sports, such as football.

For there is a definite sexual difference in the attitudes of man and woman.

Moreover, women like to dilly dally in romance and listen to a long verbal palaver. Men are more direct and abrupt.

Imagine a food-hungry male wanting to palaver for 30 minutes at the dinner table before he bits into his steak and potatoes!

Yet you wives often grumble because he doesn't prolong the prelude to the cheesecake in the boudoir!

When men are hungry, they want satisfaction quickly. Women crave sweet phrases and prolong romantic conversation.

"I didn't come here to talk," replied Napoleon when he invaded Josephine's boudoir at 2 A.M.

See Hughes' Empire Power Struggle

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rival factions in the empire of ailing billionaire Howard Hughes are struggling for control of his big stake in Nevada gambling and possibly his entire industrial and financial complex.

Amid reports that Hughes himself has gone to the Bahamas, sheriff's deputies searched his penthouse retreat on the Las Vegas Strip Sunday and reported they found no trace of the mystery man.

The sheriff's department reported that a doctor who treated Hughes Nov. 5 said he was too ill to be moved anywhere except to a hospital.

The doctor said Hughes at that time was suffering from pneumonia, anemia and a heart condition and had received blood transfusions, a sheriff's officer said.

Hughes, 64, disappeared Nov. 25 from the penthouse atop his Desert Inn hotel.

Undersheriff Lloyd Bell, who led a 10-man sweep of the penthouse, said the search was prompted by reports that foul play may have been involved in Hughes' departure.

Though they had no warrant, the deputies searched all but Hughes' locked personal room before being asked to leave.

"On the basis of what we saw," Bell said, "we have as much reason to believe foul play was involved as that it was not."

He did not say what the officers saw and gave no further explanation.

Reports indicate that control not only of Hughes $300 million Nevada investment but of his entire $2 billion industrial and financial empire may be at stake in the power struggle that surfaced here last week.

Pitted in the battle are executives of Hughes Tool Co. of Houston, Tex., the family firm on which he built his wealth, and the staff that handled his operations as the major figure in Nevada's legal gaming industry as well as the state's largest land owner and employer.

The Hughes Tool forces arrived last Friday, led by senior vice president Frank Gay and corporate counsel Chester Davis. They announced the firing of Robert Maheu, chief executive of Hughes' Nevada operations, and Jack Hooper, Nevada operations security director.

Maheu, 53, a former FBI agent, said he did not believe Hughes had ordered his firing and refused to give up control of Hughes Nevada operations.

He obtained a court order prohibiting interference with his stewardship.

Sources in the Hughes Tool faction said Maheu was fired at Hughes' direct order because he was not producing enough revenue on the Nevada investment.

Spokesmen for Hughes Tool have said repeatedly the group possesses a document signed by Hughes giving them power of attorney to act for him.

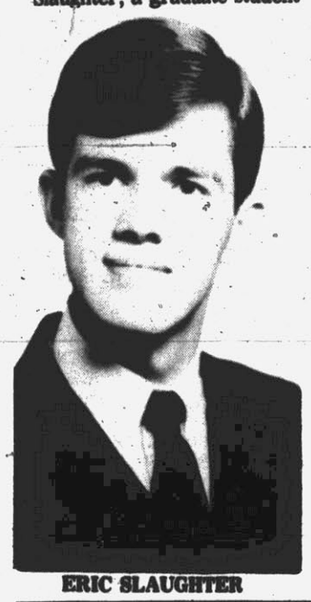
Gov. Paul Laxalt and state gaming control and licensing officials flew from Carson City, the capital, to Las Vegas, where Laxalt tried to set up for today separate meetings with both sides in the struggle.

Laxalt said that any change in the present management of the Hughes casinos might require a personal appearance by Hughes to confirm he wanted personnel replacements and explain why.

To Be Speaking On Environment

The Greenville Chapter of the Provisional League of Women Voters will feature Eric Slaughter as guest speaker at their general monthly meeting to be held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church Wednesday night at eight o'clock.

Slaughter, a graduate student at East Carolina University and an officer in ECOS, an Environmental Concern Group, is one of ten students who made a study for the National Science Foundation on the quality of water in Tar River and its tributaries.



ERIC SLAUGHTER

In the project, he assisted in directing undergraduate students in their research of environmental problems. He also participated in a survey of air pollution sources in Eastern North Carolina, in a study which was sponsored by a research grant made to Dr. Joseph Boyette.

Included in his lecture will be a slide show of specific pollution problems in Eastern North Carolina.

Mrs. Theresa Shank, publicity chairman for the League of Women Voters, said that because pollution has become a major concern to the public, the league is inviting all interested persons to attend this lecture. The league is a national nonpartisan organization.

JOHNNIE COLLINS III, originally from Greenville, has been signed by Columbia Pictures for his first starring role in a new feature film "Why?". The picture presents an in-depth study of group therapy and will be released in early spring. Collins co-starred in last season's "Tim Conway Show" and can be seen Dec. 9 on CBS' "The Governor and J.J.".

Scout Camporee Held Saturday And Sunday

The Pitt District fall scouting event, known as the Polar Bear Camporee, was held Saturday and Sunday at Troop 452 campsite on the Old River Road near Sally Branch.

A total of 225 scouts and their leaders from 14 district troops participated in the two-day scouting affair.

Theme of the camporee was physical fitness with the idea carried out through five organized events based on the president's youth physical fitness standards.

A camporee program was conducted Saturday night by the Order-of-the-Arrow. Church services were held Sunday morning at 8 a.m. by the Rev. Floyd Cherry of Greenville.

RECRUITER FOR GUILD — Billy Curtis, 63, four-feet two-inch midget, stood up at the Screen Actors Guild meeting to propose that midgets and dwarfs be given membership and voting privileges in the Guild. His proposal carried without dissent. Curtis says for 32 years the "little people" have worked in pictures under guild "waivers" granting full union advantage without the requirement of membership. Curtis has acted in more than 50 movies. (AP Wirephoto)

Ban Burning

RALEIGH (AP) — Because of dangerous forest fire conditions throughout the state, the State Forest service has banned burning within 500 feet of woodlands throughout most of North Carolina. It also canceled all brush burning permits.

The Forest Service reported that 445 fires had been reported in North Carolina in a two-day period and these burned 30,000 acres of land.

It said 28 fires were reported in the state Sunday and 16 of these were in the Whiteville district in southeastern North Carolina, and most of the 16 were in Robeson County.

"As of the moment we are holding our own," the Forest Service said, "and none of these fires appear to be serious."

The service said the ban on burning within 500 feet of woods and cancellation of brush burning permits were ordered "because of the forecasted continuation of several forest fire conditions." It said these conditions were low humidity and strong winds.

The service pointed out that its fire fighting crews "are heavily committed on fires that are contained but still dangerous and their capability to control new fires has been reduced seriously."

Survey Possible Professional Aid

Skeet Creekmore, newly-elected president of the Pitt County Association of Retarded Children, announced today that the North Carolina Association for Retarded Children is making a survey of inactive professional people in the area who have a little time to give either part time or full time.

A list of professional people available in every community to staff programs for the mentally retarded and the handicapped will be compiled.

"One out of 20 mentally retarded people in North Carolina reside in state institutions. There are 5,000 beds in four centers, but there are 150,000 mentally retarded in North Carolina," stated Creekmore. "Turned around, this means that 19 out of 20 mentally retarded reside in our communities. Increased activity and new services are needed for these people."

Creekmore feels North Carolina is in need of programs to support these retarded people.

"Our attempts to start new services have been hampered by the lack of professional guidance," he continued.

New programs will include prenatal, post natal, early identification therapy treatments, special education sequencial programming, vocational training, job placement follow-up, independent homes, living opportunities, that can be provided in the communities.

"The survey is being conducted in an effort to change this," Creekmore said. "More programs and new services can be provided with the necessary professional help."

CUESMES, Belgium (UPI) — Cuesmes Town Council is seeking state and private aid to renovate the simple two-story farmhouse where painter Vincent van Gogh lived briefly in the late 1870s.

Lions Begin Yule Season

The Greenville Lions Club will begin their annual Christmas family celebration tonight with a hospitality period at 6:15 at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

According to Lion president Dr. Jay Collie, the evening of singing, dinner and gifts for the ladies will be highlighted for the children by a visit from Santa Claus who will bring along toys.

Nelson Taylor, lawyer and former member of the Legislature from Morehead City, will entertain the expected 135 Lions, their wives, families and guests.

Blind Products chairman Clark Stokes reports that the Blind Products gift shop will be located this year in the vacant lot formerly occupied by Heilig Meyers Furniture at the corner of Third and Cotanche Streets.

On Friday and Saturday, members of the Lions Club will deliver Christmas food baskets to needy blind families in Pitt County.
